Pampa Women to Seek 1930 Federated Club Convention at Dalhart Meeting Tomorrow

NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS ARE NEEDED

Annual Membership Drive of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Will Start Tomorrow

ENTIRE CITY SUPPORTS PLAN FOR INVITATION

Mrs. W. M. Craven to State Local Claims For Meeting

OFFICERS ARE CALLED TODAY

Big 3-Day Gathering Will Present Fine Program

Pampa club women will go to Dalhart tomorrow to attend the convention of the Seventh District Federated Women's clubs, and to tender an invitation to make Pampa the 1930 convention city. Mrs. W. M. Craven will make the invitation address.

A formal invitation to this city has been circulated here. It bears the signatures of the mayor, Chamber of Commerce, clubs, Panhandle Plains Historical society, local newspapers, churches, lodges, women's organizations, business men, schools, and other individuals and bodies.

Mrs. R. E. House, district chairman of citizenship, and Mrs. I. B. Hughey, district chairman of Americanization, left yesterday to attend a meeting of district officers in Dalhart today.

Other local women who will leave this afternoon or early tomorrow include: From El Progresso club, Mrs. Dave Pope, president; Mrs. W. M. Craven, delegate; Mrs. G. C. Walstead, alternate.

From Child Study club, Mrs. C. T. Hankapillar, president; Mrs. B. E. Finley, delegate; Mrs. James Todd, Jr., alternate.

From Wayside club, Mrs. L. R. Taylor, president; Mrs. E. W. Hogen, delegate; Mrs. I. B. Hughey, alternate.

From Coterie club, Mrs. T. Eller, president.

Mrs. V. E. Fathere, president of the Twentieth Century club and county chairman of tree planting, will be another Pampa woman in attendance.

The Dalhart meeting will be held on April 24, 25, and 26. A wonderful program has been arranged by Mrs. F. T. Collins, president, and her committees. The session will open at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Scores of interesting things await the two hundred women expected to attend. Nearly every club and civic subject will be discussed. Entertainment, banquets, teas, automobile rides, and contests are of the lengthy program.

Reports from Dalhart indicate that every detail has been worked out to insure the enjoyment and entertainment of the visitors.

Mrs. A. Q. Bonner, general chairman of the clubs of Dalhart, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago, has just returned from the sanitarium, where she has recovered from the injury. Mrs. George Walker, assistant general chairman, has been rendering valuable assistance to Mrs. Bonner in her absence from Dalhart.

Due to the absence of C. H. Walker from the city during the week, P. B. Farbaugh, president of the chamber of commerce is to deliver the welcome address from the business men of Dalhart on the program of president's evening, Wednesday, 8:30 p. m. at the high school building.

One of the many features of the convention will be the "Rainbow Dinner" at 6 p. m. in the basement of the First Baptist church, sponsored by the Dalhart chamber of commerce. Elaborate preparations and decorative schemes are being worked out with the menu, which will insure an enjoyable time at the dinner.

Mrs. L. D. Cole, of Amarillo, is scheduled to preside at this dinner.

An extra feature of the convention is an automobile ride over the city and to different points of interest surrounding Dalhart, which has been arranged by the business men for Wednesday afternoon.

Cadet Flyer Killed In Air Collision at Kelly Field Today

In Globe Race
Dashes by land, sea and air in a race against time around the world have established for Toshiro Aiki, a Japanese, what is believed to be a record for half the distance. Here he is shown at Hadley Field, N. Y., after traveling across the continent in air mail planes. He then sailed for Europe to dash across Russia and Siberia and back to Tokio, his starting point.

Pilot of Other Plane Uses Parachute and Lands Safely From Disabled Machine.

SAN ANTONIO, April 23.—(P)—Cadet James Scott Henderson of Geesie Ind., was killed here today when his plane collided with another plane 9000 feet in the air and plunged to earth.

Cadet Douglas M. Swisher, a classmate of the dead flyer, who occupied the second plane in the collision, leaped to safety in his parachute after falling almost 3,000 feet with his disabled plane. Henderson's parents live in Seattle.

Both flyers were members of the advanced flying school at Kelly field and were engaged in their first high altitude pursuit maneuvers with a number of other planes. Henderson was flying at an altitude of 10,000 feet with formation simulating an attack on Swisher's formation, which was 1,000 feet below them.

When the upper formation dove to make its attack, Henderson's plane crashed into Swisher's, disabling both machines. Both of Henderson's right wings were torn away and his plane swooped toward the ground in erratic plunges. Henderson was apparently killed instantly in the crash or rendered unconscious as observers detected no move on his part to use his parachute.

