In 1933, Americans consumed 52 pounds of beef per person; in 1953, Americans consumed 78 pounds and in 1973, they consumed 109 pounds of beef per person, according to Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — Vegetable economy this week centers on cabbage, broccoli and hard shell squash — along with carrots, dry yellow onions, potatoes, cooking greens, pumpkin, turnips and rutabagas. Fruit choices in line with budgets include apples and pears. Bartlett pears are in good supply, so look forward to plentiful winter varieties — D'anjou and Comice. New crop tangerines and cranberries, on the other hand, reflect first-of-the-season prices, the specialist reported.

C O N S U M E R WATCHWORDS — Sharp shopping starts with knowing which foods are in good supply, because they have the most attractive prices. Fewer than 22 per cent of the persons serving on Iowa's appointive boards and commissions are women. A study by the Iowa Women's Political Caucus reveals that only 235 of the 1,093 persons serving on more than 125 state boards and commissions are women.

Current features are loin chops, quarter loins cut into chops and Boston butt roasts, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Heavy beef prices remain about the same, and many markets offer two or more grades of beef — as more grass-fed beef is available, she said. Most economical beef choices are chuck roasts and steaks, round and rib steaks, liver and ground beef. Sugar prices likely will keep rising, so consumers should consider substituting honey or syrup in some situations, Mrs. Clyatt said. Rice harvests are expected to set a new record this year, which means large supplies and reasonable prices.

Sewing Fashionable Velvet Requires Care

COLLEGE STATION — A fashion trend for the fall is the "plush" look for dressy or sportswear attire. Pile fabrics such as velvet or velveteen create this popular look, one clothing specialist said this week. A few helpful sewing hints may help the homemaker create beautiful fashions at home with velvet. Beverly Rhoades, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said. Choose a pattern with a few design lines. The fabric itself will create interest. When purchasing a pile fabric, look for yardage requirements under "with nap" on the pattern envelope. If it's not listed, add three-eighths to three-fourths yard to amount given, she suggested. Be sure to cut all pattern pieces in the same direction to assure a uniform look. For a deeper, rich look, cut pattern pieces all going up. And for a frosted look, cut pattern pieces all going down. To determine pile direction, brush hand lightly over the surface. The surface feels smooth in the direction of the pile — the pile feels rough against the direction. The specialist suggested when sewing on velvet or velveteen, use a size 11 needle and 8-12 stitches per inch. The heavier the fabric, the longer stitch will be needed. To prevent shifting of fabric layers, reduce pressure on the presser foot and stitch in the direction of the pile. Loosen thread tension, to produce a balanced stitch, she advised. Baste seams together by hand to check fit. Make adjustments if needed, and machine stitch over the basting. This eliminates the need to remove machine basting stitches which may mar the pile surface. Miss Rhoades explained. Pressing must be done carefully. For best results, press pile side down on a velvet board (needle board) or on a thick turkish towel. Hold the iron over the fabric and let the steam do the work. Never place velvet directly on an ironing board. To press an entire garment, hang it in a steam-filled bathroom for 30 minutes, she said.

