17 Per Cent Insurance Hike Okayed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Insurance Board today unanimously approved a 17 per cent $112.8 million increase in auto insurance rates.

In our opinion, the 17 per cent average increase recommended by the state board staff is adequate statewide and will insure the continued availability of insurance consulting actuary Charles Edwards of Dallas told the three-man board Edwards said industry proposals for a 24.9 per cent $165.3 million increase were based on predictions of continued sharp increases in auto repair and claim costs. We expect current cost levels to prevail with moderate increases over the next few years, Edwards said. Edwards said some automobile manufacturers increased auto parts prices as much as 40 per cent during an eight month period after price controls were lifted and dwindling new car sales hurt profits. Board chairman Joe Christie said the rates approved at today's meeting would go into effect in January. Christie sought information about classification systems used to determine what rate each particular car owner must pay. I just want to be sure they're not putting cars into a higher bracket than they should be, he said Monday. If they're putting a medium priced car into a category that is higher than it should be — if we increase rates that just compounds the problem. The 17 per cent increase proposed by the insurance board staff would raise the cost of insuring a typical car with standard coverages from $8 to $43 a year in different areas of the state. The three-man insurance board increased rates for auto insurance 8.8 per cent Jan. 16, but companies said the raise was not enough to cover costs of inflation and rising accident rates.

Whipping Officer Not Such a Good Idea

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A Texas Highway patrolman, stationed in Pampa, received a broken hand Monday night when a man under arrest "decided to whip an officer" in Justice of Peace Ed Anderson's office.

Sgt. David Womack said Jackie Franklin Cook, 24, was arraigned this morning on charges of driving with license suspended, driving while intoxicated, and assault on an officer.

Officer Jerry Havens was treated for a broken hand at Highland General Hospital and released. Justice of Peace Anderson set bonds totaling $4,500 including $2,000 for the assault charge, $1,500 for the DWI charge and $1,000 for driving with license suspended.

Judge Anderson said it is the first time he had ever had anything like this in his office. "Kicked a hole in the wall and he was barefooted," he commented. Asked what the man said during the arraignment, the judge said "He didn't say a word."

Sgt. Womack said Cook was arrested for driving while license was suspended near Lefors. He was brought in and given an opportunity to take a breath analyzer test. He refused, Womack said. He then assaulted Officer Phil Altman. In the ensuing battle it appeared that Cook was grabbing for Altman's pistol. Haven, in subduing him, came up with a broken hand. Cook was in the Gray County jail this morning.

City To Join Flood Program

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Pampa city commissioners voted 3 to 2 today to join the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program.

The vote came after nearly an hour-long discussion among realtors, builders and commissioners.

A motion to adopt two resolutions — one authorizing the city to join the program and the other to enforce it — was made by Commissioner Ray Thompson and seconded by Commissioner Leo Braswell.

Mayor R. D. Wilkerson joined Thompson and Braswell in voting for the motion and Commissioners Joe Curtis and Landon Shepherd voted against it.

Walter Kerr and I. W. Tinney, building contractors, appealed for adoption of the program stating it was necessary if Pampa is to grow.

Speaking for the realtors, Quentin Williams said the group was concerned about property owners being handicapped by lack of FHA loans if the program was not adopted.

Mrs. Alan Wise asked commissioners for more clarification and designation of flood-prone areas.

Roy Sparkman of Security Federal Savings and Loan Association told commissioners FHA loans could not be made in flood designated areas unless the insurance program was adopted. Sparkman also asked city officials to see if some of the areas could not be removed from the map. Jerald Sims of First National Bank stated if action were not taken it would slow down Pampa's building development.

At one point Mayor Wilkerson said he was uncertain what to do about joining the program. He read excerpts from the law and outlined a number of obligations that would fall upon the city.

Commissioners Shepherd and Curtis both referred to efforts to obtain further enlightenment from the federal government which they said had failed.

Commissioner Curtis said he thought Pampa should look down some other roads before joining.

Practically everyone who spoke in favor of the program agreed that they didn't like being forced into it, but stated there seemed to be no other alternative.

In other business, Bill Harris, chairman of the City Planning and Zoning Commission, told councilmen the planning commission had voted to recommend that the city annex more land that could be developed for residential purposes in the north and northwest areas.

Payment was authorized of $32,867 in fiscal 1975 — 76 as Pampa's share of operation and maintenance costs to the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

A water contract with Docheater Gas Producing Co. was extended for another year.

Nov. 11 was set as a date to receive bids for the purchase of a booster fire truck for South Fire Station.

Date of the Oct. 28 commission meeting was changed to Friday, Oct. 24 when bids will be received on Pampa's proposed sewage treatment plant.

New Constitution Cost Not High, Clayton Says

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Legislative Budget Board's report on the proposed Texas Constitution proves the document will not be expensive to implement, House Speaker Bill Clayton said Monday.

Li. Gov. William P. Hobby and all but two members of the budget board concluded the document will have a limited fiscal effect. The board approved a fiscal analysis of the constitution and sent it to legislators.

