A facelifting and complete renovation of the historical Brunow building, 112 E. Foster, was announced today by the new building manager, Marshall Johnson. He also said officials of two discount stores, prospective new businesses for Pampa, are now negotiating for space in the facility. Johnson will open his King's Row Barber Shop, now located in the Hughes Building, in remodeled quarters in the Brunow Building on July 7. He is moving his shop back where he started in the barber business 23 years ago. Johnson has a 10-year lease and 10-year option on the building, and will serve as building manager. Owners of the structure are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bond, who live on a ranch near Skellytown. She is the granddaughter of the late Dr. Brunow. The Brunow Building had its beginning in the 1900s as a frame structure in its present location. It was owned by the late Dr. Brunow, Pampa's first physician, who also bought one of the first cars in this area. The present structure was completed in the 1920s, and featured a "hot house on top." "We would like to see some action on that corner," Mrs. Bond said today. The building has been vacant for about five years, she estimated. Johnson said the renovation will include a new front as well as interior updating. "It is a sign that Downtown Pampa is reviving," he said.

The project also includes new sidewalks for the 112 E. Foster block. Mrs. Bond is the former Miss Bobbie Andis of Pampa. The price of hair cuts when Johnson first started in the Brunow building was 75 cents, as compared with today's $3 for a regular cut. Among those who remember Dr. Brunow is Mrs. Katie Vincent, a Gray County pioneer, who arrived here shortly after the turn of the century with her husband and two sons.

Weather Caused Plane Crash

NEW YORK (UPI) — Troublesome weather and shifting air currents reportedly turned back two airplanes trying to land at Kennedy Airport minutes before Eastern Airlines Flight 66 crashed short of the runway, killing 110 persons. Mrs. Isabelle Burgess, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board team investigating Tuesday's crash, said the voice and flight recorders of the two airplanes have been sent to Washington for analysis. "I understand that one of the two planes executed a missed approach and then was diverted to Newark Airport after the pilot reported that he lost all forward visibility because of the weather conditions," she said. As the investigation began Wednesday, Mrs. Burgess said the chance that lightning caused the 727's crash was "very remote." She said the fact that the plane struck several approach lights as it came in for its landing could have resulted in "electrical arcing" that might have been misinterpreted by witnesses as lightning. All 14 survivors are still hospitalized, most suffering from severe burns. Ten are in critical condition. Joseph DiSpensa of Baton Rouge, La., was taken off the critical list but his two daughters, Sandy, 14, and Tina, 9, both remained in guarded condition. Mrs. DiSpensa was among the dead. The death toll rose to 110 Wednesday when it was discovered that a two-month old baby not listed on the passenger manifest was aboard the plane. The child, Jason Wayne Jenkins of Lake Charles, La., died along with his parents and 3-year-old brother. The three-engine plane crashed just short of its runway onto a marshy field and Rockaway Boulevard, a busy roadway, during a late-afternoon thunderstorm. No autos were hit, although there was heavy traffic at the time. The crash was the worst involving a single plane in the United States since a 1971 disaster in Alaska that killed 111. The only positive identifications made by this morning were those of Capt. John Kleven, identified through his uniform and a wallet found in his pocket; New York Nets basketball forward Wendell Ladner, identified through a ring he had been wearing; and Saul Horowitz Jr., of the HRH Construction Co., identified through fingerprints. A total of 15 tentative identifications were made with the task expected to be finished by Friday. Relatives arriving at the city Medical Examiner's office were asked to fill out a form listing the physical description of their kin and any clothing or jewelry the victims may have been wearing.

Town Revival

Downtown Pampa is reviving, Marshall Johnson, new manager for the Brunow Building, said today as he announced plans to give the old building a facelifting. The building, 112 E. Foster had its beginning in the 1900's as a frame structure, but was rebuilt as it is today in the 1920's by the late Dr. Brunow, Pampa's first physician.

Archey Tries To Get Same Rights As Women

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A justice of the peace dismissed a complaint against a thin, spectacled hero of the women's movement on a technicality Wednesday, but the prosecutor in the case says he will file the charges again. Divorcee Basil Archey, who said he should be awarded the same rights as women in his position, refused to serve on jury duty because he is the legal guardian of a child under the age of 10. State law permits women automatic jury duty exemptions in similar circumstances and Archey maintains the same law ought to apply to men.

Rights comprised of divorced men and grandparents of children from broken homes which actively lobbied for approval of the federal ERA. He said his challenge of the Texas jury exemption law is only part of his group's plans for attacking state laws he claims discriminate against men. His organization is primarily concerned with changing domestic court practices which, he claims, favors women in divorce and child custody cases to the detriment of the men and children involved. Archey said he is preparing a suit seeking the intervention by federal courts into divorce cases on the grounds state courts exercise sex discrimination against men.

Archey, 47, could be fined anywhere from $10 to $100 if convicted of the misdemeanor charge of being absent from jury service without an excuse. "I have announced my intention to run," Ford said. "In a relatively short time I will make a formal announcement." Last week Ford filed the necessary forms with the Federal Election Commission to authorize the raising of funds for his campaign. "We expect to raise sufficient funds to put on a good campaign," he said. "I don't know if I will have any (Republican) opposition or not," the President said. "I never really predicated my campaign on what others will do. I run on my record." Recent polls have shown Ford's popularity higher than any time since he took office almost a year ago. Ford attributed this to a "whole series of things that have been good for the country." He cited efforts his administration has made to fight inflation while seeking "compassionate remedies" to recession, the Mayaguez incident and his recent trip to Europe.

On another political topic, Ford said he did not know if former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would seek elected office. Connally, recently acquitted in a Watergate-related bribery case, met with Ford this week at the White House. "I don't know if he's going to run for any office or not," Ford said. "He didn't indicate that to me." Ford said he met with Connally because he was an "old friend" and "the kind of person who can be helpful in giving advice." He said he hopes to have more meetings with the former treasury secretary.

Weather
Clear to partly cloudy skies are forecast today through Friday with temperatures in the 90s both days. The lows will drop to the 60s during the night. Wind warnings are in effect for area lakes.

Ford Getting Set To Toss Hat in Presidential Ring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, obviously pleased with his recent jumps in popularity polls, says he will formally announce his candidacy for a full term shortly. At a news conference Wednesday Ford pledged his campaign "will be run exactly according to the law."

On another political topic, Ford said he did not know if former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would seek elected office. Connally, recently acquitted in a Watergate-related bribery case, met with Ford this week at the White House. "I don't know if he's going to run for any office or not," Ford said. ## White House, Senate Argue Over Documents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House and the Senate panel investigating the CIA are locked again in a confrontation over what the committee thinks is inadequate access to documents on past assassination plots, and no access at all to other critical papers.

The sources declined to specify in which two "fundamental areas" the White House is still withholding documents without explanation. There were these other developments on Capitol Hill Wednesday relating to the CIA: —Church said the chain-of-command in the assassination plots is "very confusing." He said the committee had no hard evidence that showed a direct link from Presidents Eisenhower or Kennedy to the plots, and he indicated final responsibility may never be fully pinned down.

Archey asked for a jury trial in the case, but before arguments could be presented Wednesday Justice of the Peace Rudy Esquivel dismissed the complaint because it did not allege Archey willfully or with criminal intent refused to serve on a jury. Assistant District Attorney Nelson Atwell said the prosecution will remedy the faulty language and refile the complaint. "I'm sure we will," Atwell said. "They'll be back with another complaint and we'll be back for another demand for a jury." Archey's defense attorney Pete Torres said, "Our defense is the (state's) Equal Rights Amendment." "They (the state) allege the law is being violated by a person complying with the constitution," Archey said. Several women's groups are championing Archey as a new hero of the equal rights movement. They held a fund raising dinner for him Tuesday night and they packed the courtroom Wednesday. Archey is the chairman of the local Texas Fathers for Equal

In an effort to resolve the mounting crisis, Frank Church, chairman of the Senate's Select Committee on Intelligence, summoned White House deputy counsel Roderick Hills to attend a closed-door encounter with the committee. The effect of the White House hold on certain sensitive papers in two nonassassination areas has been to delay at least until the end of the holiday recess the interrogation of a string of former high officials of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, committee sources said. The sources declined to specify in which two "fundamental areas" the White House is still withholding documents without explanation. ## Thief Changes Mind

GARLAND, Tex. (UPI) — The thief who stole more than $500 worth of items from the home of John Wilson recently had a quick change of heart. Two days after the burglary, Wilson found a paper sack on his front lawn. Inside the sack were most of the stolen items, $4 in cash and a note. "I'm sorry," the note read. "I just realized what I have done. This is for any damages."

Indira Gandhi Declares State Of Emergency

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, defying demands for her resignation, declared a state of emergency across India today and ordered a nationwide roundup of opposition leaders.

inciting "our armed forces to mutiny and our police to rebel." "How can any government worth its name stand by and allow the country's stability to be imperiled?" she asked.

Authorities arrested dozens of Mrs. Gandhi's sharpest critics in pre-dawn police raids that roused sleeping opposition leaders from their beds. Political sources said at least 55 persons were known to have been seized in the crackdown. But some of the sources put the figure as high as 3,500.

Mrs. Gandhi, fighting for her political life in the face of a corruption conviction and widespread calls for her resignation, said she ordered the crackdown to prevent an outbreak of "internal disturbances."

Mrs. Gandhi said the two-month state of emergency "will not affect the lives of law-abiding citizens." But she did not spell out the details of the decree.

"We had a system going between Lefors and the Pampa Red Cross," Whatley said. "We used a two meter repeater." The repeater is so powerful that static electricity will not bother it, Whatley said. It is used only for local communication disasters. In Lefors it was used only until telephones were put back in working order.

"We can talk to Amarillo, Sweetwater, Oklahoma, Perryton, Sismet and other area towns with the repeater and the tower." Ham radios are not that expensive a hobby. "You can buy new equipment for $400 to $600 and it may last ten years without any cost," Whatley said. "It's a good hobby for the disabled or the retired."

Police said the opposition leaders were arrested under India's strict Internal Security Act, which empowers the government to jail persons without trial for up to two years on suspicion of threatening public order.

Using ham radios and their own electricity, the group, all members of the Pampa Amateur Radio Club, will try to win this year's Field Day by making, in 24 hours the most contacts with other hams across the world. The contest is the world's largest non-commercial emergency preparedness test. It is sponsored by the ARRI in an effort to show that ham radio operators throughout the U.S. and Canada are prepared to provide emergency communication in times of disaster. ## Corruption and IRS

The statement by IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander on the need for an outside investigation of the tax agency is one of the more illuminating of recent proclamations. The commissioner's phrasing was to the effect "we have an obligation to ensure to the public that the IRS is not corrupt."

In political government the closer that an accusation approaches to the truth, the greater is the need to depict it as untrue or to discredit the accuser. Thus, in the curious bias that talented bureaucrats attach to conversation, the commissioner's obligation is not to ensure to the public the truth about the IRS, but rather to "ensure that the IRS is not corrupt." That is, the chips of an inquiry are not to fall where they may, but rather — as he forecasts the outcome — are to fall in such a manner that the IRS will be shown as NOT corrupt.

The problem he has is that the Internal Revenue Service, like any other tax-collecting agency, is patently and inherently corrupt. It is corrupt in the sense that taxation is a taking of property against the consent of the owner, a process equating to theft.

It is corrupt because taxation is aggressively coercive.

Moreover, it is corrupt beyond redemption or restriction. Federal judges depend for their livelihood upon the successful execution of the tax-collecting machinery. In a recent lawsuit, decided while federal judges were appealing for a pay increase, the U.S. Supreme Court acknowledged abuses committed by the IRS, but nevertheless confirmed the IRS in its power to investigate on evidence too flimsy to support probable cause.

Beyond systemic corruption, however, it is theoretically possible for the personnel of a tax-collecting agency to comport themselves with a decent regard for tax payers. And many individuals within the Internal Revenue Service do so. They are much in the position of the repentant publicans who came to John the Baptist and were advised to "exact no more than that which is appointed you." On the other hand, the tax-collecting incentives are set up in a manner that encourages IRS personnel to exact more.

The corrupt process starts when the IRS goes to Congress for its annual appropriation. The request for funds is baited with the prospect of raising more revenue by harder enforcement. Congressmen in turn require the money because their hopes for notoriety ride on new spending programs. The "gimme" element of the population takes old programs for granted. "What can you do for me next" is the name of the legislative game.

Once the IRS receives its operating fund, the objective thereafter is to produce the increased revenues. Top officials of the agency deny that quotas are set. However, self-preservation mandates that the agency reward those auditors who consistently produce revenues in the time expended. From the moment an interview with a tax payer begins, the contest is to get some extra amount, regardless of how little, without a waste of time. That is corruption for the reason that the test is not the size of the obligation, but rather how much can be exacted by subjecting the tax payer's records to a demand for extraordinary precision.