In the meantime Swisher's plane lost its right upper wing and plunged toward the earth so rapidly that the cadet was unable to free himself from it until he had dropped 3,000 feet. Observers estimated that Henderson's plane was traveling 175 miles an hour at the moment of impact. It was the highest collision Kelly field student have ever had.

To Complete Campaign Before Coming of Briggs

PART OF QUOTA ALREADY PAID

Organization Record in 1927 Is One of Achievement

With the determination to raise this year's budget of $14,000 before the coming of George W. Briggs of Eastland as new manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, directors and members will launch a membership drive tomorrow morning. A goal of 600 members has been set.

The soliciting committee will begin its work tomorrow following a joint breakfast at the New Schneider hotel at 7:30 a. m. J. H. Lavender, I captain of one team and Scott Baroz, of another.

The drive will be concluded with a general membership banquet Friday evening.

Of this year's quota, about $3,000 has been contributed by a few local men to finance activities from January 1 to the present time, and pay off all current indebtedness. It is desired that the new manager take over his work without having financial worries, and that he may give his attention to the Chamber of Commerce program.

Much to Do

Work of the fiscal year will be highly important to this city. It is believed, since the building of the Kel railroad, paving of the highways, and other improvements will further centralize sectional interest in Pampa. The district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the annual meeting of the Panhandle Press association next year are among the important regional meetings to be held here. The Chamber of Commerce will bear the burden of their entertainment.

At the next year, the B. C. D. tax supported plan will be inaugurated under the new city charter.

Activities of the Chamber of Commerce since January 1, 1927 have included the following:

1. Sponsored many social meetings and membership gatherings.
 2. Built and maintained oil field roads.
 3. Encouraged oil industries and supply houses to locate here.
 4. Helped to organize Rotary and Lions clubs.
 5. Brought about organization of Retail Merchants' association.
 6. Helped to bring about new city charter and city manager form of government.
 7. Assisted in organization of Pampa hospital.
 8. Welcomed hundreds of visitors and provided transportation, information, and inspiration about Pampa.
 9. Organized to put over Kell railroad drive.
 10. Helped bring county seat to Pampa.
 11. Worked to pass $150,000 school bond issue.
 12. Sponsored election to pass $355,000 in water, sewer, paving, and refunding bonds.
 13. Sponsored successful road bond election of $400,000.
 14. Obtained proposition for municipal airport.
 15. Secured enlarged post office facilities.
 16. Sought white way system.
 17. Increased fire fighting facilities with reduction in key rate.
 18. Took creditable county exhibit to Tri-State fair.
 19. Secured district convention of West Texas Chamber of Commerce.
 20. Obtained 125 members for West Texas Chamber of Commerce.
 21. Obtained action on increased telephone facilities.
 22. Urged payment of poll taxes.
 23. Organized Automobile club.
- Much Organizing
24. Sponsored Boy Scout work.
 25. Helped organize Red Cross nursing service.
 26. Helped form Associated Charities and conduct drive.

KISS BABIES, PRAISE COOKING AND CROPS, IS HIS PLATFORM

THROCKMORTON, April 23.—Jeff Fowler is a hill-billy. He has farmed with a bull-tongue plow and used to outrun the dogs on Sunday mornings to get from having his face washed.

"He has worked right smart around a molasses mill, taught school and practiced law, and now he wants to be county attorney fro Throckmorton county, Texas.

Sometimes election ballyhoo in this Lone Star state is steel-jacketed. Ways of running for office down here often are unconventional. But now Throckmorton has a candidate who openly avows he will "spend the time between now and election kissing babies, complimenting the ladies on their cooking and bragging on the old man's crop."

How Jeff Tells It

Jeff Fowler, in his signed announcement, says:

"Having been strongly solicited, by my wife, I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of county attorney. I shall be opposed in this race by two of your best known citizens, Hon. B. F. Reynolds and Mr. James F. Wright. Concerning them, I shall have nothing to say except that they are upright and honorable men deserving of your confidence and support.

"As for myself, I am an Arkansas Hill-Billy, born and raised in the Ozark mountains. Outran the dogs on Sunday morning to keep from having my face washed—did my sparring barefooted—never saw a train until I was 15 and was almost grown before I learned that Republicans walked on their hind-feet like people.

