Thieu Blames US in Resignation Talk

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu resigned tonight in a speech in which he blamed South Vietnam's military disasters on U.S. failure to honor President Richard M. Nixon's written promises of aid.

The resignation opened the way for possible negotiations of a cease fire with the Communists who have pushed the front lines to within 26 miles of Thieu's presidential palace and have massed 100,000 troops for a final assault.

At exactly 8:40 p.m. (8:40 a.m. EDT) Thieu biting his lip and apparently fighting back tears said:

In front of the National Assembly, I announce my resignation as president.

Goodbye, my friends.

Thieu said he and former President Nixon had agreed on paper that the United States would provide all necessary aid to South Vietnam to defend itself if Thieu signed the Jan. 27, 1973, Paris peace agreement.

Thieu said he had been assured of U.S. aid and it had not been delivered.

I never thought a man like Mr. (U.S. Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger would deliver our people to such a disastrous fate, Thieu said.

As he delivered his televised speech to the nation, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong closed in on Saigon from three sides. The government earlier today abandoned Xuan Loc, which some persons have called the 1975 Dien Bien Phu.

Fifteen minutes after Thieu began his speech, authorities ordered an 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. curfew one hour longer than the normal both in the evening and morning—apparently to avoid panic.

Saigon's defense forces were placed on full alert.

If the United States had intervened as it should have, we would not be losing province capitals, district capitals, Thieu said.

And we would not be faced with losing our national capital.

Thieu said he would hand power to ailing 72-year-old vice president Tran Van Huong. But it was expected Huong also would resign.

That would hand the presidency to Senate President Tran Van Lam, a political moderate who might be able to open peace talks with the Viet Cong before Saigon itself is attacked.

Thieu gave no indication whether he would leave Vietnam, but most senior officials said they believed he would seek exile, possibly in the United States.

The political sources said it was hoped Thieu's resignation would pave the way to peace negotiations with the Viet Cong.

In addition, it was hoped the Communists would hold back an expected military assault on Saigon at least long enough to assess the situation and make contact with the new Saigon regime.

The first indication of Thieu's impending decision to step down came today when he abruptly cancelled a scheduled public appearance.

It came at a time when the South Vietnamese armed forces were suffering setbacks after setbacks and the military threat to Saigon was growing by the hour.

The South Vietnamese Army today abandoned Xuan Loc, the provincial capital, 36 miles northeast of Saigon which had been a symbol of government resistance to the Communist takeover. The new front line was only 26 miles from Saigon.

In addition, the government also gave up the provincial capital of Ham Tan, 75 miles east of Saigon on the South China Sea coast.

A group of senior South Vietnamese leaders, including Thieu, failed to show up today at celebrations marking the founding of Vietnam centuries ago by King Hung Vuong.

Thieu, who had attended the founding celebrations annually since becoming president 10 years ago, announced plans last Saturday to make a 29-minute speech at the ceremony.

Thieu has not appeared in public for weeks.

In his last appearance, he gave a televised address April 8 after a renegade South Vietnamese pilot bombed the presidential palace and flew behind Communist lines.

Thieu's absence from the ceremony added fuel to speculation in South Vietnamese political circles that the president intended to step down soon, possibly before the end of the week.

Political and military sources said Thieu realizes he has lost the confidence of virtually the entire population of South Vietnam because of the government's recent military setbacks.

The sources said politicians and generals close to the president have ruled out at least for the present a coup d'etat for fear of creating a political vacuum the Viet Cong could step into.

Texas Voters To Decide On Amendments Tuesday

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas lawmakers, teachers and public employees have big stakes in Tuesday's special election. Otherwise, voter disinterest in the shortest state ballot since 1923 will probably result in a low turnout.

Two constitutional amendments are up for ratification. They would:

- raise legislative salaries from $4,800 to $7,200 a year, increase daily personal expense allowances from $12 to $18 per day during legislative session and increase travel allowances from 10 to 16 per mile.
- authorize the state to put more money into teacher and public employee retirement funds to pay for higher pensions.

Six times since 1960 state legislators have asked the voters to raise their salaries from the present $4,800 a year, but each proposal was rejected. In November, 1973, voters turned down a requested increase to $15,000 a year.

The legislators are calling the increase to $7,200 a year only a "salary adjustment" due to inflation. The strategy for winning the increase through approval of the constitutional amendment was spelled out by Rep. Ben Bynum, D-Amarillo, in a memorandum to his colleagues.

The plan has two objectives: Get those people out to vote who will support the amendment, keep the others home, Bynum said. To do this, a low profile campaign should be run. That means not much press publicity or public speaking but a lot of personal contact.

The amendment authorizing the pension increases originated the special election. Only after that amendment was approved did the lawmakers vote to put their own pay increase on the ballot.

The legislature appropriated $4 million in emergency funds at the beginning of the 1975 session to increase pensions, but Attorney General John Hill ruled any increase in the constitutionally authorized 6 per cent teacher and public employee retirement funds would have to be made through a constitutional amendment.

The amendment would raise the ceiling to 10 per cent. It would also authorize a number of other changes: teacher organizations say are necessary to update the operation of the teacher retirement system.

The pension increases which went into effect Feb. 1 amounted to 18 per cent for persons who retired prior to 1969, 12 per cent for those retiring between 1969 and 1971 and 5 per cent for persons who retired since 1971.

The two issues make Tuesday's ballot the shortest since 1923 for a vote on constitutional amendments.

The legislators have voted to

Miller, O'Neal Head For State UIL Contest

Melanie Miller, editor of Pampa High School newspaper Little Harvester, was named outstanding high school journalist at the Panhandle High School Press Association in Canyon Thursday.

She received the Dorinda Bond award.

She and another local student will enter the state University Interscholastic League competition in Austin May 1 to 3. Miller won second in features in the regional contest in Lubbock Saturday and Rebecca O'Neal won third in typing. She typed 61.48 words a minute with one error.

Others competing in the Saturday Class AAAA regional meet were Miller fourth in editorial writing, Tim Palmer, fourth in features, and Brent Beynton ready writing.

