School Contemplates Tax Hike

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

While each of Pampa's nearly 250 teachers may be happily anticipating the $1400 raise the last Texas legislature handed them, the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees are stuck with trying to figure out where to get the money.

Board members took their task with great sobriety Monday night at the regular monthly meeting.

The teacher pay raise has added a half million dollars to the local school budget which preliminarily calls for $5,212,196 for the 1975-76 school year.

The figure if a $716,357 increase over last year's budget and 80 to 85 per cent of the total budget goes to salaries.

The state, which said it could afford the new school bill, is putting $71,000 of the needed half million dollars into the Pampa bill.

The school district needs $356,750 to balance its budget.

Indications from the board meeting which lasted until nearly 11 p.m. were that increased taxes would meet the deficit.

The men discussed ways to cut down school expenses, closing the middle school and redistributing the students, cutting administration people, reducing programs, stopping the $500 now added to the state minimum on each teacher's salary, installing a property tax system.

With the pay raise, teachers in Pampa will begin at $8,500 for the school year.

Dr. Dan Long superintendent, reported that school personnel has been reduced by six and a half people from last year. He emphasized that cutting the budget would only downgrade programs for students.

The costs of operating schools have gone up even faster than general inflationary rate, Long said.

"I have to know myself, for sure that there is no fat in the budget," emphasized board member Bill Arrington.

Long said he believed the board had only two solutions to the budget problem before them for this year: a higher tax assessment or short term loans.

Long suggested that the assessment be raised to 60 per cent and that the tax rate be reduced from $1.50 to $1.20.

He explained that this change would give the school district the money it needed for the coming school year and would increase a property owner's taxes approximately 18 to 20 per cent.

The board is being rushed into a decision because of the late passage of the education bill and its even later interpretation to local school districts.

The board will meet at 7 a.m. Wednesday at Carver Center, 321 W. Albert St., for a budget hearing. Topics suggested for the early morning agenda are salary schedule for auxiliary employees, coaches' incentive, travel reimbursement and solutions to the budget deficit.

The breakdown of the proposed budget is:

- Instruction: $3245,935
- Instructional administration, resources and medic service: $456,422
- Pupil Service: $460,850
- Administration: $210,044
- Debt Service: $343,800
- Plant maintenance and operation: $495,108
- Teacher salaries and utilities: saw large jumps

Those areas showing a decrease in spending are purchased and contracted service for instruction supplies and materials and other operating expenses for instruction, payroll for co-curricular activities, curricular supplies and materials, other operating expenses for food service and other operating expenses for general administration.

Each other category of proposed spending was up.

The 1973-74 school year expenditures totalled $4,123,287.

Members of the school board are Curt Beck, Bill Arrington, Sam Anderson, Paul Simmons, Harold Comer, David Crossman and Robert Lyle.

'Farmers Should Stop Selling Their Wheat'

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Leo Witkowski, president of the Texas Wheat Producers Association, says farmers should stop selling their wheat in protest of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz' embargo on grain exports.

Witkowski Monday called for the moratorium on wheat sales in response to Butz's decision to stop further grain exports until after the September crop report.

Witkowski said Butz' action served to "distort downward the true value of the crop now in producers' hands despite a growing world demand."

Unless producers maintain control over the ownership of their crops, speculators and international conglomerate grain trading firms stand to gain control of the grain at depressed prices and gouge the American and foreign consumer as they demand excess profit at a later date of resale.

Witkowski said Butz called Monday's crop report inconclusive as to the nation's ability to export. Witkowski said the

Symbol of Confidence

While some Pampans may not like the taste of it, the city does have plenty of water for present needs and future development. However it appears that Pampans will be paying slightly more for water next year. The city's proposed budget calls for a basic rate increase of 20 cents from $4.30 to $4.50 a month.

Butz Asks Sales Halt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has asked American grain companies to suspend further sales to Russia.

His request, backed up with the threat of legal action, followed new government estimates showing cuts in 1975 grain production prospects both in the United States and the Soviet Union.

Butz said at a news conference Monday after the August crop report was issued that U.S. farm production is booming toward a record despite drought damage in some Midwest areas last month.

The secretary said he hopes sales to Russia can be resumed later if U.S. crop conditions do not decline further. He said the prospective harvest is big enough to hold further consumer food price increases to "negligible" levels even if further Soviet sales are made.

The USDA report, based on conditions as of Aug. 1, estimated the 1975 corn crop at a record 5.58 billion bushels. It was down by 196-million bushels, about 5 million tons, from July estimates because of drought in Iowa and other western Corn Belt areas and parts of the plains.

But it was 26 per cent above last year's small crop and 3 per cent above the record set in 1973.

Agriculture experts said that on balance weather conditions between Aug. 1 and last weekend had probably put "some further stress" on the corn crop, the key to future food price prospects because it is the chief raw material for production of meat and other livestock foods.

The Aug. 1 estimate, however, was less of a decline than some experts had feared. Butz said corn market prices could weaken when traders react to the Monday estimate.

report indicated record crops of wheat and other grains far bigger than a year ago.

The report, he said, showed wheat up 19 per cent, corn up 26 per cent, milo up 29 per cent and soybeans up 18 per cent.

Witkowski said wheat prices have strengthened some over pre-harvest loads under pressure from rigid orderly marketing techniques and growing export prospects.

He said, prices remained at $3.60 per bushel in the plains area Monday before the USDA announcement, which is $1.27 a bushel below the price last October when the wheat was planted for domestic and export use. The price was a full $1 below the parity of $4.60 per bushel.

"It's regrettable that the secretary of agriculture is yielding to the big labor bosses who seek to appear as protectors of the consumer. They are trying to stop exports to hold down the cost of food," he said.

The price of wheat has not skyrocketed, he said. Farmers in the Panhandle Monday received $1.27 per bushel less for wheat than last October.

Longshoremen loading grain ships received a 40-cent per hour increase in base pay and another 40-cent per hour increase is scheduled to go into effect this October. These are the true inflationary inputs to the cost of living in this country and into the cost of agricultural products," Witkowski said.

Court Order Overturns Ford's $2 Barrel Fee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The court order overturning President Ford's $2 a barrel fee on oil imports should lower consumer prices for gasoline and heating fuel, say some Democrats.

Administration spokesmen declined comment on the impact until the Federal Energy Administration can review Monday's decision of the U.S. Appeals Court. A Ford spokesman in Vail, Colo., said there was no immediate decision whether to appeal the ruling.

But Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said gasoline prices should drop to about 52 cents a gallon and heating prices to last January's levels.

It is "a major victory for the American consumer," said Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

The suit was brought against FEA by the governors of eight Northeastern states. The appellate court upset a U.S. District Court decision that favored Ford.

The appellate court said Ford had the power to limit oil imports but could not impose a fee to reduce imports by raising prices.

"We recognize that we are overturning an honest attempt by the President to find a solution to a difficult crisis," the court said in a 2-1 decision.

But it said the President was "without substantive authority to impose license fees of the magnitude at issue here."

The FEA estimated the $2 fee on each barrel of imported oil increased gasoline prices about 3 cents a gallon to consumers.

The levy, called a "licensing fee," was designed to go as high as $3 a barrel, but Ford delayed the final $1 in an attempt to compromise with Congress on energy conservation.

The first dollar imposed on imports in February led to price increases for home heating fuel, especially in the Northeast, and later to gasoline. But it had the President's intended effect by slashing oil imports 46 per cent below January.

The second $1 fee in May contributed to gasoline price rises over the July 4 holiday.

"We don't have to sit idly as Washington plays havoc with our pocketbooks," said Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, one of the plaintiff states.

A spokesman for Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., a party to the suit, said the plaintiffs would ask for a refund for consumers for the estimated $1.5 billion already collected by the fees.

Chairman Al Ullman of the House ways and means committee urged Ford to lift the import levy within the 21 days allowed by the ruling rather than continue the legal fight.

White House Spokesman Ron Nessen indicated Ford was favoring that move before the court decision.

But Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, who heads the President's energy resources council, said the ruling does not change the fact that the nation now has no policy to slow imports that swelled from $2.7 billion in 1970 to $24 billion last year.

Ford, on vacation in Vail, Colo., was awaiting final recommendation of his advisors today on whether to appeal to the Supreme Court Monday's U.S. Court of Appeals ruling the $2 tariff he imposed on imported oil was illegal.

Ford planned to announce his decision within hours after the appeals court handed down the decision in Washington. But he delayed to await a complete analysis of the ruling from his legal advisors.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford already has received the preliminary views of his advisors but indicated the President must weigh the future impact of his energy program.

The court decision was delivered at a time when Ford himself was strongly considering removing the $2 import fees to soften the impact on gasoline prices when he vetoes an extension of price ceilings on domestic oil. They expire Aug. 31.

Ford says there is a "99 and nine tenths per cent chance" he will veto legislation to extend the controls for six months.

