House Committee Plans Third CIA Investigation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Lucien H. Nedzi, D-Mich., says his House subcommittee will conduct its own investigation of charges the Central Intelligence Agency illegally spied on Americans, no matter what the Justice Department and President Ford's committee do.

"We intend to go ahead... as soon as the new Congress has organized itself," Nedzi told UPI Sunday. He said the investigation would "very definitely" focus on charges the CIA spied upon dissidents in the United States and that he expected the agency's charter to be tightened to ensure that it confined its activities to foreign intelligence gathering.

This would make the third probe of CIA activities. Working in secrecy, the agency's old rival, the Justice Department, has begun its own probe, and Ford named Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller to head a conservative "blue ribbon" panel. Nedzi's intelligence subcommittee is one of two given regular briefings on CIA activities. In response to a statement by Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., that he thinks there is "a congressional failure" in keeping tabs on the CIA, the chairman said:

"Historically, that is probably true. He said his subcommittee got the authority to oversee the CIA two years ago.

"Since that time," Nedzi added, "I think we've had very adequate oversight. The CIA has been reporting on its activities regularly, almost daily, and it has to be remembered that most of the (domestic spying) activities charged occurred before that time."

Ford announced the membership of his panel Saturday to "ascertain and evaluate any facts relating to activities conducted within the United States by the Central Intelligence Agency that give rise to questions as to whether the agency has exceeded its statutory authority."

The appointments were made Sunday. They are: —Rockefeller, also a member of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. He is close to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, whose "40 Committee" gives the CIA its day-to-day direction. —C. Douglas Dillon, Treasury secretary under Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower.

—Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the CIA-sponsored invasion of Cuba that foundered at the Bay of Pigs.

—Erwin N. Griswold, former solicitor general. —Joseph Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO.

—John T. Connor, a former secretary of commerce. The Washington Post said Connor was a Marine intelligence officer in 1944.

—Ronald Reagan, the former governor of California who has announced plans to become a conservative columnist and broadcaster.

—Edgar F. Shannon, former president of the University of Virginia.

Administration sources said CIA Director William E. Colby asked Ford for the FBI investigation in his 50-page report on the allegations, first made in the Dec. 22 New York Times. White House officials said the Justice Department investigation had been under way "for the past few days," but neither FBI nor Justice officials would comment.

Ford Planning Economy And Energy Studies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is planning to set aside time every day this week to work on proposals for repairing the economy and conserving energy.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Sunday Ford will work on legislative proposals for the new Congress as well as his upcoming State of the Union message.

Administration sources said Saturday one of the proposals was an income tax cut for low and middle-income Americans which, one source estimated, could put $20 billion back in the economy — but that amount would be taken from a Treasury facing large deficits this year and next.

Time Magazine reported Sunday the administration has agreed on an excise tax to increase the price of gasoline about 5 cents a gallon, cut oil consumption by 750,000 to 800,000 gallons a day, a $1 to $3 per barrel tariff on oil imports, and ending price controls coupled with a windfall profits tax.

Ford moved Saturday to cope with the nation's unemployment situation. About 6.5 million Americans who want work cannot get it — about 7.1 per cent. The President signed a bill to provide $4.5 billion in unemployment benefits and new government job programs.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller is expected to have some part in the strategy sessions. Rockefeller sat in Saturday on the meeting of the Economic Policy Board, which Nessen said "dovetailed" energy and economic problems.

Nessen said of Rockefeller Sunday: "He's going to be a very busy man."

One of the jobs will be heading the eight-member commission to investigate the Central Intelligence Agency. The commission will seek to find out if the CIA violated its charter, which bans domestic spying, and spied on what news reports have said were as many as 10,000 Americans during the 1960s.

'ONE OF THE BEST' Sherman Expects Good Session For Legislature

By TEx DeWEESE
With a budget surplus of $1.5 billion, State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo told a Chamber of Commerce breakfast audience in Coronado Inn today, the new session of the Texas Legislature beginning Jan. 14 "could be one of the best in Texas history."

Among major issues coming before the Legislature will be tax reform, energy concerns, water conservation, and public education, the Senator stated.

Specific issues he said, will include a proposed state utilities commission, increased use of Texas lignite as a source of fuel, superport development, restructuring of public school financing and conservation of underground water among others.

Sherman said he does not see a personal income tax on the state horizon.

He pointed to the move to have a state public utilities commission as one of the most controversial issues the 1975 Legislature will face.

Tax reform, Sherman believes, will get top consideration. "There should be no need for a tax bill," he said. "But because of public school financing, most observers believe there is a need to reform the property tax."

"There are inequities and in many areas this tax has carried a disproportionate load."

One of the reforms, according to Senator Sherman, will be to devise some kind of appraisal unit and the most likely would be to have one appraisal unit for each county in the state.

He said oil and gas taxes have helped keep the per capita tax in Texas one of the lowest in the nation.

"Texas is one of the few states without an income tax," Sherman said. "However, by 1985 Texas will move from an exporter of oil and gas to an importer."

The senator told the breakfast audience of nearly 200 persons of the need to conserve underground water and work for water importation.

As for restructuring the state's public school system, he stated, there are several different plans including the governor's weighted pupil plan and revitalization of the present system.

"All will be expensive if they meet the court tests of providing equal educational opportunity," Sherman said. "Costs in all the public education categories are escalating."

Sherman said the Panhandle delegation in the Texas Legislature is a strong, experienced working team and said Rep. Bill Clayton from the area is expected to be the new House speaker.

In stating his belief the coming session of the legislature will be the best in history, Sherman said it is the best informed, as a result of the Constitutional Convention, which gave a majority of its members an opportunity to analyze local and state government and become involved in the difficult task of writing a new Constitution for Texas and examine, not just specific bills, but how the government works."

In concluding his half-hour talk, Senator Sherman said: "Our part of the state offers most to our citizens. The type of community endeavor and interest you have here this morning is what is needed throughout the state and nation."

"We need people like you to care about their families, about their jobs and businesses, about their neighbors and about preserving the liberty we have in this country for all citizens."

"I am convinced that your representative, Phil Cates, and I are most fortunate to represent this area in state government and for making it such a pleasant task."

State Rep. Cates of Pampa was seated at the head table along with Mayor R. D. Wilkerson, County Judge Don Cain, Rex McAnelly, past president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Floyd Watson, who introduced Senator Sherman. Boyd Taylor, chamber vice president, presided at the meeting and the invocation was by the Rev. Lloyd Hamilton, pastor of First United Methodist Church. The breakfast audience was made up of representatives of agri-business, manufacturing, oil and gas, retail and wholesale and professional people.

FOR CURRENT RECESSION Recovery May Occur Slowly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economist today warned against undue optimism that recovery from the recession will begin in the second half of 1975.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, testified before Congress' Joint Economic Committee that the economy's downturn came more swiftly than the administration anticipated and recovery may come more slowly than many private economists predict. "The very suddenness of the decline has made developments beyond the first quarter (of 1975) extremely difficult to gauge, but essentially we still foresee a bottoming out in economic activity by mid-year," Greenspan said.

"The timing and the strength of the ensuing recovering is still very uncertain."

Most economists are predicting that the nation's economy will pick up toward the end of the year, especially if, as expected, the government provides economic stimulation through tax cuts and heavy deficit spending.

But Greenspan expressed no confidence that this will happen although he did foresee a turnaround for the hard-hit automobile and housing industries and the selling off of heavy inventory accumulations which have depressed business.

These developments, he said, "should begin to lift total production in the economy during the second half of the year, but the recovery is unlikely to provide much of a reduction in unemployment this year."

Greenspan was more optimistic on the price front. He said wholesale prices of raw materials have been stable since July, compared with an almost 50 per cent increase in the preceding year and as a result a slowdown in inflation may be expected.

Predictions are difficult to make, he said, but "a rate of inflation in the 6 to 7 per cent range by mid-1975 now appears plausible."

Greenspan blamed the recession partly on inflation. He said inflation made consumers extremely cautious about making big purchases and caused them to set aside more for future expenses such as paying for a college education.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who chaired the hearing, called for a tax cut and a relaxation of credit curbs to spur the economy. He said this would not be inflationary because "there is no excess demand in the economy."

Indians Refused Food Deliveries

GRESHAM, Wis. (UPI) — A second outburst of gunfire ended a cease-fire Sunday night, and some 50 Indians today held a 64-room monastery for the sixth straight day. Police cut off their electricity and refused to allow deliveries of food into the building.

The Shawano County district attorney's office said shooting erupted for about an hour from the closed Alexian Brothers novitiate monastery. Police said they returned fired three times. There were no reports of injuries.

The shooting ended a ceasefire the Indians and law enforcement officers agreed to earlier in the day.

The Indians — men, women and children — took over the abandoned novitiate early New Year's day and demanded the building and surrounding grounds be returned to the Menominee tribe.

Telephone service to the monastery was cut off last week and electricity was shut off Sunday. The Indians have asked for food, saying their supplies are running short, but authorities have refused to allow any to be delivered.

Sunday's shooting — the second such outburst since the takeover — followed cancellation of planned face-to-face negotiations between the Indians and representatives of the religious order which owns the facility.

Brothers Neal Bennett and Maurice Wilson, representing the Chicago-based Roman Catholic order, had planned to meet with the Indians Sunday after the cease-fire agreement was reached. But the session fell through when Neal Hawpetoss, an Indian spokesman, was told he risked losing his immunity from prosecution if he entered the novitiate.

The Indians refused to see Bennett, Wilson and mediators unless Hawpetoss was present.

Prior to the short-lived ceasefire, authorities declared the occupation "an unlawful assembly" and ordered the Indians to leave. The militants refused.

Arabs Denounce U.S. Threats

United Press International
The Arab League urged Arab countries today to take precautionary measures against the possibility of U.S. military intervention against oil-producing states. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger raised that possibility if the Arabs' use of oil as a weapon brought "some actual strangulation of the industrialized world."

Almost every Arab oil producing state plus Venezuela and the Shah of Iran have denounced the Kissinger statement. Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad joined them today and said the Kissinger statement violated the United Nations charter.

"We reject attempts to restore the world to the era of threats and domination," Riad told a meeting of the League's Economic Unity Council in Cairo. "Arab countries should take these statements seriously and the oil-producing states should think of taking protective measures."

