President Speaks Of 'Last Resorts'

LIFE SAVING PRACTICE — Twenty-seven people attended a session Thursday night at Worley Hospital for demonstrations on cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) techniques as part of CPR Week. Sharon Mack, center, certified instructor for American Heart Association, demonstrates techniques to, from left, Jean Burch, RN; Mary Ann Reed, LVN, licensed instructor; Minnie Groves, RN, licensed instructor, and Amy Russell, hospital administrator. WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford spoke of last resorts, of many "if's." —If the nation's economy is still grim in 1976, Ford suggested he might not run for President, being "realistic" in the face of "tough odds." But, he quickly added, he thought the economy would rebound. "I'm planning to be a candidate," he said. —If Ford had not ordered an increase in the imported oil tariff that could raise the cost of a gallon of gasoline 8 to 10 cents, Congress might have delayed his entire economic and energy program. The order was signed a few hours before Wednesday's broadcast interview with NBC. —"If Congress has not acted in roughly three months," he said, "I can, of course, remove the import duty I have imposed." —If Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is not successful next month on his return to peacemaking in the Middle East, Ford said "I think we undoubtedly would be forced to go to Geneva." He said all his advisers consider the chance of war in the Mideast is high.

of." Ford said the CIA may have made mistakes in the past 10 years, but there is currently no domestic spying. —If Congress does not provide at least $300 million, South Vietnam will not be able to hold off the North Vietnamese. He charged Hanoi with a "total disregard" of the Paris peace treaty. The relaxed interview with John Chancellor and Tom Brokaw was conducted in a small sitting alcove favored by presidential families. In the private presidential living quarters, part of the White House few ever see, Ford spoke seriously of war and the economy. He again talked of an extreme oil embargo. "When you are being strangled," he said, "it is a question of either dying or living and when you use the word 'strangulation' in relationship to the existence of the United States or its nonexistence, I think the public has to have a reassurance...that we are not going to permit America to be strangled to death." Ford agreed the moral implications of taking Arab oil posed a "troublesome question," but added "wars have been fought over natural resources from time immemorial." The last part of the interview became philosophical. Ford agreed that sometimes he wondered what he was doing in the White House, a year after he had been in the House of Representatives, hoping only to be Speaker. "Even though I have wondered how it all happened," the President said, "I feel very secure in the capability that I have to do the job."

GOVERNORS MAY SUE Oil Tariff Garners Objections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over objections of many Democrats, labor and a number of state governors, President Ford has put into effect the first step of his energy program — a tariff on foreign oil which will raise retail gasoline prices a few cents per gallon. Ford hopes the tariff will begin to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and that higher gas prices will persuade Americans to conserve fuel. Democrats in the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate worked on legislation to block the move and talked of a possible veto showdown. Governors of at least four Northeastern states, which depend heavily on imported oil, promised suits attempting to overturn the tariff. AFL-CIO president George Meany called Ford's overall plan to deal with problems of energy and recession "the weirdest" and unveiled alternate proposals. Using his executive authority, and moving before Democrats in Congress could come up with legislation to stop him, Ford Thursday signed the order creating a $1 per barrel tariff on imported oil effective Feb. 1, rising to $3 in April. "It seemed to me the time for conversation had ended and we had to act," he explained on an NBC television interview Thursday night. He said the oil tariff will raise retail gasoline prices 2 to 3 cents a gallon in about two months. If Congress enacts the rest of his program, he said, gasoline prices will rise 8 to 10 cents a gallon. "We have diddled and dawdled long enough... I think the American people want action. We have been on dead center for two years. There's been a lot of talk but no real action." Democrats in the House Ways and Means Committee were preparing legislation that would suspend Ford's tariff for 90 days while Congress reviewed it. They proposed attaching it to another bill which Ford badly wants, a measure raising the national debt ceiling from $495 billion to $604 billion so the government can borrow more money to defray its deficit. Governors of 10 Northeastern states, who met with Ford at the White House Thursday, told him the tariff will hurt their areas and asked him to cancel it. "We had zero input," said Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, a Democrat of Vermont. Governors of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont and Maine agreed to jointly sue in federal court in Washington challenging Ford's authority to impose the tariff. It appeared Connecticut would join them. In Chicago, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller told a business group "Congress has the responsibility to respond positively by adopting the President's program or to come up with a program of its own which recognizes the critical nature of this situation." Meany called Ford's energy-economy program "the weirdest one I have ever seen," and AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland said it will "mean more inflation, more recession and more unemployment."

Briscoe Seeks Increase For Retirement Benefits

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked the legislature to draft a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing additional state contributions to retirement funds for teachers and state employees. The emergency benefits, Briscoe said, would be paid temporarily out of existing retirement funds pending adoption of a constitutional amendment. Failure by voters to adopt such amendment would result in automatic termination of the benefits. "A $4 million appropriation is authorized under the present constitution, however, it does not permit appropriation of funds to meet total costs of the proposed increases, he said. Briscoe also requested the implementation of a 10 to 18 per cent increase in pensions for retired teachers and state employees by Feb. 1. In action on another emergency proposal requested by Briscoe, the Senate approved a bill abolishing a state law requiring a scholastic census of school children every five years. "It serves no useful purpose," Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, sponsor of the bill, said. He said the Texas Education Agency and other educational agencies supported repealing the law which costs the state $3 to $5 million every five years. The necessity of the census was undermined when state education officials began receiving data from schools on the number of children who attend classes every day. The program was instituted several years ago. Briscoe called for emergency action to repeal the law before school authorities begin the census-taking this fall. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

Momentum Grows On Senior Center

By TEX DEWEESE
Increased momentum for development of a Senior Center in Pampa will be the goal of a city-wide meeting set for 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in the conference room of Lovett Memorial Library. Presidents of all men's and women's service and social clubs are urged to attend or send a representative. Currently the only available outlet for Pampa's senior citizens has been a weekly meeting sponsored by the Altrusa Club. The Salvation Army last Monday started a weekly luncheon meeting for persons 55 and older at SA headquarters on S. Cuyler St. The luncheon, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., drew a large attendance on its first day. In addition to representatives of civic and social clubs, next Tuesday night's meeting will be open to anyone interested in the establishment of a Senior Center in Pampa. The help and assistance of every club in town is needed if the movement is to be carried through to final accomplishment, according to those behind the senior center effort. Top consideration is expected to be given to finding a building in which regular meetings of senior citizens can be held. Supporters of the Senior Center movement list other priority needs for the elderly as transportation, entertainment, social activities, arts and crafts and other activities on a daily basis. According to those in charge of arrangements, the meeting will be a follow-up to last Saturday's conference at the library in which preliminary angles of the proposal were discussed including needs of elderly persons in Pampa. At that meeting Mike McQueen of the Texas Panhandle Regional Planning Office for the Aging conducted a workshop of senior citizens. McQueen is studying results of the findings and is expected to return to Pampa within two or three weeks for further exploration of needs of the elderly in the community. Purpose of next Tuesday night's meeting will be to reach a decision on priority needs and select members of a planning board to carry the movement forward.

