

GIRL ALONE

ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

CHAPTER XXXIV

Enid Barr and Arthur Van Horn moved away from "Princess Lalla's" platform together, Enid's golden head held high, her lovely voice staccato with anger; but Sally, although she was guilty of trying to do so, could not distinguish a word that was being said.

Near the front exit of the tent Van Horn was greeted boisterously by a party of Capital City society men and women, laden with troubles from the gambling concessions on the midway. He was swept into the party, which Enid Barr refused to join, shaking her little golden head stubbornly and pretending a great interest in the midget "Pitty Sing," whose platform was nearest the exit.

Although Sally was at liberty to leave the tent until the final performance at 11 o'clock, she sat on in her throne-like chair, hoping and yet fearing that the beautiful woman would return and ask her the question which Van Horn's unwelcome interruption had left unspoken.

Enid spoke to "Pitty Sing" in her proud, offhand manner, paid a dollar for one of the midget's cheap little postcard pictures of herself, refused to take the change and was turning toward Sally's platform again when Winfield Bybee entered the tent with Gus, the harker.

Sally, watching Enid, saw the woman's involuntary start of recognition as Bybee crossed her path, saw her hesitate, then turn toward him, determination stamped on her lovely sensitive face.

When Bybee had bared his head deferentially and was begging over the small woman to hear her low-spoken words, Sally was seized with fright. She knew instinctively that Enid Barr's questions concerned her, but whether they concerned Sally Ford, run-away from the state orphanage, or "Princess Lalla," false crystal-gazer, she had no way of knowing. All she knew for certain was that Enid had overheard Betty's shriek: "That's not Princess Lalla! That's Sally Ford—play-acting!" And she fled, feeling Enid's eyes upon her but not daring to look back.

There was less than half an hour before the next and final show was to start. She spent the time in the dressing tent, wishing with all her heart that she was through work for the day and that she could go to David. Poor David! Lying wounded in a stuffy, hot berth, tormented with worries as to the future and possibly with regrets for the past, while Eddie Cobb strutted on the midway as the hero of the safe robbery.

It would be better for David, infinitely better, if she could screw up her courage to the point of going back to the orphanage and taking her punishment. It would be so simple! She had only to seek out Enid Barr and say to her: "I am Sally Ford! Send for mine Stone." And perhaps Enid would intercede for her, for she seemed so very kind.

"Wake up, Sally," Bass, one of the dancers of the "girlie show," called to her, as she came shuffling into the tent and tutored her. "Gus is bally-hooing your show."

Yes, her mind was made up. She would tell Enid Barr, beg her to intercede with the orphanage for her and with the police for David. But there was no Enid Barr among the audience at the last show of the evening, and even Van Horn was absent. In spite of her good resolutions Sally felt an immense relief. Reprieve! She certainly could not give herself up if there was no one to give up to!

"Going to the show train to see David?" Gus whispered, when the last show was finished and the audience was straggling toward the exits. "Of course!" Sally cried. "Is he worse? Don't hide anything from me, Gus."

"Worse!" Gus laughed. "Bybee says he's yelling for food and threatens to get up and cook it himself if they don't give him something besides mush and milk. Come along! I'll walk you over to the show train. You're too pretty to be allowed to go alone. Some village lude would be trying to kidnap you."

"They found David sitting up in his berth, working cross-word puzzles, Mrs. Bybee sitting in the edge of his bed to ot down the words as he gave them to her."

"Reckon you won't need the old lady now that the young 'un's come to hold your hand and make a fuss over you," Mrs. Bybee grumbled jealously.

"What's that? What's that?" Winfield Bybee, who had come over from the carnival grounds in a service car, demanded from the doorway. "Been flirting with my wife, young man? Reckon I'll have to put the gloves on with you when that crippled wing of yours is O. K. Well, Sally, old Pop has gone you another good hurr."

Sally paled and reached instinctively for David's left hand. "Oh! You mean—Mrs. Barr, the lady who was talking to you?"

"Nothing else but!" Bybee nodded, smiling at her. "She tried to make me admit you was Sally Ford and I acted innocent as a new-born lamb. Told her you'd been with us since we left New York."

