

$Billion Request To Meet Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has asked Congress for nearly $1 billion in aid for South Vietnam and permission to use U.S. military forces if necessary to evacuate Americans and tens of thousands of South Vietnamese refugees.

Ford's Thursday night State of the World message met immediate and stiff opposition among many congressmen.

Administration officials said contingency plans are being prepared for possible evacuation of up to 6,000 Americans and 200,000 South Vietnamese refugees, should Saigon fall.

Ford made no new aid request for Cambodia, saying it soon may be too late to prevent its falling to the Communists.

Officials said evacuation of some Americans from South Vietnam has already begun.

Democratic congressional leaders were stunned by the size of Ford's aid request — which included $722 million in military assistance and $250 million in economic and humanitarian aid for Saigon.

"I can't conceive of this Congress voting $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam," said House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill. "There would have to be a complete turnaround in the opinion of the American public — as I read it talking with members when they came back from the Easter recess — to support such aid."

Ford asked Congress to act by April 19, just over a week, much faster than Congress usually moves unless it is virtually united on an issue.

A vast human tragedy has befallen our friends in Vietnam and Cambodia, Ford said.

He said he must consider the safety of some 6,000 Americans who remain in South Vietnam, and tens of thousands of South Vietnamese employees of the United States government, of news agencies, of contractors and businesses for many years whose lives with their dependents are in grave peril.

He said there are tens of thousands of other South Vietnamese intellectuals, professors and teachers, editors and opinion leaders, who have supported the South Vietnamese cause and the alliance with the United States, to whom we have a profound moral obligation.

The $722 million military aid figure was more than double the $300 million request he made before the recent Communist gains in South Vietnam, and on which Congress has never acted. The new figure was the sum recommended by Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand, whom Ford sent to Saigon to on a fact finding mission.

The speech was Ford's first public report on his foreign policy throughout the world, and he discussed several groups of countries.

"To allies, he said, 'We will stand by our friends. We will attend a summit conference of European leaders in May or June. He plans a series of meetings with leaders of Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, Indonesia and Japan. He asked Congress to repeal its ban on U.S. military aid to Turkey and said he is considering economic and military aid to Greece — both NATO members."

He told the Communist world not to mistake detente as a license to fish in troubled waters. But he urged Congress to repeal trade restrictions against the Soviet Union tied to emigration of Jews. He expressed hope of new U.S. Soviet accords to limit nuclear weapons. He said he plans a visit to China this fall.

—He said the United States will continue peace efforts in the Middle East.

—He called on North Vietnam to cease military operations immediately, and be-lurged Russia, China and other signatories to the 1973 Paris peace accords on Indochina to use their influence to halt the fighting.

Ford said he wasn't blaming Congress for the erosion of those accords, and offered and asked for cooperation between the White House and Congress.

—Another subjects Ford warned that the United States, approaching 50 per cent reliance on foreign oil, would be highly vulnerable to a new oil embargo. He renewed his appeal for conservation.

—Cautioned that any significant cut in his defense budget would endanger our national security and thus jeopardize the peace.

"In these times we fight for ideas, and newspapers are our fortresses."

American Pilot Loses Life In Action Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Communist offensive that has taken Khmer Rouge rebels to less than four miles from Phnom Penh and two miles from the airport claimed its first American life today. The increasingly desperate government was reported planning still another reshuffle.

The American pilot who was killed was not immediately identified. Airport sources said he was a pilot for Sorya Airlines, a Cambodian domestic airline, and was about to take off on a flight to Kompong Chhang, 100 miles to the north, when a rocket landed near his DC3 aircraft, apparently damaging it with shrapnel.

The pilot took off immediately after the rocket attack, but discovered his plane was damaged minutes later and tried an emergency landing. The aircraft crashed and burst into flames.

He was the first U.S. citizen known to have been killed since the insurgent offensive started last Dec. 31, although several have been wounded. The Taiwanese copilot and a Cambodian crew member also were killed, witnesses said. Another Cambodian crewman survived.

Shelling of the airport was unusually heavy today, but American planes shuttled in and out all day from Saigon with rice and fuel and from Thailand with ammunition. At least one of the American planes was hit but damage was minor.

On the battlefields the government continued to lose ground in what appeared to be a losing attempt to keep the rebels out of Phnom Penh. U.S. Embassy sources, who have been increasingly nervous in recent days over the deteriorating situation, said President Ford's failure to ask Congress for more aid to Cambodia reflected an official feeling that the situation was hopeless.

Rebels forces were reported to have reinforced positions 1.8 miles from the airport and to have reached the village of Khmoung, 1.8 miles from Phnom Penh's northern outskirts and four miles from the heart of the city in their closest penetration yet.

Canadian River Dam Costs Pampa Plenty

By TEX DEWESE
A final accounting from the U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Reclamation on the cost of constructing the Canadian River Dam near Borger will give the City of Pampa a $197,345 reduction in its long-haul payments on the project.

Fred Thompson, one of Pampa's two representatives on the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, said the final accounting has been given to CRMWA board members in a letter to John Williams, general manager of the water authority.

Under the original contract the cities of Pampa, Amarillo, Borger, Planview and Lubbock were to pay the construction costs of the dam and the other six South Plains cities receiving water from Lake Meredith were to pay their share of aqueduct lines.

Original cost of the dam was set at $90 million. A revised cost estimate in 1967 was cut to $84.8 million and the final estimate under the final accounting figure was set at $83.3 million, a further cost reduction of $1,462,159.

Of the five cities bearing the construction cost of the dam, Lubbock received the biggest reduction, $1,477,822.

Reductions for the four other cities were: Planview, $87,750; Amarillo, $621,211; Borger, $94,406; and Pampa, $197,345.

In the Bureau of Reclamation letter to the CRMWA manager, J.A. Bradley, regional director for the bureau, stated the latest adjustment of the water authority's repayment places the final construction obligation, including interest, during construction, at $83,358,280.

As a result of the final accounting, Thompson said

Pampa's schedule of annual payments will be adjusted in accordance with the amendatory contract.

Pampa's annual payments on cost of the Canadian River Dam will run until the year 2018.

The city is now in its seventh year of annual payments. The fiscal year payment was $150,000.

The annual payment increases $5,000 a year until 1988 and then levels off at $233,000 a year until the final payment is made.

Shoe Nail Gets Loan For $450,000

A $450,000 FHA business and industrial loan application for the Shoe Nail Supply Co. of Pampa has been approved by the Community Development Committee of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Wiley Reynolds Sr. and Wiley Reynolds Jr., Pampa owners of the liquid feed and fertilizer company, told the committee the company had been in operation for the past three years and rapid expansion had resulted in a need for additional equipment.

The fast-growing company currently has 29 full-time employees, according to the owners, and is planning to add 13 more to its payroll.

Shoe Nail Supply is engaged in the business of supplying area farmers and ranchers with feed and fertilizer and also operates a trucking operation for hauling livestock.

Lake Worth Misses Their Former Chief

Pampa's new police chief, Richard Mills, who assumed duties Monday as head of the police department here, is already being missed in Lake Worth.

Mills had been police chief in the Fort Worth suburban area for three years before coming to Pampa this week.

One of the people in Lake Worth who says he misses Mills is Howard O. Dunn, Lake Worth school superintendent.

In a letter to Dr. Dan Long, superintendent of Pampa schools, Superintendent Dunn wrote: "I understand Richard Mills is your new Chief of Police. I have worked with Chief Mills for the past three years here at Lake Worth. He has always been very cooperative in working with the school and always willing to help in any way he could."

Chief Mills is a real fine person to work with and we really are going to miss him around here. I know you will enjoy working with him also.

Rats Halt Rodent Man

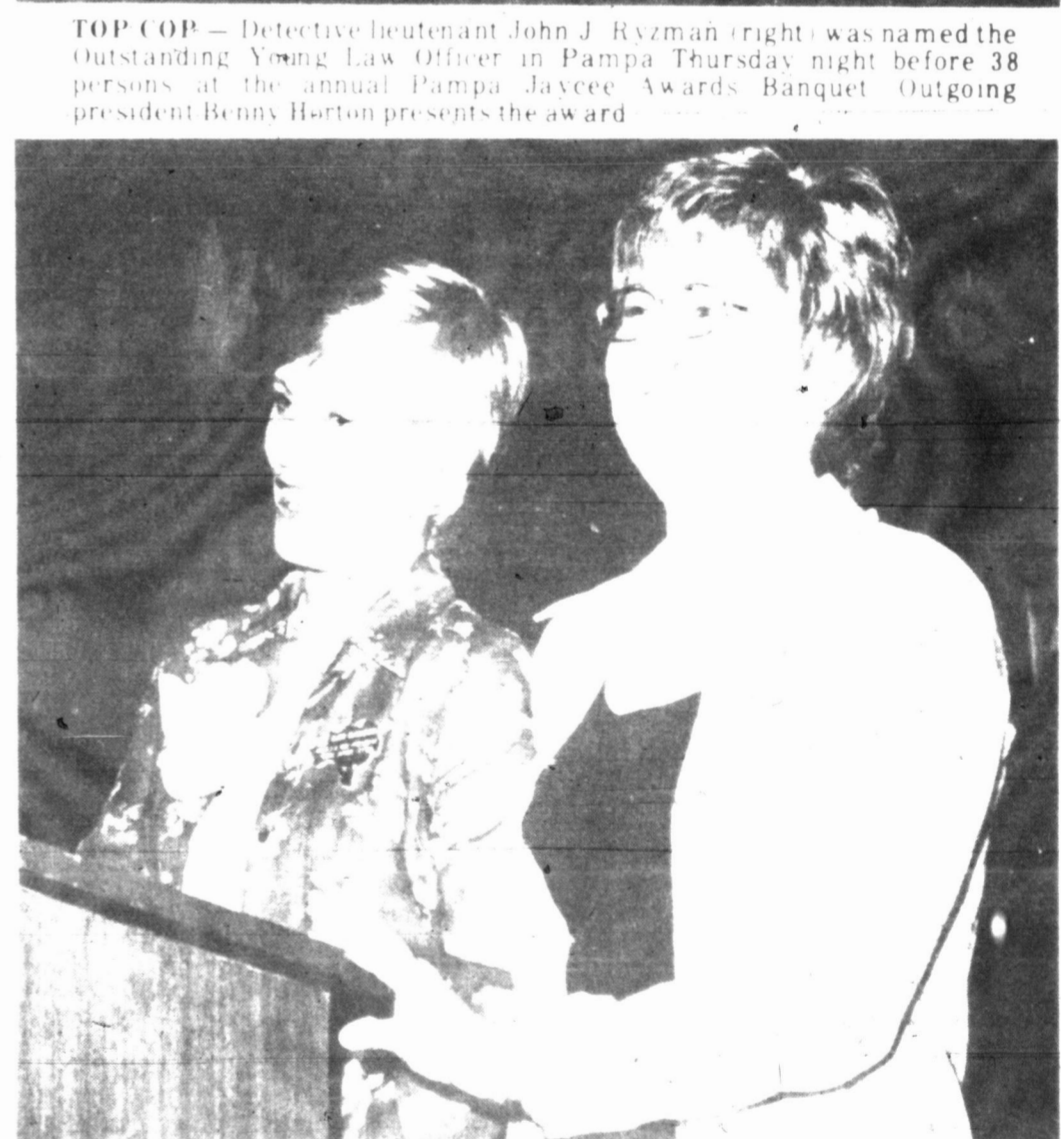

DALLAS (UPI) — Jan Loven, a rodent control expert at Texas A&M University, was speaking to Hillcrest Hill School students on rat control.

Screams and shrieks interrupted the program and students began trying to scramble out of the auditorium.

Six rats scurried from underneath the chairs in one section of the auditorium.

"They must have been driven in out of the rain," said Loven. They weren't part of the program.

A second assembly on rodent control was canceled because the experts couldn't catch the rats.

Swift Meats May Buy Sumas Packing Plant

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — American Beef Packers Inc. and Swift Fresh Meats Inc. are trying to complete final negotiations leading to Swift's purchase of ABP's $20-million plus Dumas, Tex. plant it was learned Thursday.

ABP Board Chairman and President Frank R. West is working desperately to finalize the purchase of the plant, billed by ABP as the largest of its kind in the world, before next Wednesday.

ABP must have a plan to repay creditors submitted to federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford of Omaha by Wednesday and a source close to the proceedings said it would be extremely difficult to have such a plan without the Dumas sale.

The sale price of the facility has yet to be learned, but estimates range from $15 million to $19.6 million. A Swift spokesman in Chicago said the latter figure was absolutely incorrect.

An announcement of the pending sale could come as early as sometime today.

A source at ABP said Thursday the firm which filed limited bankruptcy proceedings Jan. 7 has yet to formulate a creditors repayment plan adding, "We are working on it and Dumas is the key."

Swift and Iowa Beef Processors of Dakota City, Neb., were the final two key prospects in the sale, and ABP elected to go with Swift. One factor in the decision is some observers believe Iowa Beef, which has a new facility near the Dumas plant, would purchase the ABP operation only to stifle competition in the area.

Getting the federal government to approve such a plan, one source said, might prove troublesome since it could be in violation of fair trade laws.

The Dumas plant never did open to full production and was originally estimated to cost $10 million. It was dedicated May 11 with the price tag at $20 million.

The confidence of several key creditors in West has diminished somewhat since the first ABP creditors meeting Feb. 12 to where the creditors are talking openly about seeking new management at ABP pending review of the creditors repayment plan.

In addition, a key governmental prosecutor observing the ABP proceedings told UPI this week he has been contacted by both representatives of ABP and its creditors committee who are looking for a receiver

Chamber Says Reservations Stop Monday

Chamber of Commerce officials said today reservations for the April membership luncheon next Monday in the Coronado Inn will be taken up until 10 a.m. Monday.

Roy Wickersham of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. will present the program featuring his science show, "Little Things Mean a Lot."

A highlight of Wickersham's presentation, according to Gary Stevens, local Bell manager, will be his talking dog.

