

Shoplifters Could Get 10 Years in Jail

By MELANIE MILLER
Pampa News Staff

Local police arrest four to five shoplifters a week in Pampa, shoplifters who steal items ranging from candy bars to cases of whiskey, from mascara to knives.

The penalties they receive and the reasons they steal are as varied as the shoplifters themselves.

Police Chief Richard Mills divided shoplifters into three basic types: professionals, young people and middle-aged housewives.

"For the professional, it's a living and they are rarely caught because they know what they're doing," Mills reported.

"Then, there's the teenage — he wants something and doesn't have the money at that time to buy it — it might be a record or a candy bar," Mills said.

"Whether or not he does it again depends on how his parents react to his shoplifting."

"And the middle-aged housewife does it for psychological reasons," the young chief said. "A lot of those who get caught never shoplift again."

Police here have averaged four to five shoplifting arrests a week for the past three months, but Mills believes there has been no increase in incidences here.

"There really hasn't been an increase because most stores don't discover shoplifting until they do their inventory," he said. "It is the most unreported crime. People get away with it."

Unreported shoplifting accounts for $3.0 billion of the $90 billion per year crime bill and business thefts accounted for $5 billion of that bill, according to FBI statistics.

The new Texas penal code changed shoplifting to theft and we now classify it according to the amount, Judge Don Cain explained. "I have no standard punishment, it depends on the facts of the case. All I have are the ranges of punishment."

County Attorney John Warner handles the cases for the state of Texas and can enhance his case by alleging that the person has been convicted on previous occasions, Cain added.

"I have never given the maximum punishment for shoplifting," Judge Cain said.

In city court, where Fay Dean Miller is the clerk, the set fine is $52.50 according to Miller. She handles those involving theft and apparel, which moved down slightly since January, rebounded 0.7 per cent last month.

The services index showed a sharp 1.1 per cent rise in the cost of medical care, much more than the previous monthly increases this spring. Rents were up 0.3 per cent, transportation 0.5 per cent and other services 0.4 per cent — about in line with recent monthly increases.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Assistant Treasury Secretary Sidney Jones and Assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said in recent days the new CPI would be similar to June's or worse.

Jones predicted "turbulent" economic times ahead and Pate said a return to double-digit inflation was possible. Greenspan said earlier consumer prices in July were disappointing.

Five also got a 30-day jail sentence and two received ten-day sentences.

Eighteen pled guilty, four, nolo contendere and only one pled not guilty. That offender said she did not steal a bottle of Brut lotion and told the manager who apprehended her that she did not know how it got in her car from the store.

Ten of the cases have not yet gone to court and six were dismissed for various reasons.

Besides the Class B misdemeanor, there is also the Class A and Class C misdemeanor, the latter which is handled in the justice of the peace courts and the city courts, according to Judge Cain.

The maximum penalty for a Class A misdemeanor, which is theft over $200 and under $200, is $2,000 and/or one year in jail. The maximum for a Class C misdemeanor is a fine not to exceed $200.

Cain handles the Class A and Class B misdemeanors and District Court Judge Grainger McElhany handles the Class C felonies, which are called third degree felonies, and is theft from $200 to $10,000. Fines for this felony are not to exceed $5,000 and prison sentences range from two to ten years in the penitentiary.

Shoplifting or theft cases of over $10,000, include a $10,000 fine and/or two to ten years in the pen. McElhany also handles these cases.

A number of shoplifters would pay for items in their cart, then walk out with things in their purses or pocket, local files show some did not file for anything, they simply walked out with what they had stolen.

Items stolen ranged from mascara to ham to nasal spray to knives. One man gave his excuse for shoplifting as "I can't afford the rising food prices." He stole a can of ham. Another lady shoplifted a sausage because she wanted it and just "put it in my purse." "I don't know why I took it."

One man shoplifted a case of Scotch from a local lounge and was fined $10 and court costs, which totaled $62. He was also sentenced to one day in jail.

Mills believes there isn't much his department can do to alleviate the shoplifting. He puts major responsibility on the merchant.

"They can talk to their employees and tell them to watch out," he suggested.

"If they spot a shoplifter, they should detain the criminal and notify the manager and police," Mills added.

"They need to keep the criminal: there until the police arrive," he added.

The newly gathered community theater will perform "The Fantasticks" Sept. 12 to 16. We'll carry more information as their plans progress.

The musical is a clever one and ought to be a challenge to produce and a joy to watch.

"The Fantasticks" was written by Tom Jones with music by Harvey Schmidt. The same Tom Jones has fame in Pampa. He introduced Jack Miller to Glennia Lea Couch when they were all in college.

The pair later married and they are living in Pampa, the parents of "The News" summer intern, Melanie.

The News thanks Tom Jones. I think

Mrs. Ora Turlington recently traveled to Malta — that island in the Mediterranean Sea — to visit her son, James and his wife, the former Pat Whalen. But she said the biggest thrill of the trip came in Chicago's O'Hare Airport when she was waiting for her transportation out of the U.S. She saw another passenger waiting for a plane.

"I thought I recognized him," she said, "but I wasn't sure. I went over and asked him, 'Are you who I think you are?' he said, 'Well I don't know. You tell me who you think I am and I'll tell you.' I said, 'Are you Charlie Pride?' And he said 'I sure am'."

Mrs. Turlington said she visited with the country and western singer for about 15 minutes.

"He's just as nice as he can be," she said. "I'd thought he might be high falutin' but he's not at all. He's just an ordinary person."

Some girls from Tucuman, N.M. were also waiting at the airport and they took Mrs. Turlington's picture with Charlie Pride and promised to send her a print.

Mrs. Turlington said "Pride will be in Amarillo again this fall for the Tri-State Fair."

"If it is at all possible, I'm going to go," she said. "And I told him I would ask him if he remembered me. He said, 'You give me just a few minutes to think and if I can't remember who you are, you just mention Chicago or Malta and I will'."

Government employees are over-worked, said one local government employee.

Thom Marshall, with whom I live and work, announced at The News office the other day that he received a letter from Dear Abby.

Suddenly, nightmarish pictures of my dirty dishes, my unkind words, my extra pounds, my misspelled headlines and my relatives swarmed through my mind. There goes my marriage, there goes my co-managing editor, I thought.

What had he written to Dear Abby about? I was fairly sure that she hadn't written to him for advice.

But Thom said he had written to the advice-giver when she had spelled a word wrong in her column which appears in The News.

She had referred to fire-marshalls. The correct spelling on that kind of marshal uses but one "l." Our names uses two.

Her letter said "Dear Thom: Thanks! You're about the 90th Marshall (fire, that is) who corrected me. However, you're the only Marshall Love, Abby."

And she actually signed it. No signature stamp.

Consumer Prices Balloon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The prices consumers paid for goods and services climbed 12 per cent in July — an annual rate of 14.4 per cent — but a top government economist said today the country was not returning to "double-digit" inflation.

One of the sharpest jumps came in the category of food prices, which increased 1.7 per cent during July, according to the Labor Department statistics.

The United States suffered through inflation running near or above 10 per cent for most of 1973 and 1974.

But Sidney Jones, the Treasury Department's chief economist, said the sharp rise in the July CPI was "not representative of what we have seen in inflation or what we are likely to see."

Jones said a just-released comprehensive study that includes the forecasts of 21 respected economic models, showed an average annual 6 per cent inflation rate estimated for the July-September quarter sliding to a 5.8 per cent in the final three months of this year.

The increase in the overall CPI was the sharpest monthly jump since last September and follows an 0.8 per cent increase in June.

During the first five months of this year, consumer prices had risen an average 0.5 per cent a month.

"The July figures would seem to contradict this but you have to hang your hat on the fundamentals," Jones said, citing the extensive slack and low demand in an economy that is just breaking free of recession.

"Inflation remains a very serious problem... but the outlook in the near term is not for double-digit inflation," he said.

In another government report issued today, the Commerce Department said the real Gross National Product rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter of 1975 for the first increase in the GNP since the beginning of the current recession.

Regarding the consumer price index, the Labor Department said, "Price increases for meat, poultry, fresh fruits and vegetables, gasoline, and used cars accounted for about three fourths of the July increase."

Agriculture Department officials said today the controversial sale of wheat of Russia had "no effect on the July Consumer Price Index." They said food price statistics for the July CPI were gathered early in the month before the sales began.

With the impact of higher prices for grain, steel, aluminum and many raw materials still to be felt at the retail level, hopes for a prolonged period of price stability appear to be lessening.

The index has now risen nearly 10 per cent since July, 1974 and stands at 162.3. This means that an assortment of retail goods and services that cost $10 in the 1967 base year had risen in price to $16.23 last month.

Breaking the index into separate categories, food prices rose 1.7 per cent in July, the biggest rise in 11 months. Prices of nonfood commodities rose 0.9 per cent, the highest in 10 months and the cost of services was up 0.5 per cent somewhat less than in June.

In the food area, fresh vegetables and poultry prices rose "considerably more" than in June, the department said. Prices of dairy products rose for the first time this year and egg prices moved up after a two-month decline.

Pork prices pushed up fast and beef prices also rose but less rapidly than in May and June. Beef, pork and poultry prices has now risen nearly 20 per cent since April.

However, sugar prices continued to fall in July from their recent high levels and many processed foods also fell.

The stiff rise in nonfood commodities prices was fueled by a round of gasoline price increases in early July of 3 to 4 cents a gallon. Since March, gasoline and motor oil prices have jumped nearly 9 per cent, a reflection of President Ford's philosophy that higher prices is one way to achieve energy conservation.

Used car prices continued to rise sharply in July, but car prices fell for the second time in the last three months. Clothing

President Urges Unions To Cool Grain Dispute

President Ford has urged AFL-CIO President George Meany and all sides in the growing dispute over shipping American grain to the Soviet Union to "cool it a bit."

Ford met with officials of three wheat growing and exporting groups in Vail, Colo., Wednesday and they agreed to wait until the next national grain forecast Sept. 11 to take any action on the maritime union's refusal to load grain bound for Russia.

"After that, it will be another ballgame," said Kenneth Kendrick, a Stafford, Tex., wheat grower and president of Great Plains Wheat. He did not elaborate.

Ford telephoned Meany Wednesday and urged him to use restraint. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Nessen said Ford may meet with labor leaders in Washington next week.

Meany Monday supported the shipping boycott and said it would continue until the administration came to him and explained the effect of the Soviet grain purchases on consumers.

The administration and farmers say a forecast record grain harvest this year would offset any major supermarket price hikes on bread and other items despite nearly 10 million tons of grain already sold to the Soviet Union this year.

In Houston, a temporary restraining order put two International Longshoremen's Association back to work Wednesday. A union leader said "They're loading both ships. They're blowing it in like fire right now. Everything is running smooth as silk."

It was not clear when the next perside showdown would come because most of the Soviet-bound grain has not yet reached port.

Ford phoned Meany from Vail, Colo. A White House spokesman said Ford told the labor leader the same thing he told grain industry officials earlier: all parties in the dispute should "just cool it a bit" while the administration promotes a negotiated settlement.

The President also asked Meany to work with Labor Secretary John Dunlop and offered to meet personally with all sides in the dispute when he returns to the White House next week, the spokesman said.

Weather

The forecast calls for continued fair skies and warm temperatures. The highs today and Friday will be in the 90s, dropping to the 60s at night.

Vandals Strike Store; Picketing Continues

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Vandals struck the striking Piggly Wiggly Store at Coronado Center Wednesday night.

However, officials reported no connection between the strike and the vandalism.

Raymond Montgomery, store manager, contacted by The News this morning confirmed vandalism reports.

Asked if the property destruction had anything to do with the strike, he said, "Who knows?"

Meanwhile, two women walked the picket line in front of the store, where the strike was called June 17.

Marlene Johnson, a checker now carrying a strikers sign, said the strike has been peaceful.

"We have a lot of union support," she added.

Piggly Wiggly officials have hired others to work since the strike was called.

"It doesn't make me happy," said Janet Rogers, a meat wrapper now on strike.

The vandalism report Wednesday read that subjects had taken concrete rocks and thrown through six plate windows and put some type of glue in locks to the four front doors.

Asked if there is any indication as to when the strike at Piggly Wiggly Stores in 14 towns from Dumas to Midland — Odessa area and the Amarillo and Lubbock Division of the Dallas based firms, might end, Montgomery answered "We don't get too much information."

Strikers, too, said they had no idea as to when the end might come.

"It could be anytime," said Johnson.

In citing the reason for the strike, Cliff Fielding, assistant to the president of the Retail Clerks Union, local 368, Dallas — which covers the Pampa area, said, "The current contract is open for wage negotiations for the balance of the contract to January 1976. The employer has refused to grant any economic change."

Fielding said the current contract which has been in effect for about a year and wages are below those paid by Safeway and Furr's to food clerks, meat wrappers and produce department workers.

Ms. Johnson, union shop steward representing the Pampa Piggly Wiggly employees, including herself, said that $4.35 currently is the top wage paid to people who have worked for three or more years full time. The beginning wage is $2.60.

Fielding said the union's request, if granted, would place beginning wages at $2.85 hourly.

John Dixon, a spokesman for the Piggly Wiggly at the home office in Grand Prairie, said the current $4.35 an hour costs Piggly Wiggly about $5 an hour when benefits are paid.

"We're competitive," Dixon said. "We feel it would jeopardize our ability to offer competitive prices if we granted a wage increase."

"This proposal, if adopted, would completely nullify what the annual session amendment is supposed to accomplish in the first place — that being the prevention of the crowded, near chaotic hurry up conditions under which nearly 4,000 bills are considered in a 140-day session every two years," Hannah said.