"Why is she so interested in Sally, dr. Bybee?" David asked quietly.

"She loved a carnival wasn't no lace for a pure young girl," Bybee huddled. "She said they was awful anxious over at the orphanage to get Sally back, away from her life of sin, and that personally she took a powerful interest in unfortunate girls and was determined to see Sally safe back in the Home if 'Princess Lalla' was Sally Ford. I lied like a gentleman for you, child. Told her she was a nice little dame and all that, but clear off her case in this 'n' case. Reckon I put it across all right, for she shut up and went to her party show."

"I think she's wonderful," Sally surprised them all by speaking up almost sharply. "She's just trying to be kind. She doesn't know how awful an Orphan's home can be."

"Come along, Mother Let's give these two kids a chance. But you mustn't stay long, Sally. Tomorrow's Saturday, and you ought to be enough of a trouper by now to know what that means. We read South Saturday night, riding all day Sunday."

"Out of the state?" Sally and David cried in unison.

"Yep. Out of the state. You kids'll be safe then. The police ain't going to bother about extradition for a couple of juvenile delinquents. So long, Davey. Don't let this little Jane keep you awake too late."

"I'll leave in 15 minutes," Sally promised joyfully.

And she kept her promise. Her lips were smiling tenderly, secretly, at the memory of David's goodnight kiss, when she left the car and began to look about for someone to walk back to the carnival grounds with her, for she was too sleep in the dress tent that night, the storm-soaked mattresses having dried in the sun all day.

Gus had told her he would be waiting for her, but she could not find him. She went the length of the train to the privilege car, pushing open the door cautiously to peep within. At least a score of men of the carnival family were seated at three of four tables, their heads almost unrecognizable through the thick layers of cigar and cigaret smoke. There was little conversation except an occasional oath, but the steady clacking of poker chips upon the bare tables came to her distinctly.

She closed the door noiselessly and jumped from the platform of the coach to the ground. It would be mean to disturb Gus, she reflected, for he loved ed poker better than anything except ballyhoo, and there was no real reason why she should not walk to the carnival grounds alone.

Of course she would be conspicuous on the streets in her "Princess Lalla" costume and make-up, but if she paid no attention to anyone who tried to accost her, there was certainly not much danger. She began to run, leaving the train swiftly behind her, but she slowed to a sedate walk when she had reached the business streets through which she had to pass to reach the carnival grounds.

She was crossing Capitol Avenue, at the end of which sat the great white stone structure which gave the street its name, when a limousine skidded to a sudden stop and all all-to-familiar voice sang out:

"Princess Lalla! What in the world are you doing out alone at this time of night?"

Sally contemplated flight, but the limousine blocked her path. Before she could turn back the way she had come Van Horn stepped out of the teneau of the car.

"Let me drive you to the carnival grounds, Sally," he urged in a low voice, completely devoid of mockery for once. "It's really not safe for you to be out alone like that. Come along! Don't be prudish, child. I'm not going to harm you. Remember, I'm not that kind of man!" And he laughed as he almost lifted her into the car.

She sank back upon the cushions, feeling their depth and softness with

ptist Circles Meet Wednesday Afternoon Regular Sessions

John McKamey was hostess Tuesday afternoon to Circle Two of Baptist W. M. U. The devotional led by Mrs. G. C. Stark, using Peter 27 of Isaiah. During the meeting, reports were given of the net meeting held at Pampa during the last week. Socials have been enjoyed by the playing of games, contests. A delicious ice course served the 16 members present. Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. G. C. Stark, with Mrs. Roy McMillen as hostess.

Circle Three met in the home of Mrs. E. L. Billingsly with ten members and one visitor present. The proceedings of a regular meeting were carried out, with a general review completing the work in the book, "The Late Beautiful." The hostess served a desert course to those present. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. John Sauls at which time four members of the circle will be honored.

Miss Kate Anderson, who has been seriously ill with the flu, is reported to be improving.

CHURCHES

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Tonight we are expecting a good audience to hear Evangelist Stricklin on "Positive Laws of God." Moses killed an Egyptian, but was never condemned. When he broke a positive law by striking the rock he was denied the privilege of entering the Promised Land. David committed adultery and remained on the throne. King Saul did not utterly destroy the Amalekites, therefore was dethroned. The positive and not the moral laws test our faith. Hear this interesting subject at 8 o'clock tonight.