Buffet lines for the luncheon will open at 11:45 a.m. and the program will be completed by 1:15 p.m., according to C.E. Steel, chamber manager.

Ryzman Wins Award From JCs

Detective lieutenant John J. Ryzman was named the Outstanding Young Law Officer in Pampa at the annual Pampa Jaycee Awards Banquet Thursday night at Tom's Country Inn.

Ryzman's award was one of several presented at the banquet which attracted 38 people.

Ryzman was named by then-acting police chief George Wallace and several city officials, according to outgoing Jaycee president Benny Horton.

"They told me that he's just the kind of guy that does a little extra, to make sure it's done right — above and beyond the call of duty," Horton said.

Ryzman said "Surprised." Yeah, I guess I was. I never at a loss for words. Last night I was at a loss for words.

Horton also was honored. The 1974-75 president received the Bill Swift Memorial Award, which goes to the Jaycee traveling the most miles on club projects during the year. Horton covered approximately 6,000 miles as president.

Milton Saltzman, outgoing secretary and state director for the Pampa organization, was named both Key Man and Outstanding Officer.

Richard Morris, who was installed as the 1975-76 president of the club, was named Outstanding Director and Outstanding Personal and Individual Development Jaycee.

Outstanding First Year Jaycee was John Triplehorn, who was also elected a director for the upcoming year. Other directors installed Thursday were Saltzman, Ed Rowntree and Joe Wheeley. Rowntree and John Goes were last year's directors.

Other outgoing officers included Denny McDougall, treasurer; Paul Peoples, parliamentarian; and Kerrik Horton, Jaycee vice president.

Jaycee vice officers for last year included Margaret Milam, vice president; Anna Mae Lancaster, secretary; and state director for Pampa, Treca Saltzman, treasurer; Margaret Milam, historian; and Sharon Peoples, parliamentarian.

New Jaycee officers included Dennis Schlegel, vice president; Bob Walker, secretary; state director, Monty Gordon; treasurer, and Horton, parliamentarian. Jaycee vice officers installed were Zola Schlegel, president; Sara Wheeley, vice president; Pat McKinney, secretary; state director, Ann Triplehorn; and Ms. Horton, parliamentarian and historian.

Ms. Saltzman was named outstanding Hopping Hen for traveling 2,994 miles for the Jaycee. Mrs. Milam was the Outstanding Jaycee vice and Outstanding Officer.

Seven Jaycees of the Month were presented certificates for special service this past year. Those were Charles Milam (April) for Easter Egg Hunt; John Grooters (July) for the July 4 concession stand; Marvin Loucks (Aug.) for the Jaycee carnival; Paul Sims (Sept.) for the Men's Flag Football League; John Triplehorn (Oct.) for the Cancer hike — a thin; Richard Morris (Jan.) this year for the membership drive; and Marty Beck (Feb.) for the elections committee.

Beck and Phil Kumble were given Exhausted Rooster certificates, too old to be Jaycees.

John Warner county attorney, was the banquet's speaker. Guests included Jerry Cook, staff vice president from Perryton; Clem Blackburn, Area 1, A Jaycee, vice president from Amarillo.

Centralization Nightmare

Two seemingly unrelated incidents in the recent news point ineluctably to a wide-ranging issue that by all counts will emerge as the central consideration of Americans for some time to come. Centralization — for the issue is centralization.

Speaking to the National Conference of Governors, the colorful Harvard professor Daniel Patrick Moynihan, recent U.S. ambassador to India, delineated the contemporary considerations of federalism. Federalism, the idea that political government should be subdivided into several semi-sovereign entities, has almost been dropped from the modern lexicon, even though it was the guiding spirit of Madison, Hamilton and Jay.

The forces pushing federal centralism, said Moynihan, range in words on his gloomy audience, are not likely to be overcome except by a genuine, fundamental decision by the American people that the central government should not get larger. He stressed, according to the Washington Post's David Broder, that such a momentous decision is not likely to come for the next 15 years.

Moynihan could hardly expect to slake the thirst of trapped governors. State and local officials have largely brought on federal controls themselves, and now they are looking for ways to get independent of a national bureaucracy's sluggishness.

The other incident was the devastating fire at a telephone company switching center in New York City a 16-hour conflagration that temporarily ended phone service for 170,000 customers. The disaster is one of those rare occasions when metaphor and reality coincide, metaphor because it illustrates the gamble of political centralism, reality because it shows the disastrous consequences of relying overmuch on centralism.

Lenny Bruce once opined that the Soviet government was like one giant monopoly telephone company. He preferred a place where he could find alternatives to defective products, in other words, competition. With dizzying growth of centralized government since Bruce's death, he would doubtless, had he lived, have revised his assessment to include the U.S. government.

Americans have become accustomed to relying on the federal government, it is not even federal anymore, but a national government as the one and only switching center to cope with political controversies. When, for instance, the mayor of a city or the governor of a state demonstrate repeatedly that they cannot address a problem without reference to acquiring "federal funds," there is little wonder why power is arrogated to central authority.

Even "public utilities," such as the quasi-governmental telephone companies, have acted according to the same centralist pattern. The more people rely on a single, central source for their service, the more people will be inconvenienced by a blow to their source. The New York blaze supplied perfect evidence.

Suppose, to be supposing, that political dissidents organized a terrorist guerrilla movement. In order to disservice the largest number of people, thereby spreading the desired chaos, terrorists naturally select the obvious pressure points — such as hugely centralized telephone facilities. Disruption of pressure points was a consistent theme in the 1970 "Urban Guerrilla Manual" by the late Brazilian terrorist Carlos Marighella.

The New York City telephone fire may or may not have been the product of terrorist arson, or any other kind of arson. But it does lead one to the meditation that centralization could, just could, be more of a potential nightmare than even Daniel Patrick Moynihan foresees.

Anti-Defense Lobby Active

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The hope the American people were urged to place in détente with the Soviet Union has been largely shattered by the Soviet deployment of powerful new missiles with giant warheads. Increasingly, thoughtful citizens realize that, in the Soviet view, détente is but the cold war pursued under another name.

Not all Americans will admit to the reality of Soviet power drives, however. Influential elements in Congress and the academic-metropolitan media complex are determined to push for unilateral disarmament by the United States. They oppose development of new weapons or the replacement of ships and aircraft worn out as a result of many years of hard service. Together, these elements form a powerful anti-defense lobby.

In the structure of this influential lobby no organization plays a more significant role than the Center For Defense Information headed by former Rear Adm. Gene K. La Rocque known to many as the "Ralph Nader of the Pentagon." The Center itself is financed in part by the Fund for Peace, an organization which has been active in promoting anti-defense groups and causes.

The Center's role has come under close scrutiny in a recently published public report by Allan C. Brownfield, Washington correspondent of The Point International and a frequent contributor to Human Events Magazine.

Writing in the report issued by the United States Industrial Council, Mr. Brownfield challenges the anti-defense positions of the Center. He observes that "The Center For Defense Information has rejected the findings of most defense authorities in almost every area of its consideration." He states that "It is in opposition to almost all informed opinion on defense matters."

Mr. Brownfield points out that "While the Center calls for dramatic cuts in U.S. defense spending, arguing that it will help ease our current rate of inflation, Adm. La Rocque completely ignores the fact that the Soviet Union devotes more than three times as much money to military research and development as the U.S. does, or over $25 billion annually to $8 billion for the U.S."

Mr. Brownfield also notes that "While La Rocque discusses 'détente' and urges American withdrawal from its world commitments as well as dramatic cuts in defense spending, the Soviet Union pursues only a rhetorical 'détente' while pushing ahead in all major weapons systems and armaments. The U.S. Navy, Admiral La Rocque does not tell his audiences, has been cut almost in half within the past six years.

The public report by Mr. Brownfield is frank and hard-hitting. Mr. Brownfield, a veteran observer of the national scene, concludes:

"With its quasi-objective format, the Center For Defense Information has distorted much of the reality of America's military posture vis a vis that of the Soviet Union. This is not a question of philosophy, not even a question of whether or not one views the Soviet Union as an aggressive force in the world. It is, rather, a question of exactly what the relative strengths of the two nations are."

Adm. La Rocque is frequently quoted in journals opposed to strengthening of U.S. defenses. He has testified against defense spending before House and Senate committees. It is terribly important, therefore, the Congress and the public recognize that the findings of Adm. La Rocque and the Center For Defense Information are not in accord with the facts developed by defense authorities in the free world. The built-in bias of the Center against a strong defense posture should be clearly recognized.

Allan Brownfield's authoritative report of the Center is must-reading for member of Congress during the coming debate on national defense.

The cost of food consumed in the home, according to the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., rose 64 per cent from 1953 to 1973.

WITH MORE BOODLE House Celebrates Tax Cut

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, April 11 — In line with the old axiom "one good turn deserves another," the House thoughtfully voted itself some goodies — as well as that $2.8 billion anti-recession tax-cutting legislation.

The unpublicized largesse was another $937 million to increase committee staffs, travel funds and various other boodles.

That made a total of around $20 million finagled for this purpose before the House shut down for the 10-day Easter recess — not a bad take at all as boodle grabs go.

Previously, the House had voted $10 million in additional funds for a number of committees — foremost among them $1.7 million for the Ways and Means Committee, which handled the $22 billion-plus tax slash. The committee claimed the extra money was needed to finance six new subcommittees and to double its staff from 30 to 65.

Nine committees benefit from the $937 million grab — three getting approximately two-thirds. They are Interstate and Foreign Commerce, $2,809 million; Judiciary, $1,831 million; Government Operations, $1,54 million.

Other sizable beneficiaries are International Relations, $965,000; Interior and Insular

Clearing House

Editor:

Wyatt W. Lipscomb, a Christian attorney, at-law from Garland, wrote urgent letters to pastors across the state to encourage people to write their senators and representatives to oppose House Bill No. 1828 and Senate Bill No. 834 which would give state control of Christian education. His analysis of the bill follows. The opening paragraph states the purpose of the bill is for the licensing, certification and the registration of childcare and educational institutions.

Childcare facilities are defined as providing care, education, treatment, custody or supervision for children under 18 years of age while their parents are not on the premises. This definition includes every Christian school. If children come to the church without parents, this includes Sunday School.

If parents leave the premises to attend a social or seminar conducted off premises, licensing includes the church nursery.

Every church school, kindergarten, and nursery must be licensed.

The Department of Public Welfare is given the legislative duty and authority to draw any rule considered necessary, with the only restriction being that the rule will be "reasonable." Bureaucrats determine the reasonableness.

Section 56 places the Welfare Department over the church camp — and under some circumstances, other church charitable activities.

Section 6 lists the bureaucrats that approve the rules and none of whom are elected officials.

Section 7 gives the right in any time the bureaucrats deem reasonable to invade your property without a warrant.

The Welfare Department is given a free hand to require unlimited red tape prepared and kept at the church's expense, and the church is required to have an annual audit by a CPA. This audit could include the Sunday School, as well as the nursery, and certainly includes all Christian Schools.

The Welfare Department or Educational Agency is given the authority to impose restrictions including the number and type of Children.

Those schools that have met the requirements of Welfare and T.E.A. in the past are no better off, because they must now meet all new requirements as they are dreamed up.

If any rule in the opinion of the Department or T.E.A. is broken, they may revoke the license. Since no one may operate a childcare facility or school, without a license, all operations must stop immediately or else you could be put in jail for one year, fined $1,000 on criminal charges (Section 15) and $5,000 per day on civil action (Section 16).

Section 17 gives bureaucrats the power to remove the children "from your school to a 'facility' of their choice."

Lipscomb states: "This bill must be defeated so that Christian schools can continue to train children in the nature and admonition of the Lord."

Each person is encouraged to write their state senator and representative in Austin to let them know they oppose House Bill No. 1828 and Senate Bill No. 834.

Affairs, $913,000; the new Select Committee on Aging, $600,000; Science and Technology, $554,000.

Even the District of Columbia Committee and the Rules Committee got in on this boodle grab.

Both were vigorously challenged, but to no avail. In the House the guiding principle is "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" — and it never fails to work. This time was no exception.

Where're You Going?

Actually, the Rules Committee grab was only $30,000 — impatiently characterized by Rep. Samuel Devine, R.-Ohio, as "mere pennies."

Nevertheless, the $30,000 — was six times what the committee got last year.

Rep. Mendel Davis, D.-S.C., intrepidly wanted to know why the big hike. Wryly noting that opposing the mighty Rules Committee "may be dangerous," he still insisted on an explanation. Told the money was for "traveling," Davis demanded, "What traveling?"

"There is no reason for the Rules Committee to do any traveling," he pointed out. "It has no oversight responsibility, no legislative responsibility, and it over sees no appropriations. It has never had travel money before, so why does it need $25,000 for traveling around the country? That's totally absurd at this time. We've got too much business right here on the floor of the House for the committee to engage in traveling."

This brought an indignant defense from Rep. Ray Madden, D.-Ind., 83-year-old Rules Committee chairman. Sternly he argued:

"As a major committee of the House, and an important arm of the House leadership, the sum of $30,000 is well within the bounds of necessity and propriety. And as for traveling, I'll just mention that we voted $164,000 for travel for one committee, and $166,000 for travel for another committee. So we can well afford $25,000 for travel for the Rules Committee. After all, there are 16 members on this committee."

"Yes, I know," retorted Davis. "That comes out to a little over $1,000 apiece for travel."

It was a game try by Davis, but it was futile.

Rep. Devine clinched it against him with the ringing pronouncement:

"I think it's a shame to waste the time of the House talking about pennies. This is only a $25,000 increase. We're trying to get this thing out of the way so we can consider the $6 billion housing bill. Let's stop haranguing and get it over with."

And that's exactly what the House did — voting Davis down 214 to 156.

Another Mystery

Also unexplained was why the District of Columbia Committee needed a $130,000 hike in funds — to $375,000 this year.

Caustically pointed out by Rep. Robert Bauman, R.-Md., was the fact that the District now has home rule (voted last year for the first time in a century), and presumably the committee should have little if anything to do.

