FIGHT ADOPTION Couple Seeking To Keep Child

AURORA, Colo. (UPI) — Jake and Judy Duran say they're willing to give up the dream of a home of their own if it will help them get custody of the 5-month-old girl they have raised as their own since shortly after her birth.

The Durans, parents of a 3-year-old daughter, have been told by doctors they can have no more children because of a stillborn child Mrs. Duran gave birth to last spring. They said they planned to use all their savings to fight a plan by the Adams County Social Services Department to place the infant up for adoption.

"We don't expect to give up until somebody proves to us that we can't adopt Missy and until somebody shows us that she will get the love she needs—the love we were giving her," said Duran, a 36-year-old water treatment plant worker.

The infant girl, named "Missy" by the Durans shortly after she was given to them by a young, unwed mother last August, was taken by social workers Friday and placed in a foster home pending adoption proceedings.

Social Services Department Director George Kawamura said he sympathized with the Durans but there were rules and regulations which had to be followed.

"No matter what our feelings or emotions are, we aren't able to condone an illegal situation," Kawamura said. "Just to pick someone off the street or out of your apartment building is not the legally correct way to give up a child."

The child's real mother, Frances Carrasco, 24, said she gave up her daughter because she was no longer able to care for her. She said she would ask authorities to let "the Durans keep the child."

"I will tell the judge that the Durans can have my daughter," Miss Carrasco said. "She had a beautiful life there."

But District Judge James Delaney, who signed the order giving the department temporary custody of Missy, said there was little chance the Durans would be chosen as the child's adoptive parents.

"The accident of them taking the child over when the mother wanted to give it up wouldn't give them an inside track," the judge said. "They will have to get in line along with everyone else. Having the child for four months would not get them any special preference."

BALKS AT RANSOM Nicaragua To Free Prisoners

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua has agreed to free a group of political prisoners in exchange for 13 prominent hostages, but has balked at paying a $5 million ransom demanded by leftist guerrillas.

The guerrillas threatened to kill their hostages one by one starting at 11 a.m. New Year's Day unless the government pays the full ransom and frees the prisoners.

Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza agreed to fly the prisoners to Cuba, but offered only $1 million in ransom. "There are not that many dollars in all the banks in Nicaragua," a spokesman for Somoza said.

Somoza met with aides at his home today to work out details of the exchange.

The drama began Friday night when the leftists burst into a suburban Managua home during a party for U.S. Ambassador Turner Shelton, who had left minutes earlier.

Four persons were killed in the takeover, including the party's host, Jose Maria Castillo, a wealthy businessman and former agriculture minister.

"My brother was killed when he ran to get a carbine and tried to defend himself," Castillo's brother told newsmen.

The guerrillas, their faces covered by stockings and gas masks, freed more than a dozen hostages, Saturday and five women Sunday, including the wife of the Chilean ambassador. They kept her husband, Gen. Alfonso Denecken Diaz, captive.

The women, still wearing evening gowns, were freed after Roman Catholic Archbishop Miguel Ovando Bravo entered the concrete and stucco house to negotiate with the kidnapers.

Among the Nicaraguan hostages were Foreign Minister Miguel Alejandro Montiel; Guillermo Lang, consul in New York and ambassador to the United Nations; and Luis Valle, mayor of Managua.

The American Embassy identified one of the hostages as David B. Carpenter, a Rockville, Md., businessman and Castillo's son-in-law.

The kidnapers had demanded $5 million in $5, $10 and $20 bills. The government made the counter offer of $1 million. The newspaper Novedades said the ransom money was being flown in from the United States.

Cuba, negotiating through the Spanish Embassy, agreed to give refuge to the kidnapers and their convicted comrades. Nicaragua does not have diplomatic relations with Cuba.

A Nicaraguan jetliner waited at Managua Airport to take the hostages.

Top Security Prisoners End Uprising In Ireland

DUBLIN (UPI) — The rebel prisoners dropped their sticks, bottles and stones without a fight, but sang out songs as they marched unbowed to their cells.

