Gromyko Leaves Mid-East

By United Press International
Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko flew home today without Egyptian support for Moscow's Middle East peace moves, but left behind a pledge for more Soviet military aid.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy said the two-day talks "were completely successful and served their purpose."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said after Tuesday's four-hour meeting that "our talks covered all political, economic and military fields, and I believe we are turning a new leaf in our relations."

"Outstanding issues" would have to wait until Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev visits Egypt, he said.

Diplomatic sources said Gromyko told Sadat the Soviet Union would supply Egypt with new arms. Sadat has complained about Moscow's failure to replenish military hardware lost in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

Gromyko made it clear from the outset of his visit to Egypt Monday that the Soviet Union favors an immediate resumption of the Geneva Middle East peace conference, at the latest by the beginning of March.

But the sources said he failed to dent Sadat's support for the step-by-step approach of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who is trying to arrange Israeli troop withdrawals from Egypt and Syria before the Geneva talks resume.

With Gromyko at his side on the steps of his Nile Delta rest house north of Cairo, Sadat said Kissinger would come to Egypt Feb. 12 after a visit to Israel.

"I am waiting for him and I am always optimistic," Sadat said.

He said his demand for an Israeli pullback on all Arab fronts before Geneva "is a most urgent demand if we want peace in the area."

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, however, said in an address outside Jerusalem Tuesday a peace settlement with Egypt "cannot be conditioned in any way whatsoever on (agreements) with Syria, Lebanon or Jordan."

Arab diplomatic sources in Cairo, meanwhile, said Lebanon will ask nations at today's special Arab Defense Council meeting to provide Beirut with arms or money to help defend its southern border against Israeli attacks.

WANTS A CHANGE — University of Texas Regent Frank C. Erwin Jr. is seeking a change of venue from an Austin court on a charge of drunken driving. Erwin, arrested Oct. 8, has pleaded not guilty to the charge and wants the change of venue because he can't get a fair trial in the state capital due to adverse publicity, his attorneys said. ## Officers Making Sure Haig's Mistakes Known BRUSSELS (UPI) — Military foes of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. are seeing to it that the former White House chief of staff's every mistake and embarrassment finds its way into print.

There appears to be a cabal of anti-Haig officers — most of them

Americans — within the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe, south of the Belgian capital, where Haig has his office as commander of U.S. and allied forces in Europe.

There's no telling how many there are Haig's executive officer, Gen. Joseph Bratton, says it's "not widespread, organized, prevalent or predominant."

But the officers have telephoned Western newsmen anonymously to denounce former President Richard Nixon's ex-aid because of Watergate and because they feel he is a "political general" who did not get his command through military ability. These officers have kept Haig's name in uncomplimentary headlines through his two months here. Examples:

—The daughters of two U.S. Army officers at SHAPE drew up an anti-Haig poll as part of a class exercise. One talked her father into copying the poll and circulating it in his office. A West German soldier leaked the story to a German newspaper, which escalated it into an organized anti-Haig campaign. Result — red faces and a scolding for the U.S. officer.

POTENTIALLY DEADLY

Aristotle Onassis Fighting Disease

ATHENS (UPI) — Family sources said Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis was battling against a relapse of a potentially deadly muscular disease today, but a spokesman for Onassis Enterprises said it was only a virus infection with complications.

Mr. Onassis went to the airport without a coat and caught a cold, the spokesman for Onassis Enterprises said. "His condition was aggravated by complications from a virus infection. He is now resting comfortably."

The spokesman said an American heart specialist, Dr. Isidor Rosenfeld, flew from New York with Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis to stay at the bedside of her 69-year-old husband.

"After all, he is a friend of Mr. Onassis and his personal physician," the spokesman said. Christina Onassis, 25, the multimillionaire's daughter, also was there.

Family sources said Onassis was suffering a relapse of myasthenia gravis, a disease that weakens the muscles.

They said the illness first struck Onassis in November but was checked with cortisone treatments. It flared up five days ago, they said, threatening vital muscles and endangering his life.

Christina, Onassis' only surviving child, has been at his bedside since the relapse, family sources said. Alexander, the son Onassis counted on to take over a family business, died in a 1973 air crash at Athens airport.

Black's Medical Dictionary defines myasthenia gravis as "a serious disorder of rare occurrence in which the chief symptoms are muscular weakness and a special tendency for fatigue to come on rapidly when efforts are made."

A spokesman for the American Medical Association said the disease would be deadly if it caused fatigue of the heart or respiratory muscles.

When the myasthenia first struck, Onassis used an alias to enter a New York hospital for several weeks of treatment, the sources said.

Newspaper reports at the time said the disease had affected his eyelids and adhesive tape was necessary to keep them open.

The sources said Onassis was running a high temperature and was "very uncomfortable." At least two doctors were by his side, they said.

(In New York, John Meyer, a business associate, said reports of the illness were "exaggerated.")

"Onassis was feeling unwell last week but he was on the phone as usual (Tuesday) morning to the New York office of Olympic Airways," Meyer said.

President To Seek 'Full Term' In 1976

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will seek election to a full term in 1976, regardless of the state of the economy, his chief spokesman said today.

"The President's decision to seek election in 1976 is unrelated to the state of the economy," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, elaborating on Ford's own statement at a news conference in Atlanta Tuesday.

Furthermore, Nessen said he knew of no circumstances under which Ford would change his mind.

Nessen raised the subject with reporters without being asked. "Somehow it has gotten around that he would run if the economy is good and might not if it is bad," Nessen said of Ford. "That is not true."

The President said Tuesday he believed the economic picture would improve sufficiently by 1976 to "justify" his seeking a full four-year term in the White House.

In a televised NBC-TV interview two weeks ago, Ford indicated that a depressed economy might force him to pull out of the race. There also has been widespread speculation that a recurrence of his wife's breast cancer might compel Ford to quit politics.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., has passed the word that he may enter the New Hampshire presidential primary because of Ford's low standing in the public opinion polls.

"The President does expect the economy to be considerably better than it is this year," Nessen said, referring to 1976, "and he will demonstrate his leadership."

"He expects the inflation rate to come down considerably, unemployment to be going up. The gross national product is expected to be rising at a very high rate."

Asked if Ford's decision to seek the presidency on his own was "irrevocable," Nessen replied: "As far as I know, I haven't heard him say anything else."

Ford conferred earlier in the day with about 100 members of Congress in a last ditch effort to rally support for his $3 a barrel oil import fee. The House votes later today on a measure to delay the import increase, the first stage of which went into effect Sunday.

"The President feels it went well," said Nessen.

Ford plans several more cross-country trips to seek the backing he needs to sell his program to a recalcitrant Congress.

Asked how the economy might affect his candidacy, Ford told an Atlanta news conference: "I believe that the economic situation in 1976 will be an improving picture. It won't be perhaps as good as we like, but I believe unemployment will be going down and employment will be going up. I think the economic circumstances will be good enough to justify at least my seeking (the presidency)."

On reports that Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., is considering seeking the Republican presidential nomination — probably starting in the New Hampshire primary — Ford said: "I have indicated that it is my intention to be a candidate in 1976, and of course in our system anybody can if they so desire qualify to be a candidate in any primary."

On the economy, Ford said the second and third quarters of this year would produce a "switch on the plus side," with a 5 per cent increase in the gross national product and possibly a two million reduction in joblessness.

Earlier, the President passed the word through aides that he could get along with the House Ways and Means Committee's tentative $8.4 million tax rebate. But at his news conference he was more cautious. "I'll have to wait for the final version," he said.

He again ruled out wage-price controls as the "worst kind of medicine" for the country.

Relaxed and fielding questions with ease during the 40-minute news conference, Ford also said:

—He believes Congress will approve his $300 million supplemental appropriation request for South Vietnam. If Congress refuses "it will certainly complicate the military situation from the point of view of the South Vietnamese."

—He expects his next summit meeting with Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev will be held this summer in Washington and that the "relatively minor differences" in negotiating positions between the two sides on nuclear arms can be reconciled.

—The State Department and National Security Council are studying the growing Arab investments in the United States.

Committee Votes Down Depletion Halt Attempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to speed action on an expanded version of President Ford's requested tax cut, the House Ways and Means Committee has voted down the year's first effort to end the oil depletion allowance.

The House Rules Committee also separated another double-barreled measure Tuesday, a delay in Ford's $3 per barrel oil import fee and a $36 billion increase in the national debt.

The unnecessary tactic was to force the President to accept legislation he did not like because he wanted and needed the other measures so badly that he would not veto them.

Ways and Means had attached the oil import delay to the national debt increase. Sources said the Democrats feared the tactic would backfire and they would be unable to override a veto, so on Monday the Rules committee decided the measures will be voted on separately.