Hell Ain't Forty Feet

"Have farmed with a bull-tongue plow—taught school—practiced law—and am a first-class mechanic, having worked a right smart around a molasses mill. Came to Texas two years ago, and married the finest little girl in Throckmorton county.

"I want the office because I think I can make a living out of it and will promise, if elected, to try and nake thieves and bootleggers think hell ain't 40 feet from the courthouse.

INSPECTOR HAS SUGGESTION IN STATE REPORT

Recommendations Are Received by Local Officers

GRADE ROOMS OVER-CROWDED

Praise Is Given for Good Work Seen in Pampa

A building program to provide space and convenience for Pampa's rapidly expanding school system, and praise for what already has been done are contained in the report of Carrie Bell Strett, supervisor for the state department of education, who recently studied the local schools.

Minimum requirements, which must be met if the schools are to be properly certified by the state department, are stated as follows, recommending:

1. That, in order to provide suitable working conditions for the coming year, the citizens of Pampa seriously consider the necessity of building two ward buildings for the lower grades and an auditorium and gymnasium for the high school.
2. That a sufficient number of teachers be added so that no grade teacher will be required to supervise more than forty pupils in her home room.
3. That the superintendent be relieved of all class work and the principal of at least half of his. In a school of the size of the one at Pampa, the time of these two officials should be spent on supervisory and executive work; otherwise they are merely high salary teachers, with very little time for their real duties.
4. That lockers be provided for high school pupils.
5. That the home economics department be taken out of the basement and placed in a well-equipped cottage. As long as the department is located in the basement, where it is impossible for it to be kept clean, much less attractive, the school board need not expect the subject to be a popular one.
6. That the high school and the elementary grade rooms be provided with needed maps, charts, globes, laboratory apparatus, and library books. In the high school library more attention should be given to broadening the field of literature as well as purchasing multiple copies of the most popular books.
7. That mention be made of the remarkable growth in the Pampa school system and of the commendable manner in which the needs of the schools have been met so far. Despite the almost bewildering increase in scholastics during the past two years, the citizens have provided for them in a magnificent way, and it is believed that they will do even more in the near future.
8. That merited praise be given for the school organization, the good behavior of the pupils, and the character of much of the work observed.
9. That application be made for credit in the chemistry and commercial arts.

Coal Hearing Starts Today

Lower Rates Asked in Plainview Session

by Dealers

PLAINVIEW, April 23.—(P)—With witnesses from 25 or more Panhandle-plains towns expected to take the stand on interstate commerce commission hearing on coal freight rates from New Mexico into Northwest Texas got underway here today before Examiner J. E. Smith.

The hearing is expected to continue through today and tomorrow, with the possibility that some testimony will be taken Wednesday.

In the form of an intervention, the hearing is based upon the case styled Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Co. Inc., et al, versus the Atchinson-Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Co., in which coal dealers of this section, backed by chambers of commerce, seek lower rates on coal shipped from points in New Mexico to West Texas. The hearing climaxes a five-year campaign.

Nine Couples in Marathon Dance at Press Time Today

At press time today, nine couples remained in the marathon dance at the Pla-Mor auditorium. The dance started this morning at 3 o'clock with 25 couples entered. At 6 o'clock the entries had dwindled to ten couples and one dropped out during the morning.

The contestants are given a five minute rest each hour and are fed on the floor while dancing. Music is furnished by Clarence Seips and his Illinoisians, and a victrola.

The contest will end tonight with a big dance. The winner of the marathon will be given a cash prize of $25.

Harry Stuart is floor manager and has kept busy since the beginning of the long grind. He is time-keeper, chief, and musician in the absence of the orchestra.

Those still remaining in the race are Miss Crystal Burris and Hub Burrows, Miss Sylvia Finley and Bill Elston, Miss Rose Lang and Joe Deswell, Miss Sallie Schafer and Lee Larsh, Miss Lucille Johnson and J. C. Willis, Miss Patsy Wehrman and Bill Baker, and Miss Esther Myers and "Hi."

Ford Plane Is Off to Greenly Island

SEVEN ISLANDS, Que., April 23.—(P)—By the Canadian Press—The Ford relief plane hopped off from Seven Islands for Greenly Island at 5:10 this morning.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 23.—(P)—Clarence D. Chamberlin took off for Lawe St. Agnes, Que. from train yard field at 10:05 this morning, accompanied himself and Charles Levine after their trans-Atlantic flight from this country to Germany.