"It doesn't make any difference whether you are operating under an old constitution or a new constitution, it's the people that are sent to Austin who make the decisions on money spending," Clayton told a constitutional revision seminar in Victoria.

The new constitution is not going to be costly to implement, I am convinced, too, that there are some provisions in the new document that will save money and these savings were indicated by some of the provisions outlined in the budget board's document," he said.

Hobby said the overall fiscal effect of the proposal will be minor despite some estimates it will cost $11 billion to implement.

"The bottom line of the budget board staff's analysis shows there really are very few fiscal implications of the new constitution," Hobby said.

There'll be some savings. There'll be some increases in costs. The net effect is very little.

Rep. William S. Heatly, D-Paducah, and Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, left the board meeting before the vote on the analysis.

"I don't think in my opinion this is a strong enough statement," Creighton said during the meeting. "This doesn't really pinpoint what this thing ultimately will cost the taxpayers."

But Hobby said a professional analysis of the constitution cannot produce specific spending figures.

He was asked if he considered cost analyses as prepared by Comptroller Bob Bullock professional.

"Not if they come up with an $11 billion cost figure," Hobby said.

The lieutenant governor said it is impossible to precisely predict savings the state may enjoy because of provisions in the new charter authorizing increased flexibility for local government, a unified court system and revamping of state bureaucracy.

The budget board's estimates of additional costs the state will face if voters approve the new constitution Nov. 4 include:

— $11 million every other year for annual legislative sessions in place of present biennial sessions.

— $2 million every 30 years if voters decide they want the constitution rewritten that often.

The board said it was impossible to predict the financial impact of provisions in the new charter that would establish a pay commission to set salaries and expense allowances for legislators, authorize lawmakers to continue or lower state ad valorem tax levies and encourage abolishment of unnecessary state agencies every 10 years.

Savings, the board said can be expected, although not pinpointed in figures, from provisions in the new charter to give the governor greater control over state spending, increase court efficiency and give counties and other branches of local government greater flexibility to deal with problems.

Two Dangerous Fugitives Still Sought in Illinois

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Two extremely dangerous fugitives from a federal prison, tired and thirsty, were captured Monday night. Two others were believed in this southern Illinois area and authorities closed a grade school and modified bus routes of other schools as safety measures.

The hunt, using dogs and spotter planes, sheriff's deputies, state police and FBI agents, went on through wooded areas and along highways and rail tracks.

Maurice Philon, 40, Oakland, Calif., was captured by Marion County sheriff's police while walking along railroad tracks east of Salem.

He was found about a half mile out of town after a resident told police he had come to the door seeking water. Police said Philon carried a thin wire that could be used as a garrote.

About an hour later police caught Ed Roche, 39, Katonah,

N.Y., carrying an empty shotgun, as he walked in the opposite direction from Philon but along the same tracks. Roche is believed to have masterminded the break in which five inmates escaped after devising an electronic device that opened safety grills.

As a safety measure, the Iuka Elementary School about 10 miles east of here, was closed by Principal Ben Baggett because a large portion of pupils live within the search area.

Bus schedules for Salem schools were modified to avoid search areas and parents were asked to drive their children to school from remote areas or to accompany them to main roads along the bus routes.

Roche, armed with an empty sawed-off 410 shotgun apparently stolen from a farmhouse, was caught by FBI agents and Clinton County sheriff's police about three miles east of Salem.

as he headed out of town along the tracks, authorities said.

Roche, who had been serving a 39-year term for bank robbery and carrying a dangerous weapon, and Philon, who had been serving a 50-year term for bank robbery and assaulting a federal officer, were caught in a 16-square-mile area of rough southern Illinois countryside staked out by law officers since Sunday.

Police and FBI agents combed an area west of town in search of the remaining two fugitives, Henry M. Gargano, 43, of Chicago, and Dennis D. Hunter, 26, of Salem, Ohio. Authorities theorized the pair had slipped through town along the tracks and remained holed up in the woods.

$21 Million Fire Burns

EAGLE, Colo. (UPI) — More than 500 men today battled a $21 million forest fire burning out of control in the White River National Forest.

The fire, which broke out late Friday in an elk hunters' camp, has burned its way through 4,788 acres of spruce, aspen and pine in the north central Colorado forest.

"We hope to contain the fire by sometime today, but it all depends on whether we get rain, whether the winds come back up and lots of other things," a spokesman said.

Officials said the blaze has caused more than $21 million in damages and efforts to bring it under control have cost over $600,000.

About 300 hunters in the area for the opening of the 1975 elk season were safely evacuated. No one has been injured in the fire.

Firm Recommends Schools Pour $2 Million into Buildings

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

An architect and engineering firm recommended Monday that almost $2 million be spent to repair and improve Pampa school's physical facilities.

The Board of Education discussed a bond election to foot the bill.

"We have a number of things that have to be done in our schools," said Dr. Dan F. Long, school superintendent. The community is in a position so that the bonded indebtedness will soon end, he added, saving that the capital expenditure would be possible without an increase in bond taxes.

