State Welfare Programs Forced To Cut Spending

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The legislature failed to provide enough funds for Texas welfare programs and neglected children, older citizens, and the needy will suffer as a result, according to Welfare Commissioner Raymond W. Vowell.

Vowell told the three-man Public Welfare Board Thursday the legislature did not provide enough funds to continue some operations even at present levels.

"I wish to advise you that human services in Texas are going to suffer," said Vowell.

He also complained legislators imposed bureaucratic constraints that will deny administrators flexibility to use what money they have most effectively.

"I think we're going to be in some real trouble on some of these programs," board member Garrett Morris of Fort Worth said. "We're not going to be able to carry out our nursing home program the way the legislature wanted us to because the legislature didn't give us enough money."

Morris and Vowell said there will be fewer welfare workers available to handle an increasing number of reports of child abuse and neglect, to process a growing volume of food stamp applications or to investigate and prevent welfare fraud.

Although the welfare department's total budget will increase from $946 million this year to $1.198 billion for the 1975-76 fiscal year, Vowell said legislators reduced funds for staff for certain programs and failed to increase others enough to maintain present staff levels and cover soaring increases in costs of services such as medical care.

He said the problems will be intensified because legislators took away the welfare department's authority to transfer money from one program to another.

Produce Haulers Urged To 'Keep On Truckin'

MALLEN, Tex. (UPI) — Satisfied truckers' complaints are being heard, the president of the Independent Produce Haulers of America has urged his backers to "keep on trucking" instead of going through with a planned strike.

Millard Holden Thursday said he issued the "keep on trucking" plea after meeting in Washington with W.J. Usery, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and Secretary of Transportation William Coleman.

Holden said Coleman promised he would contact governors of the various states and inform them of the cost of complying with state requirements which Coleman termed "a major cause of unrest in the trucking industry."

Holden said the Administration also promised to introduce a Motor Truck Act in Congress to allow small independents and owner-operators to haul "regulated freight" on backhauls without President is taking a stand on it."

Holden also said consumers should write their governors demanding an end to what he called expensive and bothersome regulations that add to the cost of food and fiber.

"The consumer can do a lot of popping letters into the governor," he said.

Vowell said only a few hundred present workers will have to be let go. Other positions will be eliminated by attrition of the present staff members.

Vowell said because of the fund shortages — efforts in most of the department's 30 programs will have to stay at present levels or below. —1,680 staff positions will be eliminated.

—families with needy children will have to wait longer to have applications processed for public assistance.

Astronauts Observed For Delayed Damage

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Doctors kept close watch over the last Apollo astronauts today for possible delayed lung damage from yellow fumes that briefly knocked out at least one spaceman after their spacecraft splashed down in the Pacific Ocean.

Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton appeared all right after an initial examination aboard this recovery ship although they complained that the fumes irritated and burned their eyes. They slept in the ship's sick bay during the night.

"I think we passed out for about a minute there," Stafford said in scratchy radio communications to recovery forces after the splashdown Thursday from the historic Soviet-American spaceflight.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, deputy director of medical operations at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, first said Brand apparently passed out during descent. But he said later that a review of information from the ship showed Brand became unconscious after the landing.

Space agency officials said careful replay of the tape of the post-landing communications indicated two or possibly three of the pilots passed out briefly.

Hawkins expected to learn more details after an afternoon call to doctors aboard the recovery carrier.

Dr. Charles La Pinta aboard the New Orleans said physicians had mounted an all-night bedside vigil for signs of pulmonary edema — water in the lungs — that might develop within 12 to 24 hours because of the astronauts' exposure to the toxic vapors.

The astronauts also apparently briefly passed out after splashing down in the Pacific. There was no indication, however, the fumes were at fault for that.

Apollo's fiery, arcing plunge down through earth's atmosphere and dramatic televised splashdown in calm waters ended the world's first international spaceflight — a nine-day mission that saw Russians and Americans link up in orbit to fly as a single crew.

The New Orleans steamed toward Hawaii, scheduled to arrive in Pearl Harbor at 3:15 p.m. EDT.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton belatedly reported the fumes to doctors during an examination after taking part in welcoming ceremonies aboard the New Orleans that included a call from the President Ford.

The planned medical examination was halted immediately and the crew was put to bed.

Space agency officials in Houston and aboard the carrier tentatively identified the fumes as vaporized steering rocket propellant called nitrogen tetroxide, an oxidizer which mixes with a separate fuel to power the Apollo guidance rockets.

In Houston, Dr. Jerry Hordinsky, a flight surgeon, told UPI the nitrogen tetroxide gas turns to nitric acid when it contacts the moisture in the eyes and lungs. He said it produces burns which may not show up for a day or so after exposure.

"Even though the crew didn't have any (bad effects) that could be picked up by an examination of their lungs at first," he said, "because of the potential for delayed changes they were put under observation. You can't tell what they're going to look like 24 hours later."

Hordinsky said "the exposure was not overwhelming" for the Apollo pilots and attributed their delay in informing doctors to "that whole crew being as tough as they are."

It was late evening in Houston when space agency officials — who had thought the splashdown was flawless — learned of the medical difficulties.

Doctors aboard the New Orleans "washed those guys thoroughly (in) showers to get off as much as possible from their skin and eyes," Hordinsky said. He said oxygen would be given to the crew if problems developed. Any lung damage, he said, probably would be self-healing.

As soon as the Apollo splashed down, the pilots put on oxygen masks and cracked open the ship's square hatch to clear the fumes and cool the cabin.

Washington (UPI) — President Ford today proposed a new oil decontrol plan which would phase out price ceilings over a 36-month period and place a limit of $11.50 a barrel on all domestically produced oil.

Appearing personally in the White House press room, Ford said "although this represents a rollback on all current uncontrolled oil prices, the $11.50 ceiling will gradually increase by five cents per month over the length of the program."

However, this ceiling will ensure that future increases in the price of imported oil will not affect our domestic prices."

Ford made the proposal after meeting first with Republican congressional leaders, followed by an Oval Office session with leaders of both parties.

The White House estimated that the price of gasoline would rise 6 cents a gallon by the end of 1978 under the plan.

The new plan is a compromise which Ford decided to submit to Congress after his proposal for a 30-month phase-out of old oil controls was rejected by Congress Tuesday.

"I strongly urge the Congress to accept this program and simultaneously enact a simple three-month extension of the law," Ford said.

"To achieve energy independence, the Congress and the President must work together on this and other parts of my comprehensive energy program. I strongly urge the Congress to accept this compromise so that we can get on with the solution of this most pressing problem."

Ford urged a three-month extension of the current law to permit the lawmakers to institute a windfall profits tax on oil companies, and a provision that the firms slow back a portion of their added revenue to increase productivity.

Congress has five days in which to disapprove the plan, otherwise it would become effective.

The present price ceiling of $5.25 per barrel on old oil expires Aug. 31. Ford said he was submitting the legislation to break the deadline on energy recommendations before the August congressional recess scheduled to start in one week.

A fact sheet distributed by the White House said that the new plan would generate an increase of 6 cents per gallon to motorists by the end of 1978. Under the plan gas would rise by one cent a gallon by the end of 1975, another cent by the end of 1977 and 4 more cents by the end of 1978.

Refugees Claim Foul, Want Their Gold Back

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI) — A group of Vietnamese refugees, who think they were cheated by a gold buying firm, have asked the company to give them more money or return their gold.

Bui Ngoc Lam, a former Vietnam army major, Thursday gave a copy of the refugees' request to a representative of Deak & Perera Co.

Lam, who said he represents 38 other refugees at Ft. Chaffee and more than 200 refugees who have sold gold to Deak, also mailed a copy of the letter to Nicholas Deak, president of the firm. Deak has said the complaints were all a misunderstanding.

Lam contends Deak bought refugee gold at prices considerably below the fair market value during May and June when Deak was the only gold firm operating in refugee camps in the United States and at Guam. Lam says Deak underpaid them $20 and $36 per tael, a thin wafer form of gold used in the Orient.

Deak has said there were "no grounds whatever" to think his firm underpaid the refugees for their gold. Deak said his company was able to pay about 5 per cent more now for the gold because it had perfected the procedure for buying the gold, transporting it to mints and melting it down.

The Deak representative Thursday refused to comment on the letter or Lam's charges, but promised Lam he would receive a reply from Deak early next week. Lam declined to disclose specific charges in the letter, saying he would wait to give Deak a chance to reply.

Other refugees also have complained about being underpaid for their gold. Nguyen Van Nhan had a receipt showing he sold $143,000 worth of gold to Deak May 12 at $170 a tael. This was about $30 less than he would have received for the gold on the London market.

On June 13, officials at Ft. Chaffee suspended the gold operation. Major R.F. Beall, the comptroller, said the gold operation was suspended because Deak was not operating under a contract. The contract was drafted and Deak and two other firms — U.S. Silver Co. and Manfra, Tordella, Brookes Inc. — signed it July 2.

benefits of these young people, severely handicapped by physical or mental disabilities, will continue indefinitely. Benefits are also payable to the mother if the disabled son or daughter is in the mother's care.

Weatherly said that another relatively small but significant group of youthful social security beneficiaries are those who are receiving benefits as disabled workers.

Beginning with the checks beneficiaries received in July 1975, Weatherly said, social security benefits have increased 8 percent.

County SS Payments $780,000 Each Month

Social security benefits were being paid to residents of Gray county at a rate of $780,000 a month at the close of 1974, social security manager in Pampa, said today.

Of the Social Security beneficiaries living in Gray county, 3,090 are retired workers and their dependents. Another 1,060 are receiving benefits as the survivors of workers who have died, and 455 are getting benefits as disabled workers or their dependents.

Weatherly pointed out that although most social security beneficiaries are older people, about one out of every four is under age 60. In Gray county, 780 people under age 60 are collecting social security payments each month. Nearly 385 are under age 18, receiving payments because a working father or mother has died or is getting social security disability or retirement benefits. Most of the 75 beneficiaries in Gray county between 18 and 22 years of age, are getting student's benefits under a provision in the social security law permitting the continuation of a child's benefits beyond his 18th birthday, and up to age 22, if the child is attending school full time.

Also in this 18-22 age group, Weatherly said, are some other types of beneficiaries, illustrating the broad family protection that the social security program provides workers of all ages. Some are children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers who became disabled before they reached 22 and who will probably never be able to work and become self-supporting. The monthly benefits of these young people, severely handicapped by physical or mental disabilities, will continue indefinitely. Benefits are also payable to the mother if the disabled son or daughter is in the mother's care.

Chief Says City Crime Worse Than He Thought

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A more accurate, in-depth accounting of crime activity in Pampa will be released during the first week in August.

"And from the looks of things, the crime rate will be much higher than I had originally anticipated," Police Chief Richard Mills said today.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation report released Monday showed that cities of comparable size to Pampa were up 18 per cent, he said.

"I had thought we were up about 12 per cent," the chief added. "And I've already been proven wrong."

Pampa has a population of 22,000 to 24,000, and is the second largest city in the Panhandle.

"Naturally, we get some crime feedback from the largest city — Amarillo — which is little more than 50 miles away," Mills said.

Crime activity in that city jumped over 30 per cent during the first few months of 1975.

Hereford is the third largest city in this area with 18 commissioned police officers. Pampa has 22 officers.

The chief explained that the forthcoming report will show some increases due to the intensified efforts of the department in many areas, including narcotics.

