Oil Derrick May Stand Again

By THOM MARSHALL

Within a month, if the necessary funds can be obtained, the last oil derrick that stood in the Pampa area will once again tower 96 feet above the surrounding fields.

The derrick will be the first exhibit of the Oil and Gas Museum planned for the Pampa area. C. D. Zlomke, production superintendent with City Service Oil Co., is president of the museum board.

He said that the derrick, which had been on the Sackett No. 2 well on the Petroleum International lease, is disassembled and ready to be cleaned, painted and re-erected.

Some funding for the project may come by way of a grant, according to Mrs. Fred Thompson, chairman of the Gray County Bicentennial Committee.

"If we're lucky," she said, "we'll get funds from the Texas Bicentennial Commission which will be applied toward that project."

The need for money is now, however, and the status of the funds from the commission is not currently known.

Land has been made available for the museum site by the Top of Texas Rodeo Association, Zlomke said. It will be adjacent to the rodeo arena in the Pampa Recreation Park.

The museum has been in the planning stages for about five years, but money is the problem in getting the museum to become a reality.

"We're in a little bit better shape right now than we have been," Zlomke said. "Our immediate needs are for money for pay for the restoration and erection of the derrick."

He estimated that the derrick project would require between $2,000 and $2,500.

The derrick was taken down about two months ago and was obtained for the museum through the generosity of an Arizona salvage dealer and the Gray County Bicentennial Committee, Zlomke commented.

If the derrick is restored and re-erected, it will be the only derrick standing in an area where they once were like hair on a dog's back," he said.

The museum is planned to preserve many of the old items of equipment that have become obsolete in the production of oil and gas.

"Providing we get all the display equipment donated," Zlomke said, "and he thinks it will be it will still take between $30 thousand and $40 thousand to get the museum set up."

"The total amount will not be needed all at once. We can do it item by item," he said. "But he is anxious to get started on the collection."

Many of the old items are already gone, sold salvaged, junked. "I'm not sure how many of the things we have been offered still are available," Zlomke said.

The organizational end of the museum is in order.

"We are fully incorporated and recognized by the Internal Revenue Service as a non-profit organization to which contributions are tax deductible," the corporation president said.

Certificates of recognition have been prepared and will be presented to donors by the officers of the Pampa Oil and Gas Museum Corporation, Zlomke commented.

Roy Borland is vice president and Kay Fancher is secretary-treasurer. Persons who donate a minimum of $25 a year will make up the membership.

Zlomke feels that the museum will be an interesting and educational addition to the Pampa area.

Many of the items we will have I've never even seen in operation," he said, "and I've been in the business a long time. That's what's getting away from us. And the guys that remember something about the old operations are getting harder and harder to find."

"Persons who desire more information about the museum or who wish to contribute to the museum may contact Zlomke, Borland or Fancher or the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Zlomke said.

Ford To Renew Plea Tonight For More Viet Military Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will renew his request for additional military aid for South Vietnam when he addresses a joint session of Congress tonight, top White House aides indicated today.

The aides indicated the President at least will ask for the $300 million he previously requested for South Vietnam. They also said he would ask for an undisclosed amount of money to launch—in the event of a Communist takeover of Saigon—a humanitarian airlift for the South Vietnamese who have helped the U.S. government in the past.

The President said that he had worked until 1:15 a.m. on the speech. Kissinger could be overheard to say "I've got a few suggestions."

Kissinger is reported to be pushing Ford to take a tough line, urging that adversaries be warned that the United States will stand by its commitments.

Other aides are said to be telling the President to take a more conciliatory stance and to appeal for bipartisanship during a time when the United States foreign policy objectives in Southeast Asia have been shaken.

Gen. Frederick C. Weyand returned from a fact-finding mission to South Vietnam last Friday. He has estimated that $700 million is needed to put the South Vietnamese Army back on its feet.

He still has before Congress a request for $300 million in military aid for South Vietnam and $220 million for Cambodia. He gave some indication at a news conference last week in San Diego that he might seek even more funds to help South Vietnam survive.

The House easily approved the final four articles of the proposed new charter Wednesday, finishing the revision job begun more than two years ago by a Constitutional Revision Commission.

The charter, unanimously backed by top state officials, is almost identical to the basic document which failed by three votes in the waning minutes of the seven-month 1974 Constitutional Convention.

The right to work issue, generally blamed for the failure of the 1974 convention, was not mentioned during the two days of House debate and is not included in the new charter.

The legislature of this state in many respects has received a bad rap," said Rep. Ray Hutchinson, R-Dallas, chairman of the House committee which put the proposed charter together.

"This is a good constitution. We can now hold our heads a little bit higher and stand a little bit straighter."

Rep. Bill Sullivant, D-Gainesville, who sponsored the revision in the House, told colleagues after the final vote "Officials of this state and members of the legislature have shown real statesmanship that has no superiors and damn few equals in the United States of America."

They said an article by article revision couldn't be done," Sullivant said. "We have

During the final day of debate House members turned down attempts to legalize lotteries, put a ceiling on state taxing authority and tighten the prohibitions against electronic eavesdropping.

Rep. David Finney, D-Fort Worth, failed in his bid to insert in the constitution a provision limiting state taxes to no more than 8 per cent of the total personal income of the state.

New Chief Says Police Work Is More Than Job

By THOM MARSHALL

"I am a police officer. It is my job, it is my hobby, it is my life. I'm a police chief because I want to advance in my job," said Richard J. Mills, 35, Pampa's new chief of police.

Mills moved into a furnished apartment in Pampa Saturday after driving his new Ford from Lake Worth, the Fort Worth suburb where he was chief for the past two and a half years.

"I didn't buy a new car to move up here," he said. "I got it because I had to. My wife was in an accident Feb. 28. A loaded cable dump truck ran into her. It demolished the car and she is still under a doctor's care."

Mills said that when he still was quite young he decided to become a policeman.

"I knew some police officers that impressed me as being fine people," he said. "There also was a little desire for adventure. I guess. Police work seemed to be where the action is. I also like people."

The chief said he soon learned that police work was not so much action as service.

"The Police Department is a service organization," he said, "responsible for the protection of the citizens."

Mills said "it is too soon to say what, if any, changes will be made. Hopefully, we will do a lot of work with children — teaching them safety."

In Lake Worth he worked as the departmental safety education officer. He said that he feels the work accomplished much in helping protect the children because of the big traffic problem that existed in Lake Worth.

Traffic wasn't the only problem.

"We had almost as much crime as Pampa does," Mills said, "and Lake Worth is only about one-fourth Pampa size."

He attributed the high crime rate to Lake Worth's location — neighboring Fort Worth — and to the fact that it is a major recreational area for the Fort Worth region.

Included among the duties of Pampa's police chief are planning the work of the department, budgeting, organizing men and material, directing and coordinating activities, recruiting and training new officers, law enforcement, protecting the life and property of citizens and serving as a public relations officer for the department.

In speaking on his duties, Mills commented that "the city charter and state law say that the police chief is the chief law enforcement officer for the city. He is responsible for the administration of the Police Department and for seeing that the department operates in the most efficient manner possible. He is responsible for providing the most efficient law enforcement service to the public."

Mills said he considers himself "the same as any other department head in the city government. I am responsible for the city employees in the police department under the city manager. In addition to law enforcement, our duties include keeping the city jail."

One of Mills' beliefs is that "Discretion is part of law enforcement. If you enforced every law without regard to the circumstances, you wouldn't need any special qualities to be an officer. An officer has to take into consideration the offense and when and where it happened."

He added that "anytime you have a judgement situation, somebody isn't going to like the decision."

Pampa's police department employs 22 commissioned officers and 10 civilian employees.

By law, the police department is confined to enforcing criminal laws, traffic laws and city ordinances.

Answering a question about drugs in Pampa, Mills said, "I don't know of any place that doesn't have a drug problem. We have one in Pampa and we intend to continue our enforcement of drug violations as a high priority item."

Mills is a senior at Texas Christian University and is majoring in criminal justice. He will graduate in May of 1976 after completing two courses by extension.

Judge Orders Debtors To Pay Rock Island

CHICAGO (UPI) — The judge overseeing the Rock Island line's bankruptcy proceedings has ordered all other railroads immediately to pay their debts to the Rock Island.

The order was issued Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr to help resolve the severe cash problem which has plagued the Rock Island.

William M. Gibbons, the court-appointed trustee looking into the Rock Island's financial condition, said more than $1 million in delinquent accounts is due the railroad.

He said some railroads have failed to pay the Rock Island freight charges, car rents and other charges because they were offsetting such sums against amounts owed them by the Rock Island prior to the railroad's petition last month for reorganization.

McGarr said he "expects all railroads to settle all interline obligations immediately without any offsets — or answer to the court."

The order strengthened earlier directives dealing with those owing debts to the railroad, court sources said.

The Rock Island declared bankruptcy March 18, leaving its fate in the hands of the federal courts and the Interstate Commerce Commission after unsuccessfully applying for a $30 million loan from a federal agency.

On March 28, McGarr appointed Gibbons, a Chicago attorney, trustee to oversee the railroad's operations through the federal railroad reorganization process. The judge also ordered the line to continue its operations in 13 states and over 7,500 miles of track at least through May 15.