AIR CIRCUS SUNDAY

Dare Devil Willard of Pampa will make a parachute jump from an airplane 3000 feet high Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from Young's second addition. This jump was to have been made last Sunday, but was postponed on account of the weather. Emmett Myers of Amarillo will be in charge of the airplane maneuvers. He says there will be at least two planes, and perhaps three, and they will dc stunt flying during the day as well as carry passengers.

MR. AND MRS. M. K. BROWN WILL LEAVE TOMORROW

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Brown will leave tomorrow for New York, where they will take ship for an extended vacation with Mr. Brown's relatives in England. Mr. Brown has not visited his native land in 14 years and Mrs. Brown has never been in Europe. Mr. Brown came to Pampa 25 years ago today.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. M. Arnold Jones will be held at the Malone Funeral home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. Jas. Todd Jr., pastor of the Christian church. Interment will be at a private cemetery. Mrs. Jones, 19 years old, died at her home here Wednesday night after a brief illness. She leaves her husband to mourn her loss.

THERE ARE DUTIES, such as giving attention to health and sanitation, which rest more logically upon the county as a unit than upon a municipality.

In the first place, state laws govern in both cases, to a large extent, and the state through the county has established a system of aid in connection with its laws. We refer specifically to the enabling acts passed by recent legislatures, authorizing establishment of county health units and providing appropriations to cover half of the cost of the projects.

A letter from J. C. Anderson, state health officer, advises that a special law by Fortieth legislature provided that county commissioners may expend money for public health service in any way they see fit.

Gray county commissioners and the city have been going fifty-fifty on a great many cases in which the State offers to pay half of the cost. It would be better to establish a county health unit, with county physician and county nurse, and let the State do its share out of the funds to which this county is contributing. Failure of Gray county to make use of state and projects is costing taxpayers thousands of dollars through lost services of such people as health officers, sanitary inspectors, county demonstration agents, and agricultural agents.

Relative to the health unit, it may be said that the medical society has endorsed the project and that county officials are studying the manner and method of establishment. It is high time Gray county commissioners are taking some action along this and other similar lines.

The health unit plan has demonstrated its efficiency in many counties of the Southwest. Aside from the usual free service of doctor and nurse—such as ordinary practitioner are compelled to give here now—the health units go far into disease control, sanitation work, school practice, and health campaigns. Sanitation alone is a big problem, providing all places where food is kept are regularly inspected and all food handlers are examined.

The expense of the county unit is so little more than is ordinarily spent that it seems a waste of opportunity and service not to adopt the system provided by law.

What is Texas going to do with the insanity question?

Governor Moody has endorsed the action of the State Bar association in recommending establishment of a state asylum for the criminally insane. Persons pleading insanity as mitigating an offense would, if acquitted for that reason, be sent to the asylum without further ado. Moreover, the asylum treatment would be continued indefinitely, or until the person were found sane.