"The D.C. Committee has lost considerable jurisdiction over D.C. affairs," he pertinently noted, "so why are we being asked to give the committee one-third more in funds? Why the increase when the committee's jurisdiction is much less than previously? It doesn't add up to me."

The explanation Bauman got was as involved as it was verbose.

In effect, it amounted to "the problems arising from the District's changeover to home rule are traumatic," and more committee oversight, not less, is necessary for the next several years. Hence more money is needed for a larger staff and other unspecified expenses.

Chairman of the District Committee is Rep. Charles Diggs, D.-Mich. he and virtually the entire staff are black.

Side Dishes

The $1.831 million grant to the Judiciary Committee, 14 per cent more than last year, is for 25 new staff employees and a 5.5 per cent cost-of-living pay hike. The additional staff personnel will include nine attorneys, one economist, three legislative assistants and two clerks. Rep. John Ashbrook, R.-Ohio, tried to get an explanation from committee chairman Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., on why nothing has been done about setting up a subcommittee on internal security. All Rodino would say was "the matter is under study and will be presented to the full committee when a report has been formulated."

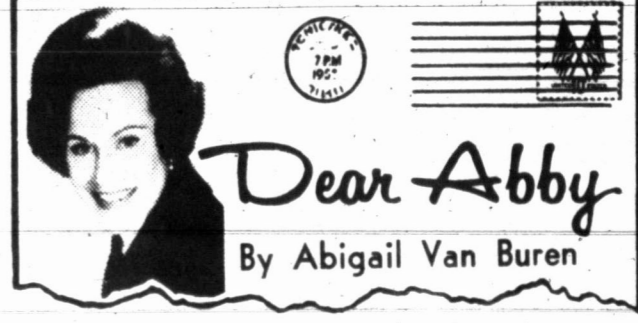

"Why is there such a large increase in funding when the expansion in personnel isn't commensurate? What are the additional funds to be spent for?" Replied Stagers vaguely. "Travel, professional advice, consultants, printing, and virtually innumerable things."

Now you know where another several million dollars of your tax money is going!

Housewife Feels Jailed and Her Hubby's the Warden

DEAR ABBY: I am 27-years-old and my husband is 31. We've been married for 10 years and have three really nice sons.

Abby, I am a clean, respectable woman, but my home is getting more like a prison every day.

My husband doesn't think I need to leave the house. He doesn't even let me go to church because he doesn't care to go.

I can't belong to any clubs or organizations because my husband thinks a woman's place is in the home and no place else. He wouldn't even let me join the PTA, and our two oldest boys are so ashamed because their teachers have never even met me.

We don't socialize with anybody because my husband says we don't need friends. The only time I get out of the house is when we go marketing together once a week. He handles all the money.

We get into quarrels every time I say I want to go somewhere. Both our families are far away. When I ask him to please sit down and talk things over, he says there is nothing to talk about. If I talk back to him, I end up with a busted mouth, a black eye and bruises.

I mentioned divorce once and he beat me up so bad I could hardly get out of bed for two days. Abby, I can't take the boys and leave because I don't drive and I don't have five dollars of my own. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: A woman who takes repeated beatings from her husband needs counseling, and badly. The Family Service Agency (listed in your phone book) offers this confidential, excellent help. And don't worry about not having any money. Their fee is based on your ability to pay. If you have no money, there is no charge.

Also, there are laws stating that a man is responsible for the support of his wife and children — no matter what he may say about it. I urge you to get the help you need at once. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13-years-old and could pass for 16. I babysit to earn my own money.

My problem is my mother. She said I can spend my own money on whatever I want as long as it is under $10. If it costs more than that, I have to get her permission to buy it.

I saw a beautiful ring that costs $16.95, and I want to buy it. I told my mother about it, and she said that it was probably just a piece of junk. And that I couldn't buy it.

Abby, I keep thinking about that ring, and I really want it. Would it be wrong if I bought it and just didn't wear it around the house? My mother never snoops in my drawers.

MAD AT MOM

DEAR MAD: You sound like too nice a girl to be playing hide and sneak. One lie leads to another. Be honest. It's great for your conscience.

Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Johnston

 Mobeetie Group Honors Long Time Residents ***

Church members will dedicate the morning service at First Baptist Church in Mobeetie to Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Johnston. After 69 years as residents of Wheeler County, they will soon move to McKinney. The service will be at 11 a.m. Johnston came to Wheeler county with his parents in 1906 and Mrs. Johnston's parents moved there the following year. They moved to the Mobeetie community in 1916. The Johnstons were married on Dec. 24, 1911 in Wheeler where their two children, J.T. and Claudia, were born.

The children received their education in Mobeetie. Both attended Amarillo College. "We regret very much leaving the church and our many friends," the Johnstons said. They have been members there more than 55 years. "This will always be home to us and we expect to visit as often as possible. We express sincere appreciation to all our friends in Mobeetie and Wheeler for their many deeds of kindness through the years," they added.

Gulf Reveals New Project

HOUSTON — A 240 million pounds per year high density polyethylene expansion project has been announced by Gulf Oil Chemicals Company. R.M. Bartley, vice president for the company's U.S. Operations, said that the new unit will use the Union Carbide gas phase fluid bed process, an efficient and advanced process technology. It will be located at Orange, Texas, the site of Gulf's existing high density polyethylene facility. No date has been set to begin construction, nor has a contractor been selected. It is anticipated that the plant will be completed in mid-1977 and boost Gulf's capacity of high density polyethylene to 440 million pounds per year.

Rally Around Farmers Break

By DOUG LOWENSTEIN News Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — Farm state congressmen are rallying around a bill that would give farmers a tax break designed to preserve the nation's family farms.

On bill by Rep. Omar Bureson, D-Tex. (Tex. Ed. Bureson, D-Anson) would change federal estate tax law to reduce the tax burden on heirs to a farm so they won't have to sell the property in order to meet their tax obligations. There are 55 other bills calling for a change.

The bill is in the Ways and Means Committee. A spokesman for Bureson said it is unlikely that the committee will take up the bill until it finishes pressing energy and health insurance legislation.

Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., a member of the House Agriculture Committee, has also called for a change in the estate tax law, though his bill is not as sweeping as Bureson's. Peyser said "much of America's farmland is gone because the children of farmers could not pay the estate taxes."

A change in the estate tax laws, he said, is necessary to "insure that our farmland remains farmland."

Rep. Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., whose district is made up almost exclusively of farms, said of the need for a change: "Many farm families are faced with the problem of breaking up the family farm unit to pay estate taxes and the cost of estate settlement."

Major farm lobbying groups are also pushing for a change in the estate tax laws. The American Farm Bureau Federation says that increased land values have pushed many farms into high tax brackets but, estate tax law has not allowed for this change. The National Farmers Union has also called for a change.

An estate tax is paid when the owner of a property dies, leaving his land to an heir. The estate tax ranges from three percent to 77 percent of the adjusted net value of the estate, that is, its value after deductions.

Presently, estates are allowed a $60,000 "specific exemption." This can be increased by a series of deductions, such as unpaid debts, a widow or widower, an additional deduction equal to 50 percent of the adjusted gross estate value is allowed.

For example, if an estate is valued at $350,000 a marital deduction of $175,000 would be allowed.

Bureson has proposed that the marital deduction be increased to $100,000, plus 50 percent of the adjusted gross value of the estate.

Thus, the $350,000 estate would be entitled to a deduction of $275,000.

Airlines To Offer "No Thrills"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five of the nation's airlines will begin offering Monday a "no frills" 35 per cent discount for passengers willing to fly without food and free drink service.

The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday told American Airlines, Continental Airlines,

In addition, Bureson has proposed raising the specific exemption to $200,000 from the present $60,000.

A major provision of Bureson's bill would allow an assessment of a farm to be based on its current use rather than its potential use, as the law now requires. This choice could be invoked only if the land was farmed for five years prior to the death of the owner and would continue in that use for five or more years.

Potential use assessment is often higher than current use.

The Treasury Department has been asked to estimate what various changes in the estate tax law would cost the government.

Vets Volunteer To Refight Wars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several thousand American men — most of them Vietnam War veterans — have contacted the South Vietnamese and Cambodian embassies in the past few months volunteering to fight in Southeast Asia, embassy spokesmen said today.

None of these volunteers have been accepted, however, although the South Vietnamese Embassy has given some of them applications for changing their citizenship.

Col. Nguyen Hein Diem, military attache at the South Vietnamese Embassy, said most of the volunteers have been U.S. military veterans. But he said some applications have come from American college students who have never served in the military. Diem estimated he received 8 to 20 such telephone calls every day and thousands of letters.

Some of the volunteers, like Bart S. Bonner, a 34-year-old ex-Marine who came to the South Vietnamese Embassy Wednesday, claim they have friends who also are willing to help. Bonner offered to raise a volunteer force of as many as 75,000 American men to fight in Vietnam.

At the Cambodian Embassy, press attache Gaffar Peang-Meth said he has received about 400 or 500 such letters in the past few months — in addition to numerous telephone calls and telegrams.

"There are also some who claim that they speak for their fellow soldiers — two, three, four or five of them, all the way to 1,000 men," Peang-Meth said. "Some say they are willing to pay their transportation (to Cambodia) some say they are fully equipped."

Some said they would even take Cambodian citizenship just to go. Some are willing to go just for transportation, then take salary just the same as Cambodian soldiers.

Peang-Meth said he found it "difficult to say no" to these volunteers.

Saigon Reinforces Troops

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese paratroopers flew waves of helicopters into besieged Xuan Loc today in a giant airlift to reinforce battle-weary defenders in the provincial capital near Saigon.

The airborne troops flew four dozen choppers, including six huge CH47 Chinooks, through heavy Communist anti-aircraft fire to the edge of the embattled city.

On the ground, a column of rangers and militiamen inched up Highway 1 toward Xuan Loc, but ran into fierce Communist opposition 10 miles west of the embattled city.

Radio reports from Xuan Loc said the outnumbered defenders beat back two human wave assaults in the past three days, but intelligence officers said the Communists were massing for a third attack.

Reporters on the front lines said the paratroopers landed on the western edge of Xuan Loc with field guns slung to the bottoms of the bigger choppers. Reporters said the Communists shelled thousands of Xuan Loc refugees fleeing down French-built Highway 1 toward Saigon. One child was killed and 11 refugees wounded in an attack 12 miles from Xuan Loc.

The Saigon military command reported 903 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers slain in the fighting for Xuan Loc. A spokesman said 17 government soldiers were killed and 10 wounded.

South Vietnamese warplanes roared over the provinces around Xuan Loc and reported bombarding Communist armored columns, supply convoys and infantry.

The military command said the fighter-bombers killed 248 Communists, destroyed five tanks and knocked out 51 trucks in the raids northeast of Saigon.

The command said the warplanes battered a big Communist truck convoy hauling supplies down the coast of the South China Sea toward the battle zone.

In Washington, President Ford asked Congress Thursday night for nearly $1 billion in military and humanitarian aid to help the U.S. Embassy in Saigon said American officials who want to leave South Vietnam could fly out with their families on U.S. Air Force jets.

Tens of thousands of refugees fled embattled Xuan Loc, adding to the country's massive movement of civilians. About one-third of the city's population headed for Communist-held territory and the rest for government-run areas.

About 40,000 refugees, mostly from the northern provinces, have been shipped to Phu Quoc Island off the country's southern coast despite protests by those who want to remain in the crowded Saigon area.

South Vietnamese government "save itself."

Ford also asked for authorization to use U.S. troops "for the limited purposes" of evacuating Americans and endangered South Vietnamese from the war-torn country.

Opposition politicians in South Vietnam welcomed additional aid but said Ford should direct his efforts "more toward bringing peace to the country."

"The American aid is logical, but there is another totally different thing that we need—a diplomatic effort, not military aid, to end the war," said Tran Van Tuyen, an opposition party leader in the National Assembly.

Soon after Ford's speech, the Commissioners' Court Set Tuesday Meeting

Gray County Commissioners' Court will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Items on the agenda include payment of bills as approved by the county auditor, consideration of time deposits and transfers of funds as may be recommended by the county auditor and consideration of a resolution regarding federal disaster relief for Lefors tornado victims.

Other subjects to be considered will be renewal of McLean ambulance service contract, canvass of county school board elections, welfare report, treasurer's report, and a constable base radio in McLean.

The commissioners also will consider authorizing the county judge to execute conveyance to Pampa Independent School District covering part of old Pampa Junior High School property as requested by PISD in title curative requirement.

Tax legislation House Bill 1463 by Rep. Peveto will be discussed with Jack Back, county tax assessor-collector leading the discussion.

Committeemen Doubt School Audit Refute

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Two members of the state Proprietary School Advisory Commission indicate they have doubts about a letter refuting the results of an audit which shows proprietary schools in Texas owe millions of dollars to former students.

The letter was written by E.W. Quinton, director of the Division of Proprietary Schools and Veterans Education, and it was sent to officials in Washington.

The letter said students who dropped out of proprietary schools or students who were forced out because the schools closed were refunded the percentage of their tuition owed them. But, according to an internal audit, the students are still owed this money. These refunds are required by the Texas Proprietary Act.

"If the internal audit is true, this letter is very false," Jim Boyle, a member of the Proprietary School Advisory Commission, said Thursday.

"The letter says things were just rocking along and the audit shows the refund liability kept getting bigger and bigger."

Boyle and Mark Berry, another member of the commission, revealed the existence of the Quinton letter Thursday. Berry indicated he believed the results of the audit more than he believed the contents of the letter.

"There are millions of dollars owed to students in this state by the owners of proprietary schools," Berry said. "We're not talking about a small wrong, but a multimillion-dollar wrong."

"I don't think anybody has any earthly idea how much is owed the students in Texas and I think that's a serious problem," he said.

It also approved a provision prohibiting a proprietary school from enrolling students until it could prove it was in compliance with the Act and had received a certificate of approval. Certificates would be issued to those schools that prove they are complying with the act and all proprietary schools in the state would be required to apply for them.

