Communist Party Leads In Elections in Italy

ROME (UPI) — The Communist party jumped to an early lead today in the showdown test of strength against the dominant Christian Democrats in Italy's regional elections. Early returns showed.

Cuba Agrees To Return Ransom Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cuban government has agreed to return a $2 million ransom obtained by skyjackers in 1972 from Southern Airways. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., announced today.

In a letter to McGovern, Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro said his government has decided to give "a positive answer" to requests that the money be returned.

McGovern said he received the letter from Castro Friday. Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and McGovern, who met with Castro in March, have in the past argued for return of the money.

Castro's letter said he found those arguments "to be reasonable."

Threatens Small Communities

Alanreed Post Office May Close

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

If the government acts on a General Accounting Office recommendation to shut down 12,000 rural post offices, Ms. Juanita McKee, postmaster at Alanreed, could lose her job.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Sunday that the GAO recommendation could pose a serious threat to thousands of small communities in the country.

J.D. Williams, postmaster of the Pampa Post Office, said that the Alanreed Post Office is the only fourth class post office in Gray County and if the GAO proposal is aimed at that classification, it would be the only post office in the Pampa area in danger of being closed.

Asked about the possibility of losing the post office in Alanreed, Ms. McKee said, "I don't feel very good about it. If it were to close, it would make a hardship on the people around here. They are mostly elderly people and they need the post office."

The GAO said the government could save about $100 million a year by following the proposal to close the rural post offices. The GAO, an arm of Congress, said services to the rural communities would not be reduced since post offices could be replaced by offices operated by outside contractors and delivery service would be centered at larger post offices.

Simon, a member of the House Postal Service subcommittee opposes the proposal that "the local post office is many times the only business left in a small town. It's something for the residents to hang onto — something to identify with."

C.T. Davis, Amarillo postmaster, said that Amarillo serves as a sectional center for 99 post offices from Plainview to Liberal, Kans. Eighteen of those are fourth class facilities.

Davis said that when as many as 25 people are not served at the post office, and when a postmaster vacancy occurs, "we consider closing it or turning it into a community post office."

He described a community post office as providing only the most basic of services — accepting packages or letters to be mailed, selling postage stamps, and possibly holding occasional pieces for general delivery — but no box rentals. The community post offices generally are located in a store or a business.

Ms. McKee operates the Alanreed P.O. in part of her home. She has 52 boxes rented, she said, and "people come and go 24 hours a day." She can lock

CIA Had President's OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key Rules Committee member said today he will propose abolishing a special House CIA investigating committee because it has been torn by dissension.

Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., said he would introduce the resolution to disband the House Select Committee on Intelligence because of a move by five of the committee's seven Democrats forcing the resignation of the chairman, Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich.

Both the House and Senate established similar committees earlier this year to investigate allegations the Central Intelligence Agency illegally conducted domestic surveillance and plotted assassinations of foreign leaders. President Ford set up his own commission to probe the charges.

The allegations developed new political overtones Sunday when Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who headed Ford's CIA investigation, hinted there was evidence that former President John F. Kennedy and his brother, Robert, may have known of the assassination plots.

Although the Rockefeller commission issued its report last week and the Senate committee investigation is well underway, the House probe has been stalled by a dispute which peaked last Friday when Nedzi announced his resignation.

That resignation was to come before the full House today with a vote expected on whether to accept or reject it. A vote to reject would leave Nedzi as chairman and the Democrats who sought his ouster still members of the panel.

Rockefeller, whose commission report on the CIA was released last week, said Sunday one reason the panel did not develop conclusive evidence on alleged CIA foreign assassination plots was because so many persons implicated in them are dead.

He hinted his commission may have obtained information President Kennedy and his brother, former Attorney General Robert Kennedy, were involved in the alleged plots. But he emphasized none of the secret information was strong enough to support conclusions of guilt.

Goldwater, a member of the Senate committee investigating the CIA, backed up Rockefeller by saying no major CIA action, such as an assassination, would have taken place without the President knowing about it.

He also said Sunday he had seen no evidence any CIA assassination plots were ever attempted but that he "wouldn't be surprised" if the White House considered killing Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Time Magazine reported Sunday the CIA plotted in 1960 to kill Castro by supplying him with poisoned cigars, but never carried out the plan because there was no assurance Castro would not give the cigars to other people.

The Rockefeller Commission report was to be given officially today to the Senate investigating committee, which Wednesday will hear from CIA director William Colby testifying under tight security about the 1963 assassination of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Dinh Diem.

A Colby appearance before the House committee investigating the CIA last week was canceled when an internal dispute resulted in the resignation of its chairman, Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich.

Rockefeller's hint of Kennedy involvement in assassination plots resulted in a statement from two former aides of Robert Kennedy, who accused the vice president of ignoring the conclusions of his own report or "deliberately lying."

Minimum Wage Law Knocks Youngsters from Summer Jobs

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

It isn't that young people don't want to work, it's just that many employers cannot afford to hire them.

Officials say that the minimum wage requirement of $2.10 per hour is knocking many young people out of jobs because they do not have sufficient time to work during a summer to obtain maximum efficiency training.

But they keep trying to find jobs. In Pampa today, the Texas Employment Commission had eight young applicants in the office before 10 a.m.

Gray County is one of 22 counties in the Texas Panhandle receiving funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) of 1973.

That program has provided help to 54 local individuals who qualified for education, training and employment opportunities offered the economically disadvantaged, unemployed and underemployed provided for by bill.

Judge Don Cain said this morning that even though Gray County has nothing to do with screening for participation, the program was approved in order to make sure those who were eligible for participation would not be deprived of an opportunity.

The Texas Employment Commission does the screening, Cain said.

Individuals are being trained in the following job categories in Gray County: treatment plant technician, teacher aide, nurse aide, maintenance man, clerical aide, recreation leader, library aide, temporary interviewer, kitchen helper, cashier, welder and foreman.

A county commissioner in Lubbock, Arch Lamb, says that "we have legislated young people out of the mainstream of American economic life."

He refers to 16 to 18 years olds.

"We have placed so many restrictions on employment of the young that they are close to prohibited from any useful occupation," he said. "And suddenly at 18, we expect them to the useful and productive workers in our economic system."

Regulatory areas include child labor laws, insurance regulations and labor relations regulations.

One spokesman said the National Association of Counties might be helpful in bringing a remedy in federal laws that youth employed in summer jobs must be paid the minimum of $2.10 per hour.

Judge Cain said this morning he concurs with that since the $2.10 hourly wage "knocks a lot of kids out of work."

They cannot reach a maximum efficiency in a skilled job in the length of time they work during the summer, the judge said.

Judge Cain said one might learn to chop weeds efficiently in two weeks, but cannot learn a skilled job even during the 10 weeks of summer vacation.

Officials say they are not advocating slave labor, but employers who have employed the young discovered that in many cases, because of inexperience, a summer employe is not worth $2.10 per hour.

"We have the ridiculous situation where a fully grown man with a family operating to best of his experience is able to earn only $2.10 and he discovers his 18-year old son with a summer job is being paid the same amount," one official said.

National statistics read that the unemployment rate for disadvantaged youth is at 40 per cent — and the minimum wage requirements means that a lot fewer youth can be employed.

Judge Cain said he feels that a far more sensible posture for the federal government to take would be to devise a flexible wage scale to meet local unemployment needs, prevailing wage rates in the area, skill and experience qualifications as they apply in any employment situation.

Gray County participants in the CETA program include Betty Bogges, Helen Brantley, Carol Canada, Loretta Copeland, Sally Day, Bud Derby, Patricia Evans, Ricky Hugg, Mark Jennings, Toney Kidd, John Organ and Debbie Tucker, all getting on the job training. Eugene Edmondson and Mary Kille are in public service employment. Joe Riggins is in classroom training.

Those in the work experience program include Betty Baxter, Cynthia Black, Mona Blanton, Bob Brandt, Sharon Carey, Becky Cook, Sondra Cook, Vela Corcoran, Kim Du Bose, Vikky Eickhorst, Judy Glass, Allen Greene, Connie Haidu, Melinda Helm, Brenda Helton, Joyce Howard, Lori Kidd, Debbie Kilgore, Genie Matney, Ester McAdoo, William Mercer, Imogene Miller, Deloris Morris, Deloris Oliver, Leslie O'Neal, Maudine Parker, Teresa Porter, Jessie Samuel, Venancio Silva, David Stump, Mildred Sweet, Wanda Talley, Virginia Thompson, Anna Tidwell, Bobby Trolinger, Lynn Turner, Betty Willis and Delynn Zorhowski.

He Has Federal Job ...But No Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government official who admits he does nothing but drink coffee and listen to Beethoven in his office has asked Congress to abolish his $19,693-a-year job.

