FBI Director Hoover Taken By Death At 77

Demise Concludes 48 Years Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation since 1924, died Monday night at his home at the age of 77, the Justice Department announced.

Hoover, the nation's chief law officer for 48 years, had become a legend in the United States, shaping the FBI into a massive, powerful federal agency.

Acting Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst issued a one-paragraph statement in which he said Hoover's body was found by his maid at approximately 8:30 a.m. today.

"It is with profound personal grief that I announce that J. Edgar Hoover passed away during the night at his residence," Kleindienst said. "His personal physician informed me that his death was due to natural causes."

The just-jawed FBI head was permitted by presidential order to continue in his $42,500-a-year government job after reaching the mandatory retirement age of 70.

Hoover, unmarried, dominated the bureau during his lifetime as no man in any other federal agency. Wielding vast power, he was said to lavish on the FBI the pride and possessiveness of a stern and watchful parent.

He joined the bureau as its acting director in 1921 after several years as a $990-a-year Justice Department law clerk, and became director three years later. Born in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 1, 1895, Hoover received his law degree from George Washington University and lived all his life in the District of Columbia.

He had a fondness for dogs, for his garden and for horseracing, confining himself to two-dollar bets. But nothing transcended his devotion for the FBI.

As much as he loved the bureau, Hoover hated communism. He reduced the Communist party in the United States to a shell, ridding the organization with agents so that members never were sure who they were talking to.

The FBI grew from a small government investigative arm—founded in 1908 after demands by President Theodore Roosevelt that something be done about political and business frauds—to a massive organization of some 15,000 employees, including 6,700 special agents. When Hoover took command in 1924, the number of agents totaled less than 500.

And the bureau Hoover joined was badly organized. Politics played an important role in its functioning, and violations over which the bureau had jurisdiction were few.

Within the government, there were growing reports of corruption and scandal among high officials. Even the Bureau of Investigation was said to be touched.

Atty. Gen. Harlan F. Stone picked Hoover to clean house, and Hoover did so—writing his own ticket.

Over the years there have been demands from critics that Hoover step out as FBI chief. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in his current campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, has said he would replace Hoover.

Only this week columnist Jack Anderson told a congressional committee that Hoover prepared dossiers on prominent Americans not accused of crime. Anderson said he had seen copies of FBI reports on sex activities, and said some of these were given to President Lyndon B. Johnson during his term in the White House for bedtime reading.

LAW DAY BANQUET STALWARTS—Pampa Optimists staged their "Respect for Law" banquet Monday night honoring area lawmen and marking national Law Day. Dr. Leon Hill, left, was the speaker. George Massie, right, community services chairman and Raymond McPhillips, entertainment chairman were spark plugs of the affair. McPhillips is president-elect of the Pampa Optimists.

By TEX DEWEESSE

Dolph Briscoe, Democratic candidate for governor, brought his campaign back to Pampa and the Top O' Texas at an overflow crowd breakfast this morning in Furr's Cafeteria.

With the dining areas packed with supporters from Pampa, White Deer, Candian, Skellytown, Miami, Panhandle, McLean and Wheeler an apology was issued by Jimmy Thompson, Briscoe's Gray County campaign manager.

Said Thompson:

"This morning's turnout is so large, they have run out of food."

Because of his tight schedule throughout the remainder of the day, Briscoe had to begin his 15-minute talk before the food line had been completely served.

The turnout this morning indicates the Top O' Texas will be Briscoe country next Saturday," the candidate said.

He stressed importance of the Texas Panhandle to the state's economy and said, if elected, he will strive for a goal to make Texas the No. 1 agricultural state and encourage additional exploration of oil and gas.

"Next Saturday's primary election is one of the most important in Texas history," he said. "I find a growing determination of the people to make a change—not just in the election of a governor but a change in the kind of government we have."

"The scandals and disgrace in our seat of government at Austin now are a matter of record. The important thing is that we see to it that it doesn't happen again."

Briscoe said vocational technical training must be expanded by emphasizing skills and trades needed by local business and industry.

"Adequate vocational and technical education must be placed within reach of all of our people, so we can better develop our economic potential," he said.

Briscoe, who was accompanied to Pampa by his wife, Betty Jane, said he believes the people of Texas will issue a mandate in Saturday's election that they "want to return to state government with honesty and integrity."

"There is no question that we need a meaningful change," he added. "We need to build the kind of government in which the people have confidence and can take real Texas-style pride."

Spinked among the large crowd were several candidates for other offices and political leaders.

Seated at the head table with Mr. and Mrs. Briscoe were Harold Comer, Gray County Democratic Executive Committee chairman; Mrs. Ruth Osborne, 31st District committee woman; and Rex McAnelly, campaign coordinator.

The Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, rector of St. Matthews Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

The Briscoe campaign plane which arrived in Pampa at 10:30 p.m. Monday, left at 8:30 a.m. for rallies in Borger, Dumas, Dalhart and a noonday luncheon in Plainview.

HHH, McGovern Battle For Ohio Primary Lead

By Associated Press

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey battled Sen. George McGovern in Ohio and Gov. George C. Wallace in Indiana today as he sought a pair of Midwestern primary victories that would vault him to the front of the Democratic presidential race.

The Minnesota senator was favored in both elections, though McGovern mounted a late Ohio surge helped by endorsements from several key political leaders who had backed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Humphrey and McGovern wound up their Ohio campaigning Monday night in Cleveland.

paying visits to a Metropolitan Opera performance and a series of bowling alleys respectively.

Humphrey planned to spend today in Cleveland, while McGovern scheduled a quick trip to New York before flying back to Columbus.

Muskie, who abandoned active primary campaigning after several crippling setbacks, was on the ballot in both Ohio and Indiana.

Primaries were also being held today in Alabama and the District of Columbia.

In Ohio, which was electing 153 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in its first contested primary since 1956, showings across the state threatened to hold the turnout below the record 23 million forecast by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Humphrey, McGovern, Muskie and Sen. Henry M. Jackson were competing for virtually all Ohio delegate slots. Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy also had a handful of delegates running.

PISD, Library Get Refunds From Firms

The Pampa Independent School District and Lovett Memorial Library both have received checks for refunds from various publishers of children's books sold in Texas.

The refunds are the result of an antitrust suit filed in 1968 by state Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin against book publishers and distributors that allegedly conspired to fix the price of books sold to Texas schools and libraries.

The distribution of refunds this time has amounted to about $676,000. Earlier nearly $500,000 was refunded throughout the state.

The Pampa schools received a check for $1,669.61 and Lovett had a check for $630.20.

"We anticipate there will be a final distribution approximately a year from now," Martin said in a letter to the city.

The refunds are the results of a settlement with the last of more than 30 firms involved in the suit.

Mother, Four Children Hurt At McLean

A California woman injured in a highway accident at McLean is in satisfactory condition today in the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital.

Mrs. Sonny Davis, 24, and her four children were injured when their car was in collision with a semi-tractor unit at McLean. They were rushed to Pampa following the mishap about 10 p.m. Monday.

Neither the details of the accident or extent of all injuries were known at press time.

Voluntary Workers Commended At Red Cross Dinner Meeting

By LARRY HOLLIS

Volunteering was the theme for the annual dinner meeting of the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross last night at the First United Methodist Church.

"Never have I seen a greater group of volunteers than here in Pampa," said James L. Moody of Childress, a volunteer worker for the West Texas Division, headquartered in Fort Worth.

Moody told the nearly 100 assembled guests and volunteer workers that there are nearly two million Red Cross volunteers in the United States.

With each averaging 150 hours a year for service, if they received the minimum wage, they would have to be paid about $548 million.

"And if they were paid on a level commensurate with their skills and abilities, Moody said, the total salary would be over $1 billion."

"Volunteers are necessary," Moody stated.

Discussing the traits of Red Cross volunteers, Moody said they are "not prompted in any matter by desire for gain."

He then went on to discuss the various characteristics of volunteers, listing among them: valiant, loving, noble, trustworthy, needed, tactful.

understanding, earnest, effective, radiant, ready and loyal.

Moody noted that May 8 will be World Red Cross Day and urged everyone to remember it.

Moody's wife, Betty, related how she had become interested in the Red Cross work.

After her husband had retired from the military service and they had settled in Childress, Mrs. Moody found herself restless. Her husband suggested she apply for a job as executive secretary for the local Red Cross chapter.

She did—and soon became an enthusiastic worker for the organization.

Describing how people often found themselves with little to do or faced with changes in their life, she said, "God frequently shuts doors in our path, but He always opens another one."

"Volunteering is always an open door," Mrs. Moody said. "Talents and abilities that might otherwise be wasted can be put to use through volunteer service," she added.

Among the reasons for volunteering she listed "wanting to help others or, simply, being a good neighbor to all mankind."

"Noting that there are often long hours of work and great amounts of energy expended, Mrs. Moody said, "The rewards have far exceeded any of my anticipations."

Both speakers were introduced by Joe Pafford, who said, "They're both very enthusiastic workers for the Red Cross."

Mrs. James Trusty, chairman of the hospital volunteers, recognized the various volunteer workers for their hours of service.

Talking about the program of service, she said, "This hasn't been a job. It's been a pleasure."

Joan Frick, president of the Red Cross organization at Pampa High School, delivered a report on the activities among the youth.

She noted that a fund drive had collected $250. She related several activities of the group during the past year, including setting up a Christmas tree at Highland General Hospital, preparing a Christmas basket for a needy family, visiting an orphanage and so on.

"I'm really proud of all the cooperation we had this year (from the students at school)," she said.

A new slate of officers and directors was approved after John S. Skelly gave the report of the nominating committee.

Officers for the coming year will be Mrs. Don George, chapter chairman; Joe B. Pafford, vice chairman; Norma Briden, secretary; Arthell E. Gibson, treasurer; D.V. Biggers, chairman pro tempore; and Mrs. Fred Ammeter, hospital volunteer chairman.

Directors will be Charles Ezell, Roscoe Sealy, Wayne Wilson and Morris Kille.

Mrs. George, who presided over the meeting, also presented awards of recognition to several people for their past service to the local chapter.

Honored were Mrs. J.W. Flynn, chapter secretary; Harry L. Lilla, Ray Fisher, Ray Thompson and Ted Gikas, board members.

The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mike Pafford, Cub Scout.

Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, minister of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, delivered the invocation. Dr. Lloyd V. Hamilton, minister of the First United Methodist Church, gave the benediction.

Entertainment was provided by Connie Sitterly, a student at West Texas State University. Dinner music was played by John Reynolds.

35 Area Law Officers Cited At Local Optimists' Dinner

By RAY BAXTER

"When something happens, no one wants to be involved but it is not their law enforcement officers' system...it is OUR system."

This was one of the observations made by Pampa attorney Ben Sturgeon welcoming area law officers to the "Respect for Law" banquet hosted by the Pampa Optimist Club.

Sturgeon almost "stole the thunder" of principle speaker, Dr. Leon Hill of Amarillo with his welcoming address. He noted the steady influence Sheriff Rufe Jordan had to a number of young men including himself and reminded his listeners that each law officer was exerting similar influences in their spheres of activity.

