Weeds, Rain Hurt Search for Body

By PAMPA NEWS STAFF
Weeds and uncooperative weather continued to hamper the 3-day-old search for the body of a Pampa man, missing in Lake McClellan waters since Saturday afternoon. Johnny Tollison, 19, went under and apparently drowned at about 6 p.m. Saturday as he was swimming toward a pair of water skis at the south end of the lake, rangers reported. Joining in the search today were game wardens from Shamrock, Clarendon and Pampa along with Pampa's fire chief and a fireman. Eight men are working out of four boats. Sunday four divers worked all day in search of the body until the mission was called off in the late afternoon because of an incoming storm. Concessionaire Don Wilson said currents under the water are hampering efforts to locate the missing person. Three and four foot whitecaps were reported at the lake early Sunday. An additional 2 1/2 inches of rain late Saturday and early Sunday filled the lake and caused some water to run over the spillway, officials said. Wilson said that some of the area in the south end of the lake had been low for so long that the recent rise of water resulted in "terrific problems hampering searchers when clogs drag and they were forced to pull them up to remove the weeds." Tollison, according to Ranger J.D. Wilson, had been skiing and wearing a life jacket when he got back into a boat. However, he reportedly removed the jacket once inside the boat, and the crew planned to drive the boat back to pick up the skis, but something reportedly went wrong with the motor. Tollison, according to friends who had accompanied him on the outing, decided he would swim for the skis. As he moved some distance from the boat the winds kept blowing the skis away from him. "All of a sudden he just couldn't make it and started yelling for help," Wilson said. Patti Eickenhorst of 1505 Ripley and Rickey of 416 Texas, both of Pampa were apparently with Tollison when he jumped from the boat. "They threw him a lifejacket, but the wind blew it from him," Ricky, according to reports at the lake this morning, jumped in and tried to swim with a jacket in an effort to rescue Tollison, but became exhausted and was rescued from the choppy waters by another boat. Wilson estimated winds at 40 mph and the water was choppy at the time Tollison went under. Water in the area is 10 to 14 feet deep. Officials said some searching time was lost Sunday morning because searchers were looking in the wrong area.

Ballot To List 2 Items For July Bond Election

By TEX DEWEESSE
Pampa News Staff
Voters who go to the polls in Pampa's special bond issue election Tuesday, July 8, will be handed a ballot with two propositions. Proposition I (for or against): "The use of unexpended bond funds for sanitary sewer system improvements and extensions." Proposition II (for or against): "The issuance of $300,000 general obligation bonds for sanitary sewer system improvements and extensions." Proposition I, if approved, would allow the use of approximately $100,000 which needed for the purpose it was voted eight years ago. Proposition II, if approved, would fund the $300,000 needed to add to the $100,000 for the approximately $400,000 city share of the $1.4 million estimated cost of the new sewage treatment plant. According to all speculative estimates the $400,000 that would be raised by approval of both propositions at the July 8 election will cover the city's portion of the total cost. City officials, notified Friday that plans and specifications for the plant construction have been finally approved, still are awaiting word from the remains as a balance from a 1967 bond issue and no longer Environmental Protection

Weather

Partly cloudy skies with little change in temperatures is the forecast for today and Tuesday. The highs for both days will be in the 90s and the lows in the 60s with a 30 per cent chance for rain.

Industrial Park Purchase Gets Approval

Directors of the Pampa Industrial Foundation today gave final approval to contracts for purchase of approximately one-acre of land adjacent to Industrial Park No. 1. The purchase price of $9,500 included approximately 400 to 500 yards of railroad track. The land and trackage was bought from Mobil Oil Co. The board also approved printing of a new industrial brochure to be distributed through the Chamber of Commerce. Reports were heard on progress of the Sandra Corporation's new warehouse being constructed to supply Gibson Discount and plans to send a PIF delegation to the "Texas First" program meeting in Amarillo July 8.

Goldwater, Proxmire Condemn Proposals to Disband CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing opposite reasons, Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., today both condemned proposals to disband the Central Intelligence Agency. Proxmire, a frequent critic of the military, warned against abolishing the CIA because it would give "free reign" to military intelligence organizations. "Talk of disbanding the CIA is unreasonable," he said in a Senate floor speech. "The result could be dangerous to our security." Goldwater, a stalwart supporter of the military, promptly praised Proxmire's remarks. But he then defended the CIA by comparing it to the military. He said it was "long overdue that members of this body pay respect to this agency... We have to look on the CIA as we look on the military."

"There is a commander-in-chief. When they (CIA agents) are asked to do something or told to do something, that is a command, and they do them whether they like them or not." The CIA resumes today with McGeorge Bundy, national security adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, scheduled to testify. Goldwater said reporters have "assaulted the CIA" so much that other countries "are finding it dangerous to cooperate." Proxmire said recent evidence of abuses by the CIA—illegal spying on American citizens and apparent plots to assassinate foreign leaders—should be put in proper perspective. "The CIA has been involved in a number of serious illegal activities that cannot be defended," he said. "Nonetheless, the vast majority of CIA activities—8 to 9 per cent—have not been tarnished by these revelations."

If the CIA were abolished, he said, military intelligence organizations would then only exaggerate foreign threats, ask Congress for more money and thus increase the defense budget. Furthermore, he said, military intelligence officers are dependent on the armed services for promotions, so the entire intelligence operation would be subject to "military politics." Past and current revelations about CIA "dirty tricks" in conducting a secret war, attempting to subvert foreign governments and spying on American citizens at home still have not answered whether the agency engaged in the dirtiest trick of them all—murder. But Senate CIA committee chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, seems to have no doubt of the outcome. "The CIA was involved in murder plots, murder attempts, assassinations, if you would," he said. "I know the facts." These claims have spilled out atop evidence the CIA was involved in a secret war in Laos between 1966 and 1972, a coup in South Vietnam in 1963, and an effort to subvert the internal politics of Chile in 1973. Knowledgeable sources say the most serious evidence of CIA assassination plots involves a variety of attempts to eliminate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. Sen. George McGovern, D-

S.D., reported on his return from a recent visit to Havana that Castro claims to have proof of more than 100 attempts on his life, some involving the CIA. Castro promised to forward the proof, and McGovern has said he would pass it along to the committee. The committee has summoned John Roselli, a reputed underworld figure, to testify next week about an alleged attempt in 1961 to poison Castro, his brother Raul and their cohort Che Guevara with a slow-acting compound. The plot was said to have been formulated during the latter half of 1960 in the Eisenhower administration. Punctuating the Senate investigation was Thursday's slaying of Chicago syndicate chief Sam Giancana after published reports linked him and Roselli to an anti-Castro plot. Those reports indicated the Senate committee was interested in interviewing Giancana Colby, who previously admitted to a house subcommittee—while the U.S. government was denying any involvement—that the CIA spent $11 million to influence Chilean politics, made another concession this week end. He told the Washington Post Sunday the agency undertook its own, sketchy, investigation of past misdeeds in 1973 and did not tell the White House or Justice Department of the findings. In addition, he said, he ordered the files destroyed.

Tape, Gun Shop Robbed In Biggest Haul Here

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
Burglars hit Auflegers Tape and Gun Shop, 2010 N. Hobart, shortly after 5 a.m. today taking 35 shot guns and rifles — "the biggest haul of the year within the city," Pampa Police Department officers said. The loss, estimated at $3,500, put the shop out of the gun business temporarily, said Lt. Gene Aufleger of the Pampa Police Department, owner of the shop. The burglary was reported to the Pampa Police Department by a nearby resident who said she heard the sound of breaking glass. Entry was gained by breaking the front door, which faces N. Hobart. A tire tool apparently was used to break the glass, it was left behind. Police took fingerprints from it and other areas of the shop. Aufleger said the burglars left only one rifle. "It is hard to say why they left this one," he said. Additional guns will be re-ordered and in stock as soon as possible, the Auflegers commented. Police Chief Richard Mills said he did not think that burglars connected the shop with a policeman. He said the location made it possible to load a vehicle and be out of the city limits within two minutes. The police said Aufleger had a copy of the serial numbers on the guns.

"This will help," he added. The serial numbers are recorded in compliance with the federal firearms regulations. Aufleger said he has been in business for five years and this is the second time burglars have hit the shop. The first time, about two years ago, three BB guns and two rifles were taken. Aufleger said only guns were bothered in the early morning burglary. However, he added that no money had been left in the shop — "only a few pennies." "This is what you call a blue Monday morning," Aufleger said. "My insurance won't cover all of the loss." The police report also revealed that two other burglaries were reported over the weekend and one attempted break in. A Sunday morning burglary at Sissy's Lounge, 758 W. Brown, left damages totaling $650. Entry was gained by breaking the latch on the front door. Coin boxes were torn from machines and the place was "literally torn up," the report read. Joe Fritz of 405 Pitts said someone took 18 tapes and a carrier case from an unlocked vehicle parked in the driveway. An attempted burglary was reported at the Crystal Lounge. Burglars attempted to gain entry by forcing the west door open.

Emptied Gun Racks

Burglars hit Auflegers Tape and Gun Shop, 2010 N. Hobart, shortly before day break this morning, and took 35 shot guns and rifles. Only one rifle was left in the entire stock on hand. Damages were estimated at $3,500. Lt. Gene Aufleger of the Pampa Police Department, owner of the shop, said additional guns will be re-ordered immediately. The burglary is recorded as "the biggest haul" within the city this year.

Ford's Top Economists Claim Recession Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's top economic adviser reports the recession "for all practical purposes" is over and predicts unemployment figures will begin dropping gradually after the summer. Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Sunday unemployment should fall to about 8.5 per cent by January and 7.5 per cent by the end of 1976. This still would be unacceptably high, he said, but recovery must proceed slowly to avoid more inflation. "The recession for all practical purposes is over," Greenspan said in a broadcast interview (CBS-TV, Face the Nation). "I don't think we have yet started into the next phase, which I would consider an upswing, but clearly that is the area into which we are basically moving." Greenspan said the economy was "slightly ahead of what I otherwise would have expected it to be at this point." He said he thought possible oil price increases would have only a marginal effect on the recovery at this stage. He said June unemployment figures would show a decline from the 9.2 per cent level of May, primarily for complex statistical reasons. "Qualitatively, the level is still going to be considered exceptionally high, and it's unlikely it will be going down pronouncedly until well after the summer," he said. Greenspan said the odds were "close to 50-50" the May unemployment rate might represent the peak. He said "the most dangerous potential force to upend this recovery" would be "letting our financial forces get out of control." He warned against large federal budget deficits and "overexpansion of the money supply" that could result in temporary improvement of the unemployment picture at the cost of renewed inflation and another recession in 1977. Nobel Prize winner Friedrich A. von Hayek, in a separate television interview (NBC, Meet The Press), agreed: "The slower the recovery is the better the chances that it will last." He said the only way to cure inflation is to "stop printing money."

Alaska Follows NYC

Everyone who reads the news is familiar with the self-imposed plight of New York City. After a series of spendthrift mayors and corrupt administrations, the city is bankrupt. Without funds to meet its payroll, the present mayor has gone crying to the federal government, itself bankrupt, to bail it out with money either plundered from the nation's taxpayers or created out of thin air via the inflation process.

Apparently headed in the same direction but so well known, because the sordid details are just now coming out, is the State of Alaska. You'd think, with some one billion dollars already paid to it in oil leases by the oil companies who will eventually pump the oil from the ground and send it on its way to the "Lower 48" via the now being constructed Alaska pipeline, that the state would be highly solvent, its coffers running over.