'BARGAINING CHIPS' Pueblo Incident Gives 'Lesson'

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The lesson of the Pueblo is this: U.S. servicemen are more valuable to the Communists as live bargaining chips than as dead enemies, a former crewman said on the seventh anniversary of the spy ship's capture off North Korea. "We found they were not going to kill us," Senior Chief Quartermaster Charles Law Jr., 33, said Thursday. Law, 33, now teaches prisoner of war survival and escape techniques for the Navy. "An American prisoner is no good to anybody dead. If he's taken alive, he's a blue chip because the U.S. will pay tremendous prices and make huge concessions to get its people released. If they had killed one of us, they would have had to kill all of us. They couldn't risk letting anyone out to tell the truth," Law said. The capture of the electronic eavesdropping ship, and the release of its crew 11 months later, returned to prominence earlier this month with a renewal of the long feud between its former commanding officer and the ship's executive officer, both now civilians. The former exec, Edward Murphy, resigned after he was reprimanded for failing to destroy intelligence documents before the North Koreans took control of the ship. He stunned an admiralty court by refusing to accept a Navy medal, and then criticized the ship's captain, Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher. Murphy says Bucher was responsible for the loss of the Pueblo. Law said the crewmen were tough in the face of North Korean beatings and threats. "One of the weaker men went to pieces when an officer told him the whole crew was going to be killed the next day," he said. "I think most of us, having heard that, would have bailed out trying to escape." There was never any indication the whole crew was wavering, in fact, our resistance got to the point that Cmdr. Bucher told us to knock off the arrogance and bravery — to cool it a bit. "I'm damned proud how most of the crew pulled together as American bluejackets." "We had to hang together, there were so few of us," Strickland said. "I'm proud of how we all behaved." Former Marine S.Sgt. Robert Chica, 30, of Bonita, Calif., co-leader of an escape planning team, said "I was wounded during the seizure. When the North Koreans came aboard, though, some of us made plans to take them when U.S. planes came over to rescue us. The planes never came."

AGAINST CLAYTON Temple Sees No Revenge Evidence

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — One of Speaker Bill Clayton's critics says he sees no evidence Clayton sought revenge against his detractors in appointing House committees. "I don't see any vindictiveness," said Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Dobol, who supported Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, for the speakership. Clayton easily defeated Parker, and many of Parker's allies predicted Clayton would seek revenge against them in committee assignments. "Naturally a speaker is going to appoint committees based on who supported him and who didn't," Temple said. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, said Clayton treated the House's black caucus relatively well, putting two blacks in committee chairmanships. "Overall the black caucus came out pretty good, considering the way people badmouthed us for supporting Clayton," Leland said. "He's been fair so far. He hasn't been overly fair, but fair." Clayton appointed the first black, female and Republican committee chairmen to serve in those capacities in the House this century. The blacks getting chairmanships were Reps. Craig Washington, D-Houston, criminal jurisprudence; and Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, labor. Mrs. Johnson is also the only female committee head. Republicans Ray Hutchison of Dallas and Tom Craddock of Midland were named chairman of the Constitutional Revision and Natural Resources Committee. Clayton told the House Thursday some members were bound to be disappointed by the appointments. "I hope your disappointment will not turn into bitterness," he said. "Hopefully we will not bicker amongst one another over egos and personalities, but rather begin to move forward in solving the issues urgently awaiting our action." Clayton picked Rep. Bill Prenal, D-Bryan, and Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, to head two of the most important House committees this session. Prenal is chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and Massey chairs the Public Education Committee which must draft a new system of financing public schools. "The firm rated physician specialties by the frequency of malpractice claims filed, and listed the leading types of malpractice suits. The statistics showed while a claim was pending against one of every ten doctors insured by St. Paul, some physician specialties like heart surgeons showed claims pending against one of every four. A company spokesman said the firm would shift to a type of policy no other large malpractice insurer issue and while the cost of the new malpractice insurance would decline, premiums probably would end up higher. The present coverage basically protects a doctor against patient claims made in the future for services performed while the policy was in effect. Such a "pay-in-advance" policy requires large reserves by the insurance companies to anticipate claims that might arise later under different social or economic conditions. "Our actuaries are no longer able to predict the cost in 1980 from today's medical incidents," St. Paul said.

Company To Change Malpractice Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the largest underwriters of medical malpractice insurance says it is changing its present coverage plan because insuring doctors against malpractice suits has become too expensive. St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company of St. Paul, Minn., said Thursday that it will stop selling its present malpractice coverage in favor of a new substitute "pay as you go" plan June 30. The new insurance policy will be based on past and current experience of doctors sued for malpractice in each state. The firm, which insures 48,000 doctors in 47 states, justified the shift by citing losses from malpractice insurance in recent years. It released records showing it collected $10.8 million in premiums in 1969, but lost $5.5 million because of heavy reserves against future claims and large overhead expenses required under its current setup. "We want to stay in the malpractice insurance market, but unless the form of the policy we sell is changed," St. Paul said in a company position paper. "Given today's changing negligence law, the legal rights explosion and the effects of economic and social inflation of

Area Citizens Urged To File Tax Returns

Pampa area residents today were urged to file 1974 income tax returns as early as possible rather than delay filing because of an expected tax cut. Officials of the Internal Revenue Service stated the sooner returns are filed, the sooner refunds will be received. IRS especially urges taxpayers not to delay their filing while hoping for the promised tax rebate. The proposed rebate, if it finally is approved by Congress, would be based on the taxpayer's total tax liability for 1974 and cannot be computed until after a return has been filed with the IRS and processed at the agency's computer center in Austin. Persons filing income tax returns this year actually have two reasons to file early, according to IRS. Those expecting refunds and filing early will get the refunds in about five weeks, while taxpayers waiting until March or April to file may have to wait up to 12 weeks for their refund. The IRS officials also point out that all taxpayers who will owe tax with their returns need to have a correctly completed return filed with IRS before they can think about having a tax rebate.

Freedom Of Thought

When his landmark book, "The Road to Serfdom," appeared in 1944, Friedrich A. von Hayek's warning that government control of economics involves government control of thought as well, the Austrian economist was largely dismissed by the intellectual establishment. That establishment was then wedded to economic interventionism as government policy.

Times have changed. State intervention is, of course, much greater than it was 30 years ago, but there are signs of awakening. For one thing, Hayek this year was awarded the Nobel Prize for economics. Even erstwhile interventionists are growing alarmed that their freedom of thought disappears in proportion as they accept government research grants to bolster government programs.

Economist Milton Friedman—a milder libertarian than Hayek—takes time in his Reason magazine interview (December) to reissue Hayek's warnings.

Many people argue as Hayek did so effectively in "The Road to Serfdom," that there will come a time when the extension of the role of the State will threaten personal freedom. I was saying that that's not a future possibility—it's a present reality. Suppose you look at various classes of society and ask who is really free to express his views on a wide range of subjects without fear of paying any substantial penalty.

I think the only people who are really effectively free at the moment are a subset of long-tenured professors in leading universities. Only a subset. Consider for a moment the University of Chicago, which I would certainly call a leading university that has always protected individual freedom. Let us suppose that you are a professor of medicine and your research is being financed by the National Institute of Health or the National Science Foundation and you personally believe that it's wrong for government to subsidize medical research. Would you really feel free to get up and make that statement in public? Are the costs greater than you can afford to pay?

Friedman is onto a horrifying perception which, if true, may explain a lot of things in this country. Worse, these government programs seem to proliferate and enlarge daily.

Friedman continues: "There's not a leading businessman in this country who really has freedom of speech. He cannot make a statement and be responsible to the people who hire him, namely his stockholders without looking over one shoulder at what the IRS is going to do in response to that statement, over another shoulder at what the Federal Trade Commission is going to do, what the antitrust division is going to do, or right now, what the federal energy office is going to do. The restrictions on personal freedom in the strictest sense of freedom of speech, of freedom of political activity, that now bear on people as a result of the growth of government are very real and very far reaching."