While Sturgeon's remarks were to welcome the guests, his point was to urge laymen to join the lawmen in their involvement in the community.

"If your property or civil rights—or those of a loved one—were involved in court proceedings, ask yourself this question: 'Would I want these rights decided by a jury made up of those who have nothing else to do?'"

Dr. Hill, a favorite for his pungent remarks and his humor, followed in much the same vein. He noted that law enforcement officers had carried on under adverse circumstances while two per cent of our population had established a "beachhead of fear" in America. He said he felt the other 98 per cent were now in the process of repelling the fear forces.

In addition to the speaker's humor, the singing group from Lamar school directed by Sue Higdon inserted their own musicality with "Ragtime Cowboy Rufe" dedicated to the sheriff.

Sturgeon and Pampa Mayor Milo Carlson assisted Optimist Club President Robert Jones in presenting bearing "Respect for Law" citations to 35 area officers, some of them on duty.

Optimist George Massie, community services chairman, was credited with much of the success of the banquet.

Perhaps the supreme compliment of the evening to both the officers and the Optimist Club was veiled in humor when Dr. Hill observed:

"If you want big fleas you have to run with big dogs—and that's why I am here!"

Natural Gas Prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., says a proposed change by the Federal Power Commission in pricing natural gas could cost consumers as much as $7.9 billion.

President Mourns Death Of Hoover

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon, in a personal and emotional tribute, today mourned the death of "one of his closest friends and advisers," FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and ordered flags at all public buildings and installations lowered to half staff.

Within minutes after Hoover's death was announced publicly the President appeared before reporters at the White House to speak of his "profound sense of personal loss" at the death of Hoover. Nixon described him as a "truly remarkable man who served the country for 48 years under eight presidents with unparalleled devotion to duty and dedication."

Because of his indomitable courage against sometimes "vicious attacks, he made certain that the flag of the FBI will always fly high," Nixon said of Hoover whom he said had been his friend for 25 years since he came to Congress as a freshman legislator.

The White House also distributed a formal statement by the President in which Nixon said that Hoover could truly be called "a legend in his own lifetime."

Absentee Voting Deadline Today

Persons unable to vote in Saturday's elections should cast their ballot in person at the office of the Gray County Clerk before 5 p.m. today.

That is the deadline for casting absentee votes in the state primary elections.

Persons who have moved to a different precinct within the county less than 30 days ago may vote in their old precinct. Precinct transfers should be made at the county clerk's office as soon after moving as possible.

PHS Students Pick Officers For Next Year

Students at Pampa High School held elections this morning to choose class officers for the senior and junior classes of next year.

Elections will be held again tomorrow morning to choose a Junior Class vice president and secretary.

Shelley Cogdell was elected president of the Senior Class of 1973. Vice president will be A.J. Brewer and April Schultz will be secretary.

Junior Class president will be Wayne Bruce.

A run-off will be held for junior vice president between Ron Minnick and Rick Smith.

Elections will be held for Junior Class secretary again. One of the names was left off the ballot this morning, necessitating the additional voting.

Elections were held in the homerooms.

VOLUNTEERS FOR SERVICE—Mrs. Libby Shotwell, left, executive secretary of the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross, chats with Mr. and Mrs. James L. Moody of Childress, both volunteer workers in the West Texas Division, prior to the annual dinner meeting last night at First United Methodist Church. Mrs. Moody is the volunteer executive secretary for the Childress County chapter and a division field volunteer for the West Texas Division. Moody is a divisional volunteer consultant. Candidates Campaign Hard As Primaries Only 5 Days Away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Now it's time to really run—not walk—for would-be public officeholders in Texas.

The campaign trail is growing shorter by the hour, and only the candidates advancing into runoff or the general election get another chance after their state primaries Saturday.

Their latest activities indicate the candidates are fully aware that time is running out—perhaps more so than many of the voters whose support they're wooing, and the governor's race is a prime example.

Dolph Briscoe, generally rated one of the four major contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor along with Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Rep. Frances Farenthold, talked about governmental reforms Monday.

As soon as he wins the nomination, Briscoe declared at Cleburne that he'll set up a special task force to make operations of the state more effective and economical.

The issue which is constantly in the minds of most people, Briscoe said, "is that of confidence in government itself. I share that view that our government is not as responsive to the people as it should be and must soon become."

Barnes aimed sharp gibes at the other three as he spoke to supporters in Fort Worth and in Dallas.

Dolph Briscoe shows his total lack of knowledge about state government when he claims he would veto any bill that does not have a public hearing," the lieutenant governor said.

Coronado Inn To Be Remodeled

Directors of the Community Hotel Company of Pampa approved plans Monday, for an extensive remodeling and refurbishing program at the Coronado Inn, according to George W. Scott, president of the corporation.

The Coronado Inn was opened in January, 1960, and no major repairs or improvements have been made since that time. Scott said the directors felt it was necessary to bring the facilities at the hotel up to modern standards to be competitive with other first-class operations in the Texas Panhandle.

Plans call for complete redecoration of the Inn, plus extensive new equipment in the kitchen area, new color TV sets, new carpeting in some areas, some new furniture—including additional beds, floor lamps, pictures, mirrors, and other items to make the guest rooms more inviting.

Exact cost of the remodeling program has not yet been determined. The executive board is at work on final details, and it is hoped that the remodeling program can be completed within 90 days. The Hogan Construction Co. of Pampa will do the major portion of the remodeling.

Dining facilities in the coffee shop and Terrace Room were closed yesterday and will remain closed for approximately five days to allow time for installation of new kitchen equipment, including stoves, dishwashers, etc. However, food service in the Pampa Club will be available as usual. Bill Dunn, manager of the hotel, said he expected to be open again for business within the next few days.

Drought Aid Application May Be Approved Soon

WASHINGTON — Several Northwest Texas counties who have made application for drought assistance from the State ASCS office should receive final approval of haying and grazing programs this week, U.S. Rep. Graham Purcell announced today.

Purcell, who has encouraged application for drought assistance by dry counties to the state office, said he has been in further contact with College Station and has been informed that a final decision should be forthcoming this week regarding the applications.

"While the drought this year is not as bad as last year, the fact that it is a second dry year in a row makes it particularly critical for Northwest Texas farmers and ranchers. These dry counties need all the help they can get to enable their producers to keep from going deeper in the red," Purcell said.

Miami Youth Gets A&M U. Scholarship

COLLEGE STATION—W. Craig Bailey, one of the top ranking members of the Miami High School senior class, has been awarded a $400 College of Agriculture Scholarship to Texas A&M University.

Craig, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey of Miami, will enter Texas A&M this fall as an agricultural education major.

College of Agriculture Scholarships are awarded to young men and women on the basis of excellence in high school scholarship, leadership and character. The scholarships are made possible by contributions from the staff, former students and friends of the college. Recipient selection is made by the College of Agriculture Scholarship Committee.

Craig is the president of the high school National Honor Society and has also served as treasurer of that organization. He is a two year all-district choice in basketball and was an all-star senior football player.

This year he was named as an Outstanding West Texas Scholar.

country-western music festival.

Only Smith aide Mike McKinney and a DPS pilot were aboard. The DPS flight log says the purpose of the flight was "traffic surveillance U.S. 290 in Dripping Springs area."

Former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, another announced candidate, also appeared at the festival, but he drove his own car to get there.

Master of ceremonies T. Tommy Cutrer introduced Smith as, "The governor Tennessee."

"I'm not the governor of Tennessee," Smith responded. "I'm the governor of Texas."

"Well, you ought to be the governor of Tennessee," Cutrer said. The audience roared.

Smith spoke briefly about how much he liked country-western music and that he was the only governor who had had such music at his inaugural ball.

Smith also used DPS aircraft to make appearances in Big Spring, Jan. 28, and Houston, Feb. 10. The Big Spring flight is carried on the log as having been made "at governor's request."

The Houston flight was made "at passenger's request."

No DPS business was involved in either flight, according to the log.

Other state officials who have used DPS aircraft in instances where the only purpose of the flight was listed as "at passenger's request" are:

—Sen. Charles Wilson, Lufkin, March 29 flight from Austin to Liberty and back.

—Secretary of the Senate Charles Schnabel, March 24

Mexico's Economic Situation Termed Bright In 1st Quarter

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's economic situation is bright and promising as the first four months of 1972 comes to a close despite some dangers, pessimism and the setbacks of 1971.

President Luis Echeverria has quietly but quickly put into effect broad reforms aimed at increasing Mexico's production and its share of the world's export markets.

Tax incentives with governmental stipulations have diversified both national and foreign investments to decentralize industrial centers and provide jobs for the country's interior. In this way, Echeverria hopes to diminish the large unemployed rural work force estimated at about 2.5 million persons.

At the same time, increased government loans have gone for agricultural and livestock development programs.

This year, manufactured goods productivity has risen sharply and during the first quarter merchandise exports rose 30.7 per cent—a $71.2 million increase.

For years, Mexico's policy was basically to sell only surplus goods abroad. But that has changed. The Mexican president's policy calls for production for export as well as for national consumption. Tax incentives for this goal plus lower import duties on machinery and equipment not produced in Mexico have induced companies to go along with the president.

Meanwhile, the government has curtailed imports to show a favorable change in Mexico's balance of payments deficit.

Some economists describe Mexico's economy last year as stagnant—a result of world economic difficulties and the devaluation of the U.S. dollar to which the peso is so closely linked. Many large businesses here suffered severe financial problems and the Mexican government as a result took over some of the bankrupt enterprises.

Last year, Echeverria sent numerous trade missions about the world and readily welcomed any that were sent to Mexico. Although the search for new markets for Mexican goods began haphazardly, the government now is more selective by looking for particular markets for specific Mexican goods.

To be overcome yet is the foreign and national skepticism that Mexico may not be able to fulfill their newly-acquired contract commitments.

Some skeptics here believe Echeverria has given too many tax breaks to big business which will cut down the nation's money reserve and hamper national development.

The greatest fear, however, comes from another possible official or unofficial devaluation on the U.S. dollar. Mexico is too closely linked with the U.S. economy to change its dollar-peso parity. Another dollar devaluation could be costly to Mexico. Japan has broadened its economic and investment ties with Mexico and if the Japanese yen is re-evaluated upward that too would be harmful to this country's economic expansion.

Mexican and foreign businessmen here are wary of Echeverria's deeper friendship with Chile and its Marxist president, Salvador Allende. They view Echeverria's recent visit to that country as a threat of more socialism and government control in Mexico.

Although Echeverria has denied it, there is little doubt that with his stress on nationalism the Mexican president is trying to elevate Mexico as an economic leader and perhaps himself as a political leader in Latin America. His resiliency will do much to achieve both.

AND NO TAXES

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A six hour, three-day work week? They had it here 400 years ago, scientists believe.

These Utopians were hunter-gatherer nomads who inhabited what is now western Cape Province before the arrival of white settlers.

University of Cape Town archaeologists have been studying them and believe they lived off the fat of the land in an area north and west of Cape Town.

The vanished people were known as Bushmen and Strandlopers. They had handy tools with which they worked pottery, bones, shells and ornaments. They painted on cave walls.