House Approves Final Revision, Constitution Now Up to Voters

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An article-by-article revision of the Texas Constitution, the first such rewrite in 99 years, needs only one more Senate vote to be submitted to voters in a special election Nov. 4.

The House easily approved the final four articles of the proposed new charter Wednesday, finishing the revision job begun more than two years ago by a Constitutional Revision Commission.

The charter, unanimously backed by top state officials, is almost identical to the basic document which failed by three votes in the waning minutes of the seven-month 1974 Constitutional Convention.

Local Unemployment Looks Better Than State Figures

While Texas unemployment payments reportedly jumped 25 per cent last month, with a record one-day high of $1.2 million on March 18, the situation in Pampa is not as bleak according to Bill Ragsdale, office manager at the Pampa Office of the Texas Employment Commission.

Ragsdale explained that an office the size of Pampa's does not have the staff or time to compile monthly statistical information. But he said, "We believe Pampa to have a lower unemployment rate than the state average and the state average is lower than the national average."

There were 62 new claims established at the Pampa office for the month of March, Ragsdale reported. That number was down from 90 new claims in February.

We are just out of a seasonal high — January, February and March," Ragsdale said.

In a United Press International story, Bob Bullock, state comptroller, said that March unemployment payments in Texas totaled $20.4 million — up nearly 25 percent from $16.8 million in February.

The number of jobless workers in the state receiving payments ranged from 14,616 to 24,928 during the month.

Unemployed workers are eligible for $15 to $63 a week

Glance at World News

SAIGON (UPI) — Tens of thousands of refugees fled in panic toward Saigon today, ahead of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops, attacking government towns and outposts along a 13-mile stretch of Highway 1. The major battle was at Xuan Loc, a provincial capital 38 miles northeast of Saigon, where human wave assaults were mounted against outnumbered defenders. Waves of South Vietnamese warplanes bombarded Communist positions at Trang Bom, a district capital and smoke from the area could be seen in downtown Saigon. There also were reports of heavy clashes in the Mekong Delta.

depending on their previous salary. The comptroller's office issues checks on a daily basis to smooth the workload.

Bullock said his office's first million dollar day was Feb. 19. The total amount of unemployment checks issued in one day topped $1 million another six times during the month of February and nine times during March.

"It is only a matter of time until this situation shows up in declining tax revenues," the comptroller said.

The picture in Pampa is a contrast.

In general, Ragsdale said, Pampa has experienced a couple of excellent years — the best two years in our history. We definitely have a good, optimistic attitude among local businessmen and we are lucky in that we have no industry of the type hardest hit.

WITH ALL ITS WEAKNESS

CIA Is Front Line of Defense

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF WASHINGTON D.C. — Press performance on the CIA investigation is a combination of superficiality, naivety and irresponsibility that is making it difficult for the Rockefeller Commission and the Senate and House committees to do a thorough and balanced investigation...

Investigators express private concern over the problem of presenting a balanced picture that avoids an overreaction that could destroy the CIA and the FBI as effective intelligence gathering organizations.

It is agreed by most investigators that some mechanism must be created and maintained to gather international intelligence. John Barron's book "KGB" is a healthy reminder of the realities of the international struggle we face...

On the one hand, press aggressiveness has been vital in stirring Congress to initiate these long overdue examinations of precisely where the CIA has overstepped its lawful charter. And fear of a depth congressional inquiry was more than a minor factor in President problem in mind as decisions are made as to what its authorized role should be.

The Rockefeller Commission and the House and Senate committees will be responsive, as they should be, to public opinion, and the press has a responsibility to keep the overall problem in perspective to avoid an over-reaction in this sensitive field.

High officials of the CIA and FBI have admitted some questionable and outright illegal activities over a period of years that demonstrate quite clearly that Congress has been lax in its oversight, and that the White House has too often been a collusive party to the illegal and questionable intelligence activities.

Other points of criticism of news stories center on these areas of irresponsibility of superficiality.

There is often little or no distinction made between the proper keeping of "files" or "dossiers" and the quite improper gathering of irrelevant or questionable information for blackmail or political purposes.

There is little or no distinction made between a proper and legal "mail cover," in which the information on the outside of the envelope is scrutinized and recorded, and the improper and in most instances illegal opening of mail to examine and photograph the contents.

There is little or no distinction made between a proper and legal wiretap under court order or under the direct authority of the attorney general and the improper and illegal abuse of authority in those instances where the law and court rulings were ignored.

There is little or no distinction made between properly authorized search and seizure of persons of buildings and illegal burglarizing in disregard of the laws and the Fourth Amendment.

As the hearings are conducted by Senate and House committees and reports are written, responsible members of the committees will be trying to draw distinctions between proper and improper intelligence activities. There will undoubtedly be much grey area where the distinction between proper and improper activity will be hard to define, and there will be some political opportunists who will find it to their advantage to try to draw unreasonable lines.

Whether the CIA will be corrected in its operation or destroyed as an effective intelligence-gathering organization will depend on whether the public and the press are mature enough to draw the important lines of distinction to permit proper and necessary functions to continue.

SENSING THE NEWS Postal Union Pressure Felt Again in Congress

By ANTHONY BARRIGAN

When Congress created a new postal corporation in 1970 in an effort to stop deterioration of service and mounting costs in the handling of mail, labor unions exerted tremendous pressure to obtain all the special privileges in the new postal corporation that they enjoy in the private sector. But while Congress did include many privileges for unions in the labor-management provisions of the postal re-organization act, it refused to grant authorization to postal employee unions to call strikes or to compel unwilling postal employees to pay union dues or fees.

In saying "no" to strikes and compulsory unionism in the postal service, Congress recognized that the strike weapon and compulsory unionism have created continuous strife and discord, and have led to declining efficiency and productivity, coupled with uneconomic cost increases. This has been the experience in the private sector and wherever these union practices have been permitted in the public sector.

Congress recognized that the public has a right to expect uninterrupted delivery of the mail, and that union disruption of this essential service was contrary to the public interest. It also recognized that, as a matter of right, no individual should be required to join or pay fees to a labor union or any other private organization in order to be permitted to work for the quasi-public postal corporation.

The public has cause for indignation that the postal employee unions are back once again pressuring Congress for extraordinary privileges that would enable them to increase their power and their income from union dues and fees. Citizens may properly question why the Sub-committee on Postal Facilities, Mail and Labor Management should give officials of these unions a forum for renewing their demands.

The kind of pressure that postal employee unions are able to exert over members of Congress, as evidenced by the holding of these hearings, is all that is needed in the way of proof that union power should be reduced rather than expanded, as would occur under the proposed legislation H.R. 55 and H.R. 56.

H.R. 55 would confer on postal workers the right to strike. And H.R. 56 authorizes compulsory unionism for postal workers.

Additional proof of the misuse of union power was given, however, by threats made by officials of the letter carriers union relative to proposed introduction of new efficiencies in the postal service.

Through experimentation, the postal service determined that after a computerized study of delivery routes, routes could be restructured so as to reduce the number of letter carriers without reducing service. The letter carriers union announced that if the plan for restructuring routes were introduced nationwide, the letter carriers would strike. The brushed aside reminders that such a strike would be in violation of the law.

According to the letter carriers union, the restructuring of routes would eliminate 15,000 jobs and reduce the cost of operating the postal service $225 million a year.

Actually, the saving to the hard-pressed postal corporation, which is running deeply in the red, could be much larger.

If union officials are permitted to get by with this kind of strike threat, or actual strike, and saddle the postal service permanently with such featherbedding, the public can only look forward to spiraling postage rates and declining service. The course of the postal service will parallel the course of bankrupt railroads, where union featherbedding has been the order of the day for many years.

Laughter is vital when taxpayers think of Washington. Oh, the urge may be more toward tears, but derision can be the best prod to bring our big bumbling bureaucracy to its senses.

Andrew Rooney, an old hand at CBS News in New York, went to Washington a few months ago and began asking questions. His wit is dry and puckish, and his sense of the ridiculous came bounding through the picture tube one Sunday night in an hour-long narrative of the ludicrous frustrations that big government put in his way.

There was the Navy admiral, confounded that Rooney had learned manuals were being rewritten to the ninth-grade level. And the awards luncheon for those who cut down on paperwork; winners had been required to submit six copies of their entries.

Widow Sick of Being Tag-along and "Go-fer"

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column all the time and usually agree with you, but the answer you gave the mother who had a running battle with her teen-age children because they wouldn't keep their rooms picked up is wrong. Dear wrong!

I am a 16-year-old boy who came to live with my father and stepmother last summer. Before I came here, I had to jump from my door to the bed if I could see it. Now, my room is so neat and orderly, it looks like the operating rooms of a hospital.

I fought it as long as I could, but my stomach and my stepmother finally won. I got no breakfast until my bed was made. She put a clothes basket in my closet, and nothing got laundered unless it was in that basket. Everything left on the floor went into a "mess box" in the garage, and I had to go there to retrieve it, which was a lot of trouble. On my day for the car, unless my room was vacuumed, no keys!