Riad's statements constituted the strongest Arab reaction yet to Kissinger's statement.

Riad said the American threats "are a violation of the charter of the United Nations, under which the countries of the world, including the United States, agreed to a world system that bans the use of force and threats to use force."

In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar said Kissinger has sent messages to the four largest oil-exporting countries clarifying his statement. The newspaper, quoting diplomatic sources, said Kissinger sent messages to Saudi Arabia, Iran, Venezuela and Kuwait.

State Minister Abdel Aziz Hussein of Kuwait told newsmen Sunday the remark was unjustified and part of an American policy aimed at scaring the oil producers into lowering their prices. The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram charged in an editorial that the United States seemed to be headed for the role that Britain played in the 1956 Suez war against Egypt.

"Israel looks forward to joining the U.S. in a new war against the Arabs in the same manner it joined France and Britain in attacking Egypt in the wake of the nationalization of the Suez Canal," the newspaper said.

Kissinger and other Western leaders have charged that the four-fold price increase in oil over the past year is helping to lead the world into a 1930s style depression.

Strong Winds Expected To Keep Chill In Area

An approaching weather system prompted officials to post wind warnings for area lakes today.

Skies in the Panhandle were clear this morning, but the cold was intensified by variable winds which were expected to shift to the northwest and increase in velocity later today.

The mercury reached a low of 23 degrees Sunday night. Weather forecasters said early today a warming trend would send temperatures into the 50's today, but the sharp wind would keep a chill prevalent in the area.

No precipitation or snow is predicted for the next 48 hours in the Pampa area.

A weak cold front has moved across Texas but all it brought was a shift in wind direction and some lower temperatures in the northern part of the state.

Overnight lows were lower than normal ranging from the upper teens in the Panhandle to the mid 50s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Mild overnight temperatures in the 40s and 50s were recorded along the upper coast.

Fog spread across Southeast Texas and the upper coast but clear skies extended across the rest of the state. Winds were light and variable and from the north.

There was no rain in the state and none predicted. Temperatures were expected to warm slightly.

Rain and snow wet and whitened most of the nation except the Deep South early today, with accumulations of snow up to six inches expected in some areas of the Northwest.

Heavy snows were forecast in several mountainous areas of the West and travelers' advisories were in effect for southeastern Idaho, Utah's northern mountains and the mountains of Colorado.

Rain and snow fell from the northern half of California into Washington and Oregon.

Steel Injured On Ski Trip

Gene Steel, manager of Celanese Chemical Co. plant here and president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, was injured in a ski accident Sunday afternoon at Angel Fire, N.M.

Steel suffered a dislocated shoulder in his final trip down the slopes and was taken to Taos, N.M., for treatment.

He and Mrs. Steel returned to Pampa early this morning. He was on the job this forenoon in a meeting at the plant with Celanese officials from New York City.

Steel was to have presided at the Chamber of Commerce breakfast for State Senator Max Sherman this morning in Coronado Inn. Boyd Taylor, chamber vice president, relieved him of that duty because of Steel's late arrival in town from the ski resort.

Gold And Savings
The Federal Reserve put on a mighty effort in Congress against the lifting of restrictions on the private ownership of gold. But the restrictions came off Dec. 31.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns told Congress to keep the limitations on for another six months. Otherwise, he said, people might withdraw funds from savings accounts. This would include accounts in savings and loan firms, accounts that are important to construction and, of course, to construction tradesmen.

On the face of it, Burns' testimony to Congress was not credible. True, individuals can be expected to withdraw savings in order to purchase gold. But what Burns didn't go ahead to point out was that the bills will not disappear from the marketplace. Instead they will go to the sellers of gold. And what will the sellers do with them? Will they bury them in a can? Or will they deposit them in their own savings accounts or pay off debts or buy products? Eventually, the dollars will come to rest back where they originated — in the very same banks, savings and loans, or other thrift institutions.

So Burns' one-sided testimony shaped up as a scare tactic, designed to prolong the Federal Reserve tight grip on legal tender. Frankly, the Federal Reserve monopoly will continue even though gold restrictions were lifted. The reason is obvious. The privately owned government-run Federal Reserve banks are still able to manufacture debt — extinguishing paper currency cheaper than miners can recover gold. The cheaper currency will drive out the hard money. Privately owned gold will function more as a commodity, like wheat, coal, oil, etc., rather than as a medium of exchange.

The return to private ownership of gold is not to be feared. It has not introduced any long-lasting change. Savings accounts reasonably can be expected to rock along the same as though gold never had entered the picture. Surely, the Federal Reserve banks will continue to have a good thing. Their banknotes will continue to be government-enforced legal tender. At the moment, the Federal Reserve banks have a little too much of a good thing. Their ultra benefit has trespassed on the rights of individuals to keep, process and trade a legitimate commodity.

It won't hurt Burns, or the banking brotherhood that he represents, for ordinary folks to have a little bit of freedom. Nevertheless, the Federal Reserve system does have a government-enforced monopoly and the markup on its product is exceedingly great. Most individuals accept this because they are under an impression that, since the Federal Reserve system is governmentally directed, the Federal Reserve banks are governmentally owned. Actually, the Federal Reserve banks are privately owned. This ought to provide a clue as to who

Reporter Bags A Big One

By WILLIAM RUSHER
Two years ago the headlines were all about Richard Nixon's Christmas bombardment of Hanoi. This year, just to show how much things have changed, they're all about Seymour Hersh's Christmas bombardment of the CIA. Hersh is the "New York Times" reporter who last year got hold of some leaked secret testimony (to a congressional committee) on the CIA's activities in Chile during the Marxist regime of Salvador Allende. He crusaded around on the strength of this for several months, implying that it was somehow improper for the CIA to interest itself in Chile, and egging on his pet congressman — notably Democrat Michael Harrington of Massachusetts — to demand investigations of the CIA, cuts in its funds, and so on.

Dear Abby
She's thankful things aren't worse

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would print this for all the women who write to complain about the size of their breasts—either too small or too large. I would gladly change places with any of them.
I had one breast removed at the age of 38, when my children were three and seven years old. Twelve years later, I had a second breast removed.
Fourteen months ago I was told that I had inoperable cancer of the abdomen. With chemotherapy, prayers and the love and support of my family and friends I am still able to enjoy life.
Women with two breasts—regardless of their size—should thank God every day for them. And women with only one breast should thank God for that one. I thank God for every day that I am alive (at the ripe old age of 52) to be with my family and friends. I am reminded of an old proverb that goes something like this: "I wept because I had no shoes, until I met a man who had no feet."
I can still find people who are worse off than I am. Sign me...
"THANKFUL"

DEAR THANKFUL: It's letters like yours that will give many people cause to pause. God love you.
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our late 20s and have been married for five years. We are both college-educated and have fine jobs, a good home and a beautiful child. On the surface our marriage seems perfect. And it is, except for one thing. Our sex life.
About two years ago my husband began losing interest in sex. I tried everything I could think of—frank discussions, tears, attempts at "new variations" recommended in the "how to" books. Nothing worked.
Finally, I suggested we seek professional help. My husband flatly refused to see either a doctor or a marriage counselor.
The total absence of a physical relationship has left me frustrated. My husband claims he "loves" me, and that his coming home right after work, buying the food, etc., rather than drinking and gambling, is proof of his love. He says, "hugs, kisses and sex" do not prove love.
He is a good man, and an excellent father. But I refuse at 27 to forego an active sex life. In the past year I've even had erotic dreams about some of the 18-year-old boys in my classes. Please help me.
FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If your husband flatly refuses to get professional help (which is the only solution to your problem), you have two choices. (1) Accept things as they are, or (2) make other living arrangements. Personally, I think he's being unfair to you, and unless he changes his mind, I see an unhappy ending to this otherwise perfect marriage.

RECOMPUTATION: Will New Congress Okay It?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 — Many question marks loom disturbingly over the incoming 94th Congress, but for around one million military retirees throughout the country the prospects for finally attaining a long-sought goal were never brighter.

A large influx of new legislators (average age 40 and many of them veterans) greatly enhances the likelihood that recomputation will be approved.
Significantly indicative of this distinctly encouraging outlook are the numerous changes in the membership of the House Armed Services Committee — where Senate-approved recomputation measures have been scuttled in the past three years.

Not only will this strategic panel gain seven new members, but even more important it's losing four top opponents of recomputation. Further reinforcing this promising situation is the categorical assurance from Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee, that he will again sponsor the recomputation proposal overwhelmingly passed by the Senate each year since 1971 — only to be blocked by a handful of opponents in the House Armed Services Committee. Hartke told this column:

"My recomputation amendment will again be introduced when the new Congress convenes. It's high on my list of priority measures. I not only will sponsor it again, but I'm going to leave no stone unturned to make sure it's again overwhelmingly passed by the Senate as it has been the past three years. I also think that with the many changes in the House, particularly the Armed Services Committee, the chances are better than even that recomputation will finally be enacted."
I really believe that 1975 will definitely see this long-overdue justice done to around one million military retirees.

Trump Cards
In the House Armed Services Committee, key battleground of the 15-year-long recomputation struggle, three new and distinctly favorable factors can be counted on:

(1) Rep. Bob Wilson, Calif., top recomputation leader in the House, will be the ranking Republican committeeman. Not only will that appreciably increase his influence, but Wilson replaces two senior Republican committeemen opposed to recomputation — Reps. William Bray, Ind., defeated, and Leslie Arends, Ill., retired. They invariably sided with committee chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., in blocking on technical grounds the Senate-passed Hartke amendment.

They will no longer be around to give Hebert potent bipartisan backing in axing recomputation.
(2) In the considerably changed committee set-up, all 13 Republican committeemen, as far as is known, favor recomputation. That will be an ace card in Wilson's hands, particularly in dealing with Hebert and Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the special subcommittee considering retirement legislation and diehard recomputation opponent.

(3) There will be a definite majority for recomputation in the revised Armed Services Committee — of both Democrats and Republicans. This also will be a trump card for Wilson. It could be of distinct value in shaping the kind of retirement legislation that will come from the Stratton subcommittee — hopefully by spring.

The new committee set-up will consist of 40 members (as against 44 in the 93rd Congress) — 27 Democrats; 13 Republicans. The three Republican members of the Stratton panel, headed by John Hunt, N.J., are all recomputation supporters.