Beyond all that, the IRS is corrupt in yet another dimension. It sends its agents to snoop on tax-protest meetings, thus chilling the rights of Americans for peaceful assembly and petition. We have heard repeated charges by varying individuals of IRS seizures of property without court order, of open harassment of tax payer meetings by IRS agents, of IRS agents provoking attacks upon themselves in order to imprison tax-protestors for assault upon a federal officer. These accusations are subject to proof or disproof, but we cannot think of any authority sufficiently detached to undertake an investigation. Any governmental agency will be tax-funded, a beneficiary of the tax-collecting operation.

A few months ago, Sen. Montoya, D-N. Mex., undertook a hearing. Just one day later, IRS agents arrested his son. One of the witnesses was incarcerated on an old charge. A frequent ploy of the federal bench is to commit the defendant to medical detention center for sanity tests.

In the face of such awesome power — awakened by the misuse of the CIA and possibly of the FBI as well — segments of the news media are turning attention on the Internal Revenue Service. David Brinkley of NBC conducted a particularly enlightening broadcast this past week. It will be interesting to see what happens as the tax protest moves from the fringes into the mainstream.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

The Trouble With Mr. Ford

By WILLIAM RUSHER

With the splashy Mayaguez episode and a thoroughly useful European foray just behind him, and a string of successful vetoes hanging from his belt, President Ford may be forgiven for wondering what more it will take to extinguish the smoldering discontent among the nation's numerous conservatives. If politics is in truth the art of the possible, and half of a loaf incontestably better than none, surely reasonable conservatives have little cause, on the record of a recent weeks, to be impatient with this good-natured bear of a man.

And indeed, measured in what passes these days for conventional terms, Gerald Ford has in fact given conservatives very little cause for complaint lately. If, in a country with a substantial conservative majority, the best that majority can hope for is a president who can be depended on to veto the legislative inspirations of a permanently liberal Congress, then Ford will serve at least as well as anybody else. After all, thanks to his own long service in the House of Representatives, Ford understands Congress better than most presidents ever do.

When disgust over Watergate returned lapsed liberal-Democratic majorities to Capitol Hill last November, it was widely expected that the new Congress would be "veto-proof." Yet Ford, who in ten months has already racked up nearly as many vetoes as Lyndon Johnson handed down in five years, has only been overridden five times (out of 29) — and not even once since this allegedly "veto-proof" Congress took office in January.

Still, there are those who think this is a singularly poor way to run a railroad. Traditionally (in case you had forgotten) our presidents and the congressional majority have belonged to the same party, and have hammered out a legislative program acceptable to both. The opposition party could be depended on to deplore this program, and in due course the pendulum would swing and the Ins would get their chance at bat.

Unfortunately, thanks to the failure of the two major parties to reflect accurately the basic issues dividing the nation, the American political system just isn't working that way any more. In the more than quarter of a century since the election of Harry Truman in 1948, the GOP has held the White House well over half the time: 15 years out of 27, to be precise. Yet the Democrats have controlled both Houses of Congress for all but two of those 27 years: the sole exception being the first two years after Eisenhower's 1952 landslide.

Only in Democratic presidential administrations, therefore, does America now have anything resembling a coherent government. In such years, with Democrats (most of them liberals) in control at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue, the heavily politicized non-producing minority in this country rolls happily over the producing majority, arrogating to itself an ever-larger share of the national wealth.

For the rest, our permanently Democratic Congress spends its time trying to outmaneuver Republican presidents: crippling their foreign policy and cynically hamstringing their efforts to stabilize the economy. The Republican presidents, for their part, respond with a rain of vetoes, and think this entitles them to conservative support.

Maybe it would — if there were the slightest serious hope that the GOP as presently constituted could ever get control of Congress again. But the Republican party scarcely even bothers, any more, to pretend that there is any such possibility. Thanks to the party's own internal contradictions — notably the presence in its bosom of a liberal minority always able to force compromises in its own (liberal) direction — the GOP is inherently and permanently incapable of effectively representing America's national conservative majority.

Moreover, by designating the leading GOP liberal, Nelson Rockefeller, as his vice president, and endorsing Rockefeller's renomination, Ford has signaled his acquiescence in this state of affairs. His highest ambition, apparently, is to be elected president himself and spend four more years vetoing Democratic proposals. For a lot of conservatives, that just isn't good enough.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham has cancelled a crusade set for Lisbon, Portugal, in September and replaced it with a domestic effort at Lubbock, Tex., after the committee organizing the Lisbon crusade said the political conditions in the country made a Graham appearance inadvisable.

HEW Order College President Speaks a Mouthful

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The recent decree issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, ordering unisex sports, is disturbing to millions of parents and grandparents. They see in this federal edict fresh evidence that the American people have lost control of the schools they support with their taxes.

Among those concerned Americans is my friend and colleague, James S. Metcalfe of Nashville, Tenn., a business and occasional editorialist and radio commentator. It is a pleasure to give this space to Mr. Metcalfe for his comments on the HEW edict. Mr. Metcalfe writes:

"Recent action by HEW purports to be an effort to abolish sex discrimination in all educational institutions receiving federal funds. Actually, it is one of the most destructive assaults that any federal bureaucracy has yet made upon the structure of our educational system.

"Sex bias, in any form, is henceforth to be banned in all college and school athletic programs subject to HEW jurisdiction. This is the dictatorial pronouncement made by HEW Secretary Casper W. Weinberger with presidential approval.

"The absurd requirements of HEW's order are alarming enough, but even more shocking is the extent to which the government, through a visionary agency, can usurp the most fundamental freedoms that were once a citizen's birthright. The tragedy is compounded by the citizen taxpayer who remains silent — either too fearful or too apathetic to demand a halt to such dangerous and costly nonsense.

"Any educational institution receiving federal funds — colleges, high schools, grade schools and even some parochial schools — a figure approaching 20,000 in all, will come under the dictatorial order on a graduated timetable. Remember when opponents of federal aid to education predicted that once federal money got involved, federal control would follow? School administrations, having been reduced to mendicant serfdom for federal handouts, must now slyly comply with whatever directive issues from the bureaucratic jungle.

"Boys and girls will be segregated in physical education classes only for contact sports, for example, wrestling. In non-contact sports, if there are not enough women to make up a women's team, the girls may try out for the men's team. This, however, does not apply reverse. That's one trouble when the government tries to eliminate discrimination. It merely imposes the same problem on different victims.

"HEW is trying to do what nature has failed to do since the beginning of time — eliminate any vestige of difference between male and female. The new rules, however, don't insist that women be permitted to play on men's football or basketball teams, but they may do so at the school's discretion.

"Few things are sacred to HEW. Glee clubs, once so strictly male turf, must be opened to women participants unless barred solely because of "voice range quality." Sex alone can no longer be a barrier to taking part in most school-related extracurricular activities. It might have annoyed HEW, but Congress did exempt the boy and girl scouts from enforced intermation. So far, HEW hasn't interfered with those two respected pursuits of the young.

"There is much more to the program as described by Secretary Weinberger, that most people would be frightened if they were aware of it. A latter-day Paul Revere should have galloped through every school, college and university in the country shouting 'The Feds are coming! The Feds are coming!' Alas, it is too late, the Feds have already taken over.

"Aside from the destruction of a social relationship that has well served the American school scene for so long, HEW is pursuing an uncharted course fraught with unknown dangers. Young people of the same age reach varying stages of mental and physical maturity. The girl who usurps the boy's place on the team this year might not be able to do so a year later. The boy, however, taunted by his classmates and suffering personal humiliation, may abandon sports and opt for home economics. Or, if his trauma is less severe, will he invite the girl who beat him out of the quarterback spot to the senior prom?"

By MAX RAFFERTY

Once in a while a professional educator says something that makes sense. Whenever this happens — and the intervals between such occurrences approximate those which intervene between two planetary glaciation cycles — I try to preserve the words of wisdom for posterity to marvel at. So it is today.

The speaker: Calvin Gross, formerly New York City school superintendent, currently president of the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill.

The words: "It is a sad but true commentary on our leadership that sometimes we in education have the answer first but don't muster the will to act on it."

"Almost as bad is a situation where the Army or a business or a publisher steps out in front of us, leading the way where we might have pioneered."

"For example, among the curious habits our profession has developed over the years is the custom of assigning a passing mark to indicate fractional achievement, and then sending the student on. In the next sequential subject, he or she will again master possibly 80 or 90 per cent of what is supposed to be learned, depending on the teacher's test-item sampling technique. Definitive performance or thorough mastery are seldom required.

"Trans World Airlines does it differently. As a Johnny-come-lately in the sweep of educational history, they do it the hard way — they teach it all. 'master learning' or 'zero-reject' it is now being called in our pedagogical jargon, although a few of us have been promoting the idea for some time. At TWA a pilot-in-training has to learn everything and then do it perfectly — 100 per cent, no sampling — before going on to the next step. Graduates can do everything they are supposed to do."

"To me that's a mighty reassuring piece of knowledge when Flight No. 355 from La Guardia settles down at 8:13 p.m. on a foggy runway at O'Hare. I'm glad to know that the fellow up front didn't pass the unit on blind approaches with a mark of 95 per cent. I'd hate to take repeatedly a chance of one in twenty that the pilot would overlook something or wouldn't know what to do.

"Wouldn't that be a wonderful way to teach reading and writing and arithmetic? Why should we tolerate third-grade reading ability in the freshman class of college? Of course a high school shouldn't graduate such a person, but the college validated that act at the time of admission. What we ought to do is absolutely insist on mastery of the fundamentals before a child goes on to something else. There are priorities in the curriculum, and English — reading, first — is the most important subject we teach."

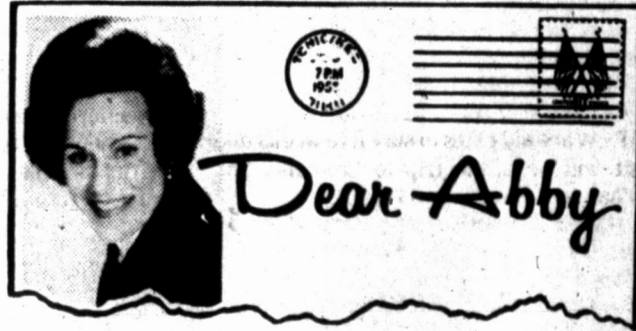

Dwell upon the key phrases here: "thorough mastery"; "reading, writing and arithmetic"; "third-grade reading ability in the freshman class"; "mastery of the fundamentals"; "reading is the most important subject we teach."

Regular readers of this column will recognize these strange, exotic expressions, but when was the last time a college president used them? To say nothing of a college president who was once the superintendent of the nation's largest school system.

I'd like to think that Dr. Gross has been plagiarizing me, but I've regretfully decided he arrived at these conclusions all by himself. No matter, I hope you'll agree that such refreshing recklessness should be both rewarded and encouraged. Why not write the good doctor, telling him "Right on!"? You can bet he's getting brickbats and shilleaghs from the "Progressive" Establishment about now and can probably use a little moral support.

Hang in there, Cal. Logic and reason will win out in the end. I think.

Handshaking a Shattering Experience for Him

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have fallen in love with a man who has had a past history of mental illness. Years ago, his mother placed him in a state hospital. Now he lives in a half-way house. He sees a therapist weekly and is on medication.

I know he still has some problems, but they're not as severe as they were. I want to have a relationship with him because he has so many of the qualities I am looking for in a man. He said he has never had a relationship with a woman. He is 27 and unsure of himself. I am 21 and on my own.

I know I will have to make the first move because he is not aggressive. My mind is somewhat made up already, but I need assurance that I am doing the right thing. What is your opinion?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You are a wise girl to stop, look and listen before you leap. Since I know nothing about the young man's emotional maturity and the seriousness of his mental condition, it's impossible for me to advise you. Please don't initiate a relationship without first talking to his therapist. He is qualified to guide you. I am not.

DEAR ABBY: Hoorah for the young man who doesn't shake hands with anyone — and don't bet too heavily on the germ theory.

A few months ago I had a right hand painfully sprained when I shook hands with a professional football player. A few weeks ago, I shook hands with a retired plumber who apparently wanted to prove that he was the strongest man on earth. Result: one fractured bone.

A few days ago, a slightly built law student finished the wrecking job on my hand. This note is written in pain. If those strong men want to prove their masculinity, let them find another victim. I'm for the Oriental custom of bowing.

SUFFERING IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR SUFFERING! Let's shake on that!

DEAR ABBY: I have long hair and make no apologies for it. Long hair is one of the most stupid things for anyone to argue over because long hair is just that — long hair. It doesn't hurt anybody, and if a man wants to wear it that way, he should have the right to do so without getting hassled.

In fact, have you ever noticed that people with short hair are always telling people with long hair to get their hair cut? But it is very rare to find a person with long hair who tells people with short hair to let their hair grow!

People with long hair seem to be more mature than people with short hair because they let people look the way they want to instead of feeling that everyone's looks are their business.

Please print this letter so that all the critics with short hair will lay off those of us who like long hair. Thanks.

Friends

Inken Feldsien, left, is visiting Nancy Dingus this summer. Miss Feldsien is from Germany and she became friends with Miss Dingus a year ago when Nancy was an American Field Service student in Germany.

Ya'll Come Back

American Flavor Okay But Texas Accent Not

By MELANIE MILLER
Pampa News Staff

Inken Feldsien had never had a hamburger. She had never tasted apple pie. Nor had she ever eaten a marshmallow.