Jubal Hale is executive secretary of the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Board of Review, a government agency set up in 1971 to hear appeals on non-coal mine closures.

No such appeals have ever been made, and Hale acknowledges he has no work.

He told the Senate Government Operations Committee Wednesday that about $200,000 has been spent by the board so far, mostly on salaries, and the first case is yet to be heard.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., author of a bill to abolish the board, called Hale's attitude "refreshing" and said he would be a good person for another government job.

"Well, I'll certainly have to look for work," Hale responded.

Supreme Court Rules On Fee-fixing, Abortions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 today that fee-fixing by lawyers violates federal antitrust law.

In a major opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger dealing specifically with title searches, the Court said law as a "learned profession" was not exempted by Congress from provisions of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The court also struck down state laws forbidding newspapers to publish advertisements for legal abortion services.

Speaking for a 7-2 majority in the abortion case, Justice Harry A. Blackmun ruled that a Virginia law — since amended — barring publications, lectures and advertisements which might prompt or encourage abortions runs counter to the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech.

The decision reversed the conviction of Jeffrey C. Bigelow, former editor of an "underground" newspaper published in Charlottesville, Va.

In the lawyer fee case, the Burger opinion said the fee schedule in question was not a mere advisory to members of the profession but resulted in "a fixed, rigid price floor" from which persons buying homes "could not reasonably escape."

"In the modern world it cannot be denied that the activities of lawyers play an important part in commercial intercourse, and that anticompetitive activities by lawyers may exert a restraint on commerce," Burger said.

The case was brought to the high court by Lewis H. and Ruth S.M. Goldfarb, who encountered minimum fees for title searches issued by the Fairfax County Bar Association when they bought a $54,000 house in Reston, Va., in 1971.

Under ethical standards of the Virginia State Bar, title examinations can be handled only by lawyers.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Virginian, did not participate in the decision.

In other actions, the Court — Ruled 8 to 1 in the case of Florida's "Murph the Surf" that a criminal defendant is not deprived of a fair trial solely by the fact that jurors knew something about his crime or prior convictions.

— Ruled 6 to 3 that cooperative public housing projects which issue nonprofit stock certificates to residents are not subject to federal securities laws.

— Agreed to decide whether criminal investigators for the Internal Revenue Service must fully advise a potential defendant of his right to remain silent during an interview in his home.

— Let stand a damage award against a Georgia state official who was found to have denied a residence job to a white man because the applicant was married to a black.

According to the most recent figures of the American Bar Association, the following 20 states had minimum fee schedules for lawyers similar to the Virginia system struck down by the Supreme Court Monday: Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Farmers Discourage Youngsters on Farming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two out of three farmers quizzed in a recent survey say they believe money-making prospects for young people today are better in nonfarm jobs than in farming.

In spite of that assessment, however, a heavy majority of the farmers indicated they prefer their business and way of life to a 9 to 5 job in the city. The replies came from a questionnaire returned recently by about 1,000 members of a quarterly magazine published by a major farm equipment manufacturer. International Harvester.

Asked if they thought income prospects for farm youth are better on or off the farm, only 31 per cent of the readers who responded — nearly all farmers or farm owners — said the outlook was brighter on farms. Sixty-five per cent said youngsters could make more money by leaving for other jobs, including employment in agribusiness.

The same group, however, produced a 63 per cent "yes" verdict to a later question — "would you encourage your son or daughter to go into farming as a career." Only 34 per cent answered "no."

One factor in the way farmers feel about keeping their children in the family business, apparently, is a strong conviction that rural America is a better place to live than the nation's big cities. Only 4 per cent of the people who replied in the survey said they'd choose to live in a city if they decided not to farm.

A tabulation showed that 67 per cent of the people surveyed — ranging from teen-agers to farmers over 60 — said they'd prefer to live in the country even if they didn't farm for a living. Another 28 per cent said they'd choose small towns.

Few farmers, according to the survey, expect the family farm system to be buried by an era of giant corporate operations. Most, however, indicate they think family farms of the future will have to be larger than today's operations or will be forced to operate as family corporations or partnerships. The probe of farmer opinions also indicated younger farmers appeared to be more willing to take risks than their elders, and to have a stronger faith in the outlook for farming.

Asked about the "number one thing you dislike about farming," slightly over half of all farmers over 40 listed the uncertainty of unstable farm prices. Among farmers under 30, however, only 35 per cent of the respondents chose unstable prices as their top gripe.

A similar split appeared in replies to the question about encouraging a son or daughter to enter farming. Among farmers over 50, the percentage saying "yes" ranged up to 56 per cent. Among those under 30, however, 75 per cent said they'd urge their children to farm.

One Third Refugees Living with Sponsors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fewer than 30 per cent of the 13,000 refugees from South Vietnam are now living with their American sponsors, and about the same number are still at U.S. bases in the Pacific waiting transfer to the United States.

State Department officials in charge of the resettlement program say that at the rate they are leaving, the refugee camps may be cleared by October.

"As of Saturday there were 35,305 refugees out of the system," one official said. "That means they are out of the camps and living with their American sponsors," except for 3,746 who chose to go to 22 different countries.

Refugees are leaving the camps at a rate of about 800 a day. Anything over 800 would empty the camps completely by October, the official said.

The department said as of Saturday there were 58,992 refugees being processed at four centers in the continental United States and 36,532 waiting at staging centers in Guam, Wake Island, the Philippines and Thailand.

The refugees included 22,680 at Fort Chaffee, Ark.; 17,280 at Camp Pendleton, Calif.; 4,203 at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; and 14,829 at Indian Town Gap reservation, Pa.

The officials said there were 26,467 at Guam, 7,043 at Wake Island, 2,752 at the U.S. naval station at Subic Bay in the Philippines "and a handful at U Tapao, Thailand, and Clark Air Force base in the Philippines.

State Department officials were irritated by charges last week by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., that the resettlement program had turned into a "shambles" because of "a lack of leadership."

"That report concerned only the gripes," one State Department official said. "We have had in effect to throw up six entirely new cities almost overnight" to handle the refugee influx caused by the collapse of Cambodia and South Vietnam, the official said.

"Now we are being scolded for not having them working perfectly."

"Everyone has been sheltered and fed, and there have been no major health problems. Nobody has given any disease to anybody else," the official said. "That is no small miracle in itself."

Reports from Fort Chaffee and Camp Pendleton indicate some refugees are reluctant to leave the security of their bases.

"They are protected, sheltered, they don't have to worry about war, about food, or money. In many ways it's like life in a Vietnamese village here. They have yet to face a change in culture."

City Begins Study Of Budget Requests

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Preliminary study of 1975-76 budget requests from city department heads was begun today by Milton Saltzman, city personnel director.

Saltzman returned to his desk at City Hall after several days illness and reported budget forms had been received from all 25 city departments.

He said the forms will be given close scrutiny to determine if they contain all facts needed to provide city commissioners and the public with sufficient information concerning significant activities of each department.