I'm glad my stepmother didn't do what you advised that other mother to do ("Say no more, keep their doors closed, and enter their rooms only to change the beds, and rake it once a week. When they get tired of living in that mess, they'll clean it up. Until then, don't let them aggravate you. It's not worth it.")

Want to know something, Abby? I've come to like it this way. I can take my friends into my room now.

PROUD OF ROOM AND WELL-FED

DEAR PROUD: Since your stepmother's formula worked with you, it's worth recommending. Thank her for hatching the idea, and thank you for sharing it.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that widows aren't asked over to their sisters' homes for a visit now and then? Are they afraid we might steal their husbands?

Nonsense! I don't want anyone's husband. But I notice that when someone in the family has a birthday or a shower, I am first on the list. I am called and asked to please pick up this or that because "You have the time."

It would be so nice to be invited over just once for a visit (I don't mean for dinner) on a Sunday or an evening just because someone wanted my company.

I never thought this could happen to me, but it did. Then my sister said: "If anything happens to my husband, I'll move in with you."

I thought: "NEVER!"

ANOTHER WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: If she says it again, why don't you say it aloud? It would do you a lot of good to say it. And her, to hear it.

Bond Sets Criteria For His Running Mate

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (UPI) — Julian Bond, who had to turn down the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1968 because he was too young, says he is now old enough for the presidential nomination and, should he win it, he already has his criteria for a running mate.

"I would like a white woman from the Northwest," Bond said Tuesday. "She needs to be Catholic, married to a Jewish oriental that speaks Spanish."

Bond, the Georgia state senator who led a challenge delegation to the 1968 Democratic National Convention, seconded the nomination of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy for the presidential nomination. He was later nominated from the floor for the vice presidential nomination, but was disqualified because he was too young.

"I was only 28," Bond told students at Henderson State

Bentsen Accuses Henry

By Randy Fitzgerald
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Here are some recent news items of interest to Texas.

ON MY HONOR — Though this may seem a little trite, the "do-a-good-deed-daily" kids, you know, the Boy Scouts, have grown up and become a majority faction in Congress — 309 of the 535 members of Congress once wore those brown shirts that painter Norman Rockwell has so set in the public consciousness.

But of that large number of scouting veterans, only about 25 made it all the way, gobbling up those merit badges to become Eagle Scouts. Four of that number are from Texas, including Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who wants to replace another Eagle Scout in the White House — Gerald Ford.

Now this may not seem like the sort of revelation that would send a patrol of little old ladies across a busy intersection to read the headlines, but one member of Congress is so intrigued by the subject that he keeps a yearly dossier on former Boy Scouts in the House and Senate.

Rep. Clarence Brown, an Ohio Democrat and Eagle Scout, has gathered a list of names that tends to show that some birds of a feather do indeed flock together.

"If we expect to keep on even moral footing with the White House, more Scouts are needed up here," said Brown after releasing his list.

The other Texans who are Eagle Scouts are Rep. Jake Pickle, D - Austin; Robert Krueger, D - New Braunfels; and Bill Acher, R - Houston.

BENTSEN BACKFIRES — An angry Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen accused Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "or someone at the State Department" of leaking cables about a Bentsen Far East trip to columnist Jack Anderson, but the accusation backfired last week when it was learned that Anderson obtained the cable through an official request.

Anderson's columns said Bentsen had nothing but praise for Kissinger in 1973, but that his public pronouncements about Kissinger's fitness for office have become more and more critical, especially after Bentsen decided to run for President. The direct implication was, of course, that Bentsen was attempting to use Kissinger as a "whipping boy" to drum up newspaper headlines and boost his struggling candidacy.

Bentsen replied to the column by claiming there was "little admirable about an attempted political smear." He said the "leaked" diplomatic cables, which expressed nothing but Bentsen's admiration for Kissinger, must have come from Kissinger or someone in the State Department. He implied that the "leaking" was an attempt to get back at him — a direct outgrowth of Bentsen's public failings at Kissinger and his foreign policy.

But the State Department defused the Bentsen accusation by revealing that the cable had been requested, along with others pertaining to more than 200 members of Congress, by Anderson's office under provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. The Anderson office confirmed the cable came from such a request.

Just Doing Her Job

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — County Clerk Clela Rorex says she'll continue to do her job. And that includes issuing marriage licenses to qualified persons, even if they happen to be of the same sex.

"I expect to get some static, though," the clerk said Tuesday. She earlier issued a marriage license to two 22-year-old women, Susan P. Mele and Sheila H. Sernovitz, who returned several hours later with the license signed by a minister.

The clerk said she also received complaining phone calls last month for issuing a marriage license to two Colorado Springs men.

"I did some serious

Bentsen's trip in 1973 took him to Australia, Indonesia, Tahiti and other locations, and cost taxpayers at least $1,200.

From Sydney, according to the cable Anderson obtained, Bentsen told the consulate officials that "Dr. Kissinger's appointment as Secretary of State was good for the Congress, the White House and the Foreign Service."

MINERAL OUTPUT — Texas continues to lead the nation in mineral output for the 40th consecutive year, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Most of the minerals were crude oil and natural gas. Total value of the state's minerals produced in 1974 was $13.8 billion, up almost 64 percent from $8.4 billion in 1973.

In a recent newsletter, Rep. Abraham Kazen, D - Laredo, also reported that Gulf Oil has discovered a potentially large gas field near Laredo and that uranium is being recovered by Arco near the same city.

UNIT MOVE — Rep. Bob Casey, D - Houston, is concerned that the Air Force will close Ellington AFB near Houston and that the "vast reservoir of reserve manpower" in the Houston area would be lost to Bergstrom AFB at Austin.

WILSON IS GRANDFATHER — OXFORD, England (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson became a grandfather Thursday for the first and second time.

Joy Wilson, wife of Wilson's son Robin, gave birth to twin girls at Oxford. Doctors said all was "well with mother and infants," who were delivered by caesarian section.

The prime minister was conducting a cabinet meeting at his 10-Downing St. offices in London when he heard the news.

Red Cross Aids

At the close of business Tuesday, the American Red Cross had a total commitment of $31,447.21 in aid to the victims of the March 27 Lefors tornado.

Red Cross officials said that 95 families had applied to that organization for assistance. Of the total commitment, $23,265 has gone for food, clothing, and maintenance; $308.92 for building and repairs; $5,593.20 for household furnishings; $61.36 for medical and nursing; $428.83 for occupational supplies and equipment and $989.90 for feeding.

The stepped-up activities of the Red Cross will continue for about 10 more days and an official said that the Red Cross "expects to continue to meet the needs of disaster victims of Lefors."

No disaster services or supplies are ever sold by the American Red Cross, according to the official.

SPRING CAMP — GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers will hold their annual spring camp for rookies, free agents and a handful of veterans this week at Scottsdale, Ariz.

The camp will open Wednesday and run through Saturday with double workouts scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

Added Farm Support Nears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate and House farm leaders moved Wednesday to prepare for final congressional action on an attempt to force emergency increases in 1975 farm price support.

Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., of the House Agriculture Committee got House approval to arrange a House-Senate conference on a price support bill which is facing threat of a presidential veto.

Aides said the conference would begin soon, perhaps Friday. It will seek a compromise between a three-year senate bill which administration officials claim would cost taxpayers $20.3 billion, and a one year House bill, which carries an administration cost estimate of $1.3 billion.

Backers of both bills contend increased support for grain and other major crops are needed to protect farmers against a possible price collapse if they produce record harvests to meet consumer needs at home and abroad.

Both bills would raise support for wheat feed grains, cotton, soybean and milk. But the Senate version, in addition to covering three years compared with the one-year House bill, provides greater increases than the House allowed for wheat, cotton, and milk.

In addition, the senate bill includes two other features hotly opposed by the administration: a one-year increase in tobacco price support, and a 90-day moratorium on beef imports.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who has publicly promised to recommend a veto even of the milder House bill, has argued that either measure would lead toward higher consumer food prices and restricted markets for farmers. Butz estimated the dairy section of the Senate bill would push consumer milk prices up by 8 cents a gallon within a year.

Key commodity provisions of the two bills include:

—corn: both measures would raise the 1975 support target to $2.25 a bushel from the present $1.10.

—wheat: the House bill would raise the 197 support target from the present $2.05 a bushel to $3.10, while the Senate version sets the target at $3.41 a bushel.

—milk: the House would set milk support at 80 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price compared, with the present support of about 78 per cent. The Senate version would lift milk support to 85 per cent of parity with a quarterly escalator clause which was also included in the House bill.

—soybean: both bills would set a soybean support loan of about $3.94 a bushel.

VP Wants Consistency In US Foreign Policy

NEW ORLEANS — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller says the United States should decide between the burdens of world leadership or abdicating global responsibility to the Soviet Union.

Mainly About People

Dr. and Mrs. Steven R. Price of Fort Worth announce the birth of a son, Steven Russell Price II, born April 4, weighing 6 lbs., 11ozs. at Groom Memorial Hospital. He is welcomed by sisters, Christine and Katherine and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Derrel B. Hogsett, Pampa, Mrs. Frankie Rea, Holtville, Calif., and Maurice R. Price, Long Beach, Calif.