Chief Mills said the department must correlate records "to tell us what is going on and in what areas in order to intensify efforts in needed categories."

The August report will deal with the crime activity during the first seven months of 1975. The Police Department will then release a monthly accounting of its activity.

Recent weeks have indicated that narcotics, vandalism, theft and burglary may show a rampant increase.

Senior Golfers Pick Pampa Again Next Year

Pampa Country Club will host the 42nd Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament for the sixth time in a row next year, it was decided Thursday night at Coronado Inn in the Tri-State Senior Golf Association's annual meeting.

"We get good treatment here, and we have good facilities here," said J.R. Brown, secretary of the association, citing reasons the Pampa club had been given the 1975 tourney.

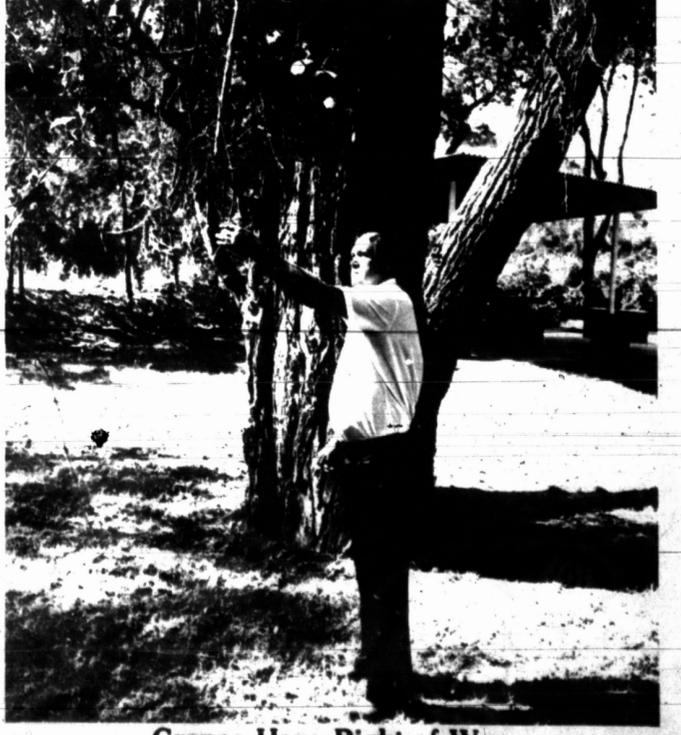

Also at the meeting, it was voted that the championship flight will play stroke play next year. Whether that means golfers will play 54 holes of stroke play besides a qualifying round or 54 holes on a no qualifying round, Brown said. "Details haven't been decided yet."

"That's a lot of golf for players."

Officers for the upcoming year were also chosen at the meeting.

Dr. L.F. Rowe of Oklahoma was elected association president, Wiley Reynolds of Pampa first vice-president and Tom Morris of Amarillo second vice-president.

Grapes Have Right of Way

Travelers who stop at a safety rest area beside U.S. 60 northeast of Miami find clusters of grapes ripe for picking. Maintained by George Perrin, the grapes are either attached by vines to cottonwood trees or entwined in various shrubs and bushes that border the highway right-of-way rest area.

Perrin, maintenance construction supervisor at Canadian, is the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation nominee for the Sixth Lady Bird Johnson Highway Beautification Award. The award salutes the supervisor or foreman who has done the most outstanding work in highway beautification. Perrin is shown as he examines one of the many grape vines. ## Food Stamp Program

Just how well is the food stamp program going? Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. ought to know. In his newsletter, he talks about the program. His comments on that subject follow:

"The food stamp program, as I mentioned in this report a few weeks ago, is absolutely out of control. Yet, the 'liberal' majority in the Congress refuses to do anything about it.

"I have engaged in at least a dozen efforts, including many battles on the Senate floor, to restore some sanity to this program. Each time, they have rejected my efforts, and the efforts of others who share my concern.

"In a telephone conversation with Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz the other day, he informed me that 71 per cent of the people of Puerto Rico are now drawing food stamps. Food stamps are changing hands like money with no possible means of control, he said. One out of every 13 Americans is drawing food stamps — and one out of every four is eligible for food stamps! Within the next two years, this one welfare program will cost the American taxpayer more than eight billion dollars a year!

"Senator Herman Talmadge handed me a newspaper advertisement last week urging more Americans to apply for food stamps. The advertisement declared that taxpayers making up to $16,000 a year are now eligible for food stamps.

"Senator Talmadge and I agree that this is an outrageous situation. Yet, when he and I, and a few other senators, try to tighten up the program, the answer is always the same from the 'liberal' majority in the Senate: No!

"Instead of cutting back on this enormously expensive and wasteful program, the 'liberal' majority in the Senate insist on going the other way. They want to add more recipients. A couple of weeks ago, the Senate overwhelmingly voted to certify applicants without even bothering to check whether they're eligible for food stamps.

"With a Congress such as we have now, is it any wonder that the United States is headed towards bankruptcy?"

FHC's Snooping

The Central Intelligence Agency, as everybody knows, has been severely reprimanded by the nation's politicians and press for its domestic snooping, its invasion of privacies such as opening mail and the like.

Out in California the Orange County Fair Housing Council (FHC) announced it was spending volunteer blacks and Caucasians to pose as couples looking for apartments. If a landlord turned the prospective tenants down, the FHC in its wisdom would conclude, a case of discrimination occurred. Which is not technically entrapment, but comes awfully close.

The practice is certainly a case of snooping into what should be the private affair of a landlord and his customers. But, of course, those who scolded the CIA will not rebuke the FHC, whose busy-bodiness is complete. The reason is that they regard any harassment of landlords, especially in the name of Affirmative Action, as A Good Thing.

Had the CIA discharged those volunteers to go snooping on apartment owners, and not the FHC, the liberal establishment would have come unglued.

What's That Spell?

You may or may not have heard of Country Joe McDonald, the rock singer who rose to prominence during the 1960s by popularizing the "Fish Cheer" and the "Feel Like I'm Fixin' to Die Blues."

If you haven't — more's the pity. But at least you should be apprised of Country Joe's mother, Florence, in Berkeley, Calif., city of theorizing. Florence McDonald was sworn in as city auditor. Her first action: she slashed her tax-paid salary by $7,000. Her reason: She wanted to be paid on par with her highest paid staff employee, who gets $16,000.

Our impulse is to applaud, even if her motive derives from sentimental egalitarianism. It is, after all, good — wonderful — to see elected officials forego some of the money extracted from taxpayers. We sometimes entertain the dream that "public servants" should pay to serve us: surely things would be less corrupt.

Would that all the nation's politicians follow Florence McDonald's example. That's something you'll never hear of.

The people have a right to petition, but not to use that right to cover calumniating insinuations.

NEEDED: Some Rational Talk About Crime

By PETER GRUENSTEIN
Pampa News

WASHINGTON — There is no doubt there has been less rational discussion and debate on the issue of crime than on any other topic of national significance.

For the past decade, as the crime rate has soared, the American public has been buffeted by arguments between knee-jerk liberals, who have claimed that nothing can be done to reduce crime without attacking its root causes, and hard-line conservatives, who have simplistically maintained that the way to deal with the criminal is to lock him up and throw away the key.

While politicians such as Nixon and Agnew have tried to exploit the emotional crime issue for their own partisan purposes, few politicians have been willing to publicly recognize either the seriousness or the complexity of the problem. In fact, considering that the public still rates crime as one of America's most serious problems, it is only slightly less than astonishing that there has been so little public discussion about it of any kind over the last several years.

If anyone doubts that crime still is a serious problem, consider this statistic: a typical baby born today in a large American city who lives his entire life in that city, at the current crime rate, more likely to die of murder than an American soldier in World War II was to die in combat.

Hopefully, a new book by James Q. Wilson, called Thinking About Crime, may help rejuvenate the beginning of a rational dialogue on the crime problem. Wilson, a Harvard professor and noted criminologist, rejects the simple-minded notions of both the right and left in proposing an empirical approach to reducing the incidence of crime without brutalizing offenders or violating the due process rights of suspects.

One of the many myths about crime Wilson explodes is that there is a complete correlation between poverty and the crime rate. If this were so, notes Wilson, then the crime rate during the 1960's, a period of almost unparalleled prosperity, would not have soared after having held surprisingly constant since the end of World War II.

Another is that nothing can be done in the short run to curb crime. But one experiment in

New York City, which substantially increased the number of patrolmen walking beats in one precinct, dramatically reduced the number of street crimes. While the results of experiments in other cities have been less spectacular, the evidence is fairly convincing that by effectively allocating more police manpower to high crime areas, the number of crimes committed can be reduced quickly, and the gains will be lasting.

Another, almost paradoxical myth about crime which Wilson pierces is that criminals rarely get caught. It is true that the risk of getting caught committing any single crime is very small, but because most criminals commit so many crimes (the average take is pretty small), eventually getting caught is a near certainty. Of those who get arrested once, in fact, 87 per cent get arrested at least once more and many are apprehended a number of other times.

Yet, while a criminal is almost sure to eventually get caught, and while the number of crimes has skyrocketed, the prison population — both state and federal — actually declined from 213,000 in 1960 to 196,000 in 1970. In New York State, Wilson notes, the chance of a convicted perpetrator of a given crime going to prison plummeted during this period by a factor of six.

This decline in imprisonment is not the result of our having found a more humane and rehabilitative alternative to prisons. (In fact, intensive counselling of the criminal has been found to be about as ineffective in reducing the recidivism rate as imprisonment.) Rather, it is due largely to a sheer lack of even minimal resources. For example, in Manhattan in 1973, there were only 59 criminal court judges to handle 31,088 felony cases. The result: only 4,130 felony convictions.

President Ford was wrong when he said, in making his recent anticrime proposals, that money won't significantly help solve the problem. If there is one national issue where money — lots of it — can make a difference it's the overwhelming failure of our criminal justice system. More on how that money should be spent — and how it's been wasted in the past — in next week's column.

Longshoreman is a contraction of along-shore-man.

Nation's Press Back Down To Earth

(Wall Street Journal)

Reports that the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions is broke and beset by internal squabbling strikes us as almost unreal. Throughout the 1960s answers to complex social, political, economic and religious problems rolled off center printing presses, were recorded on center tapes, and were formulated at center conferences and seminars. No expense was spared to bring resident fellows to the 45-acre California estate. And why should it have been? The center was virtually rolling in money, thanks to its initial $4 million funding from the Ford Foundation (from money originally granted to the Fund for the Republic) and subsequent bequests that Time magazine says amounted to around $26 million.

The idea behind the combination monastery-think-tank was that important minds would engage in quiet dialogue and about vital issues. What came across, though, was largely a monologue. Despite the undisputed reputation of many resident fellows, the sum total of center preachment amounted to little more than demands for greater government regulation of human activity. Too many disaffected intellectuals used the center's reputation and resources to wage guerrilla warfare against Western tradition and values. Looking back, it is hard to justify having spent so much money on what is, given the prevailing intellectual climate, largely a repetitive undertaking.

But now the center is floundering, preparing to move to Chicago and reduce its staff to a size that would have evoked disdain from center officials in the plush old days. If it is a victim of inflation and general economic malaise, it is also a victim of its own ambitions. Whatever the center's intentions, there was always a large element of hubris in its proclamations and an overlay of certitude that its prescriptions were unassailable.

