Israel Launches Drive Against Arab Guerrillas

United Press International — Israeli commandos today launched what they called an all-out drive to seek out and destroy Arab guerrilla strongholds with a series of lightning strikes into southern Lebanon that triggered fierce fighting.

In the explosion of gunfire on Israel's boulder-strewn northern frontier a Lebanese soldier was killed, the first to die at the hands of Israel's forces since June, 1972, the Israeli command reported in Tel Aviv.

Israeli commandos raided at least two border villages. When they came under fire from a house in one village they blew it up, killing four persons inside, Lebanese and Israeli reports said.

In another village they killed an 11-year-old boy.

Lebanese artillery drove off another Israeli infantry force at the outskirts of a third settlement, the Beirut command said, sparking a cross-border artillery duel.

A 19-year-old Israeli corporal was lost in a ravine in one of three regions the Israelis attacked in what the command described as an "all-out security operation" designed to forestall guerrilla strikes into Israel.

No other Israeli casualties were reported.

Lebanon said its soldier was killed by an Israeli ambush as he was driving home to the village of Rmaich, about 1 1/2 miles from the Israeli border. The Tel Aviv command said he was killed when he tried to drive through a roadblock.

Guerrillas operating farther east opposite the frontier settlement of Yiftakh and in the Har Dov region fired on Israeli patrols with bazookas and light weapons but caused neither casualties nor damage, the command said.

A command communiqué said Israel launched the operation to forestall guerrilla attacks into Israeli territory to mark the 10th anniversary of the founding of Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah, the largest Arab guerrilla organization.

The command routinely declined to disclose details of the operation or say how many men were involved. It was not characterized as a big operation.

A military spokesman in Beirut said a 60-man Israeli force raided the village and blew up the home of Ali Hussein Sharafeddine, killing four persons and wounding one.

The spokesman said Sharafeddine and his two sons, Abdullah and Salah, were killed. He said a neighbor, Mahmoud Kaik, was also slain. Sharafeddine's brother, Hassan, was reported wounded.

He said Lebanese artillery opened fire on the withdrawing troops, touching off a duel with Israeli field guns. "Enemy casualties are not known," he said.

It was the third Israeli attack against a Lebanese village in two days.

Convicted Defendants Still Claim Innocence

NEW YEAR'S BABY — Little Julia Guinn spent some time getting acquainted with her mother early today. The five-pound, two-ounce girl was born at 5:44 a.m. today, making her debut as the first Gray County baby of 1975. Julia, and her parents, Russell and Rhonda Kay Guinn, 517 N. WASHINGTON (UPI) — The three most powerful men of Richard Nixon's administration, who stand convicted of conspiring to cover up their involvement in Watergate, today steadfastly maintained that they would prove their innocence on appeal.

Unlike some of their former colleagues now in prison, John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were far from contrite after the verdict was handed down Wednesday. They remained free on personal bond.

Mitchell, 61, Nixon's attorney general and campaign director; Haldeman, 48, and Ehrlichman, 48, the men who ran his White House, were convicted of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying. Robert C. Mardian, 51, a former assistant attorney general and campaign aide, was convicted of conspiracy.

Kenneth W. Parkinson, 46, hired to do Watergate legal work, was acquitted of conspiracy and obstruction of justice—the first Watergate defendant to go free.

Sentencing was expected to be delayed during the appeals process. Mitchell could get 25 years in prison and a $37,000 fine; Haldeman, 25 years and $21,000; Ehrlichman, 20 years and $35,000; and Mardian, 5 years and $10,000.

The entire appeals process could last a long time and it could be months before any of the defendants go to jail if they are so sentenced.

who was pardoned by President Ford.

Haldeman reflected the defendants' defiant reaction to the verdict when he declared, "I know that legally and morally I am totally innocent."

Ehrlichman, outspoken and unusually jolly, said today in a television interview (NBC Today Show) that when he was indicted nine months ago he was "pretty well convinced of the impossibility of securing an acquittal."

Referring to chief trial prosecutor James Neal's contention that the cover-up was orchestrated by Nixon and the defendants, he added:

"Actually, if you look at these five defendants, from my standpoint one of them I'd never met before, Ken Parkinson, another one I hadn't seen for a couple of years, Bob Mardian, another one I saw perhaps four times over the span of the year that was in issue in the case, John Mitchell, and then on only a very casual basis. So if that was an orchestra, it never got together for a rehearsal."

Neither the original Watergate burglars nor those congressmen who investigated the scandal expressed surprise at the verdict.

Brezhnev Said To Be Ailing In Sanatorium

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has refused comment on reports that Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev is ailing and confined to bed in a sanatorium.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo say Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, is being treated at a sanatorium on the outskirts of Moscow.

"We will not comment on any such reports," a spokesman for the Soviet Foreign Ministry said Wednesday in response to questions from Western correspondents.

The party chief was last seen in public on Dec. 24 at the opening of the Supreme Soviet, the U.S.S.R. parliament. Newsmen said he seemed in normal health.

The Cairo sources said Tuesday Brezhnev's condition was disclosed during Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi's recent three-day visit to the Soviet Union.

The diplomats declined to identify the illness but said it caused the postponement of Brezhnev's planned visit to Egypt, Syria and Iraq this month.

The sources said Fahmi, who returned Tuesday from his trip to Moscow, visited the 68-year-old Communist leader at the sanatorium. Brezhnev told Fahmi his doctors advised against traveling to the Middle East Jan. 24, they said.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said the 35-minute meeting took place in a rest home about 20 minutes' drive from Moscow "where the Soviet leader has been recuperating from a severe cold."

The newspaper said Brezhnev's health was one of the main reasons why the Soviet leader met Fahmi "outside the Kremlin and at a location that was not officially disclosed."

Diplomats said Brezhnev arrived in Paris for his recent talks with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in a fatigued state but quickly perked up.

Mrs. Brezhnev told West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Moscow two months ago her husband cut out official luncheons so he could rest.

Winter Snowfall Covers Panhandle Region Again

Snowfall covered the Pampa area today, glazing streets and highways and providing conditions for hazardous driving.

No injuries from several fender-bender type accidents had been reported at forenoon, with driving conditions improving as the sun broke through the cloud cover.

Weather officials here reported four inches of snow at 6 a.m. with a moisture total of 35 inch. High today was expected to be near 40, with an overnight low near 20.

Freezing rain and sleet fell Wednesday evening before the snowstorm moved in, providing an icy cover for streets and sidewalks underneath the snow.

Clearing conditions with variable cloudiness were in the forecast for the remainder of today and through Friday. A slight possibility existed for more snow tonight.

High Wednesday for the first day of the New Year was 40, with a low this morning of 27.

In UPI reports, the New Year's holiday traffic death toll exceeded

Department of Public Safety predictions, but a DPS spokesman said the latest storm could cause more problems than drunken drivers on New Year's Eve.

"We've got bad, freezing weather coming in from the west and rain from the east," DPS spokesman Jim Robinson said. "It will be an understatement to say that driving will be extremely hazardous through today."

Today's official forecast called for snow mixed with sleet moving through North and North Central Texas with a chance of sleet as far south as the Hill Country of Central Texas.

Drizzle and fog was forecast for the rest of the southern half of the state.

Travelers advisories were issued Wednesday night for the Texas Panhandle and the South Plains. Heavy snow warnings were issued for areas west of the Pecos River where accumulations of up to four inches were expected in the higher elevations of the mountains east of El Paso.

Light rain and near freezing temperatures were expected to create hazardous driving conditions throughout the South Plains.

Areas west of the Pecos and in the northern part of the Panhandle shuddered through freezing temperatures New Year's Day as the storm began its march into the state.

Elsewhere temperatures were generally in the 40s and 50s. Drizzle and light fog moved into the lower and central areas of the coast and inland into Central Texas. Light rain fell late Wednesday night in the Childress and Tyler areas.

The storm struck El Paso early in the morning New Year's Day dropping up to the three inches of snow in some areas in the mountains east of the city, winds gusted up to 55 miles an hour and snow fell throughout the day.

The verdict came as no surprise to most of those who have been involved in the 2 1/2 year-old scandal known as Watergate, not even the convicted defendants. And it raised again for some the question of why Nixon — an unindicted co-conspirator — was never charged or even required to testify.

Nixon himself promised to issue a statement on the verdict later in the day from his home in San Clemente, Calif.

All of the convicted defendants said they would appeal, primarily on grounds of pretrial publicity and U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's refusal to delay the trial long enough to obtain the testimony of the ailing former president.

C-C Breakfast Slated Monday

Reservations will be taken by telephone at the Chamber of Commerce office until 5 p.m. Friday for the chamber's breakfast meeting at 7:30 a.m. Monday in Coronado Inn.

Chamber officials said approximately 60 reservations had been made up until noon today.

State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo will speak at the breakfast and discuss business to come before the new session of the Texas Legislature.

Floyd Watson, chairman of the arrangements committee, said 100 to 125 persons are expected to attend the breakfast and urged reservations be made as early as possible Friday by calling the chamber office.

Chamber president Gene Steel will preside at the breakfast session and Senator Sherman will be introduced by Watson.

Politicians Praise Jurors

United Press International — Politicians generally commended the Watergate jurors Wednesday and said justice in the cover-up trial had been served.

But Dorothy Mardian, the wife of Robert Mardian, one of the four men convicted, stuck out her tongue in court and sputtered a "Bronx cheer" to protest the verdict.

Some principal figures in the long scandal, including former Watergate prosecutors Archibald Cox and Leon Jaworski, declined comment. Former President Richard M. Nixon said he would have a statement later, and President Ford had no comment.

The four men convicted maintained their innocence and said they would appeal, and the fifth defendant, Kenneth Parkinson, who was found innocent, was elated and said he had a new lease on life.

Reaction from political leaders was generally subdued. A statement by newly inaugurated New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey was typical.

"The offenses were an attack on the fundamentals of our system and, while no one takes any pleasure in it, the verdict speaks for itself," he said.

Retiring Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., the dean of the Senate, said, "From the very start of the Watergate case I have said the matter should be left to the courts, the U.S. House and the Senate. I expect they've done their job as they had to."

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, said, "This predominately black, predominantly female jury has acted with wisdom and dedication to the principles of our democracy. They turned out to be better Americans than the Watergate conspirators, and their leader, Nixon, who used their enormous power against the best interests of the American people."

Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., praised the jury for its "discriminating and sensible" guilty verdict. He said the decision "does show that the jury was discriminating in that it allowed Parkinson to go free."

"The definition of conspiracy is very technical. It was adroit of the jury to say that Parkinson was on the fringes and not at the heart of the conspiracy," Drinan said.

Rep.-Elect Norman D'Amours, D-N.H., said, "It shows that the system works. It is just further proof truth eventually will out. Our jury form of justice, although ponderous and not always satisfactory, is still pretty good, and speedy enough when it has to be."

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said, "The Watergate verdict is not a panacea for the repeated trampling of constitutional democracy."

"It is the failure to correct ongoing abuses, not the guilt or innocence of individuals for past offenses, which continues to disturb me."

Threat to Small Oil Men

Congress adept at making bad matters worse is threatening to cancel the oil depletion allowance under which a percentage of oil company profits are exempt from taxation. The threat, presumably aimed at the major oil firms which according to the socialist antibusiness line are supposed to be making windfall profits.

Whether the from one to two cents a gallon profit the major oil companies average on sale of the products qualifies as a windfall profit or not depends of course upon one's viewpoint but certainly no one has yet figured out how to produce oil and oil products with out the investment capital provided by profits. Nor can there be any doubt that the oil depletion allowance acts as an incentive to increased production which the nation desperately needs.

Be that as it may as it turns out cancellation of the depletion allowance would not only hurt the major oil firms which do the refining and marketing but would hurt even worse the many small independent drillers who do the bulk of actual domestic discovery and recovery work. This was brought out in an interview with independent oil driller E.A. Smith, now 79, who brought in his first two wells in 1928. Chairman of Service Drilling Co. of Tulsa. Smith is a veteran with 61 years in the oil industry.

Statistically, Smith pointed out, the independents are in an impossible business with the odds stacked 50 to 1 against them. On the average, only one of every 50 wells drilled produces enough oil to make it worth while and 40 of those fifty are total loss dry holes.

If you're lucky, the veteran oil man emphasized, you earn about an eight percent return on your investment, so where's the windfall profit? You can get 11 percent on certificates of deposit and have no risk — but if everybody did that we'd all be hungry wouldn't we?

