Ford Meets Criticism For Economic Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met with congressional leaders to answer criticism of his economic blueprint today amid indications he might compromise on a proposed tax cut—but refuses to give in to wage-price controls or gasoline rationing.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, W. Va., nonetheless emerged from the White House breakfast meeting saying the President may finally be forced to compromise both on taxes and rationing.

Byrd indicated that many members of the Democratic majority in Congress, some of whom were disappointed that Ford did not propose wage and price controls, also want fuel consumption curtailed more severely than the President suggested and the tax cut focused strictly on low and middle income families.

L. William Seidman, Ford's chief economic coordinator, meanwhile outlined on the NBC Today Show the items which Ford would and would not be willing to compromise in his program to combat recession and energy shortages.

Seidman said, "He (Ford) said yesterday that he is willing to compromise. I would say right at the moment that wage and price controls are a place where at this time he does not look favorably on compromise. On the other hand, if someone thinks that the cap ought to be a little higher or a little lower, or those kinds of things, I'm sure he would be willing to talk to them."

Emergency Act Raises State Employees Wages

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee today unanimously approved an emergency $100 million bill to give 140,000 state employees pay raises of up to 14.2 per cent.

The committee version of the bill would give employees making less than $10,500 a year a 14.2 per cent raise effective Feb. 1, and those making more than $10,500 a year a 10.5 per cent increase.

Clayton and his top lieutenants met for two hours Wednesday with opponents of the rules trying to placate some House liberals about Clayton's suggested changes.

Kay Fancher Selected As PIF President

Kay Fancher was elected president of the Pampa Industrial Foundation at a directors meeting yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Other officers elected for the new year are Harold Barrett, E.L. Green, Jr., and Fred Neslage, vice presidents; Aubrey Steele and Floyd Watson, treasurers; E.O. Wedgworth, executive vice president and secretary; Don Lane, legal counsel; and Bill Chambliss, auditor.

The emergency pay raise, recommended by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, would be in effect only until Aug. 31—the end of the current fiscal year. The bill by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, also increases insurance benefits and travel expenses for state workers.

The committee turned down suggestions that the pay raises be a flat $75 a month increase for all state workers, and chose instead to base the increases on a percentage of present salaries.

Speaker Bill Clayton, meanwhile, prepared for the first test of his House leadership — debate on proposed rules critics say would increase Clayton's power and make it easier for lobbyists to influence legislation.

Clayton planned to poll House members during a joint session and debate on an emergency unemployment compensation bill today to determine if he had the support for his rules revisions.

The unemployment legislation, cleared by a special House committee Wednesday, would make an additional $5 million in federal funds available to Texans who are out of work. The state has until Monday to pass the bill under terms of federal legislation authorizing the funds.

McKee said the new building will replace an inadequate building and assist in keeping up with the company's increased activity in the Pampa area.

The speaker said the informal discussions probably did little to settle questions some members have over the new rules proposals, which increase the number of committees from 21 to 26 and revise the manner in which the appropriations bill is written.

Clayton said he hoped the House can complete work on the rules by the end of the day so the House could adjourn for the weekend.

The lawmakers scheduled their second joint session in as many days today, this time to hear remarks by Bob Harrington, the Chaplain of Bourbon Street.

This is the second in a two-part series of Parent and Family Life Education Courses.

Parents are urged to attend the informative meeting.

Mrs. Daniel has recently returned from a four-day seminar in San Antonio.

Spy Director Reveals CIA Watched Citizens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA director William E. Colby today outlined again to Congress a series of controversial domestic activities conducted by the spy agency but asked for an understanding that some crucial operations require continuing secrecy.

Colby presented the same 45-page report which he delivered Wednesday to the intelligence subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee but with a new introduction.

Colby also stressed that the CIA is not adequately protected by the law with regard to disclosure of national security information.

Youth Employment Programs Viewed

Gray County Judge Don Cain attended a meeting of the Texas Panhandle Manpower Consortium in Amarillo Wednesday, to discuss a youth employment program.

Students were employed by the McLean School District, McLean Museum, White Deer Lands Museum, Boy Scouts of America, Day Care Center and Highland General Hospital.

Applicants are screened through the Texas Employment Commission in Pampa which also certifies that prospective job holders meet requirements of the guideline.

The Consortium is composed of county judges, commissioners and representatives of 22 counties and the City of Amarillo.

The Consortium has contracted with the Texas Panhandle Community Corporation to handle a job program under the Federal Department of Labor.

Judge Cain said programs during the past two years have provided summer jobs for youth meeting federal guideline requirements or job slots.

Senior citizen programs are currently under study, the judge stated, and will probably be instituted following scrutiny by the Department of Labor.

Another area of increasing the job market is a proposed plan by which cost of on-the-job training by private business is 50 percent reimbursed to participating businesses.

How many and what kind of jobs which will be available hinges on Department of Labor study.

The Texas Employment Commission in Gray County, teamed with the Community Action program centered in Amarillo, will be in charge of programs within the county.

Judge Cain said Gray County would not be financially responsible for any of the proposals discussed during the meeting Wednesday in Amarillo. Federal and state monies will be used in execution of the program, Cain added.

Bill McKee, Amarillo division manager for Pioneer's distribution system, said the $100,000 structure will provide modern office facilities and warehouse space for construction, maintenance and transmission department personnel.

Jersey Teen-Ager Kills Parents, Self

MOUNTAINSIDE, N.J. (UPI) — There were no screams. Neither victim had time. Police theorize Thomas Sanders Jr., a bank executive, was the first to die.

responsibility for the double murder and expressed sorrow—but it did not indicate a motive.

He was sitting at his dining room table working on papers about 9 p.m. when his 15-year-old son Gregg sneaked up behind him with an ax and struck him on the head three times. Police Chief Edward J. Mullin speculated today.

"If there was a problem, it was known only by the parents," County Attorney Peter A. McCord said. He said authorities did not find any indication of mental disorder in the youth's medical records.

But Sanders, 48, did not die at once.

Mullin said neighbors did not hear any unusual noise or screams.

The bodies of Sanders, who was a vice president of the First National City Bank of New York, and his wife, a teacher at the Community Presbyterian Church nursery school, were discovered early Wednesday.

The boy's body was found before midnight Tuesday at the base of the water tower, a quarter of a mile from the house. Police said the youth had slashed his wrist before jumping.

Gregg, an honor student, then climbed to the top of a nearby water tower and leaped 150 feet to his death.

Officials at the Pingry School in nearby Hillsdale, N.J., a private school, said Gregg was well liked by teachers and pupils.

A suicide note was found in the youth's upstairs bedroom. Police ruled the deaths murders-suicide, but said they did not know what motivated the boy to attack his parents.

The hand-written suicide note, addressed to whom it may concern, claimed

AMERICANS FRUSTRATED

Justice is Watergate aim

The Watergate affair regained top billing on front pages of the nation's newspapers with the conviction of four persons who were principal figures in the Nixon administration. Few Americans appear to believe, however, that the end of Watergate or the relentless combing of the nation's political habits is yet in sight.

John Mitchell, Robert Mardian, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, who were found guilty by a federal jury of conspiracy and obstruction of justice have indicated that they will appeal the ruling. That alone assures that the subject will be kept alive for at least a year. And every day's news turns over another Watergate rock to find an illegal campaign contribution, a new accusation, another difference between Congress and the administration or another hint from Special Prosecutor Henry Ruth that he has found something else to investigate.

Whether he has or not, Americans generally seem to believe that they have the big picture of Watergate and the related matters of corruption. We now know why the Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate Hotel was burglarized, why the administration wanted papers from a psychiatrist's office in Los Angeles, when the president learned about Watergate and what he did about it.

What Americans lack now is the feeling that justice is being served, despite the legal actions that have taken place in the last two and a half years.

Their unease over the course of events, we believe stems from many convictions, whether they are right or wrong. Many Americans, for example, are unhappy over the thought that former Vice President Spiro Agnew received only a judicial slap on the wrist — never mind that he had to be removed from office lest he become president. Americans are uneasy over the pardon granted to former President Richard Nixon — although polls make plain that most citizens do not want him punished by a prison term. Other frustrations of Americans include the failure of the courts to have Nixon testify because of his serious illness, Judge Sirica's high-handed handling of the recent prosecutions and even at the thought that those who are convicted are sent to minimum security prisons.

Under the circumstances we doubt that the convictions in Washington on New Year's day will allay public misgivings over Watergate justice. Indeed, we doubt that future investigations and court proceedings will greatly comfort the public.

Nevertheless, Mr. Ruth and the courts must continue their vigorous efforts to overturn the last rock because it is the next generation of Americans, not this one, that will render the final judgment on Watergate. Above all that judgment must be that justice was served.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Reagan And 'Iffy' Questions

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Consider if you will the plight of former Governor Ronald Reagan of California. At 63, with two terms as chief executive of the nation's largest state directly behind him, he is at one of those dangerous ages. Many corporations compel their top officers to retire at 65, and the prospects of spending one's golden years on a sumptuous ranch near Santa Barbara with a wife as charming as Nancy Reagan would be enough to persuade many men to accelerate the process.

On the other hand, many of the greatest public contributions of our time have been made by leaders older than Reagan is today. Churchill was 65 when he assumed the helm in Britain at the supreme crisis of World War II, and a dozen other illustrations of the point, from Adenauer and John XXIII to Golda Meir, spring easily to mind. American conservatism is not so rich in able spokesmen that it can easily spare Ronald Reagan, and his not a man to disregard what he perceives as a duty to his country. So Reagan has arranged not only to go on serving as a conservative spokesman but to "escalate the rhetoric," as they say. On January 20, he inaugurates a 5-minute commentary 5 days a week on a couple of hundred radio stations across the nation. And, for the first time since he was elected governor in 1966, he will be able to travel around the country making the speeches he knows how to deliver so well, without being accused of absenteeism by a hostile legislature.

