

Safety Rules Questioned In Plane Crash Study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A veteran flight controller said today he was "frightened" last Dec. 1 by a dangerously low altitude radar signal from TWA flight 514, but was unaware of the existence of a mountain which the plane hit 95 seconds later.

Merle W. Dameron, a 20-year veteran controller, said the approach chart used at Dallas International Airport did not show the existence of 1,764-foot Mt. Weather, located 23 miles northwest of the airport's runway No. 12.

That was the runway for which Dameron had given flight 514 clearance for a landing approach. The plane descended too low and hit the mountain, killing all 92 persons aboard.

In his testimony Thursday, Dameron said his only responsibility toward the doomed plane was to keep it from colliding with other aircraft. He said it plainly was the pilot's job to avoid terrain obstacles, such as mountains.

Returning to the stand today, however, Dameron said he was so startled when he saw the aircraft at an altitude of 2,000 feet in an area where he knew mountains existed that he called the pilot for an altitude verification. He never got a response.

Dameron said he was not closely monitoring flight 514's altitude because that was not his job. He said when the yellow-green target on his radar scope emerged from a patch of precipitation "clutter" and showed a brief indication of a 2,000-foot altitude, his initial thought was that the radar had to be wrong.

"What was your reaction when you saw the altitude of 2,000 feet?" Dameron was asked by National Transportation Safety Board interrogator Lloyd LaGrange. "That frightened me," he replied. "I'll say that. It frightened me."

"I questioned it because I didn't expect to get that kind of altitude in that area."

"I couldn't believe the pilot could be at that altitude there, so I assumed I was getting a wrong altitude readout...it occasionally happens."

Referring to the approach chart for runway 12, which did not show the mountain, LaGrange asked: "Were you aware there was such an obstruction?"

"No sir, I was not," Dameron replied. He also said his radar was not "continuously reliable enough" in presenting altitude readouts for him to constantly provide terrain clearance information for pilots.

The president of the Air Line Pilots Association said meanwhile that despite a disagreement that has arisen during hearings into the crash, the pilots and flight controllers were not at odds.

"We are not at each other's throats," said pilot J.J. O'Donnell in a television interview (ABC's "AM America"). "We simply have differences of duties here that need to be cleared up for safety's sake."

O'Donnell said that pilots and flight controllers have often discussed the problems but that "the FAA has not listened."

But Dameron said a different set of rules applied — the ones he used. He said these rules required only that he provide aircraft separation and did not call for the radar protection described by the pilots, which would have forced him to "tell the pilot every single move to make."

The fatally different understandings of FAA flight rules that produced those conflicting views is a key issue in the NTSB hearing.

"There are two kinds of fools. One says, 'This is old, therefore it is good.' The other says, 'This is new, therefore it is better.'"

Ford Orders Extension For Amnesty Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has given Vietnam war draft evaders and deserters another month to sign up for "earned re-entry."

But pro-amnesty groups still spurn his program and are pushing Congress for full amnesty.

"The extension of a bad program does not make it a good program," said Louise Ransom, a Gold Star mother who heads Americans for Amnesty.

Ford Thursday extended to March 1 his program of pardon and clemency — usually in return for a tour of public service work — which was to have expired at midnight tonight.

The President said he ordered the program extended because "I believe that many of those who could benefit from it are only now learning of its application to their cases."

Charles Goodell, the former

New York Republican Senator who heads the Presidential Clemency Board, said the board urged a six-month extension to try to explain the program to those eligible.

"The President was originally disposed to let it end," Goodell said. "He was persuaded that there were a great many people out there who didn't know about this program. Then, he said, 'Well, let's give it another month.'"

Godell said, "We have had six times as many applications in three weeks as we had in the first four months."

Asked about prospects for a further extension if the current level is sustained through February, Goodell said: "I think probably if we're getting a good reaction, the Clemency Board will recommend further extension."

That assumes a very good reaction in the next few weeks, but I have no idea whether the President will extend it, and people shouldn't count on it."

The Ford program deals with convicted draft evaders and military deserters through the Presidential Clemency Board, unconvicted draft resisters through the Justice Department and unconvicted military deserters through the Defense Department.

Officials recently have mounted an intensive public service television and radio campaign and Clemency Board members have been traveling the country to sell the program.

The Board has received about 6,000 applications from more than 100,000 eligible. Most of those applications came in the last three weeks.

"The only redeeming feature of the extension," said Warren Hoover of the National Inter-religious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors, "is that it will allow a test of how effective the publicity campaign has been."

He predicted that within a week, applicants will "dwindle to the trickle they were at before the publicity campaign." He said Ford's program "was not amnesty in any sense of the word. It is a punitive program."

He was echoed by spokesmen for other resister counseling groups, religious and civil libertarian organizations.

Ellen Wilkinson, of the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, said her counseling organization has "spoken with hundreds of people" eligible for the Ford program.

"They rightfully say that they had little to gain and a lot of freedom of belief to lose by applying to earned re-entry."

Under the President's program, announced last Sept. 16, draft resisters and military deserters could apply to the appropriate agency and, after consideration of their cases, receive presidential pardon or clemency — in most cases dependent on doing a tour of three to 12 months alternate service.

These are the results of the program: —Of the 6,000 applications received by the Clemency Board, 65 have been acted on by President Ford. Some applicants got outright pardons; others, periods of public service jobs.

—Out of 10,000 to 11,000 unconvicted deserters considered eligible, 3,639 have applied for the program.

—Out of 4,400 draft resisters, 324 have volunteered for the program, or about 7.4 per cent of those eligible.

The Rev. John Jordan of the National Council of Churches' Special Ministries-Vietnam Generation, summed up the position of most anti-amnesty groups when he said he felt the program "would not contribute substantially to a healing of the wounds of the Vietnam era, but would probably delay for two years or the healing of those wounds."

Among the President's choices for outright elimination from the budget were:

—$123 million for the National Cancer Institute. Ford said the reduction "can be accomplished without seriously altering the momentum" in research.

—$104 million in programs run by the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration.

—$285 million for construction of medical facilities. The President said the move was designed "to avoid further stimulation of hospital construction" at a time of a general national oversupply of hospital beds.

MoD Bucket Brigade Set For Saturday

Emmett Saltzman, vice chairman of the Gray County board of the March of Dimes against birth defects, said today the annual Bucket Brigade will be conducted Saturday in Pampa.

Civic clubs will man intersections within the downtown area, north at the Hobart - Kentucky intersection and at the Gibson's parking lot on Perryton Parkway.

The brigade will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Saltzman said today the brigade would be postponed until next Saturday in the event of inclement weather.

Announcement of any postponement will be made from local radio stations by 8:30 a.m. Saltzman said.

Clubs participating in the drive are asked to meet at Pampa Hardware at 9:45 a.m. to collect buckets and confirm brigade sites.

Key Club members will man buckets at Francis and Cuyler, and Kentucky and Hobart.

Kiwanis will be stationed at Kingsmill and Cuyler and the Top O' Texas Kiwanis will be situated at the intersection of Foster and Cuyler. Knights of Pythias will collect funds from the corner of Ballard and Browning and the local Jaycees will man buckets at Gibson's parking lot.

SWPS Station Operations Explained At API Meeting

By TEX DEWESSE

Operations of the Harrington Generating Station being constructed north of Amarillo by Southwestern Public Service Co. were explained to Texas Panhandle Chapter members of the American Petroleum Institute following a dinner meeting last night at the Pampa Country Club.

The speaker was Henry Hamilton, plant manager, who was accompanied to Pampa by James Gerth of the SWPS production department.

Hamilton used illustrated slides to point up various phases of plant operations which will replace natural gas with coal as fuel.

He said the new facility, one mile north of the current gas-fired Nichols plant off the Fritch Hwy., will transport coal 800 miles from Wyoming in 110-car trains, using around one million tons a year.

Hamilton explained in detail the many operations of the new plant. He said the change from gas to coal as fuel has been brought on by the Federal Power Commission's trend to urge substitution of coal because of the growing need for gas as a heating fuel, especially in the north and east areas of the U.S.

The plant manager said water for the plant will be obtained by piping sewage effluent from the City of Amarillo to the plant's filtration facilities.

That water supply he added, is expected to be currently adequate, but when more is needed arrangements are to be made to get it from Amarillo's city water supply.

Hamilton did not touch on SWPS plans for future construction of a fast breeder nuclear plant in the Texas Panhandle except to say that when it is built it will be a unit to be added to the Harrington plant.

Reports that the nuclear plant would be built north of Pampa were dispelled several months ago by Southwestern Public Service officials.

Maintenance and operating crews at the new plant will be considerably increased over current plant personnel, Hamilton stated.

John Rogers, chairman of the local API chapter, presided at last night's banquet program and announced that Red Adair of Houston, internationally known oil and gas well fire-fighter, will be the speaker at the API monthly meeting Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Pampa Country Club.

ROCKEFELLER SAYS Hoover's Refusal Created Domestic Spying By CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Rockefeller told associates that former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's refusal to cooperate led to illegal domestic spying by the CIA.

Rockefeller, who heads President Ford's panel investigating the CIA, said the CIA undertook the spying at the insistence of "the administration." He did not indicate whether this was the administration of President Lyndon Johnson or Richard Nixon, or both.

The vice president made the comments at a closed question and answer session for about 50 persons who paid a $1,000 each to attend a reception for Republicans in New Vernon, N.J. Wednesday, according to two persons who attended the meeting. He reportedly made similar comments to associates in Washington.

Rockefeller was quoted as saying that information turned up so far by the commission indicates Hoover's role "seems to be where the problem began."

"This is what it looks like, but we've got to find out," another person quoted Rockefeller as saying.

Rockefeller, the sources said, cited no specific illegal actions of CIA, but referred to "these things" or "the problem." It has been reported the CIA engaged in widespread domestic spying that included surveillance and wiretapping, and compiling files on 10,000 American militants.

Spying on Americans is illegal under the CIA charter. Domestic counterintelligence is part of the FBI's jurisdiction.

Rockefeller spokesman John Mulliken refused to say what the vice president told the New Jersey Republicans about the CIA.

"He mentioned the CIA, and said he hoped it wouldn't be torn apart by the investigation, but that the American people have to know what the intelligence community has been doing," Mulliken said. "It will all come out in the report." The commission's report is due April 1.

The FBI is charged with protecting the internal security of the country. Previous reports have stated that both Johnson and Nixon were alarmed at the size and strength of the antiwar movement in the late 1960's and were convinced it was Communist inspired.