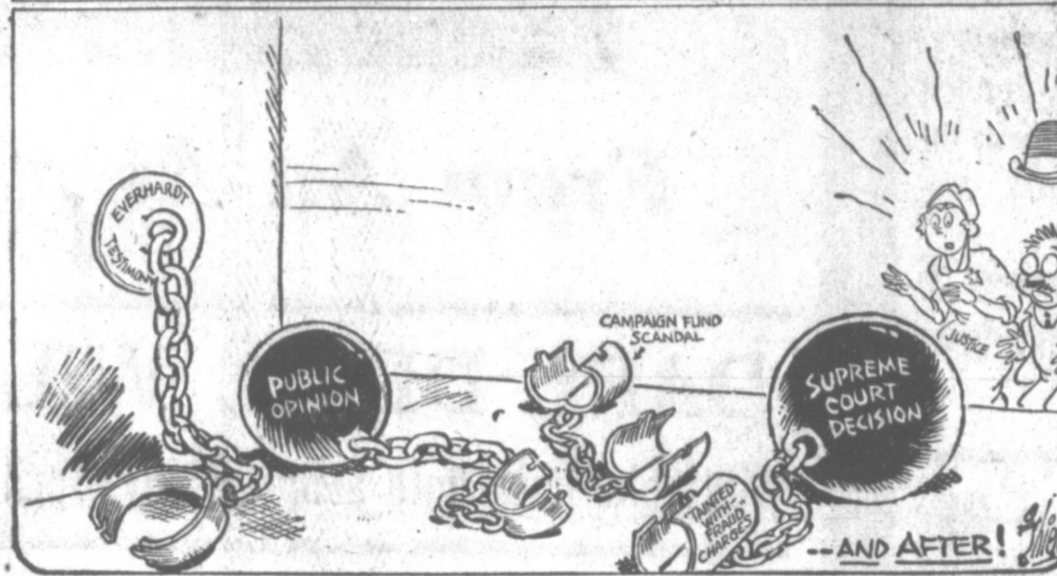

This method, it is believed, would eliminate many pleas of insanity and afford protection for both the defendants and society.

The degree of insanity

Shades of Houdini!

THE WAY IT LOOKED BEFORE

which would make crimes beyond the scope of responsibility, to the extent that release of the defendant would be conditional upon recovery from the pathologic condition, is difficult of determination, and Texas laws are both harsh and inadequate in this regard. Insanity is often induced by violent living and cured by enforced temperance. Shall freedom be granted on recovery of the faculties in this manner? The criminologist will answer that criminal tendencies can be noted even when there is ordinary mental and physical health; in other words, moral sickness is pathologic and determinable. Granting this, we must leave much of jurisprudence to the physician and psychologist and retain the ordinary legal system for those who are "less insane".

In short, Texas needs better recognition of insanity and more efficient disposition of the criminally insane, and also more teeth in the laws pertaining to pleas of insanity and confinement of those who are found insane. There is danger that the shyster lawyers—than whom there are no more destructive public practitioners—will entangle Justice in a mesh of restrictions conceived solely to prevent punishment of offenders.

Harmony in Democratic ranks is somewhat contrary to pure democratic principles if gained through a pledge to support yet unselected candidates. As a means for party success, however, it is important. The party method is the best yet devised for a republic, but it is faulty in making rubber stamp voting essential to national success.

The attitude of a lot of boxing fans toward Gene Tunney is amusing, especially since appears that Gene is sincere about his literature and really knows something of Shakespeare. On the other hand, if boxing is basically the low-brow art the fans say by their attitude, the Gentlemen's attitude also is somewhat amusing.

KOPECKY STILL LOCAL CHAMP

Beast Young Sampson In Match Full of Action

Another wild and wooly wrestling match was staged at the Pla-Mor auditorium last night when Joe Kopecky left the ring twice, propelled by Young Sampson of Borger, substituting for Jack Vincent, who got stuck in the mud near Shamrock. The rough and tumble Kopecky took the first fall with a cradle hold in 20 minutes and the last fall in fifteen minutes with one of his famous flying toe holds.

The preliminary event saw the old-timer Elmer Guthrie in the ring with Leo Chase and he gave evidence of what he had been in former days. The match went fifteen minutes with no clean exhibition with Gus Gordon as the third man in the ring, and the latter was kept busy keeping out of the way of the flying artists.

Guthrie has not been in the ring for a number of years but he has lost none of his old tricks and cunning holds. He had Chase in difficulty many times with arm bars, toe holds and body slams that only youth withstood.

Kopecky, the most disliked wrestler in the ring today, entered in a blaze of glory but it was soon apparent that he had his match in Young Sampson. From the first hold everything was action, the youngster displaying more strength than Kopecky and using it to advantage.

The tough Kopecky immediately started his famous headlocks but after the first two, which landed him across the ropes, he became more careful and started the rough stuff. Flying mares, toe holds, and arm bars were fashionable the first few minutes with the kid having the advantage.

Kopecky took a series of headlocks and when Sampson became careless Kopecky took a cradle lock which put Sampson's shoulders for the count.

Coming back strong, Sampson picked up and threw him through the ropes into the crowd, which very much displeased the oldtimer who had never suffered such indignities in Pampa. He came back into the ring ready to finish the match but in an attempted headlock went over the ropes and landed among the spectators for the second time.