At the Panhandle Press meet, the Little Harvester won honorable mention and the Harvester yearbook edited by Tonya Lewis won third place.

Other district winners were Brenda Malone for honorable mention in feature writing, Steve Combs for newsprinting, Malone for features, Pat Ward for sports story and Palmer for sports feature.

Miller also carried home two Cream of the Crop Awards for general column and news photo.

Controversial School, Utility Bills Face House

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Two of the most controversial issues facing the 1975 legislature — utility regulation and school finance — may become eligible for House action this week.

Rep. Herman Adams, D-Silsbee, chairman of a subcommittee on school finance, said he expects the panel to complete work on the school finance bill by Thursday or Friday even though there has been little evidence of progress since the five members were handed the issue more than two weeks ago.

Speaker Bill Claxton said he also expects the State Affairs Committee to vote either this week or early next week on a utility regulation bill.

I think as soon as that bill reaches the Calendars Committee, probably within a week it will be up for consideration on the floor, the speaker said.

I'm not sure at this time just exactly what type of utility commission might pass the House. I think there is sentiment enough for the passage of some type of utility regulation bill.

Claxton said he thinks the reason the Transportation Committee refused to approve a bill creating a telephone regulatory commission is that most committee members preferred a utility commission with broader authority to also regulate other utilities.

The speaker said last week he is working on his own compromise school finance bill and will submit his recommendations to Adams subcommittee. Claxton's plan would combine some portions of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's school finance proposal with a revision of the present formula used to determine local school districts share of education costs.

Both the House and Senate are planning Friday sessions this week.

Schedules Death Penalty Arguments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Today the fate of Jesse Thurman Fowler, a 26-year-old truck driver sentenced to die in the North Carolina gas chamber for killing a man in a dice game, will be up to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court banned capital punishment in 1972. By a 5-4 vote, it said the death penalty was too arbitrary, that there were too many loopholes for a defendant to escape execution.

In today's oral arguments, the court was to be asked to decide a wider question — whether any death penalty violates the constitutional ban.

Weather

Continued fair skies predicted for Tuesday. Low tonight in the lower 40s. High Tuesday expected to reach mid 80s.

on cruel and unusual punishment. But the high court has the option of deciding the Fowler case on a narrow technicality that would not affect the other condemned prisoners.

However, his particular case gives the court a chance to avoid a definitive ruling because he was sentenced under a North Carolina Supreme Court ruling — not a change in state law.

Assessor Assesses Bill

House Bill 1463, which would establish a unified appraisal system in every county in Texas, was unanimously approved by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee in Austin last weekend.

The bill would establish a county appraisal office, operating under the general supervision of the County Tax Assessor-Collector, and would assign a value to each parcel of taxable property in the county. That value, and only that value, would be used by all governmental units in the county for property tax purposes.

Texas Municipal League officials in their Legislative Report distributed today, asked city officials to review the bill and advise the League staff of any recommendations for improvement of the bill.

The measure was opposed publicly by Pampa Tax Collector Aubrey L. Jones and Gray County Tax Collector Jack Back on grounds it provides for a state comptroller to audit and direct county appraisal work at the state level.

Both local officials oppose the measure they stated because it would establish state control over local property values.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today denied a hearing to a Georgia man who argued that alimony should be paid to men as well as women.

The brief order lets stand a decision by the Georgia Supreme Court that women need financial support more than men after divorce. The action by the federal tribunal is effective only in Georgia.

The state court in its short opinion cited a U.S. Supreme Court decision endorsing Florida's tax exemption for widows, but not widowers.

The Georgia case was brought in Fulton County Superior Court by Michael Vincent Murphy III.

In other actions, the court refused to interfere with school desegregation plans in Indianapolis, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., and rejected the appeal of convicted Watergate burglar James W. McCord.

The court also:

- Dismissed Florida's appeal from a decision that its disorderly conduct law is so broad as to embrace speech protected by the Constitution.
- Allowed Texas to file a complaint directly in the high court alleging that New Mexico had been using Pecos River water which had been promised to the Lone Star State.
- Cleared the way for arbitrators to decide whether the Hearst Corp. must make lump-sum retirement payments to Los Angeles Herald-Examiner employees who resigned from the paper during a strike.
- Denied a hearing to a Fort Smith, Ark., black youth who was sentenced to life imprisonment without parole for committing rape at age 16.

In the past, no more than four Supreme Court justices—a minority—have supported the proposition that sex discrimination must be treated like racial discrimination. Instead, a majority has held that if the state has a rational goal for sex-based discriminatory statutes, they can be affirmed.

Last term, the court affirmed a Florida law giving tax breaks to widows but not to widowers.

Invest In Lunacy?

The names comprise a galaxy of American industrial titans. Harold Geneen of ITT, James Roche of GM, Reginald Jones of GE, William Anderson of NCR. In all, 60 magnates, the cream of United States business, and one governor (Bill Walter of Mississippi) signed the full-page ad in the Wall Street Journal to heat up the U.S. Savings Bond campaign for 1975.

When that many leaders of the financial community gang up for some common, putatively selfless enterprise it is more worth paying attention to the infantile congressional murmurings that daily make Page One.

The ad's legend reads: "What's good for America is good for Americans." It is a classical rhetorical turn combining selflessness with self-interest. Though mystics and buncumbists have been playing with that cliché throughout history, the truth is that it is only true to the extent that the free market is permitted to function.

These business leaders are not talking about the free market at all, but about investing in the national government. The legend should in fact claim: "What's good for the government is good for Americans."

That is not only a dubious claim but an outlandishly misleading one. Why the truth in advertising authorities don't come down on the U.S. Savings Bond campaign is anybody's guess. Consider for example, the record of the early bond campaigns. It is an abysmal history.

In 1941 at the height of the War Bond crusade the government promised those who spent $18.75 apiece for the bonds that in ten years the "investment" would bring a $25 return. A paltry figure in itself. Moreover, the post-war climb of prices pretty well gobbled up the difference. And Savings Bond assurances are not much better these days — the era of zooming inflation.