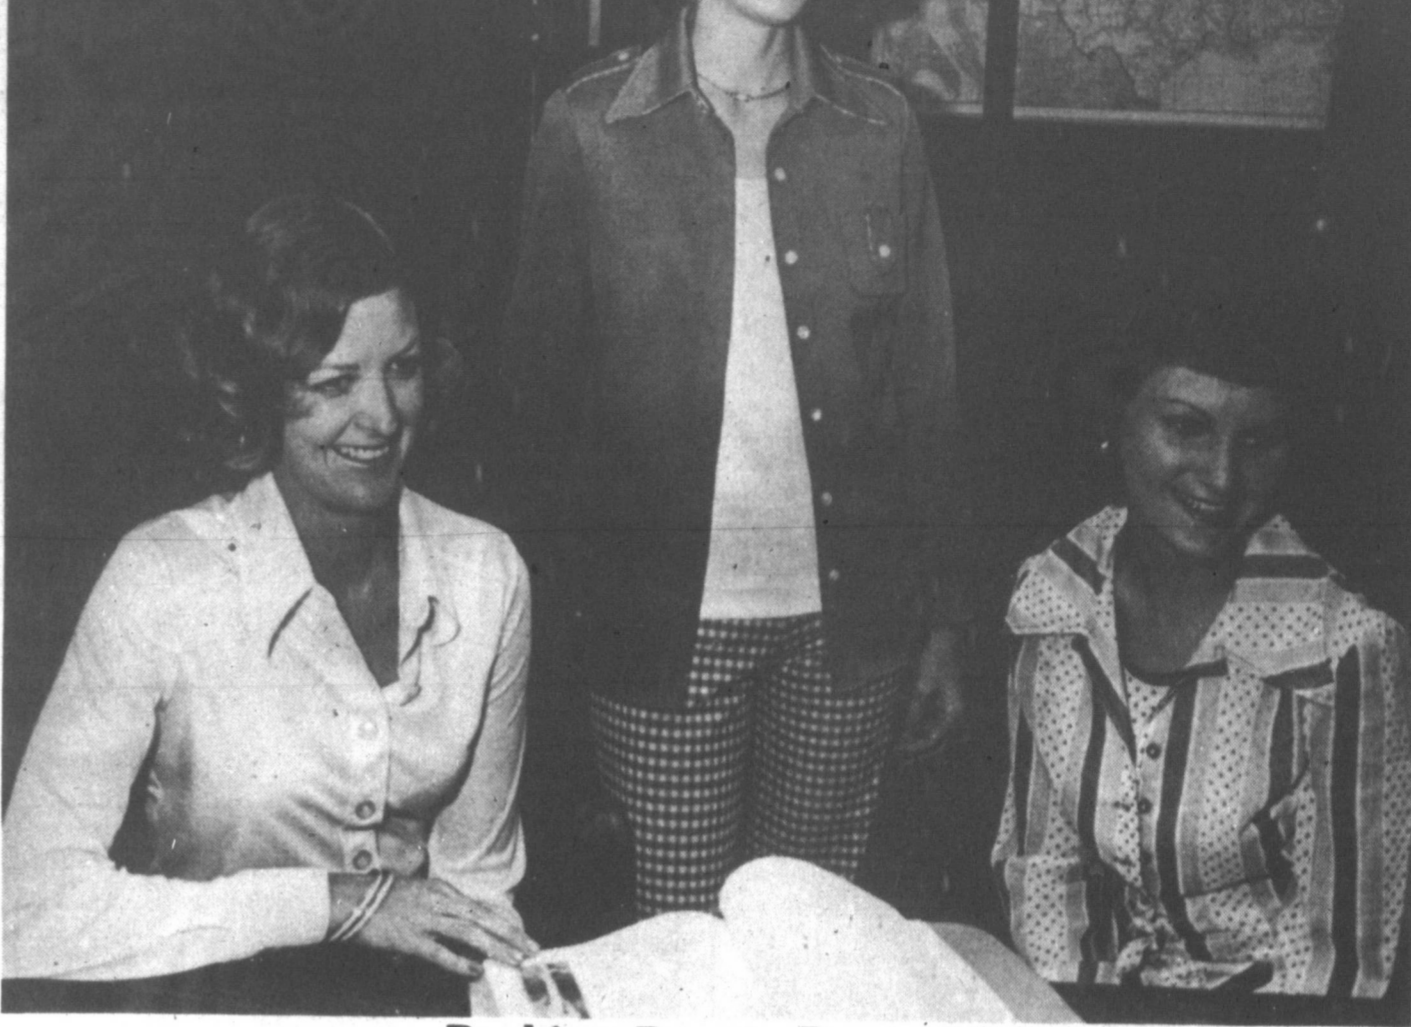

These activities, Saltzman explained, include departmental objectives and responsibilities, principal work activities or operations to achieve the objectives, and a description of anticipated program changes for the next fiscal years which starts Oct. 1, 1975.

Other items on the budget requests include personal services (employees), contractual services, supplies and materials and capital outlay.

Saltzman said City Manager Mack Wofford who is in Waco this week attending the annual conference of the Texas City Management Association, will begin individual reviews of budget requests with department heads next Monday.

A general information review with the mayor and city commissioners is scheduled for Wednesday, July 9.

Saltzman said the schedule calls for final assembling of revised data processing and the proposed budget is set for July 17.

Furr's President Dies in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Roy K. Furr's first business experience was working as a clerk in his father's store.

He taught school after graduating from college, but he returned to help his father with a new venture—the Furr Food Store—in 1923. Six years later he bought six stores beginning the supermarket empire that bore his name.

Furr, 70, suffered a stroke in his office Friday and was rushed to a hospital where he died of a heart attack. Funeral services were scheduled today in the First United Methodist Church.

Mainly About People

The play, "Old Mobeetie" will be rehearsed today and each evening at 8 p.m. this week in the Mobeetie High School gym. Acting parts are still needed and drama interested persons are invited to participate according to Director, Mrs. John London.

The VFW Auxiliary will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Bonnie Stuckey, 2323 Christine, for a social.

Pampa's operating budget for the current year, with three- and a-half months still to go, was set at $2.7 million. The tax rate, was boosted last year, from $1.72 to $1.90.

Wofford said recently he hoped it would not be necessary to make another tax increase for fiscal 1975-76.

However, the possibility of a 5-cent increase arose last week when the City called an election for July 8 on a $300,000 bond issue to fund the city's share of the cost to build a $1.4 million sewage treatment plant.

So, Pampa's tax rate for the coming year still is an undetermined factor pending decision on the 1975-76 total budget figure.

At the end of fiscal 1974 Pampa's total bonded indebtedness was $6.8 million. Of that total, $4.3 million was payable from taxes, $1.2 million from water and sewer revenue, and 1.2 million payable from donations by the M.K. Brown Foundation for the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

Rep Says 'News Media Must Be Free to Censor'

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Reporters should go to jail rather than reveal their sources but they do not need First Amendment protections, according to Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex.

Speaking at a radio-television news director association regional seminar, Rep. Jordan said news reporters should not be included under First Amendment protections of freedom of the press to protect sources who do not their identities revealed.

She said if she was threatened by a contempt charge for not revealing the source of some information she would try to determine if the information was important enough to risk the charge if she presented it to the public.

If she felt the information was important enough for the public to know she said she would ask her source to "set me free."

"Otherwise I would be content to go the way of some who have been jailed for failing to reveal information," she said.

She said she does not favor changing First Amendment protections because it raises too many other questions such as "Who is to be privileged, where do you draw the line and how far you should go?"

She said 25 states have some form of shield laws and there has been no notable difference in the flow of news in these areas. She also said a poll taken of reporters in these states showed less than half of them were aware they were protected by shield laws.

But with or without shield laws, she said, the news media "must be free to censor the government."

"If the press does not inform the public, then which institution will do it?" she said.

She also said the Democrats have a good chance of capturing the presidency in next year's elections, but she indicated the party will have to find someone to lead it other than the candidates who have already announced for the office.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks... and little girlie wearers:
If you will powder your body before putting on your girdle, it will slip and slide on and over, much easier...
Now here is the trick to it all which I learned from bunch of nurses last year. Instead of powder, you can use baking soda. Yep, you read correctly. Lots of these nurses (and hairdressers who do our hair) dust baking soda under their arms with a powder puff after taking their bath or shower. Did you ever smell an underarm odor from either? Neither have I...
Then a year ago I met a physical education teacher. A man yet. He said that his gym smelled because of tennis shoes, etc. in the shower and dressing rooms.
I told him, "Buy a box of plain ol' baking soda and tell all your men to dust it on their socks and put some in their tennis and to rinse their sweaty T-shirts in it when they laundered 'em."
Here is the report:
Dear Heloise:
As a gym teacher for years, I cannot thank you enough for recommending plain soda for dusting my boys' shoes (especially the football and basketball players' shoes). I just dumped a teaspoon in each pair of tennis shoes each boy had and WOW! — even the gym doesn't smell like it used to.
Now here's one for you and also for other gym teachers who have the same problem, sweetheart.
I bought 12 boxes and dumped them all in a small plastic wastebasket. I also bought a small feather duster and plumped the feather duster in the wastebasket of soda.
As each boy comes in after showering, I make them pick up this feather duster and "powder" his feet and under his arms.
It works!
I also make them do this before they leave for the field.
So, the top of the morning to you, my dear friend, and may the good Lord bless Heloise for taking the odor out of gyms.
I have passed this along to 23 other gym teachers and all agree that I should write to you with our thanks.
Ralph Donohoe
Thanks for the stars, sir.
And, most of all, thanks for testing it so completely. You are what we need. Bless you. And your friends... Heloise

Dear Heloise:
To utilize my limited kitchen drawer space to a better advantage, when replacing freshly laundered dish towels and dish cloths, I fold them as usual into a flattened square shape.
Then I give them three turns into a rolled shape and place them into the drawer, from front to back of the drawer.
With this method, I can get more into the drawer and they look so much neater when the drawer is opened.
Mrs. R.B.K.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
Dear Heloise:
Many years ago you wrote that "dusted chair rungs" were the sign of a good housekeeper. Then a few weeks ago you wrote that cleared-off drainboards are the sign of a good housekeeper.
All these years I've been dusting my rungs and feeling so smug, only to learn that people were probably secretly sneering at my cluttered drainboard.
What next, Heloise? Are there any other signs I should know about? Please print them soon.

Dear Heloise:
With all the pill containers we get today, I found I can use them to put my jewelry in, such as chains, beads, earrings, etc. when we travel.
I find they don't get tangled and are always together so I can easily see them. As the lids fit tightly, the jewelry cannot fall out.
When I am home I keep them in a drawer, still using the bottles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Irish linen lace ending in a white satin ruffle at the hemline. She carried a bouquet of green daisies, yellow roses and baby's breath.