It has also been reported that Hoover refused to follow up on reports of suspicious connections between American citizens involved in the antiwar movement and persons suspected of being foreign agents.

AT LOCAL MOTEL Two Men Hospitalized After Robbery Attempt

Two men are hospitalized today with gunshot wounds which were the result of a suspected robbery attempt of the Plainsman Motel, west of Pampa on U.S. Highway 69.

The incident, which occurred at 2:30 a.m. today, began when one of the men, Anthony Caviness, 21, Pampa, approached the motel and allegedly told the owner, E.M. Stafford he needed to call someone to help him with his car.

Investigating officer, Gray County Deputy Randal Nichols, reported the suspect was advised a pay phone was available outside the motel office. He then allegedly told Stafford he had no money.

At that point, the officer's report indicates Stafford gave the suspect 20 cents and returned to his living quarters at the rear of the motel office area.

The suspect is reported to have returned to the outer office area and informed Stafford the phone would not work. The suspect allegedly hit Stafford, knocking him back into the office area, and pulled the gun. According to reports, the men struggled over the gun.

Mrs. Stafford, is said to have emerged from the living quarters and reportedly hit the suspect on the arm. Reports indicated he then fired in the direction of Stafford, hitting the man in the left hip.

Stafford told the officer, he reached into a box under the counter and got his gun after he fell to the floor. Stafford reportedly fired at the suspect with the .32 caliber pistol, hitting the man with four shots.

A telephone operator alerted police after Mrs. Stafford dialed the telephone office requesting help.

City units alerted the county unit.

Metropolitan Ambulance Service transported the two men to Highland General Hospital where Stafford underwent surgery and is reported in good condition.

Caviness was transferred to Northwest Hospital in Amarillo, where he is reportedly in serious condition.

Deputy Nichols said shortly before noon today charges in the case are pending additional investigation.

Alien strategy drawn

The commission named by President Ford to develop programs to deal with the problem of illegal aliens is not venturing into an uncharted wilderness.

Legislation introduced in the last two Congresses by Democratic Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey would have established clear guidelines for employers of nonresident labor. Those who knowingly hired illegal aliens or made no effort to check their immigration status would have been exposed to severe penalties.

The bill would have been effective in reducing the lure of comparatively high-paying jobs that encourages the illegal traffic across U.S. borders, particularly the Mexican border. Estimates set the number of illegal aliens in the United States today at some eight million. The reported $10 billion they receive in wages annually compounds unemployment woes, particularly in California which bears the brunt of the alien tide.

The Rodino bill twice sailed through the Judiciary Committee, which he chairs, and won approval in the House.

But despite the urging of Mr. Ford that it be made law, the bill died again last year in a Senate subcommittee under the leadership of Sen. James O. Eastland, a Mississippi Democrat.

Eastland held no hearings on the legislation and has not revealed his objections, if any, to passage of the bill.

The 94th Congress must give priority to an illegal alien policy. The competition for jobs in this country in a period of rising unemployment does not permit the added burden of jobseekers without legal status.

Neither can the U.S. economy withstand the increased load of welfare demands brought by illegal aliens who find their visions of a land of plenty shattered by grim reality.

Eastland, who will again rule the Judiciary subcommittee charged with immigration policy, should be urged, perhaps, to take the initiative in drafting legislation that will remove features he found objectionable in previous bills. A workable compromise must be found.

A strategy for meeting the flood of illegal border crossings already has been drawn for the new commission to be headed by the attorney general of the United States. It must be set in motion, not only to protect U.S. interests, but to put an end to the human tragedy of aliens who find poverty even more insufferable in a strange land.

Unwarranted protests

Reasons for the State Department's objection to certain provisions in the new United States trade law already are emerging.

South American nations, led by Venezuela and Ecuador, are vigorously protesting what they call "discriminatory" exceptions in the law.

They angrily declare the law creates "a situation of economic war" in the hemisphere and say they will boycott the meeting of Latin American foreign ministers with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger next March.

Naturally the furor puts a damper on Mr. Kissinger's intra-hemisphere diplomacy. That is regrettable, but not irreparable. If blame is to be fixed, the Latin countries are at least as responsible for the rift as the U.S. Congress. Perhaps Mr. Kissinger could diplomatically persuade them to see the controversy in that light.

Ecuador and Venezuela are members of the international oil price-fixing cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. They voluntarily joined Arab nations in a collusive venture which has quadrupled the price we and other industrialized countries must pay for oil.

By joining the cartel they approved a policy which restrains world trade. And considering the drastic imbalance the price-fixing has inflicted on the American economy, Congress was justified in writing restrictions into the new trade law. Our congressmen could not be expected to view OPEC practices with enthusiasm.

Despite the State Department's disappointment, the U.S. position is sound. It favors and encourages free trade by permitting importation of goods from developing countries without payment of duty.

Excluding members of the oil cartel from this preferential treatment in no way contradicts our desire to promote international trade.

It does prevent a few nations from having the best of two possible worlds — free trade on our end and restraints on theirs.

MIDWINTER MADNESS
A Look At U.S. From Abroad

By WILLIAM RUSHER

BANGKOK — One of the side benefits of foreign travel is the opportunity to look at the United States from outside, for a change. I wish I could report that the experience, these days, is an uplifting one — like those gorgeous views of the planet Earth, with its rusty continents and royal blue oceans and swirling clouds, that our astronauts used to enjoy on the way to the moon. Unfortunately the United States today, as viewed from abroad, looks rather like some village idiot mindlessly banging his head against a wall.

Take the announcement of Ron Nessen, President Ford's press secretary, that the government would bill Richard Nixon some $8000 for the cost of so much of his final flight to Los Angeles last August 9 as took place after he officially ceased to be President at 11:35 a.m., at a point over Jefferson City, Missouri. Mr. Nessen was later prevailed upon to retract this particular piece of nuttiness, but the damage had already been done.

In case you haven't heard, the rest of the world give or take a Swede or two feels far less ill-disposed toward Mr. Nixon than most of his domestic critics. Nor is it merely the familiar story of the prophet not without honor save in his own country.

In the particular case of Richard Nixon, the rest of the world simply hasn't been able to summon up the indignation over his conduct that blows forth so effortlessly from, say, Lowell Weicker. I have a friend in Italy, and not one a terribly anti-clerical one at that, who is convinced that the Pope wretaps the cardinals — a preposterous idea, to be sure, but one that nicely illustrates the biased European attitude toward that sort of thing.

Little do they realize the heights (or is it depths?) of vindictiveness that millions of Americans have attained on the subject of Richard Nixon. I have no doubt that Messrs. Gallup and Harris could find plenty of people who would agree that, once the presidential jet reached Missouri and the sands ran out on the Nixon presidency, the pilot ought to have switched off the engines, bailed out, and let the dratted thing crash.

Or take the still continuing brouhaha over the allegedly "illegal" files on anti-war Americans kept by the CIA during the 1960s. This flap is almost 100 percent pure propaganda, a controversy deliberately manufactured by Seymour Hersh and his superiors at the "New York Times," abetted by the usual publicity-thirsty liberals in the Congress, solely for the purpose of embarrassing and, if possible, crippling the CIA.

Even assuming the CIA actually did something technically within the jurisdiction of the FBI, no shred of harm resulted. Yet, to judge by the uproar, you would think somebody had been caught trying to steal the Constitution from the National Archives. President Ford has been forced to appoint a "blue ribbon" panel to inquire into the matter, and Congress (not trusting Mr. Ford's panel to get to the bottom of it) is creating its own special investigating committee.

Meanwhile an amazed world watches, and wonders.

There is not a major nation on earth that does not have at least one, and usually several, secret services. In the case of Britain, the very identity of the head of the principal secret agency was for many years carefully concealed. Yet here is the Congress of the United States, simply on the insistence of a powerful liberal newspaper, preparing to hold CIA Director Colby upside down by his feet in public and compel him, under pain of perjury, to tell it and the Russians and the whole human race what he and his predecessors have been doing and why the CIA shouldn't be prevented from ever doing it again.

Do you wonder that other nations, watching this performance, think we are out of our minds? Are they so very wrong?

H. L. Hunt Wrote

WHIPPING INFLATION

President Ford declared inflation to be Public Enemy No. 1 and even the Keynesians who favor "just a little bit of permanent inflation" have been largely, if temporarily, quiet. Democrat Edmund Muskie, interviewed immediately after President Ford's message to the Congress and to the people, unfortunately took a partisan political and liberal line. He indicated that government alone could not stop inflation, that there were too many needs of unfortunate citizens to be met and if government acted too strongly against inflation might happen.

Since inflation is wiping out the middle class, as it has in so many "backward" nations, it is difficult to see how anything worse could happen to a free people. Partisans who have caused inflation — in the only way it can be caused: with deficit spending and excessive expansion of money and credit — refuse to face facts.

Inflation is like a drunken binge. In its first stages, everything looks rosy. Stopping it produces a terrible hangover — but failure to stop it can only end in disaster and death.

President Ford is correct and presidential candidate Muskie is wrong. Only the government can do anything about inflation — by stopping the expansion of money and credit and ending deficit spending. It will be painful, but the alternative is destruction of our freedom and our economic system. Restraint will be essential for business and for workers, but those who refuse to exercise restraint will bankrupt their own companies, not the government and the people as a whole.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Latin On Dollar Bill Questioned By Reader

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "Can you explain the odd pyramid upon our dollar bill and the Latin statements? Particularly the 'annuit coeptis'. Then, pray tell, why do we who are neither Latin, Greek nor Egyptian use a Constitution written in English but remain subjected to law, medicine and currency in 'incomprehensible jargon'? Is Latin our common tongue? Why not legislate to remove same and replace with English?" — Mr. & Mrs. W.D. Selma, Ore.

A — I can answer some of your questions but not all:

1 — The phrase "novus ordo seclorum" means "a new order of things," and refers to the creation of the world's first democratic republic.

2 — The phrase "annuit coeptis" is best translated "a favorable beginning." Literally, it means "He (God) has favored our beginnings."

3 — The pyramid and eye I'm not at all sure of. However, I seem to have read something about these being symbols of Freemasonry, and many of our founding fathers were Masons. Perhaps some of our Masonic readers can enlighten us.