If Friedman is correct, this is a totalitarian scare story. David Hume once remarked that liberty is seldom lost all at one time. There are, apparently, examples of destroyed freedom even today, we do not have to wait until 1984 for cases.

Nevertheless, there is a history of anti-government thought expressed in spite of government support. The Vietnam War years saw a spectacular swelling of official dissidence, countless academicians spoke out against government policy knowing that their taxpayer support was not jeopardized. What was appalling is that they insulted the taxpayers as well as the government.

Those times are over, but the Hayek-Friedman scenario has a way of depicting the horrors of our "peacetime" economy. Americans would do well to weigh those considerations when next they are asked to approve government intervention in the marketplace.

INSIDE LABOR

Mafia Doing Big Business

By VICTOR RIESEL

NEW YORK — An old Mafia don, whom Mike Wallace and I interviewed on television some years ago, blandly and quietly took my insults during the questioning. At one point I spat out something like, "The combine's shooting spree is as stupid as it's sadistic." His reply was "usta." I finally translated this as "used to be."

He was part of the Carlo Gambino family—though he did die a natural death. Big man in labor here for a while. And it did take several years and a long broadcast discussion with the 34-year-old new regional Justice Department anti-organized crime strike force chief, Bill

Rules Hurt Consumer

The Federal Trade Commission has discovered that incidents of fraud by television repairmen run as high in states which attempt to regulate the TV repair business as in states that do not. As a result, the FTC is urging states to avoid penalizing the consumer by imposing regulations that would make repair jobs more expensive without serving any useful purpose.

Competition in the repair business is fully as beneficial for the consumer as in any other business. Regulatory systems that make it difficult for repairmen to open new shops, or would tend to standardize what they charge for their time and services, work against the consumer's interest. The law can protect him against dishonesty, but a free market place is his best assurance of quality and reasonable rates when he needs repair of a television set, a car or anything else.

FOR DEMOCRATS

Militants Making It Rough

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 — It is now clearly evident that Democratic national chairman Strauss can declaim all he wants about "peace" and "amity," but McGovernite - blacks - women lib' militants are going to defiantly persist in "rule - or - ruin" tactics.

If they can't have their way and dominate, they will resort to disruption and dissension — including their favorite "walkout" tactic.

They effectively used the latter last August to break up the concluding session of the Charter Commission; were narrowly dissuaded by Strauss from trying it at last month's "mini - convention" by his caving in to their demands; and pulled it again to abort the organizing meeting of the Compliance Review Commission.

That carefully perpetrated "walkout" could have far-reaching consequences — the aim of the extremists.

Whether Strauss can undo that setback remains to be seen.

It's a race against time. Next meeting of the Compliance Commission is set for Jan. 23 — when another attempt will be made to approve limiting consideration of complaints by the commission, under the controversial "affirmative action" provision of the charter, to quota disputes.

The radicals are bent on blocking that because they want to be free to apply "affirmative action" to all party operations at all levels. That's the way McGovern was put over in 1972, and they want to be able to do that again next year.

Early action on this matter is essential because state organizations must submit plans for selection of delegates to the 1976 convention by March 15. But before they can do that they must publicize them for 30 days for voter reaction. That means state organizations must have the Compliance Commission's regulations by Feb. 13 at the latest so they will know how to proceed.

If they don't have them by then, there will be endless wrangling and jangling — a chaotic situation made to order for the dissidents, and which they are deliberately and strenuously seeking to create.

"walkout" squeeze play pulled on Strauss at the "mini - convention," and again pulled this stratagem at the organizing session of the Compliance Commission.

They are as follows:

Richard Hatcher, black mayor of Gary, Ind., vehement quota clamorer, and truculent leftist with grandiose political ambitions.

Barbara Mikulski, radical Baltimore city councilwoman, decisively licked by Republican Sen. Charles Mathias last November, but already busily campaigning for another try in 1976 against Maryland's other Republican Senator, J. Glenn Beall.

Robert Vance, McGovernite state chairman of Alabama, already busily taking soundings on whom to support among the numerous 1976 Democratic presidential aspirants.

Phyllis Segal, militant New York women's libber, lawyer, radical wife of Eli Segal, top McGovernite lieutenant. Ms. Segal was in the forefront of McGovern forces at the 1972 convention; has similar ambitions for the 1976 convention.

Edward Donahue, militant official of a small leftist union, who generally opposes stands taken by COPE, political arm of the AFL-CIO.

Under the panel's rules, 13 constitute a quorum. It was this close margin that the militants used to abort the meeting.

Quietly and unobtrusively, one by one, they began scuttling the barely-held quorum.

First to disappear was Vance, followed by Hatcher and then Ms. Segal. That left only 12 — one short of a quorum. Strenuous efforts were made to round up Hatcher, who had indicated he was going to the offices of the U. S. Conference of Mayors. But a call there brought word he had not shown up and wasn't expected.

Similarly, Vance and Ms. Segal couldn't be located, obviously not by accident.

Ms. Mikulski and Donahue, who had remained, clearly for this purpose, loudly raised the question of "no quorum."

Commission chairman Robert Wagner, former New York mayor, briefly stalled in the hope of uncovering one of the missing disrupters. But that quickly proved unavailing, and under the insistent outcries of Mikulski and Donahue, Wagner had no alternative but to adjourn the meeting.

Thus, once again the defiant dissidents had their way and Strauss's fanfare "peace" and "amity" went down the drain.

What happens next depends on what transpires at the Jan. 23 meeting of the Compliance Commission. Before the aborted meeting, Strauss confidently claimed he had "everything fixed up" for a smooth and uneventful session.

Whether he can "refix" it to better effect is conjectural.

If he's smart, he will be prepared for another challenging showdown.

Addendum: The 25 - Member Compliance Review Commission was established to approve and enforce "affirmative action" plans submitted by state organizations. The panel is a key agency in the selection of delegates to the 1976 convention, and its control is a much-sought goal of the leftist elements.

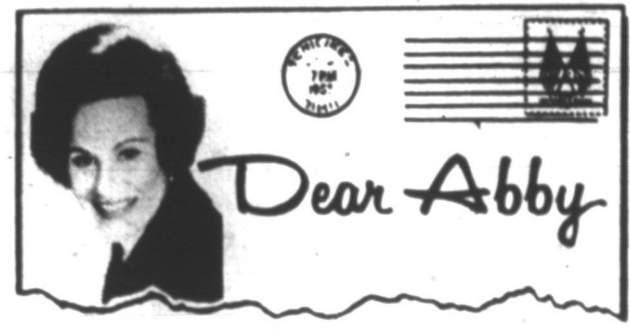

How They Did It

The plan to limit "affirmative action" complaints to quota issues was formulated by a group of regular and moderate members of the Compliance Commission.

It was clearly headed for approval when the leftists staged their covert "walkout." If it hadn't been for that deliberately contrived disruption, the rule would have been adopted.

When it became apparent that was going to happen, the radicals resorted to their usual "rule - or - ruin" tactics.

They were able to get away with that because only 15 of the commission's 25 members were

Dear Abby

Reports of hubby's death were premature

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago, my husband found out he had a malignant tumor. At first the doctor said he thought it was inoperable, so we both faced the fact that my husband was going to die. He was 36 and I was 30, and we had a four-year-old son.

However, the doctor later changed his mind and decided that he could operate. In the meantime I had already accepted the fact that since my husband was going to die, my son needed to have a father, and the sooner he came into our lives, the sooner I would get over my husband's death. To make a long story short, I met a man and fell in love with him.