The Ways and Means Committee voted 22-14 Monday against an effort by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., to attach a repeal of the $2.6 billion oil industry tax break to a pending quick tax cut bill.

Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., urged the committee to delay consideration of the depletion allowance until the committee takes up an energy tax package later this month. He said the depletion allowance issue would bog down a tax cut bill which he said is needed rapidly to stimulate the sagging economy.

"To amend this bill in this way at this time would be a very grave error although I have publicly stated many times that I would support an end to the depletion allowance," Ullman said.

Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., told the committee it was far past time to close "the single largest loophole that exists," particularly because it was considering business tax cuts which could mean a $200 million break for Exxon. In the final vote, Democrats voted 14-10 for repeal, but the 12 Republicans voted unanimously against the Gibbons proposal.

Several liberals voted against repeal now although they said they would vote for it later.

Schools Seek More Aid For Program Aims

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Financially strapped public schools and junior colleges are asking for $100 million in emergency state aid to continue operating all their programs for the rest of the year.

Two separate bills immediately appropriating $18 million to the junior colleges and $80 million to local school districts were due Senate consideration today, and neither was expected to encounter any difficulty.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe submitted both the issues to the legislature as emergencies. The $80 million for public schools will be allocated on the basis of $40 for each pupil in average daily attendance. However, districts will only get a percentage of the $40, depending on how heavily the state funds normal district operations.

If a district operates normally on 90 per cent state funds, it will get 90 per cent of the $40-per-pupil emergency allocation.

In legislative action Tuesday, the Senate decided it would rather do away with antipollution controls than to face continued energy shortages.

Rep. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, won relatively easy approval for a resolution asking Congress to declare a moratorium on enforcement of wasteful antipollution regulations until the energy crisis is resolved.

"I'd rather have a little pollution and save our country than see our country go down," Longoria said.

Longoria's resolution passed on voice vote, but seven of the 31 senators recorded their opposition to it.

PRA Group Sets Meeting

Pampa restaurant owners and managers are expected to attend a dinner meeting of the Panhandle Restaurant Association Wednesday, Feb. 12, at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo.

W.H. Price, executive vice president of the Texas Restaurant Association, will speak on "The Challenging 75."

PRA officials said anyone connected with food services or other phase of the hospitality business in the Panhandle is invited to hear Price, whether or not they are members of the Panhandle Restaurant Association.

Panhandle President Scott Sutphen says reservations may be made by calling him in Amarillo at 373-0796.

Price has just returned to Texas after meeting with leading purveyors of the nation's food service industry in Miami, Chicago and San Francisco. His talk will be themed on how those in food service can best meet the challenges of the 70s.

Arctic Cold Front Causes Snow, Ice

An Arctic front swiftly moving through the Panhandle Tuesday night dropped temperatures to the teens in the Pampa area.

The front, accompanied by rain, sleet and light snow, moved into the region just before sundown, plunging the thermometer from the high of 47 degrees to an official low of 19 degrees early this morning.

Ice patches on outlying highways slowed travel in all directions of the city.

The sleet, rain and snow mixture Tuesday measured .08 of an inch, according to the official recorder here.

The forecast calls for considerable cloudiness today and Thursday with a slight chance for additional snow. High today is expected to be in the lower 30's. Low temperature tonight is expected to be in the mid-teens.

In UPI reports

Winter has returned to Texas, dropping golf ball size hail on parts of East Texas and enshrouding much of the rest of the state in dense fog and low clouds.

"It hailed pretty good," said M.C. Swatsell, owner and manager of the Lone Star Cafe in Sulphur Springs. "One woman said she went outside and raked it up with a rake."

"It didn't do any damage that I know of. It's a little hazy, but it's not keeping the customers away," Swatsell said.

A surge of Arctic air triggered heavy thundersnow in North and Northeast Texas Tuesday night. A winter storm watch was maintained throughout the night in the Panhandle where the cold surge caused a threat of snow, strong gusty winds and rapidly dropping temperatures.

Southwest Texas enjoyed fair skies but a thick blanket of clouds covered most other sections of the state. Patches of dense fog spread from the coast as far inland as the Central Texas Hill Country, dropping visibility to near zero over western, south central and southeast sections.

Most of the rain showers ended this morning with only isolated showers and a few patches of drizzle being recorded.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the low 20s north of the front in the Panhandle to the lower 60s ahead of the cold front in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The forecast called for partly cloudy skies with a chance of showers in East Texas during the weekend. Otherwise, skies are expected to be clear.

Seniors Board Meeting Slated

A meeting of the Planning Board for development of a Senior Center in Pampa will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Lovett Memorial Library.

Representatives from civic organizations, clubs, lodges, and churches, met last week to discuss the interest and the need for a Senior Center. The group elected a committee of men and women to serve as a planning board to study and develop plans for a center as a community project.

Elected to serve on the Senior Center Planning Board were Mrs. M.Q. Wilson, Milo Carlson, Clyde Carruth, Jerald Sims, Rex McAnelly, Jean Martindale, Mrs. Libby Shotwell, E.L. Green Jr., Don Lane, and George Warren.

RECOVERY ENDANGERED

Deficit hits home loans

The housing industry customarily sits at the spearpoint of both recession and economic recovery in the United States of America. It traditionally is the first to feel an economic downturn and first to show signs of renewed prosperity.

Last year, the industry suffered its seventh slump since World War II. Housing starts in 1974 dropped from 2.05 million to 1.3 million units, the largest annual decline since 1943.

The cause can be traced to the inflation which has pushed the price of homes to record highs. Because fewer Americans are buying homes there were sufficient homes for sale at the end of 1974 to furnish the demand of citizens for a year.

The depression in housing led the federal government to pour $25 billion in federal funds into the industry last year, mostly in the form of subsidies for single family housing. It is a tribute to the basic strength of our economic system that so much federal borrowing, which added to the general inflation and the price of homes, did not lead to a new housing problem.

In fact, the opposite proved true as the system, which still is competitive, recovered slightly. By the end of 1974, more money was flowing into savings and loan institutions and banks that form the principal source for home financing. First National City Bank of

New York, for example, noted that inflow to lending institutions, which had shrunk to about $500 million-a-month in mid-1974, had been restored to a $2 billion-a-month rate by the end of the year. These figures represented the first good news of the year for the housing industry.

Housing industry leaders expressed optimism at the recent annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders in Dallas, Tex. Lewis Cenko, the association's president, said that housing sales would pick up in mid-spring. Mr. Cenko based his optimism on the increasing flow of mortgage money to lenders and on declining mortgage rates.

Unfortunately, another disruptive element now has been injected into the picture. The Department of Treasury must borrow $28 billion during the next six months to finance the federal budget deficit. This again will place the government into competition with private lending institutions. The federal-private competition for funds cannot help but have an adverse effect on home building.

Once more, we are furnished with evidence that the federal government does not understand its proper role in helping the economy to recover. That role, simply stated, is not to impede the inherent self-recovery mechanism of the private market.

Many people believe that any wish made at the junction of a cross, where two roads, lines or even fingers meet, was caught and would never slip away.

Dear Abby

Mom should keep bugs out of ears

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a very nice, but extremely shy 17-year-old son. He has never had a date in his life, and I'm sure it's because he's afraid he'll get turned down.

He is an A-B student, but doesn't do very well in sports, which could be the reason he isn't very popular with the "in" crowd at school.

He is slightly overweight, but there are fatter boys who seem to hit it off with girls, so that can't be the reason. It breaks my heart to see him alone all the time.

A girls' club is having a dance, and the girls ask the boys. One of my best friends has a daughter in this club. Should I put a bug in my friend's ear and ask her to ask her daughter to ask my son? He wouldn't have to know I arranged it. SORRY FOR SONNY

DEAR SORRY: Don't put any bugs in anybody's ear. Your son may be a late bloomer. And another one of his problems could be a well-meaning mother who's inclined to run interference for him. Let him develop socially at his own pace.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from the girl who lied. I wondered if sometime in her life she was forced to lie. Let me tell you my story.

When I was very young, I found that if I told the truth when my mother questioned me about a mischievous act, I would get a spanking, so naturally, to escape the spanking, I lied. She was a strict disciplinarian (she meant well, but her method was all wrong), so in order to get along with her I lied until I was 28 years old, when I married and had my own home.

When mother visited me for the first time, she asked me a question, and knowing that the truth would displease her, I lied. I felt like a child, and right then and there I made a vow that I would never lie to her again. Also I made a vow that I would never live with anyone I had to lie to in order to get along with. I'm 48 now, and I've kept both vows.