But, according to the highly reliable America Economic Foundation's May 16 newsletter, such is not the case. Even before the pipeline, itself, is finished, before the first barrel of oil has been pumped from the ground, the $1 billion oil lease bonanza has already been frittered away.

"Juneau," notes the foundation newsletter, "has already run through the close of $1 billion it collected from the oil leases, and in spite of a continued influx of pipeline-related capital into the state, the Alaskan government is still spending far more than it is taking in. This year's projected $50 million deficit may well soar to as much as $400 million by 1977 — which is the most optimistic target date for the pipeline's completion."

So, what does the Alaskan bureaucracy do? Tighten its belt and cut expenses? Not on your life, as with bureaucracies everywhere, it looks around for something else to tax. Read on.

Thus, without oil (above the ground) to tax for some time to come, the foundation newsletter continued, "state legislators are seriously considering a new tax: taxes on oil reserves in the ground."

Get it? After having arrived at an understanding with the oil companies and accepting their $1 billion in lease money, the Alaskan government is now considering a power play which, if attempted by private enterprise, would have the entire Congress in an uproar. In short, the proposal now is that the oil will be taxed twice: once while still in the ground as "reserves," and again above the ground once it begins flowing.

Such sneaky tactics, however, may well boomerang.

For, concludes the newsletter, "with the final cost of the pipeline now thought to be headed toward a figure more than six times original estimates (when ecological and environmental zealots stopped its construction), any new taxes on oil companies, which are already hard-pressed for new construction financing, would probably further delay construction of the pipeline — and its potential tax revenues from oil pumped out of the ground."

Typical of the political and bureaucratic approach to problem-solving. Having, like New York City, spent itself into a corner, all the Alaskan powers — that be can think of is to pull another feather out of the private enterprise goose that lays those golden tax eggs. Never mind that, somewhere in this plundering process, the goose will give a final squawk and die, leaving the plunderers to stumble around in the muck of their own ineptitude, like Scarlet O'Hara, they'll "worry about that tomorrow."

Well, New York City's "tomorrow" is here. And don't be surprised if Alaskan oil, when we finally get it, and with tax after tax being added on, costs more than that which we are getting from the Arabs at "exorbitant" prices.

The Suez Reopening

A "tributary of peace and a channel of prosperity among men," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said of the reopening of the Suez Canal. He was not inaccurate. In fact, he was right on the mark. The trouble was, he, a politician, a politician not a little guilty of breaking peace and ruining prosperity, said so. It's those kind of endorsements that hurt.

The Suez reopening does represent a positive step towards peace. It is a truism, nonetheless a truism largely forgotten by moderns, that the way to peace and prosperity is through free commerce, the free play of supply and demand among non-political peoples. "Where goods do not cross borders," said the 19th century French economist Frederic Bastiat, and we could quote it endlessly. "Soldiers will."

Unfortunately, the ceremonial reopening was juxtaposed with the deadly attack of Arab and Lebanese gunners on Israel. The political borders still are crossed only by rockets — Bastiat updated. Sadat still vows, as only half-rational politicians are wont to do, of forcibly taking back Israel, of occupied land. The simplest thing to do would be to forget what he calls a "sacred duty."

The Suez reopening represented his rational half.

He's lifeless that's faultless.

Some say that mayflowers can prevent freckles.

KEEP A TAIL ON 'EM

The Russian Secret Police

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — It is unfortunate that the coverage of the Rockefeller Commission's report on the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) gave too little emphasis to the second chapter on the need for intelligence gathering.

While properly deploring the "plainly unlawful" acts of the CIA in a wide range of areas, the Rockefeller Commission convincingly answered those naive individuals who argue that a democracy does not need a covert intelligence apparatus.

The unanimous report made these points:

1. Without sound intelligence, national policy decisions and actions cannot effectively respond to actual conditions.
2. Without sound, secret counterintelligence activity, the United States Government cannot adequately protect our national security from penetration by the Communist world.
3. Communist bloc intelligence forces are growing even as "detente" is voiced — the Rockefeller Commission estimates over 500,000 such individuals exist currently.
4. Communist countries appear to have developed sophisticated electronic equipment that can monitor and record thousands of private telephone conversations by U.S. citizens, creating the potential for blackmail or espionage.

Noting that "good intelligence will not necessarily lead to wise policy choices," the Rockefeller Commission declared it unrealistic to try to make policy decisions without information about other countries' military capabilities, subversive activities, economic conditions, political developments, scientific and technological progress and social activities and conditions.

And no nation can ensure that estimates of another country's intentions and capabilities are accurate or will not be outrun by some unforeseen events that an effective intelligence organization might unearth, the Rockefeller Commission said.

The Rockefeller Commission report argued that "a vital part of any intelligence service is an effective counterintelligence program, directed toward protecting our own intelligence system and ascertaining the activities of foreign intelligence services, such as espionage, sabotage and subversions.

Witnesses with responsibilities for counterintelligence have told the commission that the United States remains the principal intelligence target of the Communist Bloc.

The report went on to note Communist investments in personnel and sophisticated technology within the United States "to penetrate our intelligence services, to compromise our law enforcement agencies and to recruit as their agents United States citizens holding sensitive government and industry jobs."

The commission said that the number of Communist government officials in the U.S. "has tripled since 1960, and is still increasing."

"Nearly 2,000 of them are now in this country — and a significant percentage of them have been identified as members of intelligence or security agencies."

"Conservative estimates for the number of unidentified intelligence officers among the remaining officials raise the (infiltration) level to over 40 percent."

While there is need for deep concern and legal changes to keep the CIA from violating its charter with illegal acts, the Rockefeller Commission wisely reminded us of the reality of Soviet espionage.

While the group made no mention of the Soviet Union, the KGB (the Russian secret police), or Russia's successful penetrations at high levels in France, Italy, West Germany and England, those are the realities behind the warnings.

The fact that the U.S. in more than 20 years has not unearthed any Soviet penetration in the State Department, Defense Department, CIA or the National Security Council should not lull us into complacency that it can't happen or that it isn't happening at the present time.

Without engaging in scare tactics, the Rockefeller Commission has wisely called attention to the other side of the coin — the role of the CIA in guarding American citizens' rights of privacy against sophisticated invasions by foreign countries.

It is a part of the CIA picture that cannot be ignored except at our own peril.

CASE OF THE FREEBIES Boodle-Grabbing Congress

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, June 23 — What seems to be really uppermost on the mind of the Congress is plain old-fashioned boodle.

Publicly, the high-flown rhetoric is about energy crisis, inflation, unemployment, Middle East, detented, and other pressing domestic and foreign problems. But what the legislators actually are thinking about is latching onto more cushy freebies.

Just before the House shut down for its Memorial Day ten-day recess, it voted itself $10 million in additional fringe benefits. Now the Senate is set to have a go at it.

Stated for a showdown in the Senate Rules Committee on is a scheme, fathered by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, that would add hundreds of high-salaried employees to the congressional payroll at an estimated cost to taxpayers of up to $41 million a year.

Inside word was that likely out come of the closed-door Rules Committee clash is that Gravel's boodle-grab emerge in some form.

It's has been vehemently opposed in any version by Sen. James Allen, D-Ala. He served notice he will fight it on the Senate floor if need be — no idle threat in view of his proven skill and tenacity as a ditch parliamentary brawler.

To Allen, Gravel's scheme is not only bad boodling but actually a deterrent to greater efficiency. I believe it would mean greater inefficiency. Already committee staffs have too big a part in shoving legislation and taking over the work and prerogatives of senators.

More staff begets more legislation, more unnecessary federal programs more bureaucracy. What Congress should do is cut down on federal programs and the federal bureaucracy rather than add more bureaucracy.

Nine Lives
Remarkable thing about Gravel's proposal is that several months ago it was stopped dead in its tracks on the Senate floor by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

He gunned it down with a withering blast of ridicule and exhortation.

Branding it flatly as a "boondoggle," Talmadge declared, "This is a slap in the face of every hard working taxpayer; and insult to millions of citizens thrown out of jobs, and to the elderly and needy whose savings and retirement benefits have been laid waste by rampant inflation; an insult to the intelligence of anyone familiar with the spending habits of the federal government."

Gravel claims 57 co-sponsors — a majority of the Senate. Yet strangely, not one of them came to his support. Not only did they say nothing, but most of them didn't even show up.

This stinging rebuff should have ended the scheme. But it didn't.

Stopped in this attempt to quietly slip it through the Senate without committee hearings or consideration, Gravel, serving his seventh undistinguished year in Congress, the sent his proposal to the Rules Committee — of which he is not a member.

Neither are his three most zealous supporters — Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Bob Packwood, R-Ore., Bill Brock, R-Tenn. But Sen. Allen is — to their unhappy discomfiture.

Booze Hater Wants to Separate the Wet from the Dry

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You besmirched the image of pigs and hogs when you wrote: "The person who hogs the conversation is no less a pig than the person who comes to the table and eats all the food."

Abby, you infer that pigs and hogs are greedy. They are not! If these little four-footed creatures were fed balanced rations, they would not overeat! That point has been proven through research at many universities.

It's a fact that most affluent people eat themselves out of shape. So why downgrade pigs and hogs when people, who are supposed to be more intelligent than pigs, are guilty of the same thing?

If you want to emphasize greediness in people, instead of calling them "hoggish," why not say "peopl-ish"?

G. B. PHILLIPS; HEADLAND, ALA.

DEAR MR. P.: I plead guilty to perpetuating the prejudicial notion that pigs and hogs are greedy. And I hope that every pig and hog who reads this will forgive me.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for telling "Made My Plans" that you, too, carry a card stating that your eyes and kidneys shall be donated immediately on your demise.

If in death, a person can give life or improve the life of another, his existence was all the more valuable.

Visiting a cemetery may help purge the living of their own guilt. But when I am gone, I plan to spare my family those dreary trips to the cemetery to weep over my decaying remains.

Let them remember me by keeping in touch with their new friends who now see through my corneas and live an active life with my kidneys.

Life doesn't end with death. And yes, you may use my real name.

SANDRA KLORES, N.Y.C.

DEAR SANDRA: God is blessing you now.

DEAR ABBY: I am a smoker. I know all the hazards, but I enjoy smoking and will not give it up. I resent all the reformed smokers who have quit for whatever reason and preach to me to quit smoking.

I respect all the "No Smoking" signs. I do not smoke while I am in an automobile with others. I smoke while I am in my office, my home or with friends.

I do not drink. I hate heavy drinkers and detest drunks, yet I am constantly being exposed to drunks. On a long plane ride, for instance, I sat next to a woman who drank all the way. She was so loaded when we landed that she had to be helped from the plane.

Bars, restaurants, theaters, etc., serve liquor, but they want to put up "No Smoking" signs.

I protest!

I would like to see every eating place with a "No Smoking" sign stop serving liquor and beer so I won't have to be around drunks. Also, airlines should have a separate section for drinkers, just as they do for smokers.

I am not asking people to stop drinking; I'm just asking that the drinkers drink with each other and leave us sober people alone.

MRS. T.S.

DEAR MRS. T.S.: You make a valid point. But while obnoxious drunks are no pleasure to encounter, they do no violence to your lungs and the environment. Smokers do.

But Nothing Happened

(Chamber of Commerce) ("Washington Report")
The Associated Press recently sent out this news item:
Jubal Hale admits he's a bureaucrat with little to do. So he spends his working hours reading and listening to Beethoven records at his office.