HOME MAKERS CLUB
The Skellytown Home Makers Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Ethel Hunt. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer in unison and Mrs. Gertrude Huckins, club president, presided. The hostess gift was won by Mrs. Huckins and the game gift was won by Mrs. Hunt. Mrs. Eula Berry received an anniversary gift from her secret pal. The club members presented Mrs. Myrtle Gould with a going away gift. She is moving to California, where she plans to make her home. Mrs. Juanita McCarthy demonstrated how to make blue denim purses. The next meeting will be Nov. 5 with Mrs. Mable Pearson. Attending were Mmes. Gertrude Huckins, John Simmons, Floyd McCoy, Bob Heaton, Ina Horst, Eula Berry, Myrtle Gould, Jim Huth, and hostess. British authoress Charlotte Bronte's handwriting was so small that she could fit 40 lines of it into an inch.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK
The newest addition to our family is a small goldfish that my son won by throwing a Ping-Pong ball into a custard cup at the State Fair. He named him Herbie. I figured Herbie was my kind of a pet. He didn't lick your feet, shed under the bed, stay out all night, scratch under the table, nuzzle in embarrassing places, drink out of the toilet, scare small children, have bad breath, or chew the cork off your wedgies. He just swam around in his custard cup and bobbed occasionally for crumbs. Then one day my son said, "Herbie needs a home. A real one." The request seemed reasonable and we went to a pet shop. Homes for Herbie ran from our simple glass coltage beginning at $14.95 to your tri-level condominium at $384. We bought a modest aquarium for Herbie and the salesman said, "With this size aquarium we will need a filter system to keep the water clean." "Of course we will," I said. "And a thermometer to make sure the water is kept at the same temperature." "Absolutely," I said weakly. "And we can't imagine a beautiful aquarium without a light to illuminate it, can we?" "We are being comical, aren't we?" I said. "And, of course, the food ring so that our fish doesn't have to run all over the bowl." "So what else does he have to do?" I asked. "Now, about the furnishings," said the salesman. "What style do we prefer? We could do it in early Castle. Or the Pirate motif with the sunken treasures and the trunk or Contemporary Reef with one or two pottery scuba divers and the carpet in pink sand." "Keep it simple," I pleaded. "I mean for one lousy little goldfish." "You don't mean to tell us that Herbie will occupy the aquarium alone? Fish does not live by bread alone," he said. "He needs friends." ($36.79 worth of them.) As the family sat around our living room (furnished in Early Poverty), our thermostat and lights turned down to conserve energy, we watched Herbie throwing an orgy in his new pad. Who has to keep up with the Joneses? I just want to live like a goldfish! Only one two-billionth of the sun's radiant energy reaches earth. Yet in three days as much solar energy falls on earth as would be produced if all the planet's coal, oil and wood were burned at once, the National Geographic Society says.

Agricultural Production Prime PEP Meet Topic

AMARILLO — If ever there was a time when we need to get our heads together on agricultural production, it's now, according to County Extension Agent Foster Whaley.

A meeting of people interested in the Panhandle Economic Program appears to provide an excellent opportunity to do just that.

The annual confab of PEP is set for today at the Villa Motel and Convention Center in Amarillo. The morning session, preceded by registration got underway at 9:30.

Agricultural production, family living, and the nation's economy were target discussions for the event, says Whaley.

Task forces set up by PEP to monitor agricultural enterprises will be an important phase of the one-day meeting. They were to hear Bill Helming, president of Beef Grain Call, deal with tough issues about the beef cattle situation, and Don Beasley of Amarillo's First National Bank talk about the cattlemen's financial dilemma. Also on the program was Kenneth R. Brown of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, who will discuss the financial situation for cattlemen today.

Both speeches are expected to touch on recent moves by the federal government to resolve some of the problems facing the livestock industry, Whaley adds.

Another task force, this one monitoring the crops situation on the Texas High Plains, heard three leaders of commodity organizations. Briefings on the wheat, sorghum and cotton situations came from Leo Witkowski, president of Texas Wheat Producers Association; A.W. Anthony, Jr., president of Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Association; Friona; and Don Johnson, executive vice-president, Plains Cotton Growers, Lubbock.

All three of the men were discussing their respective association's objectives along with remarks about outlook for wheat, sorghum and cotton.

With a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist in marketing and food distribution slated to speak before the Family Living and Youth Task Force, deliberations for that meeting centered around the food dollar, Whaley says.

William J. Vastine of College Station is noted for his knowledge of consumer behavior and demand, and is primarily interested in food distribution economics. He has a long list of professional credentials, including honors as a member of American Men and Women of Science, Personalities of the West and Midwest, Dictionary of International Biography, Who's Who Among Authors and Journalists, and other distinguished groups.

Vastine, an associate professor, is a member of the Graduate Faculty in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, Texas A&M University.