4 — Latin is used in inscriptions meant to read for centuries because it retains its same exact meaning over long periods of time, being a "dead" or unchanging language. This is not true of English, which changes constantly. If George Washington were to return to earth today, for example, he would have a hard time communicating. "Nice" to him meant "precise"; to us it means "pleasant" or "agreeable." Thousands of our phrases such as "critical mass," "high gear," "rubber check" and even "White House" would be complete puzzles to him. Even commonplace words like "gasoline" and "plastic" would evoke no response.

So Latin has survived, at least when the citizens of one century want to speak to those of another.

Q — "Can you answer a question a couple of us old fossils cannot see eye to eye on? We know it isn't legal for corporations to donate money to political campaigns, but why is it legal for labor unions to pour millions into them?" — J.M.H., Baltimore, Md.

A — Sorry, ma'am, but it won't work. First, these records were never intended for lay people like parents; they are professional entries meant to be read by other trained professionals. Second, no teacher in his right mind is going to put something unfavorable about a child in writing if he knows the child's parents are going to be reading every word. "Backbone" has nothing to do with it; he has to live in the same town with these people, and they can make his life a living hell.

Q — "Two years ago while traveling in South Dakota, I read the 'new' version of 'Little Red Riding Hood.' I sent it to my local newspaper editor. Upon returning home, I found it had never appeared in our paper. I called, and his secretary would only say, 'In his opinion, it was not in the public interest. What is your interpretation of this decision?' — P.S., Bremerton, Wash.

A — Your editor didn't like the story.

Dear Abby

The doctor is sick, sick, sick

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my son and his wife, Vicki, moved to Bakersfield, Cal. Being in a new area, Vicki looked in the Yellow Pages of her phone book to find an obstetrician to confirm her suspicions of pregnancy. She and my son wanted a baby very much. (Vicki is only 19.) What should have been a happy experience for her turned into a nightmare because of an idiot of a doctor.

He asked her if she was financially prepared to take care of a retarded or deformed baby. Naturally, she asked him if he had reason to believe anything was wrong. He said no, but she was so young and immature he thought he'd ask.

Vicki told the doctor that she wanted her husband with her during the delivery so they could share that beautiful experience together. He said, disgustedly: "There is nothing beautiful about it! It's a lot of grunting." (Have you ever heard of such talk from a doctor?) He also said he delivered a headless baby to a woman whose husband was in the room, and the husband nearly died.

Abby, this doctor instilled such fears and doubts in Vicki, I could wring his neck. I don't want this to happen to another expectant mother. Is there someone I can report him to?

READY TO EXPLODE IN VICTORVILLE

DEAR READY: Yes. Contact his County Medical Society and report him to the grievance committee. He shouldn't be allowed to practice. He sounds like a very sick man.

DEAR ABBY: Is nothing sacred? Here I am sitting with my boyfriend watching television, when all of a sudden we see a commercial come on for a product that makes me want to crawl under the rug. Good grief! I felt my face getting hot as a poker.

Then, a while later, another commercial came on for a medicine to treat a very embarrassing ailment which is not mentioned in polite company.

Where can I write to complain? RED-FACED

DEAR RED: Regarding offensive TV commercials, write to the Federal Communications Commission Office, 1919 M Street, Washington, D.C. 20554.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing that letter from the woman signed "Restless." She confessed that she had the urge to run away from her family, and wanted to know if other wives experienced that feeling.

I have many times I've wanted to run away from my husband, and yes, my children, too, and start life all over again where no one would know me.

I've been married for 28 years, and my children are gone now. I've had a fairly good marriage. By that I mean I've had more good days than bad. No marriage is perfect. My mother always told me: "You can't run away from your troubles, and you can't leave them behind. If you run away, you take your problems with you." She was right.

Tell "Restless" if she stayed with her marriage for 25 years, her good days have probably outnumbered her bad days, and that's not a bad average. Tell her not to lose heart. She has lots of company. "B" IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR "B": You belong to a large sorority. You wouldn't believe the number of married women who wrote to confide that at one time they also had the urge to run away. One man courageously wrote: "Women don't have an exclusive on the urge to run away. I've had it, too, but thank God my sanity returned and good sense prevailed."

Kleasen Scheduled For Murder Trial

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Robert Elmer Kleasen stood on his tip-toes in the back of his 6-by-10 foot cell and screwed a lightbulb into the socket. He cocked his head back over his shoulder and in a whining voice that didn't seem to fit his 200-pound bulk he let loose with another complaint.

"I can't even read with this light," he said.

He paced around in his cell, his rumpled jail clothes hanging loosely on his body and saw three other prisoners who are allowed to walk up and down the small corridor outside their cells.

"Could I just get out of here?" Kleasen asked Sheriff Raymond Frank.

"It'll depend on your conduct," Frank answered. "The better you behave the more privileges you'll get."

The sheriff turned and whispered an aside to a reporter. "This man supposedly killed two human beings and saved their bodies into pieces," Frank said. "He's only about 30 feet from our kitchen knives."

Kleasen had just returned from a brief courtroom appearance Thursday where District Judge Tom Blackwell had scheduled Kleasen's trial for the murder of two Mormon missionaries for March 17. Defense attorneys said they will demand a jury verdict on Kleasen's sanity before he stands trial for the murder of Gary Smith Darley, 20, of Simi Valley, Calif., and Mark J. Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis.

District Attorney Robert O. Smith, who requested a psychiatric examination of Kleasen, said state psychiatrists have already examined him and do not believe he is out of touch with reality.

"He likes to fantasize about being a CIA agent but he doesn't think he is one," Smith said. "He knows it's just a daydream."

Kleasen was married once and had a daughter, but no one seems to know where they are now. Kleasen says his wife ran off with an FBI agent. He also says this agent owned an enormous cache of weapons found at Kleasen's Williamson, N.Y., home when he was arrested there in 1971.

A sometime carpenter's aide who like to brag about his supposed exploits as a big game hunter, Kleasen faces a possible death sentence under Texas law for the missionaries' murder. Darley and Fischer, missing since Oct. 28, were officially declared dead at an inquest last week.

The young missionaries for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints were last seen going to Kleasen's trailer home for dinner.

Their blood-stained watches were found in the trailer, a short distance from a taxidermist shop where Kleasen occasionally did odd jobs.

Police found human tissue and hair that matched samples obtained from the missionaries' families on a band saw at the shop.

Authorities theorized Kleasen robbed and killed the two, sawed their bodies into small pieces and dumped them with animal carcasses from the taxidermist shop.

Kleasen said nothing during his brief court appearance Thursday, but he was less hesitant to talk once he returned to his cell, complaining about everything from the lack of light to missing toothpaste.

"If you're going to keep me locked up like this, I'd sure appreciate it if I could at least have a television," Kleasen told Frank.

Another prisoner, a burglary suspect who had chatted with Kleasen, turned to the sheriff.

"He's all right," the other prisoner said of Kleasen. "I don't think he's going to be violent."

Kleasen, 42, has a past police record.

In addition to the missionaries' murders he is charged with assault in a 1971 shooting incident in New York.

In the 1971 raid in New York, police seized 126 rifles and shotguns, 32 handguns, four machine guns, teargas canisters, grenades, 100 pounds of gunpowder and 42,000 rounds of ammunition.

New York authorities were unable to locate Kleasen for his trial on the assault charges in 1972.

Kleasen was arrested in Texas on an old charge of buffalo rustling, but was released last year after Gov. Dolph Briscoe refused to extradite him.

For the past two years he has been living at the rear of the taxidermist's shop just south of Austin in a camper trailer police say was stolen.

"He didn't have anything wrong with him you could see," says L. M. Rathbone, the taxidermist. "He seemed to be a pretty religious man. He always said he had to go to church every Sunday."

Kleasen had been active in the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints but had fallen out with church officials. The two young missionaries he's accused of murdering visited with him regularly.

Rathbone said Kleasen worked occasionally as a carpenter's aide, but that he seemed to have two left hands.

Kleasen described himself to friends as a ballistics expert and expert marksman. He also claims to speak six languages and have degrees from the state University of New York at Buffalo, University of Copenhagen and University of Stockholm.

Tired Of Phone Solicitations? There's Hope

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texans tired of being pestered by companies that solicit by telephone may have relief in sight.

Rep. Sarah Weddington, D-Austin, has introduced a bill to allow each customer of telephone service in Texas to order an asterisk placed beside his listing in the telephone directory if he does not wish to be solicited by telephone.

Directories would contain a warning that companies that solicit by telephone may not call those names with asterisks beside them.

"There are several companies that now do business by phone," Ms. Weddington said. "Most of them simply have a group of people going down the list in the directory. They usually tell you that you've won a vacation or something."

"A lot of people are really irritated by these calls. We are simply trying to add protection to what is an instrument for the invasion of a person's privacy."

The bill contains no penalty for violation of the proposed law. Ms. Weddington said she did not know whether she will try to add penalties as the bill progresses through the legislature.

Her idea for the measure came from a friend in Wisconsin, where such a bill has been pending before the state legislature for a number of years.

2 Ships Collide, Explode

MARCUS HOOK, Pa. (UPI) — Two ships, one containing 315,000 gallons of crude oil, collided at dockside at the British Petroleum refinery here today, causing at least one death.

Several persons were believed missing and at least 20 were injured.

The U.S. Coast Guard said a Liberian tanker, the Corinthus, was moored at dockside unloading and was struck by the U.S. Edgar M. Queeney as it was leaving dockside, causing a series of explosions and fires.

The blast shattered windows in a wide area and rocked this area of industrial complexes, including many refineries.

One person was confirmed dead on arrival at Crozer Chester Medical Center, where 13 of the injured were taken.

A Coast Guard report said "numerous persons are unaccounted for at this time, although there is no detailed information as to specific casualties."

Coast Guard spokesman Chief Ed Conlon said later that he had "no idea" as to whether there were further casualties.

The Coast Guard dispatched two cutters, two tugboats, a buoy tender and two helicopters to aid in fire control and search for victims.

Authorities said, however, it was difficult to determine how many were aboard the Corinthus because of numerous shore leaves. Originally, because of the smoke and flames that had blanketed the area the Coast Guard reported that the collision involved the Corinthus and a barge, but it was later determined that the dredge barge was docked nearby.

The spokesman said the Corinthus had approximately 315,000 gallons of crude oil aboard which apparently touched off the mass of flames and smoke which could be seen miles away.

Eyewitnesses said the bow of the tanker, the Corinthus, either sank or was blown off, and flames consumed the stern above water.

A Coast Guard air crew reported flames from the initial blast jumped 400 to 500 high and spread a distance of two to three miles across the river, which separates the Pennsylvania and New Jersey borders.

