FBI Denies Charges On Records

Israelis Would Take War Into Arab Heartland

By United Press International
Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said in remarks published today that Israel could carry a future Middle East war into the Arab heartland to repel the threat to its frontiers.

In an interview in "Shehakim," newsletter of the Israeli Aircraft Industries, Peres indicated Israel would not let Arab nations "bring all this might to the borders of Israel to threaten us while their lands, their oil, their cities and airfields remain secure."

He said any nation threatening Israel "will be subject to threat. Those who wish to concentrate their armies against us will be forced to deploy their armies in their own countries to defend their own."

Peres said the armies in question included those of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Libya and others.

The defense minister's statement came during a meeting with aircraft industry workers three weeks ago, the newsletter said, but publication was barred at the time.

Peres said Israel will have to spend $17 billion in the next five years to beef up its defenses and counter a $6 billion joint Arab plan to build arms plants in their own countries.

He said Israel would also have to maintain the current Arab-Israeli armed manpower ratio of 3-1 in order to forestall war.

Diplomatic sources in Beirut, meanwhile, said today Saudi Arabian King Faisal's week-long diplomatic tour of the Middle East left the Arab world more unified.

The Saudi monarch returned home Monday from Egypt, the last stop on his trip. Faisal gave Jordan $57 million, Egypt $100 million and Syria $150 million plus a $200 million loan.

The diplomats said a more significant development was Faisal's ability to help smooth out differences among Egypt, Jordan, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

He also arranged an Arab mini-summit between the four in the Saudi capital of Riyadh in the near future to try to unify Arab strategy for both peace and war, the sources said.

Faisal was able to help reduce differences between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Syrian President Hafez Assad over the direction of Middle East peace talks, the Beirut sources said.

A joint communique issued in Cairo said Faisal and Sadat expressed "deep concern" over Israeli raids into southern Lebanon and agreed to help the Beirut government "to resist the ferocious Israeli aggression."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, meanwhile, said Monday Egypt is ready for a new round of bargaining on a Sinai settlement but is not talking specific terms until the negotiations start.

Allon spoke on his return to Israel from three days of diplomatic talks in Washington with President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

Allon said Kissinger's efforts were needed to bring both sides to the negotiating table. Kissinger reportedly plans a trip to the Middle East next month.

The foreign minister told newsmen at Ben-Gurion airport outside Tel Aviv the U.S. officials showed understanding for Israel's position and did not apply "pressure or nonsense" to get the peace talks under way.

Allon said his purpose in Washington was to examine the prospects of moving from "the preliminary stage to the practical one" in negotiations for an accord with Egypt on a second withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Sinai Desert.

ANNUAL RATE STILL HIGH Consumer Prices Show Small Monthly Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices rose 0.7 per cent in December — the smallest monthly increase since April — but the total 1974 jump of 12.2 per cent was the largest since the end of World War II, the government said today.

While the Consumer Price Index was rising at a slower rate during the last three months of 1974 than earlier in the year, the annual rate was still the third largest since records have been kept.

The BLS said the index reached 155.4 in December. It was the largest gain since an 18.1 per cent inflation rate in 1946, the year after World War II, and the

AT-PACKERLAND CO. Union Squabble Case Resumes

By TEX DEWESE
A squabble over union representation of employes at the Packerland Packing Co. plant in Pampa was resumed here today in a hearing before Judge Leonard Wagman, administrative law judge of the Law Judges Division, Washington, D.C.

At issue is a charge by Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, a nationwide union, that the Independent Employes Union of Packerland Packing Co. of Texas, was unlawfully assisted by the company at the outset to avoid bargaining with the Amalgamated union.

The charge, lodged with the National Labor Relations Board, is being prosecuted by Atty. Norman Eckhardt, NLRB attorney from Fort Worth. Representing the Amalgamated union is Atty James Hix of Dallas.

Atty Theodore Miller of Green Bay, Wis., is the attorney for the Packerland company's independent union.

The independent union at Packerland's Pampa plant was formed in January of 1974 when a contract between the union and company was negotiated and ratified.

Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen union then filed charges against Packerland including the accusation that the company unlawfully assisted the union. Amalgamated launched an attempt to gain rights to represent plant employes.

Amalgamated is seeking to stop bargaining between Packerland and the independent union until one or the other of the unions is certified by the NLRB

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley said today his agency keeps records of all information obtained on congressmen and other citizens, but this material is never obtained illegally or used to influence "judgment or actions."

An FBI spokesman, meanwhile, acknowledged that the kind of information held in agency files often pertains to the "loyalty, reputation or moral character" of a congressman or citizen.

Kelley said reports that the FBI improperly solicits information on congressmen or misuses such information were "erroneous and without any basis in fact."

In a statement, he said he would welcome an opportunity to testify before the House Judiciary Committee to dispute these "fallacious statements." But Kelley and other aides refused to answer reporters' questions about the statement.

Kelley said the FBI solicits information about congressmen only when they are the subjects or victims of an investigation or during a security check for a job in the executive or judiciary branches of government.

In addition, he said, the FBI often receives unsolicited information on congressmen and all other citizens.

All information, solicited and unsolicited, is kept in FBI files, Kelley said. He added that the files on congressmen and all other federal government employes are kept in Washington.

"Such files exist because they relate to an investigation or a background check, correspondence with a member of Congress, or information not solicited by the FBI, but volunteered by the public," he said.

"As indicated, congressmen are treated substantially the same as any other citizen concerning whom the FBI may receive information."

"Further, it is the policy of the FBI that the use of such information would be limited to assistance in investigations and background checks and is never used to influence the judgement or actions of any member of Congress."

Congress reacted angrily to the possibility its members were on file. Senate Democrats voted 45-7 Monday to establish a committee to investigate

City To Host TML Session

The City of Pampa will host a quarterly meeting of Region II of the Texas Municipal League Thursday night in the Civic Auditorium at Amarillo.

City Manager Mack Wofford said today the principal speaker will be Dr. Zeke Marchant, head of the Department of Business Administration at West Texas State University.

Dr. Marchant will discuss programs and courses at WTSU which are beneficial to local governments.

Dr. Manley Bryan, mayor of Canyon and first vice president of T.M.L. Region II, will reside at the meeting in the absence of Mayor L. Ray Vahue of Amarillo, president.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson of Pampa will give the welcome address and introduce the speaker.

The meeting, which will open with a social hour at 6:30 p.m., is expected to attract delegations of city officials from over the entire Texas Panhandle.

Helms said Nixon later expressed the same concerns. "It was something he expressed to me in person — I don't know if there was any written direction."

The Senate Democrats voted to set up the select committee over strong objections from Sen. John C. Stennis, who argued loudly in debate that the CIA not be subjected to an investigative process that might destroy it.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., said the panel would be composed of between 7 and 11 members selected by party leaders. The action requires full Senate approval but that appeared certain because of the large Democratic majority.

The Democrats' action followed allegations — already under investigation in a number of House and Senate subcommittees — that the CIA conducted widespread surveillance of antiwar militants and others.

The scope of the investigation broadened to the FBI when the agency acknowledged that reports on the personal habits of congressmen were kept on file.

domestic intelligence gathering, and the FBI was included with the Central Intelligence Agency.

In a preview of its statement, an FBI spokesman told UPI that all the agency had on congressmen consisted of voluntary information given agents who were working on other cases or else were volunteered to the FBI in letters or other communication from informants.

The FBI, said the spokesman, never destroys any information it gets concerning the "loyalty, reputation or moral character" of any individual and in this policy makes no distinction between congressmen and other citizens.

This does not mean the FBI has any dossier on Congressmen except those accused of federal crimes or undergoing "thorough background investigations" because they are appointed to government positions requiring FBI check.

For example, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., was investigated because he was President John F. Kennedy's secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Irrelevant information which the FBI receives goes into investigative files. If a congressman is mentioned, the spokesman said, his name would be in a card file, with a reference to the location of the original material.

The spokesman said the files on congressmen not subject to formal investigation consist of these cross-index files, nothing else.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that while the late J. Edgar Hoover was director, the FBI kept reports on House and Senate members which included their drinking habits and sexual activities. It quoted Hoover aides as saying the information was neither obtained by direct surveillance nor kept for blackmail purposes.

It said information was on file about Ribicoff, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Sens. Lawrence Weicker, R-Conn., George McGovern, D-S.D., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill. House members included Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Wilbur Mills, former chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

"I'd like to see my file," Mansfield said.

Federal Reserve Board Increases Credit Funds

United Press International
Credit for business expansion is going to be easier and cheaper, thanks to the Federal Reserve Board's latest money move.

The Fed, the government's money managers, Monday pumped $1.1 billion into the economy to help curb unemployment and business cutbacks.

The action is a major step in the battle against recession and means more and cheaper credit will be available through the nation's 14,000 banks for business expansion. It is expected to produce continued lowering of the prime rate for corporate loans.

The Fed pumped the government funds into the banking network by lowering by one-half to one percentage point the money banks must keep on hand against deposits.

This, the seven-member Federal Reserve Board said, is "designed to permit further gradual improvement in bank liquidity and to facilitate moderate growth" in the nation's

Rockefeller Sees Little CIA Spying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller says his investigation has yet to find evidence of widespread domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Rockefeller made that statement Monday as Senate Democrats voted, 45-7, to create a Watergate-type committee to investigate the CIA, the FBI and any other agencies engaged in intelligence gathering. The committee was to make its report by Sept. 1.

At the end of the second day-long meeting of his presidentially appointed panel, Rockefeller was asked if news reports of widespread domestic CIA spying had been verified.

"I do not want to make any conclusions... but that's not the impression left so far," Rockefeller said. He acknowledged for the first time that the commission will probably recommend tightening the CIA's charter, which already bans domestic spying.

Former CIA director Richard Helms, after his second 2 1/2-hour appearance before the Rockefeller Commission, told reporters that in the late 1960s former Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon both urged the CIA to determine if antiwar militants were backed by "foreign connections."

But Helms did not answer when asked if that concern led to domestic spying operations by the CIA.

In 1967, Helms said, Johnson expressed concern about dissident organizations and their foreign connections. I was only concerned about their foreign connections."

money supply. The vote to lower the reserve requirements was unanimous, a spokesman said.

