City Authorities Attempt To Study Murder Rate

United Press International
A UPI survey of 14 U.S. cities shows there were more or about as many murders in 1974 as in 1973, except in New York City. For the first 10 months of the year, New York counted 1,268 homicides — 119 fewer than the same period in 1973. "If we knew why the murder rate was down we'd be able to stop murders — period," New York Police Sgt. John Collins said of the figures.

Pittsburgh's 1974 murder rate was almost double last year's, while its rate of other crimes was down. Chicago broke its all-time high annual murder toll of 864 before December even began and now has recorded 920 murders. Detroit, with official 1974 homicide No. 752, also set a record. The figures allow for only one general conclusion: that murder, however odious, is only a sign of larger, more fundamental social problems. No one, however, agrees on just which problems those are. "We're not going to see the homicide rate drop until we do away with unemployment, poor housing and pistols," said Detroit police chief Philip G. Tannian. Other Detroit officials blame racial tension in the city and still others say frustration caused by auto industry problems is responsible for the slayings. In Birmingham, Ala., Cincinnati, Ohio, Jackson, Miss., and Buffalo, N.Y., officials cite problems among family members or friends as the main reason for murder. Birmingham Homicide Chief B.R. Yers said 52 of the 64 persons slain in the city this year were killed in and around homes, two were killed in schools, nine in the city's business district and one in the woods. In almost all cases, he said, the victim knew his killer.

Ford, Giscard Agree To Form Oil Policies

TROIS ISLETS, MARTINIQUE (UPI) — President Ford and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing today reversed a decade of Franco-American rivalry and agreed to work toward a unified oil policy beginning with a March meeting of both consumers and producers. At the end of a three-day summit meeting on this Caribbean island, the two leaders issued a sweeping joint communique that also included an agreement by France to pay the United States $100 million dollars to compensate for the late French President Charles De Gaulle's act of ordering U.S. forces out of France.

The agreement covered new cooperation in fields such as oil, financial matters, defense and global disarmament and security. Setting aside the bitterness of the De Gaulle era, the joint communique said, "as traditional friends and allies, the two nations share common values and goals and the two presidents expressed their determination to cooperate on this basis in efforts to solve common problems."

On energy, the communique said, the two leaders "stressed the importance of solidarity among oil-importing nations on these issues." This signaled the triumph of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's drive for a common western front against the oil producing nations. The communique also reported action on: —Gold: Ford and Giscard agreed on "closer financial cooperation" between the United States and France. And the presidents "agreed that it would be appropriate for any government which wished to do so to adopt current market prices as the basis of valuation for its gold holdings."

confrontation and who is taking advantage of whom: that is our attitude and the attitude of the French." Ford was scheduled to arrive back in Washington later today where he has a busy week on tap. Giscard capped the meeting Sunday night with a toast at a poolside dinner party hosted by Ford.

More Coal Mines Closed By Strike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Striking mine construction workers, who form a small segment of the United Mine Workers (UMW), picketed coal mines for the second week today, closing major mines and idling at least 27,000 miners in three states. Consolidation Coal Co., the country's second largest coal producer, said 6,300 of its miners were idled by construction pickets in West Virginia, Illinois and Pennsylvania. Most of the firm's closed mines were in West Virginia, where a majority of the UMW's 120,000 coal miners work and where at least 20,000 miners were idled. "We're shut down solid," said Manuel Castanon, official of UMW District 29 at Beckley, W. Va. At least 6,500 miners were idled by pickets in Pennsylv-vania, most of them for the sixth straight working day. A federal district court in Pittsburgh scheduled a hearing on antipicketing injunctions requested by mining companies. A Consolidation Coal spokesman said five of the firm's divisions were shut down in West Virginia and one in Southern Illinois. Eight of nine mines in its Pittsburgh division, which employs a total of 1,800 miners, "for some reason were not picketed and are operating," the spokesman said. Differing opinions emerged Sunday when the miners and mine construction workers, all members of the United Mine Workers, held local meetings in the coal fields to ponder further action in view of the deadlocked contract talks. Several court injunctions already have been issued against the picketing, which prevented their miners from returning to work following settlement of their strike earlier this month. The coal companies were ready to seek additional injunctions if it continued. In Kentucky, where federal court restraining orders were obtained to keep miners from honoring picket lines, construction workers belonging to UMW District 23 promised Sunday not to set up picket lines for the time being. District president Bobby Noffsinger said the 75 to 100 construction workers attending a union meeting agreed "they wouldn't picket" — at least for a while. But in Indiana County, Pa., about 300 miners belonging to 10 small locals voted to picket with the construction workers until a new pact is signed with the Association of Bituminous Contractors. Three other UMW locals in Washington County, Pa., voted to return to work but did not say they would cross picket lines by construction workers. Contract talks involving the construction workers broke down in Washington Friday when management refused changes the union's bargaining council demanded in a tentative proposal negotiated earlier last week. The 39 members of the bargaining council were dismissed and went home.

"We can't predict or prevent homicides," Miami police spokesman Doug Taggerty said. "The population has increased since last year. When it does, so does murder." The local state's attorney, Richard Gerstein, cited easy-to-get handguns and "the increasing propensity towards settling disputes by violence." Some 126 murders had been committed in San Francisco by last week at a time when other serious crimes are running 4 per cent below last year in the city. "I don't have an answer as to why," San Francisco homicide inspector Ron Schneider said. "You can't patrol against murder." Schneider said narcotics traffic is responsible for many of that city's murders — a statement echoed by police in Gary, Ind. Gary had 91 homicides by the end of November this year, compared with 68 in 1973. Police estimated 20 of this year's slayings were drug-related, even though dope traffic in the Chicago steel suburb has leveled off. But Chicago Police Superintendent James Rochford holds the economy responsible for the second city's 12.3 per cent increase in violent crimes. "My wish for Christmas," he said, "is that crime would come down."

Court Rejects Appeal From D-FW Airport

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today let stand a decision against the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, which have been trying to close Love Field to Southwest Airlines Co. The court in a brief order rejected the cities' appeal from the ruling, by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, that they should take the problem to the Texas Aeronautics Commission. The dispute arose after the cities, prodded by the Civil Aeronautics Board of the federal government, opened Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and attempted to close Love Field to commercial traffic. Southwest, a state-certified carrier, refused to move from Love to the new field, despite ordinances enacted in both cities closing the fields to certain uses. The 5th Circuit said stopping and starting points of routes are part of the state commission's route-making authority and cities cannot act to curtail it. Southwest Airlines, which serves Dallas, San Antonio and Houston with commuter flights, opened for business three years ago and has been a storybook success.

C-C Directors Have Meeting

ACCEPTS CATHOLICS
KKK Creates Political Party, Picks Candidate
STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — The Imperial Board of the Ku Klux Klan formed the "Americans for America" political party Sunday and nominated Dale Reusch of Ohio for president in 1976. "We are defending all Americans today by forming another party," said Reusch, a Ford Motor Co. employe from Lodi, Ohio. "We have had no solutions to our major problems by either the Democrats or the Republicans." The Klan selected Scott Nelson, 35, a bill collector for a Houston, Tex., utility company, as its vice-presidential nominee for the 1976 elections. Reusch, who was nominated at a secret meeting of the Klan Imperial Board Sunday, said he hoped to raise $40 million for the campaign. He said he would solicit the help of local Klan organizations across the country in securing a place on state ballots for 1976. The Klan governing board also opened its national membership to persons of the Roman Catholic faith and naturalized citizens Sunday with amendments to its constitution, Reusch said. "Catholics can now apply for membership without discrimination against their religious faith," Reusch said. "The Catholics themselves are good, Christian Americans. I believe they should have a chance to belong." Until now, he said, many state Klan organizations would not accept Catholics as members because some Klan members felt Catholics would put the Pope above the American Constitution. Reusch said persons who were not native-born Americans, but had been naturalized as American citizens, would now be eligible to apply for Klan membership. Reusch predicted a worldwide depression "sometime in mid-1975 or early 1976," and said he believed the United States would become involved in a third world war over the Middle East by the end of 1977.

Another possible filibuster may come over energy. The Senate is likely to pass and send to the House a bill to give President Ford authority he does not seek to impose gasoline rationing. Sen. James Buckley, R-C.N.Y., backed by the administration and possibly by a majority of the Senate, is likely to offer a controversial amendment to deregulate the price of newly-discovered natural gas. Federal Power Commission officials think this could triple the recently increased price. Opponents of deregulation may filibuster.

POLICE CHIEF WARNS

Taking Holiday Trip? Watch Out For Crime

By ALETHA DAVIS
"If you're planning a holiday vacation, do a little advance planning to protect your property while you're away." This warning came from J.B. Conner, chief of police in Pampa. He outlined some of the precautions individuals should take if they expect to be gone two days or two weeks.
(1) Ask neighbors to keep an eye out for anyone suspicious or unusual inside or outside your home.
(2) If they see anything, such as a flashlight beam at night or an open window, tell them to report it to the police for investigation.
(3) Leave a key with a neighbor for emergency access to the house.
(4) Stop deliveries for the time you intend to be away, and ask someone to pick up mail and newspapers. Never leave notes to delivery people.
(5) Leave lights, radio or television on to give the appearance of occupancy. (Either set them on an automatic timer or have someone turn off the lights during the day and turn them on again at night, illuminating a different area of the home each night.) Turn down the volume on telephones. Leave blinds and drapes partially open.
(6) If you're out for the evening, don't turn out all the house lights, leaving only the Christmas tree lit. This advertises that no one is home and that new items are there for the taking.
(7) Avoid telling strangers that no one is home at a neighboring house, and ask your neighbors to do the same for you.
"These basic precautions are set out to protect your property. They simply emphasize that crime is more prevalent during the Christmas season, and that the job of crime control is a combined effort of law enforcement officers and citizen participation. The objective of the crime prevention program of the Pampa police department is to eliminate the opportunity for crime. "Each individual can derive personal security from the effort he makes and from knowing that officers are as near as a telephone," Conner said.

