Forrest and Grass Fires Take a Heavy Toll In Eastern States

DEATHS OCCUR WHEN FLAMES SWEEP TOWNS

Winds Attain Velocity Of Sixty Miles An Hour

HUNDRED HOMES ARE DESTROYED

Residents Prepare To Leave Barnegate In Boats

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP)—The toll of forest and grass fires today reached two lives, thousands of acres of woodlands and close to a hundred homes in central New York, Long Island, eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and northern Delaware. The flames were spread by winds which at times attained a velocity of 60 miles an hour.

Many of the residents of Barnegate, N. J., loaded their valuable motor boats on Barnegate Bay as the fire circled closed in on the town, ready to flee if the hundreds of volunteer workers were unable to check the flames.

The deaths occurred in fighting the fire about Barnegate. Frank Hayes, of Waretown, was burned to death when his home was destroyed, and Vincent Clayton, a member of the United States coast guard at Spring Lake, was fatally injured when he fell from a fire truck.

Fire in the South Mountains, near Gettysburg, Pa., was believed of incendiary origin but the others started from various causes, such as sparks from chimneys and untended fires in grass plots.

Miss Annie Wilson, a school teacher at Nanticooke Crossing, near Endicott, N. Y., dismissed her charges when she saw the fire closing in on her home of Charles Ross, nearby, and she rescued five children from the house just as its walls started to blaze.

Miss Ella Brennan, led her 100 pupils to safety when a forest fire broke in on her school at Yatesville, near Pottsville, Pa.

RICHMOND, W. Va., April 20.—(AP)—Fire swept through more than a score of business structures and ten residences here today, causing loss estimated at $325,000. The blaze was fanned by a high wind, and dynamite was used in an effort to halt the flames.

Standing On Head In Patent Bed Is Basis of Law Suit

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP)—A night spent standing on their heads after being suddenly folded up by a patented bed was made the basis of a $40,000 personal injury suit on trial here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Carter, the plaintiffs, named a Los Angeles apartment house owner as the defendant. Mrs. Carter asked $25,000, and the husband sought $5,000 for the night's experience.

Theodore Wold, inventor indicated he might subpoena one of the things and have a demonstration in court.

Former Pugilist Executed Today

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—(AP)—Matt Seminary, known in the pugilist world five years ago as "Battling Joe" Nelson, was executed in the Orleans parish prison here today for the murder two years ago of Lillian Hoyle, his dance hall girl sweetheart. He killed Ralph Sturdy, her companion, as the same time.

Seminary mounted the scaffold at 12:07 p. m. and was pronounced dead six minutes later.

RANGER KILLED BY MOONSHINER

Kim Willard Shot As Raid on Still Is Made

CORSICANA, Tex., April 20.—(AP)—Scores of officers today were searching through the heavy woods near Fairfield, Freestone county, about 35 miles southeast of here, for three moonshiners, one of whom shot and fatally wounded special ranger Kim Willard last night.

Willard, Boone Anderson and W. J. Hancock, special rangers appointed two months ago by Governor Dan Moody had discovered the rendezvous and were to make a raid last night. As they approached the still they separated Willard, sighted by an outpost, was shot in the leg. He fell to the ground and fired at his assailant, who discharged his shotgun a second time, the charge striking Willard in the stomach.

Anderson and Hancock a short time later found Willard. He told them what had happened and described his assailant. About an hour and a half later he died.

A father and his two sons were arrested later near Fairfield. The younger of the two sons was discovered by Sheriff Eubank of Freestone county Deputy Lee and city marshal Ed Foreman of Teague. He was wounded in the leg with buckshot, and told the officers where they would find his father and brother. All three were being held in jail at Fairfield, but no charges had been filed.

Charges later were filed against W. T. Pagan and his two sons. The county Attorney indicated that no further action would be taken until the grand jury convenes the second week in May.

BREMEN WILL BE REPAIRED WITHIN WEEK

Canadian Correspondent Visits Plane On Greenly Island

BLIZZARDS MAY DELAY RESCUE

Forecast For Colder Weather Given Today

LAKE ST. AGNES, Que., April 20.—(AP)—By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent—The German monoplane Bremen will be flown from New York to Greenly, making the first round-trip flight over the Atlantic ocean. Captain Koehl told the Canadian Press correspondent before the latter's departure from Greenly Island 100 Murray Bay. The correspondent arrived here today.

LAKE ST. AGNES, Que., April 20.—(AP)—Major James Fitzmaurice (capt) awaited the tri-motored ship, plane from the American city to greet the repairs for the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen back to Greenly Island.

A blizzard which swept down over the St. Lawrence river county last night, however, brought fears that the big Ford all-metal plane might not be able to win through the 400 mile from the American city to this port. The forecast, however, was for clear and cold weather today.

If the plane comes through on schedule, the Irish commandant and Floy Bennett and Brent Balchen, the relief ship pilots, hoped to take off to Greenly Island Saturday.

Fitzmaurice estimated that three days would be necessary to make the repairs on the Bremen and then he and Captain Herman Koehl and Baron Gunther von Huenefeld would continue their flight to New York which is bent propeller, a punctured tire and lack of fuel has delayed since a week ago today.