My husband survived the surgery, and it looks like he is going to be all right.

I have become very attached to this man and am still helping him. I really love them both and don't know what to do. Help me.

ONE MAN TOO MANY

DEAR ONE: DYING unexpectedly is not uncommon, but LIVING unexpectedly is. It's wise to prepare for the future, but you jumped the gun. If you believe in fairness to a man pulled back from the brink of death, you'll say goodbye to his premature replacement.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from the grandmother who complained because the grandparents on the MOTHER'S side always seemed to be favored, I had to put in my two cent's worth.

I am the young mother of three very active children, and it's always MY mother who babysits. She works fulltime and has her own family to take care of, but when I ask her to babysit, for a night, a day, or weekend, she acts like it's the best offer she's had all week.

On the other hand, my husband's mother has no job and no family at home. All she has to think of is herself, but she's never volunteered to babysit for me. Once she said, "If you ever need me in an emergency, I'll come," but, Abby, she knows that in an emergency I can call my own mother.

Twice in nine years I have asked my mother-in-law to sit for me. She did, but she made me feel like she was doing me the biggest favor in the world, so I quit asking her.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. Maybe my mother-in-law will read it and see herself.

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Maybe, and maybe not. Not all grandmothers regard an offer to babysit as "the best offer they've had all week." Many have written to say that they raised their children and they wish their children would raise their own—but when asked to babysit, they hate to refuse.

Those grannies who genuinely enjoy sitting should do so, but those who don't should not be made to feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please do me a favor and answer this in your column so I can give it to my son to show his future wife?

Every time we have this girl over for supper, she brings her scale and insists on weighing everything before she eats it. While I am putting food on the table and everybody else is sitting down, she goes into the kitchen and weighs her food before bringing her plate to the table.

I think this is bad manners. Don't you? INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: Not necessarily. The young woman is obviously a weight watcher—and I say hooray for her. Try to be a little more understanding. Or would you rather have a fat daughter-in-law?

FOR UNDERSTANDING Farmers, Consumers Must Work Harder

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — American farmers and consumers must work harder to understand one another's problems in developing world food supplies, according to the president of the National Consumer Congress.

Ellen Zewel debated the needs and problems of maintaining world food and fiber reserves during the 28th annual Farm Forum with F.A. Graunard Jr., president of the St. James Sugar Cooperative Inc., and Dr. Carroll G. Bruntner, former assistant secretary of agriculture and currently vice president of Cook Industries, Memphis, Tenn.

"As an organization, we have been very distressed with American agriculture and foreign policy as it has been conducted over the past few years," Mrs. Zewel said.

She said she was disappointed the United States failed to take a stand on food aid during the World Food Conference in Rome.

She said she was hopeful. "That soon there will be joint cooperation on the part of producers and consumers in coming to reasonable terms," on the question of supplying food to the world.

"While I recognize that we need some government supervision, where food and fiber reserves are concerned in this issue, the least amount of government intervention we have affecting agriculture, the better off the farming industry and consumers will be," Graunard said.

Bruntner said the question of food and fiber reserves is part of a broader discussion of agriculture.

"What we really need is an adequate inventory of food cereals in the world to safeguard against adverse weather conditions and food shortages, no one in his right mind would deny this," he said.

"The need for a rational, long-range food policy is obvious and part of that policy is the requirement for reserves in conjunction with a reliable system of export management," Mrs. Zewel said.

Graunard said farmers cannot produce for sentimental reasons anymore, because they need to make profits.

2 Men Arraigned On Gun Charges

Two Pampa men have been charged with unlawfully carrying a gun on the premises of a business licensed to sell alcoholic beverages, and one charged additionally with assault, as the result of shooting Jan. 11 at a local night spot.

Gilberto Villareal and Pedro Rodriguez were both treated for gunshot wounds inflicted by 25 caliber weapons after the incident.

Police investigating the incident found seven spent shells at the scene and photographed holes in a wall which were believed results of the incident.

Witnesses said several shots were exchanged by the pair. Police said evidence indicated as many as 11 shots have been fired.

The men were arraigned on the charges before Justice of the Peace G.L. Nat Lunsford after their arrests by local police. Judge Lunsford set bond at $1,000 on each charge.

UNIFICATION STEP

Canterbury Archbishop Installed

CANTERBURY, England (UPI) — The installation of a round-faced, bespectacled clergyman as archbishop of Canterbury today marks a major step toward the unification of the world's Christian denominations.

Donald Coggan takes over as the 101st archbishop of Canterbury, assuming the throne of St. Augustine and leadership of the Anglican church.

The Vatican sent an official delegation to the colorful ceremony at Canterbury Cathedral for the first time since the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches split 400 years ago.

Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, president of the Vatican Unity Commission, French Cardinal Francois Marty and Belgian Cardinal Jozef Suenens joined churchmen from all main Christian denominations at the ceremony.

American evangelist Billy Graham, patriarchs of the Greek and Russian Orthodox churches and representatives of other Protestant denominations also traveled to Canterbury, emphasizing the ecumenical nature of the installation.

The ceremony calls for the 65-year-old cleric to knock for admittance at the door of the cathedral and then follow a dozen processions up the aisle to his throne.

"It is far and away the most important ecumenical event since Christendom became divided," the London Times said.

Coggan's 64-million member church holds a strategic middle position between Roman Catholicism and the evangelistic Protestant faiths.

Geoffrey Fisher, the 99th Archbishop of Canterbury in a line stretching back to 1206, visited Pope John XXIII at the Vatican shortly before retiring in 1961 to begin a move toward Christian unity.

Michael Ramsey, who retired as 100th archbishop last year, narrowed the gap by publishing joint Catholic-Anglican statements on the eucharist and the ministry.

But the new archbishop, in a television interview this week, said his first priority would be to revive the flagging Church of England, faced with shrinking congregations and decaying ancient churches.

Coggan, married with two daughters, was the archbishop of York until nominated by Queen Elizabeth and Prime Minister Harold Wilson to head the Anglican church.

Prince Charles, the queen's representative, joined Wilson and opposition leader Edward Heath at the ceremony in the nave of crumbling Canterbury Cathedral.

Local Crime Rate Increases

Pampa's crime rate increased 17 percent in 1974, closely parallel with the national rate prediction, according to acting Pampa chief of police, George Wallace.

The annual crime rate, based on major crimes, homicide, rape, armed robbery and assault, shows a 40 percent overall clearance rate in Pampa, well above the national clearance rate which is expected to be set at 19-20 percent.

Wallace said national rates would not be computed for several weeks.

Cases recorded by Pampa police reveal the department report of 100 percent clearance on incidents involving homicide, rape and armed robbery in 1974.

The clearance rate for assault in 1974 is 88 percent. Auto thefts have been 59 percent cleared for the year, and 28 percent of larceny and grand theft incidents have been marked cleared.

Forty-six percent of the 163 burglaries which occurred in 1974 have been cleared.

Wallace said he expects the Pampa report to be slightly under or close to the national figure.

IRA Leaders Agreeable To Indefinite Cease-Fire

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army has agreed on an indefinite cease-fire in Northern Ireland but intends to demonstrate its power in the province with a final show of strength.

IRA sources said today the leaders of the outlawed underground group voted this week to resume the collapsed holiday truce during secret peace talks in Dublin.

The sources said the IRA would order its guerrillas to halt attacks "within the next 48 hours" but would wait until next week before officially announcing the truce.

The sources said an outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland and Britain this week was part of a last-minute IRA show of strength before the renewal of the 25-day cease-fire.