This last dignity seemed to increase the rough boy, who immediately went wind and for a few minutes nothing could be seen but flying legs. The youngster came out on top but groggy. The Kopecky launched his famous flying toe hold and Sampson gave up at the end of fifteen minutes.

Harris Here to Train for Fight Monday Evening

Bucky Harris arrived here this morning and commenced training this afternoon for his big battle with Warnie Smith next Monday night at the Pampa Athletic club. Smith has also moved in from Roxapa and will train every afternoon at the club. Training will commence at 2:30 o'clock.

These two fighters were to have met here two weeks ago, but owing to injuries Harris could not appear. Fight fans believe Harris is the only boy who can stay with Smith end after his showing here against Russ Beckwith he may give the veteran a hard battle an day the distance. He fought a sensational ten round battle in Hutchinson last Monday night.

Warnie Smith is probably the best who has appeared in the local arena since its beginning. He is an oldtimer with 250 battles to his credit, and has never been knocked out.

BASEBALL CLUB PLANNED HERE

Legion Seeks Park in City Limits—Players Scattered

What chance has Pampa to have another real ball club this year? Some of last year's material is on hand and many athletes of prominence have moved into the city since last year, and it is the opinion of backers that a real ball club could be organized with the support of the city. An effort is being made, with the assistance of the American Legion to secure a location for a park within the city limits.

Of last year's players and active members, there remain in the city Ed Goyer, last year's manager and organizer Johnnie Weeks, Lou Hunter Harry Hoare, Rusty Cahill, Kenneth Narrein, Lefty Reynolds, and "Big" Swamer.

The star members of the old Grays are well scattered throughout the country as a check up shows.

Jack Goyer is playing with Midland in the new West Texas League. The same league after finishing last "Hook" Shaw is managing Hamlin in season with Beaumont.

Red Gailther is trying out with Tulsa in the Western League.

Sam Scaling reported to Selma, Ala. this season, but returned to Lubbock for seasoning.

Dutch Huse is playing ball in Lincoln this season.

Bob Clark is with the Humble Oil company in Pyote, but not playing ball.

Tom Clayton is in Clarendon, but may leave to join one of the Western League teams.

Babe Ruth is in Drumright and ready to report when called.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church wish to thank the Baker school, fire department, newspapers, I. S. Jameson, Pampa Band, Pla-Mor Orchestra, and doctors and nurses, and all who in any way helped make the Merchants Carnival and Pure Food show a success.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: The cost of discipleship.

Scripture Lesson: Mark 10:17-27; 12:41-44.

Mark 10:17. And as he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?

18. And Jesus said unto him, why callest thou me good? none is good save one, even God.

19. Thou knowest the commandments Do not kill. Do not commit adultery. Do not steal. Do not bear false witness. Do not defraud. Honor thy father and mother.

20. And he said unto him, Teacher, all these things have I observed from my youth.

21. And Jesus looking upon him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: Go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come follow me.

22. But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful; for he was one that had great possessions.

23. And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, how hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24. And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answered them again and saith unto them, Children, how hard it is for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God.

25. And they were astonished exceedingly, saying unto him, Then who can be saved?

Jesus looking upon them saith, with men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God.

Mark 12:41. And he sat down over against the treasury, and beheld how the multitude cast money into the treasury; and many that were rich cast in much.

42. And there came a poor widow, and she cast in two mites, which make a farthing.

43. And he called unto him his disciples, and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, This poor widow cast in more than all they that are casting into the treasury:

44. For they all did cast in of their superfluity; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living.

Time—The rich ruler, March, A. D. 30, in the last year of Christ's earthly life. The widow's mites, Tuesday, April 4, on Christ's last day of public teaching.

Place—The rich young ruler, in Persea. The widow, in the temple at Jerusalem.

Golden Text—Where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be also—Matt. 6:21.