That attitude has diminished in the past several years, as the center has wrestled with such mundane problems as budgets and deficits. And perhaps it's just as well. For there is something presumptuous about a richly-endowed organization lecturing others on cosmic solutions when it is unable to keep its own financial house in order.

COMPARISON: Today's Realism With Those 'Good Old Days'

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "I will not question the sagacity of the 'returning to the old days' concept. It would mean also giving up electrical items, automobiles, modern devices, as well as modern mores — one cannot have his cake and eat it, too, or, put another way, take only the good things and leave the bad.

"Doesn't the realism of today seem to argue against your basic philosophy?" — J.H.M.H., Tuskegee, Ala.

A — Oh, I don't know that today is any more "realistic" than any other period in history. In fact, with the drug scene and the whole "let-us-fly-from-this-nasty-world-we-never-made" freakout, it can be argued persuasively that today is markedly less "realistic" than were other days gone by.

What intrigues me in your letter, however, is the puzzling assumption that I want to go back to the "good old days." To the best of my knowledge, I've never said or written such a thing in my life.

Q — "Your column about heredity and environment was most interesting. I agree that we are born stupid, smart or inbetween. Using myself as an example, I have never been able to figure out math. I can subtract, multiply and divide, but addition is something else. I have never been able to add, and to this day I have to add on my fingers. At the age of 49, this is very embarrassing.

"Think maybe I was born minus a few 'math genes'?" — M.H. Syracuse, N.Y.

A — More likely you were taught to add by a teacher who didn't know how to teach it. As a fellow "math cripple" of a lot more years than 49, I sympathize.

Q — "I used to think you were a conservative but lately you seem to be a radical of the first degree. You say we had a good case for a declaration of war against the Arab states?"

"I suppose you are assuming such a war would be a pushover. Remember Russia would like to get control of the Middle East and this would be a good excuse.

"From a moral point of view, the oil belongs to the Arabs. And look, too, at the blood and anguish a war would cost. How much oil is your life worth? Your son's? Your daughter's?" — F.S. Concord, Ind.

A — Whoa! Slow down! I didn't say I wanted a war with the Arabs. I said in 1974 we had a good case for a declaration of war, and so we did have. When nations conspire with each other to harm a United States which has never committed an unfriendly act against them: when they deliberately cut off a product vital to our very survival as a nation and which we ourselves enabled them to develop; when they blackmail us and threaten us for purely political reasons, well, all I can say, F.S., is that wars have been declared for a lot less. This doesn't mean I'm advocating one, however.

Q — "Last night I witnessed a sickening act of cruelty on educational TV: 'The Thin Edge,' about human aggression. They actually showed a boy slowly and meanly beating to death a pitiful seagull caught in a snare.

"The weirdo who put together this obnoxious film is obviously a sadist. But what of our station director? Isn't he supposed to preview programs for acceptable social contact?" — G.W., Owings Mills, Md.

A — He is. Why don't you and others who feel as you do write your station manager and the FCC urging that he be replaced by someone a little less friendly to sadism?" (c) 1975

Flat 14 Year Old Needs Development Plan — And Padding

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old girl. My problem is that I am flat, and most boys go for built-up chicks. I know you are going to say, "Wear padded bras," but where will that get me?

I eat everything that is good for me. Fresh fruit, and vegetables, and milk, but it all goes to my stomach, thighs and butt.

I am always cut down because I'm flat. I have to wear children's clothes because I have a 30 AA bust and my hips are 31½. I am 5' 1" and weigh 95 pounds.

I see stuff advertised in magazines, but I haven't sent for any because, in the first place, I don't see how creams can put inches on your bust, and, in the second, my Mom opens all the mail. She would kill me if she knew I was even thinking about anything like that.

Please be a friend and put your answer in the paper. There must be at least a million girls with my problem.

FLAT

DEAR FLAT: You are a very wise girl to wonder how creams could put inches on you. They can't. Be patient. And I AM going to tell you to wear a padded bra. At least you will look better in clothes.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law runs her house without any schedule or system. She is 31 and so is her husband. Their children are 2 and 4.

They eat when they're hungry and go to sleep when they're tired.

I told them nicely that they should get on some kind of schedule, but they paid no attention to me. I also sent them a book on basic child care and nutrition, but I haven't seen any signs of their having read it.

She puts off the housekeeping chores that almost every homemaker does routinely. She just plays with the children and dresses them like dolls, forgetting that balanced meals and a set routine are important to good health.

Please tell me what to do. My nerves get shot every time I go over there and see what is going on.

MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR MOTHER-IN-LAW: Be kind to yourself, and don't go over there so often if it upsets you. If your son isn't aware that his wife needs straightening out, let it go. You've done all you can.

DEAR ABBY: About the woman who was "fuming" because her teenage daughter had her ears pierced while she was away for the weekend, knowing that she wouldn't have approved:

I am the proud father of two clean-cut-looking BOYS, ages 17 and 18. Each one wears a round gold ring through his left pierced ear.

This doesn't bother me. I view it as a sign of the times, and the possible revival of the days when it was customary for males to wear earrings.

Locals Blame Houselessness on Rates

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
The housing shortage in Pampa has been called critical and Pampans contacted in an opinion survey by The News blame inflationary costs and high interest rates.

"You can say we have a housing shortage!" W.F. Mulanax, 1036 S. Nelson, said Thursday. "People do want a place to live...I've been working on houses and people stop by and want to rent them before you can get them repaired."

He and another resident, who declined to be named, blamed the shortage on lack of small loans here and high interest rates. "If loan companies would break loose and make small loans it would help," said one.

"Working people can't afford to make those high payments on $30,000 to $40,000 homes." Still another contends that loans on older houses are almost non-existent in Pampa. Larry Jones, 2137 N. Faulkner, owns his home but said, "But I work for Texaco. I know men who transfer here and have had problems finding a place to live." As for a solution, he said one could spend a lot of money building rental complexes. "But often people don't take care of them," he added.

Terrie Thomas of 1048 Neel Road said her family has three rentals and a lot of people call looking for a place to live. "They seem to want to rent $75 to $85 houses and that seems to be hard to find," she said.

Evelyn Fuller, 522 Crawford, said she has observed that newcomers want to rent - not buy - when they first move here. "They want something clean and decent at a reasonable price," she said.

Earl Snyder, 405 Tignor, believes lower interest rates would help. One man said, who has been here 12 years, believes additional houses should be built, but building costs pose a problem.

Miss Top O' Texas Entrants

Among the 34 young area women and their sponsors entered in the annual beauty pageant here are Mindy Park, Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, left; Cindy Young, Field's Men's and Boy's Wear; and Pam Brogdon, Miami Chamber of Commerce. One may be crowned Miss Top O' Texas Aug. 8, in M.K. Brown auditorium. Women will be judged in three categories: interview, swim suit and formal wear. A Miss Congeniality award also will be presented. (Pampa News photo)

A landlord, Jewett Scarbrough of 1916 Evergreen, said all of his property is rented. "If I had more I could rent it," he said, adding that current demand for rentals is probably the biggest since 1957.

The more popular demand today is a three bedroom with 1 1/2 baths for $150 monthly, he said. "And they are difficult to find." He thinks real estate is a good investment, but adds: "I wouldn't want to build now because don't know from one day to the next what the price of materials will be."

He explained that a $30,000 estimate today might be a $40,000 investment by the time it is completed. Scarbrough said high interest rates are a factor in the shortage, but he believes that building materials are a bigger problem. Robert Ray just moved to Pampa and had no problem himself. But his son-in-law and son have encountered problems in finding a home, he said.

Mellvinia Tucker of 1041 S. Christie, who works in a public office, says people often call to inquire if she has anything posted on the company bulletin board about rentals. They seldom ask about cost. "I think they just want a place to live. They seem to be taking anything," she said.

One lady said she moved into a house that had "a bad case of roaches." "They were so bad I had to sun and air before I could move from that place into another - and I still worry about importing those things into new quarters," she added.

Bob Echols said he is fully aware of the housing needs here. "I just sold a house and had so many rental calls! There are absolutely no houses to rent," he said. He said high interest rates had a lot to do with the sale of his house.

The purchase required a new loan and many walked away because they didn't want to pay current interest rates, he said. "Paying 9 per cent is high on a long term loan," he emphasized. He attributed the shortage, in part, to the Lefors tornado. "And materials are so high. One can get a house built if he wants to wait and pay the price. I don't understand why the shortage is worse here than elsewhere," he commented.

Another resident said several of her husband's friends have come to Pampa for employment since they were married two years ago. "Rentals are so hard to find, they ended up living with us for three or four weeks before they located something," she said.

Still another said inability to obtain a loan on an older home prompted her husband to find employment in another city.

Ag Department Requests Consulting Before Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With prospective Soviet grain import needs mounting because of drought, the Agriculture Department has told American grain firms it wants them to consult the government first before entering any new negotiations for big export sales.

An official denied the request amounted to a revival of export controls. But he said that while further American grain sales to Russia are possible, the United States wants them "spaced out."

The "request" to the exporters was made in private telephone calls Wednesday and early Thursday, and Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell said the traders agreed to comply. Formal announcement of the new government move came late Thursday as the Agriculture Department issued a report trimming 10 million tons off its previous forecast of Soviet grain production and raising its estimate of Soviet grain import needs by five million tons to a new total of 20 million tons.

Against that prospective need, the Soviets since July 16 have placed orders totaling 13.6 million tons - including 9.8 million tons of wheat, corn and barley from American traders; nearly 900,000 tons from Australia; and 3 million tons from Canada including a 1 million ton sale announced Thursday. Bell, in an interview, denied that the request for consultation by exporters amounted to a revival of a grain export system which angered farmers in late 1974 and early 1975. He said the move was made "as a safety net ... because we feel we're at the stage where we don't want any surprises." Bell said Soviet purchases of American grain so far are "reasonable for a first phase." If an Aug. 11 U.S. crop report is good, he said, "we feel it is within our capacity to supply the Soviets with more, and it could be considerably more."

Major bakers said Thursday the Russians have not bought enough grain to create an American shortage, but they said holding the price would depend on limiting future grain sales. Kenneth Anderson, vice president of Campbell Taggart, a Dallas bakery, said "if the Russians plan to buy no more than their purchases to date, it shouldn't have too much impact on our prices."

He said if wheat prices continue to climb "our costs will be affected and we will be forced to make price adjustments." Albert Rees, director of the Council on Wages and Prices, told Congress the Soviet grain purchases "could limit further declines in grain prices here or even lead to some new price increases, depending both on the size of the Soviet purchases and the size of our crop."

But, said a spokesman for the National Association of Wheat Growers, "we can see no justification for bread to go up." He said the sales to the Soviet Union now constitute only about 35 per cent of the amount sold to the Russians in 1972, when a domestic shortage developed and prices soared.

The Soviets have purchased almost 14 million tons of foreign grain - 10.7 million tons from the United States and 2 million tons from Canada.

Following reports of the latest Canadian deal and rumors of more U.S. sales, the Agriculture Department revised its estimate of Soviet grain import needs upward to 20 million tons, from 15 million tons.

Bakers Threaten Price Increases

Additional purchases of U.S. grain by the Soviet Union could boost bread prices on American grocery shelves. But no immediate price hike was expected.

