Veterans Feeling Ignored

United Press International. Though today is Veterans Day, many veterans think they are the forgotten Americans.

Disabled veterans from World War II, Korea and Vietnam seem to share the view that the only people who observe Veterans Day are veterans, their families, their widows and their orphans.

"To some people, we're just not human, and it seems we're just being forgotten about," said Major Webster as he twisted his body around on the surgical cart where he lay and shook his head.

Webster was on patrol in Vietnam when a sniper's bullet ripped into his side and struck his spine. For seven years, he has been a patient at Hines Veterans Administration Hospital in Chicago, a paraplegic, unable to sit or stand.

"One vet helps another, but otherwise, it's a dog-eat-dog world," he said. "Everybody else is out for himself. They want to go to work from 9 to 5 and forget about us. If a vet needs help, they don't want to be bothered."

"If I have to live like this, then I have to live like this. I know there's a reason, a plan, though I don't know just now what it is, and I may never know, but I know there is," he said.

"I just wish this Veterans Day that people would please try to realize that wounded vets are people, too."

Their physical capabilities are limited, they may need a little help along the way, but they just want to be people. Just don't pass them by as just another cripple.

"Outside of the veterans' organizations, nobody much gives a damn—not even Congress," said James Wainwright, a World War II veteran from Goldsboro, N.C., who collects 30 per cent disability.

Lou Belleadeaux, another disabled World War II vet from Lake Charles, La., said that forgetting the veteran was just part of the nation's transition from war time to peace time.

Larry Tabor, a watch repairman from Washington, D.C., lost his legs in Korea, where he won the Silver Star. "It's something we've got to live with alone," he said.

"For those, like me, who managed to get out of the hospital, we've got to make a life for ourselves just like anybody else. And it's a hard road."

"Everybody says 'hire the vet' but nobody pays attention, especially when it comes to hiring disabled vets. But we can do a job, like anybody else."

VETERANS DAY OBSERVANCE — Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Auxiliary were in charge of flag ceremonies conducted at Memory Gardens today. Flags were placed on veterans' graves at Fairview and Memory Gardens by service organizations to again mark Veterans Day. US, India Burying Former Hostilities

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi buried past U.S.-Indian hostilities in two meetings today, and Indian officials hinted that President Ford has accepted an invitation to visit India soon.

Between the two meetings with Mrs. Gandhi, totalling one hour and 50 minutes, Kissinger signed an accord with Indian Foreign Minister Y. B. Chavan to create a Joint Indo-American Commission to promote trade, scientific and educational exchanges.

The cordial atmosphere of the meetings and Kissinger's separate two-hour talks with the Indian foreign minister appeared to have consigned to the past the ill feelings which sprang from the U.S. "tilt" towards Pakistan during the 1971 Indo-Pakistan war. Both Kissinger and Mrs. Gandhi said relations were not only good but "on the way up."

The Kissinger visit got off to a shaky start. On the eve of his arrival, Mrs. Gandhi had given an interview to the National Herald in which she castigated the United States for considering India "as marginal to U.S. global interests."

But today, Mrs. Gandhi told newsmen after the first meeting that "the talks were good," and Kissinger himself said that they had gone "very well." U.S. officials added that the Gandhi-Kissinger conversations were "friendly and removed past misunderstandings, and set the course for better relations."

Indian government officials said they hoped that President Ford would now visit India, and hinted that the U.S.-Indian communique to be published Tuesday would announce he has accepted an invitation.

The dramatic improvement in U.S.-Indian relations had been carefully prepared during the last year, and Kissinger flew to New Delhi to add the final touches following a tough bargaining session in Moscow with Brezhnev on disarmament.

Kissinger, in a speech tonight to the Indian Council of World Affairs, called on India to agree to common multilateral restraints on exporting nuclear technology after the Indian nuclear explosion of May 18.

Ford Pledges To End Vets Unemployment

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — President Ford said today Vietnam veterans are "the silent heroes of their generation" and ordered the federal government to hire 70,000 of them by July 1.

Speaking at an Arlington National Cemetery ceremony commemorating Veterans Day, Ford said action is underway to improve Veterans Administration services including its medical program.

Ford, who laid a wreath at the cemetery's Tomb of the Unknowns, also pledged he will "do everything possible" to make sure all the men missing in action in Southeast Asia are accounted for.

"It has been said that the forgotten men of the Vietnam conflict are those who served," Ford said. "They're the silent heroes of their generation. Too often, those who failed in their duty have monopolized the headlines and distorted the image of their generation."

"I intend to see that the silent heroes, the more than 6 1/2 million Americans who served their country in the Vietnam era with quiet courage, are not forgotten."

Ford said an interagency task force has given him a "Jobs for Veterans Plan of Action." The plan is aimed at the federal government recruiting and hiring 70,000 Vietnam veterans by the fiscal year ending July 1, 1975.

"I am ordering federal departments and agencies to move, and move now, on this action plan to make sure these veterans are hired as quickly as possible," Ford said. He said "important progress is already being made. Unemployment among veterans has dropped since its peak in 1971."

He credited the National Alliance of Businessmen in this.

WANT HOSTAGES FREED

Dutch Authorities Ready For Long Prison Siege

THE HAGUE (UPI) — A Justice Ministry spokesman said today the government is prepared for a long siege at Scheveningen prison where four inmates seized a Roman Catholic chapel and 22 hostages Saturday and demanded that another prisoner be turned over to their custody.

The terrorists released five of their hostages but were still holding 17 including two women and a child. Negotiations were at a standstill and the Justice Ministry spokesman said because of a lack of clear cut demands "I feel it could go on for some time."

One of the four prisoners was Adnan Ahmad Nuri, a Palestinian guerrilla serving a five year term for hijacking a British airliner last March and setting the aircraft on fire at Amsterdam airport. The others were Algerian thief Mohamed Koudache and two Dutch bank robbers, Daan Denie and Jan Brouwers.

They demanded that Sami Hussein Tamimah, 22, a

"This coming year they hope to provide 200,000 jobs for veterans, including the placement of 7,500 disabled veterans," he said. "They are doing a magnificent job."

Nowhere in the speech did Ford mention his amnesty program for Vietnam evaders and deserters. He mentioned the draft dodgers only in passing:

"They (the veterans) served in spite of the most difficult psychological pressures," Ford said. "They served at a time when many of their peers and their elders were denouncing service to one's country as immoral.

"They served while some avoided service. They served without the full moral support that this nation has usually given its fighting forces."

Ford did give encouragement to the families of men missing in action.

"I intend to make certain as well that the men missing in action are not forgotten—and, to their families and friends I make this pledge: I will do everything possible to resolve the uncertainty of their status," he said.

Ford said while the Veterans Administration "has done a fine job under very difficult circumstances... I am frank to admit that real problems exist."

"One problem," he said, is overcrowding with such results as veterans having to wait too long for hospital treatment. Another is getting "top quality" doctors, nurses and other persons to work in the VA programs.

The ceremony at the tomb—formerly called the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier—was one of the few events the President scheduled during the day before taking a seven-state campaign swing later in the week on behalf of Republican candidates

City Hall Missing Officials

Pampa's City Hall was minus 11 city officials today. The mayor, city manager, city attorney, city secretary, public works director, police chief, fire chief and Ward 4 city commissioner all were in Fort Worth attending the annual conference of the Texas Municipal League.

The city tax collector, deputy tax collector and head of the real estate appraisal department were in Galveston for the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Assessing Officers.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the store was being minded by Milton Saltzman, City Hall administrative assistant, who was serving in the capacity of acting city manager.

Both the TML and the TAAO conferences will run through Tuesday night when each has its annual banquet. Daytime sessions will be taken up with workshops on subjects applying to various municipal departments.

Attending the TML meeting in Fort Worth are Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, City Manager Mack Wofford, Public Works Director R.B. Cooke, City Commissioner Linden Shepherd, City Attorney Bob Gordon, City Secretary Stanley M. Chittenden, Fire Chief Finace Dyer and Police Chief Jim Conner.

Tax Collector Monty Gordon and James McCauley, real estate appraiser, are at the TAAO conference in Galveston.

Most of the officials expect to be back in their offices Thursday. Saltzman, the only department head left in City Hall for the next couple of days, said:

"In a case like this, you just keep your fingers crossed and hope no earth-shaking decisions have to be made."

COURT-IMPOSED OBLIGATION

Defense Attorneys Say Jaworski Too Talkative

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense attorneys in the Watergate cover-up trial charged today that former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has not abided by a court-imposed obligation "to keep his mouth shut" about the case.

The lawyers' complaint was registered before E. Howard Hunt Jr., one of the leaders of the 1972 Watergate break-in, was called to the stand as a "court witness"—a technique, which the defense also protested, defense the prosecutors to call him without vouching for the accuracy of his testimony.

John J. Wilson, lawyer for former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman, said that Jaworski, who resigned from the job of special prosecutor last Friday, was "going the circuit of panel shows."