Word was received today that the second plane to reach the stranded German fliers at Greenly Island had taken off yesterday but had been forced down by a snowstorm at Lake Coeur, 20 miles northeast of here. The plane, owned by the Canadian trans-continental airways and piloted by Romeo Vachon, had as passengers a correspondent of the Canadian Press and two New York photographers.

For seven days the big junkers plane has rested on the ice of the little port at Greenly Island at the weather and restricted transportation systems barred attempts to carry aid to them.

"Now we'll make it," declared Fitzmaurice and Frouden junkers as they received word that the relief plane was coming through.

PARIS, April 20.—(AP)—The bodies of fifty German soldiers have been found in a large dugout at Chevregny, Aisne Department, says a dispatch from the correspondent of Le Journal. A farmer, engaged in enlarging his cellar, located a subterranean passage unknown to him; he followed the tunnel for twenty yards and emerged into a large concrete dugout, where he came upon the bodies of the Germans. Some of them were seated around tables, others lying in bunks or outright on the ground, their ribs still hanking on hooks on the walls.

It is presumed that all were killed during a rest period by an asphyxiating gas shell.

MELODY BOYS WILL SING

The Frisco Melody Boys will be heard again at the Merchants Carnival and Pure Food show at the Pla-Mor auditorium tonight at 8:30 o'clock. This quartet is composed of school boys from San Francisco who are working their way from the Pacific coast to Chicago. They entertained a large audience last night and upon request of local citizens have been persuaded to return here to entertain at the closing of the first merchants carnival to be held in Pampa.

Miss Junkers and Pilot

Miss Helva Junkers, left, daughter of Dr. Hugo Junkers, designer of the monoplane Bremen, and Fred Melchor, pilot, are pictured here as they prepared to take off from Mitchell Field, Long Island, in an effort to reach and rescue the stranded fliers on Greenly Island. They are standing before the Europa, sister ship of the Bremen and the only Junkers plane of the type in the United States. They planned to fly to Old Orchard, Maine, on the first lap of their journey.

FINAL PROGRAM AND AUCTION SALE AT CARNIVAL TONIGHT

Bridge Across Red River Will Connect Towns

The first Merchant's Carnival and Pure Food Show to be held in Pampa will close with the awarding of the grand prize and an auction tonight. The carnival was sponsored by the Presbyterian church with the co-operation of local merchants and wholesale houses throughout the country.

Seventy local merchants have beautifully decorated with the latest merchandise on display. A regular old time country store occupies one corner of the large Pla-Mor auditorium.

To close the carnival I. S. Jameson will conduct an auction tonight, following the program, when everything must be sold.

A feature attraction of the Carnival has been the Baby Show. The winners of prizes yesterday on the most perfect babies between one and two year old were: most perfect baby girl Patricia Blanche Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ward, prize given by Miss Brock. The most perfect baby boy Billie Bob Chaffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chaffin, prize given by Dr. A. R. Sawyer. There were 31 examined by the doctors and nurses in charge of the clinic.

The merchants with booths are well pleased with the show and plans are already under way to make it an annual affair. Practically every line of merchandise has been displayed by the Pampa merchants. More than 1,300 visited the show yesterday.

The program last night was featured by a quartet of California School boys touring the country. Other interesting numbers on the program were the drill by the Baker School pupils, whistling selections by Miss Lulu Hutchins, a colored orchestra and the Pampa Band.

Tonight's program will be featured by another drill by Baker school pupils. These children, making up the first five grades of the institution, are well trained and accomplished.

The eight hand piano number will be repeated again featuring Mrs. Nina McKimling, Mrs. Marvin Lewis, LaVerna Lavender and Dwight Price. The Pampa band, under the capable leadership of Kermit Vicars, will again be in attendance.

The feature of the show will be the awarding of individual and Grand prizes and the auction of the old country store, I. S. Jameson, local auctioneer, will conduct the closing out of the establishment.

EMPLOYEES ARE TRAPPED WHEN BLAST OCCURS

Many Injured Factory Workers Rushed To Hospital

VICTIMS ARE BADLY BURNED

Origin Believed To Be In Airplane Paint Department

DENVER, April 20.—(AP)—The bodies of five victims—three men and two women—were recovered early this afternoon from the ruins of a burned section of the plant of Alexander Industries, rocked by an explosion shortly before noon. The women were identified as Effie Harkon and Mrs. John T. White, employees at the airplane manufacturing plant. The others could not be identified.

DENVER, Colo., April 20.—(AP)—Several persons were reported killed and a score or more injured today when a series of explosions rocked the plant of Alexander Industries in Englewood, a suburb. Fire followed the explosion and several girl employees were reported trapped in one section of a branch building set afire by the blast.

Several automobile loads of injured were brought to the general hospital here, but the extent of their injuries could not be immediately determined. Crowds flocked to the scene and authorities had difficulty preserving order.

The explosions are believed to have occurred in the paint shop where highly inflammable supplies used for airplane wings were stored. The Alexander Industries manufacture airplanes in addition to conducting a number of other enterprises at its plant.