The audit revealed one major problem with proprietary schools was certificates of approval were issued retroactively.

THURSDAY ACCIDENT — Susan Elizabeth Botkin, 17, of 2547 Duncan street and Michael Kerry Adair, 18, of 1227 Christine were drivers of autos involved in an accident at 3:46 p.m. Thursday at 25th and Duncan Streets. Ms. Botkin, Kerry Ammons, 17, of 1705 Duncan, a passenger in the Botkin car; and Steve Edwards, 18, 2131 N. Ms. Botkin was charged with failure to yield right of way by investigating officer Wayne Maynard. (Staff Photo)

Duval County Politics Turn

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — On May 24, District Judge O.P. Carrillo, a member of one of the feuding political clans in Duval County, ordered County Judge Archer Parr, a member of the other clan, removed from office because Parr had been indicted by a federal grand jury for perjury.

Carrillo's order and Parr's removal along with the suicide of George P. "Duke of Duval" Parr a week later, made it appear the Carrillos were beginning to take control of the political fiefdom molded by George Parr.

But the entire political situation in the South Texas area was thrown into confusion Thursday with the announcement that a federal grand jury had indicted Judge Carrillo and two of his confederates on charges of filing false income tax returns.

George Parr may have committed suicide rather than face a five-year jail term on the same charges.

Carrillo said he ordered Archer Parr removed from office because "Texas law prohibits a felon from holding a public position. But Carrillo said Thursday he has no intentions of resigning his position as a district judge."

Upon learning of the indictment, Archer Parr told UPI he will file legal motions to have Carrillo disqualified from his case.

The grand jury handed down secret indictments against Carrillo, his brother, Ramiro, and an associate, Arturo Zertuche, on March 28. The indictments alleged the three men participated in a scheme to bilk the government out of taxes on merchandise sold to a water district and a school district by stores owned by the Carrillos and Zertuche.

The Carrillo brothers posted $10,000 bonds each Thursday and Zertuche was released on a $2,500 bond.

Judge Gives Go Ahead For Kleasen

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Robert Elmer Kleasen will be tried on a capital murder charge unless the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals declares unconstitutional the state death penalty. District Judge Tom Blackwell ruled today.

Blackwell, granting most of the 20 motions requested by Kleasen's defense attorneys in a pretrial hearing, also agreed to sequester the jury when Kleasen is tried on charges of killing two Mormon missionaries and sawing up their bodies with a taxidermist's band saw.

Kleasen, 42, appearing pale after six months in jail and wearing a black suit with gray pin stripes, sat with his four-attorney defense team but said nothing during the hour long hearing. Blackwell has allowed Kleasen to act as his own attorney in the case.

He is accused of murdering Gary Smith Darley, 20, of Simi Valley, Calif., and Mark J. Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee Wis., both missionaries for the Church of Jesus-Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

The two disappeared after a visit to Kleasen's trailer home behind a South Austin taxidermist's shop. Authorities later said they found traces of blood and hair on a band saw in the shop and theorized Kleasen disposed of the bodies after dismembering them.

Glance At Texas News

Drug Bust
TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — A dispatcher for the Smith County Sheriff's office was arrested on a drug charge Thursday night.

Police said Donna Kay Donaldson, 26, and James Lee Breitling, 37, of Flint were charged with possession of a controlled substance. Police said a white powdery substance was confiscated in the arrest but they refused to identify the substance until tests were completed.

Miss Donaldson, who had been a dispatcher for two months, was immediately fired by Smith County Sheriff Harlan Long.

Primary Costs
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas will have to spend $200,000 to hold a presidential primary established by a bill designed to aid the candidacy of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., according to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

A legislative conference committee is deciding whether the bill will only apply to 1976 or require primaries in every presidential campaign.

Rep. Sarah Weddington, D-Austin, who wants to limit the bill to 1976, asked Bullock to estimate the cost of the primary.

"In talking with the comptroller's office, I have been assured that this is a very conservative estimate, and that the final figure, should there be more than one presidential candidate enter the race, is likely to be quite a bit higher than the $200,000 projected," Ms. Weddington said.

"I think this will considerably strengthen the case for having the bill expire automatically in 1977. I do not believe it is the present mood of the Texas Legislature to commit ourselves indefinitely to large expenditures of funds which may not serve the long range needs and interests of the people of this state."

Senate Okays
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked the Senate Thursday to approve his appointment of Durwood A. Sutton of Grand Prairie to the Board of Directors of the Texas Turnpike Authority. Sutton was named to a six-year term ending Feb. 15, 1979.

D.C. Vote
WASHINGTON (U.P.J.) — Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and John Tower, R-Tex., voted with the majority Thursday in tabling a proposal to bar the use of federal funds for abortions except to save a mother's life.

The motion was tabled 54-36.

Disaster Areas
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Department of Agriculture officials informed Gov. Dolph Briscoe Thursday Limestone and Oldham Counties have been designated disaster areas because of adverse weather conditions.

Excessive rainfall, flooding and intermittent windstorms from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, 1974, caused damage in Limestone County, Briscoe said. Cold weather from Aug. 28 through Oct. 31 and excessive rainfall from Sept. 1 through Oct. 31 caused agricultural losses in Oldham County.

Vote Replacement
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate voted Thursday to require county commissioners to replace any election judges who resign or die with the precinct chairman of the party that received most votes in the last primary elections.

Autos Show Less Frills

DETROIT (UPI) — Inflation may help take some of the confusion out of buying a car.

Steadily rising prices could mean fewer models and some real distinctions between them. That's the way it used to be: decide whether you want a low-priced or expensive car, then pick from the ones available in your price range.

There were three basic types of cars 20 years ago and they had little price overlap. Today, among the four major U.S. auto companies, there are 10 car divisions that between them offer more than 360 different models.

Many overlap in size and price. With some, it's hard to tell how the company even decided on the price and there's some indication Detroit thinks it may have gone overboard.

In recent weeks, the auto-makers have been stripping some of the frills from their models so they can offer them with lower price stickers and, they hope, maintain some of the sales momentum the industry gained with cash rebates. Privately, many auto-makers expect customers to add the options back on the lower-priced models.

Whether they'll follow that move with fewer models in the next couple of years is questionable. Robert J. Hampson, Ford Motor Co. executive vice president for North American automotive operations, believes today's concepts and sizes will survive for many years.

"It's been internal combustion engines, four wheels on the road and individually controlled vehicles for many years," Hampson said, "and we expect it to stay that way for many more."

"There will be a continuation of engineering refinements and there will be new forms of the internal combustion engine that will give better gas mileage," Hampson said. "There also will be increased use of lightweight materials to cut deadweight and the size and external shape of cars will continue to change."

Hampson admits, though, things were simpler way back when.

"The type of car a person bought back in 1955 was dictated as much by his pocketbook as any other factor," he said.

In the 1950s, there was a well-defined standard-car segment. Made up primarily of the Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth car lines it accounted for the majority of sales—56 per cent in 1955.

Next in line, but with less volume, were the mediums—the Buicks, Mercurys, Pontiacs, Hudsons and Dodges. The luxury models—Lincoln, Packard, Imperial and Cadillac—were the top-of-the-line cars of their time and like the other types, had a clearly defined price range.

Today, many different types of cars can be found in the same price range. Sporty compact Chevrolet Monzas cost more than larger Chevrolet Camaros and Ford's new compact Granada has a price sticker that overlaps the smaller, sporty Mustang II and the larger Torino.

If there is a blending of price and size, it appears headed for cars in the intermediate and compact car size range. Through March, those two segments accounted for 49 per cent of all cars sold in the slumping market.

"There is little doubt in our minds—and apparently the buyers agree as they are buying a lot of them," said Hampson, "that intermediates and compacts are now the gut center of the automobile industry."

House Backs Harold Wilson

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Commons has overwhelmingly endorsed Prime Minister Harold Wilson's bid to keep Britain in the Common Market, but a majority of his own Labor party defied him and voted to pull out.

At the end of a three-day debate, the House of Commons voted, 396-170, Wednesday night to support Wilson's call for a "yes" vote in next summer's national referendum on market membership.

Lawyers Appeal Charge On Drug Defense Fees

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — Six South Texas lawyers say they will appeal their civil contempt citation for refusing to answer a federal grand jury's questions about payment of legal fees for defense of narcotics cases.

U. S. District Judge Ben C. Connally of Houston found the attorneys in contempt Wednesday.

They were held five hours by U. S. Marshals before Connally released them on $1,000 personal recognizance bonds while they appeal to a higher court.

After their release, the six said they were ordered not to divulge questions put to them in the grand jury room. All they would say was they were appealing a "point of law."

The lawyers were identified as Knox Jones, Robert Yzaguirre and Art Guerra Jr., all of McAllen, Rudy Garza and Antonio Canales of Corpus Christi and Ramon Garcia of Edinburg.

The federal grand jury convened Monday to determine who, other than the defendants themselves, paid for legal services from South Texas attorneys who regularly represent clients in drug trafficking cases.

Some of the lawyers contended the grand jury questioning might infringe upon their attorney-client privilege and retained Austin attorney Frank Maloney to represent them. Several charged the Drug Enforcement Administration, which investigates international drug smuggling, was behind the investigation.

India Army Take Over King Palace

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Indian army troops overpowered guards protecting the palace of the king of Sikkim after a 40-minute battle. Indian news agencies reported today.

The reports said one guard was killed and four other persons, including an Indian army officer, were injured in the battle in the Sikkimese capital of Gangtok.

The Press Trust of India said the confrontation followed an "unruly and violent incident" in which palace guards fired on demonstrators demanding the removal of the Chogyal.

Cattlemen Call Ads On Starvation Misleading

DENVER (UPI) — American National Cattlemen's Association officials say Americans are being misled by radio and television advertisements implying that grain fed to cattle could be put to better use to feed starving persons around the world.

Fed Accuses Banana King Of Pay-Offs

NEW YORK (UPI) — For half a century, United Fruit Co. operated as overlord of the Caribbean, ruling economies of the banana republics with vast wealth and power.

The U.S. government now says its modern-day successor United Brands was up to its old tricks, paying off high officials of Honduras for tax breaks on exported bananas.

United Brands admitted Wednesday that in September its chairman Eli M. Black paid one or more officials of Honduras $1.25 million and promised another payment of $1.25 million this month.

Some U.S. officials said privately it was believed that Honduras President Oswaldo Lopez got some of the money channeled by Black through French subsidiaries.

On Feb. 3, Black jumped to his death after using a brief case to smash through the window of his office on the 44th floor of the Pan Am building in Manhattan.

"The strong implication conveyed in both the television and radio spots is that cattle in this country are consuming food which could feed most of the world's hungry," ANCA President Gordon Van Vleck said Friday.

Van Vleck said his organization had filed a formal protest with the Federal Communications Commission as a result of the ads promoting World Food Day April 17.

The official said he had written FCC Chairman Richard Wiley urging the advertisements not be aired as public service broadcasts. He said the ads were misleading because they insinuated food grains and feed grains are the same.

"This position is not only incorrect, it reflects strongly and negatively on the American cattle industry," he said.

Van Vleck said even if people could eat the coarse feed grains, they would increase in price because they would have to be purchased, shipped and distributed as foodstuffs.

"Obviously, grain farmers would not produce it (feed grain) unless a market existed with an adequate price for the product," he said.

Senate Okays Prosecution For Teens

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate has given tentative approval to a bill prohibiting criminal prosecution of anyone under 18 years old without approval of a juvenile court.

The bill, which makes substantial revisions in the statutes on juvenile delinquency, also forbids prosecution of anyone under 15 years of age for anything besides perjury, drunk driving or municipal traffic offenses.

The bill by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, was passed 16-14.

Under the proposed change, if a juvenile court took action against a youth accused of a major crime, such as ruling him a delinquent for the offense, the individual could not later be prosecuted in a criminal court.

The legislation for the first time defines school truancy as unexcused voluntary absence from classes for 10 or more days in six months or three days in four weeks.

Other provisions of the legislation give fathers of illegitimate children the same rights and responsibilities as mothers and allows juvenile authorities to forbid any contact between an adult—even a parent—and a delinquent youth if "the adult is found to be contributing to the youth's delinquency."

Refinery Tax Could Relieve Texans

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Some Texas legislators want out-of-state folks to help pay for the state's government through a tax on products from Texas refineries.

Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, said the refinery tax would give Texas taxpayers a much deserved break.

"It gives consumers in other parts of the country who are not Texas residents an opportunity to pay for our state government," Temple said.

But oil industry spokesmen say the tax will backfire, placing oil refining companies in a losing position and Texas' economy in jeopardy.

"We simply cannot live with it," said Z.D. Bonner, president of Gulf Oil Co.-U.S.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee heard lengthy testimony Wednesday night on proposals by three representatives to enact the refinery products tax of up to $1 per barrel. The measure also proposes cutting in the state's present four cent per gallon gasoline tax to two or three cents.

"This will vastly increase the revenues in this state without taxing Texans," said Rep. Chris Miller, D-Fort Worth, a liberal sponsor of one of the measures.

"Texas is subsidizing the rest of the country's petroleum needs at the expense of its own citizens," said Rep. Bill Blythe, R-Houston, a conservative sponsor of another refinery tax proposal.

Lynn Moak, assistant state comptroller, testified the refinery products tax will raise $16 million a year in additional revenue for state government even after the gasoline taxes are reduced.

The Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, the oil industry's main legislative lobby group, paraded 10 witnesses before the committee to testify against the tax proposals and had lengthy prepared statements to hand out to reporters present.

Bill Abington, Mid-Continent's main lobbyist, said the refinery tax "would, in all probability, place all present petroleum refining operations in Texas in a loss position. Some refiners would be hard-pressed to continue operations."

A statement from Bonner said the tax "would inflict irreparable harm on a vital segment of the economic base of this state, the refining industry."

"The economic well being of the refining industry in this state has a direct effect on a substantial portion of this state's employment as well as its industrial base," he said.