I know that some of my answers don't please the questioner, but I always tell the truth. I've often wondered who will account for the lying I did for the first 28 years of my life. BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: There is only one reason people lie. It's because they haven't the courage to tell the truth. More emphasis should be placed on truthfulness, and less on punishment.

Adding To The Burden

The Social Security Advisory Council has agreed to recommend financing of Medicare hospital benefits from the federal general fund rather than raise payroll taxes that are deducted from the Social Security and Medicare programs.

In doing so, the council failed to come to grips with the need to rein in runaway Social Security costs. What it recommended was a new burden on all taxpayers: an unjustified expedient.

As the years pass, the fiscal weight of Social Security and Medicare will become even more substantial on the federal budget if this plan is adopted.

Now Social Security is financed on a pay-as-you-go basis. Even if the present formula is not changed, the outlays for benefits will reach an estimated $350 billion in a quarter of a century. This is more than the present federal budget.

Most experts, both liberal and conservative, agree that the outlay will be intolerable if it requires additional payroll taxes to support it. The higher taxes could only inhibit the economy and work against the concept of assuring a modest security in retirement.

A more realistic route, for the sake of both the working taxpayer and the retired person, is to scale the Social Security program down to a sound basis that matches earnings with projected benefits.

GOOD DEAL BELGRADE (UPI) — Despite one of the coldest winters in Yugoslavia in recent years, hoteliers on Hvar, the "Island in the Sun," do not seem to be suffering too much from their money-back guarantee in case of bad weather.

As usual in the winter the island is packed with tourists, many of them foreigners, who stand to gain if their holiday is dampened or washed out.

The hoteliers give board and lodging free of charge on a day when there's the slightest snowfall or the temperature drops one degree below zero. If it rains between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. or there's fog you get a 50 per cent discount.

BUT IT'S HUSH-HUSH

'Arms Agreement' Surfaces

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — That long-promised Soviet aide memoire, on the Vladivostok nuclear arms limitation "agreement," has finally surfaced — after a fashion.

It's in the hands of the Senate Armed Services Committee under tight wraps hastily imposed by the State Department — which is ironically ridiculous because the Russians know what's in the document — but the American people are being denied the information.

The Department produced the memorandum after persistent prodding by the committee — and a long sequence of cloak-and-dagger type episodes.

First was Secretary Kissinger's announcement, shortly after returning from the Nov. 24 Vladivostok meeting between President Ford and Communist party boss Brezhnev, that a Soviet aide memoire would be published in a week. But when several weeks elapsed and it was not forthcoming, suspicions arose about the existence of the document.

Congressional critics of the reputed strategic weapons "agreement" skeptically doubted whether Moscow had actually put anything in writing.

This was emphatically denied by the State Department. A "spokesman" explained that a memorandum had been received but after "study" had been returned for "clarification."

Just why and what that was all about was not made clear — and still hasn't been. More weeks elapsed and still nothing was forthcoming — about the memorandum, the "agreement," or anything relating to it.

Unveiled—Partially Finally, several weeks ago when the new Congress convened, the Senate Armed Services Committee, in effect, demanded the mysterious document in preparation for conducting a thorough airing of exactly what was done at the fanfaired Vladivostok parley.

This time the State Department came up with the memorandum — and to the committee's delighted surprise with no secrecy restrictions. But that happy state lasted only a few hours.

Apparently some bureaucrat had gravely erred.

A flustered Department official frantically telephoned there had been a "serious lapse" in sending the document to the committee without a high secrecy classification. He vehemently insisted that was essential; without it the committee could not retain the memorandum.

It would have to be immediately returned to the Department for "proper classification," before the committee could again have it.

The Senate panel didn't argue. The document was sent back, extensively classified by the Department, and is now once more in the committee's hands — specifically the Arms Control subcommittee, headed by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., which is getting ready to hold hearings with Secretary Kissinger probably as the first witness.

In these proceedings it is Jackson's determined intention to take the wraps off the Soviet memorandum. It's his contention they are absurd and needless.

"The Russians know what's in this document," he says. "So why the secrecy? It doesn't make sense. The Soviet Union knows, the administration knows, everyone knows except the American people. Why should they be kept in the dark? I am utterly unable to understand that, and as far as I'm concerned I'm going to do my utmost to see that they are fully informed."

The Reasons It could be that the primary reason the American public is being denied knowledge of what's in the Russian memorandum is this startling fact:

No nuclear arms limitation "agreement" actually was concluded at Vladivostok.

Despite all the hoopla and propaganda claiming that, all that in reality was formulated was a possible basis for an accord whose details still have to be worked out. In other words, certain general terms were outlined — and that's about all.

Or to put it another way — the bombastic whooping about Vladivostok was in a large measure — much ado about nothing.

It is true that exceptionally high ceilings on strategic weapons apparently were set — 2,400 long-range missiles and bombers, with 1,320 of the missiles armed with multiple (MIRV) warheads. President Ford and Secretary Kissinger have announced that.

But there has been absolutely nothing revealed or said about equally important questions — and there are pronounced misgivings whether there is anything about these vital matters in the secrecy-shrouded aide memoire.

Which may be another reason why it has been suppressed so long.

Foremost among these crucial issues are:

Status of Russia's new long-range heavy bomber — the "Backfire," comparable to our PB-111. The two-engine Backfire has definite nuclear capabilities; it's now being produced at the rate of several a month, and a number have been assigned to units as replacements for obsolescent four-engine bombers.

There is nothing in the Vladivostok understanding relating to the Backfire. Why this powerful weapon was excluded is not known.

Another mystery revolves around cruise missiles. The U.S. has aerial cruise missiles — with a range of about 600 miles. These nuclear-tipped weapons released from bombers enable the latter to attack targets beyond the range of hostile anti-aircraft batteries. Russia does not have aerial cruise missiles, but it does have naval cruise missiles — which we are now in the process of developing.

Chile proclaimed its independence from Spain on Sept. 18, 1810.

A different beat

By LARRY HOLLIS

The following statement may sound like heresy in this beef producing region:

Meat is not necessary to one's good health. Studies in recent years have indicated that meat, although a good source of protein, is not really a necessary factor for good health. In fact, it may even be hazardous to good health if used in great quantities.

That statement may startle a few in this nation, where the average person consumes around 15 pounds of meat a month.

An article in the February issue of Reader's Digest notes that vegetable protein in the long run can be more beneficial to health than that obtained by eating meat. This is because meat, particularly that found in beef and pork, contains fat, which tends to increase the cholesterol level.

Vegetables and grains provide the same protein without the fatty material, thus decreasing the accumulation of cholesterol.

The article points out that most Americans eat much more meat than they need. And often because of the fatty material, people who eat a lot of meat find themselves a little on the fatty side, too.

Vegetarians and those who eat only a little meat, however, are usually thinner and in better health, according to the article.

Doctors and scientists believe that vegetable protein, especially when supplemented with SOME meat in the diet, is better for one's health in the long run.

Other scientists also believe too much protein, whether meat or vegetable, is bad for the health. In short, more balanced meals using meat, vegetables, grains, fruits, dairy products and so on, would aid most people. Just the old simple plans for eating most of us learned in school health courses and promptly forgot.

Those of us in the newspaper business have a hard time trying to decide how to write. One survey indicates the average newspaper reader has an eighth grade reading level...or even lower.

As a result, journalists have been urged to simplify the style and language to enable the average reader to comprehend the material.

Then another survey comes a long and says newspapers should improve the educational level of the newspaper to cause the public to keep its reading level up.

Melvin Mencher, associate professor at the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University, states, "If we are to keep up with the reading level that the school system has managed to set for its charges, we will steadily be marching backward."

He noted that critics say the writing of most journalists is over the heads of junior high school students. If present trends continue, he said, in a few years "the same stories will be over the heads of high school seniors."

He urges tougher courses in reading and writing, with more emphasis on the weekly essay and vocabulary tests.

"Just for kicks, I read the class some vocabulary lists the other day," Mencher wrote in the UPI Reporter, "and a short essay. The words included saucy, signified, incomprehensible, gracefully, sauntering and comprehensive."

"I asked them what grade the material was taken from. The answers ranged from high school senior to college freshman. I was reading from a fifth grade reader in use in the Midwest in the 1880s."

Maybe students need to spend more time reading than watching the television set. How would Shakespeare have written if he grew up on Hogan's Heroes, M-A-S-H, Happy Days or The Streets of San Francisco?

Why is it that some people in Pampa have not yet realized that Cuyler, Foster, Kingsmill and other downtown streets are four-lane and not two-lane?

Or why do people with the camper vans decide to park on the corners so drivers trying to cross an intersection can't see oncoming traffic?