The Roman Catholic group bombed a pumping station near London Thursday night a few hours after blasting the biggest hotel in Belfast. Four persons were injured at the station but there were no casualties at the Europa Hotel.

The IRA, which has been fighting to unite majority Protestant Northern Ireland with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic, began its holiday truce Dec. 22 but called off the cease-fire Jan. 16. Four persons have been killed since then.

The IRA sources said the new fighting was aimed at strengthening the group's position in peace talks with Northern Ireland Secretary Merlyn Rees, Britain's overseer in the province.

"Our operations over the past week have indicated that we are negotiating from a position of strength," one source said.

The IRA has been demanding an end to internment of suspected terrorists without trial and a reduction in British troop strength in the province before renewing the truce.

But Britain has insisted on a permanent IRA truce before ending internment or reducing the number of troops in the war-torn province.

Gummen hijacked a car in the Irish Republic Thursday night, placed a bomb in the vehicle and left the auto at a checkpoint across the border in Northern Ireland. The bomb exploded but there were no injuries.

Police said two hijacked trucks believed to be boobytrapped with bombs were left Thursday blocking a road between Londonderry and Belfast. The road was sealed off until munitions experts reached the scene at daybreak.

Dahomey Crushes Rebellion

COTONOU, Dahomey (UPI) - The military regime in the West African nation of Dahomey has reported crushing an uprising led by a rebel cabinet minister. The national radio said Thursday the Military Revolutionary Government put down an attempted coup earlier in the week by Capt. Janvier Assogba, a tank officer and labor minister. The radio said Assogba led his armored troops into the city of Cotonou on Tuesday in an abortive attempt to topple the two-year-old regime of Maj. Mathieu Kerekou. Government sources said loyalist troops put down the uprising without a shot being fired. The government struck hard, one source said. But the MRG took every measure so that no shots would be fired. The radio broadcast said Assogba, who commanded troops in the town of Odah 50 miles west of Cotonou, was arrested, stripped of his posts and sentenced to 60 days in a military stockade. Information Minister Martin Dohou Azoneh said another highly placed person was also implicated in the rebellion. He declined to identify the suspect. But sources close to the government said Bertin Borna, a member of Dahomey's U.N. delegation, was ordered back to Porto Novo to explain his possible role in the uprising. Porto Novo is the official capital of Dahomey but Cotonou is the largest city and the seat of most government offices in the nation of 2.8 million. Sources said Maj. Kerekou, who came to power in an October, 1972 military coup might add a more severe penalty to the original 60-day jail term given Assogba. Dahomey a narrow nation 415 miles long and 77 miles wide won its independence in 1960 after 56 years as a French territory. The country about the size of Tennessee is bounded by Niger, Upper Volta, Nigeria and Togo. Kerekou, who holds the post of president, prime minister and minister of planning and defense, came to power in the fifth coup since independence.

Inquest Jury Says Prigmore Death Accident

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) - An inquest jury has ruled Midland attorney Richard T. Prigmore, killed Jan. 7 under the wheels of a freight train, died accidentally. Thursday's three-hour inquest officially established Prigmore, 40, accidentally fell under a freight train just west of Shallowater, Tex. and did not commit suicide. The day before his death, Prigmore was charged in Midland on two federal complaints — interstate transportation of stolen property involving a $30,000 painting by western artist Charles Russell allegedly stolen in Midland and transported to Oklahoma and assault on a federal officer. Prigmore was dead on arrival at a Lubbock hospital after being run over by the train. He carried no identification, but a car registered in his name was stopped and the hood raised near a highway crossing where the accident occurred. Lucias Burton of Odessa, Prigmore's attorney, said he was not able to establish Prigmore's whereabouts from 11 p.m. Jan. 6 to the time of his death the following afternoon even though he contacted both his law partner and the FBI on the day of his death. Prigmore was released Jan. 6 on $20,000 bail. His wife described him as calm under the circumstances but very determined he was not going to talk about the charges against him.

EGYPT OBJECTS Israel Constructing New Defense Line For Sinai

By United Press International - Israel has stepped up construction of a quarter of a billion dollar defense line in the Sinai between the Suez Canal and the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes, military sources said today. Egypt has demanded Israel surrender the passes in any second phase peace negotiations. In Cairo, meanwhile, Jordan's King Hussein predicted the next Arab-Israeli war would have unprecedented bloodshed and the backing of the superpowers. "The question... is not whether such a catastrophe can be avoided but for how long it can be avoided," Hussein told the Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram. "Unlike the last war, the next one will be total. I do not know what kinds of weapons will be used in it, but I know that the two sides have horrible weapons. Bloodshed will be unprecedented and big-power involvement in the conflict cannot be ruled out."

Israeli military sources said more than $64 million already has been spent on new roads, fortifications, tank traps, fortified positions, fences and minefields west of the two strategic passes. Another $160 million expenditure is planned. Both the Gidi and Mitla passes are opposite the canal and are the key to control of the Sinai. Any successful Egyptian armored thrust into the peninsula must come through the passes. The area is surrounded by flat desert lands in the north and the mountain passes in the south. In New York, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger said Thursday he is confident the United States can provide the resources needed to sustain Israeli troops should a fifth war break out. Since the 1973 war the United States has shipped 600 tanks, many of them the most modern in the American arsenal, 56 F4 Phantom jets, sophisticated electronic equipment to protect. LESS OCCUPANCY - SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) - While the number of visitors arriving in Puerto Rico has increased 8.1 per cent in the last six years, the hotel occupancy rate has dropped 7.4 per cent in the same period, according to the government Tourism Development Co. Fischer were never recovered, but the two were officially pronounced dead earlier this week following an inquest by Justice of the Peace Jim McMurtry. At that inquest, a Texas Ranger and an Austin policeman testified they believed the men were killed and sawed into small pieces with a band saw at a taxidermy shop where Kleasen worked part time. The officers found blood stained clothing belonging to the two missionaries at Kleasen's trailer home. They said the band saw in the taxidermy shop had bits of human blood, tissue and hair in its blade. The hair in the saw matched samples obtained from the missionaries' families. Police contend Kleasen sawed the bodies and disposed of the parts in a garbage container used to hold animal parts from the taxidermy shop. The animal remains are eventually ground for use in making fertilizer.

Grand Jury Indicts Kleasen

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) - A county grand jury has indicted Robert Elmer Kleasen, 42, on two charges of capital murder for the slaying of two Mormon missionaries whose bodies were allegedly sawed into bits at a taxidermy shop. The indictment, issued late Thursday, alleged Kleasen caused the deaths of Gary Smith, 20, and Mark Fischer, 19, in some manner and by some means unknown to the grand jury. Bond on each indictment was set at $100,000 by the grand jury. Kleasen is currently in federal custody on a firearms regulation violation. Doctors at a federal hospital in Springfield, Mo., ruled Kleasen is mentally incompetent to stand trial on the firearms charge, and may have been mentally incompetent at the time the two missionaries were killed last October. FROM REGENTS

Briscoe Wants College Control

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has sided with the College Coordinating Board in its longstanding feud with the board of regents of the University of Texas system.

"We ought to either strengthen the College Coordinating Board or not have a coordinating board," Briscoe said Thursday. "I intend to do battle for this."

Briscoe told a capitol news conference he is giving top priority to convincing the legislature it should give the board veto power over all construction at state colleges and universities and authority to set enrollment ceilings for each campus.

Briscoe said he expects some opposition from the University of Texas board of regents, the most powerful college governing board in the state. New regents chairman, former Gov. Allan Shivers, called Briscoe's suggestion "Absolutely absurd."

