Nation's Health Better?

United Press International
The nation's economic health is showing signs of improving—but workers are still losing their jobs and a government report says the recession definitely is still here.

The stock market surged Wednesday for the third day in a row, and economists expected even lower interest rates by the end of the week to stimulate the economy.

In another encouraging sign, the number of persons applying for unemployment compensation dropped last week for the first time in a month.

But at the same time, the government released a report of leading economic indicators that confirms the nation is in the worst recession since the economic collapse of the 1930s.

There also were several announcements of workers losing their jobs. General Motors said it is closing seven plants for one week, four more than previously announced.

In Washington, sources said the number of persons using government food stamps rose to 17 million in December—8 per cent of the population—from 15.8 million in November.

The nation's unemployment rate in December was 7.5 per cent and was expected to near 8 per cent this month.

The surge in the stock market and the lower interest rates do not mean heavy layoffs and production cuts will end immediately. Rather, they provide strong signals of better days by mid-year.

The stock market historically has gone into an upward swing six months before a general economic recovery.

In three days of trading this week on the New York Stock Exchange, $2.1 billion shares were traded, surpassing last week's five-day total by 10 million shares and nearing the all-time weekly volume of 110.6 million Feb. 8-12, 1971, when the economy was booming.

Prices also rose sharply. The Dow Jones industrial average, a widely watched barometer of price trends, rose 11.19 to 706.96 Wednesday. It was the first time it has been over 700 in five months.

The hectic trading activity and the widespread gain in prices have led some analysts to believe the two-year market decline has ended.

A spokesman for Walter B. Wriston, chairman of First National City Bank of New York, said the banker believes the prime interest rate probably would decline to 9 1/2 per cent from 9 3/4 per cent on Friday.

Ford Enjoys Eating Turnips?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford Wednesday displayed that special diplomatic grace under pressure required of lion tamers, department store complaint managers and White House occupants.

Presidents are required by protocol to greet personally, accept the credentials of and make polite small talk with every new ambassador, minister or envoy from the more than 100 countries represented in Washington.

Harry Truman likened the task to eating raw turnips.

President Ford at 3:59 p.m. stepped out of the Roosevelt Room where a table full of economic writers had grilled him on his anti-recession and energy program.

He had 30 minutes in which to dispose of four new ambassadors before Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, intelligence chiefs and generals and admirals brought him an intray of Middle East, Indochina and other assorted national security council problems.

65 ARRESTED

Students Protest Narcs At High School Campus

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI)—High school students, angered by the presence of undercover narcotics officers on their campus, rampaged across the school Wednesday throwing rocks and smashing windows.

Police used tear gas to stop the insurrection and arrested 65 youths.

No one was injured, but windows in the school and a number of vehicles, including several police cars and a school bus, were smashed during the mid-day disturbance.

The disturbance was triggered by an incident involving four undercover narcotics officers on the school grounds, which authorities said had been the scene of alleged marijuana peddling for several years.

Authorities said 61 youths will be taken before juvenile probation officer Charles Smith 61 today. Four older youths were charged as adults with disorderly conduct and criminal damage to property, the same charges brought against all the juveniles except one accused of assaulting an officer in the incident that touched off the disturbance.

A spokesman said other youths may be arrested today on the basis of photographic and eyewitness evidence of their involvement in the disturbance.

Classes at the school, located near the New Mexico-Texas border north of El Paso, were scheduled to be held as usual today.

One of the plainclothes officers involved in the original incident said he and his three fellow-officers went on to the campus unarmed in an effort to talk to some youths as part of a drug preventive program.

The policeman asked his name be withheld because of his work.

He said they began talking with a youth about the problem of marijuana smoking and the boy, a juvenile, became resentful and abusive to the officers.

When the officers arrested the youth on a charge of assaulting an officer, the undercover agent said, the narcotics agents were surprised at the quick escalation of the situation.

Other students converged on the scene and police started chasing some of them away, according to the officer. At that point, the situation quickly degenerated into a rock-throwing melee that had to be put down with tear gas.

The four officers were pelted by flying rocks but none was injured, their spokesman said.

Thirteen units from the county sheriff's department converged on the scene after the rock-throwing began.

FOR FUND AID

PRPC Gives Approval To Pampa's Application

Pampa's application for federal funding assistance in construction of its proposed $1.24 million sewage treatment plant has received final approval of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

In a letter received today from George Louder, executive director, the PRPC stated it found Pampa's application "consistent with area-wide goals and policies, and not inconsistent with comprehensive regional plans now being developed."

The letter went on to state: "The board's review for modification of funds requested in the amount of $1,340,000

Underground Group Blamed For Blasts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government tightened security at federal buildings around the nation today because of Wednesday's $350,000 bombing of the State Department and a bungled explosive attempt in Oakland, Calif.—apparently by radicals.

"We regret these security steps are necessary, because it may bring some temporary inconveniences to federal employees," said Arthur F. Sampson, head of the General Services Administration.

"But our overriding concern is for the safety of these employees and the public."

The "Weather Underground" claimed responsibility for the State Department blast early Wednesday morning and said it planted a bomb found later in the ceiling of the military induction center in Oakland. There were no injuries.

Sampson said patrols of federal buildings and parking areas—especially in Washington—will be increased, packages carried into buildings will be examined and entrances to federal buildings will be locked except where manned by GSA guards.

Sampson also said today initial estimates showed the State Department blast caused $350,000 in damages.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley announced an intensive investigation into the incidents—including bomb threats at several federal buildings in Washington.

In a statement Wednesday night, Kelley did not dispute the claim by the Left Wing group, which denounced U.S. military aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia in anonymous telephone calls and letters.

The Oakland bomb was removed and exploded safely by police. The State Department blast shattered a restroom and three adjoining offices shortly after 1 a.m. EST when the building was virtually empty.

There were also a spate of bomb threats in Washington Wednesday, causing the temporary evacuations of the Interior and Treasury Departments and searches of several other federal buildings. No explosives were found.

State Department operations were back to normal today although security had been tightened with more policemen in the halls. Electricity was restored to most of the offices affected by the blast but two restrooms and three offices were closed because of extensive damage.

Kelley said the "Weather Underground" has claimed responsibility for 19 politically motivated bombings in the United States since 1970, including the Capitol building in 1971 and the Pentagon in 1972.

"This underground, by utilization of false and stolen identities, continues its operations in a most clandestine manner and receives the help of an above-ground support apparatus allowing it to continue its terrorist attacks against the government," said Kelley.

He did not elaborate on the "above-ground support apparatus," but said FBI had been looking for eight "Weather Underground" members—including Bernadine Dohrn—for some time.

There was speculation that the State Department bomb might have been planted by a woman because it went off in a women's restroom.

"Tonight we attack AID in the State Department in Washington and the Department of Defense in Oakland," said a letter signed by the Weather Underground. It contained a rambling denunciation of continued U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

The FBI said the bomb was planted in a women's rest room on the third floor of the State Department, near the offices of the Agency for International Development. The blast collapsed walls, shattered windows, dislodged ceiling tiles and ruptured water pipes, but did not make enough noise to be heard by the building's night crew.

A Washington policeman, Charles Lightner, called it "a damn big bomb... not one of those blow-the-lid-off things." A State Department spokesman, Paul Hare, said Secretary Henry Kissinger was relieved there were no injuries in "this totally senseless act."

Major Oil Spill Plagues Mississippi River Areas

CHALMETTE, La. (UPI)—The Coast Guard today said it was expecting a major oil spill from the fiery collision of an empty freighter and three oil barges in the Mississippi River Wednesday, but that heavy fog was preventing any observation of the spreading pollution.

"We know there's a major oil spill out there," Stanley Christman, spokesman for the Coast Guard's Eighth District headquarters in New Orleans, said. "And we're waiting for the fog to lift. We believe the oil to be coming from one or more of the barges, which now are all rounded up."

The three oil barges and the empty freighter Wednesday collided on the Mississippi River ceating a wall of fire that paralyzed 15 miles of the nation's longest inland waterway.

The barges burst into flames and broke loose from their tugboat to drift aimlessly down the river.

No crewmen on the freighter or the tug were hurt, but crude oil leaked from the damaged barges and caught fire, forming patches of flame that floated downstream dangerously close to 10 ships waiting at anchor. Paint on one of the ships was blistered by the heat.

The Coast Guard banned ship traffic until tugboats were able to snare the oil barges and five other barges they rammed and set free while out of control.

A heavy fog shrouded the river, complicating the fire fighting and recovery job but making the flaming barges an eerie spectacle for the bank.

"Some friends told me they had seen the barges and it looked like the whole river was on fire," said Steve Lemotte, the night clerk at a riverfront store.

"As it got closer you could see flames shooting up in the air—pretty high, around 30 feet. It just kept coming down and getting bigger."

Witnesses aboard another tugboat said the tug Mamma-Lee was pushing the three oil barges upstream when they collided with the freighter American Wheat. The freighter was damaged below the water line and a Coast Guard helicopter dropped pumps to her crew.

S.A. To Provide Help To Seniors

Community services which can be executed by part time volunteer services of older Americans are the targets for a program which is being developed through leadership of the Salvation Army, according to the commanding officer here, Capt. Bart Deggs.

Capt. Deggs said there are several senior citizens in the city which are interested in volunteering services in community endeavors.

Capt. Deggs is coordinator for a new series of programs designed to include the "Golden Aged" in a broader range of community involvement.

Initially the Army set up a Monday dinner meeting for Senior Citizens, provided for transportation arrangements and opened discussions among the participants to determine the areas of interest and need among the retired population.

As a result of the concept, programs of aid to the group as well as investigation into areas needing volunteer services or part time employment for seniors, have begun development.

One program, P.A.L. (Phone and Listen) will provide a telephone friend for seniors who are limited by no means of transportation or by health. Persons wishing to enroll in the program will be given two or three names of elderly persons desiring telephone visits.

Another program open for volunteers wishing to contribute to enrichment of the lives of the retired citizens, is the F.R.I.E.N.D. (For Response In Emergency Needs Department). This program will be comprised of an indexed file listing persons willing to provide transportation to the doctor's office, grocery store, drug store, church or organizational functions, to a senior unable to drive, or without transportation means.

Also, Capt. Deggs reported a need for volunteers who could help with light housekeeping, gardening or home repairs for seniors with limited abilities.

The captain said persons wishing to volunteer services in any of the new programs or in participation as a senior citizen should contact the Salvation Army.

The PRPC also notified the Texas Water Quality Board in Austin of the approval.

Pampa is awaiting word on approval of its request for 75 percent federal aid in plant construction.

A preliminary okay and check for a $17,000 federal grant on Step 1 of the local project application has been received by the city and the Environmental Protection Agency has committed another $50,000 grant on Step 2.

Total federal assistance on the project, if granted, would be in the neighborhood of $24,500.

City Manager Mack Wofford said today Chester Green of Parkhill, Smith and Cooke, Lubbock consultant engineers for the plant project, would be in Pampa today and possibly tomorrow compiling all necessary material for submittal of Step 3 documents for funding construction of the sewage treatment plant.