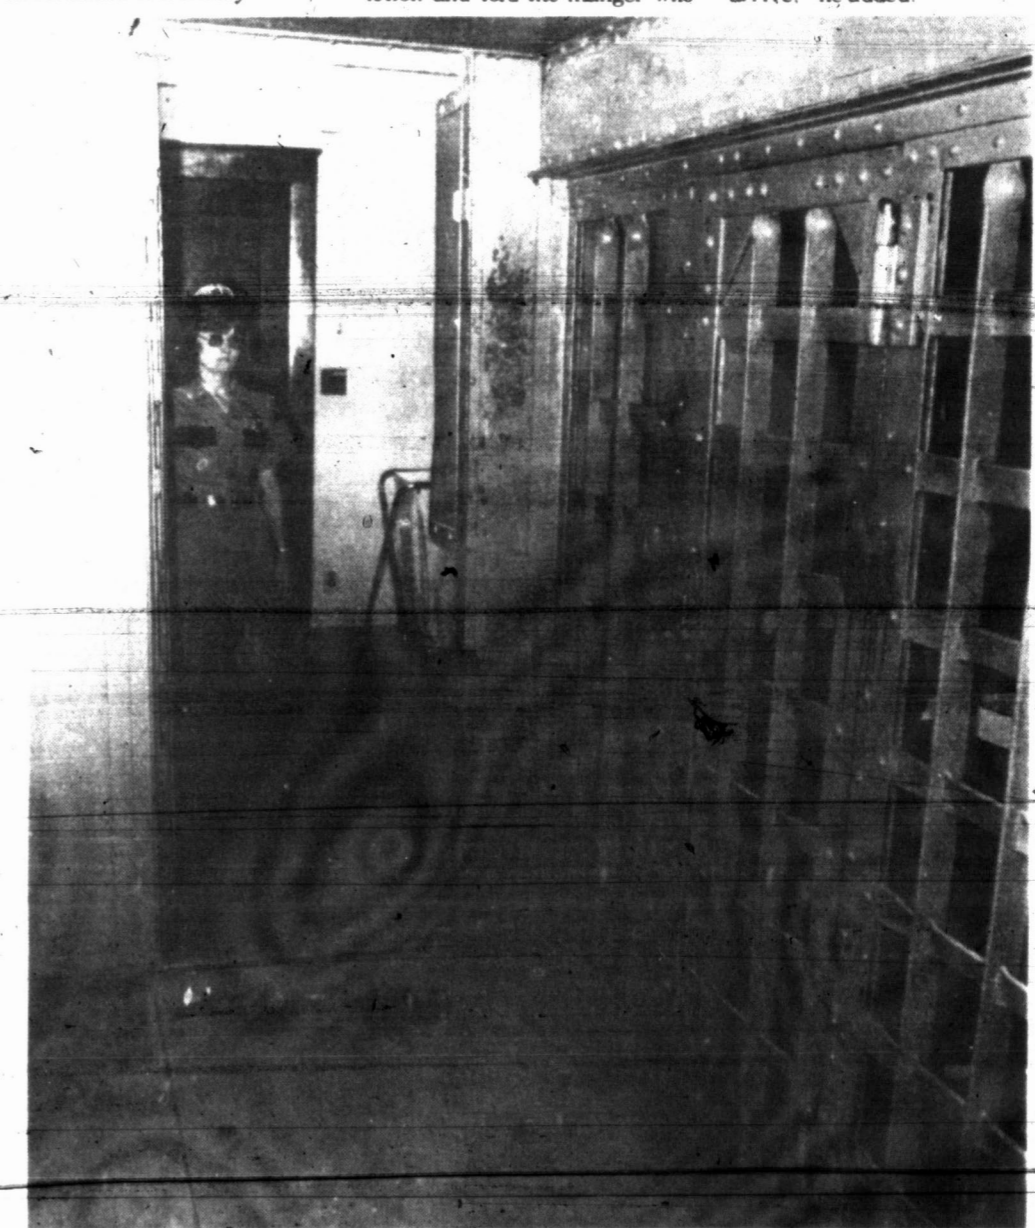

He said lobby groups oppose the additional 90-day session because they can operate best in chaotic conditions of the present biennial session.

"Instead of attempting to make deals with well-heeled special interest lobbyists who don't represent even a handful of Texans, and instead of coming up with proposals to unilaterally amend the proposed new constitution, we would like to see the lieutenant-governor and the speaker take the message to the people of this state and explain the need for the new constitution, the way it was written under their leadership, with all the legislators participating," he said.

Clayton said most of the opposition to the new constitution involves the provision requiring the legislature to meet every year. He has met with other leaders to discuss a plan to limit by law the proposed 90-day new session to consideration of budgetary and emergency matters.

The proposed new constitution institutes 90-day sessions in even numbered years in addition to the 140-day sessions, now held in odd numbered years.

Behind Bars

While shoplifters know the seriousness of the offense they have committed, they never like the jail bars. Sue Matthew, Pampa Police Department traffic control officer, shows the jail door, destined to close on almost every shoplifter sooner or later.

Constitution 'Deals' Continue

The proposed charter revision will be submitted to voters Nov. 4.

"Most of the groups that have been formed to oppose the new constitution represent the same business interests that are accustomed to having things done their way during our biennial sessions," said Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston.

Waters said he is appalled Clayton would attempt to make political deals over the new constitution.

"His fear is that if people go to the polls to vote against one article, they're going to vote against the whole thing and it will all go down," said Jack Gullahorn, Clayton's administrative assistant.

Gullahorn said Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby and Attorney General John Hill, both of whom have endorsed the proposed new constitution, agreed with the suggestion. Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who has not yet taken a stand on the entire constitution, has said emphatically he opposes annual sessions.

"The governor said it was an interesting approach, but he was noncommittal," Gullahorn said.

Official secrets act

This country has never had an Official Secrets Act such as the British act.

Instead it has been the foundation of American law in this area that the government must operate at all times in the full light of public knowledge. Our government belongs to the people and can withhold information from the people only in those specific cases where disclosure would cause a clear and present danger to the Republic.

The presumption in every case is and should be that the public has a right to know. If there is doubt, we must come down on the side of public knowledge.

The burden of proof must rest on the government. The "top secret" stamp alone can never be taken at face value without an inquiry to determine whether it was properly used. The judicial branch should be responsible for reviewing the propriety of executive branch secrecy whenever a question arises.

Something like this rationale underlies our present body of federal law, even though the accumulation of precedents and statutes over many years has left room for doubt as to what the law really is.

Now comes Senate Bill 1 (S. 1) in Washington, a 753-page document drafted to give the nation its first criminal code of federal laws. Much of the bill is undoubtedly good but certain sections would create what its critics describe as this country's first Official Secrets Act.

It prohibits communicating any national defense information to anyone without government authority if the information could be used to the disadvantage of this country. That is a broad prohibition and, unlike present law, does not require the prosecution to prove intent to harm the country.

Under the bill it would also be a felony to disclose any classified information, regardless of the propriety of the classification.

The bill asserts for the first time ownership by the government of a broad category of information. It appears to be aimed more at government employees and newsmen than at spies. A bill aimed at espionage could be much more narrowly and precisely drawn.

Before S. 1 passes the Senate the sections dealing with secrecy should be thoroughly revised or dropped entirely from the bill. We don't need an Official Secrets Act.

Moderation in Mideast

No lasting peace is possible in the Middle East so long as the Arabs, particularly the Palestinians, deny the right to existence of Israel as a Jewish state.

By the same token, Israel's own security depends upon a willingness to concede that the Palestinian refugees and the Palestinians still living in Israel-controlled territories have a right to their own nation, if they choose, in the West Bank territory and the Gaza Strip area seized by Israel in the 1967 war.

Compromise must be accepted by both sides. Conquest is impossible for both. Every time the Israelis humiliate the Arabs in a war, the Arabs rearm in the hope to do better next time. The Arabs will never be able to achieve their aim of driving the Israelis into the sea. The United States and the European nations would never permit it.

The extreme actions and attitudes of the Palestine Liberation Organization are a major roadblock to peace.

They were symbolized and expressed by Yasser Arafat, PLO chairman, in his appearance before the United Nations last year. The gun he wore beneath his robe symbolized the terrorist tactics of the Palestinians which have shocked and horrified the world. In his talk he spoke of his "dream" for a single secular state in Palestine, unrealistically refusing to recognize any future for a Jewish nation.

On the other hand, the people of Israel have been reluctant to recognize any merit in Palestinian aspirations for nationhood. They prefer to regard the Palestinian problem solely as a refugee problem, not as a national problem.

As long as the Palestinians profess terror as the method of their choice and refuse to recognize Israel, the Israelis are understandably opposed to creation of a Palestinian state.

The impasse will continue until both sides see their own self-interest in moderation and negotiation. Then, at least, the killing will stop.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Don't Bail Out New York!

By WILLIAM RUSHER
Speaking as a New York City resident, I for one hope the people of the rest of the country will firmly reject the current proposal that they assume the burden of New York's welfare costs. We got into this hole all by ourselves, and it is crucially important that we should learn our lesson — and that the rest of the United States should watch us learn it, and pick up some valuable pointers in the process.

To hear the New York "Times" talk, you would think New York City was just an innocent victim of circumstances. "New York," it purged recently, "in common with other metropolitan centers, has been the involuntary repository of the mass misery churned up by the technological revolution in agriculture, which dislodged millions of unskilled, undereducated persons from rural areas in the South, Puerto Rico and elsewhere. The requirements of the Federal Constitution as well as the dictates of human decency prohibited the cities from shutting out this tidal wave of needy families."

All very sad, but that's not quite the way it happened. "Involuntary"? The truth is that Fiorello LaGuardia and Vito Marcantonio pioneered the vote-importing racket when they hit on the idea of mining Puerto Rico for bodies back in the late 1930s. Lured by promises of an easy life under the protection of these humanitarians, many thousands of Puerto Ricans were shuttled north by the planload and promptly put on relief here in New York City. Care was also taken to make sure they voted — for LaGuardia and Marcantonio, naturally.

Then, after World War II, when the supply of Puerto Ricans began to run low, New York's liberal politicians discovered the demographic equivalent of the Comstock Lode: the impoverished black population of the Southern states. It was simply a matter of upping New York's relief payments (by then called "welfare") until few blacks south of the Mason-Dixon line could afford to stay there. Getting into the spirit of the thing, Southern state legislatures cheerfully took care to keep their own welfare payments low — and public-spirited citizens frequently provided blacks with the bus fare north.

Here in New York they were welcomed with open arms — and not only by Adam Clayton Powell Jr., but by every liberal politician who could recognize a sure vote when he saw one. It was come one, come all — and the "Times" (need I add?) cheered the whole cynical process to the rafters.

New York politics became little more than a contest to see who could promise indigent voters the most. The trophy was finally retired by what walking municipal disaster John V. Lindsay, who ran up so many debts (most of them, to be sure, falling due after his own term ended) that the city is now staring bankruptcy in the face. So now the "Times" and the representatives of various threatened bondholders have decided that you, gentle reader, haven't been doing your share. For years the biggest and most successful politicians in this city trafficked in human misery, and sneered at the yokels who didn't have the sense (or "compassion") to join the party. But now the party's over, and the last thing on earth that they (or the voters who elected them) want to do is pay for it.

Before you get a stitch in your side laughing, though, make sure that your own city or town isn't run by quacks that differ from New York's only in the size of their opportunities. If it is, their time bombs too will start going off one of these days — and it will be only fair for the local citizenry, who after all elected them, to clean up the debris. There is no reason on earth why the many American communities that never fell for such demagogues should have to pay for the recklessness and sheer folly of those that did.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — New walking trainers for children with neuromuscular or coordinative disabilities include two that also can be used for creative play by normal children from preschool age through early elementary grades.

LOOTER CHARGED
TOKYO (UPI) — Prosecutors today filed a fraud complaint against a 23-year-old clerk accused by police of looting a bank of $706,000.

She is Fumiko Otake, formerly a teller at a branch of the Ashikaga Bank in Tokyo City, 63 miles north of Tokyo. Police said Miss Otake, an employee of the bank's loan department, got the money by cashing forged promissory notes and securities and that she apparently did it for her lover, Masayuki Abe, 25, a Tokyo businessman. Police were seeking Abe.

VOICE OF BUSINESS
'One of Most Unwise Legislative proposals'

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
WASHINGTON — That "ol' country lawyer" from North Carolina, Sam Ervin, Jr. — one of the heroes of the Watergate investigation — has roused himself from retirement to try to save the country from another potential disaster: Creation of a federal "Consumer Protection Agency."

Since business opposition to such an agency might reasonably be suspect as self-serving, I'd like to share with you Sen. Ervin's delightful letter on the subject. It was sent to Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Texas), chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, on June 23. Rep. John Erlenborn (R-Ill.) put it in the July 31 Congressional Record. (For reasons of space, I have had to condense it slightly.)

Dear Mr. Chairman:
I am one of the people of the United States. I respectfully ask that you hear my concerns.

The federal bureaucracy has become like the third curse of Moses — a suffocating plague of frogs brought forth from out of where they belong into the villages and the very houses of the people.

My concerns about the creeping intrusion are well illustrated by the proposed Consumer Protection Acts of 1975 which are being considered now by one of your subcommittees.

These proposals would add yet another self-willed federal agency to the burgeoning mass that now exists.

A review of the current bills, H.R. 7575 and S. 200, shows... both bills contain all that was revolting their unsuccessful predecessors. And, sadly, there are even new dangers in these 1975 versions.

If one of these bills should be passed by Congress, it will demonstrate that the national legislature has lost touch with reality.

These bills simply cannot withstand rational scrutiny. One need only consider their premise: Because the bureaucracy has become too pervasive to enable consumers to appear before existing federal agencies, it is proposed that Congress create yet another federal agency before which consumers also will not appear.

It cannot work. There is no such thing as a single, clear-cut interest of consumers in government decision-making.

I am well aware that, during the hearings in the House last Congress, Ralph Nader offered what he said was an example of an interest of consumers which was "quite clear." His example? Mandatory installation of seat belt devices in automobiles!

Can he not see the danger in his own thinking? He is not really supporting an advocate of the views of the missing consumer. He is supporting an advocate only of consumers who agree with the advocate.

Further, the danger of this authoritarian approach is severely compounded by the extraordinary powers the bills would confer on the new agency, powers put there to assure that the positions advocated by the agency get implemented.

The new bureaucracy would have all the rights of a regulatory agency, yet none of the responsibilities.

Indeed, it seems that the immensity of these powers is finally being discovered by some of the ardent supporters of a new consumer bureaucracy.

Organized labor saw to it that a complete gag was put on the new consumer bureaucracy's intended advocacy in labor-related matters. Then came the broadcasters who proved to a majority of the Senate that the consumer unit could, and probably would, put them out of business at license renewal time. Their special interests were exempted.

If labor unions and broadcasters deserved protection from this new bureaucracy, farmers must need equal protection through a majority of the Senate, and so farmers received a broad special interest exemption.

Following these, a host of narrower special interest exemptions were put into S. 200. If the trend continues in the House, we may see created a consumer agency with nothing to say. This would be a refreshing approach to creating federal bureaucracies. Maybe such an agency would have time to listen to the people.

In summary, Mr. Chairman, the bills before you are not merely bad bills, they are dangerous bills poorly conceived.

I ask you to do everything within your power to see that these bills suffer the fate of their predecessors.

Since I consider this bill one of the most unwise legislative proposals ever made to the Congress, I ask that this statement be made a part of the hearing record before your Committee.

Sincerely,
Sam J. Ervin, Jr.

Orangutan Seeks Ride: Object — 'Matrimony'

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Because you have always been a good friend to the Como Park Zoo, I am asking a favor of you. We have a 5-month-old female orangutan named Joy who has been invited to the Los Angeles Zoo on a "breeding loan." They have a male orangutan named Guy whom they would like to mate with Joy.

Do you know anyone who has an air-conditioned automobile who would be willing to drive Joy and her foster parents (Arlene and Joe Scheunemann) to Chicago to board an airplane to transport Joy to L.A.?

Joy is small enough to be held in one's arms, she has good manners, and she would do no damage to the automobile. JOHN FLETCHER, DIRECTOR ST. PAUL COMO PARK ZOO

DEAR JOHN: If Joy is a "liberated" orangutan, she may not like the idea of going to L.A. to accommodate the male. If Guy wants a date with a sure thing, why doesn't HE fly to St. Paul?