Wilson added that Jaworski's former counsel, Phillip A. Lacovara, also has submitted to lengthy media interviews.

Wilson said neither Jaworski nor Lacovara have abided by the rule that a lawyer in the Watergate case has a "continuing obligation to keep his mouth shut."

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal replied that his courtroom team had no control over Jaworski and Lacovara.

Judge John J. Sirica, taking note of a story in the Washington Post today on his handling of courtroom rules, responded by saying that the "gag rule" he imposed at the time of the indictments in the case last March 1 was still in effect.

"I would hope everybody stopped talking about this case," Sirica said. "I'm trying to give them a fair trial."

Neal said the prosecution

plans to call about 35 witnesses and that it would seek to have about three of them, including Hunt, appear as court witnesses.

Defense lawyers protested the use of such a technique so early in a trial is unprecedented.

As a "court witness," the prosecution would not be in a position to vouch for Hunt's credibility. Both the prosecution and the defense would have greater latitude in questioning.

Hunt testified before the Senate Watergate Committee that he was involved in both the Watergate break-in and the 1971 burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He was convicted in the original Watergate trial in January, 1973, and received immunity for his testimony in last summer's Plumbers' trial.

Hunt said that in 21 years as a CIA agent, there were practices to follow when covert actions were exposed. "It has been universally the practice for the operation to be disavowed and covered up," he said.

Absentee Ballots

The office of the Gray County Clerk, early today, reported 169 absentee ballots had been cast for the Nov. 5 general election. Absentee ballots may be cast at the clerk's office on the second floor of Gray County Courthouse from 8:30 a.m. until 12 noon, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. until the Nov. 1 deadline.

Higher Unemployment Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two high-ranking administration officials predict unemployment may go up as the price of saving a sinking economy, but both say political pressure for more government controls will do nothing to help.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield calls it "just a matter of time" before wage-price controls are reimposed.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who Sunday counseled against "hysterical hues and cries of depression," said mandatory oil controls are looming if conservation doesn't work.

He also said President Ford will not back down on his 5 per cent income surtax proposal, though the level at which it applies may be open to compromise.

Joining Simon in predicting unemployment may rise from the current 5.8 per cent to as much as 6.5 per cent by next spring was Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Greenspan said the short-term economic outlook is dim.

He added: "By the spring of next year, I would expect a better price performance along with a higher rate of unemployment and a weakening level of business activity."

"What we have to be prepared to fend off under those circumstances are tremendous political pressures to expand quickly and excessively."

He called for a gradual policy of economic expansion, saying "Our present policies will work. All they have to do is be given time to work."

Simon was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Greenspan was interviewed by U.S. News and World Report. Mansfield appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Mansfield said Congress is too divided right now among various economic proposals, but that it should be up to Ford to take the lead in fighting inflation. "I think it's just going to be a matter of time before we come to wage and price controls," he said.

"With unemployment reaching 6 per cent and going to go above that, with prices still increasing — 12.1 per cent from last September to this September — all the elements are there for a recession which, if not corrected, may well plunge us deeper into an economic morass."

Simon said Nixon and Ford administration policies have not worked "only because they were not tried long enough.... We have copped out every single time and fallen prey to the political pressures, to the hysterical hues and cries of depression and recession, which brought us to the problem right now...."

Cold Front Covers Area, More Moisture Produced

Another cold front over the area Sunday produced another .17 inch of rain for Pampa, bringing the monthly total for October to 2.38 inches.

Partly cloudy skies returned to the area Sunday afternoon following the early afternoon rain, with chilly air and some early morning fog lingering this morning.

Partly cloudy skies are expected to remain through Tuesday, with the high reaching into the upper 60s. The overnight low will be near 50.

Sunday's high was a mild 57 with a low this morning of 50.

In UPI reports:

North and central Texas was drenched in rain early today, with golf ball size hail falling in some areas and flooding in others as a cold front moved through the state.

Hail was reported in Sheffield late Sunday night and this morning and flooding was reported in Abilene. The national weather service said there were patches of ground fog throughout the state.

Cloudy skies blanketed most of the state early this morning and scattered light rain was to continue this afternoon. Skies were to remain cloudy until later this evening. Temperatures were to be in the 70s.

Thunderstorms, high winds and hail battered Texas early today.

Golfball-size hailstones pelted Sheffield, Tex., late Sunday night and at Amarillo, winds gusted to 43 miles per hour.

More thunderstorms and showers were scattered through the southern half of the Plains by dawn.

A cold front from the Pacific brought rain to the Pacific Coast states and snow to the Cascade and Sierra ranges. Showers rinsed the northern Rockies.

An inch of rain fell at Red Bluff, Calif., and had not let up by morning.

Isolated showers wet the Mississippi Valley and parts of Florida.

Dense fog hampered travel in portions of the Gulf and southern Atlantic coasts.

More Of The Same

Now that Nelson Rockefeller is in line to serve as the vice president of the United States, it might be well to reflect on the fact that politics, by its nature, cannot offer "solutions" because it is THE cause of the problems in the first place.

A Gerald Ford really isn't that much different from a Richard Nixon. True, he doesn't as yet have the albatross of scandal about his neck, he is much less upright, he is much more a "man of the people," the pretensions are fewer. Otherwise, there really isn't a discernible difference.

President Ford's first call to Congress was for an economic summit conference on inflation, a clear indication that he lives in the dream world of meaningless action and showmanship. The call for the reactivation of the Cost of Living Council in whatever form is another sham indicative of the politician's inability to face up to the hard realities of life.

Now President Ford has given us Vice President Rockefeller, who as a four-term governor of New York was a catastrophe of the first order. As an example, let's take a brief look at what Rocky did for New York State and ask what his record indicates to commend him to move into a central seat of power in the nation.

According to Barron's "From 1959 through fiscal 1974, which ended on March 31, New York State's budget increased from $1.9 billion to nearly $9 billion. Under Rockefeller, taxes were imposed or increased at least every other year in 1959, 1963, 1965, 1966, 1971 and 1972. During Rocky's tenure in office, the maximum rate of the personal income tax more than doubled, from 7 percent to 15 percent. Over the same period, the state gasoline levy advanced from four to eight cents a gallon, the personal income tax more than doubled from 7 percent to 15 percent. Over the same period, the state gasoline levy advanced from four to eight cents a gallon, the cigarette tax from three to 15 cents per pack. A 4 percent state sales tax went on the books. All told, in 15 years, the tax load nearly quintupled, to the point where according to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., taxpayers in New York are the most overburdened in the land.

"The state of New York increasingly has become an also-ran. In the two years ended July 1, 1973, the Census Bureau recently disclosed the Empire State lost nearly 120,000 inhabitants (102,000 in the latest 12-month period alone.) That's more than five times as much as the other losers combined, and the trend is picking up speed. As to employment, the picture — to judge by the findings of the Select Committee on the State's Economy — is equally bleak. Since 1958, New York's share of the nation's manufacturing has declined from 11.2 percent to 9.2 percent — in recent years, for the first time in history, its share of total U.S. factory employment fell below its share of the U.S. population. Since the mid-fifties, added the committee, this sector of the state's economy has plunged more than 20 percent leading to a loss of over 400,000 jobs. Outmigration and plant relocation mount apace.

"The situation is drastic. There is something rather pathetic about the way so many people in this country continue to desperately grasp the delusion, that Caesar, whether his name is Nixon or Kennedy or Ford or Rockefeller, has any top priority except staying in power. Big government creates the problems and then succession of imposters allege to have "solutions". An example is bringing in someone like Rocky with his million-dollar smile and record of big government socialist incursions to help save the day. (So dedicated to the eastern establishment form of socialistic Republicanism, Rocky couldn't even bring himself to endorse Senator Goldwater when he ran for president.)

How short political honeymoons are. How disappointing to see the apparent innocence and "guy next door" image of a Gerald Ford begin to deteriorate into actions that are indistinguishable from those who precede him and who have given to the nation an ever-expanding concentration of power in the hands of politicians while destroying the value of the dollar at an ever-increasing rate.

Is Theft Healthy?

To argue that if the government were to stop legal counterfeiting (inflation of the money supply) it would bring on a depression is tantamount to arguing that if illegal counterfeiters were to cease their activities it would be detrimental to the economy.

Since when did a healthy economy depend upon theft — of either the legal or illegal variety? The less theft — either legal or illegal — the more healthy any economy will be.

More than 20,000 Iowa farms produce milk, with about 385,000 cows being milked twice daily.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Maybe Watergate Forever?

By WM. A. RUSHER

It begins to appear that Watergate is one of those fecund episodes in American history that will provide grist for investigation and controversy almost literally forever.

The wife of Bruce Catton, the Pulitzer Prize-winning historian, once wisecracked that she had lost her husband in the Civil War. And there are also large coteries of Sacco-Vanzetti buffs, Kennedy assassination addicts, and devotees of the incident at Chappaquiddick. All that is required is some event, or series of events, that is intrinsically interesting and cloaked in some degree of mystery and controversy. The stubbornness and ingenuity of the human mind will do the rest. Was Stanton behind the assassination of Lincoln? Did the first rifle reports at Dallas come from the "grassy knoll"? How did Edward Kennedy really get back to the Shiretown Inn?