Telling Them
In the Stratton subcommittee's last meeting before the 93rd Congress adjourned, Rep. Wilson vigorously debunked two leading arguments of recomputation opponents — (1) That the "overall total cost" of recomputation runs into billions; (2) the chief beneficiaries will be generals and admirals. Flatly contradicting the second "myth," Wilson displayed graphic charts showing that actually general officers constitute a "minuscule number of the officers who will benefit under the 'one-shot' recomputation program."

"This chart shows," declared Wilson, "that of the military personnel who will receive benefits under the Hartke amendment, at age 60, the great mass are in Grade 7.
On the controversial issue of the cost of recomputation, Wilson urged that private actuaries be employed by the subcommittee to study the matter and submit findings. He contended, "Computers don't lie, but liars can compute. Let's get at the facts through independent sources."
Surprisingly, Rep. Stratton thought well of the proposal.

"I think your recommendation about getting an outside actuary is a very good one," he told Wilson. "I think we ought to get such an actuary and let him check over the statistics we've been getting from the Defense Department. We are all aware they are not above juggling figures from time to time, and we ought to have our own actuaries check them."

Wilson strongly stressed that too much emphasis is being put on the "overall cost of recomputation."
"It strikes me that we're worrying too much about the year 2048," he said. "We ought to be worrying about what is happening to military retirees now. There is an old truism that 'today is the tomorrow we worried about yesterday.' That applies very much in this matter."
Stratton argued that recomputation means little to active personnel, saying, "The average enlisted retiree is getting $367 a month; and the top enlisted grade, who retires today, will get $421 a month. That's $54 a month difference."
"To you, $54 may not look like much, but I can assure you it makes a lot of difference to a retiree getting $360 a month, when it should be $425 a month," retorted Wilson. "I emphatically disagree that percentage-wise recomputation isn't important to retirees in the lower grades."

This view was vigorously seconded by Rep. Mendel Davis, D-S.C.
"I want the record to show," he declared, "that it is a pleasure to have someone come here and battle for a fair deal for military retirees. I want to thank Bob Wilson for his magnificent presentation. It's a great service to retirees, to the military services and the country as a whole."

Again unexpectedly, Stratton spoke favorably — this time warmly lauding Wilson.
"You have been the leader in this fight for many years," Stratton said. "You have been a tigerish fighter for this legislation in this committee and in the conference committees. I can testify to that from personal experience. No one has spoken more forcefully and eloquently. I want to commend you for the way in which you are determined and unyieldingly pursuing this matter. I don't agree with you, but I heartily admire you. You are a credit to your cause."

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., member of the Appropriations Committee, has served notice that he will vigorously support the Hartke amendment, and demand that the full House be given a chance to vote on recomputation — which it has never been able to do due to technicalities raised by Armed Services chairman Hebert.

"The time is long past when recomputation should be approved," said Mathias, reelected by a big majority in November. "The 94th Congress must pass this legislation and right this 15-year wrong to hundreds of thousands of deserving veterans."

Double-Ring Home Ceremony Unites Laquita Carter, Samuel M. Gardner

Miss Laquita Louise Carter of Pampa and Samuel Melvin Gardner, Jr., of Lubbock, were united in marriage at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 28 in the home of the bride's parents, 1313 Christine.

Mr. and Mrs. Oran D. Carter, Pampa, are the parents of the bride and the bridegroom is the son of Samuel Melvin Gardner, Sr., Garden City, Kan. and Mrs. Glen Bradshaw of Idalou.

THE CEREMONY

Glen Walton, minister of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, before a background arrangement of two dozen roses in a large silver bowl on the mantle flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers.

The stairs were draped in garlands of English Ivy caught at three points on the banister with large velvet ribbons centered with a red Christmas ornament. The arched doorway was also entwined with English Ivy and white velvet ribbons and red ornaments. Two seven branched candelabra holding white tapers flanked the arched doorway.

Miss Cindy Burns, pianist, played traditional wedding selections and "Laura's Theme" and accompanied Miss Lynn Richardson as she sang "Romeo and Juliet," "Whither Thou Goest," and "The Wedding Prayer."

THE BRIDE

The bride presented in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, wore a white velvet formal gown styled with an empire waistline. White scalloped lace enhanced the V-neckline and her long sleeves were caught at the wrists by deep cuffs and high-lighted by scalloped lace. The gathered velvet skirt fell into a short train at the back.

Her chapel length veil of bridal illusion was edged in scalloped lace and fell from a bandeau, and she carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and English Ivy atop the same white Bible her mother carried at her wedding.

The bride carried her mother's Bible for something old, and her something new was her wedding gown. She also wore a borrowed penny in her shoe and the traditional blue garter.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Marie Kersey, Artesia, N.M., was maid of honor and bridesmaid was Marita Carter, sister of the bride, Pampa. They wore identical red velvet length dresses with Ecru lace collars and Juliet sleeves. The gowns were styled with empire waistlines tied with a bow at the back. Each carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

Brian Bradshaw, Idalou, brother of the bride, served as best man and Steve Nettles, Lubbock, was groomsmen. Ushers were John Carter, brother of the bride and Keller Glen Bradshaw, brother of the bridegroom.

RECEPTION

The bride's parents hosted a reception in their home immediately following the ceremony.

A five-branched silver candelabrum holding white tapers entwined with English Ivy and velvet bows decorated the serving table covered with a red cloth, overlaid with lace.

The three-tiered white wedding cake with red decorations, featured tiers separated by white columns and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, which previously topped the wedding cakes of her parents, grandparents, and great-grandparents.

Gay Nell Carter, sister of the bride, assisted at the punch bowl and Pam Luellen, served cake. Ora Carter, sister of the bride, registered guests.

For the wedding trip to Red River, N.M., the bride traveled in a green and gray plaid pant suit and green blouse, the costume was fashioned by the bride. Her flowers were lifted from the bridal bouquet.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Pampa High School, is presently a sophomore at Texas Tech University majoring in anthropology. The bridegroom, a 1972 graduate of Idalou High

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
My husband was out of town and a jar lid just wouldn't budge. Should I "streak" to the kitchen for an opener, or skip my beauty treatment?

Grinning (fairly) at me from the towel bar was my lined shower cap! You guessed it. I placed the plastic side on the lid and had a firm grip inside with the terry cloth lining.

When my cap tears and the elastic is dead, you can bet it won't get pitched. It's earned its place under the sink with the bottles and jars at my house.

Sure do enjoy getting extra mileage out of my equipment and hubby and I got a chuckle out of my story when he returned.

It's great to have my man back home again. But when he isn't, I'm just a little more independent now!

Mrs. Jennifer Rauch

We all got quite a chuckle out of your letter, too. Thanks for writing.

Dear Heloise:

My daughter, who has been working with me for the past few weeks, just knocked over a glass of ice tea on my desk. In picking up the soggy papers, I could see, for the first time, that my desk is brown instead of white! One way to get a desk clean...

Now if we could do our houses this way...

Dear Heloise:

A good tip for the vacuum is to place clean pieces of facial tissue into the new bag before you start to use the vacuum cleaner and add a few drops of your favorite cologne or whatever suits your fancy. Then, as the hot air leaves the vacuum, your whole house is scented with your favorite smell.

On the opposite side of the coin, if you pick up stale cigarette butts and ashes with your vacuum cleaner, then your whole house will smell of stale smoke.

E.A.F.

Dear Heloise:

I was making a large batch of cookies for my family this morning and had only two small wire cooling racks.

My rack for the portable barbecue grill was clean and, being quite large, it came in mighty handy to cool the cookies on.

Mrs. Thomas Brahany

Dear Heloise:

My family and I enjoy going to the cafeteria to eat, but we used to get there and find ourselves without a bib for our 2-year-old son.

Now my husband always carries one of his tie-tacks in his pocket. We can use any cloth napkin for a bib by fastening it in the back with the tie-tack.

Mom could carry one in her change purse if Dad isn't along.

Dorothy Bullock

Dear Heloise:

I've found a simple way to get ravioli out of the can without breaking them as you dig in with the spoon.

Simply open the can as usual, place the opened end on the bottom of the pan, puncture the other end with a can opener and lift.

The ravioli just oozes right out.

Consumer Market Report

College Station — The meat picture looks bright for food shoppers, one observer reported this week.
She's Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.
"Plentiful beef supplies have resulted in moderate or lower price levels on quality products," she explained.
"Some steaks and standing rib roasts are being featured — and attractive prices also may appear on round bone chuck roasts, ground beef, stew meat and beef liver."
Fryer chickens and turkeys are well priced, too, the specialist reported, adding that larger-size turkeys are the best value since they usually cost less per pound — and have a greater proportion of meat to bone.
"Egg prices are steady, and Grade A, medium-size eggs are often the best value by weight," Mrs. Clyatt added.
At fruit counters, grapefruit prices signal economy — since now is the season when grapefruit eating quality is at its best, supplies heaviest, and prices generally lowest.
"Choose grapefruit that are firm but springy to the touch, well-shaped and smooth skinned, and pick the heaviest grapefruit for its size," the specialist advised.
Other fruit with attractive prices includes navel oranges, tangerines and tangelos.
Also, cranberries, bananas, apples and grapes. In vegetable sections, snap beans are more plentiful, but prices are on the high side.

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT THE BEST INFLATION FIGHTER

A savings account at Panhandle Savings continues to be the best hedge against inflation. The last seven years show very few months an investor could have pulled his original investment in stocks or bonds without suffering a loss. But... the Panhandle Savings investor received the highest accrued dividend allowed by law, and his money was insured safe by the federal government. Savings accounts at Panhandle Savings are now insured up to $40,000 and plans are available with dividends up to 7-3/4%. Proof once again that your best hedge against inflation is a savings account at Panhandle Savings and Loan.

19 FEARED DEAD

Freighter Rams Bridge, Shatters Concrete Span

HOBART, Australia (UPI) — Frank and Sylvia Manley were driving over the mile-long bridge with their teen-age daughter Sharon when 250 feet of the concrete span crumbled. "The bridge has gone!" Mrs. Manley screamed out as the rubble fell 150 feet into the Derwent River on the island of Tasmania. "I hit the brakes but it was too late," Manley said. "The front of the car went over the bridge."