Hale says it's not that he doesn't try to earn his $19,693-a-year salary as executive secretary of the Federal Metal and Non-Metallic Safety Board of Review. It's just that the board has never had anything to review in its four years. Hale said in an interview.

"We have been expecting to be abolished for over two years," Hale said. "Bills have been introduced in Congress to abolish us. But nothing happened."

According to word experts, the only thing exotic about anything exotic is that it's literally, "from a foreign land."

DEMOCRATIC GOALS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a two-to-one majority, the Democrats cannot hope to achieve their legislative goals in the 94th Congress, says House Speaker Carl Albert.

The dim outlook came 1 1/2 years before the end of the current Congress in a letter Albert wrote to all House committee chairmen Saturday asking for a legislative program that would be offered as part of the Democrats' party platform in the 1976 national convention.

"Try as we might, and we shall cooperate as effectively as we can with the President, frankly we cannot expect to reach these goals during the 94th Congress," said Albert. "This can only happen if the new President we elect in 1976 and the new Congress can reach a large measure of agreement on what our policies and programs should be."

Israel Offers Land

By United Press International
Israel has offered Egypt a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil field in the Sinai Desert in an attempt to eliminate a key obstacle to an interim Middle East peace agreement.

A government official in Jerusalem said Israel hoped the land corridor would meet Egypt's demands for both sea and land access to the oil field along the Gulf of Suez.

"It has to be wrapped in a lot of cotton but I would tend to confirm that a certain territorial continuity has been offered to Egypt between a main point of withdrawal and the oil field," the official said Sunday.

Americans should face up to the past, good and bad, in celebrating the Bicentennial, says the president of the United Church of Christ.

Writing in the July-August issue of A.D. magazine, a joint publication of the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church, Robert V. Moss Jr. said: "There are Americans who would like to go back to the Revolution in a selective way."

"They insist on the right to bear arms when there is no war to squander our natural resources as if these were still pioneer times to resist 'entangling alliances' with nations whose ways are different from our own."

PRIEST DEFIES CHURCH

OBERLIN, Ohio (UPI) — An

Episcopal priest defied his superiors again Sunday by allowing two irregularly ordained female priests to celebrate communion in his church.

The Rev. L. Peter Beebe, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, was threatened with suspension last week for a similar act.

Last Friday, a five-member Ecclesiastical court found Beebe, 30, guilty of allowing Rev. Carter Heyward of New York and Rev. Alison Cheek of Annandale, Va., to celebrate the Eucharist at his church.

The court recommended Bishop John H. Burt, head of the Ohio Episcopal Diocese, admonish Beebe and warn if he again violated the church canons before the church's general convention next year, he would be suspended.

TARGET STATES NAMED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee and his predecessor have named eight states they see as targets for their 1976 candidates.

But they acknowledge that not even a strong run by President Ford will give them control of the Senate, now in Democratic control by a 61-38 margin with one seat vacant.

According to campaign chairman Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska and his predecessor, Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, the GOP has its best chance of winning Democratic seats in Missouri, Michigan, Nevada, Florida, Indiana, New Mexico, Utah and California.

U.S. JETS PULL OUT

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The last American swing-wing F111 fighter bombers left Thailand during the weekend in compliance with the Thai government's plan to phase out all United States forces by next March.

Sixteen of the planes left Korat air base northeast of Bangkok Saturday for Ellis Air Force Base, Nev., to join 13 other F111s that left Thailand June 25.

The departures were part of the plan to reduce the American military presence in Thailand to 19,500 by the end of this month.

The latest withdrawal brought the number of U.S. planes in Thailand down to about 300 at four bases, compared with more than 700 aircraft in the country during the height of the war.

PLOT FAILS

GEREGE, Turkey (UPI) — An assassination attempt against former Turkish premier Bulent Ecevit at a political rally during the weekend failed.

Two persons standing near Ecevit, the leader of the opposition Republican People's Party, were injured in the gunfire from building rooftops. Another 21 were injured when government supporters hurled rocks and bottles at Ecevit and attacked members of his audience with sticks and chains.

Witnesses said the assailants wore emblems of the pro-

COTONOU, Dahomey

—President Mathieu Kerekou was told by his aides that his wife's car was parked outside the home of his handsome minister of the interior, Capt. Michel Aikpe.

Kerekou took his presidential guard and sped to Aikpe's home to find the report true, a government communique said.

"Ordered to open the door, the occupants of the house did not comply. The presidential guard forced the door. The President verified the effective presence of his wife in the company of a completely nude minister," said a communique broadcast on Radio Dahomey over the weekend to stunned citizens of this West African nation.

"The minister, caught in flagrante delicto in the act of adultery, tried to flee," the communique said. "He was shot dead with machine guns by the presidential guard."

"The demands of the revolution extend to all domains including private lines and moral attitudes," the communique said.

The government did not say what happened to the president's wife.

Thunderstorm, Floods Leave Homes Damaged

More than 500,000 persons flocked to Chicago's beaches for relief from the heat of the first official day of summer Sunday, but many were caught unawares by a sudden storm.

The storm produced high winds and hail that left homes damaged and without power.

It was just a sample of the unlikely summer day that brought thunderstorms, tornadoes, hail and floods to various parts of the country.

Foot-deep hail, torrential rains and flash flooding ravaged Goodland, Kan., and its environs, but no injuries were reported. Weather stations reported up to an inch of rain fell in the area in 15 minutes.

The Goodland downpour caused immediate flooding that stranded residents in cars and homes, filled low lying businesses and inundated fields of maturing wheat.

Officers said a steady hail-storm also caused severe crop damage and broke several windows in the town. Residents were ordered by police to stay off the streets until flooding subsided and damage estimates were tabulated.

In the Chicago area, the violent storm left 15,000 persons temporarily without power.

Lake Michigan authorities received numerous distress signals from boaters caught unawares on the storm-lashed waters.

A tornado Sunday night struck near Batavia, Ill. — 35 miles west of Chicago — blowing off roofs and damaging an automobile. Another tornado was later reported 40 miles west of Chicago near Sugar Grove, Ill.

Texas also had reports of twisters. A tornado touched down about 34 miles east southeast of Marfa, Tex., and one-inch hail fell in the southwest portion of Lubbock, Tex.

Thunderstorms today were scattered over the central and eastern gulf coast areas and along the south Atlantic coast.

Isolated showers and thunder showers extended from the Pacific northwest into the northern and central Rockies.

Refugees Used Maids

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI) —

Six refugee children, worked by Vietnamese refugees as maids and babysitters, have been taken by U.S. officials, a Health, Education and Welfare Department official said today.

"We felt the children were not being treated properly," said Don Whitteaker, the top HEW official at Ft. Chaffee. "It's our understanding they were being made to be maids and babysitters."

Whitteaker said the six children, ranging in age from 12 to 17, did not come to the U.S. with their parents. All were staying in camp with neighbors or distant relatives, he said.

Whitteaker said the situation was not widespread and was brought to HEW attention by other Vietnamese in the camp.

There was a report of physical abuse to a 15-year-old girl, but an investigation provided no proof, he said.

Whitteaker said camp officials are exploring foster parent laws with state and federal officials. Camp officials are also considering establishing a special barracks to house children who are taken away from Vietnamese, he said.

Sponsored by Pampa lodge No. 480, he will receive a $2,000 scholarship from the Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias Youth Program fund. He plans to attend Austin College at Sherman, Texas.

All speakers spoke on the topic, "Computer — Boon or Menace to Society."

This is the second winner from Panhandle High School; Leon Breeden won the section 6 contest at Salt Lake City in 1973.

Caldwell accompanied his son to the contest at Tempe.

The winner is one of about 150 outstanding high school seniors who will be honored by the American Academy of Achievements 14th annual "Gathering of the Great" June 26 - 27 in Evansville, Ind., for their accomplishments in science, the arts, sports, business and services.

Rare '31 Station Wagon Goes to Model A Rally

By MELANIE MILLER
Pampa News Staff

Weldon Brogden of 2128 Lynn took his family to Vail, Colo., this week. And he drove them in his 1931 Town Sedan.

He, along with three families from Oklahoma are driving their Model A's to Vail for the Mile High-Tour, a convention strictly for Model A owners.

One of the cars in the group is a 1931 Ford station wagon. Only 12 of them were ever made and Joe Brooks of Oklahoma City owns one.

Rallies and a hill climbing contest are part of the festivities at the convention which should attract 200 families and maybe 300 cars, Brogden said. Brogden has never been to the convention although Brooks, and group members Hugh Thompson and James Roche, both of Duncan, have.

Brogden owns two other cars, a 1929 two-door sedan and a 1931 coupe. He bought his '31 town sedan in Amarillo about nine months ago.

"I got interested in the cars about three years ago after a friend of mine in Oklahoma City got involved in it," Brogden said about his hobby. "Last year we went to Spokane, Wash., for the World's Fair and we took the town sedan."

"We got a lot of stares and funny looks," he added. "The only problem we had was we had to change a water pump."

Brogden's town sedan has air conditioning and got 19.7 miles to the gallon when they drove it to Washington. It drives on low octane gas and can hold 10 gallons.

"Ours is the only Model A I know of that has air conditioning," Brogden said. "We can also go the speed limit."

Brooks is also taking a 1931 Cabriolet and it along with his 1931 Ford Station wagon have won six national awards between them.

"Both of the cars are rare," Brooks said. "The station wagon is the only one of the 12 built remaining that I know of."

Congress Rushes To Meet More Wanted on Death Penalty July 1 Annual Deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every year at this time, Congress is confronted by legislation that must pass by July 1, the beginning of a new fiscal year. This year, like in the others, many of the "must" appropriations won't be passed on time.

To get around the deadline, Congress annually passes a "continuing resolution," which says all the agencies can continue spending at last year's appropriation level or the amount requested in the President's budget for the new fiscal year, whichever figure is lower.

The latest continuing resolution was sent to the White House last week and will be in effect until Congress finishes work this year.

Congress is pushing toward the Independence Day recess, and a heavy workload stands in the way. The House plans to work through Thursday before recessing until July 8. The Senate, however, may not get its recess until a stalemate is broken on the disputed New Hampshire senatorial election.

Senate Leader Mike Mansfield said only emergency bills would be considered in order to devote full time to the question of whether Republican Louis Wyman really beat Democrat John Durkin by two votes.

The only emergency bill working its way toward the Senate is a measure the House is scheduled to consider Tuesday. It would increase the national debt limit from the current $531 billion to $577 billion through Nov. 15.

Money bills to finance such agencies as Health, Education and Welfare, State, Justice, Commerce, Labor and Housing and Urban Development will all come up in the House starting Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today ordered more arguments next term in a North Carolina case testing the constitutionality of capital punishment.

The brief order said only that the case will be restored to the Court's calendar for reargument.

The action means it could be as long as another year before at least 283 persons on death row in 25 states learn whether they will be put to death.

Although the high court has at least 23 capital punishment cases pending on its docket, last fall it selected only one as a vehicle for ruling on whether the death penalty is "cruel and unusual punishment."

That case was an appeal by Jesse Thurman Fowler, convicted of murder in Raleigh, N.C., after he fatally shot an acquaintance following a gambling argument.

The justices gave no reason for not ruling on Fowler's case this term. The action could mean the justices are strongly divided on the issue and feel they need more time to consider their decision.

Another possibility is the effect of limited participation by Justice William O. Douglas, who has been hospitalized in New York recovering from a stroke.