The Panhandle Economic Program is a voluntary organization of citizens interested in the economic and social growth of the Texas Panhandle. The organization is active in the 25-county area of the High Plains, Whaley explains. Two major speeches of the day were slated during the morning session. Dr. H.O. Kunkel, Dean of the College of Agriculture, Texas A&M University, presented plans for a new Research and Extension Center at Amarillo, and noted economist Dr. W.P. Gramm of Texas T&M was to outline pros and cons of today's national economic situation.

Gramm, a prolific author, speaker and consultant to governmental bodies, has achieved national recognition for his stand of the free enterprise system. Editorials and articles about him have appeared in such noted newspapers as The Wall Street Journal, Dallas Morning News, The Houston Post, and Houston Chronicle.

Fertilizer supply and demand got a share of attention during the annual meeting, Whaley adds. Other items on the agenda include as a PEP business meeting and a luncheon.

Details about the Panhandle Economic Program and this year's annual meeting are available at the County Extension Agent's office.

MODEST ADMISSION
SHEPWAY, England (UPI) — Damon Robinson says he is not upset about being fired as a garbage truck driver for the local council.

On Monday last week he drove his truck into a ditch. On Wednesday he ran it into a brick wall. On Thursday the clutch on his truck burned out. On Friday he tipped the truck over in a country lane.

"I don't feel bad about them kicking me out," said Damon, a former British Army tank driver. "I don't think I'm a good driver any more."

RAISE YOUR CHILDREN RIGHT

Family Unit-The Key To Crime

(Editor's Note: The eleventh story finds an unsuspected answer to why we have a problem with organized crime in Texas. Recognizing that crime exists only with encouragement, three law enforcement specialists show where the public has neglected its responsibilities.

Developed by the Texas Department of Public Safety, the 12-part public education program was based on interviews with state law enforcement officials and representatives from the ten Texas Organized Crime Task Forces.

The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council, co-chaired by DPS Director Col. Wilson, E. Speir and Attorney General John Hill, sponsored the series in conjunction with the Governor's Criminal Justice Council, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the office of the Attorney General of Texas, and local law enforcement agencies.)

AUSTIN - Most law enforcement authorities today - both the old timers and the "new breed" - arrive at the same conclusion: all the money, all the wiretaps, all the fines, all the prison sentences and all the cops in the world won't solve the public's problems with organized crime.

The best way to help us to better help ourselves - raise their children right in the first place," says Lieutenant Charles Doerr, chief of the Bexar County Organized Crime Control Bureau and former head of the City Narcotics Bureau.

His comments are echoed by Gean Leonard, analyst for the Galveston County Organized Crime Control Unit.

"Let's get down to what's happening to the family: disintegration of the family unit. That's the basis to the whole problem - that's the bottom, that's the grass roots.

"We try to impress parents that the days are gone, especially with the narcotics problem, when it was the poor, the underprivileged, and the ethnic groups who were involved with crime," Leonard continued.

"Now it's middle-class, white America. It's the kids from what I like to call over-privileged homes, with parents who are above middle class and who married into higher socio-economic echelons. They are involved with narcotics and crimes.

"Why? It has got to go back to the family. These kids have no reason except that they need recognition. Maybe they are trying to say something to all of us: 'we need help, by God, somebody put us in line.'"

Some law enforcement officials have expressed dissatisfaction with the new Controlled Substances Act. They maintain that it says to the kids in effect: "go ahead and use marijuana, just don't keep too much of it around." But most authorities are resigned to the fact that times are changing and the Legislature must respond to changes in public opinion on "soft" drugs.

"An active narcotics business with its obvious organized crime connections can bring unwelcome by-products to a community," commented District Attorney Ted Butler of San Antonio. Butler also serves on the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council.

Neighborhood theft and burglary are frequently signposts of the volume of narcotics addiction in a community.

An addict with a $45-a-day drug habit has to steal goods worth three or four times that amount to get the money to buy a fix. Girls often prostitute to make their "H" money.