A freighter rammed into the Tasman Bridge Sunday night, shattering the concrete span. Rescue workers recovered five bodies but said up to 14 others might have perished. Thirty-two persons were injured. Police said at least four autos fell into the 90-foot-deep river. The Manleys were among the lucky ones. The rear of their car stuck hung there, Manley said. "I had a bit of trouble getting out of the car because my door opened over the edge, but we got out through the back door and ran down the bridge as fast as we could," he said.

The 10,000-ton freighter Lake Illawarra, loaded with zinc ore, smashed into one of the bridge's supports, knocking down a 250-foot section of the span. The ship sank within 10 minutes. Police said two of the vessel's 42 crewmen were missing and feared dead. A spokesman said another 12 persons may have been in the cars that fell into the river.

Smothers Bros. Return For TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The political climate isn't right and network attitudes aren't all they could be, but the Smothers Brothers are returning to a weekly television show soon, nonetheless. "There's much less controversy these days," said brother Dick, the straightman of the two. "There's no civil rights movement, no Vietnam War, no Lyndon Johnson, no even a Nixon." "Satire has moved from social issues to economics, government, oil embargoes. Viewers are less receptive to hearing the truth with humor. People don't really want to hear a lot of things."

comedy with either subject. "Right," Tom agreed. "What we deal with is ideas, which are a lot more controversial than sex or violence." "The Smothers will replace 'Born Free' in the NBC schedule." After the boys completed taping of the first show Dick said, "That was traumatic. I felt if we could do it next week it would be much better." "We always feel that way," Tom put in. "It's only natural when you attempt to get the highest quality possible combined with the anxiety of trying to get started out right."

"Everyone is new on the show, so we're trying to get to know one another," said Dick. "It's a matter of feeling around for the right format." Tom and Dick appear to be more relaxed than in previous years. They are old professionals now and confident they will be around longer than their 13-week contract calls for.

IN BOMBING CASE

Immigrant Facing Competency Test

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Yugoslav immigrant who told police he can talk. Others said they knew him only as a mute. "Alphabet Bomber" faced a competency hearing today to determine if he is competent to stand trial for the deadliest civil air terminal bombing in U.S. history. The blasts killed three persons at Los Angeles International Airport last year. Muharem Kurbegovic has not spoken since his arrest last Aug. 30. Through written responses he has maintained he is mute and could not have been the man whose voice was on cassette tapes claiming responsibility for the bombing.

Despite Kurbegovic's alleged mute condition, some of his acquaintances told police he can talk. Others said they knew him only as a mute. In addition to the three dead, the bomb blast Aug. 6 also injured 35 and caused extensive damage to the international departures terminal. Prosecution of Kurbegovic, 31, on 12 felony charges including murder and arson was delayed pending results of the psychiatric hearing. A man calling himself "Isaac Rasim, military commander of the Aliens of America," claimed responsibility for the airport bombing in taped messages and threatened further destruction unless immigration and sex laws were repealed. The cassettes were left for newsmen who were tipped by telephone as to their whereabouts.

Egypt Arrests Communists

CAIRO (UPI) — Security agents have arrested hundreds of Egyptians in the first major crackdown against suspected Communists since President Anwar Sadat took office in 1970.

Sources close to the government said Sunday authorities have rounded up about 400 members of a new clandestine Communist organization in connection with New Year's Day worker protests in Cairo.

The sources said the mass detention of workers, students and journalists over the past five days was a strictly domestic matter and did not reflect recent reports of Soviet Egyptian discord.

The school was shut down Dec. 11 following a stabbing incident. School Superintendent William J. Leary announced Saturday, following a meeting with Mayor Kevin H. White and state officials, that the complex would reopen Wednesday.

White previously had urged the school be closed for good, and its students sent to other facilities throughout the city. South Boston residents have expressed vocal opposition to the busing plan ordered by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity and strongly objected to the school's closing.

Government sources accused the suspects of sparking New Year's Day protests in which workers clashed with police and stoned shops, offices, buses and cars. The demonstrators demanded higher pay and lower prices. The sources said the mass arrests moved Sadat's policy toward Egyptian Communists closer to the hard line of his predecessor, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

School To Reopen For South Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — School officials say they will reopen the racially troubled South Boston High School complex this week, but first want assurance law enforcement officials can protect students from more violence.

the responsibility of public safety officials and of the court. The high schools in South Boston and Roxbury sections were closed after a white student allegedly was stabbed by a black student at South Boston High School just before police clashed with an angry crowd outside the school.

Grass Finished Beef Provides Quality Steaks

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The head of the Auburn University's animal and dairy sciences department told the Farm Bureau Federation today grass-finished cattle turn into steaks just as tasty as grain-fed cows. "Research results show that grass finished beef is equal in every measurement of quality to grain finished beef of the same grade," M.W. Warren said in a talk to the 56th annual Farm Bureau Federation meeting. "Grass finished beef does not mean inferior, and herein lies an untapped potential for the continued production of a quality product in a grain hungry world."

Meanwhile, the Boston School Committee was expected to elect a new chairman today. John J. McDonough, one of three committee members found in civil contempt of court for refusing to approve a citywide integration plan, was expected to take over as leader of the five-man board from John J. Kerrigan.

An aide to Mayor Kevin H. White also confirmed Sunday that the city would recommend a "neutral site" for classes ordinarily held in the South Boston-Roxbury complex. Officials declined to disclose the location, but said the change could be made on two weeks notice.

Garrity, who has indicated he would approve a long-range busing plan for next fall, said he would advocate a permanent closing of the complex "only as a last resort."

Mrs. Glass replaces Mrs. Wanita Brown of Amarillo, who has transferred to the Interstate Commerce Commission after seven years with FCIC. As representative in charge, Mrs. Glass will manage the crop insurance program in 13 area counties. These include Gray, Carson, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Hansford, Hartley, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Ochiltree, Oldham, Randall and Sherman.

John O. Mirick, counsel to the Boston School Committee, said he would file a motion in the U.S. District Court today, asking Garrity to order state and city public safety officials to submit their plans to ensure the safety of teachers and students at the schools.

FCIC appoints representative Mrs. Charlene "Pat" Glass is now representative in charge of the Amarillo office of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

In announcing the reopening Saturday, Leary said he would ask Garrity to review safety precautions. "The school department's responsibility and obligation is education," Leary said. "We stand ready to provide education. Public safety is protection is against polio, diphtheria, lock jaw, whooping cough, measles and rubella. There will be no charge for inoculations. Qualified personnel will be available to the public in Pampa Jan. 10 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Parents of pre-school children are urged to take part in the program which is available to anyone two months of age or older, according to Val Salmon, health program specialist, Amarillo.

Jeane Dixon Makes 1975 Predictions

A personal message from Jeane Dixon to readers:

Shakespeare's famous quote, "What is past is prologue," tells us to examine what has been, the better to understand what will be. If we study the patterns in the history of human achievement and suffering, we may perceive the extraterrestrial forces that manipulate man's affairs, over which man has no control.

Meditating on the interconnected patterns of history has indeed provided me with an illuminating vision of what is to come and accounts for the startling accuracy of my predictions. I was able to forecast our recent crises: the critical oil shortage, the disastrous food shortages, even the grave scandal within the U.S. government that would touch the chief executive.

These predictions are not meant to sensationalize or alarm but, rather, to inform. The Scriptures remind us that truth can make us free.

I then offer the following forecasts as a contribution to the truth in the future tense. As you read these forecasts, I urge you all to recall how much in your own life the past has opened the future to you.

President Ford
President Ford has inherited a difficult position. Americans are confused about what they want their President to be and feel the Presidency has acquired too much strength and influence.

I therefore predict that President Ford will suffer severe criticism during the coming year. When he acts decisively, he will be accused of arbitrary authority. When he consults others and listens to public opinion, he will be considered weak.

Policies
Although Ford will set policies according to what he believes is best for the country, several will prove sadly ill-conceived. The anti-trust suit recently initiated by the Department of Justice against American Telephone and Telegraph will later be recognized as a grave error and will disrupt America's telephone service.

I see the effort to break up AT&T as part of a large plan of several government agencies to cripple America's industrial giants. I predict a newspaper and television campaign to prepare the public for judicial proceedings against large corporations.

The Economy
Throughout 1975, President Ford will be plagued by the nation's economic problems. I caution him that economic recovery will not come as soon as his advisers now expect.

Indeed, he would be more prudent to make small, steady advances than to call for drastic action. He should keep the ball in Congress' court, which I know he already intends to do.

1976 Election
In 1976, I predict that Ford's political opponents will forget about Watergate and concentrate on the economic situation, blaming Mr. Ford for it while overlooking the responsibilities of Congress. The President's ability to cope with the economy this year will determine his fate in the next election.

I predict that much publicized and awaited political reforms will boomerang and actually lessen the power of the people in American politics. Efforts of both parties to increase the voters' voice and power will be exploited by special interest groups. The President should disassociate himself from such poorly planned reforms.

Recently enacted laws concerning public financing of political campaigns will likewise backfire and make candidates even less responsive to the people than they are now.

I predict carefully planned efforts to have the taxpayers pay for expenses in practically all campaigns, resulting in the greatest degree of hostility toward elected officials in this country since Andrew Jackson's triumph in 1828.

International Crisis
I foresee a smaller "Cuban Missile Crisis" type of confrontation during the Ford Administration. I do not foresee that this crisis will lead to actual warfare, but rather to a showdown in which Soviet pressure will force the U.S. to back down.

Politics
The President should be careful to avoid another Watergate, which will occur unless Ford carefully reconsiders the responsibilities he has assigned to a subordinate who is too ambitious and has neither the ability nor the integrity for his office.

President Ford should make sure only to keep on his new team those officials who have already demonstrated their ability, particularly in national security and defense.

Henry Kissinger
I predict tremendous changes in the official life of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Even if his activities are disrupted, he is just beginning to make his expertise in diplomacy serve the world community. He will adjust to his new circumstances and find new ways to contribute his talents to the cause of peace.

Nelson Rockefeller
Despite lingering opposition after his congressional confirmation as vice president, Nelson Rockefeller will use the confirmation as vice president. Nelson Rockefeller will use the customarily passive office of the vice presidency to work actively for world peace. His wide experience in foreign investment and development will enable him to establish relations between our country and less prosperous nations, an accomplishment that will endure long after he has completed his term.