Watergate is clearly the grand tradition. For one thing, while not so vast a subject as the Civil War, it measures up rather well against Sacco-Vanzetti, Kennedy assassination and Chappaquiddick in terms of the breadth of the canvas, the period of time involved, the number of people concerned, and the ambiguity of the available evidence.

What was the role of Gordon Liddy? When did Nixon first learn about CREP's involvement in the Watergate break-in — or did he help to plan it? What did Hunt hope to learn from the file of Ellsberg's psychiatrist? Who was Deep Throat? You begin to see the possibilities. There have been whole books published recently on the mysterious Affair of the Diamond Necklace (1772-91) and the vexed question of who killed the young Princes in the Tower in or about 1485. People will still be arguing over the Huston Plan, and wondering why Nixon didn't burn the tapes, several centuries from now.

Allegedly to help them, the contemporary addicts of the Watergate episode are doing their energetic best to find some way around the inconvenient pardon granted by President Ford to Mr. Nixon. Generally they deny any desire to persecute the former chief executive; it is only the historical record they are interested in, or the integrity of our judicial processes. One way or another, though, they plainly intend to keep the Watergate ball in the air, and some sort of proceeding against Mr. Nixon is evidently deemed essential for the purpose.

One school of thought favors a direct attack on the pardon itself, on the highly dubious ground that Mr. Ford could not lawfully issue one until Mr. Nixon was actually convicted of something. For the purpose of testing this theory, some experts believe the Watergate grand jurors ought to go ahead and indict Mr. Nixon for something anyway, pardon or no pardon.

Others, notably including the ACLU, are urging the impeachment of Mr. Nixon by the House and his conviction by the Senate, even though he has rendered that whole process superfluous, and perhaps unconstitutional by resigning.

The Attorney General of California is publicly casting about for evidence of some crime for which Mr. Nixon could be prosecuted under state law (to which, of course, a presidential pardon does not apply).

The bar associations of New York and California were preparing disbarment proceedings against Mr. Nixon, which might have involved a quasi-judicial airing of his actions, but he appears to have thwarted them by resigning from the bar in both states.

If all other recourses fail, the Watergate buffs hope for a final report by Special Prosecutor Jaworski to the Congress, or a special presentment by the grand jury, nailing Mr. Nixon's hide to the wall. Unfortunately either step would apparently require special enabling legislation by Congress, since the pardon bars his indictment and it is not certain the Congress will agree to authorize such gratuitous denunciations.

But whether it does or not, we might as well stop kidding ourselves that anything at all will still the Watergate controversy forever. If Mr. Nixon's critics want to torment him further, let them go about their business without pretending that anything they can do, or prove, or contend, will finally lay the matter to rest. Mankind is just going to have to live with this one, for a long, long time to come.

Oil-Lease Law Loophole
Could Cost U.S. Plenty
WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 — There is a loophole in the law covering offshore oil leases that is big enough to drill a million-barrel well — in fact a lot of them.

Through this legal gap it is possible for foreigners to acquire these immensely vital and valuable oil resources.

As far as it is known that hasn't happened yet — but it could. Apparently the door is wide open.

Says Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., who uncovered the extraordinary loophole:

"In the course of a study of the procedures used by the Interior Department in selling offshore leases, I was shocked to discover that such leases, offered to the highest bidder, contain no restrictions on 'fronts' for foreign bidders. What this means is that the Arabs, with the billions in petrodollars they now have, could be the real highest bidder and thus not only control the oil of the Middle East but the crucial oil reserves off our shores as well."

Stressing the urgent need for prompt corrective action, in view of announced government plans to lease ten million acres of Atlantic sea bottom next year, Wolff is pressing a two-pronged drive:

For immediate safeguards — Vigorously pressuring Interior Secretary Rogers Morton to forthwith revise the federal regulations governing offshore drilling leases to effectively bar foreigners from acquiring them.

Asserts Wolff, "Secretary Morton could quickly plug up this dangerous loophole by the simple step of amending the governing regulation (43 CFR 3300-1). That's all it would take."

Permanent solution — A bill amending the "outer continental shelf lands act of 1953" flatly prohibiting foreign nations and individuals, through a U.S. corporation or citizen, from bidding for offshore oil leases. This measure is pending in the House Interior and Insular Affairs subcommittee, and Wolff is seeking speedy consideration.

He aims to get such corrective legislation enacted before this Congress expires at the end of the year.

Otherwise his amendment will have to start from scratch when the new (94th) Congress convenes in January.

Contents Wolff, "There is no time to lose. It is a question of protecting our national security and Congress and the Interior Department must act without delay in correcting this serious oversight in our laws. This should have been uncovered and dealt with long ago."

CRACKDOWNER

This is the second time this year that the outspoken member of the Foreign Affairs Committee has taken the lead on significant legislation.

Last spring he put through a measure requiring congressional approval before debts owed the U.S. could be written off by bureaucratic action. Wolff engineered this crackdown following disclosure that Ambassador Daniel Moynihan had quietly cancelled $2.3 billion of a $3.3 billion debt India had owed the U.S. for more than 15 years.

Moynihan "negotiated" this huge give-away on State Department instruction — as part of its endeavors to patch up relations with the Gandhi regime, strained as a result of U.S. support of Pakistan in its brief war with India.

Wolff's prospects of prodding Interior Secretary Morton into tightening up offshore leasing regulations are conjectural.

Significantly, Morton has not answered a letter Wolff wrote him several weeks ago. Inside word is the Interior executive is "consulting" the State Department about the matter.

In calling on Morton for "immediate action," Wolff spells out clearly and emphatically why that is essential, as follows:

"This deficiency in the existing regulation allows our oil and gas reserves to be vulnerable to foreign control. This disturbing situation does not preclude the Arab states, with their vast reserves of petrodollars, from controlling one of our major sources of future energy. I urgently ask that the Interior Department take immediate action in rectifying this situation, so that foreign nations acting under the guise of a U.S. firm or citizen cannot be eligible to bid for leases on the outer continental shelf."

There appears to be a good chance Wolff's corrective amendment will get favorable consideration in the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

If it is approved there it will be put before the full House.

Wolff's strategy is to offer his measure as an amendment to a Senate passed bill awaiting disposal by the Interior Committee. Stressing the need for permanently eliminating the leasing loophole, Wolff has written Rep. James Haley, D-Fla., committee chairman:

"To my astonishment I have ascertained that there is no prohibition against an American citizen or company acting on behalf of a foreign national in bidding for leases on the outer continental shelf. Manifestly this is a state of affairs that must not be permitted to continue."

"I have asked the Interior Department to plug up this loophole, but have learned no steps are being taken to do that. I therefore earnestly advise that the committee take immediate action to remedy this precarious situation."

There are strong differences among Interior Department policy makers over including royalty bidding when Atlantic coast leases are put up for sale next year.

For the first time royalty bids were accepted on leases last week on 140 tracts off the Louisiana coast. Eight of the areas were put on a royalty basis — under which bidders offer the government a percentage of the oil or gas found.

Royalty proponents contend this allows smaller companies to "get a shot" at offshore exploration. But the concept is controversial, and a number of concerns refused to participate in the new system.

Under Fire

If World Bank president Robert McNamara's ears are burning, there is good reason.

Top members of the Ford administration are gunning for the highly controversial Defense Secretary of the Kennedy and Johnson regimes. The Ford officials feel McNamara has little awareness of the widespread opposition in the U.S. toward continued large-scale foreign aid and spending.

Also, as one White House leader emphatically expressed it, "McNamara is far too free and easy with other people's money — particularly U.S. taxpayers."

The former Pentagon boss is privately making no bones of his "outrage" at congressional cutbacks and crackdowns on voting more billions for the open-handed "soft" loans and credits he vigorously favors.

Named head of the World Bank at the instigation of President Johnson who wanted to get rid of McNamara, he still has several years to serve. Whether he can be eased out is questionable. He is the darling of the "undeveloped" countries and others on the take.

The first white visitor to Massachusetts was Venetian navigator John Cabot, who sailed from England in 1497.

Is this "zombie" married to a hypocrite?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, after 26 years of marriage, I found out that my husband had been unfaithful to me.

He is a very special person — kind, honest, friendly, and very active in our church. He travels some, and this infidelity occurred when he was away from home.

Since this happened, I haven't been myself. I feel like a zombie. I am play-acting instead of saying the things I really want to say to him.

I love him very much, and thought he loved me, too, but if he did, how could this have happened? I've searched my thoughts trying to understand where I failed him, but I haven't been able to come up with an answer.

When I see him praying in church every Sunday I wonder how he can be such a hypocrite. Please help me.

STILL HURTING

DEAR STILL: You say that you "know" your husband was unfaithful. How can you be sure — unless he admits it? Have you asked him? If you haven't, do. If he denies it, believe him: If he admits it, then ask him why he felt the need to stray, but don't be disappointed if he can't answer that question.