The fire, touched off about 12:45 a.m., continued raging through the night on an oil slick on the river and the docks, but firemen believed they had the blaze under control. There was no immediate danger to the oil storage tanks and homes adjoining the area.

Six persons were taken to Sacred Heart Hospital in Chester, but only three required hospitalization. Two other persons taken to riddle Memorial Hospital in Media, about 10 miles north of here, were reported not seriously injured.

The Coast Guard had planes flying the area to watch for any persons who might still be in the water.

CARPET CLEANER

'Prime Suspect' Named In Chamberlain's Death

HOUSTON (UPI) — Friends of the slain Joseph Chamberlain today identified a 27-year-old man as the man they found cleaning a bloody carpet in the apartment of the great nephew of former British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

"He's the prime suspect," a homicide detective said.

The bound, shot and strangled body of Chamberlain, 74, was discovered by police Wednesday stuffed in a wooden box inside a rented trailer on the parking lot at the apartment complex.

Police arrested an unemployed laborer at a bar downtown. The man claimed he was paid by a third party to clean blood from the apartment. Two of Chamberlain's fellow employees picked the man from a police lineup.

Police said two of Chamberlain's fellow employees went to the apartment to check on the dead man, and surprised the suspect. The two said the suspect told them he had been given $10 by Chamberlain to clean the apartment, and showed them his driver's license. The man said the license had his picture on it and appeared to be valid. The suspect jumped from the apartment's balcony and fled when they found blood on the bed and decided to call police.

However, the two were not sure of the order of the three names on the license, but police said the lead was invaluable even if it was incomplete.

An autopsy showed the body had three gunshot wounds in the head. Harris County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk said. Police believe Chamberlain was killed Monday night.

The bloody body was tied with nylon rope and an electrical extension cord was twisted around the neck.

Chamberlain came to the United States last September from his native England as an employee of Petty-Ray Geophysical, Inc. The company said he was hired by their English office April 1, 1974, and transferred to Houston in the company's geophysical data processing office.

A man Chamberlain carpooled with said he found a note Tuesday morning on the apartment door saying Chamberlain had to be hospitalized for an emergency appendectomy. Russell and another man failed to locate Chamberlain in area hospitals, and went to his apartment.

Police said a trail of blood led from the bedroom and through the apartment and the parking lot to the trailer which held the box and Chamberlain's body.

Police Hunt Skid Row Slasher

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The "Skid Row slasher," who has cut the throats of eight men in two months, is a husky blond homosexual in his 20s who may be driven by impotence or hatred of his father, police said today.

He is "a jacked, an animal who preys on weaklings and cripples," but not a vampire, a police spokesman said, denying reports that the slasher apparently drank the blood of some victims.

Detectives, mounting one of the greatest manhunts in the history of the city, late Wednesday distributed copies of a drawing showing the man police believe is the slasher.

The composite drawing was put together from information gathered in hundreds of interviews, police said, and the "psychiatric profile" was drawn by a panel of psychiatrists and psychologists.

The man is white, between 20 and 30 years old, appears to be about 6 feet tall, weighs about 190 pounds, has stringy collar-length hair of a dirty blond color, a long prominent nose and thick eyebrows, according to the police description.

"We think he's a sexually weak and deficient person who is being driven to a frenzy to commit these murders as a substitute for the normal heterosexual relationship," said Deputy Police Chief George A. Beck.

"There are strong implications in these killings of his sexual impotence and his feelings of inadequacy."

The hunt for the slasher, who got his name because he cuts the throats of his victims and the first six, died in Skid Row deleriums, mounted in intensity following the discovery of an eighth victim Wednesday night.

The "slasher squad" was expanded to a task force and put under the command of Assistant

Police Chief Daryl Gates. Police spokesman said the manhunt equalled in intensity the investigation of San Robert F. Kennedy's assassination and the hunt for the Manson family after the Sharon Tate mass murders.

A spokesman, Cmdr. Peter Hagan, denied a report by a local television station that detectives had found evidence of vampirism, or ritual killing and blood drinking. The station reported that two of the victims had been drained of blood, and a cup of blood was found beside one of them.

"Absolutely not," Hagan said. "There is no evidence of any such thing."

Beck said the psychological profile describes the suspect as "poorly educated," and "a loner, who loves nobody and nobody loves him. He probably lives like a hermit. Some of his hatred might be spurred by an unresolved rage toward his father, who could have been a brutal alcoholic. Now he remembers how he was treated as a child and is striking back, killing those who resemble the man he hated," Beck said.

Police are worried because the killer broke his pattern with the latest slaying. The victim was not a deleriac and did not live on Skid Row, but in a comfortable apartment house five miles away in East Hollywood.

The killer "may strike any time and any place now," Hagan said.

The victim Wednesday — all the killings took place on a

Wednesday night or during a weekend — was George Friss, 45, who worked in the sales department of a catering service at the downtown Hilton Hotel. Friss was described as a quiet, hard working loner at the office, but a flashy dresser, who neighbors said entertained other men frequently.

"Absolutely not," Hagan said. "There is no evidence of any such thing."

Some of his hatred might be spurred by an unresolved rage toward his father, who could have been a brutal alcoholic. ## Convict Goes On Trial For Escape Spree

ASPERMONT, Tex. (UPI) — One of two convicts charged in a spree of murder and rape from Colorado to Texas goes on trial Monday for the death of a West Texas rancher.

Jury selection begins Monday in state District Court for the capital murder trial of Dalton Williams, 29, one of three convicts who escaped from the Colorado state prison last August and eluded authorities for four days before being cornered near Stephenville, Tex.

One of the escapees, Richard Magnum, 22, was shot to death by police and Williams and Jerry Ben Ulmer, 22, were captured.

Williams and Ulmer are both charged with capital murder in the death of Stonewall County rancher T.L. Baker Sr., 65, shot to death Aug. 24 at his home near Rotan.

Baker testified at the trial that sent Williams to the Colorado prison for armed robbery and assault.

After their capture Williams and Ulmer told authorities Baker was shot in revenge.

"He (Williams) and Jerry Ben Ulmer crawled up to a position 35 or 40 yards in the grass in front of the residence of T. L. Baker," Erath County District Attorney Bob Glasgow said. "They laid out side until Baker came out of the house."

"Mr. Baker came out of the house and Williams shot him four times with a .308 magnum rifle, and after he shot him, he went up to the porch where he lay and asked him if he recognized him."

"His statement was 'Mr. Baker, do you recognize me?' He indicated Mr. Baker nodded his head and Williams said 'I want you to know why I killed you. I told you I was going to do it.'"

Ulmer will be tried later for Baker's murder.

Ulmer and Williams are also charged with the murder of Lena Ott of Gordon, Tex. in Erath County.

After their capture Ulmer and Williams also said they found two girls stranded along a New Mexico highway and Magnum and Williams raped them.

N.M. Students Staying In Jail

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — Sixty-four youths arrested in a rockthrowing disturbance at Anthony-Gadsden High School Wednesday could remain in the Dona Ana County jail through the weekend, authorities say.

Undersheriff Eddie di Matteo said the workload involved in processing the youths' appearance before juvenile authorities was causing a delay.

At the same time, Sheriff Tony Gonzalez said even more arrests may be made in the case, based on eyewitness identification of additional participants in the melee which was broken up by police with teargas at the New Mexico Texas border community of Anthony, N.M.

No one was injured in the disturbance, but windows in the school and a number of vehicles were smashed in the disturbance on the high school grounds.

The uprising was triggered by an incident involving four undercover narcotics officers on the school grounds, which authorities said had been the scene of alleged marijuana peddling for several years.

All of the youths were charged with disorderly conduct and criminal damage to public property, except for one juvenile who was charged with assaulting an officer.

Only four of the 65 arrested were charged as adults, officers said, and one of those was released on bond Thursday, the only youth to be set free.

Chrysler Plans To Reopen All But One Plants

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. said Thursday that all but one of its eight U.S. car and truck assembly plants will operate next week.

It will be the best single week for the No. 3 automaker since before Thanksgiving.

There will be no new open-ended layoffs which now stand at 51,000 out of a work force of 114,000, a spokesman said. There will be 1,850 workers on temporary layoffs at the one closed plant, compared with 11,850 off the job at three plants this week.

Chrysler's mid-January sales were up 89 per cent from early January as a result of its pioneering cash rebate sales program. Sales for the period were within 8 per cent of matching the year-ago level.

U.S. automakers this week had 15 closed car and truck assembly plants and nearly 250,000 workers idled, including 177,000 on open-ended layoffs. Industry executives now say those indefinite layoffs should not go much higher and should begin dropping by March.

Industry analysts anticipate the weekly plant shutdowns will begin dropping as sales increase and a record 1.7 million car inventory is whittled down. Early estimates are for a 30 per cent jump in new car sales in the final January sales period over mid-January.

However, even with the increase, sales still would be off 15 per cent from last year despite the cash rebates now being offered by all four U.S. companies. Sales in early January were off 33 per cent from 1974's already depressed levels.

The only Chrysler facility to be closed next week is the company's Newark, Del., assembly plant which has been shut since Nov. 4. Chrysler had planned to reopen the facility Monday, but now says the compact cars it builds still aren't needed and the plant will remain closed on a week-to-week basis.

Chrysler said its Hamtramck, Mich., and Belvidere, Ill., assembly plants would reopen Monday, bringing back approximately 10,000 workers from temporary layoffs.

Chrysler's relatively good news was balanced by increased layoffs announced earlier by General Motors and American Motors. The Ford Motor Co. will announce its early February production plans Friday.

Hill Challenges Phone Rate Hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — "The time has come in Texas for the attorney general to challenge this monopoly."

With these words, Attorney General John Hill vowed to go to court today in an unprecedented attempt to prevent Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. from raising long distance rates in Texas.

Hill said the proposed increase can only damage an already suffering economy. Hill officials said they needed the increase because of the economy.

Hill called a news conference Thursday to accuse the telephone company of failing to provide reasonable figures to demonstrate a need for the increase. He said he will ask a state court today to grant a temporary injunction against the telephone company to stop the rate increase.

"It seems to me that at a time of mounting recession this proposed action will have a very substantial adverse economic impact on our state and the consumers," Hill said.

Southwestern Bell announced earlier in the day it needed to raise rates on intrastate calls beginning March 1.

Bell officials said they will try to meet with Hill in an attempt to convince him the rate increase is justified.