The Democrats
In the past, I have predicted that Watergate would prove to be a two-edged sword. I now predict that the Democrats' landslide victory in November will be only temporary. The voters will soon apply to the triumphant Democrats the same standards by which they measured Republicans and neither party will meet public demands for leadership and integrity.

A third political force will emerge in 1976. It will be organized and activated as quickly and spontaneously as the Continental Congress was in 1774. It will recreate the vital spirit of the original Congress by fighting for the people's liberties rather than amplifying the government's power.

Congress
I predict that the newly elected Congress will fall into public disfavor for seven reasons.

It will not reduce oppressive taxation of citizens and of businesses. It will increase useless and foolish spending by federal agencies. It will enact still more laws and regulations to complicate further those thousands that have been passed already.

It will simply allow programs to continue that have already caused critical shortages of wheat and other commodities. It will try to solve economic problems by passing unsound laws that will only further weaken America's financial structure.

It will insist upon unwise monetary policies in the U.S. and other countries. It will waste billions on an inefficient military establishment and continued nonessential defense programs.

The Pentagon
I predict scandals in the Pentagon's research and development programs. These programs will spend billions of tax dollars but produce no significant improvements in equipment or technology.

FBI and CIA
As the climate of political skepticism caused by Watergate prevails, the public and the news media will closely scrutinize more leaders and institutions. The FBI will lose its position of esteem because members of the Justice Department will misuse confidential information.

I predict that the budget and staff of the CIA will be reduced and its activities will be more closely monitored by Congress when the public discovers the extent to which the agency was involved in Watergate.

By 1980, almost every one of today's prominent political figures will be obscure. I see the emergence of a new type of leadership that attempts to keep informed about present events and future prospects.

Two controversial members of the Ford Cabinet will leave office. They are responsible for managing certain international problems, and as those problems worsen, President Ford will be forced to dismiss them, even though they have admirers in eminent positions.

Outraged Americans who are unemployed and - or poor will demand the ouster of these cabinet members.

The Economy
I predict that the national recession will worsen before it improves. For the first time in almost 40 years, we will see bread lines in several urban areas.

Unlike former recessions, this one will not significantly reduce interest rates, and it will become more difficult, especially in the housing industry, to obtain financial backing for the most basic purchases.

Stock Market
I predict a stock market decline that will be not as severe as the crash of 1929 but nonetheless serious enough to ruin the financial hopes of many Americans. Even rich and powerful investors will suffer.

I predict a troublesome year for most large insurance companies. The value of their holdings will diminish when various municipalities, suffering from inflated expenditures and reduced tax revenues, default on public bonds.

Federal Reserve
I also predict problems for the Federal Reserve system. Because of the mounting pressure of unemployment, the tight money policies of the Federal Reserve will bear much of the public's blame and resentment for the recession.

But the primary causes of our economic troubles are the world's gold supply and America's continuing vulnerability to manipulation by foreign and domestic interests connected to international finance. A scandal lies as yet uncovered concerning this situation and the government's policies regarding it.

Television and Films
I predict that the U.S. film industry's troubles will multiply with mounting costs and foreign competition. The challenges Hollywood faces can be met and the American cinema can be saved, but only if the film industry and network television work together to produce innovative techniques.

During this year's recession, our black community will be a stabilizing influence and will be relatively prosperous. But I predict that unrest over meat and potatoes issues will provoke riots in some working-class, white neighborhoods.

I predict unforeseen difficulties for several large, powerful labor unions. Even though these unions are able to dominate industries and influence politics, they will not be able to control their own members.

Dissident unionists will challenge their leaders on issues concerning public policy and personal behavior. It will become impossible for union executives to show favoritism toward friends or relatives. Several union leaders will be forced from office by militant members, who will be angered by the large salaries these officers enjoy. A new working class will emerge and speak for labor. They will have a positive effect upon America's economic development.

Phosphate Scandal
I predict a scandal involving the mining and marketing of phosphates. It will originate in Florida but will assume national proportions through the participation of a West Coast combine, a midwestern trust and a great banking institution on the eastern seaboard.

I predict that American wheat combines, which have sold immense quantities of grain to the Soviet Union, will be involved in policies that will bring about widespread starvation.

Richard Nixon
Despite intensive meditations, I could not break through to read beyond former President Richard Nixon's thoughts during the past year. I only knew he was determined not to resign until, on the Sunday preceding his resignation, I experienced a vision that was then documented with Ian Calder of the National Enquirer.

At that time, I realized Nixon's course of action was shifting for reasons not yet made public.

The full story behind Mr. Nixon's involvement in Watergate will not always be suppressed. Although I see the full revelation sometime in the future, I cannot unravel it now. Every time I begin to penetrate these questions, it is as if a mental curtain, soft, opaque and heavy, obscures them.

I am able to envision that two participants in Watergate will become wealthy for their role in it. One was practically as near to President Nixon as the Soviet spy was to Prime Minister Willy Brandt in Germany before his abrupt resignation last year.

I see one of these men as a defendant in court proceedings and the other as a witness. For the moment, their futures are unclear, but I do recognize them: American people will know the identities of these men by the end of the decade.

Mr. Nixon's health problems are by no means over. The first half of 1975 will determine his long-range prospects for work. If he maintains his fortitude and keeps up his spirits through next summer, he will have an easier time recovering from his illness and coping with his other difficulties.

American Foreign Policy
I predict that world events will center around the twin demons of inflation and hunger during 1975, which will cause more disruption and suffering than war has.

When the American people realize the gravity of these problems, they will insist that the government channel our surplus commodities to friendly nations. This emergency food distribution will seriously disrupt the government's plans to use our resources as an instrument of negotiation and bargaining.

The U.S. position in the United Nations will suffer further setbacks. As a consequence, public support for the U.N. will drop sharply.

Third World and Soviet bloc nations will dominate the General Assembly so ruthlessly that Congress will withhold American funds from the U.N. in an attempt to break up the Third World monopoly. I predict that informal arrangements among the U.S., Canada, the nations of Western Europe and our Pacific allies will eventually replace their participation in the U.N.

I foresee a tide of isolationism sweeping over America that will prevent the President and Congress from involving this country in foreign commitments. In 1976, presidential candidates will either have to adopt an isolationist platform or be prepared to face defeat.

Personalities
Sen. James Buckley
One of the most hardworking Senators, New York's James Buckley (C-Rep.) is also one of the most brilliant. His beliefs are based less on a desire to please public opinion and more on a solid adherence to what he considers truth. He is proud of his name and his family traditions, and possesses considerable intuitive ability.

Buckley is concerned with the development of the minds and values of American children. He worries about the influence that educators, publicists and the media have on children and will initiate reforms in those areas.

The new year holds for Buckley much writing (for which he will receive substantial royalties), extensive television exposure and constant traveling. He is sure to be in the public eye, and prominent figures will travel great distances to consult with him about official matters.

Amid so many commitments in the beginning of next fall, he should be wary of others who will try to involve him in schemes that could prove disadvantageous.

Buckley will face difficulties both in 1976 and 1978. In 1976, he should take precautions against efforts of those he considers friends to discredit him politically. In 1979, he will reach a zenith of influence and public regard.

I see Buckley as an ambassador in the distant future, winning foreign friends for the American government and people.

Barbara Jordan
Congresswoman Barbara Jordan (D-Tex.), who was nationally recognized as a forceful member of the House Judiciary Committee during its impeachment proceedings last summer, will continue to be a busy member of Congress this year.

Despite the respect of her colleagues and the (Continued On Page 9)

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Although they're picked to finish no better than fourth in district play, Bill White's Caprock Longhorns figure to play an important role in deciding who actually will be the champion. And nobody's counting Caprock out, either.

Under first year coach Bill White, promoted from junior varsity coach when Bill Bolik resigned after six seasons, Caprock has acquired a 7-9 record but, at times, has looked like a strong contender for the title.

"I thought we'd be better than that (7-9)," White says. "We've looked good at times. We're weak in a lot of things — our lack of height is probably our weakest point and inconsistency."

"I haven't got a kid that played varsity ball last year. We've played some good ball clubs and I think they're beginning to come around."

White's style of break-and-shoot basketball differs from Bolik's deliberate brand. White's offense netted a 102-42 record, including 21-4 and 21-2 seasons, with the Caprock Jayvees.

"We've changed up quite a bit from last year. We'll be different from last year — we're quick and I don't feel they've been too quick in the past. We will break if we get the opportunity. With quick kids, you've got to. If you've got an easy bucket, you better take advantage of it."

"My philosophy is we try to be positive in everything we do. As we try to keep from getting stereotyped."

That means Caprock will run several variations of their basic offense and defense in an attempt to keep opponents guessing.

To win district, White says, "It'll take a lot of breaks. We'll have to shoot real well and rebound and play defense. We've got to shoot over 50 percent and get on the boards — that's what it'll take."

Probably the best thing about this year's version of the Longhorns is their depth, as nine players alternate during the course of a game. The most proven players are 5-9 guard Rex Harris, 6-4 post Del Fry, and 5-11 wing Ricky Field, all seniors.

White says "I just wish we had better materials. We'll be young against next year, and in two years we'll have our best ball club."

"They feel like they have a shot at it."

10 Reinstated After Walkout

United Press International A "lover's quarrel," which resulted in the most embarrassing moment in Michigan State University basketball history Saturday, ended in reconciliation Sunday, and prospects for the future are for a more compatible co-existence.

Trouble, with a capital "T," struck the Michigan State basketball squad Saturday when Coach Gus Ganakas suspended 10 black players for walking out of a team meeting in a protest over Ganakas' coaching strategy.

The initial repercussions were devastating as the Spartans, playing with only one starter and a handful of junior varsity players, were annihilated by second-ranked Indiana, 107-55. It was the most humiliating loss in the school's history.

But, before the weekend was over, all ended happily on the Spartans' campus when Ganakas, referring to the episode as a lover's quarrel, reinstated the players after a lengthy discussion.

Both Ganakas and the players denied there were any racial implications involved. The only active player on the team not suspended, freshman forward Jeff Troup, is white.

"It is just a matter of two lovers being separated for a short period of time," Ganakas said. "Now we're back together. We came to the conclusion that there was nothing to gin in continuing the suspension or extending it."

The suspended players called the whole thing a "misunderstanding."

