Phone Company Compromises

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Attorney General John Hill announced today Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has agreed to a reduce from $45 million to an average $20 million a year its proposal for an increase in intrastate long distance rates.

Hill said he will ask District Judge Tom Blackwell to sign an order Monday implementing the new rate structure.

He said the agreed-to rate schedule will result in a savings to Texas telephone customers of $50 million over a two-year period from the $45 million a year rate increase announced by Bell in January.

Hill challenged that increase in an unprecedented lawsuit in which the Texas Supreme Court upheld the attorney general's authority to question rates which he believes are unreasonable.

Bell has agreed to refund "several millions of dollars" in long distance charges collected during a 20-day period in April between when the Third Court of Civil Appeals dismissed the suit and the Supreme Court reinstated it.

He met for about an hour with Charles Marshall, executive vice president for Bell operations in Texas, Ford Hall, general counsel for the telephone company in Texas, and Austin attorney Donald Thomas.

The attorney general won a court order blocking the $45 million increase on intrastate long distance rates proposed by Bell, an action upheld by the state supreme court. The case is now pending before District Judge Tom Blackwell in Austin. Hill said rate expert Pat Loconto of Dallas prepared the proposed compromise for his office, and he offered the proposition to Bell officials to avoid further litigation.

"They made several different alternative proposals to me that involved numbers substantially higher than Mr. Loconto's," Hill said. "I rejected these as not being adequately supported."

If there is no out-of-court settlement, Blackwell will hear evidence in the case and determine the amount of the increase.

Under the agreed-to rate schedule, Hill said, Bell will be allowed to increase its intrastate rates $15 million from the date of the agreement until March, 1976, and approximately $25 million from then until March of 1977.

It thus becomes obvious that ad we not filed this legal challenge to Bell's announced $45 million annual increase in intrastate long distance telephone rates. Texas users of this service would have paid at least $90 million in increased charges for use of this service between the period of March, 1975, and March, 1977," Hill said.

The new schedule will, if confirmed by the court, result in these charges being reduced through the period of time in question to the approximate amount of $40 million.

Hill said he never questioned whether Bell "was entitled to a rate increase." But he said the $45 million figure the company announced was unreasonable and evidence to that effect had not been challenged by Bell.

He said Bell officials agreed to the new rate schedule in a meeting Thursday.

The eighth annual Miss Top O' Texas Pageant will begin at 8 p. m. today in M.K. Brown Auditorium. Thirty-four young women from the Texas Panhandle will be competing for cash prizes and a Miss Congeniality honor. The contestants, with assistance from emcee Dean Kelley and the current Miss Top O' Texas, Dee Ann Flowers, rehearsed Thursday night in the auditorium. White House Warns CIA Probers of Sensitivity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House warned a House intelligence committee it was probing an "extremely sensitive" area in its investigation of alleged eavesdropping of overseas telephone calls by Americans. The committee chairman said today.

In an open session of the committee, the director of the National Security Agency declined public testimony on the allegations.

"I believe a discussion of this question is properly handled in closed session," said Gen. Lew Allen Jr., head of the supersecret Defense Department agency. The committee then went into closed session to hear Allen.

In a statement read to the House Select Committee on Intelligence, Allen called the interception of telephone calls and other electronic transmissions to foreign countries one of America's "real secrets."

"We are drowning in labels, like top secret and classified," said committee Chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., who revealed he had been contacted by White House representatives earlier today.

"Prior to the meeting, I was contacted by representatives of the White House who advised me that the area which we are now addressing involves extremely sensitive information," Pike said.

Earlier committee testimony from other witnesses indicated the NSA was monitoring calls and messages to foreign countries and it was "technically impossible" to exclude calls made by American citizens.

The NSA is the Pentagon's department in charge of coding and decoding and protecting U.S. communication from foreign intelligence.

NSA general counsel Roy Banner testified today it was his understanding that interceptions of communications with "a foreign power" are exempt from any court wiretap regulations.

"I feel very strongly that telephone communications of American citizens are being intercepted," Pike told Allen. "American citizens want to know how, and why, and whether they want to spend money on this operation."

"Now does NSA intercept communications by Americans. You can tell us yes or no?" Allen then responded that he would rather not discuss the matter in open session.

"I came primarily to talk about the budget," Allen said. "It is going to be difficult for me to respond in open session."

In Thursday's session, Eugene Walsh, assistant director of the FBI's administrative division, reluctantly revealed in public for the first time that $82,488,000 of the current $499,546,000 annual FBI budget is devoted to counterespionage, security against potential terrorists and in intelligence regarding organized and ordinary crime.

But he dodged detailed questions on how much is spent on electronic bugging of Americans or foreigners, how many spies have been caught or who is listed in its files with noncriminal backgrounds.

Walsh did estimate "off the top of my head" that the bureau has spent $500,000 so far in the fruitless search for Patricia Hearst.

IRS commissioner Alexander was more specific.

"Only an estimated $4.3 million of the intelligence division's fiscal 75 budget of $100 million was spent on generalized information gathering," he said.

"Much of the resources expended in this activity relates to the evaluation of tens of thousands of unsolicited 'tips' which the service receives from the public each year."

A high FBI official estimated today that the bureau has spent more than $599,000 in the so-far fruitless search for fugitive Patricia Hearst.

Weather

Clear skies and mild temperatures are forecast today through Saturday. The highs will be in the 90s, and the lows in the 60s.

Reds, Hostages Arrive in Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Ten Japanese Red Army guerrillas and their volunteer hostages arrived in Libya today, ending a five-day drama that began with the seizure of 53 persons at the U.S. embassy in Malaysia.

The guerrillas, including one woman, surrendered their arms to Libyan authorities and were rushed to the airport VIP lounge. Three ambulances believed carrying the ten later sped to Tripoli.

The Japanese Airlines DC8 carrying the terrorists, four diplomats who agreed to accompany them and a nine-man Japanese crew landed in Tripoli at 3:13 a.m. (8:13 p.m. EDT Thursday).

Before leaving Kuala Lumpur 15 hours earlier, the five Red Army members who stormed the embassy released the last 15 of their hostages in exchange for five comrades freed from Japanese jails.

Osman Cassim, a Malaysian diplomat and volunteer hostage, said the 10 guerrillas remained at the back of the plane throughout the trip while the crewmembers and hostages stayed up front.

"We had no communications with them at all," he said.

Libyan Communications Minister Nuri Feituri said he and another government official went aboard the plane, parked under floodlights on a runway half a mile from the terminal, and asked the guerrillas for their weapons.