They Keep Workers Happy At Crump Business Forms

DALLAS (UPI) - Edith Crump almost stepped on the ragged tennis ball as it rolled past, wet with the slobber of Duchess, a brown mutt that has the run of the place. She stooped, picked up the gooney ball and gave it a two-fingered toss across the plush office. It bounced twice and rolled under the feet of an employe hunkered over his desk. He picked it up and rolled it across the carpet. "We have a close, warm relationship with our employes," said Mrs. Crump, who, with her husband, Ed, owns Crump Business Forms, which from the outside resembles scores of other industrial area enterprises, except for the "no hiring" sign posted at the gate. The relationship with employes is the reason the firm isn't hiring - no one wants to quit so there's no turnover. The firm, which employs 70 persons, manufactures business forms used by department stores and banks to keep records of inventories, sales and billings. Mrs. Crump said sales were up 40 per cent last year and business so far this year looks good. But the main feature of the enterprise is the casual atmosphere and homey fringe benefits that go with it. "We all have a lot of fun together," Mrs. Crump said, seating herself at an employe dinner table covered with fresh catfish, shrimp, hushpuppies, salad, corn, baked potatoes and strawberry shortcake. Earlier in the lunch break - typical of the firm, she served Polish sausage to the warehouse workers who couldn't attend the main meal. Employees who weren't eating were outside the plant, tossing frisbees and horseshoes, playing croquet on riding company bicycles.

"To me, it's fun," Mrs. Crump said excitedly between mouthfuls of fish. "Everyone has fun together." The employes don't always have fun together, so she provides boxing gloves and a punching bag to work out their frustrations. "I think a warm relationship with the employes is beneficial to everyone," Mrs. Crump said. "It's a pleasure for them to go to work and I feel like I'm part of the plant and the people in it." The couple also carries the feeling outside the office, providing company picnics, fishing and boating outings on the Crump's yacht and trips to Acapulco and Hot Springs, Ark. A barber cuts the male employes' hair once a week and a beautician twice a week styles the women's hair. If an employe needs to freshen up, there's a shower, complete with electric razors.

The Crumps bought three sewing machines and material and taught some of the employes to sew. One of them Teresa Murillo, 40, has been working for the couple for 12 years. "They are down to earth people," she said. "Other places you're just a number, but here we know everyone and everyone knows us." Ronnie Fisher, of Kansas City, Mo., has worked at several jobs and moved frequently, but plans to stay with the Crumps. "I've been here longer (3 1/2 years) than anywhere else and I plan to stay on," Fisher said. "They're kind people - you give them eight hours of work for eight hours of pay and they treat you like a human being." "One time she bought out these Polish sausage, and another time she served steaks this big," said Frank Higgins, 26, supervising his truck in a yard apart. Scattered throughout the work area were ice boxes to hold lunches, hot plates, bean pots and small ovens for the employes.

Holds Stamp Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A bill approved Wednesday by the House Post Office Committee would prevent the U.S. Postal Service from adding more than two cents to the cost of a first-class stamp the next time it raises rates. By a 19-8 vote, the panel included an amendment by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., limiting the next postage rate increase for all classes of mail to 20 per cent.

Wilson said the amendment would apply only to the next rate increase because it is apparent the Postal Service wants to raise the cost of a 10-cent first-class stamp to at least 13 cents. Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar has said postal rates will have to go up this year to help pay for increased costs under recently negotiated labor contracts. But he contends the cost of a first-class stamp would not go higher than 13 cents.

Also included was an amendment by Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., to prevent the Postal Service from curtailing any service to individual homeowners.

Nudists Get Brush On In France

OGLIASTRO, France (UPI) - Nudists have been having a hard time getting a tan in this Corsican village since Mayor Pierre Morganti launched his "modesty paint" campaign on the town's beaches. Although nudism is legal in France, it is up to the each community to decide whether to allow it. Morganti and his 252 constituents decided that nudity their beaches was offensive and have organized an antifuror brigade to track down offenders, usually sun-seeking tourists from the north. Morganti leads the two-member brigades, armed with binoculars and a pail of paint and a brush, in search of naked bodies. When an offender is sighted they rush up and daub the culprit with paint. "If one goes to another country," Morganti said, "One must respect its customs. And here, it is not the custom to go wandering around naked."

He Finds Real Deal On a Picasso

RENO, Nev. (UPI) - A lithograph picked up by David Burrows, a dealer in western art, for $5 at a garage sale has turned out to be a work by Picasso. Burrows said appraisers confirmed it was "Les Saltimbanques," done in 1958 and worth between $300 and $2,000. He said he made the buy 10 days ago from a young woman who said she was selling her possessions to live on a commune. Burrows and his wife have just opened an art shop and, he said, "It's a very nice way to start off moving into a city."

The black and white lithograph depicts a court jester performing before his king. "This is unique," Burrows said. "Everybody's heard of the man, but very few own something by him. It's something I'll keep for myself."

History Will Honor Apollo

HOUSTON (UPI) — When the last splashdown was over Thursday Apollo-Soyuz technical director Glynn Lunney gave what may stand as the epitaph for Apollo.

"I think when the history books are written from a longer perspective than from the one we have here this evening," Lunney said, "we're going to find a very honored place for the Apollo spacecraft."

Forty-three Americans have gone into space during the past 14 years, beginning with the 15-minute up-and-down hop of Alan Shepard in a Mercury capsule on May 5, 1961. He was followed by five other Mercury pilots, including John Glenn who became the first American to orbit Earth, on Feb. 20, 1962.

Then came the Gemini program which pioneered rendezvous and docking techniques with 10 two-man orbital flights in 1965 and 1966.

Project Apollo followed Gemini as a monumental effort that sent men to the moon in the three-seat spaceship nearly identical to the one Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton used to meet two Russians in orbit for the Apollo-Soyuz international spaceflight.

The Apollo effort began with tragedy when Virgil "Gus" Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died Jan. 27, 1967, in a fire aboard the spacecraft during a ground test on the launch pad at what then was Cape Kennedy.

A modified Apollo was successfully flown in Earth orbit for nearly 11 days in October, 1968, and from then on Project Apollo rolled from one success to another. The first moon orbital flight was logged by three Apollo 8 astronauts two months later at Christmas-time.

Apollo 9 made an earth-orbital checkout of the lunar lander in March, 1969. Apollo 10 rehearsed lunar landing operations around the moon two months later and then Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin became the first men to set foot on the moon July 20, 1969.

Five more lunar landings were carried out and one mission — Apollo 13 — was aborted with its crew looping around the moon before returning home.

In all 24 men went to the moon. Twelve landed and the rest flew around it. Three astronauts made two flights.

The lunar landing program was followed by the Skylab effort which used Apollos to ferry three-man crews to the orbiting space station. Three crews lived and worked aboard Skylab at different times, spending 28, 59 and 84 days in orbit.

The Apollo-Soyuz mission was the last flight of the Apollo, the last planned splashdown return, the last parachute descent and the last flight of Americans until 1979 when the space shuttle rocket plane begins flying.

The shuttle will take off like a rocket, but land like an airplane on a long runway at what is now Cape Canaveral.

Space Stamp

The sales of Apollo Soyuz Commemorative Stamps in Pampa are going well, according to officials at the U. S. Post Office here. Both the United States and the Soviet Union issued a twin pair of postage stamps honoring the Apollo Soyuz joint space mission. The top stamp in the depicted vertical pair is the U. S. design while the bottom stamp is the Soviet design. The U. S. design shows the spacecraft in the docked position, while the Soviet design shows the spacecraft separated.

Shuttle To Open Space

HOUSTON (UPI) — With the last of the Apollos safely back on earth, the nation's space planners are turning to the revolutionary space shuttle rocket plane to "open up space like it's never been opened before."

The shuttle won't fly until 1979. But space agency officials are counting on it to make it routine and economical to do the things that can best be done in space.

"When we get to shuttle, we're finally going to establish a beachhead in space," Deputy National Aeronautics and Space Administration Administrator George Low said Thursday.

"We'll make it so relatively easy to get in and out of space, we'll suddenly discover space as a place to help man on Earth and a place to explore."

The shuttle, about the size of a DC9 jetliner, is a combination airplane and rocket. It will blast off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., like a rocket, yet glide to an airport landing like a jetliner.

It will be tested first as a glider. The initial flight is scheduled for 1977 over the vast dry lake beds around Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The space agency is buying a 747 jet to carry the shuttle for its "drop tests."

The shuttle also will use booster rockets to help it get out of the atmosphere. But these big solid propellant rockets will be parachuted back into the sea, recovered, refueled and used again. Only a big fuel tank will be jettisoned with each flight.

Tourist Socks Dummy; Dummy's Father Sues

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Stephen Cullar, hired to stand among the dummies in a wax museum and surprise unsuspecting tourists, got something of a surprise himself.

Stephen, 13, was standing among the 12 dummies in a 19th Century jailhouse exhibit when Garry Beightol, Sioux City, Iowa, struck him in the face. Beightol, who was charged with simple assault and fined $100 and given a 30-day suspended sentence, also was slapped with a $5,000 law suit by Stephen's father.

"This thing really burned me up," the elder Cullar said. "Not only was I worried about Stephen's nose, I was worried about that $1,200 worth of braces he's got on his teeth."

George Hill, owner of the exhibit, said Beightol, 25, talked with Stephen following his arrest and acted like the whole thing was a joke.

"What kind of guy is this?" Hill said. "Even if it had been a dummy, those dummies cost me from $500 to $1,000 each. I've been here for five years and nothing like this has ever happened."

Stephen, who wasn't badly injured, said he usually didn't yell if men were in the group.

"I don't usually move because men don't scare," he said. "But I thought I heard some girls behind them, so I was about to yell when I got hit."

"I really think he thought I was wax," the boy said. "I didn't yell or anything, I just sort of blacked out."

Elephants Evade Hunt

HUGO, Okla. (UPI) — Elephant hunters slogged through a wet mesh of jungle-like vegetation Thursday until they were exhausted, but found no further sign of runaways Isa and Lillie.

Mrs. Colman Banes, manager of the Carson and Barnes Circus winter quarters, said the searchers, although wet and tired from the day-long tramp, were undaunted.

"They hunted until the rain came and then they went back out after the rain," she said. "They are all exhausted but they'll get some rest and go back in the morning."

The searchers had thought the rain might help roundup the runaways.

"The elephants will stand still in a storm," circus employe Dixie Loder said.

Mrs. Loder said Corky Clark, a veteran animal handler, got a look at the young fugitives Wednesday. She was encouraged about chances of recovering them soon.

"He saw them, definitely," she said. Sweet horse feed was placed at several locations as bait.

The elephants, Isa and Lillie, were among five being hauled to Mexico in a truck by Mrs. Loder.

Pipeline Cost Up Again

By RICK SCHWABACHER
Pampa News' Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The projected cost for completing the Alaskan Pipeline has risen again for the second time in nine months and construction officials aren't certain that it won't rise again.

When the pipeline was first conceived in 1969, the estimated cost was $900 million. Since then, plans have been altered considerably to allow for more environmental safeguards and a larger carrying capacity.

The original estimated cost of the improved design was $1.5 billion. Last October, however, that figure was upped to $6 billion and pipeline officials now say that the line will cost at least $6.38 billion, up 42 per cent from the $4.5 billion estimate.

Pipeline officials say that the latest cost increase results from construction experience since last October. The builders have found they were not prepared to deal with Alaska's harsh environment and that preplanning was inadequate.

Construction has fallen from six months to a year behind schedule, making investors nervous.