On ancient maps Syria encompassed all of the fertile land between the Mediterranean Sea and the Arabian desert from the Gulf of Alexandria to Sina.

Amtrak Marks First Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak celebrated its first birthday today with coffee and sweet rolls and the unveiling of its first completely refurbished passenger train.

Roger Lewis, president of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, showed off the train, known as the Broadway Limited, and said it will start service Tuesday between New York-Washington and Chicago.

Other fully renovated passenger trains will begin service on five additional routes in time for the summer season, Lewis said.

Those are the Super Chief, operating between Chicago and Los Angeles; the City of San Francisco, operating between Chicago and San Francisco; the Coast Daylight Starlight, running between Seattle and Los Angeles; the Silver Meteor, between New York and Miami; and the Merchants Limited, between New York and Boston.

DOCTOR'S PREDICTION

U.S. POWs, When Released, Will Find Themselves Rip Van Winkles In Alien World

DALLAS (AP) — When the U.S. prisoners of war held by North Vietnam are released, they'll find themselves Rip Van Winkles in an alien world, part hero, part coward and part oddity, an Army doctor predicts.

Speaking Sunday to a meeting of the American Academy of Psychoanalysts, Col. Edward J. Huycke said returning the prisoners to society will be a complex task filled with psychiatric pitfalls. A single slip could ruin the repatriate's life and tear his long suffering family apart.

Huycke, director for professional services in the office of the assistant secretary of defense for health and environment, reported on a study by a team of Pentagon doctors on the handful of U.S. prisoners of war who have been released or escaped since the Vietnam War began.

On one hand will be the prisoners, some held now more than five years, all with highly unrealistic expectations about home.

"The prisoner of war will find little understanding," Huycke said. "Family hardships matched against his personal Hell; estranged wives; children who don't know him or worse don't even like him... trouble-some feelings of guilt, chronic depression, headaches and fatigue; a confused picture of himself as part hero, part coward, part oddity and part modern version of Rip Van Winkle" to quote one former prisoner of war.

The wife of the prisoners of war has the sole responsibility for the development of the children. She must make daily decisions on her own, but constantly has the feeling that she will be held accountable to her husband when he is released for whatever happens to the children," he said.

"The wife idealizes her husband's return. She believes that once he is released, her problems will be resolved and everything will be perfect.

"In actuality, she is due for a tremendous letdown, since a new series of problems will arise at that time," Huycke said.

The medical community must be ready for these men when they're released, the Army doctor said.

"I must have plans for rehabilitation and integration into society that will add dignity to the man without exposing him too early or too foolishly to risks that are not in his or his family's best interests," he said.

And the greatest danger is forgetting the prisoners of war once they're safely home.

TV And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS demonstrated with a pair of specials Sunday night two forthright techniques for the production of workman-like television programs.

In "The Issue of Busing," which pre-empted "60 Minutes," correspondent Roger Mudd outlined the controversy, and for the next hour a parade of spokesmen for different opinions—government officials, congressmen, representatives of organizations—merely faced the camera and read their statements, pro and con.

In "The Metropolitan Opera Salute to Sir Rudolf Bing," the network two weeks ago focused its cameras on the opera house stage and the glittering audience when the tribute was held for the retiring general manager. Then the tape was edited from about four hours to one hour.

Watching a succession of closeup shots showing serious men expounding their opinions is not exactly a visual treat, but the method does permit a lot of ground to be covered and various shades of opinion to be aired. It was a good summary.

The opera gala was as satisfactory as most entertainments not conceived expressly for television. The stage itself presents definite limitations. However, there is so little classical music and even less opera seen on television that this program with its all-star cast of singers and bits from great operas, had to be a special treat for millions of viewers.

On the light entertainment side, ABC came up with a two-hour pilot program for an action show which will be on its fall schedule. "Assignment: Munich," which will be called "Assignment: Vienna" in its hour-long incarnation—evoked memories of the good old days of "The Third Man" and television's long-running, "Foreign Intrigue."

TV And Radio

There were lots of killings, wild fights and furious chases—all filmed against interesting German backgrounds. The total result, alas, was very familiar trenchcoat derring-do with a well-telegraphed ending.

If the networks are really serious about holding down violence in next season's product, ABC's censors have their work cut out in advance on the "Assignment: Vienna" scripts.

King of Spices

In the United States, pepper always has been the king of imported spices. It accounted for 19 per cent of the 300-million pounds of spices and herbs consumed in the nation in a recent year.

Kiwanis' Head Holds Talks With Nixon

Wes H. Bartlett, Algona, Iowa, president of Kiwanis International, and Darrell Coover (far right), Washington, D.C., chairman of the Special Kiwanis International Committee on Public Relations, recently conferred with President Richard M. Nixon on matters of mutual interest, according to word received by Jerry Davis, president of the Pampa Downtown Kiwanis Club.

They were accompanied to the Oval Room of the White House, where the conference was held, by Senator Jack Miller of Iowa and his daughter, Jaynie, a student at Georgetown Visitation Prep School in Washington, D.C.

The conversation covered Kiwanis' anti-drug program, Operation Drug Alert, and Kiwanis' plans for participation in the Bicentennial of the American Revolution in 1976.

Pampan Gets Scholarship From WTSU

CANYON — Terry Pulse, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Pulse, 1153 Neel Road, Pampa, is one of the eight students recently awarded scholarships for high academic achievement by Alpha Chi, national honor society, at West Texas State University.

Pulse, a junior pre-medicine major, has a grade point average of 2.931. The scholarship is for $1,000.

The awards are supported by the Alpha Chi scholarship fund and anonymous individual contributions.

Dear Abby

Small breasts give her an inferiority complex

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have this terrible complex about being small bosomed. Where did I get this complex in the first place? From my husband, that's where.

He's all the time looking at the pictures of those big bosomy girls in the magazines. And whenever a stacked girl walks by, he practically twists his neck off looking. I feel like crawling into a hole somewhere, or hitting him for making me feel so inferior.

Would a small girl like me feel better if she had her bosoms surgically enlarged? It's crossed my mind a few times. How long would it take? I might want to surprise my husband.

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: I don't recommend "surprising" your husband. If you're considering that type of surgery, talk it over with him first. Some men like to look, but they prefer their wives as Nature made 'em.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked why so many people walk into a restaurant and sit at a table with dirty dishes when clean tables are available. You suggested that it might be the coziness of clutter.

You were too polite, Abby. You could have said because they feel more at home in messy surroundings. Or perhaps, they hope to snitch a tip left for the waitress by the previous diner.

By so doing, you possibly would have shamed a few people out of their habit.

"JUST SUGGESTING" IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR JUST: You could be right. It never occurred to me. And I'm sure it has never occurred to others who would never consider doing such a lowdown thing. But I'll bet after this hits print, a lot of Abby readers will never again sit at a messy table in a restaurant.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, during a symphony concert there was a child in the audience who laughed, spoke loudly and behaved boisterously not once, but several times during the performance.

The parents did not have the sense, or consideration for others, to lead the child from the auditorium after the first offense, the many in the audience were visibly irritated.

Finally, the conductor himself turned on the podium and looked into the audience with disbelief!

I have had the same experience during church sermons with crying babies, despite the fact that the church provides nursery facilities.

Conductors, ministers, and speakers spend hours in preparation, and such interruptions spoil the mood of the audiences completely.

When will selfish parents realize that they should not bring children to affairs of a serious nature until they are old enough to be an acceptable part of the audience? IRRITATED IN CAMP HILL, PA.

DEAR IRRITATED: Never, unfortunately.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FIFTEEN AND FRIGHTENED": Telephone your local department of public health at once and make an appointment to see a doctor. You will be treated free of charge if your suspicions are correct. And yes, it will be strictly confidential! V. D. is a disease, not a crime.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69706, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Letters I am going to write tomorrow at the latest:

Dear Mr. Electrician: We are distressed to have the rewiring job finished. The circuit breakers no longer pop when I plug in the coffee pot. Now I have to plug in with the coffee pot and the toaster.

The Director, Camp Gocherwallet: I received your inquiry. Will our son be attending your camp again this year? Over my dead body! Which is what I almost was after he attended your camp last summer. Any director who allows an 11-year-old boy to bring home arrows whittled from poison sumac switches...

Attn: Manager, Smitty's Jewelry Shop: I received an object gift-wrapped from your store. The item is glass and stainless steel, shaped somewhat like an overripe kumquat. What is it (P. S. There is a dark green string attached to one side.)

Accounting Dept., Shore Store: This is the third and last time I'm telling you. I did not buy three lace tablecloths at $4.350.79.

Dear Cousin Alice: Of course we'd love having you and the children for a visit! How dear of you to think of spending your vacation time with us! Do let us know the exact date soonest!

You all know the story about the dog that barked in the night. Actually he didn't bark and Sherlock Holmes deduced that the dog must have known the criminal.

When declarer Reviews the bidding he may occasionally learn how to play the hand from the fact that both opponents remained quiet throughout.

West opened the king of hearts against South's normal four spade contract. East drops the deuce so West shifts to the king of diamonds. South takes that trick with the ace and draws trumps with three leads. East discards three hearts.

South decides to leave clubs alone and plays his queen of hearts. West rises with the ace and leads queen and another diamond. South ruffs and is forced to clubs.

The apparently correct play is to cash his ace; lead a second club and finesse dummy's jack. But remember that dog that didn't bark?

West didn't open the bidding and has already shown up with 12 high card points. He just can't hold the queen of clubs. Can he hold five clubs? Possible, but highly improbable. Hence the queen of clubs is not going to drop from the East hand.

What can South do? He gets to dummy with the last trump and plays the jack of clubs. If East ducks, South lets it ride. If East covers South takes his ace, leads another club and fineses against West's 10-spot.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MAY 3

Your birthday today: This is a year of experiment and abrupt impulses usually with some last-minute luck that makes things turn out all right. Emotional ties deepen. Today's natives are intrigued by all forms of magnetism, ranging from physical to psychic forms, usually skilled in its application.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Try to simplify your work and your attitudes toward it. You may be wasting time and temperament on mere side issues.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being rushed into anything is unlikely to make a difference in either direction. Rather, be the one who encourages others.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Old friends help you along, but somewhere during this busy day you come to conflict about what to do and where.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Varied discussions may run longer than you'd like, but are preferable to silent disagreements. The evening hours are rich with good feeling.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your persuasive powers come to a peak according to how badly you want the results. Be sure you don't ask for too much.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have an odd chance of reaching people at more profound levels than usual. Be candid with them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is time to stand up for what you believe in. Compromises only create worse problems at a future date. Add something to your reserves.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Carry on at yesterday's speed, without letting stressful news make you change directions. Fresh and interesting assistance is at hand.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't play games with whatever it is you're doing. Friends and acquaintances are better left out of preliminary stages.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is a practical limit to how hard and how long you can push vocation or business action. Rest, focus your energy on home and loved ones.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you can stay out of the front lines, long-standing issues can clarify. Your appeal to people in authority should be direct.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Modest advances on all important personal projects are indicated. Keep your own counsel about any financial prospects.