It will take several weeks for the additional funds to filter through the economy to a point where they will be felt in the government's battle against recession and unemployment.

Elsewhere, criticism of President Ford's $30 billion energy package grew as Ford prepared to implement by executive action the first step in making imported crude oil more expensive through a $3 a barrel tax.

Legislation was prepared to prevent the taxation by act of Congress.

In new developments in the energy crisis, two natural gas companies imposed tough restrictions on natural gas use, another utility said it is almost broke and others got or sought higher prices.

More workers were discharged either because of the general economic slump or because of cutbacks forced by a reduction in gas supplies.

In other developments: —Housing Secretary James T. Lynn said in Dallas the interest rate on government-backed home mortgage loans would be cut to 8.5 per cent effective today to help the depressed housing industry. Lynn also said more than $1 billion in rent and housing subsidies will be extended to elderly, handicapped and poor Americans.

—President Ford held more conferences with economic advisers and prepared for a major news conference today and a speech to businessmen Wednesday.

—William F. Ford, chief economist for the American Bankers Association, said major U.S. banks face heavy loan losses in 1975 but have prepared for it by setting aside 1974 profits to prevent future bank failures.

—General Motors Corp. said it would join Chrysler and Ford Motor Co. in a cash-rebate program, offering $200 to $500 for buyers of GM subcompact and compact.

—Utility officials complained that Ford's energy program would force them to raise rates higher than under present conditions, and several utilities reduced services and sought or gained higher rates Monday.

Cold Front Chills Area

A rapidly moving cold front moved into the Pampa area today, increasing winds and dropping temperatures.

A low of 21 was recorded early today, but skies at daybreak were clear. The cold front pushed low clouds into the area shortly after 8 a.m. and caused weather forecasters to reevaluate predictions of clear and warm weather today.

The thermometer had climbed to 35 degrees shortly before noon, displacing predictions for temperatures in the mid-fifties.

Strong northerly winds added to the chilling effect created by thin grey clouds which were moving in a westerly direction ahead of the brisk wind gusts.

In UPI reports: The National Weather Service predicted lows in the teens for the Panhandle tonight with freezing temperatures pushing far into Central and Southeast Texas.

Winds of 30 to 40 miles per hour pushed the cold weather quickly into the Panhandle. Highs Wednesday were expected to be in the 40s and 50s except for some 70-degree readings in extreme South Texas.

The NWS said no precipitation accompanied the cold air. Skies were to remain clear to partly cloudy.

C-C Directors Plan Meeting

The January directors meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will be held Friday, Jan. 24, at 11 a.m. in the Chamber offices, according to C.E. Steel, president.

The agenda will include activity reports since the last meeting along with presentation of the 1975 budget.

The Chamber's monthly membership luncheon will be on Monday, Jan. 27, at 12 noon in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

The program will be an "Idea Fair" where members will be given an opportunity to make suggestions for projects that could be included in the chamber's program of work.

All Chamber of Commerce members are urged to participate in the program, Steel said.

Fear Of Politics

One of the saddest aspects of the regulation-stymied, contradiction-brimming economy is that it has marched so far from laissez faire, from free-market mechanisms, that not only does legislated politics warp the economy but now the mere threat of politics does as well.

Not learning the rude lessons of the failure of price controls, the new Democratic hegemony in Washington is talking more and more of imposing controls in 1975. The 1971-73 experience with controls was bad enough, having postponed any sort of turnaround in climbing prices. Yet many in Congress want to visit that jeopardy on the country once again.

What is unfortunate is that the very threat of controls alone, with nothing legislated thus far, has registered an inflationary effect over prices. Oh, the House Democratic leaders have combined with the White House in disclaiming any advocacy of controls. But businessmen are not reassured.

"Instead," reports the Wall Street Journal, "they are making sure they are prepared in case the inflationary spiral does bring a new round of wage and price controls. Specifically, many companies — even those with slumping sales — are making certain they don't get caught with their prices down."

Certainly, there are many other contributing factors that have prevented a general leveling off of prices as would normally be expected in a recession. But this simple fear of anticipated political intervention must be counted as high on the list.

American politicians are, of course, characterized by their ignorant and blind approach to economics, their solutions invariably contributing more dislocations and less prosperity to the commonwealth.

But surely the mere fear of political action among businessmen bespeaks a bleak state of affairs in our troubled economy? Especially — and this is the point — blank irony — when that fear provokes inflationary itself.

Baltimore Gun Experiment

The "ban the gun" clique is at it again.

The Baltimore police department recently tried an experiment that should interest all those people who believe that passing a law to prohibit ownership of guns will stop senseless shooting of people.

Baltimore, thinking that buying up of guns would be getting rid of private ownership of the, from Aug. 22, 1974 to November 6, 1974, paid out $665,000 of public funds, purchasing 13,500 firearms of all kinds at $50 each. Viewed from the number of guns bought from individuals in community, the costly experiment was a huge success.

While it still is too early to tell in the long run if this attempt to halt killing people with guns has done any good, the number of gun-related murders in Baltimore have increased 50 percent in the short time since the city tried to buy up all the guns.

Gun Week in its Nov. 22, 1974 issue commented upon Baltimore's experiment thusly: "Unless future studies show more positive results than the latest one, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that Baltimore wasted $600,000."

One facet of the campaign was paying $100 bounty to informers who tips led to confiscation of illegal firearms, of which 164 were found.

All of which amply shows that just passing a law, and even offering cold cash for dangerous weapons, are only hopeful wishes. Passing a law by itself doesn't accomplish anything except display a desire to control others.

$10,316 Per Student

A public school education cost the American taxpayer $10,316 for the average student over the past 12 years and could exceed $26,000 for youngsters entering school this September, says Tax Foundation Inc.

Behind the estimates is a tripling of the cost of running the nation's public elementary and secondary schools — from under $17 billion in 1960-61 to $51.9 billion in 1972-73, with per pupil costs rising over 8 percent annually. Continuation of the trend would put the cost of a high school diploma above $26,000 for this year's first-grader.

U.S. Office of Education data shows taxpayers spent the $10,316 in these rising amounts for school years from 1961-63 to 1973-74: $554.50, $559, $606.50, $654, $720, $786, $878, $970, $1,035, $1,100, $1,182, and an estimated $1,281 for the year ended last June.

The figures represent the cost per pupil of running the schools (with teachers' salaries the biggest factor) plus capital outlays and interest on school debt. Tax Foundation says

COURT TELLS SCHOOL

To Punish Only The Guilty

By MAX RAFERTY

I hope nobody will think I'm defending a parent for belting her son's vice principal in the chops in order to settle a school-home disagreement, which is what Mrs. Eartha St. Ann did in Louisiana recently. The Orleans Parish school board hauled her martial mom into court, which it should have done, and the judge duly penalized her, as he darned well should have.

So far, no argument. It's what happened next that bothers me. The school board, having tasted blood, then indulged in overkill. It suspended Mrs. St. Ann's two children from school, not for anything they had done but for what their mother had done. The closest political parallel would have been for the Ervin committee, having done in Nixon, to jail Tricia and Julie as a kind of follow-up to the main event.

The embattled Mrs. St. Ann hired a lawyer and launched an all-out attack on the school board's notorious "Regulation XIX." This rather odd ordinance provided that, in cases where a parent or guardian reproved "in an offensive manner" a principal or teacher, the child in question "shall, by reason of such conduct, be liable to suspension." (I used the past tense in the preceding sentence because as soon as the three judge of the circuit court got a good look at Regulation XIX, they dispatched it with enthusiasm and dedication in the manner of Congress confronted unexpectedly by a proposal to balance the budget.)

The court's collective eyebrows went up like a window blind when the Orleans school officials argued that children will inevitably ridicule a teacher or administrator who has been attacked publicly, either verbally or physically, by an enraged parent. Only by giving the junior St. Ann's the old heave ho, the school people continued, could the ridicule be dispelled and authority restored.

The court didn't buy this Judge Pettus Gwin recapitulated an ancient principle of the law. Unless an individual himself is guilty of an offense, he cannot be punished for it. It doesn't make any difference whether a crime has been committed by your mother, your wife, your twin brother or your Uncle Louie, you can't be held responsible for it unless you were in on it somehow as an accessory, either before or after the fact. And this the Orleans school board could not establish.

The decision, however, was not a unanimous one. Dissenting Judge Paul Roney said: "I cannot conceive of much education transpiring between a student and a teacher who has just been struck by a student's parent in front of classmates, and who is prosecuting the parent in criminal proceedings."

Well, I can. Your Honor. The fact that a parent may be a knot-head should not keep a good teacher from educating a given child, and the fact that Mom has taken out her frustrations on Teacher with a fist, a club or a Mack truck, for that matter, should have nothing to do with the learning process in the classroom. No more, than should any out-of-school litigation which may or may not be ensuing.

What Judge Roney overlooked was the intriguing possibility — nay, in many cases a high probability — that Junior and Susie may think Mom is an even bigger knot-head than Teacher does. After all, they know her better. And in that case, their rapport with and respect for Teacher may have increased exponentially as the result of Mom's vigilante assault upon a public servant.

As for suspending those two kids — Phooey! With a mother like that, they need all the schooling they can get.

INSIDE LABOR Riesel Looks Into Crystal Ball

WASHINGTON — A columnist should have the strength of his predictions as well as his convictions — especially since we hit a 90 per cent score last year (including the forecast that Jerry Ford would name Nelson Rockefeller Vice President). So here's what the future offers in the hope I won't have to sell my crystal ball cut rate next New Year's Eve:

Many powerful labor chiefs will quietly build a machine for Nelson Rockefeller's presidential nomination. Even Jerry Ford's closest labor friends now feel double-crossed by his economic policy and particularly his veto of the ship cargo preference bill which would have created thousands of maritime jobs. Thus the President has angered some of the AFL-CIO's most influential leaders.

Rockefeller will build a strong national political-labor network. He'll have massive Teamster support along with the huge George Meany coalition inside the AFL-CIO. Labor just doesn't want President Ford in the White House after 1976.

Watch for an easing of the Teamster-Meany feud all along the line.