Green was meeting today with the city manager, Tony Anderson, city water plant supervisor, and Forrest Cloyd of the city engineering department.

Williams Attending Business Sessions

Quentin Williams, Pampa realtor, is in San Antonio attending mid-winter business meetings of the National Association of Realtors and the National Institute of Farm and Land Brokers.

Williams is a member of the Board of Governors and the Education and Long-Range Planning committees.

He served as national president of the IFLB in 1968.

Not Free Enterprise

Charles G. Koch is a successful industrialist president of Koch Industries Inc. of Wichita, Kansas. What is remarkable about Koch is his mastery of the free enterprise philosophy which — and this is one of the key ironies of the age — is so little understood by the preponderance of American businessmen.

Koch recently addressed a seminar on "The Anti-Capitalistic Mentality" conducted in Dallas, Texas by the Institute for Humane Studies. What Koch had to say could prove a source of enlightenment for anti-business activists who imagine that the evils they are combating have their origin in the free enterprise system.

In reality the social evils stem from government mis-planning and interventionism not from free enterprise. This error insists Koch is the assumption that the most influential segments of the American business community actually believe in capitalism — in a free enterprise system — and that there currently exists a free market to be defended and preserved. Neither of these facts is correct and defense of the free market will not succeed if we proceed on the assumption that they are.

The present economic systems of the United States, Koch continues, is a far cry from free enterprise. Who after all can deny that government today is deeply involved in virtually every aspect of business? Strangely while it is largely agreed that there is a crucial need to defend the freedom of business in order to avoid additional regulations, the fact that free enterprise has already been crippled by government intervention is largely ignored.

For some reason many business spokesmen seem to believe that the existing system of interventions represents free enterprise whereas any new regulations would be socialistic. We should realize however that socialism includes not only the socialistic measures proposed but the socialistic measures already adopted.

Koch is certainly on target. In these days when government influences or controls everything from steel prices to household thermostats, there is scarcely any semblance of economic freedom extant. Little wonder that a recent study shows the Mafia to be one of the most profitable enterprises going, for the black market is merely the free market forced into subterranean planes.

Yet even given the reality, anti-business activists proceed as though the world is operated by untrammelled free marketeers. The manifold shortages, dislocations, misallocations, high prices — these are caused by government planners not businessmen, who are swayed by political goals and standards and not by consumer demand as shown on profit and loss sheets.

One of the further implications of Koch's message is that those who favor freedom must show the radicals they are trying to overturn the wrong system, a non-existent system, and putting in its place the same misbegotten error-laden interventionism that has wrought so many evils in the past.

Those who would have us live in freedom have in short radical will to do so. But it is a kind of radicalism that would shake the anti-business radicals to the core.

As the late journalist Garet Garrett poured out 30 years ago, there are those who still think they are holding the pass against a revolution that may be coming up the road. But they are gazing in the wrong direction. The Revolution is behind them.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON
LBJ Suggested Nixon Tapes

By C. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — It was on the advice of former President Lyndon B. Johnson that President Richard Nixon in 1971 installed the White House recording system that eventually brought the destruction of his administration.

The story of the White House tape installation is told by one of Nixon's former close associates who claims it was told to him by Nixon to explain why there had been no early understanding of the inherent dangers of the recording system.

The former Nixon aide relating this story speculates that Nixon and Haldeman did not want to destroy the recordings when President Johnson had said they were the "most valuable" items connection with the Watergate cover-up conspiracy until early April, 1973, when the need arose to find a record of conversations with White House counsel John W. Dean III, who had indicated that he was talking to federal prosecutors.

There is no explanation of why Nixon did not order the recordings destroyed before the Senate Watergate Committee and anyone but the Secret Service technicians and Nixon's most trusted subordinates knew of their existence.

The former Nixon aide relating this story speculates that Nixon and Haldeman did not want to destroy the recordings when President Johnson had said they were the "most valuable" items

At a time when the administration and Congress are looking at a federal deficit of $45 billion and a national debt of $500 billion, the problems of Penn Central Transportation Co. and five other eastern railroads are as welcome in Washington as a skunk at a picnic.

The railroads are pressing Congress for another $250 million to tide them over until the U.S. Railways Association can come up with a plan for their reorganization by July 26.

Even that princely sum is a drop in the bucket so far as rehabilitation of the eastern rail network is concerned. It would cost an estimated $4.6 billion, for example, just to restore the tracks and beds — and that would be just the beginning.

The dilemma is acute. On the one hand it would be unthinkable to abandon the lines altogether. They serve 55 per cent of the nation's industries which hire 60 percent of the industrial workers in the United States of America. And far too many Americans are out of jobs now.

By the same token even if Congress keeps Penn Central's head above water for the time being, the new Consolidated Railway Corp. should be given a firm deadline for putting the eastern railroads on their feet.

Selling the Penn Central's efficient lines to other railroads and abandoning the inefficient ones would be preferable to the establishment of another hungry federal stepchild.

According to the story Nixon has told some of his closest advisors, Haldeman came to him with the report from the Nixon Library committee and noted Johnson's major recommendation. Nixon told Haldeman to go ahead with it, with no thought that the system would be recording all of his conversations and thus no thought of the legal ramifications of having presidential decision-making recorded.

Haldeman, a non-lawyer thought only of making the system automatic so that neither he nor Nixon would have to concern themselves with its operation. With his passion for secrecy and thoroughness, Haldeman did not consult with Special Assistant John D. Ehrlichman, a former Seattle lawyer who might have been wary of a system that recorded all presidential conversations.

According to the story Nixon has told, he did not realize that all conversations were being recorded and did not recognize the danger to himself in

MAY NOT RETURN
Douglas' Tenure At An End?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 — It is highly unlikely that stricken Justice William O. Douglas will return to the Supreme Court.

The 76-year-old ultra-liberal still confidently talks about resuming his seat, which he has held since 1939, but the odds appear heavily against that.

Still hospitalized at the army's Walter Reed Medical Center, Douglas is undergoing whirlpool and various other restorative procedures. He has improved somewhat — but still has a long way to go to again be able to carry a full load.

His left side remains distinctly impaired. He has little use of his arm and leg, and has to be assisted to move about.

The slight slurring of Douglas's speech when first stricken in December has disappeared. Occasionally he does misplace words, but otherwise seems to be mentally normal.

There is an ironic aspect to Douglas's stroke — a similar paralyzing blow forced the retirement of Justice Felix Frankfurter, another Roosevelt appointee with whom Douglas feuded for years.

Although both liberals when named to the tribunal, they increasingly diverged legally and personally, finally becoming openly critical. Douglas disparagingly referred to Frankfurter as a "publicity hound," and the latter assailed Douglas for seeking to use the court to "legislate" his radical views and theories into effect.

Whether Douglas follows Frankfurter's example when afflicted remains to be seen.

When it became evident Frankfurter could not pick up where he had abruptly left off, the one-time Harvard law professor retired. Federal judges draw full pay for life, and their widows get a $10,000 pension. Initially it was $5,000 but a few years ago it was raised to $10,000.

When Frankfurter quit in order not to burden the court he was younger than Douglas is now. Also he had not been married four times; his wife was not 30 years old, as Douglas's is; and he did not have a heart pacer as Douglas has had for a number of years. He is still fitted with that device. It has not been removed since his stroke.

Douglas is taking blood thinning medication to counter the possibility of clotting.

against making way for a younger and far more fit successor — appointed by a Republican President.

If Douglas defiantly balks at that, then the court will have to limp along for an indefinite period short-handed and limited in range and scope.

There is no way to force his departure other than by impeachment.

Going... Going... As this column previously reported, there is virtually certain to be a new Supreme Court Justice in the current term, which ends in July.

Basis of that likelihood is authoritative statistics showing that a new member is named to the tribunal every 22 months. That is what has happened in recent years.

Source of this significant information is Mark Cannon, administrative assistant of Chief Justice Warren Burger, and prior to that director of the Institute of Public Administration, New York. Following are the appointments cited by Cannon to prove his contention that, "in the course of its history, the Supreme Court has had a new justice every 22 months":

Justices William Rehnquist, 1971; Lewis Powell, 1971; Harry Blackman, 1970; Warren Burger, 1969; Thurgood Marshall, 1967; Byron White, 1962; Stewart Potter, 1958; William Brennan, 1956.

In citing the average relative frequency of appointments to the tribunal, Cannon stresses the heavy increase in its workload, as follows:

The Court's history records nothing comparable to its recent case growth. Last term the Court was asked to review almost three times as many cases as 20 years ago and almost two-thirds more than ten years ago. Last term, 4,187 cases were docketed, 750 more than several years previous.

Further, the type of cases before the Court require more work than those of the past. For example: The number of constitutional cases in the past two years, 66 and 57, are more than twice as many as two decades ago. Fifteen of the 24 cases scheduled for argument this term involve constitutional issues.

It is a number of these key cases that have had to be spiked because of Douglas' stroke-induced absence.

Irish Talks Hopeful

When the Irish Republican Army declared its Christmas truce for Dec. 22, there was widespread optimism that the ceasefire would become the cornerstone of a permanent peace. It did not happen but recent events furnished new cause for optimism.

The price for holding the post-Christmas peace was clearly too high for the British to pay. The IRA demanded that convicted terrorists be released from prison while Britain removed the restraining hand of its 16,000-man peace force, thus allowing terrorists to have free reign.

Now, talks are underway that show promise of a new cease-fire and a new ray of hope is filtering through the pessimism that came after the Christmas peace was broken. A road for settlement may yet be discovered that is equitable to all interests of the area.

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Don for two years. I am 22 and he is 25.

I hear girls at the office talking about bringing covered dishes to family gatherings, going to his folks' or hers for dinner, or for the weekend, or the holidays, and I get more heartsick every day.

I've begun to realize what marriage is all about. It's really belonging to someone who loves you enough to want to make you a member of his family.

Don is always telling me what a wonderful arrangement we have, and how much he loves me.

The past several months, I've been asking myself: "If it's so wonderful and he loves me so much, why do we lie, sneak around and let people assume we are married?"

Why doesn't he ask me to marry him, and become a member of his family? They don't even know I exist.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Because he doesn't want a legal commitment. And if he is able to get all the benefits of marriage with none of the responsibilities, who can blame him? I am assuming he didn't kidnap you. You agreed to live with him without marriage. You walked into it of your own free will, and you're free to walk out. Why don't you? I think you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unmannerly for a girl to wear a hat or a knitted covering on her head when she's inside a building? Our principal always asks the girls and boys both to remove their hats when they are in school.

He said that someone should write to DEAR ABBY and ask about it, and if you said it was all right, he would ask the boys only to remove their hats when they're inside the building.

He said he didn't believe that anyone would write to you and ask. Well, I'm writing.

OKLAHOMA STUDENT

DEAR STUDENT: Customs, rules and traditions are made up by those in authority, and they differ drastically. (In some houses of worship it's considered disrespectful to wear a hat. In others, the head must be covered. In some schools, all that's required of the students is that they come with the HEADS on... and what's ON their heads is no consequence.)

Your principal should know the rules of your school — and so should you. Obey the rules. If they're unfair or pointless — change the rules.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

Now, my problem: A close relative of mine was recently married. The wedding was out of state so we didn't attend, but we sent a wedding present that cost over $100.