Polly's Problems

DEAR POLLY—My problem is with coconut that became dry and hard after the bag was left open. I did not notice this for several days so wonder if there is anything I can do to make it moist again?—MRS. A. V.

DEAR POLLY—My husband has multiple sclerosis which has affected both hands and arms as well as his legs. He has little strength in one hand and the other shakes when he tries to lift anything. He should drink lots of liquids but he used to spill any fluids before he got to his mouth. This embarrassed him greatly until I finally hit on the idea of using a well-known brand of plastic glass that has a seal-tight lid. I cut a hole in the center of each lid for a drinking straw to go through. Now if he drops the entire glass there is no mess. When I have to be away for awhile I fix several glasses ahead of time and put them on the door shelf of the refrigerator so he can help himself. If we go on a trip these glasses go along.

When washing the lids in the dishwasher they must be put in a net bag so they do not fall through. This sounds like a small thing but it does make him feel less dependent on the children and me and we all want to do as much for ourselves as we can.—LOLITA

DEAR POLLY—I have a solution to Louise's problem of quilted mattress pads shrinking after laundering. I had an old fitted sheet, worn in the middle but good on the sides, so I sewed my mattress pad on the old sheet and had no problem with the pad slipping off the edges of the bed.—ANOTHER LOUISE (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Wallace Up Close

(Second of a Series.)

By IRA BERKOW
WITH WALLACE CAMPAIGN — (NEA) — On a snowy morning, Alabama Gov. George Wallace entered the cabin of the two-engine charter plane. The plane was taking him on yet another lengthy jaunt in his combative presidential campaign.

Gov. Wallace unbuttoned his black cashmere coat which covered a black suit. Wallace, short, bushy-browed, wrapped in black, might have been sinister except that the coat sleeves were baggy and he looked dwarfish.

He sat down in the front left aisle seat, his dark-haired wife Cornelia beside him at the window seat. A reporter sat across the aisle.

Gov. Wallace stuck a dark cigar with a yellow holder into his mouth. "I'll talk to you in a minute," said Wallace good-naturedly, to the reporter, "but first I gotta make sure the weather's good. If it's bad, I'll have to be instructin' the crew. Not that I'm afraid of flyin', but I don't like flyin' in bad weather."

The plane was up. The small plane's vibrations were strong and unsettling. Wallace, puffing on the cigar, leaned across his wife and looked out the window.

"Looker there — sun," he said.

Cornelia peered out the window. "I don't see nothing but damn fog," she said, and sat back.

"Now, there's sun. I'm sure of it."

She emitted a soft cough. "Smoke, bother you, honey?" he asked. "I'll put the cigar out."

"No, it's all right," she said cordially. Then she took out a map and began marking off skiing locations. She planned to take her children on their first ski holiday. (Coincidentally, that night, he will make a speech condemning some politicians for taking the taxpayers' money and going off skiing in Switzerland.)

His campaign has been going well and Gov. Wallace is in good spirits. His mouth, which seems naturally curved in a snarl, is now broken in a smile. He turns to the reporter and is in a reminiscent mood.

"All these people on welfare," he says, "they gotta get out and work. I don't mean the lame and the halt and the blind and the deaf (his tone lowers at this litany, as it does when he comes to this part in his speeches) but the loafers and chiselers. I worked my way out of poverty, a lot of us have."

"I grew up on a farm down in Clio, Alabama. We didn't have no outdoor plumbing and I had to draw water. I worked 12 hours for 50-cents a day pickin' cotton. I went to college and drove a truck six hours a day for a dollar."

"I remember when I was in the University of Alabama Law School and I had to defend this ole guy. He had put 19 sticks of dynamite under his wife's bed, tied the dynamite to a 50-foot fuse. The fuse burned one foot a minute. Then he went to some honky tonk nearby and met his girlfriend and danced to the 'Wabash Cannonball,' I reckon. His wife was blown clear through the roof."

"There was a lot of emotion in the case, because the people there 'bouts knew he had give his wife the syphilis, too. It looked like he was gonna get the 'lectric chair."

"I wanted to get him off for life. I only had one thing goin' for me, his little 12-year-old boy. He cried a lot. So I put him right up front for the jurors to see. I'd go up to him and whisper in his ear. 'You know, Sonny, they wantin' to 'lectrocute your daddy.' Oooohhh." Wallace imitated the crying child, then he laughed. "The jury was cryin', too." He laughed again.

"I told the jury, give the man life just for his little boy over there, so he can see his daddy in prison. Do somethin' for the boy. It took the jury 30 minutes to give a verdict of life."

The story shows both Wallace's bent toward expedience ("He won't mention race until he has to," said one Alabama newspaperman) and also his knowledge of touching the heart of "the average man." Perhaps because he, too, can be touched. As governor, he dreaded signing the death certificate of condemned murderers ("We tellin' a fella he's got to die!" Wallace has moaned).

A bent for expedience and a knowledge of "the average man."

As a circuit court judge, he disliked sentencing poor farmers who made moonshine for their own consumption. "It wasn't hurtin' no one," says Wallace. "Gully-jumpers, we called 'em. They'd drink the stuff out of fruit jars. I remember one black man he got caught by the federal agents. I gave the fella a defense. 'Say that you was just huntin' up your cow and you come up to this house and you was just wantin' to sniff around some.'"

Wallace laughed, brushed some ashes from his dark suit jacket and leaned toward the window, looking for a reassuring sun that was somewhere, he was certain, in that damn fog.

Gov. Wallace Visiting 3 Texas Cities Today

By The Associated Press
 George Wallace makes a swing into three Texas coastal cities Tuesday, seeking to pick up all the presidential electors for the National Democratic convention.

This is the first year presidential candidates have campaigned publicly for electors in Texas.

Previously, the electors were pledged to vote in a bloc at the national convention and were pretty well selected by the dominant political faction within the Democratic party.

This year, under national party rules, there can be no bloc voting.

So Wallace is seeking to persuade some if not all of the thousands of Democrats who will attend precinct conventions Saturday to throw their support to them.

The next week, delegates named in the precincts will hold county conventions. After that comes the state convention where the final list for the 130 Texas votes in the national convention will be selected.

Wallace seems unlikely to get all the Texas delegates, but any he can add to his present total will give him that much more influence when a Democratic nominee for president is selected.

The candidate sets down at Beaumont at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, then flies along the coast to Corpus Christi for a 3 p.m. landing. He will hold planeside rallies both places.

He arrives in Houston at 8 p.m. and his Texas campaign manager, Hall Timanus, says he plans a speech.

But his main occupation Tuesday night no doubt will be watching developments in Indiana and his home state of Alabama.

In Alabama's Tuesday primary, Wallace is seeking control of the state's 37 delegates to the national convention, but a court suit Monday questioning the manner of delegate selection may delay a decision until the suit is settled.

DANGEROUS DRIVERS

DUBLIN (AP) — In the first 10 months of last year there were 1,115 hit-and-run motoring accidents in the Irish Republic, resulting in 22 deaths. Only 487 drivers were caught and prosecuted. Two were sent to prison. Twenty-nine were given the benefit of the Probation Act as it was their first offense.

Sen. Bentsen Pins His Hopes On HHH

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Vice President Hubert Humphrey faces "an uphill fight," but he could possibly defeat President Nixon in November if nominated as the Democratic standard bearer. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says.

The Texas Democrat pointed out here Monday that he has not committed himself to any candidate so far.

But when asked if he had any predictions on the Democratic presidential nominee, Bentsen said that as of today, Humphrey "probably has the edge" in winning the nomination.

"But the one certainty of politics," Bentsen told a news conference, "is that there is uncertainty when you have some time involved."

Asked if Humphrey could defeat Nixon, Bentsen said of the Minnesota Democratic senator:

"Yes, I certainly think he can. I think as of today, it's an uphill fight. When you say 'can,' that isn't saying probabilities."

Bentsen noted the military flareup in Vietnam has led to a very crucial situation and a very fluid situation. And we don't know the end result."

However, he added, the Vietnam situation "can have a material effect on the November election."

He said he felt Humphrey at present has a good chance of winning the nomination because he represents "more of a moderate position" than other Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Bentsen, who was here to deliver a Law Day speech, also told newsmen he supports President Nixon the continued withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

He said the United States has given Vietnam "all the capabilities and material things with which to defend themselves."

Now, he said, the question "is not so much the will of the American people; the question is the testing of the will of the South Vietnamese people. We can't give them the will. That's up to them whether they want to save their country or not."

Clements Places 'Style' In Pampa's Atmosphere

BE IN STYLE—The new L-Look is now available at Clements' Barber Shop. It's a new hair style that has been perfected by Roffler for the young man with long hair. Fashion trends are one

The word around Clements Barber Shop is Bob Clements has the best customers in the world and the customers have the best barber in the world. A stop by Clements Barber Shop will show why. Clements, who has been a barber since 1946, has satisfied customers from Miami, Candian, McLean, Wheeler, Pampa and other points around the Panhandle. "I went to some of these styling shows and saw what some of these barbers were doing that I couldn't do and I said to myself, that's for me."

Clements said in his best chairside manner. Clements massages the hair and scalp 20 minutes to bring about circulation and relaxation to the scalp. "If this procedure is not followed, the hair stands straight-up making a good styling or cutting job near impossible."

Clements, who has had training at Amarillo, Tyler and Dallas, has a practicing knowledge of hair-less retardation. "I can't bring the hair back," said Clements, "but I can help you keep what you've got." The wife of one of Clements' former customers who moved from the Pampa area wrote requesting more of the Roffler's products handled by Clements, with this comment: "His hair is a lot thicker that it has ever been since we've been married. It's really been growing a lot lately."

Visit The Lake With State Farm Mutual

Yes, State Farm is still paying big car insurance dividends. Eligible Texas policy holders are now receiving a big 20 per cent dividend on expiring six-month policies—one of the many reasons why more Texans insure their car with State Farm than any other company. You may think a six-month policy costs more than an annual policy. NOT SO! A six-month policy is just one half of the yearly premium. You don't have to pay as much at one time. State Farm Mutual insures over 12 million automobiles and is the largest auto underwriter in the United States and bringing this closer to home, is the largest in Texas. Many people think that State Farm Mutual is an auto insurance company only. Pampans can find State Farm Homeowners policies, disability-income policies, life and boat insurance—among many others—all right in the same building.

State Farm is proud of being number one—the sale of Homeowner's policies throughout the nation. State Farm can give you all the protection needed for your home and its contents and they are paying 10 per cent dividends on eligible Homeowner policies. What happens when you're offered $16,000 for your $22,400 pile of ashes? You take it—if you haven't increased your home insurance to keep pace with inflation.

Summer's heat is on its way and Pampans are already looking toward the lakes in the surrounding area. Many are making the lakes a regular spot on weekends and even week days, as well as vacations. For those who own a boat that is not insured, trouble is lurking near.