With most of their regular players missing the Spartans, who are 6-4 on the season, were never in Saturday's game. Troup finished as the game's high scorer with 21 points, but Indiana built a 53-22 lead and coasted to its 13th straight victory.

involving the top 10. No. 1 North Carolina State rebounded from a loss to Wake Forest Friday night and defeated No. 8 North Carolina, 82-67. No. 3 UCLA routed Oklahoma, 111-66. No. 4 Louisville edged Bradley, 82-80. No. 5 Southern California toppled Furman, 91-84. No. 6 Alabama whipped Vanderbilt, 104-77. No. 7 Maryland downed Notre Dame, 90-82. No. 9 Kentucky crushed LSU, 115-90, and No. 10 Oregon beat Providence, 86-73.

All-America David Thompson, held to 15 points against Wake Forest, scored 26 to spark the Wolfpack to victory over the Tar Heels for third place in the Big Four Tournament. Wake Forest, led by Skip Brown's 28 points, defeated Duke 75-71 to win the tourney.

Abdul-Jabbar Shoots Milwaukee Past Bulls

United Press International Nate Thurmond didn't want to take an axe to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, so the Milwaukee Bucks 7-foot-2 center chopped down the Chicago Bulls Sunday in front of a national television audience.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 33 points, 16 in the final period, giving the Bucks a 96-95 decision over the Bulls.

Chicago's reserve center Tom Boerwinkle watched Thurmond's battle with the Milwaukee giant and had high praise for his teammate's effort.

"I thought Nate played a super game," Boerwinkle

Solomon Fires South To Win

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Pro scouts have voiced the view that University of Tampa quarterback Freddie Solomon probably will be drafted as a wide receiver rather than quarterback, partly because of his passing credentials.

But Sunday the fleet Solomon, who finished fifth in the nation in total offense built around his dangerous running game, tried to put that talk to rest by leading his South team to a last-second, 28-22 win over the North in the Lions American Bowl, and he did it on passing before 19,246 partisan fans.

Solomon, 6-0, and 185 pounds, had sent the South ahead with just over a minute to play with his second touchdown run of the game, an eight-yard effort and then passed to Florida's Lee McGriff for a two-point conversion.

But the led was shortlived as Steve Joachim of Temple passed for his second touchdown of the day with a 16-yard toss to usual defensive back Barry Hill of Iowa State and then passed to Henry Hynoski of Temple for the two-point conversion to deadlock the score at 22-all with just 32 seconds to play.

The North tried an on-side kick that Georgia's Craig Hertwig recovered for the South at mid-field. With time running out the cool Solomon dropped back and hit McGriff with a 24-yard pass and came right back on the second play with a 26-yard pass to the 5-9, 170-pound McGriff in the corner of the end zone with 15 seconds to go.

"I felt all along I could pass," Solomon said after the game. "I hope I made a believer of some people today. I don't know what they are planning on trying me at in the pros but I just hope I get a shot at quarterback."

Solomon completed all three passes he threw Sunday for 86 yards, one touchdown and one two-point conversion. He also carried the ball 11 times for 45 yards and two touchdowns with his only loss coming on the one reverse he tried from the wide receiver spot. In addition to his eight-yard touchdown run, Solomon had a three-yard scoring run.

His play won for him the Most Valuable Player Award for the South. The MVP for the North was Hynoski who scored one touchdown on a one-yard run in addition to catching his two-point pass. Hynoski went 53 yards on the opening play before being caught from behind and finished the day as the leading rusher with 121 yards on 12 carries.

In addition to Joachim's TD pass to Hill, he also hit Steve Grogan with a 15-yard touchdown pass. Grogan, a quarterback at Kansas State, was playing at wide receiver most of the game and saw only brief action at quarterback.

Joe Danelo of Washington State kicked two extra points for the North but the South lacked a kicker and went for two points after each score. The South was successful on two of the four tries.

HEIGHT ADVANTAGE — Jill Rankin, a 6-2 junior, had no trouble shooting over the heads of the Booker players in Saturday night's 62-33 Phillips win in the finals of the White Deer tournament. Miss Rankin led all scorers with 44 points in the contest.

Astro Don Wilson Dies

HOUSTON (UPI) — Don Wilson, the Houston Astros pitcher, died along with his five-year-old son Sunday of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Wilson's wife and nine-year-old daughter also were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes and were hospitalized. Mrs. Wilson also had a broken jaw.

"Details of the deaths are still sketchy but the preliminary investigation indicates the deaths are accidental," a police homicide spokesman said. Wilson's body was found in the garage slumped over a reclining seat on the passenger side of his sports car. The ignition was turned on, but the engine was not running.

Police believe Wilson, 29, drove into his double garage at 1 a.m. Sunday and shut the garage door with an automatic door closer. Police said the garage was tightly sealed.

Authorities said fumes from the car's exhaust seeped into the master bedroom above the garage where Wilson's son, Alex, was asleep and into an adjoining bedroom where his daughter, Denise, slept.

It was not known where Mrs. Wilson was at the time, but police said she did call a neighbor between 1 a.m. and 1:30 a.m. and said she needed help. She was taken to Southwest Memorial Hospital where authorities said she was in shock but in fair condition. Denise was taken to Texas Children's Hospital in critical condition.

Authorities also said they did not know how Mrs. Wilson's jaw was broken.

"That is all we know," the homicide spokesman said. "An autopsy has been ordered. Perhaps more on the death and Mrs. Wilson's injury can be released today."

The hospital spokesman said Wilson and his son died of "toxic material — carbon monoxide."

Wilson, a righthander known primarily for his fastball, broke into the major leagues with the Astros in 1967 and posted a 10-9 record and a 2.79 ERA. During his career, he pitched two no-hitters — a 2-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves in 1967 and a 4-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in 1969.

Wilson came close to hurling a third no-hitter last season when he went eight innings against the Cincinnati Reds without allowing a hit. However, he was deprived of a chance to complete the no-hitter when manager Preston Gomez, with his team trailing 2-1, yanked him for a pinch-hitter in the Astros' half of the eighth.

"I respect Preston Gomez as a manager," Wilson said after the game. "I respect him more than ever tonight. He wants to win and I want to win as much as he does."

"When people start putting personal goals ahead of the team, you'll never have a winner. I understand how Preston feels. He is consistent and I have nothing but admiration for him."

Wilson, although he won 15 or more games three different seasons, never fulfilled the potential the Astros had predicted for him when they signed him as a free agent in 1964.

AREA ROUNDUP

Irish, Phillips Garner White Deer Victories

Paul Jacobson poured in a game-high 18 points to pace Adrian to a 33-20 win over Shamrock in a defensive battle in the finals of the White Deer Invitational Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

In the girls' division, Jill Rankin scored 44 points in an impressive 62-33 Phillips win over Booker.

At Canadian, the hosts grabbed a 64-50 win over Spearman in the boys' finals, while the Canadian girls fell to Follett, 60-59, in the championship game.

Against Adrian, Mark Terry was high for Shamrock with six points. In the girls' final, Julie Mills tallied 26 for losing Booker. In the third place game, Denny Moss scored 16 and Eddie Milton 15 to carry host White Deer past Phillips, 59-44. Kenny Bry managed 16 for the Blackhawks.

Lefors, led by Carol Vincent with 40 points, ran over Mobeetie, 58-36, in the girls' third place contest. High for Mobeetie was Sheila Barton with 21.

Mobeetie came back in the boys' consolation game and whipped Lefors, 58-41, as Roy Stribling scored 18 points. Carl Cady was high for the Pirates with 12.

In the girls' consolation final, Tina Whoads and Sandra Davis scored 21 and 20 respectively to lead White Deer to a 70-55 rout of Clarendon. Pam Mooring scored 28 for Clarendon.

Steelers, Vikes Arrive At N. O.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw is back on home soil for the biggest football game of his life. Fran Tarkenton is obviously ready for business and the hectic countdown has begun for yet another Super Bowl extravaganza.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and the Minnesota Vikings touched off Super Bowl week Sunday night simply by setting foot in New Orleans.

And the type of arrivals conducted by the two clubs could well have set the pattern for their upcoming week — one that will be filled with unwanted, but now traditional, diversions for the players and coaches.

"We're here to have fun," said Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll, whose Steelers were first to arrive about an hour after sundown.

Pittsburgh players waved at a modest crowd assembled inside the New Orleans airport and signed autographs for those few fans who were able to walk on to the ramp near the team's plane.

The Vikings, however, made sure their arrival was as painless as possible. The team plane landed at a removed section of the airport and two buses were backed to within 50 feet of the Minnesota plane.

Tarkenton, who following the Vikings' win over Los Angeles in the NFC title game guaranteed a Minnesota win in Super Bowl IX, declined to acknowledge shouts of fans and photographers in his brief walk from plane to bus.

"We've come to find out what we can do," said Viking coach Bud Grant, who is one of only two men — Miami coach Don Shula being the other — to have coached two losing Super Bowl teams. "We will have as normal a week as we can, but these are not normal times."

Grant is well familiar with the routine of Super Bowl week, something he made clear last year before the Vikings' loss to Miami, and he would like to see it changed. Noll did not seem concerned about what effects the extra curricular activities would have on his team.

"We think we're just going to enjoy the week," Noll said. "This is our second time here this season (the Steelers whipped the Saints during the regular season in New Orleans) and I hope the results are the same."

Bradshaw, who played his college ball at Louisiana Tech, wore a Stetson hat and a multicolored mackinaw for the trip.

"Yes, it's a social trip," Bradshaw said. "I'm fixing to have a good time."

"We did all we had to do at home. All we have to do here is brush up. We've been made to understand there will be a lot of interruptions. But I think our squad is alert and ready for it."

Stockton, Stove Take Mixed Tourney Win

DALLAS (UPI) — Dick Stockton wanted to play in the Spalding Mixed Doubles Championships so badly he would have almost done it in drag.

Stockton was listed as an alternate for the tennis tournament a couple of weeks ago. His only chance of playing was if one of the regulars decided to drop out.

"I would have played even if a woman had dropped out, anything to play," he said Sunday. "I'd have put on a dress."

But Bob Lutz withdrew and Stockton was inserted in his place, teamed with Betty Stove, a virtual unknown on the tennis circuit. Stockton and Stove never played together before the championships began last week.

But they pulled off three upsets in a row — the last one coming in Sunday's finals a 6-7, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 victory over Rosemary Casals and Marty Riessen — to win the championships and $10,000 apiece.