Today, I received a letter from the bride's mother. Along with it, she sent five pictures of the wedding. She wrote, "The pictures are $1 each. You can square it with us later." In other words, "pay up."

Abby, I think this is in very poor taste. In fact, I have never heard of "selling" wedding pictures to close relatives. Should I return the pictures? (I don't really want them.) Or should I keep the pictures and send her five dollars? Or just keep the pictures and not send anything? STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: Return the pictures with a note thanking her for "sharing" them with you.

Serve Something Special The Children Are Sure To Enjoy

YOU DON'T NEED a Cordon Bleu diploma to keep youngsters happy at mealtime. All that's required is a repertoire of pasta recipes because pasta is something all youngsters—even fussy eaters—agree on. In a word, they find it good!

In a youngster's opinion, pasta is delicious and so is fried chicken. Combine them, as they are in this recipe, and you have a main dish that really hits the mark.

FRIED CHICKEN WITH PARMESAN-MUSHROOM SPAGHETTI

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup solid all-vegetable shortening
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces spaghetti

3 tablespoons butter
1/4 pound mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Dip chicken pieces in milk, then shake in bag containing flour, 2 teaspoons salt and pepper. Using large skillet, brown chicken in shortening over medium heat for 10 to 15 minutes. Cover and reduce heat to low; cook for 25 to 30 minutes or until tender. If crisp chicken is desired, remove cover for last 10 to 15 minutes. Meanwhile, add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally until tender. Drain in colander. Remove cooked chicken from skillet and drain on paper towels; keep warm on serving plate. Drain off shortening and melt butter in same skillet. Sauté mushrooms until tender. Stir in cooked spaghetti, parsley and Parmesan cheese; toss lightly.

SPAGHETTI seasoned with Parmesan cheese and sliced fresh mushrooms is a great accompaniment for crisp fried chicken.

covered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. In medium saucepan, sauté onion in 1/4 cup butter until crisp-tender. Mix in flour, 2 1/2 teaspoons salt, pepper and nutmeg. Gradually add 4 cups of the milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils 2 minutes. Blend remaining 1 cup milk and eggs; stir into sauce with cheese.

Place half the macaroni in shallow 3-quart casserole. Top with spinach, half the sauce, then remaining macaroni. Pour remaining sauce on top. Mix dry bread crumbs with 2 table-

1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 can (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1/2 cup grated process Cheddar cheese

Gradually add spaghetti and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

In a large bowl, combine soup, milk, butter, seasonings and cooked spaghetti; mix lightly.

In a 1 1/2 quart casserole, arrange alternate layers of spaghetti mixture, egg slices and mushrooms, beginning and ending with spaghetti. Sprinkle top with cheese. Cover and bake in 350 F. oven 25 minutes. Uncover and continue baking about 5 minutes or until lightly browned. Serves 4 to 6.

EGG TETRAZZINI

8 ounces spaghetti
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of celery soup

HEART LINE Low fat cocktail morsels

Copley News Service
Appetizers should be taste-tempting morsels that whet the appetite. Most cocktail food is too high in saturated fat, but these heart-saving suggestions and recipes are low in both saturated fat and cholesterol. In addition, they are delicious and guest-pleasing.

USE — partially creamed cottage cheese, low fat cheeses, fish, lean meat, and chicken, liquid egg substitutes, bread and melba toast, regular crackers and rye krip, pretzels, polyunsaturated sour dressings, mayonnaise, special margarines, skim milk and skim milk products, buttermilk, low fat yogurt, herbs and spices, ketchup and mustard, all fruits and vegetables.

DON'T USE — cream cheese, regular cheese, caviar, egg yolk, luncheon meats and sausage, shrimp, cocktail crackers, potato chips and corn chips, sour cream and sour cream substitutes made with coconut oil, whipped cream and imitation whipped cream, butter and cream, whole milk, ice cream.

BASIC CHEESE SAUCE
Use this basic recipe with variations as a dip, a spread, a salad dressing or a delicious replacement for sour cream. 2 cups (1 pound) low-fat cottage cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup skim milk
Salt to taste

Place all ingredients in a blender jar. Blend until creamy, adjusting the milk measure to produce desired consistency. Yield: 2 cups.

New Home-Made Ice Cream

This Almond Brittle Ice Cream is a scrumptious dessert that can't be bought in any store. Refreshing and not too rich, it's perfect for any spring or summer occasion.

You won't find ground almonds in many stores, but you can easily prepare them yourself. Grind whole shelled almonds — or coarsely chopped, slivered or sliced almonds — a few at a time, in an electric blender or a food chopper with a fine blade. Use natural almonds (almonds that have not been blanched) for deeper color and more pronounced flavor, or blanched almonds for a more subtle taste.

Almond Brittle Ice Cream
1/2 cup ground natural or blanched almonds
1/4 cup margarine, softened
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Combine almonds and sugar in heavy saucepan or skillet; stir over low heat until sugar melts and almonds turn a golden brown. Turn out onto foil; cool. Wrap foil around brittle and smash into crumbs. Mix with margarine and almond extract; chill. Allow ice cream to soften slightly; stir in brittle mixture; freeze. Makes 1 quart.

Indians Given Deadline On Leaving Monastery

GRESHAM, Wis. (UPI) — Armed Indians who have occupied an abbey since Jan. 1, claiming it belongs to them, have been given until noon Friday to respond to the latest offer to leave the monastery peacefully.

The National Guard commander in charge of troops near the Alexian Brothers abbey has indicated that unless the Indians agree to end the occupation, he may have to use force to evict them.

Gov. Patrick Lucey's office Wednesday evening announced the Friday deadline following a meeting in Green Bay, Wis., between Lucey and National Guard Col. Hugh Simonson, who is in charge of troops at the religious estate.

Lucey and Simonson talked by telephone with the Alexians in Chicago before announcing the deadline.

A statement by the Alexians said the deadline was agreed upon to reassure citizens in the area that the conflict would not be permitted to continue indefinitely.

It also was made because Lucey hopes to resolve the occupation promptly and peacefully, and "to demonstrate the good faith of the Alexian Brothers" in seeking a solution, the statement said.

The whites fear that if the Indians aren't punished for the takeover they will seize other property.

Mack Wofford Installed As SA Board Chairman

Bill Murphy, Paris, Tex., former Governor of Rotary District 583, addressed the annual board meeting of the Salvation Army recently. Murphy used "Service Above Self" as his topic of discussion.

Mack Wofford, Pampa city manager, was installed as chairman of the board for 1975 and W.A. Morgan was named vice chairman by Maj. Rolan Chambliss, Amarillo Corps officer.

Other new officers taking part in the installation ceremony included Georgia Mack, secretary - treasurer; and outgoing chairman George Scott, who acted as installing officer.

Wofford, in accepting the challenge "To Beat the Drum," requested continued support and participation by board members.

J.A. McCune, vice chairman of 1974, presented the status of the local corps in the fields of service and finances.

The Thrift Store and United Fund allocation showed considerable gain over the 1973 report.

Capt. Bart Deggs, commanding officer here, reported progress at the Men's Lodge, 611 E. Albert. The facility, opened in October last year, is a part of the overall program which is involved in programs for youth and a new Golden Ager's program which benefits over 55 age group citizens. New Scouting troops are directed by Mrs. Tim Holmes and Schuneman.

Reed Echols, Jimmy Schuneman, the fire department, Noon Lions, Downtown Kiwanis, and ToT Kiwanis were objects of expressions of appreciation during the captain's report.

New board members introduced to those attending the meeting included James Trusty, Gene Hall and Jane Gattis. New members slated for February installation include Tim Hoiles and Tommy Clark.

Other program participants were Echols, Mrs. Major Chambliss, Mrs. Bart Deggs, Mrs. George Scott, Mrs. Mack Wofford and Denise Deggs, pianists.

The House rejected attempts to give bigger raises to rank and file state employees, and to give an across the board 10 per cent raise to all workers.

Pay Raise Bill Faces Deadline

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas legislators have less than 48 hours to agree on an emergency $93 million pay raise for state employees if the 130,000 state workers are to get their higher pay in February.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, Senate sponsor of the pay bill, said he would reluctantly ask the Senate today to agree to the House version of the bill, which grants pay raise of up to 13 per cent to cover increases in the cost of living.

The bill must get final legislative approval and be signed by the governor by midnight Friday in order for the increases to be included in February paychecks.

At the prodding of Gov. Dolph Briscoe, the House Wednesday cut its version of the pay raise bill by $15 million. Briscoe objected to the House plan because it would cost $108 million, and indicated he would veto the raise unless lawmakers limited it to the $93 million original cost of the Senate bill.

Rep. Fred Head, D-Athens, agreed to the cuts, and reduced the pay increases for lower paid state workers from 14.2 per cent to 13 per cent, and for higher paid state employees from 10.5 to 9 per cent.

The bigger raises go to those who make less than $876 monthly. Increased travel allowances and insurance benefits are also included in the bill, which Briscoe submitted to the legislature as an emergency.

"If we want a pay raise bill by the first of February, I think we need to pass this bill in substantially this form," Head told House colleagues.

The House rejected attempts to give bigger raises to rank and file state employees, and to give an across the board 10 per cent raise to all workers.

The family requests memorials be sent to the Pampa Children's Home. The casket will not be opened at the service.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JAN. 31
Your birthday today: Positive action is the goal of all your projects this year as you experience fleeting opportunities. Unload unprofitable ventures and, if possible, complete long-held obligations now. Relationships thrive if they're well established; new commitments are hard to sustain. Today's natives have ready answers for almost anything, often are gifted in music.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: In your rush to clear up the weekend and close out this month, don't neglect the advice of close associates. With a few rearrangements, home life perks up.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: There's more in your favor than appears. Discuss fully the changes you intend to make (which are probably less than you think) with all concerned.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Share pastimes and hobbies with people of similar tastes. Prospects are hopeful, but don't take short cuts. Gather friends for a comfortable evening.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: While you're trying to persuade others to do things your way, make sure that you're not taking on more than you can cope with. Be prepared when you travel in confidence.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Set up interviews and be prepared when you apply for higher positions or earned benefits. Home life improves if you do something about it. Don't be lazy today!

American novelist Zane Grey was born Jan. 31, 1872.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Rely on your intuition today. Keep everything simple and in line with confirmed plans. Your volunteered efforts contribute to your community.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: A clever question unexpectedly solves an old mystery. Career ventures improve with prompt, diligent efforts. Develop your latent resources.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Ask a friend to help with problem caused by unfamiliar circumstances. Distant news is encouraging, but not complete. Get the whole story before you act on it.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Go along with favorable current conditions, but try to work with those that are less favorable. Avoid appearing as though you are rushing to collect profits, but don't miss anything.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Settle matters quickly if you understand the details and make a deal now instead of negotiating further. The situation will change shortly.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Inconvenience stirs you to action; proceed boldly but within reasonable limits. Catch up on routine matters; you won't have as good a chance later.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Pursue romantic ties quietly and be willing to listen. You can help someone else, but be sure he deserves it. Don't expect gratitude.