"There is no doubt in our minds there is a valid need," a Bell spokesman said. "We need to do this to meet customer demands for quality service."

"We have major rate cases underway in many regulatory jurisdictions around the country and they all stem from the same problem we have in Texas, what inflation has done to our cost of doing business."

Hill's action against was unprecedented in Texas which has no statewide regulation of public utilities.

He said he was filing the suit because it is "the right of the state of Texas to question the reasonableness of these rates."

"The right of the telephone company to prescribe these rates is absolutely subject to the requirement that the increase be reasonable," Hill said. "The time has come in Texas for the attorney general, pursuant to his constitutional, statutory and common law powers, to challenge this monopoly in the area of unregulated rates as to whether these rates are reasonable and lawful."

Hill said irreparable injury will be suffered by consumers unless the restraining order against the phone company is granted.

"In short, I intend to fight this in every legal way available," he said.

Asked if he personally considered the rate increase unreasonable, Hill said "Yes, I do."

The new schedule calls for a one-minute minimum rate on customer-dialed long distance calls instead of the three-minute minimum that has been in effect since 1969.

The schedule is patterned after the interstate rate application American Telephone & Telegraph Co. filed with the Federal Communications Commission Jan. 3.

"About 42 per cent of the One-Plus long distance calls within Texas are of two minutes or less duration and these customers will experience a cost reduction on these calls," Bell vice president Charles Marshall said.

Legislature Okays Pay Raise By Quick Action

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — State employees will receive their portions of a $93 million pay raise on Feb. 28 checks because of quick action by legislators to solve a constitutional problem with the pay raise proposal.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe signed the raise into law Thursday as the legislature adjourned for a three-day weekend. The lawmakers had until today to pass the bill in order for the raise to go into the February checks.

Attorney General John Hill revealed early Thursday a question had arisen about the constitutionality of the single pay raise bill passed by the Senate last week and House Wednesday.

Hill said a section of the bill could invalidate it because it appeared to be general legislation, which the constitution prohibits from inclusion in an appropriations bill.

To solve the problem the House split the bill into two, passing the general legislation separately from the appropriation of $93 million for the raise.

"It's actually the same thing we passed yesterday (Wednesday) except it's two bills to avoid the constitutional question," Speaker Bill Clayton said.

The Senate concurred in the House's action and the bill went to Briscoe for his signature.

"The thing I'm pleased about is they held the line on the very first appropriations bill of the session," Briscoe said. "I think this means they will be able to hold the line the rest of the session."

In other legislative action Thursday, Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, failed in an attempt to transfer a bill he said benefits loan sharks from the Economic Development Committee to the Natural Resources Committee.

2 Borger Men Die In Accident

BORGER — Two Borger men were killed Thursday in an industrial accident that occurred at the Phillips Petroleum Co. refinery near here.

Killed during the collapse of an elevator shaft were Monte Lynn Hall, 21, and Russell Owen Jeeter, 19. Both were employed by Fish Construction Co.

Authorities said the two were working in the elevator shaft when the elevator collapsed about noon.

Hall was pronounced dead on arrival at North Plains Hospital. He was removed from the scene of the accident almost immediately after the incident.

Authorities said Jeeter was trapped inside the shaft for about 45 minutes.

Neither Phillips nor Fish Construction officials had any immediate comment upon the accident. Fish is a contractor for Phillips construction projects.

Hall was born at Borger and was a 1972 graduate of Borger High School. Jeeter was born at Amarillo and was a 1973 graduate of Borger High School.

Funeral services for Hall are under the direction of Minton's Mortuary. Services for Jeeter were pending with Simpson Funeral Home.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:
Let's discuss the kitchen drawer, where we all keep our daily clutter accumulated. This is the drawer, ordinarily next to the kitchen stove, where we keep our favorite knives and spoons and no telling what else. While you are reading this, think to yourself, "Now, what is in that drawer?" (Bet you can't make a complete list before you look!) How much of it is really necessary? What do you actually need? Can you find your favorite knife immediately? And spoon? When you clean the drawer, do you just remove all the "stuff," get the crumbs out, line it with paper and replace everything and let it go? Don't! You will be right back where you started—still having to knock everything aside to find that favorite spoon or knife. Put some newspaper down on the drainboard and literally pour out everything in the drawer onto the paper. Just look at all that excess junk and clutter! Whatever do you need all this mess for? You have only two hands! There are umpteen spoons and only four burners on the stove. How could anyone use umpteen spoons at one time? Wipe out the drawer and line it, whether it be with newspaper, a paper sack or bag, adhesive-backed paper, cardboard, foil, wax paper, etc. Now... don't throw all that stuff back in the drawer. Stop, look and think, "What do I really use every day?" Pick out your favorite butcher knife, paring knife, spatula, egg turner, can opener and not more than four spoons. Replace these in your drawer. Where you will probably have your downfall is when it comes to the spoons. Just how many spoons do you have in that cluttered drawer? Six or eight, perhaps. Now, you are going to say, "But I have had these spoons for years and can't throw them away." You don't have to. If they have sentimental value, get a paper bag and put all these excess items in it. Test yourself. Put the bag with all these excess items in the garage or closet. If you don't go into that old kitchen grab-bag within a week, then it's a fact that you can do without those extra gadgets. If you decide later you must have a certain item, it's always there. How many bottle openers do you have? About six? You can open only one bottle or can at a time. We keep them because we think someday one might not work. We can still open only one bottle or can at a time so pick out the best two and put them back in the drawer. Go through all your equipment this way. What you can do without, you don't need. Get rid of it so you can find something quickly. Saves your time and nerves. Eliminates excess cleaning, clutter, etc. Don't faint when you see how little will be in this favorite drawer after this cleaning. It pays off. You will have a glorious feeling tomorrow when you open the drawer and find what you are looking for immediately. Simplicity is the answer to our problems.

Modern Maturity Explained At Civic Culture Meeting

The Civic Culture Club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. E.L. Anderson, 1102 E. Francis. Mrs. D.A. Rife, president, presided. Mrs. A.D. Hills and Mrs. C.V. Forsman were appointed to represent the club at a meeting Tuesday Jan. 28 at the library in regard to making plans for a community wide Senior Citizens Center.

Busy Wringing Them." Mrs. C.V. Forsman presented the program on "Modern Maturity." Maturity is the ability to control anger and settle differences without violence or destructiveness. Maturity is patience — willingness to pass up immediate pleasure in favor of long-term gain. It is perseverance, the ability to sweat out a project or a situation in spite of heavy opposition and discouraging setbacks, she told. Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness and frustration, discomfort and defeat, without complaint or collapse. It is humility. It is being big enough to say, "I was wrong." And when right, the mature person need not experience the satisfaction of saying, "I told you so." Maturity is the ability to make a decision and stand by it. Mrs. Forsman continued. Maturity means dependability, keeping one's word, coming through in the crises. It is living in peace with that which we cannot change, she concluded. Sixteen members and one visitor, Mrs. Bill Culver attended. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H.W. Waters Feb. 11.

7 YEARS' WAR
The European phase of the French and Indian or Seven Years' War began with alliance of Britain with Prussia and France with Austria on Jan. 16, 1756.

Langton (Harper & Row, $6.95) The tiny island off Massachusetts' Cape Cod is the scene of this murder mystery, and the island and its flora, fauna and sealife tends to upstage the plot. That's not altogether unreasonable in a murder with an environmental twist, and the book is illustrated with line drawings of some of the real-life places described. The murder itself happens during a total solar eclipse when a young matron is killed and a poetess who had loved the victim's husband is accused of the crime.

Sundari, by Rocky Davis (Barre-Westover, $7.95) Here's some delightful reading for animal and, especially, cat lovers. Despite the author's anthropomorphic attitude, she writes with warmth, exuberance and good humor about the hazards and happiness of raising an Indian leopard cub in an American household in New Delhi. Mrs. Davis is the wife of a soil scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Dali...Dali...Dali... by Max Gerard (Abrams, $12.50) A concise new edition of Gerard's kaleidoscopic survey of the Spanish master's surreal art illustrated with Paris-printed color plates and something of a bargain as art books go these days. The text includes an analysis of Dali by the artist's analyst and Dali's own zany musings on subjects that preoccupy him.

Two Cheers for the Affluent Society, A Spirited Defense of Economic Growth, by Wilfred Beckerman (St. Martin's, $7.95)
To hear some people tell it, these are the good old days. Their view is that we should try to squelch growth to preserve our way of life as we know it. Not that it's perfect, understand just deteriorating. Their fear is that growth and progress will only exacerbate our problems. Wilfred Beckerman wants to be counted out of that group. He has no illusions about today, but he also has none about yesterday. He points to the ways in which progress has improved previous squalid conditions and argues that it is only through growth that we can hope for solid improvement over today's conditions. For example, Beckerman is a Briton and was a member of the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution and as such is well aware of pollution problems today. But he compares filthy London of Queen Victoria's day with the much cleaner, though still imperfect, London of today to make his point. If there are villains in his book, they tend to be the middle-class individuals who are so fearful of losing what they have that they would restrict progress, even though restriction would exclude those more unfortunate than themselves from bettering their situation. While he favors growth, and points to the exploding world population as one reason gross national products must continue to increase, he isn't blind to the excesses sometimes committed in the name of progress.

Cookie Sales Slated By Pampa Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts began selling cookies at 4 p.m. today. The goal for this year is 36,000 boxes. Each girl who sells 24 boxes will receive a patch, especially designed, to show her active participation in the one All-Council fund raising project for the year. The money raised will be used exclusively for Camp Development. Camp Cibola, located near Clarendon, is in its fifth year of development and if its growth is to be continued, will require both financial and volunteer help.

The girls who sell cookies receive $2 toward camperships to the resident camp, when they top their 24 boxes required for a patch. For each carton of 12 they sell they receive an additional $2 toward this campership. This kind of incentive teaches girls the value of work. Also it gives them a sense of team work when they unite in a common goal to help promote Girl Scouting in their particular neighborhood in the Council. This year as in the past there are five favors which will be available. These will be Assorted Sandwich, Mint, Shorties, Peanut Butter, and Chocolate Chip. They will sell at $1.25 a box. Money raised in this year's cookie campaign stays in the Quivira Girl Scout Council area. Camp Cibola has provided three weeks of healthy outdoor experiences for at least one out of every six girls registered. To make it more accessible to a greater number of girls this cookie sale is being conducted until Feb. 15. Help your community by buying Girl Scout Cookies.