We know now that what is good for the government may not be good for Americans, that distinction has been etched, perhaps indelibly, in the American consciousness just these past years. The campaign urges individuals to invest their money in one of the greatest examples of financial lunacy in history. What is so astonishing is that the U.S. government's march toward bankruptcy almost seems purposive, sure-footed.

The concentrated intellectual exercise along the Potomac seems to be how best to sustain the fantasies, how long can economic reality be shelved, the Washington planners seem bent on keeping the harsh world of cause and effect out of their equations.

And we are mystified as to what explains the industrialists' thinking.

Continued deficit spending leads to bankruptcy, expanding the dollar supply invites more and more cancerous inflation — these causes and effects are ignored. The tragedy is that when our own business leaders, desperate to unite on something for the sake of the future, unite in the campaign for U.S. Savings Bonds, the gather over a dangerous fallibility, the idea that people should invest in political government.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE
Send Kissinger to Showers?

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The series of catastrophes that has overtaken American foreign policy in recent weeks is bound to have grim political consequences for somebody, and right now the betting is that the top biggest loser will be Henry Kissinger and the Democratic majority in Congress.

Kissinger can hardly hope to escape a certain amount of blame. After all, he has been the principal architect of American foreign policy for the past six years, and hasn't been reluctant to accept the credit when his diplomacy seemed to be succeeding — as in his 1971 detente with Red China, his 1972 negotiations with the North Vietnamese in Paris, or his 1973 mediation efforts in the Middle East.

During 1974, however, various rifts began to appear in Henry's file. It became apparent, for one thing, that the North Vietnamese and their Russian and Chinese backers hadn't the slightest intention, detente or no detente, of slackening their drive to take over South Vietnam. Kissinger, to his credit, had suspected as much, but calculated that President Thieu and his countrymen could hold off the attackers with the help of American arms and economic aid.

Thieu proceeded to vindicate Kissinger's confidence by doing exactly that — until the Democratic Congress, undertaking to conduct foreign policy on its own, began squeezing off further aid for either South Vietnam or Cambodia. The ensuing collapse of resistance in both countries can thus be attributed directly to the Democrats in Congress — and Kissinger is wasting no time in making the attribution.

But it is far harder for Kissinger to shift to Congress his responsibility for the lack of any effective American response to the steadily progressing takeover of Portugal by its Communist minority, or for failing to devise and implement an American policy in the Middle East that takes into account the new strategic realities there. Thanks in part to Kissinger's own assent to a policy of nuclear parity with the Soviet Union, American has lost irrevocably the position of superior power in the Middle East which enabled it to buy cheap oil and create the state of Israel. With tacit Russian backing, the Arab states are now insisting on renegotiating both issues, and the failure of Kissinger's latest round of "shuttle diplomacy" therefore hardly comes as a surprise.

The clouds are thus thickening around Kissinger's head, and President Ford may well conclude it is time to put in another pitcher and send Henry to the showers. When so many things go wrong simultaneously, such a reaction is not only natural, it may even be sensible.

But we ought not to kid ourselves into supposing that some relief pitcher like Elliot Richardson can save the day by spitting on the ball or trying fancy curves. No secretary of state, present or future, can possibly succeed with a Middle Eastern policy (for example) whose objectives are simply no longer attainable. It is the objectives themselves that must be changed.

But the Democratic Congress and its liberal supporters in the media may have little time to enjoy Kissinger's discomfiture. Their won responsibility for the domino-toppling disaster now shaping up in Southeast Asia is too painfully apparent, and as it unfolds it is going to hurt them badly in the eyes of public fickleness. The voters went along with the doves' insistence on a U.S. withdrawal of its own ground forces from South Vietnam, but where and when did a majority of the American people ever go on record as favoring an aid squeeze, let alone a cut-off?

This thought has struck the New York "Times" and the Washington "Post" so forcibly that both papers, in lead editorials March 21, endorsed President Ford's request for another three-year aid program for South Vietnam — a truly incredible reversal on their part. Maybe they overheard a mordant conservative friend of mine who has been saying recently, "I've given up on South Vietnam. Now I'm just waiting for the long, dark night of recrimination to begin."

Time To Tap Elk Hills

Since 1912 the Elk Hills petroleum reserve in California's Kern County has been held by the U.S. Navy as a strategic defense resource. It now is being considered as a peacetime resource to help tide the United States of America over until energy self-sufficiency is attained.

Elk Hills contains 13 billion barrels of proven oil reserves and may have 37 billion barrels of potentially recoverable oil. President Ford believes that the resource should be developed immediately to serve both military and civilian needs. He recommends that income from Elk Hills petroleum sales be used to help finance construction of national storage facilities for petroleum and to assist in pay for exploration of the far larger Alaskan reserves.

A dispute is brewing in Washington over whether the Navy Department or the Department of Interior should control the Elk Hills oil field. In a sense the argument is academic since the military services will have preference in the use of oil anyway, should the United States become embroiled in a shooting war.

Right now however the nation is fighting an economic war which requires the quickest possible development of our petroleum resources. Elk Hills oil must be tapped now as a part of the program to help the United States of America respond to the pressure of the Arab oil producers. The 300,000 barrels of petroleum that could be produced daily from Elk Hills by 1977 would be of material assistance in achieving this goal.

Daughter's Dilemma: Freeloading Parents

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My parents used to fight about money all the time, and now I can see the same thing happening in my own marriage.

We both work, but my husband expects me to pay the bills. He pays the bills, while he gambles and plays the big game. He treats his friends and lets the bills go, then comes and gets deeper into debt all the time. Right now we are over our heads so bad I can't see how we will ever get out.

For the first time in our marriage, I think the only answer is to let me divorce him. The kids and I would be better off without him, and we wouldn't have this constant fighting about money.

Whoever said, "money is the root of all evil," was sure right. It has got to be the number one reason why marriages break up. Right?

INSIDE WASHINGTON
Echeverria Eager to Head UN

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, April 21 — If UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appears unduly edgy these days, there is good reason. Potentially powerful rivals are ambitiously eyeing his $106,500 job.

Waldheim's five-year term expires next year, and already possible aspirants are quietly taking soundings on the prospects of replacing him.

Foremost among them is Mexican president Luis Echeverria Alvarez — whose six-year term ends next year and who under Mexico's constitution is barred from succeeding himself.