Rockefeller, appearing at the closing session of the 89th American Newspaper Publishers Association Wednesday, told 1,500 publishers, editors and executives the nation's foreign policy "must be clear and consistent and one on which other nations can count."

"Maybe this country has got to decide whether, as the nation which has the capacity to stand as the bastion of human freedom, human dignity and respect for equal opportunity throughout the rest of the

Health Tax To Affect 3 Millions Unemployed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee has tentatively approved an 8 per cent tax on group health insurance premiums to provide health insurance for more than 3 million unemployed workers.

First year benefits could total $2.8 billion, the committee staff estimated.

Although the tax would be levied on Blue Cross and commercial health insurers it would eventually be passed on to employers and workers, according to testimony by the insurance industry during hearings on the legislation.

The committee expects to complete action on the emergency legislation Monday. Whatever emerges in the House is likely to run counter to legislation reported out by the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee. The financing mechanisms are sharply different.

A presidential veto is also a distinct possibility.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger told the committee in a letter of the administration's "strong opposition" to an earlier version of the bill.

Although that version was radically revised during Wednesday's mark-up session, administration opposition is not likely to diminish.

Not all the jobs would receive health insurance benefits under the tentative plan. Only those workers who had insurance coverage while they were employed and are now drawing unemployment compensation would benefit.

City Registers Opposition To Property Tax Bill

In a letter to State Rep. Phil Cates, released today by Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, the mayor registered the City of Pampa's opposition to a state legislative proposal introduced to establish countywide property tax appraisals.

In voicing the city's stand, the mayor and city commission support views expressed by City Tax Assessor - Collector Aubrey L. Jones in a March 28 statement objecting to the bill now being considered by a House committee.

Jones stated his prime objection to the bill was that it would provide state execution and control of property appraisals instead of local control.

The mayor's letter to State Representative Cates follows:

"This letter is to indicate to you the City of Pampa's opposition to House Bill 1463 in regard to countywide tax appraisals.

"The elected officials of the City do not oppose the concept of a single appraisal within the county, but we do oppose overall administration by an appointee of state government.

"It would appear that much local control would be lost in an area so vital.

"Please be assured that the City of Pampa wishes to continue work in the best interest of our community as well as our state."

Jones, in his opposition to the bill, has stated principal objection was found in the provisions of Article 717b.

"This article," he said, "provides for the property appraisal division to be created in the office of the state comptroller.

"It also provides for a state director, serving at the pleasure of the state comptroller, to audit and direct county appraisal work at the state level."

Jones said that provision of the bill clearly sets up state control over local property values.

Miami Cattle Company Charged in Violation

WASHINGTON — Anadarko Cattle Co. Inc., Miami, has been charged with violating financial, payment and recordkeeping requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has reported.

The firm is registered as a livestock dealer. It formerly purchased livestock in Oklahoma, Texas, Montana, California, Kentucky and Tennessee. The firm is not in operation at this time.

USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration charged in an administrative complaint that Anadarko Cattle Co.

— Operated as a livestock dealer while its current liabilities exceeded its current assets by more than $128,000.

— Failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price for more than $115,000 worth of livestock.

— Still owed for more than $108,000 worth of livestock as of Jan. 23; and — Failed to maintain sufficient accounts and records to fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in its livestock business.

Filing of the complaint does not prove that the firm has violated the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act. It has a right to a hearing to determine if the evidence supports the charges.

If the charges are proven, the firm would be placed under a cease and desist order. Its registration could also be temporarily suspended.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for new ways to serve inexpensive cuts of beef or to turn eggs into a marvelous main dish, today's recipes are for you. Each has international flavor. The meat bake features Italian seasonings. The hearty borscht is a Russian-style soup. The egg dish has India's curry flavor.

For party fare that's inexpensive, international in flavor, and easy to prepare, try this hearty Russian vegetable-beef soup:

BEEF BORSCHT

- 2 pounds beef brisket
- 2 sliced onions
- 4 sliced carrots
- 6 cups water
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 teaspoon caraway seeds
- 1/2 head shredded cabbage
- 4 cups (two 16-ounce cans) diced beets
- 2 2/3 cups (1 1/2-ounce can) stewed tomatoes

Cut brisket into 1-inch cubes (remove excess fat).

Place beef, onions, carrots, water, salt, pepper, bay leaves and caraway seeds in 5-quart Dutch oven. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, 1 1/2 hours or until beef is tender.

Add cabbage, beets and liquid and stewed tomatoes. Simmer 20 minutes or until cabbage is tender.

Serves 8.
Instead of the usual meat loaf, try this Italian bake. The savory meat mixture is spread in a casserole, then smothered with Italian seasonings, mushrooms, tomato paste and Cheddar cheese. After baking, pipe mashed potatoes on top and sprinkle with more cheese.

ITALIAN MEAT BAKE

- 1 1/2 pounds ground chuck
- 2/3 cup undiluted velvety evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons garlic salt
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 2/3 cup (6-ounce can) tomato paste
- Few drops hot pepper sauce

CURRY AND CHILI POWDERS and ripe olives add international flavor to Deviled Eggs Bombay.

- 3/4 cup (4-ounce can) sliced mushrooms, drained
- Mushroom liquid plus water to make 1/2 cup
- 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
- 6-serving recipe instant mashed potatoes

- 1/2 cup cheese on top. Return to oven and bake 3 minutes longer or until cheese is melted. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

For a deliciously different brunch dish, try deviled eggs simmered in a quick tomato soup sauce sparked with curry and chili powders.

DEVILED EGGS BOMBAY, (Makes 4 to 6 servings)

- 8 shelled hard-cooked eggs
- 2 2/3 cups undiluted velvety evaporated milk
- 1 tablespoon mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup minced celery
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Few grains pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup finely chopped onions
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4 cup (10 1/2-ounce can) tomato soup

- 1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- Toast wedges

Slice eggs into halves lengthwise. Carefully remove yolks. Mix yolks with 1/4 cup evaporated milk and mayonnaise. Mash well. Mix in celery, salt and pepper. Refill egg whites generously. Melt butter in large skillet. Add onions and saute until tender. Stir in curry powder, chili powder, tomato soup, olives and remaining evaporated milk. Heat 5 minutes over low heat. DO NOT BOIL. Add lemon juice, garlic salt and monosodium glutamate. Mix well. Place deviled eggs, yolk side up, in skillet. Spoon some of the sauce over eggs. Cover and cook 5 minutes longer over low heat or until eggs are heated through. Serve hot over buttered toast wedges. Serves 4 to 6.

Opera Star Kneads Dough For Relaxing

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

Next to singing a perfect aria, opera-star John Stewart's highest ambition is to make a perfect loaf of bread. "Breadmaking is very relaxing for me," he said. "At my apartment in New York I often spend the hours before an opening opera performance cooking and baking. I get any nervousness out of my system by measuring, beating and kneading." Stewart says he always tries to find an apartment when he is spending any length of time away from New York.

"I like to cook for myself — restaurant food is so poor," he said. "Unless you go to an expensive restaurant the meat is poorly prepared and the vegetables are overcooked. This is not true in Europe. Even the cheaper restaurants there serve well-cooked food."

The opera star spends part of the year singing in Europe, where he maintains an apartment in Frankfurt, Germany. He says his next amateur-chef project is to learn to make pasta.

"I have a friend in Frankfurt who says he will teach me. I'm planning to bring a pasta machine back with me the next time I return from Europe," he said.

Stewart says his favorite cuisine is Italian, with French next. "I like gourmet food, but like all midwesterners — I'm from Ohio — I like hamburgers. When I'm rehearsing and am pressed for time, I usually order a hamburger."

His favorite bread recipe, which he calls an "easy, all-purpose, no-hassle" bread, is shared with readers. He also shares a favorite variation.

JOHN STEWART'S BREAD

- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- 2 cups white flour
- 2 tsp. honey
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 cake compressed yeast
- 2 cups lukewarm water
- 1 tsp. soft shortening

In large bowl of electric mixer crumble yeast into 1/2 cup lukewarm water. Let stand for a few minutes; stir until dissolved. Add honey, remainder of lukewarm water, about half of each of the flours, the salt and shortening. Blend at low speed, then beat for two minutes at medium speed, stir in rest of flour to make stiff dough. Knead several minutes on floured board. Divide the dough in halves. Place each in a 4 1/2 by 1 1/2-inch greased pan. Shape tops of loaves with floured hands. Place in warm place, such as oven with a pilot light, and let rise for 20 minutes. Bake in 375-degree oven for about 35 minutes — five minutes longer if crust is desired.

VARIATION: After bread rises, roll out flat and sprinkle with three-fourth cup chopped nuts, two tablespoons cinnamon and one-third cup brown sugar. Roll up and bake in 375-degree oven for 35 minutes. Add water until the dough doesn't stick to the sides of the bowl. It should be shiny and elastic.

The Kitchen Almanac

If you are making a complicated recipe, here's a tip: do most of the chopping, peeling and grating of vegetables, nuts and cheese ahead of time — even the night before. You'll find things much less hectic.