The inmates ended a five-hour uprising at Ireland's top security prison Sunday night, releasing 16 captive guards when more than 100 riot police stormed a barricaded cellblock.

Police said the 140 rebels — all members of the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army — went on a rampage to press for improved conditions at Portlaoise Prison, 50 miles south of Dublin.

Authorities said nobody was hurt in the brief uprising, but the rebel inmates extensively damaged one of the jail's wings.

Police said the prisoners began the rebellion during the afternoon, smashing furniture, ripping down lighting fixtures and breaking doors to barricade their cellblock.

The unarmed prisoners overpowered the 16 guards in the cellblock, but did not try to escape. They used broken furniture and bedding to block off metal staircases on the first floor of the four-story block.

Prison guards made one attempt to storm the block, but were turned back by a hail of stones, bottles and paint cans. Authorities then ordered 600 army troops and riot police to ring the block.

The inmates issued demands for better educational and medical facilities, more food parcels from relatives and an improved parole system. Prison officials agreed to consider the demands.

Authorities then brought in mobile arc lights to illuminate the pink, green and blue walls of the blockaded prison wing during the "siege." The smashed lights inside had left the block in darkness.

Controversy Surrounding Food Profits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The food industry says its profits can be measured in pennies. Congressional investigators disagree. The Agriculture Department says more of those pennies will be coming in next year because food prices are going up.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz predicted food prices would rise between 7 and 8 per cent next year, about half the 1974 rate. He predicted sugar price increases would be over, but pork, poultry and eggs will cost more in 1975.

In an interview with U.S. News and World Report, Butz said the farmer gets only 40 cents of a dollar spent while retailers and processors get 60 per cent.

Food profits were the subject of a staff study by Congress' Joint Economic Committee, released Sunday. It found the industry's profits are neither spectacular nor poor, compared to others.

This is a controversial finding. Supermarket executives, unhappy to get that "middleman" tag and the blame for inflation, have taken pains to portray their profits as small. If they made nothing, the executives say, food prices would barely drop.

Supermarkets usually state their profits as a percentage of sales. The report said this method of book-keeping seeks to cloud the issues and obscure the industry's true performance.

The study proposes a different yardstick, one which can make profits appear higher.

Using information filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the committee staff found supermarket profits, as a percentage of equity, ranged from 20.22 per cent for Lucky Stores to 2.51 per cent for Allied Supermarkets in the third quarter of 1974.

Of 18 supermarket chains, 10 showed double-digit profit percentages. Two showed losses.

Safeway Stores Inc., No. 1 in terms of sales, had a 19.56 per cent profit that quarter. A&P, the second largest, had a 3.21 per cent profit.

The supermarket industry says that is an unfair comparison. A supermarket in a rented store, the industry says, requires relatively little investment compared to a steel mill, so profit as a percentage of investment is bound to be high.

W. S. Mitchell, Safeway president, preferred to measure profits against sales when the profit picture is improving for the grocer in 1974 and it now looks as though he will earn, on the average, perhaps nine-tenths of 1 per cent per dollar of sales.

The word "bachelor" comes from the Gaelic word for shepherd.

Resignation Top Story

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's resignation from the United States presidency was the almost unanimous choice as the Top story of 1974 in the annual poll of American editors by United Press International.

There were a few scattered first place votes for the continuing story of the economy but almost all of the more than 300 editors who voted selected Nixon's resignation Aug. 8 as the top headline story of the year.

President Gerald R. Ford's pardon of Nixon was the second choice in the balloting.

The economic story was third.

Ford's succession to the presidency, his nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president, the Watergate conspiracy trial and Nixon's hospitalization for phlebitis all finished in the top 10.

In separate voting, the editors chose Nixon's resignation as the story with the most long-range significance, with the economic story second. The energy shortage was third.