Promotion Gives Party Better Military Control

HONG KONG (UPI) — The elevation of a top Communist leader to army chief of staff completes a stunning political comeback in China and gives the party unprecedented control over the armed forces, diplomats said today.

Diplomatic sources in Peking said Wednesday Teng Hsiao-ping, vice chairman of the Communist party and vice premier in the government, had been named chief of staff of the People's Liberation Army.

The appointment gave the 70-year-old Teng power in the three leading sectors of Chinese life and capped a dramatic return to power.

It effectively makes him the third-ranking official in China, behind Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai.

Teng had held positions of authority in the party from the 1920s, soon after its formation, and rose to the powerful post of party secretary general.

But when Mao launched the Cultural Revolution in 1966 in an effort to bring ideological purity to the party, Teng was purged and denounced. He became a "non-person" whose name was never mentioned.

Two years ago, Teng was "rehabilitated" and began regaining power. He was restored to the party's policy-making Politburo a year ago, became vice premier under Chou and two weeks ago was named one of five deputy chairmen under Mao.

The Peking reports also said Chang Chun-chiao, another vice premier who came to prominence during the Cultural Revolution, has been named head of the political department of the army, which is thought to have about 3 million men.

The army and Communist party have long been rivals for power and diplomats credited Mao's ability to play one off against the other during the years as one reason for his success.

When the tensions of the Cultural Revolution exploded into violence, Mao called on the Record Budget Offered

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has sent the legislature a record $11.6 billion budget to cover the state's expenses for the next two years. If it is approved — and its chances are, by tradition, not very good — it would not leave enough money in the treasury to revamp the state system of financing schools.

Briscoe told legislators once again in his budget message he will not approve any legislation requiring a tax hike.

Briscoe said earlier he wanted $1 billion set aside for changing the state's system of financing public schools. But when his budget requests are subtracted from the surplus in the treasury, $700 million remains — $300 million short of the amount Briscoe said was needed.

This fact was not mentioned in Briscoe's message.

Several legislators said this year they wanted to see if the governor could economize enough on everyday government operations to leave $1 billion free for school finance reform.

Briscoe said he would not approve any legislation requiring a tax hike.

Briscoe's spending proposal for the 1976-77 biennium is $810 million less than the Legislative Budget Board proposed, but the governor's plan calls for spending $500 million the LBB bill sets aside as a reserve.

The governor's written message to lawmakers on spending proposals said his plan leaves a surplus sufficient to cover costs of emergency pay raises for state employees, pension increases for retired teachers, other emergency spending Briscoe has recommended and school finance reform.

Briscoe's biggest budget economies came in recommended allocations for state colleges and universities — $14.5 million less than the LBB recommended for one campus alone; the state Commission for the Blind — he recommended a $3 million cut from current spending levels and $8.8 million less than the LBB proposes; and funds for the attorney general's office — $8.1 million less than LBB.

The governor also rejected requests for funds to construct a state office building, parking garages, a chest hospital at Tyler and numerous other facilities around the state.

Briscoe stressed his proposals to increase funds for:

- Institutions for the mentally retarded by $51.2 million and provide $39.3 million for new alternate care services for the mentally ill and retarded. The LBB budget, however, provides $37 million more for schools for the retarded and $22.9 million more for state mental hospitals.
- Medical education by $128 million at state schools and $10.4 million at the Baylor colleges of medicine and dentistry. The LBB proposes a $174 million increase.
- Vocational technical education by $43.8 million and aid to public junior colleges by $43.4 million. LBB proposes a $100 million increase.
- Alternate care services for juvenile delinquents by $3.2 million. Briscoe's recommended budget for the Texas Youth Council, however, is $5.7 million less than the LBB's.

Legislators traditionally pay little attention to the governor's spending recommendations.

Dallas Wants To Hike Landing Fees

DALLAS (UPI) — The president of Southwest Airlines figures the city, which could not get to his airlines through the courts, is trying to get to him through the pocketbook.

The city council has proposed the landing fees at city-owned Love Field be raised 20 times their current rate. Southwest president Lamar Muse said this would give Love Field "the highest rate in the world."

The city has tried to force Southwest to move its base of operations from Love Field to the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. It filed a suit in an attempt to force the move, but the courts said it did not have jurisdiction in the matter.

Muse believes this latest move by the city council is another attempt to get him to move from Love Field — located close to the Dallas business district — to the regional airport — situated midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Southwest is a small commuter airline serving Dallas, Houston and San Antonio and showed a profit for the first time last year, principally because its Dallas operations were located at Love Field.

Muse met Wednesday with the manager of the regional airport and a representative of the city attorney's office. He said later the city council will let him appear at its regular meeting next Monday so he can discuss his objections to the increased landing fees.

Muse said his meeting Wednesday was not fruitful. "I wouldn't say anything was settled," Muse said. "We probably agreed to disagree. We both presented our sides and discussed it in a friendly manner for about an hour. Then we agreed that we would be granted time to speak to the City Council Monday, Feb. 3."

The council has proposed raising the fees from 3.9 cents per 1,000 pounds to $1.35 per 1,000 pounds. The fees at the regional airport are 97 cents per 1,000 pounds.

The reason the city is so anxious to have Southwest move to the new airport is because the giant facility was constructed by bonds guaranteed by the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth. The money was to be repaid from the revenues generated by landing fees.

When Southwest chose to remain at Love Field, other airlines said they would move their intrastate commuter services to the Dallas airport, thus depriving the regional facility of its landing fees.

Muse said if the council approves the landing fee increase, he will take the matter to court.

"It's clearly discriminatory," Muse said of the proposed increase. "They're letting the fat cats off while we pay the bills."

The city has gotten on this efficiency and economy kick, saying it wants all departments to be self-supporting. And they want Love Field to produce a profit. Whatever the deficit is, they want the one company that beat them in court to pay the whole bill."

The new landing fee rate will increase Southwest's annual landing schedule from $30,000 to $300,000. Muse said the company will have to pass the 2,188 per cent increase on to its customers, which he said it can do and still be competitive.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused for the second and final time Tuesday to consider the city's appeal for a federal order to force Southwest to use the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Muse said 365,000 persons boarded Southwest at Love Field last year — an average of 1,000 a day. He said the passengers will be the ones hurt by the fee.

Earlier this month Southwest reported its earnings increased from $174,756 to $2.1 million for 1974. Revenues were up from $9.2 million to $14.8 million.

Short Styling Emphasis On 'The Face'

Beautiful Hair Is Touchable

(For Spring-Summer 1975)

Spring-Summer romance is expressed here by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association with a brushed montage of touchable waves that move away from the face. Waves move softly into an arrangement that exposes the entire face, beginning a 1975 hairstyling emphasis on "the face." The form, supported by an expertly executed perm, follows the natural contour of the head at the nape area. The basic haircut for these stylings is pictured lower right.

Trim Holiday Pounds Wisely

COLLEGE STATION — For many people, the holiday season is directly followed by the "January Blues" — when they're trying to lose those excess pounds gained during the holidays.

"Cutting down on calories, not valuable nutrients, is the important thing to remember when reducing," Sally Springer, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas

A&M University System, said this week.

The four sources of calories in a daily diet are fats, carbohydrates, protein and alcohol. But in addition to supplying calories, fat, carbohydrates and protein also perform specific body functions. For that reason, they shouldn't be completely eliminated from the diet," the specialist advised.

She suggested trying to avoid high-calorie foods such as concentrated sweets or fats that supply few other nutrients.

"Remember that enriched whole-grain breads, cereals, vegetables and fruits generally supply generous amounts of vitamins and minerals along with carbohydrates. But it's what goes on these foods that adds excess empty calories — butter, margarine, jellies, jams," she said.

Some other points to remember when dieting are:

- Trim the visible fat from your meat, or select lightweight beef, poultry or lean fish since these meats are lower in fat.

- Don't cut out milk, but drink fortified low-fat or fortified skim milk for fewer calories with the same valuable nutrients whole milk has.
- Just eat a little less, resist second helpings and don't expect overnight results.

Planned Wardrobe
They're Designed to Go Together

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
"MEN AND WOMEN are putting order into their wardrobe," says knitwear designer Mike Geist. He believes it's a reaction to the world's state of disorganization.

"The current state of the economy requires a planned wardrobe of collectibles," he says, "as opposed to the discardables of the helter-skelter ways of yesterday."

Expandable Designs
Geist has always been a leading exponent of fashions that build up an expandable wardrobe to meet every occasion. He feels fashion should be a carefully planned, long-term investment because whim-buying is an expensive luxury.

His philosophy is defined in his collections of knitted all-American wool coordinates, all color-coded and interchangeable, so they can create a wide variety of costumes from sporty to dressy. Seasonal additions are designed to combine with the basics to increase the original investment with the dividend of a fresh new look.

Woolknit Award
The designer, head of the 50-year-old firm of Geist & Geist, had originally planned on a medical career. He changed his mind while in college and switched from pre-med courses to a study of fashion. His creative styling plus his knitted patterns and color ingenuity have brought him major design awards over the years, earning him Woolknit Design Award Hall of Fame status.

Among his fashion "firsts" were the "monster" sweater—big, bulky and vibrantly striped; the first woolknit "skinny" pants, and the first hooded sweater.

His distinctive coordinates are made in wool, a fiber he considers more important than ever because "wool is a real fiber, representing honesty and integrity."

TRIO by Mike Geist layers a V-necked pullover over a ribbed turtleneck with a front-pleated double-knit skirt. All three are done in luxurious all-American knitted wool.

TWO ACCUSED

Trooper Murder Subject Of Trial

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI)—State Trooper Sam Bartholomae of Temple was trying to testify about what he found on a highway shoulder near Belton in Central Texas Sept. 14, 1974.

Bartholomae testified Wednesday his partner, Hollie Tull, was lying beside his patrol car that afternoon and that he was dead. Bartholomae said he could not officially identify his partner because most of Tull's head had been blown away by a shotgun blast. And then Bartholomae began to cry.

District Judge Don Busby called a short recess to allow Bartholomae—the 20th witness in the state's case against two men accused with Tull's murder—to regain his composure.

Larry Ross and Selwin Gholson, both 21 and both soldiers stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla., are charged with the robbery and the murder. Their trial on the capital murder charge was moved to Odessa because of publicity in Temple. The state says Ross and Gholson robbed the Walburg State Bank early in the day and then murdered Tull during their attempt to escape.

Prosecutors say they will call 80 more witnesses in the trial.

The first three witnesses to testify had been wounded in the robbery of the small town bank.

They were F.R. Lescher, vice president of the bank; his niece Sharon Lescher, bank teller; and Miriam Kalmbach, a customer.

Mrs. Kalmbach testified two men entered the bank, one carrying a pistol, and forced them into the teller's cage and made them lay face down on the floor. She said Ross was the bandit with the gun.

Less than one hour after the robbery, Tull, 38, stopped a car resembling the escape vehicle in central Texas.

Vernon Grimes of Temple said he saw three men scuffling inside a parked patrol car 1,300 feet from his house. Then he heard a muffled shot. Two men left the squad car, then started back towards it as the officer was getting out.