Thirty cents of the $1.80 tax rate is delegated to bonded indebtedness currently. The board has no money set aside in the annual budget for capital outlay.

Brasher, Govett, Rapier, architects and engineers, reported that no facilities were deemed unsafe but that changes must be made to prolong the life of Pampa schools, many which have portions that are 50 years old.

Reports presented to the board at the 4 p.m. meeting at Carver Center also revealed that:

1 Transportation is the strongest segment of the school business operations

2 School cafeterias are overstaffed and, according to consultants, student lunch fees are too high.

3 The average age of Pampa school buses is 11.2 years. The desirable average age of a school bus fleet is 5 years.

4 The two studies were parts of a series being collected by the school board and Long as an overall assessment process of the school district.

A team of local and area experts, lead by chief consultant Dr. James Jeffrey, Austin Independent School District, evaluated the school business operation.

Brasher recommended that $1,739,000 in improvements be made to schools and the transportation center. Part of the money would be spent to weatherproof windows and create savings of an estimated $23,100 a year in fuel costs for the school system.

The basic structures generally are sound, the report said of the school buildings. "But it is not feasible to do needed corrective work within a reasonable maintenance budget, and it would appear reasonable that such work be paid as a capital expenditure."

The report added: "Due to the increase in cost of construction and repair work in the past few years, and the indicated continual increase in cost, we suggest that this work be performed in near future."

Improvements also include lighting, electrical wiring, parking, library facilities and floors.

In the business operations report, the consultants commended "exceedingly qualified and capable staff members" for the district. They also paid tremendous compliments to the school bus maintenance staff.

Offices evaluated were finance services, food services, physical plant and maintenance, purchasing services, tax office services and transportation services.

The group made five major observations and recommendations:

1 Materials should be stored in one central location.

2 A central warehouse would facilitate more efficient delivery of supplies and materials.

3 A regular replacement program should be developed for items such as buses, air conditioning equipment, band instruments and business machines.

4 All central office facilities, including warehouse, business and tax office and administration, be housed together. They presently are in scattered locations.

5 A differential salary schedule be developed and implemented that will discriminate between beginning and experienced employes and permit merit recognition for employes who perform at a level above normal expectations.

Consultants representing schools and industries included Howard O. Neal, Don Edwards, Ronnie Wood from Canyon, Ed Smith, Anita Sisemore from Plainview, William Arney, Herman Carruth from Amarillo, Jim Anderson, Roy Hart from Borger, Ken Drost from Amarillo, Orville Latham from Spearman, Dick Bynum and Dr. Jeffrey.

In other business, the board approved a high school band trip to the Six Flags Concert Band Festival in Atlanta, Geo. May 6, 7 and 8. The trip will be paid for by the band and band boosters.

The board also authorized cancellation of a delinquent tax account and adopted a proposed statement of assurance in compliance with Title IX. The statement reads:

Pampa Independent School District hereby agrees that it will comply with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 which provides that no person in the United States shall on the basis of sex be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance, with certain exceptions as specified in the law itself, and hereby give assurance that it will take the measure necessary to effectuate this agreement."

"I think Pampa has made a good start toward this, we're in pretty good shape," Long told the school board. "I see no problem at the elementary school level."

Final assessed values for 1975 were reported. The tax roll shows a total amount of assessed value at 40 per cent of market value is $120,774,250. The revenue will be $2,173,936.50.

Dr. Robert Lyle reported on the Texas Association of School Board conference recently in San Antonio.

He said that TASB opposes Article 8 or the proposed new constitution. Article 8 deals with finance and the organization voiced specific opposition to Section 2C on tax, 4D on exemptions, 5A on tax relief, 6A on tax under protest and 6B.

Vice president Bill Arrington presided at the meeting. Trustees present were Sam Anderson, Paul Simmons, Harold Comer, David Crossman and Dr. Lyle.

Gun Rhetoric

The drive to register and ultimately outlaw the individual ownership of firearms, we have repeatedly warned, is not the main issue. The issue, and the primary target of the knowing anti-gun zealots, is the concept of private property, itself. The socialist Karl Marx threw down the gauntlet in the Communist Manifesto when he stated the objective in unmistakable terms: "In one word, you reproach us with intending to do away with your property. Precisely so, that is just what we intend."

The anti-gun drive, with its highly emotional arguments, is merely a vehicle toward that end. For quite obviously, if the careening, control-happy political establishment can deny you the right to own property in firearms, it can deny you the right to own property in everything else.

Unfortunately, as brought out by Morgan Norval in the October issue of Reason magazine, defenders of the right to own and bear firearms too often base their defense on just as emotional and tenuous arguments, such as that guns are needed for this or that purpose.

For example, Norval points out, sportsmen are inclined to argue that they have a right to a gun with which to kill a deer, during a state-licensed season and, usually, on state-owned or state-overseen land. Target shooters often use the same sort of bizarre arguments, as though it is a part of the Bill of Rights that the state support accurate marksmanship (perhaps by building and maintaining rifle ranges from public funds) but that it is unthinkable that the state should go the next step and insist on the right to regulate guns used in the target shooting.