Black Professor Files For Marriage Refusal

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The black UT-Arlington professor who said Justice of the Peace John Forbes refused to marry him to a white woman has filed a federal complaint that could result in charges of civil rights violations against the judge.

Urban studies professor Dr. Daniel Georges, 26, said Wednesday the complaint, filed jointly with his wife, involved three possible violations of civil rights statutes. An FBI agent said further action could occur within two weeks.

plaining he routinely refuses to perform under-age or interracial marriages.

"My experience indicates that such under-age and interracial marriages are often the result of either family pressures or a personal revolt against family prejudices," Forbes said. "When one out of three new marriages now end up in the divorce courts of our state, I feel it would be a breach of my judicial conscience to indiscriminately contribute to these growing statistics."

But Georges said Forbes was not as rational on the day of the wedding.

According to Georges, Forbes locked himself in his office. He refused to come out until several members of the wedding party banged on his door.

"At that time he got very angry and grabbed my arm and pushed me toward the stairs," Georges said.

Predicts Bumper Crop For 1975 Texas Wheat

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White says good growing conditions and low cattle prices are responsible for an expected record 1975 wheat crop in Texas.

The state's winter wheat production is estimated at 140 million bushels, a 165 per cent increase over the 1974 yield and 20 per cent higher than the December estimate for 1975.

White said there were excellent fall and winter growing conditions on the Texas plains.

"Low cattle prices have also influenced this record yield,"

he said. "Farmers have not been grazing out their wheat pastures, and many will be harvesting a larger portion of their crop to grain."

White said if growing conditions remain good, the 1975 crop could exceed the state's record by more than 23 million bushels. The previous high yield was 116.9 bushels in 1947.

He estimated there are 6.5 million acres of wheat planted this year, a 16 per cent increase over last year, and the biggest wheat planting in Texas since 1949.

Good Food Saved By Bank

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — The Food Bank here is an unusual savings institution. It rescues good food that would otherwise be wasted.

What we do is take advantage of waste in the agricultural system by rescuing food before it gets to the dump to help people who are facing a food emergency," says Paul J. Growald, the bank's director.

Growald's nonprofit organization is near the heart of one of California's major food producing regions. It collects and distributes a small fraction of the millions of pounds of edible food destroyed annually in the United States.

The food he gathers is perfectly good to eat but may be cosmetically unacceptable for the marketplace: a funny-shaped apple or a yellow cauliflower, for example. Other fresh food Growald collects may have been stored after harvest with the hope of sale at high winter prices. If the demand never materializes, the food is destroyed.

In addition to fresh produce, canners and food processors often are left with many cans of acceptable products that are underweight — a can of tomatoes, for instance, that contains 12 rather than 16 ounces. The industry recently received Food and Drug Administration approval to sell some of these underweight products to institutions.

Growald hopes to collect and distribute to charitable organizations about 15 tons of food a week, or 750 tons a year, from his warehouse, a glorified garage and a 40-foot donated refrigerator which is still at another facility because he has no place to put it.

His staff consists of a part-time truck driver and volunteers. He hopes to get some emergency federal employees to stretch out the project's $28,000 federal Community Services Administration grant.

His goal is a three-day basket with six to eight pounds of food for one person at a cost to the Food Bank of $1.39.

Charitable organizations, such as the Salvation Army or San Francisco's St. Anthony's Dining Room, are feeling the economic pinch from two sides.

Growald said. "Charities traditionally got their money and food from private individuals, but now contributions are off 25 per cent.

and the requests are up 25 per cent, meaning they have half the resources for each request," he said.

In addition to the traditional poor, Growald said, many middle class people, such as auto workers who were making $13,000 a year, are faced with a food emergency.

Earn and Learn

It Pays Students to Get Job Experience

GETTING it all together, Prof. Mercia M.T. Grassi inspects fabrics from a design exhibit destined for Italy, under the sponsorship of the Decorators Club of New York.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

THE PRICE of a college education is soaring, with the current cost for four years of higher learning estimated at about $20,000 for tuition, room, board and extras. But if you earn as you learn you won't have to hang your diploma on the Poor House wall after graduation.

"It's called cooperative education," explained Prof. Mercia M.T. Grassi of Drexel University College of Business and Administration in Philadelphia, "and there's more to it than earning money to defray tuition costs. The idea is not just to earn but to learn about your major at the same time. It's a pay-as-you-go way to get practical on-the-job experience while working toward a degree."

At Drexel, a pioneer in cooperative education, students spend 11 to 12 quarters (three-month periods) in college and three to seven quarters in cooperative training.

Prof. Grassi is a product of what she's now teaching. While a Fulbright scholar in Italy, she worked with the Italian Institute of Foreign Trade. It gave her an idea for developing the Drexel course she now teaches which includes an International Marketing Seminar (a three-week trip) every other year. Its purpose: to give students an opportunity to confer with European firms to see how they promote products for export.

The first seminar students made such a superb impression on European retail store and fashion executives that Prof. Grassi was inspired to go a step further.

Talking Them Into It
"They raved about the students," she recalled, "so I said, 'Hey, listen, wouldn't you like to have a few of these students work for you on a six-month basis? You'd not only have the advantage of United States expertise but you'd be making valuable contacts because most of these students will eventually become buyers. When they do, you'll have the inside track.'"

That's how the foreign cooperative program at Drexel started in 1968. The first two students, who worked for a Milan department store, returned to Italy after graduation to take permanent jobs in retailing. Since then, the program has grown. Now Pucci, Gucci and other top designers put Drexel retailing students to work during their college years. Don't think that's not impressive on a graduate's resume!

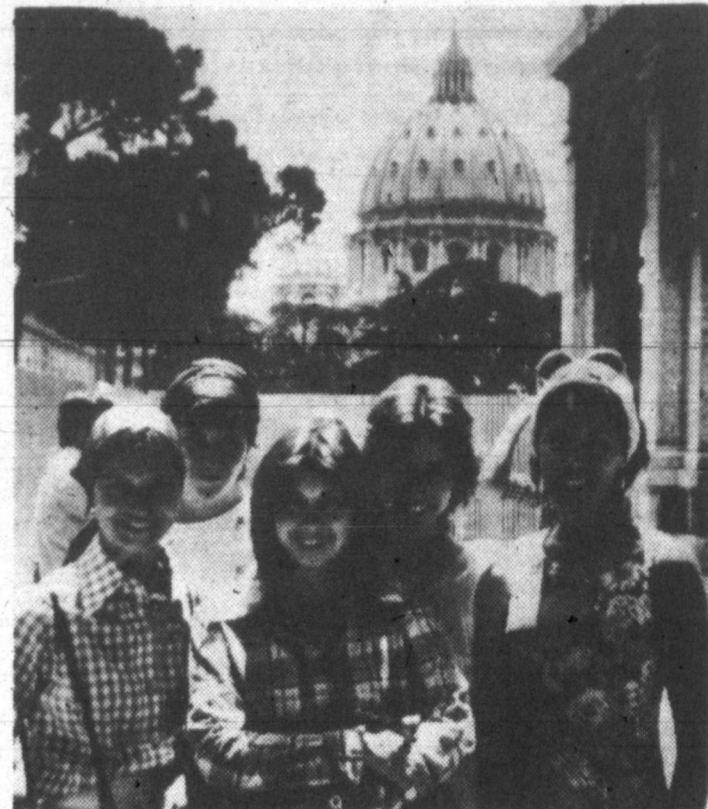

Filling a Need

In their co-op posts, the students are trouble shooters. They fill in where they're needed. They work at merchandising, pattern making or modeling. They might sell in a boutique. Whatever, they receive the standard wage and, as Prof. Grassi is quick to point out, "It makes a lot more sense to work in your field than to take a go-no-place job like waiting on tables."

Not all students in the cooperative education program go abroad. The majority find posts in 22 participating stores across the United States, many returning to these stores in full-time jobs after graduation.

"We have graduates in merchandising managerial posts all over the country," Prof. Grassi said. "They're at Bendels, Strawbridge and Clothier, you name the store."

Making the Match
Placing the students in co-op

DURING International Marketing Seminar, Prof. Grassi (right) and students stop in the Vatican Gardens, Rome.

posts is something like match-making because "you have to suit the student to the job and to the personality of the store."

Prof. Grassi, whose grandparents were born in Italy, learned Italian while on her Fulbright. That's when she fell in love with the city of Florence where she maintains an apartment. "With luck, I get to Florence three times a year."

Because of her post at Drexel and of her Italian heritage, she has been a leading figure in Italian-American cultural exchange programs.

"I got sick of the 'Godfather' image," she said. "People don't think Italy has done anything great in the arts since the Renaissance. They're wrong, so I'm letting them know about it."

Art Exchange
Her method involves bringing Italian art exhibits to Philadelphia and New York. This month she'll reverse the route and take an American design exhibit, sponsored by the Decorators Club of New York, to Florence.

Recognition of her cultural activities on both sides of the Atlantic has brought her citations from the mayors of Philadelphia and New York. Recently, the Italian government announced that Prof. Grassi would be made a Cavalliera della Repubblica Italiano for her "economic and cultural contributions." The order, not lightly given, will be presented sometime this year by the president of Italy.

Early Interest
Prof. Grassi's interest in fashion began when she was 2. ("I had an aunt who sat me on her knee and read me Harper's Bazaar.") At 16, she was selling in Wanamakers and charming the buyers into taking her to the market in New York. Before she began teaching full-time, she held eight other retailing jobs and all have paid off with more than experience.

"Anyone I meet," she said with enthusiasm, "is apt to wind up participating in Drexel's cooperative educational program."

Her current plans include a leave of absence "to go back into industry and practice what I teach." In that year she will develop an export market for the Barbados Ministry of Trade and re-merchandise an old suburban Philadelphia department store, Rowell's, to restore its former quality image. But somewhere along the line there will be a flying trip to Florence.

"Life moves too fast in the United States," she said, "but Florence is always the same. It's a very reassuring place to go."

Dealing Effectively With Children's Quarrels

COLLEGE STATION — If quarreling has become a way of life at your house, following some guidelines may help maintain more peace and harmony. Mrs. Ilene Miller, family life education specialist, suggested this week.

"First, it's important to realize that some quarreling between children is normal and to be expected. Quarrels are generally intense — but brief," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

"When possible, let children work out their own problems. Don't become overly concerned about who is right or wrong. Taking sides without knowing all facts can be a mistake.

"Since children lose their tempers easily, the experience of working out their own problems will help them learn some self-control."

Families can reduce the amount of quarreling by setting some guidelines on behavior, the specialist suggested.

"Most quarrels occur when children are tired or want attention. Try altering their play and work habits. Keep them separated as much as possible.

"Plan with the children for more separate activities during the times when they are tired, such as before supper. Encourage them to develop their own interests and ignore minor skirmishes," Mrs. Miller said.

She reminded that when parents remain calm and objective, they set a good example of self control for their children. As children grow older, they will learn to solve their own problems and the quarreling will decrease, she noted.

FILM DEBUT SET
ATLANTA (UPI) — Former Gov. Lester Maddox, beaten and left deeply in debt in his effort to become a governor again, goes to Hollywood next week for his movie debut.

He'll portray a governor combatting some "unsavory characters." "It's only a small part," Maddox said after signing a $1,000-a-day contract to appear as a fictional governor of Oklahoma in a made-for-TV gangster film titled "The Kansas City Massacre."

PRIZE — Mary Ann Fletcher won honorably mention for her wall hanging at competition among Salvation Army groups in Texas. She represented Pampa Salvation Army at the Dallas event. The banner was constructed by the local group.

Charles J. Cook Ordained in Lubbock

Charles J. Cook, former Pampan, April 5 was ordained to the Sacred Order of Priests by the Rt. Rev. Willis R. Hinton, Bishop of the Diocese of Northwest Texas, in St. Christophers Episcopal Church, Lubbock.

Among the priests taking part in the service was the former Rector of St. Matthews Episcopal Church in Pampa, the Rev. Sam Hulsey and the current rector, the Rev. Phillip Craig.

Rev. Cook, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Cook of Pampa, is a graduate of St. John Military Academy in Delafield, Wis., Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa and the Seminary of the Southwest in Austin. He is married to the former Christine White of Des Moines; they have two children, Charles 7, and Caroline 4. He is presently serving as curate at St. Christophers Episcopal Church in Lubbock.

In addition to many friends from Pampa attending the service were: Dr. and Mrs. D.L. Dearen and children, Lisa, Lynda and Dan from Mesa; Ari, Bill Nix from Austin, and Mrs. H.H. White, Des Moines, Iowa.

Central Baptist To Present Choir Musical

The adult choir of the Central Baptist Church will present the musical "Ichthus" by W.L. Reynolds Jr. at 7 p.m. May 4.

"ICHTHUS" is the English equivalent of the Greek word for "fish," the symbol used for identification by First century Christians. The five Greek letters are the first letters in the five words: "Jesus Christ God's Son Savior."

Several students from the Pampa High School band will assist in the performance, playing percussion instruments.

The text of "Ichthus" was taken from sermons of four of the pastors of the First Baptist Church in Nashville, Tenn., from an early hymn and from the Psalms. The work begins in early American heritage using the "fasola" syllables. It then progresses through four parts: The Glory of Christ, The Divinity of Christ, The Imperial Christ and The Conquering Christ. "Ichthus" ends triumphantly with four verses from Psalm 47 and Hallelujah.

Nursery facilities are provided. The public is invited.

Home Director To Give Talk On Ranch

Speaker for the Full Gospel Business Mens' Fellowship at 7 p.m. tonight will be Hugh B. Gegan, director of the newly formed Living Waters Gospel Ranch of Pampa.

The ranch is a rehabilitation home for young men ages 18 - 30 with drug - related problems. It provides a Christian atmosphere of love and help. Gegan will tell how the ranch was founded and reveal its future goals.

Two residents of the ranch, will testify how they have discovered the joy of serving the Lord. The Victory Singers of Wheeler will sing.

This will be a dinner meeting in the Starlight East Room of the Coronado Inn. Advance reservations may be made by calling 669-6108. The program starts at 8:00 p.m.