State Farm can insure that investment of pleasure for you with no trouble at all. Who knows when he might be traveling down the highway and a thrown rock will crack the hull or windshield of the boat. State Farm insures the boat, whether it is on the highway, on the water or in the backyard. Almost any boat you have—they can insure—be it a canoe or a cabin cruiser. That is why you should contact Harry Gordon, your Top O' Texas agent for 25 years, and talk to him about the various types of insurances he handles.

Why not call Harry Gordon or go see him at his new location at the north side of Coronado Center. You can be sure he can help you with your insurance needs.

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan announced Sunday that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto will meet in New Delhi late this month or early in June. D. P. Dhar, Mrs. Ghandhi's special emissary to Pakistan, returned to New Delhi after four days discussing arrangements for the talks.

NEW LOCATION—Shown above is Harry Gordon at his new office building at the north end of the Coronado Shopping Center. Gordon's Insurance is now at a more convenient spot for those Pampans who like to look a person eye-to-eye when doing business. Go by Gordon's Insurance at the easy-to-find location and look over the office.

Big Oil Earnings Foretold

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The oil industry can expect strong earnings growth in the second half of this year despite indications the first quarter will show poor results. The Oil and Gas Journal said Monday. The trade magazine said the first quarter, and perhaps even the first half of the year, may show declines of 8 to 15 per cent because of depressed product prices, lagging fuel sales during the winter, higher taxes and royalties and relatively high product inventories.

But the situation should change in the second half of the year because of improvement in world economic conditions and a firing of product prices, the trade magazine predicted. "In spite of the improved outlook, the oil industry still is far from being in an enviable position," the Journal said. "Overall, its debt-equity ratio is rising, and it faces a strain on its capital to meet the soaring demand for energy."

ONE OF THE BEST

Hot Summer This Year? Not With Hall Tire Co.

With the summer season just around the bend, Pampans are readying the old air coolers. Some are going to find the air conditioner in pretty poor shape. If that is your case and you want to know where you can get the best deal on a new cooler or repairs for the old one. Look no farther than Hall Tire Company. Hall Tire now has in their new shipment of Wright air coolers. Leymond Hall, owner and manager of Hall Tire, feels his brand is one of the best and most dependable. If that is not enough to convince you of the fine quality of the coolers Hall deals, it might help to know they service them after the sale instead of just sell and forget. Maybe the old cooler is still in pretty good shape, but needs pads or a pump. Hall Tire can again help you. The firm has on hand custom and ready-made pads to line the cooler. Why suffer through the summer? See Leymond Hall for a fair price on a cooler for your home. While you are in Hall Tire you might look over the Channel Master tape players that are on display there. Hall is the area headquarters for Channel Master. Also they carry one of the largest, most up-to-the-minute stocks of tapes in the area. Complete price range on eight track tape players for both home and automobile use is available there. Also custom installation is available, accompanied by an efficient service department. If your rod is in need of rubber as well as portable music, Hall Tire is the place to visit. According to Leymond Hall, the firm offers a full line of automobile tires as well as light truck tires and a full line of glass belted tires at the most popular prices. The company services everything it sells. A main specialty of Hall Tire Co. is that it balances wheels electronically. This type of balancing is an expensive and complicated process. Only three or four shops in town have it, according to Hall. The procedure requires a well-trained man who must have had several months training if he uses the machine correctly. Hall assures his customers that "we still know who you are if you have a tire adjustment problem." The business also offers other services such as re-upholstering and custom-made seat covers made to the liking of the customer. Hall, though not born in Pampa, has lived here most of his life, and has been in business for better than 25 years. That is just another assurance that you are getting the best possible deal. Visit Hall Tire Company, 700 W. Foster, and see for yourself what real service is.

Leprosy Victims May Have Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because not one, but two armadillos in Louisiana have developed leprosy, researchers say there is fresh hope that 15 million humans afflicted with the ancient disease will be cured. Scientists say they also seek to dispel the belief held by some experts that the first time the hard-shelled mammals contracted the disease marked "a genetic fluke" rather than a medical breakthrough.

Last August, U.S. Public Health researchers at the government's leprosy hospital in Carville, La., announced with some fanfare that leprosy had shown up in one of 77 animals in a research colony. All 77 had been injected with human leprosy bacteria since the experiment began in February, 1970.

With leprosy-afflicted animals to experiment on as models, scientists hoped to move toward a cure for humans or a preventative vaccine. But conservative-minded scientists expressed skepticism that the success achieved in giving leprosy to a lone armadillo meant anything for the 15 million persons with the disease around the world, including 3,000 in the United States. There are 100 new cases in the U.S. each year.

Scientists at the Gulf South Regional Institute of New Iberia, La., told the paper about the breakthrough in a story approved by Dr. Waldemar F. Kirchheimer, chief of Carville's Laboratory Research Branch. It said in part: "By assuring that the initially infected armadillo... was not a genetic fluke, non-representative of his species, the likelihood increases that more armadillos susceptible to HD (Hansen's Disease or leprosy) will be found."

And, aside from the potential for leprosy patients, the Carville researchers say the new findings may eventually lead to better understanding of why some people develop cancer while others escape and some answers to problems surrounding rejections of transplanted human hearts and other major organs.

Fund-Raising Unit Attacked For Incomplete Statements

WASHINGTON (AP) — In apparent violation of the new federal election law, some political fund-raising committees have failed to disclose corporate ties when registering with the government.

An examination of the more than 600 registration statements filed with the General Accounting Office since the law took effect April 7 shows that 24 committees have officers who also are officers of particular corporations.

Of these, 14 included the corporate name in the committee title or listed it openly elsewhere in their statements.

Ten others did not: Gulf Oil, Illinois Central Industries, Union Oil, Tennessee Eastman Co., Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, General American Transportation, Quaker Oats and three smaller companies.

In telephone interviews, most corporate executives said no connection existed between their companies and the various committees because bylaws of the committees do not restrict membership or donors solely to those employed by their companies.

One exception was Claude C. Wild Jr., registered lobbyist for Gulf Oil, who acknowledged his committee, called The Committee for Good Government, was solely for Gulf executives.

"I just overlooked it," said Wild. "I wasn't trying to hide anything. If I had been, I would have gotten a Post Office box. But I listed my name and address."

Another exception was Tennessee Eastman of Kingsport, Tenn., a subsidiary of Eastman Kodak.

Ralph L. Disler, director of TEC public relations and chairman of Volunteers for Better Government, said the committee has contributors other than TEC employees and that one of the committee's three officers was not a company employee. He declined further comment.

Records on file with the House of Representatives show that virtually all 109 people who contributed $36,000 to the committee so far this year are employed by TEC or a subsidiary in the Kingsport area.

H.E. Wilson, vice chairman of the committee, who Disler said is not employed by TEC, could not be reached for comment. But law directories show Wilson, an attorney, to be a partner in a Kingsport law firm that represents TEC.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

George IV died as a Marine jet pilot, but he was artistically inclined and formerly illustrated my daily newspaper quiz column. So note his shock at the wanton vandalism cited below. Parents, take heed!

"Allowances" abel vandalism!

CASE T-568: When our oldest son, George IV, enrolled as a Navy flier, he was located at Pensacola, Fla.

On his first free weekend, he hired a boat and rode far inland over the winding bayous.

"Dad," he told us later, "I came upon a stately old home of pre-Civil War vintage.

"It was beautiful.

"And still full of the original furniture, which would have made antique dealers drool at the mouth."

"The caretaker let me go through it, including the basement, which was still stocked with canned fruit.

"So I decided to take a couple of my pals up there the next time I was off duty.

"But when we arrived, I was shocked.

"For vandals had broken into the house and smashed the antique furniture.

"They had even gone into the basement and wantonly broken the cans of fruit.

"Then they built a bonfire in the middle of the parlor rug and tried to burn down that stately plantation home.

"The caretaker had finally extinguished the flames but not until most of the house was ruined."

Why Vandalism?

After the concluding game of last fall's baseball world series, the crowds in Pittsburgh descended on the heart of the city to smash store windows, loot merchandise, overturn automobiles and set fire to taxicabs!

Yet it wasn't in anger or reprisal at the Baltimore Orioles, for the Pirates had won the world championship.

So why would supposedly intelligent people in luxurious America desecrate private property and wantonly destroy valuable merchandise?

"Just for kicks" is the usual reply of nitwit teen-age vandals.

For vandals have no sense of artistic or property values! Why?

People React Differently To Reversion Of Okinawa

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — When the big change comes to Okinawa, May 15, Yukioki Ikemiyagi will throw a farewell party for his 170 employees, close down his cigarette factory—and maybe quit smoking.

Roger Conn, an American car salesman from Elkhart, Tex., will be pleased at the loss of some red tape affecting his business.

Lt. Gen. James B. Lampert will lose his job as last in a line of U.S. generals who have run the Japanese prefecture or state of Okinawa and its giant complex of U.S. military bases since the end of World War II. Most of the bases will stay, however.

Many Okinawans will join fireworks and folk dancing festivities May 15 to mark the end of 27 years' military occupation. Many will demonstrate in protest over the terms of their return to Japanese rule. Others will stay home and worry quietly, mostly about money.

Okinawa's people will change their dollars for yen under conditions that could cut the value of their money holdings by up to 17 per cent. This is a result of yen revaluation last December. But special Japanese government measures will help many Okinawans avoid major losses.

The over-all mood is worry and uncertainty.

"This is a tiny place with one million population, but it contains many serious and touchy problems," says Jiro Takase, the Japanese ambassador serving on a U.S.-Japan commission which for nearly three years has prepared for reversion. "Patience is one of the most important virtues needed, and sympathy too."

Ikemiyagi sums up the feelings of many Okinawans toward reversion: "Mostly people worry about what will happen. 'Nobody knows... What will happen two or three years after reversion?'"

But he favors Okinawa's return to Japanese rule, and thinks most Okinawans do, too. "It has been a long time since the war."

A worry persists among Okinawans that the change is coming too early. The reversion leaders reply that the same problems would occur no matter when the change takes place.

Car Crash Kills Three, Injuring One On Hwy 290

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (AP) — An Army doctor, his wife and their one-year-old son were killed in a head-on collision between two cars on U.S. 290, 20 miles east of here, early Monday.

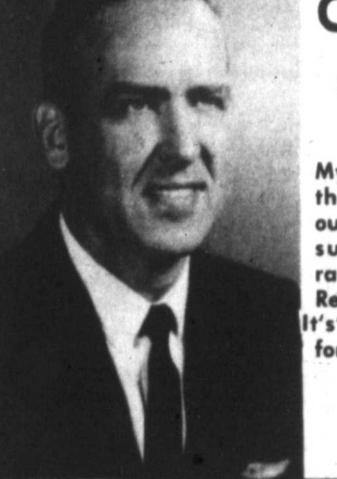

The victims were Capt. Bruce A. Forrest, his wife Jerre, 25, and their son, Bruce Jr.

The family came from River Edge, N.J., but had been living in El Paso where Capt. Forrest was serving at the Army's William Beaumont General Hospital.

Ali Goes Distance To Out-Point Chivalo

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — After battling Muhammad Ali the full distance for the second time, Canadian George Chuvalo predicted heavyweight king Joe Frazier will beat the ex-champion again.