He is most eager to be the first Latin American to be UN secretary general.

As Echeverria is credited as seeing it, he considers his chances worth making the effort.

To begin with, as a key asset he is counting on the support of the 23 member nations of the Organization of American States. While Cuba is currently excluded from OAS, Echeverria feels it too will back him — despite Castro's subservience to Moscow policy.

Echeverria has carefully maintained cordial ties with Castro and thinks the Cuban dictator would favor him as a fellow Latin and in the interest of hemispheric unity.

Similarly, Echeverria thinks Canada would go along with him because of the hemispheric factor. In his opinion, there would be no particular reason for Canada to side with Waldheim, an Austrian who was agreed on in 1971 by the contending UN factions solely because he was the least objectionable as successor to the late U Thant.

Wheels Within Wheels

For good neighbor and hemispheric reasons, the US undoubtedly would also support Echeverria — even though relations are currently somewhat icy.

To Washington's bewilderment, the Mexican president recently erupted with a blistering harangue against the US. There was no particular reason for the fulminating outburst, diplomatic and political relations between the two countries had been on an even keel.

Clearly, there was more than met the eye behind Echeverria's surprising and out-of-character blast — which was as contradictory as it was inexplicable.

On one hand, he sonorously acclaimed maintaining harmony and amity with the U.S., and on the other he truculently avowed determination not to bow two or three degrees to the U.S. Carefully not mentioned by Echeverria was just how and why Mexico was being imposed on.

While startled, Washington studiously ignored the rancorous diatribe on two grounds:

(1) Echeverria was obviously throwing a verbal sop to the radical students and other militants by defiantly twisting the U.S. tail; (2) at the same time, he was craftily currying the favor of the Arab — black African — Communist bloc that now dominates the UN and will decide who the next secretary general will be.

So after thinking it over, Washington shrugged it off.

UN Politicking

In a way, there was little choice.

Waldheim is also busily wooing the bloc. Increasingly, in recent months, the secretary general has been displaying a marked leaning toward the controlling clique.

Latest instance was his balking early this month at issuing a UN appeal for world help in evacuating refugees in South Vietnam from areas overrun by the Communists. Waldheim's explanation for this aloof stand was that there was no need for the refugees to flee as

Ellen Burstyn Wins Tony For Broadway Play Job

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Wiz" won seven Tony awards, the Oscars of Broadway, Sunday night in a presentation that saw top acting honors go to Angela Lansbury, Ellen Burstyn, John Cullum, John Kani and Winston Nishona.

The black musical version of "The Wizard of Oz," which won mixed critical reception when it opened, "The Wiz" won the best musical award for the 1974-75 season. "Equus," a smash-hit British import by Peter Shaffer, was named the best play and its director, John Dexter, won best director for a play.

It was a bonanza night for "The Wiz," which also carried off Tonys for best director, best supporting actor and actress in a musical, best score, best choreographer and best costume designer. Geoffrey Holder got the award for director and costume designer, a unique double honor for one season.

"The Wiz" won seven of the eight awards for which it was nominated.

It was a spectacular 29th annual presentation of the Antoinette Perry awards of the American Theater Wing on the stage of the Winter Garden Theater.

The nationally televised show (ABC) recounted the 55-year history of the grand old house. Former New York Mayor John V. Lindsay got into the act, escorting Miss Lansbury on stage for her rendition of the theme song from "Mame," the Winter Garden hit of 1966.

Miss Lansbury won a Tony for best actress in a musical, the revival of "Gypsy," in which she played the role originated by Ethel Merman.

Miss Burstyn won best actress in a play for "Same Time, Next Year," following up her recent Academy Award Oscar for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore."

Connally Brother Never Doubted

FLORESVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Former state Sen. Wayne Connally said Thursday he never doubted his brother's innocence of bribery charges and he was relieved a Washington jury also believed the former Treasury Secretary and Texas governor.

"There, of course, wasn't any doubt in any of his family's or friends' minds as to what had transpired," Connally said.

AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard says the state should build and operate any superport constructed off the Texas coast and use the proceeds to finance public education.

"If the state would exercise its right to build and operate offshore terminals, the state could earn $128 million annually which we suggest be the Available School Fund for the operation of our public education program," Hubbard said in letters sent Friday to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. William Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton.

A subcommittee of the House State Affairs Committee Friday approved a bill by Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, that would allow the state to give private companies permission to build offshore oil terminals.

Sen. Aikin Jr. D-Paris Said Many Dealers Have Inadequate Storage Capabilities

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate has approved and sent to the House a bill to require sellers of butane and liquefied petroleum gas to have at least 18,000 gallons of storage capacity.

Sen. A.M. Aikin Jr., D-Paris, said many dealers have inadequate storage capabilities and quickly run out of fuel when deliveries are interrupted by bad weather. Aikin said the bill exempts dealers currently in operation but requires any newcomers to the business to have the minimum storage capacity.

U.S. Customs Patrol Arrested Two California Men Monday on Charges of Trying to Smuggle 256 Parrots Across the Rio Grande on a Rubber Raft

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Patrol arrested two California men Monday on charges of trying to smuggle 256 parrots across the Rio Grande on a rubber raft.

Hank Posio, agent in charge, said the parrots, of the psittacine and other species, could be bought for about $10 in Mexico and sold for up to $200 each in California.

Edward Marlett, 23, Colton, Calif. and Roy Blom, 25, Realton, Calif., were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate William Mallet set $20,000 bond on Marlett and $10,000 bond on Blom.

Military Aid Said Lost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is likely to pass a bill this week to give Vietnam additional humanitarian assistance — but as for military aid, even President Ford's friends consider it a lost cause.

It won't stop a small group of senators, led by Democrat Sam Nunn of Georgia and Republicans Robert Taft of Ohio and Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma, from trying to get the Senate to pass $534 million in military aid — which the Pentagon feels is the minimum to stabilize the fighting in Vietnam.