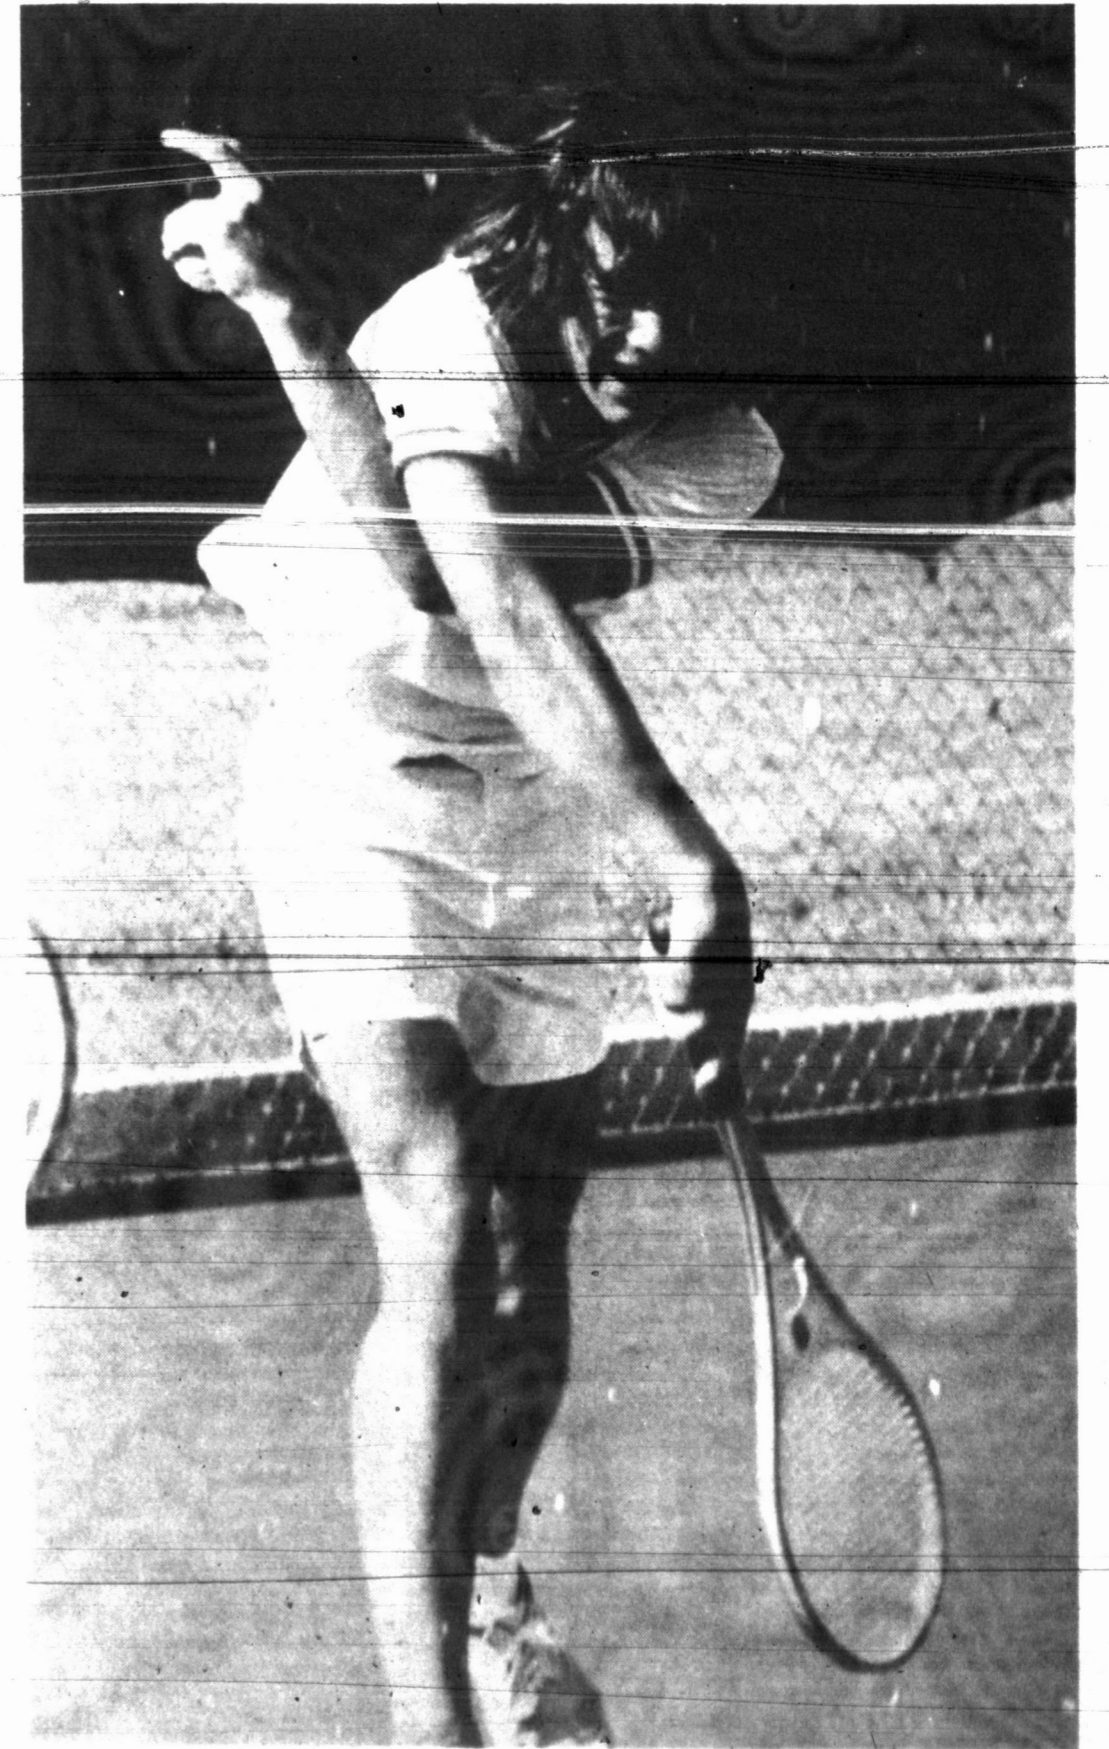

"They surrendered without resistance," he said.

The ten, wearing white shirts and looking tired but alert, boarded two minibuses for the ride to the airport lounge. Newsmen were quickly herded away when the buses arrived.

Asked what would happen to the guerrillas, one Libyan official said, "it will be decided in time."

There was no official word on when the crew and diplomatic hostages would leave Tripoli.

The drama began Monday when the five terrorists seized the embassy offices in downtown Kuala Lumpur, took 53

President Gets Tough With Israel, Welfare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing "too many abuses" in the welfare system, President Ford said Thursday the present program should be junked or tightened up.

Shortly after Ford taped his television interview, the government announced the nation's welfare roll had reached a record high in April, the latest month for which national statistics are available.

Despite the increase in April, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the rate of growth of the welfare rolls is slowing.

Ford said he will have Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller look into the welfare system in public hearings around the country this fall.

In an interview with Public Broadcasting System reporters, President Ford said "a good many Americans think that there are too many abuses both in welfare and food stamps, and I think there are too many abuses."

"If we could correct the abuses, we could be more compassionate to the people who have a real need," he said.

"There is no doubt that the present welfare program either ought to be junked and a substitute put in its place, or the present welfare program has to be tightened up very, very greatly," he said.

President Ford also has delivered a stern message to Israel. Adopt greater flexibility in negotiations with Egypt or see an increased potential for war and confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He made his comments in a wide-ranging interview with Martin Agronsky and Paul Duke on the Public Broadcast System Thursday night.

"If there isn't movement in the Middle East right now the potential for war is increased significantly. And a war in the Middle East has broader potential ramifications than any time in the past and we have had four wars in the Middle East since 1946 or 1947.

"A fifth one not only means that Israel will be fighting the Arabs but the potential of a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union is a possibility."

Speaking of Israel and Egypt, Ford said "Both of those countries have to understand that flexibility at this crucial time is important for the peace of that area of the world and possibly for the world. Israel has to be more flexible, and I think Egypt has to respond."

He said the Soviets "have acted in a very responsible way during my time in the Middle East. I think they understand the potential consequences of no progress for continued peace and understanding in the Middle East."

He said prospects for achieving a long sought interim peace settlement between Israel and Egypt "are better today than they were yesterday, and they are a lot better today than they were last March when the negotiations unfortunately broke off."

"I am optimistic on an increasing basis, but I have learned that until it is signed in black and white that I shouldn't predict that it will be finalized."

Israeli ambassador Simcha Dinitz met with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Thursday night and gave him a reply to Egypt's response to previous Israeli proposals.

The speed of Dinitz' reply 48 hours after he got the Egyptian answer, indicated the tempo of the peace talks has measurably quickened.

Smog Spreads to Country

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smog is now plaguing rural areas as well as big cities, and it may be necessary to impose pollution controls in small towns, says the Environmental Protection Agency. Citing a new report, the agency said Thursday smog harmful to health is much more widespread than previously thought, with the nation's big cities acting like giant smokestacks spewing clouds of pollution that drift perhaps hundreds of miles into the countryside.

The initial measurements were made in rural areas of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland, the EPA said, with additional readings being taken this summer in other parts of the country. But already, it said, it is clear that smog, primarily from cars, is more than just an urban problem.

The report came shortly after President Ford asked Congress to further relax the Clean Air Act by freezing the exhaust standards for cars for the next five years.

But EPA Administrator Russell Train, asked what implication the report had for that request, said, "I honestly think probably very little."

He said the report was more of a long-term matter as opposed to short-term changes in the law.

Train told a news conference smog "is more widespread than originally believed and is occurring in some rural areas as well as urban areas."

The controls that might as a result be needed for nonurban areas would include the inspection of automobiles to make sure exhaust control devices are maintained properly, as well as curbs on the emission of fumes from gasoline stations and dry cleaning establishments.

Transportation controls or other limits on automobile use are not envisioned, Train said.

At the moment those kinds of controls are in effect or planned in only 30 urban areas around the country.

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Researching the research

Research agencies make a good case for projects that draw the ridicule of some lawmakers, notably Wisconsin Sen. William Proxmire, as a frivolous waste of the taxpayers' money. An examination of the sex life of the gypsy moth, for example, although it drew snickers when brought to the attention of Congress, reportedly has aided in fighting a gypsy-moth infestation in areas of the Northeast. But the justification for such studies as an $81,000 probe of the social behavior of the Alaskan brown bear, a $36,500 investigation of the song habits of parasitic finches and a $15,000 evaluation of American hitchhiking eludes the layman concerned with government spending and a record budget deficit. The House has responded to voter complaints and indicated its own doubts by approving an amendment which would give Congress veto power over National Science Foundation grants. The proposed congressional review seems to be a reasonable step to assuring that research dollars go to programs promising worthwhile scientific development.

What About That Other CIA

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — This probably is as good a time as any to reveal the long-held secret that there are two Central Intelligence Agencies. One is the well-known Washington-based international intelligence-gathering and "event-manipulating" organization directed from the highest levels of the U.S. government. Everyone has been reading plenty about it lately.

The other CIA, the secret one, is a company in suburban Virginia, a federally owned company believed to be associated with global information gathering and other activities. This CIA doesn't like to disclose too much about itself or its 10,000 (some say 15,000) loyal workers.

Unfortunately, the Rockefeller Commission looked only at the not-so-secret CIA. This other one also uses up a lot of tax money just to stay in business (sort of like Amtrak), and the American people are entitled to a few facts. Such as:

— This federal company has a chorus that sings carols to its workers at Christmas-time, plus prayer and Bible study groups.

— There are CIA knitting and crocheting clubs, two softball leagues (one team is named "The Good Guys") and a skeet-shooting club ("The Sitting Ducks").

— Workers can buy from a discount store on the premises, purchase tickets to Redskins football games, belong to their own military reserve unit and enjoy their own in-house magazine (which is classified secret, possibly because it includes knowledgeable reviews of the latest spy novels).

— The company telephone book is classified secret, too, but not all employees are listed. And the cafeteria has two separate sections — one for visitors and not-so-secret workers, the other for employees who don't want to be seen or overheard by just any coworkers.

— And the CIA's Fine Arts Commission at this very moment is considering whether to replace the artificial grass outside the cafeteria with real grass.

This CIA had been scattered in unlabeled offices around downtown until moving in 1961 to its $90 million, 213-acre complex a few miles up the Potomac River in the McLean section of Fairfax County. It is shielded from public view by dense woods and from intruders by a 12-foot barbed wire fence and patrolling guards.

Although the CIA's huge facility never was much of a secret to the people who live in the Washington area (and that includes plenty of Washington-based representatives of Moscow and Peking), it wasn't until two years ago that highway exit signs were erected pointing the way. Before that, you had to know that the exit labeled "Fairbank Highway Testing Station" led to the CIA's headquarters as well.

CIA workers — from typing-pool drones to electronics wizards to spies in from the cold — jam Route 123 during rush hours as they commute to and from their suburban homes. On weekends they worry about crabgrass, watch their kids grow up and socialize mostly with other CIA employees.

They work for the single biggest industry in sprawling Fairfax County, yet they are virtually invisible to the non-CIA community.

While other big companies urge their employees to get involved in community affairs, the CIA encourages just the opposite.

It creates a strain on CIA employees to have to be so evasive with their non-CIA neighbors about their jobs. Most CIA people here are reconciled to fulfilling themselves in their work, in their company activities behind the barbed wire fence or in backyard barbecues with colleagues.

Time To Sacrifice

The Equal Rights Amendment is having trouble on the road to ratification by the states, but its principle is burning bright at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Secretary Caspar Weinberger says schools and colleges getting federal aid, which means most of them, must hereafter give boys and girls equal access to athletic programs in all but "contact" sports.

This may be a triumph for sex equality, but it could be something else for sportsmanship if schools have to do away with separate athletic events for boys and girls. Not to mention campus romance. What does a guy do when the intramural baseball cup is at stake the score is tied in the bottom of the ninth, the bases are loaded and he's at bat — and the pitcher is the girl he has a date with for the senior prom?

"O.K. JUNIOR... IT'S TIME YOU LEARNED TO FLY!"

Why Detente Alternative Needed?