Already the Tulsa oil man went on to add the number of independent oil producers is only 10 percent of what it was 20 years ago and Congress if it cancels the depletion allowance may force even these out of business. If it hadn't been for the depletion allowance, a lot of independents would never have started. Elimination of the depletion allowance would make this industry go flat and the cost of oil and oil products would go up to the consumers.

The depletion allowance which often means the difference between a working profit and a loss is the lifeblood of the independent. Smith concluded. Without it the independents would be unable to encourage investment in drilling operations and production of the oil the nation vitally needs.

Congress' talk of achieving energy independence, not withstanding judging from that body's recent actions and threats, one gets the distinct impression that they relish the prospect of the United States being at the mercy of the Arab oil cartel.

When oh when, will they learn to get out of the way and let the market place work?

Aid to the Jobless

The slide into recession has steepened. The unemployed are bearing the brunt of the slump.

There are six million unemployed nationally. More than 30,000 are drawing unemployment benefits in this county a figure that is up considerably from a year ago and up sharply in the last month.

Recession may well be necessary to cure inflation but if it's your paycheck that is lost, the cure is worse than the disease. The entire community now must help bear the burden. Even if the cost tends to be inflationary, the expenditure helps resist pressures for more expensive inflationary measures.

The Senate and the House have passed a compromise bill authorizing $5.5 billion in aid — public service jobs, unemployment benefits and public works projects. President Ford signed the bill as expected.

H. L. Hunt Wrote ROCKY'S ROAD Ford Relying on Rockefeller

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — In the highest politicalized decision-making labor circles it is expected that Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller will revert to type — traveling back in time some 30 years to the early 40s. If this carefully weighed analysis — and reports of private conversations — are correctly interpreted, the ebullient newcomer to the White House inner circle will go Rooseveltian in 1975.

In these circles it is reported that both President Ford of the U.S. and President Meany of the AFL-CIO expect the Vice President to create a Roosevelt-type labor coalition, rip it away from the left of center Democrats who now have little political and ideological use for the AFL-CIO power structure, and swing it to the 1976 Republican ticket.

This prediction might not be as fantasy-like as it sounded when an old inmate of both Rockefeller and Meany first outlined it the other day. As governor, Rockefeller had little difficulty doing exactly this in four New York state elections. Behind the scenes and out front he blended official liberals, Kennedy followers, old-time machine Democrats, extreme left-of-center mass picketing unionists, construction labor leaders, teachers, power brokers who were wine and dined by the late President Johnson, and scored of others into an effective machine.

Rockefeller delivered what Democratic governors might not have dared. When a massive union demonstrations and public strikes breached the labor law even by paralyzing cities, he forgave and everybody forgot.

Actually only a few labor chiefs officially backed him. One of them, a dynamic veteran New Dealer to whom he'd give a lift home from Washington occasionally in his private plane, often sighed, "I wish I could back him, but officially my people (the rank and file) would never go for a Republican."

Rocky knows the labor movement, first-name basis, as well as he does industrialists, businessmen and bankers. And President Ford is reported to have said that's just what is needed in the White House. For example, at about 3 p.m. Dec. 20, the highly secretive White House Labor-Management Committee waited for Mr. Ford. He was conversing intensely with Israel's ex-

EDUCATION IN U.S. Reading Problems Are Examined Pro and Con

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "Our son was exposed in first grade to that terrible, nonsensical method of reading — 'Look-Say.' What struggles by the time he reached fifth grade! But what could one person do in a big school system? What a disservice to America's children in that horrible method of teaching reading!" — Mrs. J.H. Litchfield, Ohio.

A — It's true that good old "Look-Say" has produced a generation of functional nonreaders. But it's not true that "one person" is helpless to get changes made. I've known dozens of such school districts in which far-reaching reforms were made, almost always by a few concerned citizens eventually reaching and motivating thousands of others. It takes organization, dedication, hard work and sometimes money but it pays off.

Q — "Your article on Using 'reading disabilities' as an excuse for nonlearning was of great interest to me. I am a primary teacher and agree with you 99 percent. I teach in a new open-spaced school, and although we have a new philosophy and a new building, we realize that the old approach to reading — Phonics — must be used." — Mrs. R.K. O'Fallon, Ill.

A — The right way to teaching reading is independent of philosophies and buildings. You can teach children to read in an open field or the Taj Mahal. Of course, you'll be more comfortable in the latter, but the children won't necessarily learn more.

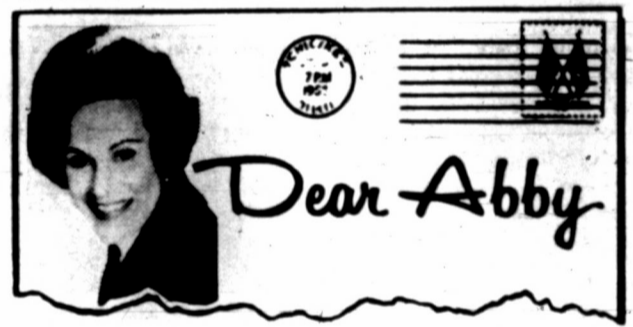

Q — "I am not a teacher but am married to one. After working as a teacher's aide in the first grade, it is so obvious to me that there is a real need for reading tutors in our school system. Wouldn't schools be money ahead if they could hire two-year college-trained tutors to teach reading to those having trouble in the elementary grades?" — Mrs. V.M. Richmond, Ind.

A — Why not just hire elementary teacher who know how to teach reading? Then there would be no need for "tutors." Isn't it strange, Mrs. V.M., that our ancestors went to school in ramshackle frame buildings and in large classes with one teacher assigned to each class and yet learned how to read? If anyone had suggested back in 1874 that a "tutor" be brought in to help Miss Zilch teach the kids to read, the response would have been, "Let's fire Miss Zilch and replace her with a tutor."

Q — "As a retired teacher of college English, I want to commend you on your recurring articles on the vagaries of current education. After almost 50 years in the classroom, I have indeed grown weary of sixth-graders masquerading as college students. There is, of course, a rare exception here and there but, sadly, the illiterate dominate the scene. It is a reflection, I suppose, of a permissive society's deferring to immature preference and judgement."

During my long experience, I have encountered students who did not know the alphabet in sequence and some who were unfamiliar with certain of the cursive letter configurations. The inability to write a sentence with any style and grammatical correctness is the norm. And any appeal for improvement goes unheeded, simply regarded as old-fashioned nonsense." — Prof. C.W.C., Rolla, Mo.

A — If every institution of higher learning would compel each entering student to pass a basic literacy test before being admitted, it would revolutionize the teaching of reading and English in every elementary school in the country. I wonder why they don't.

This "government man" looks like a ringer

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I met a very attractive man at a club and we started dating. When he refused to tell me his last name, I assumed that he was married, but he assures me that he isn't.

Here is his story:

1. He works for the government.
2. He travels a lot.
3. His job is to meet people and get information.
4. When I asked for some identification, he said he didn't carry any, besides, it wouldn't be correct anyway.
5. He is obligated to this job for at least two more years and cannot get married during this time.
6. He is licensed to carry a gun, but does not.
7. He doesn't have an "address," but he does have an answering service.

Abby, if this unbelievable story proves to be true, I would like to continue dating him as he is good company, pleasant and well-mannered. However, if he is lying, I will end the relationship immediately.

How can I find out if he is really employed by the government? And if so, with which agency?

This situation has me stumped. Any information you can give me will be very much appreciated.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: The F.B.I. and C.I.A. both advise me that all bona fide agents have names which they use in their work. (Some have several. But each agent has credentials in the name he is using.) Since this man refuses to tell you what name he is using, you can consider him a phony. Both departments said that quite a few men tell girls this story to keep from getting involved; however, if they actually impersonate a government agent, they can be prosecuted.

DEAR ABBY: This is to encourage "Flat in N.J.," and all the other flat-chested women who read your column.

At 28 years of age, I finally got the courage to have silicone implants, performed by a reliable plastic surgeon. Even though I had been married for many years and had children, I always felt inferior and self-conscious due to my flat chest.

The results were thrilling. I wish I had had it done ten years sooner.

DEAR FLAT: You have more boom buddies than you know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a schoolteacher who is very tired of being put down. Recently someone called me (and my fellow schoolteachers) "glorified babysitters."

I sat down and calculated exactly what I would earn if I were actually a babysitter.

I have 42 students. If I were to charge 50 cents an hour (which is the very least any babysitter would charge), I would make $21 an hour.

Allowing one hour off for lunch (although teachers seldom get an hour off because they are required to have lunch-supervising duty during their lunch period) I would get $21 times five hours, or $105 a day, times five, or $525 a week. Or on a four-week, 10-month basis, $21,000 per year!

Babysitter's fees look awfully good to me.

Three Ways To Serve Chuck Roast

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
"WHAT'S FOR DINNER?" isn't an idle question, it's a traumatic one. You can stretch a food dollar just so far, then money, not to mention ingenuity, runs out. The only way to keep the budget somewhat balanced is to shop the meat sales and look for cuts that, relatively speaking, are economical. Learn how to cook them in several ways to avoid menu monotony.

Chuck, among the more reasonably priced cuts of beef, isn't sirloin but properly prepared it can be a tender, tasty treat.

An ordinary pot roast makes an appealing family or company dinner when prepared Bavarian style with a sweet and sour sauce. Serve it garnished with canned pear halves.

- 1 (3 to 4 pound) beef chuck roast
 - 2 tablespoons cooking oil
 - Salt and pepper
 - 1 medium sweet Spanish onion, sliced
 - 8 whole cloves
 - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
 - 1/4 cup vinegar
 - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 1 tablespoon water
- Drain pears, reserving syrup. Brown chuck roast in oil on both sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add onion, 3/4 cup reserved pear syrup, cloves, ginger and vinegar. HEALTH'S-A-POPPIN' Eat less sugar, doctors advise

By MARION WELLS
 Copley News Service

Consumers are unhappy with the soaring cost of sugar, but where health is concerned, we may have been paying too high a price for quite some time. The current market markup may help us heed this suggestion from Harvard nutrition expert Dr. Jean Mayer: "The best advice I can give you about sugar in any form is: eat less."

Why cut sugar consumption? John Q. American eats the equivalent of roughly one teaspoonful of sugar per hour, every day of the year. Sugar supplies almost 20 per cent of the calories in the "average" diet — but contributes no significant amounts of essential vitamins, minerals and protein.

important environmental factor in coronary disease is susceptible individuals.

Some researchers have found significant correlations between sugar consumption and mortality rates for diabetics.

Less sugar to chew on may leave us more teeth to chew with. When sugar was hard to get during and shortly after World Wars I and II, the incidence of cavities in Western European children declined. It climbed right back up as soon as sweets were readily available.

If you start eating less sugar, an unexpected bonus may be a wider taste experience. Says Yudkin, "When you have really become used to taking very little sugar in your foods and drinks, you will notice that all your foods have a wide range of interesting flavors that you have forgotten."

Not only can these so-called "naked calories" push more nutritious items out of the diet, but according to Emanuel Cheraskin, M.D., the metabolism of highly processed carbohydrates and sugar "... requires large quantities of vitamins and minerals which, literally, have to be stolen from other foods or body tissues."

Sugar consumption on an excessive scale may unbalance not only our diet, but our weight. On the other hand, a government report estimated that the incidence of obesity could be reduced by a potential 80 per cent just by improving nutrition.

British nutrition expert John Yudkin, M.D., suggests that too much sugar in the diet may also start your baby up the scale toward a weight problem. Authorities point out that overfeeding in early life may predispose toward obesity later.

Can excessive amounts of "sweet treats" play other unpleasant tricks on your health? According to Yudkin, findings point to sugar as an meat is tender. Blend cornstarch, soy sauce, and 1/2 cup water. Add to meat and cook, stirring, until thickened. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

Thrifty German cooks have long had an economy secret in their recipe books. Called Roulades, it's yet another way to serve chuck. In this version, the chuck is cut into slices, then pounded very thin. Each is wrapped around a slice of pickle, rolled in flour and browned. After simmering in bouillon for two hours, they're tender and ready to serve with mashed potatoes and your favorite vegetables.

Let's Ask the Cook

by Nan Wiley

Dear Nan:
 A good many years ago when I lived in California I had a marvelous recipe for tamale pie. As I remember, some of the ingredients were ground beef, corn, pitted olives and a corn meal mush crust. I have been unable to locate anything similar in cookbooks. Mrs. M.F. Frankling, Kansas City, Mo.

You just haven't looked in the right ones. There are so many versions of tamale pie it's hard to know just where to start, but here is one that is nearest to what you remember.