All that has changed now. Staying with the G.W. Dinguses of 1821 Mary Ellen, Inken is experiencing American life with the help of her friend, Nancy Dingus.

Nancy and Inken met a year ago when Nancy was an American Field Service student in Germany. When Nancy left last June, they decided Inken would visit Nancy and her family.

"My parents just love her," Nancy said. "She's a member of the family."

Inken likes that. "That's so nice that I'm a member of the family and not just a guest," she said.

The 17-year-old plans to stay five weeks and her visit will include a trip to Colorado. She already has seen Houston and Bay City.

"We stayed a week in Bay City with my grandparents," Nancy said. "Then we'll go to Cabot Ranch in Colorado and spend a week."

Inken came to the States via Hamburg, Paris and Houston.

Nancy and Inken first got acquainted after Nancy sat in Inken's desk on the first day of school and Inken got angry.

"It was so funny because she walked in and said 'get out of my chair!'" Nancy said. "She was mad at me for awhile."

The Feldsien's took Nancy for a four day excursion to an island in the North Sea. Inken's father calls Nancy "sweetheart" because "that's just about the only English word he knows," Nancy said.

Inken can understand English well enough to communicate with most people, but Texas slang has given her quite a bit of trouble.

"She doesn't understand words or phrases like 'ya'll' or 'it's about time,'" Nancy said. "She just doesn't understand Texas talk!" She has studied English for six years and speaks it like an Englishman, Nancy said.

At home, Inken has two brothers, one 14 and one 25. Her father is an architect and president of the local Rotary club. Her mother is a housewife.

One thing Inken cannot get used to is the hot weather.

"Germany is not so hot," Inken said. "The average temperature is only 56 degrees."

In Germany schools are closed if it gets warmer than 78 degrees.

"The people are so nice and friendly to me," Inken added about America and Pampa.

"She can't believe that you can drive for miles and not see anything," Nancy said. "In Germany, you can't drive very far without seeing civilization."

"She gets upset when I just drop in to see my friends," the American added. "Especially when I don't call first."

Inken caught her first fish in Houston and when her pole started bobbing in its holder, Nancy told her to pull it. Instead of pulling the pole, Inken began pulling the string.

"I couldn't think of the word for 'pole' in German," Nancy explained. "Finally I got through to her what to do."

German schools are completely different from American schools, Inken said. Students from surrounding communities all go to one school and ride on the bus to get there. Classes are held six days a week until 1 p.m.

The school designates all the classes each student will have — there are no electives. Students attend one class room all day with the same students but different teachers.

"Students don't get together very often because school gets out so early and everyone lives in different towns," Nancy explained. "If you do something, it's usually lunch with a friend or seeing a friend after school."

Fink's Domino Theory Fun At Swank Tourney

FINK, Tex. (UPI) — Charles B. Wallace is a tall, slender former counsel for the Mobil Oil Corp. who retired five years ago to devote his life to playing and promoting dominos.

The 69-year-old attorney has written three books on the game and is considered one of the nation's leading authorities on the sport. He is president of the American Domino Association and he spends whatever time he can spare on the road trying to promote dominos to the stature of bridge.

Wallace's attendance today at the back tie Fink Invitational Domino Tournament — only part of the annual Fink Day activities — assured the event national sanction.

"With the help of Wallace this can become the biggest and most important single domino tournament in the country," tournament director David H. Brown said Wednesday.

The entry fee for the tournament was $100 just to get into the qualifying rounds. Eliminations were held in Durant, Okla., and Tom Bean, Tex., to pick the top North Texas and southern Oklahoma players. The final elimination rounds to get the final tournament down to 32 players began at 9 a.m. today.

The tournament, in which all participants were required to wear tuxedos, was staged at a swank country club.

Brown is recognized as one of several world champions, having won his at a recent tournament in Durant. Wallace is attempting to organize all these championships.

"I'd like to see each state have a tournament to select the state champions and then ultimately have the state champions meet for the national title, and then a world's title to follow," Wallace said.

Brown is supporting Wallace's attempts and hoped today's swank tournament would convince Wallace to stage the world tournament in conjunction with Fink Day each year.

The domino tournament was only part of the Fink Day activities. Twenty-five Shawnee Indians were expected to stage a 30-minute pow-wow featuring dancers, singers and drummers.

The second annual Fink Day Rodeo also began today and runs through the weekend. The eighth annual Fink Day Invitational Golf Tournament also kicked off its 37-hole classic. The 37th hole is the par 3, ninth hole and the person closest to the hole on his or her tee shot will win a special, as yet unannounced, prize.

"My phone is ringing like crazy," Fink Mayor Pat Albright said. "Mail the past month has been very heavy. People are writing from all over the country. It looks like we'll have more genuine Finks on hand this year than ever before."

Eighty per cent of first marriages and 60 per cent of remarriages take place in church.

Astronauts' Prof To Visit Kiwanis

By MELANIE MILZER
Pampa News Staff

A retired professor of mathematics and astronomy at the University of Texas at Austin and a former instructor at the Houston Space Center will speak at a Friday noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

Dr. Ervin J. Proun began teaching celestial navigation and astronomy at the Space Center when it moved to Houston. He did not quit his post at UT, but commuted daily from Austin to Houston teaching at the university in the mornings and in Houston in the afternoon.

"It was terribly hectic," the professor said. "It only took about 20 minutes to fly though."

After teaching for 32 years, he retired three years ago after teaching in Houston three different times.

"I taught at the Space Center in '62, '63 and '66," Dr. Proun said. "I taught all of the astronauts but seven."

The astronauts were exceptional individuals, Proun said. They were topnotch students and had strong motivation.

"They were chosen from among thousands of applicants," he added. "They were no different from anyone else except their average was different."

Dr. Proun's teaching involved telling the astronauts what to expect when they left the environment of the earth — what they would see and the nature of the stars, especially the sun.

He is not originally from Pampa but was raised in Kansas and began spending his summers in Pampa in 1927.

"I have a farm out by Laketon and two of my children live up here," Dr. Proun said. "I used to raise wheat but now my children do it."

After growing up with a desire to be an astronomer, he got his doctorate from the University of California at Berkeley in astrophysics.

"I've seen Pampa change from dirt streets and a little town to a town of a nice size," he said.

Space travel has become more scientific, Dr. Proun explained. "Manned space is over," he said. "Astronauts used to do more technical work, but now it is more scientific."

The meeting will be in the First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall and any interested persons may attend the program portion of the meeting.

Dr. Proun is expected to speak on the upcoming joint U.S.-Russian space mission at about 12:30 p.m.

Additional information on the meeting may be obtained from Cletus Mitchell at 5-2881.

Request Filed To Move Suit

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A request to move a $250,000 damage suit, now pending in 31st District Court here, to the 181st District Court in Randall County was filed this week along with a general denial.

Judge Grainger McIlhenny has not set a date for a hearing on the request.

The $250,000 damage suit stems from a hot mix plant accident near Groom on May 14, 1975 which allegedly claimed the life of a 45-year-old contractor.

The civil action, filed in early June, is the largest damage suit recorded in Gray County this year.

In the petition, plaintiffs allege that Price William Moore died a short time after he was struck by a "large dirt loader" driven by Clay Johnson.

The general denial and a request to move the suit to the Randall County Court was filed by Cooper and Woodruff Inc., a defendant in the suit.

Beulah Mae Moore of Oklahoma County, Okla., is seeking damages for herself and Price Frank Moore and Carol and Billie Bob Moore.

Amarillo Attorney Robert Templeton who filed the suit on behalf of the Moore family, alleges the accident occurred at the hot mix plant, immediately southeast of Groom in Gray County.

The petition states that Moore was struck and rolled over by the equipment driven by Johnson.

Templeton claims the defendants failed to keep a proper lookout, and were negligent in operating "dangerous and hazardous

Texas Top Court Says Cities To Pay Rates

Hope for rehearing of an application for a writ of error in the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority lawsuit went down the drain Wednesday afternoon when the Texas Supreme Court overruled a tri-city motion filed recently by the cities of Amarillo, Pampa and Borger.

The ruling will cost the three cities several thousand dollars a year increased rates for maintenance and operation costs of the CRMWA.

Pampa will be least affected by the Supreme Court ruling, City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

He estimated it would cost Pampa approximately $50,000 over the life of the city's contract with CRMWA which runs until the year 2020.

The motion for rehearing was filed after the Supreme Court ruled May 22 against Amarillo, Pampa and Borger in favor of Lubbock and seven other South Plains cities. That ruling upheld a decision handed down by the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in November of 1974.

The appeals court ruling had overturned a 1973 ruling in 84th District Court at Stinnett which had favored Amarillo, Pampa and Borger.

The court fight began after the CRMWA board, at Lubbock's request, changed the O and M rate structure over the tri-city objections.

Amarillo, Pampa and Borger contended that operating and maintenance costs for the aqueduct, dam and reservoir on the Canadian River near Borger should be based on a table of percentages attached to the original 1960 agreement set up with the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Officials said another issue in the lawsuit involving accounting of the charges was served from the contract issue by Judge Max Boyer in 84th District Court at Stinnett and still is pending there.

Commenting on the case, City Manager Wofford said today: "Pampa, along with Amarillo and Borger, had been seeking to have operation and maintenance costs of the system distributed on a percentage basis among the eleven member cities."

Pampa owns its 32-mile aqueduct line from Borger to Pampa. The three cities were seeking what is termed the "utility concept" of operation and maintenance. Now, under cost-accounting we alone pay operation and maintenance costs of our line from the reservoir."

Wofford said officials of Amarillo, Pampa and Borger sought to share the operation and maintenance costs for all of the system on a percentage basis.

Five Absentee Ballots Cast

Five absentee ballots had been tallied today in Pampa's July 8 election, called to decide a $300,000 bond issue to help pay the city's share of cost for the proposed $14 million sewage treatment plant.

Absentee votes may be cast at the city secretary's office, second floor of City Hall. Deadline is 5 p.m. Thursday, July 3.

Meanwhile the city manager, mayor and city commissioners took to the speaking circuit to explain the proposed bond issue to local organizations and civic groups.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson spoke to the Pampa Noon Lions Club meeting today. City Manager Mack Wofford will appear before the Downtown Kiwanis Club Friday noon.

The city manager said speakers will be provided for any interested groups and information on the bond election may be obtained by calling City Hall.

The city still is awaiting final word on the federal aid grant from the Environmental Protection Agency which would pay 75 per cent of the construction cost.

An official of the Texas Water Quality Board said Tuesday announcement of the Pampa grant would be released by Rep. Jack Hightower, 13th District congressman.

Milton Rose, chief of TWQB grant management, indicated announcement could come within the next few days or early in July.

Kenya to Execute British Lecturer

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin says the execution of a British lecturer will go ahead as scheduled July 4 unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan flies to Kampala for talks.

Callaghan says he will not go to Uganda unless Amin grants clemency to Dennis Hills, 61, convicted of treason for calling Amin a "village tyrant" in an unpublished manuscript. Diplomats say the stalemate may assure Hills' execution.

"Unless someone backs down, there is a deadlock," one diplomat said. "After the events of the last few days I have little doubt Hills will be executed next week unless there is a break."

Diplomats have also expressed concern that the mercurial Amin may try to use some of the 700 Britons remaining in Uganda as political hostages in his confrontation with the country's colonial ruled. However, in a television interview broadcast in London Tuesday, Amin said he "loved" the Britons in Uganda and added "some of them are my best friends." In earlier statements on Radio Uganda, the president said any false step by Britain would "place the British community in Uganda in trouble. Britons are being watched already and are regarded as spies." "I'm not against the people of Great Britain," Amin said in his five-page telegram to the queen. "That is why I have given Mr. Callaghan another opportunity to come to Uganda before sentence on Mr. Hills is carried out." Callaghan told Parliament he would not go to Kampala until Hills' life was spared. "President Amin has only to exercise clemency and he would have the opportunity for a full discussion for which he asked." Callaghan said before flying to Europe. Amin, who postponed the execution date once, rescheduled it for July 4 after meeting last weekend with two British army officers sent to Kampala to deliver a plea for clemency from Queen Elizabeth.

dummy's nine-spot. A second club lead was then ruffed by South.

Next came the ten of trumps to the board's jack, picking up West's last trump enroute. The ace of clubs was now cashed, declarer discarding the diamond three, and this was followed by the ruffing of dummy's remaining club. On this trick East discarded a heart.

The ace of hearts was then cashed, after which a heart was led to South's king. Now came the key play: Declarer played his ace of diamonds. South's remaining heart was next ruffed in dummy.

At this point West was known to have started with six clubs (East had failed to follow suit to the fourth round), three hearts, and two spades. Therefore he could not have started with more than two diamonds (and he had followed suit when declarer had cashed the diamond ace).

So declarer led a diamond off dummy, and when East put up the eight, declarer inserted his queen. West won the trick with his king — and, simultaneously, became the victim of an end-play, since he had no option but to play back a club. When he did, declarer ruffed the trick in dummy while he discarded the remaining diamond from his own hand.