Nothing that President Ford's foreign policies are receiving more criticism. The Wall Street Journal matter-of-factly asserted on its front page recently: "Foes of detente offer no coherent alternative so far." An interesting construction: Should each policy an administration inaugurates necessarily have an "alternative?" Not necessarily. There are lots of things on this planet the mere absence of which constitutes a more desirable circumstance. Detente, as it is presently being carried out, is one of those. The Journal itself has made much of the utter uselessness (to the West) of the Helsinki conference; in fact the agreement reached there with the Soviets can only be seen as a negative exercise, further darkening the plight of captive East Europeans. President Ford would have done better simply staying away. So it is with detente in a larger sense. No one, not even Aleksandre Solzhenitsyn, disputes the notion that the two superpowers should do everything possible to avert thermonuclear warfare. That was always the reason, the incontestable reason, given for detente. Still, the Kremlin, not especially wanting to get in to such a war anyway, utilizes the umbrella of aversion to advance its imperialism with non-nuclear strategy. And the United States has dropped its guard even towards that.

Detente has come to mean much more than the reduction of military tensions. It has come to mean American taxpayers being forced to give assistance to the masters of the abysmal Soviet economy, whose failure should frankly be encouraged by our holding back. It has come to mean the political leaders of our nations exchanging toasts as the prisoners of the Gulag undergo torture. It has come to mean acknowledging the perpetuity of Communist enslavement over the better part of the globe.

To suggest withholding all the economic sanctions, all the props of an inhumane and anachronistic economic philosophy, all the subsidies of totalitarianism, all the diplomatic give-ins — to suggest such, we should like to reiterate, does not by any stretch of the imagination ask for a return to military brinkmanship and swaggering machismo. Yet exactly that stretch of imagination is being made when it is charged the critics of detente would favor a renewal of the Cold War (which never ended anyway; ask anybody on the street in Lisbon). In fact, what Solzhenitsyn and his co-dissenters would practice is a kind of passive resistance towards superpower cynicism which threatens to plunge the world into a dark age.

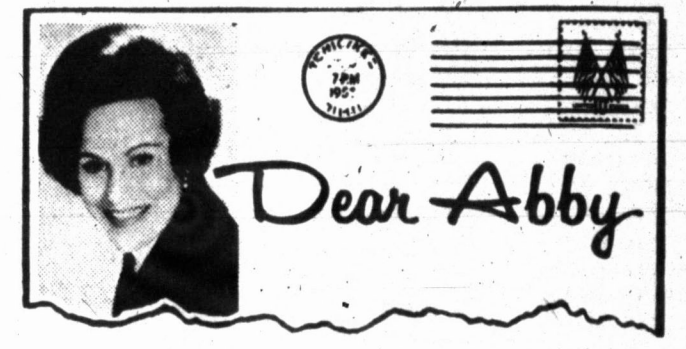

Perplexing List of Whys

Most individuals, we imagine, have their own pet list of questions which might be classified as falling into the "Why?" or "How Come?" Department. Here's a partial listing which are particularly puzzling:

- If smoking is dangerous, as the federal government mandated warning on cigarette packages says, how come that same federal government is subsidizing tobacco growing with taxpayer money?
- Why is the making of bogus money called "counterfeiting" when done by individuals, but "deficit financing" when done by the government?
- If "bigness" in government is considered to be good, as Statists seem to believe, how would think of allowing those same bureaucrats to choose the hat Mom wears on Sunday or the golf club Dad swings on the links?

- Why is "foreign aid" a one-way street; always out never in?
- If "monopoly" is bad and subject to "anti-trusts" laws if attempted by industries, how come "anti-trust" exempt labor union monopolies are not considered in the same light?
- If all are "equal" as we have been taught to believe, then how can some demand special laws for their benefit without admitting that they are not trying their best?
- Why, if bribery is immoral and unlawful, does the same standard not apply to the voting process in which the voters and candidates bribe each other — the voters with their ballots, and the candidates with their promises of goodies?
- And finally, how come the taking of property without the consent of the owner is called "theft" when indulged in by individuals, but something else when indulged in by governments?

Widowed Spouses With Good Marriages Go for Second Round

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: George and I have been married for 32 years, and with so many of his friends dropping dead of heart attacks and my friends dying of cancer, we started talking about what we would do if the other one were to die. I told George that if he were to die, I'd never marry again, and he said I obviously didn't have a very high opinion of our marriage.

Then George told me that if I were to die, he would definitely marry again, which proved that he thought more of our marriage than I did. I asked him if he had anybody in mind, and he named a woman whose husband is still living. I asked him what about her husband, and he said, "Well, if YOU can die, HE can die, too, so I'm just assuming you were both dead." One word led to another, and now we aren't speaking. Abby, is it true that people who think highly of their marriage will marry again if a spouse dies, and those who don't, will not?

If that's true, I'll apologize. — GLADYS

DEAR GLADYS: Apologize.

DEAR ABBY: To begin with, from August through December of last year, I had a running battle with the credit department of a large, well-known, high-class, New York-based department store. They claimed I owed them $100.

After much correspondence, they finally admitted that due to a computer error, instead of MY owing them $100, THEY owed me 10¢!

For the last six months, they have been sending me a monthly notice that I have a credit of 10¢.

Abby, so far, it has cost them 60¢ in postage to call my attention to a 10¢ credit. Don't you agree that this is absurd?

It's no wonder the state of New York is broke. Those know-it-all easterners think they are so smart that nobody can tell them a thing.

Please print your comments on this ridiculous situation, and I will gladly spend a dime to mail it to them. — HAD IT IN L.A.

DEAR HAD IT: I agree, it's foolish to spend 10¢ month after month to inform a customer of a 10¢ credit. But why indict a whole state for the nonsensical business practice of one company?

DEAR ABBY: A woman complained that her husband deserted her and their children, and when she tried to locate him through the Social Security office, they told her he was alive, but they refused to disclose his whereabouts. (You said, "Even bums have rights.")

No more! Beginning July 1st, a new law has gone into effect that permits wives to have access to federal data (I.R.S., Social Security, Civil Service, Defense Dept., etc.) to locate deserting ex-spouses who have failed to pay, alimony and/or child support.

Designed primarily to keep mothers off welfare, the law can be used to locate even middle-class or upper-class nonsupporters.

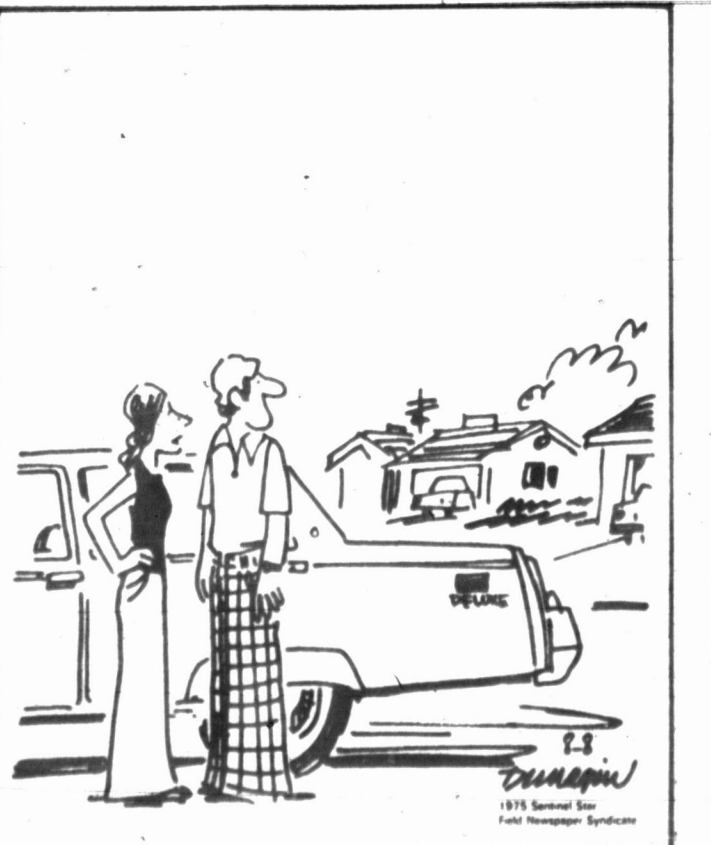

It would be helpful if you published the following address of the Parent Locator Service because so few attorneys, and even fewer mothers whose husbands have deserted them, know of its existence:

James S. Dwight, Jr., Administrator
Social and Rehabilitation Service
Room 5004, M.E. Switzer Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20201

Sincerely,
S.M.S.: Pamona Attorney

DEAR MR. S.: Thank you for the extremely helpful information. Thousands of deserted wives will bless you tonight. And an equal number of runaway spouses who have been successfully hiding out will curse you.

McLean Firemen Say Thanks

Fire Fighters

McLean's new $40,000 fire truck was on display at the city park Thursday where the 42nd annual firemen's picnic was held. Jim McDonald, left, fire chief and Boyd Meador, who has 51 years of volunteer experience with the fire fighting, look over the new vehicle.

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
The work of the McLean Fire Department was hailed Thursday night during the 42nd annual picnic at city park.
Ted Simmons, Gray County commissioner from McLean, told the 125 persons who attended that the fire department's 22 volunteers dedicate themselves without praise.
"We have a lot of dedicated men who also operate the volunteer ambulance service. They are well trained in first aid," he said.
Mayor Sam Haynes said McLean residents don't have to ask "why aren't they catching dogs, fogging mosquitos or mowing weeds?"
"These men are busy all the time," Haynes emphasized. He said the department is one of the finest anywhere.

Gray County pays the McLean fire department $100 for every call outside the city limits plus mileage on the trucks. However, firemen save that money and return it to city to purchase equipment.
Jim McDonald, fire chief and president of the ambulance service, said the picnic is the firemen's way of saying Thank You to the community.

The 22 volunteer firemen represent combined 350 years of service. Boyd Meador alone has 51 years in volunteer work in fire departments. More than 40 years of that time has been in McLean. He began his firemen's career in Clarendon.

Carey Don Smith, secretary of the firemen's group, presented McDonald an appreciation gift on behalf of the department.
McDonald said the department answers an average of 60 calls annually; 80 per cent are outside the city limits.
The average loss is $5,000 a year, but in 1974, the loss was estimated $45,000, one person died as a result of a fire.
Gray County Sheriff and Mrs. Rufe Jordan, County treasurer Jean Scott and her husband, Lefors Commissioner Joe Clarke, Justice of Peace Dorothy Beck of McLean, Texas Highway patrolmen and other county and city officials were among the special guests.

Nixon Peeks from Shell

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon appears to be taking the first tentative steps out of the isolation that has been his lifestyle since he announced a year ago today he was resigning the presidency.