"Why not?" Norval asks. "Once you have accepted the right of the state to intervene in the first place, why shouldn't it intervene in the second, third and fourth places?"

For your right to own and bear firearms rests on none of these slippery reasons, the author insists with devastating logic. You have the right to own and bear a gun simply and basically "because the state has no right to take it, OR ANYTHING ELSE, away from you."

Until this simple, but fundamental truth is grasped, the assault on the human right to own and control firearms, as well as other forms of property, will continue, as often as not with the uncomprehending support of the very individuals who will wind up being victimized.

Proxmire and Fleeces

If Senator William Proxmire does nothing else in public life, let it be said he inaugurated the "Fleece of the Month Award." The Wisconsin Democrat has found a sensitive subject, one that is bound to popularize him with taxpayers—at least those who are not turned off to receiving such smile-spoiling information.

Americans have grown accustomed to hearing about how thousands of their tax dollars are going to such dubious projects as the building of a potato chip factory in Morocco and the study of sex habits of Belgian frogs. Just so we don't get complacent about it, however, Proxmire keeps prodding us with new, even more outrageous than the last (if that's possible), information.

The senator most recently reported that the Navy flew 1,334 officers to a Las Vegas hotel during the height of the energy crisis for a reunion of the private Trailhook Association—a group of aircraft carrier lovers. The flights cost $191,000 and used 347,000 gallons of fuel.

This, Proxmire asserted, occasions the bestowal of the Fleece of the Month Award on the Navy. It is a worthwhile award. We have to wonder, however, how many gargantuan fleeces arose from legislation for which Proxmire voted. Now, that would be interesting to investigate.

Why Not Advertise?

Some of the best news we've heard lately is that the legal profession seems to be stepping gingerly in the direction of abolishing the antiquated provision of its code of ethics that prohibits attorneys from advertising. The national bar association has always had its feet planted in cement with regard to the issue, but there are signs it will eventually yield.

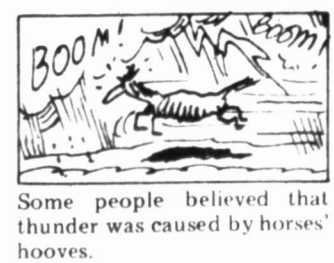

We have never understood why, exactly, it is "ethical" to discourage public access to lawyers: how and when to refer to them and so on. Advertising naturally means competitive pricing varying from lawyer to lawyer. With lawyers putting up billboards or purchasing newspaper ads the likelihood is that fees will begin, however imperceptibly at first, to decrease.

Competition is always a good thing, and it is illusory to think professionals should not get involved in it. The argument was always that professionals should stay above the vulgar marketplace, that their hands would get soiled if they dipped into it.

That is malarkey. They are more likely to get dirty the farther away from competition and the light of competitive advertising they stand.

If anything can hasten the day when lawyers and other professionals may advertise for clients, let it be done.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON

Support for Cover-Up Assailed

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C.—The support from the press Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is receiving in his cover-up of responsibility for intelligence failures is disappointing.

Kissinger and Lawrence Eagleburger have been partially successful in comparing House Intelligence Committee requests for witnesses and documents to the irresponsible forays of the last Sen. Joseph McCarthy in the early 1950s.

The attempts to discredit Chairman Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) and his committee have been accepted by some media in the face of Eagleburger's reluctant admissions that there have been no actions by the committee that he would characterize as "McCarthyism."

It is obvious that many who wrote editorials supportive of the Kissinger-Eagleburger cover-up did not read the record of Eagleburger's testimony before the Pike committee.

What is truly shocking is that there is support from the press of the Kissinger cover-up after the Watergate cover-up, in which then President Richard Nixon used the same types of arguments for not producing the White House tapes.

The issue between Pike and Kissinger is whether the State Department will be the final authority on what documents and witnesses will be produced and restriction on questioning.

While Pike has avoided comparing Kissinger's effort to control evidence of intelligence failure to Nixon's suppression of Watergate evidence, Rep. Robert N. Giacomini (D-Conn.) and others on the committee have made the comparison. They have noted that Kissinger—who was the major foreign policy maker and the man in control of the entire intelligence apparatus—is banning from the committee information on his precise responsibility for intelligence blunders.

Specifically, Kissinger and Eagleburger are seeking to lay down restriction on witnesses and documents produced by the State Department and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) on intelligence failures in the Cyprus coup of July, 1974.

Eagleburger declared that the restrictions were "based on principles of the utmost importance to the employes and operations of the (State) department."

"First, it is the responsibility of the secretary and myself—as it was with our predecessors—to protect the integrity of the personnel of the Department of State and the foreign service."

"Second, it is also our responsibility to oppose steps that would imperil the ability of the Department of State effectively to formulate and conduct foreign policy."

Eagleburger said that the State Department cannot "permit a situation to develop in which officers of the department are reluctant to express opinions freely because they fear that they will be subject to public criticism, ridicule or punishment for advocacy of a course of action which might at the moment be unpopular."