Rescue workers brought out several victims from the burning sections of the plant who appeared in critical condition.

Twenty six persons were employed in the building swept by the fire. Clothes had been burned off the victims carried out of the building by rescue workers.

Flames shot fifty feet out of the building with the first explosion which followed by two other in rapid succession. The main building of the plant was not touched by the fire up to 12:30 p. m., but firemen from Denver were called by the Englewood force to help prevent the flames from spreading.

Youths Charged With Negligent Homicide Today

AUSTIN, Tex., April 20.—(AP)—Two boys, 14 and 16 years old, are charged with negligent homicide in justice court, and are under $500 bond each, as a result of the death of Jesse D. Canada, foreman of the Austin sand and gravel works from a gunshot wound late Wednesday.

He had been picked up in a diving condition at the gravel works, and died before he could be taken to the hospital.

The two boys found shooting at pigeons in the vicinity of the gravel pit, were taken into custody later. They admitted having been within a shot distance of the scene of the shooting, although denied any knowledge of the man's death.

Blue sky bent down to touch the apple blossoms;
Full-flowering branches drooped to touch my hair;
New sunshine flooded all the fragrant orchard.
Warming to perfume every petal fair.

Gold sun, pink petals on the blue, and thrilling
Life in each tree-trunk rising from the sod!
What wonder I, while through the orchard passing,

CROPS INJURED

AUSTIN, Tex., April 20.—(AP)—Much of the early cotton in the northern half of the state will need replanting as the result of changes in the agricultural situation since the reports on which the April 1 crop review based H. H. Schutz, federal statistician, said Friday.

Low temperatures have injured cotton, corn, fruit and some of the truck crops, he said. Corn was frozen to the ground in many instances. In the west and parts of the south, more rain is needed and generally warm weather would be highly desirable.

Homer By A Rookie, Work Of Cohen, Judge Mark Opening Games

Four furnished opening game fireworks. Freddy Maguire (center), rookie second baseman of the Cubs, made a homer in his first big league game. John McGraw (left above), Washington, made four hits in four times up, leading the lead in his fight with George Sisler for the first base job. John McGraw (right above) surprised the fans by appearing in full uniform, while Andy Cohen (below) outshone Rogers Hornsby.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Three big league ball players who opened the 1928 season with a bang were Fred Maguire of the Cubs, George Sisler of the Browns, and Judge of the Senators veteran first sacker and the young and spectacular Andy Cohen of the Giants.

Playing his first regular big league game Maguire hit what was probably the first home run of the season as the Cubs opened against Cincinnati. It saved them from a shutout. Maguire is the lad of 27 who was brought up from the Toledo club to fill the shoes of Sparky Adams who was traded to the Pirates.

In the Senators' opening game against the Red Sox, Judge made four hits in four times up thus starting off perfectly in his attempt to hold his

Terrific Hitting Features Major Leagues Yesterday

(By The Associated Press.) An outburst of terrific hitting has cropped out in the major leagues taking a big toll of pitching material on all the clubs with few exceptions. Fifteen home runs, including one off the bludgeon of the mighty Babe Ruth figured in the batting orgy yesterday.

Opening the home season at Pittsburgh, the Cardinals forced the Pirates to walk their own plank by the count of 13 to 10 before a crowd of 30,000. The National League champions called upon 21 players, seven of whom were pitchers. St. Louis gathered 17 hits against 14 made by the Corsairs off three Cards' twirlers.

The sparkling pitching feat of the day however was furnished by Sheriff Blake of the Cubs who put the manacles on the Reds by allowing two men only taps, singles by Purdy and Ford. Not a redleg reached first base while Chicago blazed but with the big-gest hitting capital thus far in the campaign by thumping three opposing titles by appearing in full uniform when his team took the field, something Jawh has not been accustomed to do in recent years.

hurlers for 21 hits for a 13 to 0 decision.

Hack Wilson, star outfielder who returned to the game after a brief absence due to an injury, led the Cubs attack with two home runs, a double and a single for a perfect day at bat.

Acting Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Braves piloted his warriors through a 9 to 8 victory in a ten inning thriller with the Giants. Hornsby crossed the plate with the tying run in the ninth and in the tenth slashed a single with a man on third and two out to save the day for Boston. The Braves hammered Cantwell and Paulkner for 16 hits against nine credited to the McGrawmen off the combined efforts of Genewich and Brandt.

The Robins ripped out with three home runs, one each for Elliott, Dressler and Herman, but they took the small end of a 9 to 5 score against the Phillies. The Quakers put the game away in the sixth inning when Jumbo Elliott was chased to the showers during a seven run rally. Leach, whose triple in the first scored a Philly, cracked a homer in the seventh with one on base.

Ruth entertained Boston fans and Patrols' Day by propelling homer No. 1 of 1928 into the right field bleachers in the fifth inning of the Yankees' second game with the Red Sox. The Bambino had gone hitless in a morning contest which the Hose won 7 to 6 although outplayed by the Hugoburns 16 to 10. It was the first defeat for the world's champions this year. But the New Yorkers went after the after-

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing, or reputation of any individual, firm, concern, or corporation that may appear in the columns of the Pampa Daily News will be gladly corrected when called to the attention of the editor. PEOPLE IN GENERAL who read of radio amateurs and their part in following disasters and polar flights little realize the important place of these volunteers in world affairs.