Congress Deadlocked Over Busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House and Senate are deadlocked over school busing and it may keep the 93rd Congress in session longer than this week. The lawmakers hope to go home for Christmas Friday, but strip-mining, trade and the vice presidential nomination of Nelson Rockefeller, are among the issues that must be decided before they leave. Another "must" is an $8.6 billion supplemental money bill for a number of federal agencies. An antibusing amendment to this bill by Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., was twice approved by the House but rejected Saturday in the Senate by a 2-1 margin including the rejection of a filibuster mounted by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., by a 56-27 vote. Early Saturday, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., pounded his desk before an almost empty chamber, vowing, "If we have to stay here until the next Congress comes here on Jan. 14, we will not accept the Holt amendment." The Holt amendment says none of the $4.4 billion in the bill for elementary and secondary education grants may be used by the Health, Education and Welfare Department "to compel any school system as a condition for receiving grants and other benefits to classify teachers or students by race, religion, sex, or national origin, or to assign teachers or students to schools, classes, or courses for reasons of race, religion, sex or national origin." HEW says that would effectively throw out the 1964 Civil Rights Law, and the Senate accepted an amendment from Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., adding, "except as may be necessary to enforce nondiscriminatory civil rights provisions of federal law." The one vote needed to end the filibuster came from the assistant GOP leader, Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., an opponent of busing.

He Reconciles Divergent Worlds

By EDWARD CRAIG
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the most successful securities analysts on Wall Street is a man who apparently has been able to reconcile the best of two traditionally divergent worlds—God and mammon.

He has spent 55 of his 78 years advising stock market investors, many of them motivated solely by the desire to accumulate wealth, and almost as many years teaching Sunday School classes.

"Actually," says Lucien O. Hooper, "searchers for wealth and God aren't necessarily traveling opposite paths. People should use their money prudently, investing it wisely falls in this category. This doesn't necessarily mean they can't acknowledge dependence on a higher being."

The bespectacled, round-faced Hooper, born on a farm at Biddeford, Maine, was educated at Harvard and Boston Universities. At Harvard his teachers included Dean Gay, who helped organize the prestigious Harvard Business School, and historian Samuel Eliot Morrison. He did a brief stint in the Navy during World War I. This entire three-month career was spent at Boston Harbor, then went job hunting. His first stop was the now defunct Boston Commercial, a giveaway advertising sheet published for the hotel trade. It was partly owned by a cousin of his mother, and Hooper was hired for $15 a week, keeping tabular matter straight and wrapping the paper for mail delivery.

Later he joined the stock exchange house of A.A. Housman as "wire gossip man" in the San Francisco office. His principal tasks were to condense the news as briefly as possible for movement on the transcontinental telegraph wire and to answer inquiries.

After working with several firms, Hooper became a market letter writer for Frazier, Jelke & Co. and subsequently joined W.E. Hutton & Co. He was research director there for 33 years until he joined his present firm, Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeyer Inc., last July. He also has written a column of financial advice for Forbes Magazine for a quarter century.

Obviously, as a man approaching his ninth decade, Hooper has seen many changes in our society. When he was born there were no autos, airplanes, radios, television or supermarkets, and few telephones. But of all changes, the most radical has been in the attitude toward discipline of the young, he said. "It is not wise to spare the rod and spoil the child."

Hooper has interests that range well away from the making of money for others. He taught Sunday School from 1913 to 1968—most of the years at the United Methodist Church, Westwood, N.J., where he has lived for 48 years—mows his own lawn, enjoys working in the garden and goes fishing at vacation time. He was mayor of Westwood for a few years in the 1930s. His first wife died in 1969—their only son was killed in World War Two—and he has since remarried.

His food tastes are simple—favorites are baked beans, codfish cakes, ice cream. He is a cigar smoker and drinks only bourbon—"the stronger the better."

His leisure reading is books on American history.

For those who seek instant riches his advice is: "Don't try."

He has some suggestions for those looking for a "recipe for riches." Save a given amount monthly whether you can afford it or not... reinvest every dividend and interest check... put money into quality stocks, not "get-rich-quick" securities.

"I've been doing this with my Social Security checks since I turned 72," he said.

AMA Journal Attacks Subsidies On Tobacco

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Journal of the American Medical Association today urged federal subsidies to the tobacco industry be halted and charged Congress with spending tax money to "undercut the most productive preventive medical effort of this generation."

"Congress in using our tax money, in many ways, to subsidize increased death and disability among citizens, as well as those of the rest of the world," the magazine said in an editorial written Dr. Weldon J. Walker of the Cardiopulmonary Center of White Memorial Medical Center, Los Angeles. Walker is a member of the JAMA editorial board.

Walker said the health hazards of smoking were established ten years ago by the Surgeon General's report on smoking and health, and were re-emphasized many times since with additional hard data.

"When one stops smoking," Walker said, "the increased risk of death from coronary and peptic ulcer disease ceases immediately. The slight dip in tobacco consumption that followed the Surgeon General's report has brought a drop in deaths from both these diseases.

"This dramatic breakthrough against coronary disease apparently has resulted chiefly from a modest reduction in tobacco consumption."

Walker said the price supports provided the tobacco industry by Congress have increased each year during the past decade and have climbed 34 per cent per pound since 1964. Also, the percentage of cigarettes produced free of federal tax increased from 7.5 per cent to 9 per cent in the last decade.

Congress must re-examine its policies concerning support of the tobacco industry.

Bentsen Urges Strong Efforts For Resources

ATLANTA (UPI)—Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., D-Texas, says the United States must impose mandatory oil conservation measures to end the economic blackmail of Arab oil producing countries.

"We can't allow ourselves to be blackmailed by a handful of oil producing nations," Bentsen said Saturday night.

Bentsen, a probably presidential candidate, proposed mandatory conservation measures and stepped up efforts to develop natural resources in the United States.

"We have the ability to develop resources and we can't wait to do it," he said.

Bentsen spoke to an awards dinner sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith honoring baseball super star Henry Aaron and his wife, Billye. The Aarons won the Abe Goldstein Human Relations Award of the Atlanta Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith for their separate achievements.

He warned Americans against confusing the military objectives of the Arabs with their economic goals.

"As long as it suits their economic purposes, these oil producing countries will keep prices high," he said Saturday in Atlanta.

"Meanwhile, threats to Israel grow more menacing," the Democratic contender for presidential nomination asserted.

Bentsen praised the Aarons for using "their talents and energies to bring hope to the less fortunate."

CUTTING EXPENSES

Many Cities Feeling Squeeze Of Inflation

United Press International City governments, too, are feeling the squeeze of inflation.

A UPI survey showed that many municipalities are slashing expenses to make up for higher costs, but some have been able to get by on their current budgets.

In Cleveland more than 10 per cent of the city work force, 1,104 employees, will be laid off Jan. 1, 1975. But Finance Director Warren Riebe said Cleveland's problems are only deferred.

"This year the city has been using one-time money—the $14 million the city got for the sale of its sewer system to the regional authority. That money won't be here next year." The layoffs, he said, are expected to save the city about $16 million.

New York City is laying off or not replacing more than 8,000 workers, about 2 per cent of the city payroll. Mayor Abraham Beame said this would trim about $100 million from an estimated deficit of $230 million in 1975.

In Detroit the worst is yet to come, according to Mayor Coleman Young.

"We will have to bite the bullet in January and take the actions dictated by our best estimate of the deficit," he said.

"Right now, our guess is that the deficit will run around $20 million. That's an improvement—a short time ago we thought it would hit $50 million."

At worst, he said, it would mean layoffs and sharp cut-backs in services at the start of the year. At best, he said, it would mean reduced services and a selective freeze on filling vacant jobs.

The Austin, Tex., city council cut $3.7 million out of the 1975 budget, causing a cut of 140 jobs by attrition, out of 7,000.

Austin also closed libraries one more day a week and refused to approve $60,000 for aides for seven councilmen. However councilmen raised their salaries $10 a week to $90.

The League of Kansas Municipalities said few cities are cutting jobs, but some, like Wichita, are using federal revenue sharing funds to pay city employees such as police.

The picture is not at all bleak. No job layoffs are reported from cities in North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Wyoming, and Virginia.

New Orleans has a hiring freeze but Houston, Tex., and Columbia, S.C., are hiring in some areas and saving where they can.

"Inflation is hurting us just like it is every other big city," said Barbara Strong, aide to Houston Mayor Fred Hofheinz. "But it's just a question of degree. It's just not hurting us as much."

The League of California Cities said it knew of no layoffs there but said that since the '60s cities have been using job attrition and service reductions to save money.

At least two cities, Pittsburgh and Chicago, are spending more.

Pittsburgh Mayor Peter Flaherty submitted a budget of about $118 million for 1975, up $3.5 million, but for the fifth straight year, no tax increase is needed.

For the past five years, Pittsburgh has had a budget surplus and for 1975, a $12.7 million surplus is expected. Since 1970 Flaherty has cut the city payroll by 1,800 workers, to 5,400.

Science Today

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—One of the promising new weapons in the growing assault on cancer is the stimulation of a patient's own immune system to fight off tumor cells.

The field of immunotherapy is still in its infancy and the role it will have alongside surgery, radiation and chemicals in battling the nation's No. 2 killer is not known. But laboratory tests with animals and a few trials with humans show that manipulation of the immune system can affect the growth of cancer.