Had declarer taken the diamond finesse anywhere along the line (as opposed to laying down the diamond ace first), West would have captured the trick with his king. He would

Chinese Styles Influence Fashions

COLLEGE STATION — Chinese influence is the biggest fashion story for fall '75 from top American and European designers. Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist, reported this week.

accessories include finely carved ivory pendants and silk scarfs around the neck.

"Karate, coolie or workers' jackets — inspired by Chinese origin — are worn over skirts, dresses or pants.

"Side wraps with frogs or wooden toggle closings are popular for dresses, coats or jackets," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

In traditional Chinese style, the silhouette is slim. Look for jump suits as well as tunic tops over pants.

Other Chinese influences include mandarin collars, contrast piping and body-shaped, side-slit dresses, the specialist said.

Shiny quilted fabrics and Chinese mohair create the oriental look. Colors are strong and deep — lacquer red, jade green and shiny black patterns.

Jade and coral jewelry complete the look. Other

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
My husband and I were looking for some new washable vinyl place mats. We disliked the ones we saw in the stores because of the design, lack of durability and price.

The new floor coverings are very attractive and come in so many designs and colors. Matching the color scheme of your kitchen shouldn't be any problem.

My husband saw a scrap of glossy vinyl floor covering. For very little money we got eight place mats, a center piece pad, durability, washability, the fun of creating a new object and a pattern we really like.

We tried it in our lab and it's great. They also make wonderful cutting boards.

The floor covering is easily cut with a metal square and a utility knife.

Dear Heloise:
Add a few drops of your favorite cologne to the water to be put in your steam iron. I do. Now it is a pleasure to iron. Everything smells so nice.

UT to Spend $45 Million

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — University of Texas Regents Chairman Allan Shivers says the school will proceed with plans for $45 million in construction despite Gov. Dolph Briscoe's veto of the projects.

"In my opinion that just doesn't apply to the University of Texas," Shivers said Tuesday.

Briscoe vetoed 136 riders in the $12.1 billion budget bill Saturday authorizing long range building programs at six state universities. The governor said the colleges must comply with a new law requiring approval of the legislature or the College Coordinating Board for any campus construction.

Shivers said UT will still proceed with plans for a $10 million law school expansion and a $35 million fine arts center.

Shivers said the Texas Constitution empowers UT regents to use the Permanent University Fund to finance construction projects and that authority cannot be restricted by the legislature or governor.

"You can't change the constitution by statute," Shivers said.

Shivers, who served as governor from 1949 until 1957 — longer than anyone else in Texas history, said the state's chief executive has no legal authority to veto riders in the biennial spending bill.

Attorney General Price Daniel, who's now a member of the Supreme Court, ruled during my administration and Attorney General Crawford Martin ruled during Gov. (John) Connally's administration that the governor can't veto riders."

Shivers said even if Briscoe could legally veto the riders, the action would not cut off funds for UT building projects because regents don't need the legislature's okay for construction plans financed from the permanent fund.

"We've had riders of that kind in appropriations bills for 20 years," Shivers said. "It's been a common practice — just a matter of listing them as to priority."

Shivers also disputed suggestions by some Briscoe aides the governor's action will cloud legality of bond issues by UT and prevent sale of the bonds backed by the permanent fund.

"We have bond counsel and smart lawyers — we're not going to get into that situation," Shivers said.

UT regents voted June 5 to spend $150,000 to hire an architect and develop preliminary plans for the law school expansion.

Bank Gives Dog Biscuits To Customers' Passengers

AGAWAM, Mass. (UPI) — Tellers are handing out dog biscuits at some branches of the Shawmut First Bank & Trust Co.

As part of a public relations program, tellers give biscuits to each dog passing through the driveup lane with its master.

Teller Marge Ainey of the Agawam branch said the dogs were enthusiastic.

About 20 per cent of the cars passing through the driveup lane at the Agawam branch contain dogs, she said.

The biscuits are passed to the car on the first swing of the pull-out tray, Mrs. Ainey explained. Some of the "regulars," like Topsy who comes each day with Mrs. Elizabeth Thorpe, jump over their masters to reach the treats themselves, she said.

House Fails To Override Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House failed today to override a veto of a $1.35 billion housing bill, giving President Ford another big victory over the heavy Democratic majority in Congress.

By a margin of 16 votes, Democrats failed to muster the two-thirds majority required to pass the bill over the President's objections. The vote was 268 to 157.

Democrats claimed the measure was vital to revive the home construction industry from its depression-level slump and would have produced 400,000 homes and 800,000 jobs.

The bill offered a variety of down payment or mortgage interest rate subsidies to middle-income buyers of homes selling for under $38,000.

Ford vetoed the bill Tuesday on grounds it would "damage the housing industry and damage the economy." But he released $2 billion for the subsidized purchase of mortgages to stimulate loans to home buyers and asked Congress to make $7.75 billion more available.

As he had done successfully before, Ford telephoned wavering Republicans to keep his partisans in line.

YOU DESERVE THE FACTS!

We are accused by the Retail Clerks of freezing wages but not freezing prices.

FACT: On January 5, 1975 our employees with 3 years supermarket experience received wage increases ranging from 45¢ to 78¢ per hour;

FACT: These same full time employees are paid a base rate of $4.35 per hour. When you add the company paid contributions for pension, health and welfare, holidays and vacation benefits to this $4.35, the employee's pay is increased to $5.00 per hour.

FACT: With the current sluggish economy and continued inflation we do not think it would be good business judgment to grant an additional increase in wages and benefits, at this time, which would jeopardize our ability to offer you competitive prices in this area.

FACT: We do recognize the need for our employees to be paid a fair wage. We feel that $5.00 per hour is fair. We do not believe that an additional wage increase is warranted during the remainder of this agreement.

FACT: We Have Not Frozen Prices! We Have Lowered Prices! 786 prices in Pampa have been reduced in the last 6 weeks. These lower prices are on basic items such as: bread, soft drinks, cookies, milk, ice cream, tuna, oleo, sugar, cake mixes, flour, shortening, bleach and biscuits.

FACT: Rising costs in the form of higher wages and benefits means rising prices. How Much Can The Consumer Stand?

We are sorry for any inconvenience this strike has caused you but we strongly believe that some inconvenience now is better than higher food prices tomorrow.

Lasers May Be Answer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Powerful new lasers now under development may help the United States break the grip of the energy shortage.

Scientists predict the laser's concentrated beams of light may be used within just a few years to enrich uranium fuel for conventional reactors much more economically than can be done with any process now available.

By the end of this century, they say, an entirely new kind of laser-powered reactor might harness a miniature version of the sun to produce electricity. Such reactors would draw their fuel from ordinary water, rather than uranium, and would produce almost no radioactive wastes.

Fusion is the process of joining two light atoms to form a heavy one. It occurs constantly on the sun and releases great amounts of energy.

The main fuel supply for fusion is a special "heavy" type of hydrogen called deuterium, found in water. Nuclear experts calculate the deuterium obtained from a single gallon of water could produce the same amount of energy as burning 300 gallons of gasoline.

Laser fusion reactors would set off repeated tiny nuclear explosions by hitting fuel pellets with intense blasts of light lasting only a billionth of a second each. The pellet would be compressed so quickly its atoms would fuse, giving off a burst of energy.

Government experts say the result would be nuclear power reactors creating only one-tenth as much radioactive waste as present fission reactors, a vastly decreased likelihood of nuclear accidents, reduced danger from sabotage or diversion of atomic materials and the potential for urban siting.

This would require lasers — the devices which produce the concentrated light beams — more powerful than available now. Estimates when they would be available range from 1979 to 1995.

On the more immediate horizon, laser beams may be used to replace expensive gaseous diffusion plants used to enrich uranium fuel for conventional reactors.

All present U.S. reactors must burn uranium in which the concentration of the fissionable isotope U-235 has been increased. Gaseous diffusion plants for this enrichment process cost an estimated $1.4 billion each and consume the energy produced by two 1,200-megawatt nuclear reactors.

New developments are occurring steadily in the laser energy field — two during the past week: A California laboratory said it had successfully used lasers for the first time to enrich uranium in large quantities. And the Energy Research and Development Administration said an Illinois research team had made progress in developing a novel way of boosting laser power to levels needed for energy production.

Mozambique Exchanges Old Flag For New One

United Press International
The Portuguese flag came down and in its place over the Palacio da Ponta, home of former Portuguese governors, rose the black, red, green and yellow colors of the new Peoples Republic of Mozambique.

The raising of the new flag, declared the new nation's president, Samora Machel, closed "500 years of bestiality... a story of degradation, slavery, massacres, humiliation, exploitation and oppression."
Among those present for the occasion was Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves of Portugal, himself the product of revolution.

The scene was one which had been played out before in Africa as the colonialism of the European powers has given way to newly independent nations and bitterness against the former rulers has mingled in equal portions with frequently unrealistic expectations of the future under freedom.

On Aug. 25, 1958, in the presence of French President Charles de Gaulle, another independence leader, Sekou Toure, rejected membership in the French community for Guinea and brusquely declared: "We prefer poverty in freedom to riches in slavery."
Poverty and suspicion remain the norm in "democratic, secular and socialist" Guinea, where Toure plays host to the Soviets and where the gross national product per capita remains below $300 annually despite great natural wealth.

Machel has pledged that Mozambique also will be a socialist state—Africa's "first truly Marxist state."
As president of Mozambique, Machel makes the transformation to head of state from guerrilla leader and president of Frelimo, Front for the Liberation of Mozambique. He took over the post after the letter-bomb assassination of Eduardo Mondlane, father of Mozambique independence.
Ideologically, Frelimo leaders appear to be austere Marxists with decided leanings toward the theories of China's Mao Tse-tung.

As with other Marxist states, they have indicated the party will rank above the state.
They also have indicated the simple matter of black power is not their goal.
Machel has declared that social transformation and reform are more important than replacing white faces with black. He has invited Mozambique's white settlers to stay if they will "work constructively for a new Mozambique."
Regardless of the color of their ideology, the problems faced by the new rulers are mammoth. The country suffers from both flood and drought. Eighty per cent of its people are illiterate and half its white population of 200,000 has fled the country.

The leaders have pledged to eliminate tribalism and to promote equality. But they lack trained administrators and the country's external debt is close to $1 billion.
Economically the country depends on politically incompatible South Africa and Rhodesia.
One out of every five U.S. workers puts in more than 40 hours a week on his job.

ROAD REPAIRS
MANILA (UPI) — The Public Highways Department has allocated $447,000 for the repair of damaged portions of the scenic Kennon Road leading up to the mountain resort city of Baguio, 160 miles north of Manila.
Portions of the road were damaged by a series of destructive typhoons last year. Baguio, the Philippines' summer capital, located about 5,000 feet above sea level, attracts more than 200,000 visitors annually during the summer months of March and April.

Poor Folks, Experts Disagree About Image

NEW YORK (UPI) — The poor see themselves in different ways from what the experts on the poor often visualize them. "This country can afford to take care of the poor and is not doing it," is the way one woman puts it. "Why don't we work?", asks another. "No opportunities, discrimination. They look at the color of your skin, jobs might not be available."

"While it used to be that welfare was a shameful thing, people don't look down their nose at welfare people any more. What's to be ashamed of?", says another. "People don't know what poverty is who haven't been there," observes another. "Now when you do work, they take that much away from us, so that you can't get ahead." The professors began with a random sampling of 40 women receiving aid to dependent children. They were interviewed in depth in their homes and set the pattern for interviews of other women. The professors' findings are discussed in the current "Journal of Home Economics", a publication of the American Home Economics Association.

The women receiving aid ranged from 19 to 54 years of age and it turned out looked on poverty in five markedly different ways. Some were "struggling", others "discouraged", "critical", "accepting" or "special circumstances" that had put them in the welfare column. In the "struggling" group, one mother explained, "Some just can't afford to work. Many have small children and cannot get the kinds of jobs that pay enough to provide babysitting and have anything left over."

She suggested the No. 1 priority should be for "state-run child centers so that mothers could work. It would give them back some pride in themselves."

"The critical" group was critical of fellow welfare recipients. They said, "Laziness, not money, is the basic problem." "poor people don't take care of the things they have" and "poor people just have to learn to go without."

Said one, "I don't care how much money is spent, you're not going to wipe out poverty conditions. Some people are going to sit there and let you wait on them."

The "discouraged" believed that everyone looks down on them because they are on welfare and that most people don't understand poverty. "There's nobody to tell your troubles to."

"No money left," said one woman. "Absolutely. Utilities are so high. Gotta have gas, water, lights. Don't know how I'm going to do it."

The "accepting" women believe the other poor should accept poverty, as they themselves accept it. Instead of complaining, for instance, about clothing styles—the poor should be glad they have good warm clothing. As one said, "If it wasn't for laid-back clothes and hand-me-downs, we would be in trouble."

The "special circumstances" group explained how hard they worked, could understand and view with compassion the problems of others on welfare. But they clearly indicated that hard work and stronger inner character would eliminate many poverty and welfare problems.

One woman summed up matters this way: "You have to work for what you get...it's not going to jump into your lap."