We don't always know the reasons for our actions. Clear the air. Quit torturing yourself with doubts. And don't prejudice him. A church isn't a museum for saints — it's a hospital for sinners. (Let he who is without sin cast the first stone.)

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and need an opinion from someone outside my family.

My parents are divorced and I have lived with my mother since early childhood. She has been a wonderful mother not only to me but to my brothers and sisters. She always thought of her children first.

My father contributed nothing to my upbringing. Not even the child support the court ordered him to pay. I didn't respect him when I was a child, and I still don't.

Although I think the tradition of the bride's father "giving away" his daughter is beautiful, I want my mother to give me away instead.

What do you think of such an odd switch? Do I dare suggest it?

MAMMA'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: It's your wedding, and I see no reason why your mother shouldn't give you away if that's what you want. Tell whomever will officiate at your wedding about your wishes. It makes sense to me. (P.S. I once attended a lovely wedding where, in response to the clergyman's question, "Who gives this woman in marriage?", the mother and father replied in unison, "We do!")

DEAR ABBY: I like the way you remind your readers to be a little more patient with their elderly parents.

My mother is an 88-year-old widow who doesn't need any extra patience as yet, and I doubt if she ever will.

She reads and writes in seven languages, and proof-reads the Hebrew lettering for marble tombstones. Mom owns a duplex. She lives downstairs, alone, and rents the upstairs to a 92-year-old retired sea captain named Jack. Jack is bright, alert and sharp as a tack.

The other day when my brother Dave was visiting our mother, in his cute and kidding way he said, "Ma, what's this I hear about you fooling around with Jack?"

With a twinkle in her eye, Mom shot back, "Don't worry, son, I'm on the pill!"

Senior Class Plans Meeting
 The Senior Class of Pampa High School will meet at 8 a.m. Wednesday to discuss plans for graduation and vespers.
 The students will decide whether or not to conduct the traditional vesper service.
 Graduation will be on Friday, May 23, this year, instead of Monday as in past years. Vespers would be held the preceding Sunday, necessitating a time and expense problem.
 The class will also discuss whether to hold graduation exercises in the Harvester Field House or at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium.
 Students will also consider selling senior t-shirts, sweat-shirts, windbreakers and similar clothing to raise funds.

BUT NO CHEROKEE STRIP

Demos Could Gain Senate Seats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After the 1936 elections, there were so many Democrats in the Senate that some of them had to sit in a row of seats called the "Cherokee Strip" on the Republican side of the chamber.
 No one expects a repeat of 1936 this year. The Democrats are not going to have 75 senators after the Nov. 5 election.
 But everyone, Republicans included, anticipate that the Democrats will tighten their control over the Senate — an unbroken dominance that now spans 20 years.
 Going into the elections, the Democrats hold a 58-42 edge.
 New York's James L. Buckley, a Conservative party member, lines up with the GOP, and Virginia's Harry F. Byrd, an independent, with the Democrats.

While everyone expects the Democrats to add to their margin, the speculation runs anywhere from two to eight, with the common denominator four or five.
 Even without Watergate, inflation, the Nixon pardon, the refusal of many good, potential candidates to run, and the prospects of a poor GOP voter turnout, 1974 was not expected to be a good year for Republicans to increase their Senate strength.
 Six GOP incumbents are in deep danger of defeat. They are Sens. Peter H. Dominick of Colorado, Robert Dole of Kansas, Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky, Jacob K. Javits of New York, Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma and Milton Young of North Dakota.
 In addition, the retirements of Sens. George D. Aiken of Vermont, Norris

Colton of New Hampshire, and Wallace F. Bennett of Utah cost the GOP three premier vote getters.
 Although Republicans are fielding strong replacements, the Democrats have an even chance in Utah and an outside chance in New Hampshire.
 Of the 34 Senate seats at stake, 29 are held by Democrats and 14 by Republicans, which on the surface would give the GOP more targets.
 But included in the 20 are Democratic seats in southern states such as Alabama, North Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Georgia, where the Republicans have no chance.
 And outside the South, the Democrats are fielding such entrenched and seemingly unbeatable veterans as Sens. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, plus less seasoned but just as formidable candidates as Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, Alan Cranston of California and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri.

 That leaves the Republicans with slim pickings.
 Their best bets to pick up Democratic seats are probably in Alaska, where the GOP's C.R. Lewis is challenging Sen. Mike Gravel; Nevada, where Sen. Alan Bible is retiring and the Republicans are going with former Gov. Paul Laxalt against Lt. Gov. Harry M. Reid, and Iowa, where Republican David Stanley is going against Rep. John C. Culver for the seat being vacated by retiring Sen. Harold Hughes.
 Cape Roca, Portugal, is the westernmost point in continental Europe.

Secret Service Workers Seize Counterfeit Money

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Secret Service agents Sunday made the largest seizure of counterfeit money in U.S. history — over $8 million in $5, $10 and $20 bills — and arrested four men.
 Robert E. Powis, special agent in charge, said the arrests and confiscation of the bills ended three weeks of intensive investigation.
 Arrested were Leonard O. Salmon, 39, Lakewood, Kenneth C. Wall, 48, Buena Park, Robert J. Spratte, 33, Whittier and Sam J. Anders, 35, Compton.
 Most of the money — $7.5 million — was stacked inside a van. Over $750,000 in additional phony money was found at the Gus Printing Co., Hawaiian Gardens, which is owned by Wall.

 Powis said that the offset printing press used to manufacture the bills was located at a residence in Cerritos.
 Negatives and plates were allegedly made at the printing company, according to Powis, and the actual printing was done at the Cerritos residence. The van was enroute to the printing company for cutting the bills when it was seized, the agent said.

UNIFORMS WEARING OUT

Band Members Sewing Experts

By ALETHA DAVIS

Nearly 90 members of the Harvester Marching Band have qualified as members of that organization as a result of years of training, hard work, dedication and desire to represent Pampa High School.

A new requirement for band members may be added — prowess with a needle and thread is becoming almost as important as musical ability.

The green and gold uniform of the group is falling apart!

Thirteen years ago 115 sets were purchased for band members. Since that time only 25 uniforms have been added. The "new" ones are 10 years old and that's where the problem comes. Before each marching appearance, the needle and thread comes out.

Buttons pop, braid escapes its path, hat bands and straps simply give up and fall off.

Nobody dares bend over or it's another repair job! Uniform material has become so worn, it's impossible to mend. Where seams are sewn, the material just splits away and there they go again.

Sunbursts on hats tilt. Breast plates are devoid of laquer, cross belts are frayed and the poor golden shakos, one elegantly plumed, look like molting chickens.

Fans during the football season forego cups of hot coffee and sit shivering in the stands just to see "The Pride of Pampa" execute precision routines and drills while members performing the feats offer silent prayers their uniforms won't fall apart in the finale.

As the band leaves the field gold flecks dotting the area turn into popped off buttons upon close scrutiny.

Jeff Doughten, band director, is the first to commend 13 years of service from the uniforms.

"The kids have taken care to them," he points out. Before every appearance the bands stands inspection.

Brass must be polished (it's hard to polish bare metal); shoes, purchased at band members' expense, must be clean; buckles are supposed to shine, gloves must be meticulous.

Band members are responsible for cleaning the uniforms during the year. They have a lot of pride, but it's hard to be proud with the seat of your pants about to split, one student mumbled.

The uniforms have just outlived their usefulness, any band parent or student will agree.

"It took one band director's wife the whole first half to repair uniforms enough to field the band at Hereford this year," Doughten stated.

The uniforms room at PHS is neat. There are proper places for each item, but the biggest bin contains loose buttons' de-plumed shakos, worn-out cross belts and disintegrated hats.

The band goes to West Texas State University campus tomorrow.

It will participate in the UIL marching contest, first leg of a sweetstakes which will be awarded after concert and sight-reading contest in the spring.

"The Pride of Pampa" has repeatedly brought home that award. It has traveled from coast to coast. Performances have been held in Los Angeles, New York City, Chicago, Corpus Christi, all-over Texas, in fact.

Another year of service from the uniform looks impossible. The Pampa Independent Schools board of trustees agrees with the concerned band students, parents and directors, something should be done. New uniforms are not in the budget this year, but a pilot uniform has been designed bids received from uniform companies and hopes are high a way to purchase the sets can be resolved. Areas of financing are being explored.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed," is the motto of the whole Harvester Band.

Women Priests Celebrate Holy Eucharist Rite

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Three women deacons who were ordained as Episcopal priests in a controversial ceremony last July celebrated the Holy Eucharist for the first time Sunday night, at Riverside Church.

A congregation of about 1,500 men and women burst into applause as the three walked down the aisle to the altar of the interdenominational church.

They had agreed after they and eight other women were ordained not to function as priests "for a time," but Sunday said the agreement was broken when the House of Bishops failed at a meeting last week to permit them to act as priests.