The amateurs regard their work highly, and guard its reputation as do amateur athletes. They have relay leagues and efficient means of getting messages around the world. Some of the most brilliant radio and telegraph work in recent years has been that of the "hams" tinkering away in their dinky shops in the small hours of the morning.

And when The Bremen landed on the bleak island far from communication facilities, it was an amateur who soon thereafter picked up the first message broadcast after being relayed by dog team to another outpost. Stewart Davis, 18-year-old Manchester, N. H., amateur radio operator, listening from his station 1H-A has the distinction of being the first to learn and give out the news of the safe landing of the German plane. Relayed by him to the Associated Press, the message was soon on the wires and being transmitted to the Pampa Daily News and hundreds of other A. P. papers.

Pampa has several amateur operators as efficient as Davis, and they have reached out into foreign countries lately with their small sets. Who knows but that they too will some time have a similar opportunity to be of service to the world?

Texas Foreign Trade

Houston is much in the news in connection with the national Democratic convention, but another meeting to be held April 25, is also of importance to that city and the entire state.

We refer to the National Foreign Trade convention, last year held in Detroit. Distant places on the seven seas will send delegates, and Texas' growing place in international commerce will be well advertised through the three-day session.

A large Latin-American delegation will be present—a fact of special importance at this time. One of the principal addresses will be by His Excellency Senor Don Carlos G. Davila, Chilean Ambassador to the United States. South and Central America are to be important markets for United States products, and European countries are competing strongly for the business.

Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, and San Antonio are doing great work in landing the biggest conventions the world affords.

One question we hesitate to ask is, should we tour Mexico next July, how much money would our friends raise if we should be held for ransom?

Demoralizing the Traffic

TWINKLES

Sometimes it takes the gal-lows to convince some people that it is a "beautiful world". Even a dying gangster can utter words of wisdom.

Civic note: Pampa needs action on the airport, C. of C. membership drive, band support, road building, and school building for next fall.

The unkindest cut we ever knew Uncle Sam to make was sending two men to prison for two years each because they made false statements of their income to deceive their all-mony-wives.

Too many self-expressionists misquote the other fellow.

If you are tired of "Now is the time for..." etc., try your type writer on the name of a firm of Swedish engineers. The cognomen goes something like this: Svenska Riamant-bergborrningsaktietmvezliio.

Bad water drove France and Italy to liquor, but West Texans have no such excuse.

PRESS FORUM

Pampa News: Of course, some of the newcomers haven't seen all kinds of Panhandle weather, but it does seem unnecessary to rehearse the whole repertoire at this time of year.

Those who live in the Panhandle must do as the Panhandlers do. They must take their weather as it comes. If it's sandy, let the newcomer learn to keep his mouth shut; if it's windy, let him learn to breathe between gusts; if it's wet, let him learn to rejoice with the stock men; if it's dry, let him observe how the old-timers accept it. They simply say, "If rain comes in two weeks we're all right". At the end of each two weeks, if the rain still delays, they move up their date an additional fortnight. By this means they get through a long dry spell with their courage unabated. It takes an adaptable mind to make a good citizen anywhere. One who can't change his preconceived notions of what ought to be, or can't accommodate his cheerfulness to sudden changes in temperature, should stay where he can live the sheltered life and not become involved in the cross-purposes of strange conditions. But those who never tackle the shifting currents of life, who refuse to come to grips with obstacles, are not the sort who build countries and erect strong characters. Availing men are those who refuse to become terrified by the unaccustomed, who decline surrender to opposition which

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic—Jesus and the Home Scripture Lesson—Mark 10:2-9, 13-16

1. And there came unto him Pharisees, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? trying him.

2. And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you?

3. And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorce, and it put her away.

4. And Jesus said unto him, For your hardness of heart he wrote you this commandment.

5. But from the beginning of the creation, Male and female made he them.

6. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife; and they two shall become one flesh; so that they are no more two but one flesh.

7. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.

8. And they were bringing unto him little children, that he should touch them; and the disciples rebuked them.

9. But when Jesus saw it, he was moved with indignation, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me; forbid them not; for to such becometh the kingdom of God.

10. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein.

11. And he took them in his arms, and blessed them, laying his hands upon them.

12. In March, A. D. 30, the last three months of Christ's ministry. Place—Some town of Perea, the country east of the Jordan.

Golden Text—Honor thy father and thy mother (which is the first commandment with promise), Eph. 6:2.

Introduction

At this point Mark omits much which is recorded by Luke and John, including Christ's visit to Jerusalem at the Feast of Tabernacles when he opened the eyes of a man born blind, the sending out of the seventy missionaries, a second visit to Jerusalem at the Feast of Dedication, a tour in Perea, the raising of Lazarus from the dead, the determination of the Sanhedrin to put Christ to death, and his retirement northward into Samaria. After he had remained quietly in that region for a few weeks, he set out on his final journey to Jerusalem, not traveling directly south, but traversing Perea, the country east of the Jordan. It was there that our lesson took place, as the Saviour was teaching the crowds that flocked to him.