"The pair struggled with the man over a long object, which looked like a rifle or a shotgun," Grimes said.

He said he heard three more shots.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation recovered the money taken in the robbery, but declined to say how much was stolen.

Gholson was arrested 1 1/2 hours after the robbery near a law enforcement shooting range. Ross was captured by FBI agents in Granger, Tex. one week later at his mother's home.

JUDGE RULES

Kleason Must Answer State Murder Charges

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Robert Elmer Kleason, 42, now released from federal jurisdiction, is scheduled to appear in state court today to answer charges he murdered two Mormon missionaries whose bodies allegedly were sawed into small pieces and ground into fertilizer.

Kleason was to have undergone a sanity hearing Wednesday prior to going on trial on charges of violating federal firearms laws, but U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts canceled the hearing pending settlement of the state murder charges.

Roberts, instead, left the firearms charges pending and turned Kleason over to state authorities. Kleason was scheduled to appear in district court today in the first step toward a trial on the murder charges.

The Travis County grand jury last week indicted Kleason for capital murder in the deaths of Gary Smith Darley, 20, of Simi Valley, Calif., and Mark J. Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis., both of whom disappeared in October. They officially were declared dead at an inquest, although their bodies have not been recovered.

Police officials contend Kleason murdered the two during a robbery at his small trailer home behind a taxidermy shop where he worked, then sawed the bodies into pieces on a band saw in the shop. The pieces were then allegedly dumped into a storage bin for animal parts to be ground into fertilizer.

Bits of flesh and hair which authorities matched with that of the victims were found in the shop, and clothing and other personal belongings were recovered near Kleason's trailer.

Doctors at a federal hospital in Springfield, Mo., found Kleason mentally incompetent to stand trial on the firearms charge and may have been mentally incompetent at the time the missionaries were killed.

New York authorities seized 126 rifles and shotguns, 32 handguns, four machine guns, tear gas canisters, grenades, 100 pounds of gunpowder and 42,000 pounds of ammunition when Kleason was arrested on the firearms charge in 1972.

He failed to show up for his trial in New York, and Texas officials refused to extradite him in 1974.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire has called for an end to interservice rivalry in building presidential suites at military hospitals.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Thursday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1975 with 335 to follow. The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius. Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd president of the United States, was born Jan. 30, 1882. This is actor John Ireland's 60th birthday.

On this day in history: In 1835, a deranged painter, Richard Lawrence, fired two shots at President Andrew Jackson but missed, in the first recorded presidential assassination attempt.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler, destined to become the all-powerful dictator of World War Two, was named chancellor of the German Reich.

In 1948, Indian pacifist Mohandas Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu extremist, plunging India's millions into mourning.

In 1974, President Nixon said in his State of the Union address to Congress that there will be no recession "if his 10-point economic program were adopted."

A thought for the day: In the depths of the great American depression of the 1930's, President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "I pledge you, I pledge myself, to a new deal for the American people."

AMERICAN LEAGUE
Baseball's American League, composed of eight teams, was organized at Philadelphia Jan. 29, 1900.

But someone apparently decided the existing suites at Walter Reed Army Medical Center and Bethesda Naval Medical Center weren't enough.

For now, according to Proxmire, "The Army is building yet another presidential suite in its new hospital being constructed alongside Walter Reed."

At first glance, this may look like a typical example of Pentagon overkill.

Examine it closely, however, and you will see that it is not all that redundant.

Presidential health is not a predictable factor. If he gets sick, nobody can be sure whether it will be an Army type disease or a Navy type malady.

So prudence dictates that facilities for both be maintained. Suppose, for example, the president went for a cruise down the Potomac aboard the White House yacht and developed an acute case of seasickness.

It would be pretty awkward to take him to an Army hospital for that type of treatment.

Also consider that any presidential ailment, no matter how trivial, is subject to extensive analysis, commentary, speculation and reportorial detail.

Given the massive publicity that attends the presidency, an after-dinner bet can take on the proportions of terminal dyspepsia.

Now suppose, as could happen, we had a hypochondriac in the White House. And suppose the Army got credit for saving his life every time he suffered a hangnail.

Consciously or not, the president is going to feel a measure of gratitude toward that particularly service when he okay's the military budget.

Under those circumstances the Navy would be lucky to get enough funds for a couple of gondolas. So self-preservation demands that the Navy hospital maintains its own presidential suite.

When he goes to the Army-Navy football game, the president spends time on both sides of the field. As commander in chief, he should exhibit the same degree of impartiality when he requires hospitalization.

Say the president dislocates his jaw trying to chew gum while walking. He could check into the presidential suite at Walter Reed for X-rays and then move on to Bethesda to have his jaw put in a sling.

It costs a bit more, sure. But it's not too great a price to pay for a strong national defense.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE LaWanda Tells Of Fire Dancing

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — LaWanda Page, the hilarious Aunt Esther of "Sanford and Son," was a dancer billed as "The Bronze Goddess of Fire" early in her show-business career, having conceived her dangerous act to help support her mother.

"My mamma didn't know I was dancing at all," LaWanda confesses. "At least she didn't know it for a long time because she used to go to bed early and I'd slip out and go to the place where I worked."

"Yes, my fire dance was dangerous, but I only caught fire once, and that was when I was just learning it."

"I was working in this club in St. Louis as a little, ol' shake dancer. They called it shake dancing then. Now they call them belly dancers."

"But anyway I was working at this club for a Greek who told me, 'You gotta change your act if you want to stay here.'"

"So I told him, 'I'm gonna get me a fire act going.'"

"All the girls in the dressing room told me, 'Honey, you don't know what you're saying. You're going to get yourself burned up.'"

"But I've always had confidence that anything you put your mind to, you can do. So I went ahead with it."

"The idea of a fire act had come to me while I was sitting in the dressing room one day with a cigarette lighter that had overflowed on my arm. And, because the fluid had overflowed, when I flicked the lighter on, my hand caught fire."

"And right away I got this bright idea for a new act."

"So the next night after that Greek told me to change my act, as I came to work, I stopped at the liquor store and bought a great, big can of lighter fluid and a tin pie pan."

"I poured the fluid in the pan, and I lit it. At first I was afraid to get too close to the fluid, so I'd stand way back and throw a lighted match at it, but the match would miss the pan and go out. And pretty soon everybody was laughing at me."

"So finally I lit the match and walked right up to the pan and set the fluid afire."

"The Greek started yelling, 'You gonna burn the place down. You gonna burn the place down.'"

"Well, a big pillar of smoke was coming from the pie pan, and I didn't know what I was supposed to do next, so I just danced around."

"Now this place was on a truck route, so a lot of truck drivers stopped there, and one of them began to yell at me. 'I dare you to put your hand in the fire.'"

"I've never been one to take a dare, so I put my hand in the fire, and it burned. At that time, you see, I didn't know how to do this right."

"One guy said, 'Light my cigarette,' so I ran to his table and lit it with my hand, never letting on that I was hurting, really burning. You see, I was determined to master this, because I had to keep my job to take care of my mamma."

"My hand was all charred, but the next night I tried a fire act again. Then, on the third night, I tried a crawl, a kind of Afro thing, over the pan of fluid and let the fire burn along my leg. And my costume caught on fire."

"With that, I ran for the dressing room, but the running stirred up air, and the costume blazed. I burned my bottom so I couldn't sit down."

"Finally I met a female impersonator who saw what I was trying to do and helped me."

"He said, 'LaWanda, I know what you are trying to do, and I'm going to teach you to do it right.'"

"So he did, and I finally got my fire dance perfected. If I hadn't had that man to help me and teach me how to handle fire, I would have been cremated by now."

LaWanda has known Redd Foxx since they were school children together in St. Louis, and she gives him full credit for her success as Aunt Esther in "Sanford and Son," since he not only encouraged her to read for the part but coached her in the role and gave her confidence to play it.

INCOME TAX Schedule B Tax Form Returns

Did you know that you don't have to list the names and amounts paid to your doctor or hospital in claiming medical deductions from your 1974 federal income tax? You need list only the total amount if you use the long Form 1040. This and other information designed to help you prepare your income tax are included in a series of 11 articles prepared from official texts by Commerce Clearing House in Chicago, which specializes in tax matters.

1st of 11
United Press International Taxpayers preparing their 1974 federal 1040 income tax return form will find that Schedule B has returned after a one-year absence, notes Commerce Clearing House.

Schedule B, on which dividends and interest income was reported for tax years up through 1972, is to be used again in connection with 1974 long Form 1040 by an individual whose income from either dividends or interest exceeds $400.

Taxpayers, in itemizing their charitable and medical expenses on Schedule A of long Form 1040, do not have to list the name and amount given to each charity where they have receipts, canceled checks and money orders to verify the deduction.

Instead, they need list only the total amount of such deductions in Schedule A. Likewise, taxpayers do not have to list the names and amounts paid to each doctor or hospital for a medical deduction being claimed in 1974. Rather, the expenses are listed in total under two categories — doctors and dentists, and hospitals, CCH said.

Taxpayers must list other types of medical and dental expenses separately, including hearing aid, denture, eyeglasses and transportation expenses.

Form 1040A, the "Short Form" income tax return which was reintroduced as a tax return for wage earners in 1972, continues for 1974 returns. The Internal Revenue Service will allow wage earners who had not more than $400 in dividends or interest in 1974, in addition to wages, to file 1040A.

Taxpayers who made estimated tax payments during 1974 or who are entitled to credit excess Social Security taxes that were withheld from wages by two or more employers in 1974 also will be able to use Form 1040A for 1974. The IRS, if the taxpayer wishes, will compute the tax on Form 1040A regardless of the amount of income reported on the form.

This will be done for a long Form 1040 filer only if his adjusted gross income is $20,000 or less, he elects the standard deduction, he files a timely return, and his income consists only of wages, dividends, interest, pensions or annuities.

However, CCH points out, taxpayers should be aware that the use of Form 1040A can cost them unnecessary tax dollars even though they are otherwise eligible to use it.

This is because a Form 1040A user is denied the right to itemize his personal deductions for medical expenses, interest, charitable contributions and the like.

Nor may he deduct employee business expenses or take the sick pay exclusions.

Also, special tax credits are barred on Form 1040A. These include the retirement income credit, investment tax credit, and credit for foreign taxes.

The taxpayer should weigh the loss of these items in determining whether he should file Short Form 1040A or the regular Form 1040, CCH said.

Taxpayers will also find it easier to forward their tax dollars to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund under the "tax check-off" system in 1974.

This optional feature allows taxpayers to designate that $1 ($1 each for a husband and wife filing a joint return) is to go to the Fund for use in the 1976 Presidential election. This designation will not increase the amount of taxes that a person has to pay nor will it decrease any refund.

The Consumer Alert

By John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Much has been heard recently about the discounts being offered to new car buyers to tempt them back into the market. But some shoppers are still more interested in locating a good used car than in purchasing a brand new model.

Lawyers in the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division say that most consumers looking for a used car realize there's a chance of getting a real bargain, or getting stuck with a "lemon."