This may surprise you, but the specific flavor which identifies meat — beef, pork, lamb and veal — usually lies in the fat. Even experienced meat experts can be fooled in taste tests when no fat is present.

Check milk labels: "Skim milk" is not the same as "low-fat" or "fortified skim" or even "two percent." Each one is different.

Staggering Statistics: The U.S. produces over three billion pounds of peanuts. It takes more than 52,000,000 loaves of white bread each day to feed Americans.

Chicken Chatter — Chicken halves cook faster than the whole chicken. Allow one chicken half to a portion. Boning chickens is easier and faster if the breasts are slightly frozen. Try baking chicken in a mixture of creamed tomato Fighting inflation and saving energy: (1) resist impulse buying. Although the price may seem small at the time — 79¢ here, 39¢ there — these costs add up and can total hundreds of dollars in a year. (2) Save money on cheese and cold cuts. Buy them in "chunks" and do the slicing at home.

(3) Once a week plan a menu with a neighbor and trade leftovers. (4) Save energy while dishwashing. A dishwasher developed by engineers for KitchenAid appliances includes an "Energy Saver" button. A push of the button keeps a 1,100 watt air heater off during the drying cycle — saving about 50% of the electricity normally used.

(5) Don't preheat an oven more than 10 minutes, and don't open the oven door often to "peek" inside. Doing this can cause the temperature to drop by 25 degrees.

Editorial note: You may want to clip and keep these worthwhile tips in your own "kitchen file."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By United Press International
When you air out a room during cold weather, cover the thermostat so it won't waste fuel trying to cope with the temporary drop in temperature.

Save money on your telephone bill by using an egg timer or a kitchen-timer to monitor calls.

Patch winter-damaged lawns early to have as long a spring growing season as possible. Spot-seeding is best done after the ground has thawed and dried enough to be scratched with a rake.

For inexpensive family recreation, shop flea markets, garage and tag sales and secondhand stores for low-cost board games everyone can play.

Save money and calories by baking pie fillings without a crust in a glass or ceramic pie dish.

When you buy shoes for a child, have him try them on with the socks he will wear with them. The weight of socks can make a difference in fit.

In shopping for jeans, buy a larger size than usual to allow for shrinkage if the label does not guarantee shrink resistance to one to two per cent.

Use warm water and a short wash of about four minutes for plastic-lined articles and plastic pants for infants. They can be dried automatically if you use the air setting only.

Fertilizers
Estimates indicate that chemical fertilizers save the public $13 billion a year on its food bills, reports Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Woman's World Workshop Slated For Club Officers

In preparation for its annual Woman's World special edition, The Pampa News is hosting a Press Workshop for officers of women's clubs and organizations in Pampa and the immediate area.

A New Weigh of Life Teaching Them to Modify Behavior Around Food

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN "YOU'RE GOING TO like you," is what Thelma J. Waylor tells young women who flock to Green Mountain Weight Control Community each summer for a four-to-eight-week stay. By the time each goes home, she does. Home may be as far away as Europe or South America.

Food Facts The program at Green Mountain, which is on the campus of Pountney College in Pountney, Vt., spotlights a course in nutrition that can be applied for college credit. Prof. Waylor is co-author of a text book, "Applied Nutrition," that has been cited in the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

or five saltines or 1 small potato. Prof. Waylor, who is Associate Professor of Nutrition Education at Long Island University, concedes that "readiness" is a key word in weight control. "Whether you're overweight or underweight," she says, "you have to want to change your eating habits, not just for the short term so you'll look good for your best friend's wedding but for the long term, forever."

Maintaining Weight When you've reached your ideal weight, how do you hold it? "That's when you weigh yourself every morning," she advises. "Start adding calories slowly. If the scale continues to drop, add a few more. If it shows a gain of even one pound,

Flammability Standards for Clothing

COLLEGE STATION — Establishing flammability standards for clothing is a lively issue today, according to one consumer education, clothing and textiles specialist.

The problem is serious — fabrics ranked third behind food and grease, and appliances as items igniting to cause fires last year.

One tragic aspect of fabric burns is that many of the victims are those least able to help themselves — the elderly, the disabled and the very young.

If the standard is adopted, consumers may have to sacrifice lower-cost clothing, easy care fabrics and esthetics to obtain flame retardant clothing.

Parents Cling To "One Day" Group

BOSTON (UPI) — The waiting is over for Steve Goldberg and his wife. But they continue as members of a group called "One Day at a Time."

The parents in ODAAT "have a common denominator," said Goldberg, a produce broker from Peabody, Mass.

"We each have a child who has cancer. It's a horrible denominator. But that's the way it is," Goldberg said. Their daughter Stephanie died Feb. 20, two weeks before her sixth birthday and two years and two months after they discovered she had leukemia. The Goldbergs said the ODAAT meetings were "great tonic" during their ordeal, and they still attend them. Goldberg, his wife Lois, and

Tom and Marilyn Scott of Sharon, Mass., were instrumental in forming ODAAT a year ago. They were brought together by Dr. Thomas Necheles, director of pediatric hematology at Boston Floating Hospital. Skeptical at first whether such a group would hurt more than help, Dr. Necheles now feels the group has made a difference to the 30 families who regularly attend meetings. He was worried that parents would take a mental attendance count at meetings, deducing that those who failed to show up had lost their child. "It's done an awful lot for us in learning how to deal with parents," Necheles said. Meetings of the group are held once a month over coffee and doughnuts in a hospital conference room. A guest speaker is usually invited and that list has included a psychiatrist, a social worker, a surgeon, educators and former state Insurance Commissioner John Ryan. Tom Scott, whose 4-year-old son Greg is suffering from leukemia, sees the organization as "a chance to get together with other fathers." Scott, a schoolteacher, said, "You talk about what your kids are doing. They say their kid is doing the same thing. It's sort of a relief to know that your kid is normal, within a group."

Owners Charge Miners

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. H. Tati Santiesteban, D - El Paso, says some landowners are charging miners and prospectors excessive rates to get access to state lands. The Senate gave 15-4 tentative approval Tuesday to Santiesteban's bill to allow prospectors who buy mineral leases for state lands to use the government's condemnation powers to force adjacent landowners to grant access to the state leases.

Bond Among Honorees

The Rev. Jimmy Bond, perhaps the greatest Pampa High basketball player ever, will take a day off from church duties Saturday to be installed in the Texas High School Basketball Hall of Fame in Athens, Tex.

Bond will join four other former stars from Texas, including Joe Fortenberry of Happy, joining the five-year-old Hall, which has 20 members presently inducted.

Fortenberry played five years at Happy and was named All-Swisher County four different times. He captained the U.S. Olympic team in 1936. Others to be installed are O'Neal Weaver of Martins Mill (1949 state championship) and C.E. "Red" Sledge of Dallas Technical High (all-state in 1932-33).

Clifton McNeely, whose 1953 and 1954 Pampa teams won state championships behind super-talented Bond, will install the former star.

"It's an honor that Mr. McNeely could be there," said Bond from his Oklahoma City home earlier this week. "He was my coach... his record speaks for itself... just a real Christian gentleman. I'm sure he had a large part in shaking my own life. So I'm pretty indebted to him."

Bond's teams from 1952 to 1954 won 78 games and lost only twice. In the 1953-54 seasons, Pampa won 56 straight games and two state titles. Both years, Bond was named to the AAAA all-state team.

Bond rejected scholarship offers from large colleges and universities across the country to enroll in Pasadena, Calif., College, an institution of the Church of the Nazarene. There, he prepared for his ministry and played basketball.

Twice, Bond was selected to the NAIA All-American Teams and played in the National AAU Tournament in Denver, Colo., in 1956 where he was selected Most Promising Young Player of the Tournament.

Bond tried out for the 1956 U.S. Olympic Team while playing with the Phillips 66 Oilers and two years later was drafted by the Minneapolis Lakers (he didn't play, however). He then enrolled at Nazarene Theological Seminary.

Following seminary, he held pastorates in Kansas, Wyoming and Idaho. Presently, Bond is the pastor of Lakeview Park Church of the Nazarene.

His induction into the Hall of Fame will bring Bond back into, at least for a day, the life of basketball.

"I didn't realize there was such a thing. To receive word of being inducted in the Hall of Fame is kind of like being resurrected. It's exciting from the standpoint of being able to let my son and daughter kind of share in some of the thrills and victories of the past," Bond, 39, said.

"I think initially, my greatest thrill was to win the state championship as a junior. We had not been to the state tournament before and had no idea a team from Pampa could compete against those big schools."

Playing with the Harvesters.

young Bond was able to testify for the faith which he says helped him attain certain athletic goals. "I think it provided me an opportunity as a witness, not merely in what I said but in the way I played the game, as a Christian."

"In my senior year on our way back from the state tournament, we stopped in the town to Temple. I spoke at the First Church of the Nazarene. All the team and coaches were there. We all attended church together on weekends; we had a lot of Christian fellows on the team."

Bond's ultimate goal, even in high school at Pampa, was to pastor. He's attained that in basketball. Bond, like almost every player set minor goals. One was to play the game as well as he could.