And why does Somerville, with its tree-lined lanes, have to be the bumpiest drive in town?

From Bits and Pieces: Ambition usually progresses through the following stages: to be like Dad...to be famous...to be a millionaire...to make enough to pay the bills...to hang on long enough to draw a pension.

BOOK REVIEW

How to succeed in negotiating

GIVE AND TAKE; by Chester Karrass; Thomas Y. Crowell Co.; 280 pages; $8.95.

Reviewed by RICK ORLOV
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — To Chester Karrass, life is nothing more than a series of negotiations.

The problem for most people, he said in an interview, is that they really don't know how to use their negotiating power to their best advantage.

Karrass has written a book, "Give and Take," which he calls the complete guide to negotiating strategies and tactics.

His book outlines in a series of suggestions tactics and counter-tactics to getting the best price on a product or service or how negotiating is involved in personal relationships.

Karrass is a professional negotiator who, while working for Hughes Aircraft, was awarded a doctoral fellowship.

This enabled him to return to school to get a doctorate in business administration.

Since he was involved in his work as a negotiator, he decided to do much of his studies in this area.

However, he said, while doing research he learned no really comprehensive work had ever been published on what was involved in business negotiations.

Much of the information he collected did not come from books on the law or labor relations, he said, but from works by psychologists and psychiatrists on personal relationships.

Karrass is director of an organization known as the Center for Effective Negotiating, Inc.

The center stages seminars for large companies and is involved in the marketing of his books. In addition to "Give and Take," Karrass has written a book called "The Negotiating Game."

In negotiating, he says, there are two things to remember.

The first is what he calls the call-girl principle and the second deals with the power a person has in negotiations.

The call-girl principle, he said, is based on the theory the value of a service is greater before it is rendered.

This is why plumbers will negotiate prices only when the basement is already flooded, he said.

His looks into power deal with how people handicap themselves.

"There are limitations on everyone's power," he said. "But we tend to look only at our own limitations."

"People seem to have a tendency to underestimate their own power and not really look at the problems the other guy might have."

Much of the way a person looks at his power in a situation depends on what Karrass calls aspiration levels — what people expect.

"I've found that those who aim higher usually get more," he said.

However, he added, to get more usually requires more patience than most people — particularly Americans — are willing to exert.

"Patience is the most powerful tactic in negotiations," he said, "more power even than deadlock or threats. Patience, persistence and determination can make up for inadequate resources."

In his book, Karrass outlines more than 200 strategies and discusses some of the most popular tactics used by salesmen to close deals.

New Jobs For Women

They're Successful At Men's Work

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WOMEN are breaking barriers and taking over jobs that once were the sole province of men, jobs far removed from shorthand, typing and conventional "openings for women."

At Phillips Petroleum's Avon refinery in Martine, Calif., three have become the first pacetime female "yardmen" in company history. All had previously held routine "women" jobs:

Pat Brown, 24, was a waitress; Martha Buckingham, 32, a teacher and, later, a secretary; Mary Krajewski, 21, a golf course greengrover, an assistant to a seamstress and a cocktail waitress.

In the Line of Heavy Duty

In their new posts they do far different work—pushing wheelbarrows, shoveling coke, assisting in cleanups, operating jackhammers, digging ditches, driving fork lift units and heavy duty trucks, scrubbing concrete, cleaning storage tanks, climbing high on refinery columns and working inside refinery vessels.

What attracted them to heavy-duty jobs? Pay that was higher than any received in any of their previous posts.

The work is physically demanding but, they say, it's worth the effort because they couldn't earn as much in office or restaurant jobs.

A premature baby—under 5.5 pounds—is more likely to have a handicap of some degree.

the all-girl trio was assigned to dig a 200-foot-long ditch. Determined to prove themselves, they worked like demons for half a day and were leaning on their shovels when the foreman arrived. He started chewing them out for goofing off, but his tirade stopped short when, to his embarrassment, he discovered that the job, programmed for two days, was completed.

Reaction from refinery co-workers has ranged from curiosity to amusement. One man approached Martha Buckingham on the job, looked her over and announced, "Well, now I've seen everything!" "No you haven't," she told him. "You haven't seen anything until I'm made foreman!"

New Openings
Throughout industry men are reacting and trying to adjust to women in new roles. One field they're beginning to conquer is security:

At General Motors' Hydraulic Division plant in Michigan two women have been added to the security staff. Their duties involve checking passes, directing traffic, keeping track of trucks and other vehicles moving through the gates and patrolling the plant.

"You have to be super-alert," one of the new officers, Sandra Richards, observed. "The plant is deserted at night. When you're making rounds, you have to be ready to use common sense in a tight spot."

A national security services firm, Guardmark, Inc., is also employing women. They guard high rise buildings, airports, hospitals, even banks. When called on to provide round-the-clock security for a warehouse and distribution center in Pennsylvania, the firm dispatched an all-woman team, including one lead lieutenant, two shift sergeants and 10 guards. Their arrival created a stir but it died down when they handled the assignment like pros.

Trying Harder
Talk to a woman who has pioneered in a formerly all-male field and there are two things she's sure to tell you. One is that a woman has to work harder to prove herself. The other is that when she does, she's accepted. One of Phillips Petroleum's three yardwomen summed it up: "OK, it wasn't easy to begin with but we did it. It's satisfying to know we've taken three small steps for womankind."

HUMAN MILK UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Food scientists at Pennsylvania State University are trying to determine if beneficial micro-organisms in human breast milk can protect babies from intestinal disorders.

Dr. Kurosh Ostovar of the university's College of Agriculture said certain micro-organisms are able to lower the acidity of a baby's stomach.

He and his associates want to find out to what extent micro-organisms creating the acidity are passed on from the mother through breast feeding.

Human milk is probably the most widely consumed food in the world, yet it is one of the least studied, the doctor said. Some nutritional and compositional data are available, but very little is known about the microflora in human milk.

Evangeline Country-Natchez Decried in Century Talk

The Twentieth Century Culture Club recently met in the home of Mrs. Milo Carlson. Refreshments were served by the co-hostess, Mrs. E.E. Shelhamer.

The business was conducted by Mrs. James A. Poole in the absence of the president, Mrs. J.R. Donaldson. The program, "Evangeline Country-Natchez" was given by Mrs. Paul Turner and Mrs. A.E. Berry who were introduced by Mrs. Rufe Jordan.

Mrs. Turner discussed the uniqueness of the strip along the Louisiana coast stretching from Texas to the mouth of the Mississippi River. It is referred to as Acadiana by "Cajon" journalists. Their ancestors had lived since 1604 in the French Colony of Acadia in what is now Nova Scotia, Canada.

In 1731, Acadia fell to the British and in 1755, with the war with France, they were forced to swear allegiance to the British and forsake their Catholic religion or be expelled from Acadia. Several thousand Acadians chose exile and gradually many of them came to Louisiana, then a French colony where their own language was spoken and their religion respected. Their hardships and tragedies which followed is the basis of the well-known poem "Evangeline" by Longfellow, which is one of his greatest works, she told.

The Acadians shunned the city life of New Orleans and settled the empty lands west of the Mississippi. They have stayed a rural people, and have remained true to their ancestors. Outsiders who marry "Cajuns" blend into their community. These warm-blooded laughter-loving people became farmers, hunters, trappers, fishermen, cane planters, and moss gatherers. They love their large families and give great respect to older members of the family, she stated.

Creoles stand for all that is fine, rich and noble. They are the descendants of the first French and Spanish settlers in Louisiana. They are loyal to family and friends, and love a good time. Their glamorous traditions contrast strongly with the peasant background of the "Cajuns." Today the blood of the two peoples is mixed, but the terms refer to two distinct racial and cultural groups, the speaker told.

Mrs. Berry spoke of Natchez, Mississippi as an interesting place to visit, the place where the "Old South" still lives. It is the oldest settlement on the Mississippi River as well as one of the oldest settlements on the North American continent existing since 1716. The Natchez Indians were here for generations before the white man, Natchez, high above the Mississippi River, was once the pride of a great cotton empire and the queen city of social and cultural life. Above her walls have flown the flags of France, the British Union Jack, Old Spain, the original flag of the thirteen colonies, the Confederacy and the U.S. flag, she continued.

After the Revolution the Americans were free to venture to this part of Mississippi. A treaty in 1801 with the Indians opened the area to wagon travel and mail deliveries and a rush of settlement started. Steamboats docked and King Cotton reigned in abundance. By 1830, only New York City had more millionaires than Natchez. When the railroad came it swept the steamboats from the Mississippi leaving Natchez with weed-choked cotton fields and ruptured family fortunes.