The governor said the state could realize a substantial savings if it eliminated lobbying by college officials. And he said he thinks the college lobbyists should have to report the money they spend-trying to influence legislators to get the money they want.

On other matters, Briscoe said: "No new taxes will be necessary this year or in 1977 if legislators follow his budget recommendations."

—He will veto any bill requiring new taxes and oppose any change in the existing tax structure such as substitution of a refinery tax on petroleum products for the present gasoline tax.

—He will submit his detailed budget proposals to the legislature next week.

—His spending recommendations, including an additional $1 billion for public schools, will leave the state with a surplus of $60 million for the 1976-77 biennium.

—He will oppose any proposal for utility regulation that denies local governments the right to continue local supervision of telephone rates.

—The legislature should authorize the Railroad Commission to do what state regulation is needed rather than create a special utility commission.

—He will propose funding the new mass transit fund out general tax revenues and recommend an amount of $15 to $25 million.

—The highway commission will have to agree with local governments on what projects to spend the transit funds for under his proposal.

—The task of regulating health maintenance organizations should be given to the state insurance commissioner. He said he's not ready yet to say if he thinks HMO's should be doctor controlled.

—He wants a constitutional amendment authorizing higher pensions for retired teachers and state employees submitted to voters April 5.

Oil Directive Meets Opposition

United Press International President Ford imposed higher tariffs on imported oil Thursday, an action that will drive up the price of gasoline by at least three cents a gallon.

The President hopes higher prices will make American's use less oil, reducing the country's dependence on foreign sources.

It is a part of his energy and economic package that he outlined last week. He also has proposed tax rebates from $80 for low income families up to $1,000 for those with taxable incomes over $40,000.

The labor group adopted its own program calling for a $20 billion tax cut weighted in favor of low and middle income families with a maximum cut of $375 per return. It also called for a ban on oil imports from any country that participated in the 1973-74 embargo against the United States, gas rationing, lower interest rates, and a massive federal job program.

In Congress, Democrats began a move to rescind the higher tariffs, seeking to make it veto proof by attaching it to a measure proposed by Ford lifting the ceiling on the federal debt.

There was good news from Detroit. Automakers reported that mid-January sales, spurred by rebates, increased 41 per cent from early January. Auto sales have been in a slump, and thousands of auto workers have been laid off.

"If we can keep this going, we'll get our people back to work," said E. K. Brown, a Chrysler vice president, after sales figures were released Thursday.

Two oil companies reported increased profits for 1974. Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said its 1974 profit amounted to $3.14 billion, up 29 per cent from its $2.44 billion profit in 1973. That was about 2.4 cents profit per gallon, the company said. Occidental Petroleum Corp. said it earned about $284 million in 1974, or $4.81 a share. That compared with $1.10 a share in earnings in 1973. The government said Thursday a $700 million rate increase sought by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was inflationary and should be suspended pending a formal investigation.

Your Horoscope

By Jean Dixon

SATURDAY, JAN. 25
Your birthday today: Finds you confirming your skills, beginning steady advances in career, encountering rivalry and competition on all sides. Although relationships get crowded by your heavy schedule, older people are generally favored. Today's natives are determined to develop and promote improvements (whether on a small scale or worldwide depends on how well placed they are).

Aries [March 21-April 19]: People resist just enough to be sure you mean it, so express yourself vigorously. If you're free to forget obligations today and go somewhere new, by all means do so.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Be immune to a sales pitch. Look at your household with a critical eye and begin planning necessary changes. Electrical equipment requires special care for safety.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Lead the way today—you have the energy and generate more as you go. Bring home some gadget that makes daily living more convenient. Romantic ventures seem stymied.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Stop when you're ahead, whether in business or recreation. If your friends are all out or away, assume they need to be. Find something useful to do for your own future.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: You'll be more effective if you go along with associates and encourage them to act rather than talk. There's enough excitement in the news to keep matters stirred up.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Anything you get involved in is likely to develop extremes beyond what you're skilled at handling. Take it easy. Pastimes likewise run to escapist extremes.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Invite friends for a planning session along with the usual diversions. Flaws in recent arrangements can be corrected if pursued in good faith, without recrimination.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You must conform to the customs and expectations of others in order to make progress today. Pursue romantic inclinations, but don't neglect your home.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Thumb through your accounts, organize a drive to collect what should have come to you already. Go in for physical activity, competitive sports.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Willy-nilly, you find yourself in unfamiliar situations. Concentrate on enjoying the novelty; talk about it later.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: New projects are favored; do them well if you do them at all. What seems unconventional is mainly so because of the way you look at it. Prefer hobbies involving exercise.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Be out and around early. See to the neighborly touches that improve your standing with both friends and the community in general. Compete with confidence and enthusiasm.

FIVE CENT CIGAR
NEW YORK (UPI) — "What this country needs is a good five cent cigar," said Vice President Thomas R. Marshall in 1917. In spite of inflation, there are still five cent cigars 58 years later.

The Cigar Manufacturers of America list seven industry price groups for cigars and cigarillos, including three categories of cigars costing five cents or less. Since the 1917 nickel would be worth a dime in purchasing power in 1975, the luxury cigar currently costing 20 cents and up, such as a handrolled Royal Jamaican, costs only double the price of Marshall's cigar.

The Woman's View

NEW YORK (UPI) — So you're a woman going for the first time into or returning to the job world for one reason or another. Maybe it's to supplement family income in the face of inflation...

Whatever the reason, Marcia Goldenberg and Dolores Sancetta, working wives, suggest that state of mind is an important matter in your approach.

"Women fear rejection most," said Mrs. Sancetta. "They've been in charge at home and now someone is in charge of them."

"It is helpful if you've already had business experience," said Mrs. Goldenberg, who has.

Try even a temporary or part-time job," she said. "It takes courage but take the chance if you fall on your face, get up and start again."

Neither woman really needed the income when they combined forces two years ago to form the D. M. I. talent agency. They got the agency name from using the first letters of their own names and adding an "I" for incorporated.

The trend today is to change types, they said. Advertising agencies aren't geared to a beautiful face. There are more realism and more recognizable people.

Mrs. Goldenberg's husband, Martin, is a production manager for a New York garment manufacturer.

Mrs. Sancetta's husband, Antonio, is chief of surgery at Central General Hospital in Plainfield, N.Y. on Long Island.

Mrs. Sancetta, daughter of an actor, had done some performing but said that after her marriage, "I went suburban."

"One day I asked myself, 'Is this for the rest of my life?' Oh, no."

But when she returned to work, Mrs. Sancetta said, at first she would ask, "Why am I doing this, getting up early again to commute to the city, shopping on Saturdays? Then I realized it's dreadful to be purposeless. I'm happier functioning."

Their business grew from their show background—Mrs. Sancetta, as an actress, and Mrs. Goldenberg, owner of her own talent agency.

Mrs. Goldenberg previously had worked as executive secretary for various firms, landed at National Educational Television, and moved up through the ranks there to production chief.

The women call their clients "kids", although they place persons from six months to 60 years and on up. If you're a steady television watcher, you've seen many who got their jobs through D. M. I.

In two years, they've placed people in more than 75 network commercials. Currently 15 are running, advertising everything from food to banks to denture grips.

The trend today is to change types, they said. Advertising agencies aren't geared to a beautiful face.

The women say to aspiring actors and actresses that the opportunities have narrowed in the movie field because fewer movies are being made because of soaring costs.

But if you will not deter, hard work is the way to your goal.