A White House aide said Ford was faced with a dilemma: if he removes the tariff while at the same time appealing the opinion, the Supreme Court might decide the question is moot.

Two Local Banks Buy $300,000 Sewer Bonds

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Within 15 minutes after the Pampa City Commission opened this morning, the commissioners had raised $300,000 for sewer improvement purposes.

The money was obtained by the commissioners when they approved the sale of $300,000 in general obligation bonds to two local banks.

First National Bank and Citizens Bank and Trust Co. each agreed to purchase $150,000 in bonds at an annual interest rate of 4.75 per cent.

In discussion before the council action, Mack Wofford, city manager, said, "It would appear to me that the rate proposed by the two local banks is at market level or below."

"The bonds will mature over a six year period with $10,000 due on Aug. 1 in 1976, 1977, and 1978, $100,000 due on Aug. 1 in 1979 and 1980, and the $70,000 balance due on Aug. 1, 1981."

City commissioners heard a request for a 15 per cent increase in the street lighting contract with Southwestern Public Service. Melvin Kunkel of SWPS was present at the meeting and explained that rates for natural gas to produce electricity have gone up considerably since the original agreement for city lighting became effective.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson assured Kunkel that the city commission would take the request under consideration.

The commissioners approved the first reading of an ordinance annexing a portion of the North Crest Addition to the City of Pampa. Some time was spent discussing zoning of the area and the proposed layout of a street intersection.

R.F. Gordon, city attorney, said that the area first must be taken into the city before zoning of the area can be accomplished.

"I'd like to do as much simultaneously as we can,"

Wilkerson said "It looks like we're going to take two months to do two weeks work."

Gordon explained the procedure for zoning the area — notices must be given to residents who live within 200 feet of the proposed area and notices must appear in the newspaper prior to any action.

"What the law is we must do," the Mayor said. "But anything we can do to expedite this will be appreciated."

Annexing the area into the city will enable the developers to acquire loans and begin their work, Gordon said. "The zoning can come later."

The second reading of the ordinance annexing the property was set for Aug. 26.

Jerald Sims was appointed to a two-year term to the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority Board.

Dr. R. Malcolm Brown was appointed to a two-year term as city health officer.

The city commissioners received the proposed budget for fiscal 1975-76 and Aug. 26 as a public hearing date.

The proposed budget is 115 per cent above last year's. It totals $3,031,954. Included in the budget are proposed monthly increases in utilities including solid waste collection fee going up from $3 to $4.20, sewer from $2 to $2.80, and basic rate of water from $4.30 to $4.50.

A fire protection contract with Roberts County was approved for the remainder of 1975. The county will pay the City of Pampa $230 each time the city fire department is called to Roberts County to fight a fire.

Weather

Continued mild temperatures if forecast today through Wednesday with the highs in the 90s and the lows in the 60s. There is a 20 per cent chance for showers.

Agency Does Nothing For $70,000 Annually

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators said today they have discovered an agency that did almost nothing for seven years at a cost of $70,000 a year.

Investigators working for Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., told UPI the Federal Fire Council held no more than two meetings between 1968 and 1974 but throughout the period continued to receive congressional approval of its annual operating funds.

The agency was established in 1936 to coordinate federal fire prevention regulations in government buildings. It has been moved from department to department since then.

It is now in the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration within the Commerce Department.

Two Leahy staffers, assigned by the freshman senator to comb the bureaucracy to find wasteful spending, said the council met only twice during the seven-year period.

"A full time executive director and secretary managed to spend $67,000 a year during this period," said Jack Ewing. "It's unclear how he spent his time. He mailed out some publications now and then but other than that, didn't do anything."

Ewing said Leahy will offer an amendment to abolish the council when the Senate returns next month.

The council's executive director, William Hanbury, conceded the agency did go through a period of inactivity or dormancy when it was headed by another director, Laurence Hicks, who died last summer.

"This was a time when there wasn't a whole lot of activity or support for the council," he said.

Hanbury said the council held two meetings last year but did not know what meetings, if any, were held by the council during its inactive period.

Ewing said the council is composed of "federal fire types" who are supposed to meet periodically to discuss ways to prevent fires in federal buildings.

"Sometimes they'll get together on a Sunday and the Navy will hold a fire-fighting demonstration for them," he said.

Pampa Nurses Graduate

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Pledging compassion toward "all afflicted men, women and children," 25 vocational nursing students will receive diplomas at 7 p.m. Friday night.

They have successfully completed required classroom and clinical work. They will be the second class of vocational nursing students to graduate from Frank Phillips College in Borger following a year of classroom studies and clinical work.

Highland General Hospital in Pampa and the North Plains Hospital in Borger are the designated agencies in which clinical facilities are provided.

President of the graduating class is Rhea Lee McElroy of Pampa, who plans to continue working toward a Registered Nurse degree.

"I was an operating technician at Highland General Hospital, and had always wanted to go into nursing, but I waited until the children were in school," said McElroy.

Her children include Mark, 18, Rhea Ann, 14, and Christopher, 6.

The class president believes the need for bedside nurses is here to stay. However, she says she has enjoyed working in the emergency room, and the patient contacts she has made.

Her graduation will take place exactly one year from the day she enrolled in class on Aug. 15, 1974.

The McElroys live at 2221 Lynn.

Speaker for the ceremony in the FPC Fine Arts Auditorium will be Dr. Maurice E. Dyer, dean of the Texas Tech Medical School in Amarillo, and a well known pediatrician.

Diplomas will be presented by Dr. William E. Raeb, college president. Others participating on the program will be Ella M. Weeter, director of the LVN program, Marilyn Vermillion, FPC instructor, and Andy Hicks, director of Frank Phillips' occupational education and technology.

While Highland General Hospital in Pampa and the Borger hospital provide the clinical facilities for the nurses, classroom theory is conducted on the FPC campus.

The 1974 class ranked among the top 28 nursing schools in Texas on the LVN State Board examination last October.

Mrs. Thomas Brooks will provide professional and recreational music, and Rager Brown will present special music during the ceremony.

which I live, the hospital which I serve, the homes which I enter and the calling which I have chosen."

Class members from Pampa include Deborah Ann Adams, Phyllis Ann Hester, Shannon Maureen Hills, Rhea Lee McElroy and Joyce Lee Smith.

Others include Freddie Jean Barker, Ruby Jean Dowdy, Darla Ann Draper and David Wayne Taylor, all of Fritch; Helen Vinnie Blanton, Lynn Sue Dull, Thelma Darlene Cummings; Janie Marie Ford, Karen Mahon, Irene Catherine Ronayne, and Deborah Lee Speas, all of Borger;

First Lady Ford Causes Commotion

By United Press International

"For the love of Jerry, be discreet," implored one telegram sent to the White House Monday in reaction to First Lady Betty Ford's statement she wouldn't be surprised if her 18-year-old daughter were having an affair.

But other public comments, many from clergymen, were charitable toward the First Lady and her candor.

Betty Ford, who has weathered a storm of outrage for her stand in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment, sparked another with her comments in a CBS-TV interview Sunday in which she said:

"I wouldn't be surprised" if daughter Susan told her she was having an affair "if she wanted to continue, I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject and I'd want to know pretty much about the young man that she was planning to have an affair with."

The Supreme Court abortion decision was "a great, great decision."

She assumes her four children have tried marijuana and she might have as a young girl if it had been popular then.

Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, said from Vail, Colo., Monday the First Lady was not retracting her comments about Susan, but that what she really meant was

"she would not kick her daughter out" if Susan said she was having an affair.

Mrs. Weidenfeld said Susan is "proud" of her mother and that she would be able to "talk to her" about any personal problems. But Susan also said, according to Mrs. Weidenfeld, "It is all hypothetical" and the question has not come up.

Among the favorable reactions:

"I wish every girl could have a mother they knew they could be honest with," Susan Bell of Denver said "Susan Ford is very lucky."

"I think she spoke like a mother and not like a First Lady," Rabbi Gerry Rosenberg of Beth Shalom Synagogue in Northbrook, Ill., said. "It's an appropriate statement for a mother to make."

Among the unfavorable reactions in telegrams to the White House:

— Arthur Howatt, chairman of the board of the Christian social concerns of the religious Society of Jesus, or Quakers, said, "We wish to protest against any such statement and to deplore views of that kind as being contrary to the good standards of American society in which chastity outside of marriage is approved."

— "How can you approve of abortion and promiscuity in one breath and speak of faith and God in the next?"

Manson Blames Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Convicted murderer Charles Manson says a pronouncement of his guilt by then-President Richard Nixon — blared in newspaper headlines — was the main reason he and three female followers were found guilty of the Tate-LaBianca slayings.

The cult-leader of a group of followers known as the "family" made the statement in a copyrighted interview with Stan Atkinson of KTVU in San Francisco and broadcast here, following Manson's appeal for a new trial.