On the other hand, if Joy WANTS to meet Guy in L.A., I will provide the child bride with air-conditioned transportation. And I hope she returns "hair-conditioned."

DEAR ABBY: My husband does sheet-rock work for a living. He makes good money, but he's always wanted to be an accountant, so he's been going to night school. He's young and smart, and will finish his accounting course next year.

The problem is that everyone we meet asks Carl what he does for a living, and when he tells them he does sheet-rock work, they say, "Oh, come and take a look at this hole in my wall," or, "I've been looking for someone to do that kind of work for me."

Carl and I both work five days a week, and we like to have our weekends free to maybe go someplace together, but with all these sheet-rock jobs he has to do for friends, he's tied up.

How can Carl turn these people down in a nice way? CARL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Carl should simply tell them that he's sorry but he doesn't have the time. And he'd better start practicing that line while he's still in sheet-rock because when he becomes an accountant, he'll have even more "friends" imposing on him for favors.

Viking Races to Mars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A Viking spacecraft raced through space today on an 11-month voyage to Mars. Scientists hoped the billion-dollar mission would find extraterrestrial life.

A "very clean, very smooth" launch sent the Viking ship hurtling into a hazy Florida sky Wednesday atop a TitanCentaur rocket. Some 30 minutes later, a burn of the rocket's engines put the spacecraft on a trajectory designed to take it on a looping, 505-million-mile journey around the sun to Mars.

The Viking, a mini-laboratory equipped with sophisticated sensing equipment, is to reach the planet's orbit by June 19, 1976. A lander called Prospector may be detached to touch down on the Martian surface on the nation's bicentennial July 4.

Purpose of the mission, which includes the launch of a second Viking Sept. 1, is to study soil samples and other data for evidence of life on the red planet.

"I think the probability of finding life on Mars is pretty damn small," Dr. Noel Hinners, National Aeronautics and Space Administration associate administrator for space science, said Wednesday. "But, boy, do I ever hope we find life."

While some scientists think chances of finding life on the planet are greater than Hinners is willing to grant, others have been equally skeptical. All, however, agree the mission was worth undertaking.

"I think man is very egotistical and self-centered and takes a self-centered view of his position in the universe. It would be humbling to find life elsewhere," Hinners said.

He added finding evidence of evolution on Mars also would answer some scientific questions about the relationship of the planets to that process.

Judge Denies Bond for Parr

MIDLAND, Tex. (UPI) — Ousted Duval County Judge Archer Parr will have to wait in jail during the appeal of a 10-year prison sentence he received for lying to a federal grand jury.

U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle Wednesday denied bond to Parr and ordered the South Texas political boss to jail.

Parr, 49, had asked to be released on bond while appealing his perjury conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court. Wealthy Duval County rancher Praxedis Canales told Federal District Judge D.W. Suttle he was willing to act as surety on a $121,500 cash bond.

U.S. Attorney John Clark told Suttle Parr maintained citizenship in both the United States and Mexico and he could not be extradited should he flee south of the border.

Parr, a nephew of the late "Duke of Duval" George Parr, was convicted in 1974 of lying to a federal grand jury that spent a year looking into Duval County public construction.

The indictment had charged that Parr lied about $121,500 he received from the Duval County Conservation and Reclamation District from February, 1968, to June, 1970. Parr told newsmen the indictment and subsequent trial was an attempt by the Nixon administration to "get" a list of Democrats in Texas.

Following Parr's conviction,

Suttle sentenced the Duval County judge to 10 years in prison.

Parr appealed the decision to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans but the federal court upheld his conviction and he was arrested July 24 at San Diego, Tex.

Parr had been free since May 9, 1974 when South Texas millionaire Clinton Manges posted an appeal bond. But Parr and Manges, once friends, split politically and Manges demanded his bond be returned.

On Aug. 7, Suttle complied and returned a $121,500 cash bond put up in Parr's behalf by Manges. It was that bond that Parr's attorney, James Gillespie, wanted Suttle to transfer over to Canales.

Manges also reportedly sided with District Judge O.P. Carrillo who removed Parr from office last March. Parr also is appealing his ouster to the Texas Fourth Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio.

Hoffa Son Refuses Test

DETROIT (UPI) — A lawyer for James Hoffa's foster son, Charles O'Brien, says O'Brien will not take a lie detector test to determine if he knows anything about the onetime Teamster union czar's disappearance 23 days ago.

Hoffa's lawyer son, James P. Hoffa, has demanded repeatedly O'Brien take the test — "because he knows something." The demand came after investigators placed O'Brien in the area of a suburban Detroit parking lot where Hoffa was last seen July 30. O'Brien said later he was in the area early July 31 only because he was waiting for a ride to work. The former Teamsters president vanished after telling his family he was meeting a reputed Mafia kingpin and two other men for lunch. The three denied they planned to meet Hoffa.

O'Brien's lawyer, James Burdick, said Wednesday O'Brien would not submit to the test. The FBI has not asked him to take one, he added. Burdick reportedly has advised O'Brien not to submit to any lie detector interrogation on grounds such tests are "often inconclusive." The lawyer also disclosed two FBI agents and a state police investigator had questioned O'Brien about the Hoffa disappearance for about five hours Monday at a state police office at Detroit's Metropolitan airport.

The meeting, Burdick said, dealt with "very specific" details of O'Brien's whereabouts over a three- or four-day period around July 30. He refused to elaborate.

The FBI and State Police declined comment Wednesday night. Burdick said the meeting was requested by the FBI and that O'Brien flew to Detroit from his home in West Memphis, Ark. for it.

It was the second such meeting, Burdick said, and it also covered the question of O'Brien's whereabouts immediately before and after Hoffa vanished. The first meeting occurred, Burdick said, about a week after Hoffa disappeared.

Meanwhile, a Florida man who mailed photos of Hoffa to the Detroit bureau of United Press International and to James P. Hoffa said Wednesday he plans more mailings — this time to enlist the aid of 600,000 handicapped persons in the hunt for Hoffa.

Kubiak Accuses Briscoe Of Semantic Trickery

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, Wednesday said Gov. Dolph Briscoe was trying to fool voters with his continuing talk of no new taxes.

"The governor is using semantic trickery when he talks about no new taxes," Kubiak said in a statement distributed by his Austin office. "It is patently absurd to keep running that line out when Texas property owners know perfectly well that their tax bills are growing like weeds."

Kubiak said the 1975 legislature avoided new state taxes only by passing an education bill forcing local school districts to raise local property taxes. "It's just plain silly to contend there is a difference between a state tax increase and a local tax increase — the impact on an individual's budget is the same," he said. "The total impact of the new school finance bill has not been fully tabulated, but I believe we will see property taxes increased by about $400 million."

"Not only has the governor's administration seen a tax increase, it has seen one that is unfair and regressive," he said. He said Briscoe should face up to realities, and "call a halt to the 'no new taxes' cheerleading."

Longshoremen Unload Grain

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Longshoremen at the Port of Houston Wednesday complied with a court order and finished loading 25,000 tons of grain bound for Russia.

Members of the International Longshoremen's Association Local 1273 and Local 872 had refused to load grain on the Yugoslavian ship Bosanka as part of an AFL-CIO boycott of loading recent Russian grain purchases.

But U.S. District Judge James Noel issued a temporary restraining order forcing the longshoremen to go back to work.

Noel Wednesday delayed a hearing on a request for a temporary injunction to prevent future work stoppages on other ships carrying grain to Russia.

AFL-CIO President George Meany requested the work stoppages saying the Ford administration has not provided sufficient assurances the recent grain sales to Russia will not increase American food prices. The West Gulf Maritime Association, TTT Stevedores of Texas, Inc., TTT Ship Agents, Inc. and the Dalton Steamship Corp. asked for the temporary injunction to prevent future work stoppages on other ships carrying grain to Russia.

Named as defendants in the suit were the two ILA locals, the international office of the ILA in New York and the ILA South Atlantic and Gulf Coast District.

Noel said if the shipping agents would delete the international office of the ILA from the suit, he would immediately hear the request for the temporary injunction. However, if the international office was left in, he would hold a pre-trial hearing to decide whether to consider the injunction.

A representative of the shipping groups said the international office would not be removed and requested Ralph Massey, the ILA district president and an international vice president, be called to testify.

Noel dismissed court until Massey would appear.

Longshoremen also returned to work Wednesday loading grain on the Italian ship, "Ivan Francesco." The workers did not return to work after lunch Tuesday, although the ship was never officially part of the work stoppage protest.

Liz, Richard Return to Love Nest

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The embers to ashes romance of Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor that kept the world agog for a decade with gifts of million dollar jewels, is aflame again.

Close friends and legal advisers of the couple said today they were back together and may remarry.

"They missed each other," said Maurice Solowicz, the Geneva attorney who arranged their settlement when the couple divorced June 26, 1974 after 10 tempestuous years of marriage. "They will live together, they decided to be together again, and they may remarry, but not tomorrow," he said.

Miss Taylor joined Burton today in discussions with the producers of the forthcoming movie "Aahakarov," an Israeli film in which Burton is to star.

For the time being, the couple will use Miss Taylor's chalet in the chic Swiss resort of Gstaad, Solowicz said.

Miss Taylor is known to dislike Burton's simple two-bedroom plus living room house in the Geneva suburb of Céligny.

Burton's latest girlfriend, Jean Bell, who had been staying at the actor's Céligny home, has left for California, according to local residents.

There have been reports that she is expecting Burton's child but asked about that before she left Tuesday, Miss Bell said merely. "Richard is away for a few days and apart from that I have nothing to say."

As long as Burton and Miss Taylor do not remarry, the divorce settlement of last year remains in effect, friends said. It gives Miss Taylor all the items she owned prior to and during the marriage.

During that time, Burton's most famous gift to Miss Taylor was a $1 million Cartier diamond and the world's most famed pearl, "La Peregrina," both given to her on her 37th birthday.

The Burtons' combined worth was said to be more than $25 million.

Ford Accused of Spurring Desegregation Resistance

BOSTON (UPI) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission says President Ford's weak support of court-ordered school desegregation helped spur resistance in Boston.

Boston began a stormy first year of school integration in September, 1974, after U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity found a decade-long pattern of resistance to integration by the Boston School Committee.

"The President's equivocal support for the order of the federal district court and the absence of a coordinated federal strategy all served to bolster the opponents of school desegregation," the commission said in a report Wednesday.

The commission also criticized the Boston School Committee for fighting integration. It suggested stripping the committee of its authority to run the schools unless there is a change in attitude.

A White House spokesman said Wednesday the commission's recommendations had not been received, and any reaction probably would have to come from Ford himself.

The commission, all but one Republican appointee, cited Ford's statement last fall that he opposed forced busing and disagreed with the desegregation order.

"We believe that the President's equivocal — not unequivocal — equivocal position in the press conference last year served to undermine or served to have adverse affect on federal leadership in connection with the situation," Chairman Arthur Flemming said.

Flemming, asked about Ford's statement this week that "forced busing to achieve racial balance" was not the proper avenue to quality education, said the President apparently hadn't changed his mind.

"It's obvious, the quote's the same," he said.

The commission said the first year of desegregation was characterized by repeated resistance at four of the 80 schools covered by the interim plan.

School opens Sept. 8 for the second phase of integration. Garrity estimates about 21,000 pupils, more than one out of every four students, will be bused under the new plan.

The commission, which only makes recommendations and cannot force compliance on its own authority, repeated recommendations made to Ford in January. It urged his complete public support for desegregation and assignment of a federal official to coordinate federal efforts to carry out the integration order.

Baker Headstart Enrollment Set

Enrollment in a Headstart program for four-year-olds will be at Baker Elementary School from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Friday, according to Floyd Sackett, principal.

"We're going to have a place for 40 four-year-olds in the program," he said. "Eligibility to attend these classes is based on family size and income."

Sackett explained the maximum income and family size requirements for eligibility. The requirements are:

Number of Children In Family	Income Must Be Less Than
1 or 2	$4,321
3	$4,901

Classes will be from 8:40 a.m. to 2:40 p.m. on regular school days.

Sackett said that free dental and medical care will be provided for the Headstart students.

Enrollment will be limited to the first 40 eligible applicants who can reside anywhere in the city.

Persons who desire more information may contact Sackett at 9-2792.

GNP Sees First Increase in 18 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The real Gross National Product rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter of 1975 for the first increase in the GNP since the beginning of the current recession, the Commerce Department said today.

The first three month increase in the GNP in 18 months corresponded with the traditional economic theory that a rise in the GNP after several declines meant an end to a recession.

Commerce also said inflation dropped to 5 per cent in the second quarter to mark its lowest level since the end of 1972, when it was 4.1 per cent.

But the Labor Department said today that consumer prices are on the rise again. The Consumer Price Index for July rose 1.2 per cent — an annual rate of 14.4 per cent if it continues at that pace for the next 12 months, a Labor report said.

The growth in the April-June quarter in the GNP was the highest since a 14.4 per cent rise in the first quarter of 1971, Commerce said.

The increase followed a 11.4 per cent decline in first quarter of the year. With inflation included the GNP was estimated at $1.44 trillion up 6.7 per cent from the previous quarter.

The report today was a revision of the preliminary GNP which had shown an 0.3 per cent decline in the second quarter.

Today's report was considered more accurate because more complete data was available than one month ago.

Commerce said the five quarters of decline in the GNP in 1974-75 was the longest since the end of World War II.

The 7.8 per cent decline from the peak of 1973 was also the worst in the post war era. The previous worst was 3.9 per cent decline in the 1957-58 recession.

Because economists work from historical data, the five quarters of decline in 1974-75 have not been officially declared a recessionary period. But this bookkeeping acknowledgement will probably be made within the next year or two.

The growth in the GNP resulted from increased consumer buying and stronger exports in the second quarter, Commerce said. The growth also indicates why the unemployment rate dropped in June and July.

When GNP is falling, U.S. industry is reducing its output and laying off workers. With 7.8 million jobless Americans, a signal the recession has ended means employment prospects should begin improving.

Commerce officials said improved consumer confidence, a stronger international trade surplus and declining backroom stocks for business were the primary reasons for upward revisions in second quarter GNP.

Fed Lets Contracts For Saudi Uniforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has begun letting contracts the first step in a $200 million program to outfit the Saudi Arabian army in everything from uniforms to police whistles, officials said today.

The contract covers uniforms, shoes, and field equipment — nearly everything the 100,000-man army needs to go into the field. Combat equipment is not covered.

It includes the price of the items and a service charge. "There's no expense to the U.S. taxpayer," an official said.

The Saudis tried to get the uniforms themselves, he continued, but decided to ask for Pentagon help. "They wanted the Defense Department's procurement expertise."

The agreement was concluded in 1973. The Defense Supply Agency recently let $30 million in contracts to U.S. clothing manufacturers for the woolen cloth needed for the uniforms. They were designed from scratch in Saudi Arabia and will be sand colored.