The other eight justices, if closely divided, could prefer to postpone a ruling until Douglas is fully able to debate the capital punishment issue in the court's weekly conference.

The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 in 1972 that the death penalty was unconstitutional as then applied. It said there were too many ways for some to escape death while others did not, resulting in a "freakish" or "arbitrary" application of the law.

No one has been legally executed in the United States since Luis Monge, 48, of Denver was put to death in Colorado's gas chamber June 2, 1967, for killing his wife and three of his 10 children.

Most of the Supreme Court appeals, including Fowler's, were supported by the Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP. LDF said that as of June 10, 283 persons were on death row.

North Carolina led the list with 72 persons sentenced to die.

In other action the Supreme Court today agreed to decide if magistrate court judges must also be lawyers.

The court will hear oral arguments next term in an appeal by a Kentucky man challenging a state law which permits appointment of nonlawyers in small towns as justices of the peace.

This was the second Supreme Court appeal filed by Lonnie North challenging the state law allowing nonlawyers to sit in misdemeanor trials in small towns. In 1972, the court ruled that a defendant is entitled to a lawyer at such trials, but it has never required that a judge also be an attorney.

North's first appeal was sent back to the Kentucky Court of Appeals when the state admitted that North's request for a jury trial on charges of drunk driving should have been granted. The state court refused, for a second time, to reverse North's conviction, this time on grounds North had failed to make the jury trial denial an original basis of appeal.

North Vietnam May Move To Be Top in Indochina

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Vietnam may be moving to become first among equals in Indochina.

Information reaching high ranking U.S. officials tell of pitched battles with Cambodian Communist forces and pro-Communist Laotians.

The administration sources said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have fought Cambodian forces in border regions and seem to be preparing for clashes in Laos, where the Communist Pathet Lao now dominates the government.

The officials said their information came from reliable sources and from Americans still in certain areas of Southeast Asia.

The American officials are not convinced Hanoi really plans to seek an empire of all of Indochina but they said the fear is widespread in Southeast Asia because of North Vietnam's readiness to fight neighboring Communist-led armies.

The administration sources said the Cambodian clashes took place in border regions and could have been caused either by centuries-old frontier disputes or by North Vietnam's refusal to withdraw troops from bases established during the Vietnam war.

Some of the fighting, they said, took place near Cambodia's Parrot's Beak frontier with South Vietnam, which U.S. troops briefly invaded in 1970 to attack North Vietnamese and Viet Cong havens.

The sources said intelligence reports indicate Hanoi's military and political agents are running Cambodia while allowing local authorities to keep up appearances of control.

But in South Vietnam, the officials said, Hanoi apparently intends to support a separate Communist government in Saigon for several years before moving to reunify the country.

They said that would help create the impression reunification, when it comes, will be brought about by the free will of an independent Saigon government and not by pressure from Hanoi.

The officials also said Washington has what it considers absolutely reliable information the enforced evacuation of major Cambodian cities at the time of the Communist victory caused thousands of deaths.

But there are no firm figures. The officials said Chinese advisers are working with Cambodian forces and supplying them with armaments. Until recently, North Vietnam acted as the exclusive military adviser to Cambodia.

CIA Not Ruled Out In Gangster Slaying

CHICAGO (UPI) — Central Intelligence Agency involvement in the slaying of gangster Sam "Momo" Giacana has not been ruled out, according to police.

Some investigators have said they believed the underworld likely killed Giacana to keep him from talking to a federal grand jury investigating crime syndicate operations around the world.

A Cook County grand jury investigating the slaying of Giacana, the 67-year-old gangster who was gunned down in his home June 19, is expected to subpoena several top crime syndicate figures this week.

Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey said his office planned to subpoena crime syndicate leaders who attended a coming home party in suburban Oak Park the night Giacana was slain.

Washington State Runs Own Refugee Program

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Khuong Le, a retired South Vietnamese Army colonel, is learning something Americans know all too well — jobs in this country are hard to find.

Khuong, his wife, two daughters, son, son-in-law and grandchild make up one of the nine Vietnamese families who have been relocated near the Washington state capitol.

The state refugee settlement project, which has placed more than 300 Vietnamese statewide, is the only such operation in the nation directly administered by state government.

"I think the program has been an absolutely outstanding one so far," said Gov. Dan Evans. "It has brought forth from thousands of people in our state a new sense of participation, of giving, of aiding people who have at least a temporary problem."

that he is considering a request for more Vietnamese. He said the state has a list of 200 potential sponsors with no refugees for them to sponsor.

The project has succeeded in getting refugees settled, with complaints from only two local sponsors.

But finding jobs for refugees once they are settled is another matter.

Khuong said four members of his family speak English and three of them, including himself, worked for Americans in Vietnam.

Khuong retired from the Vietnamese Army in 1963 following the fall of the Dem regime. He later spent eight years with an American construction firm. His daughters, Van and Kiem, worked for the U.S. Agency for International Development, and his son-in-law, Nguyen Hoang, was an officer in the South Vietnamese Air Force for seven years.

Hoang is the only member of the family to find work so far — and that was in a local car wash. The job didn't last. He is allergic to detergent.

"I really, really tried, but the formula did not agree with my system and I had to quit," he said.

Now Hoang hopes to enroll in a computer programming course in a vocational-technical school.

Both Khuong and his son-in-law consider themselves better off here than in South Vietnam. "I know we were on the VC blacklist, but that is all behind us now," Khuong said. "We are here to start over again."

Neighbors, church groups and new friends came up with furnishings for the Khuong's apartment in a new low-income housing development.

Khuong said the adjustment to the American way of life was not too bad. Addition of traditional spices nearly turns American food into Vietnamese food.

Police Lt. Al Campbell said the incident was preceded by "an apparent racial disturbance," which officers believed may have had the potential of becoming more extensive than witnesses had indicated. Police said they recovered metal pipes and tire irons scattered in the street and park, which "didn't get there by accident."

Racial Disturbance Rocks Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — A racial disturbance between separate groups of Spanish and black youths erupted in gunfire, killing one youth and wounding three others Sunday, at the end of a daylong rock concert at Roosevelt Park. Two shotgun blasts rang out. Ernest Trujillo, 20, slumped over, dead, as most of the estimated 1,500 persons attending the open air concert began leaving the park, police said.

Also struck by the blasts were Danny Montano, 16, Rudy Maldonado, 17, and Steven Chavez, 15. Montano and Maldonado were reported in serious condition today at a hospitalized in good condition with buckshot wounds.

Police booked Harold Edward Robertson, 21, as a material witness and questioned about a dozen youths in an effort to find two suspects who reportedly sped from the scene in a late model car.

During the fight between the two groups of young people, witnesses said, one person pulled a blank gun and started firing toward the Spanish youths, who chased him toward a car when they became aware the gun had no bullets.

At that point, a companion of the man with the pistol, pulled a rifle or shotgun from the car and fired two shots, witnesses said.

Briscoe To Name Commission Three

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who said he had reservations about creating a new state agency, nearly has completed his three nominations to Texas' first Public Utilities Commission.

The commission will regulate telephone rates and prescribe rules for the regulation of electric and natural gas companies. The commission is authorized under the law to begin organizing Sept. 1, although it will not actually begin regulating utility rates until Sept. 1, 1976.

Briscoe signed the bill Saturday. Texas was the last state to create a utility commission.

"This bill, I believe, is proof of the effectiveness and genius of the legislative process," Briscoe said in a signing ceremony with the sponsors of the bill.

"We came into the session with many people holding many diverse points of view that were extremely far apart on how this problem should be solved. The bill that comes to me today is a bill that the vast majority believe is a good bill and will provide an effective utilities commission."

A Briscoe aide said two of Briscoe's appointees to the commission are decided and "the third is about 90 per cent decided." He said none of the appointees has been cleared with senators who must confirm them, but no difficulty is anticipated.

The new commission will mainly regulate telephone rates, including heretofore unregulated intrastate long distance rates.

To Issue Warnings For Illegal Turns

Pampa Police Department officers will begin issuing warning tickets this week to motorists who make illegal right turns.

"This will be done to warn citizens they are committing an illegal unsafe act," Police Chief Richard Mills said today.

The chief added that in an attempt to reduce the number of motor vehicle accidents the Pampa Police Department composed a list of violations which led to recent accidents. Illegal right turns on red lights head the list.

The law, the chief said, reads that a right turn may be made when a light is red — "only when it is not posted forbidden."

Airlines Asking For Another Hike

By JOSEPH NOCERA
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Last fall's four per cent increase in the price of airline fares is due to expire on June 30, but the major airlines are asking the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) for a continuation of the increase. Moreover, TWA is asking for an additional one per cent increase, while American is asking for a two per cent increase, both to go into effect July 1.

Both the Consumer Office of CAB and the Council on Wage and Price Stability have not been receptive to the requests.

"The airline industry is rapidly pricing itself out of the market," the CAB office said. It added that continued fare increases can only reduce the number of people who can afford to fly.

The Wage and Price Council said, "The solution lies in a reduction in the cost of air travel so as to generate new business, not in further fare increases, in an attempt to recoup from the remaining passengers the revenue lost as a result of declining revenue."

CAB also pointed out that if the rate hike were granted it would mean that airline fares will have risen over 21 per cent in the last nineteen months.

The Department of Transportation, on the other hand, says it "reluctantly supports" the airline rate requests.

In other airline news, Virginia H. Knauer, Director of the Office of Consumer Affairs, recommended that a new system be developed for compensating airline customers whose baggage has been lost or delayed.

"The current regulations have resulted in a number of consumer abuses," she said in a recent news release.

Knauer suggested that airlines be held liable for certain damages occurring to baggage. She also recommended that additional baggage insurance be made available to customers if they are going to be carrying expensive or fragile items.

She noted that many consumer complaints about reimbursement losses involve expensive items which the consumer thought were covered but the airline said weren't.

Banks, credit card companies, department stores and local merchants are all moving toward a new system of billing called "descriptive billing" — in which sales slips that verify a customer's purchases are no longer included with bills.

Under the descriptive billing system, the consumer is sent a printed statement in place of the sales slips that lists the purchases made and the date of purchase. But, according to the National Observer, this new system may make it more difficult to decipher bills because customers may have trouble recalling the items purchased and the amounts paid.

The billing statements provide no description of the goods or services purchased, and, says the newspaper, some Master Charge items are listed only as "purchase."

BankAmericard and Master Charge, two of the largest credit card companies, are both relying heavily on the (his new system to save them money. A BankAmericard spokesman said that, "We'll be keeping a million pieces of paper per day out of the mail" by not sending sales slips. The company expects to save between $14 and $17 million with the new system.

The Camelback Inn, a restaurant in Scottsdale, Arizona, has found a way to fight the recession and save food in the process.

According to the Washington Post, that restaurant has begun offering its customers a choice of portion sizes, and has found that a majority of its customers prefer smaller amounts.

The Inn, for example, offers a 10-ounce slab of roast beef which is preferred by 25 per cent of its patrons, while the less-expensive eight-ounce size is ordered by 45 per cent of the roast beef eaters. Thirty per cent of the roast beefers opt for an even smaller six-ounce portion.

In addition, the restaurant no longer pushes out a basket of rolls and dish of butter at each table. Instead it serves a small loaf of bread for two, with one pat of butter for each.

A Department of Agriculture spokeswoman, in a recent speech before the National Restaurant Association, urged other restaurants to "offer a choice of portion sizes and prices to customers."