You will need 1 1/2 cup sliced ripe olives, 1 pound lean ground beef, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 cup drained whole grain corn, 1 cup chopped onion, 1 1/2 cup chopped green pepper, 1 to 2 cups sliced celery, a No. 2-1/2 can (3-1/2 cups) tomatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons chili powder, 1-1/2 cups corn meal, 1-1/2 cups boiling water and 2 cups grated American cheese.

Brown beef lightly in hot oil. Add onion and green pepper. Cook until vegetables are clear. Stir in celery, tomatoes, corn, the 2 teaspoons salt and chili powder. Simmer 10 minutes; add olives.

Stir corn meal and 1-1/2 teaspoons salt into boiling water. Turn heat low, cook for 10 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent lumps.

In a greased 3-quart casserole, alternate layers of corn meal mush, meat mixture and cheese, topping with a few dollops of mush and a layer of cheese over all. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 minutes to 1 hour. Place a whole ripe olive in each corn meal puff. Serve 6 to 8.

Pork sausage or diced cooked chicken also make good tamale pies. So does leftover ground cooked roast beef.

The Economic Waffle-Wich

In these waste-not, penny-counting days, keep food costs lean. Make it low cost, easy to prepare, appetizing, and nutritious. Waffles, a very old form of bread, make a fine-tasting knife and fork sandwich filled with creamy cottage cheese and a hot orange sauce made with Log Cabin syrup poured over the top. Serve with a fresh green salad and a glass of milk.

- Waffle-wich
- Cottage cheese
 - Hot waffles
 - Fruited Syrup
- Fruited Syrup
- 1 cup maple-blended syrup
 - 1 orange, sectioned and diced
- Heat syrup to boiling. Add orange sections, and bring again to a boil. Serve warm. Makes 1 1/4 cups.

Where can I get the "Favorite Breads From Rose Lane Farm" and "Breads and Coffee Cakes From Home Made Starters"? Mrs. Jerry D. Murray Salisbury, N.C.

Almost any sizeable book shop will have the first book or egg order for you. Surely some shop in Charlotte stocks it. The second book is now out of print. However, if you would like to have starter recipe for sourdough, send for my booklet, "Sourdough and Other Breads." It provides great ideas for special breads. Send 25 cents and a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope to Nan Wiley Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Justice Douglas Suffers Stroke

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William O. Douglas, 76, who has served on the Supreme Court longer than any member in history, today was under intensive hospital care — the victim of a stroke suffered during a Bahamas vacation.

For the past six years Douglas has had an electronic heart pacemaker in his chest. When he set his record of 34 years 196 days on Oct. 30, 1973, he said his doctor pronounced him in "fine" health.

The outspoken jurist had just arrived in Nassau with his wife, Cathleen, for a short vacation. He was stricken on New Year's Eve and taken to Princess Margaret Hospital.

By an ironic quirk, his way home was smoothed by President Ford, who as House Republican Leader led an attempt to impeach him in 1970. Ford arranged for Douglas' physician, Thomas Connally of Arlington, Va., to be flown to his patient from Andrews Air Force Base.

Then, by presidential order, a C9 medical plane was dispatched from Homestead AFB in Florida to bring Douglas to Washington. He arrived Wednesday morning and was taken to Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger notified the other justices.

Saigon Vows Tough Defense For Key City

SAIGON (UPI) — Tank-led Communist troops stormed a key city north of Saigon today, smashing through government lines and battling in the streets with defenders ordered to hold besieged Phouc Binh at any cost.

The city, located 66 miles north of Saigon, is the last government position in the entire of Phuoc Long province, a jungled area between Saigon and the Cambodian border.

The Saigon command vowed to defend Phouc Binh to the end but initial reports indicated the defenders were losing ground quickly in the capital of 11,000 people.

A command spokesman said at least 10 North Vietnamese tanks broke through Phouc Binh's barbed-wire defense perimeter at noon and dived-bombing government warplanes only managed to knock out one of them.

Phouc Binh, a once-bustling market city 66 miles north of Saigon, is the last remaining government stronghold in Phuoc Long Province.

The fall of the Phouc Binh would give the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government control of an entire province in South Vietnam for only the second time in the war.

The Communists captured all of Quang Tri Province during the 1972 spring offensive but government forces later retook the southeastern section of the province, including Quang Tri City, the capital.

The situation is becoming more and more critical every day at Phouc Binh, a command spokesman said. "The (South) Vietnamese military is trying to save it at any cost."

In Cambodia, rebel troops pounded Phnom Penh with rockets and launched a ground offensive around the capital city on New Year's Day, capturing at least three government positions, military officers said.

The new drive by pro-Communist guerrillas sent at least 10,000 refugees fleeing their homes. Military police blocked all roads to Phnom Penh to prevent the rebels from mingling with the refugees.

Traffic Deaths Reach Estimate

The New Year's holiday traffic death toll, boosted by bad weather in some areas of the country, reached the lower end of the National Safety Council's pre-holiday estimate early today.

The council had estimated that between 130 and 230 persons would die in traffic mishaps during the 30-hour holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. local time

Tuesday and ended at midnight New Year's night. A United Press International count as the holiday period ended in the far West showed that 136 persons had died in traffic accidents.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

The district of Columbia also had a traffic death — free New Year holiday.

Seventeen states got through the holiday period without a traffic death. They were: Alaska, Arizona,

AG REPORT SHOWS Farms Decline 'Bottoming Out'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 40 year decline in the number of farms may be "bottoming out" in 1975, an Agriculture Department statistician said today.

The tentative analysis by James Garrett, of the Statistical Reporting Service, came after the agency released an annual report estimating there are 2.819 million farms in the nation.

The estimate was the lowest in government records which go back to 1910. But it represented a decline of only 11,000 farm units from the 2.830 million estimate for 1974 and was the smallest decline recorded since 1936.

1974. Alaska had 300 compared with 310 a year earlier.

Farm numbers in some other leading states with 1974 comparisons included:

Missouri — 139,000 (unchanged); Iowa — 137,000 (138,000); North Carolina — 132,000 (135,000); Illinois — 125,000 (126,000); Kentucky — 125,000 (126,000); Tennessee — 125,000 (unchanged); Minnesota — 118,000 (unchanged); Ohio — 117,000 (unchanged); Indiana — 106,000 (unchanged); Wisconsin — 104,000 (105,000); California — 63,000 (unchanged); Alabama — 77,000 (78,000); Arkansas — 69,000 (unchanged); Georgia — 75,000 (unchanged); Kansas — 82,000 (83,000); Michigan — 80,000 (unchanged); Nebraska — 68,000 (69,000); Oklahoma — 86,000 (87,000); New York — 58,000 (57,000); Pennsylvania — 72,000 (71,000); West Virginia — 27,000 (26,500).

The indications are that we are about to bottom out (in farm numbers), but we won't really know whether this has happened for a year or two," Garrett said.

The rate at which farms are disappearing from government statistics has dropped dramatically in the last 10 years. In 1966, the farm number estimate was down 101,000 from the previous year. By 1970, the loss was down to 45,000, fell to 14,000 in 1974 before dropping to 11,000 this year.

The new report showed farm numbers increased over 1974 estimates for New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Other government records show that most of the farms counted in the Agriculture statistics are still small or parttime operations which generally furnish only part of a family's income or serve largely as a retirement home. In 1973, for example, only 1.3 million of the 2.844 million farms counted had gross sales of $10,000 or more and only 1 million had sales of over $20,000. More than 80 per cent of all farm products come from the over-$20,000 farms.

The 1975 report showed Texas continued to lead the nation in farm numbers with 209,000 on Jan. 1, unchanged from a year earlier. Rhode Island was last again among mainland states with 680 farms, unchanged from

Khene Urges New Increase In Oil Prices

United Press International
Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani says the petroleum states are getting a pretty fair price for their fuel exports and won't have to charge any more until 1976.

But Abderrahman Khene, outgoing secretary general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, says oil prices are a bargain in these tough times and ought to be increased another 25 per cent.

Yamani said Wednesday the recent increases in the price of oil should be enough to compensate petroleum producers for inflation this year.

"Small, successive increases should not be necessary again until 1976," he told the West German economic publication Wirtschaftswoche of Duesseldorf.

He said Saudi Arabia also opposes production cuts. "If we followed the wishes of those who want production cutbacks and price increases, we would definitely ruin your (Western) economy," he said.

"You would then have a depression which would be a feeding ground for a takeover by the left wing," he said. "We want to prevent that."

Khene, an Algerian whose two-year term as OPEC secretary general ended Tuesday, was asked in an interview with the Paris magazine Economie if he thought the current price of about $10 a barrel was reasonable.

"Personally, no," he replied. "Oil today continues to be cheaper than the oil of just after the war (World War II). To find that level again, I think the price should rise a little more, by about a fourth of the present price, that is from $2.50 to $3. Then, $12.50 for oil from the (Persian) gulf would be a just price."

Mexico, which became a major oil exporter last summer, is one of the few petroleum states outside the cartel. Mexico has promised, however, not to sell its oil below OPEC prices.

Egypt Warns Demonstrators

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian government, angered by a rock-throwing worker protest, threatened today to crush any new "anarchy and rioting" on the streets of the capital.

The demonstrators smashed scores of windows Wednesday and battled briefly with helmeted police carrying bamboo riot poles, shields and tear-gas canisters.

In the wild melee at Liberation Square, one railroad car, 19 shops and 41 cars and buses were damaged, the government said. Two demonstrators and several policemen were reported injured. Police said 48 persons were arrested.

Premier Abdel Aziz Higazi summoned his aides to an emergency meeting and issued a statement blaming the riots on "irresponsible elements" with "saboteur objectives."

"The government will spare no effort in enforcing the law firmly, sternly and thoroughly," the statement said. "The battle of liberation (against Israel) is not over yet. Demonstrations and other acts of violence, anarchy and rioting which are banned by law will be dealt with firmly and sternly."

The demonstrators were angered over the government's apparent failure to deal with the severe economic crisis in the country. Inflation in Egypt rose more than 10 per cent last year and commodity prices soared over 22 per cent.

Bicentennial Flag Flying On Mount

GRAND TETON PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — The American Revolution bicentennial flag, planted by 11 mountaineers who scaled the 13,766-foot summit of Grand Teton Peak New Year's Day, flew in clear, 10-below-zero weather Wednesday.

Paul Petzoldt, 66, the leader of the annual trek up the mountain, said it was the second day the flag was planted on the peak. He said conditions were as good Wednesday as the day before, when six members of his 24-member party first reached the uppermost tip of the jagged peak.

Petzoldt said possible adverse weather conditions could prevent a third trip to the top of the peak today.

"We're very, very happy and well," Petzoldt radioed to Grand Teton National Park headquarters. "The flag was taken up yesterday and today. But the weather doesn't look good to the west and we may not make it tomorrow. We don't want to take any chances."

Petzoldt did not climb to the top either Tuesday or Wednesday, preferring to remain in a hut at the lower saddle at the 11,700-foot level of the mountain.

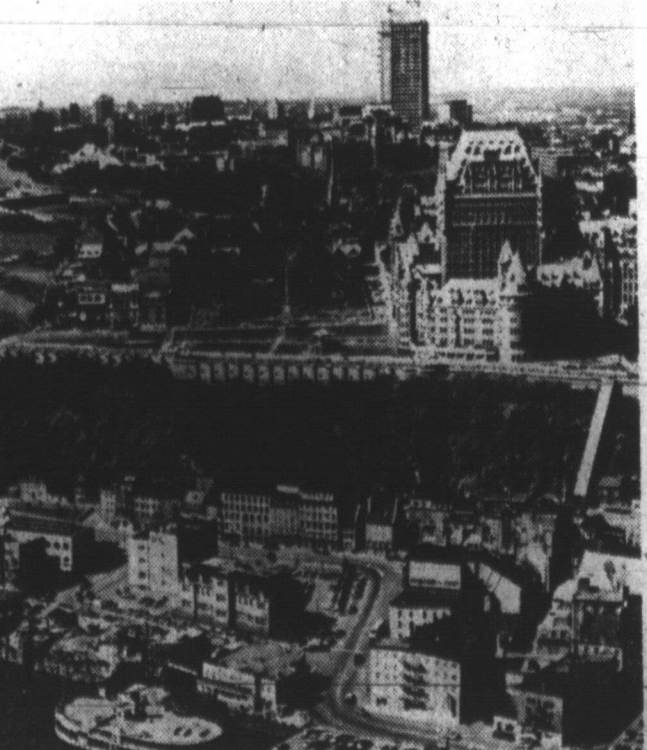

He said the party would begin descending the mountain today and would be "very thirsty" when it reached the base of the peak Saturday morning. He asked park rangers to meet his party with four cases of beer and a case of wine.