While telling of the characteristics of the different mansions, Mrs. Berry also passed-around pictures of them. Natchez has become a center of national interest, a plantation museum without parallel in the south, she concluded.

The refinery capacity of Texas plants is 3.7 million barrels of crude oil daily.

Multi-Sized Patterns New In US

COLLEGE STATION — Multi-sized patterns are now available in the U.S. one clothing specialist reported this week.

Patterns of this kind accommodate figures that require two or more sizes to fit or that are in between regular sizes. Marlene Odle with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, explained.

She said that homesevers in Europe have been able to purchase these kinds of patterns for years, but now U.S. pattern companies are offering a multi-size pattern series — each pattern includes three sizes.

They are available in men's, women's and children's clothing. The big advantage to this idea in children's clothing is that multi-size patterns provide room for growth and one pattern suits different age brackets.

The cost of these patterns is slightly more than one regular size — but more economical than buying three patterns at the regular size. Miss Odle said.

Mrs. Ernest Fletcher, 709 Bradley Dr., was appointed residential chairman of the Wilson School area for the Heart Fund drive to be conducted during February.

Assisting in the Wilson area will be Mrs. Shirley Pettit, 1123 Mary Ellen. Local volunteers will join more than two million across the nation during American Heart Month when they visit the homes of friends and neighbors to distribute helpful heart literature and collect funds to support Heart Association programs.

Heart and blood vessel diseases, the nation's number one killers, will claim more than a million lives this year. In addition, lost wages and medical expenses resulting from these diseases will cost the nation an estimated $20 billion in 1975.

Local Catholics Mark School Week Activities

Local Catholics are observing Catholic School Week here with special activities at St. Vincent's Catholic School, 2000 N. Hobart.

The school is having an Art and Science Fair to celebrate the occasion.

Students in pre-kindergarten through the sixth grade are participating in the art show, while seventh and eighth grade students participate in the science fair.

Work was judged yesterday, with prizes awarded to the winners in each class. First place winners in the events included Bobbie Wagner, Melinda Bichsel, Mary Beth Waddell, Aaron Anderwald, Greg Sokolosky, Joseph Rodriguez, Cara Cosgrove, Dwayne Hemphkin and Lana Cosgrove. Projects of students will be on display in the school cafeteria this week for parents and friends of the students to see. An open house was held at the school last night, with parents invited to drop by the classes during the day throughout the week.

St. Vincent's teaches the basic academic subjects and places special emphasis on spiritual and moral growth.

Bell Asks Postponement For Damage Suit Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Publicity critical of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. makes it necessary to delay the trial of a $29 million damage suit against the company, according to a motion filed by the giant utility.

The suit was filed against Bell by the company's former commercial manager in San Antonio, who was fired, and by the family of the former head of the company's Texas operation, who committed suicide.

The adverse publicity was the primary reason. Bell attorneys also said they will file two more motions within the next two weeks, one asking the case not be tried in Bexar County because of the publicity and another to separate the lawsuit into two suits.

The plaintiffs are James H. Ashley, fired last Oct. 31, and the survivors of T.O. Gravit, who killed himself Oct. 17 in Dallas.

The suit contends Bell is guilty of widespread wrongdoing, and Ashley was fired wrongfully and Michael Curry, Bell said the delay was needed to let public opinion cool.

San Antonio attorney Pat Maloney, who drew up the suit, asked Curry to set the case for March 24.

Curry set a hearing for Friday on Bell's motion to delay the trial. The motion to delay also said Bell attorneys need more time to prepare their defense against the wide-ranging allegations, though the adverse publicity was the primary reason.

Bell attorneys also said they will file two more motions within the next two weeks, one asking the case not be tried in Bexar County because of the publicity and another to separate the lawsuit into two suits.

Congress Rejects Aid For Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials say they expect a resumption of U.S. military aid to Turkey sometime before the suspension could cause significant damage to NATO's southern flank.

The State Department interpreted the act of Congress which requires the aid cutoff as taking effect at midnight tonight. Some congressmen had thought Congress meant midnight last night, but there was no formal challenge to the State Department's interpretation, extending aid another day.

Congress ordered that the aid, including credit sales, be suspended Feb. 5—today—but did not specify the hour.

Congress ordered the aid remain suspended until "substantial progress" toward a Cyprus peace settlement has been made and until President

Ford can certify that Turkey could use the aid only for defensive purposes.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has said the cutoff would be a "tragedy" and "a serious setback for our security interests."

But the consensus here in official circles is that both the United States and Turkey have a vital stake in continued cooperation and that this will be maintained after the present difficulty is sorted out.

Officials were particularly skeptical of suggestions that Turkey might pull out of NATO, or order the United States out of three air bases it uses in that country.

They said Turkey's continued membership in NATO is vital to her defense, since the entire Turkish military establishment has been supplied by the United States, which has sent that country more than $3 billion in military aid since 1950.

Abandoning NATO and switching to another military supplier, even if one could be found, would be an extremely costly and time consuming process for the Turks—something they would undertake only in the last resort after many, many months, in the view of officials here.

Turkey is in the midst of receiving major shipments of U.S. F4 Phantom jet warplanes. It has received 16 of these planes since August, under credit terms arranged by the U.S. government, and has commitments for at least 24 more of the $5 million supersonic aircraft.

Course On Real Estate Reaches Class Capacity

Real Estate Practice in Texas, an adult continuing education course offered by the Pampa Independent School District's evening school program, is closed to further enrollment.

Twenty-five adult students have enrolled, which is the capacity.

"No other course will be offered in Pampa in real estate until the fall term in the adult continuing program," Don Nelson, coordinator of the program, said. "We are most pleased with the interest and enrollment."

Courses remain open in real estate at Amarillo College. Adults may register for courses on the main Amarillo College Campus at the registrar's office prior to class meeting time on the evening the class is offered. Next week, Feb. 10-14, is the last week students may be accepted.

"Principles and Practices" is offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings; "Appraisal" is offered on Wednesday; "Financing" is available on Monday; and "Real Estate Law" is offered on Tuesday. Classes are from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

"Real Estate Practice in Texas" or "Principles and Practices" is a 36-hour course which enables a licensed salesman to renew his license for another year. Thirty hours are required by law.

Mrs. Genevieve Henderson, local realtor and licensed broker, has been certified by the Texas Education Agency and Amarillo College to teach the course in Pampa.

"Principles and Practices" will be taught on Thursday evenings, from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. at the Area Vocational School, 1440 Charles. Classes begin Thursday.

Industry Aims Discussed At Local Meeting

Ways and means of securing industrial prospects and preparation of information requested by prospective industries were discussed here yesterday at a meeting of Pampa Industrial Foundation officials and representatives of the Texas Industrial Foundation and Southwestern Public Service Co.

Attending the meeting from Austin were Homer Tucker and Terry Britiah, members of the Texas Industrial Commission.

Representing Southwestern Public Service Co. were Cliff Milnar, Larry Milner and Kenneth Owens.

The Pampa Industrial Foundation was represented by Kay Fancher, president; C.E. Steel, chamber of commerce president; Fred Neslage, Harold Barrett and E.L. Green Jr., PIF vice presidents; Melvin Kunkel, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee, and E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager.

The TIC and SPS officials outlined services available to the Industrial Foundation in its efforts to coordinate plans for bringing new industry to the city.

AARP Hears Local Attorney

Don Lane, local attorney, was principal speaker at the regular meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Bldg. Monday afternoon.

Lane spoke on wills and other legal documents. Purpose of AARP is to promote modern social achievement and to aid in the shift from a work-centered society to one that is leisure-centered.

All persons 55 years of age and older are invited to attend the meetings, held regularly at 1:30 p.m. on the first Monday of each month.

Fifty-eight members and guests attended Monday's meeting.

"Tiny as a stamp and sturdy as a vault," is what the manufacturer says about the Mighty Midget, an inside door lock to keep prowlers out. When it is fastened to the door jamb, the door reportedly cannot be forced open and is passkey and tamper-proof—no wire, key, metal or burglar tool can open the door from the outside when it is latched. The Mighty Midget screws to the jamb in seconds and fits any size door at any height. Locking and unlocking is said to be accomplished easily with a flick of the finger.

Harvesters Trip Visiting Amarillo High

By PAUL SIMS
 "That's the way it is when you're running and hustling. You have a lot of turnovers."
 Coach Robert McPherson was not miffed by the fact his Harvesters had 34 turnovers against Amarillo High. Most teams won't win with so many miscues, but Pampa outplayed the Sandies on every other front and captured an impressive 70-46 win Tuesday night in a half-filled Harvester Fieldhouse.

The win left Pampa with an 18-4 season record and 3-1 district mark, a game behind surprising Tascosa. The Rebels, 13-10 and 4-0, clinched at least a tie in the first half of district play with a 75-68 win over visiting Borger (22-3 and 3-1).