The speedy Ali punched out a unanimous decision victory Monday night at the Pacific Coliseum over the 12-round route but couldn't achieve his goal of putting the tough Toronto fighter down.

Following the bout, somewhat similar to their meeting in 1966 when Ali won in 15, he was asked when he'd fight Frazier.

"I don't think he is quite ready for a rematch," Ali answered. "I'm going to be in even better shape when I fight Frazier than I was for Chuvalo. And if I had been in this good shape for Frazier the first time, I would have laid him out."

Joe won the title fight, March 8, 1971, by decision.

Against Chuvalo, Ali danced and jabbed and put over some solid hooks and right hand shots.

Still, the 34-year-old Canadian declared, "I never was wobbly."

Ali, now from Cherry Hill, N.J., weighed 217½ while Chuvalo came in at 221. For Ali, the weight showed the result of hard training since his April 1 bout when he weighed 226 before beating Mac Foster in Tokyo.

"A lot of people say that Chuvalo is washed up, but that's a lie," Ali declared in the post fight interview. "Anyone who can take my best shots is going to be around for a long, long time."

Chuvalo's best rounds were the fifth and ninth. In the sixth, when Ali came out fast, the Canadian suffered a one-inch gash on his forehead just over the right eye. The cut bled much of the rest of the fight but didn't appear to bother George.

A crowd estimated at 8,800 watched in person with closed circuit television and some late-inning lighting on the Texas Christian Horned Frogs Monday to edge them 4-3.

The loss assured Texas of a tie for first place. Since the Horns defeated Texas Christian two out of three games during the regular season Texas goes to the playoffs.

SMU and TCU meet in a doubleheader today.

SMU scored the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning on centerfielder Doug Barrett's single.

TCU led 3-1 going into the bottom of the ninth on homers by catcher Dana Carden and rightfielder Dub Adcock.

Under the 5-point-must system, referee Dave Brown scored the bout 59-51. Judge

Tom Keys saw it 58-51 and judge Tommy Paenessa, 60-46. The Associated Press had 58-52 for Ali.

Longhorns Go To Playoffs

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Longhorns will represent the Southwest Conference in the NCAA baseball playoffs and the burnt orange can give Southern Methodist a deep bow.

The Mustangs unleashed some late-inning lightning on the Texas Christian Horned Frogs Monday to edge them 4-3.

Harvesters Visit Palo Duro

Pampa's Harvester baseball team continues in its effort to salvage a 500 district record in Amarillo this afternoon at 4:00 against the Palo Duro Dons.

In the first half of district play the Harvesters beat the Dons by the score of 4 to 1. Since that time Pampa has won only two games to attain their present 3-5 league record.

Palo Duro hasn't even been that fortunate as they stand 0-8.

"Palo Duro's big problem is lack of pitching," said Harvester coach deck Woldt. "They simply haven't been able to keep the other teams from hitting the ball."

"They out-hit us in the first game we played 9 to 7, but we scored four runs to their one."

The Dons played both Borger and Amarillo good close games, so they can hit the ball. And of course they are always tough to play in Amarillo," Woldt added.

Either Larry Knutson or Jody Johnson will be on the mound for Pampa with Dale Ammons handling the catching chores.

Bill Simon will be at first, A. J. Brewer at second, Gary Haynes at third and Mike Edgar at short.

In the outfield, Al Ferguson will be in left, Marsh Gambin in center and Rick Musgrave in right.

Pampa will close out its season this Friday in Optimist Park against Amarillo High.

Baseball Roundup

The Houston Astros traded for a big gun during the off-season after their Toy Cannon lost some firepower.

Getting Lee May has really helped. It's made a better hitter out of little Jimmy Wynn.

The 5-9, 170-pound outfielder is more than pulling his weight with five home runs this season, including a grand slam blast that helped the Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 Monday night.

"I'm smiling now," said Wynn after a big night that also included a double and single and two runs scored.

He should be happier than last season, when he hit only seven home runs all year and plunged to a career-low .206 batting average while sitting in Manager Harry Walker's dog house.

Now batting in front of the power-hitting May, who had 39 homers last season for Cincinnati, Wynn is hitting at a .379 clip with 16 RBI and 15 runs scored.

In the only other games Monday, the New York Mets turned back the San Francisco Giants 7-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in National League Action.

Baseball Roundup

The Astros' victory moved them into a tie with Los Angeles for first place in the National League's West race and shoved the defending World Champion Pirates 4½ games off the pace in the East.

Right-hander Tom Seaver struck out 12 batters in 6 and 2-3 innings and got relief help from Tug McGraw to post his fourth victory without a loss this season.

Leading 4-3, the Mets broke open the game with three runs in the seventh on singles by Bud Harrelson, Tommie Agee, Rusty Staub, Cleon Jones and Jim Fregosi.

Despite Seaver's high strike-out total, he was pulled after giving up home runs to Dave Rader, Chris Speier and Ken Henderson. Little Bud Harrelson, one of the most unlikely long ball hitters in the New York lineup, also drove one out.

Dick Selma, a former relief pitcher, spun a three-hitter and Willie Montanez hit a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Selma and Claude Osteen of Los Angeles were locked in a scoreless pitching duel until the Dodger southpaw walked Terry Harmon with two out in the eighth and threw a gopher ball to Montanez. Selma squeezed out of an eighth-inning jam after Willie Crawford knocked in Los Angeles' lone run with a sacrifice fly.

Vida Blue To Sign

BOSTON (AP) — Vida Blue, the Oakland A's sensational young southpaw, was set to end his holdout and sign a 1972 contract today as probably the highest paid major-league sophomore in history.

"I'm ready to play," the 22-year-old pitcher said late Monday night after arriving in Boston on a non-stop flight from San Francisco and then going into seclusion.

Blue was met at Logan International Airport by Joe Reichler, assistant to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He was polite, but not very communicative with the lone sports writer to meet him.

He looked fit, but merely shrugged and occasionally smiled when asked questions, such as how long did he think it would take before he's ready to pitch.

"I've been working out on my own," the 1971 American League's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner said. "I don't have any plans. I've been on a plane and haven't talked to anyone. All I want now is a good night's sleep."

Blue, who had been holding out for $92,000, agreed to accept a total package of $63,000 to sign with the Athletics. All that's needed now is his signature on a contract. That business had to come first today before he left a motel and moved in with his teammates at a Back Bay hotel, a short distance from Fenway Park where the A's meet the Boston Red Sox tonight.

Kuhn and A's owner Charlie Finley also were due in town for the official signing of one of baseball's top gate attractions.

"I wouldn't miss it," Finley said in Chicago, adding he was "extremely pleased" that Blue was ready to sign.

Finley said the contract terms will be the same worked out last week in a meeting with Blue. The club owner added, "The contract will read $50,000 and on the side will be $13,000 in cash."

SHAVING STROKES

21—Combating the Fat Hit

Nobody loves a fat golf shot.

Fat shots are caused, of course, by hitting the ground behind the ball. But what causes that?

Let's return to talking about the radius of your swing—the line formed by your left arm and the club. The center of the circle that is your swing is your head. When you address the ball, you establish that circle.

Now, the circle can touch the ground at only one point, and if your head doesn't move that point will be at the back of the ball. But if your head moves to your right and you sway off the ball, the entire circle shifts with it, the club hits the ground too far behind the ball, and you get a fat hit.

You can sway back through the ball and, with perfect timing, still produce a good shot, but you won't be able to do it consistently. And golf above all is a game of consistency.

It's much better to keep your head in a stable position—keep it where it was at address. The best way to do that is to keep your whole body in position and not sway. I do that by cocking my right knee and foot in toward my left knee at address. I dare you to do that and sway off the ball, without hurting your leg.

Basketball Roundup

By The Associated Press

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — "Now it comes down to one game," declared Virginia Coach Al Bianchi, trying to put Monday night's 146-136 New York Nets victory over the Squires out of his mind and looking ahead to Thursday night's finale at Norfolk, Va. The best-of-7 American Basketball Association Eastern Division championship playoff series is now tied at 3-3.

"It will be our home court and we'll have the home crowd in favor of us," declared Bianchi, who might have added that the Nets have not won a playoff game in Virginia in six tries spanning two years.

But the Nets will go into the finale coming off their most explosive performance of the playoffs.

Rick Barry poured in 43 points. John Roche added 37 and Billy Paultz hit a career-high 33 to pace New York's explosive offense. Barry hit 17 of 23 field goal attempts. Roche 12 of 19—including three of five three-point tries—and Paultz 13 of 15.

As a team, the Nets hit a torrid 61.1 percentage, sinking 55 of 90 field goal attempts.

Barry put it in simple terms.

"We beat them at their own game—running," he declared. "We worked the ball well and took good shots. We just out-played them."

For the Squires rookie Julius Erving had 34 points and Bernie Williams had 33. But Ray Scott, the reserve center who sparked Virginia's fifth-game victory with 26 points, was limited to six.

A key to the game, however, was under the boards. New York out-rebounded Virginia 48-39, the first time in the series that the Nets have beaten the Squires off the boards. Paultz grabbed 14 rebounds for the Nets while Erving, who hauled in 32 Saturday, was limited to 10.

Indiana won the ABA Western Division championship series by beating Utah 117-113 at the Salt Palace. Roger Brown had 27 points. Freddie Lewis 23 and Mel Daniels 19 for the Pacers, while Zelmo Beaty scored 25 and Jimmie Jones 23 for Utah, the defending ABA champions.

The National Basketball Association's championship playoff series will resume Wednesday night in New York. The Knicks are tied with the Los Angeles Lakers with one victory apiece in the best-of-seven series.

The NCAA tennis championships will be held June 12-17 at Athens, Ga.

Rodriguez Beats Billy In Nelson Playoff

DALLAS (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez had a dream and, corny as it may seem, captured a sudden-death playoff from Billy Casper and lived happily ever after.

A story a fiction writer wouldn't touch turned into real life drama Monday as the down-trodden Rodriguez, who hadn't won a tournament in four years, dreamed he would beat Casper in a sudden-death playoff for the $25,000 first prize in the Byron Nelson Golf classic and did it.

"I can't believe I dreamed the whole thing," said Rodriguez.

Pardue's Horse Ready To Run

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — No Le Haze is ready for Saturday's 98th running of the Kentucky Derby and the size of the field or the condition of the track makes no difference, says trainer Homer Pardue.

Told there could be 20 or more 3-year-olds in the Derby, the veteran horseman pointed out Monday that No Le Haze beat 16 rivals in the Arkansas Derby.

Asked if he worried about an off-track, he noted that his charge won the Louisiana Derby in the slop and added:

"We can race uphill if they want us to—or they can cover the track with asphalt."

Perhaps influenced by the Spanish meaning of the name No Le Haze—it doesn't matter—Pardue also said the son of Candy Spots' placing in today's one-mile Derby Trial doesn't matter.

"He doesn't have to prove anything," said Pardue. "I just want him to get a little tired and not get hurt."

Celtics To Remain In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The new owners of the Boston Celtics are residents of the West Coast, but they insist the National Basketball Association club will remain in Boston.

"I don't know how that got started," Irving H. Levin said Monday in spiking a report that the Celtics were moving to San Diego.