"The question now is can these techniques be refined and given broad applicability so that they will have a major effect on the treatment of variety of cancers in a clinically substantial way," said Dr. Steven A. Rosenberg, chief of the surgery branch at the National Cancer Institute.

He discussed progress of immunotherapy at a recent cancer conference in New York and compared the field with the initial airplane flight of the Wright brothers in 1903.

antituberculosis vaccine known as BCG. Another method is the immunization of the patient with his own tumor cells. A third technique is obtain a substance called transfer factor from the blood of a healthy relative in an attempt to transfer immunity to a diseased person.

There have been several promising trials of various types of immunotherapy in treating malignant moles, leukemia and bone cancer in humans.

Rosenberg said it may turn out that immunotherapy will be most effective when it is used in an attempt to eliminate residual cancer after the disease is first treated by surgery, radiation or drugs, along or in combination.

FAST FLIGHT
On Dec. 12, 1953, Maj. Charles Yeager flew a Bell X-1A jet research plane at two and one-half times the speed of sound at Edwards Air Force Base.

Their major achievement was not to get to a desired location faster or to carry mail but merely to demonstrate that it was possible in a heavier, than air machine for a human to fly. And of course this is a field that took off and 60 years later we were walking on the moon.

"Well, this is exactly where I view immunotherapy right now."

The idea now is not to develop a vaccine to prevent cancer from getting a foothold in the body because cancer causing agents necessary for the preparation of a specific vaccine have not yet been identified in humans.

Instead, the attack is focused on the general stimulation of the body's defenses against invading cancer cells. There are several techniques being evaluated to do this.

Perhaps the most common way used by researchers to boost the immune system is to administer an

Rocky's Awaiting His Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller, nearing the end of a four-month political ordeal, within a week will be within a heartbeat of the presidency—an office he vainly sought three times.

Assured of confirmation as vice president by the House when it votes later this week, Rockefeller has skillfully maneuvered himself through the laborious nomination process.

By his own description, it has been "more bruising" than any campaign he has ever engaged in, including his unsuccessful attempts for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960, 1964 and 1968.

The former New York governor was caught in the post Watergate embarrassment of having—

"This great merger of wealth and power is more than this Congress should tolerate," Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., told the House Judiciary Committee which voted 26-12 Thursday to approve the nomination.

"I find nothing in the responses of the nominee to show that he understands the new morality the country is demanding," declared Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif.

On the other side, however, Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said Rockefeller was "eminently qualified to be a heartbeat away from the presidency."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., said he voted for Rockefeller "because it has become obvious that Ford needs all the help he can get."

Rep. Henry Smith, R-N.Y., called Rockefeller "a great national resource" and said "We cannot afford not to use him."

That was also the view of two Democrats who had articulated black congresswoman from Texas, said she had grave reservations about Rockefeller but was "willing to take the risk" because she believed he would attract "high caliber" people into the administration.

HEARTBEAT AWAY

ROCKY'S AWAITING HIS CONFIRMATION

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller, nearing the end of a four-month political ordeal, within a week will be within a heartbeat of the presidency—an office he vainly sought three times.

Assured of confirmation as vice president by the House when it votes later this week, Rockefeller has skillfully maneuvered himself through the laborious nomination process.

By his own description, it has been "more bruising" than any campaign he has ever engaged in, including his unsuccessful attempts for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960, 1964 and 1968.

The former New York governor was caught in the post Watergate embarrassment of having—

"This great merger of wealth and power is more than this Congress should tolerate," Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., told the House Judiciary Committee which voted 26-12 Thursday to approve the nomination.

"I find nothing in the responses of the nominee to show that he understands the new morality the country is demanding," declared Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif.

On the other side, however, Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said Rockefeller was "eminently qualified to be a heartbeat away from the presidency."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., said he voted for Rockefeller "because it has become obvious that Ford needs all the help he can get."

Rep. Henry Smith, R-N.Y., called Rockefeller "a great national resource" and said "We cannot afford not to use him."

That was also the view of two Democrats who had articulated black congresswoman from Texas, said she had grave reservations about Rockefeller but was "willing to take the risk" because she believed he would attract "high caliber" people into the administration.

Oklahoma Holds Gambling Raids

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Statewide raids on alleged sports betting operations Sunday indicate that Oklahoma gambling could have out of state ties. Harold C. Swanson, the head of the Oklahoma branch of the FBI, said Sunday.

He said the possibilities of such interstate gambling and an interstate raid were under investigation.

The FBI today was taking an inventory of the gambling materials nabbed in massive raids in six cities and towns beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday.

At least $10,000 in cash was confiscated and one man arrested.

Search warrants based on affidavits alleging that there was a "vast network of organized gamblers" in Oklahoma were issued for the houses, apartments, one club and one restaurant, Swanson said.

Stephen Greenburg, Oklahoma City, was arrested on a warrant issued in The Village, an Oklahoma City suburb, charging him with possession of gambling paraphernalia.

The $10,000 allegedly was found in the attic of an Oklahoma City residence and was turned over to the Internal Revenue Service.

"This looks like the biggest and most successful blow against organized gambling in the history of Oklahoma," one law enforcement official said.

Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Muskogee police detectives, as well as police from The Village, assisted FBI in the raids.

VACCINATIONS DROP

Disease Epidemics Threaten Country

ATLANTA (UPI) — The onetime childhood scourges of polio, mumps, measles, rubella, diphtheria, lockjaw and whooping cough are becoming threats again because of public apathy toward immunization.

Officials of the National Center for Disease Control say some of the diseases already are on the rise in some communities.

"This is a cause for concern and if we don't do a good job in reversing some of these trends, we are going to have some problems," said Dr. John Witte, director of the CDC's immunology division.

Witte said the immunization levels among preschool-age children have been dropping at an alarming rate during the past few years, particularly polio. The immunization level against polio fell from a high of 84.1 per cent in 1963 to a low of 60.4 per cent last year, Witte said.

Fortunately, he said, there have been fewer cases of polio this year than in any year in the CDC's history despite the low level of immunization. There have been only five polio cases reported this year, compared to seven in 1973.

The immunization level against measles currently is 61.2 per cent, with rubella 55.6 per cent, mumps 34.77 per cent, and diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus 72.6 per cent, all down from last year, according to Don Stenhouse, a public health advisor in the immunology division.

The reasons for the drop, said Stenhouse, are that many young parents don't remember the one-time terror of these diseases and many doctors, because there are so few cases, are concentrating on cure rather than prevention.

Vaccines are available that will give almost 100 per cent protection against all of these diseases, and the CDC has become the coordinating office for a massive national effort to bring immunization levels up to 85-90 per cent.

Stenhouse said the campaign will concentrate on public and private health care providers and parents.

He said older children get the vaccines in public schools where they are required by law in most states, and a large part of the population, particularly men, received the vaccines through military service. Adult women, however, are a large under-immunized group, he said.

JERUSALEM POST CLAIMS

Egypt Returns To Soviet Fold

United Press International — The English language newspaper Jerusalem Post said today Israeli officials have reached the conclusion that Egypt is turning its back on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step Middle East peace negotiations and returning to the Soviet fold.

Because of this feeling, the Post said, "the prospects of a second-stage Sinai settlement between Israel and Egypt are believed in Jerusalem to be receding."

The Post said the conclusion by Israeli officials was based on three factors:

— Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy's demand that Israel halt Jewish immigration for 50 years — a move rejected by Israel as absurd.

— The planned visit to Cairo next month by Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

— The expected replenishment of the Egyptian war arsenal with new Soviet weapons following the Brezhnev visit.

"Official observers here hold-out little hope that (Egyptian President Anwar) Sadat, having at last been honored by a visit by the Soviet leadership, will spurn Soviet overtures after more than a year of lukewarm relations," the Post said.

"There probably will be no abrupt and total break with the U.S. secretary, but there will be, in the Israeli assessment, a definite narrowing of Egypt's space for independent political maneuver. Egypt will be expected to observe the

Greek Parliament To Pick President

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek parliament is expected to pick a provisional president next week to replace resigning Gen. Phaedon Gizikis, the last major holdover from seven years of military rule.

Gizikis announced his resignation from the largely ceremonial post Sunday in a prelude to a constitutional overhaul likely to increase the power of Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis.

The general, in a letter to Caramanlis, said he had remained in office for the transition from military to civilian rule but "the reason for continuing to perform the duties of president have been eliminated."

A government spokesman said Gizikis would stay on in the post until parliament elects a provisional president around the middle of next week. The interim leader would eventually give way to an elected president.

Political sources said parliament is expected to wind up work in three weeks on a new Greek constitution expanding the powers of the presidency.

The sources said Caramanlis, whose New Democracy party holds 220 of the 300 seats in parliament, wants to run for president after the legislature gives the job more muscle.

The prime minister told parliament Saturday he believes in "the sensible reinforcement of the president's authority."

Gizikis, a 57-year-old army officer, was appointed president last year by a junta of young officers led by Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides.

The military, which had ruled Greece for seven years, gave up power during the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last summer and Caramanlis returned from exile to become premier.

Caramanlis, whose party swept last month's parliamentary elections, had asked Gizikis to stay in office until Greece made a successful transition to civilian government.

"I want to express my belief that by remaining president after July 23 you offered the nation very precious service during one of the most critical times in its history," Caramanlis said in a letter to Gizikis.

Boston Schools Orders Debated

BOSTON (UPI) — After a weekend of marches and demonstrations, eight public schools were closed today as officials debated proposals to insure the safety of students in racially troubled South Boston.

About 5,000 anti-busing demonstrators rallied on Boston Common Sunday to protest U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity's order mandating the busing of students to desegregate schools.