WT Athlete To Speak At Chapel

Dana Allbright, basketball player at West Texas State University in Canyon, will be the featured speaker at Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester, Sunday at the 11:00 a.m. service. He is active in Fellowship of Christian Athletes on Campus of West Texas, and invites any interested young person to visit with him.

Other young people from Faith Student Center in Canyon will be accompanying Allbright to Pampa to assist with the music. Pastor Edwin Waterbury invites everyone to attend.

Hugh B. Gegan

Salvation Army Sets Meeting For Women

The Salvation Army has set a reorganizational meeting of Church Women United for 2 p.m. Wednesday at 701 S. Cuyler.

Also slated is a covered dish luncheon at 11:30 a.m. Friday, May 2. It will be followed by a film entitled "Janie's Janie" and a panel discussion on women and welfare. This will mark the Salvation Army's May fellowship day.

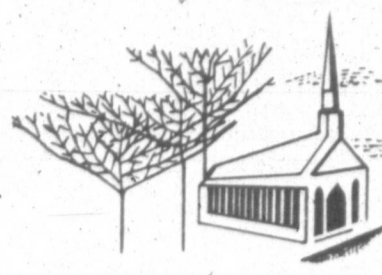

'Revival Fires' Sets TV Rally

Cecil Todd, speaker for the nationally released TV Program, "Revival Fires," is scheduled to appear with the Gospel Lads and Dale Evans for a giant TV rally at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium May 2 at 7:45 p.m.

Todd is the founder and director of the Revival Fires Ministries with international headquarters in Joplin, Mo. There are 22 departments in this ministry, all dedicated to soul-winning.

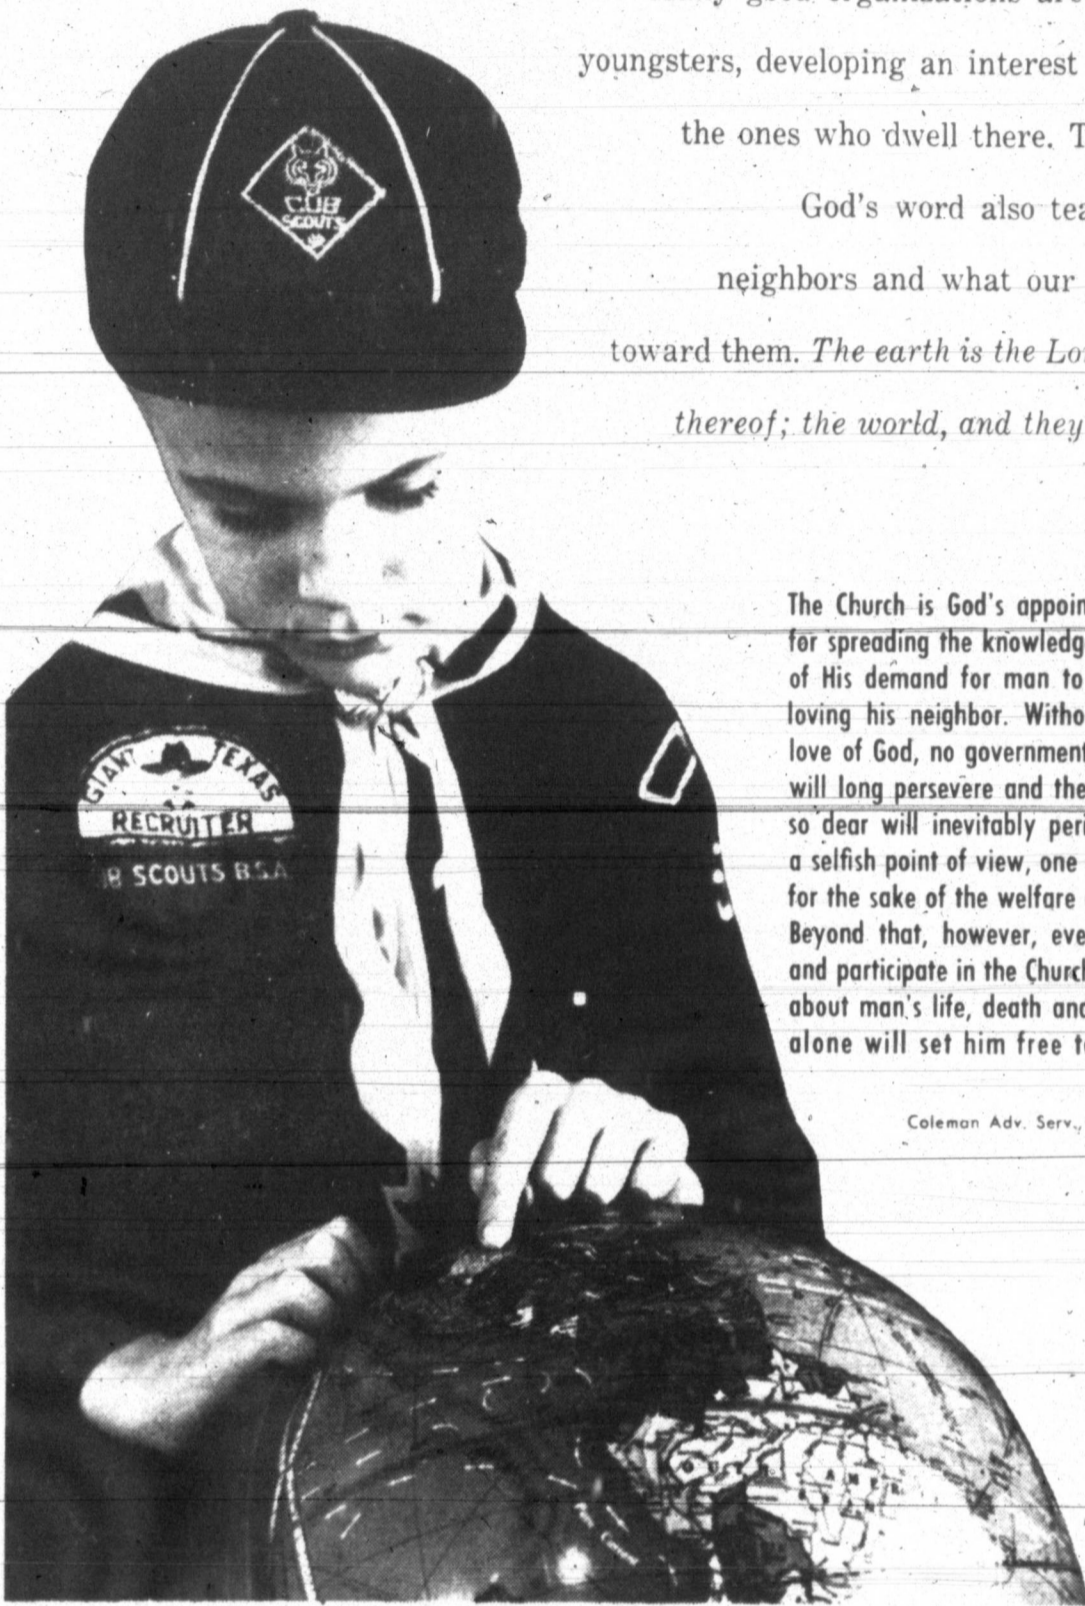

There will be no admission charge for the service.

An investment in Your Future ATTEND CHURCH WORLD WIDE INTEREST

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

Many good organizations are working with our youngsters, developing an interest in other lands and the ones who dwell there. The church through God's word also teaches us about our neighbors and what our attitude should be toward them. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

Coleman Adv. Serv.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

If Railroads Stop Coal Amish Have No Heat

BERNE, Ind. (UPI) — Members of the old order Amish, who live in simplicity and shun modern comforts, depend almost entirely on coal to heat their homes.

The coal comes to Berne by Penn-Central Railroad. Under national rail reorganization plans, the line through Berne could be abandoned.

There are more than 100 Amish homes in the area. Few if any use electricity, gas or oil for fuel, depending on coal and wood.

"Take the railroad away and we are up against it," a concerned Amishman said. "We don't want to compromise with the 'world' and go modern by using electricity and gas, so the only solution may be to move away where coal is more readily available."

The Amish use a lot of coal for heating their big old rural homes. Their homes mostly are large, two-story structures and few are insulated. Most have several coal-burning stoves in constant use during cold weather.

Amish may not believe in modern comforts, but they believe strongly in physical comfort. Regardless how much coal it takes, they insist on keeping their large families warm and cozy in the winter.

If things reach the point where the Amish feel they must leave the Berne area because of the coal situation, it would not be the first full-scale exodus of members of the sect from Adams County.

During the 1960s more than a dozen families sold their farms near Berne and moved to Missouri where land was cheaper and where they believed the danger of their young folk becoming "too worldly" was less than in this area near Fort Wayne, one of Indiana's largest cities.

Evangelist Doug Chambers

Lamar Service To Feature Evangelist

Evangelist Doug Chambers, Aurora, Colo., will speak at a special meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Lamar Full Gospel Church, 1200 S. Sumner.

The Rev. Gene Allen, church pastor, made the announcement. Chambers, who began preaching at 19 studied at Trinity Bible College and has written and recorded a number of gospel songs.

He will speak about his overseas crusades, the most recent in West Africa, and will provide special music for the services.

Sunday services will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on April 20.

Presbyterians To Honor Youth Sunday

Sunday will be Youth Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray. Participating will be the youth from Junior and Senior High levels. The message will be from Ann Henderson, Stef Secrest, Ted Brown and David Chambless at the 10:45 a.m. service.

Special music will be from a youth choir under the direction of Jana Hogan, accompanied in by Norman Goad, organist.

The youth leaders are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hogan, assisted by youth director, Darrel Cory.

Church School begins at 9:30 a.m.

A service of installation in the sanctuary for the new minister, the Rev. Norman D. Dow Jr. will be at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Fred Olson, ruling elder, and the moderator of Palo Duro Union Presbytery, Canyon, will preside.

The sermon will be delivered by Dr. Stuart D. Currie, professor of New Testament language and exegesis, Austin.

Also on the commission will be the Rev. Martin H. Thomas, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church in Amarillo, and the Rev. Don G. Shepherd, pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church in Amarillo. Elders Wm. H. Vaughan and N. Dudley Steele, Pampa, also will assist in the service.

A reception in the church parlor will honor Rev. and Mrs. Dow following the installation service.

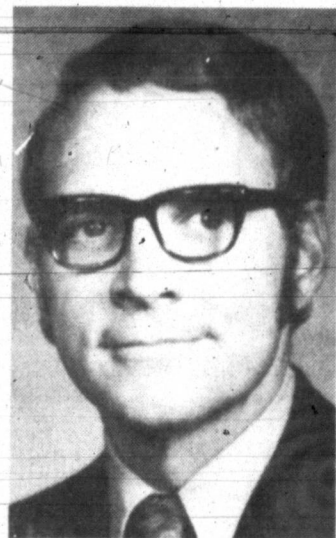

Pentecostal Church Sets Weekend Revival

Weekend revival services are scheduled at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock. The services beginning at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Guest speakers for these services will be Ronnie and Dianne Smith, evangelical singers and musicians. The Rev. Albert Maggard, pastor of the church, will preside.

The church's radio broadcast can be heard on radio station K.G.R.O. on Sunday morning from 7:30 to 8 a.m. A special feature of this week's broadcast will be a brief interview conducted by Pastor Maggard with Tony Jaramillo, Albuquerque, N.M. Jaramillo tells of his healing from cancer after he had been given up to die. The broadcast will also feature "Bill and the King's Three," and other singing groups in the local church.

April has been designated Pastor Appreciation Month and the local congregation has been engaged in activities to express its appreciation to Pastor Maggard who began his tenth year of service as pastor of the local congregation on March 22.

In comments prepared for Sunday morning's broadcast K.G.R.O., Pastor Maggard stated: privilege which has been mine to serve this wonderful church as "I enter my tenth year of ministry thankful for the privilege of being part of this fine community, and more excited than ever about the grandthings that lie ahead for all of us."

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 12

Your birthday today: You'll spend the whole year building up to a long-needed "giant-step" of change, a switch from previous experience. The major interest now is in gathering more available ways and means. Relationships go smoothly most of the year, are tested along with vocational development. Today's natives are willing to work, prefer long-range goals over expediency.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Just when you think everything's going your way, others disagree. It's a natural cycle, not anything you've done. Make amends, adjustments.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Those who know you well have figured out their own plans. Since you're clearly on different courses and drifting apart, you may as well join forces in good humor.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You're beginning to take friends' suggestions for granted. Do you really want to go along with them? You can't avoid the search for your own individuality. No bickering!

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Make the best of unexpected circumstances. It's so easy to complain, which could lead to much trouble. Refuse to gripe, and you prevent difficulties.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Temptation is to try for too much, too fast. Slow down; discipline your energies. Explaining too many details of what you plan only brings in resistance, complications.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Apparently trivial changes are merely indicators of more profound forces at work. See them as constructive growth. Take time out for a health checkup.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Suspend judgment; see if you get another explanation. Be calm and tactful to save delicate relationships. Home maintenance pays off very well.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Perhaps you won't like some of today's incidents, but at least you know where you stand and how to go about correcting situations to suit yourself. Be gentle to those you love.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Impulsive action upsets schedules. In getting things straight, odd expedients are helpful. Do no more than necessary. Bring home a useful, surprise gift.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Differing opinions aren't a cause for concern. Work off surplus energy by taking on neglected home repairs. You'll need a profound sense of humor today.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: It's time to mend your fences, patch things up where you've erred. Settle old accounts with as little fuss as possible. Take the initiative toward cooperation, harmony.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Excitement is promised, some of it in relation to your prosperity and what you do to achieve it. Carry a notebook; get today's bright ideas down for later reference.