Asked if the service helped her realize her goal, the Rev. Jeannette Piccard, 79, of Minneapolis, responded: "This is the goal."

The Rev. Allison Cheek, 47, Annandale, Va., said the church's opposition to women priests "is a primitive fear of women's sexuality on the part of the male leadership in the church. My own congregation, however, has been very supportive."

"I spoke to them before I went to Philadelphia and they were very much with me. I would have been ordained years ago if I could have been but I had to wait until now before there were four bishops willing to do it."

The Rev. Carter Heyward, 28, New York, said she sought the priesthood to "respond to what I believe in spiritually. You don't wait for laws to be changed, you act and bring about a change."

"All of the furor is based on sexuality, the church is hung up with everything that has to do with sex." The ordination of the 11 women by four bishops in Philadelphia last July was greeted with great controversy in the church.

Two weeks after the ceremony, the House of Bishops held an emergency meeting and voted 120 to nine to invalidate the ordinations.

Last week, the bishops voted in favor of the ordination of women in principle but did not act to license the women who had already been ordained.

Puerto Ricans Conduct Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Puerto Ricans held a peaceful independence day rally at Madison Square Garden Sunday, one day after five bombs, apparently set by Puerto Rican nationalists, rocked Manhattan.

The bombs exploded within a 30 minute period in midtown Manhattan and in the financial district, damaging buildings which housed major banks and corporations. There were no injuries.

Members of a group calling itself the Armed Forces of Puerto Rican National Liberation claimed responsibility for the bombings.

While the explosions were not mentioned during the rally, attended by 15,000 persons, the tactic was discussed later at a news conference.

San Marino adjoining northeast Italy is the smallest and oldest republic in Europe.

BEFORE CAMPAIGN TOUR

Ford Marks Veterans Day By Laying Wreath At Tomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

President Ford commemorates Veterans Day today by laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

The 11 a.m. ceremony was one of the few activities Ford will have time for before he launches a seven-state campaign swing on behalf of Republican candidates in elections next week.

He also was to meet with representatives of the National Blind Veterans Association Monday afternoon.

Ford spent the weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David relaxing with his wife Betty, who is recuperating from cancer surgery.

He got in a little swimming, played tennis, watched two current movies and a football game on television and filmed an interview before returning to the White House for Sunday dinner.

The interview was to be broadcast on ABC's "Reasoner Report" next Saturday.

France Tests Strict System In Wine Fraud

BORDEAUX, France (UPI) —

France produces the world's most prestigious wines, and Frenchmen point with pride to strict laws that guarantee a bottle of French wine will be exactly what it says it is on the label.

But the world's wine lovers are watching developments in France this week, where the head of one of the country's most respected wine firms is charged with fraud — accused of mislabeling bottles.

Lionel Cruse, director of the Cruse Sons and Brothers wine merchants, one of the country's most prestigious firms, is charged with fraud in the affair, now labeled the "Bordeaux wine scandal."

Some observers say that the case is coming to trial proves the system is working. The Cruse firm buys superior wine from local vintners in the Bordeaux region, bottles it and then sells it around the world to embassies, restaurants and individuals. For five generations, the Cruse wine has brought high prices.

The firm is now accused of buying inferior, ordinary wine that should have been made into vinegar, changing the taste, bottling it, mislabeling it and selling it as a fine wine. It involves 2 million bottles of red wine.

Yvan Cruse, a cousin and 16 other wine traders and shippers are also charged and their trial is expected to last three or four days.

The defendants face fines and jail sentences upon conviction but the sentences are not expected to be announced until a few weeks after the testimony.

The 2 million bottles in question represent 0.5 percent of the annual Bordeaux production, 40 percent of which is exported.

Football Mothers To Hold Meeting

The Pampa Harvester football mothers will meet again to discuss plans for the upcoming football banquet, date to be set, at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the high school cafeteria.

The meeting will precede the weekly Booster Club meeting, which starts at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. All football mothers are urged to attend the 6:30 affair.

IN BANK HEIST Authorities Arrest Burglary Suspect

CHICAGO (UPI) —

A security guard believed to be the "insider" who helped pull off the biggest cash heist in American history — a $4.3 million theft from an Armored Express Co vault — was arrested Sunday by police and FBI agents.

Ralph Marrera, 31, was seized before dawn at his father-in-law's suburban Oak Park home, where he apparently had been hiding since becoming a suspect in last week's burglary.

He was to appear before a U.S. magistrate today, but authorities refused to disclose where he was being held pending his court appearance.

Federal marshals took elaborate security measures to protect Marrera from underworld figures who might try to take his life.

Marrera was described by U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson as a key to the theft.

He was picked up for questioning last Tuesday after failing a lie detector test, but was released for lack of evidence.

Marrera was charged Friday in a federal warrant accusing him of bank larceny, burglary and illegal use of explosive devices, but by that time he had dropped out of sight.

There were reports that Marrera — hired by Armored Express two months before the burglary — had gone into hiding for fear attempts would be made on his life and planned to surrender to police.

Thompson said Marrera knows enough about the burglary that the thieves still being sought would try to kill him and other underworld elements would go after him.

Upon his arrest, Marrera reportedly told police, "There's a lot of guys out to kill me. Are you guys out to kill me, too?"

Still sought in a nationwide federal alert was Charles Marzano, 42, whom police described as an adept safe-cracker and an expert at circumventing sensitive security alarm systems. Marzano was believed to have fled Chicago.

A single fault extends more than 40,000 miles around the earth from Greenland to Alaska.

LONG ILLNESS SEEN Nixon Undergoing Circulatory Tests

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —

Former president Richard Nixon, described as "pale and drawn" today begins a week of sophisticated tests to determine if surgery is needed to halt the steady deterioration of circulation in his left leg.

Doctors indicate there is virtually no chance of his appearing to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial in Washington, and it is growing more likely he will be operated on.

Even under the best of circumstances, Nixon's health rules out travel for at least two months, the former president's physician, Dr. John Lungren, told a news conference Sunday.

The trial of Nixon's former aides could be over by then.

"If surgery is required, he would be unavailable over the long haul to make a court appearance," Lungren said.

Nixon is doing well "as long as he is flat in bed with his feet in the air," according to a consulting physician, Dr. Wiley Barker.

But "under any circumstances, it is going to be necessary to be certain that he stays under close medical supervision for a protracted period of time — and by protracted I mean for many months," he said.

More sophisticated tests are being employed, Lungren said, and "if we find... active clotting, then the chances of surgical intervention are good. We wouldn't risk it (postponing surgery) any longer."

The deep femoral vein, from knee to groin, in Nixon's leg is "99 and 44-100ths per cent clotted," said Dr. Scott Driscoll.

Good Housekeeping Keeps Rats Away

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas County health authorities report food is the main attraction but good housekeeping the best deterrent to rats moving into homes to avoid cool weather.

"The standard call is from people who hear rats in the attic," said Jan Lovens, urban rodent control specialist with the Texas Rodent and Predatory Animal Control Service. "They don't know how they got there."

Lovens said rats move toward homes and buildings in cooler weather to get food and heat. They scale walls and enter through holes in roofs or holes around service wires and utility pipes, he said.

"The domestic rat is a parasite of man, and there are many more in the city," Lovens said.

A spokesman for the Dallas County Health Department says rat bite calls have been more frequent recently. The spokesman said a victim should make sure his tetanus shots are up to date, although infection is not too likely. He said rats do not carry rabies.

"Remove the garbage and that's the whole ball game," said Jim Blankenship, medical entomologist with the City of Dallas' vector control department.

A couple of weeks ago, people laughed at the possibility of a St. Louis-New England Super Bowl. Sure they were both undefeated but just wait. Well, the first half of the National Football League season is over and St. Louis still is undefeated and while New England has lost once, the Patriots have knocked off both of last year's Super Bowl participants, Miami and Minnesota, along with powerhouse Los Angeles.

The Cardinals ran their record to 7-0 and took a solid three-game lead in the National Conference East Sunday by beating the Washington Redskins 23-20. Jim Hart threw touchdown passes of 52 yards to Earl Thomas and 17 to Donny Anderson and Roger Wehrli returned an interception 53 yards for another score. St. Louis surged to a 16-0 lead on Wehrli's interception, Jim Bakken's 47-yard field goal and Hart's pass to Thomas. The Redskins narrowed the gap on field goals of 48 and 34 yards by Mark Mosely and Sonny Jurgensen's two-yard flip to Larry Brown. But Hart threw to Anderson for a 23-13 lead in the third period and Washington just managed to get close on Jurgensen's 13-yard TD pass to Brown. In other games, Houston stunned Cincinnati 34-21, Buffalo downed Chicago 16-6, Los Angeles beat the New York Jets 20-13, Oakland overcame San Francisco 35-24, Dallas stopped the New York Giants 21-7, Cleveland upset Denver 23-17, Miami struggled past Baltimore 17-7. New Orleans toppled Philadelphia 14-10, Detroit edged Green Bay 19-17 and Kansas City defeated San Diego 24-14. Atlanta is at Pittsburgh tonight.