Look for new forces the labor front. Unionization of medical interns, physicians and dentists, hospital strikes ... And watch the organized nurses swing into political action ... Citywide job action by members of the AFL-CIO's new 25-union Public Employees Department ... There will be tension, perhaps strikes, in the oil fields, on the railroads, in the school systems and on the maritime and airline fronts ... Some top labor chiefs are resigned to an across-the-board wage-price income control bill. This already has Teamster support ... If Cesar Chavez continues to push the United Farm Workers Union grape-lettuce boycott in Europe, especially Sweden (where it already is hurting American exports), Teamsters' leader Frank Fritzsims will retaliate by asking his men not to move any Swedish imports inside the U.S. ... A special farm workers' office is about to shift operations from the West Coast to the Teamsters headquarters here.

There will be a drive in the 94th Congress to put the farm workers under the NLRB so they can choose their unions under seater ballot elections ... Also, a successful campaign for a national health act led by auto union chief Leonard Woodcock and Sen. Kennedy ... Black leaders, women activists and other minorities will push for leadership posts especially in those unions which fought for a quota-like charter in the Democratic mini-convention.

There will be a series of marches on and demonstrations in the Capital. Labor chiefs who can tell from the pattern of orders coming into their industries now just what 1975 will be economically, say they expect a "bad" last quarter with heavy unemployment and steadily rising inflation. They expect it to hit 8 per cent and more in many fields ... There will be talk of launching a Labor party but it will be just talk.

Personalities: Inside the White House one of the most powerful men will be the almost anonymous legal counselor, Phil Buchen. Mr. Ford's closest friend ... Jimmy Hoffa will be told by a virtually unanimous Teamsters executive board to forget it and go away.

Some insiders are saying Don Rumsfeld will replace Henry Kissinger ... Labor Secretary Pete Brennan was told three weeks ago he's out. He's been in New York heating the cold water on a possible return to his old construction labor presidency ... Meany, abandoned his Canadian crutches, is feeling better and crisper than ever and soon will head for some golf and the Feb. 17 AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting in Bal Harbour, Fla. — which will rip the political and philosophical hide off Jerry Ford ... If the PLO or Arab nations attack Israel, the AFL-CIO will mobilize economically and transport countermeasures against the Arabs. Without labor support, Scoop Jackson will be a mighty limping front runner for the '76 nomination. Many labor chiefs are convinced that Ted Kennedy is still in the race. And so is George McGovern, you can believe it. For a clue to labor's favorites watch the speaking roster at the AFL-CIO's October convention in San Francisco.

Chuck Colson, the Watergate petrel, will be practicing labor law or offering special consultation ... Dick Nixon will begin discussing running for Congress in California ... Fastest rising black politico will be Harlem's Congressman Charles Rangel, chairman of the congressional Black Caucus ... Gov. George Wallace will make noise but not much of a dent inside the Democratic Party. He will take "third party" again.

Watch for a sweep of Latin-American type terrorism. Industrialist should be on special alert ... There will be international terrorist operations. Airports will be under heavy guard. Last year only an especially alert ground staff prevented tragedy at the Boston runways.

There will be an intensive worldwide attack on multinational corporations ... As usual, the growing power of Socialist (Social Democrats) abroad and their feed-back influence in the U.S. will be overlooked. So will their befeud up collaboration with the U.S.S.R., the East bloc and Western Communist trade unions in France and Italy. They will combine, coalesce or form a united front to smash American investments and operations across the world, especially in Europe.

Mao And Chou En-lai will go U.S.S.R. Communist General Secretary Brezhnev will be shaky or gone ... 1975 will mark the passing of the political giants. Everywhere new political forces will make the headlines. (All Rights Reserved)

The loggers are beating down her door

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive female divorcee who recently retired after a long, distinguished career as a university English professor.

Now that I have a great deal of free time, I would like to find suitable male companionship.

Although I receive numerous offers (the loggers in this town are practically beating my door down), I don't know how to meet men who could appreciate my best qualities, such as the art of conversation.

There must be some other retired women in small towns with similar problems. Have you any suggestions? IDLE BUT ANXIOUS IN IDAHO

DEAR ANXIOUS: Enroll in an adult education class and do a lot of listening. Conversation could be considered "dessert," and since man cannot live on dessert alone, are you prepared to provide some meat and potatoes?

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write to defend that woman who writes notes to her husband to remind him of things. I've been doing it for years.

First of all, that letter couldn't have been written by my husband because he doesn't believe in communication, and note-writing is a form of communication.

This wooden Indian I'm married to might send up smoke signals if he could find his lighter, but on the other hand, fires within the city limits of Dallas are frowned upon.

Anyway, I say three cheers for that note-writing wife. I sure wish my husband would write me a note once in a while. It would confirm the fact that he's still breathing. IGNORED IN DALLAS

DEAR IGNORED: Your problem is far more serious than you realize. The ultimate in humiliation, women confide, is not in being belittled, berated, or even beaten. It's being ignored!

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited a friend in his New York apartment. We hadn't seen each other for 15 years. While he was in the kitchen mixing up drinks, I noticed that he had a splendid library. Then I noticed that he had a few books that I also owned.

I don't know what made me do it, but I took those books down from the shelf and turned to the fly leaves, and sure enough, my name was there! He had borrowed those books from me years ago, and neglected to return them.

I put them back before he returned, and said nothing. Since then my irritation has grown.

Should I now tell him that I want my books back? IRKED IN INDIANA

DEAR IRKED: Certainly. No wonder your friend has such a "splendid library." He's a collector.

Appeals Court Okays Case Against Sheriff

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal appeals court said Dallas County Sheriff Clarence Jones, under pressure to resign at home, failed to fulfill the obligation of taking a suspect before a magistrate as quickly as possible and refused to dismiss false imprisonment allegations against Jones and three of his deputies.

The allegations were filed by Melvin Perry, who said he was held in the county jail for seven days without a hearing after his 1972 arrest for robbery.

Charges against Perry were dropped after Dallas police notified the sheriff's office he was not a suspect. Another man, also named Melvin, had been arrested and was in jail at the same time.

U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor Jr. of Dallas acquitted Jones, the deputies and other law enforcement officers of Perry's charges. But the circuit court told him to bring Jones and the deputies to trial a second time since there were grounds for a case against the sheriff and his deputies.

The circuit court affirmed the acquittal of Dallas policeman Harlen Glenn Johnstone and the Dallas chief of police.

The 5th Circuit said Monday Texas law required an arrested person must be taken before a magistrate without unnecessary delay by the arresting officer or someone acting for him. It said Jones and his men failed to fulfill this obligation.

"Deputies (O.G.) Smith and (M.A.) Gafford arrested Perry but they did not take him before a magistrate, nor did they have it done by others," the court said. "Likewise, Sheriff Jones and Jailor (Jim) Kitching allowed Perry to remain in jail without the benefit of the right."

Three Dallas County commissioners Monday called for Jones' resignation Monday, but Jones said "They're not going to get it."

Commissioner Roy Orr, David Pickett and Jim Tyson declared in a news conference public confidence in Jones' office has eroded to a point where the sheriff's office cannot function properly.

Tyson said Jones' problems involved irregularities in the bail bond system, unserved warrants and "ridiculous requests" for increased budget and staff.

Even if Jones were to begin operating a model office, Orr said, "the public confidence still has been shattered."

Jones disputed the allegations. "If I'm wrong," he said, "I have a duty to the community to resign. But I'm not wrong, I'm right and I'm not resigning."

Jones said he talked with numerous people in Dallas County and "they all have expressed a great deal of confidence in this department."

"I've been elected by the people of this county and I intend to serve out my term," Jones won re-election in the November election.

The commissioners made no mention of methods, if any, by which they intend to back up the resignation all.

Bentsen To Follow LBJ's Steps

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Fifteen years ago, Texas' senior senator sought the Democratic presidential nomination. His senate term expired the same year and his name was on the Democratic primary as a senate candidate.

Lyndon B. Johnson didn't win the presidential nomination, but he easily won the primary in his home state. Johnson wound up as the vice presidential nominee that year — 1960 — with the early polls indicating the Democratic ticket composed of John F. Kennedy and Johnson trailing the GOP ticket of Richard Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge.

So Johnson did something unprecedented in state history. He ran for both the Senate and on the national ticket. Instead of resigning his position in the Senate.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., Texas' only Democratic senator and a student and protégé of Johnson's, said Monday he will follow his mentor's example if he decides to seek the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination. Bentsen's is up for re-election next year.

"I would expect that if I ran for the nomination for president, I would run for the nomination for the Senate," Bentsen told a news conference Monday in his Austin office. "I don't see any problems with that at all."

He said persons from all areas of the country have been encouraging him to enter the Democratic presidential primaries in 1976, and if he decides to do so he will begin raising a national campaign chest shortly.

Bentsen said he will not announce his decision for several more weeks.

Bentsen said he has raised slightly over $1 million in the past two years. He said he voluntarily put a $3,000 limit on all individual contributions to comply with reform legislation that was not in effect when he began his fund raising.

Bentsen said he endorsed a plan in the state legislature to establish a presidential primary in Texas, saying such a move will help his national campaign should he undertake one.

"Anytime I go directly to the people, I'm helped," he said.

Bentsen said he does not expect Congress to approve President Ford's proposals for a tariff on oil imports as an energy conservation measure.

"If you see that kind of tax put on, you'll see the economy suffer more in Texas than in states where coal is used more," he said.

He said he will urge Congress to implement a national oil and gas allocation program such as one being used successfully in France.

He did say he expects Ford's proposal for an income tax cut to be approved.

"Almost all of us favor a tax cut," he said. "Everyone had a tax increase last year and the year before and the year before that — not because Congress voted for one, but because inflation pushed us all into a higher tax bracket."

Bentsen said he will introduce legislation that will aid victims of rape, America's most rapidly increasing crime, and said there is a "pretty good chance" some national health insurance bill will pass Congress this year, but it will be phased in gradually because of the economy and Ford's desire to cut federal spending.

HOW TO LEARN
EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is offering a special learning class on how to go to school.

Students will receive aid in notetaking, studying for examinations, how to listen effectively and how to use the library.