Amarillo Relays Begins 26th Stint At Noon Today

By PAUL SIMS
AMARILLO — Pampa, with more depth than other Panhandle teams, and El Paso Irvin, with speedy sprinters and a super half-miler, are co-favorites to capture the team championship of the 26th Amarillo Relays Track Meet, which begins a two-day run today in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Pampa has never won the team championship but has a good shot this year, already owning three track titles. The Harvesters won championships in meets at Pampa, Perryton, and Dumas this year. Irvin, which should win the mile relay and fare evenly with also - strong Wichita Falls Rider in the sprint relay and 220, could also win its first championship in history.

Competition began at 12 noon today with the field - event finals and running - event preliminaries. The meet will resume at 1 p.m. Saturday with the running - event finals. Today's six low finals. Today's finishers will qualify for Saturday's finals.

Pampa must have several points in the field events to stay close to Irvin. The Harvesters will enter Willis Price in both high and long jumps and Garland McPherson in the pole vault who are capable of placing high.

Weight men Frankie Lemons, Graig Hill and Joe Graves could also give Pampa points in shot put and discus.

Irvin likely will win the half - mile Saturday with consistent Manny Mendoza, who has the fastest pre - meet time of all entrants — 1:56.6 Pampa's Noel Hansen ran 1:59.5, his season - best, in the North Plains Relays Saturday at Dumas, and has a shot at winning the 880.

Irvin sprinters Lydell Morrison and Robert Edwards have run 22.3 and 22.6, respectively, in the 220. Rider's Chuck Humphrey and Steve Dawson are 22.1 and 22.6 sprinters.

Pampa's top entrant in the 100 and 220 will be David Caldwell.

Pampa has the meet favorite in the intermediate hurdles — Howie Lewis, who ran a 39.3 at Dumas. Lewis also has a 14.6 clocking in the 120 high hurdles and is the favorite in that event.

Tascosa and Amarillo, neither of which has run up to potential this season, could also make runs at the title.

Pampa, however, has beaten both teams in meets this season. In fact, the Harvesters have won championships over every 3 - AAAA team.

"We've had three of the best practices we've ever had this past week," three excellent practices. Our times improved and our attitude toward working was tremendous." Pampa coach Scott Dunnam said. I think they're all wanting to do well.

GOLF
Large - division schools, including Pampa, started at 9 a.m. today at Amarillo Country Club in the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament.

After today's 18 holes, the low 16 teams and ties will make the cut and return and return Saturday.

Nichols In Front By 1 Over Jack

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The way Jack Nicklaus is playing this Masters, you get the feeling he's merely biding his time.

Lee Elder monopolized the limelight by becoming the first black to play in this tournament and Bobby Nichols quietly grabbed the first-round lead by shooting a 67 in Thursday's rain.

But the man everybody had better start watching is Nicklaus.

Favored to win the Masters for an unprecedented fifth time, Nicklaus is just one stroke back and the way he played the opening round he created the feeling he was just coasting.

"Any time you have 36 putts and shoot a 68 on Augusta National, that's a good round of golf," said Nicklaus. "I played more conservatively than I had planned. I didn't have that many opportunities to get birdies. I played cautiously because it was so wet out there."

Nichols went into today's second round with a one-stroke margin over both Nicklaus and surprising Allen Miller. Arnold Palmer, the Masters other four-time champ, was another stroke back along with J. C. Snead and Tom Weiskopf.

That's pretty fast company. Nicklaus was a winner his two previous outings (Doral and Heritage). Snead is this year's San Diego champ; and Weiskopf, second three times in the past six Masters, won last week at Greensboro.

Nichols, who will be 39 next Monday, has won only one major title in 16 years on the tour, the 1964 PGA, and admits he started "playing it safe" Thursday when he found himself at 5 under par after 15 holes.

Elder is seven strokes back after shooting a first-round 74, but doesn't seem to mind.

"That's super for me," he said.

Billy Casper, the 1970 Masters champ, is three strokes back along with Tom Watson and Bob Murphy. And the seven-man group at 1-under 71 — 16 of the 76 starters broke par the first day — includes Lee Trevino and wondrous Sam Snead, the three-time Masters winner who will be 63 years old next month.

Thursday's weather was wet and foggy but the golfers didn't complain.

Game Postponed

Pampa's district baseball game against Borger, set for 4 p.m. today at Optimist Park, has been postponed due to wet grounds.

The game will be played, weather permitting, at 4 p.m. Monday at Optimist Park.

Both teams are 0 - 2 and need a win to stay close to the leaders in 3 - AAAA. Caprock (2 - 0) hosts Tascosa (2 - 0) and Amarillo High (1 - 1) visits Palo Duro (1 - 1) in games today.

3-4A Net Tournament Held Today, Saturday

BORGER — Although Tascosa is favored in boys singles, Pampa has the strength to capture its first district tennis title in history here today as the six 3 - AAAA teams hold their annual tournament to determine who qualifies for regional.

Pampa has a decided disadvantage in "A" girls singles, owning little depth. However Stacy Douglass, who qualified for the "B" Division semifinals of the Amarillo Relays last weekend, has a good shot of finishing high in the "A" Division of the district meet.

Co - favorites in girls singles are Tascosa, Amarillo High and Borger.

Tascosa, with No. 1 and 2 seeds in "A" boys singles, is picked to win the boys division. Alan Alpar is ranked first in singles, while Bobby Hall is second. In doubles, Amarillo High's Jim Montoya and Ben Ballinger are No. 1 seeded.

Pampa's best bet at winning an individual title is Eugene Laycock in "A" singles. Laycock plays the winner of the match between Caprock's Greg Taylor and Palo Duro's Jeff Graham.

Second - seeded in doubles are Marty Hands and Jim Ferrell of Tascosa. Pampa's top entrants in doubles are Jerry Allen and E.B. Ellis who play Caprock's Leroy McMurtry and Tim Wylie. The Harvester duo beat that team in the Amarillo Relays.

In "A" girls singles, Elise Richardson of Amarillo High should have little trouble winning the championship, although Borger's Diane Jack is capable. The two are ranked first and second, respectively.

In doubles, Tascosa's Sharon Satterwhite and Elix Hefley are No. 1 seeded.

Pampa, in doubles, will enter Karen Hampton and Donna Coufal. They play Tascosa's Armanda Ham and Lynn Rogers.

Others to play for Pampa are Doug Hughes in "A" singles, Armando Mesa in "B" singles and Wayne Williams and Frank Stowers in "B" doubles. Girls entered include Maria Martinez and Gena Cox in "B" singles and two "B" doubles teams — Cathy Carpenter - Anne Henderson and Ginger Richardson - Connie Jones.

Matches began this morning and will continue through the afternoon. All matches are at Borger High School.

Semifinals and finals will be held Saturday.

A&M Stresses Passing In Thursday Workout

By United Press International
Texas A&M worked on its passing. Arkansas stressed defense and the Texas Tech Red Raiders just tried to keep warm.

With junior David Walker, senior Mike Jay and junior David Shipman doing the throwing, the Aggies worked Thursday on various pass routes against the No. 1 secondary of Pat Thomas and William Thompson at the corners and Jackie Williams and Lester Hayes at the safeties.

A&M coaches praised the receiving of split end Carl Roaches and tight end Richard Osborne. Halfback Bubba Bean returned to practice after missing Wednesday's session, but halfback Ronnie Hubby was still on the sideline.

The defense continued its heavy contact work. Defensive tackle Jimmy Dean missed the workout with a sore leg.

At Lubbock, Texas Tech worked out in 40 degree weather.

"Everybody seemed like they wanted to get something done today," coach Steve Sloan said. "I would term it a good practice and the players seemed to enjoy the cool weather."

The Arkansas Razorbacks went through a brisk workout Thursday with the defense dominating the scrimmage section of the practice.

The coaches singled out junior linebacker Johnnie Meadows and senior nose guard Mike Campbell for their defensive efforts during the drill. The offense was paced by the passing of Mike Kirkland and the running of Rolland Fuchs.

Braves Trounce Bullets In NBA

By United Press International
The Washington Bullets picked an inopportune time to suffer a rare loss at home, a 113-102 defeat at the hands of the Buffalo Braves in the first game of the best of seven playoff series.

But the Bullets can't be blamed solely for Bob McAdoo the Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association, scored 35 points pulled down 14 rebounds and blocked five shots for the Braves.

"We forced them to shoot quickly and we blocked shots," said Braves Coach Jack Ramsay. "We filled the lanes and ran our fast break well. When we do all those things, we're playing our game."

In other playoff games, Detroit won 122-106, win over Seattle to even their series at 1 - 1.

1 and New York beat Houston, 106-96.

McAdoo hit 16-of-28 shots and it was his, 19 first-half points that kept the Braves within four, 56-52, at the half. Phil Chenier led the Bullets with 23 points while McAdoo was holding Elvin Hayes to 20 points.

Knicks 106 Rockets 96.

Jim Barnett replaced Earl Monroe in the second quarter after Houston had pulled to within three points and hit for nine points as New York built an 18-point lead and then held to win. Walt Frazier led the Knicks with 26 points and Rudy Tomjanovich was high man for the Rockets with 22.

Pistons 122, Sonics 106.

George Trapp scored 24 points and hauled down 14 rebounds Thursday night as Detroit beat Seattle to avenge a 90-77 loss Tuesday night. The Pistons hit 16 of their first 22 shots and took a 33-24 first-quarter lead.

Girl Linksters To Wind Up Season Today

BORGER — Amarillo High, with a 22-stroke lead, will have little difficulty winning the district girls' championship today at Phillips Country Club as the 3 - AAAA season draws to a close with the fourth round.

The Sandies at 1:17, lead runner-up Tascosa (1:39) by 22 shots. Other teams entered are Amarillo B - team 1:240, Borger 1:258, Pampa 1:263, Palo Duro B - team 1:305, Caprock 1:311, Tascosa B - team 1:336 and Borger B - team 1:522.

Pampa A - team players are, Gerylyn Hills, Amy, McMillan, Sue Cook, Debbie Thompson and Serena Shearer.

Miss Shearer placed fifth in "B" Division singles Saturday in the Amarillo Relays.

Silvertown 2-A Champ

Silvertown edged McLean, 163 - 158 1/2, for the District 2 - A girls track title Thursday at Randy Matson Track in Harvester Stadium.

3rd Straight Reds Tip Los Angeles

UPI Sports Writer
Clay Carroll isn't the sort of fellow who likes to rub it in, but let's face it, he did.

And so the Cincinnati Reds, emerged laughing from their season opening three-game series with the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday night when Carroll was the winning pitcher in a 7-6 victory. It was the Reds' third straight victory over the Dodgers and reminded the Los Angeles club that the Reds, too, have a star relief pitcher.

The Reds contended throughout the winter that Carroll merited comparison with Iron Man relief ace Mike Marshall of the Dodgers, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1974. Carroll's 7 appearances and 125 record were modest alongside Marshall's 106 appearances and 15-12 mark but the Reds insisted their native of Clanton, Ala., was a star, too.

The Dodgers aren't likely to argue the point—at least today. Carroll shut out the Dodgers with one hit in the last three innings Thursday night and received credit for the victory when Tony Perez' eighth-inning double drove in Pete Rose with the winning run. Carroll appeared in all three games of the series, allowing two hits and no runs in 5.23 innings. Marshall appeared in two games of the series and was the losing pitcher when tagged for two runs in the ninth inning of Wednesday night's second game.

George Foster's second homer of the game set the stage for the Reds' triumph, tying the score at 6-6. Perez' game-winning hit was his first hit of the season and tagged Charlie Hough with the loss. Bill Buckner had a triple, double and single for the Dodgers.

Hairdresser Pretties Stuffed Beaver Coat

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Taxidermists flatly refused the job. A furrier said they couldn't do it. So her last resort was to take Reginald to a woman who gained a bad reputation around town looking for a lion's mane.

"I couldn't pawn the job off on anybody else," the history curator at the Wyoming State Museum said. "I bundled it up in a lab coat, covered up the head and tail, and took it to the shop."

Marian Husea carried her bundle through the city's streets to Wright's Beauty School, and plopped it on the counter.

"How much do you charge for a stuffed beaver?" she asked the woman behind the counter.

Joyce Befus, manager of the shop, listened to Mrs. Husea's story of ragged Reginald, and cheerfully decided to transform him into a young dapper looking beaver for a planned exhibit on mountain men and fur trading.

"Our museum director picked up Reginald when he was touring a museum in Canyon City, Tex.," Mrs. Husea said. "When he got back however, we realized it was a little more beat up than we wanted in our exhibit."

The museum looked into getting a new stuffed beaver, but found the price tag too high.

Taxidermists said it was out of their line, and furriers couldn't restore Reginald's sheen, so she called the beauty shop as a last resort.

"I didn't hear any gasps at the other end of the line, and they thought they could do the job," she said.

"This is different, that's for sure," Ms. Befus said. "I didn't tell the girls about the customer who was coming in for a hair-dye job."

For Ms. Befus, it was a second chance. Her first fling at animal cosmetology didn't work out.

A taxidermist once asked her to make a new mane for a stuffed lion, but every time she called a company to locate hair suitable for a lion's mane, they hung up on her.

She may have succeeded this time. Ms. Befus said Wednesday her girls have found the right tint for Reginald, who now looks years younger.

Mrs. Husea is pleased with her new sable brown beaver, and said she's glad now in view of his newly acquired elegance that she named him Reginald. "It has dignity," she said.

Dream Wilderness Hard To Find

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A wild mountain stream with long riffles sparkling in the sun; deep, shaded pools to provide cover for big trout; plenty of room to wade and straighten a long, looping backcast.

And, above all, nobody else for miles except the lone fisherman working the stream with delicately presented flies.

A dream wilderness filled with bird song and laughing waters, solitude that delights the eye and quiets the soul. But in this crowded world such places are hard to find.

There are still a few isolated waters in this mountain country—the upper reaches of Citico Creek, mountain streams that feed into Fontana Lake like Eagle and Hazel Creeks, Abrams Creek in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park where a 12-inch regulation discourages many.

But even these waters become crowded at times these days with campers and horseback packers and fishermen looking for wilderness solitude away from the city's rush.