The Saudis will buy caps, berets, winter and summer dress uniforms, office uniforms, field uniforms, underwear, pajamas, towels, socks, clip-on neckties, sweaters, overcoats, gloves, belts, shoes, boots, police whistles, canteens, flashlights, tents, sterilizing equipment and similar items.

"The agreement was made for good, solid foreign policy objectives established by the Department of State," said a high-ranking official. "It will strengthen U.S.-Saudi ties and improve our relations with an influential nation in an area of the world important to our national security."

Dear Friends,
Although at time of death the spirit departs the unneeded body, it is only natural for the bereaved family to reverse the body as the symbol of the departed. St. Augustine, centuries ago, said that the body is the instrument of the soul in the performance of good works and it is thus proper to pay respect to the body and treat it with reverence.

Moms Ponder After School Snacks

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff
As school bells ring for an estimated 4,500 students within the Pampa Independent School District next week, mothers began preparation of after school snacks.

Whatever she prepares she knows it will be consumed. Favorite recipes are used again and again.

When Susie and Johnnie come marching home at 4 p.m. mother knows they are ready for food.

Mrs. M.D. Hood of 2100 N. Wells said her boys, Raymond, 15, Darby, 15, and Larry Dean, 6, have a couple of favorites — mashed potato cake and hot chocolate cake.

Mashed Potato Cake

2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups flour
1 cup shortening
1/2 cup milk
4 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cloves
5 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup crushed pecans
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup mashed potatoes (all can be leftovers)

Mix all ingredients in one bowl until well blended. Bake at 350 degrees in a 13 by 9 inch cake pan greased and floured. Bake until "touch test" done. Let cool. Frost.

Frosting
Blend together 1/2 to 2-3 box powdered sugar, 4 tablespoons butter and add milk to desired thickness.

Hot Chocolate Cake
Sift together 2 cups sugar, 2 cups flour. Bring to a boil in sauce pan.
1 stick oleo
1/2 cup oil

1 cup water
4 tablespoons cocoa
Pour liquid over dry ingredients, mix well. Add 1/2 cup buttermilk, two eggs slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Pour into greased and floured 9 by 13 inch pan. Bake at 400 degrees until done. Ice immediately.

Iceing
Blend together 1 stick oleo, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 6 tablespoons milk. Add 1 box powdered sugar and 1/2 cup nuts.

While Mrs. Hood's children enjoy cake, many youngsters hit the cookie jar and ask for a glass of milk when they return home each afternoon.

Mothers soon learn that an empty cookie jar leads to unhappy children. "Ninety-eight cents for 27 small and very mediocre cookies is a ripoff," said one homemaker who refuses to buy store cookies.

"When there are cookies at my house they are made with my own hands," she added.

Choco-Dot Chewies
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1/2 cup shortening
3 tablespoons milk of light cream
1 cup all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup shredded coconut
1 cup chopped nuts
1 package (6 ounces) semisweet chocolate pieces.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease oblong pan 13 by 9 by 2 inches. Mix 1/2 cup brown sugar, the shortening, milk, flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Press in pan. Bake 10 minutes. Beat eggs; stir in 1/2 cup brown sugar, the vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt, the coconut, nuts and chocolate pieces. Spread over hot baked layer. Bake 20 minutes longer. While warm cut into bars about two by one inch. Makes four dozen cookies.

Note — Unbleached flour can be used in this recipe. If using self-rising flour, omit 1/2 teaspoon salt in base.

Clove Nut Honeys
1 cup (2 sticks) corn oil margarine
1/2 cup honey

1 cup finely chopped English walnuts
1 1/2 cups unsifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Whole cloves (about 36)
Confectioners sugar

Cream margarine, add honey and blend well. Mix in walnuts. Gradually add flour and salt; mix until thoroughly blended. Gather into a ball, cover and refrigerate for at least 20 minutes.

Shape dough into small balls about 1-inch in diameter; place on ungreased baking sheets. Insert a whole clove in the center of each ball. Bake at 300 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. If desired sprinkle with confectioners sugar before serving. Makes three dozen cookies.

Brandy Snaps
1/2 cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine softened
1/2 cup honey
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon imitation brandy extract
1/2 cup unsifted flour.

Cream margarine and sugar together. Add honey, ginger and extract. Blend wells. Stir in flour.

Drop mixture by rounded half teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheets, about five inches apart.

Bake at 375 degrees for seven to eight minutes or until browned and bubbly. Let cookies stand one minute, then remove from baking sheet with pancake turner and immediately roll over wooden spoon handle. Cool completely on wire racks. Store in an airtight container. Makes about 30 cookies.

Hot Dog Heroes

Cut 1-pound (8 to 10) frankfurters lengthwise, almost through. Drain 1 can (21 ounces) pork and beans, combine with 1 tablespoon drained pickle relish and mash lightly. Spread bottom half of each of 4 or 5 hamburger buns with bean mixture and top with 1 slice each onion and tomato. Place 2 frankfurters, cut side down, on each sandwich; spread with 1/2 teaspoon mustard and top with remaining bun halves.

Place on baking sheet and bake in hot oven (400°F.) 10 minutes, or until sandwiches are heated through. Or wrap individual heroes in foil and heat on grill 10 to 15 minutes, turning occasionally. Yield: 4 or 5 sandwiches.

WORLD HUNGER
ATLANTA (UPI) — Air Force chaplains have turned over a check for more than $10,000 collected from airmen around the world last Palm Sunday to the Southern Baptist Chaplains Commission to fight world hunger.

School Enhances Appetite

School days bring thoughts of after school snacks. The M. D. Hood family is no exception. Mrs. Hood said her boys enjoy a piece of cake and glass of milk after school.

Nutritionist Answers Flour Question

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition
Harvard University

Q Could you please comment on the product which is advertised to contain half as much salt as table salt?

A Current scientific evidence indicates that a high salt intake is correlated with a high incidence of high blood pressure hypertension. Obviously, not all of us who use a lot of salt will develop hypertension. But at the present time, it's not possible to predict exactly who will. Therefore, it makes good sense to use less salt. One way of doing this — assuming you are a normal healthy individual — is to use the "salt" you have asked about.

This product is a mixture of sodium chloride and potassium chloride, but only sodium chloride really tastes like salt. Potassium chloride has a taste all its own that takes getting used to. As an alternative, you may find that you'll achieve a far better effect by using half as much table salt and many more herbs and spices, which are naturally quite low in sodium.

Furthermore, it should be emphasized that this product is not to be used by individuals on sodium-restricted diets or by anyone with kidney disease without the specific consent of their physician. In recognition of the potential danger which might occur as a result of misuse, the package now bears the warning: "For normal healthy people — not to be used unless approved by a physician."

Q In a recent article you discussed some of the differences between white and dark breads. You said something about a "70 per cent extraction rate" for white flour. What does that mean?

A The extraction rate is simply the per cent of the whole wheat kernel that is used to make the various types of flour. As a result, the less of the kernel that is used, the lower the extraction rate. Thus, whole wheat flour in which the entire kernel is used has an extraction rate of 100 per cent, while white flour has an extraction rate of only about 70 per cent. At that point, all of the bran and germ are gone, leaving only the starchy endosperm.

At a 70 per cent extraction rate, only 20 per cent of the thiamin, 23 per cent of the niacin and about a third of the riboflavin are left. That's why these vitamins, as well as iron, are put back in the enrichment process. However, considerable amounts of other B vitamins, as well as many trace minerals, are also left behind along with all of the fiber. And none of these are restored.

This in no way is meant to suggest that if you use only white bread you will develop a variety of vitamin and mineral deficiencies. But with the growing appreciation of the importance of trace minerals and fiber in human nutrition, it certainly makes good sense to take steps to be sure that our diets contain ample quantities of them. To this end, a switch to breads made from whole grains and undermilled flours seems like a nutritionally sound idea.

Q I have always thought of salmon as a fairly fatty fish. However, my cholesterol-lowering diet does not mention that salmon should be excluded. Is it acceptable on a cholesterol-lowering diet?

A Although salmon is among the fattier fish, it's still quite acceptable on a cholesterol-lowering diet. True, one of the goals of such a diet is to lower the total fat intake. It is therefore a good idea to drain the oil from canned salmon before you serve it, and to look for ways to prepare the fresh fish that require the addition of little or no extra fat.

First there is broiled salmon. Contrary to what most cookbooks will tell you, if done carefully, salmon can be broiled without adding any extra fat. If you feel you must use some fat, brush it lightly with polyunsaturated oil.

Link Between Meat, Cancer?

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — A preliminary look into a suggested link between intestinal cancer and meat eating has produced more questions than answers.

The idea is based on statistics that the highest rate of such cancers is in industrialized nations such as the United States, where much meat is consumed, an the lowest rate is in places like rural Japan, where the diet is vegetarian.

Studies showed that when rural Japanese moved to areas with high intestinal cancer rates, they did not develop the cancer as long as they stuck to their vegetarian diet, but did contract cancer if they switched to meat.

When meat is eaten, increased amounts of acid steroids, or bile acids, are secreted into the intestines to break down the food. Some scientists believed the increased acid flow was related to cancer. They also believed the roughage in a vegetarian diet would flush harmful bacteria out of the system faster.

The National Cancer Institute paid for a study at the University of Missouri-Columbia to test that theory.

Ten medical student volunteers went through a rigorous four-month program — eating normally for a month, then a month without meat followed by a month with a lot of meat, then a month back to normal. The preliminary findings are both surprising and puzzling to researchers.

There was no significant change in the bile acids as the volunteers went from one diet to another, and there was no change in total aerobic bacteria under any of the diets.

UMC microbiologist David J. Hentges said the lack of change between the diets failed to match results of other studies.

"This was a surprise because other studies had showed acid steroids to be significantly higher in the feces of those eating high-meat diets," he reported to a recent conference of the American Meat Science Association.

In addition, the high-meat diet contained more cholesterol than the other diets, but the volunteers expelled less cholesterol with the high-meat diet than when they were eating no meat at all.

The preliminary results meant that besides not being able to prove a connection between eating meat and intestinal cancer, the scientists could not even confirm that people with different diets have different amounts of chemicals and bacteria in their intestines.

Household Hints

By United Press International
Wash out lunch boxes regularly with a solution of baking soda and water to clean and deodorize them.

Clean and deodorize vacuum bottles from school lunch boxes and bags by shaking them with a baking soda solution containing about five teaspoons of soda for a pint bottle.

Know what you're getting when you buy ready-to-eat sandwich fillings for school lunch carriers. By law, ham and cheese spread must contain at least 25 per cent ham on a cooked basis. Bacon and tomato spread must contain at least 20 per cent cooked bacon.

Cooked, drained mixed vegetables in oil and vinegar dressing make a good portable salad for school lunches. Don't substitute mayonnaise or other dressings containing egg unless the salad will be packed in a vacuum bottle or carried in an insulated box or bag.

A parent who compliments children for every school achievement in classes and athletics is unfair to the child, says Dr. Stella Chess. Indiscriminate praise prevents a child from learning how to judge his own work.

Before you scold a child doing homework in poor light, remember that it will not actually hurt the eyes. Poor light just makes things harder to see.

Near-sighted students tend to score higher than nonmyopic ones on I.Q. tests, says Dr. John Karlson, a pediatrician at Napa State Hospital, Imola, Calif. Karlson concludes that myopic youngsters are more intelligent than those with normal vision.

Safety tip for students who bicycle to and from school: don't wear loose clothing that can be caught easily in the bike chain.

Left-handed children have a greater tendency than right-handed ones to develop reading, arithmetic and speech problems in school, says psychologist Theodore Blau.

And an instant coffee manufacturer packs one brand in quart-size mason jars suitable for home canning, preserving and pickling.

Checklist For Mink Care

If you think mink is special, you're right. Its lightweight warmth and luster are like no other fur. And to keep your mink looking forever new, the Scandinavian Mink Association offers the following helpful hints:

- The most important thing to remember about mink is that it should never be exposed to heat... it damages the pelts. If your mink gets wet, just shake it out - never comb or brush it. Let it dry naturally in a cool place.
- Mink needs air. Give it plenty of hanging room. Use a broad-shouldered hanger and never store your mink in a plastic bag. During the summer months put your mink in cold storage with an experienced furrier.
- Mink is not compatible with spray perfume or hair spray. Neither does it like to be pinned with jewelry or corsages.
- Have your mink cleaned regularly by a fur specialist - about once a year if you live in the city; less often if you live in the country. Professional cleaning removes dirt, enlivens leather and brings back luster. It prolongs the life of the fur.
- Mink today need not be something that comes out of the closet only on special occasions. Its beauty and practicality make it perfect for everyday wear. So treat your mink with respect and it will give you years of enjoyment.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Here's some hints for the many uses of the canned biscuits—plain or buttermilk. Make a cobbler by rolling out the biscuits and putting them in the bottom of your baking dish. Put a can of fruit on top of the biscuits and bake.

Or roll out your canned biscuits for individual pie shells, rub over them with margarine or butter and put in your pie filling and bake.

Or top casseroles with canned biscuits. And you can use them for dumplings with soup or chicken. Aren't they delicious with just hamburger or sausage gravy over them? Fry the hamburger or sausage before you make the gravy.

Or heat a can of cream of chicken soup or cream of mushroom soup and pour over cooked biscuits. Serve with a salad and a vegetable and you have a meal.

Helps to stretch the dollar!
Mrs. R. L. Willison

I'm stretching the dollar! Who isn't these days? And canned biscuits can help do it as they are cheap and can be fixed in so many ways.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By Fred Karpin

At the completion of play in today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game, our South declarer, who went down to defeat in a slam contract, complimented the East defender for the latter's timely deceptive play. East, who would have liked to have returned the compliment, couldn't honestly do so, for South had not played the hand to the best advantage. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Ten of ♦.

After winning the opening diamond lead with his king, South cashed the board's four hearts, everybody around the table discarding a spade on the fourth heart lead. A club was then led, South finessing his queen successfully. Next came the ace of clubs - upon which East falsecarded by dropping his king.

Now South was on the spot. If East's play of the king were "honest," then West had both of the remaining clubs (the jack and ten); and a third club lead - in the hope that the adversely held clubs were divided 3-3 originally - would result in the defeat of South's contract.

After some thought, South decided to accept East's play of the club king at face value. So he cashed the spade king, and then led his remaining spade, finessing dummy's jack. East won with the queen, and cashed the jack of clubs, for the setting trick.

South could have had two chances for the price of one, instead of guessing whether to continue attacking the club suit or to take the spade finesse. After the finesse of the club queen had been successful, South should have led a low club instead of the ace. East would have won this trick with his king.

Upon regaining the lead, South would cash his club ace. With both opponents following suit, South would have a fulfilled contract, since his two remaining clubs would be the only ones left in the deck. If (in theory) East had failed to follow suit to the third club lead, then South, as a last resort, could fall back on the spade finesse.

Thus South had no one but himself to blame for his defeat.

Sheriff Recalls Sales Years Ago

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Sheriff sales in Gray County are few and far between. It has been at least two years since Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan sold some lots from the east door of the courthouse.

Before property can be sold at a sheriff's sale, a court mandate must be handed down ordering the sale.