The suit - preference signal is a defensive signal designed to guide partner's choice between two suits, with the suit being led and the trump suit both being excluded from consideration. The essence of the suit - preference signal is this: when partner, either when leading to the current trick, or due to lead to the next trick, seems likely to switch to another suit at the next trick, the play or lead of an unnecessarily high card calls for a lead in the higher - ranking of the two obvious suits; and the play or lead of an obviously low card calls for the lead of the lower - ranking of the two obvious suits. Properly used, the suit - preference signal does not interfere with the conventional encouraging ("positive") and discouraging ("negative") signals. That the suit - preference signal is a most useful tool can be observed in today's deal. The hand came up in the 1974 Blue Ribbon National Pairs Championship. Sitting West and East, respectively, were Norman Kay, of Philadelphia, and Edgar Kaplan, of New York, the winners of the event. North - South vulnerable. South deals.

Gray County FFV Awardees

Altrusa Club of Pampa held their regular meeting Monday in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn with Geneva Tidwell presiding and 37 members in attendance. Members brought 39 cans of fruit juice to be delivered to the Pampa Day Care Center by the Community Service Committee. Rena Belle Anderson, chairman. Mary Wilson gave a report on meetings and programs on the expansion of Senior Center, requesting membership attend the meeting at the Lovett Library on Tuesday evening. There were 79 Senior Citizens in attendance at their last regular Thursday afternoon meeting. Plans were made for the first meeting in February when all Seniors having a birthday that month will honor.

Evelyn Mason, assisted by Joyce Simon and Geraldine Rumpy, inducted Colleen into the club. Colleen is a Dental Hygienist at Purviance Clinic. Louise Box, Vocational Services Committee Chairman, had requested all members bring two non - wanted or "white elephant" items from their home to be used in the program "Let's Make a Deal." Response to this request was terrific and with non - professional auctioneer, Katherine Sullins-ability for getting items sold at high prices, a total of over $190 was raised. This money will be added to the budgeted amount to be sent to the International Founders Fund Vocational Aid Altrusans of Pampa again exemplified their devotion to service to mankind as well as their community.

STAGE FRIGHT
If you have stage fright, seek out a friendly face in the crowd and carry on your public conversation with the owner of that face, advises Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Awardees are recommended to the committee by the local clubs. The sums requested vary in accordance with what is needed. The first woman in Pampa to be awarded assistance was in 1954 and these two in 1975 make a total of 18 women in Gray County to receive such assistance through this program. Floy Heath, membership chairman, introduced Mrs. Eugene (Colleen) Hamilton and Verrell Meador reported for the Vocational Services Committee that Altrusa International had approved the two applicants submitted for Founders Fund Vocational Aid. The two awardees are a Gray County mother and daughter who needed financial assistance in completing their LVN training at Frank Phillips Junior College. Awards are made by an International Committee appointed by the President of Altrusa International Foundation, Inc.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Lamar Full Gospel Assembly

REV. GENE ALLEN

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

The story of the entire Bible is "The Lord is Coming." According to the Old Testament prophecy, He came "to bear the sins of many." But in the New Testament prophecy we are informed that "Unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time, apart from sin unto salvation." (Heb. 2:3)

Both Comings of the Lord are miraculous. According to John 1:29, His first coming was as "the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." It was a miracle of obscurity and grace. His second coming spoken of in Hebrews 9:28 is to be a miracle that will display His glory. For in II Thessalonians 1:10 we read these words: "When He (Christ) shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe."

Many of the Old Testament prophecies were fulfilled in Christ's coming as the Sin-bearer of mankind, and it must not be overlooked that over half of the Old Testament prophecies that speak of the Messiah describe Him as coming in power or Ruler of all the nations.

His second coming is the great event to which the New Testament looks forward. Read John 14, 1-3; Acts 1, 9-11; Rev. 19, 11-16.

The devil has always done his best to cause indifference to the subject of Christ's second coming, even as he blinded the Jews to His first Advent.

But Jesus said: "Take heed that no man deceive you." (Matt. 24:4) False prophets Jesus said would seek to "deceive the very elect." (Matt. 24:24) Paul wrote in II Thessalonians 2:3, "Let no man deceive you by any means." Christ's second coming is referred to 318 times in the New Testament. Paul mentions it about 50 times. He mentions it in each chapter of I Thess. and II Thess. It is made an integral part of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Someone has said that Christ's second coming is:

- The Theme of the Testaments;
- The Song of the Seers;
- The Prediction of the Prophets;
- The Song of joy of the Apostles;
- The Prayer of the Saints;
- The Assurance of the Saviour;
- The Cry of the Christian;
- The Hope of the Holy;
- The Comfort of the Church;
- The Reward of the Righteous;
- The Salvation of Israel;
- The Desire of the Nations;
- The Expectation of Creation;
- The Terror of the wicked;
- And the Climax of Redemption.

New Scripture Method Available

NEW YORK — For the first time new readers of 100 languages can read God's Word for themselves, thanks to "Good News for New Readers," the American Bible Society's worldwide Scripture literacy program.

This unique program brings the Gospel to people of all ages who are just learning to read. Five levels of Scripture Literacy Selections help increase their reading ability until they can read the entire Bible or New Testament available in their language.

The Rev. Warner A. Hutchinson, general secretary of the Bible Society responsible for translation and distribution, announced that the first of the five levels of Scripture Literacy Selections now available in 100 languages has been distributed to new readers in more than 46 countries around the globe.

"Actually," said Hutchinson, "The Selections have been translated into 120 languages at the first level, but 15 are still in the production process and another five will be printed shortly. All together, these languages are spread throughout the world. More than half are Asian languages and the remainder are about equally split between Africa and the Americas."

Hutchinson stated that no one really knows how many new readers have been helped in their struggle to realize true reading ability.

"We do know, however," he said, "that significant numbers have discovered Jesus Christ while practicing their newfound skills from letters and comments from missionaries and local Bible Society and church leaders."

"What this means," concluded Hutchinson, "is that for the first time hundreds of thousands of new readers have had the opportunity to increase their reading skills and at the same time learn God's Word in their own language. Also, it means that now we can offer that same opportunity, with appropriate support from concerned Christians everywhere, to the hundreds of millions of new readers entering the world of print on every continent."

The American Bible Society is a non-profit, non-denominational organization whose only purpose is the translation, production and distribution of the Holy Scriptures, without doctrinal note or comment. The Society is supported through contributions from churches and individuals who share its purpose.

Democratic Wins Boost Catholics

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — The Democratic landslide at the polls in November was also a landslide for the Roman Catholics.

A total of 123 Catholics — a record — were elected or returned to Congress.

Two of the Catholic representatives in the 94th Congress are priests, one re-elected and the other sitting for the first time. A Catholic replaced a Catholic as governor of New York — and both of the candidates' running mates were also Catholics.

Catholics led in gubernatorial races across the country with 14 victories, while a member of the St. Joseph of Carondelet Order in Arizona became the first nun elected to a state Legislature.

In its customary analysis of the religious aspects of national elections, Christianity Today, an independent evangelical magazine, noted that the number of Catholics in Congress increased by eight and the number of Jews by 10 — to 24.

In years of Democratic sweeps the numbers of Catholics and Jews usually go up "while the Presbyterians take it on the chin," the magazine said. The fall elections were no exception, for the Presbyterians dropped 13 seats to a total of 65.

In addition to the election of Father Robert J. Cornell of De Pere, Wis., as the second priest in Congress, a United Methodist minister, Robert W. Edgar, defeated a Republican district attorney in a Philadelphia suburb in his maiden venture in politics.

Edgar, Protestant chaplain at Drexel University and former pastor of an East Falls, Pa., church, credited his pastoral experience with his ability to organize volunteer campaign workers, and he found that political speeches were not far removed from sermons.

As for Cornell, it was his third bid for election to Congress. In making the grade he defeated the incumbent, a Lutheran.

The two freshmen clergymen join three ministers who were re-elected along with Father Robert F. Drinan of Massachusetts.

They are the Rev. Andrew Young of Georgia, a Democrat, of the United Church of Christ; the Rev. John Buchanan of Alabama, a Republican Southern Baptist; and Walter Faustroy, a Democrat of Washington, D.C., and minister of the Progressive National Baptist Church.

The Rev. William H. Hudnut, an Indianapolis Republican, was swept out of office and will return to his calling as a United Presbyterian pastor.

Christianity Today found few substantial numerical changes in denominational representation in the new Congress. Here is how the figures break down among some of the major bodies: Roman Catholic, 123; Methodist, 85; Episcopal, 66; Presbyterian, 65; Baptist, 57; United Church of Christ, 26; Jewish, 24; Lutheran, 14; Unitarian-Universalist, nine; Latter-day Saints (Mormons), 10; Churches of Christ, five; Christian Science and Eastern Orthodox, four each.

Seventeen members of the new Congress list themselves merely as Protestant, while 13 are members of small bodies such as Schwenkfelder, Seventh Day Baptist, Bible Church and Evangelical Covenant. Only one belongs to the one of the oldest denominations, the Reformed Church in America, and one to the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Two Quakers are representatives.

The analysis showed only six members of Congress as claiming no religious affiliation — two Republicans and four Democrats.

The magazine emphasized that one of the big issues in church circles, the role of women, figured prominently at the polls. No women were elected to the Senate, but 18 were chosen for House seats — 14 Democrats and four Republicans, for a gain of two. Women and blacks made their biggest political strides at the state level, with women winning 750 seats in legislatures — an increase of 200. This, at least in theory, will improve chances of ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, the magazine predicted.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

McLean's girls basketball team is a classic example that happiness is not always measured by the number of games you win.

McLean, pre-season district favorite, has won 17 and lost just nine, and with four games left another 20-win season is in the offing. But there won't be any celebrating in McLean, unless the Tigerettes experience a miracle of sorts.

McLean is 7-3 in District 2-A play, while Claude is 10-0 and Memphis 9-1. Each has four games remaining in the regular season. McLean's needed miracle would be something like this:

McLean must beat Shamrock at Shamrock, Clarendon at McLean, Claude at Claude and Wellington at McLean. That would make the Tigerettes 11-3. But there's more to the miracle.

Claude must lose three of its last four games, which are against Wellington at home, Wheeler at Wheeler, McLean at home and Memphis at Memphis. Memphis would have to lose only two of its final four games — Silverton at home, Shamrock at home, Clarendon and Claude at home. Whew!

If the schools tie with 11-3 records, a tournament between the three would be held. If two tie, then a playoff game would determine the championship.