In contrast to a tension-packed march and rally by desegregation partisans Saturday, the tenor of the anti-busing demonstration was festive.

But Mrs. Lorraine Faith, the mother of a 17-year-old South Boston High School student who was allegedly stabbed by a black student, verbalized the emotions of the flag waving, sign-toting crowd with a verbal attack on the judge.

"He seems to have more power than any dictator that ever crawled on the face of the earth," she shouted. "When my son was stabbed Rabat resolutions, which countenance no more than strictly defined military disengagements between individual Arab states and Israel."

Should this happen and the Geneva Middle East peace conference be reconvened, the newspaper said, "Government officials contemplate the prospect of Israel's having to walk out of the peace conference — a difficult and dangerous action to take and one that could only be taken if the government was sure of American support."

The newspaper Ha'aretz quoted informed sources in Washington as saying Kissinger believes that any second-stage disengagement agreement between Israel and Egypt could be maintained for no more than 15 months.

"It was also learned that Kissinger believes that most of the political conditions Israel has demanded of Egypt will be rejected by Cairo," Ha'aretz said.

Light arms fire was directed today at an Israeli patrol near the Lebanese frontier, the national radio said. It said there were no casualties among the patrol, which was near the northern Israeli town of Metulla at the time.

Today, School Superintendent William J. Leary was to present to the School Committee a set of recommendations developed at a weekend meeting attended by city officials, teachers union representatives, federal lawyers and several others.

On Saturday about 3,000 predominantly young, white demonstrators unsuccessfully attempted to break through a police barricade in order to march down Boylston Street. Six persons were arrested and a number of minor injuries were reported.

Judge Garrity's reaction was to hear more indignities upon South Boston."

AFTER PLANE CRASH

Pilot, 6 Children Trek Through Jungle Paths

LA MERCED, Peru (UPI) — Beset by bruises, cuts, hunger, cold, leeches and mosquitoes, the young pilot and six children hacked their way through the thick underbrush.

It took seven days of suffering for the plane crash survivors to reach safety, ending a week-long saga of courage and endurance in the Amazon jungle.

The drama began Dec. 7 when a single-engine plane carrying students home for the Christmas holidays crashed into the jungles of eastern Peru.

One of the students was killed in the crash. A second died three hours later. And a third died during the trip through the undergrowth.

Oscar Zehnder, the 24-year-old pilot, led the surviving students, ranging in age from nine to 16, through the jungle to a river and then down the water by raft to safety Saturday.

The students, children of German immigrant families with farms in the remote foothills of the Andes mountains, were all related to Zehnder.

"We would never have made it without him," said Herta Zehnder, 14, a cousin of the pilot. "He wouldn't give up and he wouldn't let us give up."

She said the survivors salvaged a flask of wine and two canteens of water from the plane. "We ate hearts of palm and occasionally came across edible fruits," she said.

"We lost our shoes and most of our clothes in the crash," she said. "Our arms and legs and our feet were cut by weeds, thorns and sharp leaves."

They slashed their way through the underbrush, reached the banks of a jungle river and then hailed a passing Indian boatman. He took them downstream on a raft to the village of Iscacosin.

After notifying their families, authorities flew the youngsters to La Merced, 150 miles east of Lima and the site of the only hospital in the region.

Doctors said the pilot was suffering from cracked ribs, bad cuts and severe depression. They said his 16-year-old sister, Gladys, was also badly depressed but the rest of the children were in high spirits about their adventure.

Authorities said Zehnder's fast action in dumping out the plane's gasoline probably saved the survivors from a fiery death.

Witnesses Visit Area Meetings

The Pampa Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses were among 1576 who attended a two-day convention in Amarillo over the weekend, according to Eddie Ripley, local minister.

"The program helped all in attendance to realize the importance of being the kind of person Jesus Christ is. Through discourses and practical enactments of contemporary scenes, we saw how today we can benefit from imitating Jesus Christ," Ripley said.

The main features of the convention included a baptism at which 54 were immersed and a public address on the subject, "What the Near Future Holds," given by Harold Weidner, district minister over some 300 congregations in five states.

GOP Hearing Studies Precinct Level Gripes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Republicans at the grassroots level are urged to attend party conventions but are throttled once they get there.

Republicans chose precinct chairmen in districts with high minority level populations, but these chairmen never go out and meet the voters.

These were two of the complaints voiced Saturday during a state party subcommittee hearing which was held to hear grassroots recommendations on implementing a national "positive action" program.

Carmen Aguilar, who said she was proud to be a Mexican American and a Republican too, said a woman threatened to shoot her if she held a tea on behalf of President Nixon during the 1972 campaign at Apache Courts, a low-rent area.

She said Republican precinct chairmen on the city's west side were chosen only as names and never actively got out to meet with the residents.

"Mexican-Americans are human too," she said. "What's the sense of having precinct chairmen if they're not going to canvass the area?"

Kenneth R. Hendrix, a GOP precinct chairman in San Antonio and one of the 15 persons who came to the meeting, said he went to the state convention hoping to bring up two controversial resolutions only to be stopped by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex.

"Sen. Tower comes in and lays down the law," Hendrix said. "I'm a school teacher. I nearly went broke just fighting through the state convention. They physically ran us out of there."

State Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, chairman of the subcommittee, agreed it was fruitless to encourage participation at the grassroots, only to throttle expression at the state convention.

"It's one thing to get them in, and you should guard against shutting the door on them at a higher level," Maloney said.

Convicted Rapist Freed By Panel

RUSK, Tex. (UPI) — Ten years ago Charles Roy Hefley III admitted he raped Carolyn Adams, stabbed her and drowned her two children in the Trinity River because "They were in the car and I didn't know what to do with them."

A jury ruled Hefley was insane and ordered him sent to the Rusk State Hospital. Doctors later said they believed Hefley to be sane, but juries in Fort Worth and Houston did not go along with them keeping him in the mental institution.

Last August a three judge federal panel ordered Rusk to re-examine the cases of 190 patients committed to the hospital.

A spokesman at Rusk said as a result of those re-evaluations, 16 patients, including Hefley, were released from the institution by last weekend. The spokesman said the evaluation should be completed today.

"What we do is those patients that don't have any psychosis or don't appear to be dangerous, we release them to their families and their guardians," the hospital spokesman said.

"We have discharged about two out of eight and the others we recommended continue to receive outpatient care in a community center."

Hospital officials said they expected Hefley to live near Lake Palestine.

On Nov. 3, 1960, the first national auto show opened in Madison Square Garden.

New Judiciary Article To Give Rapid Justice

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The 1975 Legislature will adopt a new judiciary article for the Texas Constitution that will "make justice move more rapidly," according to Lloyd Lochridge, president of the State Bar of Texas.

Lochridge said the state bar's proposed revision has a primary goal of creating administrative machinery governed by the supreme court, to manage the court system efficiently. Currently, independent courts in each judicial district across the state govern the state judiciary.

"It would probably reduce the number of courts that you would have to have by better equalizing the dockets," Lochridge said. "In that respect, it would make justice move more rapidly, which I think the people are interested in."

Lochridge appeared Sunday with Rep. Pike Powers, D-Beaumont, on the television program, "Capitol Gallery."

Powers said the chances are excellent the legislature will follow a state bar recommendation to submit a modernized judiciary article to the voters.

"I'm not unoptimistic for someone who has fought the battle several times and gone down to defeat on what I consider a very significant part of the state government, and that is the judiciary article of the constitution," Powers said.

Lochridge also said the state bar will recommend other proposed legislation when the legislature convenes next month. Among the bars, he said, will be ones to create a system of prepaid legal services similar to group hospitalization insurance, decriminalization of alcohol to provide for treatment rather than jail for persons arrested for being drunk, and creation of a state agency to regulate jail standards. Lochridge said, and creation of a state agency to regulate jail standards. Lochridge said.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

It is an accepted fact that the employment of deceptive tactics by the defenders can be bad business. Although the objective of trying to fool declarer is a most praiseworthy one, there is all too often the attendant risk that instead partner may wind up as the one who has been fooled.

However, situations do arise in which a defender can afford to deceive his partner because the deception figures to do no harm, and it might do a lot of good. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in the National Team of Four Championships of 1961. The East defender was Robert Reynolds, of Miami Beach, Florida.

The bidding:

 2♠ Pass 3♦ Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

North's jump-shift bid of two spades is quite understandable. He had passed originally, and he wanted to tell South that he possessed almost the equivalent of an opening bid. South's rebid of three clubs is not easily understandable, except as a "psychic" bid which had as its aim the hope that it would deter West from leading a club if South purchased the contract.

Had the game been rubber bridge, the final contract would surely have been six hearts. But, since notrump counts more than hearts, South elected to gamble out a six-notrump contract.

On West's lead of the spade ten, the deuce was played from dummy — and East, Reynolds, faked by playing the jack. South won the trick with his ace.

If you were sitting South, would you not have assumed that East's jack had been a singleton, and that, hence, West had started with an original holding of 10-9-7-6? Our declarer assumed — that at trick two he led his remaining three of spades and put up dummy's eight-spot. Reynolds took the trick with his nine, and cashed the diamond ace, for the setting trick.

Had East played "normally" to trick one — following suit with the economical seven-spot — declarer would have won the trick with his ace. He would then have cashed dummy's king and queen spades, and would have made all 13 tricks. So East's deception paid a nice dividend.

GIFT WRAP

Avoid "Bargain" packages of gift wrap paper that are short on paper. Read labels to compare costs per inch. Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, suggests,

One tablespoon of household ammonia in a quart of water makes a good window cleaner. In freezing weather, add a half cup of glycerine or alcohol to each quart to help keep glass from steaming up. Handle carefully to avoid possible damage to adjacent surfaces that are painted, lacquered or varnished.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

Once in a while we all run across something that will crack us up — send us out into orbit.