Airplane Damaged While Taking Off

The proposed air circus here yesterday afternoon came to a sudden end when L-5, 5, four-passenger bi-plane piloted by Emmett Meyer, was damaged in attempting to take the air. He had two passengers in the ship at the time, but no one was injured, as the accident occurred before the ship had attained a high rate of speed.

Evidently striking a soft spot on the take off, the plane threw one tire and puncturing the other. One say was broken, the propeller smashed, and guy wires tangled. Only the presence of mind of the pilot saved the plane from turning over.

Mrs. J. R. Davis of Groom underwent a serious operation in the Pampa hospital yesterday.

Mrs. L. M. Barnett is seriously ill in the hospital.

PAMPA GETS NEXT MEETING OF DISTRICT LEGION POST

Dr. Webb and Other Local Legionnaires Attend Convention Held in Plainview.

Pampa was selected as the city for the next convention of the 18th district of the American Legion at the meeting of the 5th division held in Plainview Saturday and Sunday. The meeting will be held August 11 and 12 and the guest of honor will be Walter B. Hood, state commander of the American Legion of San Antonio.

It was through efforts of Commander R. A. Webb of the local post and the other delegates that Pampa was selected as the convention city. Floydada and Levelland were also in line for the next meeting place but after the first ballot retired in favor of Pampa.

Commander Hood spoke to the Legionnaires on their service in a community and the fact that they were still serving it in time of peace. Captain E. C. Nelson, Jr. of Amarillo delivered a tribute to the departed ex-service men.

R. A. Webb of Pampa made a talk that was greatly appreciated by the men present. In his invitation address Dr. Webb told of the growth of Pampa and convention facilities of the city.

The Pampa delegation included Commander R. A. Webb, Adjutant Frank Thomas, and Legionnaires L. F. Sills, C. F. McConnell, and T. E. Darby.

Young Business Man Dies Here Saturday Night

Julius Ralph Wiegman, 26 years old, died here at his home in East Pampa at 11:30 p. m. Saturday night after a short illness.

A graduate of Claude high school and former student of the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, Mr. Wiegman had been running an electric shop for a few months. He came here from a stay in California, where he was married. He leaves a son of two years, and his wife, also a brother Leonard associated with him, his parents, four brothers and one sister.

The body was sent to Claude Sunday for burial this afternoon.

In early childhood the young man lived at Groom, and later the family moved to Claude. He was a member of the Christian church.

Given Six Months For "Frightening" Young Girl Today

FORT WORTH, April 23.—(P)—Placing a rope about a girl's neck to frighten her may be permitted in some countries, but such an act today cost Itarranio Hermanes six months in jail.

Catherine Maldonado, said that her lover took her to his barn, put a rope around her neck and was attempting to hang her when her screams brought help. Hermanes said he was just trying to frighten the young woman.

Window Smashed at Cleaning Plant

Nothing was taken when persons last night crashed the large plate glass window in the De Luxe Cleaners plant on Russell street. A hole large enough for a person to crawl through was made in the window. The cash register was examined and when no cash was found nothing else was touched.

This is the second time the De Luxe Cleaners plant has been entered. The last time was in December when several hundred dollars worth of clothing was stolen.

PLANE CRASH FATAL

OSHOSH, Wis., April 23.—(P)—Robert Butzjaff, 29, was killed and his brother William, 35, and Henry Dunbar 29, were injured when their plane plunged from a high altitude yesterday and was wrecked.

SEEKS DOG'S OWNER

Chief of Police J. I. Downs reports that he has a very valuable bird dog in the pound and that it will have to be destroyed if not claimed this week. It was found running around the streets without a tag.

The pup is tan and about a year old. It seems to be somewhat of a pet and well bred. The chief says it would be too bad to destroy the valuable animal but he has no alternatives.

THAT DEVELOPMENT of growing West Texas is the major news feature of the day was asserted at the editor's session in Childress. A perusal of Panhandle newspapers supports this statement.

Down in Donley county the club women have merged their efforts through the organization of a county federation of clubs, according to the Clarendon News. Mrs. F. T. Collins of Amarillo, president of the seventh district at the meeting in which the organization was perfected. Such a body has been suggested for Gray county, and a county-wide meeting will be held soon. Editor Sam Braswell is also hopeful that oil will be found in the A-T test north of Clarendon, and is keeping his shop prepared to get out an "extra" on short notice.

The Tulia Herald reports that sixteen head of fine line bread registered Jerseys were recently brought into Swisher county, and that the county agent has orders for court head more—evidence of interest increased by the recent Panhandle-Plains dairy show. Adult Scout leaders of Tulia will have a six-week training course, classes to be held on Tuesday evenings of each week.