The appeal, filed in the state court of appeals Monday, cited a Supreme Court decision giving defendants the right to act as their own lawyers. Manson protested at his 1971 trial that he did not want a defense attorney and preferred to act as his own counsel. He was denied.

The appeal was filed on behalf of Manson, Patricia Krenwinkel, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten, all convicted of slaying movie star Sharon Tate, four of her houseguests and Mrs. and Mrs. Leno LaBianca.

The defendants were sentenced to die in the gas chamber. The sentences were commuted to life in prison when the death penalty was abolished.

The Supreme Court ruled June 30, in Fartza vs. California, that a defendant has a constitutional right to refuse court-appointed counsel and act as his own lawyer.

It was not clear whether the high court will make the decision retroactive, which could pave the way for thousands of prisoners to appeal for new trials so they could act as their own attorneys.

At his trial, Manson, whose flamboyant and often bizarre actions prompted one prosecutor to label his conduct "obstructionist," accused the judge, the district attorney and all other attorneys he had ever met of being "on the same side."

"The court is the very same thing that is trying to kill me," he said. "You want to give me advice with one hand and put me in the gas chamber with the other."

At one point in the trial, Manson held in front of the jury a newspaper headline that read, "Manson Guilty, Nixon Declares."

In the interview, Manson said there were several reasons he did not present a legal defense at his trial.

The primary reason came when the President of the U.S. said we were guilty, directly or indirectly. That pretty much made up the minds of the people.

"The press had convicted us. We could have even cleaned that up had we had a chance to present our defense, but when Nixon said what he said, it had to take time."

Ransom Demanded For Whisky Heir

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (UPI) — The family of kidnapped 21-year-old whisky heir Samuel Bronfman II has received a letter demanding a "substantial amount" of money. The youth's father says he will pay the ransom.

A spokesman for Edgar Bronfman, chairman of the $1.7-billion Seagram liquor empire, told reporters at the tree-shrouded family estate Monday that a letter mailed to Bronfman from New York demanded an unspecified ransom for the safe return of his son.

The 6-3, moustachioed youth was reported abducted by three men Saturday.

"The FBI and local authorities have been involved, but Mr. Bronfman insists he will comply with the written instructions," the spokesman said.

He said the family is "proceeding on the assumption the communication is bona fide and steps are under way to comply with the ransom demands."

The spokesman said, however, the letter contained "no evidence whatsoever" to indicate the author or authors has or had Sam.

"We assume we will receive evidence that will confirm as bona fide the nature of the communication and that Sam is alive," he said.

The spokesman would not disclose the amount of the ransom, saying only it was "a substantial amount."

An FBI spokesman in New York said "the decision to pay the ransom" was reached by the family and not influenced by the FBI.

Frizzell Wins Support For Interior Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting Interior Secretary Kent Frizzell has won the support of key Senate Republicans for nomination as secretary, according to congressional sources.

His supporters said Frizzell would be "eminently confirmable," a factor that could weigh heavily in the Senate following the controversy involving former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway.

Frizzell, who came to Washington five years ago after an unsuccessful attempt to win the Kansas governorship, has been acting secretary since Hathaway resigned July 25 after undergoing psychiatric treatment for "moderate depression."

Among those backing Frizzell are Sens. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., and Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., the two top-ranking Republicans on the Senate interior committee which must act on the nomination.

Two women reported attempted break ins were made at their homes. One reported that a female came to her door "yanked her out of the house" and began beating.

Another woman said she was asleep when someone entered her home. She reported that a male darted from the residence.

He Wants To Develop Grapes in Texas Valley

LOS FRESNOS, Tex. (UPI) — One of the worst places imaginable for trying to develop a heat-resistant strain of tropical grape, agriculturalists agree, is the portion of the Rio Grande Valley where Norman F. Williams is trying to do just that.

"Several times in history, some guy like me that's never read the rule books manages to show the experts a thing or two," says Williams, 65, who farms 110 acres in a remote corner of the searing valley.

On 10 of his acres, Williams has searched for new varieties of grapes suited to hot, tropical zones, experimenting with up to 350 different types of the fruit since 1960.

"I'm trying to develop a new type that will resist the heat and humidity of tropical areas all over the world," he says. "Mildew and other fungus attacks the leaves and that's the biggest problem."

Several agriculture professors have told Williams he is wasting his time.

But Williams doesn't think so.

"Nobody's wasting his time when he enjoys what he's doing. I just might stumble on the right combination grape for hot and humid climates."

A high school exchange student from Belgium staying at his farm started Williams on his quest. Later, the student sent Williams some Belgian root stocks which he crossed with the mustang grape, common to Texas.

He says he also corresponded with university professors all over the United States, "read learned treatises and sort of self-educated myself in grape culture and history."

Williams traveled to Japan, Australia, Europe and South America and brought back root shoots to try on his Rio Grande Valley ranch.

Of all varieties he has worked with, "the healthiest, toughest root stock I've found anywhere is the old mustang grape that grows wild right here in Texas."

"I fully believe if a grape resistant to fungus is ever found or developed, it will be bred from the mustang."

"That's my ace in the hole," he says. But the challenges are many. Besides the weather, there is the land.

"This is river delta land, and from one spot to another, the acidity and alkaline content vary," Williams says. "If it rains too much, the grapes get too big and ripe. Then they swell, crack and rot. In some places, the soil is too tight, and in some places it is too loose."

Williams hasn't tried his experimental harvests as wine grapes but he says others report good results from them.

"I got two or three old buddies that always come over when the Spanish and Italian varieties are ripe. They say they make excellent wines."

Williams' goal of a tropical grape continues to elude him, but he's gaining on it, philosophically if no other way.

"They say there is virtue in patience. That I have, and little by little, as I turn my other farming activities over to my sons, I have more time to devote to my grape experiments."

School Sells Two Properties

By JANE P. MARSHALL Pampa News Staff

The Pampa school district unloaded two properties at the school board meeting Monday in Carver Center.

Gerald D. Laughlin, 1326 Coffee, submitted high bid for the building trades house at 1900 Lea St. at $35,320.

E.L. Green Jr. bought the old Pampa Junior High property for $75,001.10.

Two others bid were received for the building trades house in which the school district had nearly $30,000 invested. The house, built by the school's vocational students, was appraised at $37,500.

Two bids for the house were rejected at the board's July 11 meeting.

Green submitted the only bid for the downtown property in the 300 block between north Cuyler and North Russell Streets.

The building was closed three years ago when school board action moved all seventh grade students to a middle school and transferred all eighth and ninth grade students to Robert E. Lee Junior High.

Green said he had no immediate plans for the property but that the building would be razed. He plans to have the property cleared in less than a year.

Green, a retired vice president of Cabot, was on the school board when it bought the property from the White Deer Land Company, headed by M.K. Brown, 10 years ago. The land company had given the property to the school with the stipulation that it be returned to the company when the school no longer used it.

The school board purchased the rights for $30,000.

"I wanted to prove to you that I made a good deal," Green quipped.

In other action at the 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. meeting the board approved a high school attendance policy and elected Robert Lyle as delegate and David Crossman as alternate to the Texas Association of School Boards Convention in San Antonio.

The group approved correction of the delinquent tax roll and the current taxroll.

Also approved was a contract with the Pampa College of Hairdressing for instruction to vocational students for $389 a student. The fees are paid by the Texas Education Agency.

The group approved an open loan with First National Bank of Pampa for the 1975-76 building trades house for $35,000 at four per cent interest.

Kelly Milk won the regular milk bid at 9 cents for regular whole milk and 9.25 cents for chocolate milk. Kelly's bid included no escalation clause.

The school system received no bids for gasoline.

School lunch fees were increased 10 cents in each category. Prices are: elementary - 60 cents; seventh and junior high 65 cents; high school - 80 cents; school employees - 80 cents; non-school adults $1.

In final action, the trustees approved the following teachers: Cathy Kiphins, Travis kindergarten; Sue Brent, Austin sixth grade; Michael Brent, health, P.E. and coach; James Sears, trainer; Justin Knight, industrial arts; Diana Booher, Spanish; Robert Young, Lamar P.E.; Susan Kusch, CVAE home

Resignations were accepted from the following: Exie Vantine, retiring from Austin sixth grade; Sandy Miller, trainer; La Johnna Sears, Austin sixth grade; Earietta Alexander CVAE home economics; Charlene Oliver, math; Cheryl Hargroves, Houston Spanish, and Jack Greene.

Women Being Elected More Throughout Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Women's Political Caucus says more women are being elected to office in Texas than ever before.

The group released a report Monday showing the percentage of women elected to office in Texas last November more than doubled the 1972 ratio.

Jane Haun Macon, head of the organization, said 16,393 persons elected in 1974, 2,316 were women.

This amounted to 14.1 per cent women elected officials during 1974, compared to 6.4 per cent in 1972, a 220 per cent increase, Ms. Macon said.

She said reasons for the victories would be discussed in workshops at the caucus's state convention in Corpus Christi beginning Friday.