The order is served on the rightful property owner and the sale must be carried in the Pampa Daily News for three consecutive weeks and sold at an announced time and date.

After the property is advertised and the sale time announced, officials "cry the sales from the east door of the courthouse."

The sheriff remembers a time 17 years ago when an oil rig was auctioned off.

"But it has been years since we sold anything of any consequence," he said. "Two years ago we sold five or six pieces of property...some lots."

However, the sheriff says he and his staff serve eviction notices occasionally.

"And we have sequestered some property," he added.

In case an item isn't paid for and the owner fails to make the proper payment, the sheriff, upon receipt of an order, can hold it for 10 days to give a person an opportunity to come with the money and take it back.

The sheriff attributes the fact that he holds few sheriff sales and serves only a small number of eviction notices to the fact that the economy here is stable and unemployment is low.

"These people (in Gray County) take care of their obligations as well as any place in the country," the sheriff emphasized.

As for crime, the sheriff said, "I cannot tell you when we had the last safe burglary in this county—but we've had them in the past."

"This county has progressed well. I think we haven't had the problems many towns have," the sheriff said.

He added that 65 per cent of the violations in this city and county are solved within two weeks to a year.

The sheriff says Gray County has more hot checks than he likes.

"And it is time to bring about such atmosphere that offenders will know if they violate the laws they will wind up in a court so prescribed for that offense," he said.

"I sure believe in trying to solve the crimes."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

Summer-Fall, 1775:

This is open season on royal governors. Among the fallen and falling: On June 2, North Carolina's Governor Josiah Martin takes refuge at Fort Johnson on Cape Fear, and escapes July 18 to HMS Cruzier; he finally departs the colony after the Battle of Moore's Creek Bridge in February, 1776. Virginia's Governor John Murray Dunmore flees to HMS Fowey at Yorktown on June 8, but awaits defeats at Great Bridge on December 9, and at Gwynn Island on July 10, 1776, before leaving for good. In July, Governor John Wentworth of New Hampshire takes refuge aboard a British man-of-war, similarly with Sir William Campbell of South Carolina on September 15, and with William Tryon of New York on October 30. On November 7, the Rhode Island Provincial Congress deposes Governor Joseph Wanton. When the war begins, only Connecticut's Jonathan Trumbull—among all the royal governors—remains loyal to the colonial cause.

Kissinger Heads East

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger left Tuesday night for the Middle East where he said he expected a settlement that may contribute to peace between Egypt and Israel.

"I do expect a settlement," Kissinger said in a plane-side news conference before his departure with his wife, Nancy, and Undersecretary Joseph Sisco, veteran of Middle East negotiations.

"We will spare no effort" in seeking a Sinai solution, although "important issues remain to be negotiated," he said.

Kissinger's arrival in Israel, after a refueling stop scheduled in England, will put him in the middle of domestic dissatisfaction with Israel's foreign office leaders who with Egyptians have shaped a tentative intermediate agreement.

Kissinger received a telephone call earlier in the evening from President Ford but its contents were not disclosed.

Kissinger said negotiation in the Middle East "affects the wellbeing and security of the United States."

He hinted the United States might release certain arms requested earlier by Israel but whose delivery has been held up. While the arms pipeline "remained open" to Israel, certain items held up now "will be dealt with."

Kissinger settled as much as he could with Israel's ambassador Wednesday before heading for what has come to be called shuttle diplomacy in the quest for peace in the Middle East.

Kissinger and Israeli Ambassador Simcha Diniz Wednesday ended almost a week of meetings designed to eliminate all possible snags before Kissinger left to try to help seal a three-year peace treaty between Israel and Egypt.

The fire department said it had two second alarm fires during the night that were handled by kitchen crews.

A third crisis was averted Wednesday when bus and trolley drivers, scheduled to strike tonight, accepted a 6.9 per cent pay increase.

Striking Police, Firemen Near Pact in California

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A tentative contract was announced today in the strike by police and firemen but Mayor Joseph Alioto said the "situation will remain the same" until the pact receives final approval.

Alliotti, who reached the agreement with representatives of the striking unions during talks that went into the early morning hours, said the proposal must be approved by both the strikers and the city Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors Wednesday proclaimed a state of emergency and urged the calling in of highway patrolmen.

Details of the tentative agreement were not disclosed.

The mayor was asked if the striking policemen and firemen, who joined the four-day all-out walkout Wednesday night, might return to work pending the ratification.

"The situation will remain the same as it is at the present time," he said. He added that the board "ought to approve the settlement but after years in this business I don't place any bets."

Negotiators agreed not to release the terms until both sides met later today.

The supervisors had left the talks only hours before Alioto announced the agreement.

They asked Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to provide 200 California Highway Patrolmen for duty in San Francisco.

Brown's office in Sacramento said it would not act until Alioto signed the request, but the mayor said outside help was not needed. There are about 1,000 state highway patrolmen in the San Francisco area.

The supervisors said the walkout created "extreme peril to the safety of persons and property."

Both fire and police spokesmen said Wednesday night's calls were "relatively routine."

"We had some robberies but things were mostly quiet," a police dispatcher said.

The fire department said it had two second alarm fires during the night that were handled by kitchen crews.

A third crisis was averted Wednesday when bus and trolley drivers, scheduled to strike tonight, accepted a 6.9 per cent pay increase.

Alliotti, who hurried home from negotiations early Wednesday when a small bomb exploded on his doorstep, insisted San Francisco is a "safe" city.

But some angry police officers disagreed, and police Capt. Jeremiah Taylor said picketed police stations have been attacked and the keys to 200 police vehicles stolen.

About 80 per cent of the police and 90 per cent of the firefighters were reported on strike. Each department has some 1,800 members.

Both groups were demanding double the 6.5 per cent wage increase offered by the city. Their base salary is $1,378 a month.

Only emergency services were available from both departments for the nearly 800,000 residents of San Francisco.

San Francisco Fire Chief Keith Calden said a mutual aid pact, part of a statewide disaster program, was put into effect to bring in firefighters from other towns for major emergencies.

A fire official said the pact is part of a statewide program for possible disasters.

But a union spokesman, Jerry Schreff, vice president of Firefighters Local 796, said, "San Francisco now is without fire protection."

A picket captain at a fire station said, "You got guys on a rig with less than a year's experience and nobody in charge. We're the supervisors and we're out."

Amarillo Man Finds Diamond

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (UPI) — A retired maintenance man scrounged through the hard soil and came up with a 16.37-karat diamond.

W.W. Johnson, 62, of Amarillo, Tex., found the diamond Wednesday after two hours of digging at the Crater of Diamonds State Park.

"They had a big rain, see, and it washed the point out," Johnson said. "The sun hit it. I went over and just dug it out with my fingers."

But the diamond, which Johnson decided to name the "Amarillo Starlight," may not make him a rich man.

Gem experts said depending on the quality the diamond's value could range from less than a few hundred dollars to many thousands of dollars.

A spokesman for the state Parks and Tourism Department said the diamond was a clear, white gem and appeared to be flawless. He said it was comparable to the Star of Arkansas, which was found at the diamond mine in 1957 and last sold for $85,000.

But a Little Rock gemologist was skeptical of the quality of the diamonds found at Murfreesboro.

"I have yet to find a diamond cutter that would cut any of the stones brought to me from the Murfreesboro mine," said Lloyd Stanley. "They were of very low quality."

He said more than half of a diamond is usually lost in the cutting and diamond cutters usually make two stones from the larger rough diamonds.

Johnson still had his hopes. "I just guess if I can get a pretty good price — I'm a poor man — I guess I will sell it," he said. "And I might buy me a home down in Arkansas."

Johnson's visit Wednesday was his first trip to the Crater of Diamonds, where diamonds were first discovered in 1905. During the next 40 years several commercial mining attempts failed. Since 1952 the diamond mine has been operated as a tourist attraction.

The Star of Arkansas was found in 1957 and weighed 15.31 karats as a rough stone. The largest diamond found at the mine was the Uncle Sam which weighed 40.23 karats.

Texas Burial Set for Hogg

HOUSTON (UPI) — Funeral services for wealthy philanthropist Miss Ima Hogg, one of the state's most celebrated citizens, will be at her former home Bayou Bend Friday.

Miss Hogg, 93, who died Tuesday in a London hospital, will be buried in Austin's Oakwood Cemetery Saturday.

The daughter of Texas' first native-born governor, Miss Hogg broke her hip in a fall outside her London hotel last Thursday and entered Westminster Hospital. Complications set in Saturday. An autopsy was ordered.

Known simply as "Miss Ima," she was the daughter of James Stephen Hogg, the state's 19th governor (1891-95). She had three brothers, Will, Mike and Tom, whom she outlived by several decades.

Miss Hogg, who gave up her early desire to be a concert pianist, founded the Houston Symphony Orchestra, provided many fine arts scholarships and donated historical lands and dwellings to the public.

The most noted was her Latin Colonial style mansion built in 1928, called Bayou Bend. The faint pink marble home, with its art and antique treasures and surrounding 15 acres were deeded to the Museum of Fine Arts in 1968 as a decorative wing.

Former Gov. Allan Shivers, speaking of Miss Hogg when he presented her the University of Texas distinguished alumni award in 1963, said, "Some persons create history. Some record it. Others restore and conserve it. She has done all three."

Miss Hogg was born July 10, 1882, in Mineola, Tex., where her father was district attorney.

An outspoken champion of civil rights, Miss Hogg helped establish the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health, served on the Houston school board for six years and helped the state parks board restore her parents' first home in Jim Hogg State Park at Quitman.

TAX STUDY
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas school districts may be undervaluing land in their jurisdictions by as much as $80 billion, a special property tax study committee reports.
This means that, on the average, $400,000 out of each $1 million worth of taxed property is lost to underevaluation, the committee's report to the legislature said.
Total value of taxable property in the state is estimated at $201.9 billion.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Eldon R. Miller used million dollar loans to build his Financial Corporation into a $1 billion firm. But he filed for bankruptcy Tuesday with a list of creditors including the states of Oregon and California and the city of Los Angeles.
Bankruptcy Referee Jack Jones said the U.S. District Court will appoint a receiver today for the firm.
Also among the list of creditors were financial firms in California, Florida, New York, Alabama, Michigan, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky, South Carolina, Wisconsin, North Carolina, Texas, Oregon and Delaware.
Bankruptcy proceedings against the corporation had already begun in New York. But Jones said Spencer Marsh Jr. appointed by the New York court as the receiver had agreed to transfer of the case to the Kansas City court.
The corporation was stopped from doing business July 10 by the federal court for the southern district of New York, acting on a complaint from the Securities and Exchange Commission alleging the firm defaulted on $18 million in repurchase agreements. The New York court appointed Marsh as the receiver at that time.

The bankruptcy petition lists Financial's assets at $50.5 million and claims against the company of $69 million.
Financial operated in the repurchase market, used by companies or persons wishing to invest or borrow large sums of money for short periods, ranging from overnight to two weeks.
A company needing cash quickly could sell $1 million in assets to a bank, another company or a local government, agreeing to repurchase the assets in a short period for $1 million plus interest.
Financial Corporation operated both as a lender and borrower. When interest rates went up in June, Financial's lenders demanded more collateral. At the same time, Financial began defaulting on its repurchase agreements — failing to buy back its securities.

Amounts of claims were not listed in the petition, but Sun First National Bank of Orlando, Fla., reported it lost $2.4 million on its transaction with Financial.

Checkpoints Nab Aliens

SAN ANTONIO, TEX. (UPI) — Despite court rulings eliminating border stations in California and Arizona, federal officials said today inland checkpoints in Texas and New Mexico are doing a brisk business nabbing aliens.

Deputy Border Patrol Chief Max Ramee said 2,000 to 4,000 aliens are caught each month sneaking into the country in his South Texas sector. The checkpoints, operated about 50 miles from the border, are a major deterrent, he said.

A 1975 Supreme Court decision said persons could be stopped and questioned about their citizenship at inland checkpoints, "but any further detention must be based on consent or probable cause." The ruling did not affect searches of automobiles made by U.S. Customs agents at border crossings.

As interpreted by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the ruling caused elimination of the checkpoints in California and Arizona.

But in Texas, under jurisdiction of the 5th Circuit, and in New Mexico, in the 10th Circuit area, the Border Patrol continues to operate the inland stations, officials said, meaning more than half the U.S.-Mexico border still is covered by the checkpoints.

"We had already gone into the requirements they're (courts) setting up so there was very, very little change made," said Ramee, headquartered in McAllen. "The major difference is we had been checking trucks on reasonable suspicion and now we need probable cause."

In the fiscal year ending June 30, Border Patrol agents seized 263,199 pounds of marijuana and 579 ounces of heroin, with a combined street value of $27 million, incidental to their main purpose of enforcing immigration laws along the 1,933-mile U.S.-Mexican border.

The Border Patrol also caught 663,270 illegal aliens in the 10-state Southwest Region, down 23,000 from the previous year, intercepted 15,000 fraudulent entry documents, and arrested 6,285 smugglers who were carrying 76,862 aliens into the United States.

"I'm not criticizing the court's decision — it was made on the basis of law, not practicality," said Bill Kline, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration office in San Antonio. "But it's my opinion that the ruling is going to make things easier for the smuggler."

Ramee said courts have upheld as "probable cause" for a search nervousness of the vehicle operator, a vehicle sitting low in the back and even acute smell of some patrolmen who sniff out marijuana like German Shepherd dogs used by some narcotics agents.

"They look for things that are just not the norm," Ramee said. "You check a hundred cars and you have one that's different. If you'd ever worked along this border long enough you could spot one (alien) about as far as you can see. You know the individual is from Mexico after you've picked up a few thousand of them."

Wants RFK Case Reopened

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A majority of the City Council unofficially asked police officials Tuesday to change their position and open their files on the Robert Kennedy assassination to a county probe of the case.

Police Chief Ed Davis and the Police Commission both had refused to release their 10-volume summary of police proceedings after Kennedy's assassination the night he won the 1968 Democratic Presidential primary.

There was no immediate comment from police officials on whether they would change their mind in light of the action by nine of the 15 members. It also was unclear whether an expected council vote next month making the request official would be binding on Davis.

The resolution calls on the Police Department to "immediately make available all evidence in its possession related to the assassination" of Kennedy, including the summary, statements of witnesses, raw files, photos, crime lab reports and movies showing a reenactment of the crime.

"The Police Department holds the evidence that could resolve some of the doubts surrounding Sen. Kennedy's tragic death," explained Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky, who introduced the motion.

"We are simply doing what we can to aid the people in obtaining the answers to their questions. The public has a right to know the answers to these questions."

Yaroslavsky's motion was seconded by eight other council members and he said that response "is indicative of the people's insistence that the answers, or non-answers, we have been given to date are not satisfactory."

News About People

EXORCIST SEQUEL
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Linda Blair is going to be repossessed.

In the wake of other critically and financially successful movie sequels, such as "Godfather II" and "French Connection II," Warner Brothers announced Tuesday the studio will film a sequel to "The Exorcist," which has earned more than $100 million.