"Nor can we permit a situation to develop in which others would be tempted to play to the grandstand by advocating policies simply because they have popular appeal," Eagleburger said, and added that the condition he feared "is far from a hypothetical issue."

"I have an obligation to see that the Department of State never again faces such a circumstance. I know that I have—and will continue to have—the full support of Secretary of Kissinger as I carry out that obligation."

Asked if he was charging the committee with McCarthyism, Eagleburger said no but that the potential was there and that he was trying to raise a warning.

One of the witnesses the committee wants to question is Thomas D. Boyatt, a Foreign Service officer, one of the most knowledgeable officials on the Cyprus policy failures. Boyatt wrote a comprehensive critical analysis of the intelligence failures in the months after the Greek-directed coup and the Turkish invasion.

There is no indication that Boyatt feels pressured by the Pike Committee or is anxious to hide his personal views on Cyprus policy.

The only pressure on Boyatt is coming from the State Department, where Kissinger and Eagleburger have laid down restrictions on his testimony, and have transferred him to Eagleburger's office where he is under surveillance during working hours and instructed that any discussions on Cyprus risk insubordination.

Pike makes the point that many serious revelations of late have not come from high-ranking officials but from their subordinates: The $2 billion dollars in Air Force cost overruns were not revealed by the Air Force secretary, but by cost analyst A. Earnest Fitzgerald. The truth about My Lai didn't come from Gen. William Westmoreland, but from a sergeant and other lower ranking officer. Lower officials, not Gen. John Lavelle, revealed the falsification of reports of Vietnam bombing missions.

With those cases in recent memory Pike and other member of his committee are amazed to read in some prestigious newspapers that "the analogy with McCarthyism evoked by the State Department is a relevant one."

And they are equally astounded when a noted columnist finds the subpoena for Boyatt comparable to "the procedure that almost wrecked the Foreign Service during the McCarthy period."

SENATE PROBE DEMANDED

U.N. Falling into Disrepute

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—The August Senate Foreign Relations Committee is in a tizzy.

Its internationalist members are aflutter over being put on the spot by Sen. James Allen's surprise demand for a sweeping investigation of the United Nations — by a special committee.

That's equivalent to adding insult to injury. Under Senate rules, all proposals relating to foreign affairs are referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, thus giving it jurisdiction over Allen's disconcerting resolution.

In itself the measure is grating enough, but calling for a select committee to make such a probe is an added jolt.

The last thing the internationalist Senators want right now is a bare-knuckled scrutiny of the UN. But as the same time they are acutely aware of two inescapable realities:

The UN is in wide disrepute both in Congress and the country at large. Only last month, at the convening of the latest session of the General Assembly, Ambassador Daniel Moynihan bluntly warned that continued illegal and irresponsible antics by the dominating Arab-African-Communist bloc could mean U.S. withdrawal from the UN.

Sen. Allen does not act lightly or casually. A master parliamentarian and legislative expert, the tall, astute Alabamian has repeatedly demonstrated he has the expertise and forcefulness to get what he's after. He has made the Senate literally come to heel more than once.

It's a foregone conclusion that if the Foreign Relations Committee attempts to ignore Allen's demand for a UN investigation, he will unhesitatingly do something about it.

Spelling It Out
That's why the internationalist committee is in such a dither.

Shelving Allen's resolution or even going to the length of rejecting it is emphatically not going to deter him. He doesn't operate that way. As a long-experienced and accomplished legislative scrapper, he knows well there is more than one way to skin a cat.

If he's blocked by the committee, it's certain he will offer his measure as an amendment to a bill dealing with foreign affairs — such as foreign aid.

In one way or another, the full Senate will vote on investigating the UN.

That is why Allen is bluntly after, and much as the internationalists don't like it, that is very likely what will happen.

The Alabamian has a devastating bill of indictment to back up his demand. In effect, he charges that the UN has completely failed as a "force for peace" and now is little more than a Soviet-led cabal of so-called "non-aligned" and "third world" nations bent on feathering their own nests largely at U.S. expense.

"In view of our country's relations now and in the future," says Allen, "the problem of our involvement in the United Nations is of the supremest importance because of the vastness, sensitiveness and importance of the issues under study to the well-being of the United States. Determining our role with regard to the United Nations which has emerged in the last few years is critically vital to the national interest, and indeed, to the nation's ability to survive in an increasingly hostile world."

Bill of Indictment
Sen. Allen forcefully leaves no doubt there is plenty to investigate.

Singled out are the following striking examples:
Despite all the clutter about a "force for peace," in the first 25 years of the UN's existence there have been "75 armed conflicts between nations."

When the people of Hungary rose against Soviet oppression in 1956 "the UN did nothing." Similarly, when the Communists built the Berlin Wall in violation of international law, "the UN did nothing." When the people of Czechoslovakia rose against their oppressive government, "the UN remained silent and did nothing." When India seized neighboring states, "again the UN did nothing."