Oilers 34, Bengals 21
Defensive end Elvin Bethea returned a fumble 38 yards for a TD and Dan Pastorini threw a 35-yard scoring pass to Billy Parks to lead Houston past heavily-favored Cincinnati. Bethea's score gave Houston a 27-7 lead and Pastorini's pass wiped out a three TD passes by Ken Anderson.

Bills 16, Bears 6
Larry Watkins ran one yard for Buffalo's only TD and John Leypoldt kicked field goals of 47, 25 and 36 yards as the Bills remained tied with New England for the AFC East lead by beating Chicago. The Bear defense held rushing star O.J. Simpson to just 62 yards but Leypoldt bailed out Buffalo with his kicking.

Rams 20, Jets 13
Charlie Stukes' 41-yard interception return to the one set up Lawrence McCutcheon's second TD in a 31-second span of the fourth quarter as the Rams rallied to beat New York. The Jets led 13-7 on Mike Adamle's short burst and Emerson Boozer's 14-yard TD run when McCutcheon ran 23 yards to tie the score and then put Los Angeles ahead three plays later.

Raiders 35, 49ers 24
Ken Stabler passed two yards to Dave Casper for one TD and Harold Hart kicked up a loose ball following an Oakland punt and ran 40 yards for another score to lead Oakland over San Francisco. Stabler also

Saints 14, Eagles 7
Jess Phillips blasted over from the eight with 74 seconds left and New Orleans upset Philadelphia. The Eagles led 10-7 on Tom Dempsey's 18-yard field goal before the Saints' rally. New Orleans dropped Eagle quarterback Roman Gabriel five times.

Lions 19, Packers 17
Errol Mann's 41-yard field goal with nine seconds left gave Detroit its win over Green Bay. Mann's kick came after the Packers went ahead 17-12 on Jack Concannon's one-yard plunge. Bill Munson threw two TD passes for Detroit.

DOUBLE TROUBLE — Pampa defensive ends Tylor Drinnon (left) and Kelly Baker played a huge part in Friday night's 14-10 victory over Tascosa. The two combined for a 12-yard sack on Rebel quarterback Danny Ross after Tascosa had driven into Pampa territory with eight minutes left in the game. Baker stopped Ross for a six-yard loss after Tascosa moved to Pampa's 28 late in the game, and two plays later, Drinnon and defensive tackle Dane Rasmussen tackled Ross for a nine-yard loss, which ended the game. (Photos by Jim Williams)

Drew Leads Dallas Over Dying Giants
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Drew Pearson now knows how it feels to be on the other end. Pearson, signed by Dallas last year as a free agent out of Tulsa, currently ranks a the National Football League's leading receiver with 38 receptions following his three catches, including one for a touchdown, Sunday in the Cowboys' 21-7 defeat of the New York Giants. However, the 23-year-old Pearson also managed to reverse his role when he caught the Giant defense napping and lofted a 46-yard scoring pass to Golden Richards after taking a lateral behind the line of scrimmage from quarterback Roger Staubach.

Waldrep Badly Injured For TCU

United Press International
Texas Christian coach Jim Shofner, under normal circumstances, speaks in a deliberate manner. He usually chooses his words with care. But he did not have to think about what he wanted to say Sunday. "When something like this happens," he said, "it certainly puts winning and losing in its proper perspective. This proves that the game itself is not the most important thing."

The game quickly became secondary for Texas Christian Saturday with the saddening injury suffered by Horned Frog running back Kent Waldrep. Waldrep, 20, a junior, was paralyzed from the neck down when he landed on his head after being tackled during the second quarter of TCU's 41-3 loss to Alabama in Birmingham. A vertebra in Waldrep's neck was crushed and his spinal cord, while not severed, was badly bruised. Doctors, after 2 1/2 hours of surgery from which Waldrep was given only a 50-50 chance of surviving, said there would be permanent paralysis. To what extent, however, was not yet known.

"The next 48 hours are most critical for him now," said Shofner, who saw Waldrep both before and after the surgery. "We at TCU certainly hope that other people around the country will join us in prayer for Kent and his family."

"When things happen like this, the game and its outcome become secondary."

But, after all, the results of those games are tabulated and the results of last weekend's Southwest Conference games demonstrate most clearly that Texas A&M could be hard to keep away from the league championship.

The Aggies now own the undisputed conference lead thanks to a 20-0 victory over Baylor Saturday night, a game in which A&M allowed the Bears only four first downs.

The rugged A&M defense faces another tough test next Saturday when the Aggies entertain Arkansas, which rolled over Colorado State, 43-9.

A&M took over the lead by itself when Southern Methodist failed to contain Texas Tech in the final quarter and allowed the Red Raiders a comeback, 20-17 decision. That leaves SMU, Texas Tech and Texas (a 27-6 winner over Rice) with 2-1 records and Baylor at 1-

1 in league play. SMU and Texas meet Austin this week in what amounts to an elimination contest for the loser while Texas Tech will travel to Rice and TCU hosts Baylor. Through it all, however, the Texas Longhorns remained a solid choice to keep right on winning to set up a potential showdown with Texas A&M on the day after Thanksgiving.

SNEAD LOSES PLAYOFF
Watson Captures National Club Pro
PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — When Cary, N.C., pro Roger Watson teed-off Sunday for the final round of the $10,000 National Club Pro Championship, he was confident he could win. But he didn't know what he'd have to go through to take home the $16,500 first prize. Watson, playing in a threesome ahead of leader veteran Sam Snead, dropped an 80-foot birdie putt on the 18th for a 69, and then Snead two-putted the same green, throwing them into a tie and forcing a sudden death playoff which Watson easily won.

"I was nervous but I was more nervous after it was over than when I was playing. After three rounds I was trying to make the top ten. After a good start today, I decided I could win," said Watson, who finished at 284.

In third at 286 was first round leader Bob Benson from Easton, Conn., followed at 288 by Ron Letellier of Cold Springs Harbor, N.Y.

The word Hell is derived from an Anglo-Saxon root meaning "to conceal" or "to cover."

CPA Develops Syllographic Typewriter—'Fast As Speech'

United Press International
Your old-fashioned typewriter comes back from the repairman and you type the first thing that comes to mind. Fifty-one keys hit the paper 51 times and with 15 spaces it comes out. "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

On Dothan L. Shelton's typewriter, the only one of its kind, you hit different keys and get the same words but it comes out on the paper a word at a time.

Shelton, a 72-year-old, Amarillo, Tex., certified public accountant, developed the typewriter after 40 years. He calls it the "syllographic typewriter" and claims that an experienced syllographic typist can bang out 200 words a minute.

"It's a system of writing where you type as fast as human speech and produce a transcript," Shelton said in an interview.

Shelton claims syllographic typing is as easy to learn as letter-at-a-time typing, but it probably is best to let him tell how his typewriter works:

"On the left side of the keyboard are the letters a, s, c, l, w, h, n and r.

"These are key letters. You have to write code letters to get the other 14 consonants. We use combinations of keys to write the other letters. These (on the left) are initial letters. These keys are capable of 255 combinations.

"With these 255 combinations, we write all of the initial letters, consonants that appear at the beginning of words, plus the letter a. What we do is use initial keys to write all initial consonants, a combinations and selected prefixes.

"Keys at the front are a, e, i, o, u. They are vowels and are capable of 127 combinations. They give all vowels and vowel combinations.

"On the right, you've got eight keys marked r, n, l, g, c, h, t, s, e, y. Leaving out e and y, the two keys on the far right, you have left eight keys for the final consonant. They are capable of 255 combinations. They write all of the final consonants, final consonant combinations and suffixes.

"We have talked about 25 keys. Those 25 keys are capable of more than 32 million combinations.

FAST TYPIST — Dothan L. Shelton, Amarillo certified public accountant, has developed a new typewriter. You hit different keys and get the same words, but it comes out on paper a word at a time. He calls it the "syllographic typewriter" and claims an experienced typist could bang out 200 words a minute.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrials appear likely to decline to at least the 620 to 630 range and possibly to 590 to 600 during the next two to three weeks, says Merkin & Co. The firm points out the rest of the market has outperformed the industrials recently, indicating a foundation may emerge to support an eventual intermediate rally.

"The next reaction down will likely reveal the inherent strength or weakness of the list and whether a large recovery can materialize," it says.

The Federal Reserve Board's less restrictive monetary policy will cause yields to fall on short-term notes and make common stocks more attractive, according to Wright Investors Service of Bridgeport, Conn. "During the last year or so, the rate of return on short-term interest bearing investments has been greater than the historic 9 1/2 per cent total return on common stocks," the firm observes. But it predicts "a bona fide bull market advance as the pendulum of investment preference swings back towards common stock investments."

Laidlaw-Coggeshall Inc. predicts total pre-tax corporate profits will rise by 16 per cent in 1974, while operating profits will be almost flat. The forecast for 1975 is for a 10 per cent decline in total pre-tax profits, the firm says, and a two to three per cent gain in operator profits.