The chances are, therefore, that Ronald Reagan will be making even more hay for the conservative cause in 1975, out of office, than he was able to make for it while he was in.

The trouble is that, by staying active on the national stage, Reagan unavoidably becomes a possible presidential contender in 1976 — either as a rival to Ford and Rockefeller for the Republican nomination, or just possibly on the ticket of a brand-new party. No careful observer of the political scene can afford to disregard Reagan's proven popularity with Republican and more generally with conservative voters, and they therefore do not dare to exclude him from their calculations, however innocent his own intentions may be.

Among those "careful observers" you may of course include President Ford. With his own popularity sagging in every poll, he cannot even assume that the GOP nomination is his for the asking. He may have managed to snooker Nelson Rockefeller by putting him in the Vice Presidency, but he hasn't snookered Reagan. And though Reagan yielded to Ford's plea and agreed to serve on the "blue-ribbon" commission to investigate the CIA, he has deftly sidestepped any other involvement with the wobbly Ford-Rockefeller administration.

But sidestepping Gerald Ford is one thing; sidestepping the press is something else again. Every time Ronald Reagan opens a closet door, another reporter falls out. And all of them want to know: Are you a candidate for the presidency in 1976?

As it happens, the answer to that question is easy: "No." But that merely brings on the next one: "Would you accept the Republican nomination (or the nomination of a new party) if it were offered to you?" This is what Franklin Roosevelt used to call an "iffy" question, and he always declined to answer them. But Ronald Reagan is less devious, and in any case not so ineffably presumptuous as to imply that he would decline such a call to duty if one were received (which, of course, it hasn't been). When he tries to explain this, however, he merely brings on the inevitable: "Does that mean you would accept?" — or, "Does that mean you would refuse?" Try answering either of those with a "yes" or a "no," and you will see how misleading headlines are born.

So, whether he likes it or not, Reagan is going to have to do a lot of broken-field running through the media this year. It may be, and probably ought to be, 1976 before we find out the answers to all these "iffy" questions.

EDUCATION IN AMERICA
Another 'Traditional' School Opens In N.C.

By MAX RAFFERTY
Q — "Are you familiar with the attached magazine story on the new Myers Park Optional Traditional School in Charlotte, N.C.? I think you have touched on this, but it still reinforces the thought that America cannot survive the onslaughts of communism under our present 'educational' system, developed and dictated by screwball 'progressive' educators and pseudo-federal judges." — G.V.L. Carrolton, Ala.

A — The new Myers Park school is one of several which have been set up recently to meet the growing demand for education in depth. The one I wrote about not too long ago was the John Marshall Fundamental School in Pasadena, Calif. Here, as at Myers Park, the children are taught good manners, patriotism and the three Rs. Grades are strictly defined, codes of deportment are posted in classrooms and report cards evaluate both effort and achievement. Like its Pasadena counterpart, Myers Park has hundreds more applicants than it can accommodate.

Nostalgia? No, just plain common sense.

Q — "I feel that your excellent column (on the need for high standards in the use and teaching of English) left out the two most important points:

"1 — It is an insult to these (inner-city and minority group) people to intimate that their intelligence cannot handle 'standard' English. The professor you criticized is intimating that they are too dumb before he even tries them out. Wouldn't your great-grandfather Barney (just off the boat) have been insulted as my grandfather Callahan would have been if his schoolmaster had said, 'Barney, you're too dumb to learn English the way we speak it in the United States, so we'll let you keep on speaking brogue to make it easy on you — and us!'"

"2 — If these young people can't read 'standard' English, how are they ever going to have the pleasure of reading Twain, Dickens, Homer, Poe, Wodehouse and Rafferty? Must we translate everything into 'dialect'? If so, I'll bet you anything the taxpayers will have to subsidize the whole mess." — Mrs. P.M., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A — Hey, that's pretty fast company you put me in. I feel like the mule whose owner entered him in the Kentucky Derby — he knew the mule couldn't win, but thought the animal would benefit from the association.

Q — "Here's a question I'll bet no one has asked you before: Who is your favorite newspaper columnist?" — B.D., Elyria, Ohio.

A — I can't narrow it down to one, but I can give you four whom I admire greatly and enjoy reading: Bill Buckley, Russell Kirk, John Chamberlain and Morrie Ryskind.

Q — "How come the NEA and the AFT are still clamoring for smaller class sizes as the best way to improve child learning? Aren't they convinced by the recent United Nations research study which proved that children learn just as well or better in big classes as they do in small ones?" — L.S., Burlington, Vt.

A — Maybe they just don't read this column.

A flood of facts from fish fanciers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Sorry for fish" asked if fish felt pain. She said she goes fishing with a friend who fillets the fish after it's caught, and she can't bear to watch because it's still alive and wiggling.

~ You told her that since fish have nervous systems, they must have feelings, and suggested that "she tell her impatient friend to wait until the fish dies before he fillets it."

Abby, you certainly don't know much about fish. What's so humane about letting a fish die gasping for breath out of water? An expert fisherman first cracks the fish on its head to stun it, then quickly cuts off the head with a sharp knife.

Dead fish decompose very quickly. (About 200 times faster than pork or beef.) The sooner after a fish is caught it is prepared for eating, the better it will taste. FISHWIFE

DEAR FISHWIFE: Since my piscatorial expertise is limited to suckers, that one fish letter prompted a flood of letters. Here's another:

DEAR ABBY: If fish feel pain, there must be a lot of suffering fish in Japan where we have made our home for the last four years.

The Japanese take great pride in serving whole fish with their bellies sliced in strips while the fish is still breathing! (This is called "sashimi.")

The diners exclaim with delight, "Oh, look how fresh the fish is!" Another Japanese delicacy is live trout, skewered and placed over burning coals. And this is done right before your eyes, Abby.

So tell "Sorry for fish" if she ever visits a fine Japanese restaurant, she had better bring her handkerchief.

ALSO SORRY FOR FISH

DEAR ABBY: The proper procedure for preparing freshly caught fish is as follows: First, rap the fish smartly on the head. This will kill it humanely and immediately. Then clean the fish at once, and either eat it or freeze it as soon as possible.

Some of my friends think I know what I am talking about because I am not only the president of the Rainbow chapter of Trout Unlimited in Anchorage, Alaska, but I was recently elected to the House of Representatives.

MIKE HERSHBERGER

DEAR MIKE: Your presidency of "Trout Unlimited" suggests that you know how to fish. Your election to the House suggests that you know the right bait, too. Congrats!

DEAR ABBY: Do fish feel pain? Only a fish knows for sure. But when it comes to preparing freshly caught fish, any fisherman worth his salt knows that fish should be killed as soon as it's caught. Then it should be either put under refrigeration or eaten. The flesh of fish starts to deteriorate the minute the fish is dead, and in a matter of hours it's not fit to eat. That's why fishermen put their catch on a stringer and back into the water until they are finished fishing.

With ice fishing it's different. The fish is tossed into a bucket of water to freeze quickly. However, when you take them home to clean, if you put them in lukewarm water to thaw before cleaning, they will "come back to life" and start swimming around again. This used to fascinate our children.

Bigger trucks needed?

The American Automobile Association, with the editorial support of a number of newspapers and broadcasters, has resisted successfully for six years efforts to increase truck weight limits on federal highways.

Now, spurred by the energy crisis, Congress has sent to President Ford a bill that would allow a 10 per cent increase in gross weight limits to 40 tons. In states where greater tonnage is permitted on state routes, the same maximum would apply to roads in the interstate system.

The safety implications have been well-documented. The per-mile accident fatality rate involving large trucks is nearly double that of all motor vehicles. An increase in size suggests an increase in hazard potential.

There is no question that increased truck weights will also accelerate highway deterioration with consequent construction costs at inflated rates.

Perhaps the increased cargo capacity balances the negative aspects of the expanded limits during a period of fuel shortages. The issue, however, was never debated properly in the circuitous route in which the legislation moved through House and Senate.

The provision was added to the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1974 in a conference committee which reconciled differences in appropriations between House and Senate versions and extended the 55-miles-per-hour speed limit.

The president should veto the measure and the change in truck size should be considered solely on its uncertain merits.

AT ANIMAL SHELTER

Dogs Don't Enjoy Incarceration

By PAUL SIMS
 Nobody likes to go to jail, and the thought of winding up in the clink as an innocent victim of circumstances is particularly irksome. And if a dog had the brains of a human, he'd likely bite the heck out of the owner who was responsible for getting the canine locked up in one of the Pampa Animal Shelter's wire cages. That is, if the dog is lucky enough to get out.

Chances are he won't get out, and old Bowser, because of his irresponsible master, is, instead, put to sleep.

Irresponsible? You bet.

CHECKING DOGS — Animal Control Warden Don Armstrong checks a couple of new additions to the Pampa Animal Shelter. He and his assistant, Paul Ortega, handle up to 40 dogs daily at the Hobart Street Park facility. (Photo by Jim Williams)

A city ordinance prohibits any dog from running loose, and such a dog can result in a stiff fine for the owner.

"We have a leash law," Animal Control Warden Don Armstrong said. "Any dog running at large can be picked up."

"If he can't be picked up, we can file on the owner for letting the dog run at large. It's up to a 200 dollar fine. That's the last resort."

If Armstrong or Paul Ortega, the other warden working with the Pampa Police Department, capture a dog, it is taken to the Animal Control Shelter, located at Hobart Street Park. A record is made of the dog, including the time and place of its capture.

The dog can legally be put to sleep 72 hours after capture but five days is the customary boarding time. Armstrong and Ortega take care of anywhere between one and 40 dogs daily, and 15 to 20, on the average, are destroyed each week.

The animal shelter isn't uninhabitable, but the inmates seem to mind the absence of an open place to exercise and the other comforts of home.