"Such examples could go on and on," declares Allen bitterly. "They could fill a book, without even discussing the counterproductive — peace role the UN has played in the Middle East. And then there is the UN's silence on the subject of terrorism throughout the world."

"It's a shocking fact, but it is undeniable that the reason the UN does not condemn terrorism is that many of its members support such violent activities."

"The UN refused to condemn slave labor camps in Russia; mass murder in Communist China; denial of religious and political freedom throughout Eastern Europe; terror in Uganda and Tanzania. But the UN has frequently and vehemently condemned other states, such as South Africa, Israel and, naturally, the U.S., for various assorted reasons."

"It defies logic how an organization which includes within its ranks nations which have aggressive designs towards others can ever be a force for peace. The plain fact is, of course, that the UN has never been a force for peace. That's a myth that should be fully and thoroughly exposed once and for all."

Double Whammy
Capping it all, Sen. Allen points out that while the U.S. has carried the major financial burden of the UN, countries heavily in arrears in UN obligations have been in the van in illegal and irresponsible antics.

Since the UN's establishment, this country has contributed more than $4.7 billion. Presently, by mandate of Congress which finally got tired of voting vast sums for the UN, the annual U.S. payment is limited to 25 per cent.

Yet, despite that restriction, that is greater than any other member's. Russia's allotment is only 12.9 per cent — when it is forthcoming. Notes Allen sardonically:

"In 1964, when the Soviets had been in default more than two years and under the UN charter was threatened with losing its voting rights, the Kremlin promised to pay. But that payment has not been made."

In 1974, of the 138 UN members, 92 were in arrears $204 million. More than half of this indebtedness — $110 million — was owed by the Soviet Union and its satellites. Last September, the UN was so strapped that Secretary General Waldheim asked the U.S. to pay its final $10 million installment in advance — which it did.

"But the debtors," says Allen, "including Russia, various African countries and India, continued in arrears, while at the same time expelling South Africa, limiting the participation of Israel, and inviting the terrorist Palestine Liberation Organization to address the General Assembly."

"That is the UN, now dominated by the two largest single tyrannies in the world, the USSR and the Peoples Republic of China. That bodes evil days ahead for the United States, and we cannot let this situation continue without doing something drastic about it." (All Rights Reserved)

Teen Troubled by Pill Myths

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my boyfriend is 18. We've been going steady for two years and hope to marry some day.

Here's the problem: I used to take birth control pills, but my boyfriend made me stop because he said he heard they could cause blood clots, make my hair fall out and cause lots of other terrible side effects.

We've continued to have sex relations, but nothing has happened. He thinks maybe I am sterile from the Pill. Is that possible?

We want children some day, and now I am worried that there is something wrong with me and that if I ever do have a child, it will be deformed.

I am terribly worried about myself, Abby. Please help me. I have no mother to ask, and I don't know any doctors.

WORRIED IN PA.

DEAR WORRIED: You need professional counseling. If your school offers that service, please take advantage of it. If not, your local Planned Parenthood office can help you. You may be worrying needlessly, but it's important that you learn the facts.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a wonderful woman for nearly two years. We get along very well, but I have one complaint. The only night she lets me make love to her is Thursday because she gets her hair done every Friday.

Any suggestions?

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: When the time for "making love" depends upon when your wife has her hair appointment, it's time to make an appointment with a marriage counselor!

DEAR ABBY: SEEN IT ALL complained about a 68-year-old neighbor lady who bent over to plant pansies in a short dress and exposed her uncovered behind.

Another reader suggested SEEN IT take a picture of the pansy planter in living color, enlarged it and send it to her so she could see herself as others see her.

Let me tell you how WE cured a similar problem.

Several years ago, we moved into a really nice section of town. Imagine my surprise when my two boys (ages 10 and 12) came running into the house to tell me they were naked people next door!

I couldn't believe it, so I went outside to see for myself. It was true. There were three children running around completely naked. Their mothers were sitting at a nearby picnic table, naked from the waist up and nursing their babies out in the open yard.

I was speechless! I gave my boys firm instructions to play in their own front yard until the situation improved.

My husband and I discussed it, immediately bought a six-foot-high redwood fence and put it up.

When I ran into this neighbor on the street, I told her WHY we had put up the fence, and she said, "The human body is beautiful and should be on display like Greek statues."

After I gave her a piece of my mind, she added, "I notice that you hang your wash outside, which makes the whole neighborhood look like Dogpatch!"

How's that for nerve?

Anyway, a fence is the answer to improve the view — not a picture.

Ford Proposes Joint Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says more joint Soviet-American projects could be attempted in other areas of science.

Space officials of both nations plan to meet this winter to start preparing for a second joint spaceflight, probably in the early 1980s.

The President met Monday in the White House rose garden with the Soviet and American space pilots who brought their space vehicles into a rendezvous in orbit this summer.

"It showed what can be done between the people and governments of two great nations," the President said after greeting the two crews.

"This joint effort, I hope and trust, will be but a forerunner of what we can do on an expanded basis not only in space and science but in many other areas."