NFU Releases Its Voting Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty members of the Senate including five up for reelection this fall have been given a "perfect voting record" rating by the National Farmers Union.

The ratings, published by the farm group in a special edition of its regular newsletter, were awarded on the basis of 17 Senate votes this year on issues ranging from emergency credit for cattlemen to food stamps for strikers.

Only a few of the 17 issues used in the ratings dealt exclusively with farm or rural problems. To get the NFU stamp of approval in the voting analysis, Senators had to vote in favor of measures including no-fault auto insurance, creation of a proposed Consumer Protection Agency, distribution of food stamps to otherwise eligible industrial strikers, increased minimum wages, federal aid to education and standby authority for mandatory energy conservation programs.

Only three Republicans — including one up for reelection this year — voted in line with NFU policy on all 17 votes selected by the organization for its Senate

Analysis. They were Jacob K. Javits, N.Y., who is campaigning for a new term and Sens. Clifford P. Case, N.J., and Robert T. Stafford, Vt., who are not up this year.

Democrats facing the voters this fall with records rated perfect on the NFU 1974 scale are Birch Bayh, Ind., Alan Cranston, Calif., Warren G. Magnuson, Wash., and Gaylord Nelson, Wis. Sen. Harold E. Hughes, Iowa, who decided to retire as his term expired this year, also was in the "perfect" group. Remaining Democratic Senators who collected 100 per cent NFU voting records but are not up for election this year were:

Floyd Haskell, Colo.; Dick Clark, Iowa; William D. Hathaway, Maine; Edmund S. Muskie, Maine; Edward M. Kennedy, Mass.; Philip A. Hart, Mich.; Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn.; Walter F. Mondale, Minn.; Quentin N. Burdick, N.D.; Frank E. Moss, Utah; Henry M. Jackson, Wash.; and Harrison A. Williams, N.J.

Several other Senators had close-to-perfect records on the NFU scale, marred only by a few absent or "wrong" votes. They included Republicans Milton R. Young, N.D. and Lowell P. Wicker, Conn., and Democrats George S. McGovern, S.D.; Joseph Biden, Del.; Mike Mansfield and Lee Metcalf, Mont.; John O. Pastore and Claiborne Pell, R.I.; Howard Metzenbaum, Ohio, and Adlai E. Stevenson, Ill.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29

Your birthday today: Broad responsibility and special strength to carry it come naturally this year as one project succeeds another (for some, the job may be the thing that changes). Self-improvement from organized study is favored; you will probably realize your greatest gains through this kind of effort. Today's natives express themselves candidly, are happiest working toward large goals.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Close associates prefer different courses of action, offer opposite opinions. You have enough work to do just balancing various demands.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Loved ones are a source of concern; bring in expert or professional advisers rather than trying to help them yourself. Avoid extremes in whatever you do.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Concentrate on matters you can do something about instead of things outside your grasp or jurisdiction. Traditional approaches to financial questions work best now.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Work through this slow-paced day deliberately so that stray weeds don't grow bigger. A problem is no more vexing than you permit it to be.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: People appear erratic to you, but you seem worse to them. Give everybody time to get out of your way. Look after your own welfare.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Flimsy, far-out schemes abound, all of which are "guaranteed" to bring miraculous results. Use your head, be responsible for what you agree upon.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Sit down early, make a list of desired happenings and results and assign priorities. Avoid distractions and sudden changes. Build up your program steadily.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Rules and regulations have reasons. Take them into account in today's complex activity. Find a way of expressing positive feelings for those you love.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Resist a fast sales pitch. If the buy was so terrific, it wouldn't be up for grabs. Be discreet both with finances and in romance.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Home conditions come to be very important. Don't let a temporary emergency rush you into any quick rearrangements. Later hours deserve thoughtful review and prayer.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Constant interruptions and petty annoyances lengthen the job and make it boring. Treat complaints lightly; stay aloof from legal entanglements.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Old obligations should be fulfilled as soon as you can get to them, hopefully today. Be patient in dealing with emotional people even though it means some sacrifice.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Flimsy, far-out schemes abound, all of which are "guaranteed" to bring miraculous results. Use your head, be responsible for what you agree upon.

"Let's go back to the basic structure of the language. If I write as fast as you talk, I write in syllables, because you talk in syllables.

"But a syllable is made up of a consonant and a vowel, or a vowel and a consonant, or consonant, vowel and consonant or combinations of vowels and consonants.

"If I can write syllables on a typewriter, I can write as fast as you talk. With initial consonants, medial vowels and final consonants, I can write all of the syllables in the English language.

"Eighty per cent of the average text in English, whether spoken or written, is comprised of monosyllables. There are 24, two-letter words, and two one letter words (a and i) that comprise 25 per cent of all written or spoken English.

"All of these monosyllables can be written on the syllographic keyboard except probably a half dozen. You write these with an extra stroke. Many two-syllable words can be written with a single stroke and probably 50, two-word phrases can be written with a single stroke."

The idea for a syllabic typewriter came to Shelton 40 years ago while he was trying to be a court reporter. He had to write the characters of the Gregg shorthand system over and over to develop manual dexterity.

Then the Stenotype machine came along. Shelton learned to operate it, but it vexed him to spend an hour taking testimony in code and three hours transcribing it.

He figured there must be a way to type it once in the courtroom and be done with it.

The outcome was the initial consonants, final consonants and vowel arrangement of the keyboard plus a "sequence register" that puts these letters — a group of them at a time — onto paper in the correct order when more than one key is pressed at once.

To test the accuracy of the arrangement, Shelton used a collegiate dictionary with 55,000 entries to analyze initial letter combinations. He used a rhyming dictionary that lists words alphabetically according to their last letters to analyze final letter combinations.

While Shelton's typewriter can make a courtroom transcript as fast as a witness or judge can talk, it is a bit noisy for courtroom decorum.

Shelton said there is a new thermal printing process he can adapt to his typewriter that will make it as quiet as a Stenotype. He also is redesigning the typewriter with solid state circuitry to make it smaller.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Injury Before Birth

Motorists who negligently knock down pedestrians would naturally expect to be held legally liable for the consequences. But suppose the pedestrian is an expectant mother. And suppose, as a result of the accident, her baby is born with some sort of defect. Could the motorist be held liable also for the injury to the child?

Traditionally the law refused to grant damages for prenatal injuries. Courts reasoned that until the actual moment of birth, the child was merely a part of its mother, with no independent existence on which to base a claim.

But in recent years the law's viewpoint has changed sharply. Today, almost everywhere, a child is entitled to collect damages for a prenatal injury that was inflicted negligently—at least, if it occurred during the later months of pregnancy.

As one court put it: "A child has a legal right to begin life with a sound mind and body."

Of course it is still necessary, in establishing the child's claim, to prove there was a causal connection between the accident and the disability. Consider this case:

A baby was born with a deformed foot after his mother had been hurt in an auto collision. But medical experts said there was no reliable way of tracing the deformity to the accident. Accordingly, a court ruled that there were no grounds for holding the other motorist liable.

Assuming that the child does have a legitimate claim, would it make any difference if the mother herself was partly to blame for the accident? That question arose in another auto case, in which the mother's own bad driving—as well as the other motorist's—had contributed to the collision.

But a court decided that the mother's negligence should not block her child's claim against the other motorist. The court thought it would be unfair, after giving the child a legal right, to take that right away because of somebody else's error.

Dear Consumer

What's Behind WIN?

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

You may already have seen people wearing red lapel buttons with three white letters: W-I-N. Have you wondered what this button means?

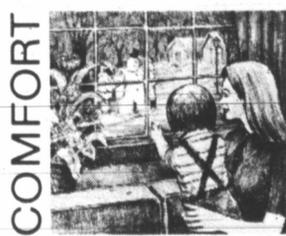

WIN stands for "Whip Inflation Now"—the slogan of a new volunteer campaign initiated by President Ford. The President has asked all consumers to sign up as "inflation fighters and energy savers." A coupon for volunteers to use has been appearing in newspapers throughout the country. Those who do volunteer will receive a WIN button, as well as a certificate and a variety of publications containing inflation-fighting tips.

Since WIN is a citizens' volunteer effort, it will be directed by a private citizens' organization, the Citizens Action Committee to Fight Inflation. President Ford has appointed consumer economics columnist Sylvia Porter as chairman and appointed these others as committee members:

- Mayor Joseph Alioto, San Francisco, U.S. Conference of Mayors;
- Arch N. Booth, Chamber of Commerce of the U.S.;
- Roger Fellows, University of Minnesota;
- David L. Hale, U.S. Jaycees;
- Lillie Herndon, National Congress of Parents and Teachers;
- Robert P. Keim, Advertising Council;
- Carroll E. Miller, General Federation of Women's Clubs;
- William J. Moyer, Central Sprinkler Co.;
- George Myers, Consumer Federation of America;
- Ralph Nader, consumer advocate;
- Leo Perlis, AFL-CIO;
- Gov. Calvin Rampton, Utah, National Governors Conference;
- Stanford Smith, American Newspaper Publishers Association;
- Frank Stanton, American National Red Cross;
- Vincent T. Wasilewski, National Association of Broadcasters;
- Roy Wilkins, NAACP;
- Douglas Woodruff, American Association of Retired Persons.