BUY UNPAINTED
UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — In these days of rising prices, you may find it difficult to buy all the furniture you need.

If that is true, extension specialists at the Pennsylvania State University suggest you consider unfinished wood products.

They say money can be saved by buying furniture which hasn't been painted, stained or lacquered. There are many companies manufacturing unfinished furniture and hundreds of unfinished items on the market.

Before you buy, compare what is available. Then make your decision after checking prices, construction quality, furniture stability and appearance.

FEDERAL PAY
NEW YORK (UPI) — A Tax Foundation study shows pay increases for federal government workers are keeping well ahead of private industry pay hikes and the rising cost of living. It says average earnings of all federal civilian employees rose 88 per cent from 1962 to 1972, compared to 66 per cent for private industry and a 38 per cent rise in the consumer price index.

Bell Refuses To Pay Widow Pension Money

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Oleta Gravit, the widow of a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executive who committed suicide last year, says the utility company is refusing to pay her the pension she should receive because of her husband's death.

The telephone company acknowledges it has not paid the money — a $300,000 one-year death benefit along with $507 a month from a pension fund — because Mrs. Gravit filed a $29 million libel, slander and defamation suit against Bell, claiming it hounded Gravit to his death.

So Mrs. Gravit filed another suit Monday, this one to get $1 million from Southwestern Bell.

The latest suit said Bell refused to pay the money "because of the spurious, meretricious, deceitful and apocryphal assertion on its part that because she, widow Gravit, has filed suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for invasion of privacy, slander and wrongful death of her husband, she is not entitled to recover the pension."

In addition to the pension money, the suit asks for $150,000 in attorney fees, $37,300 as a penalty against Bell for "wrongful and arbitrary withholding" of the benefits, plus $750,000 in exemplary damages.

Bell issued a statement saying Mrs. Gravit has been paid $162,000 in life insurance, but "she cannot be paid the one-year death benefit at this time because of the suit that has been brought against the company."

It quoted from the Bell system benefit plan, in effect since 1913, which precludes payment of such benefits to persons filing suit until their claim is adjudicated.

Mrs. Gravit was joined in Monday's suit by James A. Ashley, former San Antonio, Tex. commercial manager, who was fired by Bell last Nov. 1.

Judge Postpones Exhumation Move

HOUTON (UPI) — A state district judge has postponed ruling on a motion by attorneys for Ignacio Cuevas which, if approved, will mean the exhumation of the body of a woman killed Cuevas' attempted escape from prison.

Elizabeth Beseda of Huntsville, Tex., and an employee of the Texas prison system when taken hostage by Cuevas, South Texas badman Fred Gomez Carrasco and another convict, died from gunshot wounds.

Cuevas, 42, was charged with capital murder in the slaying of another hostage, Julia Standley, 43, and will stand trial Feb. 17.

The state contends the prisoners killed the hostages.

Attorney Will Gray, in filing the motion Monday for the Beseda exhumation in the court of Judge Miron A. Love, said a post mortem performed on her body might indicate bullets other than those fired by the prisoners were lodged in her body.

Judge Love said he will rule on that motion and several others when the trial begins.

R.L. "Buster" Beseda, the slain woman's husband, said the exhumation request will prove nothing new.

"Fred Gomez Carrasco killed my wife — this business seems so senseless," he said.

Beseda said funeral attendants examined his wife and he didn't want her examined again. Walker County Justice of the Peace J.W. Beeler ruled she died from a close-range gunshot wound in the chest.

The prisoners forced the two women to accompany them when they walked from Huntsville's Walls Unit prison library.

Until the siege, attorney Gray said, Cuevas was a model prisoner. Gray motioned the judge to ask prison officials to turn over Cuevas' prison records.

Judge Love did approve $500 for the defendants to use in their investigation and consultation of experts.

Gray asked the indictment be quashed because the capital murder law gives the jury the right to impose the death penalty, a provision Gray called unconstitutional.

In another motion, Gray asked Love to quash the indictment because Mexican-Americans were insufficiently represented on the grand jury indicting Cuevas.

MOTIVATION

Many spouses operate in a tit-for-tat system whereby if the wife performs and behaves in a manner desired by her husband, then the husband behaves to please the wife. This system implies a revengeful motivation and is detrimental to good relations. Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out.

A BASIC SIGN

Know Where Your Heart Is?

This is the third of eight articles sponsored by the Panhandle Emergency Medical Services Systems, Inc. to acquaint the public with the early warning signs of heart attack.

If you're asked to give the pledge of allegiance, hand over heart, would you reach for your left shirt pocket?

If you do, you're right in your patriotism, but you're wrong about where your heart is.

Your heart is almost exactly in the center of the front of your chest, a fact that is stressed in a heart attack early warning signs educational program sponsored by the Panhandle Emergency medical Services Systems, Inc.

Or you could say that the heart is "under the necktie," as one physician put it for a mass media campaign planned and financed by a state affiliate of the American Heart Association, which reached about one million newspaper readers, TV viewers and radio listeners.

Heart geography is basic in the early warning signs project because that helps explain where pain signaling a heart attack most frequently begins.

In about 70 percent of heart attack cases the first feeling in the chest is one of pressure.

However, it can be a sensation of fullness, squeezing or aching.

The pain usually intensifies as it spreads. It may be persistent. It may gradually decrease or go away, only to return. Pain can come during rest or exercise, day or night.

Pain may extend into one or both arms or into the neck and/or jaws. These are the most common areas to combine with chest pain.

However, pain may also penetrate to the upper abdomen or back, and there may be sweating, shortness of breath, nausea, or vomiting.

The early warning signs project also teaches about a dull discomfort in the left chest with sharp, jabbing pain. This often is found in tense persons and frequently is mistaken for a heart attack, according to the Heart Association.

A physician tells of one hospitalized patient who had experienced such pain periodically for 30 years and had led a sheltered life because he feared it was heart pain.

"This is one kind of chest pain that is a pleasure to treat," reports the physician. "You can't cure it because you usually cannot change the nervous makeup of an individual, but you can certainly make the patient happier by convincing him he is not about to die from a heart attack."

The correct diagnosis of chest wall pain of nervous origin can usually be made from the history alone, but complex cases may require coronary angiography, a procedure which provides X-ray movies of the heart and arteries. Statistics show that in a high percentage of patients — about a third — angiography reveals no evidence of heart disease, thus relieving untold anxiety.

Physicians point out that calling the doctor first permits identification of cases of harmless chest pain, which often can be determined by telephone.

this preventing a needless journey to a hospital emergency room.

The doctor regards this screening of harmless chest pain as "one of the most important parts of the program" because it "has brought in for diagnosis a very important group of patients, those needlessly fearful of dying from heart disease."

But any discomfort in the chest, even if it's not "under the necktie," should be checked by a physician or at a hospital. Such checks can bring peace of mind. Or, if the chest pain turns out to be a heart-attack's early warning sign, this "early attention can mean prevention."

3 Arabs Surrender In Baghdad

By United Press International
Three Arab guerrillas who took part in a bloody siege at Paris Orly Airport surrendered in Baghdad today, ending a daylong airborne odyssey in search of a refuge. A Beirut newspaper said the guerrillas wanted to protest Israeli attacks on southern Lebanon.

Baghdad Airport officials said an Air France 707 jetliner carrying the guerrillas landed in the Iraqi capital this morning for the second time in 12 hours and the gunmen surrendered.

"The surrender came without any problems," the officials said in a telephone conversation with UPI. They did not say if the three requested asylum.

The officials said the French crew of the plane is in good condition.

The three-man volunteer crew flew the plane and the hijackers on a frustrating journey in which airport after airport in the Middle East denied the jet permission to land.

The Arabs took off from Orly Airport Monday morning when France provided a getaway jet in exchange for 10 hostages held for 17 hours.

The statement alleged that "certain organs" of the French security service had shown complicity in the killing of three Arab leaders in Paris in recent years.

An airline spokesman in Paris said an Air France 707 jetliner carrying the guerrillas landed in Baghdad this morning for the second time in 12 hours and the gunmen surrendered to Iraqi authorities.

The volunteer crew was reported safe at the end of a frustrating flight in which airport after airport in the Middle East denied the jet permission to land.

"The guerrillas gave themselves up to Iraqi authorities and the Air France crew is safe and sound," the airline spokesman said.

The Arabs took off from Orly Airport Monday morning when France provided a getaway jet in exchange for 10 hostages held for 17 hours.

The trio holed up in an airport restroom Sunday afternoon after French police foiled an attack against an Israeli jetliner.

The guerrillas, tossing grenades and firing pistols, fought their way from the airport's crowded observation deck to the washroom. Eighteen persons were injured.

The plane landed in Baghdad after a flight over the Mediterranean, the northern Middle East, the Arabian Peninsula, the Red Sea and North Africa.

The gunmen originally demanded to be flown to Jeddah but were refused permission to land in Saudi Arabia. The jet then flew to Baghdad for the first time but Iraqi authorities only let the aircraft take off.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said it would demand extradition of the gunman and put them on trial "for their crimes."

"We have condemned acts of this sort and condemn this one, which was carried out by murderers and criminals to distort the image of the PLO," a guerrilla spokesman said.

French Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski called the gunmen "assassins" and said, "If lives of hostages had not been at stake, I would have handled them differently."

French news commentators, angered by the attack, criticized France's pro-Arab policy. Some suggested the attack was staged by extremists beyond PLO control.

5 PHS Students Named To Chior

Five Pampa High School choir students earned places in the All-State Choir during recent try-outs at Odessa.

The five students from Pampa were 100 percent in obtaining places through audition for the choir which will perform at the Texas Music Educators' Convention in Dallas Feb. 13-15.

"This is the highest honor attained by high school choir members," said John Woickowski, Pampa director, in making the announcement.

The five students representing Pampa competed with students from schools located in the Panhandle, South Plains, Permian Basin and El Paso areas.

Forty-three other students were named along with the Pampa delegation.

Pampans selected for the honor included Debbie Lehnick, junior; Beverly Bradford, senior; Karl Collier, junior; Elbert Hensley, sophomore, and Eddie Roby.

Texas is divided into five areas with each area eligible to send 48 students to state, comprising a 240-voice All-State Choir.