Farm Cooking

Mrs. Jane Henderson spends many summer hours in the kitchen of her farm home about 15 miles east of Pampa. She prepares at least one big meal a day in addition to many sandwiches and snacks.

Harvest Meals Furnish Fuel

Editor's Note: When it fell my turn to provide material for the food page, some of my fellow workers scoffed.

"What do you know about cooking?" one asked.

"Very little," I readily admitted, "but I know something about eating. I have consumed Coquille St. Jacques at the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, I've dined on stewed cabrito on the Galapagos Islands, and enjoyed broiled corvina in Lima, Peru."

"Big deal," the co-worker said. "I have too. And you pronounced 'Coquille' wrong." (There are some disadvantages to being married to a co-worker.)

I had made my point, however, and as I further explained my plan, I convinced my doubting co-workers that I could, indeed, provide them with an interesting, informative food page. It follows.

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Some of the most popular, successful dining spots in the Panhandle of Texas have been places that featured good old home cooking served family style — places like Mrs. Bromley's over in Clarendon; or, remember Mrs. Batson's Dining Room that used to be across from the bus station in Amarillo?

You just can't beat that kind of eating but it's hard to find for sale. It is more often a labor of love — a mother preparing filling, nourishing foods for her family, for example.

Or, this time of year, in this part of the world, such victuals may be found weighing down dinner tables in various farms, providing fuel for the operators of harvest equipment.

"I never know how many I'm going to have for lunch," said Jane Henderson who lives about 15 miles east of Pampa. "I usually feed at least three, including Tom (her husband), all summer."

Mrs. Henderson said she usually prepares a meat dish, a vegetable or two, a couple of salads, hot bread, dessert, and plenty of iced tea.

She starts working on lunch about 9:30 a.m. and usually has the kitchen all cleaned up by about 2 p.m., she said.

"And if I have to be gone somewhere, I prepare everything before I leave," she said. "If they have a breakdown or something, I will carry it all in the trunk of my car out to them."

For most of the dishes Mrs. Henderson cooks, she follows recipes.

"But I improvise a lot," she said, "because I can't run into town if I run out of something."

Mrs. Henderson said she learned the art of cooking from her mother, back on the Kansas wheat farm where she grew up. She also indicated that she is thankful for some modern shortcuts that weren't available to her mother.

For example, the biscuits she often serves are made from an "improvised Bisquick recipe." Mrs. Henderson sometimes has to cook large quantities of food that require multiplying recipes.

"There is usually no problem in doubling or tripling a recipe," she said. "But if you go more than that it may not work very well."

During harvest, the Henderson crew gets sandwiches — lots of sandwiches — delivered to them in the field at supertime with maybe homemade ice cream or watermelon for dessert.

Construction of the sandwiches begins about 4:30 p.m. and it is usually 7 or 7:30 p.m. before they all are delivered, Mrs. Henderson said.

It makes for a pretty rigorous schedule — especially the copious noontime meal that is prepared every day.

"But it's important to fuel the fellows up for the work they do," Mrs. Henderson said. "And we don't cook like this all year ... thank goodness."

Pork Chops Supreme
Mrs. Henderson fixes this one in sufficient quantity for everyone to have at least two servings.

"If they don't like the pineapple, they can just scrape it off," she said.

8 pork chops
8 slices pineapple
1 can yams
Brown pork chops, place on cookie sheet, top with pineapple slices and yams. Top with sauce of:

1 cup catsup
4 tablespoons minced onions
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons worcester sauce
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup pineapple juice
1 teaspoon ground cloves
Simmer 45 minutes.

Banana Salad
This one is a lot like banana pudding. Talk about "fuel for the fellows," this dish provides a lot of calories to burn for energy.

2 cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons flour (heaping)
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 or 2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar (packed)

Heat milk. Mix other ingredients adding enough milk to make a paste. Add gradually to hot milk, heat until thick, stirring all the time. Add 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Cool, add sliced bananas and as many peanuts as you like.

Strawberry Jam
A good old Henderson recipe," Mrs. Henderson said. It is indeed beautiful what a spoonful of it can do to a hot, buttered biscuit.

Wash berries carefully.

Measure out 1 quart. Place in colander and pour boiling water. Let drain then place in preserving kettle. Add 2 cups granulated sugar. Bring to a boil and boil for five minutes. Then add 2 more cups of sugar. Boil 10 minutes. Remove from heat and allow to stand overnight. Without heating, pour into jars, cover with paraffin, seal well.

Pie Crust (Never Fail)
Mrs. Henderson said this recipe makes enough for 2 1/2 pies. She didn't say what kind of pan she bakes the 1/2 pie in.

2 1/2 cups flour
1 cup shortening
1/2 cup hot water
1 teaspoon salt
Cut together, add hot water, and let set for 10 minutes before rolling. Refrigerate indefinitely.

Frieda's Cream Pie
Mrs. Henderson didn't say who Frieda is, but she did say that this is a popular dessert at the Henderson table.

One-third cup brown sugar,
2 teaspoons flour (slightly heaping in bottom of pie shell).
Mix together scant cup of sugar, 2 heaping tablespoons of flour. Add to:

1/2 pint whipping cream
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
pinch of salt
Sprinkle top with cinnamon and butter. Bake at 300 degrees for at least one hour or until brown on top.

Bank Experts Contend You Can Eat Cheaper

United Press International
Imagine a dinner for two that costs only $1. A New York bank asked some experts to do just that. They came up with enough ideas and main dish recipes for a week of interesting and nutritious meals for a middle income family at 50 cents or less per person.

Amazingly, the experts managed to stretch some menus to include dessert and beverage, for a price that is below the average economy level for food expenditures estimated by the federal government.

The simple, easy recipes they provided were lamb stew, a sardine-noodle platter that can be prepared in 10 minutes, chicken tarragon with rice, liver al polenta (with Italian-style corn meal mush), pork steak Alsatian, an Italian fish dinner and eggplant casserole.

Here are three of the recipes:

For easy lamb stew, cut up a 1 pound breast of lamb, and brown it in its own fat. Add 3 peeled potatoes, halved, 1 carrot, cut in circles, 1 onion, cut up, salt, pepper and rosemary or any other herb, and 2 cups of water. Cover and simmer 45 minutes to 1 hour, or until lamb is tender. Serves 2 persons, and the $1.00 cost covers homemade hot biscuits, shredded cabbage salad and sliced bananas with a spoonful of homemade yogurt. Serves 2.

Chicken tarragon with rice for two costed out at .97 cents, including the rice. By substituting water for a quarter cup of dry white wine in the chicken dish, you could include a salad for the same price as the wine: 12 cents.

Coat 1 pound of chicken thighs with 2 tablespoons of flour, and saute quickly to brown all sides in a saucepan heated with 1 tablespoon each of butter and oil. Add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of dried tarragon, one fourth cup of dry white wine or water, and salt and pepper to taste. Bake 20-25 minutes in preheated 325-degree oven, or until chicken juices run clear. Cook half a cup of raw rice, and serve chicken and sauce over it. Serves 2.

With pork steak Alsatian, you get potatoes with the casserole and beer left over from the recipe to serve as a beverage.

Buy a fresh pork shoulder, and ask the butcher to cut a three-quarter pound steak from it. The remainder can be roasted. Leftovers cooked with drippings and sauerkraut will make a second casserole, and the bones can be cooked with dry beans to make a fourth low-cost meal.

Brown the steak on both sides in fat obtained from rendering some of the trimmings. Remove steak from pan, add half a medium onion, peeled

Richer People, Poorer Food

United Press International
The higher the income, the worse the diet, says Dr. Ancel Keys, an internationally known researcher on diet and health.

Keys thinks most people would be better off on a workman's diet and, specifically, the Mediterranean workman's. It contains relatively few high-cholesterol foods such as fatty meats and dairy products, but a lot of high-bulk fruit and vegetables, mostly home-grown.

"Considering the kind of sedentary lives we live, our food is too concentrated, too low in bulk and high in calories," he said in an interview.

Keys is a professor emeritus at the University of Minnesota School of Public Health, a medical researcher, consultant to the World Health Organization, UNESCO and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, and chairman of the research committee of the International Society of Cardiology.

He and his wife, Margaret, a biochemist, divide their time between homes in Minneapolis and Pioppi, Italy, about 100 miles south of Naples. Keys recalled a Rome restaurant popular with tourists that features pasta in triple butter.

It's not the pasta but the sauce that's risky, he said, adding that Italians, Greeks and others who live along the Mediterranean Sea eat lots of bread or pasta or both and many potatoes and other vegetables.

He said they have about the same intake of starchy food as people in cooler climates, but they use olive oil instead of butter and eat many vegetables high in roughage.

"It is very common for a workman eating on the job (in Italy) to have a sandwich of a small loaf of bread filled with half a pound of cooked spinach with olive oil dribbled on it."

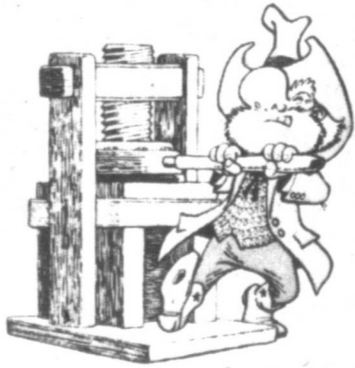

They also keep portions small.

"Even in Italy, the idea of big portions is not common among the rich," he said.

Keys, whose medical publications include a book, "Coronary Heart Disease in Seven Countries," said he has another two or three years to go in following a multi-nation heart disease study of 15,000 men.

Food Stamp Plan Will Lead To Fraud

Proposed Food Stamp Change Will Lead to Fraud
By PATRICIA ALTOBELLO
Pampa News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Texas state welfare commissioner predicted this week that a plan to allow potential food stamp recipients to receive benefits immediately after applying for them will lead to wholesale fraud.

Comm. Raymond Vowell, appearing before the House Agriculture Committee, said an amendment to a Senate food stamp bill will result in the same kinds of abuses that have led to changes in other federal regulations. The amendment, recently passed by the Senate and sent to the House, would allow food stamp applicants to receive coupons immediately upon applying without the one or two month wait common in many states before paperwork is processed.

Testifying before the farm panel, on which sit fellow Texans Reps. Eligio de la Garza, D-Mission, William Poage, D-Waco, and Jack Highower, D-Vernon, the commissioner explained that the "self-certification" system created by the amendment is the same as that tested earlier in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) funds that caused a significant rise in overpayments to Texas recipients.

However, an aide to the Senate Subcommittee on Nutrition and Human Needs who helped draft the new amendment said the "emergency or temporary certification" should not be called "self-certification" because it's different than the former AFDC regulations, and still requires verification by food stamp officials within 30 days of application. The aide also pointed to the proposal's stiff criminal fraud penalty for applicants who turn out to be ineligible as proof that the amendment doesn't encourage fraud.

But, argued Vowell, "even if a person who has no business doing so gets food stamps for only a month, that isn't the way the program should be run."

Vowell told the committee Texas has investigated 1,608 food stamp cases for fraud, 947 of which resulted in prosecution of overpayments totalling $500,203, he said.

The welfare commissioner said he believed the fraud cases resulted from the inability of the staff to verify application information during the early stages of the state program, begun in December 1972 and now serving 1.2 million Texans. He said during that period staffers depended on undocumented client information, just as the new amendment proposes for the future.

The commissioner conceded, however, that the state food stamp program presently has a high error rate.

Pretty Beach, Blue Water Make Mexican Resort Nice

CANCUN, Quintan Roo, Mexico (UPI) — Nestled against the untamed Yucatan jungle in the Mexican Caribbean lies the beginnings of what may someday be one of the best known and most popular resorts in the world.

Miles of flawless white beach, horizons of blue water so spectacular no camera or artist's brush can do them justice, vegetation and wildlife of such color and variety as to startle even the most seasoned traveler, ancient cities of astonishing majesty rising from the jungle—these are only a few of the delights of Isla Cancun, pride of Mexico.

Less than five years ago there was nothing but the beach, the drush and nesting sea turtles. Today the ecological balance remains, but it surrounds luxury hotels, villas and condominiums carefully designed and strictly regulated to make Cancun a unique resort complex.

Cancun is the initial project of FONATUR, the National Fund for the Promotion of Tourism, organized last year to spearhead a carefully designed plan to create the world's finest vacation resorts where nothing had been for centuries.

"Cancun: The new 1,000-year-old world on the Mexican Caribbean," FONATUR describes the island.

The L-shaped sliver of land, only 14 miles long and a quarter mile wide, is in the early stages of a 30-year, $100 million project, but the results already are impressive.

The 205-room Cancun Caribe opened last December, the first of the hotels to become operational. Situated on the southeast shore, where a constant breeze pushes the blue waters up on the perfect sand, the Caribe's curved edifice rises as a tribute to FONATUR's plan.

Post-Dispatch Wants Look At FBI Files

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act demanding access to the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the newspaper's Washington bureau and bureau chief Richard Dudman.

The suit, filed Tuesday, grows out of a disclosure last year that the FBI had secretly subpoenaed long distance telephone records of the newspaper bureau and Dudman for periods in 1971. The records were reported obtained in connection with the newspaper's publishing of part of the so-called Pentagon Papers.