Introduction

Our Lord was in Persea, and seems to have been starting out on his last journey to Jerusalem, his immediate objective being many. Some of Christ's most important conversations and miracles were wayside ministries. He "went about doing good," and his life sets us an example, that we also should be ready to drop our present occupation whenever a chance to be helpful presents itself to us. "There ran one to him." The Master was leaving the town, and the young man felt that his great opportunity was slipping away. He came up panting, proving his zeal for knowledge by his eagerness, and making it manifest that Jesus had gained a hold upon him by his deeds and words so that he set a high value on his wisdom. Earnestness alone gains prizes, in the material and the spiritual world alike. We learn from Matt. 19:22 that the man was young, from Mark 10:22 that he was very wealthy, and from Luke 18:18 that he was one of the rulers or lay managers of the local synagogue. "And kneeled to him." This did not mean that the young man recognized Christ as divine, but it was merely the usual way of showing respect for the distinguished rabbi.

"Why Callest Thou Me Good?" v. 18

"And Jesus said unto him, why callest thou me good?" Matt. 19:16 gives the full form of the young man's question, "What good thing shall I do?" with the corresponding answer from Christ: "Why callest thou me concerning that which is good?" The reply given in both Mark and Luke on the young man's calling Christ good Teacher. "Probably both allusions were included in the conversation, which is reported here very briefly. Christ's answer emphasizes the "why." "With what idea of goodness do you call me good?" "None is good save one, even God." This is not to deny goodness on Christ's part, still less to deny union with God. Our Lord was trying to lift the young man's mind above the doing of good deeds on to the spiritual plane, and to show him that only by the reception of the Spirit of God can any one become really good and thereby receive from God eternal life, the life of God.

"One Thing Thou Lackest." v. 21

"And said unto him, One thing thou lackest." It was only one thing, but it was the essential thing. "If the young ruler had been able to make the last sacrifice, then one dares to think he would become a chief apostle, and the rival of St. Paul."—Ian McLaren.

"Go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor." This command, it is to be noted, was addressed to the young man personally, and was intended to meet his special need. It is not to be taken as a universal requirement of poverty. Christ did not make this demand of his other rich friends. Indeed, if all Christians should distribute their possessions among the poor they would simply pauperize the world, and would deprive Christianity of its chief material means of advancing the kingdom of God. The command, however, does indicate our Lord's constant sympathy for the poor, and his feeling that giving is one of the sure tests of religion.

"The Great Refusal." v. 22

"But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful." He went away sorrowful because he had made what Dante calls "the Great Refusal." He had chosen wealth before whole-hearted devotion to Christ. "This man went away sorrowful, but you may go away joyful." "For he was one that had great possessions." Great wealth or little wealth—what difference does it make compared with the gain of Christ? Having him, we have indeed "great possession." "Within a few months hundreds in Jerusalem remembered and obeyed this saying of our Lord, and brought their goods, and laid them at the apostles' feet (Acts 4:34-37)."—John Keble. Perhaps among them was this rich young man whom Jesus loved.

"We cannot expect to prosper if we are dishonest to the Lord. He can easily enough measure back to us as we most minute coin. It was the lepton, a tiny coin, being saved by grace, bring him all their tithes, for peace and prosperity shall be their portion."—C. H. Spurgeon.

"The Wise Use of Wealth

In money-using a tremendous leakage is constantly going on. Millions of dollars are being used in wasteful and unnecessary ways that ought to be devoted to the service of God. The greatest failure in the stewardship of money is not in the matter of giving, it is in the matter of using it. Many a man is robbed when a single penny is actually spent all the way from a dime to a dollar or more, a night for the movie show, and do this several nights a week, and then give a nickel or a dime to the Lord on Sunday, the Lord is certainly not being given a square deal."

"The very rich man must have a high purpose in the use of riches, which his children can see and learn to imitate; and the convincing proof that he himself was possessed by a noble purpose will be the fact that his children escape the great danger of being brought up rich, and develop a correspondingly high purpose in their own lives."—Charles W. Eliot, L. I. D.