The Slaton Slatonite, recently purchased by Nunn and Roderick, announces an expansion program under the new ownership. Beginning May 15, the paper will be changed from a weekly to a semi-weekly. Consolidation with the Slaton Times last year and development of a large trade territory have made a better newspaper possible and desirable.

When it rains, it often pours figuratively, that's what happened recently in Wellington, where there were five fire alarms within 24 hours. Fire fighting is hard work, but fighting off motorists and spectators is harder—in Wellington and in Pampa. "Get out of the way," may be a request, entreaty, demand or violence. The world at large will laud the volunteer firemen quite adequately, but it just won't stay out of their way.

Building, but not booming is the way most of the Panhandle newspapers describe town activities. Substantial residences are going up everywhere, and most every town has two or three brick business buildings under construction. That is healthy growth.

The McLean municipal band is making many visits over the neighborhood and is attracting much favorable attention. Plans are under way to erect a band stand. A band is one of the best boosters a town may have, and McLean has a tax-supporting organization.

Tile flooring is being laid in the new Santa Fe depot in Panhandle, and the building will be finished in 20 days. The buff and brown structure is trimmed in white stone and roofed in green tile, says the Panhandle Herald. The architecture is of a semi-mission style.

The White Deer Review, is now coming from a press formerly printed in Panhandle housed in the White Deer shop. Much new equipment is being installed and "open house" will be held soon.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—If you do not vote for yourself, who does?

It may be that if you don't show up at the polls on election day some one else will vote fraudulently under your name. It often happens that way, especially in large cities where political machines flourish.

It is everyone's patriotic duty to vote. If you don't you're a while to try to get out a large city vote on election day, when 25 to 50 per cent of the qualified voters—sometimes more—often stay home.

One assertion seldom questioned in this country is that it is one of the points made in a recent interesting argument on the question of whether or not it is worth slacker and ought to be fined or something. All sorts of organizations have put on campaigns to get us all to use our ballots.

Williams Bennett Munro, professor of municipal government and chairman of the division of history at Harvard, took considerable issue with that idea in an article recently in the National Municipal Review. Simon Michelet, the president of the National Get-Out-the-Vote Club, came right back at him and the arguments of these two gentlemen are presented here for the slacker if he needs help in deciding whether to mend his ways.

Munro's strongest point was that it was better for a voter not to vote than to vote in a stupid manner. He says:

"What we really have in this country is not government by a majority of the people, but government by mere plurality of the politically interested. If we undertook to run corporate business on the principle that every stockholder is duty bound to come and vote whenever directors are elected, or routine questions decid, our whole system of corporate organization would break down. . . . To the extent that government is business (which it has become to a large extent in the cities) that analogy seems to hold."

He concludes that the "slacker vote" holds no menace except to political machines depending on a high percentage of dumb and propertyless voters. He suggests that "our uplift organizations, in their rabble rousing campaigns to 'harry the slackers to the polls,' are merely playing into the hands of the boss and doing some of his work for him."

Shortly after that, Michelet received a letter from Benjamin T. Affleck of the National Municipal League, opposing the get-out-the-vote movement and recommending reduction of the number of voters and boosting voting age from 21 to 25 in order to obtain a higher quality of voting.

Michelet has fired back at both Munro and Affleck, charging them with encouraging "the age-old danger of government by a self-appointed class." Who, he demands, are those persons to determine when a voter has voted intelligently, and when otherwise crooked politicians in Affleck's home bailiwick of Chicago have stuffed the boxes with just enough fake ballots to make up for the registered voters who didn't vote for themselves. In one precinct, some 300 ballots were marked for persons who never came to the polling booths. Which, Michelet demands in a letter to Affleck, are the best—300 legal votes or 300 illegal votes.

He proceeds to show how

Michelet then looks over the world and finds the only first-class country where universal suffrage is denied is Italy. He points out that the voting age in Germany is 20 years and that 80 per cent of German voters reach the polls.

One thing they all agree on; that an intelligent ballot is a national need. Organizations like the National League of Women Voters and the National Civic Federation are engaged in movements to give the voters some idea of what the political issues are all about. Michelet's attitude is that the voter isn't as dumb as he looks and that the big thing is to get voters interested enough to vote.

No one seems to have any objection to the intelligent vote Michelet points to the recent election upheaval in Chicago as an example of good things that happen when unusually large number of citizens turn out to do their stuff.