For McLean to avoid a tournament or playoff game it will have to win its remaining games and then hope Claude loses four games and Memphis three. Whew!

Like McLean Coach Joel Nelson says, "We're just gonna have to play it out. But we'd like to beat Claude at Claude to prove we can do it."

"Our two seniors I think it has hurt them. But the rest are looking forward to next year. I think they would have liked to win it for Sheri."

Sheri is senior Sheri Haynes, McLean's all-state forward who's averaging 41 points a game. The only other starting senior is Gail Terry, a 5-7 guard.

McLean, despite its not making the playoffs, will have had a successful year when the season is over. Sanford-Fritch beat Claude twice and we beat Fritch without Sheri," Nelson said. "I think the girls have played good. We got to the finals of the Amarillo tournament, and we've played teams like Canyon, Spearman, Vega, Claude and Canadian.

"Canyon had only seven at the half. We beat Sanford-Fritch and Friona, Friona's winning their two-A district."

Nelson used the examples to point out that McLean has nothing to be ashamed of, even though they didn't win district as was predicted.

"Last year, we had a disappointing year when Sheri got hurt in district. This year, I just never had been able to develop a post-guard. We're not very big. Next year, it looks good because everyone in the district loses almost all their players. I just lose two starters."

One of those starters is Sheri Haynes. She's the kind you don't need to lose.

McAdoo Stars Again As Braves Rout Cavs

By United Press International
Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, his sights set on a second straight National Basketball Association scoring title, and the Denver Nuggets, aiming for their first American Basketball Association championship, continued to dominate their respective opponents Thursday night.

McAdoo poured in 37 points, upping his NBA-leading average to 33.8 points per game on 15 of 27 field goal shooting, to lead the Braves to a 97-91 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers. McAdoo, who also grabbed 12 rebounds, hit a pair of clutch free throws with 16 seconds left after the Cavs had cut the Braves' lead to 89-91 with 9:39 showing on the clock.

The victory was the eighth in the last 10 games for Buffalo, which also received 21 points from Randy Smith. The Cavs' loss was their seventh straight.

Denver, running away from the competition in the ABA West, romped over the Spirits of St. Louis, 123-111, to stretch its best record in the pros to 41-10.

Nugget All-Star guards Ralph Simpson and Mark Calvin notched 28 points each while rookie of the year favorite Marvin Barnes hit 31 points for St. Louis. The Spirits' Freddie Lewis, who was voted the MVP Tuesday night at the All-Star game, sank a pair of free throws midway through the third quarter to become the eighth player to score 10,000 regular season points in his ABA career.

In other NBA games, New York edged Atlanta, 117-115, and Houston beat Detroit, 103-98. In the only other ABA game, San Antonio ripped Utah, 118-102.

Katex 117, Hawks 115:
New York's John Gianelli broke clear from Atlanta defenders to take a long inbounds pass from Walt Frazier and popped in a two-footer with one second left to give the Knicks their fifth straight win without a loss against the Hawks this year. The winning shot came one second after Tom Henderson tied the game for the Hawks with two seconds left on a driving layup.

Reckets 102, Pistons 89:
Forward Rudy Tomjanovich scored 30 points and Kevin Kunert grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Houston. Tomjanovich, who entered the game averaging 20 points, hit 14 of 20 shots and both of his free throws to lead all scorers. He also pulled down 10 rebounds.

Spurs 118, Stars 105:
Jim Silas drilled in 17 of his game high 35 points in the final seven minutes to help San Antonio beat Utah. With score tied at 68-68 in the third quarter, Silas and George Gervin combined for 30 of the Spurs' 34 points to put San Antonio ahead for good.

READY FOR WORK — Tom Henderson of Langston, Okla., the Dallas Cowboys' second first-round draft choice, didn't waste any time getting together with linebacker coach Jerry Tubbs at the Cowboys headquarters in Dallas. The two looked at films and went over defensive formations. Henderson is a linebacker. (UPI Photo)

Aggies Aren't Claiming Title

The Texas Aggies are off to as good a start as possible in the Southwest Conference race, owning a 3-0 mark and sharing the top spot with the Arkansas Razorbacks.

But Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf is a long way from yelling championship. He has a pretty good memory, and that memory certainly stretches back to 1966.

"We started out that season with a 7-0 record and finished second," Metcalf said. "There are a lot of tough games down the road."

Another one of those tough games comes up Saturday night in Austin where the Aggies must meet the Texas Longhorns—who are certainly due.

The defending conference champions have lost all three of their league starts, but the last two losses have been by two points each and the most recent was in overtime to TCU in Fort Worth.

"Texas has a good team and they do a lot of things well," Metcalf said. "We'll just try to put our game on the floor. We feel like our game will hold up."

In the other key conference game Saturday night Arkansas (3-0) will conclude a three-game road trip in Waco against Baylor (2-1). The Bears hope to use this game as a springboard to contention for the championship race.

Drake saw a 43-33 lead dwindle to 51-49 with 13 minutes to go in the game, but baskets by Graham and McKissick lifted Drake to a 67-53 advantage with six minutes remaining.

Freshmen Red Team Holds Off Tough Blue

Ricky Ward poured in 16 points to lead the Pampa Junior High ninth-grade Red team to a 50-34 win over the surprisingly tough P.J.H. Blue team Thursday afternoon.

Tommy Albus added eight points for the Red, which is now 6-3 in conference games. High for the Blue, 0-9, was Ricky R. Bunton with nine.

In the eighth-grade game, Kevin Musgrave and Greg Koch scored 9 and 7 points respectively to pace the Red to a 38-33 upset over the Red.

The Blue is 2-7 in district, while the Red is 3-6. High for the Red were Steve Duke with 12 and Steve Stout with 11.

Geiberger Holds Lead By 1 In Hawaiian Golf

HONOLULU (UPI) — Lanky Al Geiberger, hounded by 54 other par breakers, took a precarious one-stroke lead into the second round of the $200,000 Hawaiian Open at the rain-soaked Waialae Course.

Geiberger added a back nine 32 to his opening nine 34 for a 66 by a combination of long drives and steady putting.

Hot on his heels were six players with 675 and 48 more—including defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gene Littler and Japan's Jumbo Ozaki—who broke the 72 par for Waialae.

Geiberger gave the wet greens credit for his six birdies and no bogies on the opening day. "I was driving well," he said, "and the confidence I got from my drives helped my putting."

More of the rain that fell throughout the opening day was forecast for today. The National Weather Service said Oahu was within a "very extensive area of precipitation" which would probably continue at least through today.

Lee Trevino, a former Hawaiian Open winner, started out with a 36, but ran into trouble on the back nine where he carded a 39 for a 75.

Nicklaus said he enjoyed shooting his 68 in the opening round, but was unhappy that he let three par-five holes get away from him.

Pampa, Dons To Play On PHS Court Tonite

Until Tascosa upset Pampa Tuesday, tonight's district encounter between the Harvesters and Palo Duro could have almost been considered a "take-for-granted" affair since the Dons have won only twice this season.

But with its 60-58 loss to surprising Tascosa, Harvesters will now be fighting for survival in the first half of district play and won't likely give Palo Duro the sweat of their foreheads.

The teams square off starting at 7:45 p.m. in Harvester Fieldhouse. The game will be preceded by the junior varsity contest, which starts at 6 p.m.

In other district games tonight, Tascosa and Amarillo High play in the Amarillo Civic Center and Borger visits Caprock. Borger and Tascosa are tied for the first half lead with 2-0 records. Pampa and Amarillo are 1-1, and Palo Duro and Caprock are 0-2.

Palo Duro is 2-17 for the season and has lost district games to Borger and Tascosa. Despite the Dons' record, Pampa won't take them lightly, says Coach Robert McPherson.

"They're a good shooting ball club," McPherson said. "A very physical ball club, similar to Tascosa. They're 2-16 (sic), but Joe Michalka (coach) of Monterey told me they were the best ball club he's ever seen that's won two ball games."

"They'll come over here, and since Tascosa beat us, I'm sure that will give them a little more confidence. They'll play us a lot tougher than they normally would. I look for it to be a tough ball game. If they're hot, they'll be hard to beat."

Palo Duro has two of the finest shooters in the district — 5-9 junior Sylvester Moore and 6-1 senior Anthony Jones. Moore is second behind Joe Kerr of Borger in district scoring, averaging 20.5 points per game. For the season, Moore owns a 17-point average. Jones isn't far behind with a 12.9 district average and 12.5 season clip.

Another starter for Tom Gilley's Dons is 6-3 Wesley Roberts, and all-state junior noseguard in football. Roberts will be guarded by 6-5 post Howie Lewis, who has been Pampa's most consistent player recently. Lewis pulled down 12 rebounds and scored 19 points to lead Pampa against Tascosa and up his rebounding and scoring averages to 11.3 and 15.9 respectively.

Senior Billy Wilbon, 6-3 guard, is still the team's leading scorer, averaging 18.4 points. Wilbon has pulled down over 130 rebounds and is the team's playmaker with 100 assists.

The only other Harvester averaging in twin figures is 6-1 senior Robert Young, who is scoring at a 13.8 clip. He has 98 rebounds and is a 74 percent free throw shooter.

Also starting tonight will be 6-4 forward Nick Slaymaker (7.9 average) and 6-1 forward Richard Lane (3.1).

Also to play tonight will be sophomores Donnie Hughes (3.6) and Brian Bailey (3.6). Junior Edd Drew and senior Noel Hansen could also see action.

The Pampa Shockers are 13-3 for the season and 2-0 in district games with wins over Caprock and Tascosa.

Year's Track Schedule Begins In SWC Today

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — The first major track meet of the season in the Southwest will be conducted tonight with Texas trying to hold off Baylor and retain its Southwest Conference indoor championship.

The Longhorns face a serious challenge inside the conference for the first time in four years, and Baylor's chances to win the second conference indoor meet ever held have been aided by injuries which have hit the Texas squad.

Baylor also has one good meet behind it, having placed second in a five-team field last week at LSU.

"Baylor brought their kids back one week earlier than we did (after the mid-term break), and they look ready to go," Texas coach Cleburne Price said. "We didn't even work out from Dec. 10 to Jan. 14, so we've only had about two weeks practice."

"I really think Baylor is in the driver's seat. The way Baylor looks now, I'd take a victory by a quarter of a point."

A close race will be a significant change from last year's inaugural meet at the Fort Worth Convention Center in which the Longhorns whipped their nearest opponent — Texas A&M — by a 43-26 count.