Prior to the Amarillo wedding trip, a reception was hosted at the church. Assisting with the serving were Miss Carol Jean Harvey, sister of the bride, Miss Helen Carol Dyer, Mrs. Richard Dyer, sister of the bride, Miss Pattie Sue Sims and Miss Jacque Delane Gilber.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of Pampa High School, is presently employed by Pampa Nursing Center and the bridegroom, a 1975 graduate of Pampa High School, is employed by Arthur Brothers.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

In the United States, Canada, and Mexico, when one participates in a major tournament, he plays afternoon and evening for three to 10 days, and during these tournaments, it is not uncommon for a player never to see the outside of the hotel at which the tournament is being held, since virtually all of his time is consumed in playing, eating and sleeping.

In Europe it is quite different. For example, in the annual tournament conducted by the Spanish Bridge Federation at Palma, on the island of Mallorca, play does not start until 4:30 p.m., leaving most of the day for other activities. Dinner is usually taken at 9 p.m. — and that's it, since there is no evening session of play.

In the 1973 Mallorca tournament, held in February, most of Europe's top players participated, including Pietro Forquet and Walter Avarelli of the famous Italian Blue Team. The deal which follows, from the open pairs championship, is an example of Forquet's technique. He was in the South seat, North-South vulnerable, South deals.

Opening lead: Three of ♦.

As East-West were playing it, East's double of one spade was a penalty, not a take-out double. This is quite frequent in Europe, where most of the systems used are artificial, and responses in a suit often show distributional values and high cards, rather than the suit bid. So a "double" exposes a "psychic" bid by indicating that the doubler has the suit.

The opening spade lead was won by East's ace, and a spade was returned. Forquet was fighting for an extra trick (the game was duplicate), so he ruffed with the ten of trumps. It may seem natural to now play a low trump to dummy's jack. If this were done, East, upon taking the ace, would return another spade, which South would ruff with the king. He would now have to guess whether to finesse against West for the trump nine, or to hope that the trumps were divided 2-2 originally.

Forquet eliminated the above problem. At trick three he led his king of clubs and overtook it with the board's ace. A low trump was then led. East performed winning with the ace. The return of a spade was now ruffed with South's king. Dummy's queen and jack of trumps then picked up West's two remaining trumps, and that vital overtrick was made.

Books

United Press International
The Great Train Robbery, by Michael Crichton.
(Knopf, $7.95)

It's hard to classify this marvelously clever and delightful book by Michael Crichton, whose previous trips to the Best Seller list have been via science fiction novels — The Andromeda Strain and The Terminal Man.

This time he has written a book that is half novel, half factual re-creation of life in Victorian England. It centers on the planning of a sensational gold robbery from a railroad train in an era when rail lines were newly spreading throughout the bucolic countryside of England and altering the country utterly.

Edward Pierce, to use what may have been his chief alias or, perhaps, his real name, is presented as a mysterious Londoner who moves in social circles of affluence and good standing. In reality, he is a master criminal who uses his connections to plot the robbery and the convolutions he undergoes are magnificent.

All sorts of engrossing stuff somehow meshes into a stylish Victorian adventure with a slam-bang ending.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

What you don't need to read today is another column about the state of the world, but frankly I'm worried sick.

Last week was a week you wouldn't believe. It all began on Monday when the kids filed into the kitchen completely dressed.

I stood there with my iron (the one with the 50-foot cord) and asked, "Who wants something pressed?" No one moved.

My car with the new battery started. I found a parking place in front of the supermarket, got a shopping cart with four wheels that all went in the same direction at the same time, and found a sale on something edible. That night Rhoda looked a little fat, and I cooked a dinner that no one had had for lunch.

I began to feel a little edgy, but figured by the next day things would get back to normal. They didn't. At the library, all three of my books were out. I ordered Col. Sanders extra crispy chicken and they had it. I went to bed thinking, things have to get worse tomorrow — they couldn't get any better.

On Wednesday, I ran for a bus and made it. The dentist said I had no cavities. The phone was ringing when I arrived home and even after I dropped my key a few times I answered it and they were still on the line. The Avon lady refused me service, saying I didn't need her. My husband asked me what kind of a day I had and didn't leave the room when I started to answer.

By Thursday, I was a basket case anticipating what was in store for me, but it didn't happen. My daughter told me my white socks looked good with wedgies. The checkbook balanced. No one snacked and ruined their dinners and a film at the school, "The History of Sulphur," was cancelled.

On Friday morning I was sobbing in the kitchen when my husband tried to comfort me. "I can't help it," I said, "things were never meant to go this well. I'm worried."

"Now, now," he said patting my shoulder. "Things can't go rotten all the time. We couldn't appreciate them if they did."

"I know I'm going to get it," I said. "Do you know that yesterday I went into the boys' room and their beds were made? (He frowned.) And that we got a note from the IRS apologizing for being late with our rebate? This isn't like us." I whined. "The bad times I can handle. It's the good times that drive me crazy. When is the other shoe going to drop?"

We heard a car turn into the garage and make the sickening scrape of a fender when it meets an immovable wall.

We smiled. Things are looking up.

Dreams: A Special In Living Black and White

DENVER (UPI) — A university psychiatrist says people who claim they only dream in color are editorializing.

"Color dreams are 'unusual,'" Dr. David Metcalf said Thursday. "But when a person is asked about a dream he or she usually elaborates and the world we live in is full of color."

Metcalf is an associate professor at the university of Colorado Medical Center at Denver who has researched dreams, a phenomena he calls a series of 90-minute specials that can begin as early as 18-months of age.

Metcalf says the average person will begin dreaming about 1½ hours after falling asleep. He says the cycle will repeat itself in another 90 minutes but says people rarely experience the same dream on the same night.

"People dream during three to four different periods, each varying from 10 to 30 or 40 minutes, cycling through the night," Metcalf said. "Dreams really are an attempt to solve a problem through satisfaction of a wish. Dreaming probably does have the function of consolidating memory."

Metcalf says the need for sleep varies from person to person but an average man by the age of 70 has slept away 20 years of his life. He says dreams fill six of the 20 years.

He said most dreaming occurs when the eyes of sleepers make horizontal and vertical movements, as if they "actually are looking at the dream." Metcalf said sleepers' breathing and blood pressure usually accelerates while dreaming.