In the other district game Tuesday, Caprock (8-15 and 1-3) smashed Palo Duro (2-19 and 0-4), 87-67, in the Amarillo Civic Center.

Guard Robert Young told the story from the outset, as the Pampa senior, scored on a six-foot jump shot to give the hosts a 2-0 lead. Young went on to lead all scorers with 17 points and pace Pampa, which never trailed in the game.

Pampa, behind Young with four field goals, rolled to a 20-8 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Harvesters outscored Amarillo, 21-16, in the second period to take a 41-24 lead at intermission.

The eight straight points in the second quarter was not the longest string for Pampa, which scored the first 19 points in the game before Amarillo's Larry Lamb connected on a 10-footer.

Wilbon and Lewis each scored 18. Skip Howard tallied 15 for Amarillo High, followed by Mike Smith with 11 and Lamb with 10.

Lamb led Amarillo on the boards with seven rebounds. The 6-6 post was stopped by Lewis, 6-5, throughout the game.

HARVESTER DEFENSE — Pampa's Donnie Hughes does not let Amarillo's Gary Holcomb shoot. So, Holcomb passes off. According to Pampa coach Robert McPherson, the Harvesters played "great defense."

After the first quarter, Amarillo could only close the gap to nine points, 29-20 with 3:46 to play in the half, and did that only once. Pampa then reeled off eight straight points to up its lead to 39-20 and stayed far ahead of the visitors for the remainder of the game.

Teaff Satisfied With Signings

United Press International Baylor coach Grant Teaff sounded as if his club had just won another Southwest Conference championship, or maybe a Cotton Bowl.

"This has been a fantastic day," Teaff said Tuesday night at the close of a hectic 12 hours of cross-country Texas.

"We didn't get everybody we wanted, but up to this point this has been the most quality filled group we have recruited since I have been with Baylor."

Tuesday was the first day a high school senior football player could sign a letter of intent with a Southwest Conference school.

That signature will become binding with that school when the youngster also signs a national letter of intent and the first day he can do that is Feb. 13.

The premium this year seemed to be on large running backs, but the top individual prize tucked Tuesday was probably Stan Singleton, a highly thought of flanker and defensive back from Mesquite. Singleton committed previously to Texas and that is where he signed.

Another top player expected to sign Tuesday was linebacker David Hodge of Brownwood. Hodge was thought to be wrapped up by the Houston Cougars, but the day went behind without the Cougars announcing Hodge's signing.

One of the top running backs in the state — George Woodward — went to Texas A&M. And Emory Bellard sounded as if he was almost as happy with the day as Teaff.

"I thought the signings went well," the Aggie coach said. "We're very pleased with the fellows we signed. I think we got an outstanding group of players."

The most highly praised athlete in the state, however, refrained from signing as expected.

Teaff, however, had a reference to make about that player — Billy Sims.

"There are still some players hanging fire which could make this recruiting year one beyond my wildest expectations," Teaff said.

Sims, who has gained more than 7,700 yards in three varsity years at Hooks, Tex., has apparently narrowed his choice of schools to Baylor or Oklahoma, but will not make up his mind until the national letter signing day arrives.

Teaff Satisfied With Signings

United Press International Baylor coach Grant Teaff sounded as if his club had just won another Southwest Conference championship, or maybe a Cotton Bowl.

"This has been a fantastic day," Teaff said Tuesday night at the close of a hectic 12 hours of cross-country Texas.

"We didn't get everybody we wanted, but up to this point this has been the most quality filled group we have recruited since I have been with Baylor."

Tuesday was the first day a high school senior football player could sign a letter of intent with a Southwest Conference school.

That signature will become binding with that school when the youngster also signs a national letter of intent and the first day he can do that is Feb. 13.

The premium this year seemed to be on large running backs, but the top individual prize tucked Tuesday was probably Stan Singleton, a highly thought of flanker and defensive back from Mesquite. Singleton committed previously to Texas and that is where he signed.

Another top player expected to sign Tuesday was linebacker David Hodge of Brownwood. Hodge was thought to be wrapped up by the Houston Cougars, but the day went behind without the Cougars announcing Hodge's signing.

One of the top running backs in the state — George Woodward — went to Texas A&M. And Emory Bellard sounded as if he was almost as happy with the day as Teaff.

"I thought the signings went well," the Aggie coach said. "We're very pleased with the fellows we signed. I think we got an outstanding group of players."

The most highly praised athlete in the state, however, refrained from signing as expected.

Teaff, however, had a reference to make about that player — Billy Sims.

"There are still some players hanging fire which could make this recruiting year one beyond my wildest expectations," Teaff said.

Sims, who has gained more than 7,700 yards in three varsity years at Hooks, Tex., has apparently narrowed his choice of schools to Baylor or Oklahoma, but will not make up his mind until the national letter signing day arrives.

A&M CRUSHES PONIES Razorbacks Edge Longhorns 56-52

By United Press International
 Neither the Texas Aggies nor the Arkansas Razorbacks did anything Tuesday night to spoil their Saturday showdown, although there were some doubts for a few moments in the Ozarks.

Fayetteville before the regional television cameras.
 Texas A&M had no trouble in keeping its league record unblemished, mauling Southern Methodist in College Station, 102-77.

The first advanced sellout crowd in the history of Razorback basketball jammed into ancient Barnhill Fieldhouse for Arkansas' date with the Texas Longhorns.

"I didn't think we rebounded very well," said Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf, who suffered through the game with a nasty case of the flu. "Actually, I thought we played better in our two wins last week (on the road against Texas Tech and Texas) than we did tonight."

And although Texas threatened for a time to ruin the Razorbacks' homecoming (they had played three straight road games), Arkansas led on for a 56-52 decision that set up a critical contest due Saturday afternoon.

In other conference games Tuesday night Texas Tech improved its record to 3-2 and lowered Baylor's to the same with a 72-61 decision over the Bears, and the Rice Owls won their first game of the conference season, an 88-67 crunching of TCU.

Terps, NCS Still Trucking

By United Press International
 Maryland and North Carolina State continued along their merry way in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tuesday night but not without a scare.

Sports Page

Fourth-ranked Maryland blew a big lead and then had to go into a stall for nearly 2½ minutes at the end to hold off Virginia, 86-79. And North Carolina State, ranked No. 6, needed 39 points from All-America David Thompson to withstand 15th-ranked Clemson, 92-89.

Maryland led, 44-31, at the half, on a 12-point spurt midway through, but Virginia came on strong in the second half. Maryland struggled to a 74-60 lead with 7:48 left and then watched the Cavaliers reel off 11 straight points in the next four minutes behind Andy Boninti and Wally Walker.

The Terps went into a four-corner stall at 2:20 and held a 78-75 lead with 1:10 left. But Walker missed a shot and the Terps iced the game at the free throw line as Virginia tried fouling as its only hope.

John Lucas led Maryland with 25 points and Brad Davis added 24. Boninti had 22 and Walker 20 for the Cavaliers.

Maryland is now 15-3 overall and 6-2 in the ACC. Virginia fell to 9-8.

Upset-specialist Clemson pulled to within a point of North Carolina State at 90-89 with 15 seconds left before Mo Rivers hit two foul shots to put the game away, snapping the Tigers' five-game winning streak.

Thompson scored 12 of N.C. State's first 18 points and had 23 in the first half as state outscored the Tigers, 17-2, in the final six minutes before intermission. The Wolfpack led, 78-63, with 7:41 remaining, but during the next three minutes, Clemson outscored State, 12-2, to close the gap to 80-75.

Skip Wise scored with 15 seconds left to give Clemson a chance for victory. The freshman guard scored 16 of his 22 points in the second half and led Clemson.

In the only other game involving a ranked team, No. 12 Marquette, with Earl Tatum leading the way with 22 points, ran its record to 14-3 with a 69-63 victory over Wisconsin.

Wisconsin led by a point at the half but Marquette's 13-4 spurt halfway through the second half sent the Badgers to their 13th loss in 17 games.

Snow Storms Troubling Sections Of East, West

By United Press International
Snow-packed storms socked sections of the East and West early today, compounding travelers' troubles in the Sierra Nevada and creating near-blizzard conditions in West Virginia.

A new storm front followed the path of a five-day old-storm in the Sierra Nevada, the season's harshest onslaught. The wind-driven snows and heavy drifts caused the closing of major trans-Sierra highways for nearly 12 hours Tuesday, including the Interstates 50 and 80—the main routes to Nevada from the San Francisco Bay area.

Area highway authorities required motorists to encase car wheels in chains.