"We probably need more facilities where you wouldn't have to put so many dogs together," Armstrong said.

The warden cites lack of funds as the reason for no expansion.

"It usually costs about 60 dollars a month to feed the dogs. They pay our salaries and for the truck, gasoline and labor and gas to heat the place, and water. It's funded through the police department."

Acting Police Chief George Wallace realizes the pound is often too small to accommodate satisfactorily a large number of canines. But Wallace is pleased with the facility in comparison to the old pound, which was part of the city's sanitation landfill up until two years ago.

"The old facility was in bad shape. Compared to that one, this one looks like a new hotel...I've looked at pounds in quite a few places. For a town our size and for the number of animals we handle, we have a pretty nice facility," Wallace said.

Pleas, sickness and other discomforts that abound when several dogs are locked up in a small area together are present in the city pound. Getting destroyed is often the most humane treatment the animal can receive.

Getting out is more humane—Auctions are held at 1:30 p.m. Mondays and Fridays at the pound, although few people turn out to bid on a dog.

The most humane thing of all is not getting placed in an animal-control shelter. That's where owners come in.

The Halston collection featured a revival of the miniskirt, called the skimp. But there, skimping ran out, giving way to the outside handbag shown throughout the collection. This was a huge, loose pouch, roomy enough to hold a weekend of clothes. Bobby Breslau created the shoulder bags for the Halston show.

AWAITING FATE — Only young puppies, these dogs have been placed in the Pampa Animal Shelter, where they are kept for three to five days before they are destroyed. Public auctions are held Mondays and Fridays at the pound, but few dogs are sold. (Photo by Jim Williams)

Three Suspects Facing Capital Murder Charge

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)— Three men charged with the murder of an elderly West Texas couple may be charged with capital murder if an investigation proves the suspects set out to rob the couple, according to a district attorney.

"The murder complaints already recorded may be refiled after the investigation is completed," Criminal District Attorney Alton R. Griffin said Wednesday.

"If evidence of robbery is established, the charges could make alleged offenses of capital murder," he said. Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said robbery apparently was the motive for the shootings, but he also said the his office was continuing its investigation.

Under the new Texas penal code, murder committed during an attempted robbery could come under a capital murder clause carrying the death penalty.

Sheriff deputies, joined by state police and Texas Rangers, arrested Raymond Sanders, 29, of Abernathy, Tex., late Tuesday and transferred him to Lubbock. Leroy Wayne Green, 18, of Lubbock and Robert Lee White, 28, of Lubbock were arrested early Wednesday. The three were charged with murder before Justice of the Peace F. H. Bolen who set bonds of $100,000 each.

Authorities said Mrs. McKay was shot at close range behind her right ear and McKay was shot behind his left ear and in the back.

Capt. Charlie Montgomery, head of the sheriff's criminal investigation division, said a shotgun was confiscated at a farm residence where Sanders was arrested.

Hightower Voices Economy Support

Congressman Jack Hightower today voiced strong support on the President's determination to change the direction on the nation's economy.

"I agree that decisive and immediate action must be taken by the White House and the Congress to accomplish this objective," the 13th District congressman said.

"While I hope to be supporting of the President's overall program, each proposal must be examined carefully when it comes before the Congress."

"I hope the Congress will take the lead in encouraging optimism on the part of the people, as well as the business interests of the nation."

"We have the resources and we should have the commitment to solve the problems that now face the nation. It will be necessary for the people to convert the President's 'bad news' into 'good news.' It is now important for the Congress, as well as the President, to provide positive results."

Congressman Hightower stated further: "I am anxious to see the specific proposals which will be sent to the Congress by the President, particularly those designed to solve the critical unemployment problem. I know we must provide the opportunity for everyone physically capable of working to find gainful employment."

"I was glad to hear the President say that he will encourage domestic exploration and production of oil and gas. This is certainly a new direction and one that has been postponed for too long."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I've reaped so much gold from your column, that I figured it is about time I repaid you with a few small nuggets.

Here's how I keep a small fringe of my sanity with two small children and one tiny bathroom:

You know how kiddies love playing with toys in the tub. Well, to keep them in order (the toys, I mean) I bought a small plastic paint pail from the hardware store and punched holes in the bottom.

I got a three-foot piece of twine and tied it to the towel bar on the wall at the end of the tub. The other end of the twine I tied on the handle of the paint pail.

The tub toys can be stored in this pail and the water from the toys will drain down through the holes that were punched through the bottom.

The kids love piling all their toys into the pail at the end of their bath.

The pail can also be easily moved by sliding it along the towel bar when you are cleaning the tub.

Grace D. Stafford

And yours is the kind of letter that makes it all worthwhile. Bless you and your little kiddies.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever tried to put a pattern back into an envelope and found that it is twice as thick as it is supposed to be.

Try this! Stack the pieces, starting with the largest on the bottom, fold them the size of the envelope. The magic is to press with a warm iron.

Neat as new and it slips right into the package without refusing to fit.

Nancy Kelehar

Nancy, you're a peach! How many times I have fought with those patterns and they always won. Not any more.

Heloise

Planting For Color Is Garden Club Topic

Planting for color was the topic of a panel discussion at a recent meeting of the Pampa Garden Club. Mrs. H.H. Boynton, moderator, listed the moon dates for planting spring bulbs as Jan. 15, 17, 25, 27 and Feb. 12, 13. She advised planting bulbs in groupings for a better color effect.

January is also the month for pruning trees. New plants may be started from old cuttings, as geraniums, the first of February. As seed catalogues are arriving this month, this is the time to plant for garden color and interest. Mrs. Boynton stated. She urged gardeners to plant something new this spring for a special club showing this fall.

Mrs. Boynton plants seeds early in egg cartons in a mixture of one-third compost, one-third sand, and one-third vermiculite. After two or three leaves have formed the plants should be transferred to the next size of pot.

Panel members included Mrs. Lee Moore who listed flowers and shrubs for a white color effect. Mrs. Georgia Mack for pink, and Mrs. A.B. Cross for blue. Mrs. Cross also gave tips on a Japanese design for the corner of a yard to achieve tranquility, marking the traditional Japanese points of interest, heaven, man, and earth, with statues and rocks.

Hostesses for the meeting were Meses Joe Curtis, Carlton Freeman, and Rue Hestand.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Jan. 20, 9:15 a.m. Flame Room, and will feature a program on gardens in Europe, Iran, and wildlife of Australia.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Neal A. Webb, 418 Naida, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. L.A. Wells and the late Mr. L.A. Wells of Dallas.

THE CEREMONY The Rev. H.M. Veach officiated for the double-ring ceremony before a background of two basket arrangements of blue carnations and white gladioli.

Barbara Veach, organist, played "Always," "More," and "The Bridal Chorus." She also played the recessional hymn, "Take the Name of Jesus With You." Pianist, Rhonda Culwell, played the theme from "Love Story."

THE BRIDE

The bride was given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I avowal." She was attired in a formal gown of lace and bridal satin. The empire lace bodice was styled with a high neckline and long full sleeves ending in wide cuffs at the wrists. The floor length skirt was fashioned with a chapel-length train, highlighted with organza pleats at the hemline.

Her two-tiered mantilla of illusion, edged with lace and seed pearls, fell from a coil of seed pearls, and she carried a white Bible, topped with an orchid, white and blue carnations and baby's breath. She carried out the traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue.

ATTENDANTS

Dottie Shea, Dallas, was maid of honor wearing a floor length royal blue velvet dress trimmed in white. Her flowers were blue and white carnations and baby's breath tied with white ribbon streamers. Randy Farquhar, Dallas, served as best man and Lee Cox and Jackson Webb, both of Pampa, seated wedding guests.

MR. AND MRS. JEFFREY L. WELLS ...nee Miss Janetta Webb

Flower girl was Kristy Duenkel, niece of the bride, attired in a long, royal blue velvet dress trimmed in white lace. She carried a white basket of blue and white petals tied with blue ribbon streamer.

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a white smock blouse and a floor length blue skirt.

The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace blouse and floor length green velvet skirt.

Both wore orchid corsages.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table, covered with a white satin cloth, held the three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and an arrangement of blue and white flowers made by the bride's brother-in-law, Terry Duenkel. The bridegroom's serving table, covered with a royal blue cloth, held the spice cake, made by the bride's grandmother.

Pearl Cox served cake and Anita Cox and Carol Cook assisted at the punch bowl and coffee service. Registering guests was Jequita Duenkel, sister of the bride. Assisting with houseparty duties was Rhonda Culwell.

For the ski-trip to Cloudcroft, N.M., the bride traveled in a beige knit suit and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Dallas.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is presently employed as a computer operator at Baylor University Medical Center.

The bridegroom plans to attend the University of Texas at Arlington where he will study accounting. He attended El Centro College in Dallas where he was a member of the Dean's Honor List two semesters. He is presently employed at Jones - Blair Paint Co., in Dallas.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

A recent Dallas shower was hosted by Meses. Anne Stewart, Gene Alvold and Marie Dodson.

A bridal shower was held recently in the Flame Room, Pioneer Gas Building hosted by Brenda Wheat.

The bridegroom's mother hosted a rehearsal dinner at Harvester Bar BQ.

FASHIONS

Colorful exercise clothes are being sold in hosiery departments for the body-conscious, physically fit female. Fashionable tights and leotards "give" with the action of the wearer to conform to any body contortion, notes Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The Rhode Island State House, boasting the second largest unsupported marble dome in the world, was first floodlighted on Armistice night, Nov. 11, 1931.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

In a duplicate game on Sunday afternoon this past fall, one of the participants was wearing a hearing aid. During the second round of play, he became the dummy. He had difficulty hearing what card his partner (his wife) was calling for. Finally she became annoyed, and said: "If you'd take that thing out of your ear maybe you could hear me."