Earlier Monday Soyuz commander Alexei Leonov predicted the two nations would continue cooperative experiments in space. Leonov said it would be "a shame and totally incorrect" for each country to work alone trying to achieve the same goal.

Leonov and his copilot, Valeri Kubasov, are on a two-week goodwill tour of the United States with American astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton. Stafford, Brand and Slayton returned last week from a tour of the Soviet Union. The five spacemen and their families are guests of Chicago today. They go on to Omaha, Neb., Wednesday and plan later stops at Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Reno, Nev., Los Angeles, Atlanta, Nashville, Tenn., and New York.

John Denver Receives Highest Country Award

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — John Denver, America's biggest selling pop recording artist and Colorado's poet laureate, has won the country music industry's highest accolade, the Entertainer of the Year award.

On tour in the Far East, Denver accepted the Country Music Association honor via satellite from Perth, Australia, during the nationwide telecast of the 8th Annual CMA awards show aired live from the Grand Ole Opry House Monday night.

"I was raised on country music. It was part of my life and it's beautiful to be able to share this with you," said the blond, bespectacled singer, who also garnered the Song of the Year for "Back Home Again."

Denver is an example of the overlapping worlds of country, pop, rock and folk which have produced a hybrid sound that sells well but angers some hardcore country veterans who feel

"their" music is being watered down.

On the other hand, two longtime country chart inhabitants, Waylon Jennings and Dolly Parton, took Male and Female Vocalists of the Year.

Best known for "I'm a Rambling Man," Jennings is an acknowledged rebel whose beard, long hair and unconventional attitude do not always sit well with the CMA aristocracy.

The blonde and buxom Miss Parton said she was surprised by her victory.

"I'm proud of it and I just hope that everybody thinks I deserve it. I hope nobody thinks I got it because of what happened last year," she said, referring to the 1974 Female Vocalist award which went to Olivia Newton-John, a pretty Australian who records out of London.

The Newton-John award raised the hackles of many a country veteran and led to the organization of the Association of Country Entertainers. The group works for more representation in the CMA and a different format for the awards show.

Freddy Fender received the Single Record of the Year award for "When the Next Teardrop Falls."

For the fourth year in a row, Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn captured the Vocal Duo award for their many hits including "Feelings."

Mrs. Henry Cannon, better as the country-comedienne Minnie Pearl, broke into tears when her longtime friend Tennessee Ernie Ford announced her induction into the Country Music Hall of Fame.

MANCINI COMPOSES HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hank Mancini is composing music for "W. C. Fields and Me."

Tower Wants Amendment To Prohibit Busing

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. John G. Tower R-Tex. says a constitutional amendment is a foolproof way to prohibit court ordered busing to achieve school integration.

Tower has asked the leaders of the 50 states for support to call a constitutional convention to draft the amendment. He said Monday Congressional legislation to limit busing is uncertain because of the courts' interpretations.

"The only final and certain means to prohibit busing to achieve racial balance is a constitutional amendment," Tower said. "We can pass good legislation on this subject, and the question is whether the courts would declare it unconstitutional."

"That is why I say the only foolproof way to prohibit busing is through a constitutional amendment."

Tower said education is the issue and funds going to busing to integrate schools to court standards are ill spent.

"I don't think a majority of the people want absolute racial balance in schools," he said. "If we can give a kid a quality education in his own neighborhood, why not do it?"

"Obviously we should have desegregation, but we should not have forced busing to achieve racial balance."

Tower said the Republican party would be hurt if Ronald Reagan challenges President Gerald Ford for the 1976 nomination. Tower said he believes Ford could defeat Reagan in the Texas presidential primary.

Three Plead Guilty To Burglary Charges

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff
Three Pampa residents entered pleas of guilty Monday to charges of burglary in connection with the illegal entry of the Pampa Youth Center on May 27.

The pleas were made in 31st District Court here and Judge Grainger Mellhany found each of the three guilty, but delayed sentencing until the probation department could present presentence reports.

Brenda Kay Price, 25, Edna Fay Grimes, 21, and Edd Garden Drew, 18, requested probation.

Price said the recent problems she had encountered with law enforcement officers has prevented her from obtaining employment.

She said she took three boxes of candy from the youth center

"but dropped them." Her attorney, James M. Bowers, Pampa attorney, asked about other "trouble."

She said she was charged with shoplifting in 1972. She added that she was filed on in Amarillo and her attorney there advised her to plead guilty and she paid $150 fine plus court costs.

"This has not been a good year for you," said Bowers, who also mentioned a burglary at the Busy Bee Drug this summer.

Price said she was one of several who entered there, but took only a small amount of whiskey.

"But bad luck beset all of you," Bowers said. "Someone went in after you and cleaned it out."

He told Price that restitution for the Busy Bee burglary also would be required and she would have to hold a job if problems

Three Die in Gas Blast

GOLDSMITH, Tex. (UPI) — Rose Williams and her husband were watching television when the first of three explosions rocked the natural gas plant a half mile from their home.

"At first it a small explosion, just like somebody dropping a boot on a hardwood floor and just immediately following it was a big boom," she said.