Dudman, in a letter to Attorney General Edward H. Levi last Feb. 19—the day the Freedom of Information Act went into effect—asked for the FBI files that led to the subpoena. He also asked for any other FBI files on himself or the newspaper bureau.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley responded that the files had information from someone who wished to remain anonymous and that there are files on Dudman, although he is not the subject of an active investigation.

Kelley said further the files are exempt from the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act and denied Dudman's request that they be turned over to him. Levi upheld Kelley's judgment.

One out of every five U.S. workers puts in more than 40 hours a week on his job, according to U.S. Department of Labor statistics.

The Caribe had its problems during the winter season, operating without telephones, either on the island or operational within the facility itself, training native descendants of the ancient Mayans as staff personnel and depending on a less than fully reliable power supply from Cancun City, built almost overnight by FONATUR to house some 15,000 construction workers.

But the hotel staff worked hard, the guests accepted the slight inconveniences, and the Caribe became the first to establish Cancun as the resort of the future.

Joining the Caribe in operation on the island this summer will be the 228-room Hotel Aristos, the 197-room El Presidente Club de Golf, the 250-room Camino Real Cancun and the 300-room Club Mediterraneo.

A championship 18-hole golf course designed by Robert Trent Jones is being built, and the first nine holes should be open by late summer.

A medical center, boat docks, marinas, convention centers, beach villas, condominiums and miles of new road are also under construction.

This newest Caribbean resort is not cheap. Hotel rooms at the Caribe range from $34 a night for a single, without meals, during the summer season to $96 for a double, including breakfast and dinner, during the winter.

The other hotels are expected to fall within the same price range, with some including even more expensive accommodations.

Transportation also is expensive now. It's a $7.20 taxi ride to and from the airport, $4.80 one-way to Cancun City. Buses, which run regularly, are cheaper, of course, and some of the hotels plan to start their own shuttle bus system from the airport.

The traveler is advised to bring along his own diving gear (it can be rented, but the cost and quality will not satisfy most enthusiasts) and prepare himself for some of the best swimming, diving and snorkeling around.

When everything is in full swing, there will be golf and tennis pros available, but your own rackets and clubs are recommended.

Cancun International Airport, literally carved out of the jungle, some 17 miles from the island, is a new $10 million facility capable of handling jumbo jets.

Eighty per cent of first marriages and 60 per cent of remarriages take place in church.

Rodeo Cowboy Says No To Any More Bucking

DENVER (UPI) — John Edwards has been bucked for the last time.

The 33-year-old cowboy from Red Lodge, Mont., who only last week became one of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's top 15 money winners in bare back riding, said he was calling it quits because of the inability of his right arm to heal from breaks during the past several years.

The PRCA said Edwards was bucked from his horse last weekend at the Ingelwood, Calif., Forum Rodeo and after walking out of the arena said he was retiring.

Edwards had his best years in the 1960's and reached his peak at the 1970 National Finals Rodeo where he was the only one of the season's top 15 bareback riders to ride all 12 of his horses and win the average.
Trouble started for the 6-2,

170 pound cowboy in 1971 when his third horse bucked him off, and his hands were trapped in the rigging. He never made it to the finals again and two years later broke the same arm in the same place, and the bone never properly healed.

The PRCA also said championship leads changed in three events following rodeo competition last weekend.
Bruce Ford, Greeley, Colo., took the lead from Rusty Riddle in bareback riding, $14,972 to Riddle's $14,953. Ford was first in the event at the North Platte, Neb., rodeo, winning $1,235.

Tom Puryear, reigning world champion steer wrestler from Kyle, Tex., took first in his event at the rodeo and edged out Frank Shepperson of Midwest, Wyo., for the event lead.

Obese Dogs Need Diet

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — When a pet owner's Fido is a fatso, it is the owner, not the dog, who usually needs to learn self-control.

Obesity is the most common diet-induced ailment seen in dogs, says veterinarian J.F. Albersen. He said some owners pamper their pooches by feeding table scraps in addition to regular pet food. Many simply provide too much food for an under-exercised animal.

Albersen said dogs also can suffer from other human-type illnesses—heart conditions, kidney disease, intestinal disturbances and food-related allergies.

Periodic check-ups are just as important for dogs as they are for humans, the veterinarian said, and for the same reason: a treatable condition often can be diagnosed before symptoms become obvious.

Special dietary animal foods also are available for dogs with specific ailments, including heart, kidney and intestinal diseases, food-related allergies and obesity. They are sold only on a veterinarian's prescription.

Albersen recommends regular check-ups for dogs as preventive medicine, to catch ailments while they still are treatable. He said giving a dog a large knuckle bone is safe, and it may amuse the animal and help eliminate tartar from its teeth. But small bones, including those from steaks and chops as well as chicken and fish, are dangerous because they are liable to splinter.

Four Groups Protest New Campus Sex Rules

By JANE DENISON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four major forces in higher education today threw their weight behind new rules banning sex discrimination on campus, scoffing at claims by college coaches that the plan will spell disaster for athletics.

All four groups — representing hundreds of colleges and universities across the nation — sent women to present their case before a House subcommittee examining the federal orders to see if they conform to a three-year old law forbidding educational sex bias.

The rules go into effect July 21 unless disapproved by Congress.

"After hundreds of years of discrimination and inequality in our institutions of higher education, the time has come to provide women with equal opportunity in all educational programs," said Nellie M. Varner of the University of Michigan.

"To discriminate unjustly is to be inhumane, and the loss experienced by one social group directly impacts on all others in society."

Dr. Varner spoke on behalf of three educational groups — the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the American Council on Education and the Association of American Universities.

Support also came from the Association of American Colleges, representing some 700 liberal arts colleges, most of them private and many of them church-related.

College football coaches earlier told the committee that taking money from such male dominated sports as football and basketball for women's athletics could destroy the sports.

Over 60 hotels on the French Riviera and Monaco now offer convention facilities to accommodate 68,000 people.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JUNE 27
Your birthday today: Now is the time to make a fresh start. You do not "go back" to a past place or event; you begin where you are. You try to create a better self rather than correct previous errors. Ventures succeed in proportion to the energy you invest in them. Relationships thrive when you share. Today's natives are brusque but appreciate tact in others.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You can persuade associates to back almost any reasonable program. It's up to you to set a sensible budget. Expansive ideas are easily put into preliminary practice.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Close out your work week in good style; collect what is due you. See that those who sponsor or encourage you get a full report on what is happening in your career.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Renegotiate financial matters now. Increase your information. Help youngsters find answers to their problems. Tactfully accept loved ones as they are, not what they might become.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Direct your efforts toward bringing in income and improving your earning skills. Your romance encounters problems. Just be patient.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: An early discussion results in cooperation and a new project to share. Be willing to get involved. Your regular work expands and results in overtime. Enjoy a good show and don't talk shop tonight.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Live and let live. Instead of forcing issues toward some unreal perfection, make use of what resources are at hand. A symbolic gift expressing your feelings is in order.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Gather people about you who are known to favor your ideas; discuss plans and selection of leadership to put them over. Be prompt in getting home; pick up where you left off.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Emotional ties prove stronger than most other obligations. You find it easier to move your work home for a while or take time off to attend to personal and family needs.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Today is a steeplechase for the nimble-minded and is full of excitement, sudden, minor incidents, humor and an odd coincidence. Travel is productive and offers a new, better perspective.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Unplanned changes prevail and are a pleasant surprise. Be alert and ready to move at a moment's notice. Later hours bring good news from a distant contact. Celebrate!

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Be a leader and a creative example. Meet other people halfway. Be willing to understand their strengths as well as their weaknesses and to help them.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Begin early since there are confusing conditions to be sorted out. You strike a balance between work and play during later hours. Claim all that is owed you.

Court Sides With Hurst

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Supreme Court today turned down attempts to have the Home Rule Charter of the City of Hurst declared invalid.

The City of Colleyville, joined by the state, had filed suit against Hurst, contending the charter was invalid because Hurst lacked the required 5,000 population when it was adopted in 1956.

Hurst argued the charter had been validated by subsequent acts of the state legislature and was not subject to challenge in the courts.

A trial court dismissed Colleyville's suit, and on appeal the Fort Worth Court of Civil Appeals upheld the validity of the Hurst Home Rule Charter. The supreme court today went along with that ruling.

Poor, Affluent Work For Full Employment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They were in the city at the same time, the two delegations of Americans — one poor, the other comprised of affluent leaders and intellectuals.

And their goals Tuesday were identical — to urge a national policy of full employment.

"We are not going to celebrate the bicentennial of 1776 with hollow stomachs and empty bellies," Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Leadership Conference, told a rally at the Capitol attended by about 1,000 poor persons.

Meanwhile, nearly 400 persons, including leaders of organized labor, met at a downtown hotel for the first national conference called by the Full Employment Action Council.

A goal of both groups was a job for everyone who wants to work. Both oppose the theory the nation must undergo a period of high unemployment in order to end inflation.

After lobbying their congressmen, those attending the jobs rally listened to speakers at the Capitol urge unity among the poor, attack the administration and challenge its response to Indochina refugees while leaving the U.S. poor forgotten.

"We want to tell our leaders," said Abernathy, "that we are here this time for conversation; but next time, we'll come for confrontation."

"It took Congress only two weeks to approve $400 million for the Vietnamese refugees," another speaker said. But he pointed to resistance in funding Community Action projects, adding: "Maybe we should declare refugees status for ourselves."

Those attending the full employment conference included AFL-CIO President George Meany, United Auto Workers chief Leonard Woodcock, Leon Keyserling, president of the Conference on Economic Progress, and Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Jacob Javits.

They said a policy of trading off unemployment to combat inflation is economically unsound and socially disruptive. "Each extra one per cent of unemployment costs 900,000 jobs, $50 billion in unproduced goods and services, and $14 billion in uncollected taxes," the conference Economic Task Force said.

"No matter when the administration economists pronounce the official end of the business recession," said Meany, "the human continuum of unemployment will continue for the rest of this decade unless strong actions are taken now."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

June 25, 1775:

General Thomas Gage, the Royal Governor of Massachusetts and the commander of all British forces in the colonies, sends the Ministry in London his official account of the June 17 encounter with the colonists on Bunker Hill: "This action has shown the superiority of the King's troops, who, under every disadvantage, attacked and defeated above three times their number, strongly posted and covered by breastworks." In a letter to Lord Dartmouth, Secretary for the Colonies, accompanying the official report, Gage indicates a growing respect for the American colonists: "I wish most sincerely that [Bunker Hill] had not cost us so dear. . . . We have lost some extremely good officers. The trials we have had show [that] the rebels are not the despicable rabble too many have supposed them to be."

Texas Court Of Appeals Upholds Adami Sentence

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the conviction and life sentence of Kenneth W. Adami of Webb County for the 1972 shooting of five unarmed Mexican aliens seeking shelter from the cold in a shack on his ranch.

The high state court in a 17-page opinion overruled the contentions of Adami's attorneys that the shootings were in self defense, and that the case should have been moved from Laredo because of widespread publicity.

Records in the case show the five dead men had illegally crossed the Rio Grande and were seeking shelter from the cold on Nov. 22, 1972, in a dilapidated shack on Adami's ranch. Adami testified he approached the house and found the men eating in the kitchen eating tortillas and drinking cans of vegetable juice.

The evidence showed four shots were fired from outside the kitchen window, killing three of the men. The other two men were killed from inside.

Adami turned himself in to police the day following the shooting.

He claimed at the trial the shack was his residence and most of his belongings were kept there although he usually slept in another building in which feed was stored. Records showed the floor of the shack was covered with dirt and animal droppings, and the windows were boarded up and grass grew three feet high around the building.

Adami said he had returned from a hunting trip and startled the aliens. He said one of them turned and attacked him.

"I felt terrified that I was under attack," he testified, and he began shooting "until there was no more sign of attack in the room . . . everything was quiet."

He said he then entered the kitchen and one of the men "that was in there faking dead" grabbed his rifle. He shot the man, and then killed the remaining victim, who he said jumped him from behind.

The appeals court said the jury in Adami's trial was fairly instructed to consider his claim of self defense.

The state's evidence presents a case of an unprovoked killing of five unarmed men by shooting them in the back portion of their heads or bodies with a high powered rifle at close range," the court said. "Thereafter, the appellant made the remark, 'That's kind of cold blooded, but I did it, and I am ready to go.'"

The court also reviewed voluminous evidence of news media coverage of the shootings and determined the pre-trial publicity was not sufficient to make a fair trial for Adami in Webb County impossible. The judges reviewed radio and television news accounts, and articles and photographs published in the Laredo Times.

Dr. Elden E. Rawlins, a Fulbright professor in mass communication at the University of the West Indies in Kingston, Jamaica, has been named chairman of Fort Worth's Texas Christian University journalism department beginning with the 1975 fall term.

Girls Not Prepared For Labor Force Life

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pretty myth that nice little girls just mark time at school while they grow up to be wives and mommies has gone poof.

In today's world, these little girls wind up in the labor force for most of their adult lives, ill-equipped by an education system that discriminates against them because they weren't born men.