To be called "The Exorcist, Part Two," the film again will star Miss Blair, who played a young girl possessed by the Devil in the first movie. In the sequel, she will be a 17-year-old high school senior, the studio said.

NO-FUN CONVENTIONS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard Daley says the Democratic National Committee has taken "all the fun out" of party conventions and Chicago no longer will bid to be the host city.

"They took all the fun out of the convention anyway," he said at a news conference Tuesday. "They stopped all the demonstrations (by delegates on the convention floor). Now you just sit there like a lot of mopes."

Daley said Chicago never again will bid for the convention. He said the Democratic National Committee should stop taking bids from cities which want the convention and choose the place most convenient to delegates and with the best central hotel accommodations.

He said that description fits Chicago pretty well.

NO BREAK FOR TOUR

MACON, Ga. (UPI) — Rock musician Greg Allman, who fractured a small bone in his right wrist in a motorcycle accident, will not have to cancel any appearances in a tour set to begin Aug. 31, his agent said Tuesday.

Bunky Ottom, who manages the Allman Brothers Band, said Allman fell off his bike Saturday but did not have to be hospitalized. A cast on Allman's hand will be removed before the 25-city tour begins, he said.

Ottom said Allman had been rehearsing but the band has taken a few days off and will resume practice Thursday.

"I don't know where all these rumors about a broken arm started," he said. "The phone's been ringing like crazy here. Before the day is over, somebody will have him in traction."

The tour will begin in New Orleans and will continue through November.

Ottom said Allman is presently out of town and refused to disclose his whereabouts.

AUTRY'S DONATION
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gene Autry, honored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary Tuesday, turned his $1,000 award back to the group for donation to a charitable cause.

Autry, the former singing cowboy who is now a multimillionaire businessman, said he remembered the "tough times" he went through during the World War II years.

Ford Tackles Busing

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — President Ford says "there must be a better way" than busing to correct racial imbalances in public schools. But he pledged to "carry out the law."

Ford tackled the busing issue at a White House Conference on Domestic Policy and Economy, where other administration officials also commented on the economy.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said that if another Arab oil embargo hits the United States within six months, it would cut the Gross National Product by $20 to $40 million and put one million persons out of work.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz stacked slices of white bread on a podium and said he did it to illustrate it costs more to transport bread than to put wheat into it.

Ford's comments on the busing issue came in response to a question from conference delegate John Gwynn Jr., president of the Illinois state chapter and Peoria Branch of the NAACP.

"The objective is to get quality education," Ford said. "There must be a better way to do it."

Gwynn also said race relations were being "pushed under the rug" by the Ford administration.

"I respectfully disagree that race relations are being pushed under the rug in this administration," Ford said.

The President and his team used the conference to put to voters their side of key issues facing the nation. Energy and food prices were examples.

Zarb told the conference, "Another oil embargo will make the last one look like a picnic." He tried to demonstrate the need to develop more home-grown sources of fuel and avoid excess dependency on foreign suppliers. He also said he expects the natural gas shortage to be more severe this winter than last.

The administration says higher fuel prices will help curb the use of foreign oil and stimulate domestic production.

But both he and Russell Train, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said coal will play a major role in the nation's energy future.

But z said transportation costs contribute more to the price of a loaf of bread than the costs of the wheat that goes into it.

Labor Secretary John Dunlop told the conference all signs show the economy is improving. But he said it "may be wise in the next couple of months to consider a tax cut for individuals and corporations" as a further stimulant.

Ford defended the administration's fight against inflation, but admitted it has caused higher unemployment, which he pledged would be brought down.

"You can't turn a spigot," he said in discussing the problems of the economy. "It takes time to win the battle against inflation and unemployment."

Nixon To Reveal Tapes, Documents to Public

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says he intends to make his Watergate tapes and documents public at a later date, but only after they are first "reviewed" by him and his family.

In a 171-page deposition made public today by columnist Jack Anderson, Nixon said he felt no need to release immediately additional information about the scandal that drove him from office. He said he would decide the time table for making the material public.

Nixon said his only current concern was cooperating with the special Watergate prosecutors.

"Then I shall determine, but not the Congress, what can appropriately be made public," Nixon said. "The President should have a right to make a determination as to whether or not and how and when there should be a disclosure."

The lengthy deposition was taken at San Clemente July 25 by a battery of lawyers as part of a suit filed by Nixon to get custody of his tapes and presidential papers. The material is now in government custody.

"I intend to provide for making first, of course, for proper review of the tapes, which can only be undertaken by me and members of my family because of the private and personal considerations that are there and for making them public as soon as those reviews are completed," Nixon said.

"Do you expect it to be longer than five years?" a lawyer asked him.

"I can't tell you until I see how big the task is," Nixon replied.

The deposition made no new disclosures on the Watergate scandal but represented the first time Nixon spoke on the record since his resignation last August.

Nixon said the White House taping system was installed on the advice of President Lyndon B. Johnson. The advice was relayed by a mutual friend, Pepsi-Cola chief executive Don Kendall, to Nixon's chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

Nixon said that when he became President he had taping devices installed by Johnson removed from the White House.

"President Johnson said to go back and tell President Nixon that it is vitally important that he install or reinstall a system of taping because he said he found it proved invaluable in writing his memoirs and also he thought very important in terms of a presidential library," Nixon said recounting Kendall's comments to Haldeman.

"I said limit it to the offices and not in the residences and no taping of staff members' telephones and so forth and so on, which apparently had been part of the Johnson system," Nixon said. "It (the Johnson taping system) has been alleged by some, whether that is true or not, I don't know."

"My reason for approving it was primarily because of the historical significance."

Present during the deposition were attorneys for Nixon, Anderson and other parties trying to force the public release of the tapes and representatives of the Watergate Special Prosecutor's Office and the General Services Administration.

Anderson said Nixon "looked tan and fit" and was nattily dressed during the question and answer session.

"But he was in a testy mood. He often replied to questions with sarcastic barbs," said Anderson on the ABC AM America show.

Nixon said in the deposition that he felt his tapes and papers should be covered by the same guidelines as those applied to the materials of Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lyndon B. Johnson and John F. Kennedy.

Some of those materials involving other presidents have not yet been made public.

Coors To Add Plastic Bottle

GOLDEN, Colo. — Adolph Coors Company may soon replace the age-old glass beer bottle with a returnable plastic bottle that is both lightweight and shatterproof if a research and development program now under way is a success.

Coors officials estimate a pilot production system can be built by mid-1976 supplying enough bottles for limited market tests. If these are successful, Coors will gear up for full scale production.

The Company said satisfactory plastic materials haven't been available that have all the properties of inertness, strength and durability needed for carbonated beverage containers. But Coors believes it now has the materials and is developing the technology needed to produce plastic bottles.

"The main purpose in our development of returnable plastic bottles is to answer all of the deficiencies of present carbonated beverage container systems," said William K. Coors, president of the regional brewery.

"The consumer benefits include convenience, safety and cost. The environmental benefits include conservation of energy and natural resources, and reduction of litter and solid waste through a recycling program for the bottles," Coors added.

Dairy Farmers Ask For Hike for Milk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dairy farmers who recently warned consumers to expect a 2 to 4 cent increase on a half gallon of milk this fall are now asking the government to let them raise the price a month sooner.

But chances the request will be granted are dim, says an Agriculture Department official.

A request filed with the Agriculture Department Tuesday by the National Milk Producers Federation asked for an emergency hearing on a proposal to speed up operation of the complex milk pricing formula, which is to increase in drinking-grade milk during September through November.

Patrick Healy, secretary of the farm group, said in an interview that if the proposal is accepted, the scheduled September-October price increases would be compressed into a single increase taking effect in September. The increase due in November would then be added a month ahead of schedule, in October.

Healy said that on the basis of price forecasts, the speed-up would bring dairy farmers about $30 million in extra income. Consumers would pay the bill by paying higher prices earlier than scheduled.

Healy, however, conceded that Agriculture Department officials appear "very reluctant" to approve the speed-up. One official who asked not to be identified confirmed that initial reaction to the proposal is cold.

Healy earlier said the expected increase of 2 to 4 cents for fluid milk prices over the next few months is inevitable because production costs have been rising and milk production has been declining.

Federation spokesmen said they wanted to alert consumers to the prospect in advance and contended buyers will be better off taking a "moderate" price hike than allowing low prices to force production down further.

BOOKS

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A note to The News recently advised that the "Miami Roberts County Family History Book" has been sent to the publishers.

The work, which reportedly depicts family histories as told by members of the family, will include many pictures of events dating back to 1900.

The first part of the book will be a short inventory history of Roberts County.

That's about all the information contained in the note. It didn't mention who compiled all the information, the size of the book, where it will be available or how much it will cost, but that information all will be passed along as it comes available.

Should be an interesting volume to peruse when it rolls off the presses.

I notice that James A. Michener's "Centennial" is still on the best seller list. I've talked to several people who have owned copies for quite awhile, some of them couldn't get past the first several pages. Some of them got further, but tired out and shelved it. A few have finished it.

I always feel a sense of accomplishment when I finally finish a Michener book. The few I've read all bore one thing in common (note use of the word, "bore"). They all tell a very fine, sometimes exciting, sometimes interesting story. The problem simply is that Michener tells his tales in too many pages.

Much of "Centennial" was good — interesting, and, according to many sources, historically accurate. But there was too much of "Centennial". A good editor could have sculpted it to a concise 300 or 400 pages. More folks would read it, more folks would enjoy it, and more folks could afford it.

detailed, extensively-researched books that bring premium prices. And he evidently makes a lot of money at it because his products generally spend quite some time on the best seller lists.

The only conclusion can be that the stories he tells are strong enough to overcome the way he tells them and the amount for which he sells them.

History Writing Becomes Witch Hunts for Authors

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. —

"By sharing the experience of the past," writes the Jefferson scholar and historian Dumas Malone, "we can immensely enrich our own experience and broaden our perspective."

What happens, however, when the writing of history becomes a witch-hunt? This question is important for a number of reasons. First, the nation's Bicentennial is fast approaching and is caught in a cross-fire of negative, non-stop criticism. Second, we are approaching on April 13 the 232nd birthday of Thomas Jefferson and the 200th birthday of the battles of Lexington and Concord on April 19.

A recent speech by Virginia Dabney, the historian and Pulitzer Prize winner, at the College of William and Mary here may help us understand why the Bicentennial has had an uncertain and chaotic beginning. Dabney, who is also chairman of the privately run and financed U.S. Bicentennial Society in Richmond, delivered a stinging rebuke and rebuttal to those who use history "to degrade some of the very men whom we, in the Bicentennial, are seeking to honor."

Specifically, Dabney was speaking of two recent works: "Jefferson, An Intimate Portrait," by Prof. Fawn W. Brodie, and "Burr," by Gore Vidal. The first alleges that Jefferson fathered five children by a Monticello slave named Sally Hemings. The second, a sympathetic portrait of Aaron Burr who plotted treason against Jefferson while president, is written by an author who has made a career out of defaming the characters of the living and the dead.

In a recent TV interview in New York, this columnist appeared with author Vidal to discuss "Burr." He promptly assailed Jefferson's character, as Burr had throughout most of his checkered career. After listening to Vidal's vicious tirade, this columnist asked a very simple question: "Would it not be a good test of the character of Jefferson and Burr to assess their ambitions?" Jefferson was elected president, while Burr plotted to make himself emperor of Mexico! Vidal quickly changed the subject.

The Brodie book, however, is much more difficult to dismiss because it is written with sincerity and an appreciation for Jefferson's achievements. This does not, nevertheless, excuse the work for its highly speculative approach.

"Proof of Brodie's charge of a sexual liaison between Jefferson and Hemings is wholly lacking. This is the view, according to Dabney in his William and Mary speech, of the three outstanding Jefferson scholars and biographers: Dumas Malone, Julian Boyd and Merrill Peterson.

"It should be recognized," says Dabney, "at the onset that the charge of fathering mulatto children was first circulated against Jefferson by a vicious, unscrupulous drunkard named James T. Callender, who had become furious with President Jefferson because the president refused to appoint him postmaster at Richmond.

"While Callender's allegation is wholly lacking, there is no question when, young and single, Jefferson tried to seduce the wife of his friend John Walker when Walker was absent on a trip. This was admitted by Jefferson, who obviously was no plaster saint, and his modern biographers do not try to make him out one.

faults, and this is obvious in their books about him."

The favorable treatment in the press of both the Brodie and Vidal books and their uncritical acceptance by many non-Jefferson scholars in the academic community offers us a possible reason why the plans to celebrate the Bicentennial are going badly.

"It is dismaying," asserted Dabney in his speech, "that Mrs. Brodie's confused and confusing book has been so highly praised by non-Jefferson scholars in the universities. Written by a professor of history, it has been lauded by other professors of history. Just what this signifies for the deterioration of standards on the faculties of our seats of learning I leave to others to determine.

"The amazing thing about Vidal's 'Burr' and Brodie's 'Jefferson' is that so many supposedly intelligent readers seem to take them seriously. It is understandable that these books have sold well, for almost any reasonable literate work that makes sensational charges against revered figures or downgrades those whom we have been taught to honor, will appeal to the groundlings. It is, however, dismaying that persons of presumed discrimination have accepted the slanders in these volumes."

Baseball — When the Grass Was Real, by Donald Honig (Coward, McCann, Geoghegan, $12.50) You do not need a scorecard or even need to follow the game to draw boundless enjoyment from these reminiscences by old-time players. With the exception of faster-than-light Cleveland pitcher Bob Feller, they are not the "baseball greats," but they played with men such as Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth, and their recollections evoke the bygone spirit of the game in all its vitality.

Previews of Books — 'CBS,' 'Jimmy the Greek'

By JOAN HANAUER
United Press International
CBS, by Robert Metz.
(Playboy, $13.50)

CBS has been such a profound force in the United States since the 1930s that one wonders why no one thought to tell the story of the communications behemoth before. It's a dandy tale.

For most adults, the network has been a formidable presence in the background of their lives. It fed them the news and entertained them for most of their leisure hours. Yet the men who ran the operation — the men whose decisions and attitudes affected what the public would see — remained unknown, except for occasional references in the television pages of newspapers.

Robert Metz, a New York Times writer for The New York Times, has unmasked them and trotted them out for public view in this masterly corporate biography. His exceptional job of research has resulted in an engrossing document on how one man, William Paley, built a small radio station into a $1 billion a year gooliath.

CBS always seemed the ultimate in a radio-TV network, just as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer once epitomized the powerful Hollywood studio. Its performers and programs always appeared to be the most popular and influential. No one has ever matched the power of Arthur Godfrey in his heyday, Edward R. Murrow was the prototype and the teacher for that new breed, the television newsman. The network's "All in the Family" led to an entirely new type of television programming.

While some of its programming represented some of the worst trash to be seen on the tube, at the same time it offered some of the most effective shows ever broadcast.

And its scandals were the juiciest. The fall of "The $64,000 Question," which at one point was watched by 84 per cent of the TV audience, reverberated through the nation with Watergate-size shockwaves.