Well, if — Betsy didn't lead me to a friend who gave me about the greatest idea that I ever heard of months ago.

It's a new way to save m-o-n-e-y! That's the stuff that used to buy us something — right?

So many of us go camping, or have fireplaces and burn wood to start that lovely fire. But now that wood logs are the price of gold inlays, we often hesitate to throw another $$$ (that is a log) on the fire. What is going to take the place of that log and save those $$$?

The very newspaper that you are reading right now!

And let me tell you how. Involves ecology too!

A gentleman out in the mountains where I have a little ol' cabin has to burn a fireplace for heat, etc.

Dadgum-a-mile if I didn't go into a trance about him telling me how he got his logs for nothing, folks. He has a few friends who had this great idea.

After they read their paper, they roll it up. Then they take any metal can with the bottom and top cut out of it (think about a tuna fish or sliced pineapple can), and jam ("push thru" says Webster!) the paper through the can! This makes a metal band around the middle of the papers.

When he picks them up from his friends each week, he leaves them outside near his garage and they get wet. That is the secret of it all. If it rains, so much the better. During dry spells when he is watering the yard he sprinkles 'em.

Now let's go back to the can. After the papers are dried thoroughly, he puts can, paper and all in his fireplace. They make wonderful logs and last nearly as long as oak! And you don't have to part with your gold inlays.

Isn't that terrific?

As each fire goes out, he takes his fireplace tongs and just lifts out the cans.

The crux of it all is that the woman of the house gets rid of her cans and those newspapers at the same time. Saves on those expensive garbage bags too. Look at the space those newspapers and cans take up. I have already analyzed it.

I did learn after testing that if you would sprinkle a little detergent (commonly used for laundry) mixed with some water on the papers that you got a "back" log that will last for hours. Why I don't know. Can somebody tell me?

So if you know somebody with a can and some newspapers, why don't you ask 'em to save 'em for you? Sure saves the $$$ of burning logs.

love forevermore,
 Heloise

P.S. They sure are great to take on picnics for campfires but, most of all, those of us who need that fireplace for heat like I do a few days a year sure save money more ways than one.

Dear Heloise:

"Nylon net! I made a Christmas tablecloth of white net, decorated it with red reindeer, poinsettias with green leaves, red candles with yellow flames, all made of felt and glued on. I put a two-inch red ribbon border around the bottom.

I had a yard of net left over that fitted my mirror over the sofa. I pinned it at the corners at the top with safety pins to make it fit. Used a clear-plastic, red clothespin at the center. This forms a drape.

Now I have a place to pin my Christmas cards to show. After Christmas I'll just fold it up, cards and all, and put away for next year.

Betty Crumpton

Dear Heloise:

When making pie crust, add a few drops of food coloring to the water you mix it with, and you have a tinted pie crust.

It's pretty for the holidays.

At Christmas the children always want to open a present on Christmas Eve.

So we let them open the package with the new pajamas. Then in the morning they look so nice for all those pictures.
 Diana

International Women's Year -- 1975

COLLEGE STATION — 1975 will be International Women's Year, as proclaimed by the General Assembly of the United Nations. Dr. Jennie Kitching reported this week.

The International Women's Year offers a unique opportunity for organizations and individuals in the United States to focus attention on the advancements of women's status and the recognition of women's responsibilities and achievements. The family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System pointed out.

The goals established for the year are to promote equality between men and women in the total development effort at national, regional and international levels. Also, to recognize the importance of women's contributions to the development of friendly relations and cooperation among nations and to world peace.

Non-governmental organizations of women in several countries promoted the idea that the United Nations should designate a year for women. Years have been set aside previously for human rights, populations, and international cooperation, she said.

Observance of 1975 as International Women's Year will involve stock-taking to determine progress made on the rights and responsibilities of women, and on steps which still need to be taken.

The Year can be a staging time for new programs and ideas which would be set in motion and continue past 1975.

The Year should involve men as well as women. Men have a stake in International Women's Year, because the Year, through aiding women, will help the family, local community and the nation as a whole," Dr. Kitching said.

She pointed out that attention can be focused on women's important role in such matters of national interest as health, education, agriculture, nutrition, transportation, consumer issues, the energy crisis, housing and children. It will not be limited to women's rights and responsibilities narrowly defined.

In cooperation with the United Nations, former President Nixon proclaimed 1975 as International Women's Year for the United States. Also, the American Home Economics Association passed a resolution endorsing International Women's Year," she said.

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN

The Current Mission Study Group met Thursday, Dec. 5, at Furr's Cafeteria for their regular monthly meeting.

In the absence of their chairman, Mrs. Lula B. Owen, Miss Claudia Everly was in charge of the meeting. She reminded the ladies that the December mission action project is to send teaspoonsful of soil to North Viet Nam in an effort to hear from our men who are still listed as missing.

The group gave an offering to help obtain "new baby kits" to help in the Rio Grande River ministry. She also noted that the Pampa Nursing Center is in need of small personal gifts for the patients there.

Mrs. J.H. Tucker gave the "Call to Prayer."

The Missionary Family Overseas" was the program for study presented by Miss Melbie Bird-Richey.

Members attending were Mmes. John Vantine and Tucker and Misses Capitola Wilson, Oleta Marlin, Richie and Everly.

The study was dismissed with prayer.

PRAYER GROUP

Mrs. Owen Johnson, chairman, was in charge of the meeting when the Mission Prayer Group met Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 10 a.m. at First Baptist Church.

The "Call to Prayer" was given by Mrs. Louis Tarpley. She used small Christmas packages with names of missionaries having birthdays this date on them to emphasize the supreme gift of their life service to tell others of Christ. Mrs. J.P. Heath led the prayer for these missionaries.

The mission action chairman of this group, Mrs. S.E. Waters, reported that the group had given five health hygiene kits for their November mission action project.

Mrs. Johnson then told the group that the December mission action projects were (1) to send teaspoonsful of soil to Vietnam in an effort to receive word of our men who are still missing there, and (2) to provide "new baby kits" to help the Rio Grande River ministry.

The ladies gave an offering to assist in the purchase of these kits. Mrs. Johnson also reminded the group of the Lottie Moon Christmas offering with a church goal of $13,000.

Mrs. W.G. Harvey led a prayer for missions.

The study of the country of Bangladesh was led by Mrs.

Johnson. Members in attendance were Mmes. J.A. Hopkins, Ed Langford, C.E. McMinn, Harvey, Waters, Tarpley, Heath and Johnson.

The meeting was dismissed with sentence prayers.

STUDY GROUP

The Maxine Ray Round Table Study Group met Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 9:30 a.m. at First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Ed Anderson led the "Call to Prayer."

The chairman of the group, Mrs. George Smith, informed the ladies that the December mission action project is to help provide "new baby" kits for the Rio Grande River Ministry. The members gave a donation for this and Mrs. Onis Price was appointed to make purchases to aid in this ministry.

Mrs. Smith then reviewed the book, "They Changed My China," by Molly Wong. She related how the lives of the Christians were restricted and some of the cruelties of the "re-education" by the communists.

The closing prayer was voiced by Mrs. Hopp.

Attending were Mmes. Ross Buzzard, Anderson, Price, Smith, Hopp and Miss Claudia Everly.

LEFORS ART CLUB

The Lefors Art and Civic Club's Christmas Party was recently held in the Civic Center with husbands as guests.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Joe Watson, president, turned the program over to Mrs. Bill Allison who introduced the guest speaker, Mike Economides, from Greece who has lived in the US for the past six years.

He shared some of the traditions of his land and also Christmas customs in Greece.

He told that in the larger cities of Greece, Christmas is much the same as in the US. However, many of the people go to neighboring villages and have Christmas with their families.

He pointed out that Christmas is commercialized more in the US than in Greece and challenged the group to think more of the spiritual side of Christmas rather than the commercial side.

Members presented a bi-centennial coin to the guest speaker.

Gifts were opened by each member and guest, and games concluded the evening event.

Spanish Students Present Yule Program For Rho Eta

Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held their first December meeting in the home of Linda Aftergut.

Highlight of the evening was a Readers' Theater about Christmas in Mexico, given in English and Spanish. The program was done in three parts. The first part was about Christmas customs in Mexico, the second part was Christmas carols sung in Spanish, and the third part was a Nativity Story told in Spanish. Spanish students of Pampa Junior High performed the Readers' Theater, and were directed by Sharron Hurst and Jan Reader. Participating were Locke Carter, Doug Eubanks, Carol Sparkman, Traci Rice, Carrie Comer, Kathy White, Jennifer Laycock, Judy Bridwell, and Kim Kotara.

A regular meeting followed the program which was opened by Diane Grooters, president. The minutes were read by Jan Reader, and a treasurer's report given by Viki Hayes.

Jan Reader read a note from Betty Fuller, former member now residing in Tyler.

Hostess duties and programs were also rearranged so that new members will have more of an opportunity to participate in the meetings.

It was announced that the Christmas party would be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Grooters, 2429 Mary Ellen. Members were reminded to bring Secret Sisters gifts and gag gifts for the husbands. Diane Grooters closed the meeting with the closing ritual and Mizpah.

Hostesses for the evening were Mmes. Aftergut and Grooters, who served refreshments on a table decorated in a Chunukuh Theme.

The door prize, a Christmas candy wreath, was won by Nancy Sowers.