One of the opponents was irked with the way a man with hearing difficulties was being treated. He was about to say something when the wife explained: "He's listening to the Washington Redskins football game on a transistor radio he has in his pocket. I had to agree to this to get him to play bridge this afternoon."

In today's deal, dummy's play of the cards was beyond reproach, but the same could not be said for declarer's play. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Upon winning the opening lead with the board's ace of spades, declarer cashed the ace and nine of clubs, East discarding a spade on the latter lead. Then came a diamond to South's ace — and West discarded a spade. While declarer was able to get to dummy via the heart ace to finesse once against East's diamond jack, all he could make were four diamond tricks. Thus he incurred a needless defeat at his grand slam contract.

From the beginning, it should have been apparent to declarer that he needed five diamond tricks to bring home his contract; and the only thing that could hurt him would be a bad break in diamonds. As is evident, the bad break was there — but it could have been overcome. After winning the opening spade lead, a diamond should have been led to South's ace. When West would fail to follow suit, dummy would be entered via the club ace. Another diamond would then be led, and the finesse would be taken against East's jack. Entering dummy again via the club nine, a second finesse would be taken against the jack. Declarer would now have his grand slam.

As declarer actually played the hand, he deprived himself of a club entry to dummy, an entry that was vitally needed to take two diamond finesses.

In early England, plates were used only by royalty. Peasants were served food on large wedges of stale bread and after dining they would often eat their "plate."

Easy Recipes With Foreign Flair

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
THE SPANISH have a down-to-earth approach to food. As a result, many of their most famous recipes are "del pueblo" (food of the people). Today's selections, only a sampling of many delicious flavors of Spain, bring the taste of Don Quixote's land to the dinner table.

When they think of soup, most people think of beef or chicken. The Spaniards think of fish—and how wise they are. Nothing beats a fish soup, such as this one, on a cold day. Leeks impart a very special flavor indeed to:

SPANISH FISH SOUP
1/4 cup olive oil
2 medium onions, sliced
2 leeks, diced
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 medium carrots, diced
1/4 cup parsley, chopped
2 pounds mixed haddock, bass or other fish, cut in thick slices
3 large tomatoes, quartered
Boiling water
Salt and pepper
6 slices French bread

In soup pot, heat oil; sauté onions, leeks, garlic, carrots and parsley until tender but not brown. Tie fish in cheesecloth and add with tomatoes and boiling water to cover (about 2 quarts). Season with salt and pepper. Simmer, covered, for 30 minutes until fish is cooked but still firm. Remove fish, removing cheesecloth and discarding skin and bones. Cut into bite-size pieces. Meanwhile, let soup simmer for 30 minutes. Cube bread and arrange in flameproof casserole. Strain soup over bread; bring to a simmer. Add fish; simmer 5 minutes more.

Serves 6.
Spain's most famous dish, Paella, is made in many ways. This version substitutes frozen cod for the very expensive lobster.

PAELLA
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1/2 pound frozen cleaned shrimp, thawed
1 pound frozen cod filets, thawed, cut into 1-inch cubes
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces cups rice (not precooked variety)
6 tablespoons corn oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 bay leaf, broken
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon saffron threads, crushed
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) minced clams
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1/4 cup dry sherry
1 cup frozen green peas, thawed
4 Italian sausages or chorizos, cooked, drained, sliced diagonally

Stir together garlic, salt and oregano. Sprinkle evenly over shrimp, cod, chicken and rice. Heat 2 tablespoons of the corn oil in large skillet over medium high heat. Add shrimp and cook 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from skillet. Add cod, tossing to sear on all sides. Remove from skillet. Add 2 more tablespoons corn oil. Heat, add chicken and cook to brown on all sides, turning occasionally, about 15 minutes. Remove from skillet.

Add remaining corn oil, rice, onion, bay leaf and saffron; sauté until onion is golden and tender. Drain clams and tomatoes, reserving liquid. Add water to make 2 cups. Add liquid and sherry to skillet. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat; toss in clams and peas.

Turn rice mixture into large flat baking dish or paella pan. Arrange shrimp, cod, chicken, tomatoes and sausage on rice. Cover and bake in 400 F. oven 25 minutes or until chicken is tender and liquid is absorbed. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Lemon rind flavors cookie twists that are a simple yet perfect Spanish party dessert:
LEMON GALLETOS
(Cookie Twists)

1 cup cornstarch
1 cup unsifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup margarine
1 cup sugar, divided
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/4 cup milk

Grease 2 cookie sheets. Stir together cornstarch, flour and salt.

On medium speed of mixer beat margarine and 1/2 cup sugar; add eggs and beat well.

Beat in flour mixture and lemon rind. Chill about 1 hour. On lightly floured board, using approximately 2 tablespoons dough for each, shape into ropes 6 inches long. Fold in half and twist halves around each other. Place on prepared cookie sheets.

Mix together milk and remaining 1/2 cup sugar. Brush top of cookies with milk mixture. Bake in 350 F. oven 20 minutes or until golden brown. Makes about 1 1/2 dozen.

'Green Up' For The New Year

COLLEGE STATION — A refreshing green salad makes a good change from holiday fare. one foods and nutrition specialist noted this week.

Salads are a pleasant way of getting essential vitamins and minerals. They're easy to prepare and help save on the food budget. Marilyn Haggard, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System, said.

Also, leftover meats added to an ordinary salad make it even fancier and more nutritious, she reminded.

The specialist pointed out that in selecting greens, consumers should remember these guidelines.

- Choose only crisp, tender greens.
- Remove wilted or bruised sections immediately.
- Wash greens thoroughly in lukewarm water, drain in salad basket, on a wire rack or paper towels, or dry them in a soft towel.
- Store in a vegetable crisper or plastic bag in refrigerator.
- Store watercress and parsley in a covered jar to prevent bruising.

Fire deaths down in '74

BOSTON, Mass. — Fire claimed approximately 11,600 lives in the United States during 1974, according to an estimate by the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA). This is about 100 fewer deaths than the number reported for 1973. — CNS

Bell Used Dossiers To Compel City Councilmen, Official Says

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. compiled dossiers on Austin and San Antonio city councilmen and used the dossiers to pressure city officials into granting the utility company rate increases, according to a sworn statement.

The statement, filed Wednesday in federal court, also said Bell officials discussed wiretapping the phones of a competing firm to learn how it was financed and once disrupted a radio talk program which featured an official from a competing firm.

The statement also said Bell tapped the phones of its own employees for disciplinary purposes.

The statement was given by James Ashley, a fired Bell official who has filed a $29 million libel and slander suit against the giant utility company. The statement was in the form of a 149-page deposition given in connection with an antitrust suit filed against Bell by the now defunct San Antonio Telephone Co. and several other small telephone equipment firms.

Ashley gave the deposition last week Hubert Green, a Bell attorney, was present when Ashley gave his statement and swore to its authenticity.

Ashley said he once asked for and received from the Bell security force dossiers on city councilmen in Austin and San Antonio for use in Bell rate hike requests.

He said the dossiers included "a complete profile on these people as to what they were like — what their financial circumstances were like, or how — any information that might be helpful in applying pressure or going to people who could wield influence with them, obtaining any information that would be helpful and successful in negotiating with them on rate increases."

Ashley said the telephone company often used wiretaps as a means of disciplining its own employees. He said this practice was used before he came to San Antonio.

"Well, I was in charge of security as general staff manager in St. Louis and there were several instances where I was told by security subordinates that they had, in fact, tapped the telephones of subordinate employees and determined meeting places, times, motels and etc. for certain individuals that were having clandestine meetings and etc. They used this information gathering to obtain evidence to dismiss discipline and etc."

Ashley said during a meeting two years ago of 10 Bell department heads, H.L. Hudson, Bell's marketing manager for San Antonio, suggested Santel's phones be tapped to learn how it was financed.

"The point was raised as to whether we should not utilize every means at our disposal to find out how they were financed and etc., up to and including wiretapping," said Ashley, who was fired from his $55,000 a year commercial manager's job Nov. 1.

Ashley said the late T. O. Gravitt, who was Bell's general manager in San Antonio at the time, was against wiretapping Santel but later agreed to talk with Hudson about it.

Gravitt, later elevated to general manager of the Texas Bell operations, committed suicide in Dallas in October during an internal investigation by the telephone company of Gravitt and Ashley.

Gravitt's survivors and Ashley have sued Southwestern Bell in state court charging defamation, libel and slander.

Ashley said "I don't have any personal knowledge" of telephones of Santel officials ever were tapped, but he said Hudson studied long distance tickets of the firm trying to discover who the financiers were.

Widow's Pension Approved

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The Louisiana House of Representatives has voted unanimously to continue paying the $60 a month pension to the last widow of a Louisiana resident who fought in the Civil War.

A special bill covering the pension was introduced and passed Wednesday. The bill was necessary because of the transition to the new state constitution. The old constitution contained a section establishing the pension provision; but it was deleted from the new charter which took effect Jan. 1.

State officials said Mrs. Jerry R. Traylor, 98, of Beaumont, Tex., was the only woman still eligible to receive the pension.

Parks Attendance Dropping

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The National Park Service regional headquarters said today that visitation in 1974 at 33 park service sites in its six-state area was 6.2 per cent below the 1973 attendance.

Park service regional director Joseph C. Rumburg, Jr., said that the drop was "probably in response to the energy shortages and... economic restraints."

The six-state area includes Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and portions of Arizona on the Navajo reservation. Total attendance for 1974 in the region was 10.7 million, Rumburg said. That figure compares with 11.4 million for 1973 and 11.5 million for 1972.

Rumburg said that it appears visitors to national parks are staying longer and making "more in depth use of the National Park System."