Levin, president of National General Corporation, a Los Angeles film booking firm, said he and Harold A. Lipton, general counsel of the corporation, bought the Celtics because they "love the sport."

"We told Red Auerbach of our love for basketball and how great an opportunity we had in becoming owners of the Celtics because, he, who in our opinion is Mr. Basketball, is the general manager," Levin said.

the former clown prince of the PGA tour, who has turned serious so he can concentrate.

The 36-year-old Rodriguez rammed home a five-foot putt on the 15th hole for a birdie to beat Casper, who has been in a slump for a year but showed signs of being the portly par-buster of old. Both finished with seven-under-par 273 over the long Preston Trail Golf Club course.

"I dreamed last night that I would have a playoff with Billy today," Rodriguez said. "I told him that before we started today, too."

Casper confirmed that Rodriguez told him about the dream but added: "He said he dreamed he knocked it stiff of the 13th hole and made birdie. But he was confused. The 13th is a par three. He meant he knocked his stiff on the 15th."

Rodriguez chimed in "I hit a nine-iron on the 15th but in the dream it was an 8-iron. For me, it was a dream come true."

Casper won $14,300.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, the winner of the last two Nelson Classics, was 11 shots back at 274. Arnold Palmer finished at 286 after three-putting twice on the closing holes trying to make a patented birdie hole.

Will Homeuik of Canada, Bruce Crampton, and Charles Coody tied for third place at 275 and won $6,608 each.

The Pain Of Vietnam

It has been a long time since President John Kennedy sent to Vietnam our elite troops, the Green Berets: about 10 years, in fact.

That was the beginning of a nightmare that won't go away. This country has had intervals of forgetfulness when, without even trying, we were able to put Vietnam out of our minds and fill our moments with less mind-boggling affairs.

A war has a way of coming back, however. Like an alligator in a swamp, it might disappear from the surface for a while, especially from a distance, but sooner or later it surfaces with all of its ugliness and antagonisms.

The news out of Vietnam in recent days indicates that the north is marching hard into the south. The news also indicates that U. S. ground forces will not be recalled to fight, that if ground is to be held it must be held by the South Viet.

There once was a measure of pride in what we were trying to do in Vietnam. Many people held to the belief that Vietnam was the key to saving all of Southeast Asia and that, indeed, if Vietnam fell then the other nations there would fall in domino reaction.

One has to search hard to find any semblance of pride in Vietnam today.

Remember the song a Special Forces sergeant wrote about the Green Berets? It went like this:

Put silver wings on my son's chest.

Make him one of America's best.

"He'll be a man they'll test one day—"

Have him win the green beret.

We got mousetrapped in Vietnam. We got sold down the river by our own leaders who figured that they would rather build up our forces secretly there than tell us what was going on.

It takes a strong economy, sometimes, for office holders to get re-elected. And a war economy is a strong economy.

Meanwhile, years later, our people began to realize that those were our own flesh and blood being killed half way around the globe. And we began to question what good was being accomplished over there. The answers that were forthcoming fell on sensitive ears like hard-boiled eggs on the day after Easter. We began to see that we were sending young men to fight and die in a war that was helping neither us nor the Vietnamese people.

Literally thousands of men have died on both sides of this fiasco. And what has it got anyone, except wounds and death and a growing disregard for life itself? Our men come home hardened by war, disillusioned, critically wounded in mind, many of them, if not in limb.

It is understandable that the President is trying to wind down the war and it is understandable that we must not leave our prisoners of war over there. Period. It is understandable that we have got ourselves between a rock and a hard place and that the more we squirm the more it hurts.

But squirm, we must. For we are still a long way from home and hurting.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Dalmatians became fashionable as coach dogs in 18th-century England and in the late 1800s became popular mascots of American firemen. The World Almanac notes that Dalmatians are greatly at ease around horses and wheeled vehicles but, with the advent of motor vehicles, they are now mainly kept as watchdogs and have often been cited for saving lives.

Heir Is Not Quite Clear

The St. Louis Better Business Bureau reports a new way in which people are being parted from their money.

It seems that an outfit in California is looking for missing heirs. It is looking so conscientiously, in fact, that it sends identical letters throughout the country to people with the last name of a deceased person.

Currently, the "hot names" are Williams, Johnson and Taylor.

For a modest charge of $8.50, the firm offers to send copies of pertinent court records on the decedent's estate. Obviously, the possibility of any solicited person being a true heir is remote.

Deal with such solicitations at your own risk, says the BBB.

Why Can't Parents Decide?

By MARILYN MANION

A lot of American parents are concerned these days about their children's schooling. They see their taxes going up, their teachers going on strike, and, some say, the quality of education going down. Several states now maintain that the support of local schools by local property taxes is unconstitutional and must be replaced by a system of state taxes and state control. Add to this the nationwide furor over busing, and you've got a thorny problem. Money, control, racial mixing—what do these all contribute to the real issue, which is, after all, the education of children?

Dr. Robert L. Jones, a member of the Indiana House of Representatives, introduced a bill in the Indiana Legislature that could clear up all of these issues. Jones, a Doctor of Education who teaches at Butler University, calls his proposal the Voucher Plan. Here is how he described it over the Manion Forum Radio Program:

"We are accustomed, as a nation, to kids going to public schools, and they are supported by public funds. In a Voucher Plan you simply say to the parents of the child, look—we have been assigning your child to a school; now we are going to give you the equivalent level of state support and you may pick the school. In effect, you give the parents a slip of paper, or a voucher, and they in turn can take this to the school of their choice and enroll the child there. The state will reimburse them for whatever portion of that expense it normally would give to support the child.

"The public is getting upset with the fact that we are paying more and more for schools and somehow we seem to be getting less and less for it. As a result they are searching for alternatives. The Voucher Plan is one.

"What we are saying when we promote the Voucher Plan is that there are some schools that are good and some schools that are bad and in the private market place the bad schools would go out of existence because customer acceptance simply wouldn't put up with it.

"If you are marketing an inferior product in canned goods or automobiles, people will eventually stop buying it, and yet we have a situation in this country where we turn out a poorly educated child in a particular school system and they say the answer is to pour more money into it. I don't think that is the correct answer at all. The voucher system goes in exactly the opposite direction. It encourages competition between schools.

"There are two basic objections to the Voucher Plan. People say that it is discriminatory because it discriminates against the inner city black child. My answer is that it does not discriminate against that child. In fact it is giving him an opportunity he has never had before. Under the Voucher Plan, we would say to his parents, 'Look, if you don't like this school, there are private schools that will take this child. Here is the equivalent amount of state funding—transfer him if you wish.'

"That leaves the second objection—cost. People say, 'It's going to cost too much money.' The opposite is true. The typical private school in this country has costs that are substantially below a public school education. Actually, the Voucher System would cut costs. If people find that they can get a less expensive education, and a better education, somewhere else, they are going to begin to use it."

Naturally, there are a lot of Americans who oppose the Voucher Plan concept. Among them are the social engineers and racial mixmasters; bureaucrats whose futures hinge upon the continued pouring of funds into public school systems; and people who feel that the state, not the parents, has the right to send a child where it pleases. If you do not fit into these categories, may we suggest that you promote such a plan in your state?—The American Way Features

It's a Big Surge For Delegations

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—If one big objective of Democratic party reforms was greater participation in the presidential selection process by a wider variety of people, then so far they must be deemed a very considerable success.

For instance, the sheer numbers of people taking part in precinct or district meetings were impressive in several nonprimary states. Some 85,000 participated in Minnesota's precinct caucuses. That compares interestingly with the 86,000 who actually went into voting booths in the March 7 New Hampshire primary.

Minnesota was not a "sport." Some 75,000 took part in Washington state, 37,000 in Arizona, 35,000 in Iowa, 20,000 each in Georgia and Mississippi.

Astonishing, furthermore, are the numbers of people formally filing for delegate spots for the 1972 Democratic convention in Miami Beach. In some primary states they are nearly swamping the ballot.

Some sample filings among these states:

H. L. Hunt Writes

"HARD" DRUGS

The dangers of heroin remain a reality. Not only at home but also abroad, according to statistics released by the armed forces. It is discouraging to read that drug-abuse specialists of the military have found that about 400 servicemen out of 10,000 tested in Vietnam are found to be "hooked" on hard drugs or have been frequent users. But it is encouraging to know that teams of doctors are administering field base tests, including surprise checks, at least four times before a soldier, seaman or airman is returned to civilian status. If the serviceman is found to be a user, he will undergo rehabilitation in hospitals, hopefully to be cured of his problem.

The Pentagon says also that it is running drug addiction tests on young men before they are inducted into the service. This should help, to a degree, to keep out the pusher and user who can have a bad influence on those officers and men who have never tried illegal narcotics. Medical authorities and commanders who have the responsibility of eliminating narcotics abuse among the troops in Asia, and elsewhere for that matter, have been hard-put to cope with this dismal problem. But the reports from Washington and Saigon indicated they are preserving in their efforts to overcome a problem that is almost as tough as the Vietcong. In fact, it is likely that the Cong and their henchmen in Red China contribute to the drug problems of U. S. authorities. Supplying drugs is a horrible way to try to win a war but we can't blame it all on the enemy in the field. The same problem exists right here at home.

Through these same delegations, representation of women ranges from a low of 11.8 per cent in Illinois to 48 per cent in Wisconsin. The average is just under 30 per cent, against a national percentage of more than 50 per cent of the population.

The chosen numbers of women are at impressive new highs, but they are not satisfying women activists who want a full 50 per cent everywhere.

Young Reader Tries Suicide

Dear Dr. Lamb—I read your article about the girl who tried to commit suicide. Well, I have had that experience. I took an overdose of aspirin—a whole bottle. Well, obviously I am still alive, but it was no fun. I sat through the whole time because I didn't want anybody to know about it, especially my mother. I did this because of my ex-boyfriend. I have thought about trying it again. I am so mixed up I don't know what to do. Could you please give me some advice? Is there any chance of after-effects of taking the aspirin, because I went deaf for a whole day because there was a ringing noise in my head?

Dear Reader—You are certainly not alone. In 1965, one authority estimated that there were 60,000 attempted suicides in young people under age 20 each year in the United States. The teen-age period is a particularly difficult time, because of the change from dependency on parents to independence and the powerful influence of dramatic changes in the body.

The adolescent frequently needs a counselor outside the family, which our society fails to provide. Most parents whose child attempts suicide are usually greatly surprised and didn't even realize that their child was in distress. There are similar patterns in adolescents who attempt suicide. It is not just that they come from a "broken home," because there are a lot of children who have this experience, but don't attempt suicide. More important, a divorce or remarriage occurs in the teen-age years. Parents who are separated and don't remarry have children with a lesser incidence of attempted suicide.

The basic problem is continued repeated stress with elements in the environment that tend to cause the individual to feel isolated and alone. The precipitating factor, as in your case, can be a terminated romance. Such unsuccessful romances are particularly difficult because of the estrangement that often exists between the child and parents.