TWINKLES

The tuna fish can swim a mile a minute, but only a human fish would swim at top speed all night long.

That was a smart dog which was here last week. Another smart dog we know about goes about a city extinguishing burning cigarettes butts. The fidelity and usefulness of some dumb animals should be a rebuke to another species of dumb animals.

The newspaper profession is not as bad as we thought—Narrow has attacked its ethics.

Locusts are pestering Jerusalem and California has its swarms of bees, but out here in West Texas the "splendid distances" discourage epidemics of most everything but the rather harmless jack-rabbit.

Many a graduate of the University of Hard Knocks, has a son who is merely a knocker.

"A kiss a day keeps the divorce lawyer away," may be a good slogan, as ambiguous as it is, but the hygienists will remark that the "kissing bug" will "get you some day."

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

The summer she is 16, Sally Ford is "fanned out" to Clem Carson and leaves the state orphanage, the only home she has known from the time she was four. At the farm she meets David Nash, athlete and university student, working there during the summer. When Carson makes insulting remarks about their friendship, David strikes him a terrible blow and not knowing then whether the man is dead or alive, Sally and David flee.

They join a carnival, David as cook, helper and Sally in a sideshow disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

Nita, the Hula dancer, becomes infatuated with David and threatens Sally with exposure to the police for the Carson affair if she doesn't keep "hands off" David. Sally hears they are going next to Capital City, where she spent so many years in the orphanage. She tells David they must run away. David promises to meet her that night after the train is loaded to talk things over with her. They stroll to a clump of trees and all Sally can talk David takes her in his arms and for the first time they confess their love for each other. She tells him the news of her mother which Mrs. Bybee uncovers for her in Stanton. The woman who had left her at the Home was not her mother, according to Mrs. Bybee's information, but was a maid hired to take the baby from the mother in New York and disappear.

As they sit there, they are startled to hear Nita's voice in the darkness somewhere near them. "Steve—I'm warning you, if you double-cross me I'll cut your heart out. Fifty-fifty."

CHAPTER XXX

Pop Bybee looked down upon Sally's agonized face with troubled indecision in his bright blue eyes. He tried to lift her to her feet, but her arms were locked about his knees. The midge had scrambled from Sally's shoulder to the floor of the car and as Bybee hesitated, her tiny fists beat upon his right leg for attention.

"You're not going to break your promise to Sally, are you, Mrs. Bybee?" the tiny voice piped shrilly. "You hear her and the boy you'd protect them. She's told you the truth. Don't you know truth when you hear it? I always knew Nita was a crook. She never saw a policeman or a constable or a sheriff without turning white as ghost. She joined up with the criminal gang to learn the lay of the land and tip off her accomplices—this Steve person—where to find the money. That's why she was spying on Mrs. Bybee that day in Stanton. Listen to me!"

"I'm listening, Miss Tanner," Pop Bybee acknowledged wearily. "And I swear I don't know what to say or do. If they get clear away with that money the show'll be stranded. Every cent I had in the world was in that safe. Heck! I was a fool to carry it with me, but I never trusted a bank, and it was more convenient, having it right with me. Tomorrow's payday, too, and all of your are in the same boat with me."

"Listen boss let's take a vote on it," Gus, the baker, spoke up suddenly and loudly. "Now me—I believe the kid here is telling the truth. No college boy could crack a safe like that. It was a professional job or I'm a liar! Of course Nita may have tolled the boy off with her and this Steve, since she was so crazy about him, but we ain't got no proof she did, and as Sally says, if you sick the cops on the boy, the judge will be up with her as well as the boy. Another thing, Dave may be laying in the bushes somewhere with a bullet—"

"Oh! Sally screamed, as the full significance of Gus' words burst upon her. She fainted then, her little body slumping into a heap at Bybee's feet, her head striking one of his big shoes and falling there.

"When she regained consciousness she was lying in the lower berth which had belonged to Nita, and the midge was kneeling on the pillow beside her head dabbling her face with a handkerchief soaked in aromatic spirits of ammonia. Mazie and Sue, two of the dancers in the "girls' show," sat on the edge of the berth, their cold-creamed faces almost beautiful with anxiety and sympathy.

"What's the matter? Is it time to get up?" Sally asked dazedly. "What are you doing, Betty?"

The midge answered in her tiny, crisp voice: "I'm bathing your face with ammonia which Mrs. Bybee sent. It should be cooled, and this ammonia had probably dried your skin something dreadful, but it was the only thing we could get. You fainted, you know."