Thousands of students over Texas began preparing music in September and had to advance through local, regional and area levels to attain a place in the top choir.

House Demos Still Studying Chairmen Spots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three House appropriations subcommittee chairmen won renomination easily, but the acid test of election comes Wednesday in a Democratic party caucus.

The appropriations panel Monday renominated incumbent subcommittee chairmen, including three targets of a liberal Democratic purge of senior, conservative leaders: Jamie Whitten of Mississippi, Robert L. F. Sikes of Florida and Otto Passman of Louisiana.

The caucus last week threw out W. R. Poage and F. Edward Hebert, chairman of the Agriculture and Armed Services committees respectively. The vote Wednesday will be on their replacements as well as on chairmen for the Administration and Banking committees.

In a reform passed last October, appropriations subcommittee chairmen must get caucus approval. It was the first time a committee lost the right to elect its own subcommittee chairmen.

Whittle, trying to stave off liberal attacks, voluntarily gave up jurisdiction over environmental and consumer matters, leaving his subcommittee with only agriculture. Sikes' subcommittee has military construction and Passman's has foreign operations, including foreign aid.

The Appropriations Committee voted Monday to abolish a 5-member panel of its defense subcommittee which previously dealt with the Central Intelligence Agency. The 13-member subcommittee, which may include CIA critics, will decide on its own.

The House Monday voted final approval of 17 of the 21 committee chairmen for the 94th Congress, saving the four controversial ones for consideration Thursday.

Of the four chairmen spots, only Rep. Wright Patman of Banking faced announced opposition, from Reps. Henry Reuss and Robert Stephens.

Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio is expected to get easy approval to continue as chairman of Administration Committee, while Reps. Thomas Foley of Washington and Melvin Price of Illinois were up for chairmen of Agriculture and Armed Services respectively.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. The pastor, R.J. Palermo, has extended a welcome to the public to participate. Special singing will be conducted preceding each service.

SKINNY DIPPERS SAY

Midwinter Dip Can Aid Health

BOSTON (UPI) — In 1869 some hardy soul thought it would be invigorating to take a midwinter dip in Boston Harbor and started a tradition that has left many Bostonians shivering in their galoshes.

Every day of the year a small, grizzled group that includes septuagenarians dashes briefly into the frigid waters from the L Street Bath House, sometimes crossing through several inches of ice to take their constitutional.

Because of that, the L Street Brownies have acquired a national reputation akin to that of the famous Polar Bear Club. But the Boston organization is a social club that brings together the most diverse elements in the city in a sharing of a common heritage.

"Out on the beach they're all the same," said William Toland, 77, president of the Brownies for the past 11 years. "We have doctors, lawyers, professional people of all kinds, businessmen, laborers—you name it."

"Out on the beach you can feel the pulse of the city just by listening to the conversation," he said.

"Most of the members (about 700) have their roots in South Boston. They move away, then come back to visit and want to find out about their old friends. They just go down to the bath house and they find out."

"Sometimes they start talking to a stranger and find out he's a cousin," Toland said.

The bath house was one of the first built in the country. The L Street beach it serves is used for nude bathing, with high fencing stretching into the chilly Atlantic. As the frigid New England winter approaches, the number of skinnydippers dwindles until, by November, only a handful are left.

The club's reputation rests on six or seven rugged men who, from habit and a sense of tradition, swim daily.

"It's just one of those things that you do because you've always done it," said Toland. "I know some guys who would go down there on a stretcher if they had to just so they won't break the tradition."

"It's something that you do automatically," he said.

But Toland himself is not among the midwinter bathers.

"It does affect the system," he said.

However, Dr. Michael J. Donovan, who at 45 is one of the younger club members, says the effect seems to be salutary.

"There are an awful lot of old men going into the water," said Donovan. "But their physical condition is remarkable—so is their longevity."

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — In past columns, we've talked about the problem of consumer debt. Today, let's discuss the means available to solve the problem.

As we pointed out previously, the first step in getting out of debt is for the consumer to face the fact that he or she is in it.

And the earlier that fact is acknowledged the better, say our Consumer Protection attorneys.

Some consumers refuse to realize that their monthly outgo consistently exceeds their income. It doesn't take many months of such imbalance for the problem to have reached such proportions that creditors may be insisting on payment in full.

Much publicity is currently being given to the use of bankruptcy by average consumers as a way to resolve debts. Is bankruptcy the solution? It can be, for some persons. But filing a bankruptcy petition in federal court is a serious step and one which should be taken only with full understanding of the consequences.

Much drastic measures can often solve the problems consumers may have with debt. But, again, the effectiveness of such methods frequently depends on facing the problems before they get out of hand.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has published "A Practical Primer for the Texas Consumer." In it, our attorneys recommend that consumers who find that illness, job problems, or other reasons have made them unable to meet their bills notify their creditors and explain the situation.

Most creditors will try to help you through a difficult time by rearranging your payment schedule or amount. After all, for them it is better to receive payment late than not at all.

Some consumers find that they need financial counseling to help them get out of debt and avoid getting back into it. There are several places to turn for such assistance.

Banks — Many offer financial counseling to their customers.

Attorneys — Private attorneys may help with financial problems, especially when there is the possibility of legal action.

Child and family service agencies — These local affiliates of United Way provide help with family problems and those involving children. If money worries or credit difficulties are contributing to a family's problems, the family is usually referred to volunteer experts who can supply financial counseling.

Credit unions — Credit unions frequently provide financial counseling to members.

Legal aid societies — Local legal aid societies can assist low-income consumers with credit problems, although of necessity such assistance is usually aimed at helping consumers who are already involved in legal procedures resulting from their debt.

National Foundation for Consumer Credit — This is a non-profit organization with local affiliates which serve their community by providing consumer credit counseling at no cost to the debtor.

At present, only Dallas and Corpus Christi have such affiliated organizations. The Office of the Consumer Credit Commissioner of Texas is working with interested groups and individuals who hope to establish a state network of such non-profit agencies.

Operating funds for such organizations frequently come from contributions by individuals, businesses, and those creditors participating in a repayment program.

Spokesmen for one consumer credit counseling service say many people using the service need only to receive advice in setting up a family financial plan and budget.

Others need remedial help, which involves contacting creditors and working out a suitable payment schedule.

For assistance with consumer debt, try contacting one of the groups mentioned above. For assistance with consumer complaints, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

AFS Student Speaks At Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club met Tuesday Jan. 14, in the home of Mrs. John Rankin.

President, Mrs. R.W. Stowers, called the meeting to order and Mrs. Charles Fagans led the Club Collect minutes were read and approved as corrected. The treasurer report was accepted and filed.

A thank-you letter was read from the Wichita Falls State Hospital for the club's Christmas gift to them.

Mrs. R.H. Sanford, Federation Counselor, reported that President Ford has recently signed into law a bill granting funds for work on the Big Thicket National Park, long a TFWC project.

Mrs. Stowers announced that Feb. 13 members will entertain the Senior Citizens at the Lovett Library. Mrs. C.E. Steel, nominating committee chairman, reported that the following slate of officers had been recommended for next year. President, Mrs. Tom Wilkinson; Vice-President, Mrs. John Rankin; Secretary, Mrs. Lloyd Harvey; Treasurer, Mrs. Roy F. Braswell; and Reporter, Miss Elsie Cunningham.

Mrs. Charles Fagans, program leader, presented Mrs. Charles Ekleberry, host mother for the AFS student, who introduced France to the group.

Gilles spoke about the differences in Paris and Pampa and his main concern was the American way of using so many convenience foods instead of using mostly fresh fruits and vegetables as the French do.

He observed that in France, most women do not hold jobs outside the family until all the children are grown — therefore the French mother has more time to devote to food preparation than her American counterpart.

If a woman is a good cook in France, she is considered a good wife. The divorce rate is much lower in France than here, and one reason he felt for this was that the French tend to take time — age dating much more lightly than here, and couples marry later there.

Gilles also added that inflation had become a real factor in the French economy since he had come to America.

The group conducted a question and answer period.

Refreshments of cookies, tarts, coffee and tea were served to the following 17 members: Mmes. Braswell, W.R. Campbell, F.M. Cunningham, Fagans, Lloyd Hamilton, Paul Harbaugh, David McGahey, Sanford, Steel, Stowers, Wilkinson, Elsie Harrah Jones, H.R. Thompson, J.W. Nagging Pays Off

Surefire Ways To Air Complaints

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

YOU CAN complain all you like but if you don't do it properly the sofa you ordered will take four more months to be delivered, the faulty new refrigerator will never be replaced, and you'll have to write off as a total loss the drip-dry dress that disintegrated.

What's the right way to make a consumer complaint?

Author Sylvia Auerbach, sums up the technique in one word: Nag!

A delightfully witty woman, the soft-spoken author knows how to get her way—and satisfaction—when she airs a grievance. Her techniques are spelled out in a how-to chapter in her new book, "Your Money: How to Make It Stretch" (Doubleday).

The chapter title, "Nag, Nag, Nag, Or: How to Complain," tells the story. Follow the tips it offers next time a service or a product falls short of expectations and the results you get will more than pay for a copy of Mrs. Auerbach's book.

Don't Waste Words
"Most women consumers," she says, "do a lot of complaining—but they complain to their husbands, their friends, anyone who'll listen. It's a waste of breath. When you're mad, when you're red hot with outrage, complain where it will do some good. Go right to the source of your problem."

Prepare for a campaign of complaining like a general preparing for battle, she advises. Arm yourself with the facts: the merchandise involved, the date you bought it, the model number, receipt number, copies of cancelled checks, repair bills, etc.

Outward and Upward
Facts and grievances in hand, start the climb upward by complaining to the proper person at the store, dealer's or company. Send letters, keeping carbons of them. Make telephone calls, recording when they are made and to whom you spoke.

No satisfaction? Then, advises Mrs. Auerbach, go to the top.

"Forget the lower echelon," she says, "and get off a letter to the president of the company. Be sure to include carbons of earlier correspondence and memos of phone calls. And, the master stroke," she adds, "advise him that a carbon of the letter he's getting is going to the Better Business Bureau, your local newspaper's action line column and your TV station's consumer reporter. And send them carbons because they can help."