But few consumers, they note, are really knowledgeable enough about cars to be 100 percent sure of a used car's potential either for useful service or for expensive trips to the repair shop.

There are some relatively simple things a consumer can do, however, to reduce the odds of getting stuck:

— Buy a car from someone you know. If you have an idea of how the car has been driven and cared for, you should be able to assess fairly accurately whether it is a good buy.

— If you can't buy from an individual you know, buy from a reputable dealer — either a new car dealer who has a used car lot to sell customer trade-ins or a used car dealer. Get recommendations from relatives or friends as to the dealer's reliability, and also check with the Better Business Bureau.

— Buying a used car in response to a newspaper classified ad can be risky, so always be especially careful in such price, but usually you will also get a car that has been reconditioned and carries some warranty. If you choose a lower-priced car from a used car dealer, plan to have any needed repairs made right away.

— While appearance may not have much to do with the car's performance, it might be an indication of the kind of treatment and maintenance the car has received that a new paint job could indicate the car has been in a wreck.

— Check the interior for signs of wear or poor maintenance. This means lifting floor mats, looking in the glove compartment, under the dashboard, and in the trunk.

— Note the odometer reading. If the car has low mileage but seems to have a lot of wear, be suspicious of an odometer rollback. Tampering with a car's odometer is illegal, and should be reported to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division or your county or district attorney.

The average consumer can't tell much about a car by looking at its engine — chances are it has been cleaned up to look almost as good as new anyway. Instead, spend some time trying out the car.

— Start the car several times, listening for any odd noises. Then have a friend check to see if any black smoke is emitted when you rattle the motor. Before leaving the car lot, try the brakes several times.

— Drive the car in traffic, on the road or freeway, and over as big a variety of surfaces as possible. Try out all gears and test the car's ability to accelerate.

— If the car passes these basic tests, you like it, and the price seems right, you still shouldn't make an immediate decision. Instead, shop around — go to at least three dealers before deciding. Look for the best deals in trade-in on your old car as well.

— When you have finished comparison shopping and have made a selection, take the car to a trusted mechanic for a complete professional check before committing yourself.

— Remember, too, that you should then shop around for the best deal in financing the car. You don't have to accept the terms the dealer offers. Banks, credit unions, savings and loan institutions, and finance companies all make car loans. In comparing finance terms, always look for the annual percentage rate that you would have to pay.

While it may seem troublesome to check on all these details, failure to do so could mean that the used car you bought to save money might end up costing far more than you planned.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Business Today

UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Devils Lake Sioux are joint owners of the first manufacturing plant in Ft. Totten, N.D. which has slashed Indian welfare rolls by two-thirds and rescued their reservation from below poverty level.

Under a unique agreement with Brunswick Corp., headquartered in Skokie, Ill., the tribe controls 30 per cent of the Devils Lake Sioux Manufacturing Corp., which makes for the U.S. Army camouflage netting used in military concealment.

The tribe has the option of buying 49 per cent of the plant over the next four years and assuming full ownership in 1980.

The plant opened last January in Ft. Totten, an economically depressed area where 70 per cent of the 1,500 Sioux on the reservation had never worked. Within one month, the number of Indian families on welfare had dropped from 148 to 93 after years of draining the state's modest budget.

The plant now employs 155 women and 85 men along with seven Brunswick managers, and less than 50 Indian families are drawing welfare checks.

"The state welfare workers are our fiercest competitors," says Bob Richmond, plant manager and a Brunswick vice president. "We're trying to put them out of business by letting a proud people have their pride."

The success of the plant, which has been awarded military contracts exceeding $56 million, lies in Brunswick's decision to tailor the operation to an unskilled labor force and the role of the tribal council in preparing its people for the assembly line.

"We didn't want to overwhelm the Indians technically," says Richmond. Brunswick arranged for its Deland, Fla. plant to make the high technology camouflage material which is attached to netting by the employees at Devils Lake. But this year the Devils Lake facility will begin manufacturing its own material.

The first 150 Indians hired by the plant underwent a three-week training program introducing them to a bewildering world of time clocks, supervisors, 8-to-5 shifts, and vacations.

"The white man puts a different value on time than Indians," explains Joe Spotted Hawk, a former Hollywood stuntman, who coordinates training at the plant. "Indian time is more or less eternal," he told UPI. "and there's lots of it."

Selecting Indians for line management also posed a problem. "It's not normal for an Indian to give someone else orders," says Frances Olson, one of four Indian supervisors. Some Indians have quit rather than supervise their own people. But Carl McKay, the 25-year-old college-educated tribal chairman, acts as an employment counselor in the plant and has kept turnover well below projected levels.

Since the plant opened one year ago, Indians have streamed back to the reservation to work, housing has improved, and the first shopping center in Ft. Totten is under way.

An Old Romance

United Press International Once upon a time a dashing American naval officer and a beautiful Russian actress met at a party in wartime Moscow. The two fell madly in love.

It was a storybook tale of true love until a hostile Kremlin stepped in. The officer was expelled, the actress sent to a prison camp in Siberia.

But not before the two lovers, blind to the shadow about to darken their romance, conceived a child. Thirty years later, their daughter is the center of a new controversy.

Victoria Fyodorova, a 28-year-old Russian actress, wants to travel to the United States to meet her aging father, Jackson Tate, a retired rear admiral. But the Kremlin has refused to let her leave the Soviet Union.

Tate was expelled from Russia in 1944 after a whirlwind love affair with Victoria's mother, Zoya Fyodorova, one of the country's most famous screen stars at the time.

"I think it's a great compliment that a beautiful young girl would care enough to take the chance she is taking to try to come and see an old man before he dies," Tate said at his home in Orange Park, Fla.

It was a Moscow spring, Tate says, when he first met Zoya at a diplomatic reception. He was a handsome young naval officer. She was at the height of her acting career. And the war was almost over.

Tate never knew of his daughter's existence until a friend visited the Soviet Union a few years ago. Tate then called Zoya in Moscow and wrote her: "I loved you then and I still love you and cherish the memories."

Zoya, who was freed from prison after eight years, says she'd like to visit the United States but she hasn't applied for a visa. "I'm just an old love," she said. "It's Victoria he wants to see."

Victoria says she can't understand why authorities won't give her a visa.

"They know that I would never leave my mother alone, that I would come back," she said. "But when my father said 'I love you' on the telephone I knew I wouldn't rest until I'd seen him."

Tate, 77 years old and married for the last 11 years, lives in retirement. He has undergone open heart surgery and is unable to travel.

He worries about his daughter. "Believe me, she's taking a real chance," he said. "Her mother took a chance on me and spent eight years in a Siberian salt mine."

Valparaiso is Chile's principal seaport on the Pacific coast.

AUSTIN — Joe Don Nenstiel, 2217 Duncan, is among more than 400 students selected for membership in the University of Texas Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society that embraces many academic disciplines.

Phi Kappa Phi is the largest national honor society whose membership includes all divisions of the university. Junior, senior and graduate students with a grade-point average of at least 3.75 are eligible for nomination.

AUSTIN — Marilyn Susan Katz, 803-A N. Nelson, was listed as a candidate for a Bachelors of Arts degree from the Texas College of Humanities at the University of Texas, according to the dean, Stanley N. Werbow.

DENTON — David Lynn Nipp and Mark Randall Warren are among the 122 members pledged to the 16 national fraternities at North Texas State University. Nipp, son of Mrs. Jaunice J. Ferguson, 2312 Comanche, Pampa, is a pledge of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Warren, son of Robert R. Warren, Route 2, Pampa, is also a pledge of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Canadian River Twin Bridges Dedicated

What 2,851-foot structure of concrete and steel in Hutchinson County cost $1.9 million and took 13½ months to construct?

The new half of the twin bridges that now span the Canadian River on Texas Highway 136 three miles north of Borger, that's what.

The new two-lane bridge, along with its adjacent, 25-year-old counterpart two-lane bridge, was to be dedicated today in ribbon-cutting ceremonies conducted by Texas Highway Commissioner Charles E. Simons.

The bridge dedication followed a noon luncheon at the Bunsavista Community Center at which Reagan Houston, chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, spoke. State Highway Engineer Luther DeBerry also attended the luncheon and dedication ceremonies.

A coffee at 11:15 a.m. at the Community Center, sponsored by the Borger Chamber of Commerce, opened the day's events.

The new traffic facility, built immediately east of the old bridge, and opened to traffic on Dec. 19, 1974, handles northbound vehicles. The old bridge, which was completed in October, 1949 carries southbound traffic.

Construction on the new portion of the twin bridges began on Nov. 5, 1973.

Resident engineer Jay L. Hawley Jr. of Borger supervised the project, and contractor on the job was Gilvin-Terrill, Inc. of Amarillo. With the completion of the entire project, State Highway 136 is now a four-lane highway from Borger almost to Slatnett.

The new bridge was created to eliminate a bottleneck situation and to accommodate a heavy traffic flow. A traffic count taken in 1970 showed that more than 5,000 vehicles daily crossed the bridge.

Oil, gas and agriculture interests in the area are served by the bridges.

Jimmy Mitchell, Hutchinson County maintenance foreman, will be in charge of upkeep on the bridges.

Reagan Houston is chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, the policy-making body of the Texas Highway Department.

A native of San Antonio, he completed public schools there. He attended Virginia Military Institute and the University of London. He received his law degree from the University of Texas in 1940 and was admitted to the bar in the same year.

He joined the military services as a second lieutenant in the 157th Infantry in February, 1941. He served overseas for three years during World War II. He was Aide de Camp to Gen. Mark W. Clark and served in the office of the chief of staff of the Fifth Army, Fifteenth Army Group and United States Forces in Austria. He was discharged in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel.

In 1946 Houston resumed his law practice in San Antonio.

He is a board member and former board chairman of the Southwest Research Institute; a former member and chairman of the Board of Regents of Texas Women's University; director and former president of the United Way of San Antonio; former president of the San Antonio YMCA; member and first president of the Alamo chapter, Association of the United States Army and a member of the San Antonio Rotary Club.

He also is a director of Federated Capital Corporation, the Alamo National Bank, the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of San Antonio, and K.O. Steel Castings, Inc., of San Antonio. He and his wife, Mary Jane, have two sons.

Simons, a member of the Highway Commission and a native of Lafayette, Ind., attended schools in Ohio.

In his early career, he was a newsmen in the Midwest and later served as Capitol correspondent for the Associated Press in Austin.

In 1936, he took up the dual duties of editor of Texas Parade and director of public relations for the Texas Good Roads Association. In 1942, he became executive vice president of TGRA.

He devised and managed the successful campaign for the adoption of a constitutional amendment protecting highway user taxes in Texas from diversion, and also was among the leading sponsors of the amendment providing a retirement system for state employes.

From 1947 to 1971, he was executive vice-president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association with headquarters in Dallas. He was appointed to the Highway Commission in 1971. He served as chairman of the Highway Commission from November 1972 to June 1973.

Simons and his wife, the former Mary Ann Yeasell, have three children and nine grandchildren.

DeBerry, as State Highway Engineer of Texas, is the chief administrator of one of the world's largest highway agencies, the Texas Highway Department. The Department is charged with construction, maintenance and operation of a 70,000-mile, all-paved, toll-free system of highways of all types.