"Instead of bragging about how many parks they saw, these people are stopping and looking closely and discovering that a quality park experience comes from close inspection," Rumburg said. He also said there was evidence that visitors are traveling to park service areas closer to home and are stopping at the lesser known parks that were being bypassed before in the rush to the big, famous and overcrowded parks such as Yellowstone.

Texas led the other states in the region in attendance at its national park sites. The park service said 4.2 million persons visited the 10 Texas areas in 1974, compared to 4.5 million in 1973.

Attendance at park service areas in New Mexico dropped from 1.9 million in 1973 to 1.6 million in 1974, the park service statistics shows.

He Fights Inflation With Hamburgers

ENERGY, Ill. (UPI) — President Ford didn't have to tell John "Sollie" Nesler to "Whip Inflation Now."

Fifteen cents will get you a hamburger with mustard, onion and pickle at Nesler's Polar Whip restaurant in this village south of Herrin, deep in Southern Illinois.

Also, a double hamburger at the Polar Whip costs 20 cents, a cheeseburger goes for 25 cents and a double cheeseburger for 30. Fish, barbecue and ham sandwiches sell for 50 cents.

Nesler has been battling prices to a fare-thee-well since the Great Depression days. Nowadays, he sometimes tells customers, "I think I'm fighting a losing battle."

Nesler, 65, has spent 38 years in the burger business, most of them around Herrin.

"I depend on volume," he said. "When times get tough and people are laid off, I don't have to sweat like the guys who sell hamburgers for 60 or 70 cents. Besides, I don't like to stand around looking out the window half the time."

Nesler readily admits his burger is a mixture of ground beef and cereal.

"The customer knows it, but he's getting a tasty sandwich," he said. "And it's the only chance for some large families to eat out."

He said it is not uncommon for some families to order 20 to 25 at a time and a Herrin high school once ordered 300.

"It stands to reason you can't sell an all-beef hamburger for 15 cents with hamburger going for 70 cents a pound," Nesler said. "I remember back in the depression days when you could buy three pounds of ground meat for a quarter."

Nesler and his late brother-in-law owned Wimpy's Place in Herrin in 1931, but Nesler sold out when he entered the service in 1943.

When he got out two years later, he tried other work, "but I always had an urge to go back selling hamburgers."

He started in again in 1949, bought the Energy property as a sideline, put in a miniature golf course with his son in charge, and it made enough to put the youth through college. Nesler brought his hamburgers to Energy six years ago.

"I own the property and my overhead is low," he said. "My wife, Helen, helped me for years until her health got bad."

Mrs. Nell McSpadden has cooked for him about 16 years now. Nesler takes the orders and handles the cash register.

"When prices went up, I raised barbeques from 45 to 50 cents to keep from raising my hamburger prices," Nesler said. "I've always believed in low prices."

Nesler held the line on 10-cent hamburgers from 1949 until 1974, then upped them a nickel.

WORLD OF MUSIC

Imagination brings Blue Swede success

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The Blue Swede have done it again with a knockout album that features their hit single, "Hooked on a Feeling." Imagination is the key to the success of this super group. Who would have thought to begin and end "Hooked on a Feeling" with that crazy African chant — if not for the Swede?

The other cuts on this EMI LP are equally good: "Pine-wood Rally," "Silly Milly," "Destiny," "Working in the Coal Mine." ... A really solid selection. England, which has had a monopoly on musical imports to America in recent years, had best watch out for the Swedes.

Los Indios Tabajaras are two incredibly talented Brazilian brothers who found their first guitar on a jungle path near their home. Their real names are Natalicio and Antenor Lima, and to hear their guitar magic is to listen to genius at work.

On a new album for RCA the brothers play classical compositions ranging from Chopin's "Valse in A-Flat" to Joaquin Malats' "Serenata Espanol." "The brothers wanted a guitar that could play all the notes of a piano — so they built it themselves. They are self-taught musicians; natural artists of their stature need no teachers.

The Moody Blues recorded some of the most listenable and hauntingly beautiful rock music of the late 1960s. Now comes Renaissance which reminds one of the Moodies because its music has an ethereal quality, both lyrically and musically, which sets it apart from other hard or soft rock groups.

More Mr. Nice Guy," and "Billion Dollar Babies," to name a few. This is a great package of hits from a group that seems to get better musically and wrier visually with each outing.

But what really sets Renaissance apart from other groups is the high, misty voice of lead singer Annie Haslam. Ms. Haslam's vocals combined with the excellent keyboard work of John Tout and the acoustic guitar playing of Michael Dunford makes "Turn Of The Cards" on Sire Records something worth listening to. The harmonies are very good on every cut and enhance the musicianship which is also excellent. In all, "Turn Of The Cards" is a very impressive debut for Renaissance.

It is unlikely that many pop stations will play their music because most of the cuts are between six and nine minutes, but FM stations should find the music of Renaissance ... well, a ... renaissance in rock.

If you only buy one album each year it should be a great one. And if you're looking for one that has some of the best rock music around then give a listen to "Alice Cooper's Greatest Hits," on the Warner Bros. label. In spite of Alice's visual "uniqueness" he and his band put out a fantastic sound.

This LP has all of Alice's best from "I'm Eighteen" to "Muscle of Love." In between are "Desperado," "Under My Wheels," "Elected," "No

BACK TO COLLEGE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Stage and screen star Howard Da Silva will join the Queensborough Community College's Professional Theatre in Residence for the coming season and will play the leading role in Bertold Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle," opening Jan. 31. Television In Review

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgium is a television programmer's nightmare. It is a multi-lingual televisioners dream.

Belgium has two state-subsidized television channels — one in French and the other in Flemish.

But a Belgian viewer, depending on where he lives, can tune in to as many as 12 other television stations broadcasting from neighboring countries.

Most of the capital is served by a cable distribution network that offers the two Belgian stations plus three French, two Dutch, three German and a single Luxembourg station. In the North Sea town of Ostende, just across the channel from Britain, viewers have a choice of all those and the three British channels as well.

In Belgium, most color television sets are equipped to handle both the major television broadcasting systems — the West German PAL and the French-developed SECAM.

"In this situation, its no wonder Belgian television has a slightly parochial air," explains Rene Wangerme, director of the French-speaking half of Belgium's radio and television service.

"We can't hope to compete with the commercial networks in neighboring countries in terms of glossy, independent productions," he said.

"I see our role as one of providing the local information and comment the viewers won't find elsewhere."

Both Belgian television stations are run by state-appointed boards spending money raised from an annual $75 license fee.

Neither channel carries advertising during its average five hours of broadcasting per day.

At one time the cable distribution company piping foreign stations into Brussels homes was obliged to keep out every commercial, but this was dropped four years ago. Now advertising carried on Luxembourg, Dutch or French channels contains direct appeals to Belgian viewers.

The general standard of home-produced television is a direct reflection of the limited budgets available.

Wangerme agrees that some of his channels' output is simply televisual radio. Like a recent series of discussion programs on Belgium and its former colony the Zaire, which presented a total nine hours of headshots of men talking.

But he presents some interesting programs co-produced with other stations also lacking extensive resources.

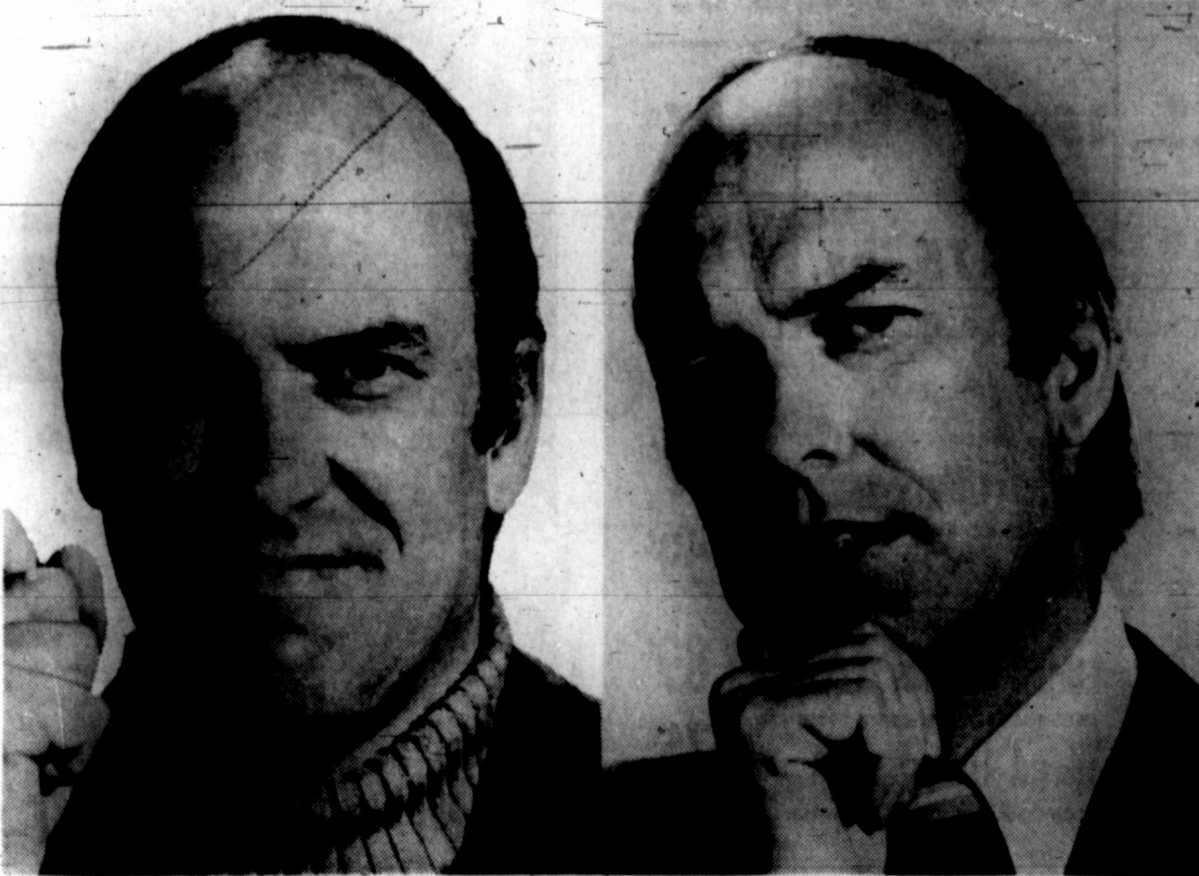

One such was a serial dramatization of the early days of flying called The Daisy Trimmers, which depicted Wilbur and Orville Wright as surly French-speakers unwilling to share their secrets with a French fellow-aviator.