WHEN letters are ignored, says author Sylvia Auerbach, there are other effective ways for a consumer to get prompt attention on a complaint—scream, cry, make a big scene!

In the case of faulty major appliances, Mrs. Auerbach notes that the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, 20 Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60606, is a court of last resort if you've had no success with a local dealer.

Sounding Off
When all else fails, Mrs. Auerbach encourages an unorthodox approach. It can work, as cases she cites in the book illustrate:

Nancy E. didn't get the bed she ordered so, well along in a pregnancy, she appeared at the department store and cried. The store sent two sturdy cots until her bed was delivered.

Kathie S. spent weeks waiting for a new percolator to be repaired. Weary of instant coffee, she appeared at the store, was juggled around but finally got attention by standing in a room full of customers and emitting one loud scream after another. The percolator was shipped the same day.

Call to Duty
No matter how minor the complaint about product or service, Mrs. Auerbach believes a consumer should not suffer in silence because it's his duty to complain.

"Consumerism is no longer looked on as a passing fad nourished by crackpots," she says, "but as a very important movement that can affect a business where it hurts—in the balance sheet. Make a just complaint and you're fighting the good cause—not just for yourself but for better products, better management, and better living."

Money Savers
"Your Money—How to Make It Stretch" is a real investment for those who need to learn the basics of budgets, credits, loans, checking and saving, insurance, real estate, car ownership and much more.

Written with humor, it's easy reading and the advice it offers is sound. Mrs. Auerbach is an expert.

"To write this book," she says, "I learned first-hand about every topic in it. I interviewed experts and then translated their advice into English. Experts, especially financial experts, have a jargon of their own. All it does is confuse people."

That's something the author, who teaches a course on "Women and Money" at the New School in New York City, doesn't do.

Helping Children Become Independent

COLLEGE STATION — Many parents resolve to begin the new year by strengthening relationships with their children. But this takes more effort than just saying the words, according to one family life education specialist.

She's Ilene Carrington, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Good relationships don't just happen — they must be nurtured," she reminded. One of a parent's main responsibilities should be to help a child become independent so he'll be ready to leave home. Becoming a mature individual who can accept responsibility for his actions begins early, she pointed out.

Parents encourage independence by providing opportunities for their children to learn how to behave in a variety of situations.

"Sometimes a child needs positive instructions to help him know what is appropriate behavior. Sincere praise for accomplishments promotes a feeling of self-confidence and a willingness to try something new," she said.

Parents help children learn to make their own decisions by discussing a situation and all possible alternatives. They promote an atmosphere which encourages an exchange of ideas and feelings by respecting tolerance and respect for the young person's viewpoint — even when it differs from their own.

"They teach cooperation through activities at home which help the child learn to get along with others," Miss Carrington explained.

TX Tops Club No. 255 of Skellytown met recently in the Library with the club leader, Mrs. Frances Stamps, presiding.

The meeting opened with the club pledge in unison and the singing of the Club Fellowship song by all the members.

Juanita McCarthy was crowned weekly queen for a loss of 2 1/2 lbs. The club members lost 4 3/4 lbs. Frances Stamps received two charms for her bracelet for six months perfect attendance.

Jane Russell received a cash award from the club for being best loser for December she lost 2 1/2 lbs. and Dorothy Williams was runner-up for 2 1/2 lbs. lost. The two queens were honored with a duet by Gladys Simmons and Odell Hassler who sang the "The Queens Song."

Three months perfect attendance winners were Jane Russell, Fannie Coleman and Dorothy Williams.

Pampa, LMHS Here Today

By PAUL SIMS
Pampa has whipped Lubbock Monterey once this season, in fact by 25 points, but the Harvesters aren't taking tonight's meeting between the schools for granted.

The 7:45 p.m. contest in Harvesters Fieldhouse will close out Pampa's non-conference schedule. The Harvesters are 14-3 thus far and a win tonight would mean a four-game win streak and momentum going into Friday's district opener at Amarillo Caprock.

The Plainsmen of Joe Michalka will also wind up non-district play tonight. Monterey is 13-8 and has won three straight after losing to Pampa, 51-35, at Lubbock. The Lubbock school had a three-game win streak prior to the last Pampa contest.

"They didn't play well," Pampa coach Robert McPherson said. "They'll play much better up here...I know they will be tougher, a lot tougher. They'll come up here and try to keep us from running with them."

"They've probably been working on pressure defense."

Pampa's victory over Monterey two weeks ago was the start of a mild turnaround. The Harvesters have played their finest basketball of the season in the last three wins, outscoring opponents (Monterey and Liberal, Kan., twice) by an average of 79.7 to 44.7.

Pampa's last win was over Liberal, 53-42, and according to McPherson, the Harvesters played "better defense than we've played all year."

Offensively, Pampa is led by 6-3 senior guard Billy Wilson, averaging 15.5 points and 6.7 rebounds per contest. Wilson also has 50 assists for the season.

Six-five post Howie Lewis, another senior, is scoring at a 16.1 clip and leads Pampa in rebounds with 180, good enough for an 11.1 average. Senior guard

Robert Young, 6-1, is the only other Harvesters averaging in double figures (13.8).

Nick Slaymaker, 6-4 senior forward, has missed seven games this season because of a foot injury, which he has seemed completely recovered from in recent games. Slaymaker is averaging 7.1 points and 6.2 rebounds but has hit in double figures twice out of the last three games, scoring 14 against Monterey and 15 at Liberal Friday.

The other starter for tonight's game will be 6-1 junior Richard Lane, who owns a 3.0 scoring average and is one of Pampa's top defensive players.

Three others have scored an average of at least three a contest — sophomores Brian Bailey (3.8) and Donnie Hughes (3.4) and junior Edd Drew (3.3). They are expected to play against Monterey, along with senior guard Noel Hansen and junior forward Jewel Landers.

Two Plainsmen — 6-6 post Dick Jacard and 6-4 forward Jackson Pace — have been outstanding so far, averaging 16.8 and 16.5 points respectively. Pace is the team's leading rebounder, averaging eight a game, while Jacard is second with over seven per outing.

Six-five Scott Gardner (7.1) is another Pampa must stop. Gardner led Monterey with 28 points as the Plainsmen belted Berger, 67-54, last week. The loss was Berger's second of the season, both coming at the hands of Monterey.

Five-eight Dirk Overbeck (9.5) and either J.C. Conine (4.1) or Ricky Keith (3.6) will be starting guards against Pampa.

In tonight's only other game involving a 3-AAAA team, Berger hosts Lubbock Coronado. The open night for the Amarillo schools will give the coaches of those four teams the opportunity to scout Pampa and Berger.

WHL All-Star Game Sold Out In Edmonton

EDMONTON (UPI) — The World Hockey Association All-Star Game being played tonight is the first sellout in three seasons of play. It will be played in Edmonton's new 15,300-seat arena.

With Al Smith of the New England Whalers out of the lineup, for "personal reasons," East team Coach Ron Ryan of New England will start Cleveland Crusaders goalie Gerry Cheevers for 30 minutes, then insert the Indianapolis Racers' Andy Brown for the final 30 minutes.

Mike Walton of the Minnesota Fighting Saints, in a game against New England Sunday, pulled a groin muscle and will be replaced by teammate Fran Huck.

Ryan has the Quebec Nordiques line combination of Serge Bernier, Rejean Houle and Marc Tardif and the Toronto Toros line of Wayne Dillon, Tom Simpson and Paul Henderson with which to work.

Chicago's Ralph Backstrom will play with Tom Webster of New England and Frank Mahovlich of Toronto. The extra forwards are Larry Pleau of New England and Gary Venerezo of Michigan.

The defense is made up of J.C. Tremblay of Quebec and Pat Stapleton of the Chicago, who previously worked side-by-side for Team Canada.

Dale Hoganson of Quebec and Rick Ley of New England will form another pair. Jim Dorey of Toronto and Brad Selwood of New England will also combine.

Bill Dineen, the West Coach from the Houston Aeros, will play all three goaltenders—Don McLeod of the Vancouver Blazers, Wayne Rutledge of Houston, and Joe Daley of the Winnipeg Jets—for a period each, but hasn't decided in which order.

He'll keep Houston's line of Larry Lind, Frank Hughes and Andre Hime together. Bobby Hull of Winnipeg will play with teammate Ulf Nilsson and Danny Lawson of Vancouver. Andre Lacroix of San Diego will center Gordie and Mark Howe of Houston.

Paul Popiel and John Schella of Houston will play as one defensive pairing as will the Edmonton Oilers combination of Barry Long and Doug Barrie. The other pair consists of Jerry Odrowski of Phoenix and Lars-Erik Sjöberg of Winnipeg.

Previous All-Star games were held in Quebec and Minnesota.

NHL Stars Go Today

MONTREAL (UPI) — Wisconsin cracks aside, even Bep Guidolin has to be wondering what he's doing here.

It isn't one of your everyday occasions that the coach of a last-place team gets to lead an all-star team. But Guidolin will be behind the Prince of Wales conference bench tonight for the 28th annual National Hockey League All-Star game.

He earned his enviable all-star post by coaching Boston to the East Conference championship last season and into the Stanley Cup final against Philadelphia.

Tonight's game will feature four of his former Bruins-Phil Exposito, Bobby Orr, Carol Vadnais and Terry O'Reilly, a last day replacement for the injured Johnny Bucyk.

As an added fillic to Guidolin's position, Simon Nolet, a player he currently coaches will be skating for the Clarence Campbell conference against his Prince of Wales team.

Nolet, the only player chosen from the Scouts, will be on a line with his former Philadelphia teammates, Bobby Clarke and Bill Barber.

"I hope he gets the hat trick, but we win," Bep said. "I hope he gets the cap (to be awarded to the most valuable player). Maybe he'll give it to me."

Fred Shero, Guidolin's adversary from Philadelphia in the Stanley Cup final, once again will be behind the other side in the all-star game, to be televised throughout the United States and Canada starting at 8 p.m. EST from the Forum.

Shero beat Guidolin to the punch in one respect, naming his offensive and defensive alignments more than 24 hours in advance of the game while Bep chose to study his roster further before committing himself.