The best thing I can advise young people in your group to do is to seek medical help. Have your very own doctor. If you are in a university setting, most of the health services are reasonably familiar with the emotional strain of adolescents and can provide some help.

It is difficult to find help outside the family that you can depend on. Sometimes ministers do an excellent job in this role. Uncles and aunts sometimes do and I have often wondered if this is one of the roles that grandparents used to furnish. It is unfortunate that some parents can't fill this role, but frequently they are so closely involved in the situation that they don't recognize the problem.

Foreign Students Bumping Workers on Jobs in U.S.

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Thousands of foreign students are holding jobs throughout the country in direct violation of the law and regulations under which they were admitted to attend colleges and other schools here.

With unemployment persisting at more than 5 per cent, this extensive illicit job "raiding" immediately adversely affects a considerable number of U.S. unemployed, particularly Vietnam veterans and youths. Immigration officials and members of Congress are being deluged with complaints on this score.

Under the Immigration and Naturalization Act, there are no restrictions on the number of foreign students who can come to this country for schooling. They are free to do so without national, racial or any other quotas on two explicit conditions:

(1) They must have the means to support themselves; (2) they are barred from taking "gainful employment" of any kind.

From the increasing volume of protests and other evidence, it is indisputable that large numbers of foreign students are flouting the law and depriving American citizens of much-needed jobs.

Officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service are well aware of this growing lawlessness. To a limited extent they have been cracking down—as shown by the fact that last year 2,280 alien students were ordered to leave.

That is an increase of around 15 per cent over the 1,902 evicted in 1970, and even more over the 1,803 in 1969.

Authorities admit this is a small proportion of the number violating the prohibition against gainful employment. But Immigration officials contend they are unable to cope effectively with this widespread illegal practice because Congress has not voted funds for an adequate enforcement staff.

Sharply Differing View

That argument is sternly rejected by Rep. William Scherle (R-Iowa), member of the powerful Appropriations Committee—now deliberating budget requests for soaring welfare costs and unemployment compensation.

The outspoken legislator strongly implies that responsible officials failed to clearly present the facts to Congress and make a convincing case to meet this situation. Scherle pointedly noted that, while the number of students admitted in 1971 (94,035) was less than the 98,179 in 1970, there were far more complaints about these students holding illegal jobs.

"With unemployment hovering around 6 per cent nationally," says Scherle, "and our returning Vietnam veterans and high school, vocational and college graduates having difficulty finding employment, it is doubly necessary for us to take care of our own citizens first. Large-scale job-snatching by aliens admitted solely as students cannot be tolerated."

"No one is against foreign students coming to our country to broaden their education. But we cannot permit them to take advantage of our economy to support themselves while they are here getting the benefits of our educational system. To allow that is not only illegal but grossly unfair to many thousands of Americans urgently in need of jobs." Scherle is discussing with Immigration and other authorities what can immediately and forcefully be done to effectively deal with this growing backstage problem. He is bluntly telling them:

"I intend to leave no stone unturned to insure that vigorous action is taken to compel foreign students not only to abide by our laws, but to stop infringing on our economy. If they can't support their studies in this country, then they don't belong here. That is the condition on which they were admitted; they know that full well; and they have to abide by it. If they can't or won't, then they must leave."

Alien Job Grabbers

To underscore his demand for more stringent enforcement of the law and regulations affecting foreign students, Rep. Scherle has compiled a long list of violations.

While in some areas these illegalities have been publicly noted, nationally this situation has gone virtually unpublicized.

That is one of the curious aspects of the problem. While much is said and written about the persistent high rate of unemployment, the most vociferous declaimers (politicians scrambling furiously for office) are completely silent about the thousands of foreign students illegally holding jobs.

Following are a few graphic instances of this evidence assembled by Scherle:

NEW YORK: The Immigration and Naturalization Service office here has records indicating that in the last five years around 14,000 foreign students came to the metropolis professing to go to school but never registered at any school or attended any classes.

Not only are hundreds of these aliens "gainfully employed," but a large number of others are on welfare and various other public benefit rolls. This Federal office admits to having received around 50,000 complaints about these illegal activities.

DETROIT: A number of students from India were taken into custody by Immigration officials for holding illegal jobs. Some of these violators have been deported and others ordered to leave. Around 500 Indian students are in the Detroit area and there are numerous complaints about their flouting of the law. Labor unions have been particularly irate about this.

How ever internationally-minded libertarians protested the crackdown on the Indian law violators, claiming it was due to the U. S. government's differences with Delhi over the war with Pakistan. To which Deputy Immigration Director A.G. Saltorelli retorted:

"These people violated the law, and they did so knowingly and flagrantly. They took jobs without getting permission and committed other offenses. There is a lot of local pressure on us from unions and community groups because of the unemployment situation. We are not only checking up on Indian students but on students from at least 26 other countries."

Real joy comes not from ease or riches, or from the praise of men, but from doing something worthwhile. —Wilfred T. Grenfell, English author.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's public television station, WTTW, has raised $541,000 in its annual on-air-auction.

Some 3,500 volunteers manned telephones until 3:50 a.m. Sunday taking bids on trips, for coats, apartments, paintings, and even management consultant services.

Station Manager William J. McCarter claimed the amount raised was a record for a local public television auction, topping the $510,000 raised last year by the educational TV station in Boston.

More than 7,500 items were donated by businesses and individuals. Proceeds of the sale help pay operational costs of the station.

1 Card of Thanks

HARVEY ALFRED CATES
 Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall. You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all. The voice is muted and stilled the heart, that loved as well and true, Ah, bitter was the trial to part from you a good as you are.

You are not forgotten loved one Nor will you ever be. As long as life and memory last We will remember thee. We miss you now, our hearts are sore. As time goes by we miss you more.

Your lovin' smile, your gentle face, No one can fill your vacant place. We would like to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends for the food, cards, floral offerings, memorials made to the High Plains Children's Home, the American Heart Association and other expressions of sympathy shown during our bereavement. May God bless all of us.

South Viets Proving Unable To Handle American-Style Warfare

Editor's Note: The writers covered the Vietnam war from 1962 to 1970. They returned three weeks ago to report on the current North Vietnamese offensive.

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — What we have seen the last three weeks looks like a film strip of the preceding 10 years reversed and rerun. The years peeled back as images of Vietnam at war flashed before our eyes.

One morning last week an American adviser for rural development held up a six-foot-long computer readout of his province's security rating that he had just received from Saigon.

"Look at this," he said, pointing to a bank of numbers. "That is supposed to give the current status of our Popular Force units. We cannot reach any of those units by radio; they have just gone. This paper is worthless."

He walked over to a chart detailing development plans for a score of hamlets in his northern districts. "We've lost them, too," he said, turning the chart to the wall.

Elsewhere in the three major fighting areas we visited—the central highlands, the central coast, and Quang Tri Province—the sense of swift, unexpected reversal was strong.

We arrived 10 days after the North Vietnamese offensive began. Thrusts had been made deep into Quang Tri Province. An Loc was under siege. The Kontum offensive was beginning.

Yet as we traveled we did not find what we expected. There was no real sense of emergency except in the town or unit under direct enemy pressure. Neither was there any sense of political unity in the cities against the threat.

Despite official claims that the Dong Ha line would hold south of the demilitarized zone, and that An Loc would not fall, we found among the Vietnamese military units we encountered a feeling of weakness.

There have been some dramatic acts of Vietnamese bravery. Reports abound of regional force soldiers defending their outposts to the last man, of district chiefs dying bravely at their posts. But after three weeks we find few positive developments of any significance.

Our first main impression was that the South Vietnamese have not stepped into the shoes of the departing Americans despite Vietnamization.

"No one is patrolling. All that jungle is the enemy's. He will come right through it and cream us," one U.S. advisor said.

The North Vietnamese so far appear to be doing just that, not only in Kontum but in War Zone C northwest of Saigon, in War Zone D to Saigon's northeast, and in dozens of other areas.

The Saigon government is now paying the price of political military appointments," a senior American said.

The Vietnamese also are proving unable to handle the tools of American-style warfare. The communications system in Vietnam was never much good. Now it is beginning to crack.

Radar guidance systems at the nation's airports are beginning to malfunction, according to American technicians.

The helicopter was the backbone of the American effort. But the Vietnamese are wary of using the hundreds given them by Americans.

The elaborate American bases are rotting because they are far too big for the smaller Vietnamese units. Even multi-million-dollar Cam Ranh Bay is falling into disrepair. It was turned over to the Vietnamese officially Monday but they have not found a use for it.

The traveler gets a strong impression that Vietnamization not only never worked but never happened despite the American pullout.

Americans who remain fall roughly into three categories.

There are those who are waiting out their time, like the infantrymen with the 196th Brigade at Phu Bai who don't relish being here but continue to do their duty. These include helicopter pilots, who are bearing a heavy load in the current fighting.

Then there are the civilian Americans who have put much of their lives into Vietnam, men like the senior American adviser to the 2nd Military Region, John Paul Vann. A 10-year Vietnam veteran, he is still trying to hold the situation together in the central highlands.

Finally, there are still a few military people who think they can win the war militarily. They range from desk-bound colonels in the Saigon headquarters, who brush off the Vietnamese reverses with an impatient shrug of their shoulders and an optimistic prediction, to some of the advisers in the field who look beyond the inefficiency and incompetence they see before their eyes.

But even the most enthusiastic Americans we met shied away from the suggestion of bringing U.S. troops back into the war.

Much of that American blood was lost in rolling back the 1968 Tet offensive. The differences between that offensive and the current one are obvious.

The Tet attacks on all Vietnam's major cities and towns came from within, the road paved by Viet Cong agents and cadres who led troops into the hearts of the population centers.

Many enemy forces were so slender in the Tet actions that they quickly lost communications and were eventually annihilated.

This time it is exclusively an attack from without, a conventional push with massive firepower, overrunning everything in the way.

As far back as the early 1960s, there were never so few allied counter-offensives as now. Even in the grim days of 1965, when the Viet Cong army was knocking at the doors of Saigon, the government forces would organize a counterattack to retake lost towns and villages. The same was true of the first few hours of the Tet offensive.

One of the lessons of the Vietnam war is that if the enemy is given just a day to dig in, he is very difficult to dig out.

Another danger of leaving territory too long in the hands of the North Vietnamese is that it gives them an opportunity to organize the population.

Americans who have watched the scene closely fear that a minimum gain by the North Vietnamese will be control of large population centers along the coast and in the Mekong Delta. This would give them a base to launch operations against government centers with locally recruited forces.

This was how the American phase of the Vietnam war began in 1962. The difference now is that the North Vietnamese have the lines of communications and the sophisticated supplies to compress into a few months what it took years to achieve in the 1960s.

SPRING SALVAGE DRIVE

NEW YORK (AP) — The 76th annual spring salvage drive of the Volunteers of America is under way across the nation.

The national social welfare organization collects discarded clothing, shoes, appliances, furniture, housewares and other articles which are cleaned and repaired for further use by needy families.

The drive has a two-fold purpose, says Gen. John F. McMahon, VOA commander in chief. "It provides the less fortunate with material comforts they could not ordinarily afford and employment for handicapped workers who restore the items."