Is Divorce Ever Right? v. 2.

"Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? The Pharisees had criticized Christ on many occasions and openly, but here they are adopting new tactics, and seeking to embroil him with one of the two schools of Jewish theologians which were at variance on this point, those of Hillel and Shammai, the former holding that a man could divorce his wife for any dislike, and the latter that he could divorce her only for unfaithfulness. (Matt. 5: 31, 32), Christ had sided with the second party, and perhaps the questioners knew of this stand, and merely sought greater publicity for it in order to add to the number of his foes Herod Antipas, in whose territory Christ was at the time, was a notorious adulterer, and the Pharisees probably wished to make Christ come out openly as an accuser of him.

Marriage a Supreme Obligation vs. 7-11

"For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother." The "cause" is the relation between man and woman ordained by God. This relation between husband and wife precedes and makes possible fatherhood and motherhood; because it stands back of those sacred relations, it is even more sacred than they, and is to be regarded before one's filial duties, though not at all to the neglect of them. Fathers and mothers would be the first thus to instruct their children. "And shall cleave to his wife." This is the essential thing; the leaving of father and mother is to be only so far as is necessary in order to give due affection and care to one's wife and children. This is to be no mere duty-thing but is to be a cleaving, that is, a warm loving union, of heart and life. That is the true marriage, of which the free-and-easy divorces so common today and kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein." Christ and his kingdom are to be received trustfully, or not at all. The one great essential of childhood which men and women are to receive in becoming Christians is trustfulness. "The age of childhood is, above everything else, the age of trust. Dependent upon its elder, for everything, the whole nature of the child is keyed to trust in lives, and by means of trust it finds all its means of existence. There is no picture of perfect and simple and implicit trust discoverable in all the world comparable to the picture of the infant lying peacefully and serenely on its mother's bosom." Thus we are to go to Christ and receive from him salvation and eternal life, doing nothing but receive and trusting him for all the rest.

Christ-Rewards Parental Faithfulness v. 16.

"And he took them in his arms, and blessed them, laying his hands upon them." Christ was asked only to lay his hands upon them; but, as always he did more than he was asked to do he took them up in his arms, one after the other, and gave each of the dear little ones a loving embrace as well as his blessing. This is one of the sweetest pictures in all the Bible.

They brought the children to Jesus, not that they should touch him, but that he should touch them. Parents bring your children to Jesus!

Special Lessons

"The greatest business of any generation of people is the education of its children. Before this all other enterprises and obligations must give way, no matter what their importance. It is at this point that civilization succeeds or fails."

2. Christianity is essentially a religion of ideal family life. It hopes to solve the world's ills, not by external regulations, but by bringing all men into a new family life.

3. "So soon as our children become of years capable of understanding the things of God, we endeavor to bring them to Christ by teaching them the truth. Hence our Sabbath schools hence the use of the Bible and family prayer, and catechizing at home. Any who shall say, 'Do not teach your children; they will be converted in God's own time, if it be his purpose; therefore leave them to run wild in the streets,' will certainly both sin against the child and the Lord Jesus. We might as well say, 'If that piece of ground is to grow a harvest, it will do so if it be God's good pleasure; therefore leave it, and let the weeds spring up and cover it; do not endeavor for a moment to kill the weeds, or sow the good seed!'"—C. H. Spurgeon.

Curves are coming back again, says a fashion expert. Guess it will be safe one of these days to take home a nice, red beefsteak.

The University of Chicago has abolished the rule that college parties must end at 1 a. m., and now two parties each year can be held as long as desired. Two parties all year—that is, two semesters.

Houston, Texas, is preparing to bring man tons of salt from beds far below the earth's surface, says a dispatch. Either they're going to salt the Democrats' tails down there, or use it to take with what they say.

ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

The summer she is 14, Sally Ford is "fanned out" to Clem Carson and leaves the state orphanage, the only home she has known from the time she was four. At the farm she meets David Nash, athlete and university student, waiting there during the summer. When Carson makes insulting remarks about their friendship, David strikes him a terrible blow, and not knowing then whether the man is dead or alive, Sally and David flee.

They join a carnival, David as cook's helper and Sally in a sideshow disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

Nita, the Hula dancer, becomes infatuated with David and threatens Sally with exposure to the police for the Carson affair if she doesn't keep "hand-off" David. Sally hears they are going next to Capital City, where she spent so many years in the orphanage. She tells David they must run away. David promises to meet her that night after the train is loaded in talking things over with her. They stroll in a clump of trees and sit down to talk. David takes her in his arms and for the first time they confess their love for each other. She tells him the news of her mother which Mrs. Bybee uncovers for her in Stanton. The woman who had left her at the Home was not her mother, according to Mrs. Bybee's information, but was a maid hired to take the baby from the mother in New York and disappear.