"Oh, I remember!" Sally moaned her head beginning to throb from side to side on the pillow. "Have they found David? I know he's been hurt!"

"They're looking for him," the midge assured her briskly. "Mr. Bybee took a vote as to whether he was to notify the police about David's being gone, as well as Nita, and the vote was 'No! That ought to make you feel happier!"

"Oh, it does!" Sally began to cry softly. "You have all been so kind, so kind! You said Mrs. Bybee sent the ammonia?" she asked wistfully.

"She certainly did, and she's in the kitchen of the privilege car right now making you some hot tea. She can't say she's sorry, probably, but she'll try to make it up to you. She's like that, always flying off the handle and suspicious of everybody, but she's got a heart as big as Babe, but she's got a heart as big as Babe," Sally told her headlong, taking both of the tiny hands into one of hers and laying them softly against her lips.

"Ain't love grand?" Mazie sighed deeply. "If it had been my sweetie, I'd tell fox that line of Ma Bybee's about him running off with Nita, but you sure stuck by him! I was in love like first once, when I was a kid, I married him, too, and he run off with the albino girl and took my grouch bag with him. Every damn cent I had! But it sure was sweet before we was married and he was nuts about me.

"Aw let the kid alone!" Sue slipped from the edge of the berth and yawned widely. "Gawd, I'm sleepy! If the cops don't catch that Hula hussy I'm going out looking for her myself, and when I get through with her she'll never shake another grass skirt! Come, Mazie. It's three o'clock in the morning, and we've got 18 shows ahead of us today."

"Mazie!" Mazie yawned. "If Pop wasn't stringing us, we'll be stranded in this burg, G'night, Sally. G'night Midge. And say, Sally, even if this Dave boy has blowed and left you that you won't have no trouble copin' off another sweetie. Gus was telling us about that New York rube that's trailing you. Hook up with him and you'll wear diamonds. Believe me, kid, they ain't none of 'em worth losing sleep over when you've got 18 shows a day ahead of you, G'night."

When they had gone the midge yanked the green curtains together with comical fierceness, then crawled under the top of the sheet that covered Sally.

"I'm going to sleep here with you, Sally," she said. "I don't take up much room."

And the woman who was old enough to be Sally's mother curled her 20-inch body in the curve of Sally's right arm and laid her tiny cheek, so soft and wrinkled as a worn kid glove, in the hollow of Sally's firm neck.

But long after the midge was asleep, Sally lay wide-eyed and tense in the dark, her mind a welter of fears and love and doubt. She had pleaded passionately with Pop Bybee for David, fiercely shoving to the dark depths of her mind even the memory of the jealousy which Nita had feroaciously aroused in her heart. But now that she had saved him temporarily by convincing Bybee that the boy could not have taken part in the robbery, doubt began to insinuate its ugly body upward from those dark depths where she had buried it.

Did he really love her—a pathetic, immature girl from an orphanage, a girl who had been nothing but a responsibility and a source of dire trouble to him since he had first met and championed her on the Carson farm? Her old feeling of inferiority rose like nausea in her throat. Life in an orphanage is not calculated to give a girl faith in her own beauty and charm. None, until David's teasing, fond eyes had rested upon her, had thought her beautiful.

Had he been only sorry for her, glad of an opportunity to "blow" to get out of the state where he was wanted on two serious charges? Was he dismayed, too, by the fact that moonlight had yanked him into telling her that he loved her, thus adding the responsibility of her future to the burden of protecting her in this hectic present?

Then a sweeter, saner memory claimed for attention. She heard again his fond, husky voice caressing her, his "Dear little Sally!" And involuntarily her mouth pursed in memory of his kiss, that kiss that had left her giddy with delight.

How unfaithfully kind and sweet he had been since that first day, when he had strode into her life, with the sun on his chestnut hair and the glory of the sun in his eyes. He had not failed her once, but she was falling him now, by doubting him, by picturing him as a fugitive in the dark, fleeing with a pair of criminals who had robbed the man whose kindness had protected him from the law.

Why, she must be crazy to think for a moment that David could do a thing like that! No one in the world was as good and kind and honorable as David.

But where was he? Mrs. Bybee had left him to guard the trail. Not for a moment could she believe that he had failed in his trust. Painfully, Sally tried to visualize the dreadful thing that had happened. David alone, paralyzing the train, his eyes sharp for intruders. Then—the sudden appearance of Nita and the man Steve, weighted down with the contents of the safe they had robbed. For Sally knew that the robbery must have taken place before David caught his first glimpse of the crooks. Otherwise the safe would be intact now, even if David's dead body had been found as silent witness that he had fulfilled his trust.