The results of the 1974 balloting:

Headline Value
1. Nixon's resignation.

2. Ford's pardon of Nixon.
3. The economy.
4. Ford becomes president.
5. The energy crisis.
6. The Watergate trial.
7. Kidnapings, including Patricia Hearst.
8. Rockefeller's nomination as vice president.
9. U.S. politics, off-year elections.
10. Nixon hospitalization.

Television Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stations of the Public Broadcasting Service will begin national telecasting of a new 13-part series, "The Ascent of Man," on Jan. 7. The hour-long programs, created by the late Dr. Jacob Bronowski, author and scientist, deals with mankind's scientific and cultural history. Another import from England — what else? PBS would be out of business without British products.

Gene Kelly is directing his first movie for television, "Woman of the Year," destined for two-hour presentation on CBS. It is based on that 1942 MGM movie starring Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn. Why don't they just re-run the movie on CBS? But, then, they've done that several times.

Jan. 23 at 9 p.m. is the spot for the CBS airing of "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom," an original video drama of two hours' length starring Maureen Stapleton and Charles Durning. I don't know how good this Jerome Kass script is, but you owe it to yourself to tune in Miss Stapleton, one of the theater's finest actresses who isn't seen very often in anything but a stage play.

MONROVIA, Ca. — The head of an international relief agency today called on the nation's restaurants, hotels and major passenger carriers to help feed the world's starving millions.

Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham of World Vision International feels that restaurants could easily save food and cut waste by limiting the size of food portions they serve. The president of the Christian humanitarian agency stated that such action would help create larger food surpluses for overseas aid. It would also strike a significant blow against inflation here, he said.

"Food portions served in most restaurants far exceed the quantity we need," said Mooneyham. "The amount of uneaten food we send back to restaurant kitchens could feed millions of hungry people."

"It is not only wasteful, but sinful," declared the evangelist and humanitarian who champions the cause of those in the "Fourth World." He uses that term to refer to the one billion people "who cannot speak for themselves and who are starving and dying at a rate of more than 10,000 a day."

For those restaurateurs who feel "obligated" to serve the he-man portions that only an overweight American can consume, Mooneyham had another suggestion.

"I think they could at least give their patrons the opportunity to choose between a 'regular' and an 'adequate' portion, just as some do for children," he said. "In face, the smaller portion many restaurants make available for children would be adequate for many adults."

Mooneyham claims that the meals served by airlines are also excessive. He recalled that on a recent six-hour cross-country flight, tourist-class passengers were offered a continental breakfast, a full course luncheon, assorted beverages and then, finally, sandwiches.

He points out that the average American consumes more than 3200 calories daily while those in the "Fourth World" are trying to exist on less than 1000 calories a day. (The minimum subsistence level, according to the U.N., is 1000 calories.)

Together with U.S. Senator Mark O. Hatfield, Mooneyham recently hosted a hunger-luncheon in the nation's capitol to give government officials, journalists and other guests an idea of what those in the "Fourth World" eat. The dignitaries each received a half-dollar-sized piece of millet, a small boiled potato and a quarter of a small onion. The meal totaled 67 calories.

The hunger luncheon also marked the beginning of Project FAST (Fight Against Starvation Today), a major World Vision program to raise $20 million for famine relief and food-related development programs. Hatfield is serving as national chairman.

Pittsburgh, Minnesota In Super Bowl

Sports Page

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — It wasn't exactly championship caliber football but the Minnesota Vikings are back in the Super Bowl for the second straight year.

They beat the Los Angeles Rams, 14-10, Sunday for the National Conference title in a comedy of errors and will meet the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers, who dumped heavily favored Oakland, 24-13, in the AFC title game for the Super Bowl.

The Rams-Vikings game was filled with fumbles, interceptions, dropped balls and costly penalties and in the end, it was that old standby, Minnesota's Purple Gang defense, that saved the day.