Snow at Reno, Nev., fell at a rate of an inch an hour Tuesday. About six feet fell in the Sierra Nevada and three feet in Truckee, Calif.

In southern California, schools reopened at Lake Arrowhead and Crestline following closure Tuesday because of high snow drifts. By late Tuesday, 16 inches of snow lay on the ground at Lake Arrowhead and Running Springs.

Farmers in California's inland—where the storm manifested itself in heavy rains—called it the "million dollar rain." It came just in time to avert major damage to a $12 million drought-thirsty grain crop in the Perris Valley.

Philadelphia's public and parochial schools lost Tuesday classes to four inches of snow. Central Pennsylvania was hardest hit, however, reporting a snow cover of six inches. Forecasters predicted more snow for today. Travel was hazardous.

Half a foot of snow blanketed portions of West Virginia, causing near blizzard conditions in the Beckley area.

And in Washington, a hefty snowfall forced diversion of some air traffic to New York City.

The weather service issued a winter storm warning for West Virginia's eastern panhandle and northern mountains, predicting at least six inches of new snowfall today at higher elevations.

Small stream flooding plagued residents in West Virginia's southwest and southern portions and more heavy rainfall hit the area Tuesday night.

Heavy snows around Wheeling, W. Va., caused several road accidents but no serious injuries. Jackknifed tractor trailer units blocked U.S. 100 and U.S. 52. West Virginia 460 from Roanoke to Princeton was nearly impassable, the weather service said.

A storm in Colorado triggered freezing rain which delayed a Civil Air Patrol search for a missing light plane. Snow was expected throughout the state.

The Washington-Baltimore area got three inches of new snow early today, adding to the five inches already on the ground.

Freezing rain glazed southern Appalachian mountain highways and Atlanta, Ga., and New Bern, N.C., each collected an inch of rainfall overnight.

Snow swept across the northern and central Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley. Travelers were warned to drive cautiously on roads in the upper Great Lakes and across the lower Missouri Valley into Oklahoma.

Dense fog enveloped portions of the Midwest, southern Atlantic Coast and the eastern half of Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 22 degrees below zero at Havre, Mont., to 77 degrees at Key West, Fla.

PRAISE IDEALS Russian Group Touring Center

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Soviet space authorities, making their first official visit to the Kennedy Space Center, Tuesday praised the common ideals shared by Russians and Americans working together on next summer's Apollo-Soyuz space mission.

The eight-member delegation included five Russian space management supervisors as well as academician Boris Petrov, chief of the Russian space program and chairman of the Council on Intercosmos. Prof. Constantin Bushuev, technical director for the mission, and Dr. Aleksey Yeliseyev, flight director for the mission and a veteran cosmonaut.

Yeliseyev said cosmonauts and astronauts share a common thought: "It is the idea that the earth is a planet which is extremely small... (and) it seems highly desirable that on a planet so small there be no destruction caused by wars or disagreements between nations."

Bushuev said "in America we have discovered our real friends. It doesn't mean we don't argue, but I would like to point out we never take advantage of pushing each other into a corner, but on the contrary seek wise technical compromise."

Yeliseyev joined Petrov in praising the Americans' sense of humor and relaxation. The cosmonaut said he had found Americans had the ability to relax away from work.

Petrov said that although, like their Russian counterparts, American space engineers "devote too much time to work and not enough to leisure; not enough to families and entertainment... they are masters at utilizing their spare time."

The top Russian space official also praised the Americans as "pleasant, kind and friendly human beings. I think we are very lucky in general for a chance to work with such competent people."

The Soviet delegation was welcomed at the Apollo spacecraft by Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford, commander of the American crew for the joint mission, who greeted each Russian official with a bear hug. Crewmembers Donald Slayton and Vance Brand were also on hand to meet the Soviet delegates.

The cosmonaut crewmembers, Alexei Leonov and Valery Kubasov, are scheduled to arrive at the space center Saturday accompanied by six other cosmonauts.

Survey Company Reports Burglary

Pampa detectives are continuing investigation of an apparent burglary attempt at the Omega Geophysical Survey Co., located in the 1800 block of North Hobart.

Police were called to the office Tuesday by an employee, Clarence Christman.

A check in the building did not reveal anything missing.

Police reports indicate no sign of forced entry was evident but the office of the company was ransacked and marks on a locked desk indicated the burglar had attempted to force the drawer open.

Pampan To Face Burglary Charges

Mike Nesbit, 31, Pampa, has been returned to Dumas by a Moore County Deputy to face charges of burglary.

Nesbit was arrested by city police at a Pampa residence on a warrant issued at Dumas. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace E.L. Anderson, who set bond at $20,000.

Easier Credit Soon?

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer
The Federal Reserve Bank, says it intends to make more and easier credit available to fight the recession.

Effective today, the Federal Reserve made it cheaper for commercial banks to borrow "overnight" from the Fed's reserve funds.

In the third decline in as many months, the Fed lowered the discount rate on such loans to 6 1/2 percent from 7 1/4 percent.

"It is a signal by the Federal Reserve to the market place that it intends to pursue a somewhat more expansive monetary policy than it has heretofore," said Leaf Olsen, chief economist at First National City Bank.

Olsen said other recent action by the Fed, including the lowering of the amount of cash banks must keep in reserve to cover deposits and the purchase of government securities, has had greater influence in creating more money for commercial loans.

But, he said, a more significant factor in declining interest rates has been the dwindling demand for loans.

In an encouraging development for the auto industry, automakers said new car sales in the final 10 days of January jumped 42 per cent over the middle of the month. Detroit credited the cash rebate promotions for the gain.

President Ford, in his Atlanta news conference, cited the rebate program as an example of how "good old American free enterprise" can help get the economy moving.

"The unusual and I think successful marketing technique shown by the automotive industry in the last few months, and the announcement that some of the appliance manufacturers are going to use the same techniques... will have a very good stimulus, not only to the economy but to public confidence," Ford said.

In Europe, the U.S. dollar, shored up by the Federal Reserve and European central banks, gained strength against European currencies Tuesday.

On the New York Stock Exchange, stock prices were down slightly at the close after larger losses in early trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than 10 points at the outset, lost 3.37 at 708.07. Volume again was heavy with 25.4 million shares traded.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

THURSDAY, FEB. 6 Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]:
Your birthday today: You have extensive freedom for experiment during the first three-quarters of the year and should use it fully. In the last few months, draw on what you've learned and settle into a successful pattern of reasonable, consistent effort. Relationships thrive despite complex circumstances. Today's natives do better in their own enterprises and with their own planning.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Keep your sense of humor and remain unruffled or at least nonchalant when the joke is on you. Don't join in the general tendency to boast or act pompously.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Do it yourself if need be, but get something done to change your direction. No one is very willing to concede or put in a full share. Inspect purchases carefully today.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Sudden decisions are as valid as any; trust your intuition, particularly in unfamiliar activities. Make the rounds; catch up on neglected social contacts and family news.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Whatever has stalled or failed can be mended or replaced late today. Easily gained cash is easily spent. Discipline yourself to put some aside for emergencies.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Step back a little, let others promote their views and learn from their criticism. Group action yields enjoyment and friendly competition. You'll feel better if you set limits on your self-indulgence.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Now that you've finally heard the worst (and the best) about those you cherish, do something constructive for them. Try for direct, simple approaches and don't fake anything now.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Sales resistance rises; let things ride. Catch up on inventory or equipment; reshuffle plans for future venture in a different direction. Don't take or give loans for now.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Listen for valuable information. Trade on your own merits rather than anyone else's enterprise. Bargains are illusory; windowshop, try it on, but don't buy yet.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You're on a collision course with others who feel they have authority. Think about what you're doing; revise plans before risking a showdown. Facts and figures need rechecking.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Keep a middle-of-the-road policy. Once over lightly is enough; belaboring a point defeats your best efforts. Accept that it's all in good fun.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Arrange interviews, call on important contacts, but don't close deals since today's discussion is exploratory. Avoid overly elaborate, expensive pastimes.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT DIAL 669-2525

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unusually large deficit forecast by President Ford in his budget message this week brought about an unusually large surplus of congressional reaction.

If you have ever wondered where all that reaction was coming from, perhaps I can be of service.

In the way that a nuclear reactor is the core of an atomic power plant, the core of legislative power is the congressional reactor.

Located behind thick lead walls in a restricted area of the Capitol, the reactor is marvelously productive.

In a single day it can generate enough high-voltage comment to enlighten a city the size of St. Paul, Minn.

Nevertheless, it is far from perfect. Safeguards presently available have not eliminated the danger of over-reaction.

Accidents of that nature, which are fairly common, can be either quantitative or qualitative.