That is how the National Organization for Women sees the problem facing American women today. Its proposed answer: Congress should endorse pending rules to ban sex discrimination from kindergarten through college.

Hearings on the proposed rules—which go into effect July 21 unless disapproved by Congress—continue today before a House subcommittee.

JAPAN'S GROWTH TOKYO (UPI) — Japan will have a population of 135,150,000 by year 2000 from 14,470,000 this year, according to the Health and Welfare Ministry's Institute of Population Problems.

The institute says the birth rate will level off after the country's population rises to 144,800,000 in year 2,050.

BURNETT REGULAR HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tim Conway, who has appeared on "The Carol Burnett Show" 43 times as a guest star, will become a regular in 1975-76 season.

Carrillo Decision Soon Says Committee Chairman

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The chairman of the House committee investigating Duval County District Judge O.P. Carrillo says the committee should decide whether to recommend impeachment by Aug. 1.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, said he hopes the committee will begin considering articles of impeachment against Carrillo at the next scheduled meeting July 9.

The committee hired former Rep. Terry Doyle of Port Arthur Tuesday to serve as special counsel and prosecutor should there be a vote to impeach Carrillo.

"The employment of counsel at this time does not mean the committee is going to impeach or not impeach," Hale said.

The committee voted to recess for two weeks to allow its staff to index 12 volumes of testimony taken in four weeks of public hearings and obtain additional bank records subpoenaed in the case, grown out of months of political warfare in Duval County.

If the House votes impeachment, Doyle will serve as prosecutor in a trial before the Senate to determine if Carrillo should be removed from office.

Hale said Doyle, a former first assistant district attorney in Jefferson County, was chosen from five applicants for the position. He said Doyle will probably be compensated at the standard per diem scale recommended by the State Bar of Texas—$300 per working day.

Doyle served two terms in the House but did not seek reelection in 1974. He was chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee in 1973.

The committee met briefly in a public session following one and one-half days of closed door meetings, which Hale said were to review the record of the case. He said the staff had indexed five of the 12 volumes, which contain 200 pages each, to support specific allegations against Carrillo with specific testimony of witnesses.

He also said many of the committee members are attorneys who had already made commitments to attend the state bar convention in Dallas next week. Hale said there was a possibility he will call the committee into session before the scheduled July 9 meeting.

Houston Chronicle Must Pay Truck Firm

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Houston Chronicle Publishing Co. must pay a truck leasing firm $331,761 because the publishing company broke a contract for distribution of its newspapers by the truckers, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The publishing company originally entered into a contract in 1965 for in-city distribution of its papers, and in 1970 agreed by letter to terms of a new contract also involving transporting the papers to other parts of the state. The proposed new contract, which the Chronicle contends was never signed, would have extended to Dec. 31, 1974.

On Aug. 1, 1971, the publishing company informed McNair Trucklease, Inc., its trucks would no longer be used. McNair sued for breach of contract, and a trial court awarded the trucking firm $231,756 in damages plus $14,922 interest. The Houston Court of Civil Appeals upheld the verdict in the case, but added another $85,063 plus interest to the judgment against the publishers.

The supreme court found no error in the earlier court handling of the case.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Carelessness is usually measured by results. That means Perryton's American Legion baseball team, based on recent action taken by the state baseball chairman, has been awfully careless.

Either that, or awfully ignorant of the rules, which, according to the old age, "is no excuse."

Perryton, fielding a team comprised of five Pampans, several Perrytonites and an Oklahoma player, has managed one of its best won-lost records (8-2) at this stage of the season in history. But the team has been told by state Legion baseball chairman Cliff Roberts it must forfeit all its district games and assume ineligibility for post-season playoffs.

Why? Perryton was careless. No, the players weren't careless, though it is they who are penalized. And it's not because Perryton is using players from other towns, for example Pampa, that the penalty has been assessed—it's the way those players were placed on the roster.

"The Pampa kids didn't bring it on. It wasn't their fault; it was more or less mine," Perryton coach James Smith said. "We filled out the roster wrong."

He added, "Really, the roster was just one violation but it is the main one, says Cliff Roberts of Amarillo, state Legion baseball chairman.

"There were no addresses, no signatures whatsoever," Roberts said, citing items that must be included on a Legion roster. "Some of the boys didn't even have birthdates. They didn't have the total enrollment of the schools down. And it wasn't signed by the principals."

The last violation on the roster is the least important, if there is such a thing as least important in a case like this. The signatures of the principals aren't even needed, as long as the names are written in.

The incomplete roster, which Roberts calls "a 100 percent, complete default," is just part of it. Perryton failed to get releases from the Legion post-adjutants at Pampa and Balco, Okla.

Kerry Kramer is from Balco and has been playing on the Perryton team. The Pampans are Roy Morris, Mike Fraser, Robbie Harris, Kory Gambin and Tylor Drinnon.

"Common sense tells you you've got to get a release," Roberts said.

The roster—with no releases—was turned in to Roberts June 16, a day past the deadline. In spite of the lateness, Roberts accepted it. "We'll accept any day or two late."

"But there's no way in the world I could have certified them." If Perryton had sent in the roster a few days early, say June 12, there would have been no penalty. "I would've called them. I would've given them a chance to straighten it out."

But for Perryton it was late. Roberts attributes part of the blame to Pampa's Legion baseball setup.

"It's regretful that the Pampa Legion uses the high school baseball coach (Ronnie White) to use American Legion as spring training for the high school team."

"I don't like it. I never have liked it. I never will like it. It's bad to stand up and tell a bunch of eligible and good ball players that you can't play ball on the team because you're a senior."

"It's not fair to the boy, nor fair to the American Legion program."

How are Perryton's players taking the penalty? "I told these kids we'd go ahead and try our best in the league," Smith said. "I don't know how they'll react but they're a good bunch of kids."

Pampa hosts Perryton at 8 p.m. Saturday in Optimist Park. It should be interesting.

Luzinski Won't Be An All-Star

United Press International Greg Luzinski has muscles everywhere but in his head—he knows the All-Star voting by the fans is just a popularity contest.

At the same time, the 6-foot-1, 225-pound outfielder, who is hitting .304 with 17 homers and 56 runs batted in for the Philadelphia Phillies, admits "deep down every player wants to get into an All-Star game and a World Series."

He leads the league in homers and is second in RBI.

Luzinski ranks 12th in the voting for National League outfielders and isn't likely to make the squad unless there is a massive shift in the voting pattern. But he could get his wish to play in a World Series because the Phils are red-hot and looking stronger every day.

They rallied from a six-run deficit to score a 7-4 13-inning triumph over Pittsburgh Wednesday night and move to within one game of the first-place Pirates in the NL East. They have won five straight games and created such interest in Philadelphia that they have drawn more than 25,000 fans in each of their last nine home dates.

"It's just a popularity thing," commented Phillies Manager Danny Ozark when asked about the All-Star voting. "Luzinski certainly belongs in the game."

Little League To Have Tilts For 8 Teams

Glo-Valve, National League champion, will take on American League winner Motor Inn starting at 8 p.m. today in the National League Park as part of a special eight-team Little League exhibition.

At 8 p.m. in the American League Park, the No. 4 teams in each league, Celanese of the NL and Cameron Iron Works of the AL, will meet. In 6 p.m. games, the No. 2 teams, Dixie of the NL and Citizen's Bank of the AL, will play in the NL park, while the No. 3 teams, OCAW of the NL and Gate Valve of the AL, will tangle in AL park.

The exhibition is a tune-up for the Little League all-star tournaments, which begin in July. All-star teams will be chosen after July 1.

Manager for the National League all-stars will be Ernest Fletcher, whose Glo-Valve team last year also won the league title. Motor Inn's manager, Joe Skinner, will head the American League all-stars.

Texan Whips Ilie

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Ilie Nastase is a sadder, but not necessarily a wiser, man after his upset defeat by big, bearded Sherwood Stewart of Goose Creek, Tex., at the Wimbledon Tennis championships Wednesday.

There is a broad streak of the showman in the makeup of the flashy Romanian that has always kept him from reaching the heights and now, with his 29th birthday three weeks away, it may be too late.

Big money tennis is a serious business. One of the American players, a well brought up young man by all accounts, exploded with a few four-letter words when he misplayed a shot, heedless of the crowds in the stands, Wednesday.

Some of the lady players, too, did not learn the language they sometimes use in finishing school.

But Nastase is what he is—a fun-loving fellow who refuses to consider the game a matter of life and death. So on Center Court, carrying the prestige of the number five seed, he went down to Stewart, ranked only 15th in the United States.

"In his prime I would never have beaten the guy, like a couple of years ago," Stewart said of his 8-6, 6-8, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3 win.

Nastase apparently hasn't learned a lesson becoming more obvious with every tournament in the professional tennis of today—there are any number of players who can beat any seed on a good day. Nastase, some of the experts felt, played to the crowd once or twice too often against Stewart, perhaps in the belief he could always pull off a brilliant recovery.

Top seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., has a completely different attitude and probably the right one for champions—he fights for every point no matter how far ahead he is and is ready to argue any decision he thinks borderline. He took up some of the calls with the umpire in beating Vijay Amritraj of India 9-8, 6-0, 8-6.

"Vijay is dangerous for me every time I play him," Connors explained later.

Five men's seeds have fallen in the first three days of the championships, all of them upsets.

In addition to Nastase, the men's singles Wednesday lost John Alexander of Australia, the 10th seed, and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, the 12th seed. Stan Smith and Vitas Gerulaitis, the seventh and 14th seeds, respectively, departed earlier.

There was an all-time record crowd of 37,061 on the grounds Wednesday and the gates were closed for the first time since 1949 when an early match between Gardner Mulloy and Ted Schroeder drew over 33,000.

Wimbledon used to be part of the social as well as the athletic calendar. One debutante, who obviously hadn't heard that the masses had taken over, stepped out of a chauffeured car in a long silk dress, her blonde hair elaborately coiffured.

She saw the solid wall of humanity, much of it in jeans and windbreakers or shirtsleeves, look around as though she could hardly believe her eyes and got back into the car and was whisked away.

Yanks Top Birds

United Press International In the old days, when the New York Yankees ruled baseball, the formula they used to stay on top was simple.

They would just wait until someone tried to challenge them and then they'd usually beat the stuffings out of the upstarts, head-to-head.

It was easy, especially since the Yankees usually had the best players.

New York's last pennant came 11 seasons ago but it looks as if the Yankees are trying to revive their old successful method to win again this time.

Although the Boston Red Sox are closest to them in the current standings, the Yankees feel the Baltimore Orioles are the club they must beat to finish first in the American League East.

Last year it also came down to these two teams. The Orioles came into New York, swept a three-game series from the Yankees in late September and finished two games ahead of them.

In recent seasons that was what usually happened when the Yankees played the Orioles.

But Wednesday night, New York defeated Jim Palmer 2-1 to complete a three-game series sweep at Baltimore, moving 1 1/2 games ahead of second place Boston and nine in front of Baltimore, which is in fourth place.

Walt Williams, who was just breaking into pro ball last time the Yankees swept the Orioles in 1963, tripped to start the ninth inning and scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Thurman Munson.

It was New York's 19th victory in 24 games this month, including 14 wins in its last 15 road games.

"I'm not surprised," said Williams, who has hit safely in nine straight games. "This team has the most talent of any club I've been on or played against."

Tennis Club Sets Tourney

The Pampa Tennis Club will sponsor a men and women's, not mixed, doubles tournament Saturday and Sunday at the high school courts.

Entry fee is $7.50 per team and must be turned in to Joe Davis, tournament director, before 6 p.m. today.

The tournament is open to players of all ages and from area towns as well as Pampa. More information can be obtained from Davis.

There are guys in this clubhouse who have delivered clutch performances many times before and there are guys on this team who should be playing regularly, but you can't play everyone.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland defeated Boston 8-5, the Chicago White Sox topped Texas 5-2, Milwaukee edged Detroit 7-6, Oakland ripped Minnesota 7-1 and Kansas City beat California 6-2 in 12 innings.

National League scores were: Cincinnati 2 Atlanta 0, Montreal 12 Chicago 6, New York 2 St. Louis 1, Houston 5 Los Angeles 4, San Diego 6 San Francisco 2 and Philadelphia 7 Pittsburgh 6 in 13 innings.

Indians 8, Red Sox 5 Alan Ashby hit a two-run homer and Duane Kuiper drove in two runs and scored another to help Cleveland complete a three-game sweep of Boston. Frank Duffy, who had three hits, was 8-for-12 in the series, scored five runs and drove in seven.

White Sox 5, Rangers 2 Jorge Orta, who now has hit safely in 10 straight games, doubled, tripled, scored two runs and drove in two to help Chicago win its fourth game in a row. Jim Kaat ran his record to 11-4 while Mike Bacsik of Texas lost his first major league start.

Brewers 7, Tigers 6 George Scott hit two bases empty homers and Pedro Garcia had three hits and stole three bases to help Milwaukee hand Detroit its sixth straight loss. Scott's homers produced the last two Brewer runs and raised his season RBI total to 50.