The Rich Poor Widow, Mark 12:41-44

"And there was a poor widow." "One poor widow," as the margin of the revised Version puts it. A single, solitary, sorrowful, poverty-stricken figure, lost in the passing crowds, but filling the Master's eye. "And she cast in two mites, which make a farthing." "Mite" is a shortened form of "minute," the most minute coin. (It was the elepton, a copper coin, the smallest made. The lepton or mite was worth one-eighth of a cent or one-sixteenth of an English penny. Being so very poor, the widow might have kept at least one mite, poor widow cast in more than all they but she chose to give all she had, "This that are casting into the treasury." Christ does not say that the gifts of the others were valueless in God's eyes, but here greatly exceeded them all because of the beautiful spirit in which it was offered. "But she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living." We talk of "the widow's mite," whereas we should speak of "the widow's mites." We say, "I cannot give much, but I will give my mite," when we intend to give a mere trifle. No one really gives "his mite" unless he gives away every cent he has, stripping himself of his possessions entirely. Few terms are so persistently misapplied.

Rich Toward God

"Money talks. It certainly does, but a Christian's conversation is pitched high. Money should talk in the right way. God, if I understood the New Testament, gauges a man by the way he spends his money, more than by the profession he makes in prayer meeting."—President Silas Evans, D. D. L. I. D.

An Investment for the Future

—a Six of Long Life and Advanced Design

a Successful Six now winning from Greater Success

Judged by even the most critical standards, the New Series Pontiac Six is months—even years—ahead of its field. Its style is the height of fashion—achieved with low, graceful, modish lines—emphasized by magnificent new bodies by Fisher.

Its big, economical motor has the G-M-R cylinder head, for smoothness, power, snap and speed. It introduces the cross-flow radiator into the low-price field for elimination of engine cooling cares. It has every other really worthwhile feature that progressive engineering has devised! And in addition, it has that great fundamental which has been the basis of Pontiac's ever-growing success—the great fundamental of long life!

As a result the Pontiac Six will continue to assure owners a resale value which is the marvel of the industry. When you buy a Pontiac Six you know you are getting—not only a car that is new today—but a six so advanced in style and engineering, so famous for long life that its inherent value will always be consistently high!

Girl Alone--

a childish awe. The chauffeur started the car, and Van Horne dropped a hand lightly over hers as he leaned back and regarded her quizzically.

"I'm glad I ran into you," he told her. "I suppose you've been told that Enid—Mrs. Barr—is 'hot' on your trail?"

"Yes," Sally nodded, her lips too stiff with sudden fright to form the word.

"She's almost convinced that you're really Sally Ford," he told her lightly. "And if she makes up her mind, there's nothing in heaven or hell that can stop Enid a-burr. A damnably persistent little kretch! I've never been able to understand Enid's passion for succoring fallen girls. She appears to be such a normal little pagan otherwise."

Sally said nothing because she could not. But her sapphire eyes were enormous and her mouth was twitching pitifully.

"Listen, Sally," Van Horne leaned toward her suddenly, crushing her little brown-painted hands between his own immaculate white ones. "Let me get you out of this mess! I've been thinking a lot about you—too damned much for my peace of mind! And this is what I want to do—"

"Please!" Sally gasped, shrinking far into the corner of the seat, but unable to tear her hands from his.

"Wait till you've heard what I have to say, before you begin acting like a pure and innocent maid in the clutches of a movie villain!" Van Horne commanded her scornfully.

"I want to send you to New York give you a year in a dancing academy; that trains girls for the stage, and a year in dramatic school—both at the same time, if possible. You've got to figure and the looks and the personal ity for a musical comedy star, or Arthur Van Horne is the 'rube' that you carnival people call him. What do you say, Sally? Think of it! A year or two with nothing to worry about except your studies and your dancing, and then—Broadway! I'll put you over if I have to buy a show for you! Come, Sally! Say 'thank you, Van. I'll be ready to leave tomorrow.'"

QUEENS AND GO-CARTS

"Miss Queen, We Bow to You--If Really You Are a Queen"

But to the woman with the go-cart we look and say: "Mother!"

None are too young and none too old to thrill at the sound of "Mother!"

Gaudy trappings of queens and royalty may dazzle, but the heart throb of the nation is only as strong as its Motherhood.

'Tis the Mothers of Pampa that the Clarence Saunders Store is bowing before today, and with bargains that will make the whole family happy even down to hard worked and non-smiling father, who looks serious that he may appear important—

But don't forget, Old Man, that Mother is on to your ways and knows and knows. She even knows when you don't trade with the Clarence Saunders store!