The dollar opened at 2.41 marks in Frankfurt, fractionally up from the 2.4095 closing figure New Year's Eve. It opened at 36.37 Belgian Francs, slightly higher than the previous close of 36.20, which was the lowest since Oct. 17, 1973.

In Paris, the currency was unchanged at 4.46 francs.

The dollar was slightly higher in Milan, at 650.85 lire, up from 648.85. It was up also in London where it was 2.3365 against the pound, from 2.3475. In Amsterdam the dollar opened at 2.5138 guilders, up from 2.5065 at the close of business Tuesday.

"The dollar is up a little in year-end trading, partly in reaction to its decline at the end of December and partly because of the decrease in gold prices," a Paris banker said.

DPS To Study Weather, Traffic Patterns For Fatality Count

United Press International
The Department of Public Safety will analyze weather and traffic patterns in the state during the last two days to determine why the New Year's holiday traffic fatality count exceeded all predictions.

The Department of Public Safety predicted 16 persons would die on the state's highways during the 30-hour holiday period that began at 6 p.m. Tuesday and ended at midnight Wednesday.

International survey showed 49 persons were killed in traffic accidents during the New Year's holiday.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Jim Robinson said it would be several weeks before DPS analysts could determine why their prediction was so low.

"Maybe it was the bad weather, but that's only a good guess," Robinson said. "I'm sure alcohol has quite a lot to do with it, especially since many of the deaths occurred right around midnight when most of the New Year's partying was going on."

The two worst accidents occurred within an hour of each other.

Allan Bates, 17, of Edinburg and Abel Villereal, 26, of Edcouch were killed at 2 a.m. Wednesday in a two-car collision at an Elsa, Tex., intersection. Less than an hour later Victor Lopez, 24, and Emma Alvarez, 23, both of Rio Grande City, were killed in another two-car collision on Highway 83 near their hometown.

Three persons were killed in auto-pedestrian accidents.

LeRoy Gaston, 44, of Brownsville was killed Tuesday night as he walked along Highway 77 near the city. Isabel Gonzales Cabarrubia, 45, of Angleton was fatally struck as she crossed a street in Angleton a few minutes later. An Venacio Games, 49, of San Antonio was struck by a car as he attempted to cross a San Antonio street shortly after midnight Wednesday. Tony Thomas, 19, of Tulla ran off the road near Silverton and overturned, killing him.

Indians Capture Monastery Site

KESHENA, Wis. (UPI) — An armed band of Indians who took over a closed monastery early New Year's Day say they will hold the facility until the religious order that owns it turns it over to them.

The 37-acre site was sealed off by county, state and federal officers but a spokesman for the Indians said they were "prepared to die for what we believe in."

Neal Hawtoss, 27, a spokesman for the group, said about 400 Indians were involved in the takeover. But authorities estimated the number at 40 or 50.

"We are holding the Alexian Brothers responsible for the lives and the safety of our people in the monastery," Hawtoss said. "So far they've held off the police."

Hawtoss said leaders of the group, which calls itself the "Menominee Warrior Society," were to meet today with two of the Alexian Brothers of America, who own the site and used it as a novitiate until 1968.

Authorities said shots had been fired, but not by law enforcement officers. Hawtoss denied the Indians fired any shots. He said the Indians were armed with "bows and arrows." Another Indian spokesman said they only had some hunting equipment.

But the caretaker of the facility, Joe Plonka, said when the Indians arrived they were carrying "plenty of handguns and shotguns."

Plonka said they fired "pot shots at passersby."

There were no reports of injuries.

Plonka, his wife and their two children were ejected from the monastery about two hours after the Indians' arrival shortly after midnight New Year's Day.

Plonka, in a report to Brother Florian Eberle in Chicago, president of the Alexians, said he saw about 10 or 12 Indians at the time of the takeover.

Shawano County authorities said they asked for extra manpower from neighboring counties, but there was no request for the National Guard. The FBI had several agents on hand to determine whether any federal laws were violated.

The monastery, a mansion built in the 1940s by a New York woman and given to the Alexians in 1950 for use as a novitiate, is seven miles west of here in a sparsely populated area with a large percentage of Indians.

TO SETTLE DEBT

Dallas Mayor's Car For Sale

DALLAS (UPI) — A 1966 automobile belonging to the mayor of Dallas goes up for sale to the highest bidder today for repayment of a $30,000 debt.

Mayor Wes Wise said the seizure and sale of his car was a deliberate attempt to embarrass him.

"I don't know who is behind this," Wise said. "But if they wanted to embarrass me, they've succeeded."

Dr. Bernard Dolenz of Fort Worth and James Schleder of Dallas won a $30,000 judgment against Wise and his former partner, George Rodgers, last summer. Dolenz and Schleder loaned the Texas Export Development Corp., founded by Wise and Rodgers, $25,000 to seek rights to oil discovered in Indonesia.

The proposal did not succeed and the company folded without the debt being repaid.

Wise said he offered to pay $15,000, which he said was his part of the loan, but Dolenz and Schleder turned him down.

"According to printed reports, it has been claimed that I have never made a valid offer to repay my share of the loan," Wise said. "The truth is that I have tried several times, the latest on Oct. 24, 1974."

Wise said Dolenz and Schleder decided instead to file a lawsuit forcing a full disclosure of his holdings and then obtained a court order to seize his car, a Volkswagen.

The financial statement required by Wise showed the mayor was deeply in debt. But he said he had no intention of filing bankruptcy.

Wise said the details of the seizure of his car were released to the news media by a "public relations professional."

"Evidently this was done to embarrass me since a car worth more than $100 will hardly make a dent in a judgment totalling $30,000," he said.

Schleder said he intended to seek further seizures of Wise's property for public sale unless the debt is settled. He said his attorney told him the mayor's home could be seized if it is valued at more than $10,000 on the city tax rolls. But other attorneys said a homestead cannot be taken for repayment of a judgment and the rule applies only to undeveloped land where the house is located.

The Dallas Times Herald, in an editorial Wednesday, said it has "the utmost sympathy" for the mayor and said most of his problems have come from "the niggardly salary—a paltry $50 a week — Dallas pays its mayor."

The mayor's financial delimma has its difficult and troublesome aspect for the city of Dallas," the editorial said. "No city likes to see its elected mayor in this sort of financial embarrassment."

"But this is all the more reason, we insist, why the city should pay its mayor a decent salary. It should be a salary which would enable him to devote as much of his time to the city as is needed without the financial penalty which such activities now exact of the mayor."

A person of modest means and modest income no matter how well qualified simply cannot afford to be mayor of Dallas.

FOR 2 WEEKS

IRA To Extend Cease-Fire Act

DUBLIN (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army today announced a two-week extension of its holiday cease-fire but said Britain's peace gesture in releasing or paroling 170 mostly IRA political prisoners was not enough for a permanent truce.

The announcement contradicted earlier reports from IRA sources in Belfast that the stand down would be extended by a month and indicated a division in the IRA leadership.

The 11-day IRA holiday truce was set to expire at midnight. It was the longest period of peace in five years of sectarian violence that spread to Britain in a wave of extremist bombings.

The IRA announcement said its leaders had considered at length the British response to the cease-fire—namely the release or temporary parole of the prisoners and the truce curtailment of offensive operations in Northern Ireland.

"While recognizing some minor developments as regards political prisoners and the role of the crown forces," the IRA statement said, "the response was not sufficient to warrant a permanent cease-fire."

"For worthwhile progress to be made, and to provide the British government with a further opportunity to produce positive results towards a lasting solution, the Army Council of the IRA has ordered an extension of the truce for 14 days."

The announcement said that unless substantial progress is recorded by Jan. 16, "the situation will be examined with a view to resuming offensive military action."

"The peace enjoyed over Christmas can be made permanent if the British government proves its sincerity by pursuing a reasonable and responsible policy. Peace with justice is the universal demand of all our people and the responsibility for granting same rests with the British government."

The IRA is demanding the withdrawal of Britain's 16,000 peace-keeping troops from Northern Ireland and the unification of the province with the Irish Republic.

Britain, in responding to the holiday truce, not only announced the prisoner release but also promised to plan the cutback of British troops if the truce became permanent.

Earlier an IRA official said the decision to renew the cease-fire was on "a knife's edge."

Britain Tuesday freed 20 detainees, offered parole to 50 more and released 100 shorter-term prisoners, most of them IRA members, jailed without trial under the government's emergency laws.

The IRA official said, however, that "horse trading in prisoners is not the answer. There must be some political movement. This should be a declaration of intent for the withdrawal of British forces. The whole thing is on a knife's edge."

Queen Elizabeth Knights Charlie Chaplin, Author

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth has knighted movie great Charlie Chaplin and novelist P. G. Wodehouse, two English-born expatriates with careers entangled in political controversy.

The monarch, in a New Year's Day honors list topped with sports and entertainment figures, also knighted Roger Bannister, the first man to run a four-minute mile.

Chaplin, a poor boy from the London slums, zoomed to stardom in Hollywood silent films by portraying a jaunty little tramp in oversized pants and shoes, a bowler hat and a bent cane.

The American Legion, California Senate Committee on Un-American Activities and other groups accused him in the late 1940s and early 1950s of supporting "subversive" causes.

In 1952, the U.S. government refused to let Chaplin return to America from a world cruise. The actor then settled in Switzerland.

Chaplin, who won a special Academy Award in 1972, lives in Vevey with his fourth wife, Oona, daughter of American playwright Eugene O'Neill.

Nicholas Sistovaris, husband of Chaplin's daughter Josephine, said the film great had turned down knighthood several times "but he is very happy now at receiving the honor before leaving this world."

Sistovaris, in a telephone interview from Switzerland, said the 85-year-old entertainer is sick and in bed at home.

P. G. (Pelham Grenville) Wodehouse, creator of the omnipotent butler Jeeves, has lived in the United States for three decades. He became a U.S. citizen in 1955.

Wodehouse has written 97 books and 18 Broadway musicals. His first novel was published in 1902 and he is still writing at 93.

The writer was seized by the Germans in Touquet, France, at the beginning of World War II. He was taken to Berlin and broadcast five talks in 1941.

Wodehouse later insisted the broadcasts were comical, making fun of the Nazis. But some public figures in wartime Britain characterized the talks as collaboration.

In lesser awards, Angela Baddeley, 70, who plays the grumpy cook in the television series, "Upstairs, Downstairs," was named to the Order of the British Empire.

Queen Elizabeth issues honors' lists twice a year — on New Year's Day and on her birthday. The awards are designed to reward service to the crown and state by the great and humble alike.

ON RADIO TALK SHOW

Making C/W Listeners Aware

By L. MOSKOWITZ
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — When Buck Owens, Charlie Pride and Lynn Anderson pause from their musical salutes to the flag, apple pie and mother, Twink Caplan discusses homosexuality, battered brides and Soviet Jewry.

"Although many of our listeners are quite sophisticated, some are not, and I want them to be aware of the real world," said Twink, as she calls herself on her "Female Forum" radio talk show aired Sundays on country music station WEEP AM and FM.

"Christ, some of them still go for Nixon."

Twink, 27, a former actress in New York and ballerina here, said country music has evolved from twangy banjo tunes to highly polished entertainment during the past several years. She added many of her listeners are executives, college students and middleclass housewives.

But she agreed the core of her audience still is made up of "loyal, honest people who love their country and their president, no matter who that is."

Twink said she found it difficult at first identifying with her audience.

"I try to be myself on the air, and what I am is a middleclass Brooklyn Jewish kid," said Twink. "It's kind of crazy on a country station, but I can't hide my personality."

And her personality does manifest itself on the air.

"I do shows which are controversial—not just Lions' Club shows. The audience already knows what truck drivers have to say, but how about the United Black Front? I don't tell them what they want to hear. I tell them what I think they should hear. I bring on lesbians, pro-abortionists, police detectives discussing rape and a lot of other people the audience wouldn't ever know about."

Twink started five years ago with WEEP, which research firms say grabs the second-highest adult daytime audience. She was selling advertising and answering telephones.

About two years ago, she inaugurated "Pittsburgh Now," a public service talk show and became the first female air personality on the station. In November, she launched "Female Forum."

"I try not to alienate the men by bringing on hostile liberationists," she said. "But I don't like a mild thing either. I try to shock the hell out of them sometimes."