Another was a serialization of the adventures of a 16th century French rebel called Mandrin, filmed in Yugoslavia with a mixed French, German, Yugoslav and Belgian cast.

Apart from these the daily fare is a mixture of dubbed American series (The Virginian speaking Parisian-accented French), subtitled films and the locally produced news and documentary shows.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the overall list is now undergoing an intermediate rise, the technical indicators are beginning to flash some warning signs that a minor top may be approaching, says Merkin & Co. Many stocks still have room to gain additional strength before meeting resistance, the firm says, "but the risks from this point are not as attractive as they were when the industrials were below 600." The current bounce could move irregularly higher for the next few weeks, it adds.

"We expect the early part of this year to be punctuated by a series of rallies and reactions," with a sustainable uptrend scheduled to begin somewhere around the end of the first quarter," says the Predictor. The West

Hartford, Conn. firm notes trading opportunities are developing. "Any reactions should be considered opportunities to accumulate positions in favored issue," it says.

"All three (Dow-Jones) averages already have sold notably higher in January than at any time in December, which traditionally is a good omen about the subsequent trend in any January, even if not an infallible indication," according to Thomson & McKinnon Auchinclos Kohlmeyer Inc. But the firm says it doubts that the market is discounting better things to come. "A high indefinite percentage of this recovery is nothing more than a typical year-end snapback recovery, a recovery more violent because of the downward violence which preceded it," the firm adds.

'Carthage Must Be Destroyed'

By ARCH BOOTH
U.S. C-C President
WASHINGTON — Cato the Elder, a crusty old Roman Senator, so feared, and despised Rome's ancient enemy Carthage that he adopted the custom of ending every speech he made to the Senate — no matter what the subject of the speech — with the sentence: "Carthage must be destroyed."
Eventually the noble Romans did destroy Carthage, although whether it was because they were tired of listening to Cato's commercials or for other reasons I don't remember.

In the tradition of Cato, I have over the years tried repeatedly to call attention to the growing problems of the Social Security system in hopes of provoking some constructive action.

I have occasionally alarmed some kind souls into misinterpreting my remarks as an attack on the system in general and present benefit levels in particular. That is not my intention. I am simply trying to warn one and all that the ship of Social Security is steaming directly for an iceberg.

The problem — unlike so many today — is not immediate. Present recipients of benefits have little to fear. But the younger members of the workforce will face some grim choices ten or twenty years down the road, if we don't wake up to reality right now.

What's Wrong
Social Security is heading for trouble because two key assumptions governing the adequacy of future funding levels have proven faulty.

One of these is the assumption that pay levels would continue to increase roughly twice as fast as prices. They haven't.

The other assumption is that U.S. population growth would take much longer to reach a "replacement," or "zero population growth," level than now appears to be the case.

Why are these faulty assumptions so potentially dangerous? Because Social Security is not funded like an insurance company. Present beneficiaries are paid from the taxes on present workers and their employers. And the level of benefits for both present and future retirees is programmed to rise along with increases on the cost of living.

So, benefits will increase in the future faster than the ability of the workforce to pay for them, if present trends continue. On top of this condition there will come a day when those born during the "baby boom" of the years immediately after World War II reach retirement age and there is left in the workforce only the smaller "baby bust" of the present to support them.

What To Do?
What can be done to return the system to a sound financial basis? There are four possibilities currently under discussion:

1. Increase the tax rate. The present rate — 11.7 per cent divided between employer and employee — is already scheduled to go up to 14.9 per cent by 2011.

2. Increase the wage base. This is the amount of pay the tax is levied on. It is up to $14,100 for 1975, from $13,200 for 1974. A federal commission studying Social Security has recommended increasing the wage base to $24,000.

3. Hold constant the percentage of a participant may collect in Social Security when he retires... say, 30 per cent of final wage. As the law is now written, the percentage of final wage collectible in Social Security payments after retirement will continue to drift upward toward the 60 per cent and 70 per cent range.

4. Finance additional benefits out of the Treasury's general revenues. This alternative is both seductive and dangerous, because it divorces benefits from costs. The costs would still have to be paid, of course, but they would be hidden.

I'd suggest the ultimate resolution will involve some combination of options one, two, and three.

This is an important issue: It does not greatly affect those who are now retired and receiving Social Security payments. But it will affect those who are now working, both in terms of their future taxes and in terms of their benefits at retirement.

If you are in this fast category, try to learn as much as you can about the alternatives and let your congressmen know how you feel about what's at stake.

A shrew consumes its weight in food every three hours.

CHICAGO (UPI)—If you are feeling "anxious, not sleeping well and your hands shake slightly, you may be suffering from common nervousness — or you may just be drinking too much coffee and soda pop."

That, at least, is a theory advanced by Dr. John F. Greden at a recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association. A report of Dr. Greden's research appeared recently in the Medical News section of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

There is some clinical basis for Dr. Greden's findings. And, when you consider the amount of caffeine in a cup of coffee or a bottle of soda pop, there appears to be sound basis for his thinking.

Coffee and soft drinks are not the only things which contain caffeine in substantial amounts. Many headache preparations buffer aspirin with caffeine, and cocoa also contains the substance.

Physicians agreed that more than 250 milligrams of caffeine a day constitutes a large amount. But, consider a "normal" person who, in one day, consumes three cups of coffee, takes two "headache tablets" and one soft drink. That person has ingested about 500 milligrams of caffeine.

Dr. Greden says that the central nervous system's responses to too much caffeine — call caffeineism — strongly resemble those of an anxiety attack. Symptoms include nervousness, irritability, lethargy, insomnia and headache.

The central nervous system is not the only part of the body which is affected by caffeineism. Too much caffeine can also cause heart palpitations, premature heartbeats, irregular heartbeats and skin flushing. In the gastrointestinal tract, too much caffeine can produce nausea, diarrhea, vomiting and pain.

Those symptoms can easily be defined as nervousness, but they can just as easily be the result of too much caffeine, according to Dr. Greden's report.

Associate professor of psychiatric medicine at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Dr. Greden said he became interested in caffeineism when a young nurse came to him for treatment. Married to an Army physician, who said she had been light-headed for three weeks, her hands were shaking and she was short of breath. She also was suffering from headaches, and he discovered an irregular heartbeat.

The woman told Dr. Greden that she had started making coffee by a different method which she found to be better, and subsequently had been drinking more — 10 to 12 cups per day. That totaled more than 1,000 milligrams of caffeine.

Within 36 hours after she stopped drinking coffee, her symptoms disappeared.

KNOW THE SIGNS

Heart Attack Gives Warning

"Heart attacks very seldom come without some warning," says Fr. Jed Rosenthal, chairman of the American Heart Association's Early Warning Signs Committee.

"Warning Signs of Heart Attack" by the A.H.A., is a weekly series of articles sponsored by the Panhandle Emergency Medical Services Systems (PEMSS) in conjunction with the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission's Health Council to educate the public to recognize the symptoms of heart attack.

PEMSS feels more lives will be saved as more people become aware of the symptoms of heart attack.

In each message the warning signs of heart attack will be described:

— Prolonged, heavy pressure or squeezing pain in the center of the chest, behind the breastbone.

— Pain may spread to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw.

— Pain or discomfort is often accompanied by sweating.

— Nausea, vomiting or shortness of breath may also occur.

— Pain may go away, then return.

If discomfort is experienced in all or any one of these areas, call your doctor. If he is not immediately available, report to your hospital's emergency room.

"The sooner these signs are reported, the better are the chances to treat the suspected heart attack patients effectively," Dr.

Rosenthal states. "Too many times people will pass off these warning signs as indigestion, toothache or some other minor ailment, when really it's very serious."

This is where the PEMSS comes in — to educate the public to the warning signs of heart attack through a series of articles.

The Panhandle Emergency Medical Services System Inc. is a non-profit, regional organization established to coordinate a viable emergency medical services system for the Panhandle.

This is the first of eight articles to appear in this column.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Don't just file away warranties you received with holiday gifts without first giving them a thorough reading. If you don't take the time now to become familiar with their terms, you may find later that the only thing you're clearly guaranteed is disappointment.

For example, asks the Better Business Bureau, who is providing the guarantee — the seller or the manufacturer? And what is your own responsibility in regard to the guarantee? The answers can make a big difference when and if the product breaks down.

Not only is it important to know these answers as they apply to gifts you have received; it's even more important to find out these and other answers before you go out to buy major items yourself.

Take the case of a new piano. It's fully guaranteed for 10 years, from the outside finish to the inside strings. But wait — the fine print states that if repairs are needed, the owner must have the whole thing crated and shipped to the factory 300 miles away, and at the owner's expense.

Also be sure you know the time element of your guarantee. When does it begin? When does it end? Do you have to send in a warranty registration card in order to make any of the terms of the guarantee effective? (If so, be sure you do. And if shipment to a service facility or back to the factory is necessary for repairs, save the carton that came with the item.)

One buyer of a new boat discovered that his warranty period was half over by the time he bought the boat — it had begun at the time the boat was delivered to the dealer.