"It's all there and as easy to read as 'I Love Lucy' is to watch — but far more amusing."

The Animal, by Jack Jones (Morrow, $6.95) JoJo, the hero of this novel, is the epitome of the professional football player. Outsized to the point of freakishness, he is a powerful brute of a man. He is also black. But JoJo is caught in a world he despises. He hates violence. His struggle to be himself, to be seen for what he is, makes touching, often amusing story.

Best Detective Stories of the Year — 1975, edited by Allen J. Hubin. (Dutton, $8.95) All the stories can't be the best, but this selection by The New York Times mystery specialist is fine, indeed. Francis Clifford does his tough guy prose in a violent little story. Phyllis Bentley trots out her amateur detective, Miss Phipps, who gets mixed up in dogs and crime. Other writers include Gerald Green and Jack Webb.

The Mixed Blessing, by Helen

Van Slyke. (Doubleday, $8.95) There's something old and something new in this slick tale — it's a love story (old) involving the daughter of an interracial marriage (new) and her all-white cousin. As befits love stories going back before Romeo and Juliet, the lovers compound their problems by making added difficulties for themselves. If you're in the mood for romance, this will fill the bill.

Surrealism, by Uwe M. Schneede. (Abrams, $25) An art movement that reflects the world of dreams and the subconscious, surrealism has a new fascination for the 1970s in its search for meaningful aesthetic images. The director of the Wurttembergischer Kunstverein explores the movement from Dada to Abstract Expressionism and provides more than 150 illustrations, 41 of them in color.

The Pleasures of Preserving and Pickling, by Jeanne Lesem. (Knopf, $8.95)

For the last few years Americans have been encouraged to plant "inflation gardens," distant cousins of the World War II Victory Gardens. Those who heeded the call, however, often came acropper. One set of problems involves those people at whom plants take one look and commit suicide, the types for whom only crab grass and poison ivy grow. For them it's store bought vtilles or starvation.

The other problems arise at the opposite end of the spectrum — those whose efforts amid seed and weed are crowned with too much success and they go peddling their produce until their neighbors refrigerators are overflowing.

Miss Lesem's book can be a joy and moneysaver to both types of gardeners. The unsuccessful can pick up produce when it is plentiful and cheap, the garden over-achiever can pickle and preserve his or her surplus, and both can have year-long reminders of the season of growing things at great reduced prices compared to commercial products.

The book doesn't content itself with telling you how to turn strawberries into jam or cucumbers into pickles. The recipes range from old American favorites such as piccalilli, a highly seasoned chopped vegetable pickle, to ratafia de Figues, a fig brandy that can be drunk as an after dinner cordial or used as a sauce on ice cream.

The author, who is Food and Family Editor of UPI, grew up in Arkansas in the depression and began learning about pickles and preserves by helping prepare — and eat — those her mother made.

CIRCUS, BY Alistair MacLean. (Doubleday, $6.95) MacLean goes to the circus and the big top turns turbulent. This might not be the best of the author's superb suspense books, but it still has all the elements that make for high pitched excitement. Three aerialists, all refugees from Iron Curtain countries, are tapped by the CIA for a special mission — steal a precious scientific formula from a heavily guarded castle. The action bobs at machinegun pace.

Archaeology Beneath the Sea, by George F. Bass. (Walker, $17.95) In the realm of real life adventures, Bass must stand very tall. His 15 years as an underwater geologist have been spent pioneering this enthralling field. He made numerous archaeological finds and proved the importance of underwater exploration. The book is worthy of his work. For the reader, it is a vicarious dive into a marvelous unknown world.

Please Omit Funeral, by Hildegard Olsson. (Lippincott, $7.95) Lucy Ramsdale, whom age does not weather nor custom stale, is at it again, detecting in Wingate, Conn., that unlikely exurban scene for crimes.

McBride-Led Cardinals Trip Cincinnati

UPI Sports Writer
 Bake McBride is off and running again and that can only mean more fuel for the St. Louis Cardinals' National League East pennant drive.

"He was flying, flat out flying around those bases," said winning St. Louis pitcher Ron Reed of McBride's leadoff eighth inning inside-the-park home run Wednesday night that sealed a 4-0 Cardinal victory over Cincinnati. It was McBride's second homer of the game and only his fourth this season. He had six last year, two of them inside the park.

The win kept the Cardinals within 2½ games of Pittsburgh, leaders in the National League East.

McBride, the 1974 rookie of the year, slowed by injuries earlier this season while St. Louis was coincidentally mired 10 or so games behind in the NL East. But since Aug. 1, McBride has lifted his average nearly 20 points to .290 and has resumed his prominent role in the Cardinals' go-go attack.

"I didn't think it was going out," McBride said of his first homer of the night, a two-run shot in the fifth inning that put St. Louis ahead 3-0. As for the second one, McBride smiled: "I saw it hit the wall and then I saw (third base coach Vern) Benson signal me in," he said. "That's all."

 Reed, meanwhile, a castoff from the Atlanta Braves, tamed the hard-hitting Reds on four hits to improve his record to 12-9.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh topped San Francisco 3-1, Houston upset New York 5-4, Philadelphia downed Atlanta 4-1, San Diego outlasted Montreal 8-6 and Los Angeles-Chicago were postponed by rain.

Over in the American League, it was Oakland over Detroit 2-1, California atop Milwaukee 6-1, Kansas City stopping Boston 3-1, Baltimore edging Minnesota 3-2 and Chicago over New York 5-3.

Pirates 3, Giants 1
 Rennie Stennett's two-run eighth inning single snapped a 1-1 tie and carried the revived Pirates to their second straight win after six consecutive losses. Stennett's game-winning hit was preceded by singles from Richie Zisk and Manny Sanguillen and a double by rookie Craig Reynolds. Jim Rooker (99) gained the win with relief from Dave Giusti.

Phillies 4, Braves 1
 Dave Cash delivered a pair of run-scoring singles while Larry Christenson and Tug McGraw combined on four-hitter, enabling the second place Phillies to remain one game behind Pittsburgh in the NL East. Christenson (7-4) went six innings while McGraw registered his 11th save. Cash accounted for the only runs they needed with run-scoring singles in the fifth and seventh innings.

Astros 5, Mets 4
 Cliff Johnson's none-out tenth inning double off center fielder Gene Clines' glove drove home Cesar Cedeno from first base with the winning run and thwarted the Mets' in their bid to keep pace with the other NL East winners. Johnson's game-winning hit off loser Rick Baldwin (2-4), which dropped the fourth place Mets five games back, came after Cedeno had opened the inning with a single.

The victory was also Bill Virdon's first as Astros' manager.

Padres 8, Expos 6
 A three-run double by Enzo Hernandez broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning, while Gene Locklear drove home four other runs as San Diego beat Montreal. Hernandez' game-winning blow came after losing pitcher Woody Fryman (8-9) had loaded the bases.

Locklear had a three-run homer for San Diego in the fifth. Jerry Johnson, with one inning in relief of Randy Jones, got the win, his second in three decisions.

Ryan Sparks Angels Past Brewers

UPI Sports Writer
 There's really bad news for American League hitters today — Nolan Ryan's throwing smoke again and is almost "back in the groove."

Ryan, the California Angels' three-time AL strikeout king and author of four no-hitters, pitched his strongest game in more than two months Wednesday when he beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1. Ryan allowed three hits and struck out nine in 7 2/3 innings with Andy Hassler finishing up after the Brewers scored their run in the eighth on consecutive doubles by Bill Sharp and Robin Yount.

It was Ryan's strongest performance since June 6 when he blanked the Brewers on two hits and raised his won-lost record to 13-12.

"After the first inning I slowed down my delivery," Ryan commented after the game. "At times I had almost all my velocity but I still haven't gotten into my groove."

Asked if he thought he could win 20 games again this season,

Ryan replied, "my record is the farthest thing from my mind; I just want to get in that groove."

Adrian Garrett hit a solo homer and Mickey Rivers singled in two runs to back the combined three-hitter by Ryan and Hassler. The loss was the Brewers' 16th in their last 20 games while the victory enabled the Angels to complete their best home stand of the season with a 9-4 record.

In his first start since Aug. 3, Ryan retired 19 consecutive batters during one stretch. He said he felt no ill effects from the grain and leg injuries which took him out of the rotation in recent weeks but that his elbow was "a little sore" in the later innings.

The Oakland A's defeated the Detroit Tiger 2-1, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 3-2, the Kansas City Royals topped the Boston Red Sox 3-1, and the Chicago White Sox downed the New York Yankees 5-3 in the other AL games.

In the National League, it was Pittsburgh 3 San Francisco 1, Philadelphia 4 Atlanta 1, St. Louis 4 Cincinnati 0, Houston 5 New York 4 in 10 innings and San Diego 8 Montreal 6. Los Angeles at Chicago was rained out.

A's 2 Tigers 1
 Jim Holt hit his first homer in two seasons in the fifth inning and Billy North doubled home Phil Garner one out later to give the A's their triumph. Sonny Siebert and Jim Todd combined in a four-hitter for the A's with Siebert picking up his third win. Ray Bare was the loser for the Tigers.

Orioles 3 Twins 2
 Tony Musel singled in the tie-breaking run in the seventh and the Orioles added another run in the ninth as Ross Grimsley kept the distance for his ninth win against 12 losses.

White Sox 5 Yankees 3
 Wilbur Wood pitched a six-hitter for his 13th victory despite a three-run homer by the Yankees' Bobby Bonds. Jorge Orta led the White Sox with a single, double and triple, scored three runs and drove in another. Rudy May suffered his ninth loss against 11 wins for the Yankees.

Blowout Ends Career, Life of Top Driver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maybe it was his upbringing, but Mark Donohue was always polite. His mother was a school teacher, and although she never kept that tight a rein on him, the one thing she made sure of when he was a little boy was that he was courteous. He grew to maturity the same way, always a gentleman.

In common with most race drivers, Donohue would grow a bit impatient hearing outsiders discourse on the dangers and perils of auto racing. It upset him sometimes to hear them agitate for the complete abolishment of the sport, yet he'd always listen patiently to all the detractors, never trying to impress them with how much he knew about safety on the track.

He knew far more than they did since it was a subject which particularly intrigued him. He was always searching for ways to make cars safer, continually experimenting with improved safeguards, not only for himself, but for his fellow drivers. It is of small consequence now, especially to his survivors, but it wasn't any mechanical imperfection in his Formula 1 car which led to Mark Donohue's death in Austria, it was an ordinary tire blowout.

When the tire blew, Donohue lost control of his car and it hit a metal guard rail on the course. The doctors tried everything they could, but the 38-year-old Donohue died in an Austrian hospital Tuesday night following surgery for the removal of a blood clot.

It is said of most race drivers they don't know when to quit. Mark Donohue heard the same thing said about him and it used to make him smile.

He had been kicking around the idea of quitting for some time. Since shortly after winning the Indianapolis 500 in 1972, in fact. He had won the Pocono 500 the year before and the Canadian-American championship the year after. He also had won three Trans-America titles and two other U.S. Road Racing Championships.

What else was there left? Nothing that essential, Donohue concluded.

So on Feb. 15, 1974, after winning the International Race of Champions at Daytona Beach, Fla., Mark Donohue announced he was all through driving race cars. He was quitting.

Donohue had every intention of staying retired, but then he and Roger Penske, his friend and associate and the man he has driven for exclusively the past 11 years, got into something they never had been in before — Formula 1 cars.

Penske and Donohue wanted someone capable to drive their car on the European circuit and they believed they had that man in Peter Revson. But Revson was killed in South Africa early last year. Penske and Donohue kept looking for a driver, but couldn't find the one they wanted.

Time was moving, Donohue finally said.

"I'll drive the car. I can do it just as well as they can, anyway."

No question about that at all. Mark Donohue could drive a car with the best of them. He was a gentleman and a smart driver. Smart enough to get out while he was still ahead, but in auto racing, all it takes is one little mistake and Mark Donohue made it.

He went back.

Nicklaus Picked In TPC

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Lee Trevino grew up in the heat of Texas summers, so when he starts complaining it must be something more than warm.

"It's so hot not even the corn will grow," is Trevino's meteorological report.

The greatest names in golf will combat the heat Thursday in the first round of the Tournament Players Championship. Jack Nicklaus, enjoying the luxury of an early, heat escaping opening day tee time, is favored to defend the title he won at Atlanta last year.

Golf's elite will be testing the tough, 7,140-yard, par-70 Colonial Country Club layout, which for this championship has been dressed up with narrow fairways and rough almost as deep as that usually found for a U.S. Open.

But the toughness of the course was tempered somewhat Wednesday by hot scores turned in during the pro-am by Al Geiberger and John Mahaffey. Geiberger produced a 63, which would have tied the course record had it been shot during the tournament. And Mahaffey, who deadlocked Lou Graham for the U.S. Open title this year only to lose in a playoff, shot a 65.

"I don't think you will see any more of these kind of rounds," said Geiberger. "The pins were in the middle of the greens and we didn't have any wind. I think 278 would win. There may be some low scores to start, but by Sunday, when the nerves start to tell, I think you will see them come up."

But Mahaffey did not agree.

"Yes, I think you will see some low scores," Mahaffey said. "If you put it in the fairway and get it on the green you can score and there are a lot of guys out here capable of doing that. I think a 275 (five under) would be a good winning score."

Only four times in the 28-year history of the Colonial National Tournament, normally played in May, has the winner shot 275 or better. And when the tour regulars play in that tournament the course is set up easier than it will be this week.

"If you get it in the rough you are in trouble," said Mahaffey. "I couldn't use anything more than a six iron to get out of it."

Mahaffey did not think the temperatures — which are expected to hover around 100 degrees most of the week — would play much of a role in the tournament.

"When we played at Westchester everybody talked a lot about how hot it was and who would win in the playoff? Julius Boros and Gene Littler."

Every top tour name will be present for the second TPC tournament with the exception of Johnny Miller, who withdrew earlier in the week because of a nagging wrist injury.

Qualification for this event is based strictly on the money winning list. The top 144 money winners make the tournament.

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys Wednesday announced they placed 10th round draft choice Dennis Booker on waivers. Booker was a running back from Millersville State (Pa.).

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Memphis Southern running back John Harvey has pleaded guilty to a federal drug charge in Texas and has received a suspended sentence.

The World Football League, which suspended him after his arrest last month, is expected to decide by Monday whether the 25-year-old running back who started for the Southern last season can rejoin his team. Harvey pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court at Laredo, Tex., to concealing information about an illegal cocaine sale. U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor gave him a three-year suspended prison sentence, placing him on "three" years supervised probation.

Diane Ladd will guest star with Claude Akins and Frank Converse in an episode of NBC-TV's "Movin' On."

Students Find Need To Budget

For the average college student, much of the fun of campus life can be overshadowed by constant worry over money matters.

Even those already on a lean budget have to wonder whether they will still have cash enough for those emergencies that crop up when least expected.

Careful budgeting is vital, and it should apply regardless of how large or small a bank account the student may have.