Development of potential petroleum reserves on the Atlantic Outer Continental Shelf will depend on the market price of oil in the next few years, according to a team of scientists.

The scientists, from Cornell University, predict that if the price of domestic oil stays above $11 per barrel, four-fifths of the petroleum resources off the Atlantic Coast would probably be developed. If the prices drop to $8 per barrel, however, much of the reserves would not be developed due to high investment costs.

Since no drilling has actually taken place, no one knows for sure how much oil and gas reserves lie off the Atlantic Coast, but estimates range from five to 20 billion barrels of crude oil and between 25 and 100 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Scientists from the University of Delaware speculate that "we can expect that peak offshore drilling activity would be reached by about 1980 and continue through 1985."

The offshore oil industry could employ up to 60,000 persons along the coasts of New Jersey, Delaware, and Virginia, if the expected petroleum deposits are discovered.

Meanwhile, prospects for finding oil in the eastern part of the Gulf of Mexico appear grim after continual failure to find oil or gas off the Gulf Coast of Florida.

To date, 14 holes have been drilled — at a cost of more than $1 million per hole — with no sign that any significant deposits of oil or natural gas exist in the area. Of the 17 major oil companies that purchased the offshore tracts a year and a half ago, only Gulf Oil Corp. is still drilling.

Oilmen who paid $1.4 billion for 500,000 acres of offshore tracts, had been expecting big finds in the Eastern Gulf. Abandonment of the area would make it one of the most expensive failures in oil exploration history.

Gasoline supplies are lower now than a year ago, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Gasoline stocks in mid-June were approximately 200 million barrels, down from the 223 million barrels that were on hand a year ago.

A spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute blames miscalculations in the demand for gasoline and increased production of heavy fuel oil as a major factor in reduced gasoline stocks.

Army Experiments Show LSD Drug Not Addictive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army experiments with LSD showed the drug is powerful but not addictive and it changes body cells less than caffeine, according to a top researcher involved in the program.

Dr. Van M. Sim said he personally had tried LSD.

He told a Pentagon news conference Wednesday only a few Army test subjects reported having after-effects from the hallucinogen.

The director of chemical warfare research at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., said LSD was administered to 585 volunteers, mostly soldiers but including some civilian Army personnel, over 12 years ending in 1967. The Army previously had said possibly 900 other persons were tested by outside contractors as part of the program.

Sim said Army test subjects were told beforehand they would receive a powerful, behavior-affecting drug. But they were not told when, nor were they told it would be LSD.

"They all knew afterward," he said.

He said the program was popular among volunteers, who received a three-day pass each week over three months as compensation. Before a volunteer was accepted, he had to take weeklong physical and psychological tests.

After taking LSD, subjects were given tests including map reading, spelling, breaking down and reassembling a rifle, and playing volleyball. Ten per cent underwent followup studies.

The study, Sim said, found LSD is a powerful drug that civilians might use for enjoyment. It also found "LSD is not physically addictive."

Despite doses as high as 2,400

micrograms per hundred pounds of body weight, only seven volunteers reported after-effects, he said, because their selection was carefully controlled and "it was a lot different from the civilian drug culture."

Medical files were sent to their doctors but "we never heard from any one of them since."

"LSD in our test system did not affect individual cells, even given in magnificent quantities," Sim said. Caffeine contained greater cell damage as measured in "chromosome breaks."

Brig. Gen. Kenneth Dirks of the Army's medical research command said the investigation uncovered a drug, Bromlysergic Acid, that could neutralize effects of LSD. A fullscale antidote was not found.

Viet Refugees On Welfare

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There are 1,100 Vietnamese refugees on welfare in Los Angeles County and more cases are pending, the Department of Public Social Services said Wednesday.

A spokesman said he knew of no case in which a refugee was refused welfare aid. A family of four receives $311 a month under a refugee welfare program paid by the federal government, he said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

SATURDAY, JULY 26
Your birthday today:

Opens a year of brisk growth if you are able to accept change and make the effort. You require new skills and may have to take an apprenticeship or relocate. Relationships encounter diverse influences and must be redeveloped. Today's natives are well-intended people who react belatedly, candidly and at times more harshly than the situation merits.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Even with all hands in on the changes, bright ideas at the last minute upset the most careful schedule. Hold onto your sense of humor. The day works out fairly well with a surprise ending.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Move ahead without the cooperation of your friends. Since they don't know the whole story, their suggestions will be useless. You never quite finish today's activities.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Decide whose help is most valuable now and negotiate for it. You'll have forms to fill in and applications to make today so have records in order and handy.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Pause now and then to check your direction and rate of progress. Although everyone seems overly anxious, no one is going to tell you when you head away from planned lines.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You're subject to fast talk and flattery when lots of people try to sell you ideas or get you to back their schemes. If you're free to go, take a short vacation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can have your own way with almost any reasonable proposal if you're the first to present it. You'll wind up paying more than your fair share toward group costs.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If decisions have been made, let them stand and go on, keeping discussion to a minimum. Recognize when you're ahead, select the right moment to quit, then celebrate.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Mixing financial advice and growing relationships only creates lasting confusion. Pursue one or the other. You're tempted to spend in excess for something you don't need and won't want later.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on matters that are pressing. It's unlikely that you'll be able to sell a new approach yet since everyone is a bit wary just now. Fill in details and be patient.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Taking the trouble to express yourself is interesting and rewarding. It takes all day to get to the conclusion of a complex episode, with the final hour the most exciting.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adjustment is the key to success. People come forward with all kinds of plans and different views of what's happening. You can be helpful at little cost and profit from it later.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's clear that no one has the entire story so try to live with the incomplete one. Once you accept mistakes of associates you can forgive.

Poor Get Poorer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The family income of all Americans — especially poor whites — took a pounding in the recession, Census Bureau figures show.

The median income of the nation's 58 million families fell in 1974 to $12,636 from $13,373 in 1973. At the same time, the number of Americans living below the government's official poverty level rose 5.6 per cent in 1974, to 24.3 million.

That means about 12 per cent of the U.S. population is considered "poor" by federal standards.

The government's poverty threshold, which is adjusted upward each year to compensate for the rising cost of living, is now $5,038 for an urban family of four.

The 4 per cent slide in median family income, first since small declines in 1970 and 1971, is bound to continue through 1975, since the recession did not really get under way until late last year.

The income figures were computed in so-called "constant dollars" to eliminate the distortions of last year's exceptionally large 11 per cent inflation rate. In "current dollars," median family income rose 7 per cent from $12,051 in 1973.

Median income means half of all families earned more than the median figure and half less.

The Census Bureau's figures show low-income whites were hit especially hard in 1974. The number of white persons below the poverty line jumped 8 per cent, or 1.1 million, to 16.3 million.

Blacks in the "poor" category numbered 7.5 million, essentially unchanged from a year earlier, the Bureau said.

The comparisons of income by racial group also showed the gap that separates black and white families narrowed slightly last year for the first time in the 1970s.

The median income of a white family of two adults and two children was $13,360 and for their black counterparts, $7,810. Thus, black family income averaged 59 per cent of a white family's, an increase of 1 per cent over 1973.

Canada Sells Wheat to Russia

By United Press International
The Canadian Wheat Board announced the sale of 1 million more tons of wheat to the Soviet Union Thursday, apparently pushing Russia's foreign grain purchases this year to nearly 14 million tons.

The Minneapolis Tribune reported, meanwhile, that it had information the Louis Dreyfus Corp of New York has sold another 4 million tons of American or Canadian corn to the drought-plagued Soviet Union.

The Agriculture Department said in Washington it had received no confirmation of the corn sale.

The Canadian wheat deal was the second within a week with the Russians. It calls for shipments of grain to begin in November and for the entire 37 million bushels to be in the Soviet Union by August of next year.

In another development today, the president of the International Longshoremen's Association reportedly assured Congress that American dockworkers will load U.S. grain aboard Russian-bound ships.

The 132,000-member ILA threatened at its Miami Beach convention Wednesday to boycott such loading unless it got assurances that shipments of U.S. wheat to Russia would not drive up the price of bread, beer and other items in American supermarkets.

The International Wheat Council said in London earlier today that the Soviet Union had already purchased 12.6 million tons of grain this year and speculation was that the total might reach 15 million tons.

The council said in its monthly report this includes between seven million and 10 million tons of wheat, 4.5 million tons of maize and 1.1 million tons of barley.

The council said since last month "the grain market has been dominated by rumors that the Soviet Union was negotiating for large purchases of grain, including wheat."

SEGAL AND HAWN HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Segal and Goldie Hawn will costar in "The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox" for Mel Frank at 20th Century-Fox.

MIA Wife Nixes US Aid to Hanoi

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Mrs. Allen Graham, whose husband has been missing in action in North Vietnam since 1972, says she would rather not know his fate if the price of the information is American reconstruction aid to Hanoi.

Mrs. Graham, whose husband's F111 jet fighter-bomber was shot down 17 miles north of Hanoi, said Wednesday she is adamantly opposed to helping rebuild Vietnam.

"If an accounting is tied to it, then I'm afraid that I would just have to say 'I'd rather chalk it off.' It's ransom, that's what it is, and I feel like these men have been dishonored enough as it is without having to run it through the muck."

Mrs. Graham, who returned to Columbia a week ago from a lengthy trip to Europe, met with Do Tang, first secretary of the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris, for more than an hour June 13. She is a former board member of the National League of Families of POWs and MIAs in Southeast Asia.

Terminating the session "very cordial," she said he told her

"We have returned all live prisoners ... but we do have bodies, we do have bones and remains of American pilots over there that will be returned once the negotiations are completed."

"When they talk about negotiations," she said, "they're talking about reconstruction aid."

Mrs. Graham said Do Tang never lectured her on American aggression.

"They say 'We've been at war for 30 years. This is the only thing we have left to do. We want to get this over with as soon as possible. We're willing to go into negotiations immediately.'"

Mrs. Graham said the North Vietnamese refused to tell her about her husband, although she is confident they know what happened to him after his plane went down Oct. 17, 1972.

She said Communist reporters took pictures at the crash, but "unfortunately they showed no bodies, no prisoners — no conclusive evidence that men perished in the crash."

Kunkel To Coordinate Texas First in Pampa

Melvin Kunkel, district manager for Southwestern Public Service Co., has been selected by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce to head local coordination of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Texas First program, designed to stimulate Texas economy.

Goals for the statewide program include creation of 4,000 new, permanent and unsubsidized jobs and expanding 160 businesses. Supporters of the program say that would result in an economic boost of $277 million annually in Texas.

Kunkel will be working with local businesses and industrial concerns to enlist participation in the program.

"We want every employer in Pampa to participate in Texas

First," Kunkel said today. "We will work with them to learn their problems with expansion and request assistance from the appropriate agencies, as well as help out where we can on a local basis."

Kunkel said the expertise of four state agencies is being pooled to assist in the effort. He added that training already has been provided around the state through the Texas Start-up Training Program which has been so successful that it has shown a return of four dollars for every dollar invested.

The newly appointed program coordinator for Pampa said additional information and pledge cards may be obtained by calling him at 669-3241, or write to P.O. Box 1942, Pampa, 79065.

Texas News Briefs

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Staff investigators of the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs will report Friday on the expense accounts of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executives and corporate expenses the company passes on to its customers, Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, said Wednesday.