Harold Jackson to the Viking two. John Cappelletti drove to the one and then the complex of the game changed. First guard Tom Mack jumped offside, drawing a five-yard penalty, and then Jackie Wallace and Wally Hilgenberg combined for the biggest play of the season for the Vikings.

to Osborn. Dave is not as good as last year—he's better. He's playing the best football he's ever played."

Several of the Rams were also seething about a penalty that wasn't called, a 12th man they insisted was on the field when Harris was dumped for one of his crucial losses.

OAKLAND (UPI) — Nothing could ruffle the patient, methodical Pittsburgh Steelers, and that's why they're on the way to the Super Bowl today for the first time in their long losing history.

The Steelers, striving for team identification season long, converted a pair of pass interceptions into the points they needed in the fourth quarter Sunday for a 24-13 victory over the Oakland Raiders and a Jan. 12 matchup against the Minnesota Vikings at New Orleans in Super Bowl IX.

good football team because we beat a damn good football team." Greene and linemates L.C. Greenwood, Ernie Holmes and Dwight White combined to hold the Raiders to only 29 rushing yards.

Hunter Might Pick By NYD

AHOSKIE, N.C. (UPI) — A list of "eight good offers" for the services of righthander Jim "Catfish" Hunter will be trimmed today and Hunter may be able to decide by New Year's day what club he'll choose to sign with and end his status as a free agent.

Flythe said several teams he declined to name would send representatives for the final session and "those others will be standing by" the telephone.

But, said the attorney, the decision could take longer if the 28-year-old Cy Young Award winner wants to visit some of the cities on his list and compare facilities and living conditions.

Announcement of which team has won the bidding war, which broke out Dec. 14 when Hunter was ruled a free agent by an arbitration board, will probably be made by the club, Flythe said.

As many as 18 teams submitted offers, five dropped out of the bidding and the San Francisco Giants did not contact Hunter.

Vega brought its season record to 18 - 1 with the victory.

Dodge ruled Stallworth had stepped out of bounds when he came down with the ball but television replay showed clearly he was well within the out-of-bounds marker and the score should have been allowed.

Coastal Tigers' Terry Bradshaw were the only players who carried or threw the ball from scrimmage in an iron-man performance for all three.

The Raiders drew first blood in Sunday's showdown as George Blanda, who may finally call it a career at 47, booted a 40-yard field goal.

Now, while the Raiders have the winter and spring ahead to think about next year the Steelers start gathering themselves together to get ready for the Vikings, who won the NFC title with a 14-10 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

United Press International For fans undaunted by Saturday's outpouring of mediocrity, college football's glut of post-season "classics" continues tonight with Texas meeting Auburn in the Gator Bowl.

Challenging the Texas attack will be Auburn's superb defensive unit, which keyed the War Eagles' success this season.

Bucks In Last Place But Only 4½ Behind

United Press International The most irrelevant statistic in the National Basketball Association is that the Milwaukee Bucks are in last place in the Midwest Division.

What is relevant is that the Bucks are only 4½ games out of first place—closer to first place than the second-place teams in the Central and Pacific Divisions.

Ford Believes There's 'High Likelihood' Of Middle East War

Vail, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford firmly believes there is a "high likelihood of war in the Middle East" unless the United States can get Israel and the Arabs to negotiate further military disengagements.

Ford would have second thoughts about seeking the presidency in 1976 should there be some "personal family tragedy," such as a recurrence of the cancer that forced his wife Betty to undergo breast surgery.

In an exclusive year-end interview with UPI, the President also foresaw an economic upturn in the last half of 1975, ruled out wage-price controls as the "worst remedy" for inflation and said his priorities now have a "slight tilt" toward reversing the recession.

He declined to say whether he would propose a tax cut, although he is under strong pressure to do so. But he said he will propose "very strong measures" to the heavily Democratic 94th Congress to pull the economy out of its slump and curtail oil consumption.

"The public cooperation effort (to save oil) has not achieved all we feel is necessary," Ford said. "So there will be stronger measures."