He played it well enough to be one of four men to join 20 others in the Hall of Fame.

Oliva Homers To Ruin Texas

UPI Sports Writer The Minnesota Twins sent one longtime favorite and future Hall of Famer—Harmon Killebrew—packing this winter and elected to keep another—Tony Oliva—as their designated hitter.

Off the early-season returns, they kept the right man. Oliva smashed his second home run in as many games to help the Twins to their second straight victory, 3-2, over the Texas Rangers Wednesday night.

Killebrew, unfortunately, struck out four times in his opening day debut for Kansas City, against California's Nolan Ryan, and then was 0-for-4 with two more strikeouts, in the Royals' 7-6 win over the Angels Wednesday night.

"Some years I start off quick. Some years I start off slow," said the 33-year-old Oliva, who underwent his fifth knee operation during the off-season. "Right now, I am seeing the ball real good, which is important, and I am swinging the bat good. When I have my swing going like this, I try to make sure I take a good rip at the ball."

In addition to Oliva's fourth-inning homer, the Twins scored in the second on a walk to Bobby Darwin, a single by Eric Soderholm, and again in the sixth when Soderholm singled, stole second, moved to third on a throwing error by catcher Jim Sundberg and came home on pitcher Jim Bibby's wild throw on Steve Braun's grounder.

It was up to reliever Tom Burgmeier to save the game after Texas scored twice off winner Joe Decker in the sixth. Burgmeier quelled a bases-loaded rally in the seventh, by striking out Tom Grieve and checked Texas the rest of the way.

Elswhere in the American League Milwaukee topped Boston, 7-4, Chicago tripped Oakland, 7-5, and Kansas City edged California, 7-6. In the National League it was Cincinnati 4 Los Angeles 3, St. Louis 4 Montreal 0 and Houston 14 Atlanta 2.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 4: George Scott and Robin Yount drove in two runs apiece as Milwaukee beat Boston for its first win. Scott hit a bases-loaded two-out single in the third and Yount singled home one run in the fourth and accounted for another in the sixth with a sacrifice fly. Pete Broberg, acquired from Texas in the off-season, went 6-1-3 in the ninth and gave up three runs on four hits to gain the victory.

White Sox 7, A's: Pinch hitter Pat Kelly's two-out run triple plus a run-scoring double by Carlos May in the ninth inning enabled Chicago to erase a 5-4 deficit and beat Oakland for its first victory. Jim Kaat went the distance for the White Sox after being rocked for a grand slam homer by Gene Tenace in the third.

Royals 7, Angels 6: Elder has had the lion's share of attention here this week because of his unique situation and he'll continue to get a lot of attention as long as he plays well enough to stay in the tournament.

But Elder has not played well since earning a Masters invitation last April by winning the Monsanto Open in Pensacola, Fla., and many doubt that he'll make the 36-hole cut, least of all be in contention for the championship.

But the 40-year-old Elder wanted it understood that he isn't out to prove anything beyond his ability to play golf. "I've played bad before, and I've played good before, and in major championships and in other tournaments," said Elder. "So, no matter how good or how bad I play, it will be for myself, and I won't be embarrassed."

Elder was scheduled to tee off at 11:15 a.m. EDT with Gene Littler, the former U.S. Open champion who came back from a bout with cancer, as his playing partner.

Other key tee-off times included Trevino at 11:36, Nicklaus at 12:04, Player at 12:32, and Weiskopf at 1 p.m.

Arnold Palmer, only other man besides Nicklaus to win four Masters, finds himself in the role of "sentimental favorite" this year since the 4-year-old Palmer has not won here since 1964.

Player predicted that the winning score would be about 11-under-par 277, a score equalled or bettered only five times in the 38 previous Masters.

Cincy Nudges LA, Marshall

UPI Sports Writer As pitching coach Larry Shepard of the Cincinnati Reds said during the winter, the Los Angeles Dodgers may have to revise their thinking about iron man reliever Mike Marshall.

He's not the "automatic winner" some experts believe. Shepard made his comments after Marshall pitched in a record 106 games, posted a 15-12 record and had 21 saves for the Dodgers in 1974 and was named the National League's Cy Young Award winner.

"If you look closely at some of the games he pitched, you'll see the situation rapidly deteriorated after he took over," said Shepard. "At times the Dodgers seemed to pitch him merely for the sake of proving that he had an iron arm."

"The Reds made their pitching coach look good Wednesday night, when they scored two runs off Marshall in the ninth inning to beat the Dodgers for the second straight game, 4-3.

Marshall, who took over in the seventh, carried a 3-2 lead into the bottom of the ninth Wednesday night, but Ken Griffey touched off Cincinnati's winning rally with a triple. Darrel Chaney singled to score Griffey with the tying run, went to second on a sacrifice and scored the winning run on Dave Concepcion's single.

Andy Messersmith shut out the Reds until the sixth inning when Ed Armbrister doubled and scored on one of three singles by Joe Morgan. The Reds cut the Dodgers' early margin to 3-2 in the seventh when Tony Perez scored on a bases-filled sacrifice fly by Chaney.

St. Louis defeated Montreal, 4-0, and Houston walloped Atlanta, 14-2, in the only other National League games. San Francisco at San Diego was rained out.

Cardinals 4, Expos 0: Bob Forsch pitched a two-hitter, and batterymate Ted Simmons drove in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly, as St. Louis tagged Steve Rogers with the loss. Forsch faced the minimum 27 batters in the game, as both Montreal baserunners were wiped out in double plays. He struck out six and walked none.

Pampa Teams Look Forward To Full Sked

Pampa's boys track team will try to make the Amarillo Relays its fourth conquest of the season, highlighting a full schedule of competition for Harvesters spring sports teams.

Scott Dunning's tracksters, which have won titles at Pampa, Perryton and Dumas, are among the entrants in the Relays, which may draw well over 1,000 athletes Friday and Saturday.

Golfers, including Pampa's boys team, will be entered in the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament.

Pampa High's tennis team will compete in the 3-AAAA tournament Friday at Berger.

Pampa's girls golf team will be in Berger for the fourth and final district round.

In baseball action, Pampa hosts Berger at 4 p.m. in a crucial game for the Harvesters. Pampa is 0-2 in district play.

Masters Begins Today With Nicklaus Favored

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — It was Jack Nicklaus against the world today when the Masters golf tournament began its 39th run through the azaleas and dogwoods.

That world includes Lee Elder, the first black ever to play in this prestigious tournament.

Nicklaus, seeking his fifth Masters crown and 15th "major" championship, was everybody's favorite but his own — an he was just being modest.

"Sure, I should be close, but it's not up to me to say I'm the man to beat," said the 35-year-old king of the golf links.

People had better not overlook Gary Player. He's the defending champion and he's a very real threat anytime he tees it up.

"And how about Tom Weiskopf? He's been close here a lot of times before (second in three of the past six years) and came in here after winning at Greensboro with some fine golf."

Nicklaus also cautioned that although Lee Trevino has never played well in the Masters, "Lee's quite capable of playing this course if he wants to. He's won other major championships and it's just a matter of time before he gets going here."

Oddly enough, Nicklaus did not include Johnny Miller in that group even though Miller has won more tournaments (11) and more money ($450,000) than any other golfer the past 15 months.

"I think Gary and Lee are better golfers than Johnny," said Nicklaus. "As far as I am concerned, winning the major tournaments is the real test. Gary's won eight, Lee five and Johnny only one."

Elder has had the lion's share of attention here this week because of his unique situation and he'll continue to get a lot of attention as long as he plays well enough to stay in the tournament.

But Elder has not played well since earning a Masters invitation last April by winning the Monsanto Open in Pensacola, Fla., and many doubt that he'll make the 36-hole cut, least of all be in contention for the championship.

Barnes Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wednesday night Marvin Barnes, an immensely talented, if occasionally cocky, 6-foot 9, 22-year-old, found himself on the peak.

He was named the American Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year in voting by sports writers in the league's 10 franchise cities and he celebrated with a passion the award he felt he had earned.

"I found out just before the game and I think it got me even more keyed up," Barnes said after reeling off 37 points, pulling down 18 rebounds and blocking two shots to pace the spirits of St. Louis to a convincing 115-97 victory over

New York and evened their first-round playoff series at one game apiece.

"I may have been a little disoriented in the beginning of the year," Barnes said. "I got knocked pretty good by the press and fans when I walked out on the team in November in the hassle about my contract. I didn't play good in New York either and I figured that might hurt my chances of winning the award."

Emergency Loans Ready For Local Producers

Farmers and ranchers in Gray County who sustained production of physical loss as a result of the tornado which struck on March 27 may be eligible to receive an emergency loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

Those who have not received an emergency loan to assist them in recovering from their loss may apply for such a loan at the Farmers Home Administration county office at 414 South Kearney, P.O. Box 40, Clarendon, Tex. 79226, before close of business June 2 for physical losses and Jan. 2, 1976, for production losses.

These loan applications will be taken under the terms of a new law (P.L. 93-237) enacted Jan. 2, 1974. Individual examination will be made of each application to determine date of the disaster occurrence and type of emergency loan benefits for which the applicant is eligible.