Stockton's serve was his stronghold. He did not hold his serve in 27 games. Sunday he served seven love games and surrendered only 10 points on his serve.

The finals match was not as close as the five sets indicated. They lost the first set on a tiebreaker, 7-3, and the fourth one because Miss Stove got tired and double faulted her serve at an inopportune moment.

Cardinals Nip Bradley In Conference Opener

United Press International The opening Missouri Valley Conference game between Louisville and Bradley figured to be a dandy. And it turned out to be more than that.

The undefeated Cardinals rallied in regulation time and then held on during the first overtime on their home court to outlast Bradley, 82-80, for their eighth win of the season.

Bradley and Louisville meet again on Bradley's court in three weeks. The MVC race officially opened with two games Saturday night and the other one was just as exciting as the Cardinals-Braves affair.

up a road victory over Tulsa, 58-56, advancing the Aggies season record to 9-2 and setting up what should be another first-rate game between Louisville and the Aggies.

That contest will be held in Las Cruces next Saturday on regional television with the early conference lead on the line.

Bradley, 8-3, had a chance to put Saturday night's game away against Louisville. Owing a two-point lead with 10 seconds to go freshman Roger Theyley, who had put the Braves in front moments earlier, went to the free throw line.

giving Louisville a chance to rush down court and tie the game, sending it into overtime.

Phil Bond hit six free throws in the extra period to keep the Cardinals in control through the overtime.

Junior Bridgeman scored 25 points for Louisville and keyed the Cardinal attack when starters Bill Bunton and Wesley Cox were lost to fouls.

Rockets 115, Kings 106: Mike Newlin scored 37 points, including 16 in a decisive third-quarter spurt, that paced the Houston victory. Rudy Tomjanovich added 30 points for the Rockets, while Nate Archibald finished with 30 for the Kings. Houston's 5-10 Calvin Murphy and the Kings' 6-9 Larry McNeill were ejected from the game in the third quarter for fighting.

BUREAU HEAD SAYS No Food Price Drop Expected

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Food prices will not decline in 1975 and any attempt by Congress to impose wage and price controls could trigger an anti-production backlash by farmers and ranchers, the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said today.

"As long as we have government deficit financing — the basic cause of inflation — there is not likely to be any decline in the costs of food, clothing, or any of the other life essentials," William J. Kuhfuss said at the 2.3 million family organization's 56th annual meeting.

"There is a real danger that Congress will embark on a wide range of inflationary spending programs and then use price and wage controls as a coverup and a diversion of public attention from the basic cause of inflation — government deficit spending.

Kuhfuss, in remarks prepared for delivery to the convention today, cited positions taken by both Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert favoring "New Deal-type economic relief programs and authority to the President to impose wage and price controls.

"It is obvious that such recommendations are politically motivated, as some members of Congress seek to placate consumers about higher costs of everything they buy through invoking price controls.

"Farmers and ranchers can and will meet increasing demand at home and abroad for food, but only if they have an opportunity to receive a fair return for their labor and investment in a free market. We need less taxes, less waste, less politics and more statesmanship from our legislators and an assurance that producers will have freedom to buy and sell."

Kuhfuss said livestock producers still are losing money because of the 1973 price controls and hog and poultry producers have begun a cutback in production as a result of high production costs in the face of depressed prices.

"Grain producers have lost confidence in politicians who bowed to pressures from domestic users of farm commodities and allowed embargoes to be put on soybean exports in 1973 and thus threatened future export markets.

"This experience will cause farmers to hesitate to increase production this year unless there is definite assurance before planting time from the administration and Congress that export controls will not be invoked on 1975 crops," Kuhfuss said.

Forbes' Balloon Airship Fails To Be Launched

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — The 13-balloon "airship" of magazine publisher Malcolm Forbes broke apart on the fifth attempt at launching before dawn today, aborting the planned balloon flight to Europe.

Forbes and his associate, aerospace engineer Thomas Heinsheimer, 35, Rolling Hills, Calif., were inside the gondola. "Windborne," which was dragged about 20 feet across the tarmac, but were not injured.

Forbes, 55-year-old publisher of a business magazine, had postponed for the fourth time the scheduled flight early Sunday because prevailing high altitude winds would have carried him southwestward instead of into the west-east jetstream.

He then tentatively scheduled the lift-off for Tuesday before dawn. But late Sunday he announced winds were right and he was ready to go.

If the flight is successful, it will be an historic odyssey. Twelve attempts have been made to cross the Atlantic by balloon, but none have succeeded and seven persons have died in the previous attempts.

The countdown had proceeded normally early Sunday until the winds shifted.

About 500 persons had gathered in the pre-dawn hours at the Marine Corps Helicopter Air Station as the 624-foot high stack of balloons was poised for takeoff in the glare of floodlights.

An hour before the scheduled lift-off, Forbes announced an upper wind change at 40,000 feet, from a southeast to southwest direction, posed a threat.

Angola Groups Sign Accords

MOMBASA, KENYA (UPI) — Three rival guerrilla groups have joined forces to speed up independence for oil-rich Angola, the last colony in Portugal's 500-year-old African empire.

The three factions signed accords in Mombasa Sunday to cooperate to build a just and democratic society in Angola eliminating ethnic, racial and religious discrimination.

Guerrilla sources said each faction is expected to contribute three members to an interim cabinet with the task of guiding Angola to independence.

Portugal, which began the dissolution of its African empire last summer, is expected to appoint three other members of the interim body.

Diplomats said talks with Portugal would start Friday, probably in Lisbon. The guerrilla leaders were expected to demand independence within 12 months for the West African territory.

Last year, Portugal granted independence to Mozambique in East Africa and Guinea-Bissau on the west.

Diplomats said they expect the Angolan independence talks to proceed smoothly now that the once-feuding guerrilla leaders have resolved their own differences.

The three groups — the Movement for the Liberation of Angola, the Angolan Liberation Front and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola — agreed to work together in all areas toward independence.

The three liberation movements decided that from now on they will cooperate in all spheres, and especially in that of decolonization for the defense of territorial integrity as well as for national reconstruction, a communique said.

The communique also said the oil-rich enclave of Cabinda was an "integral and inalienable part of Angola." Cabinda supplies 75 per cent of Angola's petroleum but is separated from the rest of the territory by the Congo River.

Lefors Board Plans Meeting

The board of trustees of the Lefors Independent School District will convene at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9, for its January meeting.

A discussion on crime prevention and drug abuse is scheduled.

Regular reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and current bills will be considered. A cafeteria report is due, and renewal of the superintendent's contract will be discussed.

The flight, by the magazine publisher and aerospace engineer Thomas Heinsheimer of Rolling Hills, Calif., was originally scheduled for Dec. 30, but was postponed by a Southern California storm with gale force winds.

Winds caused a second postponement last Thursday and a third delay Saturday came during the countdown when the communications system failed to check out.

Burglars Strike Two Buildings

Adjoining businesses on North Cuyler were hit by burglars sometime Saturday night, according to police reports.

John Sanders, owner of Pete's Place and the Singer Co., 216 N. Cuyler, told police Sunday morning the burglaries had occurred sometime between 2 a.m. and 10 a.m. when he reported the incident.

Thieves had removed a screen and broken a window on the east side of Pete's Place. Coin-operated game machines, the jukebox, and pool tables had been robbed of money in the coin boxes. The owner estimated some $300 had been stolen from the tables, which are owned by Homer Brewer, Panhandle Amusement Co.

Burglars then forced an inside door leading to the Singer business and removed money from two bank bags. Sanders said some $153 had been in the bags, $40 in quarters. Investigation continues.

Former Glider Pilots Wanted

The National War II Glider Pilots Association is attempting to locate all former military glider pilots of World War II. These were pilots who flew the Army Air Force's CG-4A combat glider and had a "G" on their silver wings.

About 1100 of the original 600 men have been contacted, according to the regional office in Dallas.

The association was formed four years ago and conducts an annual reunion and publishes quarterly newspaper called "Silent Wings."

All military glider pilots of World War II are urged to contact Dick Cramer, 2025 Cedar Valley, Dallas, Tex. 75232. Cramer may also be reached by calling (214) 428-4641.

POPULAR CONVENTION

Legislators Plan Bills For New Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Legislators will introduce a bill for another constitutional convention, but this one will have popularly elected delegates instead of the legislature acting as the rewriting body, according to outgoing House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

"Constitutional revision remains as a top priority item on the state's agenda, Daniel said during the weekend. "If we are to have a modern, workable and efficient structure of government in Texas, constitutional revision is essential."

Legislators met as delegates to the 1973 convention that worked for seven months and failed to agree on a constitution to submit to the voters.

Daniel did not seek reelection last year but he said he plans to remain active on behalf of constitutional revision.

The recent Constitutional Convention brought into sharp focus for all involved, as well as all Texans, not only the serious need for constitutional revision, but also the tremendous advantages and benefits that will accrue to all of us if we simply move our government at all levels out of the horse and buggy days," he said.

"The failure of that convention to produce a new constitution for voter consideration left all of us with a desire, and a challenge, that can, and I hope will, be fulfilled and met during the 64th Legislature and a subsequent citizens constitutional convention."

Daniel said the proposal for a new convention will be introduced and sponsored by Sens. Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, and Bob Gammage, D-Houston, and a dozen House members — Reps. Ron Waters, Woody Denson and Craig Washington of Houston, Dave Finney of Fort Worth, Neil Caldwell of Alvin, Pike Powers of Beaumont, Ron Bird of San Antonio, James Kaster of El Paso, Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi, Tim Von Dohlen of Goliad, Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Ronald Earle of Austin.

Daniel, who served as president of the unsuccessful 1973 convention, said Saturday the proposed legislation will propose electing 72 delegates — three from each congressional district — to write a constitution.

The election will be held Jan. 27, 1976 and voters will decide in November, 1976, whether the charter will be adopted.

The proposed legislation would not prohibit legislators or other public officials from being elected to the new convention.

The legislature also will consider at least one other proposal dealing with giving the state a new constitution.

Sen. William N. Patman, D-Ganado, has proposed the legislature simply let Texas citizens vote on the document produced but not passed by the 1973 convention. Patman pre-filed his proposal in the Senate for consideration when the 1975 Legislature convenes Jan. 14.

Paper Says Brezhnev Has Leukemia Disease

CHICAGO (UPI) — Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev is afflicted with leukemia and has canceled his scheduled Middle East trip because of the disease, according to Chicago Sun-Times columnist Charles Bartlett.