"I haven't had a chance yet to examine all the evidence they've turned up, but what I have seen indicates that what Bell executives have used their expense accounts very extravagantly and the telephone users of Texas have been paying for it," Clower, chairman of the subcommittee, said.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, will be acting governor for the next few days in the absence of Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby from the state. Santiesteban, the Senate president pro tempore, and third in line of succession to the governor, will preside over the state until Hobby returns Sunday.

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas Rangers, Department of Public Safety intelligence and local police Wednesday recovered 10 vehicles valued at $33,557.50 from a car-stealing ring which operates statewide, a DPS spokesman said.

Five persons have been named in 18 indictments by the Dallas County grand jury in connection with the thefts. The DPS spokesman said the law officers expect to recover more vehicles from the ring and possibly make more arrests.

Hill said a statute passed by the 1975 legislature made such records confidential as of April 30.

RED OAK, Tex. (UPI) — A young man robbed the Red Oak State Bank of $2,796 Wednesday and fled southward on Interstate 35. He was captured about three hours later a few miles north of Waco.

Edward D. Brooks, 20, of Dallas was charged with aggravated robbery in connection with the bank robbery. He was held in lieu of $100,000 bond set by Peace Justice Herschel Smith of Waxahachie.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ordered a new trial for a 16-year-old father convicted of severely beating his 7-week-old baby and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

The court Wednesday ruled Marty Houston Lovell's rights were violated because police took his confession without an attorney. Lovell was convicted in February, 1974 of beating the infant. He was arrested Feb. 10 at an Abilene hospital where the child was admitted.

The Texas Family Code, revised by the legislature in 1973, prohibits the taking of a juvenile's confession without the presence of an attorney.

The court also ordered a new trial for Freddie Ray Thomas, a Houston sign painter convicted of breaking into his ex-wife's house to rob her.

Thomas pleaded guilty Aug. 5, 1970, to an indictment accusing him of burglary with intent to commit a felony by damaging personal property. The judge's formal judgement, however, stated Thomas was guilty of burglary with intent to steal.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Kika De La Garza, D-Tex., told House members Wednesday he will fight proposals to leave small cities out of future revenue sharing plans. De La Garza said the small cities of his 15th Congressional District have problems proportionately as severe as the great metropolitan areas.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Water Rights Commission Wednesday approved a proposed Corps of Engineers plan to control natural salt pollution in the Brazos River Basin but objected to proposals to pass 25 per cent of the $50 million cost on to local areas.

The plan calls for constructing three dams on Croton, Salt Croton and North Croton Creeks to reduce natural salt pollution.

Back-to-School Fashions Echo Foreign Influence

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service

This year's back-to-school fashions will have definite Oriental and Central European influences for the girls while the western look is expected to remain popular with the guys.

The trend for females this year will be clothes, clothes, clothes! Layers of them, in fact, with stripes and multi-blends of four and five colors running through dresses, sweaters, scarfs and knee socks.

"Economic conditions are keeping fashions from changing radically," said Mrs. Betty Weisfeld, fashion coordinator for a large West Coast department store. "We saw the layered look last year and this year will be a continuation of it."

"Silhouettes will be much fuller this year," Mrs. Weisfeld said in an interview. "The overall look for girls will be very subdued with the use of muted colors such as rust, brown and dark green and the fuller, longer look which can only be called 'The Great Coverup.'"

The outer-most layer will consist of a mid-calf length coat, poncho or jacket with wide shoulders, and kimono or raglan sleeves. Waistlines will be free or loosely belted and collar will be in either bateau, funnel, or officer's styles. Fake and real fur will be used for trim.

The second layer will consist of a sweater (any style that's appealing) with possibly a matching or contrasting scarf and knit hat.

"This layered look is especially good for colder areas of the country," Mrs. Weisfeld said. "However, it will have to be modified in the warmer sections of the country by eliminating the outer coat."

Dresses this year will feature the "tube look," which is loose and blousy with the emphasis on the shoulders. It can be worn with or without a belt. Hemlines will fall just below the knee.

Skirts will be styled with kick or inverted pleats, side slits, or be wrapped or side-buttoned and worn open. According to Mrs. Weisfeld, culottes will again be popular.

New this year are the folk and Oriental looks. The folk styles recall the clothes worn in Central Europe during the first quarter of the 20th Century. There are vest and sweaters of various weights, lengths and cuts.

Pants will also bear the European look, said Mrs. Weisfeld. They'll be cut very full and very masculinely.

The Oriental look will exhibit both a Mongol and Mandarin influence in designs which will feature wool or fur-trimmed vests, bulky lounging coats and more simple peasant-style shirts and coats.

Boots of differing lengths and the standard oxford will be the prime styles to wear with the new, longer, fuller look.

"There's no big change in guys' fashions except that the clothes will be cut longer and larger," said Mrs. Weisfeld. "The western look in the earth tones will continue to be very popular and sweaters will be very important."

She noted that leisure suits have taken over for both dressy and casual occasions, especially on the West Coast.

"In both guys and girls fashions we'll be seeing a lot more natural fabric being used than we have in many years," Mrs. Weisfeld said. "Lots of 100 per cent cotton dresses and shirts and a lot more 100 per cent wool sweaters."

"With this trend we'll see corduroy become very popular this year and the number of clothes for dress and casual being made out of denim will be mind boggling," she said.

Back - to - School Fashions

Cold weather won't be far behind once school starts in August and these girls are ready for it. Sharon, left, wears a suede coat with white lamb fur trim and a matching knit cap and flared pants. Luann wears a heavy cardigan with shawl collar, pockets, and belt, matching knit beret a scarf, and straight leg pants.

Flame-Retardant Clothes Advised For Older Ones

COLLEGE STATION — People over 65 represent a high risk group in burn injuries caused by clothing catching on fire, according to the U.S.

Consumer Product Safety Commission, Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist, reported this week.

"However, since it's hard to differentiate clothing for this group from other adultwear, no strict standards for flame retardant clothing for older adults have been set yet," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Progress is being made to provide protection from death or injury due to burning clothing. And this high risk group can exercise certain safety precautions to help avoid serious or fatal accidents, she said.

"Close fitting garments are less hazardous. Avoid fullness in clothes such as flaring skirts or pants and flowing robes. Other potential hazards are ties, scarves or tie belts and ruffles."

The specialist advised older adults to exercise extreme caution when open flame heaters are the source of heat in the home. Be careful not to get too close and watch that clothing is not brushed by the flame.

In cooking, avoid loose fitting clothes, particularly long, full sleeves, that can easily be ignited by a surface unit or gas burner.

She reminded that some fibers, such as wool and modacrylic, are inherently flame retardant. Other fibers, such as rayon, acetate, polyester and nylon, can be treated to make them flame retardant.

"Also, flame retardant finishes can be applied on fabrics such as cotton to make them flame retardant. Look for flame retardant information on labels. Some manufacturers are voluntarily making flame retardant clothing in adultwear to be available for purchase by fall.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Rubber bridge is an easier game to play than duplicate bridge, for one major reason. In rubber bridge one knows what his objective might be, and never try for an overtrick if, in so trying, he jeopardizes his contract.

In duplicate bridge, in the other hand, the objective is frequently unknown, since the scoring is on a relative basis. So what good is the fulfillment of any given contract if others, in the same contract, make an overtrick?

The latter point is illustrated in today's deal, which was played in a national championship event.

North - South vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

The four of clubs was played from dummy at trick one, and East made a good play when he inserted the nine. South won the trick with the ace. A low diamond was then led. West taking his ace.

West returned his singleton nine of hearts; dummy's ten was played, and again East refused to put up his king, dummy's ten winning.

At this point declarer could have made an overtrick by simply cashing his ace and king of trumps. He would then have lost, all in all, two clubs, one spade and one diamond (heart finesse would prove successful). But South didn't know whether East or West had the trump queen. If East had it, then finesse in trumps might well avoid the loss of a trump trick and enable South to make two overtricks.

So, after winning trick three with the board's ten of hearts, declarer led dummy's jack of spades. When East followed with the threespot, South played the four, finessing against East's hoped-for-queen. The walls now crumbled down around him.

West won with the queen of spades and came back a club to East's king. East returned a heart. South played low, and West ruffed. West now made a fine play when he led the ten of clubs (instead of the high queen), which East trumped. East returned another heart, and West ruffed declarer's ace.

So declarer went down a trick, with West ruffing two hearts and East ruffing a club, plus the ace of diamonds, the king of clubs, and the queen of spades which the defenders won outright. A tough game, this duplicate bridge.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I've always disliked shredding cabbage for salads, even though it is my husband's favorite.

One time I shredded the whole head, laid six or eight ice cubes on top and sealed it in a plastic bowl. I only used enough of the cabbage to make a small amount of cole slaw for the two of us.

A week or so later, I discovered it in the back of my fridge. I thought it might not be useable, but upon opening it, I found all the ice had soaked in. The cabbage was crisper and better than ever.

Now, I shred the whole head of cabbage every time and find it beautifully this way — up to two or three weeks.

Delightful! So much easier than shredding small amounts at a time.

R.L.

Dear Heloise:
The paper I'm using to write to you is one of my "saving devices."

My stationery is paper usually destined for the waste basket in my husband's office. They are "second" sheets and it's true there's a smudge or two.

However, in view of the paper shortage, I don't feel the recipient of this would find it offensive.

My husband puts these sheets aside and brings them home, as his company does not use them.

Mrs. Harold Haynes

Every little bit of saving helps and I was delighted to receive your letter on sunny yellow paper, no matter the source. A bright idea, honeychile...

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Let's hear it from all the gals as to how they put those tall potato chip cans to use in their homes!

I use mine to freeze baked cookies, to store corn chips after opening a bag, decorated one to match my bathroom and slipped it over the spray can of room deodorizer.

I know there must be millions of ways to use them. I hope all ladies will put their gray matter to use and share their "plan for the can" with us. Can't bear to throw them out. (Nothing else, for that matter.)

D. Lloyd

Neither can I. (Unless I get mad and go on a housecleaning binge and then everything that is not tied down is in danger.)

"How about it, gals? Got any other uses for those little 'jewels'?" Just send them in care of this paper. Love you...

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

Pointing... the way

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Early churches used steeples to make the building higher than all others in the city. People could see God's House from any direction, and could easily find their way to a place of worship.

Today, with many office buildings towering into the sky, churches are not always the tallest buildings. However, churches still point the way to God, and provide a place of worship.

KC Kicks McKeon

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Fans and players approved Thursday of the ousting of Jack McKeon as manager of the Kansas City Royals.

Whitey Herzog, 43-year-old third base coach of the California Angels, was named to replace McKeon.

As a harried telephone operator on the switchboard at Royals Stadium said, "All the calls have been positive—not so much for the guy who's coming in, but against the guy who's going out."

The players, too, reacted with enthusiasm. Most seemed especially happy with Herzog's first move returning Charley Lau to his post as hitting instructor for the Royals.

"That's one of the better things that could happen," said pitcher Al Fitzmorris. "That was a very good idea. There aren't many men in baseball who command the kind of respect that Charley does."

Added shortstop Fred Patek, "Whitey must have a lot of respect for Charley. I'm really happy about it."

McKeon fired Lau as hitting instructor in the final week of the 1974 season, but Lau remained with the organization as minor league hitting instructor. He was in Waterloo, Iowa, with the Class A farm team at the time of his elevation.

Both Patek and Fitzmorris said they believed the rest of the players were expecting McKeon's dismissal.