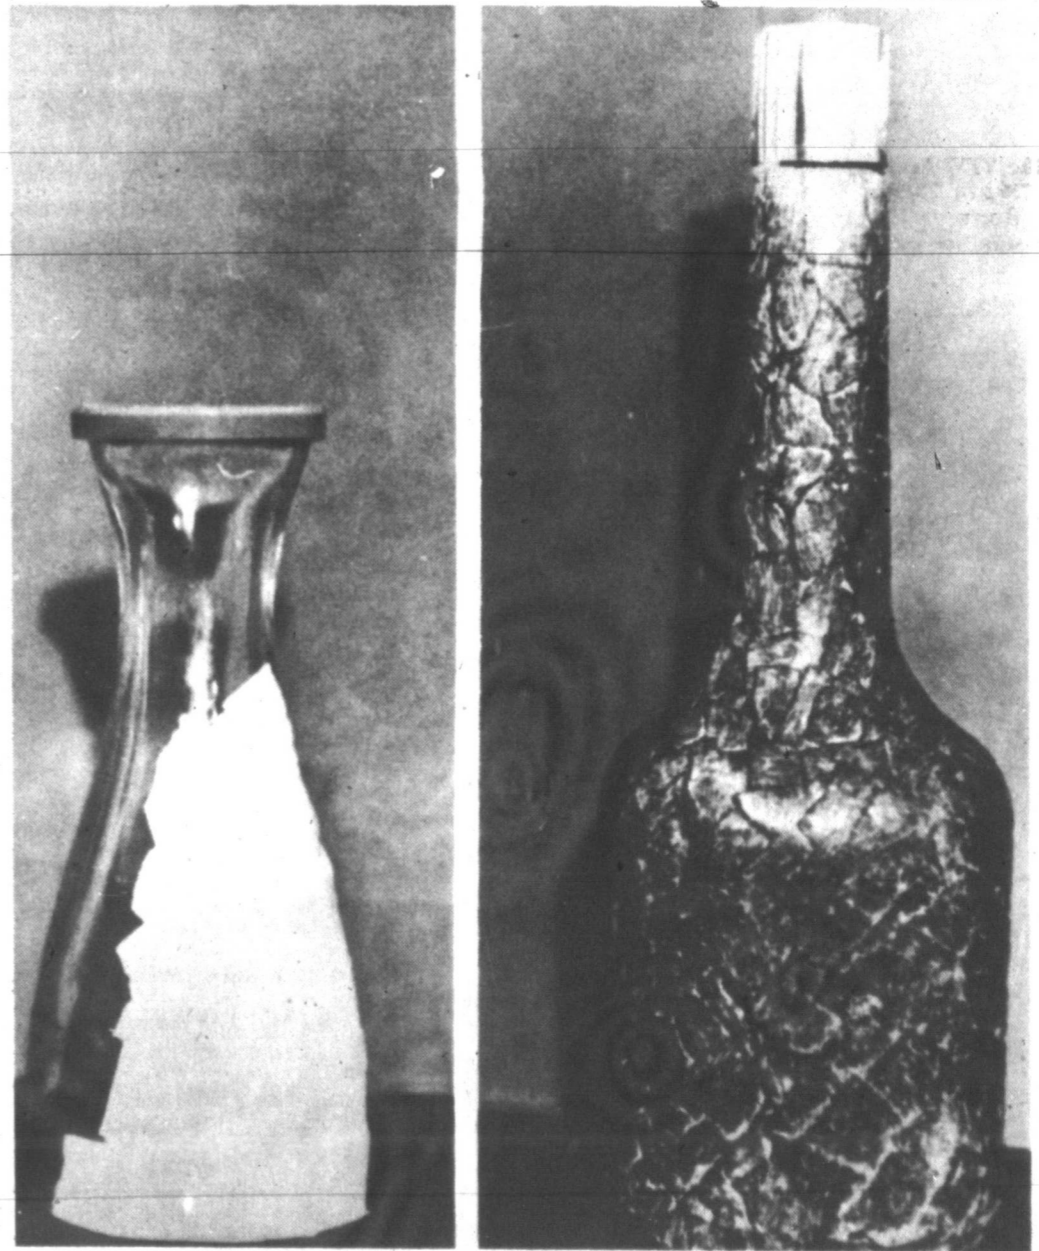

Metcalf says the origin of nightmares is still a mystery.

"Some studies say that there are no night terrors until after a person has experienced a traumatic event," Metcalf said. "Another theory is that these people (experiencing nightmares) have an organic disturbance."

He said dreams that occur soon after sleep usually have to do with current happenings. Metcalf said as the night wears on the body temperature of sleepers dropped and their dreams seemed to dwell on past events.

"Then, as the body temperature begins to rise before awakening, there is some indication that dreams also move again toward events of the present."

leather ones we saw in Spain."

That was several weeks ago. Now, when her travel companions admire the decorated bottles she shows them, they marvel how authentic they look since they "almost" feel like leather.

Aside from finding appropriately shaped containers — which can range from wine and liquor bottles to salad dressing cruets — this woman claims the entire cost of each project is less than 50 cents.

"All that's needed besides time, patience and a couple of good TV programs, is a roll of masking tape and some color finish," she says.

It is amazingly easy, if slow, to tear off bits of masking tape and fix them firmly to the clean, glass surface. Overlap each section of tape in random fashion so a textured finish results. Then, when the entire surface is covered, use a rag to lightly apply brown or cordova shoe polish.

Let the bottle dry thoroughly, then gently buff the surface. The tape will both look and feel amazingly like leather.

Oil paints, such as burnt umber, can also be applied lightly. When wiped down, the grain of the tape shows through with a leather-like resemblance. If preferred, a shiny, glossy finish can be achieved by spray painting the covered container.

Eventually, as soon as all her friends are supplied with masking tape covered bottles, this woman is planning to buy some leather scraps and, with the use of scissors and white glue, hopes to decorate a bottle so it really will be a leather covered decanter.

Cost of postage and handling are included if you send $1.50 to Buroker-Huntsinger, Copley News Service in care of this newspaper, prompt receipt of your copy of "A Baker's Dozen" of featured Child's Play columns.

FORD AT ARMY BASE
FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — Generations of soldiers have slogged through the heat and humidity at the Ft. Benning, Ga., Army infantry camp. President Ford got a taste of the discomfort Saturday when he attended ceremonies marking the Army's 200th birthday.

He told a crowd of about 30,000 it "took strength to win our freedom; it will take strength to keep it and to preserve peace... If we are to avoid war, we must maintain a credible and ready fighting force." He then watched for several hours as crack infantry teams demonstrated their special abilities and later met with Georgia Republican leaders.

Washington editor of the Saturday Evening Post July 15, sources have told UPI's Helen Thomas.

Julie, 26, "wants to do something else now. She does not find the job challenging enough," they said.

The sources also said Julie turned down a television offer from ABC because her husband, David, opposed her becoming a TV personality, and that the couple's marital problems are patched up.

MOSCOW TRIP PLANNED
LANTANA, Fla. (UPI) — Victoria Fyodorova hopes to take a second honeymoon with her American pilot husband in Moscow this year so the couple can "roam the city hand in hand just like my mother and father did 30 years ago."

Victoria, a 29-year-old Russian film star, is the love child of a Russian actress and an American naval officer. She married Pan American Airlines pilot Frederick Poy last week in a secret ceremony and would like to return to the scene of her parents' romance.

Her plans for the Moscow honeymoon were disclosed in a copyrighted article to appear in the National Enquirer Tuesday. She recently came to the United States to visit her father.

Gov. David Boren visited the scene Sunday and said he would decide by mid-week how much federal aid to request.

Boren said he will meet with legislative leaders to obtain permission to borrow money to repair 15 damaged buildings at Oklahoma State University, where costs are expected to exceed $1 million.

WELL BEING PLUGGED
INTRACOASTAL CITY, La. (UPI) — A drilling crew has begun sealing an offshore natural gas well which exploded in fire. The well extinguished itself during the weekend but continued to pour gas, crude oil and water vapor into the Gulf of Mexico.

COPTER CRASH KILLS SIX
LAS PALMAS, Spain (UPI) — A helicopter ferrying persons between land and a ship crashed near the Canary Islands over the weekend, killing six of the seven on board.

Arab Terrorist Attacks Mar Mideast Talks

By United Press International
 Two authoritative Israeli newspapers today quoted senior Israeli officials in Washington as saying there is a 50-50 chance for an Israeli-Egyptian interim agreement as a result of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's conferences there.

Rabin flew home to Israel today from talks with President Henry A. Kissinger. His visit was marred by an Arab terrorist attack on a border village that Israeli Foreign Ministry officials said was aimed at disrupting his peace efforts.

The Arab terrorist raid Sunday killed three Israelis and wounded six in the frontier settlement of Yuval near the Lebanese frontier. The four Palestinian attackers were killed by Israeli soldiers.

Israeli planes struck Lebanese villages in reprisal and both Israeli and Lebanese artillery duelled across the border today.

The Israelis said Arab gunmen hit Metulla, Israel's northernmost town and the nearby settlement of Kfar Giladi. No casualties were reported.

Israeli military sources reported a concentration of guerrillas all along the frontier with the biggest concentration at Aita ech-Chaab, a village just across the frontier and previous target of Israeli ground assaults directed against guerrilla bases.

Kissinger said Sunday after further talks with Rabin in New York that the positions of Israel and Egypt on an interim Middle East agreement have now been fully clarified beyond any possible misunderstanding.

Kissinger would not go into details but said that during the next few weeks "we will be working in diplomatic channels with all of the parties to see whether it is possible to translate these ideas into concrete progress."

He said he did not expect to resume his shuttle diplomacy efforts, which collapsed last March, in the "next immediate weeks."

In Tel Aviv the newspapers Ha'aretz and Yedioth Ahronoth quoted senior Israeli officials in Washington as saying there is a 50 per cent chance for an Israeli-Egyptian interim agreement.

They said Israel expected Egypt to reply within two weeks to proposals on a new pact made by Rabin in Washington.

Rabin, in a television interview on CBS' "Face the Nation," Sunday repeated that if Israel was willing to make concessions, Egypt would have to do likewise to provide the basis for a new interim agreement.

"Unless both sides are forthcoming," an interim agreement with Egypt will not be possible, Rabin said. "One has to be hopeful that it (an agreement) can be reached, but we'll see in the coming weeks."

In Jerusalem, police said they arrested four young people during the night in connection with an alleged plan to attack Arab targets in the eastern sector of the city in retaliation for the guerrilla attack at Yuval.

Queen Elizabeth Pardons Once-disgraced Profumo

LONDON (UPI) — John Profumo, disgraced in a 1963 scandal with party girl Christine Keeler, says his return to favor won't change his new life as a social worker.

"I will be back there at my desk on Monday," Profumo said after Queen Elizabeth II honored him for his welfare work among the poor of London's East End.

The queen made Profumo a Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire Saturday, a dozen years after he resigned in disgrace as secretary of state for war.

"The past is dead," Profumo said of the queen's decision to put him on her birthday honors list. "Everybody has been so kind."