On the evening of Aug. 8, 1974, Nixon went on national television to tell the American people that he thought it was in the best interests of the country for him to step down. He was faced with impeachment proceedings in the Watergate scandal.

The next morning, as Air Force One was flying over the Middle West, the office passed to Gerald Ford. When Nixon landed in California he was just another citizen.

Nixon has not set foot outside California since. He has, in fact, ventured out of his San Clemente estate no more than a dozen times and then no more than a hundred miles on pleasure drives, to a party at Palm Springs and to a hospital in Long Beach.

But there are indications on this first anniversary of his fall from power that he intends to break out of the self imposed shell.

On July 31, he played host at his home here to some 20 fellow members of the "Cave Man Camp" of the Bohemian Grove, a group that meets yearly in a retreat north of San Francisco. The "Cave Man" was the camp of former President Herbert Hoover.

Among his guests were veteran newscaster Lowell Thomas; Emil "Bus" Mosbacher, the America's Cup skipper and former chief of protocol at the State Department; San Francisco restaurateur George Markikian and camp captain Bob Swain of Dallas.

It was the first social occasion at the Nixon home in the entire year. He has had visits from close friends Charles "Bebe" Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp and daughters Tricia and Julie and their husbands have spent some days there on birthdays, anniversaries and during their vacations.

President Ford called on him at the hospital a few days after his operation to control a phlebotic condition. Henry Kissinger visited here briefly. Two of the powers of the Republican party, Barry Goldwater and Ronald Reagan, have paid calls.

From friends to whom he has made telephone calls, he has been ascertained he is working on a book of memoirs but apparently has got only as far as the year 1946. He is handicapped because the issue of possession of his presidential papers and Watergate tapes is in litigation.

His personal staff now apparently numbers four secretaries and Col. Jack Brennan, his former military aide who replaced his longtime secretary, Rose Mary Woods, who has retired on pension.

Droughts Threaten To Up Food Prices

CHICAGO (UPI) — A killing combination of droughts and frosts in major crop producing areas of the world has sent grain futures skyrocketing and threatens to bring another round of increased food prices to American consumers.

Grain futures — prices quoted for delivery of grain at a future date — rose the trading in principal markets Thursday.

The increases — which if continued would be reflected in consumer prices when the promised grains are delivered — have been blamed on hot, dry weather which has cut into projected record crops in the northern hemisphere, and frost and drought that has crippled crop development in producing nations across the equator.

Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade closed at contract highs in March, May and July wheat and in May and July corn.

The CBOT reported the lure of even higher prices also forced many farmers to hold back their corn, increasing buying pressure.

In Kansas City, wheat futures climbed 17-20 cents a bushel and similar prices were quoted at Minneapolis.

The jumps followed reports that European and Australian crops are suffering from dryness, and frost damage in Brazil was beginning to cause considerable concern in that nation.

The upward movement also was triggered by reports the Soviet Union will need to buy more grain in the international markets than had been thought originally.

A healthy winter wheat crop is already in bins in the United States but a spokesman for the Kansas City Board of Trade said the ill-effects of drought and heat affecting parts of the corn belt would benefit wheat farmers as well in terms of higher prices for their already harvested grain.

There was one possible ameliorating factor. The National Weather Service said dry areas of the corn belt might get relieving rains in the next few days if a developing weather system comes up to its full potential.

Electrical shocks from appliance cords injure 3,500 persons seriously enough to require medical care every year.

Raiders' Aim: Millions

HOUSTON (UPI) — Comptroller Bob Bullock reached down to the table beside him and pulled the bulky blue binder filled with computer printouts into view. With an incredulous look on his face he flipped through page after page documenting delinquent sales tax accounts owed the state.

He wasn't happy with the computer's report of business negligence and the warning he issued 12,000 local businessmen owing $12 million was stern and humorless.

"They have heard the thunder and now the lightning is going to strike," Bullock told reporters. "We expect it and we are going to go out and get it. They have between now and Monday to come in and pay us."

Bullock said delinquent accounts in the Houston area owed hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes. He said he had personally warned many of the businesses he was coming to town with his tax agents to collect.

"I can assure you some people are making a living off sales taxes," he said.

Bullock, who replaced 25-year veteran Comptroller Robert S. Calvert in January, began the unprecedented raids for back taxes in May, seizing over 15,000 cases of liquor, beer and wine from a three-store San Antonio liquor chain.

Since then his agents have visited 23 businesses in Dallas, Fort Worth, Killeen, Conroe and Austin. About $900,000 in merchandise is awaiting public auction.

Bullock said businesses in Houston had been the most reluctant in the state to pay and his office has collected only about $100,000 since July 1.

"I hope no one feels sorry for these delinquents," he said. "These delinquents know our people on a first-name basis. Our agents have been in their offices five, 10, 15 and in some cases even 20 times month after month, year after year trying to get these cases settled."

Bullock, critical of the previous administration which did not aggressively pursue tax collections, said his office had records dating back only to 1968.

He said the state had no delinquent tax records from 1961 to 1968.

Pampa Air Field Sets Third Reunion Saturday

William A. Poe, a retired colonel who served 1942-1944 at the Air Corps Advanced Flying School at the Pampa Army Field, will be the guest of honor Saturday at the third annual reunion of the PAAF. About 100 former PAAF residents were expected to arrive in Pampa today and a reception is set for 7 p.m. at the Coronado Inn.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in M.K. Brown Auditorium. A meeting is set for 2 p.m. and the banquet will be at 7:30 p.m.

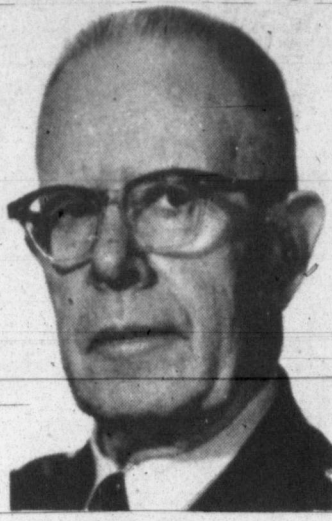

Poe first was assigned to duty at the Pampa base as post quartermaster. He later served as director of supply and director of supply and maintenance.

Speaker for the banquet will be C. Ralph Blodgett of Spearman, president, general manager and founder of B and B Farm Industries, Inc. Greetings will be by Dallas F. "Tex" DeWeese, editor of the Pampa Daily News.

Mrs. Nina Spoonmore, a vice president of the PAAF association, said that about 6,000 cadets graduated from the base's training school between December 1942 and the September 1945 closing date.

She said that the resident population at the base was about 3,000.

Middle East Peace Said Near

By United Press International
Israeli reports in Tel Aviv said today indirect negotiations between Israel and Egypt on a new Sinai withdrawal pact have shifted into high gear. One report put current chances of success as high as 70 per cent.

The Israeli press reports appeared as Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin huddled with his negotiating team for the second successive day to consider Egyptian proposals on a new accord.

The team's preliminary appraisal of the proposals, received in Tel Aviv Wednesday, was transmitted Thursday to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Washington.

The appraisal repeated Israel's position and did not for the time being show any movement from its "final offer" delivered to Cairo last week, the newspaper Ma'ariv said.

But the newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said "the tempo of the negotiations" has gone into high gear and "generally, there is optimism in Washington and Jerusalem, and in Jerusalem the chances for success have been estimated as up to 70 per cent."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday the negotiations had reached their final stages and the results should be known in several weeks.

In Washington, President Ford said Thursday both Israel and Egypt "have to understand that flexibility at this crucial time is important for the peace of that area of the world and possibly for the world. Israel has to be more flexible, and I think Egypt has to respond."

In a television interview, Ford also warned that a new Middle East war "not only means that Israel will be fighting the Arabs but the potential of a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union is a possibility."

Peres told the U.S.-Israel chamber of commerce in Tel

Aviv Thursday that Egypt's proposals, as relayed by Washington, "will make a good base for the continuation of the talks."

"We find ourselves today in the final stages of negotiations on an interim agreement, but we will have to wait a number of weeks before we know the results," he said.

The Israeli national radio said Secretary of State Henry

Kissinger was pressing Israel to come up with quicker replies and speed the negotiations so he can resume his Middle East diplomatic shuttle trips by the middle of this month.

Kissinger made the point in a note that came with the Egyptian response, the radio said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Robert Anderson denied the report.

Denver Guru Avoids Eviction

DENVER (UPI) — Zoning officials have been prevented temporarily from evicting followers of the Guru Maharaj Ji from a private home used as a monastery.

District Judge Robert T. Kingsley Thursday issued an order allowing 13 Divine Light Mission members to remain in the home pending a hearing on claims the zoning order was discriminatory.

On July 22, city zoning officials said use of the home by members of the mission, headed by the Guru Maharaj Ji, violated laws regarding single-family dwellings.

Good Humor Ice Cream People Aren't Laughing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Good Humor Corp. has been charged with knowingly selling bacteria-laden ice cream and with keeping false records to mislead state inspectors.

"It's like finding out your mother doesn't know how to make apple pie," said Agriculture Commissioner John Dyson in announcing the indictments Thursday.

The ice cream manufacturer was named in 244 counts involving the alleged sale of contaminated products. The indictment also names a Good Humor official and a former quality control official.

The company, famous for its bell-ringing trucks selling a variety of ice cream concoctions, was indicted on 122 felony counts of falsifying business records and 122 misdemeanor counts of making and selling adulterated food. If convicted on all counts, the fines could total $1.281 million.

A Good Humor spokesman would not comment on the charge of falsification of records but said the bacteria coliform, allegedly found in samples of the firm's product, are "not harmful to health or dangerous in any way."

but some were accidentally mixed with the true documents.

Gold said some samples of ice cream had 200 times the legal limit of coliform content and others had a bacteriological rating "too numerous to count."

Dyson, which agreeing with the company that coliform is not harmful, said high coliform counts are "indicative of unsanitary conditions" which could result in illness.

Indicted with the company were Donald Kennedy, 44, Good Humor's director of manufacturing, and James Cerram, 38, former director for quality control.

Thunderstorm Sends Jet Plummeting to Earth

DENVER (UPI) — Earl Clayton is no stranger to jet travel. He felt the plane lose power Thursday and thought, "My God, so this is how it's going to end."

Clayton, 43, an administrative aide to Rep. William Armstrong, D-Colo., was sitting in the seventh row of the first-class section of a Continental Airlines 727 which had just taken off from Stapleton International Airport.

"Genefer takeoff there is a slight drop and then a surge of power," he said. "When I didn't feel the surge I knew we were going in. The pilot did an absolutely magnificent job of setting us down as gently as he did. It could have been over for all of us."