As they sit there, they are startled to hear Nita's voice in the darkness somewhere near them. "Steve! I'm warning you, if you double-cross me I'll cut your heart out, fifty-fifty!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

The storm broke with such sudden and devastating fury that the performers in the Palace of Wonders tent had little time to obey the "white noise" frantic bellow of warning.

The terrified audience milled like stamped cattle, choking up both exits of the tent, that, leading out into the midway, and the flap at the back of the tent through which performers passed in and out between shows. At each exit the fear-crazed carnival visitors were assaulted by a dazing impact of wind and hail and rain, driven back into the temporary shelter of the tent.

Sally was fighting her way toward the "alley" exit, her frail, small body hurling itself futilely against men who had lost all thought of civility, knew only that death threatened.

The region was notorious for its cyclones, and the horror of such a calamity was stamped on every pallid face. Children screamed, women shrieked for help, called frantically for their offspring separated from them in that mad rush for its exit.

Sally had almost won to the alley exit when she remembered "Pitty Sing!" the midjet, tiny, helpless Miss Tanner who was paying her to carry her to and from the tent, who must ever now be covering in her baby-char, unable even to reach the ground without assistance.

It was not quite so hard to push her way back into the center of the tent, crazed men and women offered little resistance to anyone who was so foolish as to tempt death under a collapsed tent.

She had almost reached the midjet's platform when she suddenly felt herself lifted into a pair of strong arms, swung high above the hands of the last of the crowd that was battling its way to the exits. Her cry was instinctive, unreasoning, direct from her "David! Oh, David!"

A mocking laugh answered her and she squirmed in the man's arms so that she could see his face. It was not David at all, but the man whom "Budd" had called "Van." His face was laughing, gay, mocking, untouched by the shameful pallor of fear; exultant, rather, in the excitement of the storm. His dark eyes were wide, shining even through the fitful darkness made by the flickering of the crazily swinging gas jets.

"Isn't it glorious?" he challenged her, above the uproar of wind and hail and the frightened animal sounds of human beings in fear of death.

"I've got find the midjet—" "Pitty Sing!" she shouted, struggling frantically to release herself.

The charming barker has rescued her," Van shouted. "I was afraid some officious ass had snatched me of the pleasure of rescuing you. I've waited all day—"

But his sentence was broken in two by the long-threatened collapse of the tent. A center-pole struck him a glancing blow, knocking him flat, and Sally with him.

"For what seemed like hours of nightmare she struggled to release herself from the steel-like clasp of his arm and the smothering embrace of the rain-sodden canvas. To add to the horror, rain fell heavily upon the canvas that held them pinned helplessly to the earth; had pelted her flesh pittingly even through the dubious protection of the canvas; and every moment they were in mortal danger of being trampled to death by the feet of fleeing carnival visitors, who had been clear of the tent when it had collapsed.

"Don't—struggle," came that mocking voice, pausing a little with the effort of speaking under the smothering of canvas. "Lie—still. I'll hold up—the canvas—so you—can breathe. Shield your face—with your—arms. Sorry—I muffed—the role—of rescuer—of damsel—in distress."

"Oh, hush!" Sally cried angrily, but doing her best to obey him. She crooked an arm over her face, so that she had no longer punished it, and she relaxed as much as possible, her head on Van's shoulder, her feet pushing futilely at the sodden mass of canvas that weighted them down. Van's left hand was outspread, just above her face holding the dripping cloth high enough above her nose to permit her to breathe in some degree of comfort.

"Better," he asked, glancing sidelong at all in his voice, and only a mocking sort of anxiety. "We'll be safe enough here until the tent is raised unless someone steps on us. And by this time your charming employer, the redoubtable Pop Bybee, has of course assembled his roustabouts to raise the tent in the expectation of finding buried treasure—ostrich men, midjets, and Turkish harem girls who read crystals."

"Aren't you ever serious? Aren't you frightened?" Sally gasped.

"Serious? Well, hardly ever!" the man chuckled. "Frightened? Frequently! But I am so appreciative of this opportunity to be alone with you that I could hardly submit with you to the extent of being frightened at the means which accomplished it."

"Oh, I wonder what happened to—everybody!" Sally began to shiver with sob.

"To—David?" Van's mocking voice came strangely out of the darkness. "Lucky David, wherever he is now, that your first thought should go to him, David and Sally! How do you like 'play-acting,' Sally Ford?"

The terror which the menace of violent death had held for her now seemed a pallid, weak thing, beside the heart-stopping emotion which the New Yorker's mocking, amused voice uttering her real name, called after being her heart jerked instinctively from the comfort of his arm. Squirming away from him, under the sodden blanket of canvas, she carried this light little ball of agony, her face cupped in her hands. "So that's why you bothered me!" she cried, her voice muffled by her fingers. "You're a detective, you know all the time; you were going to take me to jail! Oh, you—Oh! David, David!"

"Listen, you little idiot!" Van's voice came sharply, bereft of its mocking note for once. "I'm not a detective! Good heavens! Do I look like one? I've always understood that they have enormous feet and wear denties and talk out of the corner of their mouths." Mockery was creeping back. "Did you think that a poor little tyke like you was worth sending to New York for a detective to bay at your heels like a bloodhound? I merely overheard the little Betty's keen penetration of your disguise. And I took the trouble to inquire casually of the governor this evening just who—anybody—Sally Ford might be—"

"Then you gave me away—David and me!" she accused him, shuddering with sob.