A recent survey by the Conference of Consumer Organizations (COCO) concludes that nationally advertised brands of bread, such as Wonder and Colonial bread, are no different in quality than the cheaper house brands of bread.

"House-label bread is baked in the same way and in some cases by the same companies as the brand-name breads," said the COCO survey.

The only difference, said the survey, is the price and packaging.

According to the survey, name brand costs 48 to 53 cents per one-ounce loaf, while house-label bread sells for 25 to 35 cents per one-ounce loaf.

Ransom Deadline Draws Near

DAR ES SAIAM, Tanzania (UPI) — A 60-day ransom deadline set by guerrillas holding two American students and a Dutch woman is half over with officials still unable to contact the kidnapers.

"From here on in, it's going to get worse," Joseph Smith, father of one of the students, said. "It seems to drag on and on. You always think something is going to come and it doesn't."

U.S. and Dutch officials have failed so far to get in touch with the kidnapers the left wing guerrillas of Zaire's outlawed Peoples Revolution party.

An official who asked to remain anonymous accused Zaire troops Thursday of impeding efforts to reach the kidnapers by keeping civilians out of the region controlled by the guerrillas.

The guerrillas abducted the hostages from a Tanzanian wildlife reserved last month and took them across Lake Tanganyika to a jungle hideout in neighboring Zaire.

The hostages, reported to be under heavy guard in a mud hut village, have written letters appealing for their governments to do everything possible to obtain their release.

The guerrillas have threatened to kill the hostages unless Tanzania pays $500,000 in ransom, hands over an assortment of weapons and frees a group of jailed comrades within 62 days.

Tanzania has rejected the demand.

On Thursday, the 3rd day of the deadline diplomatic sources said the situation was deadlocked. "As far as finding an effective intermediary to deal with the guerrillas, the situation is stagnant," one source said.

"The Tanzanians have still not budged on their refusal to meet the guerrillas' demands."

YOU DESERVE THE FACTS!

We are accused by the Retail Clerks of freezing wages but not freezing prices.

FACT: On January 5, 1975 our employees with 3 years supermarket experience received wage increases ranging from 45¢ to 78¢ per hour;

FACT: These same full time employees are paid a base rate of $4.35 per hour. When you add the company paid contributions for pension, health and welfare, holidays and vacation benefits to this $4.35, the employee's pay is increased to $5.00 per hour.

FACT: With the current sluggish economy and continued inflation we do not think it would be good business judgment to grant an additional increase in wages and benefits, at this time, which would jeopardize our ability to offer you competitive prices in this area.

FACT: We do recognize the need for our employees to be paid a fair wage. We feel that $5.00 per hour is fair. We do not believe that an additional wage increase is warranted during the remainder of this agreement.

FACT: We Have Not Frozen Prices! We Have Lowered Prices! 786 prices in Pampa have been reduced in the last 6 weeks. These lower prices are on basic items such as: bread, soft drinks, cookies, milk, ice cream, tuna, oleo, sugar, cake mixes, flour, shortening, bleach and biscuits.

FACT: Rising costs in the form of higher wages and benefits means rising prices. How Much Can The Consumer Stand?

We are sorry for any inconvenience this strike has caused you but we strongly believe that some inconvenience now is better than higher food prices tomorrow.

GM Minicar Gets Top Mileage

DETROIT (UPI) — The new minicar General Motors will introduce this fall should dominate the government's fuel economy rankings, GM President E.M. Estes said Saturday. The city driving results obtained in Environmental Protection Agency tests should top anything the small foreign cars show, Estes said. The best fuel economy in city driving now is Volkswagen's Rabbit at 24 miles per gallon.

"We think that's the really important number because that's what the customer gets most of the time," Estes said. "I don't know if we'll beat the Rabbit on the highway, but we're hoping to have a city-highway figure as good as anybody."

The Rabbit now has a combined city-highway number in EPA tests of 29 m.p.g. while GM's highest-mileage car, a subcompact Vega, is rated at 28 m.p.g. Estes said the GM minicar should be "close to 30 m.p.g."

Estes remained closemouthed about details of the new small car, but did say it definitely will be introduced in late September or early October with the remainder of the Chevrolet line.

Still identified only as the T-car, the new auto is similar in size and style to the VW Rabbit and other minicars now being introduced. With a sloping front hood and square back, the GM minicar also will be a three-door model, the rear hatch opening into a cargo area.

Unlike the Chevrolet Monza, introduced last year and loaded with options listed as standard equipment, the T-car will be basic transportation. But there will be a number of options available.

While he wouldn't discuss price, Estes said, "We have a real job to do to convince the foreign car buyer that our car is equal to or lower in cost and equal to or better in fuel economy." Sources indicate the car probably will be priced at about $200 to $300 below the current Vega which sells for $2,800. The new minicar will go into production in August at GM's Wilmington, Del. plant.

Solar Observatory Launched To Unravel Space Mysteries

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A huge remote control telescope designed to study the sun and perhaps unravel some of the mystery of the "black holes" in space was blasted into a "perfect" circular orbit 343 miles above earth Saturday. The one ton Orbiting Solar Observatory 8, last of a series of space telescopes which first went into operation in 1962, began transmitting data within an hour after launching.

Three of its eight separate data gathering systems were activated Saturday morning and the remaining five were to be turned on within the next four days, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Along with experiments designed to broaden man's knowledge of his prime energy source, the sun, OSO 8 will attempt to locate "black holes" in space, which are thought to be huge stars many times the size of the sun which imploded into masses a few miles in diameter, so dense that all light is stifled.

Fed Wants To Compensate For Spills

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An assistant secretary of the Interior Department said Friday the Ford Administration would shortly send Congress legislation to compensate states for offshore oil spill damage. Assistant Secretary Royston C. Hughes said the legislation would propose establishment of a fund from offshore oil revenues to pay coastal states for pills such as the Santa Barbara, Calif. slick several years ago.

The federal government certainly realizes that the risks and potential costs generated by offshore development will have to be faced primarily by those states off whose shores the development will take place," Hughes said.

Hughes, addressing the American Association of Petroleum Landmen, said the fund would provide immediate assistance to states with spills, but whoever caused the spill would have to replenish the fund.

Hughes said the Interior Department was conducting a study with two other federal agencies to develop methods for estimating the onshore impact of offshore oil development.

In addition Hughes said leasing on the outer continental shelf was an integral part of the President's energy policy.

Cover Girl, Burger Baron Wed in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Million dollar New York cover girl Margaux Hemingway, 20, and hamburger baron Errol Wetson, 34, were married Saturday and later honeymooned in the favorite hotel of her late grandfather, Ernest Hemingway.

The couple wore pristine white—Margaux a ruffled cotton eyelet Victorian-style gown and the mustached groom a white suit, shirt and tie. They said "oui" in a civil ceremony in the office of Paris's first district near the Louvre museum.

Then the ranch girl from Ketchum, Idaho, giggled and joked her way through a champagne reception for the small wedding party at the Hotel Ritz where "Papa" Hemingway was a familiar fixture beginning in the 1920's.

The father of the bride, Jack Hemingway, said he thought it fitting that his daughter, who soared to sudden fame as a New York's highest paid model, should honeymoon in the hangout of an earlier famous Hemingway.

"When French troops entered Paris in August 1944 Papa came in from Rambouillet and first liberated the Explorers' Club," said Jack with some hearty laughs.

"But his major objective was the Ritz. They came in and assured security—making sure nobody else could get to the wine cellar."

The bride's mother, tall and languorous in a pale blue trouser suit, added, "Papa got on the roof with a submachine gun. The Ritz was always his great stop in Europe."

The six-foot tall, dimpled bride kissed the calm bridegroom for photographers and then announced her views on marriage: "Two make one. You know what I mean—everybody does it."

To add to the all-white scene, two white doves fluttered in a wicker cage at both the civil ceremony and the reception. They were a gift from the best man, New York businessman Irwin Tauber.

As the wedding reception guests filtered out of the 18th century hotel, coming in was another figure from the Ernest Hemingway era, Charlie Chaplin. His wife, Oona, helped him out of their limousine and then he shuffled slowly up the steps.

Allen, Wilson Vows Repeated Saturday

The marriage of Miss Pamela Joyce Allen and Jack G. Wilson was solemnized at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at First Christian Church.

Dr. Ralph Palmer, pastor, and the Rev. Billy M. Wilson, pastor and father of the bridegroom, of Harrah Methodist Church, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Parent of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Allen, 1217 E. Kingsmill and parents of the bridegroom are the Rev. and Mrs. Billy M. Wilson, 1720 Beech.

Wayne Whaley played pre-nuptial selections and organist. Mrs. Danny King, accompanied Miss Sandra Ellen Vance as she sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a satin serenade gown with built-in train. The bodice and sleeves were designed with lace and inserts of baby blue satin ribbon and lace scallops edged the empire waist. The gown was designed by the bride and created by her mother.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Triska Allen, Pampa, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Karla Ann Lewis, Quanah, was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Teresa Carlene Allen, Amarillo, cousin of the bride. All attendants wore floor-length dresses of soft blue dotted Swiss and white evening gloves and garden hats.

Miss Agnelia Wilson, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Sheila Allen, Amarillo, cousin of the bride, were flower girls carrying white baskets. Matt Jones, Ulysses, Kan., was ring bearer and candle lighters were Miss Sherry Kyar, Beaver, Okla., and Miss Tamara Jones, Ulysses, Kan., both cousins of the bride.

Gary Stewart, Hedley, served as best man and groomsmen were Terry Allen and Tommy

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

All of us hate those wobbly, gobby candles. Since most of them are hand-dipped nowadays, it seems that no two bases are alike.

We have wrapped foil, rubber bands and different kinds of tape around them, and here's a new one I ran across recently while cleaning ten of them.

I tore a slip of paper towel about an inch wide and dipped it in water and while thoroughly wet, wrapped it around the end of the candle, bandage-style. (Kinda fold the end over and crumple it down in the holder.)

The good part about this was, because the paper was wet, it stuck to the candle itself, and did not slip. The paper will eventually dry, thus making a sort of papier-mache to hold the candle.

And yes, candles do have to be cleaned, especially if they sit out a long time, because they accumulate carbon. The best way I found to do this was to pour a recommended dry-cleaning solvent on a facial tissue and just wipe away. (Just follow safety precautions on the can.) You ought to see that old goop come off.

Washing with a detergent poured on a paper towel will do the same thing, but not nearly as fast or quite as good.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Just a small hint that has helped me a lot on family camping trips.

I've found that the lids of five-quart plastic ice cream pails make very good paper plate holders.

Very inexpensive, too.

Mrs. Robert D.

Dear Heloise:

To sew elastic on by hand was almost more than I could do as I was trying to hold it stretched in one hand while using a needle in the other.

I discovered I could clamp the work in a pair of embroidery hoops and have my problem solved.

Beulah Barker

Dear Heloise:

I have a hint for you when you drive on toll roads or bridges. I noticed that before we get to the toll booth, my father puts his coins under his watchband so he won't hold up the line.

Leslie Driver
Age 11

Leslie, you sure have a smart daddy.

Thank you for writing and sharing this with us.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My mother gave me this hint. When in a hurry and you don't have time to fold the diapers when they get dry, she suggested I fold them in half as I take them out of the dryer and just stack them in a pile. (My baby used the oblong, gauze kind.)

When you do get ready to fold them, half the work is already done. And if you don't get them folded before baby needs them, they are in a neat stack and it only takes a few seconds to complete the folding.