In addition to the Clarke-Barber-Nolet line, Shero named the following combinations: Gary Unger of St. Louis centering for Steve Vickers of the Rangers and Jim Pappin of Chicago; Stan Mikita of the Black Hawks between Ed Westfall of the Islanders and Rod

SPORTS

Gilbert of the Rangers; and Tom Lysiak of Atlanta centering for Flames' teammate Curt Bennett and Dennis Hexall of Minnesota.

Defensive pairings according to Shero, will be Denis Potvin of the Islanders with Brad Park of the Rangers, Flyer teammates Ed Van Impe and Jim Watson and Doug Jarrett of Chicago with Tracy Pratt of Vancouver.

Bernie Parent of the Flyers and Gary Smith of the Canucks will share the goaltending.

Guidolin stirred some controversy Monday after being informed that Boston had nominated O'Reilly to replace Bucyk. Bep, somewhat annoyed that he heard of the change from newsmen, contended that another right wing could disrupt his team balance and he asked NHL President Clarence Campbell if he could nominate Dave Forbes of Boston instead.

Forbes is currently under a 10-game suspension for a stick assault on Minnesota's Henry Bocha and Campbell was quick to turn down the request.

The sentence should have read, "Dunn's selection prompts a question."

Williamson Tiger Boss
MEMPHIS (UPI) — Memphis State's newly named football coach, Richard Williamson, declared Monday, "my first priority is to have a winning team," and said he'll work on the "Tigers' kicking, defensive and offensive games in that order."

Williamson, now an assistant at Arkansas and a former assistant to Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama, was chosen by the Memphis State Athletic Council at a midnight meeting Monday.

The decision came after MSU officials had talked to three other possible successors to Fred Pancoast—Head Coach Bob Tyler of Mississippi State and assistants at Trail of Tennessee, and Bill Pace of Georgia. Pace and Tyler had removed themselves from the running by Sunday.

Williamson was an offensive star at Alabama and is remembered for having caught Joe Namath's first college pass in 1961. He said that his first priority will not be offense, but that that will not be neglected.

"The teams that I have been associated with that are winning teams started with the kicking game, then defense, then offense," the 33-year-old Ft. Deposit, Ala., native said. "I'm going to stud our personnel. But the type of offense I'm going to run will be some type of option offense."

Reds Catcher Fast Worker
CINCINNATI (UPI) — Johnny Bench, one of Cincinnati's and the sports world's most eligible bachelors, is getting married to a girl he has known less than a month.

The Cincinnati Reds' catcher, twice the most valuable player in the National League, broke the news Monday he will marry New York city model Vickie Chesser here Feb. 21.

Bench, a native of Oklahoma City, Okla., is 27 and Miss Chesser is 25.

"A friend of mine introduced me to her Dec. 28," said Bench. "We've been talking engagement for the last week and decided to make it public after talking to her parents and mine."

Bench wouldn't concede it was exactly love at first sight, "but I will admit it came on pretty fast."

Miss Chesser, whose parents live in Mt. Pleasant, S.C., is a graduate of the University of South Carolina.

Bench said he had seen Miss Chesser on television doing an Ultra-Brite toothpaste commercial.

"But she has never seen me play baseball," he said. "I'm sure she's going to be a good baseball fan, though. She seems interested enough."

"We were in Las Vegas during the New Year holidays and I guess some of my friends were filling her in on my baseball ability, telling her I was a pretty good catcher."

"What really doubled me up, though," he added, "was when she said to me, 'you can hit, too.'"

The wedding is scheduled the day Bench is supposed to report for spring training in Tampa, Fla.

National Pros Surprise AFC

MIAMI (UPI) — The 1974 National Football League season ended Monday night with one of the same messages that marked its beginning way back last August—black quarterbacks can get the job done.

The Los Angeles Rams' James Harris made the latest dent in one of the most longstanding prejudices among sports fans. He led the National Conference to a 17-10 win over the American Conference in the annual Pro Bowl by throwing eight-yard touchdown passes to Mel Gray of the St. Louis Cardinals and Charley Taylor of the Washington Redskins.

The season began with Joe Gilliam, another black quarterback, who led the Pittsburgh Steelers to a strong start. He was later replaced by Terry Bradshaw, who brought Pittsburgh the NFL championship last week.

Monday night, Harris replaced sore-armed Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota in the All-Star game and won the Most Valuable Player Award for his performance.

Going into the game, the AFC had won the last three Super Bowls and six of the last seven and the last three Pro Bowls but Harris said he wasn't aware of that problem.

NFC Coach Chuck Knox, also of Los Angeles, was, and so were many of his other players.

"The players had been waiting for this and it was a great personal satisfaction for me," Knox said. "We even had guys volunteering to go in on the kickoff team. Our goals were out to beat the AFC and have some fun. We did both. It's a great way to start 1975."

The nationally televised game got off to a slow start before a disappointing crowd of only 26,494 fans, and at the half, Chester Marcol's field goal gave the NFC a 3-0 lead.

Early in the third quarter, Miami quarterback Bob Griese hit Dolphin teammate Paul Warfield on a scoring 32-yard post pattern. Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela then made it 10-3 for the AFC with a 33-yard field goal.

That's when Harris, replacing St. Louis' Jim Hart who went out with an eye injury, went to work with his two scoring passes. He finished the day with seven completions in 13 attempts for 119 yards.

AFC Coach John Madden of the Oakland Raiders admitted disappointment.

"Any time you lose you're disappointed," he said. "We missed a lot of opportunities...but all in all, it was a crisp game. It wasn't sloppy."

Hockey Hit By Crunch

MONTREAL (UPI) — National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell said on the eve of the league's annual All-Star game that it is beginning to feel the crunch of current economic conditions and "at the present time are not thinking of seeking out other places to play."

Campbell said, however, that attendance for the first 296 league games this season, not including the two expansion teams, showed an average drop of nearly 100 fans per game.

Texas Tech, Porkers In Key SWC Contest

By United Press International
The key game in tonight's first major round of Southwest Conference action comes in a spot that in recent years has not been used to big basketball contests—Fayetteville, Ark.

The Texas Tech Red Raiders, who at least share the top of most everyone's favorite list for the conference crown this year, meet the Arkansas Razorbacks, who have been turned into a possible title contender by new coach Eddie Sutton.

"It should be one heck of a game," said Carroll Dawson, whose Baylor Bears have won the only conference game played thus far.

"Tech is going to be tough," said Dawson, who is in his second year as head man at Baylor. "Rick Bullock is back and you would never know he had been hurt (the Tech center was injured when he slipped on the ice in Lubbock earlier this month)."

"Arkansas has looked pretty good, too. They've got some new people that are helping out and you know they're going to be well coached."

Baylor will try to maintain its early conference lead in a trip to TCU while the other league games find defending conference champion Texas traveling to SMU and Rice—which lost that league opener to Baylor by a point last Saturday—will host Texas A&M.

It is Texas A&M which has received almost as much preseason attention as Texas Tech and it is the Aggies who have compiled the best non-conference record in the SWC—8-4.

"Rice impressed me when I saw them against Houston," Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf said. "They were not intimidated at all and they broke Houston's zone press as sick as anybody I've seen."

"Tim Moriarty and Danny Carroll are two of the top seniors in the league, but they have basically a young team with a lot of freshmen. I expect them to be tough, especially in Houston."

UCLA Loses, Still Rated 2nd

NEW YORK (UPI) — Indiana, one of only two remaining undefeated teams in major college basketball, increased its lead today in the weekly United Press International Board of Coaches ratings but UCLA held on to the No. 2 spot despite suffering its first setback of the year.

The Hoosiers, boasting a perfect 16-0 record, received 38 first-place votes and 416 points from the 42-member coaches board and widened their lead to 89 points over the runnerup Bruins. UCLA, which has a 13-1 record, was upset by Pacific Eight rival Stanford, 64-40, at Palo Alto, Calif., Friday night but rebounded to wallop California, 102-72, on Saturday night.

Louisville, the only other unbeaten team, replaced North Carolina State as the No. 3 team after boosting its record to 12-0. The Cardinals, who ranked fourth a week ago, received three first-place votes.

Maryland, which got the only other first-place vote, benefitted from its 103-85 whipping of North Carolina State to climb one notch to No. 4 and North Carolina State, which barely squeaked past North Carolina in overtime following its loss to Maryland, dropped two places to No. 5.

Alabama jumped one place to

No. 6 after raising its record to 11-1 while Southern California, also an upset victim at the hands of Stanford on Saturday night, fell two spots to No. 7.

Arizona State held onto the No. 8 spot with Oregon and Kentucky rounding out the top 10.

Six coaches from each of the seven geographical areas of the country comprise the UPI ratings board. Each week they are asked to vote for the top 10 teams and points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th.

Fuel Tax Hike Planned To Curb Trade Deficits

HOUSTON (UPI) — President Ford's proposed import tax hike on oil is designed to offset balance of trade deficits by pricing gasoline out of many persons' pocketbooks, according to an Interior Department official.

"Brutally simplified, the administration proposes to curtail our use of petroleum by making it too expensive to waste," C. King Mallory, deputy assistant secretary for energy and minerals for the Department of Interior, said Monday.

"We must attack the supply and demand problem from both ends," Mallory told the World Offshore Forum. "We must reduce our consumption of petroleum products, and we must increase our (domestic) production."

Ford proposed a $3 per barrel increase on imported oil. That tax would be passed along to the consumer, Mallory said, and the increased oil company profits would be heavily taxed to put the money into energy research and investment.

Mallory said this nation must cut its use of the high-priced imported oil and reduce the balance of trade deficits to create money reserves to invest in energy projects such as offshore exploration, coal production, and solar, nuclear and

BY GOVERNMENT

Home Loans Interest Lowered

DALLAS (UPI) — Housing Secretary James T. Lynn has announced another reduction in interest rates on government-backed home mortgage loans. The 5 per cent reduction goes into effect today.

Lynn told the annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders Monday interest rates on government-backed home mortgage loans are being reduced from 9 to 8.5 per cent.

It is the second reduction in two months. The interest rate was lowered from 9.5 per cent to 9 per cent on Nov. 25.