"We lost what amounts to 91 points from our conference championship team," Price said. "Plus we had three or four players dismissed this fall for personal reasons and now we have quite a few young men injured who won't be at full strength for the meet Friday night."

Among those ailing are half miler Paul Craig, half miler Jimmy Strong, hurdler Bill Blessing, miler Reed Fisher and distance man Tim Patton.

announce their doubles team one hour before Saturday's match.

The only surprise Thursday was the selection by Contreras of Chavez over 18-year Davis Cup veteran Joaquin Loyo-Mayo, 29.

"I assume all the responsibility," said the Mexican coach. "Nobody pressured me. I preferred to play the guy who has more of a future. Joaquin has not given us the big win in the past."

Ramirez, who quit USC at the end of his sophomore year to become a tennis professional, beat Smith in two of three meetings in 1974. But the lanky Smith triumphed at La Costa, Calif., the only time the two met on concrete.

"What can you do?" said Ralston when asked about the way the draw turned out. "There's not much you can do. It comes out the way it is."

The U.S. captain selected Tanner, the No. 4-rated American by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association behind Jimmy Connors, Smith and Marty Riessen, over Dick Stockton and Bob Lut z. It will be Tanner's Davis Cup debut.

"Tanner has played exceptionally well for us in practice," Ralston said. "He's demonstrated he can play. Ralston said his decision on his doubles team would hinge on what happened today."

Smith, Ramirez Meet In Zone

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Towering Stan Smith and 21-year-old Raul Ramirez, the big guns of the American and Mexican Davis Cup tennis teams, won't have to wait.

They'll meet today in the opening singles match of the North American Zone finals on the Palm Springs Racquet Club concrete courts.

"I might as well play him right away," shrugged Ramirez, the leading rookie on the World Championship Tennis tour last year.

"Raul has to win in order for us to win," declared Pancho Contreras, Mexico's likable nonplaying captain. "It's a must."

The names of Smith, 28, and Ramirez, both former University of Southern California stars, were picked out of bowls Thursday in a draw for opening match opponents.

In the second singles confrontation, Roscoe Tanner, the talented ex-Stanford University left-hander, will face 25-year-old Roberto Chavez, the improving Mexican national singles champion.

The 6-foot-4, blonde-haired Smith and Ramirez will change opponents for Sunday's two singles matches with the mustachioed Mexican going after Tanner, a former NCAA singles finalist, in the first match. Contreras and Dennis Ralston, the U.S. Davis Cup captain, will Today is Friday, Jan. 31, the 31st day of 1975 with 334 following. The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius. American entertainers Eddie Cantor and Gary Moore were born on Jan. 31. Cantor in 1892 and Moore in 1915.

On this day in history: In 1950, President Harry Truman disclosed he had ordered development of the hydrogen bomb.

In 1958, Explorer 1, the first U.S. earth satellite, was launched from the Cape Canaveral missile test center.

In 1961, Ham, a male chimpanzee, was rocketed into space in a test of the Project Mercury capsule later to carry an American astronaut into orbit.

In 1971, with three astronauts aboard, the Apollo 14 spacecraft blasted off for the moon.

A thought for the day: U.S. novelist Christopher Morley said: "The enemies of the future are always the very recent people."

Where Are Bolshevik Boys Now?

MOSCOW (UPI) — Whatever became of Georgi Malenkov, successor to Stalin? Where now is Nikolai Bulganin, straight man to Nikita Khrushchev's top banana in the 'B and K' roadshows of the late 1950s? Is Vyacheslav Molotov still around to growl "Nyet"? What happened to Lazar Kaganovich? Anastas Mikoyan?

According to the latest information available here, they are all alive and mostly well and living in the Soviet Union.

In their 80s or nearing them, the five are among the few remaining members of the Bolshevik Old Guard, survivors of the survivors.

They came unscathed, though in some cases only just, through the last days of czarism, two world wars, the revolution, the civil war, the purges of the 20s, 30s and 40s and Stalin's murderous late-life paranoia.

Most of their revolutionary comrades are long dead, many of a bullet in the brain, as Molotov and Kaganovich particularly have reason to know.

These two have written their memoirs. There is no sign of their being published.

All five at one time stood at the pinnacle of power atop the Lenin Mausoleum, members of the tough, tightly knit group of hard-eyed men who rule the Soviet Union. All but Mikoyan left office in disgrace, demoted to jobs of

—for them — humiliating triviality, "unpersons" who today are seldom mentioned in the Soviet press and live anonymously on their pensions.

Mikoyan is entering his 80th year. His ability always to back the right horse ensured him an honored old age.

Most westerners remember him as the Groucho Marx of the Marxist system with rampant moustache and hooked nose, but there has not been much to laugh about in his life.

"Stalin held us in his hand," he once said. "Only one escape was left to us — suicide. At the end of Stalin's life, I was about to be executed."

This shrewd Arminian was at Khrushchev's side when the Soviet leader survived a power play in 1957. When Khrushchev fell in 1964, Mikoyan stayed.

Today he appears at the occasional Kremlin reception, an object of reverent awe. He still has a government office and reportedly puts in a few hours a day advising on the economy.

Malenkov, youngest of the Old Guard at 73, was Stalin's heir, which was natural considering he had been his private secretary, alter ego, hatchet man and drinking partner. But the wily Khrushchev outmaneuvered him. When Malenkov led the famed "antiparty group" in counterattack, he quickly found himself director of a hydroelectric plant in Ust-Kamenogorsk on the Chinese border, a cruelly appropriate snub for he was by profession an engineer.

He retired in 1968 and now is seen occasionally in Moscow, where he lives in an apartment on his "unpersons" pension of $390 a month.

Malenkov was stripped of his party membership — which has a significant effect on pension rights — as were Molotov, Kaganovich and Bulganin, his partners in the "coup" attempts.

It could be, however, that Molotov, at 84 the oldest of the Old Guard and conceivably the toughest of them all, is edging back into favor, since he was mentioned favorably recently in an esoteric party publication.

Molotov represented Russia to the outside world for 30 years and John Foster Dulles once described him as "the ablest foreign minister of our time."

Khrushchev, perhaps in sardonic reference to his diplomatic skills, banished Molotov to the post of ambassador to Mongolia. Then he spent a year occupying the Soviet seat at the international Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

But it all ended one gray day in 1961 when the little man with the toothbrush moustache, pincez and mirthless smile took a train back to Moscow and entered retirement with the wife. Stalin once exiled to Siberia. Now gray and fragile and said to be suffering from hypertension, he occupies the apartment one street away from the Kremlin wall where he has lived since anybody could remember.

Khrushchev apparently liked Bulganin and let him dawdle on as premier for a year after the "coup" bid, then sent him packing to the Caucasus to be chairman of a local economic council.

But the courtly Bulganin of the leonine white hair and goatee beard — a secret policeman in early Bolshevik days — lasted only a year. He retired in 1959 to a government furnished dacha near Moscow and the usual pension.

He was seen chatting happily with Khrushchev at a Kremlin New Year party in 1964, but then dropped out of sight. Western Kremlin-watchers believe he is still alive, now 80, for otherwise some reference, however oblique, would have been made to his death.

Kaganovich was known as "the iron commissar," a rough-house Jewish peasant who rose to become Stalin's political muscleman, purge-enforcer and Mr. Fix-it. Even the execution of two of his brothers during the repression of the 30s failed to shift his loyalties.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientific research of the priority enjoyed during the Apollo space project of the 1960s is needed to solve the nation's energy crisis and other problems that will arise in the next decade, according to the head of the Carnegie Institution.

Dr. Philip H. Abelson, president of the scientific research organization since 1971, said energy problems will agitate Americans for more than a decade before any meaningful sources other than oil and coal can be discovered. He said environmentalists and government bureaucracy have acted to impede scientific exploration that will develop energy resources that are alternatives to natural gas and oil.

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The stage is now set for a broad advance by mid-year reflecting a more viable economic climate which should be evident by the tail-end of the year," according to Winkler, Cantor, Pomboy & Co. But the glamors have not performed as well as the rest of the market, the firm notes, "and further pressures may be forthcoming as poor fourth-quarter results are released." It urges investors to buy into companies whose fundamentals have been overlooked in the negative market psychology of the past year.

"For the next several months, we expect to see short-term rates decline, perhaps rather sharply, in response to continuing ease on the part of the Federal Reserve and to declining credit demands," says Merrill Lynch Government Securities Inc. It predicts short-term rates will

In the next decade, the energy crisis will be joined by crises of raw materials, population and food, Abelson said, and the solutions to these problems are not immediately at hand either.

It will be found, Abelson said, that a crucial component in meeting these problems is to utilize knowledge more effectively.

He said, President Ford's proposals to rely heavily on higher prices to curb energy consumption will provide only a short term answer because price increases for oil and electric power in the past year have dampened consumer demand only slightly.

He said, too, one of the chief problems facing government is the difficulty of convincing the public the energy crisis is real. Because the oil embargo was so brief, he said, Americans did not comprehend fully how important energy is to our existence and way of life and were not sufficiently motivated to take action needed to meet the long-range problems.

"Today, what basically sets us apart from less fortunate people is the ability of the average individual to acquire and to use the equivalent of 10 kilowatts of power," he said.

However, Abelson said, the United States is "coming to the end of a joyride based on petroleum." The economy will be severely handicapped for the next five years by a decline in the nation's ability to produce oil and natural gas, he said.

The Carnegie president, a pioneer of atomic energy research, has spent more than a decade studying the processes by which oil is created in nature and various ways of extracting oil from shale.

Solar and nuclear energy hold some promise of easing the problems in the future, Abelson said, "but for at least 15 years our economy and way of life will be crucially dependent on hydrocarbons, especially oil."

For the short run, he said, the United States must increase coal production and conversion of coal into oil. He also proposes increased extraction of oil from shale, but that will require guarantees that costly oil derived from shale will not be undercut by foreign oil producers.

"President Ford is now in closer contact with Dr. (H. Guyford) Stever, the science adviser, but the scientific community has reservations concerning the effectiveness of the present arrangement. It is hoped President Ford will find ways of better utilizing the enormous scientific and technological potentials of this country," Abelson said.

FAMILY AFFAIR — Buddy Ebsen, right, is taking his children on a concert tour next month to teach them the rudiments of show business. He will also be closing the generation gap. He will appear on stage with, from left, Bonnie, 20; Kiki, 17, and son Dusty, 15.