Theme of the convention is "Count Us In."

However, he said, it is still scheduled to receive a loan from the Agency for International Development to increase soybean crops.

"Any increase in the production, therefore, would not go toward feeding the hungry people in Paraguay, but would go into exports.

"The people of Paraguay would be better off if we spent the $4.7 million loan they are to receive to increase soybean production this year in showing them how to use soybeans in their daily diet, rather than growing more soybeans."

"This use of our tax dollars to help foreign countries to produce soybeans for export is not only uneconomical — it's also unfair competition to the American soybean producer," he said.

Association officials are trying to persuade AID officials to stop the loan.

Lefors Sets Registration

Lefors High School registration is set for Aug. 21, according to Billy Bob Adams, high school principal.

Registration is set for 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. for girls, and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. for boys.

Adams said he anticipates an estimated 75 students — about the same number as registered in 1974.

Cancer From Tea, Leather, Wine?

MIAMI (UPI) — Leather workers, tea drinkers, wine fanciers and the South African Bantu all have something in common — a propensity for a certain type of cancer.

Economic biologist Dr. Julia Morton, who has been studying the incidence of cancer of the esophagus for 11 years under grants from the National Cancer Institute, says that in each case tannin is the cancer-causing agent.

In a telephone interview Monday, Dr. Morton explained the tannin content in tea is a major factor behind the high incidence of cancer of the esophagus among Singapore Chinese and Japanese. She said both cook their rice with a mixture of tea leaves.

An area of South Carolina, where tannin-containing sassafras tea and persimmons are popular, also has a high esophagus cancer rate, Dr. Morton found.

The average life of a $20 bill is four years.

McGovern Calls Nixon Radical

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Richard Nixon was the radical presidential candidate in 1972, McGovern said Monday.

The South Dakota Democrat made the statement when asked at a news conference whether he objected to being called a liberal.

"No, I don't," McGovern said. "I think it's going to take liberal solutions to resolve the problems that face this country."

"I might say this: I don't think there's anything very conservative about tearing up the constitution the way Nixon did. I thought that was just about as radical as you could get."

McGovern said he does not plan to endorse a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1976 but wanted an active role in building the party platform.

"I don't have any personal plans for '76, but I do want to play some role in helping to shape where my party stands on the issues. I'm much more concerned about what the Democratic party has to say on major foreign policy, national security and domestic issues than I am in backing any individual candidate."

McGovern says satellite monitoring of crop conditions could help ease the world food situation and also ensure American farmers get the best price for their exports.

McGovern Monday suggested the United States and Soviet Union jointly operate a satellite system to provide information on world crop conditions.

McGovern said such a system would be valuable in determining how much and at what price America should sell wheat to Russia this year.

"There is no reason why with the present technology we have in space and our capacity to transmit that space picture of earth back to scientists here on earth, why we have to operate in the dark when we negotiate a wheat deal with the Soviet Union," he said.

He made the suggestion in a news conference before his address to the American Soil Conservation Society.

"I think it is becoming more and more clear that the great issue for the balance of this century will be the question of whether the world can feed itself," he said. "We're entering into a period where the pressure on land and on the weather and on the resources that provide our food supply are more intense than at any time in the history of man."

"I would like to suggest that we need to cooperate with other countries, especially the Soviet Union which is the other space giant, to develop a worldwide competence to monitor by means of space satellite the condition of the land, the situation up to the minute on crop prospects, projections for land use in various parts of the globe."

McGovern said the United States "stumbled into" the 1972 wheat sale to the Soviet Union and could have asked much more than the $1.67 a bushel received had it been monitoring the world grain supply and the impact sale of one fourth of the nation's crop to a single customer would have on grain prices.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space agency officials have rescheduled for Thursday an attempt to launch an unmanned Viking spacecraft on an 11-month voyage to look for signs of life on Mars.

The Viking launch was postponed Monday after officials discovered a valve in the first stage of the Titan-Centaur rocket was stuck open. The discovery was made during a test less than two hours before the scheduled liftoff.

Today's deal is a difficult one to play correctly, and it is hard to fault our actual South declarer for failing to find the winning line of play. Had an expert been at the helm, however, he would have fulfilled the contract. Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

Opening lead: Ace of ♣.

West made a good decision when he elected not to open the ace of hearts. Had he made this lead, South would have fulfilled his contract with ease. He would have ruffed the lead, and subsequently would have discarded his losing diamond on dummy's kind of hearts.

After West had opened the ace of clubs, he shifted to the three of diamonds. South realized that West was trying to get East on lead to give West a club ruff, so he put up dummy's ace of diamonds. He then led a trump to his ace—spurning the finesse—and promptly returned a trump, hoping that the adversely held four trumps were divided 2-2.

As is evident, West possessed three trumps. Upon winning the second trump lead with the king, he played a diamond to East's king. East then returned a club, which West ruffed for the setting trick.

South could have fulfilled his contract at trick three by employing the play known as "the coup without a name." Upon winning trick two with dummy's ace of diamonds, he should have laid down the board's king of hearts. On it he would have discarded his losing two of diamonds. West would have captured the trick with the heart ace.

It would now have been impossible for West to have gotten East into the lead for a club return. West would have led a diamond, which would have been trumped by South. Next would have come the ace of trumps, and this would have been followed by another trump, which West would have won. Upon regaining the lead, declarer would have picked up West's remaining trump, and claimed his contract.

By employing the "coup without a name," declarer would be breaking the West-to-East line of communication in diamonds. In effect, declarer would be conceding a heart trick early, instead of a diamond trick later. But, somehow, declarer failed to find the winning "coup."

Is Big Business Helping Finance Anti-ERA Move?

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A Florida state representative who has been a leader in efforts to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment says big business is helping finance the anti-ERA movement.

Karen Coolman told women attending the statewide National Organization for Women conference Sunday that if the ERA is approved many businesses would face sex discrimination suits.

"We'd be naive to assume they are not funneling money into it and pulling strings," she said.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was bound to happen. A couple from Arkansas has turned game show pro.

In 18 months, John and Stephanie Bates have earned $41,000 in cash and merchandise (in their words "by being able to come up with quick answers and to be jubilant and excited all the time.")

The world is full of potential contestants who can come up with quick answers, but how many of us are equipped to jump 15 feet off the floor when we win a paddle boat and a weekend on Larva Lake?

You mark my word. It is only a matter of time before a chain of Jubilation and Excitement Training Schools open up all over the country. The brochure will go something like this:

JOE CARTER'S JUBILANCE AND EXCITEMENT SEMINAR

WHO IS ELIGIBLE? Persons over 18 years of age who can pass the grueling physical requirements: (a) jumping higher than Bob Barker's head; (b) ignoring the symptoms of a coronary when you have just won a trip to Athens, Ga.; and not Greece; (c) sitting four hours under a barrage of hot lights, dressed as a battery, until called upon by Monty Hall, and still becoming hysterical.

CURRICULUM

WHIMPERING AND QUIVERING (3 credit hours): A "must" for contestants to employ between the time they've answered the question and the time they've found out what they've won. It includes biting your lip until it bleeds, wringing hands, listening to the audience shout obscenities and rolling eyes back in head until whites are showing.

WHAT TO DO WHEN YOU'VE WON THE CAR (5 credit hours): An in-depth study in hysteria taught by the winner of a 1953 Chevy who won it by knowing the Bangladesh high school fight song.

HUGGING AND KISSING TV GAME SHOW HOSTS NEED NOT BE FATAL (3 credit hours): Pressure points around the throat, cutting off breathing with your body, and lifting host off the floor are outlined.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE CHEST PAINS COME: Know which shows have oxygen and which ones expect you to be a sport about a coronary. Remember, there is no jubilation and excitement in passing out. Learn how to stay on your feet.

LOOK LIKE A LOSER TO THE IRS: Handy tips on how to stagger by the IRS men carrying a bag of gold and still hang onto your citizenship. Remember, game shows can hurt you. Be a pro!

Nutritionists Talk of Fatties

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's only natural that a nutrition educator would reduce the fundamentals of losing weight to the ABCs.

A stands for activity, B for behavioral change and C for calorie control.

Mrs. Irving Waylor, associate professor of nutrition education at Long Island University, says this formula might sound like oversimplification of the way an estimated 80 million obese Americans can get fat-free, both for health and image reasons.

But it works. She defines obese as 10 to 15 per cent above the normal—and to check what's normal for you, there are any number of government sources and insurance tables.

Thelma Waylor, a native of St. Albans, Vt., who now lives in Bayside, N.Y., is founder and director of the Green Mountain Weight Control Community on the campus of Green Mountain College, in Poultney, Vt.

The summer program (four or eight weeks) aims for the 16 to 40 age group of women and offers another incentive besides getting one's self in shape, shaping new habits, and learning to stay slim.

Night courses are required on nutrition and other subjects and can be credited, for a small fee payable to the college directly.