"We just have too good of a ball club not to be winning more," said Fitzmorris. "I don't think anyone was surprised. I hate to see any man out of work, but I think this is a solid step for the club."

The Royals had lost six straight and 10 of 12 before General Manager Joe Burke joined the team in Detroit Monday.

Upset Winner

Dr. J.F. Elder of Pampa drives on No. 13 while Web Wilder of San Antonio watches Thursday in the Tri-State Seniors. Elder edged the favored Wilder, 1-up, to advance today's medal play finals against seven other players.

Elder Among Finalists

By PAUL SIMS

Dr. J. Foster Elder has a chance to make local history.

That is, if he wins today in the Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament since a Pampa player has never won the prestigious tourney, now in its 41st year.

Elder and seven other championship flight players, the only survivors after two match play rounds, teed off this morning at the Pampa Country Club for 18 holes of medal play to determine the championship.

Among those players is Doug Roush of Amarillo, who has a chance to become only the sixth player in the tourney's history to win two consecutive years. Roush fired a 67 a year ago to claim the title.

The Amarillo postal clerk had to go 20 holes Thursday before holding off Austin's Otis Garner, 2-up.

Elder is the only Pampa left in the championship flight's winners bracket. He edged San Antonio's Web Wilder, 1972 champ, 1-up, Thursday. Wilder was one of the tournament favorites prior to the round. Others left in the flight are Tom Morris, an Amarillo attorney; Budd McKinney, one of the state's top senior players; Hart Brooks, a young (55) player from Grand Prairie; R.R. Muir of Canyon; Carroll Weaver of Sinton; and R. F. Hayes of Enid, Okla.

Morris whipped E.V. Price of Childress, 5-4; McKinney downed Eddie Smith of Tishomingo, Okla., 3-2; Brooks knocked off Adrian Johnston of Amarillo, 5-4; Muir stopped John Sidlow of Amarillo, 5-4; Weaver eliminated Deck Woldt of Pampa, 1-up on 19 holes, and Hayes beat Bob Selman of Amarillo, 2-1.

Woldt, Pampa High golf coach, and Weaver shot 71 during the match play round. Weaver then took a par five on the first hole of sudden death, while Woldt bogeyed the hole.

McKinney predicted a par 71 will win today. "I think whoever shoots par will win."

"I played real good—I had 68 yesterday.

But today's the day that counts. I won't play good today because I played all my good shots yesterday. It's pretty hard to play good two days in a row."

McKinney had six birdies and three bogeys in beating Smith. "I was putting exceptionally well," McKinney said. "I sank about four putts if at least 30-35 feet."

Elder said a 69 would win. He also felt he was capable of shooting that score.

"It's been awhile but I have done it. I sure don't want to make any mistakes and I better not three-putt any."

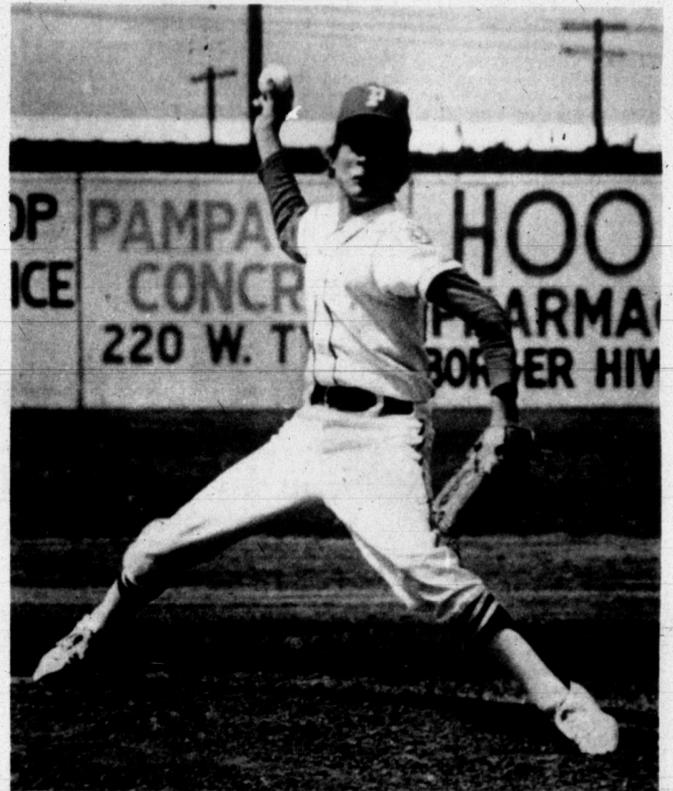

Elder three-putted only one hole Thursday. The turning point of the match against Wilder was No. 16, a par three, which Elder birdied after landing his tee shot three feet from the pin.

Wilder parred the hole.

"I felt real good then—very elated. I just wanted to par in," Elder, 56, said.

"Putting helped more than anything else yesterday."

Flights one through nine will also play medal play today.

Winning Pitcher

Terry Woods, 13, gave up only two hits in beating the Pampa Babe Ruth 14-year-old all-star Thursday at Optimist Park. Woods plays for the Pampa 13- and 14-year-old all-star team, which will play in the tournament finals at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. The Pampa 14's are still alive in the double-elimination tournament, which resumes tonight.

Pitchers Aid Victories

UPI Sports Writer

In case anybody still wonders why the National League doesn't like the designated hitter rule, they had a chance to find out Thursday.

There were five games played in the league. In all of them, pitchers had key hits. Four of them helped win games, including three that contributed directly to the winning rallies.

When the major league owners met in Milwaukee last week following the All-Star Game, the AL made its regular pitch to the NL to go along with the designated hitter, now in its third year.

The NL voted it down, as always.

Bill Bonham, Phil Niekro, Fred Norman and Burt Hooton were not there to cast their votes, but if they were it's certain they would have gone along with the owners. They got to cast their "votes" Thursday.

Bonham drove in a run with a single as the Cubs edged the Giants 4-3; Niekro doubled home the winning run in Atlanta's 5-4 victory over Philadelphia; Norman singled home the winning run to lift Cincinnati over the Mets 2-1; and Hooton singled and scored a run in Los Angeles' 8-2 rout of the Cardinals.

In the only other NL game, pitcher Steve Renko hit his sixth career home run, but was beaten anyway as Houston edged Montreal 6-5.

Pittsburgh and San Diego were not scheduled.

The designated hitter rule has been good to the American

Sports

League, which has more newer, maverick owners like Charlie Finley and Ewing Kauffman and figured two years ago that it needed something to hypo interest. It has worked. But the NL, with more traditionalists like Walter O'Malley and Phil Wrigley and consistently higher attendance, still believes the DH isn't needed.

Cubs 4, Giants 3

Bonham drove in a Chicago run in the fourth inning with a single, one of two he had in the game as he raised his record to 9-4 and won for the first time since June 28. He was knocked out in the eighth inning and Oscar Zamora came in to finish up and record his ninth save. Jose Cardenal had three hits for Chicago.

Braves 5, Phillies 4

The Braves broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning when Larvell Blanks singled and scored on a double by Biff Pocoroba. Niekro then followed with his double to make it 5-3.

NL Trips Borger

DUMAS — A five-run outburst in the fifth inning propelled the Pampa National Little League all-stars to an 8-6 win over Borger and the District 1 Championship here Thursday.

Pampa will host the sectional tournament at 7 p.m. Monday against the Levelland all-stars.

Paced by the clutch relief pitching of Edward Guerra and the fielding of centerfielder, Andy Richardson, Pampa held the heavy-hitting Borger team without a run throughout the last three innings. Borger had combined seven hits and a base on balls with five Pampa errors to take a 6-3 lead into the top of the fourth inning Tuesday when the game was halted by rain.

Under a special Little League tournament rule the game was continued Thursday from that point.

Guerra gave up three hits, walked two and struck out one in the 3rd inning he worked. Richardson was credited with five putouts and a game ending assist in center field. Steve McDougall and Mike Warner lead the Pampa hitting attack with two hits each. Pampa had nine hits. Borger had 10. Borger pitchers gave up seven bases on balls to only three by Pampa pitching.

In the Pampa fourth inning Kirt Crouch and Steve McDougall drew walks but a double play and a strike out eliminated Pampa's opportunity to score. Richardson, Warner and Rodney Brewer opened the fifth inning with consecutive singles to load the bases. Todd Rittabler stuck out. Richardson raced home with the first run of the inning when the catcher was unable to handle a throw after Guerra had bounced to the third sacker. Crouch was safe on first on a bad throw by the second baseman to chase starting pitcher Lynn Keener for Borger.

Reliever Mike Meek struck out Clifford Anderson but lost a footrace to first when McDougall beat out a slow roller to the pitcher. Meek then walked Jimmy Braxon and Richardson to put Pampa two runs ahead to stay.

Pampa threatened in the sixth on a double by Guerra and a single by Crouch after two were away, but Meek avoided further difficulty by getting Anderson to bounce out. In the Borger sixth after two were out, McDougall was unable to handle Meek's Texas leaguer into center field, but Richardson backing up the play, alertly threw to Crouch to nip the Borger pitcher as he tried to stretch the hit into a double.

The winner of the sectional tournament will advance to the state tournament which will be held in Waco Aug. 4-9. The District 1 championship flag will fly from the center field flagpole in Pampa for the first time in four years. The Pampa Nationals are now 4-0 in tournament play.

Liberace in Sequins Tours Wealthy Mansion

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Liberace dimpled winningly as he conducted the first public tour of his million-dollar mansion and said, "I hope the house looks lived in even though I won't be living here anymore."

Clad in matching blue jeans and sequined denim shirt with ruffled collar, the toothy pianist smiled brightly as flash cubes winked from cameras, in the hands of adoring fans.

"I have six other houses for living," he explained. "My headquarters and main house is in Las Vegas."

It will cost $5.90 (children $2.40) to take the tour; seven days a week, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

"Profits will go to The Liberace Foundation to provide funds for young artists," said Lee, who was born Wladziu Walter Valentino Liberace in West Allis, Wis., circa 1919.

"I'll pop in once in a while to surprise the tourists. And I'll continue to give parties here after hours. I think people are interested in how celebrities live and decorate their homes. Even the bathrooms."

Liberace led the way into a water closet with red flopped walls, deep pile red carpet, oil paintings, chandelier and fancy mirror.

Tourists will be able to purchase souvenirs in the bar—which serves no booze. A 12-inch-high electric candelabrum costs $99.95; a piano-shaped tape recorder is $99.50. A hot nut dispenser can be had for $24.95. Liberace albums and tape decks are on sale.

Liberace is not concerned about pilferage: "I have a sophisticated security system of mirrors in the ceiling like the ones in Las Vegas. If a person took anything he wouldn't make it to the front door."

The bulk of Liberace fans belong to the surgical stocking set. Doubtless they look on his home as a shrine. And what blue-haired matron would rip off artifacts from the temple of her dream boat?

Moreover, as tourists move through the manse they will hear Liberace's voice over a hidden sound system delighting them with anecdotes about his possessions and collections.

gymnasium, bar, swimming pool, pipe organ and sufficient beds for a harem.

There is enough gold leaf to replenish Fort Knox.

A treasured item is a table made of Baccarat crystal built originally for the Maharajah of Bahadur Shah II in 1850.

Everywhere one looks tables, highboys, armoires are laden with miniature pianos and candelabra (full-scale and miniature). In an earthquake the interior of the house must sound like the Canterbury chimes gone amok.