Quantitative over-reaction occurs when the volume of comment exceeds public interest in the subject matter by a ratio of more than 10 to 1.

Qualitative over-reaction takes place when the intensity of the comment, pro or con, exceeds the significance of the subject matter by 10 to 1.

Quantitative over-reaction is generally harmless, but qualitative over-reaction can cause severe damage to reputations, careers and other fragile resources.

Another disadvantage is the large amount of dross, or waste material, that is produced by the reaction process.

If released into the mainstream of public opinion, this material, which is extremely toxic and contaminating, could cause a great deal of thought pollution.

Thus far, no satisfactory means of disposing of these byproducts has been devised. But fortunately the impurities rapidly dissipate and diffuse as they cross the country.

Weighted against these drawbacks is the reactor's wondrous efficiency. The smallest bits of trivia will trigger some congressional reaction.

And when highly volatile material such as the budget message is available, it operates at peak capacity for days.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1975 with 239 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter, Saturn and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American evangelist Dwight
Moody was born Feb. 5, 1838.

On this day in history:

In 1631, British clergyman
Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.

In 1904, Russia and Japan broke off diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

In 1971, American astronaut
Alan Shepard and Edward Mitchell of Apollo 14 walked on the moon for four hours.

In 1974, Patricia Hearst, 19-year-old daughter of San Francisco publisher Randolph Hurst, was spirited away from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif., by assumed kidnapers.

A thought for the day:
American statesman Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision, you had better abandon the ocean."

Committee Rejects Hunting In Parks

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A Senate committee has decided to keep hunters out of state parks.

The Intergovernmental Relations Committee rejected 4-3 a bill Tuesday by Sen. D. Roy Harrington, D-Port Arthur, to allow controlled hunting of migratory waterfowl in the Sea
Rim State Park in Jefferson County.

Harrington said hunting should be allowed because part of the park is virtually inaccessible marshland bypassed by the public.

"Especially in the wintertime
during duck season, there wouldn't be half a dozen people who would go in there,"
Harrington said.

But Bob Burleson, a member of the state Parks and Wildlife Commission, said the department has plans to develop the park's marshlands so visitors can canoe and hike along boardwalks to "see and interpret the coastal wetlands."

"The present state of un-development if a temporary stage only," Burleson said.

Another commission member,
John Green of Beaumont, argued the bill should be approved. He said with proper management, hunting could provide additional recreational benefits to the park.
There would be little or no
friction between those people who wish to use the park during days of hunting and those who would use it for other purposes such as birdwatching," Green

said.

A group of Dallas conservationists called the Texas Committee on Natural Resources also opposed the bill, although none of its members testified at the hearing.

"Practically the entire state, including six million acres of public land, is open to hunting," a statement by the group's president, Edward G. Fritz, said.
"The meager portion within state parks should be kept free of hunting so that the people can enjoy the public open space at all seasons without suffering the danger of flying shot and the disturbance of gunfire."

Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, said opening this one park to hunters could start a chain reaction.

"Next year they're going to come here wanting to hunt deer
someplace else and turkeys
someplace," Clower said.

"I feel like it's an opening and an erosion of our state park system," Burleson said. "The reasons the parks were created was to protect the land from encroachment by the hunters."

The Parks and Wildlife Commission can vote to open parks to hunting only if it is a biological necessity resulting from a diseased animal population. Sea Rim was opened to hunters in the 1973-74 season, Burleson said, because ducks were bringing in cholera as they migrated from northern states.

FOR VENUE CHANGE

Mauzy Defends Erwin's Request

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen.
Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, who often opposed former University of Texas regents chairman Frank C. Erwin Jr., will help defend Erwin against drunk driving charges.

"Roy and I try cases together
all the time," Mauzy said Tuesday when asked why he joined Erwin's defense team with attorneys Roy Minton and Charles Burton.

"I represent people all the time that I don't agree with politically," Mauzy said.
"Anybody's entitled to a fair trial."

Testimony continued Tuesday in the second day of the hearing on a change of venue motion for Erwin. Defense lawyers asked radio news reporters to read volumes of accounts compiled on the Erwin case since he was arrested Oct. 8 on a drunk driving charge.

Erwin's lawyers contend he cannot get a fair trial in Austin because of publicity about his drunken driving arrest and his 12-year term as a regent that was frequently marked with controversy.

Mauzy said unless Erwin is granted a change of venue he will use his option as a legislator to delay the trial. Mauzy is entitled under law to a delay until 30 days

after the current session ends
June 2.

"It depends on whether they
grant a change of venue," Mauzy
said when asked if he would use
the legislative continuance privilege. "I'm very busy in trying to pass a public school
finance bill."

He said if the trial is moved
from Austin it probably will not
begin before summer anyway.

During Tuesday's testimony,
Howard V. Rose, a former UT
fraternity brother and law
partner of Erwin's, described
him as a man who speaks his
mind and generates publicity
because of the controversial
things he says.

"From the tremendous amount of publicity from an
elongated period, it seems to me
it has gotten to be such an emotional and political issue that it has polarized people," Rose
said.

"It would be virtually impossible to even the fairest selection process to rid the jury panel of this emotional and political issue."

Bob Schrader, news director of radio station KNOW, said he believed it impossible for Erwin
to get a fair trial in Austin. He played a tape of man-on-the-street interviews his station
conducted in which opinions
were equally divided over whether Erwin could be tried
fairly in the city.

Erwin was acquitted on
another drunken driving charge
in 1972 in a trial moved to Belton.

after the current session ends
June 2.

"It depends on whether they
grant a change of venue," Mauzy
said when asked if he would use
the legislative continuance
privilege. "I'm very busy in
trying to pass a public school
finance bill."

He said if the trial is moved
from Austin it probably will not
begin before summer anyway.

During Tuesday's testimony,
Howard V. Rose, a former UT
fraternity brother and law
partner of Erwin's, described
him as a man who speaks his
mind and generates publicity
because of the controversial
things he says.

"From the tremendous
amount of publicity from an
elongated period, it seems to me
it has gotten to be such an
emotional and political issue that
it has polarized people," Rose
said.

"It would be virtually impossible to even the fairest selection
process to rid the jury panel of
this emotional and political
issue."

Bob Schrader, news director of
radio station KNOW, said he
believed it impossible for Erwin
to get a fair trial in Austin. He played a tape of man-on-the-
street interviews his station
conducted in which opinions
were equally divided over
whether Erwin could be tried
fairly in the city.

Erwin was acquitted on
another drunken driving charge
in 1972 in a trial moved to Belton.

FOR GOLF COURSE

Report Claims Nothing Illegal In UTPB Funds

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The way in which administrators spent money at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin was "poor at best" and did not "bear the stamp of good administrative judgment," according to a report by university Chancellor Charles
A. LeMaistre.

But he said there was nothing illegal about the manner in which the money was used.

LeMaistre released a written report Tuesday of an investigation of several Permian Basin matters, including allegations of misuse of state funds for the construction of a golf course and a duck pond and expenditure of college accounts known as the excellence funds.

"Even though there are no expenditures that would appear to be illegal, the administrative and fiscal judgment in handling this entire project is poor at best," LeMaistre said of the $57,494.92 spent on the golf course.

A report about the excellence funds, designated to recruit faculty and cover items not permitted by state appropriations, showed an expenditure of $85,858 from June 9, 1970, through Dec. 15, 1974.

The money was used to recruit faculty and students, provide housing expenses for former Permian Basin President Dr.
B.H. Amstead, travel for the president, entertainment, gifts
and donations, office furniture, legal fees relating to purchase of the president's home and moving expenses of other administrative offices.

"Even though these funds
were expended at the discretion of the UTPB administration in a manner they considered consistent with the best interest of an emerging institution, the accounting for and utilization of certain of these funds does not bear the stamp of good administrative judgment of fiscal management," LeMaistre's report said.

LeMaistre and deputy chancellor E.D. Walker made the first reports on the investigations in an executive session of the board of regents Friday, and made the reports public Tuesday.

The Senate already passed a similar bill, but the House committee altered it Tuesday to insure the retirement benefit
increases can become effective on February paychecks. If the full House passes it, the changes will have to be approved by a joint conference committee.

A constitutional amendment is necessary for the benefits to continue beyond April.

The bill gives increases of up to 18 per cent for retired teachers to combat effects of higher living costs.

LeMaistre announced earlier he was turning the findings of his investigation over to the Ector County district attorney.

Committee Okays Pension Increase

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A bill
using $10 million in state funds to increase pension checks for retired teachers has been approved without dissent by the House Committee on Public Education.

The Senate already passed a
similar bill, but the House
committee altered it Tuesday to
insure the retirement benefit
increases can become effective