A's 7, Twins 1 Ken Holtzman, pitching a seven-inning to even his record at 7-7, beat Minnesota for the seventh time in his last eight decisions and give streaking Oakland its 10th victory in 11 games. A two-run double by Phil Garner and a two-run single by Ray Fosse were the key hits for the A's, who lead second-place Kansas City by five games in the West.

Royals 6, Angels 2 Frank White, inserted by Kansas City in the 10th inning for defensive help, snapped a 2-2 tie with a grand slam home run.

Cage Merger Coming?

By STEVE BISHEFF
Copley News Service

There's no denying it anymore. It's coming. The pieces are all starting to fall into place.

The buzzer is about to sound for professional basketball. Regulation time is over. The sport is instituting a new version of sudden death. The men risking the money know something has to be done. And they haven't got time to wait around. So they've come up with their own secret little game plan.

And even at this stage, it's easy to pinpoint the principal characters.

There's the smooth-talking backroom politician, the man with a reputation for hammering out tough deals and difficult compromises.

There's the handsome ex-all-star, the man with the image and the reputation to command instant respect from the older, established National Basketball Association. And, of course, there's the tall superstar at center, the most valuable single property in the game.

Larry O'Brien, Dave DeBusschere and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. A stranger combination couldn't have been imagined a few years ago. But there they are, the Big 3, the three men being asked to rescue a sport in danger of drowning in its own red ink.

O'Brien, the new NBA commissioner, already has flatly denied his No. 1 mission is to achieve a merger with the American Basketball Association. Next thing you know, he'll also deny he's a lifelong Democrat.

NBA owners appear to have made a shrewd move in handing him the job. He said he's been a devoted basketball fan for years but any politician worth his local ballot box knows O'Brien's best rebounds have been made in small, smoke-filled rooms, not noisy arenas. This is a man who knows his way around Washington.

He can go one-on-one with any congressman and come out in good shape. So that's what they want him to do. They want him to lobby with his old friends in the nation's capital, to push the owner's party line. The owners want a merger or consolidation of some sort, and they want it on their terms.

That's why they hired Larry O'Brien. The ABA hired DeBusschere for a different reason. They got him because he's a name the NBA can relate to, the guy who turned those championship Knick teams around. They can dig that on Madison Avenue. Unlike others in the ABA, he's got an identity.

Now, as the new ABA commissioner, what he has to do is use it. He has to utilize his strength the way he used to under the boards. He has to lean on some people.

John W. Warner,
Gray County Attorney

County Attorney Says No Promises, No Deals

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
"I can't make any promises and I can't make any deals," said Gray County attorney John Warner Wednesday as he told about 15 persons of their rights.

He made the statements prior to arraignments where pleas of innocent or guilty were scheduled to be entered in the county court room.

"What about this 'no lo contendere'?" inquired one.

Warner explained that the plea, more commonly referred to as no contest, means "you are saying in that plea I'm not going to fight it (the charge)."

Warner said if one has any doubts as to how he should plead he would suggest not guilty plea.

He told the group that if police officers did not make mistakes occasionally, he (Warner) would not have a job.

The statement made in reference to constitutional rights which guarantee that every man or woman is innocent until proven guilty.

Conditions of probation, as outlined by Warner, mean that one must obey all laws and pay a $10 monthly probation fee.

In regard to consumption of alcoholic beverages, Warner quoted 31st District Judge Grainger McElhaney, who recently granted a 10-year probation sentence:

"If you take one swallow out of one beer at anytime between now and 10 years from now, you will go to the pen for 10 years."

County Judge Don Cain presides over county court trials.

Persons who are serving probated sentences must stay out of beer joints, Warner said.

"Neither are they allowed to be around one who uses alcohol illegally," he said.

"If you are under a court order to pay child support, you must do so," Warner said.

"You must hold a job and support your family and if you move across the street we must know about it."

Court costs in each case is usually $52, he said.

Judge Cain scheduled 55 arraignments this week — and an estimated 40 included those charged with driving while intoxicated.

Oil Price Increase Could Cause Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says a threatened major oil price increase by producing nations would cause serious economic problems for much of the world and would be "totally unacceptable."

The President's warning at a news conference Wednesday followed predictions by some officials of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that oil prices might be raised by $2 to $4 above the current level of about $12 per barrel when an OPEC price freeze expires at the end of September.

"Any increase in foreign oil would be, in my judgment, very disruptive and totally unacceptable," Ford said.

But he gave no direct answer when asked whether he was trying to persuade the oil producers not to increase their prices and, if so, whether he was having any success.

He said only that the United States is trying to get the world's oil consuming nations to adopt a unified policy "so that we act in concert when we have to meet with the producing nations" and that he wants Congress to act on an energy policy "so that we don't have to worry about OPEC price increases."

Asked what effect a $2 to $4 increase in foreign oil prices would have on his predictions that the recession is bottoming out, Ford replied:

"If such an oil price were put into effect, it would have an impact on our economy. It would undoubtedly have a much more significant impact on the economies of western Europe and Japan, and probably an even more adverse impact on the economies of the developing nations."

"It would have an adverse impact worldwide. I think it would be very unwise for OPEC to raise their prices under these circumstances, because an unhealthy economy in the United States and worldwide is not in their best interests."

Ford also was asked whether he had any specific action in mind when he said any OPEC price increase would be unacceptable and, if not, what he meant by the term.

"It would be unacceptable in the sense that we as a nation, individually, and we in conjunction with our allies are going to find some answers other than OPEC oil," he replied.

In 1886 Congress exercised the right of eminent domain in the Cherokee Nation, placing Indian lands under federal jurisdiction and granting railroads and other interests free rights-of-way.

Ford Doesn't Rule Out Using Nuclear Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has declined to rule out first use of nuclear weapons by the United States in a future conflict.

He told reporters that a news conference in 91-degree heat on the White House lawn Wednesday was not the place to say whether the United States might be first to use either long-range strategic nuclear weapons or so-called tactical nuclear weapons, which are stored in Europe and South Korea.

The President was more willing to discuss domestic problems.

—He said Americans may have to suffer high unemployment "for a short period of time" to avoid another round of inflation.

ened $2 to $4 a barrel oil price increase by producing nations next fall would be "very disruptive and totally unacceptable."

—He said he would consider recommending an extension to 1976 of the tax cut for Americans if the economy isn't moving, if the current tax cut appears to be working and if the deficit can be kept in bounds.

In 1961, President John F. Kennedy had declared: "Our arms will never be used to strike the first blow in any attack."

The "military posture" statements in which the Pentagon each year asks Congress for its budget have for years described the U.S. arsenal of strategic nuclear weapons — missiles based on land and in submarines, and long-range bombers — as weapons of retaliation, and therefore of deterrence.

However, past administrations and the current defense secretary, James R. Schlesinger, have made clear that tactical nuclear weapons might be used in response to massive nonnuclear attacks in either Europe or Korea.

Ford left U.S. policy on both strategic and tactical weapons unclear.

"I don't think it is appropriate for me to discuss in a press conference what our utilization will be of our tactical or strategic weapons," he said.

"...I don't believe under these circumstances that I should discuss how, when or what kind of weapons should be used."

Asked specifically whether he would order use of tactical nuclear weapons if North Korea attacked South Korea, Ford said: "I am not either confirming it or denying it." Military forces will be used, he said, as national interest warrants.

Fred Harris, former Oklahoma senator now a Democratic presidential candidate, said Ford's refusal to rule out first use of nuclear weapons was "the most dangerous military decision that has been made by our government in at least 20 years."

Ford confirmed that one change in U.S. nuclear policy was made a year and a half ago. Previously the policy called either for all-out nuclear war with the Soviet Union or no such war. Now it includes the possibility that Russia and the United States might fight a limited nuclear war with each other — each firing only a few strategic weapons at selected targets.

The world's largest hotel is the Rossiya in Moscow — which has 3,200 guest rooms. Second largest is the Conrad Hilton in Chicago, with 2,600 rooms.

Tri-City Office Supply

Lewis Hackley worked as an accountant machine sales manager in Tulsa, Okla., for the Underwood Corporation which later became the Olivetti Corporation.

One of the stores out of Amarillo sold Gray County a large tax billing machine and did not have the personnel to show the county officers how to operate the machine. Hackley came to the county headquarters to install the machine, train the operators and make sure "it did what it was supposed to do," he said.

After his first experience with the Panhandle area, Hackley was asked to transfer to New York. He decided instead to go into business for himself.

In 1955 he opened Tri-City Office Machines Inc. on East Kingsmill. The business was expanded in 1958 to carry office supplies. Also at that time, the store was relocated at 113 West Kingsmill and the name was changed to Tri-City Office Supply Inc.

"Pampa appealed to me as much as any place when I was looking, said Hackley. "After 20 years, I love it here. I have really always loved it."

Hackley said that many radical changes have taken place in electronics, in electronic calculators and photo copiers.

"I carry anything from hand held calculators to complete computer systems," he said.

Hackley also said that other companies often come around looking for an established business to sell their line of machines.

"I can't take on any more because I am happy with Olympia and Olivetti, the two lines I do carry," he said.

Hackley said that Olympia was coming out with a single element typewriter in the fall.

"It will be faster and quieter than any on the market," he said.

"We have a concept at this store that is best described by the phrase, 'We try harder — you'll see.' We work to create this image."

Hackley said he would use the word "outstanding" to "best describe things here."

Lewis Hackley

alarm alerted the sheriff's department.

What might have been dismissed as another suicide developed into a bizarre tale of burglary and revenge — a man apparently pushed alive over the cliff by "vigilantes" upset over the theft of a 19-inch color television set worth about $200.

His name was Joseph Arce, 26. His driver's license, found in his wallet by sheriff's deputies, identified him as a resident of Lawndale, a lower-middle-class residential area.

Arce died from shattering fractures when he hit the rocks.

Routinely, the officers retraced his whereabouts the day before his death. They quickly found he had a record of burglaries to sustain an addiction to heroin.

Then the jigsaw began to fit into murder.

Arce was one of a crowd of "swingers" ranging from age 18 to 34 who spend most of their time in sleazy bars in the Lawndale area, sipping beer, playing country music endlessly and smoking pot.

From informants, deputies learned that two days before his death a television set had been stolen from the home of Delores Whalley, 28, mother of two children, who was separated from her husband and living with Gordon Bruckner, 34.

Her husband, Robert Whalley, had formed a new liaison with Paula Boyer, 22, but was still on friendly terms with his legal spouse.

Mrs. Whalley told Bruckner

she suspected Arce, who had been to her home often, had stolen the TV. Bruckner called Whalley and, at a neighborhood bar, they held a council with six young men, the oldest 23, and decided on action.

The 10 went to Arce's home, beat him until he admitted the theft. He linked another man to the burglary, so they broke into his home and knocked him around until he gave the identity of the "fence" who had taken the stolen set.

They went to the third man's residence and held him captive until he made arrangements to have the television returned.

"That might have been the end of it — but Arce threatened to go the police.

What happened next is conjecture.

But charges of murder have been filed against Whalley, Bruckner and John Nemeth, 19, who is still at large. Lesser charges have been lodged against five others and two young people, including Miss Boyer, have been given immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony.

The suspects appeared at preliminary hearing in Torrance Municipal Court Wednesday. Whalley and Bruckner were held in lieu of $100,000 bail. The others were freed on bond ranging from $1,000 to $5,000.

Authorities say there apparently was no motive for the killing other than the TV theft.

"In that group you don't steal from your friends," said one official.

Israelis Report Four Arab Guerillas Killed

By United Press International

An Israeli patrol reported killing four Arab guerrillas near a frontier farm settlement today in the second day in a row of clashes along the tense Lebanese border.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the guerrillas, armed with machine guns, bazookas and explosives, entered Israel by cutting through the security fence along the Lebanese border.

A command spokesman said the Israeli patrol intercepted the raiders this morning near the frontier settlement of Adamit. One Israeli soldier was reported wounded in the fighting.

The clash came a day after a brief battle in the same area between an Israeli army unit and gunmen armed with bazookas and automatic rifles. There were no reported casualties in the first encounter.

In an apparent criticism of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's highly publicized peace missions, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin endorsed low-key talks as "the best way" to reach a settlement with Egypt.

Rabin told a fund-raising convention in Tel Aviv Wednesday talks should be "carried out in a quiet way, through diplomatic channels and without the drama and dramatic moves of very important people."

The United States has been trying to get Israel and Egypt to agree to a new military disengagement agreement in the Sinai Desert.

Kissinger's last peace mission collapsed in March when he failed to arrange new Israeli troop withdrawals in exchange for Egyptian political concessions.

In Lebanon, security forces moved into the southern suburbs of Beirut Wednesday night with orders to clear streets of gunmen and shoot anyone who resists.

At least four persons were killed and more than 30 wounded Tuesday and Wednesday in clashes between rightwing Phalangists and Palestinian guerrillas.

The latest round of fighting between the two groups was touched off when two Palestinian-backed Iraqis tried to pick up a Phalangist girl in the Beirut suburb of Ain Rummaneh.

Hundreds of persons have been killed or wounded in on-again, off-again clashes between the guerrillas and militia men over the past two months.

Ticks rank second only to mosquitos in spreading disease, scientists report. But a tick must remain on its victim from two to five hours in order to cause infection.