The President relaxed and casually dressed in grey plaid slacks and a white cable knit sweater over a grey shirt, calmly inventoried the nation's problems in front of a crackling fire in the recreation room of his borrowed winter vacation chalet.

Sitting in an easy chair—and finally succumbing to the temptation to prop his feet on the coffee table—Ford appeared to enjoy fielding questions although refusing to be pinned down in areas he considered too sensitive or premature.

The President: —Said Housing Secretary James T. Lynn would be his new budget director, replacing Roy Ash, who is returning to private life. Ford also said Edward Levi, the 63-year-old president of the University of Chicago, would make "an outstanding attorney general" and left no doubt he would nominate him despite conservative criticism.

—Said there will be further changes in the Nixon holdover cabinet. While refusing to get into a "numbers game," Ford noted that "some people have been there a long, long time... I think they all worked hard in a tough time."

—Said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was "a very indispensable man for the country" and indicated he had changed his mind about getting rid of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger. He said Schlesinger was doing a good job in a tough spot.

—Stood by his pardon of his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon, saying: "I think I did it at the right time and did it for the right reasons." He conceded Nixon did not tell all about his Watergate role, but said acceptance of the pardon can be interpreted as a confession.

—Refused to go into specifics, but said next year's federal deficit will "be larger than I would like." He blamed inflation, unexpected domestic and international demands and "the fact that Congress forced us to spend more money than we anticipated."

The President's warning about the possibility of Middle East war came when he was asked about a columnist's report that Ford believed renewed fighting could break out in the area in six months.

"I firmly believe, unless there is some movement on a step-by-step basis (toward) peace in the Middle East, there's a high likelihood of war," he said.

Asked what he planned to do about it, Ford replied: "Keep on working, trying to get Israelis and Arabs to expand the disengagement efforts that were successful in 1973 and 1974, to broaden the agreements (between) the Israelis and the Arab nations. If we keep working on it, and get some success, I think we can prevent another bloody conflict."

Declaring he was encouraged despite rising tensions in the area, Ford said: "I think all parties recognize another war would be a real tragedy, both in lives lost and the financial cost. I think its consequences could be very serious."

The President said it would be "inappropriate" to comment on recurring reports there is a National Security Council contingency plan for the United States to take over some Arab oil fields—or help Israel to do so—if there is another embargo.

Ford rejected charges, including some by members of his own party, that he had failed to display leadership in the current critical period. He said: "We do have very serious economic problems. We have had serious decisions to make in foreign policy. Anybody who doesn't agree with you has a tendency to say, 'You don't display leadership.' I think we have, definitely, in the field of foreign policy. I think we have shown initiatives in domestic policy."

"Certain circumstances overtook us and Congress didn't act on the main portions of our program. So we're in the process right now of final evaluation of what we should do in the area of energy, what we should recommend in the field of the economy. Those decisions will be made, and I think they will be very forward looking, they will be adapted to the times."

"I just hope that when they are finalized, and made available to the Congress and the public, they'll be supported."

Ford sometimes puffed on his pipe. But most of the time he simply held it in his hand, relighting it occasionally and then letting it go out. He frequently began an answer with hearty laughter, as though indicating he knew there were pitfalls to be avoided.

He made clear he felt he had taken in stride his first months in the presidency with its awesome responsibilities. He said he loved and enjoyed it.

"I think I'm more enthusiastic about it now than I was before," Ford said.

"It's the challenge of some new problem, trying to study it, make an honest decision, working with people in solving the problems. I get up with the same real enthusiasm for this job as I did with the Congress in the 25-plus years I was there."

He confessed decision making was the "lonely" part of the job. When you are buffeted by conflicting advice on whether to sign or veto a bill, he said, "you realize that you are the only one that has to make the decision."

Although he promised "compromise and conciliation" in his first address to Congress, Ford has used his veto power more than any other president in a comparable period. Apparently he will continue to do so when his "integrity" is at stake.