Farm emergency loans may include funds to repair or restore damaged farm property as well as reimburse applicants for expenses already incurred for such purposes.

Loans based on qualifying production losses may include funds to reimburse applicants for production expenses which went into damaged or destroyed crop and livestock enterprises, but not to produce new crops during 1975.

Payment terms depend on the purposes for which the loan is used and the applicant's payment ability. No loan may exceed the actual loss sustained.

100 Grants Available At Phillips College

More than 100 scholarships and loans are available for high school seniors to attend Frank Phillips College in Borger, said Dan Minor, registrar. Interested students may write for application blanks as soon as possible. Tentative deadline has been set for July 1.

"Many college scholarships and other financial aids available to students go unused every year," said Minor, "simply because students are unaware of the many avenues of assistance available to them."

Scholarships often will cover tuition and fees or offer an outright monetary grant to the student. Others will pay for the student's dormitory room costs which amounts to $135.00 per semester. Student loan plans cover various student needs and are payable following the student's graduation.

Other programs in which FPC participates include the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, the Secondary Educational Opportunity Plan, Social Security Program, Veterans Benefits, the Law Enforcement Education Program, and Campus Work-Study Program.

Students may contact Dan Minor, Office of Admissions, Frank Phillips College, P.O. Box 111, Borger 79007.

Urges Stiffer Criteria For Children's Homes

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Tom Schieffer, D-Fort Worth, says the legislature should adopt new children's homes regulations to prevent any chances of a repeat of the Artesia Hall child care scandal. The series of scandals in 1973 and 1974 at the Artesia Hall home for teen-age girls near Liberty, Tex., resulted in a murder indictment against the administrator for refusing to give medical treatment to a girl who swallowed rat poison. The girl died.

Legislative investigating committees determined the Welfare Department was lax in checking a child care license to the facility.

Schieffer testified Tuesday night before the House Health and Welfare Committee, which is considering several proposals to overhaul the state's child care and children's home licensing laws.

The legislation was proposed mainly in response to the Artesia Hall scandals. "If we have another Artesia Hall, we're going to have a whole new set of people at the Welfare Department because the state just would not stand for it again," Schieffer said.

Charles Wright, president of the Texas Homes for Children, a group of child care facilities, told the committee Texas children's homes are generally well run.

"The vast majority of child care in Texas is good," Wright said. "The vast majority of the people involved are trustworthy."

Schieffer and Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, the committee chairman, are sponsoring a pair of bills to tighten the state licensing requirements for child care facilities. Other measures are sponsored by Reps. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi; the chairman of the House Human Resources Committee that investigated Artesia Hall in 1973, Chris Miller, D-Fort Worth; and Neil Caldwell, D-Alvin.

125 Bills Affect Children

(This is the Week - of the Young Child, sponsored by the National Association for the Education of Young Children.) State Representative Carlos Truan, Corpus Christi, repeatedly has called 1975 "the year of the child."

The total amount of state legislation proposed thus far this year concerning young children, children one to six, may prove him right.

More than 125 bills relating directly to young children and more than 200 others which, if passed, will influence the lives of young children in Texas, have been proposed.

Here are just a few of the many bills directly affecting young children:

House Bill 1764, sponsored by Truan and Rep. Walt Parker of Denton, and Senate Bill 725, sponsored by Sen. William Patman of Ganado, give legislative foundation to the state Office of Early Childhood Development (OECED) in the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA).

The bills authorize OECED to perform many activities in behalf of young children: disseminating information on early childhood; surveying available public and private resources and services for young children and their families; surveying needs of young children; developing demonstration programs; promoting cooperation among public and private agencies; and developing a system throughout the state for delivering services to young children and their families through local community participation and decision-making.

The licensing of child care facilities and enforcement of child care facility regulations has been an important issue of the last two years. For the current legislative session, there have been at least 12 bills proposed having to do with licensing.

House Bill 225, sponsored by Joe Salem of Corpus Christi, would set up the same regulatory council, but would, in addition, exempt from licensing all churches and religious bodies with child care facilities. House Bill 565, sponsored again by Truan, sets up a regulatory council composed of persons from many state offices, to coordinate and review all rules and regulations for all child care facilities.

House Bill 1511, sponsored by Rep. Craig Washington of Houston, establishes a Child Care Licensing Division in Department of Public Welfare. (DPW), provides that all child care facilities be licensed on an annual basis only, establishes the method of closing down a non-compliant or unlicensed center and makes the penalty for non-compliance a Class B misdemeanor. It also establishes a State Advisory Committee on Child Care Facilities and Regional Advisory Committees, and makes provision for an annual report from the new division.

House Bill 1828, sponsored by Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood, divides responsibility for licensing child care facilities in Texas between Texas Education Agency (TEA) and the (DPW). This bill was developed by seven state agencies to respond to a recommendation by the Governor's Task Force on Youth Care and Rehabilitation.

Senate Bill 203, sponsored by Sen. Ron Clower of Garland, would bring state-operated child care facilities and child-placing agencies — both now exempt — under licensing requirements by DPW.

The issue of child care is also affected by three other bills. House Bill 734, sponsored by Rep. Sam Hudson of Dallas, authorizes DPW and OECED to establish and regulate day care centers for all children who are at least two years old and 1) are eligible for state aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), or 2) whose mothers are enrolled in DPW job training programs certified by the Texas Employment Commission (TEC), or 3) are from families eligible as welfare recipients under federal law or regulations providing for matching federal funds for welfare programs. Additional children may participate on a sliding fee scale, based upon family income. The bill also provides for a 15 member advisory committee on child care appointed by the Governor, a committee which will advise the state on child care matter.

House Bill 1237, sponsored by Rep. Joe Pentony of Houston, authorizes TEA to establish pilot early childhood education programs for children who are 3 to 4 years old at the beginning of each school year.

House Bill 1308, also sponsored by Rep. Hudson, liberalizes administration and admission regulations of certain federally established day care programs, requiring adherence to federal regulations only; gains prepayment for a program rather than reimbursement after the services are given; and includes procedures to allow parents of children in the program to review and comment on proposed rules and regulations.

In the area of child health, there are two bills designed to include illegitimate children in state information systems. House Bill 53, sponsored by Rep. Andrew Baker of Galveston, authorizes the sending of birth information to parents of all children, including illegitimates, and authorizes the issuance of birth and death certificates of illegitimate children.

Senate Bill 705, sponsored by Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, authorizes inclusion of the names of illegitimate children in the Infant Immunization and Infant Immunization Surveillance Programs of the state.

Five bills relate to kindergarten, three of which are slight variations of one another and authorize bilingual education for kindergartners. House Bill 425, sponsored by

Rep. Tom Schieffer of Fort Worth, would enable five-year-olds who are not quite six when school begins to go to first grade if they first pass a test given by the school in which they will enter.

Senate Bill 585, another sponsored by Clower, would entitle kindergarten children to the benefits of the state's Minimum Foundation School Program on either a full-day, full-year basis; a full-day, half-year basis; or a half-day, full-year basis — at the option of the local school board — and authorize one teacher for every ten kindergarten students.

Senate Bill 96, sponsored by Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston, Senate Bill 102, sponsored by Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena, and Carlos Truan's House Bill 289, all have the same intent and authorize bilingual education for kindergarten, first and second grades, beginning with the upcoming school year.

Identical bills in the House and Senate: House Bill 280, sponsored by Rep. Frank Madia of San Antonio, and Senate Bill 84, sponsored by Brooks, would establish a statewide educational program for gifted and talented students, administered by TEA, and would appoint a full-time director for programs for gifted and talented students in TEA.

There are four social service bills directed toward young children. Senate Bill 759, sponsored by Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo, gives TEA the responsibility for care and education of multiple-handicapped children under 21 years of age.

House Bill 347, sponsored by Rep. Calvin Rucker of Cedar Hill, would shift financial responsibility for caring for dependent and neglected children from counties to the state, and would appropriate funds for state DPW for this purpose.

House Bill 597, sponsored by Rep. Chris Semos of Dallas, provides stricter penalties for failure to report suspected cases of child abuse — fines of not less than $100 nor more than $500; jail not less than ten days nor more than six months, or both.

Senate Bill 34, sponsored by Sen. Ron Farabee of Wichita Falls, makes the buying and selling of children for purposes of or but specifically excludes application of this law to fees charged by child-placing agencies.

Clearing the Belfry Tornados, TVs, Transfusions

By Thom Marshall

It's been two weeks now, since the Lefors tornado, and recovery operations in that town are most impressive.

It's the people of Lefors that make a guy glad to be living in the vicinity — good stock. Bob Estrada, public information officer with the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, said that it is quite a job getting the Lefors folks to take advantage of the many government programs made available to them.

It isn't like that when disaster hits other areas of the U.S. according to Estrada. Most often it is the victims seeking out the government assistance, rather than the other way around.

Our public servants moved really fast to get the available government aid approved and working for Lefors, but they had to. The way it looked over there, if the government had waited very long to step in, the Lefors people and their friends and neighbors and the Red Cross and Salvation Army and other organizations and companies soon would have had everything under control.