A passport problem involving the Blake Edwards' youngest daughter caused Mrs. Edwards to miss the houseparty at her home to celebrate "The Return of Pink Panther." Joanna, the three-month-old Vietnamese orphan, was on the refugee plane which crashed and her passport was lost. Her mother, Julie, was in Switzerland attempting to straighten out the problem at the time the party was in progress.

"The Return of Pink Panther," starring Peter Sellers as Inspector Clouseau, is in its third run. Whether there will be a fourth depends Inspector Clouseau picture depends on the box office clout of the latest, according to Blake Edwards, producer-director. Edwards said they didn't plan the third, but the group got together one day and started laughing. "And this led to a film," he said.

"Some of my other places are even more like museums than this house."

Liberace's Hollywood home, high in the hills with a view of most of Los Angeles, has opened as a museum. And well it should. It is cluttered with gaudy antiques, velvet, silk, satin furniture, and crystal chandeliers, mostly dating back to the 14th through 17th centuries.

No braided dogs, dauphin or emir could ask for more.

Liberace himself is modest about the opulence surrounding him. "I wouldn't call it a palace," he said, "but a mansion, yes."

The three-story, 30-room pad contains seven dining rooms, 17 full-sized pianos, a

Steer Wrestling

Barry Burk, a veteran Rodeo Cowboys Association (RCA) timed - event contestant from Duncan, Okla., shows good form in wrestling this steer. The next step is to bring the steer to a stop and by applying leverage to the horns, throw him to the ground. Time is stopped by the flagger when the steer is on his side with head and hooves pointed in the same direction. Times of four seconds or less are not uncommon in this event. Steer wrestlers will be among the cowboys competing for prize money at the Top O' Texas Rodeo July 30 - Aug. 2 at the arena just east of Pampa on Highway 60.

Magazines Seek Answer To High Postage Costs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The steady rise in postage costs has many magazine and book publishers looking for some new method of subscription delivery.

Big mail order houses and other mass merchandisers began turning away from the post office's third class mail system to other delivery systems almost a decade ago. Many of these companies ship their catalogs and brochures in bulk by truck and have them delivered by local companies.

Time and Ladies Home Journal have just decided to join Readers Digest, McCall's and Better Homes and Gardens in a continuing experiment with an alternative system that has been conducted in the San Francisco Bay area for the past year.

Another has been conducted for two years at Hagerstown, Md., by Select Magazines of New York on behalf of 26 magazines. This experiment is being phased out for the moment although the idea proved viable.

Rhett Austell, a vice president of Time, Inc., told United Press International mass marketers of magazines and books simply will not be able to live with the federal postal service if rates keep on going up. He said if all the implications of federal administrative law Judge Seymour Wenner's recent proposal on postal rate restructuring were carried out,

Time, Inc., might see its postage bill double to $25 million a year.

Peter Olson, president of National Postal Service (no connection with the federal government) of Saratoga, Calif., the company conducting the San Francisco Bay area program, said it is intended to triple the area in which the magazines are delivered by next December.

Olson's company has been a competitor of the post office in delivery of catalogs and similar lower-class mail for 10 years. The magazine delivery business is new for him and he stressed, although it is on a substantial basis, it still is experimental. "We are not yet saving the magazine publishers any money to speak of," he said, "but we already know that we can save them substantial sums in the future if postage rates keep on going up. Meanwhile we will keep on expanding the experimental service."

This decision was reached at a recent meeting with the publishers involved at Des Moines.

Secret of the system is the use of a computer, magnetic tapes and printout cards to consolidate the circulation lists locally and effect as nearly simultaneous delivery as possible of all the different periodicals and books. Delivery is made in plastic bags.

Austell said several other ideas for alternatives to postal delivery of magazines are being investigated.

One proposal, he said, is to mail subscribers only a coupon which they may exchange for a copy of the magazine at the nearest newsstand, but he said this hasn't actually been tried yet. Reader's Digest is reported planning to try it soon in Los Angeles.

Austell said Time had conducted experiments in years gone by with having its magazines delivered by the carrier forces of local daily newspapers but that hadn't panned out economically.

In Perth, Australia, he said, Time even had experimented with raising the subscription price of magazines to match the newsstand price and cover the increasing delivery costs. But magazine publishers in general do not appear to believe subscription prices can be raised to match single copy prices.

TEXAS 'GATORS

Texas 'gators are making a real comeback with the estimates of the reptile population in Jefferson County alone indicating 13,600 of the animals live in a 312-square-mile area, an average of 44 per square mile. — CNS

TOURIST OFFICES

BONN (UPI) — West Germany and the Soviet Union have agreed to set up tourist offices in Moscow and Frankfurt respectively.

The agreement, culminated the fifth session of the German-Soviet Economic Commission meeting in Bonn. The West German tourist office in Moscow will also provide travel information about West Berlin.

Giant Dinosaur In Texas Exhibit

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An exhibit featuring the largest flying animal ever known, a giant winged dinosaur which lived in the Big Bend area of West Texas ages ago, is on display in the Texas Memorial Museum.

The Texas Pterosaur was discovered by Douglas A. Lawson, a former University of Texas graduate student in the Vertebrate Paleontology Laboratory, in excavations between 1971 and 1974.

The pterosaur had a wingspan of 51 feet, larger than most modern fighter planes. The largest living flying animal is the California condor which has a wingspan of nine feet.

"The discovery of the pterosaur has been the biggest story in paleontology, as far as the popular media are concerned, since the discovery several years ago of some fossilized dinosaur eggs," said Dr. Wann Langston, director of the Vertebrate Paleontology Laboratory and a museum staff member.

The exhibit includes bones and a re-creation of the prehistoric creature and corresponding bones of other flying dinosaurs which are dwarfed by comparison.

Measuring Tornado Wind

DENVER (UPI) — Scientists will spend next spring chasing tornadoes in a pickup-camper as part of research which could lead to development of tornado-proof structures and methods for reducing damage done by the devastating storms.

The camper contains a mobile wind sensor which utilizes laser beams, photographic film and a series of finely tuned cables to measure the velocity of dust particles and other objects within a storm.

Researchers will direct a laser beam at a tornado and, by measuring the frequency at which the beam is returned, determine the velocity of winds in the heart of the twister.

"Our main objective will be to find out how fast the peak winds within a tornado are moving," said Dr. Ronald L. Schwiesow, one of the sensor's developers at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"Current theories are that the speed of winds within a tornado has a direct bearing on the amount of damage," he said. "But the only way we now have of determining how fast a tornado is rotating is by going in afterward and surveying the damage, which isn't very scientific."

Schwiesow and his team scheduled a trip to Arizona this summer to measure velocities of "dust devils," tiny twisters which last only briefly and rarely cause damage. From there, the scientists will take their camper to the Florida Keys to measure waterspouts.

All of the preliminary work, Schwiesow says, will be in preparation for a move to Norman, Okla., next April, at the height of the tornado season.

There, in cooperation with a team from the National Severe Storms Laboratory which chases tornadoes and records them on movie film, Schwiesow and his colleagues will put their sensor to work.

"We hope to learn if tornadoes increase in power as they move and if there are different classes of tornadoes," he said. "Anything we learn will be an improvement, since our knowledge of the structure of tornadoes at the present time is very minimal."

"Our data then will be analyzed to help determine what types of structures best withstand tornadoes of given speeds and if the twisters are susceptible to modification, thereby reducing their damage potential," he said.

Schwiesow said one theory which would be tested was the presence of small, rope-like suction tubes within tornadoes. "We suspect these tubes because of scratches on the ground left in the wake of tornadoes and because eyewitnesses have reported seeing darker strings inside tornadoes," he said.

"Such tubes, if they do exist, probably are moving at a much higher speed than the winds on the outside of the tornado. Because of their increased velocity, they may be the parts of the tornado which do the real damage."

Portugal Rulers Meet In Emergency Session

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The ruling Armed Forces Movement met in emergency session today to decide whether to turn the government over to a handful of Communist-backed military leaders.

Adm. Antonio Rosa Coutinho described the conference as "a meeting of unity" when he entered the hall for what were expected to be all-day talks. A newspaper summed up Portugal's political troubles with the headline, "Situation Tense and Confused."

The key figure at the session was Prime Minister Vasco

Goncalves, who reportedly put down a challenge by military moderates this week and pushed through plans to set up a Communist-oriented leadership.

The 240-member assembly, which came to power in a military coup last year, also faced the threat of an anti-Communist separatist revolt in the Azores islands.

The military leaders dispatched a naval warship with 200 marines Thursday to the Atlantic islands, where the United States maintains a base with 30,000 servicemen and dependents. There were no reports of violence in the islands, but several Azores officials have reportedly resigned under pressure from the separatists.

The army leadership, the most powerful segment of Portugal's government, declared its support Thursday for Goncalves.

The Socialists and Popular Democrats, the country's two largest political parties, called weekend rallies. They withdrew from the coalition cabinet this month over demands for democratic reforms.

Shell Drills Deep Well

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Shell Oil says a new offshore well in water 936 feet deep is the deepest successful drilling venture in the Gulf of Mexico.

The well penetrates to a depth of 9,750 feet underground, and Shell said there were indications it had already struck oil.

Commercial quantities of oil were indicated but only after several additional exploratory

He Didn't Know Gun Was Loaded

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The general who commanded National Guard troops during the Kent State University killings says he did not know at the time whether his men were carrying loaded weapons.

Brig. Gen. Robert Canterbury testified Wednesday in federal court in a $46 million civil damage trial. The suit was brought by the parents of four dead and nine wounded students shot by guardsmen during antiwar demonstrations on the campus five years ago.

"I did not know whether their weapons were loaded or not," said Canterbury. "I assumed they were loaded."

It was left to the discretion of individual unit commanders to decide whether to have their men carry loaded weapons, Canterbury said. The men were armed with M1 rifles, .45-caliber pistols and shotguns.

A meeting of Guard, city, county and state officials was held May 4, 1970, two hours before the nighttime incident, said Canterbury. It was decided during the meeting to disperse the antiwar rally being held on the KSU commons.

Plaintiffs' attorney Joseph Keizer asked the general if Dr. Robert White, then president of the school, specifically asked guardsmen to disperse all rallies.

"I asked Dr. White if the assembly was to be permitted," Canterbury said. "His response was that it would be highly dangerous."

"Did you take his opinion as a specific request to go and break up the rally?" Keizer asked.

"I accepted his response as being consistent with all people at the meeting," replied Canterbury.

Wink's Grocery and Market

Mr. and Mrs. James Cross

"Every day I try to have one good laugh, it keeps me on the bright side of life," said Karan Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cross opened Wink's Meat Market, 400 N. Cuyler three years ago. Both agree that business has been good and that Pampa is the place to live.

Mrs. Cross explained that they named the store after her husband's nick name "Wink." He acquired that name at the age of three from his brother.

"More people know Jim by his nick name than by his real name," Mrs. Cross said.

Cross began in the meat business in 1965 as an odd jobs person. He became interested in cutting meat as he watched his father - in - law at Blakes Food Market.

"I have no kicks about business," said Cross. "Business has been real good." Wink's is getting ready for the crowds that will be attending the Top O' Texas rodeo. Mrs. Cross is a native of Pampa and when she travels away, "I'm always glad to get back." She explained that the people of Pampa were some of the nicest around.