Thirty-nine of the 131 persons aboard were injured. One passenger was in serious condition with a fractured spine but the rest, taken to five area hospitals by ambulance and helicopter, suffered less severe injuries.

"Construction men working on a new runway just east of the crash site said winds blew the roof off a metal maintenance shed just about the time the plane went down."

Little Will Not Face Death

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Chief state medical examiner Page Hudson, the defense's first witness in the Joan Little murder trial, testified today the wounds on slain jailer Clarence Alligood's body indicated some type of struggle.

Hudson testified he evaluated the reports of Beaufort County Coroner Harry M. Carpenter and Dr. Charles F. Gilbert, who conducted the autopsy on Alligood.

"Is the placement of the wounds in your opinion consistent with some type of struggle?" chief defense attorney Jerry Paul asked.

"Yes, sir," Hudson replied. "The wounds were consistent with some type of struggle."

The defense called Hudson to the stand after unsuccessfully trying to get Superior Court Judge Hamilton H. Hobgood to dismiss or further reduce the charge against Miss Little.

The young black woman was originally charged with first degree murder, a crime punishable in North Carolina only by execution. With 83 convicts under such sentence, the state has the largest death row population in the nation. After the prosecution rested its case Wednesday, Hobgood reduced the charge to either second degree murder, which carries a maximum life term, or voluntary manslaughter, punishable by up to 20 years behind bars.

"I'm so glad I no longer have to worry about whether or not Joan will have to go to the gas chamber," chief defense attorney Jerry Paul told reporters after court. "We will put on some witnesses that the state would have put on if they had been interested in the truth."

The state abruptly rested its case Wednesday. Hobgood first turned down the defense's motion to dismiss the first-degree charge, then approved a motion to reduce the charge to second-degree murder.

Defense attorneys argued that through the eight days of testimony of the state's 18 witnesses prosecution attorneys had not offered enough evidence to prove Miss Little stabbed jailer Clarence Alligood with an icepick.

Paul argued the prosecution's case was built around "surmise and conjecture."

"The strongest point in this case is the icepick," Paul said, waving the battered weapon before Hobgood. "If the state can't put the icepick in her possession, then the state has no case."

Alligood, 62, was found partially nude and stabbed to death in Miss Little's Beaufort County Jail cell Aug. 27, 1974. Miss Little, 21, was awaiting appeal of a breaking and entering conviction, when she fled from her cell.

She surrendered eight days later, claiming Alligood tried to rape her. The prosecution sought to prove she lured Alligood to her cell with promises of sex and killed him as part of an escape plan.

Special prosecutor John Wilkinson argued Miss Little had motive to kill the jailer.

"The first was love," said Wilkinson. "The second was out."

Compete Tonight

These two young women will be competing with 32 others from the Top of Texas tonight at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The Miss Top O' Texas pageant will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets for the event are available at the door. These two contestants and their sponsors are Holly McMullen, left, Behrman's, and Jennifer McCausland, Pampa Opti - Mrs. Club.

Rocky Not Campaigning-Much

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller says he isn't campaigning for the 1976 vice presidential nomination, but he has set up a travel schedule for September and October that only a politician could love.

Rockefeller will kick off his noncampaign with a lavish party in his native state of Maine this month. In the following weeks he will visit New York, Alabama, Texas, South Carolina, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Michigan, Virginia and Oregon.

"I'm not running for anything," Rockefeller insists.

The White House is encouraging the vice president's travel, a Rockefeller aide said Wednesday. President Ford has urged Rockefeller to get out to meet Republicans in an attempt to lessen conservative dislike of the vice president.

And he plans to address the nation's lieutenant governors in Mobile, Ala.

Democrats Hear About Optimist

Optimistic Thoughts was the program topic Monday night for the Top of Texas Democratic Club meeting in Pampa.

Ross Buzzard, a Pampa attorney, was speaker.

"Even though American citizens have had cause for alarm there is still an optimistic viewpoint," Buzzard told the group.

"Citizens of this country have had other crises and have been able to survive because of our Constitutional form of government."

The speaker cited various times in history when the nation was faced with serious vital problems.

"By constitutional procedure we have been able to surmount these difficulties. We can do it again," he said.

The next meeting will be Sept. 8 — a week later than regularly scheduled due to Labor Day holiday.

State Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo will be the speaker, according to the announcement made by J.L. Holmes, club president.

Air Mail Stamps May Be Cancelled

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)— Air mail stamps may soon be a relic of the past and first class postage stamps probably will cost more in the future, says
Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar.

Bailar told a news conference
the exact price of first class postage, now 10 cents, will be determined by hearings being conducted by the Postal Rate Commission.

He said the Postal Service is looking into a General Accounting Office study which suggests the closing of 12,000 rural post offices to save $100 million a year without reducing services.

"The new rate for postage stamps will depend in part on proceedings that are currently taking place before the Postal Rate Commission," Bailar said.

"One thing I think is fair to say is that it will not be more than 13 cents; that would be the outside.
"It's likely to be sometime between December 1 and February 1."

Bailar said the Postal Service

originally hoped to eliminate air mail service completely by Aug.
1 because upgraded
transportation makes first class equally as rapid, but the proposal now is being studied along with the rate increases.

"I would rather expect that air mail would no longer be necessary by the end of the year," he said. "And if it's no longer necessary, of course we'll eliminate it and on long hauls we'll provide air mail service for the price of the basic first class mail."

Bailar, who became postmaster general six months ago, said third class rates of "junk mail" advertising materials also would be adjusted, but said he felt that class of mail already was paying its own way.

He said third class currently is moved for 6 1/2 cents but is presented, delivered to the post office with zip codes required and is not as "time sensitive" as first class.

politics, are ready, willing and perhaps eager to make another run for the White House.

But the three veteran Democrats will not actively seek the 1976 presidential nomination.
Each stands waiting for a bolt of lightning that has not struck for 28 years.

Their chances for winning the most cherished prize in American politics, which in turn has eluded each, ride on the possibility a deadlocked national convention might pick one of them to lead the party against the Republicans next fall.

Neither major party has had a convention since 1948 that took more than one ballot to nominate a presidential candidate. The Democrats have had first-ballot nominations since 1936, when they dropped their two-thirds rule for a simple majority nomination.

But the Democrats have adopted a complex set of delegate selection rules for 1976 that will make it much harder for a single strong candidate to eliminate opposition in the primaries and state conventions.

Some observers think four and perhaps six candidates

may arrive at the convention July 12 with enough delegate support to stay in the nomination fight but not enough to win on an early ballot.

Humphrey, Muskie and McGovern have adopted a strategy of staying out of next year's primaries and making no attempt to corral delegates. But the three are certain to be on hand in the convention city—either to receive the plaudits reserved for party leaders of the past or to emerge from a smoke-filled room as the presidential candidate.

Of the three, Humphrey, 64—energetic as ever—appears to have the most urgent itch to wage yet one more national campaign. And many political experts—Democrats as well as Republicans—are convinced the party will turn to the veteran Minnesota liberal in 1976.

Humphrey certainly is not doing anything to discourage this thinking.

"I am not a candidate," Humphrey says. "I will not run in the primaries or seek delegates. But if they do come and offer me the nomination, I would accept, and run, and win."

Humphrey was Lyndon Johnson's running-mate in 1964, won the nomination in 1968 only to be elected by Richard Nixon, and was beaten for the nomination in 1972 by McGovern.

Humphrey has a huge reservoir of support in the party hierarchy, with labor, and among blacks.

And time may have dimmed memories of his association with Johnson's Vietnam War policies, which probably cost him the 1968 election. But there still may exist resentment
among McGovern supporters over Humphrey's attempt to grab some of the California delegation in 1972 after the winner-take-all primary was over.

As in the case of Humphrey, there is a segment in the Democratic party that still believes Muskie, 61, may be the best man to send against the Republicans next year.

"If I said flatly I wasn't interested, it wouldn't be 100 percent honest," the Maine senator said. "But I am not doing anything about it."

A close associate in the disastrous campaign for the 1972 nomination feels Muskie would like to cap his career with a presidential nomination or even second spot on the national ticket.

But Muskie, Humphrey's highly effective running-mate in 1968, is up for re-election next year and could have trouble at home, especially if he showed too much interest in presidential politics again.

Yet if the phone rings at the convention center, Muskie's answer almost certainly would be yes.

Of the three the convention is least likely to look to McGovern, who carried only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia against Nixon in 1972.
He is considered much in the same position as the Republicans' Barry Goldwater—a leader of one segment of his party who cannot build the coalitions needed to win an national election.

McGovern has issued a statement saying, "It is still my feeling, as I said in 1974, that I should not be a candidate for the presidency."

He added, however, that if the convention offered him the nomination "I would, of course, accept."

McGovern feels the candidate will not come out of the primaries but adds "the convention is much more likely to agree on Sen. Humphrey or some other person than me."

Because McGovern realizes his own prospects are slim he is much more likely than either Humphrey or Muskie to take part in pre-convention activities, perhaps endorsing the candidate who most closely shares his views.

As of now, Humphrey, Muskie and McGovern are going to play the waiting game. They will find out next summer whether a nomination still can be won that way.

Year-Round Denims

You don't have to put away all those great denim blues when the temperature drops. Just layer them for added warmth and they'll take you right on through autumn, even winter weather. The big news is that your favorite denims can be worn year-round, dressed up or down, to give your budget a big boost. These unbeatable denim looks range from casual, comfortable jeans to neat, polished puttogethers for all seasons.

1. Practical and durable, this double-breasted denim trench coat is a great fashion investment that can top nearly everything in your wardrobe.

2. You can't go wrong with a denim skirt like this. The soft, draping and tucked front make it perfect with dressed-up tops or more casual things, such as this vest over a cozy flannel shirt. Around the shoulders rests a little fringed shawl that's just right for warding off a chill in the air.

3. Get all wrapped up in this super denim dress with spacious patch pockets and dropped-shoulder sleeves. On cool, crisp days designers wrapping it over a snug pullover sweater with a big cowl neck. Accessories include a belt of royal blue suede and natural cowhide, several bangles at the wrist, and an openwork string shoulder pouch that's crossed over the body. Patterned knessocks are worn for warmth and for fun.

4. There's no stopping the popularity of jeans. One new way to wear them is with a quilted vest. On the right, the vest is cut like a Chinese pillow jacket with bow-tie closings and flowered trim. Underneath is a plaid cotton flannel shirt. On the left is another quilted vest, denim this time, paired with a shirt and washed denim jeans.