It also won't stop the administration from trying Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Army Chief of Staff Frederick Weyand were to appear today before the House Appropriations Committee in support of Ford's request for $722 million Congress has authorized an additional $300 million in aid for South Vietnam but an appropriation vote must be taken before the money actually can be spent.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., doesn't think it will help. "Almost as soon as President Ford finished speaking the other night and asking for $722 million in additional aid, it was quite apparent it was a lost cause," he said Sunday (on ABC's "Issues and Answers").

"Neither the House nor the Senate in my judgment would be willing to vote additional amounts of military aid."

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has recommended $327 million — $177 million for humanitarian aid and the rest for evacuation and refugee help.

The Senate begins debating a $200 million humanitarian aid bill today, about half for evacuation. It passed the Foreign Relations Committee 14-3 and Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., one of the opponents, said "judging from the vote in committee, it stands a good chance."

Although the Senate Armed Services Committee rejected all proposals for military aid Friday, the closeness of the votes gave hope to the three supporters of Ford's request.

McFarland's father, Robert B. McFarland Sr., the mayor of the small eastern New Mexico ranching community.

Police said the children were in their pajamas and the breakfast dishes were still on the table.

Logan constable Jim Wright said he saw McFarland at the bank early Saturday and appeared friendly. No suicide note was found.

Officers said McFarland's wife, Kathryn Lee, 25 and three of the children were found in a bedroom and the bodies of McFarland and Vesper Ardes said they hope to get an additional authorization of $75 million, which could be added to the $300 million available. Then Taft and Bartlett would try to increase that figure in floor debate.

Ann, 4, were found in the living room. All six had been shot and Mrs. McFarland and the children had been stabbed with a steak knife.

Police said a 32-caliber automatic pistol found near McFarland's body was apparently the murder weapon.

The other dead children were Dawn Michel, 5, Cynthia, 2, and Robert III, 3 months old.

McFarland was president of the McFarland Brothers Bank, which was founded by his grandfather and uncle in 1904. The family also owned an insurance business in town.

Called Murder, Suicide

LOGAN, N.M. (UPI) — Authorities say bank president Robert B. McFarland Jr. apparently killed his wife and four small children and then killed himself Saturday.

"We're waiting until we get a report from the (state police) crime lab and the coroner, but as far as we can tell now, it looks like murder and suicide," Quay County Sheriff James Knight said Sunday.

The bodies of the McFarlands, 32, and his family were found at their ranch-style home in Logan Saturday evening by McFarland's father, Robert B. McFarland Sr., the mayor of the small eastern New Mexico ranching community.

Police said the children were in their pajamas and the breakfast dishes were still on the table.

Logan constable Jim Wright said he saw McFarland at the bank early Saturday and appeared friendly. No suicide note was found.

Recommends Bell Rate

DALLAS (UPI) — Consultants have recommended the city grant Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. a rate increase which would, among other things, up the charge on public telephones from 0 to 20 cents. The recommended rate increases total $22.5 million, $464,000 less than Bell's original request.

The Stanford Research Institute of California said Bell customers in Dallas had to face either higher prices or poorer service.

Texas To File Complaint Against Pecos Water Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today allowed Texas to file a complaint directly in the high court alleging that New Mexico had been using Pecos River water which had been promised to the Lone Star State. The court gave New Mexico 60 days to file an answer. Texas asked the court to order New Mexico to deliver the water it is allegedly due under the Pecos River Compact of 1948.

Under the Constitution, the Supreme Court has sole jurisdiction to decide battles between state governments. A special master is usually appointed to take evidence and make recommendations. Texas said that under the compact New Mexico promised not to use, or allow its citizens to use, any amount of Pecos River water that would reduce the flow into Texas from 1947 levels.

The complaint alleged that from 1950 to 1972 its western neighbors had reduced the river flow to Texas "in excess of 1.2 million acre feet."

Evacuation Money Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indications are growing that a mass evacuation from Vietnam is being prepared.

Although Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield thinks enough money is available, the Senate begins today to decide whether to approve an additional $200 million for evacuation. It passed the Foreign Relations Committee Friday by a 14-3 vote.

The Pentagon reported Sunday that Adm. Noel Gayler, U.S. commander in chief in the Pacific, made a secret flying visit to Saigon Thursday, returning to his headquarters in Honolulu Saturday. The Pentagon would not comment on the trip, but Gayler directed evacuation of Americans from Cambodia last week, following a similar unannounced trip.

After Gayler's return, all nine carriers and amphibious vessels assigned to the Navy's 7th Fleet had left port and were in the South China Sea.

According to Pentagon sources, one of the aircraft carriers, the Hancock, had been converted into a vessel of mercy, with large passenger-carrying helicopters replacing the jet fighter planes. They said a similar conversion probably had been carried out for the Midway. The Okinawa is already a helicopter carrier.

Each carrier was accompanied by destroyers. The two other carriers, the Coral Sea and the Enterprise, would keep their fighter jets to protect the helicopters, the sources said. The Saigon airport has continued to operate with a stepped-up evacuation program. At Clark Air Base in the Philippines, U.S. Air Force planes arrived steadily, carrying both Americans and Vietnamese. Civilian charter planes left with some of them for the United States.

Mack Wofford To Query About Taxes

City Manager Mack Wofford said this morning he planned to dispatch a letter today to State Comptroller Bob Bullock about the status of Pampa's sales tax receipts for January and February.

The city manager said he would inquire about the fact Pampa had received a check for only $25,993 covering March of this year, but no checks for January or February.

The city manager said the March check was received last week.

The only other check received this year, according to City Hall records, was on March 1 for $143,969 covering the last quarter of 1974.

When Bullock assumed office Jan. 1 he changed the sales tax payments from quarterly to monthly.

Pampa officials say the amount of money received so far for the first quarter of 1975, under the monthly payment system is approximately $80,000 short of sales tax receipts received for the comparable period of 1974.

Viet Pullout Leaves Hole In Saigon Defense Plan

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops captured the provincial capital of Xuan Loc today, ending two weeks of government resistance and advancing to within striking distance of Saigon.

Military sources said government troops abandoned Xuan Loc this morning and besieging Communists marched into the shell-battered city without a fight.