Speaking to the Dallas City Council, Police Chief Don Byrd asked: "What turns a youngster into a criminal? What makes him steal cars and graduate from 'one-crime to another'?"

The police, said Byrd, have no control over that and placed the responsibility for uprooting the causes of crime on the shoulders of the council, the community and society in general.

"The churches, the school, the families, the communities have that control. It's up to the communities to start talking to their youngsters, to start taking the responsibilities that go with being a citizen in this country."

Lieutenant Doerr, a familiar San Antonio civic and church speaker, brought out another dimension:

"I've noticed in the past decade it seems like the home is falling apart. The parents go their way. The children go theirs. There is no home life. Families don't go to church together, they don't go hunting, camping or fishing together. They never eat dinner together."

"Mothers are too busy with social work; fathers are too busy with business to devote time to children. So naturally the children grow up on their own.

"We have got to get back to communicating with our children and to exercising discipline. We have got to quit letting our children raise themselves.

"We have arrested a lot of kids - teenagers - and they will all tell you the same thing: they wish their parents had been a little bit stricter so they would have respected their parents more."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

New Method For Warts

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have no quarrel with your article on warts and I personally have had some ugly ones shrivel and disappear spontaneously. However our daughter, 8, had her hands covered with warts, and was self-conscious. Our pediatrician referred us to a specialist in dermatology who marked each wart with an ordinary pen, then touched each marked area with a Q-tip dipped in liquid nitrogen.

We were told her hands would look terrible for about 10 days - and they did. But as the quick-frozen tissue dried up and fell off, no more warts.

We've been assured that in a year there would be no scar tissue or after-effects. (At the moment merely white spots on her otherwise lightly tanned skin.) We learned that not all are capable of this type of treatment - R.H.

Thank you sir. Warts are a peculiar type of growth, sometimes an annoyance, but not dangerous or harmful except in appearance.

If folks are willing to let them come and go naturally, they always disappear in time. If you are in a hurry to get rid of them, let a dermatologist do it, by whatever method he finds effective. The liquid nitrogen is one such method, as you know.

I'll let you in on a secret: not even a specialist can guarantee that warts won't return, but the instant-freezing method you described is effective when used by doctors who know how to do it.

Since warts do (in their own sweet time) disappear spontaneously, all sorts of hocus-pocus seems to work when applied around the time the warts are getting ready to depart anyway.

When this happens, the beholder is (not surprisingly) certain that he has discovered "the sure cure for warts."

It didn't exactly astonish me to receive a fresh supply of such testimonials this time. Among them the following:

"A neighbor asked me if I wanted the warts off and I said yes. He held my hand and rubbed his hand over the warts. In about two weeks my warts were all gone - Mrs. B.M."

"There's a product called Ironite made in Indiana. The firm doesn't know why it works and makes no claims but I have seen the results. - M.W."

From a traveler in Europe: "I found some yellow peas and rubbed on the warts and they went away."

From Minnesota: "I cured them with castor oil every night on my hand and my eyebrow. It kills the virus. One-day to my surprise when I looked at my hands every wart was gone. - L.K."

"When I was in my teens a neighbor told me to get a milk week and every day take one leaf and dab the milk on my warts and when I used up all the leaves, throw out the stem and my warts would disappear.

"When I was all finished the warts were still there so I figured, boy, she was laughing at me. Every few days she would ask me. It was two or three weeks or so. I was amazed, there were no more warts. I am in my 50s now, and still no warts. - R.T."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My eye doctor says he sees histoplasmosis in my eyes. The encyclopedia does not refer to it appearing in the eyes, only the lung, ect. - Mrs. H.S.

The lung is the area where it is usually found but it can spread into any part of the body, including the eyes.

Note to P.N.: Protruding navel in babies is an exception to the general rule concerning hernias. These umbilical hernias very often do heal themselves spontaneously.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's newly revised booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to him in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.