The community, starting its fourth year June 29, culminates a dream Mrs. Waylor had from her years as consultant to the American Dietetic Association (she's a member). "I said, someday I'm going to do something about weight and metabolic matters—we have a population so full of misinformation."

That A for activity means a full program of physical action from bike riding, golf, swimming, bowling and tennis, to guidance in college and career selections and trips to summer stock theater.

"Everything around us makes us lazy," said the professor. "You can exercise all you want, of course, and won't lose much. But you put diet and exercise together and you get body tone."

Exercise should become a part of everyone's life style.

Mrs. Waylor is strong on the B for behavioral change.

"Those who say, 'I'll diet tomorrow' must realize tomorrow never comes," she said. "They are not ready for us. Those seeking short term results don't come to us. Ours is a commitment to changed patterns for the rest of your life."

"It all comes finally to a person's ability to look at one's self honestly, and critically. Liking yourself helps handle problems."

There are compulsive eaters. And many have psychological problems. But we all have problems. Our staff psychologists try to work these out in seminars.

"We find that about the third week, when a woman can face herself in a mirror, she starts complaining she is not losing fast enough."

"I often think, 'Dammit, why didn't you look at yourself on the way up?'"

"In a way we count calories but I don't want people carrying around a calorie book I want them educated to an adequate and proper diet. A tray is a visual aid. They learn how a 1,000 to 1,200 a day calorie intake looks."

"I tell people, don't eat standing up. Look at the calories you can take in at a cocktail party. Parents, don't let the child's plate. The girl living alone, don't go home and clean out the refrigerator."

To Refreeze Or Not To Refreeze

COLLEGE STATION — Whether or not to refreeze defrosted food is a problem plaguing many homemakers—especially during hot summer months. Mrs. Mary Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist, noted this week.

"Under certain conditions, frozen foods thawed before they're needed may be safely refrozen to prevent loss," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out.

"Fruits, vegetables and meats may be refrozen if they have not completely thawed, or if they were thawed for a short time and remained in a household refrigerator."

"However, thawing and refreezing usually results in loss of quality and flavor."

Refrozen vegetables may toughen and refrozen fruits become soft and mushy. Such fruits still may be satisfactory for cooking, although they've lost their raw fruit appeal.

"The process of thawing and refreezing in itself does not make fruit, vegetables or meats unsafe—but thawed foods spoil more rapidly than fresh foods and may become unsafe to eat."

"Foods probably not worth refreezing are those that reached temperatures of 40-45 degrees F. after passing through the slow temperature changes that occur in a home freezer when operation has stopped."

She explained that because low-acid foods, such as vegetables and meats, spoil rapidly after they have thawed and reached a temperature above 45 degrees F., it isn't advisable to refreeze them.

Acid foods—most fruit and fruit products—are likely to ferment after they have thawed and reached a temperature above 45 degrees F.

However, while slight fermentation of acid foods may change or spoil flavor, it does not make them unsafe to eat, she noted.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

Today we are going to see how some of our readers clean their house or apartment on a yearly plan.

A lot of women had an overall yearly plan. Here are two of them.

Either spring or fall or both: clean closets, empty them and wash walls. Put up clean shelf paper.

Sort out old clothes and put them in Goodwill or some other charity.

Do only one closet at a time. When they are done, do dresser drawers, then kitchen and linen closets.

Do one room a week really good. Take down the curtains and drapes and clean them. (Drapes can be tumbled in a dryer.)

Vacuum the mattress or furniture.

Wash walls and clean up spots with a cleaner.

Wash and dust furniture. Put on a wax or polish.

Wash windows.

Make the bed after washing and waxing the floor.

Rent a carpet shampooer and do all the carpets at one time.

Mrs. "B" from Michigan goes by a monthly schedule for her yearly heavy cleaning:

January and February: clean closets and drawers.

March and April: Clean everything thoroughly.

Summer months: clean lightly. Enjoy your family.

September and October: clean good for the holidays.

November and December: clean lightly. Enjoy the holidays.

This last schedule might appeal to you if you are a clock watcher and like to see the time fly.

Mrs. A.F.A. says this method works well for her and any time gained is spent doing something special or just relaxing:

"Each morning (except Sunday) after loading the dishwasher and sweeping the kitchen floor, I get out my tray table on wheels loaded with cleaning supplies and a large grocery bag, and my minute timer."

"I spend 10 minutes in each room, racing the timer. It takes me only 10 minutes to pick up, dust or whatever is needed for a light cleaning."

"All of my house has been top-cleaned in less than an hour. I put a load in the washer and back to the kitchen for a cup of coffee."

"Then I am ready for the day's project whether it be cooking, sewing, or deep cleaning."

Now dear friends, if you have read all this, absorbed half of it, and when you finish with this paper put it away, you are on the right track.

If you don't think you can live by a schedule, wait and next you will find out how to do it all without one.

The decision is up to you and what is most suited for your life pattern.

Just remember, I love you. Let's keep sharing and helping each other.

The work has to get done, so we might as well find the easiest and quickest way possible. And learn to love it.

Don't think about it, DO IT! I do.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have a hint for parents or grandparents for booster seats for the youngsters.

This year when the new phone books came out I decided to cover the old one to be used as a permanent booster chair.

We tied two books together with string, cut a piece of foam rubber the size of the book and glued it on.

Then we covered the entire thing with a beautiful flower print (you could also use adhesive-backed paper).

There was almost no cost involved and it really does come in handy for when the grandchildren visit.

Hope your readers are as pleased with this as we are.

Mrs. Carol Eberly

Dear Heloise:

A lady wrote in your column that you should place all your clothes hanger hooks in the same direction to facilitate removing them in case of fire.

I think putting all the hooks in the same direction is a good practice, but I must remind you, after being a fireman for over 20 years, forget the clothes if your house catches fire.

I shall repeat the oft-stated recommendations in case of fire: (1) Get everybody out of the house. (2) Call the Fire Dept. (3) Do what you can to safely extinguish the fire.

If I may elaborate: Everybody means people. Your pets are next, if you don't endanger yourself.

Also, when you leave the house, close all doors behind you to retard the spread of the flames.

While we're on the subject of fire, here's a few tips for the kitchen.

If something is burning in your oven, don't open the door. Leave the door closed and wait for the fire to go out and for things to cool down. Then you can open the door and clean up the mess.

Keep a box of baking soda near the stove—it's great for extinguishing fry-pan flare-ups. Just throw some in the burning pan. It will put out the fire.

Don't forget your kitchen sink spray hose as a very effective fire extinguisher. If you turn on both faucets, you should be able to reach any part of your kitchen with the burning.

It's good for burning paper or cloth (curtains), but not for grease on the stove. (Use baking soda.)

It Sims To Me

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Area high school football teams in classifications AAA, AA, A and B began pre-season workouts, on a non-contact level Monday. It promises to be, like always, an exciting year for Panhandle football with several teams possessing enough talent to win a district championship — the foremost thought of every coach and player during these fall workouts.

Players will don pads and start hitting Friday. AAAA teams, including Pampa, must wait until next week to begin drills and go through a week of non-contact work before practicing in pads.

Several new head coaches are among those leading area teams in pre-season programs. Assistants have been promoted at White Deer, Lefors and McLean.

Mike Purcell has replaced Larry Anthony at White Deer and has inherited a wealth of talent, including four offensive and five defensive starters off a 5-5 team. White Deer surprised opponents by its title contention last season and likely the Bucks will be in the thick of things again this fall.

Purcell is popular with the players, something Anthony often failed to achieve.

Jim Allen, another with good rapport with his personnel, replaces Leonard Tolbert at Lefors. Tolbert was hired at Lamesa after coaching the Pirates to the state semifinals last season.

Lefors has two things going against it — inexperience and lack of size — but three things in its favor — quickness, the taste of victory and Allen.

Allen's philosophy: "I believe in playing every boy that wants to play. I'll find a place for them, if they want to play."

Also likable, Randy Mears replaces Randy Hicks as McLean head coach. With his new job, Mears faces a challenge.

McLean went 0-10 and had several upperclassmen quit in disgust last season. For the majority of the season, freshmen carried the load, and, in the process, were battered from one end of the playing field to the other.

The lumps and hard knocks should pay off with valuable experience for the young players. Look for Mears and McLean to be vastly improved.

Of course, there are the area "veterans" — Canadian's Jack Hawthorne, Wheeler's Jim Robinson, Miami's Bill Gilliland and Groom's Don Sesson. Gilliland and Robinson are in their second years; Hawthorne and Sesson are in their fifth and fourth, respectively.

All are winners.

Rigney Charting?

By JACK MURPHY Copley News Service

The reappearance of Bill Rigney in a baseball costume — this time as one of John McNamara's acolytes with the San Diego Padres — has stirred speculation that he is charting still another career which will distract him from the pleasures of golf and trout fishing.