The pullout left a gaping hole in Saigon's defense perimeter and increased speculation that beleaguered President Nguyen Van Thieu would soon resign. The loss of Xuan Loc, which had become a symbol of government resistance, opened the South Vietnamese capital to a full-scale Communist assault.

The retreat from Xuan Loc, 38 miles northeast of Saigon, came hours after Communists captured the provincial capital of Ham Tan, 75 miles east of the capital.

The fall of the two cities gave the Communists control of 21 of South Vietnam's 41 province capitals and more than two-thirds of the country's territory. U.S. military and civilian planes stepped up the evacuation of Americans and endangered South Vietnamese from Saigon as the Communist advance neared the capital.

Military strategists had described the two-week battle for Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh Province, as one of the most important of the war.

The fall of the nearly deserted, shell-shattered city of 38,000 was expected to be a shattering blow to the morale of South Vietnamese troops.

Most of those arriving Sunday were American dependents, but about 500 were Vietnamese without adequate papers to get to the United States. Spokesmen said Clark was prepared to accommodate up to 5,000 refugees at a time.

Estimates in Washington have ranged up to 200,000 Vietnamese who would have to be evacuated, mainly because they had been linked to Americans.

Little Darlings Nifty Knits for the Younger Set

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

STANLEY LOVE has definite ideas about girls' dresses. They are ideas that mothers are sure to endorse. The answer for children's clothes, says Love, president of Joseph Love Inc., is easy-care polyester knits.

Specialty of the House

"We are specialists in polyester knits," he says. "We don't want to be everything to everybody. We used to try that and it couldn't be done."

The firm went all out for polyester knits "because they rate raves from consumers."

Look! No Wrinkles

"They never wrinkle," says Love. "You can hang them in the closet forever and when you wear them they still look good. They are, without doubt, the best thing that has ever come into the children's dress and sportswear area."

The trend in Love knits and throughout the children's wear field, says the Knitted Textile Association, is toward applied trimmings. The appliques appear on solid colors and prints and include strawberries, daisies, flower pots, animals, birds, butterflies—you name it.

Frisly party dresses are no longer the fashion for little girls. Instead, simple classics such as those pictured here, are winning fashion honors for the younger set. They are comfortable and easy to wear and the big plus for Mother—they're easy care, too.

THREE LITTLE GIRLS

Mobeetie Friends Reunited

A dinner was hosted recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams, 1825 Duncan, for 22 friends of the "Old Mobeetie" days.

This was the first reunion of this group since the first ones married in 1928. (That was Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Morgan of Pampa).

Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Davis of Dumas and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Prather of Hayward, Calif. were married the same day 46 years ago and this was the first time to celebrate their anniversary together. The Prathers have lived in California since 1937 and the Davises have lived most of this time in Dumas.

There was a total of 619 years of married life between the group.

Additional guests present were Messrs. and Mmes. Bill Corcoran, Mobeetie, and Aubrey Ruff, Warren Williams, Charlie Ruff, Weldon Terry, Alph Ruff, Cleo Ruff and Miss Kim Lancycomb, all of Pampa.

Women's Aglow To Organize In Pampa

A group of 27 women representing several denominations met Thursday, April 10, in the home of Mrs. Richard Peet, 2230 Duncan, for the purpose of organizing a Women's Aglow Fellowship.

The purpose of the Women's Aglow Fellowship will be to worship, praise, and glorify God in all areas of lives, to share with believers everywhere the full gospel of Jesus Christ to win souls for Jesus, to work for spiritual unity among Christian believers, and to help women recognize their proper role and relationships according to the scriptures.

This chapter being organized will be affiliated with the Women's Aglow Fellowships, International State officers President Wilma Martin, and Outreach Chairman Leatrice Skinner from Arlington were speakers for the meeting. How to elect officer, leadership qualities required, and other details of organization were presented and discussed.

A future meeting will be announced at a later date.

Rue Hestand was moderator of a recent panel discussion on gardening presented by the Pampa Garden Club members to parents of Headstart students enrolled at Baker Elementary School. Serving on the panel were Mrs. J.V. Young who discussed compost and Mmes. Lee Moore, Marion Brown, and Rue Hestand. Mrs. Hestand presented statistics on how the vegetable garden would cut food bills.

Members of the Pampa Garden Club presented plants to the parents attending. Other club activities with the Headstart program have included planting a fall bed for rooting and later transplanting to terrariums and creating floral valentines. These two projects were done with the students in the Headstart program. Chairman of the projects was Mrs. W.E. Campaigne.

Pampa Garden Club received six awards at the annual spring convention of Texas State Garden Clubs, Inc. held in Austin recently. They included History, first place; Garden Therapy, first; Honor Roll Rating; Scrapbook, third; and yearbook, third. Golden Agers Luncheon

By Mrs. L. H. Norman

The Golden Agers met at the Salvation Army Monday for their regular weekly meeting and luncheon.

Jeanne Willingham and her dance students presented the program. The girls were as good as professionals. This program was free. Nowhere else would a person get as good a program for less than two or three dollars.

Silvia Perry from Fritch really captured the hearts of the people with her acts and personality. Some of the girls did acrobats, some ballet dancing. All together it was a wonderful program.

Before the program we had a wonderful meal for only $1.50, or what the individual can pay. Captain Deggs has worked hard to bring good programs each Monday for all the Golden Agers of Pampa and the area.

The food is always good. The kitchen is clean and the cook, Bill Smith, is really a professional cook.

Monday April 21 an interesting film, "Journey into Darkness" will be shown. This film deals with quackery doctors on cancer.

Cold Rinse

Cold water rinsing is best for dishes with particles of eggs, milk, cheese, rice or oatmeal remaining. Hot water would cook these foods onto plates and utensils, reminds Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Pampa's Economy Prospers

Challenges Depletion Hoax, Says Public 'Ripped Off'

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The public has been "ripped off" by changes in the oil depletion allowance, and failure to recognize the real villain may ultimately destroy the American petroleum industry, according to an industry leader.

Gas Supplies Ready For Summer Travelers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As the vacation season approaches, industry reports show that stocks of major petroleum products are almost all higher now than they were a year ago. Proven reserves of oil are still slipping down, but potential reserves—those that look promising but have not yet been proved—are up.