Local Club Serves In Many Ways

The Pampa Jaycee - ettes held their monthly meeting recently at the Southwestern, Public Service Reddi Room. President Zola Schlegel presided. Kerrick Horton gave the invocation.

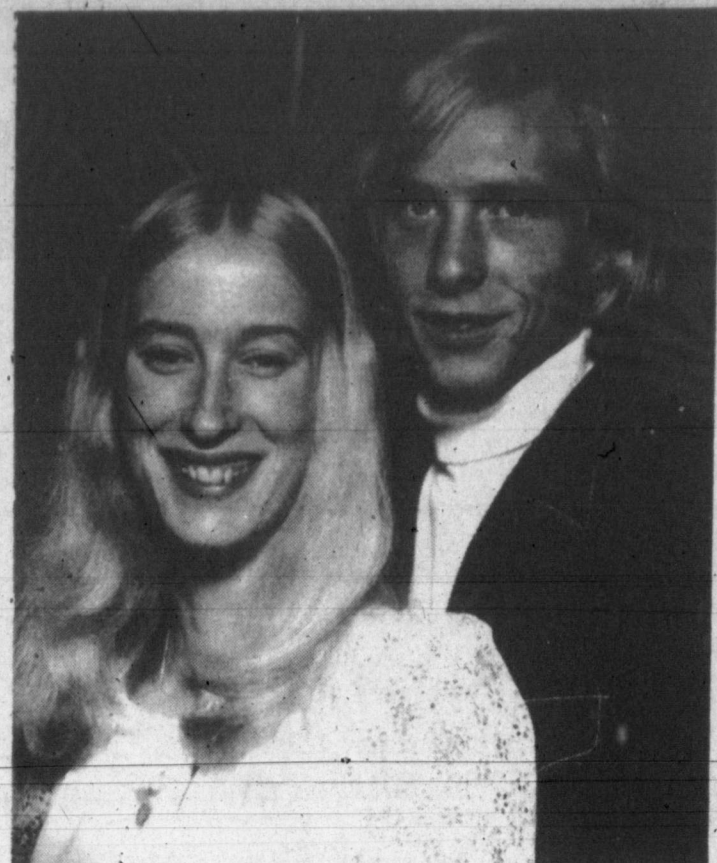

New member Becky Jeffers was welcomed to the club presented with her membership pin and yearbook. Rosemary Schiffman, guest, was introduced to the members.

During July, Jaycee - ettes helped with refreshments at the July 4 concession stand and served a meal to a Jaycee - ette and her family after she had been released from the hospital. Five members recently attended Perryton's annual salad supper and four Jaycee - ettes went to Amarillo for Bovina's area visitation.

Jaycee - ettes assisted the Jaycees with the annual picnic for the afternoon students of the Satellite School and refreshments were taken to the morning and afternoon classes of the school. Members also provided transportation for Welfare Department foster children to a medical and dental clinic and birthday cards were sent to two children at the Panhandle Children's Home.

The door prize of a purse and truck, to be donated at Christmas to the Children's Home, was won by Becky Jeffers.

Co-hostesses Kerrick Horton and Margaret Milam served refreshments to Zola Schlegel, Tricia Saltzman, Becky Jeffers, Rosemary Schiffman, Pat McKinney and Jane Beck.

Karpin on Bridge

By FRED KARPIN

As frequently happens at the bridge table, a declarer fulfills a contract that would have been defeated if the defenders had played correctly. Such was the case in today's hand, which came up in a rubber - bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

On West's lead of the spade five, the three was played from dummy. East put up the nine, and South won the trick with the jack. The ten of hearts was then led, and overtaken by dummy's jack. East captured the trick with the king.

In the hope that his partner possessed the queen of clubs, East made a desperate effort to drive out dummy's sole outside entry to the to-be-established heart suit by banging down his king of clubs. Declarer made a nice play when he allowed the king of clubs to win the trick. East next continued with the club ten, which South won with his queen.

It now became a routine matter for South to lead his remaining heart and establish the heart suit after East had taken his ace, with the ace of clubs serving as an entry to the board. When play had ended, declarer had made three spade tricks, three hearts, two diamonds, and two clubs.

East overlooked one of the basic principles of play, namely, the "hold up" (the refusals to win a trick the first time a suit is led). When South led the ten of hearts and over took it with dummy's jack, East should have allowed the jack to win: South certainly had two hearts for his jump to two notrump (if South had three hearts, nothing could be done about preventing South from establishing dummy's heart suit, and cashing it).

With the jack winning the trick, if South then led the queen of hearts, East would take his king. East would now return a spade, the suit his partner had led to (to play the king of clubs instead figured to be hopeless, since South, for his jump to two notrump certainly rated to have the club queen).

By declining to win the initial heart lead, East would effectively have prevented declarer from both establishing and cashing the board's heart suit. And declarer would then have ended up making only eight tricks: three spades, one heart, two diamonds, and two clubs.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

We recently had a charity ball for an organization in our city. The members of our group volunteered their services in every way possible in order to have more money for the cause. I manned the cloak room for one hour during the evening. When a couple stepped up to check their wraps, the lady said to put both garments on the same hanger!

Apparently, I looked at her rather strangely, because she explained she had two very good reasons for doing so. They were:

1. Her escort would only have to worry with one check.

2. When they were ready to leave, both garments would be together.

I am passing this along to you, because I am sure some of your readers must take care of cloak rooms and it might help them.

Also, this method would save hangers because we ran out of hangers before the evening was over.

Had we been able to put two garments on the same hanger, this would not have occurred. Jean Anne Moore

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

By accident, I found that if you spray greasy, dirty spots on carpet with the new spray-and-wash aerosols, leave on a few minutes, then wipe with a damp cloth, that the spots will come right up!

Now I have all these clean spots on my carpet. Ann Teel

Dear Heloise:

This is a small hint I hope will help. Ever have trouble removing those last sheets of tissue from the box because they've disappeared into the depths? Turn the box upside down—the tissue comes out easily, the rest stay in place, and one is always sticking out for that next upside down pull.

Mrs. P.J. Waldon

Now, how did you ever think of that? The girls in the office just sat and stared at one another with open mouths when this was read. Couldn't believe something so simple had eluded us for so long, and we hadn't thought of it before!

You may go to the head of the class for being so smart! Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Everyone knows that the frost is going to come soon, and some people still have tomatoes waiting to ripen.

Last year, I saved my green tomatoes because I learned that if I wrapped each one of them in newspaper and then stored them in a cool, dark place, they ripen nicely. (But not in the fridge. — H.)

We ended up having good tomatoes until almost Christmas time. Doug Royer

Dear Heloise:

Make your own treated dustcloths this way. Dip cheesecloth, cut in 18-inch squares, in a solution of two cups hot water and one-fourth cup lemon oil furniture polish. Squeeze out the excess liquid and let dry.

These will pick up every bit of dust and will leave a nice shine on your furniture, too. Mrs. Frank Hronek

Hollywood's Second Generation Makes Good

NEW YORK (UPI) — Liza Minnelli, Candice Bergen, Jane and Peter Fonda, Beau and Jeff Bridges, Michael Douglas. Hollywood's home-grown stars are more and more in evidence these days.

And the list keeps growing. The combination of looks, talent, luck and fortitude is what counts, so it's still okay to be born in Winnetka, Illinois, and change your name from Roy Fitzgerald to Rock Hudson.

But it helps to hail from Beverly Hills or (better yet) Bel Air and have a movie star for a parent. At age 11, even Tatum O'Neal knows that.

So does Scott Newman. Paul Newman's eldest offspring and only son was signed up for a bit part in "The Great Waldo Pepper" because the director, George Roy Hill, was an old family friend. That in turn got the 24-year-old aspiring actor a job in dad's picture. "The Towering Inferno," playing a young fireman.

The handsome Scott, whose mother is actress Jackie Witte, says he has no delusions about inheriting stardom. "I've been making it on my own since I was 20 and I know I have to keep doing it." He recently completed his first starring role — in a Charles Bronson movie called "Breakheart Pass."

One of the prettiest of the new crop is Devon Scott, 16-year-old brown-haired, brown-eyed daughter of George C. Scott by the actor's second marriage.

In her first professional acting chore Devon played a teenage daughter on the short-lived "We'll Get By" television series created by Alan Alda, star of the "MASH" show and son of actor Robert Alda.

Carrie Fisher seems a natural as the worldly teenager who seduces Warren Beatty in "Shampoo." But would she have been hired if she weren't the daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher? At 18 she can shrug off such questions. Somebody once asked her what it was like being Debbie's daughter. "Compared to what?" asked Carrie. "Being the daughter of a famed Hollywood star gave a publicity advantage to Taryn

Power, raised by her actress mother Linda Christian after father Tyrone's death in 1958. Older sister Romina has found work only in minor European productions, but Taryn, at 21, is trying for Hollywood. She recently completed her first movie there with Dennis Hopper, having already made her American debut with Richard Chamberlain in "The Count of Monte Cristo" for television.

She is now in Spain co-starring with another Hollywood offspring, John Wayne's son Patrick, in "Sinbad and the Eye of the Tiger." Also in the cast is Topo Swope, actress daughter of Dorothy McGuire.

"When you're born into a tradition you seem to have no other choice," Taryn says fatalistically, referring not only to her parents but to her grandfather, Tyrone Power Sr., who began his movie career in Hollywood's silent era.

Taryn says she always wanted to be an actress and remembers "I pretended having screen tests when I was 5."

King James Bible Is Most Popular

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — Bibles came and Bibles go but the King James Version goes on forever.

Originally produced in 1611 during the reign of King James I of England, the version familiarly referred to as the KJV still outsells all other versions of the Bible in this country, according to the world's largest publisher of Scriptures.

Thomas Nelson, Inc., of Nashville, which has been in the Bible business since 1798, first in England and now in the United States, is so confident of the continued — and even growing — popularity of the KJV that it has spent $350,000 to produce a new edition that is being introduced this year.

Called The Open Bible, it is described by Sam Moore, president of Nelson, as the most comprehensive study Bible published in the last 40 years. It was given its name because it was the intent of the 23 scholars who produced it to "open" the Bible in its full meaning to as broad a reading audience as possible.

A spokesman for Nelson, which was acquired in 1969 by Moore, a Lebanese immigrant who worked his way through college as a Bible salesman, said the King James Version was chosen for this comprehensive project because of its traditional

Pampans Attend Youth Workshop In San Antonio

Man's triumph over a Menace to Life...

Sharks have always been man's enemies in the sea. They are a danger to the shipwrecked, and occasionally threaten the lives of swimmers along our coastal waters. Sharks are only one of the many dangers that man faces every day. The world, today, is in a turmoil and we must be alert and on guard for the enemies' moves. Now is the time to trust in the Lord and to seek His help.

"Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. O my God, I trust in thee; let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me."

Psalm 25, 1-2

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Texans After 23rd Win In Oil Bowl Saturday

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI) — The 38th Oil Bowl football game — bringing together the best of the high school players from Texas and Oklahoma — will be unveiled Saturday night at a new site with defense expected to be dominant.

The Texans will be trying to increase its 22-4 lead in this series, which this year moves to Wichita Falls Memorial Stadium, a 24,000-seat, astroturfed installation.

Many of the stars who will participate in Saturday night's game took part in the all-star games of their respective states last weekend.

(Ed. Note — Howie Lewis of Pampa will start at split end for the Texas team in Saturday night's Oil Bowl football contest. Lewis will play for Texas Tech next fall.

Kenneth King of Clarendon is the only other Panhandle player slated to start in the contest.

But one player who will not be here will be Billy Sims, the highly touted running back from Hooks, Tex., who was the prize recruit of the University of Oklahoma.

Sims' performance was a disappointment in last week's Texas all-star game, but before that contest Sims said he did not plan to play in the Oil Bowl, figuring he would be a bit weary after the Texas contest. Sims carried the ball only nine times in the all-star game.

Although both sides have fine offensive performers, defense has grabbed the attention of both coaches during the past week's drills.

The Texas defense is built around three top linebackers — David Hodge of Brazoswood, Daryl Hunt of Odessa Permian and Dwight Jefferson of San Antonio Fox Tech.

The Oklahoma defensive line features two huge players from Tulsa Washington — Robert Hardy (265 pounds) and Earl Stripling, who weighs in at a beefy 320 pounds. Both Hardy and Stripling will play at Jackson State this autumn.

Texas' defense will be hard pressed to slow down the Oklahoma speed. Two Oklahoma running backs have produced 9.7 100s — Mike Gaither of Tulsa Memorial and Jim Mack of Tulsa McLain.

Mack scored three times in the Oklahoma all-star game and was named the game's most valuable player in leading the North to a 34-20 win.

Oklahoma will also have Chipp Latham of Rush Springs, a receiver who has 9.6 speed.

Quarterbacking for Texas will be Mike Patterson of Wichita Falls Rider and Arthur Tatum of Henderson while Oklahoma will counter with Joe Hough of Punam City, who is bound for Tennessee, and Steve Mixon of Stroud.

Ex-OSU Golfer Hayes Leads PGA After 67

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — It will take more than leading the first round of the PGA Championship to get Mark Hayes excited.

Hayes, a second-year pro from Stillwater, Okla., who seemed almost bored while describing his three-under-par 67 round Thursday on the Firestone Country Club course, says it's too early to get worked up.

"I didn't think about leading," said the former Oklahoma State University two-time all-American. "It's a little too early to get excited. If this was the third round, I might get excited."

Hayes, who made the turn in 33, two under, birdied the 11th and strung together seven straight pars, held a one-shot lead over Bob Benson of Easton, Conn., head pro at the Golf Club at Aspetuck, and four pro Larry Hinson, both of whom had 68.

Another shot behind were Bob

Wynn, Billy Casper, Ed Dougherty and Fred Wampler.

Nine golfers were at even par 70, including Jack Nicklaus, who bogeyed the final hole, and Tom Weiskopf, who shot his way back into the thick of things with birdies on the final three holes.

Hayes, who admitted to being nervous only on his second shot on the final hole, almost birdied the 18th.

His tee shot plugged in the soft ground between two bunkers and he got a drop. After his ball twice rolled back into a bunker, he was allowed to place it and then drilled a four-iron shot 12 feet from the pin. The putt missed.

Hayes, who stands 48th on this year's money-winning list with $47,951, said he had been experimenting with his swing during the first two practice rounds at Firestone.

"But I came out here Wednesday and couldn't do anything," he said, "so I went back to a natural action. I hit everything pretty good."

Benson, like Hayes playing in his first PGA event, said he was shocked to be among the leaders.

The 35-year-old pro who once gave golf lessons to John F.

SPORTS

Pampa, Texas 68th Year Friday, August 8, 1975

United Press International Mark down Andy Thornton as another of those "guys who got away" only to come back and haunt his former employers.

Thornton, a native of West Chester, Pa., originally signed with his boyhood favorites, the Philadelphia Phillies, but never made it to the parent club. Instead, he wound up with the Chicago Cubs, via the Atlanta Braves' organization.

Thursday, however, Thornton came home for one of his infrequent visits and dealt an embarrassing blow to his ex-mates with a three-run homer in the eighth inning that carried the Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the Phillies.

In addition to foiling manager Danny Ozark's strategy of walking Jerry Morales to pitch to Thornton, the Cub first baseman's homer also thwarted the Phils' chances of gaining on the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League east.

"This was the first home run I ever hit here. I'm glad it came at home," the elated Thornton said afterward. "My mother and dad were here as well as all my friends. I used up all my tickets and most everybody else's too."

Thornton, whose game-winning homer came after a double by Jose Cardenal and the Ozark-ordered walk of Morales, said he wasn't surprised the Phillies manager wanted to pitch to him.

"That was sound strategy," Thornton said. "I haven't been playing the past couple of days and I was only surprised I played and batted in that situation."

Larry Christensen, victim of Thornton's homer, took the loss, his third in nine decisions. Rick Reuschel (8-12) went the distance for Chicago to gain the win. Mike Schmidt hit his 24th homer for the Phillies in the third and Dick Allen added a two-run shot in the eighth, his fifth.

In the only other scheduled National League games Thursday, the New York Mets blanked the Montreal Expos 7-0 and the Houston Astros downed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1.

In the American League, Boston bested Milwaukee 4-2, Chicago routed California 8-4, Oakland trounced Texas 10-1, Kansas City drubbed Minnesota 10-2, New York topped Cleveland 6-3 and Baltimore outlasted Detroit 7-6.

Mets 7, Expos 0

Tom Seaver, making a rare appearance with three days rest, hurled a three-hitter to give Roy McMillan his second straight win as new Mets' manager. Seaver, filling in for Setliff and John Michie, Terry Woods of Slaton, Wayne Goodwin of Amarillo and Mike Radke of Wichita Falls.

Jim Hughes and Joe Davis, both of Pampa, have also been consistent winners in tournaments this year.

Kim Hood of Borger and Elise Richardson of Amarillo are among the top girl players entered.

"We've got a lot more entries than we did last year," said Joe Davis of the Pampa Tennis Club. "We'll have a 'b' division, men's and women's, which is new."

"We'll have a real good field in the men's 'A' division."

Thursday, Pampans who won matches and will compete in today's semifinals were Don Hughes in 16 boys singles, Kenny and Scott Barrett and Ken Cook and John Grady in 16 boys' doubles, Kurt Krause and Curtis Henry in 16 boys' doubles.

Krause will play Steve Kotara of Pampa in the 14 boys' singles finals today.

Top-seeded Alan Alpar of Amarillo will play Trey Fyfe of Amarillo in the semifinals of 18 boys' singles today. Hughes will play No. 2-seeded David Johnstone of Borger, also in the 18 boys' singles semis.

No. 1-seeded Miss Richardson will play second-seeded Diane Jack of Borger in the 18 girls' finals today.

In 18 doubles, Miss Richardson and Alexis Hefley of Amarillo will meet Miss Jack and Shelley Schmitz of Borger in the semifinals of 18 girls' doubles. Top-seeded Donna Mize and Kay Clark of Borger will take on Sharon Satterwhite and Martha Maynard of Amarillo in 18 girls' doubles.

Softball Tourney Set For Pampa

The Pampa Men's Industrial Softball League will host the first annual Jack Memorial Fastpitch Softball Tournament Aug. 15-17 at Lions Club Park.

Entry fee is $35.00 per team and must be mailed to Gerald Rasco, 1619 Christine in Pampa by Sunday.

Championship and runner-up trophies will be awarded.

Gibson's Discount Center edged Holtman Trucking, 6-5, and Wing's Antenna outlasted Sims Electric, 11-8, Thursday at Lions Club.

Rick Musgrave homered for Gibson's which outbit Holtman, 4-3. Winning pitcher was Bill

Stephens; loser was Dale Patterson.

Wade Archibald doubled, tripled and homered to pace Wing's. Gary Kotara also homered for the winners.

Jackie Graham picked up the win; loser was Doug Cunningham.

Special events of the tournament, which has a larger field than last year's affair, are mixed doubles, father-son doubles and mother-daughter doubles.

Rick Sasser of Amarillo, who will team with Bryant in doubles, is the No. 2 seed in men's singles. Other top players include former Pampa High tennis coaches Alton

Setliff and John Michie, Terry Woods of Slaton, Wayne Goodwin of Amarillo and Mike Radke of Wichita Falls.

Jim Hughes and Joe Davis, both of Pampa, have also been consistent winners in tournaments this year.

Kim Hood of Borger and Elise Richardson of Amarillo are among the top girl players entered.

Connally Trial Witness Now Faces Own Hearing

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — In return for Jake Jacobson's testimony against his former friend John Connally, the federal government refused to prosecute Jacobson on charges of misapplying savings and loan funds.

Connally, a former Texas governor and presidential assistant, was acquitted in the bribery trial and Jacobson now faces a trial of his own.

Jacobson, also a former presidential assistant, was jailed Wednesday on state charges involving the misapplication of funds from a San Angelo, Tex., savings institution.

The silver-haired Austin attorney was held for several hours before being released on personal bond.

A 199th District Court grand jury in San Angelo Tuesday night returned a sealed indictment, citing four counts against Jacobson. A spokesman for the district attorney's office in San Angelo said Jacobson possibly could stand trial in September.

Travis County Sheriff Raymond Frank arrested Jacobson in the garage of an exclusive office and apartment building near the capitol grounds. Frank said Jacobson wanted to go to his law office but the sheriff insisted he go straight to jail.

"I know it's humiliating but that's the way it's got to be," Frank said he told Jacobson.

"I did not want him to be treated any different from any other prisoner," Frank said. "I told him I didn't want any hassle. We're going to go to jail right now."

Frank drove Jacobson to the jail in the sheriff's yellow pickup truck. Jacobson, wearing a brown suit, was booked, fingerprinted, photographed, warned of his rights and placed in a tank with no chairs or tables which housed more than 20 other prisoners.

The Justice Department refused to prosecute a case involving the same misapplication of funds incidents because of Jacobson's testimony against Connally. U.S. District Judge Robert Hill of Dallas disapproved of the deal and ordered the government to prosecute Jacobson on the loan charge.