Her mind shattered away from that imagined picture, went back to the painful reconstruction of what must have taken place. David had seen them, had given chase. Of course! Otherwise he would be here now. Was he still pursuing them, or was he lying somewhere near the road, wounded, his splendid young body ignominiously flung into a cornfield?

She could bear no more, could no longer lie safe in her berth while David needed her somewhere. Very carefully, for all her haste, she lifted the tiny body that nestled her side and laid it tenderly upon the pillow, which was big enough to serve as a mattress for the midge. Then, sobbing soundlessly, she groped for her shoes in the little green hammock swung across the windows; found them, put them on, slipped to the edge of her berth. She was profoundly thankful that the girls had not undressed her after she had fainted.

When she reached the car in which Mr. and Mrs. Bybee occupied a stateroom she saw the showman and his wife through the open door, talking to two strangers whom she guessed to be plainclothes policemen from police headquarters of Capital City. The two men were evidently about to leave nodding impatiently that they understood, when Sally appeared, like a frightened, pale little ghost in green-and-white-striped gingham.

She forgot that she was without make-up, that the police were looking for her as well as for the criminal who had robbed the safe. But Pop Bybee had not forgotten. Still talking with the plainclothes detectives, he motioned to her violently behind his back. She turned and forced herself to walk slowly and sedately toward the other end of the car as the detectives made their farewells and their brusque promises of "quick action."

When the men had left the car Bybee's voice summoned her in a husky stage whisper, calling her "Lalla," so that the detectives, if they were listening, should not identify her with the girl who had run away from the orphanage in a charge of assault with the intent to kill.

"Are you crazy?" Bybee demanded hoarsely when she had come running to the stateroom. "Them was worst policemen, understand? They might nabbed you. What are you doing up? Get back to bed and try to sleep."

"Have you found David?" she queried, brushing aside his anxiety for her.

"Not a sign of him," Bybee shook his head. "But I didn't spill the beans to the dicks. I'd given you my word, and Winfield Bybee's word is as good as his bond."

"I'm going to look for David," she announced simply, but her blazing eyes demanded him to try to prevent her. "He's hurt somewhere—or killed. I'm going to find him!"

And before the astonished man or his wife could stretch out a hand to detain her she was gone. When she dropped from the platform of the car she heard the retreating roar of the police car. Instinct turned her in the opposite direction, away from the city down the railroad tracks leading into the open country.

She did not know and would not have cared that Mr. and Mrs. Bybee were following her, Mrs. Bybee muttered disgustedly but refusing to let Sally search alone for the boy in whom she had such implicit faith.

Dawn was breaking, pale and watery in a sky that was shamelessly cloudless, and serene after the violence of last night's storm, when, over a slight hill a man's figure loomed suddenly, then seemed to drag with unbearable weariness as it plodded toward the sheep train.

"David!" Sally shrieked. "David!" She began to run, her ankles turning against clois of cinders, but her arms outstretched, a glory greater than that of the dawn in her face.

David has been shot, but he is able to tell his story in the next chapter.

MANY ENJOY REVIVAL AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

A splendid audience was present last evening to hear Evangelist J. T. Stricklin at the Church of Christ. His subject was "God Hath Spoken."

An inspiring song service was led by C. C. Bankhead.

The subject of the sermon for this evening was "Loyalty." Most people are loyal to their home, students are loyal to their school, Dr. J. Frank Norris' church is loyal to its calls; strength, youth, manhood, money, and liberty have been sacrificed for the nation, but how loyal are we to the church.

Come this evening and hear this subject.

WORLD LEADERSHIP

THE genius that wins leadership never rests. By the time others have struggled to heights attained by leaders, the leaders have blazed trails to new accomplishments.

The Maytag Aluminum Washer for five years stood without a rival. Then came the New Maytag, as far in advance of the times as the former Maytag was five years before.

The unmatched speed and thoroughness which characterized the Maytag of former years has been enhanced by many note-worthy features, in the new Maytag. Important among them is a Soft Roller Water Remover which hugs every fold of the clothes.

Both the soap and water are extracted evenly—no wet spots, no yellow drying. It is the most effective method of soap and water removal ever devised, yet so gentle that delicate buttons and filmy laces go through unharmed.