Gasoline sales in January were substantially higher than the embargo month of January, 1974. But, overall, it appears Americans are using somewhat less fuel per car.

The American Petroleum Institute reported that for the week ending April 11, storage totals for gasoline, the most used type of jet fuel, home heating oils and the heavier industrial oils were substantially higher than a year ago. Motor gasoline in major storage totaled $33.28 million barrels, up from $23.32 million as of April 12, 1974.

In the same period, jet fuel of the kerosine type rose from 24.14 million to 25.24 million barrels, distillate fuel oil (including heating oils) increased from 126.97 million to 140.23 million barrels, and heavy fuel oil rose from 44.65 million to 50.71 million barrels.

The API said proven reserves of "hydrocarbon liquids" (notably oil) dropped by 1.1 billion barrels in 1974.

But at the same time, API Vice President James S. Cross said "potential petroleum resources look more promising. These resources are those President Charles J. Waidelich of Cities Service Co. says Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., is a good example of industry critics who call the depletion allowance a "ripoff by the industry on the American consumer."

The depletion allowance saved the industry about $4 billion in taxes last year, Waidelich says, but $12 billion was spent to locate and develop oil and natural gas deposits, including $5 billion to the federal government for offshore leases.

Quake Shakes Japanese Isles

TOKYO (UPI) — An earthquake rocked the Japanese islands of Shikoku and Kyushu today, destroying and damaging 28 homes and buildings and disrupting rail service, police said.

Authorities said eight persons were injured by falling buildings, and others rushed out of their homes and stood in the rain after the tremor struck at 2:36 a.m.

"I maintain that the government and the consumer are getting a good return from depletion," he says. "By comparison, the federal government cost the taxpayers of the nation $300 billion last year and what did they get in return? Frankly, it was darn little in many instances."

Senator Hollings is right in saying there has been a "ripoff," but he is confused as to whom is the "rip-off" and whom is the "rip-off," Waidelich says.

Waidelich says most politicians were "simply squeezing the trigger on behalf of their constituents." Congress passed a tax rebate bill last month that removed the depletion allowance for major producers but allowed it to continue for independent operators.

"The building of a positive image is absolutely essential to us if we hope to muster the backing of elected representatives. The widely held beliefs of the people are ultimately translated into legislative action and we cannot survive without greater grassroots support."

Otherwise, he says, the oil industry may go the way of the tightly regulated railroads.

"The private enterprise story must be told more convincingly than ever before. This is not the time to reject a system that has worked in the past and experiment with bureaucratic measures that have consistently failed."

Waidelich says many people who do not understand the need for "profits found a confirmation of 'skullduggery' in high profit reports last year."

"The idea that profits are somehow immoral is becoming more widespread. This epidemic of economic naivety is a major threat—not only to petroleum companies but the entire private enterprise system," Waidelich says.

"Unless we resolve the energy problem, our economic growth will be stunted, our standard of living will suffer and the nation's position as a world leader will deteriorate."

THANKS FOR AIR SAMPLES — The Texas Air Control Board has awarded Mrs. Otto Mangold, a teacher at Pampa Junior High, a certificate of appreciation for the work she and her students have contributed to the board. She and her students take weekly samples of air to be analyzed to determine levels of dust, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxide, hydrogen sulfide and aldehydes in the air in Pampa. It is part of the school's environmental education program. Those with the collection machine are Rhonda McKay, Mrs. Mangold, Jack Mintkenbaugh with the air control board and Mike Craig. Mintkenbaugh emphasized the fact that the board "could not operate these sampling sites and information about air in local communities would be much less accurate without the help of volunteers."

20 Die in Blaze Of Dutch Cruiser

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Salvage crews today hauled the burned-out wreck of a Dutch pleasure cruiser from the bottom of the Rhine river and discovered the partially disintegrated bodies of 19 persons, police said.

The figure brought the death toll to 20 in Saturday's blaze that trapped disabled and elderly passengers on board the riverboat Princess Irene.

A woman passenger died en route to the hospital during rescue operations.

Police said there should have been 105 persons on board the ship when it caught fire, and 85 have been accounted for.

"This is probably the final toll," a police spokesman said.

Rescuers pulled 8 persons from the ship. Four seriously injured travelers and an accompanying priest remained in Cologne, while 79, including 31 who escaped with minor injuries, went home to Holland.

Dutch Consul Herman Meerloo said only a handful of the bodies could be removed from the ship. The others needed special transportation methods to prevent them from disintegrating, he said.

District government chief Guenter Heidecke termed the tragedy "the worst Rhine traffic accident in history."

A water police spokesman said salvage crews aboard floating cranes would try to raise the vessel early this morning at the Adenauer Pier, where it was moored when flames broke out.

City officials said the state prosecutor's office has taken over investigation of the disaster. They could neither confirm nor deny reports that authorities had taken a blood test from Jan Tillema, the captain of the German-built river cruiser.

In Bonn, the Federal Transport Ministry said a technical supervisory board would inspect the wreck to determine whether safety devices aboard the Irene had been up to inland waterway navigational standards.

A group of at least 32 elderly disabled passengers, about 20 of them in wheel chairs, were among the passengers taking a one-week Rhine excursion. The tour was sponsored by a Dutch Catholic welfare organization.

The overnight stay in Cologne was the last stop on the return trip.

Police said five of the victims were still hospitalized in Cologne. The remaining passengers left by buses and ambulances for Arnhem, Holland Saturday.

Widow Visits Onassis Grave

SKORPIOS, Greece (UPI) — Jacqueline and Christina Onassis, both dressed in black, stood together with tears in their eyes for a moment of family solidarity beside the grave of the man they mourned.

A priest led prayers Sunday for the graveside requiem, held 40 days after the death of Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis as required by Greek Orthodox tradition.

The two women, who have denied press reports of a feud over the multimillionaire's inheritance, arrived at the Onassis-owned island of Skopios Saturday on separate flights.

Jacqueline arrived with Onassis' sister, Artemis Garoufalidi, on a regular flight to the Aktion airport across the bay from Skopios. Christina, Onassis' daughter and probable heir to most of the Onassis fortune, flew in on an amphibious plane.