Members present at the meeting were Linda Aftergut, Joyce Barrett, Debbie Callison, Jenny Dorman, Diane Grooters, Viki Hayes, Ramona Houseman, Sharron Hurst, Lisa Maddux, Carolyn Maxey, Marilyn Mitchell, Jan Morris, Jan Reader, Pat Rich, Clara Mae Sailor, Nancy Sowers, and Lucy York.

Travis Choir Students Give PTA Yule Program

"A Gift for Santa," a three act operetta, was presented by William B. Travis choir at the recently held meeting of the local PTA unit.

The annual Christmas program was directed by Mrs. Billy Watt, director of music at Travis school.

Prior to the program, presented by fifth and sixth grade students, Mrs. David Hutto, president, presided at the general PTA session.

Mrs. Bob Morris' Den 1, Pack 198 presented the Flag Ceremony, using new flags the PTA unit purchased with PTA project funds.

The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor of Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, gave the invocation.

Mrs. Gabe Crossman stated the PTA will sponsor a divisional Arts and Literature contest in January and the winning works of art will be judged on state level.

Mrs. Hutto announced the organization needs an old pick-up shell, which PTA members will paint and transform into a firetruck to be placed on the children's playground.

The door prize, baked by Mrs. Charlene Cook, was won by Mrs. Myrtle Laflin, a first grade teacher at Travis.

Mrs. Faye Watson, sixth grade teacher, won the room count, which was conducted by Coach John Michie.

Following the program, the hospitality committee hosted a reception in the school cafeteria.

A seven-state tour for $320

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

What travel agency could offer a 14-day tour for two through seven states for $320? The answer is zuch, or none. But Paul V. Tomosky, of Vestal, N.Y., near Binghamton, and his 10-year-old son, Calvin, traveled 5,200 miles from New York to Colorado and back again on a German-made motorcycle. It cost them only $320.

During the two-week tour the Tomoskys encountered heat, wind and traffic. They estimate about 10 days of the trip was spent riding the motorcycle.

In Golden, Colo., the Tomoskys visited a friend and inspected the narrow-gauge railroads that served the once fabulously rich Colorado silver mines.

Before they left Vestal, Calvin spent long hours doing extra homework so he could leave his fourth-grade class for a couple of weeks.

"Calvin's teacher was willing to allow him to leave school because she felt the trip would be educational," Tomosky explains. "And it certainly was."

Aside from the historic railroad at Golden, Calvin saw, among other things, the Indian ruins of Mesa Verde, near the New Mexico border, and much of the wild mountain country that makes Colorado so popular as a tourist state.

Tomosky began riding motorcycles when he was in his early teens, has owned six of them and rides one to work every day at the nearby International Business Machines (IBM) plant.

To save money, the Tomoskys slept in private camp areas or in national forests during the cross-country foray. They spent only $50 for gasoline. The other $270 went for food and recreation.

They encountered favorable riding weather during most of the journey, except for the 100-degree temperatures on the plains of Kansas. There the searing heat forced the Tomoskys to rinse their riding helmets in water to create a sort of on-the-road air conditioning system.

By averaging about 525 miles a day, they had four days left in which to visit and sight-see.

Calvin, who rode behind his dad all the way, says he enjoyed the entire trip but wouldn't want to repeat it soon "because my hind end started hurting me."

The same journey by auto would have run into the hundreds of dollars for fuel alone at today's prices. And by the time the Tomoskys had added night lodgings and restaurant food for at least 10 of the 14 days, the tab would have climbed to a level beyond the reach of most father-and-son teams.

Explaining Growth Of Cataracts

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I was in the city recently I had my eyes tested after not having had them examined since 1967. This doctor was very abrupt. He told me I didn't need to change glasses as I had cataracts starting in both eyes. He didn't say anything about treatment, but just dismissed me.

I am a widow, 68, and live alone, and dread the thought of going blind, as I love to read.

You are pretty much correct in your understanding of cataracts. There is almost nothing to do in the way of treatment except to remove them surgically. In a few cases, medications to dilate the pupils can help temporarily.

This does not affect the growth of the cataracts, but can be helpful by admitting more light if the dilation exposes more of the lens through which light can pass. This depends on whether the cataracts start in the center of the lens leaving the edges clear for a time, or whether the entire lens is cloudy.

So a few patients may be helped a little that way, and only temporarily. In the final analysis, removal of the lenses (the cataracts) is necessary.

But I would urge you not to be too upset by fears of becoming blind. For one thing, cataracts do not progress at the same rate in all people. In some they progress quite slowly.

For another, it is quite common for them to progress differently from one eye to the other, so one eye may continue to give you pretty good service while the cataract is being removed from the other eye, and a lens fitted to it to restore vision.

The idea of having to wait until a cataract becomes "ripe" is not correct, although such references are often heard. Many eye surgeons prefer to wait until a cataract is pretty well developed before removing it, but in actual fact a cataract can be removed at any stage of development.

Earlier removal is sometimes done with patients who need particularly good vision for close work — a watchmaker being an example.

Anyway, before you upset yourself too much, I suggest that you wait and see how rapidly your cataracts are developing. Some folks have them for years and still see well enough so they don't need surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little daughter's nose bleeds all the time, at bedtime while she sleeps, when she plays. It bleeds two or three times a week. It happened when she was 2 and now she is 5.

I have two other children and their noses never bleed. Sometimes it bleeds and won't stop for 15 or 20 minutes. Is there anything wrong with her nose? — G.E.

Obviously there's something wrong with her nose. Maybe she's a nose picker; possibly there's a chronic ulcer that needs cauterizing, maybe some other flaw. After three years, it's high time to have your doctor examine her nose.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is five months old and now I find I am pregnant again. I've read that such a short time between pregnancies can prove harmful to both the mother and unborn fetus, and that the child will be slower in his development. Is there any truth to this? — Mrs. S.B.

No harm to either mother or child except that it's rough going for mama to have two little ones to care for.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. Pollution claims 100th Japanese

By SUMI OKUMA
Kyodo —
Copley News Service

TOKYO — After 18 years of struggling, Kumiko Matsunaga, 23, died of acute pneumonia recently — the 100th victim of Japan's first century of pollution.

She suffered from "Minamata-kyo" — the Japanese name for a special poisoning caused by accumulation of organic mercury in the human body through ingestion of mercury-contaminated marine products.

Kumiko had really lived only five years: she lost her hearing, voice and ability to move just before her sixth birthday in 1956.

She and others in Minamata, on Japan's southernmost island of Kyushu, had eaten fish and shellfish contaminated by effluents from the Minamata factory of the Japan Nitro-Fertilizer Co. — Chisso Co. The company was found responsible in court for discharging huge amounts of raw mercury into Minamata Bay.

The strange phenomenon of "dancing cats" first indicated to increasingly frightened Minamata citizens that something was terribly wrong with their environment.

In the late 1940s, local fishermen's wives noticed that their cats — which partook of the same food their owners did — one by one began staggering while walking, then running and jumping in circles, eventually throwing themselves blindly about and falling dead in a shaking, frothing series of convulsions.

When local medical people finally correctly diagnosed the disease as mercury poisoning in 1953, mortality was 40 per cent among victims. More than 900 cases have been recognized since, with scores of patients being recognized monthly and their number expected to increase.

Minamata disease begins with a sensation of paralysis at the ends of the limbs and around the mouth.

After one to three weeks, this is followed by concentric contraction of vision, loss of hearing, appearance of speech defects, erratic walking and motion, shivering and mental disturbance.

Japan's history of pollution, of which Minamata disease is one example, is closely tied to a national policy in effect since 1868 of industrial progress at any price.

Japan's initial industrial step was the gas industry in 1872, when the first gaslights went on in Yokohama.

Residual tar, a by-product of the industry, became a problem when the responsible company, not knowing what to do with it, simply left it exposed to run into rivers and the sea, where it killed large numbers of fish and caused large-scale protests among local fishermen.

The situation remains virtually unchanged as Japan enters its second century of industrial progress — and pollution, which is still tolerated as a "necessary evil" attendant upon industrial prosperity.

Despite more than two decades of public and governmental awareness of the source of Minamata disease, the very same mercury-based poisoning has occurred in other parts of Japan, with the only opposition being voiced by the families of victims. Because Japanese society still follows a goal of prosperity at public expense, Japanese citizens remain unwilling to learn from the pitiful experiences of pollution victims like Kumiko Matsunaga.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — The first norther to sweep into Texas this year brought with it a rash of consumer problems about antifreeze.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has received several complaints from individuals who have purchased and added "antifreeze" to their car radiators, only to discover that what they added didn't perform properly.

As most car owners know, antifreeze is added to water in a car radiator to lower the freezing point. Some types of antifreeze known as coolants are needed year-round in many late-model cars to protect not only from freezing, but from boilovers.

Without antifreeze, the plain water in a car radiator can freeze when it reaches 32 degrees, cracking the car's block as it expands and necessitating a major — and very expensive — repair job.

The Attorney General's office is the legal representative for the Texas Department of Agriculture, the state agency charged with registering and testing the antifreeze offered for sale in this State.

Agriculture Department officials tell us that this is an unusual year for antifreeze, a petroleum by-product with a base usually of either ethylene glycol or methylene glycol.

While antifreeze prices and suppliers generally are stable from year to year, many persons feel the country's current oil shortage will cause antifreeze to be in short supply. So increasing consumer demand has driven up the price of the product and many new manufacturers are entering the market to meet these demands.

Some of these new manufacturers are unaware that they must have their product tested by the Agriculture Department, pay an annual registration fee of $20, label their containers with ingredients of the mixture and a protection chart that gives the freezing points that can be obtained by using differing amounts of antifreeze.