DeBerry was born in Bogata, Tex., in 1914. He attended public schools there and received a B.S. degree in civil engineering from the University of Texas. Immediately after graduation in 1937, he joined the Texas Highway Department as an instrumentman in Sherman. Later, he worked in Paris, Clarksville and Greenville.

DeBerry was on leave of absence during World War II, serving with both the U.S. Corps of Engineers and with the U.S. Navy.

In 1946, he became the Department's resident engineer at Emory, and was promoted to senior resident engineer at Greenville in 1950. Three years later, he was named assistant district engineer at San Antonio and became district engineer at Lufkin in 1958. In April 1960 DeBerry was named district engineer in Dallas.

He became assistant state highway engineer in 1968 and was appointed to the Department's top administrative position by the Highway Commission effective Feb. 1, 1973.

DeBerry and his wife, Pauline, have a daughter, Mrs. Thomas H. Moore. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and of the Christian Church.

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Mobeetie, since the days of Indian battles, Fort Elliott and weekend hangings, hasn't seen as much action as it is seeing now, now that the Mobeetie Hornets are tearin' 'em up on the hardwoods.

Old Mobeetie, the first town established around these parts, was a trade center for buffalo hunters, the local historian tells me. New Mobeetie isn't skinning any buffaloes but it sure is whipping the hides off a lot of animals, including the Allison Antelopes, Groom Tigers and Briscoe Bronchos.

Mobeetie, under first year coach Bill Beatty who's fresh out of Southwestern State (Weatherford, Okla.), owns a sparkling 24 - 7 record and is 6 - 1 in District 3 - B. That district mark is good enough for a first place tie with Allison, which fell to the surprising Hornets, 53 - 45, Tuesday.

Allison, the supposed power in 3 - B, was 31 - 3 a year ago but this season hasn't even acquired a record as impressive as Mobeetie's. Allison is 20 - 7, which includes two wins and three losses against the Hornets.

One reason Allison hasn't been able to make this year's race a runaway is its school was destroyed by fire last summer and the Antelopes aren't using a home court, playing their "home" games at Briscoe.

But the main reason is Mobeetie. "This is the best year they've ever had, I think," says Beatty. "We like to win. We've got to beat Groom and Briscoe again and Briscoe, and then it looks like it might be a tie."

Should both Mobeetie and Allison win their remaining four games, a playoff will decide the 3 - B champion. If it is the Hornets, it'll be the first title at Mobeetie since 1955. The winner of the round - robin, whether it's Mobeetie or Allison, won't have to worry about a post - season district tournament, which was done away with before the season.

There's nothing fancy about the way Mobeetie plays basketball. Talent is the key. "We try to run the ball and if we can't get a real good shot, we set it up and run our patterned offense," Beatty said.

Five - seven junior guard Gary May, one of three starting non - seniors (Mobeetie might go undefeated next year), is the team's playmaker and best shooter, scoring at a 16 point per game clip. The other juniors are center Roy Strubling, a 6 - 2 junior, and forward Ronald Gudel, a 6 - 1 sophomore. Also starting is 5 - 7 senior guard Earl Seitz. Sophomore Bill Howard, a 6 - 0 guard, is the No. 6 man and destined for a starting role next season.

In Weatherford, Beatty knew "nothing about Mobeetie" but now that he's there, the Oklahoma native wouldn't have it any other way. "The town is very, very small, but I was raised on a ranch in Cheyenne, Okla., a small town, too."

How has Mobeetie, the town itself, reacted to the basketball success? "They're pretty excited about it. Basketball is the only sport that's very big here." And the sport has grown a lot bigger there, now that Mobeetie is winning. Buffalo Bill would be proud.

North Carolina Tied For Lead

When Atlantic Coast Conference coaches predicted at the start of the season that there would be a close battle for the league title, they were not merely being cautious about defending national champion North Carolina State.

Eleventh-ranked North Carolina, with Mitch Kupchak and Brad Hoffman hitting 21 points each, moved into the lead of the ACC with a conference record of 5-1 after whipping Wake Forest 101-91 Wednesday night.

Second-ranked North Carolina State holds a 4-1 ACC record while Maryland and Clemson are 4-2.

The Tar Heels went into the second half against Wake Forest with a 49-48 lead on two Hoffman free throws after the buzzer.

North Carolina then outscored Wake Forest, 31-12, in the first 9:14 of the second half to run up a 20-point lead, 80-60, and was never seriously threatened afterwards. The closest the Deacons could come after the Tar Heel rampage was 96-87 with just under two minutes remaining.

Kupchak also led North Carolina - rebounding with nine and Hoffman, who scored 15 of his points in the second half, led in assists with eight.

Skip Brown led Wake Forest with 32 points—22 in the first half—and nine assists.

Elsewhere, Western Kentucky defeated 10th-ranked LaSalle, 91-87, Niagara edged Cornell, 71-70, in overtime, Pittsburgh scored a 76-61 overtime win over Temple, Penn State clipped Syracuse, 88-84, Nebraska beat Oklahoma, 73-58, Kansas State ripped Iowa State, 108-83, St. Bonaventure routed St. Francis (N.Y.), 106-89, and Kansas dumped Colorado, 81-59.

Field goals by Mike Odemns and Johnny Britt in the last 25 seconds enabled Western Kentucky to upset LaSalle.

Trailing most of the game and by as many as 12 points, Western Kentucky went ahead to stay, 87-85, on a field goal by Wilson James with 1:13 left. Odemns' basket made it 89-85 with 25 seconds remaining. But then Charlie Wise scored for LaSalle and it was 89-87 with 17 seconds left.

Odemns was charged for walking with nine seconds remaining but Britt intercepted the LaSalle throw-in and dribbled in for the final basket of the game with four seconds left.

Odemns scored 33 points for the winners and made 14 of his 18 shots in the game with 21 points coming in the second half.

Britt had 18 points for the winners who now hold a 10-5 record. LaSalle, which saw its 11-game winning streak come to an end, got 22 points each from Joe Bryant and Bill Taylor.

Baseball Rules Change

NEW YORK (UPI) - A relief pitcher must now finish a game to gain credit for a save. The rule regarding relief pitchers has been altered and two other regulations dealing with specifications for bats and for errant throws by a pitcher which end up out of play have been strengthened by the Official Playing Rules Committee, it was announced today by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Under the new relief pitching rule, a pitcher must be in the game at the end to get credit for a save in addition to qualifying under at least one of the following:

a) he enters the game with a load of no more than three runs and pitches for at least one inning; or
b) he enters the game with the potential tying run either on base, or at bat, or on deck (that is, the potential tying run is either already on base or is on the first two batsmen he faces; or
c) he pitches effectively for at least three innings.

A new provision has been added to bat specifications since some players have begun using "cupped bats" or bats with indentations in the end. Under the new provision, "an indentation in the end of the bat up to one inch in depth is permitted and may be no wider than two inches and no less than one inch in diameter. The indentation must be curved with no foreign substance added."

Another rule strengthened at the winter meetings in New Orleans makes it possible for umpires to eject any pitcher who is found to have a foreign substance on him or in his possession. The previous rule had allowed for a warning prior to ejection.

The Rules Committee also clarified the rule with regard to advancement on overthrows when the ball goes into the stands or the dugout. The old rule states that a batter is entitled to "one base, if a ball, pitched to the batter, or thrown by the pitcher from his position on the pitcher's plate to a base to catch a runner, goes into a stand or a bench, or over or through a field fence or backstop. The ball is dead."

The newly approved rule adds:

"When a wild pitch, or passed ball, goes through or by the catcher, or deflects off the catcher, and goes directly into the dugout, stands, above the break, or any area where the ball is dead, the awarding of bases shall be one base. One base shall also be awarded, if the pitcher while in contact with rubber, throws to a base, and the throw goes directly into the stands or into any area where the ball is dead."

"If, however, the pitched or thrown ball goes through or by the catcher or through the fielder, and remains on the playing field, and is subsequently kicked or deflected into the dugout, stands or other area where the ball is dead, the awarding of bases shall be two bases from position of runners at the time of the pitch or throw."

14 Trojans Go To Pro Teams

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Year of the Trojan even extended into pro football this year.

The University of Southern California won the national championship this year and now will send a record number of its players into the pros.

The annual National Football League college player draft ended Wednesday and when it was all sorted out, 14 Trojans had been selected by the 26 clubs in 17 rounds.

The total was one more than the previous high of 13, set by Ohio State in 1971.

Southern Cal had four players taken on the second round alone—Anthony Davis (New York Jets), Charles Phillips (Oakland), Bill Bain (Green Bay) and Art Riley (Minnesota). Richard Wood (Jets) was taken on the third round. Allan Carter (Cleveland) on the fourth and Jim Obradovich (New York Giants) and Pat Haden (Los Angeles) on the seventh on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, six more Trojans were selected, including J. K. McKay, son of USC Coach John McKay, by Cleveland on the 18th round. Others included Otha Bradley (San Diego) on the 10th, Marvin Cobb (Cincinnati) on the 11th, Dale Mitchell (San Francisco) on the 13th and Steve Knutson (Atlanta) and Bob McCallifrey (Green Bay) on the 16th.

There were 442 players selected, 244 offensive and 198 defensive. Seven kickers and five punters also were chosen. The leading individual position was running back, with 75 taken.

The Big Eight Conference was the leader with 44 players chosen in the drafting, which last two minutes short of 21 hours.

Storm May Dampen Hawaiian

HONOLULU (UPI) - A winter storm moving slowly across Hawaii could douse favored Jack Nicklaus, 145 other pros and one amateur teeing off today in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open, fourth event of the 1975 PGA Tour.

The National Weather Service said the storm which dumped more than an inch of rain on neighboring Kauai should hit the Waialeale golf course early in the day. The forecast for the weekend, though, is for clear skies and 80-degree temperatures.

Nicklaus tied the course record of 271 in winning last year's Hawaiian Open. The Golden Bear, slimmer to a trim 180 pounds, would be the first player in the 10-year history of this event to repeat if he takes the $44,000 top prize.

Tournament officials say this is the strongest field in the history of the Hawaiian Open, which Nicklaus won by four shots over young Eddie Pearce last year.

Volleyer Top Superstar

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) - A woman who many regard as the best volleyball player in the United States but who has earned "just zilch" in sports—the past four years is the champion of the competition so close that it wasn't decided until the final event—a tricky obstacle course.

Miss Peppeler, who recently earned pro in the newly established International Volleyball Association, took first places in rowing the softball throw and basketball shooting, and came in second in the half-mile bike race. She finished with 41 points, tops in the 11-woman field.

"I just don't believe I won it," said the tall and attractive brunette. "I've never been lucky in my life."

Lucky may have been the word for it in the last event. Basketball's Karen Logan needed only a second place to clinch the winners' trophy, but drew a penalty when she lost her grip on the horizontal bars.

Although Miss Logan, captain of the Pink Panthers women's basketball team, finished second overall with 38 points and $13,800 in prize money, including first-place finishes in tennis and the 60-yard dash, almost was not quite good enough. Little Archibald Thwarts Bucks

By United Press International
There's still hope for the little man in the National Basketball Association when Kansas City-Omaha can beat Milwaukee four times in six meetings.