Profumo has been working without pay for Toynebee Hall, a welfare agency aiding the underprivileged of London's East End, since being forced from office in 1963.

"All I want is to retain my anonymity and to continue my work at Toynebee Hall," the wealthy Profumo said.

The discovery that Profumo shared the same mistress with Capt. Eugene Ivanov, the deputy Soviet naval attaché in London, touched off a scandal that rocked the British establishment.

Profumo told Parliament he never had sexual relations with the woman — 20-year old Christine Keeler — but he later admitted it was a lie. He said he had tried to protect the feelings of his wife, actress Valerie Hobson.

The secretary of state for war resigned from public life after Parliament found him guilty of contempt of the House of Commons.

The 60-year-old Profumo spends four days a week helping the needy at Toynebee Hall and two more as a board member of Grendon, Britain's only psychiatric prison.

Profumo said Sunday that he was "in a state of shock" when he learned of the queen's decision to pardon him.

"I am deeply grateful to the queen for her decision to pardon me," he said. "I am also grateful to the queen for her decision to honor me with the Order of the British Empire."

Profumo said he had been working for Toynebee Hall since 1963. He said he had been working for Toynebee Hall since 1963. He said he had been working for Toynebee Hall since 1963.

Dear Consumer
 Thinking of Selling Your House?
 By Virginia Knauer
 Special Assistant to the President and Director

 Department of Health, Education and Welfare

There are five of you now, in a house you originally bought for three—and the place is bursting at the seams. Is this the time for you to buy a bigger house?

Or maybe there are just two of you now, rattling around in a house that's much too big because your children are all off on their own. Should you find a smaller place to live?

One way or the other, you are seriously thinking of selling. But is this the right time?

Before you decide, you will have to ask and answer many personal questions. No one else can help you with them.

But you can get help with the factual questions that affect your family budget. Here are a few of the basic economic questions you should consider before you put your house on the market:

- Is the timing right as far as mortgage money is concerned?
- As a seller, you could be frustrated if you put your house on the market at a time when would-be buyers were having difficulty getting loans. As you know, availability of money for home mortgages varies, depending on the state of the economy, on bankers' estimates and on various government actions.
- To get a line on the current situation—when you consider selling—study the business and real estate news in your local newspaper and consult with real estate agents and with officials at banking institutions that make loans for home mortgages.
- Should I consider financing the mortgage myself?

There are advantages to this, if you can afford it—that is, if you do not need the entire cash sum immediately. For instance, if you do sell your house on the basis

Metropolitan Opera Played Baseball, Too

TOKYO (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera Company has ended the most successful foreign tour in its history after performing some of the world's greatest music and playing the world's worst baseball.

The "Met," they were — down to the last member of the 325-person troupe. The "Mets," they weren't — unless, of course, you consider the early Mets.

The day after they arrived, the Met baseball team played a pre-arranged game with a team from Tokyo Philharmonic orchestra. The score, said a spokesman for the Met, was 39-38. A spokesman for the Philharmonic said it was 38-39.

Their final performance Saturday night in Osaka featured the incomparable Joan Sutherland as Violetta in Verdi's La Traviata — capping an 18-performance tour which drew 40,000 Japanese opera lovers and perhaps 14 million television viewers.

It was only the third foreign tour in the history of the Met, and the first across the Pacific. The first was in Paris in 1906, and the second in the same city in 1911.

The general manager of the Met, Schuyler Chapin said, "This trip has been an unforgettable experience for every member of the company."

The tour was highlighted by a television performance last Sunday, June 8, watched by a nationwide audience estimated at between 12 and 14 million Japanese.

The cast performed free — and opera performers are not known for singing or playing for nothing.

The company was brought to Japan by Chubu Broadcasting Company to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its inauguration of the first commercial programming in Japan. For Chubu, which underwrote the Met's appearance at a cost of $2.5 million, it was not a financial success, but Chubu can reflect in the cultural luster for years to come.

The opera company leaves for home Sunday.

Other agents say that if you put your house on a multiple listing, it will be exposed to more potential buyers.

One way or the other, no consumer should tie himself or herself up with an exclusive contract on a 4- or 5- or 6-month basis. Do it on a month-to-month basis only.

• I've heard that a homeowner may make less profit selling to a buyer who gets a Veterans Administration (VA) or Federal Housing Administration (FHA) mortgage. Why is this?

Interest rates on VA and FHA mortgages are set by law at fixed rates that are usually lower than rates charged for conventional mortgages.

To compensate for these lower VA and FHA interest rates, lending institutions charge special fees called "points." Each point equals 1 percent of the loan; on a $30,000 loan, for instance, a point costs $300.

However, under government regulations for VA and FHA mortgages, only one point can be charged to the buyer. The seller must pay the remaining points. With a charge of six points, the seller would pay five, and with a $30,000 mortgage, the seller's five points would deduct $1,500 from his profit on his house.

Sellers can limit the number of points they will pay. Be sure your contract with the buyer states that you will not pay more than a certain number of points.

If you have any questions about these mortgages, call the local office of the VA or the FHA; ask for home loan information. Each agency is listed in your phone directory under "U.S. Government."

Bailey Staves Off Parker For Pamcel Crown

By PAUL SIMS
Ken Bailey of Amarillo fired a course record five-under-par 65 Saturday, slipped to five over Sunday but still won the Celanese Pamcel Open Golf Tournament championship by one stroke over David Parker of Pampa.

Bailey's 140 total was a shot better than Parker and three strokes better than Junior Salinas of Borger. Al O'Neal of Pampa, a regular player of the Pamcel course, was next at 145, followed by Gary Beddingfield of Panhandle at 147.

Tournament favorite Eddie Duenkel of Pampa shot 71 Saturday but fell to 78 in the second round for a 149 total.

Fairly strong winds Sunday raised most scores over Saturday's. In fact, nobody in the tournament shot better than a one-over 71 in the closing round.

"The wind was certainly a factor," Bailey, who played in the tournament for the first time, said. "It came out of a different direction, south to southwest, and completely changed the golf course around."

"Some of the holes were very difficult," Saturday, Bailey eagled No. 2, a par five. Sunday, he parred it twice. Saturday, Bailey birdied three holes and bogeyed none. Sunday, he picked up one birdie and six bogeys.

Parker was one of just a few players whose scores were close for the two days. Parker, one of Pampa's most consistent tournament golfers, shot par Saturday on the nine-hole course and 71 Sunday.

"I really didn't think I was gonna win it. I heard David Parker was playing real well," Bailey said.

"Someone came over to me on the 18th tee box and told me David hit it in the water on number one and made a double bogey. I thought I was gonna win it then—that was his next-to-last hole."

Parker's second-round score was the best turned in all day. "In general, I was pleased," Parker said.

"I made some putts I needed to make when I needed to have them. And I missed some putts, too—but you always do that."

Parker has won the tournament once and has finished second I don't know how many times—I can't even count them."

Bailey broke the old course record of 66, held by O'Neal and James White of Pampa.

"That's one of the best hitting rounds I've ever had," Bailey said. "I only hit one shot that wasn't a good shot. I missed one fairway and I missed one green."

On No. 2, Bailey's drive stayed in the center of the fairway and his second shot cleared the water in front of the green and landed 20 feet from the hole. He sank the putt for an eagle.

Other winners and runner-up were:
First flight, Buddy Lamberson (73-71-144) of Pampa and Gary Tolbert (72-73-145) of Borger; second flight, Frank McCullough (73-78-151) of White Deer and Ron Siekel (77-76) of Pampa; third flight, Mert Pierce (80-78-158) of Pampa and Billy Hammer (79-85-164) of Pampa, and fourth flight, Leonard Whitely (83-89-172) of Pampa and Marvin Corneite (85-95-180) of White Deer.

Ken Giddy of Pampa and Beddingfield won closest-to-the-hole gift certificates Saturday and Sunday, respectively. Clarence Ward of Pampa and Casper Smith of McLean won prizes for scoring low on "mystery holes."

In each flight, high gross was good for a dozen balls.

Temperatures were in the upper 80's for the round, played in near-ideal weather, except for occasionally strong winds. Because of the wind, scores were generally much higher than those recorded Saturday.

Jenkins Leads IVB

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — You can't blame Tom Jenkins, a pro determined to make it on his own on the tour, if he feels a little strange today even though he is playing on a course "that feels like home."

Jenkins, a three-year veteran of the pro tour, who has never won a tournament or even led a round, holds a five-stroke lead going into today's 36-hole finale of the twice rain-delayed Philadelphia IVB Golf Classic.

Jenkins, 27, who sponsors himself on the pro tour, shot a six-under-par 65 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 134, eight under par, and held a five-stroke lead over Jim Dent, who had a 67 for a 139 total.