The Big Frenchman He's Into American Sportswear

Hubert de Givenchy

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
THE BIG FRENCHMAN, Hubert de Givenchy, has been setting trends since he began designing couture clothes in 1951. In the European tradition, the 6 foot 6 designer apprenticed for eight years with such fashion greats as Jacques Fath, Robert Piguet and Elsa Schiaparelli before opening his own exclusive salon. Givenchy's private customers include such elegant women as Rose Kennedy, Audrey Hepburn and Jacqueline Onassis. His boutique on the Avenue Victor Hugo supplies the little jersey dresses and go-everywhere coats that are the delight of career women and young mothers. In 1969, Givenchy

"Gentlemen" opened with a complete men's collection of shirts, ties, ensembles and accessories coordinated in color and fabric for a total look.

American Fashions

Givenchy, for four years via Chesa International, has been designing for the United States trade.

Givenchy says turquoise is his favorite color, and it's always evident in his collections. For example, he has designed His and Her shirts for Chesa in a striking turquoise and beige signature print. Fashioned of Tango, a silky, supple knit fabric, they can be worn tucked in or out.

While he "hates" the unisex look, the designer feels that men's styling has influenced women's wear. For the future, he predicts fashions will become simpler, accentuating the personality of the wearer instead of overpowering the individual.

Givenchy, whose creative range includes scarves, ties, jewelry, handbags, gloves, hosiery and perfume, is a shy man. He lives in Paris, his favorite city, and loves his work. If he had his life to live over, he admits in halting English, he might devote it to interior design and modern art.

HIS AND HER shirts by Givenchy are done in a signature print of turquoise and beige on silky Tango knit fabric.

Job Prospects Good For College Women

NEW YORK (UPI) — What can a woman college graduate expect in the way of a job offer in 1975?

Something good, probably — even with the downturn generally in employment opportunities.

Northwestern University's 29th annual Endicott Report on National Employment Trends shows women college graduates with bachelor degrees can expect to find a few more jobs open to them in business and industry in 1975 than in 1974.

The copyrighted study by Frank S. Endicott, retired director of placement and professor emeritus at Northwestern, surveyed 160 companies across the nation.

Of these, 126 indicated they plan to hire an average of seven per cent more college women in 1975 — 2,139 as against 1,998 from 1974 graduating classes.

(Male college graduates with bachelor's degrees can expect about one per cent more jobs.)

The companies participating in the survey said employment of women graduates in 1975 will equal 19 per cent of the number of men graduates planned to be hired — 11,186 with bachelor degrees.

The companies hope to be able to hire 627 women in general business. In other fields, some 475 jobs are indicated in accounting, 266 in liberal arts, 289 in data processing and mathematics, 110 in engineering, 119 in marketing and retailing, 55 in science and 56 in other fields.

The survey, as any one involving a scientific cross-section, can be projected to show the nationwide situation.

For example, if the companies in the survey showed, as they did, a seven per cent increase in jobs for women, it is pretty safe to say that probably will be the trend at most companies.

Other points made in the report:

Average starting monthly salaries for women range from a high of $1,075 in engineering to a low of $784 for liberal arts graduates.

Entry level salaries for men range from $1,062 a month in engineering to $776 in liberal arts for bachelor's degree holders.

In three fields — engineering, general business, liberal arts — women's average salaries will be slightly higher than men's average salaries in 1975. Most other fields show entry-level averages for women only slightly below those for men.

The Endicott report also focused on the turnover rates for male and female college graduates. Since turnover is not regularly calculated in many companies, only 76 of the surveyed firms responded to the question.

The results show a median percentage of loss for women during the first three years of employment at 36 per cent.

The median rate of loss for men in engineering and other technical fields was 23 per cent and for men in business administration and other non-technical fields it was 33 per cent.

Endicott believes that many women are more uncertain than men about what they want to do in business and often secure jobs that they later come to dislike.

In addition, he noted that women often are less able to control their personal reasons for having or keeping a job.

For example, a married woman may not be able to accept a transfer because her husband can't or won't be able to move and she may leave the company.

There was a reflection of women's lib in the report. To wit:

Endicott believes the traditional reasons of childbirth and child rearing are becoming less influential as many companies come to treat pregnancy as an extended leave of absence rather than a termination with the company.

Born Worker Found Retirement Boaring

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — After an approximate decade of scurrying around the Los Angeles Furniture Mart, Cara Williams is back where she belongs, in front of cameras, playing Rhoda's secretary on a recurring basis in "Rhoda."

"I was born working," Cara, a former child actress, declares. "And I got so tired, I didn't want to work anymore."

"But I've found that when you have talent, even a little, you cannot just retire. You have to do something, and that's how, after I married my husband (realtor Asher Dann), I quit acting and started decorating."

"I spent years running around the Furniture Mart and was very successful. I got lovely write-ups in many papers."

"But after awhile I thought, 'Gee, I can make more money acting than I can at this.' So now I'm acting again."

"I can't imagine how they found me for the show, because I don't have an agent. Everybody who's ever been in the business — people 95 years old who haven't worked since World War II — are in the players' directory, but I'm not even listed there."

"Nevertheless, they found me and offered me the part of Rhoda's secretary, and I'm glad they did."

"Anyway, I'm acting again, because I've come to the realization that, if God gives you any talent in life, whether it's a talent for acting, cooking or whatever, it's a great sin not to use it."

Cara began using her talent as a moppet impersonating Bette Davis, Katharine Hepburn and Mae West and providing a voice for the Porky Pig cartoons.

She attended Hollywood Professional School on a scholarship prior to establishing herself as an actress in an assortment of pictures and television programs including the CBS series "Pete and Gladys" in which she played Gladys, and The Cara Williams Show.

After two unsuccessful marriages — one to John Barrymore Jr. — she married Dann and, since that time, has eschewed studios until quite recently.

Explaining her hiatus from the studios, Cara forthrightly says, "When I married my husband, he was not a successful person."

"So I told him, 'I want to be honest with you.'

"I love you very much, but I am bored with work, and I want to be married to a man who will take care of me."

"So, almost by accident, I became a decorator."

"But then I became very lax about the decorating. I hated it when someone would call and ask, 'Cara, where is my chair?'"

"I was carting and carrying things up flights of stairs until my husband said to me, 'You mean you didn't enjoy being a star, but you enjoy moving furniture?'"

PLANNED ECONOMY PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Persons planning to purchase a new or used car should check on fuel economy and tire durability first.

Fuel economy is important because of high gasoline prices and because of the energy shortage.

Tire durability is important because of rising tire prices and because of safety. Motorists should purchase tires from a reputable dealer.

Also the Tire Industry Safety Council warns that a car equipped with radial tires on the front should have radial snow tires on the rear.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

A deceptive play by a defender can frequently turn out to be costly, since it can easily mislead partner as to the true state of affairs. Nevertheless, at times, defensive deception becomes mandatory if a winning result is to be obtained.

In today's deal, a defender came up with a deceptive play that was calculated to deceive both his partner and the opponent, the declarer. From the deceiver's point of view, the gamble was worth taking — and it turned out to be profitable.

Both sides vulnerable.

West's opening lead of the spade three was captured by East's ACE, after which East returned the deuce of spades. South misguessed the spade situation and played the ten. West's jack winning. For want of a better return, West exited with a spade, which East won with his "concealed" king. A spade was next led to East's nine. West then cashed the diamond ace, for the setting trick.

BOOKS

Comanches, by T.R. Fehrenbach. (Knopf, $12.50)

The Comanches were the absolute rulers of the western plains of the United States in the early years of the 19th century. Fearsome warriors and excellent horsemen, they roamed and raided as they pleased. The gradual decimation of the race through decades of battles with the U.S. Army and Texas Rangers makes gripping, exciting reading. The book has the epic sweep and grandeur fitting to the fatal clash of two cultures.

The Glory of the Hummingbird, by Peter De Vries. (Little, Brown, $6.95)

This is not first rate De Vries but even second rate De Vries is entertaining. This time the novelist has taken a satirical view of a Sammy Glick type from Wabash, Ind., who marries the boss' daughter and becomes famous on a fixed-television show.

The Virtues of Hell, by Pierre Boule. (Vanguard, $6.95) Boule at his best gave us The Bridge Over the River Kwai and The Planet of the Apes. His latest novel doesn't make that high grade, but it is well plotted and interestingly populated. The leading character is a young Vietnam veteran, a chemist who also is a heroin addict. He is promised a lifetime supply of "horse" in exchange for services rendered to an international narcotics ring. He agrees to the deal, with a surprising if not believable result.

Board Of Attorneys Submits Resolutions

AUSTIN — The New Year is a traditional time for taking a fresh look at ourselves and our lives and deciding how to make them both better. And many of us need to make some changes, not only in our personal affairs, but in our business affairs.

So, in keeping with tradition, the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division lawyers have come up with some New Year's resolutions designed to help consumers get more from their dollars in the way of products, service, and satisfaction.

Our attorneys suggest that alert, informed consumers resolve the following:

— To keep a record for at least one week of every expenditure, in order to find out where your money is really going.

— To organize shopping and buy only from a prepared list, thus avoiding unnecessary impulse buying.

— To purchase first for needs, then, with any leftover funds, for "wants."

— To plan ahead for large purchases by saving up for them whenever possible, thereby avoiding carrying charges or interest on loans.

— To stay within an allotted budget. This means deciding in advance what you can afford to spend on an item and refusing to go over that limit.

— To comparison shop for prices and top quality.

— To examine merchandise thoroughly before buying, in order to be sure it's what you need and want, and that it's in good condition.

— To plan food purchases to avoid buying expensive and unneeded "filler" foods which supply little nutrition.

— To plan, as an individual or a family, on practical ways to cut down on energy consumption.

— To study all advertising carefully before responding to it.

— To resist all high-pressure or deceptive sales tactics, including offers for "last chance" deals and "bait and switch" selling.

— To look for the "catch" if an offer appears too good to be true, and to realize that few people ever get something for nothing.

— To check in advance on store policy for returning or exchanging goods.

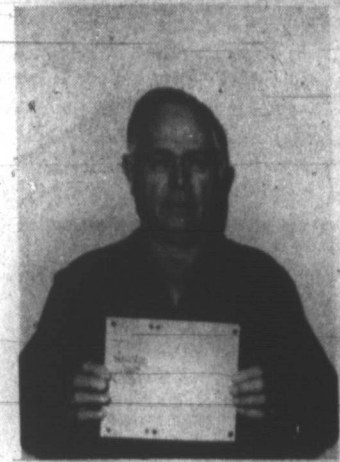

— To comparison shop for the best deals in financing just as in other things. Always note the annual percentage rate (APR) that you will be paying — this is a means to compare the different financing plans available.

— To follow manufacturer's instructions and care labels, so you get the best service from each product purchased.

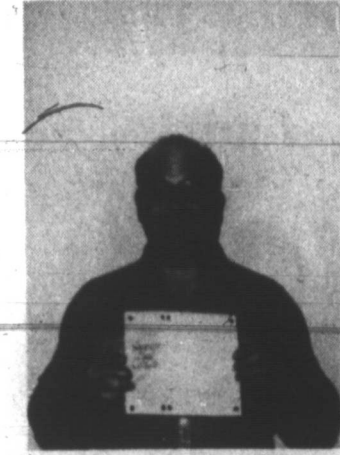

— To realize the possible dangers of dealing with itinerant salesmen who may not be around to make good on promises.

— To deal instead with established, reputable firms who stand behind the products or services offered.

C.O. Spalding, products dispatcher, Natural Resources, Pampa has been awarded $555 for his suggestion recommending a field piping change resulting in product savings during shutdowns.

PLAN MUSEUM HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Screen Actors Guild, along with the producers, writers guilds and MCA Inc., will establish and operate a Motion Picture and Television Museum as a joint project.

Recession Slightly Decreases Tourism

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Increased travel within the state by Texans helped offset the effect of a decline in the number of out-of-state tourists visiting Texas during 1974, according to the head of the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

Frank Hildebrand, executive director of the Tourist Development Agency, said figures for the first 11 months of 1974 show the $2 billion-tourist industry in Texas fared considerably better than was anticipated in a year marked by fuel shortages and inflation.

The number of visitors to the state declined slightly, but those who did come stayed longer, spent more money, and drove around the state just about as much as their counterparts of previous years.

"In view of the troubled year just ended, these early indicators point to a considerably better 1974 than we expected,"

Hildebrand said. "Considering the long distances across which Texas must draw a significant portion of its market, it's gratifying that we attracted as many visitors as we did."

The Texas Highway Department reported the average tourist in the first three quarters of the year stayed in the state 6.9 days compared with a 1973 average of 5.7 days, and spent $20.47 per day compared to $16.49 in 1973.