If Buzzie Bavasi holds true to form, McNamara isn't jeopardized by the emergence of Rigney as a coach and advance scout in mid-season. But the Padres' president has a history of recycling people (notably Leo Durocher and Bobby Bragan) who go on to manage elsewhere.

Rigney has thought about it. He'll become visible again to club owners and executives who forgot about him during a two-year sabbatical. He's a vibrant fellow, keen of mind, articulate and persuasive. Few can resist his charm.

"At this point I don't know if I wanted to go on the field again," he says. "I'm just curious to find out how much I have missed the game."

In the first century of organized baseball only 15 men have managed 15 or more years in the major leagues. Rigney is one. He is largely identified with the Giants (both in New York and San Francisco) and the California Angels, though he was last employed by the Minnesota Twins in 1970-72. His grandest accomplishment came in 1962 when the Angels, in the second year of their existence, finished third in the American League and drew 1.6 million delighted but unbelieving witnesses to Dodger Stadium.

There are baseball people who say Rigney didn't make a false move throughout that glorious summer. He was either inspired or lucky, and one thing is good as another.

"I learned a lot about managing that season," he reflects. "I learned it's not so important for a manager to know what a ballplayer can do as what he can't do. Never put a ballplayer in a situation he can't handle."

Rigney is bold, aggressive and fidgety. And quick on the draw. During the 1962 season he made more than 300 pitching changes. One of his Angel pitchers, Jack Spring, appeared in 57 games and worked only 65 innings.

He found special pleasure in the strategy of games which were decided in the late innings. "In a one-run game," he says, "it's the manager's game after the sixth inning."

Yet he affects modesty about the manager's role — perhaps because none of Rigney's 17 teams won pennants. "At the end of the season," he says, "the best a manager can say is that he influenced the outcome of three or four games."

Not that Rigney didn't try. Especially when Ryne Duren, a near-sighted pitcher with a gun for an arm, was in the Angels' bullpen.

Camp Champ

Ricky Smith, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price T. Smith of Pampa, won a gold medal as the midget division's best all-around athlete, blue ribbons in weight lifting and nature and red ribbons in ping pong and archery in Kamp Kanakuk competition recently. The camp is athletically-oriented and is located at Branson, Mo. Ricky competed in track, swimming, rope climbing, soccer and softball besides the sports in which he won awards.

Mike's Magic Show Too Much For KC

UPI Sports Writer

Mike Cuellar, the Baltimore Orioles' "Cuban Houdini," has more pitches up his sleeve than a magician has handkerchiefs.

"I have to feel sorry for the poor hitters," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver Monday night after Cuellar's neat two-hit 4-0 shutout win over the Kansas City Royals. "They never know what pitch is coming next."

The 38-year-old Cuellar (11-8) varied his basic five-pitch repertoire quite nicely in yielding only a fourth inning lead to John Mayberry and a double to George Brett in the fifth. But as Weaver pointed out, there's a "Catch 22" to those five pitches.

"He throws a fastball, screwball, slider, curve and changeup," continued Weaver, "but he also has three or four different speeds on each of those pitches. That gives him as many as 16 pitches he can throw."

"My biggest asset is control," said Cuellar, who got all the runs he needed in the seventh inning when Bobby Grich broke up a scoreless pitching duel with Kansas City's Steve Busby by slamming a two-run double over the head of centerfielder Amos Otis. Hit-hitting Don Baylor later added his 18th homer leading off the eighth inning.

The victory, Cuellar's 25th career shutout, enabled the Orioles to move to within six games of Boston in the AL East pennant race. And, as the veteran southpaw added, there may be even more confusion for opposing batters next year.

"I'm working on a forkball now," said Cuellar. "It should be ready next spring."

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland put away Boston 4-3, Texas shut out Detroit 7-0, Minnesota outlasted Milwaukee 8-7 and California routed New York 8-1.

In National League action, it was San Francisco bombing Montreal 9-2, New York over San Diego 8-4, Los Angeles downing Philadelphia 7-1, Pittsburgh atop Atlanta 8-1, Cincinnati drubbing Chicago 9-3, and Houston over St. Louis 7-2.

A's 4, Red Sox 3

Claudell Washington scored once and then, with his second double, drove home what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning as Oakland increased its AL West lead to 6½ games. Vida Blue (16-8) gained the win but needed help from three relievers after yielding a solo home run to Fred Lynn, his 19th, and a two-run shot by Carlton Fisk — both in the eighth inning.

Rangers 7, Tigers 0

Gaylord Perry hurled a five-hitter as Texas handed Detroit its 16th consecutive defeat and third straight loss by shutout. Perry (12-15) gave up four singles in extending the hapless Tigers' scoreless inning string to 29. Toby Harrah gave the Ranger right-hander all the runs he needed with a two-run homer in the second.

Angels 8, Yankees 1

Spanish Davis Cup ace Manuel Orantes crushed Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, 6-2, 6-2, Monday night at the $150,000 National Clay Courts tennis championships and confidently predicted another win at Forest Hills later this month at the U.S. Open.

The 26-year-old Orantes, who grew up playing on the clay courts of Barcelona, said he was glad that Forest Hills had changed from grass courts to clay surfaces this year, making them very similar to those on which he won $16,000 Monday. Ashe collected $8,000 for his second-place finish.

"I am hitting every shot and I am very confident in my game," Orantes said. "I think I have a better chance to win Forest Hills now that it is on clay and not grass. There are a group of players who have a better chance because of the clay surface and I think I'm one of them."

Ashe, who has won the U.S. Open on grass courts, said that his chances now "don't look that good but it's a challenge. I feel like I'm on roller skates when I'm on clay. Orantes is a better player than I am on clay."

Orantes, who was seeded third but won 72 games and lost only 24 all week without losing a set in six matches, needed less than an hour to catch the men's singles crown over the second seeded Ashe.

Ashe, from Miami, broke service only once during the entire match, in the third game of the first set to gain a temporary 2-1 advantage. However, in the fourth game, Ashe lost four straight points on errors while serving to lose the advantage he had gained.

Orantes held his own service to go ahead, 3-2, heading into the sixth game — which was both the longest and the turning point of the match.

Ashe was serving and started with an ace to go ahead 15-0 in a game that went to duce five times before Orantes finally carried the game when he returned Ashe's service with a forehand that caught Ashe flatfooted, giving Orantes a service break and a 4-2 lead that quickly turned to a 6-2 set.

Twins 8, Brewers 7

Eric Soderholm belted a three-run homer and Steve Braun put Minnesota over the top with a two-run shot in a come-from-behind victory over slumping Milwaukee. Rookie Tim Johnson (1-1) gained the win with seven innings of relief and yielded only one run.

Dodgers Bump Phillies

UPI Sports Writer

Andy Messersmith thought it was about time he got lucky and the Pittsburgh Pirates would be the first to agree.

Recognized as one of the two or three best starting pitchers in the National League, Messersmith had lost seven of his eight previous games when he took the mound for the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Ashe Loses To Orantes

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) —

Spanish Davis Cup ace Manuel Orantes crushed Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, 6-2, 6-2, Monday night at the $150,000 National Clay Courts tennis championships and confidently predicted another win at Forest Hills later this month at the U.S. Open.

Messersmith didn't pitch as well as he had in several of his recent losses but he nevertheless turned in a four-hitter to give the Dodgers a 7-1 victory. The loss dropped the Phillies three games behind the Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, who walloped the Atlanta Braves 8-1.

"It wasn't an easy game," said Messersmith, now 14-11 after being 12-4 at one point of the season. "I had to battle and struggle all the time. Statistics show that I pitched a lot better during my losing streak. Maybe this will turn things around."

Messersmith has pitched better than he did in this game and lost," commented Manager Walt Alton. "His control was off for him. He ran a lot of deep counts. I can't fault Andy's pitching during the losing streak. He has had good stuff almost everytime he's gone out there."

Messersmith, who struck out seven and walked three, drove in two runs with a bases-filled walk and a sacrifice fly and Willie Crawford hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers, who dealt Larry Christenson his fourth loss. Greg Luzinski hit his 29th homer for the Phils.

The Pirates broke their five-game losing streak as rookie John Candelaria went six innings for his sixth win. Rennie Stennett's daring baserunning helped the Pirates score two early runs and they clinched the game with a six-run outburst, with the key hits doubles by Dave Parker and Manny Sanguillen. Darrell Evans homered for the Braves.

Houston defeated St. Louis 7-2, Cincinnati walloped Chicago 9-3, San Francisco topped Montreal 9-2 and New York downed San Diego 8-4 in other NL games.

In the American League, it was Texas 7 Detroit 0, Baltimore 4 Kansas City 0, Minnesota 8 Milwaukee 7, California 8 New York 1 and Oakland 4 Boston 3.

Astros 7, Cardinals 2

Jerry DaVanon drove in three runs with the second homer of his eight-year major league career and Cliff Johnson had four hits to lead Houston over St. Louis. Larry Dierker allowed 10 hits and two walks but went the distance for his 10th victory. John Curtis was the loser.