"I don't think I should base my decisions on whether to veto or not veto on whether the veto will be upheld," he said. "I think that's an abdication of prerogatives—and responsibilities of the President. If he thinks legislation is wrong, he should veto it."

"I think the presidency loses its integrity if you make those decisions on vetos on whether Congress will sustain or override."

He explained that as House Republican leader he sometimes had to bend to win passage of legislation. "But I'm in a different job now," he said.

Reminded that critics say he has a stubborn streak and sometimes puts his party above the nation, the President said:

"I strongly disagree with that. I think that if you believe yourself to be right, philosophically or otherwise—if you compromise, you lose your integrity. I don't think that's in the country's best interest, either."

"So it's a fine dividing line between having principles and having responsible compromise and just being a political enunch. And I don't think I ever want to stoop to that position."

Would Ford change his mind about seeking the presidency in his own right in 1976 if there were a recurrence of his wife's illness?

"Well, certainly any personal tragedy in her case—personal family tragedy would have an impact. But we don't foresee it. There is no evidence from her doctor, or any others associated with her case, that she has any substantive fears remaining."

"So you're going to forge ahead" in the pursuit of four more years in the White House?

"That's right," Ford said with a smile.

The President said he expects the country to be out of its economic slump by the time he hits the campaign trail.

"I think every expert, liberal and conservative, in the field of economics, seems to indicate that by the third or fourth quarters of 1975 we'll be on our way," he said.

Asked whether his economic policy would aim at recession or inflation, Ford said: "I think it probably has a slight tilt toward the problems of the recession right now, but you certainly can't ignore the serious danger of recurrence of high inflation."

"So what you have to do is give the right medicine for the more serious (problem) without undercutting the efforts you made in the field in the past."

Ford adamantly opposed a gasoline tax increase, saying those who are pushing for it are engaged in "one of the most amusing propaganda efforts I've seen." He said the word reaching him from Congress "is that they're not going to pass it. Don't send it up. It'll tear things up."

He said gasoline supplies were adequate for now and he saw no need for rationing.

The President disagreed with those who consider him a babe in the woods in the diplomatic arena. He said his long years on congressional committees gave him a solid background on military problems and the strategic arms limitation negotiations with Russia.

Ford has participated so far in two major summit meetings—one with Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok, and the other with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing in Martinique.

"I've been very impressed with all the foreign leaders I've met," he said. "They're all different."

Asked if he considered Brezhnev a man of peace, Ford said he was impressed by the Russian leader's emphasis on international problems and that this should be encouraging to the world because it "gives us the opportunity to make real progress."

As for the Nixon pardon, Ford said: "I don't think I made a mistake... I think I did it at the right time and did it for the right reason."

The President declined to say whether Nixon should confess his exact role in Watergate to clarify statements made during the trial of his former aides that he was a central figure.

"It would appear from the trials that one or many versions of that period are coming out. And for me to comment on what version is right or wrong would certainly be inappropriate until the trials are over," he said.

Asked whether he had reached a judgment on Nixon, Ford said: "I think I've said on one or more occasions that what actions he took, as I saw it then and see it now, shamed the presidency... and the acceptance of the pardon can be interpreted as a confession. I don't think I ought to go further than that."

The President said he felt his family "has adjusted very well" to its new life style. "The boys, who are all spread out, enjoy coming home to the White House," he said.

Then, with a hearty laugh, Ford added: "Susan doesn't seem to be inhibited at all."

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — From a market timing point of view, during the first quarter of 1975, investors should be placing maximum weight on increasing monetary expansion and the prospects of expansionary fiscal policies," says Rosenkrantz Ehrenkrantz Lyon & Ross. The firm says historically the easing of monetary restraints has helped the market. "The increasing relative attractiveness of yields on stocks versus bonds which has been occurring in recent months should provide an intermediate term floor under the market," it predicts.