Only 12 of the 50 tourist attractions reporting to the state tourism agency recorded increases in the number of visitors in 1974.

The biggest gains were recorded by the Sam Houston Museum in Huntsville, the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center near Houston, Aquarena Springs at San Marcos, San Antonio's Buckhorn Hall of Horns and Fins, and inexpensive state parks and lakes.

THD Announces Promotions

The Sherman County highway maintenance foreman has been promoted to the Amarillo District Office of the Texas Highway Department, and a Perryton man has been named to the Stratford post, announces A.L. McKee, district engineer.

Wayland Brown, maintenance foreman in Stratford since 1954, effective Jan. 1, 1975, will be assigned the duties of maintenance construction superintendent and work out of the district office.

McKee said Bill Deuschendorf, a Highway Department maintenance employe in Perryton, will replace Brown.

In his new position, Brown will be assigned liaison duties between the district office and a section assigned to him. Brown's section will include Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Randall, Potter, Moore and Sherman counties.

"I hate to leave Stratford," Brown said. "There are a lot of good people here who have been wonderful to me."

Brown first worked for the Texas Highway Department in 1942 at Borger. He served with the U.S. Army from 1944 to 1946 and spent most of his military duty at Ft. McClelland, Ala.

He later worked for the Highway Department in Amarillo and Canyon before moving to Stratford.

He attended Amarillo public schools and Hereford High School.

Brown and his wife, Betty, have a daughter, Mrs. Carla Oneta Hall of Amarillo, and a grandson, Chase. He is a member of First Baptist Church of Stratford.

Deuschendorf was employed in the Ochiltree County Maintenance department for 15 years before he began to work for the Highway Department in July 1968 in Perryton.

He teaches a Highway Department defensive driving course and has taught equipment preventive maintenance. He has been a motor grader operator for several years.

"I'm glad for the opportunity," says Deuschendorf of his new position. "I hope to keep up the good work of Mr. Brown."

He and his wife, Eda Lou, have two daughters, Mrs. Bill Taylor of Lubbock and Mrs. David Trew of McLean, a son, Jim Deuschendorf of Perryton, and two grandchildren.

More than 29 million people used Pennsylvania's 91 state parks during 1972.

Texas Press Women Schedule Workshop

AMARILLO (Sp1) — Invitations mailed for publicity workshop, co-sponsored by District 15, Texas Press Women, Inc., and United Food Stores of Amarillo, are nearing the 1,000 mark.

Publicity chairmen of area clubs and organizations have been invited to the seminar which features a professional panel of media personalities under the direction of Karleen Martin of Amarillo as moderator.

Panel members include Mike Price of the Amarillo Globe-News, Bill Sexton of Radio Station KGNC of Amarillo, Ron Slover of TV Station KPDA and David Bowser, editor of "Accent West," for the event scheduled at 1 p.m. Saturday Jan. 25.

Texas Press Women and United Food Stores have joined forces with The Sperry & Hutchinson Company in sponsoring the workshop at the outset of a new year for clubs in the 26-county area surrounding Amarillo. Location of the workshop is Travelodge West of Amarillo, 2035 Paramount.

Couple marries — Chinese style

PEKING — Elizabeth Wright, a member of the British diplomatic staff here, was married to Arnold Moebius, Austrian charge d'affaires, in a Chinese-style ceremony recently. They were the first foreigners to marry in the Chinese capital for several years.

Publicity chairmen will receive instruction in developing techniques both in writing and then in channelling news most effectively. Step by step directions regarding examples of newsworthy event and announcements and how best to plan publicity will headline the panelists' comments.

CARAVELLES RETIRED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scandinavian Airlines has announced the retirement from regular scheduled services of its last Caravelle jetliners after nearly 17 years. SAS says the French-built twinjets have been replaced by U.S.-made DC9s. SAS was the first non-French airlines to order the Caravelle, in 1959. Its fleet of 21 flew a total of 13.5 million passengers.

An abundance of hand-out material will be distributed — most of it contains specific "how-to" helps — and a question-and-answer period will conclude the panel session.

Nancy Sommer of Fort Worth, regional consumer relations manager of The Sperry & Hutchinson Company, will assist Danella Davis of Amarillo, District 15 president, in plans for the presentation of the workshop. Also involved in the workshop are Susie Lewis of Borger, District 15 program chairman, and M.C. Young of Amarillo's newest United Food Store, 45th and Western.

The workshop is open without charge to persons whose volunteer task is to publicize the activities and projects of their clubs.

Deadline for reservations will be Jan. 15; however, possible additions may be made by contacting Danella Davis, 1414 Sunrise, No. 149; Amarillo 79104 or at (806) 376-4841, ext. 247 weekdays.

ENERGY ROLE MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI)

— Infrared photography means psychedelic patterns and reverse imagery to the art cameramen, but it also can play a significant role in conserving energy, says Dow Chemical Co. Dow worked out a method of measuring heat losses in its plants by infrared photography from an airplane. This enabled the company to make corrections in the heating system of its 4,500-acre plant here and conserve fuel.

Former Pampan Heads Cave Association

H.L. ANDERSON

The National Cave Association has elected H.L. "Andy" Anderson of O'Brien, Calif., to serve as president of the National Cave Association for the next two years during the 10th annual Cave Association Convention held at Columbus, Ohio recently. The National Cave Association represents forty-two commercial caves and caverns in twenty-one states. The 1975 convention will be held at the Mark Twain Caves in Hannibal, Mo. on Oct. 15, and the 1976 convention at Louray Caverns in Virginia. A native Pampan, Anderson has been general manager of the Shasta Caverns for the past ten years. Prior to that, he served in the United States Marine Corps for twenty-one years, where he rose from private to Captain. He served in all major Pacific theaters during his Marine Corps career. He is the son of E.L. "Ed" Anderson, Pampa. Anderson's goals for his coming term are to include United States Caverns in the country's Bicentennial Celebrations. Anderson said, "We really want to afford the opportunity for more people to see and appreciate one of the most beautiful, awe-inspiring national wonders on earth today." Anderson, a big, type-cast Texan has been active civically in the Redding area. He is past president of the Economic Development Committee, past president of Lions and the Shasta Chamber of Commerce. Anderson's wife, Ginny, is active in the Cavern operation. Shasta Caverns, located in a mountain overlooking beautiful Lake Shasta, is owned by Reider H. "Ray" Winther. He began developing them in 1962 and today the Caverns are recognized as one of the prime Caverns in the world. Winther and Anderson are discovering and opening new "rooms" each year. Roads from Shasta's shores to the caves have been carved in the mountain and a leisurely 15 minute catamaran ride across the lake are included in the Shasta tour. The caverns are open to the public all year with winter tours at 10 a.m.; 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

The largest grove of live oaks in the world, according to the Louisiana Tourist Commission, is the site of Oaklawn Manor and Plantation on Bayou Teche near the town of Franklin, La.

VA Provides Phone Service

In the continuing effort to provide better and faster service to the veteran population served by the Waco Regional Office, the Veterans Administration now provides local telephone service for use when seeking assistance. Jack Coker, director of the Waco Region, reports that a veteran living in Pampa, may call 800-792-1110, and reach the regional office in Waco. Coker further states that the only expense involved will be the cost of a local call. Office hours are from 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

House's Closing Leaves Memories

La Grange, Tex. (UPI) — The dusty Chicken Ranch bawdy house may be closed, but some persons of this South Central Texas town apparently have not forgotten the righteous storm which swirled through last year.

Big city television newsman Marvin Zindler, who hounded local authorities 18 months ago until the ranch closed, returned to town for the first time this week.

"I wanted to do a follow up," Zindler said, "show the people that with the prostitution house closed the economy hadn't crumbled. I saw busy streets and good business."

As Zindler sat in his Lincoln Continental parked on the town's major thoroughfare, he also saw Fayette County Sheriff T.J. Flournoy charge at him, according to Zindler.

"The sheriff jumped in front of my car, he started cursing me and he reached through and hit me," Zindler said. "He tried to get me out of the car."

"We got sound of it and our camera was rolling, but he went around to the other side of the car, grabbed the camera and smashed it. Then he smashed the recorder.

"As soon as he walked off, I left."

Sheriff Flournoy's only comment about the incident was "no comment."

Zindler, from the offices of KTRK-TV in Houston, said he would fly to Washington and file federal civil rights suit against the sheriff.

"I have as much right as any other citizen to be in my car on the streets of La Grange," he said.

Amarillo High, dead sick of losing basketball games (26 last season), lured a winner, Gary Abercrombie, away from Liberal, Kan., in an effort to salvage the remaining pieces of a broken program. And that was the smartest thing Amarillo High has done in a long while.

The Sandies have already won seven games, which is one more than they won in two prior seasons, and it looks as if they'll win a few more before it's all over.

"I felt like we had the chance to win 10 or 11 ball games before the season started," said Abercrombie, who built Liberal into a state kingpin, "and I still feel like that's an attainable goal. We've got Lubbock Coronado, Monterey, Plainview and Lubbock High left (in non-district games).

"We beat Coronado four points at home the last time we played them and we think we can beat Lubbock High here at home."

It's almost a certainty that the Sandies will beat at least one district opponent, so there will be the 10th victory. If Abercrombie accomplishes that goal, he will have performed the unbelievable. In fact, his 7-7 record is a miracle of sorts.

"I knew it would be quite a challenge. Their basketball program was undoubtedly in as bad a shape as it could be."

What about the players themselves? You would think the kids had grown so accustomed to losing they wouldn't care about winning. "No, I think it was just the opposite. They were really eager to try to change the program, to change it around."

"They wanted to do everything that's necessary to be a winner. They are sick of losing."

"People told me you're not going to win the close game with them — they'll look at the scoreboard and see they're ahead and then they'll fold. But five of the seven games we've won have been by less than four points."

Abercrombie, like all successful coaches, is high on fundamentals. When he arrived at Amarillo High, the first thing he noticed was how badly drilled the Sandie players were, and it was like teaching an adult to read and write.

According to Abercrombie, "They were very fundamentally unsound. They didn't pass the ball correctly or dribble the ball correctly, and they certainly didn't play good defense."

"We've worked awfully hard on fundamental — do things necessary to have a good basketball team. We don't have a lot of talent, the kids know it and I know it...you've got to start somewhere."

It's not that the players were totally devoid of ability though. Two 6-4 junior posts — Gary Holcomb and Gary Lamb — are capable rebounders and inside scorers and 5-8 junior Scott Esler can handle the ball and run Amarillo's shuffle offense exceptionally well.

Other starters are Scott Esler, a 6-3 junior guard, and Perry Hughes, 6-1 and one of only four seniors on the squad.

"We're real happy with our young kids and we've got good kids coming up. Our JV has lost only one game. We're going to have the best material here in the city shortly," Abercrombie said, confidently.

Amarillo High draws from three junior high schools — Bonham, Crockett and Fannin — which will feed outstanding talent into the Sandie basketball program.

Amarillo is now the largest school in the city and all of the Sandie athletic programs are benefiting from the abundance of students.

For Amarillo's basketball team, it's a matter of waiting a year or two before the district championship can be seriously considered. "I think it'll be between Pampa and Borger," the Sandie coach said.

"I'm sure what'll happen is those two are probably going to split home and home. It's going to depend on which team is able to go through the rest of the district."

"I just don't believe from what I've seen and from what I know that Borger and Pampa have that there's anyone here in the city capable of pushing them."

"But basketball's a funny game, anything can happen. That's true. Just look what has already happened at Amarillo High."

13-11 OVER BUCKEYES

Trojans May Capture Crown After Surprise

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — From 1925 through 1940, the immortal Howard Jones brought three national football championships to Southern California.

John McKay, the son of a West Virginia coal miner, may have gone one up on the fabled Jones on New Year's Day.

A combination of USC's thrilling 18-17 victory over Ohio State in McKay's record eighth Rose Bowl coaching appearance and Notre Dame's 13-11 upset of Alabama in the Orange Bowl could mean the national title for the Trojans.

"We have as good a call to it as anybody," the white-haired USC coach admitted after No. 1-ranked and previously undefeated Alabama was knocked off on New Year's Night in Miami.

"We beat the teams that beat the teams that beat the teams. We beat Ohio State who beat Michigan and we beat Notre Dame who beat Alabama."

"I tell you, I know who I'm going to vote for."

But McKay, 51, wasn't claiming anything. "Look, I don't want to come out and say we deserve to be rated first because the other coaches are my friends and it wouldn't be the right thing to do."