Limitations Are Common
A recent staff study by the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Commerce and Finance found that of 51 firms whose product warranties were studied, only one offered a written warranty free of all exemptions, limitations, and disclaimers.

It's important to know that these limitations probably exist in the warranties for the products you received as gifts or that you intend to buy; it's even more important to find out exactly what they are.

Take a complicated product like a television set, for example. The picture tube probably is guaranteed for a longer period than other parts. Labor charges may be included for only a portion of the overall warranty period. The owner may be required to return the set to the shop for any diagnosis and repairs.

Sometimes a retailer will offer his own warranty for the set which goes beyond that offered by the manufacturer. And, finally, an extended warranty may be available at an additional charge.

Chances are you did not receive as big an item as a piano, a boat or a television set as a holiday gift. But these examples illustrate warranty variations that also can occur with smaller gift items, such as toasters, clocks, and toy trucks.

Other Clauses Listed
Nor do these examples illustrate all the limitations that can exist in warranties. The House subcommittee staff found these others:

— The Seller or manufacturer is to decide whether a part is defective.

— Consequential damages are excluded, for instance a defective washing machine overflows and ruins the floor. Although common law principles would hold the seller responsible for damage to the floor, this clause would appear to exempt the seller from liability, although it could be challenged.

— Filters and plastic or glass parts are excluded, or the warranty is limited to specific parts only.

— The warranty is valid for the original purchaser only.

Check your warranties now so you have a better idea of what will happen, if you have questions, ask the seller or manufacturer. Some national companies have toll-free telephone numbers you can call.

Washington Assistant New Baltimore Coach

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ted Marchbroda, who faced a two-quarterback dilemma as an assistant coach with the Washington Redskins, steps into another two-quarterback problem as the newly hired head coach of the Baltimore Colts.

He seems to welcome it. At a news conference where his signing of a three-year contract was announced Wednesday, the 43-year-old Marchbroda declined for the moment to commit himself to either Colt quarterback — Marty Domres or Bert Jones.

"I think we have a quarterback here," he said. "I should say we have two, and that's the essential of a good football team."

While praising both Baltimore quarterbacks who shared the starting role during a dismal 2-12 season, Marchbroda observed he would be spending a lot of his time working with Jones, a two-year veteran.

"Jones has no ifs. There's nothing he can't do. It's just a matter of bringing it to the fore. Experience is the only thing he lacks — and direction."

Direction has been something the Colts have been lacking recently. Marchbroda is their fourth head coach in three years under the leadership of General Manager Joe Thomas and owner Robert Irsay.

Expressing belief he could turn the once powerful Colts around this year, Marchbroda said he is fairly satisfied with all aspects of the Baltimore team except its offensive line.

He indicated that Thomas would have major say in the upcoming draft in which the Colts have either first or second choice of the college stars, depending on a coin flip, because their losing record was equalled only by the New York Giants.

A former college star with St. Bonaventure and the University of Detroit, Marchbroda played four seasons of pro ball with the

Ex Stars To Join Fame Hall

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Four football stars of the last generation, George Connor, Dante Lavelli, Lenny Moore and Roosevelt Brown, will be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame Aug. 2. Director Dick Gallagher announced Wednesday.

They were selected by the hall's 27-member selection board at its meeting in New Orleans last Saturday, as part of Super Bowl weekend.

The induction will be highlighted by the Cincinnati Bengals playing the Washington Redskins in the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Connor, a member of the Chicago Bears from 1948-55, was all-league as a defensive tackle in 1952, as an offensive tackle in 1953, and as a linebacker in 1954 and 1955, playing in the first four Pro Bowl games.

Lavelli, who starred for the Cleveland Browns in the All-America Conference and the NFL, was all-NFL for two years, played in three Pro Bowls, and set career receiving records in six NFL title games.

Moore went from Penn State to become rookie of the year for the Baltimore Colts in 1956 and five times was voted all-NFL, both as a flanker and as a running back, playing in seven Pro Bowls.

And Brown, picked on the 27th round of the 1953 draft, promptly became the New York Giants' right offensive tackle for 13 years, playing in nine Pro Bowls and being picked all-NFL for eight consecutive seasons.

Marchbroda broke into pro coaching as an assistant to Bill McPeak at Washington in 1961. He joined George Allen in Los Angeles nine years ago and

Lapse Possible In Liberal Tilt

Pampa's 96-37 win over Liberal, Kan., last week was the biggest point margin recorded by a 3-AAAA team this season and that's why the Harvesters are guarding against a mental letdown when Pampa and the Redskins tangle Friday in Liberal.

Pampa's win over Liberal followed an 81-55 romp over Lubbock Monterey. At this point, the Harvesters are playing their best basketball of the season, and that's why Pampa coach Robert McPherson is confident his players will be emotionally ready to take on Liberal again.

"We've had good practices this week," McPherson said. "Liberal's going to be tough. They'll have their two starters back; they had them back against Dodge City (Kan.) and they (Redskins) won 69-59."

Charles Ward and David Hammond are the two Redskins back. The duo

SOONER SPEAKS OUT

Shoate Candidate For Line Award

HOUSTON (UPI) — Oklahoma Sooners linebacker Rod Shoate may or may not be the premiere college football lineman this season, but he rated No. 1 in outspokeness.

A nationwide committee, which annually selects the Vince Lombardi lineman award winner, tonight will disclose Shoate's ranking among gridiron trenchmen at a $100 a plate dinner.

But Shoate, feeling his unbeaten Sooners were maligned when placed on probation the past two years, excelled among his peers for putting his beefs on the line.

"Violations and things like that go on not only at OU or Texas but even at the small schools," Shoate said Wednesday. "We just happened to get caught."

Shoate said the probation, which barred the Sooners

Booster Meeting Tonight

The Pampa-Booster Club will hold a basketball meeting at 7 p.m. today in the high school cafeteria.

Coach Robert McPherson will talk about the recent Harvesters victories and give a scouting report on Liberal, Kan., Pampa's opponent Friday at Liberal.

Booster Club memberships are still available.

Liberal's leading scorers and rebounders, were suspended for disciplinary reasons and missed the Harvesters game last week. Other starters will likely be Mark Cobb (6-4) and Frank Love (5-9). The other starting spots will be between sophomore Jerry Quick (6-6), Gary Rouse (5-9), Jerry Rouse (5-9), Wayne King (5-9) and Connie Hopkins (5-9).

The Redskins are 4-1 for the season. Pampa is 13-3 and has only one non-conference game left after Friday.

Pampa will play Liberal in the Seward County Junior College gymnasium, located one half mile north of the Alco Shopping Plaza on Kansas Avenue.

The Pampa C-team will take on the Liberal sophomores at 4:30 p.m., followed by the junior varsity game and then the varsity contest, which will be played around 8 p.m.

Larry Kenon scored 24 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for the Nets. Brian Taylor had 23 points and Billy Paultz added 15.

Pacers Subdue Nets For Lead

United Press International The Indiana Pacers, American Basketball Association champions as recently as two seasons ago but now a sub-500 team, still have a little kick left.

Indiana knocked the New York Nets, who succeeded the Pacers as league champions, out of the lead in the ABA's Eastern Division Wednesday night by beating New York, 111-106.

That defeat, coupled with Kentucky's 108-102 victory over the Virginia Squires, left the Colonels a half-game ahead of the Nets in the East.

Meanwhile, Indiana, which has only a 19-22 record this year, is 16 games behind Denver in the West following the Nuggets' 121-109 setback at San Diego.

In other ABA games Wednesday night, San Antonio defeated Utah, 96-91, and St. Louis topped Memphis, 104-99.

There were no games in the NBA with that league scheduled to resume action tonight following a three-day break for the All-Star game.

Pacers 111 Nets 106: George McGinnis scored 25 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to lead the Pacers, who overcame a 30-point effort by Julius Erving of New York.

Behind McGinnis, Darnell Hillman had 24 for the Pacers, Billy Knight 20, Johnny Neumann 11, Len Elmore 13 and Kevin Joyce 14.

Larry Kenon scored 24 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for the Nets. Brian Taylor had 23 points and Billy Paultz added 15.

Coloneis 108 Squires 102: Marvin Roberts scored 9 of his 13 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Coloneis to a comeback victory.

Q's 121 Nuggets 109: The Conquistadors beat Denver for the first time in seven tries with Travis Grant hitting 16 of 23 shots from the floor for 39 points.

Bo Lamar had 23 points for San Diego while Ralph Simpson led Denver with 25.

Spurs 96 Stars 91: James Silas scored 26 points and Rich Jones 25 for San Diego, which strengthened its hold on second place in the ABA West.

George Gervin and Swen Nater added 12 points each for the winners.

Rookie Moses Malone, with 23 points, and veteran Ron Boone, with 22, provided the offensive spark for Utah.

Bruin Player Unsure Why He Injured Henry Boucha

MONTREAL (UPI) — Boston Bruins forward Dave Forbes says his stick assault on Minnesota North Stars wing Henry Boucha haunts him and his soul searching has not yet found the answer for why he did it.

For Boucha the incident will not be entirely ended for another four or five weeks when he will learn whether his eyesight has been permanently damaged or he can resume his hockey career.

As for National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell, the Jan. 4 incident during Boston's 8-0 triumph over Minnesota was "one of the most vicious ... I have ever been called on to deal with."

Forbes, already under a felony assault indictment in Minnesota, was suspended by Campbell Wednesday for the Bruins' next 10 games including a Feb. 6 contest between Boston and Minnesota, their final meeting.

Bruins General Manager Harry Sinden said Forbes' suspension was "totally out of line with precedents set by Mr. Campbell as president. I don't think he should have been suspended at all."

Teammate Ken Hodge said "I think the 10 days (games) is totally unfair. It makes it look worse than it was and adds fuel to the fire. It's certainly not going to help his case."