Busy Mother

UNWRITTEN LAWS

Dear Heloise: I am very much amused by the "Unwritten Law" feature in your column. My friends and I were discussing it and we agreed that children must host secret meetings on "How to Blow a Parent's Mind." (Not really.) Here's an unwritten law at our house.

The go-signal for snacking must not be raised until the table is free of crumbs, everything has been put away, and the dishwasher turned on.

Carol

P.S. None of my bottomless-pit children is overweight. They can have their cake and eat it. (Drat!)

You're priceless!

Home Ceremony Unites Miss Eller, Earnest Arko

Georganna Jean Eller and Earnest Leopold Arko were united in marriage May 30. A high noon wedding in the Eller family home was the scene of the nuptial ceremony with Tom Chapin, Assistant Director of the West Texas State University Bible Chair, officiating.

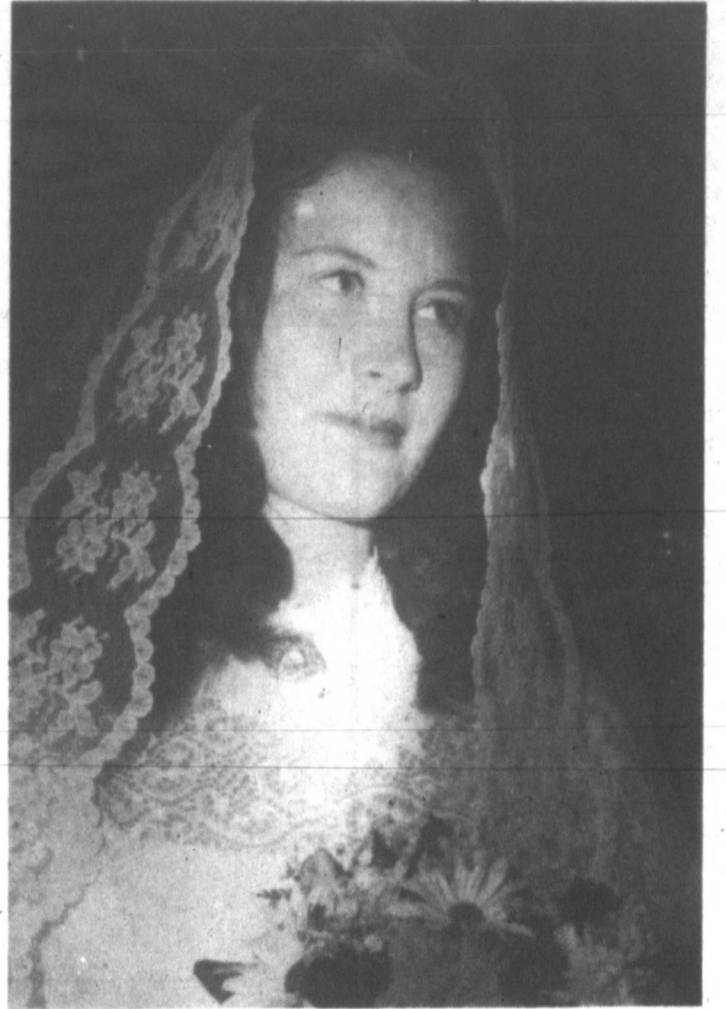

Miss Katy Meaker read a passage from the Book of Ruth and Miss Marvalene Anderson provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of Venetian lace with empire waist and high Victorian neckline. The long sleeves and semi-formal train were edged in soft pleats of sheer organza. The heirloom mantilla veil of bridal illusion tulle was accented with wide scalloped floral Venice lace outlined with white satin piping, and fell into a long train. A traditional wisp of the designer's hair was carefully sewn into the top of the veil. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of old-fashioned flowers over a white Bible. A tatted lace handkerchief of her great-great aunt provided the touch of something old, and the traditional blue garter was also used. An Indian Head penny worn in the bride's shoe was also worn by her great-grandmother, her grandmother and her mother at their weddings.

Miss Jill Caldwell, maid of honor, was attired in an empire waist gown of turquoise and lavender flocked floral voile.

William Arko of Eagle Nest, N.M., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Gary Eller, brother of the bride, seated the guests. Miss Kit Meaker presided over the registry.

A luncheon was served to the members of the wedding party. The table was decorated with a white Venice lace cloth over turquoise and the wedding cake, topped with an old-fashioned floral arrangement, provided the centerpiece.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Eller of Panhandle. She is a 1975 graduate of Panhandle High School where she was active in many clubs and organizations.

She is listed in Who's Who of American High School Students for 1974-75 and plans to enter Trinidad State Junior College, majoring in Business Administration. She will teach piano lessons in their home.

Mr. Arko is a graduate of New Mexico Highlands University at Las Vegas, where he received his degree in industrial arts. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Arko of Eagle Nest, N.M.

The couple will reside at 700 Moulton Avenue, Raton, N.M., where he is employed by the Kaiser Steel Corporation.

Lane, Lister Vows Said In Skellytown

Miss Paula Kay Lane became the bride of Steven Lynn Lister at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday June 3, in the First Baptist Church, Skellytown.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey L. Lane, Skellytown and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Lister, Texline.

Rev. Milton Thompson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Sheila Timmons, White Deer, organist accompanied Miss Kathy Weese, White Deer as she sang. The bride sang "Let It Be Me."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown by Bridal of white scalloped Chantilly lace over imported white satin, styled with long tapered sleeves and a high neckline. The semi-train skirt fell from a high empire waist trimmed in a satin ribbon which fell in streamers to the floor.

The bride presented her mother with a long stemmed pink rose bud and a kiss as she approached the altar. As the couple left the altar, she presented the bridegroom's mother with a long stemmed rose and a kiss.

Tina Rhodes, was maid of honor and bridesmaid was Marla Mitchell, both of White Deer, they wore identical floor length gowns in colors of pink and lilac.

Jodie Tomsu, Amarillo, was flower girl and Kyle Lane, Clayton, N.M., nephew of the bride, was ringbearer. Lighting the candles were James McElhaney, Charleston, Ark., cousin of the bride and Billie Youngblood, Happy, nephew of the bridegroom.

Possibly the finest deal that I have ever seen is the one that follows. It features a "little thing" that illustrates what top-notch play is really all about. Sitting South was Harry Fishbein, of New York City North-South vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass
 3♥ Pass 4♦ Pass
 4♣ Pass 6♣ Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

West's queen of clubs opening lead was won by dummy's ace, after which the five of clubs was ruffed immediately in the closed hand. Declarer next cashed the ace of trumps, and the bad news was revealed: East had a sure trump winner.

Next came the queen of hearts, after which the diamond ace was cashed. Then came the king of diamonds. If East trumped this lead, he would be end-played; if he returned a trump, dummy's ten would serve as an entry for the cashing of the ace and king of hearts. If, instead, East played back a heart, South would be able to discard his nine and ten of diamonds on the board's ace and king of hearts.

And if East, upon ruffing the diamond king, led a club, South would lose away the nine of diamonds as he ruffed the trick in dummy. On the ace of hearts he would then get rid of his diamond ten.

So East did not ruff the diamond king, discarding a club instead. Next came the queen of diamonds, and East tossed away another club. South then led a fourth diamond, which he ruffed in dummy. East overruffed, but South was now home safely, since his fifth diamond was a winner.

On superficial analysis, the hand does not appear to be a difficult one to play correctly. But just try playing the hand without the "little thing" of trumping the five of clubs at trick two. That is, at trick two lead a trump to your ace. Then cash the queen of hearts (as was done), after which play the ace and king of diamonds. East will ruff the diamond king, and exit by leading a club, which will be ruffed in the South hand.

It will now be impossible to cash dummy's two top hearts, and eventually a diamond trick will have to be lost.

Graham, Mahaffey To Play For Open Money

By PAT KILLEN
MEDINAH, Ill. (UPI) — The diamond anniversary U.S. Open winds down on an 18-hole playoff today between Lou Graham, a handsome 11-year golf veteran who has won only two tournaments in an unremarkable career, and John Mahaffey, who in five years has never been in a playoff.
Graham and Mahaffey, more survivors than victors in Sunday's final round, will tee off today for the Open title, with the winner to get $40,000 and attendant fame. The loser gets $20,000.
Graham, 37, from Nashville, Tenn., set the tone for the match by turning to Mahaffey Sunday and saying, "I'm sure John will be ready. I hope we both play well."

It will be Graham's third playoff and he's 1-1, winning a sudden death playoff with three others at the L&M Open in 1972 and losing the New Orleans Open in 1973 in a playoff with Jack Nicklaus.
Mahaffey, a 27-year-old from Houston, Tex., said he "has a perfect play off record — it's my first playoff."
Although Mahaffey was only one previous victory, the 1973 Sahara Invitational, his record has been more impressive this year where he ranks ninth among the money winners with $101,665 compared with Graham's $46,011 for 28th place.
But anything can happen in this Open, which saw Jack Nicklaus finish with three straight bogeys, young Ben Crenshaw ruin his chances by hitting a water ball on the 17th, Frank Beard blow a three stroke lead and come in with a 78 and Lee Trevino finish off with a duffer's triple bogey on the 18th hole.

Graham and Mahaffey finished in a tie for first at 287, three-over-par on the tough par-71 Medinah No. 3 course.
Graham, looking like the "good guy" in his white hat and shirt, was primed to win it all if he could just get it together and shoot a par-four on the 406 yard final hole.
Playing it safe, he drove with a two iron and had a "sidehill" lie.
On his second shot, he thought the ball would pull and when he "hit it solid," the pull didn't come. "It landed on the bank and jumped into the bunker," he said.

Graham still had a chance to get "up and down" in two for the title but then with millions watching on television, "I hit a pathetic bunker shot," he said, which left him "18 to 20 feet" from the pin.
Mahaffey, who shot a 71 and had been in the club house for almost an hour, came out to the green to watch Graham's trial. He stood there, biting his lip, wondering if he still had a chance to finish in a first place tie.
Graham sighted his putt and then, "I executed it short," he said with some finality. "I was on line going up the hill and I left it short about 10 inches. I couldn't take any real big charge."

The dapper pro said, "I was not satisfied, that's for sure. But I don't feel emotionally let down. I'll come back and try to win tomorrow."
No one had a good explanation for Sunday's final round in which only Bob Murphy, with a 69 and last year's Open champion Hale Irwin with a 70 broke par. Their finishes tied them for second place at 288, four-over-par, with the hapless Crenshaw and Beard.
"I've never been in a U.S. Open that was easier than this one," said Irwin. "Everybody is throwing it away... I just don't understand."

Nicklaus was no less stunned. Noted for his final day charges, the big bear was moving along pretty well, two-over-par, when he lost it all and took bogeys on the last three holes.
Nicklaus finished with a one-over-par 72 for the day and a 72-hole total of 289 to tie Britain's Peter Oosterhuis for fourth place.
Arnold Palmer, the people's choice, played with Nicklaus and the two drew the biggest crowd, but neither could put together the necessary charge. Palmer shot a 73 to finish at 290 and tied with Pat Fitzsimons, and Tom Watson, the two first round leaders, who both threw it away Sunday with final 75s.