"Look at the superstars," said Mrs. Goldenberg. "They got there because they studied their craft and they keep studying."

The Lana Turner thing just doesn't happen anymore. Miss Turner was billed as the star discovered first at a drug store fountain in Hollywood.

Xi Beta Chi Has Program On CPR

Members of Xi Beta Chi met recently in the home of Mrs. James Lee, who introduced the guests for the evening who were Mrs. Jessie Newberry, supervisor of nurses and Mrs. Jean Johnson, R.N., both nurses at the Highland General Hospital, who presented the program in connection with the American Heart Association.

Mrs. Johnson gave different warning signals on how to recognize symptoms of heart attacks and how CPR may save the life of a victim.

They set up mannequins and instructed club members how to carry out certain steps in trying to save a life as different club members participated.

REVIVALTIME CHIOR

First Assembly Will Host Famous Revivaltime Singers

According to an announcement by the pastor, R. L. Courtney, the world-famous "Revivaltime" Choir will be singing at the First Assembly of God Church in Pampa tonight.

Pastor Courtney and the Congregation of First Assembly invites the people of Pampa to hear this concert recording choir in this special service which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

"Revivaltime" is the international radio broadcast of The Assemblies of God. Currently released over more than 650 U.S. and foreign stations, including Station KPDM of Pampa. The program originates each week from Springfield, Mo. The choir is featured in several numbers on each broadcast.

Members of the 40-voice mixed choir are selected from the student body of Central Bible College, one of the ministerial training schools of The Assemblies of God.

Those who attend this personal appearance of the "Revivaltime" Choir will hear gospel music at its finest. New songs as well as old favorites will be presented. In addition, the choir will present a "Sermon in Song" this is a series of sacred selections interspersed with brief testimonies from choir members.

The director of the group is the Rev. Cyril McLellan. He has directed the radio choir since 1952 and serves as an assistant

Dakotas' Bishop Under Fire For Issue Stands

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

The Rev. James Armstrong, United Methodist bishop of the Dakotas area, has always been an outspoken leader of his church in social and political issues.

But during last fall's congressional campaign, when Armstrong's home-state senator, Democrat George McGovern, was in what was widely regarded as McGovern's toughest fight, many of Armstrong's fellow Methodists thought the bishop was going too far.

Armstrong's activity included appearances in television ads for McGovern, an address to the South Dakota state convention of the Democrat party and a letter endorsing McGovern which Armstrong sent to editors and news directors of the state's media.

For those who were dismayed by Armstrong's activities the problem was the age-old issue of the separation of church and state and what they considered to be Armstrong's confusion of the sacred and secular realms.

Some of those dissidents called for a public meeting at Sioux Falls' First United Methodist Church and passed a resolution which said Armstrong's political activity was "very counterproductive to the purposes of the United Methodist Church" and requested the bishop end political activity "and to give his time and his talents to the ministry of the Gospel among us and the enlargement of our spiritual and church capacities."

The Armstrong case raises the question of what role the church and church leaders can or should play in secular political and social affairs.

Increasingly, both religious

In his writings about the good Samaritan found in Luke 10:30-37, Jesus is explaining how that man should love his neighbor and what it truly is to love one's neighbor.

Can we not also picture the HEAVENLY FATHER as being our GOOD SAMARITAN. For in John 3-16 it says, THAT GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON THAT WHOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE.

So many times in our lives we fail to find our true friend because we fail to look to God.

Luke continues in Chapter 15:4-7 about the lost sheep. Some fail to see the significance of these four verses of scripture but Jesus is telling how that if one of his should go astray that he would do his utmost to retrieve that one which had strayed from the fold of God. He is letting us know that God the father, Christ the Son, The Holy Spirit and even the angels of heaven are concerned about us.

Luke explains this even farther in chapter 15:11-32, when he tells of the prodigal son. The one that wanted to squander and live in the ways and cares of the world until he realized that there was a safer and better life to be lived. So it is when a person repents and turns to God, and becomes a part of that heavenly family. A child of God, this is where true happiness is obtained, by the Grace of God.

We could go further and talk of the Pharisee and the Publican in Luke 18:10-14 or maybe we should remember Zacchaeus in Luke 19:2-10 and how this man little in stature yet he stood tall before the son of God and his love and acceptance toward Jesus whom so many had rejected.

Let us remember the thief on the cross found in Luke 23:39-43. This man was being crucified as Christ was yet, he said himself that he was guilty. He asked Jesus to remember him. Jesus uttered beautiful words unto this man. TODAY THOU SHALT BE WITH ME IN PARADISE.

These are words that we all want to hear, but let us not just ask that Jesus remember us but let us remember Jesus, while we have time. Let us remember Jesus while we live this life, how that he so loves us and wants us to love him and remember him as the friend to mankind.

WARNING SIGNS

Toothache, Neck Pains Could Be Heart Attack

This is the fifth of eight articles sponsored by the Panhandle Emergency Medical Services Systems, Inc. to acquaint the public with the early warning signs of heart attack.

cardiologist consultant when former President Lyndon Johnson suffered a heart attack.

Countless thousands of people in the United States have had their teeth pulled or have died of a heart attack, Dr. Hurst said, thinking that pain in the jaw was due to bad teeth.

A survey of 91 heart patients admitted to a hospital cardiovascular intensive care unit in the 18-county area during five months after the educational campaign began showed that up to 25 percent attributed their response to the news media.

Examples of such media response were unearthed in another survey, 30 days after the campaign began. One patient was a man, 56 who had gone directly to a doctor's office after reading the first newspaper story.

He described three episodes of pain in the center of the chest at night, with sweating and pain extending into the neck, jaws, and both arms.

How did he happen to visit a doctor? Two of these spells came after we had barbeque for supper and we wondered if they could be due to indigestion. The third spell happened just before the Sunday newspaper story which described it just like I acted," he said.

He added that he thought it was peculiar that his jaws hurt, since he had false teeth.

Other easily learned warning symptoms may be a pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching in the chest, arms, back or upper abdomen.

Getting someone with these early signs to have a checkup may be like pulling teeth, but the Heart Association says it may be a matter of life or death.

Next: Symptoms — abdominal pain.

Union coalition attacks right to work lobby

By BENJAMIN SHORE Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — A 15-year-old piece of federal labor law is getting its first court test in a complex legal battle shaping up between a coalition of 10 major labor unions and an organization dedicated to opposing compulsory union membership.

On the attack is the union coalition represented by attorney Joseph L. Rauh Jr., 84, who is known for his deep involvement in civil liberties issues and liberal Democratic politics.

On the defensive is the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation, which is associated with the 19-year-old National Right to Work Committee, the leading lobbying group opposing laws that inhibit voluntary union membership.

Rauh filed suit in the federal court here in May, 1973, seeking to stop the NRWLF from providing legal assistance to workers in battles against alleged compulsory union membership.

The suit contended that the NRWLF is in violation of one section of the 1959

Landrum-Griffin Act which bars the financing, participation or encouragement by "interested employers" either "directly or indirectly" in such workers' legal actions.

Rauh's union clients say that the acknowledged financial contributions of employers to the NRWLF are prima facie evidence of the foundation's violation of federal law.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey last June agreed with Rauh and ordered the NRWLF to disclose the names of its employer and business contributors. The NRWLF has appealed.

In an interview, Reed Larson, president of the foundation, outlined the two main arguments in its defense.

First, the Landrum-Griffin Act's phrase "interested employer" means an employer whose company is directly involved with the union being fought by a worker, he said.