Manufacturers who have registered antifreeze previously but who have altered their formula since the last registration must submit new samples for testing by the Department. Agriculture Department inspectors throughout the State periodically check to see that all antifreeze offered for sale meets these conditions. The Attorney General's Consumer Protection staff has received reports of some out-of-state manufacturers who have misrepresented a combination of salt water and dyes as antifreeze. Such a mixture wouldn't freeze and crack a block, but it could perhaps do even more damage to a car by corroding vital parts.

While it is not yet known if this product is being marketed in Texas, our Consumer Protection attorneys and the Agriculture Department warn that businessmen, as well as individual consumers, should be wary of itinerant antifreeze salesmen.

Businessmen approached by such salesmen should check first with the Agriculture Department to determine if the product has been properly tested and registered.

Our attorneys also suggest that consumers purchase antifreeze from reputable dealers and check to see that the label contains required information about the formula of the contents and the protection that can be obtained. If it doesn't, call this to the attention of the store manager or owner.

It's a good idea to check the protection chart on the anti freeze label each time you buy it, too, since companies have reduced the amount of the base in their product this past year, and more antifreeze will be needed to obtain the desired result.

Reports have also been received from other states of unconscionable actions regarding price gouging for antifreeze. Although prices for antifreeze generally are up in Texas due to increased demand, our attorneys have received no complaints about price gouging.

Questions about any seemingly unreasonable prices for antifreeze should be directed to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

The United States is the only industrial country in the world not on the metric system.

Liberty Bowl Tonight

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — It's Tennessee against Maryland tonight in the Liberty Bowl, but the coaches talk like it's Randy White vs. the Volunteers.

And if Bill Battle of Tennessee and Jerry Claiborne of Maryland are to be believed, the big defensive tackle might be taking unfair advantage going one-on-one.

White won the Outland Trophy as the nation's best interior lineman. He is UPI's lineman of the year. The 6-4, 250-pound tackle who bench presses 430 pounds and runs 40 yards in 4.6 seconds is a sure bet for the first round of the National Football League draft.

"He's the best I've ever seen at his position," Claiborne said of his defensive stalwart. "He's as good as anything you can write about him."

Battle was equally complimentary of White at a coaches' news conference Sunday.

"I know he is tough when you run at him, and he runs you down when you run away from him," the Tennessee coach said. "He's as good as anybody we've played against."

Despite White's imposing presence, Battle indicated his Volunteers will test the Terps' line in the annual classic at 9 p.m. EST before a sellout crowd of 50,100 at Memphis Memorial Stadium and a national television audience.

"I think a famous philosopher once said, 'you ought to dance with what brings you,'" Battle said. "There's no doubt what brings us."

What brought Tennessee, with a 6-3-2 record, to Memphis to meet the Atlantic Coast Conference champs, who finished at 83, was a victory over Southeastern Conference rival Kentucky.

(Right) Lynx fullback Kent Hargis goes down, but not before giving Bowie defenders a hard time. Spearman will take on Newton at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Wichita Falls for the state title.

Ageless Blanda Ruins Cowboys

OAKLAND (UPI) — It took a touchdown pass by amazing George Blanda to give the playoff-bound Oakland Raiders a 27-23 win over Dallas to wind up their regular season with a 12-2 mark.

The 47-year-old Blanda, playing in his 25th year of pro football, fired a touchdown pass—the first time he laid hands on the ball and added eight points with his toe as 54,480 Coliseum fans roared their approval Saturday night.

Blanda, thrust into the quarterback role briefly for the first time in two years, hit Cliff Branch for a 28-yard touchdown to give the Raiders a 24-9 third period lead.

Pampa Stops Midland In MUI Finals

WICHITA FALLS — Billy Wilbon and Robert Young each scored 18 points to lead Pampa to a thrilling 54-53 win over Midland High in the finals of the Medwestern University Invitational Saturday here.

The win gives Pampa a 10-1 season record and its second tournament championship of the season. The Harvesters won the Key City Invitational in Abilene and placed third in the Sunburst Classic in Oklahoma City.

It also marks the first time since 1971 a Pampa team has won two tournament titles. That year, Pampa won both the Top O' Texas Invitational and the Midwestern University tourney.

Pampa led, 14-13, at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind, 29-26, at the half. "The third quarter was our big quarter," said Pampa coach Robert McPherson. "We pressed the majority of the second half, and it helped turn the ball game around."

Pampa held a three-point (42-39) lead at the start of the fourth quarter and held off a Midland rally in the final eight minutes.

"It was one of our best defensive efforts of the year.

Midland was pretty physical inside. They had two real big kids, one was about 6-7 and the other 6-6 or 6-5.

"Nobody was really hot. That was our only problem, we didn't shoot well."

Making the all-tournament team from Pampa were Wilbon and post, Howie Lewis, who scored 10 points against Midland and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Prior to the championship game, Pampa edged Dallas Grady Spruce, 64-58, and Dallas W.T. White, 65-62.

In the first game, which was played Thursday, Lewis scored 19 points and Young 16. In the semifinal against White, Wilbon managed 21, followed by Lewis with 17 and Young with 15.

Young, despite his outstanding play this season, was not named to any of the three all-tournament teams.

Pampa will host tough Northwest Classen of Oklahoma City beginning at 7:45 p.m. Friday. It will be the first home game in

Darrouzett, Canadian Grab Tourney Crowns

MIA MI — Wade Robertson scored 16 points to carry upstart Darrouzett to a 45-36 win over Canadian and lead the winner to the championship of the Miami High School Invitational Basketball Tournament, which ended Saturday.

High for Canadian was Bobby Fite with 16. In the girls' championship game, Canadian, led by all-tournament forward Teresa Williams with 34 points, whipped Darrouzett, 58-49.

High for Darrouzett was Sharla McGee with 18.

Making the all-tournament boys team were Darrel Boren, Darrouzett; Fite, Canadian; Danny Gilliland, Miami; Jeff Francis, Canadian; Lonnie Hines, Canadian; Jay Strahan, Miami; Robertson, Darrouzett; Tommy Bailey, Darrouzett, and Alan Ritchey, Grace Christian of Amarillo. All Tournament coach was Barry Truelove of Darrouzett.

All-tournament forwards for the girls were Williams, Canadian; Sheri Haynes, McLean; Jeannie Greenhouse; Miami; Carol Vincent, Lefors; McGee, Darrouzett, and Kristi Berry, Canadian.

Guards were Jean Gensman, Darrouzett; Jackie Gensman, Darrouzett; Donna Keteton, Canadian; Gail Terry, McLean; Diane Baggett, Canadian, and Jana Gordon, Miami. Mike Blazer of Canadian was given the girls coaching honors.

The Cardinals, expected to finish near the bottom of their division, were the surprise of the league as they earned a playoff spot this year for the first time since 1948. And they made sure they were going out in grand style Sunday by rallying in the second half to defeat the New York Giants 26-14.

The victory sends St. Louis to NFC Central champion Minnesota Saturday for an opening round playoff game. The Washington Redskins, whose only chance for a division title was a St. Louis loss and a victory over Chicago, held up their end by crushing the Bears 42-0.

But the Redskins, who finished with the same 10-4 record as St. Louis, had to settle for the wild card berth since the Cardinals beat them twice during the season. Washington will be at Los Angeles Sunday to open the playoffs.

The Cardinals, shut out by New Orleans last week, were unable to muster any offense in the first half. Quarterback Jim Hart was St. Louis' leading rusher in the half with only eight yards, seven of them on a broken play. But they came out breathing fire in the second half, intercepted Craig Morton three times and scored all 26 points within a 12-minute span.

Hart threw touchdown passes of four yards to Mel Gray and 28 yards to Jackie Smith to cut the lead to 14-13.

Tech Cagers Bombard NM, Tournament Next

United Press International Texas Tech, after a sluggish start, looks as if it is ready to assume its expected role of Southwest Conference title challenger. Added information should come next weekend.

The Raiders (2-2) came up with a fine effort Saturday night in disposing of New Mexico, 70-50, in one of the better games played this year by a Southwest Conference team.

Next Tech must compete in the Dayton Holiday Classic where the Raiders will try to prove they can perform well on the road. The Raiders two losses this season have been to Kansas State and Vanderbilt away from home.

Two other conference clubs will take part in tournaments this week — Texas A&M (3-2) plays in the Sun Bowl Classic at El Paso and SMU (1-3) plays in the Indiana classic at Bloomington. Texas A&M can tell the Mustangs what it's like to play in Bloomington.

The Aggies, another early season choice for the league crown, took on the third-ranked Hoosiers last week and were humbled, 90-55.

The conference schedule is fairly light this week with the approach of the holiday, but the University of Houston — which lost its opening two games at home this year — will play twice more at Hoheniz Pavilion this week.

Pampa Native Not Bored By Life In Bangkok

Editor's Note — The following is the first of a series of articles on Thailand by Miss Martha Pattillo. Miss Pattillo, a 1964 graduate of Pampa High School, is the daughter of Mrs. J.C. Pattillo of Pampa and the late Mr. Pattillo. She is now managing the Asian Regional Clearing House on Population Education at the UNESCO Regional Office for Education in Asia, located in Bangkok. Previous articles by Miss Pattillo were printed in the News during the three years she was living in Paris, France, prior to being posted to Bangkok by the United Nations.

By MARTHA PATTILLO
It's hard to become bored on the way to work in Bangkok. During the fifteen minute walk to the office (which happens to begin around 7:15 a.m. as most offices start here at 7:30) I might come across any of the following sights in an already warm and crowded street:

A narrow Chinese pharmacy where one wall is lined with herbal potions and ointments in colorful paper packages and the other with aspirin, vitamin

C tablets, eyedrops, band-aids, etc., in more prosaic containers. A lady dressed in a typical short blouse and long sarong frying and selling banana fritters either small whole finger bananas or slices of any of the several varieties of larger ones available here) from a big sizzling pot set up on the street corner.