Reds 9, Cubs 3

George Foster had a double and four singles and Ken Griffey a triple and three singles as Cincinnati pounded out 15 hits to ease Jack Billingham's path to his 13th victory against five losses. Chicago's Rick Reuschel was tagged for 10 hits and five runs in six innings and lost his eighth and ninth.

Chris Speier knocked in three runs with a two-run double in the first inning and a single in the sixth as San Francisco dealt Montreal's Steve Rogers his ninth loss against eight wins. Ed Halicki won his sixth game with Randy Moffitt pitching the eighth and ninth.

Ed Kranepool drove in four runs with a three-run homer and an infield out and Joe Torre had a pair of doubles for New York. Skip Lockwood won his first game for the Mets with five innings of shutout relief while San Diego's Randy Jones lost his seventh game against 15 wins.

Meet The Staff

First in a series. Pampa head coach John Welborn will be in his second year at the Harvester helm, trying to improve on his first season. That might not be easy to do since last year's Harvesters went 8-2 and finished second in the district after being picked last. Welborn and staff start coaching next week, when fall training begins.

Houston Releases 9, Including TE Stroud

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips has released tight end Morris Stroud, three 1975 draft picks and five other players.

The released draftees were Mike Biehle, a seventh-round tackle from Miami of Ohio, Bob Bruer, a ninth-round tight end from Mankato State, and 17th-round center Ricky Seeker from Texas A&M.

Another former Southwest Conference performer, Rice defensive back Bruce Henley, was cut along with second year halfback Terence Wells, former Canadian Football League linebacker Mickey Doyle and rookies Clarence Reece, a receiver from Southern Cal and Earl Sark, a punter from New Mexico State.

The departure of Sark assures David Beverly the Oilers punting job. Beverly averaged 39.2 yards per kick in 1974.

Phillips must make cuts of three more players today to make the limit of 63.

Sharkey Still Kid

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ever since he was a kid, Jack Sharkey enjoyed working with his hands and doing things for himself, so why change now? The former champ is still a kid at heart, anyway.

He'll be 73 in two months but isn't waiting around for anyone to bring him a fancy cake with a lot of candles on it. He keeps busy, almost as busy as did in the ring nearly a half century ago when he was going in there against the best they had at the time, fellows like Jack Dempsey, Tommy Loughran, Young Stribling, Max Schmeling and even a young, just starting out Joe Louis.

Anytime anything in Jack Sharkey's white-framed Victorian-style house in picturesque little Epping, N.H., needs tending to, guess who takes care of it? You're right, Jack Sharkey does. He takes care of everything. That's been the case especially since his devoted Dorothy died a year ago. She was the wonderful little lady he loved and married.

Old Shark polishes the antique furniture in the house and does all the fixing. A week ago, he decided the house needed painting. While he was swinging the brush, a bee stung him on the middle finger of his left hand, the hand he always felt was his best one. Jack didn't think too much about it. He forgot about the sting and even went to Atlanta for a National Eagles' Convention where he cut up old touches with Tony Galento, Buddy Baer and Gene Fullmer.

His finger began bothering when he returned home. He went to his doctor, who sent him to the hospital in nearby Exeter. Nothing serious, the doctor said. He merely wanted to make sure the champ would get the proper antibiotics.

At the same time Jack Sharkey was being treated in the Emergency Room at Exeter Hospital, critically injured Richard Preston was upstairs in the intensive care unit, barely hanging onto life.

Preston, a 50-year-old commercial airline pilot, had lost both legs at the Star Speedway in Epping Saturday night when a race car had gone out of control and ripped into an embankment where he was standing, serving as a special police officer.

Jack Sharkey lives less than three miles from the Star Speedway where the accident occurred, but since he had just returned home and nobody had told him about it at the hospital Sunday, he didn't learn what happened until Monday morning while picking up some thing in Exeter.

In his time in the ring, Jack Sharkey has seen plenty of blood, but he winced when he heard about what happened at Star Speedway Saturday night. He can practically walk to the Speedway from where he lives, but he never attends any of the races there or at the other two tracks in the vicinity. He doesn't care for them.

"Today people are crazy about sports," he says. "They'll go to see anything. It's a good thing elephants don't fly. My grandchildren love the auto races." He pretends he can't possibly understand why his grandchildren have to make the trip up to Epping and get so excited about those races. Don't let him kid you. He loves those grandchildren of his, and all the fuss they make about the races, too.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 20

Your birthday today: While others around you experience large changes, yours is a relatively calm year. Your circumstances will be very different from what they now are by year's end. It is essential that you be willing to consider new ideas and alert for fleeting moments of opportunity. Relationships need special care. Today's natives make good conversationalists.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Review what has happened lately. Line up facts, check your figures and make corrections. Attend to things you've neglected because of more urgent matters.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Don't promote your ideas just now. Keep the show on the road without scattering energy on side issues. A complete change is coming soon; be in shape to go!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Those around you are ultra-sensitive. Try not to slight them as you listen to strange news and make contact with distant people. Fill in missing pieces on interrupted jobs.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: If you sidestep arguments over abstract principles or religion, you'll be way ahead. You have little chance of converting anybody to your opinions on anything.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: It's a great day for picking and bridging gaps.

Pampan Tells Of Theft

A Pampa resident reported to police that someone entered his home while he and his wife were sleeping and took $45 last weekend.

Vandals, according to the report, tore a window screen on the south side of the house and crawled through a window.

between different points of view. Just don't force issues, leap into big projects or involve people who are not already working with you.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Survey your situation and be thankful for what you have and for your ability to move toward something better. Take inventory of belongings and find a channel to dispose of the surplus.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Stay close to home base and get certain notions cleared up. Even though your job may not seem exciting or glamorous, it should be enough of a challenge to sustain you.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You hear only scattered pieces of the story. People watch for your reaction, so keep agreements tentative with options for revisions. Take home gifts to demonstrate your feelings.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Look to see how your colleagues and rivals are faring and figure out how to take a slightly different approach. Scan details systematically, proceed slowly and don't make final decisions.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Misunderstandings happen all too easily. Say what you have to say simply and with a smile. Get rid of the work that is left over before you embark on a new program.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Suppress a restless urge. You can't count on recent improvements to hold up. You spend money for nothing of consequence. Keeping up with neighbors has less point than ever.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Everyone seems ready and able to gossip but unwilling to keep secrets. Complete what you've begun neatly and quickly, then mind your own affairs and avoid being a target for comment.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

August, 1775:

Late this month, redcoats in Boston chop down the original Liberty Tree—a giant elm about 130 years old. Other trees have been so designated throughout the colonies; they and Liberty Poles serve as rallying points for supporters of separation from Britain. In a paean to Liberty Trees published this year, Thomas Paine writes:

...Hear, O ye swains, 'tis a tale most profane,
Howe all the tyrannical powers,
Kings, Commons, and Lords, are uniting amain,
To cut down this guardian of ours;
To cut down this guardian of ours;
From the east to the west blow the trumpet to arms
Through the land let the sound of it flee,
Let the far and the near, all unite with a cheer,
In defense of our Liberty Tree.

Cop Blames Crime On Moral Poverty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment is a major cause of urban street crime, according to several big city police chiefs. But one of them, Edward Davis of Los Angeles, says moral, not material, poverty is to blame.

He also said marital infidelity caused by "swinging mothers" will create a future crime wave "like we've never seen before."

Davis and five other police officials appeared in an hour-long discussion of crime Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Patrick Murphy, president of the Police Foundation, said one action that could help reduce crime would be "reducing the unemployment in the central city among young men, especially minorities, under age 25."

Murphy said that in New York, Detroit and Washington, where he has headed police departments, he found a high correlation between unemployment and crime. He said that 100 years ago there was more violent crime in New York among the Irish, "who were at the bottom of the ladder then," than among blacks and Puerto Ricans now.

Murphy's view on cutting unemployment was shared by chiefs Robert DiGrazia of Boston, Hubert Williams of Newark, and Joseph McNamara of Kansas City, Mo.

"I would disagree entirely," Davis said. "Poverty causes crime but it's not material poverty — it's moral poverty. We have to treat the current batch of criminals a lot more severely and raise a lot better people in the future."

McNamara proposed jailing of all violent and repeat criminals.

Davis said: "The swinging mothers who decide to go their sexual way are going to produce a batch of criminals that are going to be unparalleled in the history of this country."

"The No. 1 solution to crime is to establish contact is radio communication," added Billingham. He is devoting a year to the subject of intelligent extraterrestrial life and how to reach it if it exists.

Little Testified Jailer Was Alive in Her Cell

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, a black woman accused of murdering a white jailer, testified today she was alive when she left the jail after he held an icepick in her face and forced her to have sex with him.

Miss Little, testifying at the start of the fifth week of her murder trial, said she flailed blindly with the icepick at jailer Clarence Alligood during a struggle and went into another room as he slumped over a bunk.