A spokesman for Cristina Saturday denied reports of an inheritance battle as well as reports that the shipping tycoon was planning to divorce the 45-year-old Jacqueline before he died March 15 in Paris of pneumonia and a muscle disease known as myasthenia gravis.

Both Christina and Jacqueline wore black suits and matching blouses and stockings as they stood at the graveside ceremony, with tears in their eyes along with other members of the Onassis family and their associates.

After the prayers, mourners were given traditional boiled wheat sprinkled with white sugar known as "kolyva."

The graveside ceremony was held near the whitewashed chapel of Panagitsa (Little Mother of God), where Aristotle and the famed widow of the late President John Kennedy were married in 1968. The shipping magnate, whose exact age was never a certainty, was more than 20 years Jacqueline's senior, and the marriage created an international sensation.

In Miami Beach, Fla., the president of the National Myasthenia Gravis Foundation said Saturday Onassis rejected American medical assistance that could have saved his life.

Murray Blaivas, the foundation's president, told a seminar on the disease that the organization offered Onassis aid but the shipper was "totally disinterested."

Blaivas said the organization hoped that Onassis would give it financial help in return for medical assistance.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

April 20-25, 1775:

Arriving in Watertown, Massachusetts, on the morning of the 19th, Colonel Joseph Palmer — a member of the Massachusetts Committee of Safety — hears of the events earlier that morning in Lexington. He hastily writes a message relating what happened, adding in part: "The bearer Israel Bissel is charged to alarm the Country quite to Connecticut, and all persons are desired to furnish him with fresh Horses, as they may be needed." He signs the message in case it should be challenged, and gives it to Bissel — a veteran post rider. Bissel is largely responsible for spreading the news of Lexington all the way to Philadelphia — where he arrives 118 hours later, on the 25th. From there, the news quickly travels to the colonies of the South.

STAR TRUCK — Billy Mitchell of Mitchell Cattle Co. and Livestock Transportation of Pampa probably is in Hollywood now — or is getting close. That was his destination Friday when he came into town driving the truck star of television's "Movin' On." Kenworth, makers of the impressive vehicle, had it in Dallas for a grand opening and the president of Kenworth talked Mitchell into returning the truck to the MGM set of the show. The 1975 model truck features a big walk-in sleeper and "handles like a champ," Mitchell said. He added that there were 14,000 miles on the speedometer.

Gifted Child Education Gets House Approval

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas House has approved a bill establishing special programs for training gifted children. But one legislator assailed the $500,000 a year plan as a bureaucrats' dream.

The measure was approved 69-42 Friday. Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, said the program for gifted children could grow to an $85 million a year project. "This is a ridiculous program dreamed up by a bunch of bureaucrats," Peveto said. "We don't need an $85 million program to challenge these kids. They've got science fairs to challenge them. They've got debates to challenge them, and they've got football to challenge them."

Land in the Houston area has sunk as much as eight feet because of depleted underground water supplies.

A revision of part of the state's family code was tentatively approved by the House. It lowers from 16 to 14 the minimum age at which a child can marry with parental consent.

Representatives turned down 51-48 a proposal by Rep. Sarah Weddington, D-Austin, requiring county clerks to offer family planning information to each couple applying for a marriage license.

"It seems to me people getting married do need that kind of information," Ms. Weddington said.

"Just speaking for myself, I wasn't going to read anything before I got married," said Rep. Jim Kaster, D-El Paso.

Polster Calls For Competence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans got "somebody with integrity" to replace Richard M. Nixon, and are now asking for "somebody with competence" to replace Gerald R. Ford, pollster Peter Hart said Saturday.

He also told the Americans for Democratic Action that both the Democratic-controlled 94th Congress and Republican President Ford are getting low grades from voters across the country.

"Nixon lacked character," said Hart. "Americans asked for somebody with basic integrity to replace him and they got somebody with integrity. Now, they say 'get us somebody with competence.'"

Hart told the liberal ADA's national convention his firm found in one Midwest poll that Ford now has no better rating on a work scale than Nixon had shortly before he resigned, although Ford rated higher in a personality test.

Former Democratic National Chairwoman Jean Westwood warned in another speech that liberals waiting complacently for a latecomer "pie in the sky candidate such as Teddy or Muskie" at next year's Democratic presidential convention are dreaming.

She said some of a crowd of candidates already announced may drop out of the running and leave little room for late compromise at convention time.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts has said repeatedly he would not accept the nomination. Former hopeful Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine has remained quietly on the sidelines while at least five others have formally announced they are running.

The five candidates to date are Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

But Hart said the Democratic nominee who has to run for President on the performance of the 94th Congress could be in trouble.

"The Congress is hard working but somehow that isn't getting to the people," he said.

Viets May Come to US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may find itself providing new homes for most of the South Vietnamese taken out in any mass evacuation of that war-torn country.

Vietnamese are not loved by their Southeast Asian neighbors, administration officials said today, and it appears unlikely very many will be allowed to resettle in the other countries in Indochina. Officials said the United States started making informal contacts with other nations in the area as much as six years ago to see if they would help in the event of a collapse of the Saigon government.

"They haven't been very enthusiastic," one source said. "The Vietnamese are looked on as rather clannish and they are considered hustlers. They aren't exactly well loved by other Asians."

The administration has talked about evacuating up to 175,000 Vietnamese if the Saigon government falls to the Communist offensive.

State Department officials said that figure, however, was purely theoretical. They said it was obtained by taking the number of Vietnamese thought to have worked for the U.S. government or for American firms and multiplying it by the average number of dependents each might have.

Whether that many really would flee remains unknown. In addition, the State Department total does not include other South Vietnamese —merchants, intellectuals, even black marketers and B-girls—who may not like the idea of living in a Communist society.

Many Vietnamese might seek refuge in France. An unknown number hold French passports dating back 20 years to the days when part of Indochina was a French colony and they were French citizens.

Kennedy May Change Mind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., may change his mind about staying out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I don't count Sen. Kennedy out," Long said Friday. "He has indicated that he would not be a candidate under any conditions. But he might just change his mind about that."