"Not at all. How it does pain me for you to persist in misunderstanding me!" he gave nothing away—absolutely nothing! I merely found out that David Nash and Sally Ford are fugitives from justice, wanted on real or serious charges. After making the acquaintance of "Princess Lalla," I might add that I don't believe a word of the silly story. Besides, I have your own word for it—"and he laughed—"that you are not that kind of a girl." As a matter of fact—oh! We're about to be rescued. Sally Ford! I hear the 'heave-ho' of stalwart black boys.

And the storm is over, except for a gentle, lady-like rain."

It was not till he mentioned the blessed fact that Sally realized that the storm was indeed over. The only sound, besides the sough of the "white noise" engaging in raising the collapsed tent, was the patter of rain upon the canvas which still weighted down her small, cold body, as wet as if she had been swimming.

Struggling to a sitting position under the already moving mass of canvas the New Yorker cupped his hands about his mouth and shouted. "Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!" in an aside to Sally he chuckled. "What does one shout under the circumstances—or rather, under the canvas of a collapsed carnival tent?"

Sally managed a weak little laugh. "One shouts, 'Hey, rube!'" she told him.

And his stentorian "Hey, rube!" struggled up through layers of dripping canvas, bringing speedily called for the submerged "rube" and performer. When at last the tent was raised, Sally walked out, Van's arm still about her shivering, soaked body, so find apparently the entire carnival force huddled in the rain to welcome her, drawn by that faithful cry of "Hey, rube!"

Jan, the giant, was there, sad-eyed but smiling. "Pitty Sing" perched on one of his shoulders. Nita, the hula midjet, was there. "The girl nobody can lift" was there, too, her right arm in splints; a deep gash down her pale cheek; Eddie Cobb, who they told her as they chorused their welcome, had been crying like a baby as he searched for her through the wreck of the carnival, was clasping a drenched Kewpie doll to his breast, apparently the sole survivor of his gambling wheel stock.

Pop and Mrs. Bybee were there, Mrs. Bybee clad only in a black steen petticoat and a red sweater. And in spite of his heavy loss from the fury of the storm Pop was smiling, his bright blue eyes twinkling a welcome. But—Sally's eyes roved from face to face, confidently at first, grateful for their friendliness, then widening with alarm. For David was not there.

"Where's David?" she cried, then her voice growing shrill and frantic, she screamed at them. "Where's David? Tell me! He's hurt—dead? Tell me!" She broke away from Van, ran to Pop Bybee and tugged with her little blue-white hands washed free of their brown make-up, at his wet coat.

"Reckon he's safe and sound in the privilege car," Bybee reassured her, but his blue eyes avoided hers, pitying in the thought.

"Was anyone killed in the storm?" Tell me!" she insisted, her blueish lip twisting into a piteous loop of pain.

"We can't find Nita nowhere," Babe the fat girl, hurried out, her eyes wide with childish love of excitement. "We thought she was buried under a tent but they've got all the tents up now and she ain't nowhere."

unhappily, "that dry clothes are indicated for Princess Lalla. May I escort you to your tent?" and he bowed with mocking ceremony before her.

"He saved my life," Sally acknowledged suddenly, half-anxiously, for she remembered with childish unreasonableness the fact that it had been this mocking, insolent stranger, this "rube" from New York, not David, who had saved her.

An hour later when she was uneasily asleep in her berth in the show train whose sleeping cars had been pressed into service in lieu of the soaked cars in the great tents, a sudden uproar—bizarre voices shouting and cursing—shook her into consciousness. Broken sentences flung out by angry men. Pop Bybee's voice easily distinguished among them, told her what had happened.

"Every damn seat gone—Payroll gone—Safe cracked—Told you you was a fool to take in them two lobs that was already wanted by the police. That Dave was the best it made a clean-up—(To Be Continued)

Junior Class Prophecy

Once while sleeping in a nice soft bed,
 After eating two pieces of pie,
 I'll tell you a strange dream I had—
 The future of my classmates gone by.
 I saw them all one by one
 Their success and their failure to sad,
 There were none of them good as good could be—
 But there were none of them very bad.
 Tommie Robinson sat with high cocked hat—
 A missionary he'd grown to be,
 While sitting by his side with holy face—
 Was our football star, Archie Lee.
 Bob Kahl was the president of the home for blind mice;
 And Claudine Pope worked at this too—
 Virginia Faulkner, Doris Hollingsworth, and Maxine Scott were models on Fifth avenue.
 "Skeet" Roberts and Myrtle were getting on fine;
 Running a restaurant by day and by night.
 Their chief cooks were Fern Hughey
 and Marguerite Noel,
 Mary Yoder washed dishes with all her might.
 Dorothy Mullen was a teacher in a far-away school,
 Her brother, Bob, was a rich man, by the way.
 His chief trouble was quarreling with Vernon Lawrence—
 For the hand of Miss Mary Nell May.
 Calling hogs on a farm
 Morgan's fate,
 While his friend, Albert Doucette was a teacher,
 But one of the strongest sights in my dream—
 Was Vernon Culverhouse, a preacher!
 Once when traveling in this strange trance,
 I beheld an artist painting.
 It was no other than Cornelia Barrett,
 And believe me, I came near fainting;
 The Murry twins were movie stars,
 Lewis Folselman a congressman became,
 Donald Zimmerman too was a member of the House—
 And Harold Holmes a speaker of fame,
 Joan Leath, Elizabeth Bolton and fair