She testified that Alligood entered her cell three times the night he was slain, each time making sexual advances.

"He threatened me with the icepick, and that's when I started doing what he told me," she said.

Miss Little, 21, said while they were having sex, Alligood's grip loosened on the icepick, and she grabbed for it and it fell to the floor. They struggled for it and she was able to wrestle it away, she testified, stabbing at him blindly in the struggle.

She said she saw blood on his face, and after the struggle went to an adjacent cell and dressed.

"When I got out to the corridor, he was standing outside Cell No. 1," she said, with "a grin on his face."

Miss Little said she then got a key ring and left the jail.

Miss Little burst into tears while testifying and the trial was recessed briefly to allow her to regain her composure.

Eight of Alligood's sons and daughters were present in the packed courtroom.

Earlier, Miss Little testified she rebuffed a sexual advance from Alligood the night before he was slain. She said she came to her cell to bring her a pack of cigarettes.

Miss Little began testifying after Dr. Arthur Finn of Chapel Hill, to whose home she fled after escaping from the jail, testified "she was the most frightened and anxious person I have ever seen."

Under direct examination by chief defense attorney Jerry Paul, Finn, a white professor of medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said Miss Little never attempted to escape while staying at his residence before she surrendered to authorities.

The prosecution claims Miss Little, 21, lured jailer Clarence Alligood, 62, to her cell on the promise of sexual favors and then killed him as part of an escape plan.

Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood said last week he would wait until the defense attempts to introduce testimony from the experts on rape before deciding whether to allow jurors to hear their testimony.

If Miss Little were to take the stand, the prosecution could introduce rebuttal witnesses to testify against her character. She has had several run-ins with the law and her name was associated with a prostitution ring, although no proof was ever offered.

Miller said defense attorneys must consider the "legal effects and ramifications of her pending appeal on the breaking and entering" conviction if she is allowed to take the stand, which opens her to cross examination.

The trial was entering its fifth week today. Miller predicted the defense might finish testimony by Wednesday, leaving the rest of the week for rebuttal witnesses from the prosecution and defense.

"We could finish as early as Wednesday, listen to rebuttals through Friday and have arguments and instructions to the jury by the Tuesday after that," Miller told reporters.

Miss Little was in Beaufort County Jail 81 days awaiting her appeal of a breaking and entering conviction when she escaped.

Authorities who came into her cell in the predawn hours of Aug. 27, 1974, found on her cot the body of Alligood, who had worked for the sheriff's department for 18 months.

Astronomers Say UFOs Have Energy Problems

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If there are beings elsewhere in space, they probably are just as concerned with energy and financial problems as earthlings, astronomers say.

The experts discounted the notion other planets have dispatched flying saucers to earth. Such a space venture, they said Sunday, would require an enormous expenditure of energy and money.

"Even from a nearby star, the amount of energy needed would be extraordinary," said astronomy professor Harold Weaver of the University of California, Berkeley.

"It would not be the most economical way to establish contact," said Dr. John Billingham of the biotechnology division of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Laboratory at Mountain View, Calif.

"The most logical way to establish contact is radio communication," added Billingham. He is devoting a year to the subject of intelligent extraterrestrial life and how to reach it if it exists.

Billingham, Weaver and computer scientist Jacques Vallee were part of a panel discussing extraterrestrial life at a four-day meeting of the Astronomical Association of Northern California.

"If I wanted to send information to earth from another planet, I would broadcast a program," said Vallee. "Knowing what we now know about physics, radio would be the most sensible way to communicate."

"Of course, the distance is enormous and the radio signal — which could also be picked up by television — would weaken, so we need far more sophisticated equipment than we have now," Billingham said.

"It wouldn't be the kind of broadcast you could pick up on the Walter Cronkite show," added Vallee.

But there is, in fact, a handful of persons around the globe — maybe 8 or 10 — who are constantly trying to make radio contact with outer space, said Billingham.

How?

"You take a radio telescope and point it at a suitable star in hopes that a planet goes around that star," he explained.

After the panel discussion, the audience went to see a series of reruns of the sciencefiction television series "Star Trek."

New Phone Books Set for Delivery

Delivery of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's 1975 Pampa - Skellytown - Lefors telephone directory is scheduled to begin this week.

The cover will feature a biennial theme.

"It's a 'Happy Birthday, America' present from the Bell System and Southwestern Bell," said Gary Stevens, manager.

The front and back covers will feature four color likenesses of 26 characters representing figures from American history, images of family, friends and mythical personalities.

All are, appropriately, taking on various styles of telephones," Stevens said.

The cover faces range from Benjamin Franklin to Abraham Lincoln to Shirley Temple to Jackie Robinson. There's also the Statue of Liberty, a Norman astronaut, Will Rogers, Norman Rockwell, George Washington, Marian Anderson and Uncle Sam — not to mention Alexander Graham Bell, Betsy Ross, Mark Twain and various others.

The cover is being used on Bell company directories throughout the United States in observance of the Bicentennial celebration.

The cover first appeared on the Washington, D.C. directory in April. Its usage has just begun in Texas.

A complete identification of each of the 32 characters and a description of the phones they use is printed on the inside of the back cover of the directory.

The artist is Stanley Meltzoff of New Jersey, who did the artwork under commission of AT&T. His art has appeared in most of the nation's major magazines.

Top O' Texas Answering Service

Manager, Linda Sitterly

"I know a lot of people by their voices but I wouldn't know them by their faces if I met them on the street," said Linda Sitterly, manager of the Top O' Texas Answering Service which was purchased in October by J.E. and Jerrell Montgomery.

The business employs five people to provide 24-hour service to customers. In addition to answer 'ng calls for people that are not at home, the business has a two-way radio for 24-hour dispatching.

Most of the business' customers are doctors, businessmen and cattle companies. "One call answered could pay for the service," Ms. Sitterly said.

"We have customers you can't beat. They're great," she said, adding that business has been good.

Unemployment Insurance Tab Toughens Personnel Policy

NEW YORK (UPI) — High unemployment insurance taxes are forcing personnel managers to adopt a tougher stance on hiring and firing practices, according to Phil Kaplan, chairman of Reed Roberts Associates, a Garden City, N.Y., consulting firm.

"Suddenly," Kaplan said, "companies have come up against the vast difference in the unemployment insurance premiums a firm with a good record must pay and the cost to a company with high worker turnover or a bad layoff record."

In Michigan, Kaplan explained, a firm with 100 workers can pay as little as $3,700 a year if it has a good record but $35,000 if it has a lot of turnover. Many other states have variations as dramatic.

Meanwhile, 15 states recently have increased sharply their unemployment benefits and the taxes on employers and more can be expected to do so as the recession drags along, Kaplan said. The personnel manager of a big company who has looked on unemployment insurance as peanuts in the past suddenly could find his company's annual premium skyrocketing from $50,000 to $1.5 million.

This already is putting a damper on some time-honored practices such as allowing workers who quit voluntarily or are fired for cause to collect unemployment insurance.

"It's not enough just to keep ex-employees from collecting on unemployment insurance claims to which they are not really entitled," Kaplan said. "Hiring policies must be tightened so there will be less turnover."

A woman who quit a job when she was transferred to a night shift was able to collect unemployment insurance because the company couldn't prove it had told her when she was hired that she might have to work nights sometime.

A Spanish-speaking worker was fired for smoking in a dangerous area of the plant. He collected jobless insurance because he couldn't read the English no-smoking sign.

A fellow fired for chronic lateness was able to collect because the boss delayed his departure until he trained a replacement. The examiner ruled the firing was timed to fit the boss's convenience, not the worker's offense.

But the most common reason fired workers collect insurance benefits to which they are not entitled is failure of the company to tell them truthfully the exact reason they are being fired. People who quit their jobs and still manage to collect unemployment benefits usually do so because they convince the examiner the company didn't tell the whole truth about the job when it hired them.

Therefore, says Kaplan, companies that want to avoid ruinous jobless insurance premiums in this recessionary era must:

- Hold turnover to the minimum.
- Avoid large lay-offs.
- Refrain from being a good guy about unemployment insurance claims.

—Advise new workers about all the bad features of the job as well as the good aspects.

—Tell every worker who is dismissed the true and exact reason.

—Get expert advice about the unemployment insurance law in your state. Some of the laws have surprising quirks, Kaplan said.

SUCCESSION ACT

On July 18, 1947, President Harry Truman signed the Presidential Succession Act, which provided for the speaker of the House to succeed the president if there were no vice president.

BIKE ROUTE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A private nonprofit corporation called Bikecentennial '76 is scheduled to open the nation's first coast-to-coast bicycle route on May 16 next year.

With assistance from the Transportation Department's Federal Highway Administration, the organization is designing a special sign to mark the route. One section already is open in Oregon, and several short guided tours are being offered there and in the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness area of Montana.