Falcone No-Hit Bit Fails, Still Beats Braves

UPI Sports Writer
A fight between Willie Montanez and Vic Correll delivered quite a knock-out punch to the dreams of rookie Pete Falcone.
Falcone, a 21-year-old left-hander for the San Francisco Giants, was working on a no-hitter against the Atlanta Braves for 7 2/3 innings in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday when a fight erupted near first base between Montanez, the Giants' first base man, and Correll, the Braves' catcher, who had drawn a walk. Both benches emptied and it took some time for order to be restored.
When everything had finally calmed down, Falcone found he had lost his concentration and was touched for a single by pinch-hitter Rod Gilbreath, thus ending his dream of becoming the first National League rookie to toss a no-hitter since Burt Hooton of Chicago in 1972.

Ralph Garr followed with another single and, though Falcone got through the inning without a run scoring, the Braves got to him for a pair of runs in the ninth before Gary Lavelle was summoned by Giants' manager Wes Westrum to get the final out and preserve the Giants' 5-2 victory.
"I don't blame anyone," said Falcone, "but I guess the fight really did break my concentration. I had been thinking no-hitter since the second inning. But, I got madder about losing the shutout in the ninth."
Montanez said Correll got angry when he tapped him on the rear with his glove and the Braves' catcher threatened to knock him down.
"I can't let someone talk to me like that," said Montanez, who was ejected from the game. "I have to defend myself."
"I told him to stop twice," said Correll. "When he persisted, I swung, but I missed with my roundhouse. I wound up getting the worst of it."

The Braves scored seven runs in the first inning of the opener to win 8-2. All seven of the Braves' runs came off rookie Ed Halicki, who got only one out while facing eight batters. In the inning, Dave May singled home a run, Darrell Evans doubled in a run and Biff Pocoroba singled home a pair.
Rookie reliever Mike Beard took over from Mike Thompson in the third inning and allowed only five hits the rest of the way to gain his first major league victory.

In other National League games, St. Louis defeated Chicago 7-2, Pittsburgh blanked New York 2-0, Los Angeles edged San Diego 3-2, Houston beat Cincinnati 8-4 and Philadelphia downed Montreal 4-3 after losing the opener 4-0.
In American League action, New York topped Detroit 5-3, Cleveland nipped Milwaukee 3-2, California blanked Texas 1-5 and 9-2, Baltimore shutout

Boston 3-0 then lost 5-1 and Oakland took two from Kansas City, 7-6 in 12 innings and 8-1.
Cardinals 7, Cubs 2
Lynn McGlothen allowed only five hits and Willie Davis and Ted Simmons each drove in a pair of runs to spark the Cardinals' victory over the Cubs. Davis collected three hits, including a triple and a double, while Simmons chipped in with a double and his ninth homer.
Pirates 2, Mets 0

Dodgers 3, Padres 2
Bill Buckner doubled in the eighth inning and scored when first baseman Willie McCovey booted Willie Crawford's grounder to give the Dodgers a victory over the Padres. Mike Marshall was the winner, allowing only two hits in three innings of relief.

Astros 8, Reds 4
Cliff Johnson and Cesar Cedeno hit homers in support of Larry Dierker as the Astros whipped the Reds. Greg Gross and Enos Cabell had three hits each for the Astros who collected 15 hits. Dierker was touched for 11 hits, including a solo homer by Tony Perez.
Phillies 9-4, Expos 4-3

Tony Taylor doubled home Tommy Hutton with two out in the ninth inning to give the Phillies a victory in the nightcap after the Expos had won the opener behind the pitching of Steve Rogers. Greg Luzinski hit his 18th homer to tie the game in the ninth before Taylor singled home the winning run off reliever Chuck Taylor. Rogers contributed two hits, scored a run and drove in two.

Angels' Figueroa Two-Hits Rangers

UPI Sports Writer
Baseball history is filled with examples of star pitchers who were given colorful nicknames.
Christy Mathewson was "Big Six"; Walter Johnson "The Big Train"; Carl Hubbell "The Meal Ticket"; Cliff Melton "Mountain Music Melton"; Sal Maglie "The Barber" just to name a few.
And now we have "Senior Stopper."
Ed Figueroa is a 26-year old right-hander with the California Angels who may never be as famous as those stars, but who has earned his unusual nickname because of a curious statistic: Figueroa has won six games — each of them after a California loss.
A native of Gales, P.R., the six-foot, 190-pound Figueroa pitched a two-hitter and retired batters in succession during one stretch as the Angels won 1-0 over the Texas Rangers

Sunday. Figueroa, who out-learned Ferguson Jenkins, lowered his earned run average to 1.95 and, odd as it may sound, may soon be challenging strikeout king Nolan Ryan as the ace of the California staff.
The Angels scored the only run of the game in the fourth inning after Bruce Bochte was safe on shortstop Roy Smalley's two-base throwing error, which enabled Bochte to reach third. Joe Lahoud followed with a single.
"Senior Stopper" struck out two and walked two in raising his record to 6-3. Two of his victories have come after the Angels lost two straight games and the other four after they lost their previous game.
Boston defeated Baltimore 5-1 after a 3-0 setback, the New York Yankees beat Detroit 5-3, Cleveland shaded Milwaukee 3-2, the Chicago White Sox topped Minnesota 6-5 and 9-2, and Oakland swept Kansas City, 7-6 in 12 innings and 8-1 in other American League games.

In the National League it was San Francisco over Atlanta 5-2 after an 8-2 loss, Pittsburgh 2 New York 0, Philadelphia over Montreal 4-3 after a 4-0 setback, St. Louis 7 Chicago 2, Houston 8 Cincinnati 4, and Los Angeles 3 San Diego 4.
Orioles 3-1, Red Sox 9-5
Mark Belanger singled in a run and Don Baylor hit a two-run homer for Baltimore as Mike Cuellar squared his record at 5-5 with a six-hitter in the first game. Then Luis Tiant pitched a seven-hitter, striking out 12 for his 10th win, to earn Boston the split.

Yankees 5, Tigers 3
Sandy Alomar, a 198-hitter, hit a two-run triple in the fourth inning for the big blow in the Yankees' 12th attack. Larry Gura won his second game with the help of 123 innings of relief from Dick Tidrow. Gary Sutherland had three hits for Detroit.
Indians 3, Brewers 2
Reliever Ed Rodriguez hit Rico Carty with a pitched ball with the bases filled and two out in the 10th inning to give Cleveland only its third win in 15 games. Tom Buskey shut out Milwaukee for the last 3 2-3 innings to even his record at 3-3 while Ed Sprague was the loser.

White Sox 6-8, Twins 2
Bob Coluccio won the first game with a 10th-inning double and had three hits in the second game in leading the White Sox to their sweep of Minnesota. Dan Osborn won the first game with 1 1/3 innings of shutout relief and Jeff Jefferson went 5 2/3 innings as a starter to take the nightcap.
A's 7-8, Royals 6-1
Oakland won the opener on Sal Bando's two-run double with two out in the 12th inning after Kansas City tied the score with three runs in the ninth and took a 6-5 lead in the top of the 12th

Enyeart Nets 800

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — The 1975 AAU Track and Field Championships produced no world or American records, but two bright stars of the future emerged.
The meet also had its share of spills, melodrama and drama.
Mark Enyeart, a sophomore at Utah State, and Tom Woods, who grew up in the tall timber country of western Oregon, were upset winners over favored rivals with better things ahead.
Enyeart beat 800-yard world record holder Rick Wohlhuter in the 800 meters, leading nearly the entire race. His time was 1:44.87.
"I've never lost at this distance but I never saw Wohlhuter until today," Enyeart said.
"I thought it would be me and the clock, with Enyeart right back there," Wohlhuter said. "I assumed the half mile belongs to me."

Woods, who competes for Oregon State, was in his first high jump competition for the prestigious Pacific Coast Club, where world record holder Dwight Stones (76-1) also is a member. Woods won in 7-5 1/2, an AAU meet record, with Stones stopping at 7-4.
Don Quarrie of the Beverly Hills Striders was the meet's only double winner. He took the 100 meters Friday in 10:16.2 and the 200 Saturday in 20:12, a meet record.

The spills came in Friday's finals of the 110 meters in which favorites Guy Druet of France and Charles Foster of North Carolina Central tripped over barriers. Winner Jerry Wilson of the Beverly Hills Striders had a meet record tying time of 13:38.
The melodrama was produced by Great Britain's David Jenkins, who was disqualified for lane violation after winning the 400 meters, 44.93. Jenkins asked the rules committee to review the film and he was declared the victor.
"I went up there and watched the film," Jenkins said. "That's the way we do it in England."
The drama came in the 5,000 and 10,000 meter races which used to belong to the late Steve Prefontaine here. On Friday Marjorie Liguori won the 5,000 in the meet record time of 13:29.00. Saturday Frank Shorter, who lost to Prefontaine in Pre's last race here, won the 10,000 in a meet record of 28:02.4.

Other winners included Al Feuerbach of PCC in the shot, 68-10 1/4; Ralph Mann of Beverly Hills Striders in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles, 48.74 over favorite Jim Bolding, a meet record; Len Hilton of TCC in the 1,500 meters with 3:38.26.
Don Baird of the Macabeci Track Club won the pole vault at 17-6; Ron Laird of the New York Athletic Club won the 5,000 meter walk for the fifth straight time in 22:08.6; Anthony Terry of West Valley Track Club was the triple jump winner at 54-9 1/4.
John Powell of PCC, the pending world record holder in the discus at 226-8, won the event in a disappointing 208-2. Arnie Robinson, unattached, was the long jump winner in 265.

East Shows Offense
In Victory Over West
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Coaches of all-star games normally contend it is easier to put together a good defensive unit than an offensive one, but Steve Sloan may want to disagree.
The offensive performance put on Saturday night by the East squad in the 15th Coaches All-America game was a surprisingly consistent one.
And it was the East's ability to move the ball without turning it over that finally wrapped up a 23-21 win over the West.
"A key was the ability of our offensive line to run out the clock," said Sloan, the head coach at Texas Tech who guided the East to their first win in the last three years. "We felt like our defense would play well, but our offensive line really did a super job."
The East ran up 223 yards on the ground, a large total for an all-star game, with Stan Fritts of North Carolina State, Harold Henson of Ohio State and Louis Carter of Maryland all picking up more than 50 yards. Carter, who scored one touchdown and threw for another, was named the game's outstanding player.
Sloan's group produced a long drive late in the first period that ended in a field goal and then held the ball for more than nine minutes in the third quarter for a drive that culminated in Carter's threeyard touchdown run.
But the critical drive of the night began with 8:13 on the clock and ended with only 12 seconds remaining. That display of ball possession kept the West from having another shot at victory.
"They held on to the ball for a super drive," West coach Grant Teaff of Baylor said. "I was proud of our team. But their drive was a thing of beauty. They utilized their backs well."

The Coaches All-America game served as a preview to this year's outstanding professional rookie crop and there were several standouts from both clubs.
Defensive lineman Gary Johnson, San Diego's first-round draft pick who ran a fumble back 68 yards for an East touchdown, was impressive as was the West linebacker corps of Langston's Tom Henderson, Arizona State's Bob Breunig and Oklahoma's Rod Shoat. Henderson and Breunig are both headed for the Dallas Cowboys while Shoat will play for New England.
Henson was a fourth-round draft choice by Minnesota.
"When we had a fourth down in our own end of the field on that drive all of the coaches discussed it and felt we could make it with Henson," Sloan said. "Stopping him is like tackling a truck."
"I think he made it every time we called on him in third down and short yardage situations."