A check into the dormitory or fraternity-sorority situation at school is the first necessary order of business. Money can be saved by such living accommodations, since in most instances meals are included as part of the total. That is a big consideration with today's cost of eating out, added to the higher rent for living in an apartment.

It is a good idea once you are into the routine of campus life to try to keep track of how much you spend each day. A few days of jotting down those odd candy bars and snacks will open your eyes to how much can be spent without really thinking about it.

One way to guard against overextending yourself is the old "envelope" scheme. Calculate your mandatory expenses like rent, board, lab fees, books, etc. Then divide what is left of your monthly allowance by the number of days in the month.

It may take a strong will, but spend only what is in the envelope. At the end of the day, put what is left into another envelope. Then once a month count your savings and enjoy a well-deserved treat.

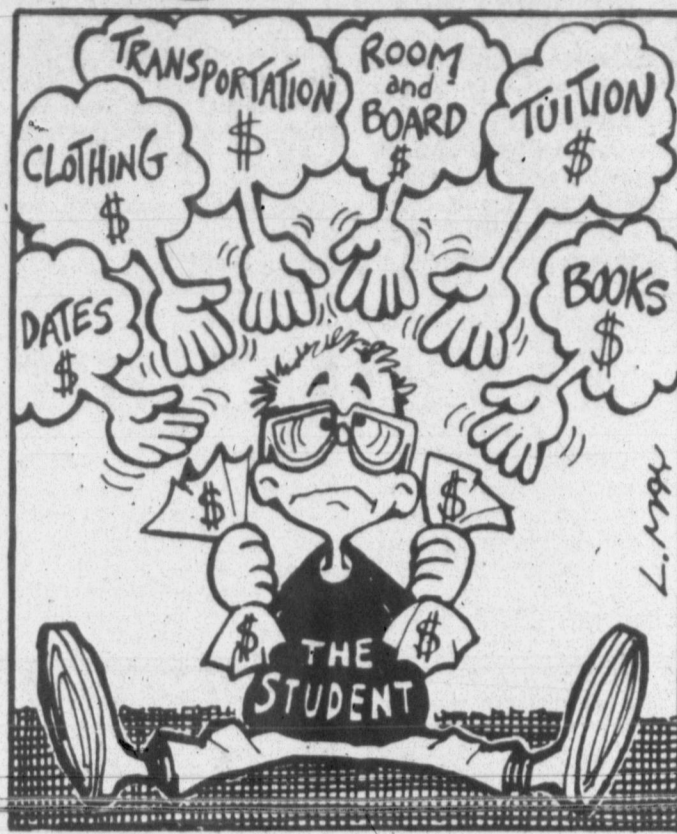

It's hard to find ways of cutting down on expense without having to put out extra effort. Sending your clothes to the laundry, for example, may be convenient, but it's also expensive. Toting your laundry bag down to the wash-o-mat once a week is cheaper. If you're not much of a hand with an iron, wash-and-wear clothes are the answer.

When it comes to entertainment you don't have to spend a fortune to have fun. You may be able to afford an occasional movie, but an enjoyable and cheaper evening can also be spent putting around on a miniature golf course. Instead of paying to see a major league game on Saturday, some students get as much entertainment out of watching a Little League game. A weekend picnic may sound a bit square, but many students have rediscovered this inexpensive form of recreation and found it a refreshing change.

School-sponsored activities are also worth looking into. There are many programs covering a wide range of taste and they are often free. They include movie shows, roving museum exhibitions, visiting lecturers on a variety of subjects, group outings and various other attractions.

One of the biggest expenses is transportation. While most students consider they must have a car, it can in some places be more of a liability than an asset — what with the critical shortage of parking slots, the high insurance rates and the cost of maintenance and gasoline.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22
Your birthday today:

Heralds in still another phase of a maturing lifestyle. You undergo a spontaneous, personal transformation, which enables you to brave the challenges created by a changing environment. The pattern of relationships is mixed; some are outgrown because directions of individual development diverge. Today's natives are unpredictable. Many have been great planners, experimenters, shrewd commanders.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You have plenty to do to close out the work week. Play it straight and big. Avoid taking sides or making secret deals. Protect your health.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You must uphold one of your major principles today but have no guidelines as to how to do it. Your basic attitudes are changing, but don't let it upset you.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You're beset with claims on your time from all sides. Some may not understand or accept your way of setting priorities. Work openly.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Make a consistent, wholehearted effort to clear the way for larger projects. Avoid a direct confrontation with those who cannot fathom the need for change.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Resist that urge to splurge so you will have the means to acquire something more worthwhile later. There are no significant bargains now. Take care of your most treasured items.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The balance now tips toward the goal for which you have been striving. Use a soft-still approach. Superficial details overshadow your grand schemes for the moment.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Take your time and do the job right rather than rush and end up in a state of confusion. Do your work single-handedly because no one else knows how to do it.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: In making a move, don't complicate matters with trivia or extra people. Friends are honestly mistaken and their facts are unrealistic.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Don't make important decisions on the spur of the moment; examine all of the repercussions of your moves. Personal obligations conflict with job commitments. Your choices please someone.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You've changed your mind but can't get out of what you've pledged. By midafternoon, the situation is resolved. Begin new plans; persuade others to join you.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: In pursuing perfection, you risk losing the cooperation of some associates. Take the time to explain what you want and to be helpful.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Being tolerant is not quite enough. Stick to definite truths and principles. Work conditions come to such an impasse that something must be decided — and quickly.

Housing Gets Fed Boost

By NANCY NIELSEN
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — More than 600,000 housing units in Texas are overcrowded or have little or no plumbing and are classified as substandard, a housing study group has charged.

In a report using 1970 census figures, the Housing Assistance Council (HAC), a quasi-federal, non-profit organization, said that 615,000 units of 16 per cent of housing in Texas falls in a substandard category. The group also noted that a large chunk of this housing is in rural areas and that rural America, including parts of Texas, has never gotten its fair share of federal money to provide decent housing.

Just how to get that money out to rural America was the topic of a recent conference here sponsored by HAC on Section Eight of the new federal housing program.

Section Eight of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 offers rental assistance payments to low-income tenants. The new program differs from previous ones in that it does not subsidize new construction, which rural areas desperately need. It could encourage construction, however, by assuring developers that tenants will move in because they will be able to afford the rent.

Bill Warfield, from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), said the rural areas are getting their fair share of money because that is what Congress mandated under Section Eight. But as it stands now, the program has its drawbacks, a HAC official said.

For example, 75 per cent of Section Eight's money will go to the cities even though two-thirds of America's substandard housing is in rural areas, a HAC official said.

Texas, however, fares somewhat better than the national average. The state has 35 per cent of its substandard housing in rural areas while the remaining 65 per cent is in urban areas.

Even so, HAC officials say rural areas in Texas lack an adequate system for housing development. Existing public housing agencies are understaffed and underpaid and rural banks are undercapitalized.

Also, HUD has always had an urban orientation with all its offices in the big cities, said HAC's executive director Gordon Cavanaugh. Developers in Texas who want to make a proposal to HUD, no matter where they live, must go to Dallas or San Antonio. Then HUD inspectors must travel to the developer's area for site inspection. All this takes time and money, Cavanaugh said.

There is some hope, however, for low-income housing development in rural areas, he added.

One possibility would be for HUD to contract out some of its responsibilities, such as for unit and site inspection to local authorities.

Another possibility is for states to stimulate proposals from rural developers by combining several rural projects.

Ideally, HAC would like the responsibilities of Section Eight's rural money to be taken away from HUD and given to the Farmers Home Administration (FHA), a HAC official said.

Pak-a-Burger No. 1

A landmark on North Hobart, Pak-a-Burger No. 1 has been in operation at 1608 N. Hobart since about 1954, according to co-owner, Don Rosenbach of Beacon Supply. Rosenbach has half ownership in the drive-in along with Bill Ellis of Houston.

"Business has been good, real good," Rosenbach said. "We haven't had to raise prices a whole lot either."

Wilma Mclear is manager of the store which employs seven people who work split shifts. Employees work two week shifts and then are off, Rosenbach said.

"Some but not all of our employees are employed all the time," he said.

Pak-A-Burger has no specialties; workers prepare what most drive-ins cook including drinks, malts, shakes, hamburgers, french fries, onion rings, corn dogs and ham and cheese sandwiches.

"Bill and I bought the store from the original owners in 1971," Rosenbach said. "He comes up here every once in awhile to check things over."

Rosenbach doesn't really know why they bought the establishment, but said, "I guess just to be in business. I don't really know why."

He does none of the cooking because he "hates to cook." He handles and pays all the bills though. He enjoys Pampa, too.

Astronaut Waited Years

By BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer

Astronaut Donald "Deke" Slayton, who overcame a heart irregularity to travel in space after a 16-year wait, said he hated to return to earth from the weightless void.

He said he was hoping for another trip.

But Slayton, last of the original seven Mercury astronauts to fly in space, is faced with the second medical crisis of his career. This one could mean he may never return to orbit.

The 51-year-old former bomber pilot will undergo exploratory lung surgery Tuesday at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston. Doctors spotted a lesion in the lower part of his left lung and want to find out if it is a tumor, cancer or what.

Slayton made the last space journey available for at least four years when he and two other Apollo astronauts joined two Soviet cosmonauts in orbit last month.

As the Apollo headed toward splashdown July 24, they breathed poisonous rocket propellant fumes. But physicians said there is no connection between the fumes and the lesion.

"It feels great," Slayton said during a news conference from orbit. "The only thing that upsets me is to have missed this fun the last 16 years. I never believed it was quite as great as it really is. I don't think there's any way you can really express it.

"We have to come back tomorrow and I'm not sure I'm looking forward to it."

During the historic joint flight, the director of the Johnson Space Center, said he planned to offer Slayton the job of directing the testing of the space shuttle rocket plane and would be considered as a pilot for that program. If the lesion turns out to be serious, his hopes of flying on shuttle could be very dim, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said.

"I'm looking forward to working on the shuttle or anything else that NASA management wants me to do," Slayton said. "I'm looking forward to it as a challenge."

"I like to fly anything, and if I get a chance to fly that beauty, I'll sure be happy."

Slayton, a native of Sparta, Wis., was the sentimental favorite of the astronaut office although he ran the elite corps with an iron hand. He wrote the book of regulations and saw they were followed.

Picked in the first group of astronauts in April, 1959, Slayton was to pilot the Mercury Atlas 7 flight in May, 1962. A heart defect called idiopathic atrial fibrillation caused him to be replaced by Scott Carpenter.

Slayton fought the grounding, which meant he even had to have a copilot to fly jets. Other astronauts appealed to then President Kennedy. Nothing worked and Slayton, moved in to head the astronaut office, assigning the pilots for each flight and watching his chances of ever getting in space grow dimmer.

But, 10 years later doctors said the heart problem had cleared up and Slayton was returned to flight status and was soon named to the Apollo-Soyuz crew.

"To some people, life begins at 40," Slayton said at the time. "To me, it's more like 50, but I guess I'd rather be a 50-year-old rookie than a 50-year-old has-been."

Slayton is married to the former Marjory Luney of Los Angeles. They have one son, Kent, 18.

He entered the Air Force in April, 1943, and flew 63 B25 bomber combat missions over Europe and Japan during World War II. He went to the University of Minnesota after the war.

Congress' Black Caucus: It's Clout Is Expanding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six years ago, the nine black members in the House of Representatives decided to band together. The Congressional black caucus has grown to 17 and has been criticized by blacks as outdated, but its political clout is expanding.

A group with 17 of the 435 House members cannot be expected to yield much political muscle — unless, like the caucus, its members include a committee chairman, six sub-committee chairmen, a member on each of the top three committees in the House and three leadership members. All are Democrats.

The caucus can rely on old-time liberals and at least a majority of the 75-member freshman class to support an ambitious legislative agenda.

"Procedural reforms, changes in leadership and an influx of new House members will permit measures to move which have been stymied in the past," said the chairman, Rep. Charles Rangel of New York. He outlined priorities in civil rights, the economy, energy, education and health.

There were nine blacks in the House when they formed a caucus in January, 1969. Seven of the founders are still here — Charles Diggs, Mich.; Shirley Chisholm, N.Y.; Augustus Hawkins, Calif.; John Conyers, Mich.; Louis Stokes, Ohio; Bill Clay, Mo.; and Robert Nix, Pa.

New members are Rangel, Yvonne Burke, Calif., Cardiss Collins, Ill., Ron Dellums, Calif., Ralph Metcalfe, Ill., Parren Mitchell, Md., Barbara Jordan, Tex., Andy Young, Ga., Walter Fauntroy, D.C., and Harold Ford, Ten.

The caucus is at peak strength with 15 of its 17 members in key positions. Diggs is chairman of the District of Columbia Committee. Clay, Conyers, Dellums, Hawkins, Metcalfe and Nix are subcommittee chairmen. Chisholm is assistant secretary of the Democratic caucus. Collins is a zone whip. Jordan and Metcalfe were appointed by Speaker Carl Albert to the Democratic steering and policy committee. Rangel and Young became the first blacks ever elected to the ways and means and the rules committees respectively.

In 1972 when the Congress of Racial Equality denounced their black brothers in the House as "incestuous, outdated, arrogant and contemptuous," CORE was pushing for separate and equal schools for blacks and the caucus was fighting for school integration.

Even now the caucus is not without criticism. A veteran liberal, still claiming 100 per cent support for the caucus and its goals, said, "They have an inordinate amount of attention paid to them."

"As a group they are not effective and as individuals they are not particularly friendly. They huddle together more for warmth, protection and credibility among black voters than their voting record shows."

Conyers, a lawyer from Detroit in his sixth term, is the most outspoken member of the caucus. Two years ago he challenged Albert for the speakership and got about 20 votes.

"We are still locked into a reactionary and racist system," Conyers said, describing the need for the caucus. "We are still a clear minority trying to make the kind of changes that are beyond our individual capabilities."

Ms. Chisholm, who sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, conceded "the caucus is not monolithic. We have conservative members as well as progressive. When we go off in different directions, some of us show we are more independent than others in the caucus."

Try To Ease Opposition To New Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton are attempting to soften opposition to an annual session provision of the proposed new state constitution by suggesting limits on the sessions.

LION'S TOOTH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pesky dandelions that carpet many a lawn are valued as food by growing numbers of Americans.

The federal government does not keep statistics on production for home consumption, but acknowledges there is a market for the leaves. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association here says dandelion greens sold on both the New York and Chicago wholesale markets last year. They grow all year, but as any householder can tell you, the supply peaks in April and May.

Dandelion is derived from dent de lion, which is French for lion's tooth. The name refers to the jagged edges of the herb's leaves.

UNION MEMBERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of unionized workers soared 17.2 per cent in the 10 years through 1972 but showed a slight decline as a percentage of the work force, exclusive of agriculture workers. A survey published by the National Consumer Finance Association showed unionized workers constituted 26.7 per cent of the total employed at the end of 1972, down from the 29.8 per cent 10 years earlier.