But those at 140 included defending champion Hubert Green, Jim Simons, and Johnny Miller. No. 2 on this year's money winning list, who said Jenkins "is a nice guy and a good golfer" but "if I get it going, I could win."

Among those at even-par 142 were Lou Graham, the opening round leader who soared to a six-over-par 77 after a 65.

Legion Rebs Split Pair

Pampa lost to Canyon, 6-1, Saturday in Optimist Park and then rebounded to crush host Memphis, 26-1, Sunday, in weekend American Legion baseball action.

The Rebels are now 2-2 for the non-conference season and open district play at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Optimist Park against Amarillo High.

In Sunday's 26-1 win, every player on the Rebel roster picked up at least one hit. Pampa scored 10 runs in the sixth inning to clinch the win against outmanned Memphis.

Mark Evenkamp went four for five at the plate with a triple and double. Darwin Case went three for four with two triples and a double, and Scott Dunn went three for four.

Case was the winning pitcher, going six innings, giving up only two hits and striking out 10. He was relieved by Curtis Haynes, who struck out two and gave up no hits.

"We did pretty well. I kind of hate to play this kind of game right before we open district. It's just not the same caliber of baseball that we'll see against the teams we play in district," said Pampa coach Ronnie White.

"They don't play that much baseball in Memphis. They do as well as you'd expect them to do, though. But I always like to have a little stronger ball game right before we open district."

Pampa had that "stronger" game Saturday against Canyon, which whipped the hosts, 6-1.

"Canyon put it together pretty well," White said. "They hit the ball when they needed to and played pretty good defense."

Winning pitcher was Jim Doussett, who struck out seven, walked three and gave up four hits in the seven innings he worked.

Loser was starter Mike Knutson, who yielded six hits and was relieved by Haynes in the sixth.

Pampa got its only run in the bottom of the seventh after falling behind 4-0. Dunn reached on an error and scored on a double by Case.

Red Likes Quiet Life

INDIAN LAKE ESTATES, Fla. (UPI) — At night "The Galloping Ghost" can hear the roar of bull gators out on Lake Weohwahapka behind his house and sometimes he feeds their babies a can of dog food.

The lake and the golf course at this isolated retirement community between Lake Wales and Yeehaw Junction are the primary playgrounds these days for Harold "Red" Grange, a man who became a football legend.

"Mostly I do nothing," said Grange, a charter member of the National Football League's Hall of Fame, who celebrated his 72nd birthday June 13. "All I need is a chair and a paper."

The wearer of the famous number 77 at the University of Illinois during the mid-Twenties, Grange quit a sports-casting career in 1963 and retired with his wife, Margaret, to a modest house with a small screened pool in this community of about 350 widely scattered houses.

Except for a half-dozen trips each fall to watch the Chicago Bears—a team he played with and helped coach—Grange's main contact with the sports world these days is through television and the sports pages.

And he sees some interesting contrasts since 1925 when he joined the Bears on Thanksgiving Day.

"They allowed us just 22 players then—two for each position," he said. "By the third or fourth day everybody was banged up. Once we had to put in our trainer, Andy Loteka, at tackle. He had never played football in his life."

And while today such players as New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath are offered million dollar deals, Grange says, "In my day you could get the best college lineman and if he was making $100 a day he was lucky. Most of them had other jobs."

Grange likes Namath and thinks publicity about the quarterback's free-wheeling lifestyle is blown out of proportion.

"I think Joe is a good kid," said Grange, who was an announcer at 312 televised college and pro football games, including 32 bowls. "He's a high class guy and he's done a lot for the game."

With his red-hair mostly white now and his stomach somewhat paunchy, Grange is bitter that the professional players association didn't provide for players who retired before 1958 in its pension plan.

"The kids today just didn't step into this league," he said. "It was the old guys who played for next to nothing who kept the league intact. I feel very bitter about it."

Born in Forksville, Pa., Grange moved to Wheaton, Ill., as a boy and entered the University of Illinois in 1923. During the next three years he made every all-America team, set numerous records and won his nickname "The Galloping Ghost."

At the Illinois homecoming in 1924, Grange said, "I probably played my best game."

That's a remarkable understatement. In six carries during the first 12 minutes against Michigan, The Ghost ripped off touchdown runs of 92, 70, 57 and 43 yards. Late he added a fifth touchdown on a 15-yard run and threw a pass for still another score as Michigan fell 39-14.

Grange played professional football with the old New York Yankees and the Bears before retiring in 1935 to become an assistant coach and a broadcaster. He was in two movies—"One Minute to Play" and

Taxpayer Funds Aid Amtrak

WASHINGTON — Even if you don't ride Amtrak's trains, you've been helping to pay the fare since it began operating four years ago and you will continue to pay for the next two and one-half years, and probably longer.

If that surprises you, it should. For when it was conceived, Amtrak was supposed to pay its own way, with little taxpayer funds.

In one sense the Amtrak story is typical of many government projects whose costs have exceeded original estimates and it provides a good case study of how federal programs can get out of fiscal control. In another sense, the Amtrak experience is unusual because the claims originally made for it by its proponents have turned out to be so exaggerated that it raises serious questions as to whether Congress and the public have been deceived.

Since it began operating four years ago, Amtrak has run up a total of about $940 million in operating deficits, all of it paid by the government. By comparison, in 1970, the Department of Transportation projected that Amtrak's deficits would amount to about $350 million during the first four years of operation.

In its fifth year — 1976 — Amtrak was supposed to make a profit of $10 million. It is now expected to lose another $350 million. In its first five years of operations, in other words, Amtrak's cost overrun will be a staggering 350 per cent.

In addition, Amtrak has run up a debt of about $900 million in government-backed loans — loans which are made by banks but which the government agrees to pay if Amtrak cannot. And Amtrak officials say it cannot repay the loans. That means the government will probably repay them.

Two weeks ago, President Ford signed a bill giving Amtrak $1.1 billion to buy equipment and cover deficits until September 1977.

When all the figures are added up, by 1977 Amtrak probably will have cost the taxpayers close to $2.5 billion.

Some Amtrak officials and other transportation experts believe the public and Congress may have been deceived about Amtrak's eventual costs when the passenger rail corporation was first created. New Amtrak president Paul Reistrup recently told reporters that the public "may have been misled" about Amtrak's future costs when the quasipublic rail corporation was being formulated in 1970 and 1971.

Another Amtrak official, who did not wish to be identified, said projections by the Department of Transportation on Amtrak's costs were deliberately kept low and the revenues high so that the legislation creating Amtrak would be signed by former President Nixon. "It was a con job," the Amtrak official frankly acknowledged. "The DOT people were looking for statistics to show that Amtrak would survive and be viable."

James McClellan, chief Amtrak economic forecaster for DOT in 1970, agreed that there was "deception" in making the economic projections for Amtrak, but said the deception was committed by top Nixon administration officials and Congress, not DOT planners. "We ran a set of honest figures," for Amtrak's future income and expenses, he said, but the Office of Management and Budget forced the planners to make more optimistic forecasts.

After four years of operation, Amtrak has deficits totalling about $940 million. For its fifth year, Amtrak projects a $350 million deficit.

Besides blaming the White House for forcing DOT to paint a deceptively rosey picture of Amtrak, McClellan also blamed Congress for failing to question the DOT projections.

Besides blaming the White House for forcing DOT to paint a deceptively rosey picture of Amtrak, McClellan also blamed Congress for failing to question the DOT projections.

Now that the costs of running Amtrak are finally being realized, questions are being raised about plans to reorganize seven bankrupt Northeast railroads into a profit-making freight-hauling corporation — to be called Conrail. The U.S. Railway Association, the government agency, designing Conrail, projects the reorganized system can turn a combined yearly loss of more than $200 million into a profit in three years, but only with a sizeable federal investment for upgrading track and equipment.

Ironically, the man who made the economic projections for Amtrak — McClellan — is now making the Conrail projections at USRA.

Could Conrail become another Amtrak, running up unexpected, ever-growing deficits that the government would have to pick up? "The possibility you raise is a real one," said Haswell.

Indian Movement Plans To Counter Bicentennial

FARMINGTON, N.M. (UPI) — The American Indian Movement plans a bicentennial campaign to stop American tourists from visiting Indian reservations, according to an AIM spokesman.

July 4 until July 4, 1976. "We have called for an international year of mourning because the United States government is on the eve of year-long birthdate of 200 years," Banks said. "We feel that the 200 years has brought nothing but misery and murder to the Indian community."

Circus Aerialist Falls

Dennis Banks, a spokesman for the AIM national conference, said Wednesday the nationwide campaign against tourism to Indian reservations will be designed to counter the nation's bicentennial celebration because the last 200 years "has brought nothing but misery and murder to the Indian community."

The AIM leader said the anti-tourism campaign will begin in South Dakota, a state he said depends greatly on that industry for its economic health.