Further erosion of corporate profits, higher unemployment figures, fewer car sales as well as other news items not conducive to an improved stock market should materialize during the first three months of 1975," according to Winkler, Cantor, Pomboy. Although many stocks have hit their lows, the firm urges investors to remain cautious. Looking beyond the next three months, it says "a base building period is under way which, in time, could set the stage for a dramatic advance in values."

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Put together final touches but avoid speculation or risks. People wait for results from you and aren't as patient. Seek hidden assets and unexploited talents.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Don't stir up questions of authority; you've got plenty to do just maintaining cooperation. Concentrate on having a pleasant time socially and be agreeable.

Pieces [Feb. 19-March 20]: It's a good day for work, which you can do single-handedly. Go over ideas for the coming year. Friends are temperamental; social doings, more expensive than you counted on.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC Miller's magic strong and alive

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — It's been 30 years now since that foggy December day in England during World War II when Glenn Miller vanished on a flight across the channel to France.

But, to his fans, the Miller music is still as strong and living as it was on Sept. 24, 1942, when the Miller band played its last Chesterfield show, and Glenn told the huge throng in the Central Theater in Passaic, N.J., that he was joining the Army and turning over the show to Harry James.

Then the band swung into "Juke Box Saturday Night," with the "Circibiribin" solo performed by James himself. Those music lovers of today, who wonder about the endurance of the Miller music, might try listening to a two-record set just being released by RCA titled: Glenn Miller — A Legendary Performer. These are never-before-released performances that pick up Miller playing "Moonlight Serenade" at his first Glen Island Casino appearance, and carry on through some of the Chesterfield shows.

The clarity of these recordings is startling. Many Miller records now have a tinny, scratchy sound. But not these. For the first time in recent memory the Miller magic travels through the years on these recordings and emerges unscathed. This is the same sound that enchanted listeners in the early 1940s. The songs are some of the best: "Sunrise Serenade," "Little Brown Jug," "Tuxedo Junction," "Pennsylvania 6-5000," "Volga Boatman," "String of Pearls," "Elmer's Tune," "Jingle Bells," "In the Mood," "Chattanooga," "At Last," "Moonlight Cocktail," "Kalamazoo," and "Star Dust."

This is Miller at his finest. The champ came down the aisle at Madison Square Garden and scored a knockout. The champ, of course, was Frank Sinatra and what he did on the night of Oct. 13, 1974, can now be heard live on a Warner Brothers LP called: "Sinatra — The Main Event." This was the super production staged by the Monday night football crowd, and featuring an introduction by the mouth himself, Howard Cosell.

Sinatra gave them what they wanted: "The Lady Is a Tramp," "Autumn in New York," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "My Way" — all his trademark songs. The excitement that always accompanies a Sinatra appearance comes through loud and clear.

That guy with the good-looking women hanging on to each arm is Tony Orlando and you'll be seeing him more and more on TV in the future. Bell Records hurries to keep pace with the singer's rising star with an LP that is handsomely put together, indeed. The arrangements and vocal backup are superb as Orlando runs through tunes like "Dreamboat," "Look in My Eyes Pretty Woman," and "Here Comes the Spring."

Shawn Phillips' music is not easy to categorize — folksy and funky, overtones of rock 'n' roll and a flavor reminiscent of the classics. But it's all good to listen to and Phillips' voice is truly amazing. He has a four-octave range, is self-trained and he claims that yoga enabled him to develop the breath control needed to hold notes for up to 45 seconds.

His latest album, "Furthermore," is his sixth for A&M and it's a solid offering of songs mostly composed by Phillips alone, inspired by a poem, "Freeway's Child," written by his father. Peter Robinson on keyboards; John Gustafson, bass; Barry de Souza, drums; Caleb Quayle, guitar; Paul Buckmaster, cello; Raul Mayora, percussion provide backup.

Energy Efforts Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If 1974 has been a year of debate and studies, three men at the forefront of the federal energy policy see 1975 as a time for action.