Brezhnev, 68, recently canceled a scheduled trip to Egypt, Syria and Iraq, Bartlett, writing in the Sun-Times Saturday editions, said the cancellation "is more than anything a harbinger of the Soviet leader's sad necessity to contend with the progressive ravages of leukemia."

"Soviet spokesmen have attributed his recent absences from the scene to the flu because the knowledge that he suffers from a far more relentless affliction has been closely held," Bartlett wrote from Washington. "But the deterioration of Brezhnev's physical condition is believed here a far more likely cause of the postponed travel plans than an adverse turn in his dealings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat."

Bartlett said the new era of U.S.-Soviet detente will allow Brezhnev access to the skills of American cancer specialists. He also said there was confidence that Brezhnev's departure from the political scene would not produce any major shift in Soviet policy toward conciliation with the United States.

"Brezhnev is the symbol, it appears, of a policy durable enough to survive him," Bartlett said.

He said that should Brezhnev die, Soviet leaders probably would try to preserve the policy of conciliation by replacing him with a man as much like him as possible.

Price Of Gold Opens Higher

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold rose $5 in Zurich over the weekend to open today at $174 an ounce hours before the United States opened an auction in Washington to sell two million ounces of the metal.

In London, bullion dealers marked the price down $1 for an opening of $173.

The U.S. dollar fell to an all-time low at the opening in Zurich and to 1973 lows in Paris and Frankfurt.

Paris bankers cited the Federal Reserve Board's cut in its prime rate from 7 1/2 to 7 per cent Friday as the reason for the dollar's further decline.

Despite the rise of the gold price, the rate was still much below prices of a week ago.

Speculation before the lifting of a 41-year U.S. ban on private ownership of gold drove the price to a high of $201.40 in Paris.

The dollar rose fractionally in Tokyo but declined in all major European money markets.

It opened at 2,507 1/2 Swiss francs in Zurich, down from 2,535. This was an all-time low for an opening rate.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened at 4,402 1/2 German marks, down from 4,44 and the lowest since Nov. 9, 1973, when it stood at 4,365.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 4,402 1/2 French francs, down from 4,44 and the lowest since Nov. 9, 1973, when it stood at 4,365.

You Don't Fool Mother Nature

It really isn't nice to fool mother nature by becoming more obese than she intended you, says the Institute of Life Insurance.

Actuarial studies indicate that people who are even moderately overweight will, as a group, have a significantly higher death rate than people who are of average weight or slender.

Heart disease is a particular problem among overweight people but a number of other, chronic disorders (such as diabetes, respiratory ailments and arthritis) are also often associated with or aggravated by obesity.

Fat patients also face greater risks when they undergo surgery. And obesity is considered a hazard for pregnant women.

The long-term adverse effects of overweight seem to be worse among younger people (those between the ages of 15 and 34).

Obese young policyholders in one large actuarial study group showed a 46 per cent higher death rate, on the average, than young policyholders in the normal weight range.

Measure for Measure

Ten-year-old Pete was shagging snowballs at passing automobiles when one of the cars came to a screeching halt. A large and irate man emerged, caught Pete by the arm, hustled him into the car, and drove him to the nearest police station.

But Pete's parents decided that their son had some rights too. Haling the motorist into court, they demanded that he pay damages to Pete for treating him too harshly.

And the court ruled that the motorist had indeed overreacted. The court said that while he may have been justified in taking the boy directly to his parents, carrying him off to the police station was uncalled for.

It is human nature, when a person is provoked, to retaliate. Generally speaking, the law has no objection.

But the retaliation must be in reasonable proportion to the original provocation. Otherwise, says the law, a minor incident may escalate swiftly into a major conflict.

For example:

A home owner, called a mocking name by his neighbor, retaliated by bashing the neighbor over the head with a shovel. For this, the home owner was later held liable in a courtroom.

In another case, a man responded to a push by knocking the pusher down and then — when he was lying helpless — kicking him in the face. Again, a court ruled that the man must pay for "the sheer vindictiveness which led him to take the law into his own hands."

On the other hand, the victim of the original offense does not have to calculate his retaliation to a fine point. In judging his response, the law will make fair allowance for the tensions of the moment and a normal degree of error.

As Oliver Wendell Holmes once put it:

"Detached reflection cannot be expected in the presence of an uplifted knife."

Couples write own marriage contract

Copley News Service

Are feminists antimarriage? Quite the contrary. Feminists oppose the type of marriage where the wife is an extension of her husband's identity, but are working to develop new marriage styles based on mutual sharing and caring.

To this latter end, many couples are writing their own marriage vows and contracts. A marriage contract is not legally valid if its provisions run counter to state marriage laws, but working out the contract helps to crystallize what the marriage means to the two parties.

Here is the beautiful and sensible marriage contract between Lois Galgay Reckitt and David Alan Silverbrand as printed in Pennsylvania NOW (Vol. 2, No. 5) and my thanks to the St. Louis, Mo. chapter of NOW for reprinting it in their newsletter and bringing it to my attention.

"Because we believe that marriage is a private decision between participants and not the definition of either of our existences, we agree to retain the names Lois Galgay Reckitt and David Alan Silverbrand and to use the titles Ms. and Mr. respectively.

"But because we use the terms 'husband' and 'wife' to denote not ownership but mutual love and fidelity, we wish to use those terms to describe our relationship.

"Because we feel that with the passage of time our attitudes towards bearing or rearing of children may change, we will discuss this area of our lives at such time as we may decide to enlarge our family. If by chance rather than choice, Lois should become pregnant, whether to terminate that pregnancy shall be a decision reached by her after careful discussion with David. And because David believes in the absolute right of a woman to choose whether to bear a child, David agrees to abide by Lois' decision.

"Because we feel that neither interior or exterior tasks are inherently the responsibility of either of us, we agree to share those responsibilities in a loosely defined fashion. We do, however, reserve the right to make this provision specific should the need arise at any future time.

"Because we feel it is important that each of us feel she is contributing his/her fair financial share we commit to a 50-50 sharing of household expenses.

"But, because we recognize that women are frequently shortchanged financially in wages, if David should at any time earn a disproportionately high income in relation to that of Lois (or vice versa) we commit to a sharing of expenses based proportionately on income.

"Because we feel that a room of one's own is a basic psychological need, we will, insofar as is possible, provide this for both of us.

And here are Lois' and David's marriage vows:

David: Lois and I love and respect each other very much. In a very real sense, we have been married to each other for a long time, married to the same hopes and ideals and fears. We both believe in each other as a human being with personal wants and needs that should never be diminished unnecessarily for the sake of the other.

Lois: Because we believe that marriage is a private decision between us and not the definition of our existences, we agree to retain the names Lois Galgay Reckitt and David Alan Silverbrand. But because we believe we are infinitely happier together than we would be apart and because we feel that they connote not ownership but mutual love and fidelity we wish to be known as husband and wife.

David: We believe that what we have is greater than the material things that surround us. Ours is a partnership born in love, not in social demand nor in quest for material gain. Our children, should we decide to bear or rear them, will be extensions of our love.

Lois: Our love is strong enough to weather the things which can divide. I will care for David and he for me no matter what may happen.

David: I know you and I love you and I commit myself to you and I will try to do you no harm. (From "Liberated Marriage")

Lois: I know you and I love you and I commit myself to you and I will try to do you no harm.

DEFINE VALUES
UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — John W. Oswald, president of Penn State University, says American universities have not defined strong stands on values, morals and ethical judgments.

"In these recent days of national anguish, we in education need to reexamine the aloofness we sometimes maintained toward explicit reference to values and morality," Oswald said. "We are sorrowfully aware that men of great influence and responsibility have confessed to varying degrees of crimes and misdemeanors, and we are deeply chagrined that each has been trained at an American institution of higher education."

WATER HAZARD
MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Beware the water skiers! Tourists who take the sightseeing cruise of Biscayne Bay would do well to heed that advice.

Some of the young water skiers deliberately cut in close to the boat, sending an avalanche of water through the large open windows. Unsuspecting passengers are caught off guard and drenched. Camera buffs and those with binoculars should be especially alert.

According to Capt. M. V. Rogers of the Island Queen, the incidents are frequent, but the Coast Guard can be notified only if the number of the speed boat towing the skier is noted.

VERSATILE GUY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Scott Meredith is one literary agent, a big one of long standing, who also writes upon occasion. His latest is "George S. Kaufman and His Friends," a biography of the late noted playwright just published by Doubleday.

55 MPH Speed Limit Now Permanent Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed legislation into law Saturday making the nationwide 55-mile-an-hour speed limit permanent and providing $1.5 billion in new unemployment benefits and public jobs.

Ford also signed a bill paving the way for the eventual construction of deep water super-ports at which huge oil tankers could unload their cargoes with greater safety and less expense.

The speed limit bill also allows heavier trucks to use interstate highways and expressways until Dec. 31 the car pooling demonstration program.

Ford said the 55-mile-an-hour limit has proven to be of great value both in saving fuel and in decreasing the loss of life on our highways.

In a statement Ford also said the car pooling demonstration program — paying states and localities to encourage car pools — could save this country five billion gallons of gasoline a year. In addition, it will reduce air pollution and urban congestion.

Ford said of the increased truck weights on the highways: "Largely because of the lower speed limit, many truckers have found themselves in an economic bind, with decreased productivity."

The bill raises allowable weights for single axle trucks from 18,000 to 20,000 pounds, for tandem axle trucks from 32,000 to 34,000 pounds and for overall gross weight from 73,280 to 80,000 pounds.

"This modest increase in allowable truck weights should help them regain that productivity, without threatening public safety," Ford said.

The bill also: — Provides $75 million for highway beauty programs such as controlling outdoor advertising and junkyards and landscaping highway areas.

— Provides $752 million for highway programs.

— Provides $350 million for rural road construction and reconstruction.

With Saturday midnight the legal deadline for handling bills passed by the last Congress, Ford approved a score of other measures. He also used his veto power.

He withheld his signature from, thus killing by "pocket veto," a $125 million bill to help farmers with water and soil conservation projects. He also rejected a bill restricting imports of filberts, a kind of nut.

The unemployment measure extends jobless benefits to one year and provides funds for creation of 100,000 jobs for the unemployed.