The USC coach was probably talking about Alabama's Bear Bryant, the man he considers the best coach in college football today. Bryant and McKay are good friends.

McKay won't have long to wait to find out if he has a fourth national championship to add to the titles he guided the Trojans to in 1962, 1967 and 1972.

The UPI's board of 35 coaches will take its final vote today.

In 15 seasons, McKay has moved to within two victories of equalling Jones' total of 121 wins at USC. He's 5-3 in Rose Bowl appearances and 2-2 in the Pasadena classic against Woody Hayes.

Fittingly, the old Bishop Amat High School tandem of Pat Haden, the Rhodes Scholar quarterback, and John McKay, the coach's son who plans to go to the USC Law School, were the heroes in their final games as Trojans.

With 2:03 left, Haden, who had been intercepted twice and had fumbled once, found McKay all alone in the Ohio State end zone in front of defensive back Steve Luke.

The result: A 38-yard touchdown strike that brought the Trojans to within one point at 17-16. Haden then flipped a pass to sophomore flanker Shelton Diggs for a two-point conversion.

"I was rolling out and planned to run," said Haden. "But the guy who was covering Shelton came up on me so I just dumped it off. Shelton made an excellent catch."

Diggs had to go to his knees to make the catch. A tailback in high school, the San Bernardino, Calif., product admitted he felt the pressure of the situation.

"I didn't think about anything but catching the ball," he said. "I saw it and I knew I had to stay with it. Then I heard the crowd cheer and it made me happy to think I'd won the game for our seniors. Yeah, maybe it was sort of a difficult catch but I'm supposed to catch balls like that."

McKay gambled on a two-point conversion in the 1967 Rose Bowl against Purdue and USC lost that one 14-13. But there wasn't any question in his mind Wednesday.

FRIENDLY CHAT? — Not hardly. Liberal, Kan., basketball coach Gary Abercrombie (left), now Amarillo High mentor, and Pampa's Robert McPherson exchange words at a game two years ago in Harvester Fieldhouse. According to Abercrombie, the regular officials didn't show up for the tipoff so Pampa officials were used. "It got out of hand," said the Kansas coach, who walked onto the floor during the game. McPherson pointed out the shoe, which had crossed the side line, as the official called a technical foul on Abercrombie. The two coaches, now in the same district, are friends and often joke about the incident. See It Sims To Me. (Staff Photo).

LIONS SNARE WIN

Year Of Thrills Ends For Baylor

DALLAS (UPI) — Penn State was not particularly pleased with the type of justice it was receiving Wednesday in the Cotton Bowl game, so the Nittany Lions decided to deal out some of their own — which turned out to be of the "take no quarter" variety.

The outcome of the 39th Cotton Bowl turned on the psychological affect produced by a yellow penalty flag fluttering in a chilly north wind — one that cost Penn State a touchdown, but which turned the Nittany Lions ire up to the boiling point.

From that point — late in the third period — the dream of Baylor University to win its first Cotton Bowl trip ever faded under a storm of Penn State superlatives, which finally ended with the Nittany Lions prevailing, 41-20.

"I think the whole game we had them," said Penn State quarterback Tom Shuman, who played the key role in the game turning moments. "We just kept stopping ourselves."

Penn State, which won its 10th game of the season against only two losses, stopped stopping itself with 3:28 remaining in the third period when Shuman, the Nittany Lions senior quarterback, hit freshman Jimmy Cefalo with a 49-yard pass down the sideline which put them ahead of the Bears for good at 17-14.

From there the Nittany Lions applied one cruncher after another right up to the time Joe Jackson, a reserve offensive lineman, picked up an inside kickoff at midfield and romped untouched for a score with two seconds remaining that made Penn State's point production the largest in Cotton Bowl history.

The point of dispute came with 6:30 left to play in the third quarter and the Nittany Lions owning a 10-7 lead. Shuman, on third and 15 from his own 36, hit fullback Tom Donchez with a screen pass that carried all the way for an apparent touchdown.

But a call of offensive interference was made against Penn State split end Jim Eaise for blocking away from the ball. The call was legitimate, but that did not make it any easier for Shuman to swallow.

The quarterback stormed toward referee McDuff Simpson, picked up the flag and threw it to the artificial turf.

The outcome of all that was a Penn State punt from its own 11 and Baylor quickly scored on a 35-yard pass from Neal Jeffrey to Ricky Thompson — a pass which was tipped into Thompson's hands by defensive back Mike Johnson.

Irish Shock Alabama

MIAMI (UPI) — Emotionally charged Notre Dame, sparked by a defensive unit that had been humiliated in its last start, made the 41st annual Orange Bowl a memorable farewell party for coach Ara Parseghian Wednesday night by upsetting top ranked Alabama 13-11 to spoil the Crimson Tide's bid for a perfect season.

The Irish, a 10-1/2 point underdog, turned a fumbled punt by Alabama's Willie Shelby and a costly offside penalty by Mike Washington into two first half touchdowns, then held on behind a dogged defensive unit to defeat the Crimson Tide for the second straight year.

Alabama, which had a perfect season snapped by Notre Dame in last year's Sugar Bowl, all but lost its chance for the UPI Board of Coaches national championship by losing to the Irish.

Wayne Bullock, playing his final game for Notre Dame, came off a sick bed to carry the brunt of the offensive attack and score the game's first touchdown on a four yard run, and sophomore Mark McLane added the other score on a nine yard sprint.

But it was the aggressive play of the Irish defense, especially that of tackle Steve Niehaus and linebackers John Dubenetzki and Reggie Barnett, that curbed the Tide and once again ruined the start of the New Year for Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. It marked the eighth straight year that Bryant's team has failed to win a post season contest.

The Irish defense, which had been embarrassed in a 55-24 loss to Southern California in the last game of the regular season, had only one defensive lapse all game and that came with only 3:13 remaining when Richard Todd completed a 48 yard touchdown pass to Russ Schamun on a fourth down and five situation. That play was made possible when defensive back Randy Payne slipped and fell on the artificial turf and when Alabama successfully made a two point conversion there was still time for the Tide to pull the contest out.

They got their chance with 1:39 to go when Notre Dame was forced to give up the ball on a punt taking the ball on their own 38. Todd moved the team to the Notre Dame 38 on two quick passes and was moving the team into field goal range when Barnett pulled the defensive play of the game for the Irish by intercepting an intended pass for Randy Billingsly.

Sloan Named Tech Mentor

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Youthful Steve Sloan, who built Vanderbilt into a bowl team in just two years, will begin his third year as a head coach today — but at Texas Tech University, not Vanderbilt.

Sloan, 30, will begin his new duties immediately. Tech officials said Wednesday in the surprise announcement.

A former all-American for Paul Bryant at Alabama where he quarterbacked back-to-back national champions in 1965-66, Sloan made the move after Vanderbilt officials announced late Tuesday they had talked him into remaining at the Nashville, Tenn., school.

He became the eighth head coach at Texas Tech in 49 years of football, receiving a four-year contract renewable every Jan. 1 at a reported $36,500 plus extras including a television show and speaking engagements.

Sloan was named to replace Jim Carlen, ending a 19-day search which began Dec. 13 when Carlen announced he was moving to the University of South Carolina.

In many circles Sloan is rumored as the eventual successor to Bryant at Alabama. He spent two seasons as quarterback of the Atlanta Falcons after graduation then returned to his alma mater for three years offensive backfield coach.

Sloan flew to Lubbock from Atlanta immediately following the bowl game to talk with Red Raider officials.

Cagers In Odessa

ODESSA — Odessa Ector, among the state's best AAA teams, and Permian, a 17-2 AAAA power, provide the Pampa Harvester basketball team with a two-day stint of talented competition, starting today.

Pampa and Ector meet at 7:30 p.m. today. Permian will host Pampa at the same time Friday.

Ector, 10-4 on the season, has been limited somewhat by the absence of Clarence Cockerham, who has been injured and played in only six games. Cockerham, a 6-2 post, is a likely starter tonight and should give the Eagles extra board strength.

Other starters should be 6-4 post James Butler, averaging 15 points per game, 6-1 forward Edward Pierce (12.3), 6-0 forward George Walker (8.2) and 5-7 guard Alphonso Alexander (4.1).

Another 5-7 guard, Dwight Randolph, is scoring at a 9.2 clip and will most likely see action early.

Ector has lost twice to powerful Lamesa and once to Permian (in the finals of the Berger tournament). The Eagles have been competitive against AAAA teams, downing, among others, Ysleta and El Paso Irving and Riverside.

Permian, which earlier had a 14-game winning streak snapped by Waco, 53-30, has had the luxury of going through a fairly easy non-district schedule.

The Panthers' losses have come in tournament play to Lubbock, Monterey in Brownwood.

Probable starters for Ron Mayberry's Panthers are 6-2 post James Hunter (17.3 points), 6-1 forward Mike Walton (9.3), 5-11 guard Brad Van Cleave (13.4), 6-0 guard Craig Johnson (6.8), and either one of two 5-11 forwards — John Dawson (3.9) or Prosty Gilliam (3.1).

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Listen attentively to learn new and strange facts in even the simplest situation. Nothing goes as planned, but you can still set things straight at the last minute.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: The soft sell works better to tie up loose ends of deals you've already made. Later hours promise progress.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Your distinctive approach gets attention but you have to work to make it effective. You may profit from it by the end of the day. Find or give a party tonight.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Accept all remarks as compliments today, no matter what your view of them may be. Just when your patience begins to wear out, time to set things straight arrives.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Most of the day is purely routine. Romance and speculation abound—be judicious in your responses. Postpone major decisions; the evening is for fun.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Do as little with finances as you can get by with during the day. Clear up what remains in evening as you prepare for a lively weekend.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Concentrate on troubleshooting and getting your work week closed out in good shape. Nothing runs smoothly until evening, but you relax then as home life improves.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You have a wealth of interesting but useless information piled on you today. Work as best you can and enjoy the differences between this and the usual!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Make the most of social contacts in your normal rounds. Nobody is content with routine, and you see ways to make changes. Be selective in your approval.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Morning news sets off rumors, and little gets done until you finally pick up the pieces late in the day. Expect overtime, belated chances to set things right.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: You spend most of your day tidying up. Decision-making misses the mark despite appearances to the contrary. Use evening hours diligently.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although Christmas week's dull and trendless performance seemed to provide little reason for cheer... technically the market ended last week looking better than when it began... according to E. F. Hutton & Co. The firm says on Friday only 78 issues made new lows compared with 238 issues on the low list last Monday... With its improving technical condition and the lessening impact of year-end tax selling, we would expect the market to finish the last two sessions of the year on a stronger note... it adds.

With the year-end shenanigans out of the way, the market is now posed for the upmove which should be in full swing by the first week in January... says Comparative Market Indicators of Bellevue, Wash. It urges aggressive traders to invest in strong stocks... All positions should be protected by stops... the firm notes.

Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith says, "We believe that the worst of pressures on stocks in the current market cycle may be occurring in this quarter, well in advance of the worst profit-erosion and recession news... Historically, the heaviest selling pressure has occurred early in a recession and demand for stocks generally has rebounded after the recession peaked... In between lies a period of transition that can last for many months..." it adds.

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT?

How do you qualify for disability?

By FRANK CORRICK
Copley News Service

Q. I worked under Social Security from 1937 to 1962 steady and 1963 through 1968 part time. Now, at age 56, I am getting crippled with arthritis in both hands and I'm wondering if I can collect anything from Social Security. — Mrs. H.B.

A. You might be eligible for Social Security disability benefits. If you were found to be disabled within five years of your last employment, you could qualify. The law says you must be fully insured and you must have worked in employment covered by Social Security in five of the 10 years before you became disabled.

If you cannot qualify on that basis, you might be eligible for disability benefits under the SSI (Supplemental Security Income) program. The SSI program pays benefits to needy aged, blind and disabled people. Applications for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income benefits may be filed at any Social Security office.

Q. I was 62 Nov. 26, 1973, and applied for Social Security. I got a notice back saying my date of birth was Nov. 26, 1913, and my claim was denied. I then submitted a delayed birth certificate, my marriage license, an affidavit from an uncle, a 1941 insurance record and a 1930 census record. I was then notified that my date of birth was Nov. 26, 1912, and that I would be entitled to benefits beginning November, 1974. I have appealed this latest decision because I believe the evidence shows I was born in 1911. What do I have to do to convince Social Security? — Mrs. L.V.B.

A. The 1930 census record would probably be the best proof of age and, in the absence of an older document, would carry the most weight in determining your date of birth. If you have not already done so, you might obtain, if available, a baptismal record, a school record, or a copy of the 1920 Federal Census record.