Cullen Nudges Rankin In Hoosier Tournament

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (UPI) — The warmer weather may just have been the therapy Betsy Cullen needed to finish her recovery from thyroid surgery two years ago.
Regardless, Mrs. Cullen gained one of her biggest prizes since she dropped off the tour for the corrective operation and returned. She capped her conditioning and comeback Sunday by winning the $43,000 LPGA Hoosier Classic on the Plymouth Country Club course with a 54-hole total 211 — one shot better than runnerup Judy Rankin.

Both women finished with final round 70s. Mrs. Cullen pocketed $5,700 and Miss Rankin banked $4,170 in winnings by avoiding the five-way long-jam for third.
Mrs. Cullen, who hasn't been high in the money this year, played a nervy head-to-head round with Kathy Ahern, who had led the first 36 holes, but faltered with two double-bogeys on her final round. Betsy had two birdies and the rest piers in fashioning the two-under round.
Miss Ahern craved a 78 and finished five strokes from the head of the pack at 216.

Connors After Wimbledon Title

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors wants a second consecutive Wimbledon singles title so badly he passed up a chance of winning $23,000 in the French clay court championships to play in a small British tournament because it has grass courts.
They've been playing on grass at Wimbledon since 1877 when it was the first championship in what was then a brand new sport. The 98th year of the tournament, opening today, finds it among the last loyal to grass as other courts convert to more durable all-year surfaces, including the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y.
But while Wimbledon can still sell out months in advance all a $7.56 top for the 12 days of play, plus many thousands of general admissions, it sees no reason to part with tradition.
Connors, the top seed and top ranked American, says that is part of why he rates the pride and satisfaction of entering the Wimbledon record books with the all-time greats far above its first singles prize of only $24,000 and a new car.
The 22-year-old Belleville,

Ill., two-hander is probably a millionaire already and can afford to have ideals. But if he bears out the predictions of the bookmakers, who have made him a strong 7-5 favorite, he will be able to thank the grass courts of Chichester even though he failed to win the 1960 first prize.
Monday is always men's day at Wimbledon.
The ladies start Tuesday with Jimmy's good friend — they aren't talking marriage at the moment — Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a 6-4 favorite to retain the title she won last year. She is top seeded to reach the finals the Fourth of July and give the U.S. a prestigious title for the run up to the Bicentennial celebrations exactly one year later.
Jimmy is seeded to play for the title July 5.
Jimmy's first round opponent is Britain's lightly regarded John Lloyd.
Perhaps it is its prestige or its antiquity but Wimbledon never seems to just open like other tournaments. There are always incidents. This year there has been only a little grumbling against the tradition that all outfits worn on court must be white or predominantly white.

But there has been considerable wordage about the decision to permit a betting shop to open on the grounds. Warning signs have been posted in dressing rooms reminding players and umpires that they are not allowed to bet. One Sunday newspaper said this was "naive" since jockeys with inside information, it said, never had any trouble finding friends to put bets down for them.
Then again, Connors is suing sixth seeded Arthur Ashe of Miami, Fla., president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, for $5 million, on the grounds he was slandered in a letter. Ashe, who meets the tough Bob Hewitt of South Africa in an opening match, follows Connors onto Center Court and they are bound to pass each other.

But since they are in opposite halves of the draw they will not meet until the finals, if they both make it. That will be a match to see.

Police Help Parents Wiretap Kids' Phones

HOUSTON UPI — The police chief of several posh suburban villages said he helped several parents wiretap their children's phone conversations to learn of suspected drug activity, the Houston Post said.

In a copyrighted story in Saturday's editions, the Post said Village Police Chief Joe Shultea admitted providing equipment and help in tapping about a half-dozen phones over a 12-year period.

The department serves the four villages of Hedwig, Bunker Hill, Piney Point and Hunters Creek in west Houston.

Shultea told the Post he borrowed the wiretap equipment from the Houston Police Department. Houston Police Chief Carol M. Lynn has said several officers were involved in thousands of illegal wiretaps in the department under the former administration and said Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. aided in those illegal wiretaps.

Shultea said at one time Bell installed an extension — at the request of the parent — in the darkroom of the Village police station and it was monitored by Shultea and several of his officers.

The longest tap was for four years which a physician placed on his daughter's extension. Shultea has been named in connection with state and federal investigations of illegal police wiretapping but previously refused any comment. The Post said it learned of the wiretaps from one parent involved and Shultea confirmed the reports.

One parent praised Shultea's actions.

"There's no telling how many times he's gone over to homes at night, on his own time, and talked to parents and to the kids — for hours at a time — to try and help them out," the parent told the Post. "That's something that I don't believe any other officer would do."

Shultea said the wiretaps helped him locate sources of drug supply and gave him insight into drug use by youngsters. He said he passed the information along to state, federal and other local police agencies but never said where the information came from.

He said he did not know how many convictions resulted from the wiretap information, but said no one was currently in prison from those convictions although several were on probation.

Reagan Will Not Use Federal Campaign Funds

DALLAS (UPI) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Saturday if he decides to challenge President Ford for the Republican nomination he prefers to do so without using federal campaign funds.

"Everybody thinks that campaign financing is ridiculous now in private hands," Reagan said. "Wait until they see what the bureaucracy does to it."

Reagan made reference to post-Watergate legislation providing matching federal campaign funds for candidates who qualify. He said the law was "an invasion on the freedom of the people and was passed to help incumbents stay in power."

Reagan told a news conference he will make up his mind whether to run against Ford before the end of the year.

Reagan recently has been stressing the two party system, trying to quiet speculation he would break away and oppose Ford as a third party candidate. He said Saturday he has no use for a third party.

"They usually have a way of electing the people they oppose," he said. "They usually wind up dividing the forces in agreement and somebody else slips in over on the wrong side. It (a third party) doesn't hold any attraction or promise for me."

Reagan addressed a sellout Texas GOP fundraising dinner and departed for Rep. Jim Collins, R-Tex., ranch for a barbecue dinner for 1,000-a-year Republican contributors. He was to appear in Beaumont, Tex., Sunday for another fundraiser.

Reagan was asked about the recent show of support in Congress and elsewhere for Ford's re-election campaign.

"I think you have to recognize the President has a great deal of power," Reagan said. "For those serving in government, in the Congress, this is a very great pressure. On the other hand, I think the final decision (for a GOP presidential nominee) is going to be made by the people."

Reagan challenged Ford to enter the nation's presidential primaries in 1976 with a clear reference to the fact Ford was never elected.

"If this is going to be an open convention, an open election year, as it was scheduled to be before the selection of President Ford, it has to go the primary route."

The Republican party, Reagan said, also needs to have a fight in the primaries to attract attention.

"Right now the Republican party, in the aftermath of Watergate, is kind of dead in the water," he said.

Ford Underestimates School Needs, Problems Says Senate

By CRAIG A. PALMER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee, which has recommended $7.6 billion for school and college aid, Saturday accused the administration of underestimating the nation's school problems and needs. The committee's bill was nearly $339.9 million higher than a House-approved money bill and over $1.5 billion higher than the administration sought. In an accompanying report, members said the administration's budget requests for education were "unrealistic or insufficient."

"The estimates transmitted to the Congress, in the main appear to underestimate the difficulties now being experienced throughout our educational system," the committee said.

School spending contained in the bill would account for about 80 per cent of total federal spending in education in fiscal 1976.

The committee report was particularly critical of the amount of money the administration requested for education of handicapped children. The committee's recommendation of $237.75 million was $62.75 million higher than the administration request and $2.75 million over the House budget.

Travel generates $4 billion annually in New York State, according to the State Commerce Department.

Fed Protection Not for Mobsters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the murder of Chicago underworld figure Sam Giancana after the Senate Intelligence Committee tried to contact him about alleged CIA plots against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, federal protection has not been ordered for another reputed underworld figure scheduled to testify next Tuesday.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., vice chairman of the committee, said Friday that federal protection has not been ordered for witness John Roselli because "he has not asked for protection" and "because I have no idea what was behind the obvious rebuff of Mr. Giancana."

Giancana, 65, reputed head of the Chicago Crime Syndicate, was found shot to death Thursday night in his suburban Chicago home. The Senate committee wanted to find out if he was approached by the CIA to assassinate Castro.

Tower said the panel believed Roselli was a more crucial figure in the alleged assassination attempts on Castro than Giancana.

Tower first told newsmen the committee staff had been in contact with Giancana. Later the committee said Tower had "asked that it be clarified that the committee had located Giancana but had not talked with him."

Giancana held extensive gambling interests in Cuba before Castro overthrew President Fulgencio Batista on January 1, 1959.

After hearing four hours of testimony from Lucien Conein, a CIA officer in Saigon at the time of the coup against former South Vietnamese President Diem, Tower said, "The United States was not involved in any way in the coup. The United States stayed aloof from it."

CIA Director William E. Colby, who also testified before the committee Friday, told reporters that a for foreigner, whom he didn't identify, had in the past unsuccessfully attempted to talk the CIA into taking part in various assassination plots but the agency "rejected these plots."

Canning Jars Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two senators have asked the Federal Trade Commission to see if an advertising campaign is helping cause a nationwide shortage of home canning jar lids and seals.

Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said Friday, "It has come to our attention that, despite a nationwide shortage of canning jar lids and seals, the General Foods Corporation and the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Company have entered into an agreement to promote the sale of freeze-dried Sanka."

In a letter to FTC chairman Lewis A. Engman, they said that not only is Sanka packed in a Kerr jar, but there is a premium offer for a set of 12 canning lids for 25 cents, plus two innerseals from the Sanka jars.

"We are concerned that such a marketing practice may be an unfair commercial practice," they said.

Texas Solons Get Low Marks on Environment

Texas Solons Get Low Marks On The Environment

WASHINGTON — All but four of the 24 Texans in Congress value industrial production, pollution and a healthy business climate more than they do the nation's environment, if a conservation group's analysis is to be believed.

The League of Conservation Voters has found only one Dallas and three Houston-area House members who voted in accordance with the group's environmental views in 1974, a vote ratings chart released here this past week reveals.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, had the distinction of being the only Texan to score a zero rating from the group on 17 House votes used to tabulate the survey. East Texas Rep. Ray Roberts, D-McKinney, had the second lowest score, at seven per cent "correct."

The four Texans who rated, highest in the Conservation Voters' esteem are: Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-Houston, 94 per cent "correct"; Barbara Jordan, D-Houston, 73 per cent; Alan Steelman, R-Dallas, 73 per cent; and Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, 61 per cent.

The 17 survey votes covered such topics as air and water pollution, nuclear energy and mass transportation.

For instance, the conservation group opposed a substitute House bill that would have provided considerably weaker environmental standards for strip mining than recommended. The substitute bill was defeated with the help of Texans like Reps. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, and Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont.

Among those supporting weaker environmental standards were Reps. Richard White, D-El Paso and Bob Price, R-Pampa, who was defeated for reelection.

Pickle had a mildly respectable 49 per cent rating from the group. Brooks got a 47 per cent score. White 23 per cent, and Price received the third lowest score in the delegation: 11 per cent.

A second survey vote came on a bill allowing the Environmental Protection Agency to set national standards for safe drinking water, which the conservation group supported. White and Price both voted against national standards, while Brooks, Pickle and Wilson voted to enact them.

When a vote came up on the House floor in December that would have prevented electrical utility companies from damming up the scenic New River in North Carolina, the issue became a pet cause for conservation groups. However, the anti-dam legislation was killed when it failed to obtain a two-thirds vote to extract it from committee, where opponents had it bottled up. Brooks and Price voted to allow the utility companies "river damming rights," while Pickle, White and Wilson all opposed the dam.