A former teacher of a Miss Delta Chambliss called earlier this week and said that she had seen Miss Chambliss on the television game program "Blank Check."

It seems that Miss Chambliss, a former Pampan, is on the program all week. It is seen on channel 4 and airs daily at 11:30 a.m.

I have always been impressed with the way that friends will donate blood for transfusions in order to keep expenses down as much as possible for the one in need.

It would be fortunate, indeed, if someone could figure out some kind of a similar arrangement for aiding those who must undergo a traumatic house plumbing operation.

A friend of mine here in Pampa has a brother over in Borger who is an attorney. My friend tells me his brother's house required the services of a plumber recently and upon seeing the charges in the "labor" column of the bill, the attorney remarked:

"My gosh, I'm a lawyer and I don't make anywhere near this kind of money."

"I know what you mean," the plumber is reported to have answered. "I didn't either when I was a lawyer."

Sportsman Claims No Wrongs in Hearst Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jack Scott, a sports world radical suspected of aiding Patricia Hearst, emerged from hiding Wednesday hinting he was connected to the Hearst case but had done nothing wrong.

Scott, 33, accompanied by pro basketball superstar Bill Walton, answered no questions on the advice of counsel. He said he would not talk with the FBI or respond to questioning by a grand jury.

Miss Hearst and fellow Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives reportedly stayed in a Pennsylvania farmhouse rented by Scott's wife, Micki. The FBI has telephone records of calls between the farmhouse and Walton's home in Portland, Ore., where the two Scotts were visiting.

The Scotts dropped out of sight just before the public learned of the farmhouse last month. FBI agents since have been interrogating Scott's friends and family.

Newsmen were summoned abruptly Wednesday to a lawyer's office and then sent speeding to Glide Methodist Church where the Scotts and Walton appeared.

FBI agents surrounded the building, but took no action since there is no warrant or subpoena for Scott.

The Scotts denounced what they called FBI harassment and expressed fear "of being set up and possibly killed" by agents anxious for a shootout with the SLA.

"First of all," the Scotts said, "we have done nothing wrong. We are not fugitives. We have not been charged or convicted of any crime."

The hint of a connection with Hearst came when they said:

"Our actions of the past year are completely defensible. If we somehow acted to avert bloodshed and killing, we certainly find that nothing to apologize for."

They said Miss Hearst "apparently concluded during the first few weeks of her kidnaping" that the FBI had no concern for her safety and that her life was endangered by "trigger-happy agents."

The Scotts said they would not answer grand jury questions, if asked, because "total noncollaboration with this government is our moral responsibility."

Walton said he was "terribly sorry" he had discussed the case with the FBI.

Walton, who plays for the Portland Trail Blazers, expressed support for the Scotts, his longtime friends, and joined them "to urge the people of the world to stand with us in our rejection of the U.S. government."

Miss Hearst, 21, a newspaper heiress, was kidnaped Feb. 4, 1973, in Berkeley, Calif., but joined her SLA abductors' cause two months later.

Summer To Be Key to War Says Israeli

By United Press International — Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres says he expects the summer months to determine whether the nations of the Middle East will fight a new war.

"The coming summer months will be decisive," Peres said Wednesday in Tel Aviv.

He said Egypt "is bound to retain both her options — the options of development without belligerency and that of belligerency itself."

Peres said Egypt's decision to reopen the Suez Canal in June creates an "open-minded situation" in the region and enables "the continued exploration" of ways to reach a peace settlement.

President Anwar Sadat has said he will reopen the canal to international shipping on June 5 — exactly eight years after it was closed in the 1967 Middle East War.

In Ismailia, Egypt, a Suez Canal Authority spokesman termed the canal "100 per cent safe for navigation" and said the last trapped vessels would leave the waterway next month.

In January, 1974, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arranged an Israeli troop withdrawal from the banks of the Suez Canal. But Kissinger's search for a second disengagement agreement broke down last month.

Senate Survey Discloses Myriad of School Violence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate report says school violence has become a national crisis requiring legislative action.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Wednesday the survey disclosed hundreds of thousands of assaults on students, including 100 murders in 1973, about 70,000 serious physical assaults on teachers each year, and extortion, drug and prostitution rings in suburban and urban schools.

The survey, prepared by the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee, covered 757 public elementary and public schools and showed dramatic increases in all forms of violence and vandalism. The report said "there is clear and compelling evidence that violence and vandalism in the schools has reached a level of crisis that demands immediate comprehensive review and legislative action.

"The level of violence and vandalism, is rapidly increasing in both intensity and frequency," it added.

Bayh, the subcommittee chairman who made the report public, said he would sponsor legislation to provide funds for alternative educational programs and security measures.

The report said student misbehavior is no longer confined to fist fights or isolated incidents.

"Instead our schools are experiencing serious crimes of a felonious nature including brutal assaults on teachers and students, as well as rapes, extortions, burglaries, thefts, and an unprecedented wave of wanton destruction and vandalism," the report said.

It disclosed that between 1970 and 1973, homicides increased by 18.5 per cent; rapes and attempted rapes by 40.1 per cent; robberies by 36.7 per cent; assaults on students by 85.3 per cent; assaults on teachers by 77.4 per cent.

Urges US Aid People Instead of Governments

DENVER (UPI) — Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., said Wednesday it was time the United States stopped "supporting governments with our aid and started supporting people."

Mrs. Schroeder made her comments after a House Armed Services Committee meeting in which Gen. Frederick Weyand, Army chief of staff, pleaded for more military assistance for the beleaguered South Vietnamese.

The congresswoman said "it just doesn't make sense" to commit more military aid to the Saigon government in view of the recent major failures of the South Vietnamese army.

"We've got to stop supporting governments with our aid and start supporting people," she said.

She said Weyand's explanation of the collapse of the South Vietnamese was that as the Congress was cutting military appropriations to Saigon last year, "the pattern of things to come" became clear not only to the Saigon government but to the soldiers in the field.

"My question is how many of the troops are reading the newspapers," Mrs. Schroeder said. "What's the literacy rate of the South Vietnamese Army. I'd like to know how much they are aware of what's going on."

Soviet 'Expects' US To Help Balance Trade

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet-American trade dropped by more than a third last year and was heavily weighted in favor of the United States, the Soviet government said Wednesday.

"We expect the U.S. side to take adequate measures to mend the present situation in Soviet-U.S. trade," Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev said in an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Patolichev's report had an optimistic tone, saying that Soviet-American trade increased 4.8 times in the three-year period beginning in 1972 compared with the three previous years.

But a report in the economic newspaper Economicheskaya Gazetta showed a sharp downward trend last year, with bilateral trade falling off 36 per cent compared with 1973.

The newspaper said the two countries exchanged $1.05 billion worth of goods in 1974, compared with $1.64 billion the year before.

"Our imports from the United States considerably exceeded our exports to that country and the achieved level of goods turned over is far from corresponding to the existing opportunities," Patolichev said.

U.S. officials said they were not alarmed by the sudden drop in trade because the 1973 figures were unusually high as the result of large grain deals.

The officials said they expected trade figures for 1975 will be considerably higher because of a number of large industrial deals signed last year but not paid for until 1975.

Charley Pride Calls Oklahoma Pirate Haven

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Country singer Charley Pride joined witnesses who testified at a Senate hearing Oklahoma is a haven for tape pirates — persons who duplicate hit recordings and sell them at low prices without compensation to the original artists or recording companies.

Pride and other recording artists, songwriters and music industry executives urged passage of a bill to make it a criminal action to duplicate tape recordings or records.

"It's unfair for someone to steal my voice on tape and deprive me of the income I've worked hard to get," Pride said. "Obviously, something is wrong."

"I sure hope you will pass it," he told senators regarding the proposal.

Mary Reeves Davis, widow of country singer Jim Reeves, said "50 per cent of my royalties have gone to the pirates. The time is at hand for passage of this law."

Proponents said if the bill is cleared by Senate committee and approved by the Senate it will help strengthen federal antipiracy regulations. A similar measure was passed by the House.

Statue Could Honor King

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., says not a single black American has been honored by having a portrait or statue placed in the U.S. Capitol and suggests Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. be the first.

Mondale Wednesday introduced a bill to commission a statue or bust of the late civil rights leader "to be placed in the appropriate place in the United States Capitol."

Mondale said the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1968 and the 1965 Voting Rights Act are "living monuments" to King but he deserves more recognition.

Charlie's Furniture, Carpet

Sue and Charlie Snider

Charlie's Furniture and Carpet, 1304 N. Banks, opened in 1969. Charlie Snider, owner, feels it will keep growing. "Every year we've been here has been better."

Snider began as a building contractor, selling carpet on the side. "I felt there was a need for quality furniture at a competitive price in Pampa," said Snider. "We began with 3,300 square feet and have expanded to our present 22,000 square feet."

Charlie's has five employees, including Snider and his wife, Sue. "We have a price range to meet, anyone's pocket," said Snider. "Prices have leveled off," Sue added.

Charlie's main business is in Pampa. He is excited about the out-of-town business he has too — serving Amarillo, Borger, Canadian and other towns at the Top Of Texas.

"I know this area can't be hurting too much because we've been breaking records the past six months."