But they speak more of voluntary effort than controls, and more of expanding production than of tightening restraints.

UPI got year-end statements from Rogers C. B. Morton, Secretary of Interior and head of President Ford's Energy Resources Council; Chairman John N. Nassikas of the Federal Power Commission; and Eric R. Zausner, an assistant administrator of the Federal Energy Administration who was chief architect of the "Project Independence" report that charts the way to a "rd" energy self-sufficiency.

"During 1975, hardened, coordinated activity by all sectors of government and the business community will be needed to meet the nation's deepening economic problems," Nassikas said.

He said natural gas is a key problem area requiring that the government remove price controls at the point of production. But he would temper that with a tax on "windfall profits."

"Today's gas supply crisis is a hard, cold fact," Nassikas said. "This awareness should enable the Congress and the administration during 1975 to initiate a range of measures to assure increased supply of natural gas at reasonable cost to consumers. Included should be provision for deregulation of new gas (newly discovered), with strict monitoring by the FPC, and the passage of related windfall profits tax legislation...."

Zausner said the emphasis will be on increased production and conservation.

He said President Ford preferred voluntary conservation but would turn to mandatory measures if necessary.

The current year "was a year of study, analysis and digestion of the breadth of the nation's energy challenge; 1975 will be a year of action," Zausner said.

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Monday, Dec. 30, the 364th day of 1974 with one to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

British novelist Rudyard Kipling was born Dec. 30, 1865.

On this day in history: In 1853, the United States bought some 45,000 square miles of land south of the Gila River from Mexico for $10 million. It now is the southern areas of Arizona and New Mexico.

In 1903, a total of 602 persons died when fire swept through the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

In 1968, Trygve Lie, first U.N. Secretary-General, died at the age of 72.

In 1972, President Nixon ordered a halt in the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong and announced that secret North Vietnamese peace talks would be resumed in Paris on January 8th.

A thought for the day: British novelist George Eliot said, "Blessed is the man who, with nothing to say, abstains from giving in words evidence of that fact."

The first mathematicians in the world to use geometry were the Egyptian "rope stretchers" who used lengths of rope to calculate the building of pyramids, temples, and the flooding of the Nile River delta.

Last Week On Wall Street

By BOB HILL
Lentz, Newton & Co.

While the recession countrywide is deepening and unemployment is climbing, there are some industries that are prospering mightily. Drug, chemical, farm equipment, and domestic oil drilling are all industries which are enjoying strong demand, and though costs are rising, profit margins are holding up reasonably well.

Companies with big defense oriented business are staying busy and bothered more by a lack of qualified workers, such as welders, than with a slowdown in orders for military hardware.

When the cost of living climbs or when workers are laid off, then do-it-yourself products become popular. Garden tools are in heavy demand. The recession gives rise to fears of theft and burglary, so sales of security items, such as door bolts, locks and burglar alarms are climbing.

The big profits in 1975 will be made by companies involved in energy, food and money-saving industries. For instance, manufacturers of instrumentation equipment used by oil companies and utilities are experiencing a real boom. Manufacturers of drilling rigs and drilling equipment expect current demand to hold up for at least a decade or more and food processing companies, such as Esmark, Borden, Ralston Purina and General Mills look for greater profits in 1975.

Canned foods are usually cheaper than fresh foods, so container companies are working at full capacity keeping up with the demand for cans and glass jars as consumers purchase more canned goods. Soft drinks and beer will also use a large number of cans next year as higher priced wine and liquor drop due to consumers moving to lower priced beverages.

Manufacturers of auto replacement parts and home improvement materials are having a banner year which will continue in 1975. The emphasis now is on do-it-yourself, especially in houses, because that house is one of the best inflation hedges you have.

Since the development of new audio-visual techniques to teach flying, the cost of earning a private pilot license is roughly equal to that of a season of skiing, reports Piper Aircraft Corporation.