Lynn said he hoped the reduction will help a housing industry whose unemployment rate exceeds 14 per cent. Housing construction has dropped 57 per cent during the last two years.

Mortgages backed by FHA and VA accounted for 40 per cent of the housing industry after World War II and up until the early 1960s. But the government program has accounted for less than 20 per cent of the homes bought in recent years.

Lynn also said the government will allocate $900 million in rent subsidies to 350,000 low income Americans and $215 million in subsidies for housing construction for the elderly and the handicapped.

In Washington, assistant HUD secretary Helen Holt said the $215 million will be a big help in starting construction of housing for the elderly and the handicapped.

HUD officials said the $215 million will be used to finance construction loans for units owned and operated by nonprofit organizations. After the units are constructed, the owners will have to find permanent financing, thus freeing the funds so they can be used again.

The program is a change from the original intention of the program, which would have made the money available for permanent financing up to 40 years. HUD officials said restricting the funds to construction lending enables it to be "rolled over more frequently."

Nonprofit groups using the funds for financing construction will pay interest rates lower than available in conventional money markets, but the rate has not been determined yet, HUD officials said.

Someone who has never had any cavities probably doesn't mind going to the dentist. But for the rest of us, it can be aggravation.

Visits to the dentist can be a little more enjoyable — and rewarding — the Better Business Bureau says, if you choose the right one. A good dentist can save you aggravation, money and, most importantly, your teeth.

Look for a dentist who is prevention oriented. Of course, you have to work with him to prevent dental disease, but a prevention-oriented dentist will show you how to do your part.

This dentist will explain how to brush your teeth, how to use dental floss and how to remove plaque.

A good dentist views the removal of a tooth as a major disaster and will do everything possible to help you save all your teeth. It might seem more economical to remove a tooth than to go to the expense of saving it, as with root canal work. But the consequences of removing a tooth can be great and unless removal is really necessary, it's best to save the tooth.

Dental Exam
A new pamphlet prepared with the cooperation of the Connecticut State Dental Association states that when you go to a dentist, you should expect a full exam. If you are a new patient, the dentist should get a thorough medical history from you and then take a full-mouth set of x-rays. The dentist, and not the hygienist, should make a complete oral examination.

Finally, you should be given a complete treatment plan, including a discussion of the examination and x-ray findings. Make sure you understand the explanation. If the work is going to be extensive, and over a long period, you might want to ask the dentist for a written summary of the work to be done and the fees to be charged.

You should go to a dentist who explains what he or she is doing and why. A good dentist will explain alternative treatments to your specific dental condition and possible benefits and complications. Don't be afraid to ask questions; your mouth shouldn't be a mystery to you.

In addition, says the Better Business Bureau, a good dentist:

— participates in continuing education programs to keep up with new developments;

— has a clean, well-organized office (be wary if the office is always crowded and the dentist consistently spends little time with you);

— will give you emergency treatment when it's necessary.

Finances
Ask at the outset what your dentist will charge. You should get an itemized bill with a description of services and a breakdown of costs. If he or she won't discuss fees or give you an estimate in advance, find another dentist.

Today's modern dentist doesn't just "fix teeth." He is concerned with your complete oral health — gums, bone and palate as well as teeth. So, what you eat and drink — and whether you smoke — is of concern to him, and should be to you if you want a healthy mouth and sound, lasting teeth.

The BBB issues this reminder: 25 million Americans have lost all of their teeth and another 25 million lost half their teeth by middle age. Don't become part of these statistics — your teeth deserve all the care you can give them.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Be somewhat skeptical while keeping a sense of humor. Much of today's trivia remains so only because it's taken lightly. Later hours bring sober thoughts.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Unless well budgeted, money gets out of hand with little to show for it. Conversations run in circles, convey emotional meanings unrelated to the words.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Visitors pop up when least expected, or turn out other than anticipated. Their news is surprising although relatively unimportant. Calmly treat today's changes as temporary.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Complications attend any career effort. Teamwork encounters minor snags. It's up to you to abstain from fault-finding. Your luck improves suddenly at end of the day.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Select the smoother, more peaceful contacts for a beginning. Bring together all sides, a few at a time, for reconciliation. Expect no definite conclusions today.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Try for tranquility despite excitement. Travel is favored, but should be planned around alternative routes as conditions are subject to abrupt change.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The bright new idea is the thing this morning, but spend at least a day checking it out before you decide to apply it. There's more than one factor needing judgment.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Amuse yourself, but not at the expense of others. Help those who are confused. Most schedules fail; the more complicated, the more inconvenient.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: The spirit of adventure can lead you out of your regular pathways. No harm done if you've taken care of ordinary chores first. Home life is richer.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Thrift is something you normally practice naturally. Today is not the day to overdo it. Get help, a second opinion, on any technical matter.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Quietly keep your self-control as everybody has a great deal to say about secrets that can't be kept much longer anyway. Family affairs become exceptionally busy.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Communication includes much clamor, many extras that are confusing. Concentrate on people who have told their stories well and straight before.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

The beginning of any new year is a time for looking ahead — as well as reflecting on the many blessings and accomplishments the past 12 months.

The Texas State Department of Health is happy to have been a part of many good things received by Texans during the past year. Your tax dollars provided these services in many areas.

During 1974 the incidence of immunizable diseases reached an all-time low. Taking the lead in lowering these so-called childhood diseases was the Immunization Division of the State Health Department. Public health facilities throughout the state provided more than 1.7 million immunizations — and private physicians added a great contribution in this effort.

Texas schools continued to report 95 per cent or more immunizations among pupils for diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles and rubella. A sizable increase in pre-school immunizations also was reported.

For those who were in need of hospitalization, the Health Facilities Construction Section channeled loans and grants into local facilities. These funds went to 35 additional hospitals and other health care facilities. In addition, assistance was given approximately 50 others with construction already underway.

To ensure compliance with regulations, the Hospital Licensing Program made 601 hospital surveys and reviewed plans for more than 14,000 new hospital beds and 54 new hospitals.

Personal services were extended by the State Health Department to residents throughout Texas. More than 186,000 children benefited from medical and dental screenings and treatment.

Some 12,857 children were aided through hospitalization, medical or surgical care, artificial appliances and other services through the Crippled Children Services.

Maternal and Child Health services went to more than 65,900 children and an additional 31,000 maternity and 86,000 family planning patients.

Through the Chronic Disease Division screening program, diabetes tests were provided for more than 22,000 potential diabetics. Control tests were made for 3,474 known diabetics.

Your health budget funded three chest hospitals, a network of chest clinics and numerous service contracts for the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis and other lung diseases.

The Kidney Health Care Division is overseeing payments of overwhelming medical expenses for more than a thousand Texans. Public nurses took their care to more than 700,000 persons, and thousands of mothers and children are benefitting from better nutrition through the WIC (Women, Infants and Children) Program.

Educational efforts were carried to every section of the state through the Public Health Education Division's film and literature section and through mass media. And, almost a million persons viewed films and exhibits dealing with smoking and health and the rheumatic heart disease. The prophylactic program continued to provide special care.

Confidential venereal disease treatment was provided for 115,272 Texans during 1974. Preventive measures provided by the State Health Department have reduced infectious syphilis approximately six percent in 1974 and screened one of every five women of child-bearing age for gonorrhea.

This screening program found and treated 28,000 women for gonorrhea who had no symptoms of the disease. Cooperation by the state's news media and school districts enabled TSDH to inform at least five million Texans — including our high-risk youth — about incidence, prevention, symptoms and treatment facilities.

The state's working people benefitted by more than 6,000 safety inspections conducted by Occupational Safety representatives. Better emergency medical care was assured through training of 1,500 ambulances were inspected and licensed.

Dental education workshops were conducted for 901 teachers and other school personnel serving 19,690 children, and awareness programs will be carried to 2 1/2 million children in the next biennium.

In the field of environmental health, water supply and wastewater programs were extended. For safe drinking water you paid for laboratory analyses of 257,000 water samples, plus reviews of plans for construction and additions to water and sewage plants.

More than 1,400 inspections were made of existing plants, and examinations were given operators of these plants to assure proficiency of the operators.

Surveillance of all radiation devices — such as those used by physicians and dentists — was made during the year. The General Sanitation Division operated in such fields as youth camps, day care centers, migrant labor camps and jails, as well as other public health areas.

Public health is being extended to Texans through the 68 local health departments, which cover 81 percent of the population, as well as six public health regions operating throughout 145 counties. Your tax dollars are making all these health services available.

The streams and lakes in Texas are monitored regularly. During the year 521 bacteriological samples were collected from Texas streams and lakes for laboratory evaluations of water quality.

In addition, almost 1,200 water samples were collected from oyster growing areas in Texas bays and estuaries. And, 5,100 chemical tests were performed on Texas coastal waters.

During the past year the Division of Shellfish Sanitation Control surveyed and classified 1 1/2 million acres of shellfish growing waters and made 3,224 inspections of shellfish and crab meat processing plants.

We can all be thankful for the many gifts of good health furnished through the use of your tax dollars by the State Health furnished through the use of your tax dollars by the State Health Department, which is employing more than 6,000 persons at all levels.

The Almanac

United Press International
Today is Tuesday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1975 with 344 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Civil War Gen. Thomas Jonathan Jackson — a Southern Confederate commander known as "Stonewall" Jackson — was born Jan. 21, 1824.

On this day in history: In 1861, Jefferson Davis resigned from the United States Senate, 12 days before Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1906, New York City enacted the "Sullivan Ordinance" which held smoking by women illegal.

In 1954, the world's first atomic-powered submarine, the "Nautilus," was launched at Groton, Conn.

In 1968, a U.S. Air Force B52 carrying four reportedly nonexplosive hydrogen bombs crashed off Greenland.

A thought for the day: President Harry Truman said, "The responsibility of the great states is to serve and not to dominate the world."

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. Even a college education.

More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is on how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and servicing, he gains this valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaperboys, notable successes among them, have told us as much.

Your newspaperboy also applies the arithmetic he learns in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills...thus he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of promptness and of good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life...while building a bank account of his own.

Should your son be inclined to put himself that step ahead, have him get in touch with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it...the opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.