"The biggest business in South Dakota is tourism," Banks said. "And we have to stop them."

Banks, saying he did not feel Indians in America have any reason to join the bicentennial celebration, said the moratorium on tourism will run from DENVER (UPI) — A circus aerialist slipped helping his sister balance on a ladder 55 feet above the floor of the city coliseum arena and fell to his death Wednesday night.

"It's terrible," said Howard W. Suesz, manager of the Clyde Brothers Circus. "I've been putting on circuses for 31 years and things like this rarely happen."

Mike Fossett, 26, was taken through a side entrance of the arena and rushed to Denver General Hospital where he was pronounced dead of massive injuries to his neck and back. Clowns were sent into the arena while his body was removed.

"Aerialists are pretty careful," Suesz said. "They take a lot of chances but they take precautions. His (Fossett's) family is a high-wire family. They are experienced."

Fossett's sister, Lucy, seemed to slip on the ladder as the pair was getting ready to start the act and said her brother reached across the ladder to help her regain her balance and fell.

He said Fossett was performing without a net.

Suesz said Fossett was an experienced aerialist and said he was a native of Britain who lived in Sarasota, Fla. A friend of the Fossett's said the dead man's 6-year-old brother was killed a few years ago in an aerial accident in Europe.

Fossett was on one end of the ladder and his sister was on the other when the accident occurred, Suesz said. The ladder was suspended above the arena floor and the pair appeared to be talking when Fossett fell.

The accident occurred during the final night of the circus which opened five days ago.

Papers Out of Space, Pogo's Out of Papers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pogo and his swamp critter pals, nabdag it, are moseying on out of the Okefenokee Swamp, their funny paper home for more than 25 years.

The popular comic strip created by the late Walt Kelly is scheduled to go into retirement July 20, squeezed out of existence by the high cost of newsprint.

"We is free to get ready and sore to go," Pogo, the possum pixie, might say about it all.

"No more Pogo. That's really a sad thing to me," Selby Kelly, widow of the cartoonist, said Saturday.

She and her son, Stephen, continued the popular strip in 200 newspapers after Kelly died in 1973 but publishers have been compressing their comics to save space. And much of Pogo's rich detail has been lost.

Mrs. Kelly, who always called her husband by his last name, said, "When you start cutting down to three columns, it's not worthy of Kelly's quality. Putting a Kelly with as many words and details as he had in a three-column strip makes it look like a postage stamp."

"I've gotten letters from people telling me to stop it because they couldn't read it anymore," Mrs. Kelly said.

Pogo may be resurrected for educational films or cartoon books, Mrs. Kelly said, but Howland Owl, Churchy and P.T. Bridgeport can't compete with newspaper economics.

Alfred Andriola, creator of "Kerry Drake" and chairman of the Newspaper Comics Council, said shrinking columns have troubled cartoonists for a decade.

"They've gradually been cutting us down to cope with the rapid rise in the cost of newsprint," Andriola said. "They've even been cutting off the bottoms of some strips to squeeze them in and it just doesn't make for good display."

Kelly's verbose swamp critters suffered from the shrinkage, Andriola said. "Kelly had a very beautiful, florid style and he felt that if he had to cut down, he would not give the reader what he deserved."

Kelly began publishing his pen-and-ink menagerie featuring Pogo. "The allus s all-fired agreeable" opossum, in the old New York Star in 1949. At its height, the strip combining gentle satire with inspired nonsense was distributed by the Publishers-Hall Syndicate to 420 newspapers with almost 20 million readers.

In 1952, the election year of "I Like Ike," Pogo demonstrated his most endearing political asset—reluctance—in an abortive presidential campaign and "Pogo for President" clubs sprang up on college campuses. Millions of "I Go Pogo" buttons were sold. In France, it was "Je Vais Pogoau."

Kelly was considered a pioneer in the art of comic strip satire and the ridicule he heaped on pompous "congressmen" offended some editors.

When the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., was gaining headlines with his Communist conspiracy campaign, a sinister bobcat named "Simple J.

Malarkey" began investigating dreams in the swamp to find out if they were subversive.

"One editor told Kelly he should save that stuff for the editorial pages," Mrs. Kelly said. "Kelly told him he should save his editorials for the funny pages."

But respect puzzled Kelly more than criticism.

"After Malarkey appeared, he walked into a bar and got a standing ovation. He couldn't understand that," Mrs. Kelly said.

Cartoonist Johnny Hart, creator of B.C. and the Wizard of Id, recalled Kelly's love of saloon camaraderie. "He could drink a helluva lot more than I could and still be able to carry a tune," Hart said.

One of Kelly's most famous lines was a caption for an ecology poster in 1970. Pogo appearing dazed in a forest setting surrounded by garbage said, "We have met the enemy and they is us."

Mrs. Kelly said, "It just looks like there's no solution to this space problem."

If so, the denizens of the swamp no longer will gather on Christmas Eve to sing their favorite Pogo carol:

"Deck us all with Boston Charlie

"Walla, Walla, Wash. and Kalamazoo

"Nora's freezing on the trolley

"Smaller dollar cauliflower, alley garoo."

Railroad Asks Delay

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Rock Island Railroad has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to delay a proposed merger of three other freight railroads on grounds it could give the system a competitive edge with shippers.

The financially troubled Rock Island said Friday the proposed merger of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad and the Texas and Pacific Railway could further damage its efforts to survive.

Rock Island said the Missouri Pacific already controls the other railroads involved in the proposal. Further merger, Rock Island said, would give the line direct access to Chicago area shippers and thereby take business away from the Rock Island.

A Rock Island spokesman said that among the railroad's options to protect its interests would be the inclusion of the Rock Island in the proposed merger or seek compensation for lost freight revenue.

Soviets To Probe Venus

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union launched an unmanned spacecraft Saturday to follow a sister ship blasted into space six days ago and carry out the first twin probe of cloud-shrouded Venus, earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

The spaceships taking part in the unique experiment are scheduled to complete their 30 million-mile interplanetary journey next October.

"The flight will make it possible to obtain more complete data about Venus as well as about physical processes occurring in space," said Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

The ships are Venus 9, launched last Sunday, and Venus 10, which started on its flight to earth's sister planet from an intermediate earth orbit at 7:30 a.m. Saturday (11:30 p.m. EDT Friday).

Tass said equipment on both probes is functioning normally and Venus 10's flight path is close to predetermined calculations.

The launch comes at a time of heightened Soviet space activity. Two Russian cosmonauts Saturday completed three weeks aboard the earth-orbiting Salyut 4 and scientists have recently launched a barrage of weather and communications satellites.

A Soviet Soyuz craft is scheduled to link up in space with an American Apollo in July and Tass said Saturday three weeks aboard the earth-orbiting Salyut 4 and scientists have recently launched a barrage of weather and communications satellites.

Venus 8, the Soviets' last exploration of the planet in July 1972, lasted 50 minutes.

Ford Closes Loophole

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has closed a loophole in the law that granted a potential bonanza to teachers by allowing them to get unemployment benefits during the summer months.

White House spokesmen announced Friday that Ford had signed a $15 billion money bill providing long overdue aid to veterans and Social Security pensioners.

But it also carried some fine print specifically designed to plug the loophole in the federal unemployment legislation Ford signed in December—a loophole that has encouraged thousands of school teachers in a number of states to apply for unemployment benefits during their summer vacations.

The new language amends that law specifically to prohibit such benefits to teachers whose contracts run through the end of the current school year and resume this fall.

Ruby's Liquor Store

Ruby Wampler

"When a town has gotten large enough that I can't drive around the block, it has gotten too big for me," said Ruby Wampler, owner and manager of Ruby's Liquor Store at 866 W. Foster.

Ms. Wampler bought the store in 1973 from Myron Dorman. Before going into business for herself, she was an employee of the Pampa Club for 13 years.

"You meet a lot of people working in both places," Ms. Wampler said, "but it's a bit slower here in the store."

She said that she has "the nicest customers that anyone could have. Every class of people in the world come in here, but they are all great."

Ms. Wampler said that business has been "slow, but steady and growing."

She said that the fact that people can't find a place to live shows that folks are not moving away from Pampa.

"The type of houses that are selling right now are some of those really big ones," she said, "but people are coming and buying them."

Ms. Wampler has been kept up on the housing shortage by customers.

"A week doesn't go by that I don't have someone stop in and ask if I know of any homes for sale," she said.

Customers in Ruby's buy equal amounts of all types of liquor and beer, she said.

"Every once in a while we have a run on things for certain mixed drinks that are the latest fad, but it's generally pretty steady on everything."

Plans for the future might include adding a line of cheeses to the stock at Ruby's, but "I just don't have the room to put any in right now," she said. "I'm trying to find a way to add on."