The Milwaukee Bucks have 7-foot 2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, of course, while the Kings' chief game-winner is 6-1 Nate Archibald.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 43 points Wednesday night, but Archibald and Jimmy Walker took over down the stretch to give Kansas City-Omaha a 106-102 victory. It was the Kings' fourth victory in six meetings with the Bucks.

Archibald snapped a 99-99 tie on a drive that resulted in a layup over Abdul-Jabbar and a foul with Nate making the free throw for a three-point play. Archibald scored 28 points and Walker 26 for the Kings.

The Philadelphia 76ers defeated the New York Knicks, 96-92, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the New Orleans Jazz, 112-108, the Detroit Pistons beat the Golden State Warriors, 93-90, and the Seattle SuperSonics topped the Phoenix club, 99-85, in other

SWEEPSTAKES HONOR Junior High Students Gain Speech Trophy

...speech winner

Pampa Junior High students were declared winners of the sweepstakes trophy in a speech competition conducted recently in Amarillo.

The eighth-graders, students of Mrs. Elaine Lehnick, competed against students from speech departments in eight other area schools. Twenty-two of the 30 participants advanced to the semi-finals.

Mike Gage and Jimmy Jeffrey were named first in duet pantomime with Becci Rogers and Kim Moore placing second.

Speech to entertain was won by Zindi Walberg, with Cecilia Casey placing second, and third place honors going to Mark Coufal.

Prose interpretation was won by Mark Lehnick, second place was won by Kristy Carpenter and Relinda Brewer won third place.

Speech to persuade second place winner was Diane McNeely, and David Anderson won third place. Patti Baker won third place in oratory.

Focus On Eye Safety In Choice Of Glasses

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Are you among the estimated one hundred million or more Americans who wear corrective glasses or contact lenses? Your "outlook" on life may be affected by how much you focus on important health and safety considerations. Here are some sight-saving tips from experts concerning what to look for and look out for.

First, if you got your present glasses much over two years ago, are the lenses impact-resistant? This feature has only been required since 1972. A lens fragment which penetrates the eye could cost you your sight. Even with impact-resistant glasses, authorities caution that nicks and scratches reduce protection somewhat. It's worth getting a new pair of glasses — you can't get a new pair of eyes.

Also, impact-resistant does NOT mean shatter-proof. Experts point out that "Safety glasses used in industry are several times more resistant to impact than regular impact-resistant glasses." Safety eyewear has reportedly saved tens of thousands from serious job-related eye injuries. It should also be used, when appropriate, by the hobbyist and the "do-it-yourself-er."

What if a lens does break and a fragment hits the eye? Don't try to wash the eye or remove the sliver, warns The American National Red Cross. Place sterile dressings loosely over BOTH eyes to stop eye movement and seek immediate medical attention. Try to avoid blinking.

Is a new eyeglass prescription giving you trouble? Good

Housekeeping reports that "A new lens can cause headaches, dizziness, nausea and even psychological problems." Can you temporarily leave the driving to someone else? If symptoms persist, contact your eye specialist.

Where sunglasses are concerned, smoky gray or green are considered good for seeing, but certain other tints may be more than a shade unsafe. According to Good Housekeeping, they "... can distort color values and cause a safety hazard, particularly in distinguishing traffic lights and signs when driving."

Poor quality sunglasses may cost you less money, but you'll pay in added eyestrain if the lenses have flaws or irregularities of curvature. What's more, "... wearing sunglasses constantly, indoors and out, can make your eyes unduly sensitive to light."

When selecting sunglasses, be sure they're dark enough to offer adequate protection against glare. Lift the lenses up to the light and look for scratches, bubbles or spots. Now hold the glasses about a foot from your eyes and slowly move the glasses back and forth to check for distortions in visual images.

Also, use care in choosing eyeglass frames. Wide temple pieces may "blind you" to safety hazards by interfering with side vision. Especially for driving, specialists suggest glasses with "... a large lens area, thin lens rims at side and bottom, thin temple pieces, and lenses set close to the eye."

Can a cigarette or the kitchen stove set your frames on fire? As of fall, 1974, imported frames made of highly flammable cellulose nitrate could still be sold in many states. Always check before you buy.

Finally, if you decide on contact lenses, have them fitted by a qualified eye specialist and follow instructions scrupulously. Consumers' Research Magazine reports that "Ill-fitting contact lenses may cause corneal abrasions and infections and warping of the cornea." Notify your eye specialist promptly of any undue discomfort or adverse changes in seeing. Especially when you travel, carry a pair of glasses with your current prescription for emergencies.

Can hair-spray and other aerosols affect contact lens comfort? One physician noted that with some patients, difficulties were reduced when use of spray products was minimized.

Experts also warn that "Workers exposed to dusts, fumes, chemicals, impacts, or high temperatures must never wear contact lenses. Foreign bodies and chemical splashes which are washed away by tears under normal conditions may become trapped under a contact lens and cause grave damage to the cornea before the lens can be removed and the eye irrigated."

If you wear contacts, it's a good idea to note it on an identification card carried with you at all times. In a medical emergency, this information could be vital.

Remember, when it comes to corrective lenses, health and safety hazards could really hurt your image!

Science Today

By ART MCGINN
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Following years of dire warnings about the evils of forest fires, some scientists now say an occasional, controllable fire in the right place can help some forests.

The careless camper or cigarette flipper is a villain as ever, they insist, but the well-placed lightning strike that triggers a blaze now and gain may be just the ticket for a healthy, happy forest.

It is nature's way of giving some forests a tuneup—clearing out shrubs, bushes, grass and smaller trees that otherwise provide fuel for a later holocaust, they believe.

Foresters also can use fire creatively, by torching one off themselves occasionally, to help the forest, they contend.

"We must face up to the fact that fire has played—and must continue to play—an essential role in the real, ever-changing worlds of forest and grassland ecosystems," says Dr. Bruce Kilgore, a 45-year-old ecologist who is a service director of the National Park Service.

"The idea that all forest fires are bad has been taught to generations of Americans," says Kilgore, who earned his advanced degree studying the effects of fire on breeding among forest birds.

"This concept is now being viewed with increased skepticism. Many scientists now believe that not all fires are bad; that, indeed, some forest fires are not only good, they are absolutely necessary to keep the ecosystem of a park in its proper natural balance."

Kilgore's laboratory has been the groves of giant sequoias in Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks in California. He has concluded the groves "literally cannot survive" without fire.

Years of total fire prevention programs, he says, had resulted in a buildup of young pines, white fir, incense-cedar and mature brush that "would provide the fuel for devastating crown fires that would kill these ancient monarchs."

He says the thick bark at the base of the sequoia gave ample protection against ground fires, but if flames could leap from smaller trees into branches and needles of the redwoods, the trees would burn readily.

The vegetative tangle, he adds, "was choking out animal life, wildflowers were disappearing (and seeds of certain native shrubs must be cracked by fire before they can germinate.)"

As a result, he says the National Park Service six years ago abandoned its traditional policy of total fire suppression and adopted a new policy at Sequoia-Kings Canyon—expected to be expanded to other national parks—providing for prescribed burning and allowing some "natural" burning, but continuing total fire suppression at lower elevations where dangerous amounts of ground fuel exist. It also continues total suppression in developed areas.

Use of fire in forest management, Kilgore notes, must be highly selective and scientifically controlled. He says it likely could not be used in forests which have had no fires for many years, including many in the Rocky Mountains, where too much growth has accumulated.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Accidents may grab the headlines, but half the deaths in Texas during 1975—in excess of 50,000—will be caused by cardiovascular disease, estimates the State Health Department.

This particular statistic isn't new. The Health Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics has reported similar death percentages year after year.

In 1973, for example, 101,487 Texans died from all causes. Deaths from diseases of the circulatory system accounted for 50,988 of these fatalities—a fraction over half. In 1972 the death toll from cardiovascular disease was 49,410, again a grim fifty-fifty proposition.

What's in store for 1975? According to the American Heart Association it is estimated that Texas has 1.2 million of the more than 28.4 million persons in the United States afflicted with some major form of heart and blood vessel diseases.

Hypertension alone afflicts more than 23 million persons. About half the victims of this so-called "silent disease" don't know they have it because it has no special symptoms. But, it is easily and quickly detected with a blood pressure checkup.

Once detected, it usually is controllable. If left undetected and untreated, however, high blood pressure can lead to stroke, heart attack and kidney failure—diseases that will kill more than 900,000 Americans in 1975.

Statistics don't tell the entire story. They don't tell how many of the 51,500 Texans—those predicted to die this year with cardiovascular disease—could possibly be saved through awareness and proper treatment.

Medical science has unraveled many of the mysteries concerning heart ailments. In addition, dramatic advances have been made in repairing congenital and acquired cardiovascular abnormalities. Surgical techniques make possible the repair and replacement of damaged portions of the heart and blood vessels. It also has a preventive usefulness.

Individual—working with physicians and others—can do much to reduce the chances of heart attack and stroke, says the State Health Department. Extensive clinical studies of family medical history, physical conditions and life styles have identified several factors as contributing to an increased risk of heart attack and stroke. These factors include heredity, sex, age, race, cigarette smoking, high blood pressure, elevated blood cholesterol, diabetes, electrocardiogram abnormalities, stress and lack of exercise.

An epidemiological study by the United States Public Health Service, based on long-term observation of health in the inhabitants of Framingham, Mass., has documented the significance of the major risk factors in heart attacks and stroke. It also shows that the danger increases with the number and severity of risk factors—the more risk factors present or the greater the degree of abnormality of any factor, the greater the risk.

Some risk factors can be changed and others cannot. A person must learn to live with those that cannot be changed and alter those over which control is possible.

Those which cannot be changed include heredity, sex, race and age.

But how about some of those other factors—diet, exercise, smoking, stress, other medical problems? With proper consultation and medical assistance, most of these individual factors can be changed.

High blood pressure, one risk factor, may be controlled by a wide variety of drugs. But it is necessary first to seek medical help to determine if you are one of the 23 million persons with hypertension.

Cholesterol could be another risk factor. It is a fatty substance found normally in living tissue and is essential to health. But if a person has too much cholesterol in the blood, it can build up on the walls of the arteries, narrow their passageway and set the stage for heart attack and stroke.

It has been found that this buildup may start at an early age. But through proper diet and prescribed drugs, cholesterol can be maintained at a normal level.

Changing your life style to meet the threats of your health can be a major undertaking—but a life-saving one, says the Health Department.

Eating proper foods, giving up smoking and other excesses, getting fresh air and exercise and looking out for other physical problems can make your life more satisfying and help you live longer. Developing proper patterns of living to prevent risk factors can be started in early childhood and continued in later years.

Although research is continuing on the effects of correcting risk factors, it has been shown that modification of risk factors will reduce chances of heart attack and stroke. The greatest improvements result from simultaneously lowering all possible factors.

There may be no way to prevent all cardiovascular disease, but one can go a long way toward avoiding disability by getting the good health habit, says your State Health Department.