Second, the separate legal defense arm of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) won a legal battle in 1962 in which the state of Alabama tried to find out who was giving money to the civil rights organization.

The NAACP's victory was based on the constitutional protection of freedom to associate and of privacy in such associations.

But Rauh argues that the contribution of funds by "interested employers" to the NRWLF is in violation of the Landrum-Griffin Act and is not a broad constitutional question.

Rauh acknowledged in an interview that the law does not define the term "interested employer," but he contends that the legislative history of that law supports his view that Congress intended the law to cover at least employers, unions and workers in the same general line of business, such as steel, trucking and textiles.

"The legislative history is very broad," Rauh said, "applying to anyone who has a reason, a motivation to contribute" to an antiunion legal effort.

"Since when do employers give money for things they're not interested in?" Rauh asked rhetorically.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill Attorney General

AUSTIN — Consumer debt — we've all been reading about it, and most of us have experienced it in some measure.

It's a well-publicized fact that many consumers who previously committed themselves and part of their income for time payments on major appliances, cars, revolving charge accounts, perhaps loans, are now facing a money crunch.

This is because other bills for essentials such as gasoline, utilities, food, clothing, and housing have skyrocketed in the meantime in a manner which couldn't be foreseen.

Some consumers who have never before had money problems are shocked to realize that their monthly bills eat up all of their paycheck — and then some.

What happens in such a situation, and what can a consumer do about it? The Attorney General's Consumer Protection

Division lawyers say many consumers simply do not know how to extricate themselves when they have been caught up in a web of debt.

Some refuse to accept the fact that they must make changes in their way of living. Others panic, not knowing how to deal with the problem, or who to turn to for information and assistance. Still others try to ignore the problem, hoping that in a few months it will correct itself.

But most often, say our Consumer Protection experts, this just doesn't happen. What does happen is that the situation usually gets worse. Sometimes it isn't until letters from creditors begin to arrive, pressing for payment of overdue bills, that the consumer faces the fact that adjustments must be made.

By that time, his overdue debts may have been turned over to a professional debt collection agency by his creditors, who themselves may be caught in a money crunch.

Many debt collection agencies perform a necessary service for creditors, and operate strictly within legal and ethical bounds. A few, however, do not.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division attorneys remind consumers that debt collectors who use threats, harassment, or unfair means to collect payments are violating the Texas Debt Collection Practice Act.

In the Attorney General's brochure "A Practical Primer for the Texas Consumer," several examples of specific illegal actions are included:

- Threatening to file unwarranted criminal charges against a person.
- Using profane or obscene language to abuse a consumer.

- Making annoying telephone calls to the consumer or his family.

- Trying to collect extra charges not legally chargeable to the consumer.
Others include using a misleading name to contact a consumer; the agency is in some way connected with a federal, state, or local government entity by use of some official-looking insignia; or misrepresenting that a debt is being collected by an attorney if this is not the case.

Our Consumer Protection attorneys also caution consumers trying to overcome a chronic monthly cash shortage against dealing with "debt consolidation firms," often called "debt adjusters." Such firms are illegal in Texas.

Some out-of-state "debt consolidation" firms advertise in magazines and by mail, however, and their promises sound appealing to indebted consumers: "Send us a list of your monthly bills and the amount of your income. We'll pay your bills and have enough left for your living expenses!"

What the firms fail to advertise is that the fee for such services may be exorbitant, and that this is usually the FIRST item deducted from your paycheck. Whatever remains is divided between you and your creditors.

For assistance with consumer complaints, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Drug Conspiracy Charges Dropped

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The U. S. attorney has dropped a conspiracy count against the founder of the Chad Mitchell Trio music group in connection with the smuggling of 400 pounds of marijuana from Mexico.

William Chadbourne Mitchell, 38, of New York, will be sentenced Feb. 12 on his conviction for two other counts of conspiracy and possession of the marijuana.

He was found guilty by Chief U. S. district Judge Adrian Spears in a nonjury trial on Jan. 14 and faces punishment of up to five years in prison and a $15,000 fine on each count.

Spears approved dropping of the third charge on Wednesday.

Sir Winston Churchill died at 90 on Jan. 24, 1965.

BUSINESS TODAY

Productivity Challenge

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Productivity is a major ingredient in business success, but often an elusive one that challenges management.

Maynard Research Council Inc. here has developed procedures for both management and labor to stimulate productivity among those using the Council's training courses are 67 of Fortune magazine's top 100 companies.

"We have helped about 800 firms improve their productivity through training," Duane C. Gettgey, senior vice president of Maynard, said.

"We also have a good track record with unions. Our methods are accepted by them. We have done arbitration studies and trained union workers in measurement specialties."

Robert E. Cowie, managing director of training for Maynard, said.

"We have trained 8,000 persons during the past year. We have three training centers in Canada, seven in the United States and two in Mexico." The courses employ varied, modern instructional techniques including audio presentations, lectures, films and programmed learning.

Maynard has been successful in getting labor and management to work together in special productivity sessions. "Instead of being adversaries, they work toward a common goal — productivity," Gettgey said.

"Productivity problems are not confined to management alone. Workers face the same problem — meeting competition. Our labor-management productivity sessions stress elimination of action that is not productive."

Last June, a large midwestern manufacturer contacted Maynard to assist in finding better ways of meeting competition.

The company and the union formed a productivity committee, each represented by five members, which attended special sessions on productivity improvement and work measurement techniques for six weeks at Maynard's Pittsburgh headquarters. There were free-wheeling discussions led by Cowie.

"These discussions established a spirit of cooperation among committee members that helped eliminate the adversary attitudes often encountered when management and union members meet," Gettgey said.

Two weeks of sessions were held in Indianapolis, Ind., and then a pilot project was set up at the plant which employs 3,200 workers.

"This is further evidence company and unions are beginning to work together toward better productivity," Gettgey said. "Our role is to get both sides to discuss productivity problems freely. Both sides accepted our methods, so it was nothing like a bargaining session. A real spirit of cooperation developed."

"In many cases," he said, "companies and workers are not aware of potential productivity improvements... Each side has its own views, but it is up to Maynard, as a catalyst, to bring about a mutual understanding through our programs."

Maynard also has worked with firms in Australia, England, Holland, South Africa and Puerto Rico.

Recently it embarked on a new project relating to development of health care supervisory training. Currently, it is preparing the program with a Pittsburgh hospital, and the work already has elicited inquiries from several other hospitals.

LATEST STING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation's latest sting is a 200 per cent increase in the price of queen bees.

"A queen could be bought for only $1.50 or $2 only 18 months ago, but today one costs $5 or $6," according to E.C. Martin, an insect biologist at Michigan State University.

Martin says the cost is up because of a bee shortage brought on by a booming demand for honey—as consumers seek something to replace high-priced cane and beet sugar.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Friday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1975 with 341 to follow.
The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius. American sculptor Paul Wayland Bartlett was born Jan. 24, 1865. This is actor Ernest Borgnine's 57th birthday.

On this day in history:
In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, a general in the British Army.

In 1922, Christian Nelson of Onawa, Iowa, received a patent for his "Eakimo Pie," a brick of ice cream encased in a coating of chocolate.

In 1965, the world mourned the death of famous English statesman Sir Winston Churchill, known as the "first citizen of the free world" and leader of Britain during the darkest days of World War Two.

In 1974, Egil Krogh Jr., former head of the secret White House investigative unit known as the "Plumbers," was sentenced to six months in prison on charges growing out of the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

A thought for the day: During World War Two, Sir Winston Churchill said: "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."