Hefner Plans Changes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner says he plans major editorial changes within his publishing empire to perk up sagging sales.

"We're feeling the same thing General Motors and many other companies are experiencing," Hefner said Wednesday. "We're in a recession. But in Playboy's case, we're getting all the publicity."

He said he hoped to reverse the financial picture by introducing "very exciting new editorial concepts which I can't discuss at this time."

Hefner said the changes "would be more revolutionary than evolutionary." One change could be the publishing of a women's magazine, he said.

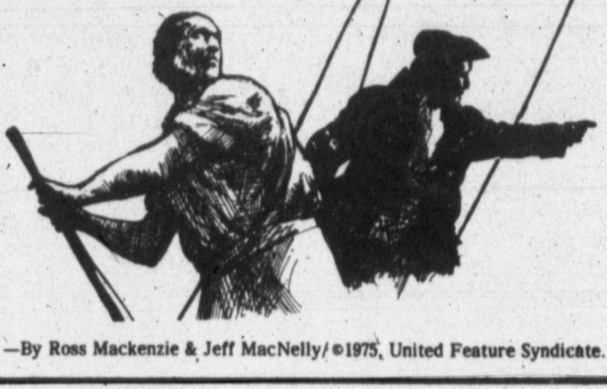

Circulation of Playboy has fallen in the United States to around 5.8 million, Hefner said, compared with about 6.8 million a year ago.

"But that still puts us well ahead of the competition. We're still the most imitated magazine in the world."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

August 9, 1775:

Two American schooners encounter the British sloop-of-war Falcon off Cape Ann near Gloucester, Massachusetts. Under the command of Captain John Linzee, the Falcon gives chase—capturing one of the schooners and pursuing the other into Gloucester harbor. Linzee dispatches his lieutenant and 36 men in a whaleboat and two barges to take the schooner that has escaped. Angry Gloucester militiamen take aim on the small armed party as it is boarding the schooner through the cabin windows; the militiamen kill at least one and wound several, including the lieutenant. Whereupon Linzee sends the captured schooner and a cutter to cannonade the town. The broadside accomplishes little except to infuriate the townspeople. Linzee finally is driven off on the 10th, but before he has lost both of the schooners, the cutter, the barges, and half his crew (35 men)—ten of whom turn out to be impressed American seamen.

Scout Jamboree

Three Pampans, including Eagle Scouts Curt Beck and Tim Neslage and leader Bill Gething, were among 17,500 Scouts and leaders from 96 countries participating in the 14th world Scout Jamboree in Lillehammer, Norway which ended Wednesday. Each boy made an overnight hike as part of a patrol made up of boys from eight different nations. In addition, the boys will be guests in Nordic homes. The Pampa group is due from Aug. 18 after riding from Stockholm to Helsinki by boat.

Mama Grizzly Likes Mrs. Fuller's Stew

DENVER (UPI) — When Steve Fuller and his family sat down to a pot of stew last winter, they couldn't have guessed who was coming to dinner.

A 350-pound grizzly scented the stew Fuller's wife had spent the day preparing in their park cabin, lumbered out of the woods and tried to smash through a window.

"The bear pushed its head into the room," said Fuller, a winter custodian in Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park. "I was convinced she was going to get into the house."

Fuller called up rangers, who trucked the bear 40 miles back into the high country, but the grizzly didn't give up. She appeared at the cabin on two subsequent occasions, breaking windows and shredding roof shingles trying to claw her way into the house. The bear finally was labeled an outlaw and killed.

"It's really too bad she had to be destroyed," said Fuller. "Grizzly bears are superb animals and there are very few left in the world."

According to Fuller and animal biologists, man is closing in on the grizzly in the United States. Trophy hunters are poaching the bear, and backpackers and campers are invading the high country of Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

The government earlier this year proposed classifying the bear as a threatened species.

restricting hunting to an area of northern Montana. Biologists in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana have started a study to determine the number of grizzlies in the United States. The estimate currently runs between 700 and 1,000.

But Fuller says he has little hope the domestic grizzly will survive.

"In the pre-white man years, Indians had no weapons against grizzly bears and a grizzly bear had no fear of man," said Fuller. "After the white man came with firearms, the grizzly bear learned fear. I tend to be pessimistic about their future."

When the west was young, grizzly bears roamed the Great Plains in search of food, and extended from Mexico to Alaska. The grizzly now inhabits the western provinces of Canada and Alaska in greater numbers than in the pocket of high country in the United States.

Moody by nature the grizzly is a loner even among its own kind. The bear's appetite for meat is voracious and it will dig for hours for ground squirrels. Each year in spawning season, the grizzly will haunt the shores of mountain lakes in hopes of catching fish, a high-protein food source.

The grizzly also can be a killer.

To coeds killed by a grizzly while camping in Montana's Yellowstone National Park in 1967. One of the first grizzly attacks on record is included in the journals of the Lewis and Clark expedition in the early 1800s.

Larry Roop, a field biologist with the Wyoming Fish and Game Department, says the mountain grizzly is shy of human contact.

"The grizzly has learned to avoid man and fear him," Roop said.

The problem of attacks begins when a grizzly learns man is a source of food, he said.

"Once they learn man is a food source, like lions in Africa, they are killers," said Roop. "The old bears that can't get a food source are the ones that may be trouble."

Harry Morgan Joins M-A-S-H

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Harry Morgan is a likable man, off screen and on. Perhaps that's why this season he's starring in his eighth television series.

His baggy eyes and lopsided grin have been a part of the tube since 1952 when he starred in "December Bride" with the late Spring Byington.

Beginning this fall he will be a regular in the "M-A-S-H" cast, replacing McLean Stevenson as commanding officer of that zany medical group.

Morgan has spent 15 of the past 22 years as a television fixture. Following "December Bride" he was a regular in "Pete and Gladys," "Kentucky Jones," "The Richard Boone Show," "Dragnet," "The D.A." and "Doc Ramsey."

Morgan is low-key. He exudes warmth and dry humor. His soft sell, unobtrusive quality probably is the reason he holds the record for most series as a star performer.

His costars customarily grabbed most of the attention — Miss Byington, Dennis Weaver, Boone and Jack Webb.

He replaced Ben Alexander as Sergeant Friday's sidekick when "Dragnet" was exhumed 10 years ago. Now, however, Morgan faces the most difficult assignment of his career — taking over for Stevenson in "M-A-S-H."

The popular CBS series also will replace Wayne (Trapper John) Rogers, who departed following a contract dispute this summer.

"I'm a big fan of the show," Morgan said during a shooting break in the sixth episode. "I'll miss McLean and Wayne."

"When they killed off McLean last year the producers still hadn't found a replacement for him. When I accepted the role of Col. Sherman Potter I didn't know that Wayne wouldn't be back either.

"The way the show is going I don't know if they'll be missed. Maybe the audience will see things differently."

Morgan cannot explain his durable popularity with viewers. He's simply grateful for it.

"All my roles in comedy and dramatic shows have been easy, old shoe characters," he said. "But I've never been type cast."

"Also, the people I play have been pretty much like me. My favorite was Pete in 'Pete and Gladys' because I just played myself."

Until now Morgan has found it easy to slip into his characterizations. But he's having trouble fitting himself inside of the skin of Colonel Potter.

He is, after all, the new kid on the block in "M-A-S-H." Alan Alda, Loretta Switt, Larry Linville and Gary Burghoff have had three years to get comfortable in their parts. And the shadow of McLean Stevenson hangs over Morgan as well.

"Being chief surgeon is all Colonel Potter has in common with Colonel Blake, the character McLean played," Morgan said. "I wanted to keep that fish hook hat he wore, but McLean took it with him."

"So far I've had to play the part pretty straight. I'd like to make the colonel a little more wacky. It's taking me time to find the right niche for this guy. But things will fall into place."

"Everyone has gone out of his way to make me feel a part of the 'M-A-S-H' family. In my experience each series develops a strong family feeling. It's one of the nice things about working in a weekly show."

"I prefer comedy to drama. It comes more naturally to me."

Astronauts Now Healthy

HONOLULU (UPI) — The effects of rocket propellant gases inhaled by America's last three Apollo astronauts during their U.S.-Russian space adventure have abated. Doctors said they are healthy enough to return home today.

They will stop off in Washington with their families for a Saturday luncheon with President Ford and an awards ceremony in the White House. They will return to Houston Sunday.

Medical tests conducted on

Thomas Stafford, Donald "Deke" Slayton and Vance Brand indicated they are all healthy, doctors said.

Dr. Peter Bartoloni, chief of medicine at Tripler Army Medical Center, said there are a few more tests.

"But those that have been completed show the crew back to pre-flight health status," he said. "Although we don't anticipate any problems, we feel they will require followup exams. The first is scheduled for Aug. 20 in Houston."

American and Russian government officials are working out a joint tour for the astronauts and cosmonauts. "Probably to start Sept. 1," said NASA spokesman Robert Gordon.

Drivers Fail

License Check

Twenty-three motorists were cited Thursday for violations during a drivers license check by the Pampa Police Department at 800 S. Hobart.

A total of 400 cars were stopped and motorists' license checked.

Thirteen drivers had no drivers license. Two were cited for failure to comply with restrictions listed on the drivers license.

Eight were driving vehicles on which the inspection sticker had expired.

From Rice's Feed Store in 1964 to Rice's Gifts, Garden, and Gourmet in 1975, the owners feel the store has come a long way.

The store was started by Ronnie and Joy Rice on South Cuyler. Later Mrs. Rice's sister, Gay Kuempel and her husband Dennis, bought into the business. Rice's now at 1945 N. Hobart, added tropical plants in 1973 and the gourmet department in 1974.

"Everything has been received so beautifully," said Mrs. Kuempel.

Mrs. Kuempel explained that the services of their business are great. They will help people with plant problems, landscape problems, nursery items, potting, and anything else in the plant line.

"This place is chaos corner sometimes," said Mrs. Kuempel. "The gourmet section is becoming a favorite thing."

She explained that it carries everything from the everyday kitchen items to some of the more specialized items such as escargot kits and crepes mix.

According to Mrs. Kuempel the addition of the gourmet section was to help in the slow season of the business since gardening is such a seasonal thing.

"This business sure doesn't get boring; there are so many things to do," she said. "There are lots of beautiful people that come in here."

She said that with four owners doing the buying for the store selections are bound to suit the taste of everyone.

"God has blessed us beautifully," said Mrs. Kuempel. "Our business is great and we love what we are doing."