A newsstand with newspapers in Thai, Chinese and English, and German, French and Italian magazines — and the ubiquitous lottery tickets here artfully arranged in a flower pattern by the proprietress.

A noisy three-wheeled open taxi waiting for a passenger, alongside a large airconditioned Jaguar sedan with an elegantly dressed woman in the back seat and her driver in the front.

A small neighborhood supermarket which routinely carries Normandy butter, Swiss white and dark chocolate, Skippy peanut butter, Japanese instant noodle dinners, Libby canned collard greens, Dutch cheese, Saniflush and Irish whiskey, as well as any local product.

Some turbaned Indians riding by on their bicycles.

A flower market where bunches of yellow orchids are sold at $1.50 and small bouquets made up of greenery, a daisy, a rose, a lily and a sprig of cockscomb sell for five cents.

Two German businessmen in coats and ties walking past three uniformed French seamen.

Three little girls playing a favorite local game of tossing a straw ball, while their mother buys some smoked squid and some fresh eggs and eels at a cramped, fragrant shop.

A man, also sarong-clad, pedaling a cart from which he is selling short peeled sugar cane stalks to some thirsty schoolboys in uniform (required here).

People having some spicy fish soup, curry and rice in an open restaurant, the decor of which includes a television set tuned to a Thai boxing match (gripping as both hands, elbows, knees and feet are legal here), ceiling fans, an old gentleman seated by the cash register in the lotus position and pictures of the King and Queen the latter found in all public places.)

An American lady browsing happily in a shop where silk dresses may be made to order in 24 hours. An open fruit market displaying tempting mounds of young coconuts (the kind preferred here), pineapples, mangoes, papayas, Chinese cabbage, all sorts of hot peppers, New Zealand apples, watermelons, and pomejos (large green-skinned grapefruit).

A big truck (the cab decorated in a dragon motif) loaded with log logs 20 feet long and two feet in diameter.

And what makes things in Bangkok even less boring is that a walk along the same street (still warm and still crowded) at 10 p.m. on any evening could provide all of these same sights or open establishments, plus many that were not open for business early in the morning: a Mexican restaurant, a Hungarian restaurant, a pizza place, two nightclubs and three Turkish bath-massage parlors.

The Almanac

United Press International
Today is Monday, Dec. 16, the 350th day of 1974 with 15 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

English actor, playwright and composer Noel Coward was born Dec. 16, 1899.

On this day in history: In 1773, protesting the British tax on tea, some 50 American patriots disguised as Indians dumped 342 chests of tea into Boston Harbor in what history records as "The Boston Tea Party."

In 1835, one of history's worst fires swept over whole city blocks in New York City, razing 600 buildings and caused damage estimated at more than $20 million.

In 1944, the Germans launched a great counter-offensive in the Ardennes Forest of Belgium, in what was called "The Battle of the Bulge."

In 1960, 131 persons were killed when two airplanes collided over foggy New York harbor and crashed.

A thought for the day: English playwright Noel Coward said, "Certain women should be struck regularly, like gongs."

ROMMEL'S RETREAT
On Nov. 4, 1942, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel went into retreat as the Allies attacked in the African desert.

tips for consumers from your BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

With the chill of winter coming on, consumers once again are being asked to reduce their consumption of energy. Energy conservation makes sense — and it's in both the national interest and your own financial interest.

The Better Business Bureau has compiled a list of 66 ways to save energy painlessly by developing a home energy budget. Here are some of them:

Heating
Lower your thermostat to between 65 and 68 degrees during the day and to 60 degrees at night. If this is uncomfortable, turn it up one degree and put on a sweater or an extra blanket.

If you have your furnace serviced once a year it will run more efficiently and you may save about 10 percent in fuel consumption. Keep the filters clean. Fix heating duct leaks with adhesive tape or duct-sealing tape.

If your home is well insulated, you'll save on heating bills:

— Caulk and weather strip doors and windows.

— Install storm windows or tape clear plastic film to window frames and get the same effect.

— Put in six inches of insulation in your attic. If you do this yourself, remember to wear gloves, mask and protective clothing.

Hot Water
Hot water is the second biggest energy — behind heating and cooling — in your home energy bill. But you don't have to take cold showers to save here:

— Set the hot water thermostat on normal, or about 140 degrees, for greatest economy. It's a good idea to insulate the hot water tank and piping.

— Many laundry detergents perform very well in cold water. So try your next wash in cold water, using detergent designed for this temperature. And wash a full load, unless your washer has lower water level setting for partial loads.

— Use less hot water by taking showers instead of baths.

— Fix leaky faucets, especially when hot water is dripping. One drop a second wastes about 700 gallons of water a year.

— Be sure your dishwasher is full when you use it; each load uses about 14 gallons of hot water. Let your dishes air dry — after the final rinse; turn off the dishwasher and open the door. You may save as much as half the energy you use to run the dishwasher.

Cooking
When you fix meals, there's a lot you can do to save energy without eating cold sandwiches every night:

— Use pans that fully cover the heating element when cooking on top of your range. Also use a tight-fitting lid. In this way more heat enters the pot and less escapes to the surrounding air.

— Make the most of your oven heat. Try to plan all oven cooked dishes for a meal, or fill the oven with extra foods that can be reheated for later use. Turn off the oven 30 minutes before roasts are done — the remaining heat will finish the job. Don't open the door to peek — every time you do this you lose as much as a quarter of the heat.

Other Ways
Lights that are left on in unused rooms waste your money — turn them off. If you need a lot of light in a reading or work area, one large bulb is better than several smaller ones; a 100-watt bulb gives you more light than two 60-watt bulbs. Even better are fluorescent lights; a 40-watt fluorescent bulb gives more light than a 100-watt incandescent one, lasts 10 times as long, and uses less than half the energy.

Try to use your car less and depend more on carpooling, public transportation, bicycling and walking. When you do drive, keep gas mileage in mind. Regular tuneups will keep your car running efficiently.

Check tire pressure often. And drive as if you're almost out of gas. That means driving smoothly and not exceeding 55 miles an hour. Accelerate gradually and anticipate the traffic ahead so you can brake sparingly. And when you're waiting in your car, turn off the engine instead of letting it idle.

You can get a free copy of a new Better Business Bureau booklet, "Tips on Saving Energy," by sending a stamped self-addressed business-size envelope to Department E, Council of Better Business Bureaus, 1150 17th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

MONEY MATTERS

Experts spar on economy

By HELEN L. CALL
Copley News Service

Ladies and gentlemen! In this corner, wearing solid gold trunks, we have Dr. Franz Pick of the old world school of hard currencies — a onetime paymaster of the French Resistance.

And in this corner, wearing Keynesian blue-sky trunks, Gardner Ackley, a onetime chief enclilada of the president's Council of Economic Advisers in the Johnson administration.

I telephoned Dr. Pick in his New York office where he publishes "World Currency Report" which, to the annoyance of finance ministers and central bank governors, carries black market quotations and Swiss "handpayment" rates, along with the official exchange.

Dr. Pick said what he had to tell me about the financial situation ("we are bankrupt") — "you won't accept."

To get another view, I called Ackley at the University of Michigan, where he is teaching economics after a stint as ambassador to Italy. He, too, is pessimistic about the economy.

But he still is in the opposite corner from the "hard money" men like Dr. Pick. Here is a blow-by-blow account of their views, leading off with Dr. Pick.

Said he, "Within the next 12 to 18 months, we will have a banking holiday."

Ackley countered with, "I would attach a probability factor of about .005 to that. The chances of a general banking collapse are so close to zero as to be something nobody should lose sleep about."

Pick came out with, "By next year, they will close Wall Street forever!"

Ackley was cool. "Such a thing is possible. And it might not be all bad."

Pick pointed to his "constant dollar" figures, with 1940 as the base year. "What is the use of putting money into Wall Street? In terms of constant dollars, Wall Street is lower than it was in 1940."

Ackley was bored. "I don't think the stock market is all that important to our economy," he said. "It's just important to people who buy and sell stocks."

"Basically, the stock market is not a source of equity capital. Something like 1 percent is financed by new stock issues and most of those are not in the market but are private placements. The real source of equity capital is effective reinvestment of earnings."

Another Pick prediction is a 1:10 reverse split in U.S. currency, which would create what he calls a "heavy" dollar. This would substitute one new dollar for 10 old dollars.

The result of such a reduction in the sheer number of dollars, according to Pick, is that currency circulation and money supply would decline and, with a new monetary unit, America "would enjoy a few years of monetary stability."

The advantages he lists are that there would be a windfall of unexchanged bank notes (the hoards of politicians and the underworld), the federal budget eventually would balance and the balance of payments would show a surplus.

The system has been used successfully, Pick says, in Germany, 1948 (10:1), France, 1960 (100:1), Brazil, 1967 (1,000:1).

Asked his opinion of Pick's "Heavy" dollar scenario, Ackley said, "If I were a betting man, I would take whatever odds he would give on that one."

Ackley sparred, "The French did that with the franc while back. The Italians have been discussing it for 25 years and some day might do it. The only reason is to avoid having too many decimal points on currencies. The way it works, if I had 10 lira before, I get one new one for the same value. It just drops the 0 on everything."

"I see a recession continuing and deepening, relative to potential output," he said. "A year from now we still are going to have troublesome inflation up to 12 per cent. While I have no confidence in my ability or anybody else's ability to forecast prices, I do have confidence in forecasting employment and real output. Here I am fairly pessimistic.

"I see unemployment at between 6.5 and 7 per cent a year from now."