Q. My husband is living in another state. If he is living with another woman, would it be possible for him to be dead and buried without me receiving any notice? Because he could put in a claim? If so, is there anything I could do to make sure I am notified? I am nearing retirement age and could possibly be able to retire at age 60 if widowed. — S.C.M.

A. It is likely that you would not be notified of your husband's death and I don't believe there is much you can do to insure being notified. If, when you reach age 60, you believe your husband is deceased, you may file a claim for widow's benefits and Social Security officials may be able to determine if he is living or dead. If he is found to be alive, Social Security officials would not be permitted to divulge his whereabouts to you.

Questions on retirement may be mailed to What About Retirement?, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Country Music

By NICK TOSCHES
Copyright, 1975, Country Music Magazine

It wasn't Danny Davis who brought horns to country music. Far from it; Jimmie Rodgers, country's first superstar, holds that distinction, for on July 16, 1930, he cut a record for Victor called "Blue Yodel No. 9 (Standin' on the Corner)" on which Louis Armstrong played cornet (another jazzman, Earl Hines, joined in on piano).

Although the country music establishment sings the praises of the Singing Brakeman with an almost religious zeal, it often tends to forget such flings as his work with Armstrong.

To this very day, horns (along with any drums other than a single snare) are forbidden on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry.

While Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass have won the CMA's Best Instrumental Group award for five consecutive years, they still have not been permitted to perform on the stage of the Opry.

When questioned about the Opry's restriction, Hall Durham, an Opry spokesman, stated, "It's possible that we may see full drums on the Grand Ole Opry before long, but a string section and brass section are a little further down the road."

On the whole, country artists have not challenged the taboo on horns. Foremost among the exceptions to that rule have been the pioneers of western swing: Bob Wills, Floyd Tillman, Spade Cooley, Ted Daffan, Al Dexter, Tex Williams, Hank Thompson and others.

Since the heyday of western swing, only an intrepid few have utilized horns in country music. Never one to tread lightly among icons, Jerry Lee Lewis has used them on occasion. Merle Haggard, a Bob Wills fan from 'way back, has recorded and performed with horns. Tom T. Hall uses them in his new sound.

Groups like Commander Cody and His Lost Planet Airmen and Asleep at the Wheel are right at home with their horns. Among producers, the tendency has often been to play it safe, to go heavy on the strings and light on the horns.

Danny Davis formed the Nashville Brass back in 1968. Aside from that group, the other major practitioners of horn-country in recent years have included Boots Randolph, Ace Cannon, and producer Tommy Allsup.

Of all the men from Jimmie Rodgers to Bob Wills to Boots Randolph who have used horns in country music, Danny Davis' approach has been the most academic, and therefore the most different. Like fellow RCA artist Chet Atkins, Davis is often associated with the refinement of country music.

Tommy Allsup seems to have realized that he was far better at producing than at arranging. Tammy Wynette songs for a roomful of saxophones; that leaves Boots Randolph and Ace Cannon, both of whom have a loose approach to country music.

Unlike Danny Davis, who does his thing from the angle of a fellow weaned on light classics (as he was), Boots Randolph and Ace Cannon are straight, old-fashioned saxophone players, and many critics have found their music far more spontaneous and listenable than Davis'.

Cannon has a new album out, his first in quite some time, called "That Music City Feeling" (Hi SHL-32086), and it's a solid record. At times, the background voices and string charts get a little overbearing, and clash with a borderline raunchy sound like that of Ace Cannon.

There are three cuts here, though — Ted Daffan's classic "Born To Lose," the old country rocker "Mathilda," and Red Foley's sprightly "Tennessee Saturday Night" — which are perfect examples of just how well horns can work in the country music fashion.

This is an easy, breezy album; its relaxed mood is infectious, and after a few listenings it doesn't seem at all odd for a saxophone to be laying down the lead lines in a country standard.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

For most people, the holiday season is a time of joy. There are gifts to be bought and hidden away where no one will think to look. There are decorations to put in place, and even though it's a time-consuming chore still, when it's done, all the tinsel and glitter are somehow transformed into something beautiful.

But the holiday season is also a time for reflection. It's a time for families to be re-united, in thought if not in fact. It's a time when most people find a quiet moment or two, to stop and think about what the past year has brought to your family.

Chances are, your health and your family's health have had a lot to do with the life you've enjoyed during the past year. So, it's a good time to take stock of your family's health.

If you're lucky and have a good share of common sense, your family has stayed healthy all year long. But there's still more you can do to protect your family's health in the coming year.

Consider, for example, the subject of nutrition. Does every member of your family enjoy three good, well-balanced meals every day?

Has weight control become a problem for someone in your family? Losing weight is never easy, and it's always tempting to try to solve the problem with ineffective, sometimes dangerous — almost always futile — quick-reducing efforts. Wouldn't it make better sense to eat well in the first place?

Has every member of your family been given a thorough physical check-up during the past year? A physical exam once a year can prevent far costlier medical problems. It might even save your life.

Speaking of prevention, if there are youngsters in the family, are they up-to-date on all of their immunizations? The value of immunizations doesn't stop when the school year begins. Make a note to check with your family doctor about booster shots.

While you're thinking about health, think about safety, too. Look around you: is your home as safe as it could be? Most people tend to be forgetful about leaving things lying around where they really don't belong. Why not take a few moments to check the garage and other storage areas for anything that might be hazardous to your family's safety — and do something about it!

Don't forget about safety away from home, too, particularly in the family car. Rain, snow, ice, and other bad weather conditions are well-known dangers — but what about the dangers inside the car?

For example, have you taught your children to buckle their seat belts every time you go for a drive? Small children especially must have special protection, since even a mild bump in the wrong place could be catastrophic. Older, active children may resent being confined by seat belts when it's a lot more fun to bounce around the back seat. This is one time when the only solution is the firm insistence of the parents.

Now, all of this talk of illness and danger may seem out of place during the holiday season. If so, we apologize. But we see people who are ill or unnecessarily injured all year round.

The people who work for your State Health Department, and your local public health department, care about you and your family.

We care about your children. We want them to be protected against disease and injury, through immunizations, well-child clinics, pre-school screenings and examinations, vision and hearing tests in school, dental care, and every other way we can. When prevention fails we'll do everything we can to help restore your children's health and vitality.

We care about the adult members of the family, too. We're concerned about all the health problems you read about in the papers and see on TV — drug abuse, cancer, smoking, heart disease, traffic safety, and many more. We're also concerned about many things you may have overlooked, such as diabetes and other chronic diseases, tuberculosis, VD, and occupational health and safety.

And we care about the environment your family lives in. We want to enjoy clean air, pure drinking water, and freedom from unsanitary waste disposal. We want to protect you from rodents, insect pests, and other vermin. We want to help rid your community of disease.

When a health problem does strike your family, we're still standing by, ready to help see that you have access to necessary emergency medical services, hospitals and other medical facilities, and nursing or convalescent homes.

And that's why we bring you this message during the holiday season, when you're probably thinking about your family. We'd like you to remember that we're thinking about your family, too — every day.

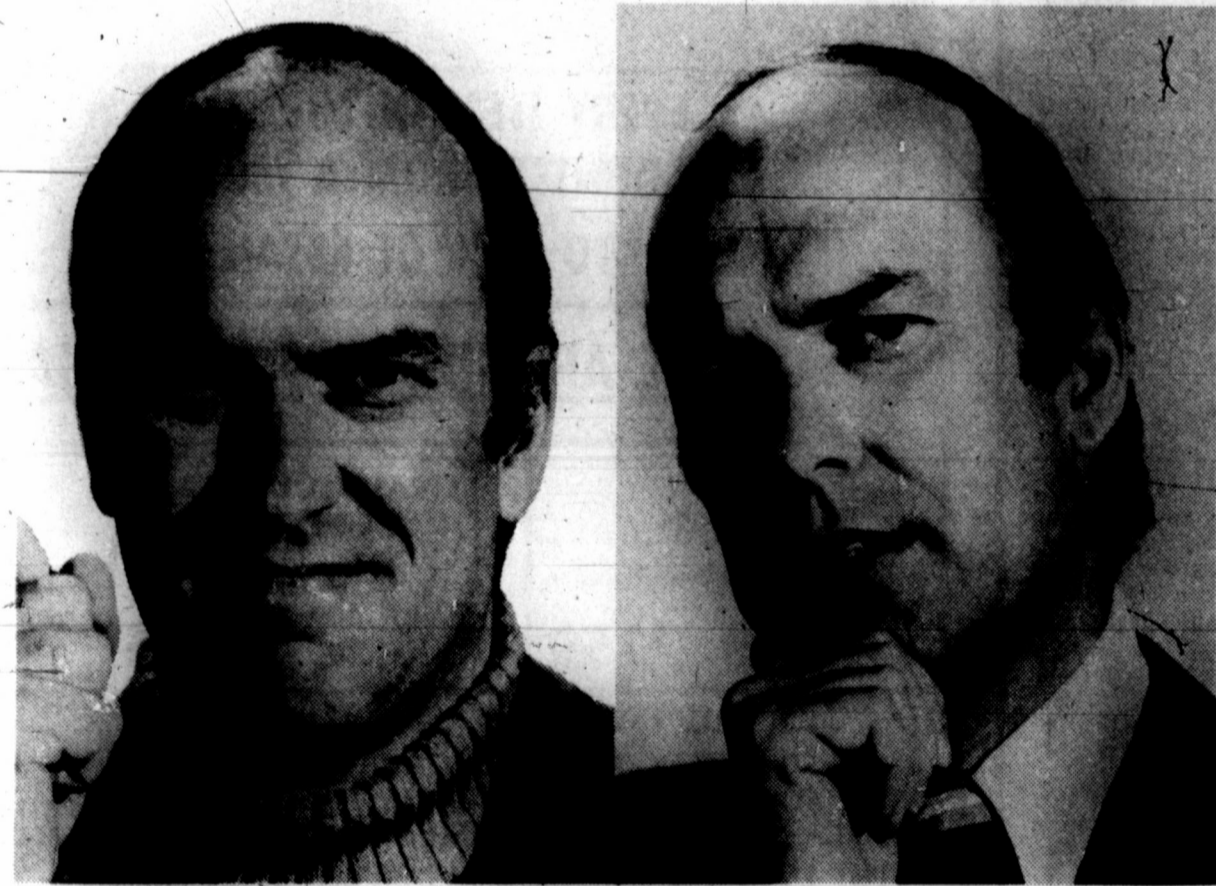

From all of us at your local health department, and your Texas State Department of Health, we wish you a happy, and a healthy, holiday season — and many more to come!

One of you is impulsive.

You need a savings account so you can get your money at a moments notice.

When something good comes along, or something goes wrong, a PASSBOOK account is your best friend. Presto — the money is here, waiting for you. While it waits, it earns, which is more than you can say for a checking account.

A CERTIFICATE account brings bigger goals nearer faster through greater earnings.

You will always need money TODAY and TOMORROW. That's why you need two insured accounts here for the money you can't afford to risk.

All Security Federal accounts — savings as well as certificates — earn interest from date of deposit to date of withdrawal, compounded daily, paid or credited quarterly. Accounts insured safe by an agency of the U. S. Government.

THE LEGAL WAY Self-employed tax explained

By E. J. DEMSON, J.D.
Copley News Service

You're tired of working for others and you're ready to launch your own business. What's this federal self-employment tax you've heard about, and how do you go about meeting its lawful requirements?

Q. I'm a tailor, 40 years old, and I'm planning to go into business for myself. I have a wife and three children, and I have at least 20 more working years to prepare for our future. What about the federal self-employment tax, and how can it help me? Where do I find out about it?

A. The Federal Insurance Contributory Act (Sec. 1402 (b) (2)) compels self-employed persons to put something aside so they can receive Old Age Survivor Insurance benefits later. Self-employed people who earn more than $400 net per year must pay the tax.

The rate is from 6.2 per cent of net income, and the rate is increasing. See the Internal Revenue Service office in your community for information and a pamphlet showing how you should set up your record keeping.

Q. We operate a dairy and ice cream plant in Minnesota, and the trade mark we use on our ice cream cartons is somewhat similar to one used by a big corporate competitor. The other day we received a letter from that competitor, telling us to stop using our trade mark because it copies their registered one. It would be costly for us to change. Do we have to?

A. The law says recaptures for beverages, ice cream and the like, with a distinctive device printed thereon, may be registered. You can try to register yours, but if it is too similar to your competitor's, registration will be denied (Minn. Stat. 509.01). Use of