More committee members may be appointed later. Watch this newspaper for further announcements about WIN and the Citizens Action Committee to Fight Inflation and for information about how to involve yourself in the campaign.

EFFICIENCY

NATURAL ENERGY

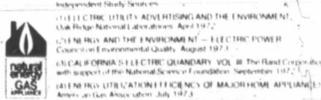

Gas Heating

Fresh, warm air gently circulating from floor to ceiling... so nice to take for granted. Comfort is clear gas heat.

And that dependable comfort is such a bargain here in West Texas. Though gas energy costs a little more than it used to, gas furnaces still cost less than one-third as much to operate as similar electric furnaces.

And at the same time you're saving money with gas heating, you can also have a warm feeling knowing that you're helping conserve energy. Gas heating uses only half as much energy as an electric system doing the same job.

Comfort, efficiency, and economy... you get it all with natural energy gas heating.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Navy and its big carriers have the directors of the Golden Gate Bridge fighting mad.

It seems the carriers always pass under the span during commuting hours, and this causes traffic jams along with many minor accidents and emotional upset for motorists.

Drivers slow up in order to get a peek at the vessels.

Bridge District General Manager Dale Luehring has repeatedly asked the Navy to change the scheduling of the carriers' arrival and departure.

"Each time we think we have an agreement with them, we find we don't," the exasperated Luehring said Friday.

The directors voted to authorize the general manager to go to the Navy's No. 1 man—the secretary of the Navy.

How did the Navy react to the directors' decision?

"The matter is under advisement," a 12th Naval District spokesman said.

That Pink Police Gazette And Billie Sol At Home?

International ROUSES POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Once it was "the bible of the barbershops," the original American tabloid, the Playboy of its day, the pink paper that showed girls in tights, that was too naughty for the parlor in the late 1800s but was read avidly by men waiting for a shave and haircut.

The Police Gazette began publication in 1845 as a crime-fighting newspaper. In 1870 Richard K. Fox bought it, converted to pink paper, kept the tabloid size and leaned heavily into the theatrical world, sports and crime. The Gazette pioneered in sports pages.

It went in for woodcuts, then photographs, starting in 1898 of the "Beef Trust" procession of buxom burlesque beauties, of Lillian Russell, Lillie Langtry, John L. Sullivan. It got boxing legalized in a court battle. It gave trophies for everything — medals to champion walkers, champion oyster openers — and its most famous award, the Diamond Belt for the world heavyweight champion boxer, was proudly worn by its first recipient, Sullivan.

On Sept. 30 the Gazette began its 130th year with the claim that it is the oldest continuous publication in America. On newsstands was the November issue — with a breakaway in format: It is no longer tabloid size. It's the magazine size of Time.

The reason for the change, according to Editor Nat K. Perlow, is to get it on the size — standardized racks of the supermarkets and convenience stores. What's inside? No change — theater, sports, crime.

Some headlines: "Why Billy Graham Must Quit — Or Else!"; "Muhammad Ali's $10 Million Secret"; "Inside the Black Mafia"; "A Sure Way to Build a Fortune" by J. Paul Getty; "An Intimate Talk with the World's Top Whore"; "The Machine that Talks to the Dead"; "How to Bet and Win on Pro Football"; and, ah yes, the cover story: "Raquel Welch: The Price I Paid for Stardom." Perlow says the Gazette pays $200 for a standard feature but will go into big money for an outstanding one.

Estes Raises Cattle On Brother's Ranch ABILENE, Tex. (UPI) — The name Billie Sol Estes meant easy money to the Texas farmers he swindled in the early 1960s.

Estes created a $150 million empire on paper and tried to corner the grain storage business in West Texas before bankruptcy and 29 federal indictments put him out of business and into federal prison on a 15-year sentence for swindling.

Estes' downfall came when he induced farmers in 11 West Texas counties to sign mortgages on nonexistent storage tanks for anhydrous ammonia, a fertilizer that became a household word in Texas when the indictments began piling up.

He sold the mortgages to finance companies for $24 million to finance his empire, the government charged.

But Estes vowed to change his ways when he entered prison.

"Business and money are no longer my gods," he said at the back gate of the Fort Leavenworth, Kan., prison. "I am not on anyone's side any more except God's. He works in strange ways."

Today Estes is at home quietly in Abilene, staying home with his wife attending church regularly and refusing to talk to newsmen.

"I have no comment to make to you, but thank you for calling," is his typical response to inquiries. The parole board also refuses to reveal information on his business activities.

He was paroled in six years on the condition that he avoid self-employment and promotional activities.

The man who a federal judge said committed as "brazen an exhibition of perjury as I have ever seen in the 40 years I have been going to the courtroom" spends some of his time raising cattle on his brother's ranch and has worked part time as a truck dispatcher for a butane company.

The former Estes home, a $150,000 mansion with a swimming pool, tennis courts and a barbecue pit big enough to roast 10 steers, is occupied by a West Texas farm family.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Ear Infections And Ear Aches

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way of telling the difference between an ear infection and an ear ache?

My son, 8, has had a number of ear infections diagnosed — most recently he had fluid in the ear and his hearing was temporarily impaired.

If the pain is very severe (no fever) but leaves after several hours with only the aid of home remedies, is it safe to assume that the remaining "clogged-up" feeling will be temporary and not the result of any damage?

We do not believe in running to the doctor for every minor ailment, but do not want to be neglectful.

— C.W.

First and foremost, an ear ache is a sign of trouble. Usually, but not always, it is due to ear infection. Fluid can come with the infection which puts pressure on the ear drum, bulging it and impairing hearing.

The pain in such a case can subside if the ear is lanced to let the fluid escape, or if the ear drum ruptures. (Less damage likely if in such cases the drum is lanced. Likewise relief is quicker than waiting for the drum to rupture.)

In the particular instance you describe, no, you can't assume that the clogged feeling will be temporary. It implies that something is still wrong — possibly scar formation, perhaps a plugged Eustachian tube, possibly even chronic adenoid or tonsil infection.

The use of heat (such as warm oil drops, or a heating pad) may help, but do not think of an ear ache as a minor ailment.

Only too often periodic ear aches are flare-ups of a smoldering infection that can fluctuate in intensity — but the chronic infection is far too likely to cause increasing impairment of hearing until the basic trouble is identified and treated effectively.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm terrified. I have a very regular menstrual period usually, once a month, but I haven't had one for six weeks.

I don't see how I could be pregnant. I haven't been near any males. I don't feel sick at all. How do you tell? Could it be something besides pregnancy? I haven't told anyone yet and I'm desperate. I'm 14 years old. — G.R.

Under the circumstances you can stop being so desperate. You haven't been near any males, so you aren't pregnant. At your age, unpredictable variations in menstrual rhythm are very common.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has a tattoo on his arm. Now he wishes he hadn't. Is there any way to have this removed? Several people have told us no but they may not know. — Mrs. J.L.

The soundest answer I can give to such a question is that you (or rather your grandson) consult a dermatologist (skin specialist) or possibly a plastic surgeon. It is entirely possible to remove or obliterate a good many tattoos, but a good deal depends on the depth of the tattoo and other technical considerations.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We are a cholesterol-conscious family. My wife uses no animal fats in cooking, and has a list of all polyunsaturated vegetable oils.

I noticed that olive oil is not in her list. Is olive oil different from other vegetable oils? — T.G.

Olive oil is a sort of in-between — not a completely unsaturated vegetable oil. It is called a monounsaturated type, in contrast to the polyunsaturated fatty acids found in other vegetable oils.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is also vital to human life. For this reason Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

BIOLOGY KITS NEW YORK (UPI) — Microscopy and biology are two pastimes usually combined in one hobby group. A microscope is used for biology, mineralogy, geology.

The most popular application of the microscope is in biology. Many microscope sets include slides, dissecting equipment and a collection of specimens to launch the budding biologist.

Pope Paul Urges Catholic Support

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI, warning "the content of the faith is either Catholic or it is not," closed the Fourth World Synod of Bishops over the weekend by reflecting ideas for the adaptation of the faith to different cultures and material progress.

"We could not allow false directions to be followed," he said.

Although the 77-year-old pontiff praised the month-long gathering of 209 bishops as "a clearly positive experience," he said "we would not be objective if we did not note that some points demand a refining."

Many bishops had suggested that human and spiritual liberation should be intertwined, and they also called for more flexibility in adapting the faith to meet local traditions and needs.

"It would be dangerous to speak of diversified theologies according to continents and cultures," the Pope said in a 35-minute address in Latin. "The content of the faith is either Catholic or it is not."

He also warned "human advancement, social progress etcetera are not to be excessively emphasized on a temporal level to the detriment of the essential meaning which evangelization has for the church of Christ — the announcement of the Good News."