Forbes refused to make any comment to newsmen, but in his hearing before Campbell he said that since the incident he has been asking himself "what would make me do such a thing?"

"I don't have an answer for that," Forbes said.

In a first-period fight, both Boucha and Forbes were assessed minors and majors by referee Ron Wicks as while they were serving the penalties Forbes told Boucha that he would "shove his stick down his throat," Campbell's statement said.

JAMAICA QUAKE An earthquake in Kingston, Jamaica, killed 1,000 persons Jan. 14, 1907.

There are few trees of any size, the fairways have been trimmed neatly and the greens are big and fast.

Arnie, an eternal optimist, says his game is coming around and he is ready for the new year.

"There's always some excitement about the first tournament of the year," he said. "It would be nice to get started on the right foot."

Guess who had the biggest gallery in the pro-am Wednesday? Arnie, of course, and if he is competitive this week, he's a cinch to outdraw Miller. The faithful are still out there. All they need is something to inspire them.

Red-Hot Johnny Favored

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — After winning eight tournament titles in 1971, Johnny Miller characterized his play as "ridiculous," and last week after he had taken the Phoenix Open by a record 14 strokes to launch the 1975 season, he said he wasn't sure if he "was for real."

But he's for real, all right. In two practice rounds here this week, the 27-year-old Californian seemed right in the same groove, which has to come as bad news to Arnold Palmer and 149 pros teeing up today in the start of the $200,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open.

"I'm hitting it good, no question about that," Miller said after a long afternoon of play in the pro-am prelude here on Wednesday. "Still, no one should expect me to win the way I did at Phoenix. That was a tournament in which everything went into the hole. It probably won't happen that way again."

Palmer, who didn't play well last year, is making his 1975 debut this week over the kind of desert course he has played well on in the past. The Tucson National Golf Club layout has been toughened up a bit with the addition of a lake in front of the 8th green, but it's not all that difficult a course.

There are few trees of any size, the fairways have been trimmed neatly and the greens are big and fast.

Arnie, an eternal optimist, says his game is coming around and he is ready for the new year.

"There's always some excitement about the first tournament of the year," he said. "It would be nice to get started on the right foot."

Guess who had the biggest gallery in the pro-am Wednesday? Arnie, of course, and if he is competitive this week, he's a cinch to outdraw Miller. The faithful are still out there. All they need is something to inspire them.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

"Your right to smoke stops at my nose."
That's part of the message nonsmokers want to help smokers understand during National Education Week on Smoking Jan. 11-17.

The week is sponsored by the National Interagency Council on Health and commemorates the first report 10 years ago by the Surgeon General on the health consequences of smoking. The State Health Department, which carries on an active educational campaign on smoking and health, is a member of the Texas Interagency Council. Support to NEWS is being given by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who has proclaimed the week "Education Week on Smoking and Health" in Texas to dramatize the need for greater awareness of the discomfort smokers may cause both to themselves and to others.

A full two-thirds of the people in the United States don't smoke. And, nearly a third of those nonsmokers have genuine medical allergies to tobacco smoke or conditions aggravated by smoke.

What is in question in the smoking issue is not the right to smoke. Nonsmokers concede anyone's right to indulge. What is objected to, say nonsmokers, is that they must breathe smoke-filled air without being given access to clean air.

They feel that no one should have to breathe smoky air in places where people go to do business, handle legal matters or pursue one's routine affairs.

Many areas are off limits to smoking in some cities, businesses and governmental agencies. These may include elevators, public meetings, conference rooms and even hospitals, supermarkets and theaters in some cases. Some nonsmoking sections are designated in establishments used by the public, such as restaurants.

Nonsmokers, says the Texas Interagency Council, do not feel vindictive or arbitrary in asking smokers to refrain temporarily, and most smokers are very considerate. Many fail to realize the discomfort smoking causes.

Recent tests show that smoking increases the carbon monoxide content in air and that the nonsmoker inhales this poisonous gas just like the smoker. Merry-makers at a tightly closed Dallas nightclub were made sick recently by accumulated smoke in the building, which recycled existing air without bringing in a fresh supply.

Smoking 10 cigarettes in an enclosed car caused the carbon monoxide level in a nonsmoker's blood to double, just as it did in the smokers' blood. Cigarette smoke also contains nitrogen dioxide, hydrogen cyanide and acrolein (used to produce tear gas).

Nor is the home immune from the effects of smoking. Children of smoking parents have twice the respiratory illnesses as children of nonsmoking parents. And, the rate is much worse for asthmatic children.

Smoking and matches, say safety experts, are the leading cause of residential fires, accounting for more than $5.5 million in losses annually.

The Texas Interagency Council on Smoking and Health, like the State Health Department, wants all Texans to enjoy good health.

State Health Department programs in many areas are geared to this purpose. It is working to inform Texans of the risks involved in smoking—whether they are a smoker or nonsmoker. Many of its programs are directed to young students to influence them against ever taking up the habit.

Health authorities believe that everyone should have the right to good health and should take good care of their bodies. The Council provides information on smoking, as well as plans for smoking cessation clinics for those who want to kick the habit.

If you would like a "Thank You For Not Smoking" sign or printed materials on smoking, you may write to the Texas Interagency Council on Smoking and Health, State Health Department, 1100 West 49th St., Austin, Texas 78756.

French president to visit Boston

BOSTON — French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has accepted an invitation to visit the United States in 1976 for the Bicentennial as guest of the city of Boston.

Adm. Jean-Baptiste, Comte d'Estaing, a forebear of the French president, commanded the French fleet which in 1776 was sent to help the Colonists, but he failed to land his infantry and to engage the British fleet standing by under Lord Howe, then suffered severe damage in a storm and when he put ashore to rest, French sailors were roughed up by angry Bostonians. — CNS

TRAVELER World's biggest rodent

By HAROLD MCCONNELL
Travel Editor
Copley News Service.

The Wildlife Preserve at Largo, Md., a wild animal drive-through park, has added a capybara (world's largest rodent), a tapir, three flamingos and six Texas longhorns to its collection of 600 animals. The animals are kept comfortable during the winter in sod-covered, electrically heated shelters. The park is 12 miles east of Washington, D.C., on State Route 214. ...

Prices on some things have dropped in the last 50 years. Take the first commercial flight in the United States, from St. Petersburg to Tampa in Florida on Jan. 1, 1914.

It cost the first passenger, Mayor Pheil of St. Petersburg, $600 for his ticket. Today he could fly round trip between Miami and Los Angeles on a National Airlines jet for $148 less than he paid to fly across Tampa Bay. ...

Summer, Mo., has become known as the "Wild Goose Capital" of the world because of its proximity to the Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge. About 200,000 Canada geese visit the area on their spring and fall migrations. Now the city has the world's largest Canada goose in the form of a two-ton fiber glass replica of the bird. It stands 30 feet tall and has a wingspan of 61 feet. The cost of $15,000 was paid by private donations and a grant from the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. ...

The British Tourist Authority has selected many hotels throughout Britain and commended them for meeting high standards of value, service and welcome. They are shown on a map, which can be obtained from the BTA office at 680 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10019. A book listing fine inns in Britain also is available. ...

In Covington, Ky., there's a two-story house which was the boyhood home of Daniel Carter Beard, considered the father of scouting in America. The house is a National Historic Landmark, designated by the Department of the Interior. The first scout troop in America was founded by another Kentuckian, Mrs. Myra Greeno Bass, an artist and naturalist, in Burnside, Ky. There's a marker on U.S. 27 on the edge of Burnside commemorating the founding. ...

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Thursday, Jan. 16, the 16th day of 1975 with 349 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Famed American designer and woodcarver Samuel McIntire was born Jan. 16, 1757. This is American singer Ethel Merman's 66th birthday.

On this day in history: In 1833, the Pendleton Act went into effect, providing for creation of the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

In 1920, the United States went legally "dry" as prohibition of alcoholic beverages became effective under the 18th Amendment to the Constitution. It was repealed in 1933.

In 1942, screen star Carole Lombard, her mother, and 20 other persons were killed in a commercial airliner crash near Las Vegas, Nevada. Miss Lombard was the wife of actor Clark Gable.

In 1974, the White House denied that President Nixon personally made any erasures in the so-called "Watergate tapes."

A thought for the day: Irish poet Thomas Moore said, "My only books were woman's looks, and folly's all they've taught me."

Curtailment Of Vehicular Fuels Could Double Unemployment Rate

Any curtailment by government in the use of vehicular fuels could double the present unemployment rate.

This is indicated in a special survey on energy use and needs conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business by Faculty Associates, headed by Dr. Richard Bailey of the University of California at Berkeley and Dr. Williams Dunkelberg of Stanford.

A selected sample of NFIB members surveyed by this research firm in November reveals that 11.9 percent of the respondents feel that any cut in their use of gasoline or other vehicular fuels such as diesel, will force them to reduce their work force.

Another 18.2 percent are uncertain at this time what impact such moves would have on their employment levels, while 65 percent feel that such reduction would have no effect on the operations.

However, projecting the 11.90 percent who say they would have to reduce their work forces over the entire independent business sector indicates that even if the employe dismissal amounted to an average of one per enterprise, over 6,500,000 would be thrown out of work.

While as to be expected, gasoline or related vehicular fuels are most important in the operations of independent builders, transportation firms, service establishments, and wholesalers, these fuels are also essential to a lesser degree to some retailers, financial and professional services.

While many Washington planners take the position that reduced gasoline consumption is essential to offset the higher costs of imported oil as a means of curtailing the outflow of the dollar, the NFIB research studies do indicate that he

most of providing for the apparent resulting huge mass of unemployed would be far more costly to the economy and to the government as a whole.

In addition, not probed by the NFIB sponsored survey are the many independent enterprises who while not using vehicular fuels directly, do depend on others having fuel to patronize them.