LEFORS ITEMS

The Williams No. 1, half a mile south of the Tulsa cafe, has every ear mark of being a big producer. The well in the north edge of town is about ready to resume work with standard tools.
 Williams No. 2 a mile southwest of LeFors, is rapidly going down with the big rotary belonging to Bill Collins, who is an active contractor in the drilling campaign in and around LeFors.
 A new location was made by Marland this week two miles north of LeFors near the Roxana and Magnolia wells.
 S. A. McDaniels of Shawnee, Okla. passed through LeFors this week, stopping for a few hours to visit relatives.
 Amadee
 Were singing in some cabaret.
 While Ralph and Lafayette were now in a band.
 Directed by Elmer Hardin they say.
 Alas Jones Seitz was a failure indeed.
 The cause was—too sleepy to work.
 Retha Lester, a typist grew to be.
 Forrest Rupp was an insignificant clerk.
 Troy Maness was a coach in a school of some rep.
 Our old school of Pampa, I couldn't forget.
 While Ruth Noel, Maxine McKinney and Gus Greene furnished the pep.
 For they'd never passed English yet.
 I dreamed of a house with morning glory vines twining around the door.
 And inside in the kitchen two girls were at work—
 Era Johnson and Mildred Mason scrubbing the floor.
 Melba Graham was a society leader of rank.
 And Beth Blythe's fortune grows.
 Her chief money-making device.
 Was designing Mary Patton's and Mark Patton's dresses.
 Robert Hollingsworth married Bebe Daniels of movie star fame.
 Bruce Cash who became an onion farmer.
 While Dee Blythe with optimistic predicts weather—fair and warmer.
 Addie Bradford, tall and slender,
 A dutiful housewife of the age,
 While Marguerite Pittman and Ruby Quest wrote ten-cent novels.
 Misses Zimmerman, Roberts, and Boney's trade
 Is a pie factory in a building of brick.
 Their chief trouble is that the pies they cook make Misses Hughey and Foster sick.
 Alma Gayler and Dorothy McKinney's newspaper stand
 Gave Harry Bettis some place to roam
 And poor little me, my future's left out for—
 I had to write this poem.
 —Catherine Vincent.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Caudill, a 7 1-2-pound baby girl April, Friday 13.
 Mrs. Reed of Durant, Okla., is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Caudill.
 Mrs. Georgia Wolfe, the postmistress, is occupying her new office. Her cancellations nearly doubled the first day in the new location.
 I. S. Jameson of Pampa has made extensive purchases in LeFors and will soon place some buildings here.

A leading supply house, it is understood, has purchased half a block on which to place buildings here.
 Many buildings are under construction, the largest of which is the Vic Wagner garage.
 The Literary and Scientific circle met at the home of Mrs. A. Carpenter Thursday at 2 p. m.
 A baseball team has been organized and is under the supervision of Chief Newasha and R. A. Nipper, both former big league players. The single men played the married men last Sunday, with the result 9 to 24 in favor of the married men.

 The Lefors confectionary is doing a good business with C. O. Bruffett in charge.
KIMES DENIES CHARGE
 (Special to the News.)
 BORGER, April 20—J. B. Kimes, arrested here Tuesday on a charge of bank robbery on a warrant from Kansas, was taken to Sedan yesterday to stand trial.

Before leaving Kimes made the following statement: "I was here in Borger at the time of the robbery of which I am accused, and can prove that I was at work in a local gasoline plant just because my name is Kimes I am being pushed."
GAS OFFICE TO BE MOVED
 The Central States Power and Light corporation, formerly the Pampa Gas company, will move into its new quarters adjoining the Pampa Daily News

May 1. Following that date all gas bills will be paid at the new office in the Pampa Daily News building.
 D. Farrar of Pawhuska, Okla., is the new manager of this company.
ROBBER MAKES BIG HAUL
 JACKSON, Miss., April 20—A lone, unmasked robber held up the cashier of the bank of Madison, at Madison station, 12 miles north of here today, secured cash estimated at $2,200 and escaped in an automobile.

HE WAS TOO SMART!

He Wasn't Cross-Eyed---Neither Was He Pigeon-Toed!

He looked like a polite young man, but inside of him he felt smart.
 'Tis a pity for one who looks all right to have it in him to act smart.
 A lady customer thought the young man at the Checking Counter had made a mistake—he had not but she thought so.
 And if the young man had behaved as well as he looked this lady would have had the right kind of explanation given her that would have kept her feeling friendly.

 This nice looking, smart young man was so full of himself that he answered brusquely and peevishly that he was right and she was wrong.