Mostly we settle for such waters as the Tellico, Little Tennessee, Hiwassee and Clinch Rivers in East Tennessee, the Tallulah River in western North Carolina, and the Pigeon and its branches in both states.

On a good fishing day, there's an assortment of bait dunkers, spin fishermen and fly-rod benders working away for sport and meat, pulling out little rainbows stocked several times a year by state officials.

And there's no valid complaint about company on these streams. Fishermen are mostly fine folk, even shoulder to shoulder on opening day of the trout season.

But, now and then... Well... One of the most impossible trout streams in this area is Little River in the Smoky Mountain Park. Early in the season it's all right. But come summer, especially weekends, there's such a crowd of splashers, swimmers, innertube riders and motorists along that stream that fishing is a nightmare of frustration.

But off the main river there's a fork. Beside the stream there's a park road, which eventually becomes a simple dirt track and deadends back in the mountains.

The road, however, gives easy access to the stream, without intruding on the fishing experience over much. Once you're up to your knees in the cold, rushing water, the road bed is out of sight over your head. And it is so little traveled most of the time that you soon forget it's there.

You almost believe you're in that dream wilderness, without having gone through all the time and travel getting there. An hour from Knoxville and you're fishing in solitude.

The narrow stream, crowded by trees and brush, demands special techniques, however. And it can be trying at the start. I spent more time unhooking limbs and leaves than fishing the first time in.

Forget the long, flowing backcasts described in the books. There are two approaches — on a short leader, three or four feet long tippet and all; or a 10-foot leader and maybe two feet of line.

The length of your rod doesn't really matter. I use an eight-and-a-half foot split bamboo most of the time.

The idea is to cast the leader as if it were your fly line. This requires a heavy butt section, careful, tapering to the 4X tippet and a relatively slow sidearm casting motion to avoid the overhanging trees.

Using only the leader, with no line in the water, minimizes drag on dry flies and gives a longer free float. Long floats, however, are not the rule.

Although I've caught fish wading in this stream at the point where the fly floated by me on its way down the slip, most strikes occur within a foot or two of where the fly touches water.

And with a long rod, counting its length, the length of your arm and the length of the leader, you're working 20 feet ahead of you at most, often much closer.

That's far enough in such fast and leaping water. And those little rainbows are real actors.

But don't tell anybody I told you about this stream. I wouldn't want to spoil its isolated charm with the tramp of too many feet.

will sue anyone calling him a Nazi.

Odinism, he says, is the religious and cultural heritage handed down from the Norsemen.

The tales of gods such as Thor and his magic hammer, which could fly through the air and shatter mountains and then magically return to Thor's hand, need not be accepted literally.

"They're very symbolic," Templin said. "We consider them in the same way Christians consider their myths — Christ walking on water, Jonah being swallowed by a big Aryan supremacy and is anti-Christian.

"I don't know if we agree so much but perhaps what the Third Reich was based on, the total folkish state, was probably based on a form of Odinism, so therefore there are some similarities," he said.

As for himself, Templin is a "registered Republican."

"If someone wants to call me a Nazi they would have to have a lot of money, and depending on who they are I would like nothing better than to sue them," he said.

Norsemen's Odinism

Religious Group Worships Thor

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — When N.J. Templin tells people he believes in Norse gods Odin and Thor, he gets some odd reactions. But he says his belief is no stranger than believing someone once walked on water or was swallowed by a whale and lived to tell about it.

Templin heads the Baldr League, a group whose religion is based on a belief in the Nordic gods. Mixed into it is a concept of Aryan supremacy and a philosophy Templin concedes is close to some of what Nazi Germany stood for, although he is quick to say he will sue anyone calling him a Nazi.

Odinism, he says, is the religious and cultural heritage handed down from the Norsemen.

The tales of gods such as Thor and his magic hammer, which could fly through the air and shatter mountains and then magically return to Thor's hand, need not be accepted literally.

"They're very symbolic," Templin said. "We consider them in the same way Christians consider their myths — Christ walking on water, Jonah being swallowed by a big fish. There are a lot of people who say those are ridiculous."

The Baldr League is one of many Odinist groups. Templin said there are about 2,000 organized Odinists in the world. He expects several hundred here this summer for a meeting.

The ceremonies are called "blots" and major celebrations include the vernal equinox, midsummer solstice and autumnal equinox.

The Baldr League has a rather loose philosophy, and Templin said members can accept or reject parts of the group's dogma. It is based on Aryan supremacy and is anti-Christian.

"I don't know if we agree so much but perhaps what the Third Reich was based on, the total folkish state, was probably based on a form of Odinism, so therefore there are some similarities," he said.

As for himself, Templin is a "registered Republican."

"If someone wants to call me a Nazi they would have to have a lot of money, and depending on who they are I would like nothing better than to sue them," he said.

Carvings Imply Vikings First Explored Americans

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Carvings found in North and South America indicate to their interpreters the Vikings were not the first explorers to the New World, and Columbus may have run a distant third in the race to discover America.

The real discoverers of the American continents may have been ancient Spanish sailors, probably from Cadiz, according to an international array of scientists.

This isn't a new theory. It was greatly criticized, in fact, when introduced nearly 40 years ago by archeologist Harold S. Gladwin, who now lives in retirement in Santa Barbara, Calif.

But now Prof. Thomas Lee of Quebec's Laval University suggests three stone carvings found near Montreal earlier this century indicate the Spanish explorers were in the area before 150 B.C.

Harvard University's H. Barclough Fell sees the theory as supporting his report earlier this year that Libyan sailors could have reached the western coast of South America and settled eventually in Polynesia. The Canadian theory, Fell says, involves explorers from the same civilization who sailed west from the Spanish coast instead of east out of Libya.

Fell said Gladwin had "perceived Mediterranean influences in American archeology, but his ideas received rough treatment."

Interpreting the stone carvings as having been done by the Spaniards, Fell said, "is unquestionably an important contribution to the developing ideas on the early discoverers of America."

"It's a piece of information that is to be combined with similar data from the U.S. East Coast, from Mexico and South America, especially from caves in Paraguay," he told the Boston Globe.

Fell said the dates indicate the Spanish visited between 475 and 150 B.C.

"The visitors were people from Spain," he said, "from the general area of Cadiz. They write that name, using the old spelling, saying: 'We are voyagers from Cadiz.'"

Hundreds of similar carvings have been found in Spain, he said, and stones bearing inscriptions have been found on the East Coast from Rhode Island to Maine, in Mexico, Canada and Paraguay.

Fell said the explorers "so far as we have evidence, were the first voyagers to North and South America. They're the earliest we know of so far."

Tennessee Biology Text Ruled Unconstitutional

By RICK VAN SANT

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled Tennessee's biology textbook law gives more emphasis to the biblical story of creation than Darwin's theory of evolution and therefore is unconstitutional.

The court said the law was similar to a 1925 statute that sparked the "Scopes Monkey Trial" 50 years ago. In that trial, however, the law against teaching the theory of evolution in public schools was upheld.

But in a 2-1 decision handed down Thursday, the court said a preference toward the Bible is "squarely forbidden" by the 1st Amendment. It ordered a preliminary injunction against the law, an action sought by the National Association of Biology Teachers.

The disputed 1973 Tennessee law had banned biology school-book references to evolution unless accompanied by a disclaimer that evolution is "a theory" and "not represented to be scientific fact."

The law also required the biblical account of creation, as set forth in the Book of Genesis, to be printed with equal attention and emphasis, and with no disclaimer.

"The purpose of establishing the biblical version of the Darwinian theory of evolution is as clear in the 1973 statute as it was in the statute of 1925," the court said.

"The result of this legislation is a clearly defined preferential position for the biblical version as opposed to any account of the development of man based on scientific research and reasoning.

"For a state to seek to enforce such a preference by law is to seek to accomplish the very establishment of religion which the 1st Amendment to the Constitution squarely forbids."

While the judges said the law does not directly forbid the teaching of evolution, they called it "merely a new legislative version of the effort to suppress the theory of evolution which produced the famous Scopes Monkey Trial of 1925."

Gulf Says Claims False

HOUSTON (UPI) — The president of Gulf Oil Co. - U.S. says Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., made false accusations that Gulf overcharged the public for its products.

Z.D. Bonner asked the Federal Energy Administration Thursday to publicly repudiate Aspin's accusations.

In a letter written to FEA administrator Frank G. Zarb, Bonner said the company had not overcharged the public and its books are available for an FEA or independent audit.

Bonner said Aspin's statements about an alleged $101 million in overcharges are based on false information leaked by an FEA employe.

Haylift Feeds Snowbound Cattle

By United Press International
National Guardsmen Thursday were sent to aid snowbound Montana ranchers in an emergency haylift to stranded cattle, and in south Alabama where as much as 12 inches of rain fell, guardsmen were assigned to help flood victims.

Montana Gov. Thomas Judge sent guardsmen and transport helicopters into emergency haylift operations in four north-central Montana counties where blizzard snows have stranded cattle herds.

However, snow squalls and fog Thursday forced some of the guard helicopters to turn back early.

Some ranchers, locked in by deep snow drifts, said they had not seen their cattle herds since blizzards hit Glacier, Toole, Liberty and Cascade counties early this week.

It was too soon to determine the extent of livestock losses in Montana, but Judge said he has appealed to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for implementation of a disaster livestock feed program. He also planned to personally inspect the snow-bound counties today.

In Nebraska, agricultural officials reported thousands of cattle died in recent heavy snows in the western part of the state. The loss of 39,551 cows, bulls, yearlings and calves cost farmers and ranchers an estimated $1.75 million, officials said.

Guardsmen Thursday also were ordered into action in south Alabama where as much as 12 inches of rain fell in some areas, flooding streams, closing highways and farm roads and forcing lowland dwellers from their homes.

The guardsmen were ordered to Geneva, Enterprise, Elba and Samsco, Ala., to aid flood victims and into Andalusia and Opp to haul water because water lines were flooded and water service to hospitals was halted.

Guardsmen also were dispatched to Brewton and Newton, Ala., to watch for anticipated flooding.

A spokesman for the Geneva police said 25 families had been evacuated Thursday "and more are expected to leave their homes." Sheriff L.D. Sizemore said he expected about 75 families to be evacuated from areas near the Geneva levee, where water escaped when a pipeline burst.

"Things are running pretty smoothly in Enterprise," a police spokeswoman said. "We've only had one family evacuated that's confirmed. A few streets are still closed."

Spillway Opens River Floods To Combat

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — For only the fifth time in 44 years, unusually high water levels on the Mississippi River have forced officials to open a spillway to protect New Orleans from possible floods.

The Army Corps of Engineers said Thursday the Bonnet Carre Spillway will be opened Monday to reduce the river level at New Orleans and lessen the strain against the city's 27-mile levee system.

The spillway, 33 miles upriver from the city, can divert as much as one-sixth of the Mississippi's volume, or 1.8 million gallons a second, into Lake Potchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico. It was last opened during the extensive flooding of 1973.

Five families were evacuated from low-lying areas in Samsco, a police spokesman said. "And that's about all."

"Our biggest problem is the flooding on city streets," said Mayor Sam Sawyer of Elba, where flooding on the Pear River forced many persons from their homes earlier this year. "Other than that, everything's under control. No families had been evacuated, he said.

Dad Denies Radioactivity Murder Attempt

HOUSTON (UPI) — Kerry Andrus Crocker sketched on the blackboard, lectured on the uses of radioactive materials in oil exploration, smiled at the jury and denied prosecution claims he tried to murder his son.

"I did not use them (radioactive pellets) on my son, Kirk Crocker, or anyone else," Crocker yelled, losing his composure only briefly.

Assistant district attorney Mike Hinton slammed his fist on the rosecution table, and asked through gritted teeth if it was true Crocker only wanted radioactive materials in order to harm his son.

"That is not a fact. It is an absolute misconception of everything I've said today," Crocker answered.

Crocker, 44, is charged with the attempted murder of Kirk, 14, in 1972 by castrating him and severely burning him with radioactive cesium.

Kirk has undergone 11 operations to heal massive sores several doctors testified were caused by radiation exposure. Kirk, the first witness in the two-week-old trial, testified he found metal pellets in 1972 in television earphones, in his couch bed at his father's apartment and in a sock draped over his side when he awakened.

Hinton asked Crocker why he obtained a license to own cesium and then purchased the material.

"I wanted to be able to stay abreast of the new developments in the oil business and learn how to use these tools and find ways to use them better than they had been in the past," Crocker said. "I have not used them in my business yet — not to make money with yet."

"I used them to find out what value they would have in the business. I got them to be used in a way I thought they should be used in processes in the oil drilling business."

Crocker, a petroleum engineer, left the stand for a few minutes to illustrate uses of cesium and other radioactive materials in locating oil. He drew three examples on the blackboard, paced back and forth, and gave a 20-minute lecture to the six-man, six-woman jury.

At times during the more than two hour cross examination, he bantered with Hinton, arguing questions and giving complicated answers. He became angered several times at questions from Hinton, whose own face reddened as he asked Crocker about occasions Kirk testified he saw the pellets.

"Is it your testimony, then, that Kirk is in a dream world all the time?" Hinton nearly yelled.

"I refuse to even answer that kind of question," Crocker responded.

Steele Art, Frame Shop

Gary Steele

Richard Steele, a native of Pampa, opened Steele's Art and Frame Shop in 1972.

The shop at 1619 N. Hobart carries needle crafts, art supplies, gifts and frames.

"Pampa did not have a store with this combination, so I thought I'd try," said Steele.

A junior high school art teacher in Amarillo, Steele wanted to return to Pampa, so he opened the store.

"I like to paint," he said, "and it couldn't be nicer for an artist than to own a frame shop."

Steele specializes in custom framing.

"I have framed things from a common print to an old door knob," he said. "People like to bring in old keepsakes and I try to help them decide what they want done so they'll be happy."

Steele said he likes Pampa and the people of Pampa.

"Business is real good," he said. "The store's been growing steadily for three years. I plan to expand some soon by adding more original art work."