"I didn't know what to think.

I was too scared. It was terrible. You could see the flash just like the fire was right outside our window."

The explosions and fire Monday at the El Paso Natural Gas Co. plant killed three workers and injured three others.

Killed were Joe Carpenter, a plant operator from Golsmith, Craig Fife, a plant oiler from Odessa, and Jim Lackey, a shift supervisor, also from Odessa.

Plant officials said the explosion was caused by a ruptured pipeline.

should be granted. She told her lawyer that if the judge should grant probation, she would "walk the straight and narrow."

Grimes said she is one of eight children and cannot find a job.

Drew is one of nine children and Bowers said that only recently his widowed mother remarried. Drew, he said, is working about five hours daily in addition to attending school.

"If this were to do over, what would you do?" Bowers asked. "I wouldn't do it again," he answered. Bowers said Drew's mother and stepfather are concerned over the charge.

The judge told each one that the offense carries a penalty of two years to 20 years in the state penitentiary and a maximum fine of $10,000.

Each said he or she was not aware of the penalty at the time the burglary was committed.

Strauss Pleas for Demo Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pleading for unity as the 1976 campaign approaches, Chairman Robert Strauss told the Democratic National Committee today squabbling will only repeat the party's "tragic pattern" of defeat in 1968 and 1972.

Strauss made his appeal as the 361-member committee began two days of work in preparation for the party's national convention next summer in New York City.

"Our past disunity... brought us Richard Nixon — and now Gerald Ford," he said. "No matter how hard we look for scapegoats, none of us is blameless."

The full committee met after the party's executive committee Monday worked out, with little dissension, housekeeping details and rules for the Madison Square Garden conclave next July.

But there still were signs of unrest among the party's reform faction, especially over proposed rules that would attempt to reduce public bickering on the convention floor and tighten up the delegate credentials challenge process.

"We seem to have established a tragic pattern," said Strauss in reviewing the history of the party in the last two presidential elections. "A majority going into the delegate selection process and our national convention; a hopeless minority as we go into and come out of the presidential campaign."

Strauss said a united party could take advantage of soft political targets on the other side.

"The same old Nixon crowd is minding the store... the same names and same old tired negative programs," he said.

The prospects of a peaceful national committee session seemed enhanced Monday when a potential bruising battle over delegate selection rules was averted in the executive committee.

"My momma didn't raise no idiot," Don Fowler quietly told the 25-member committee Monday. "I withdraw the resolutions" to roll back party reforms.

Fowler, South Carolina state chairman, never even had a chance to debate his case for changing rules governing selection of 1976 national convention delegates.

He asked the executive committee to submit his resolutions to the 361-member national committee but was unable to get a second to his motion.

Trudeau Imposes Controls On Canada's Wages, Prices

OTTAWA, Canada (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau imposed selective wage and price controls on a major segment of Canada's economy today, saying it was on a destructive course.

The controls limit wage hikes for many workers to 10 per cent a year and restrict price boosts by some corporations to their increase in costs.

"This program of restraint is the heaviest imposed upon Canadians since the Second World War," Trudeau said in an 18-minute nationwide address Monday night.

"I am asking the people of Canada to accept tough limits on their behavior so that our economy can recover, so that we can all be better off in the future than we would be if we allowed the economy to continue along its present destructive course."

The prime minister said the controls would take effect immediately and remain "for a considerable length of time." He said while they apply only to certain select groups "every-one is expected to observe the guidelines."

The guidelines permit annual salary increases of 8 per cent, but an additional 2 per cent hike can be given for an increase in worker's productivity. The maximum annual pay raise is limited to $2,400.

"I am telling you that this program must work, because if it does not, the government may be forced to impose mandatory, comprehensive all embracing price and income controls upon every man and woman in Canada," Trudeau said.

He said the guidelines apply to the federal government and all its employees, on the 1,500 largest companies in Canada, including virtually every company in the construction industry, and on all the employees of those companies.

Governor Proclaims Today Family Land Heritage Day

Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed today as the second annual Family Land Heritage Day, sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The day will be celebrated with ceremonies at the State Fair in Dallas to award certificates of honor to 383 families who have qualified for the Family Land Heritage Program, said agriculture John C. White, agriculture commissioner.

Those families to be honored are current owners of property which has been farmed and ranched by the same family since 1875 or before. Last year 560 farms were qualified.

Dr. H.O. Kunkel, dean of the College of Agriculture at Texas A&M University, will be the speaker at the awards presentation to be held in the Hall of State lecture room.

The oldest agricultural property to be recognized this year is that owned by six members of the Walsh family of San Antonio. The ranches are part of a grant of land given to Don Ignacio Peres in 1800 and officially patented by the Spanish government in 1808. Each of the six current owners inherited their portion of the estate in 1949 and produce cattle and feed.

Five ranches in Kenedy and Willacy Counties were first bought in 1792 by Don Jose Narciso Cavazos but have only had continual agricultural production since 1861. They are the La Becerra Ranch, El Devisadero Ranch, Santa Berta Ranch, Tres Mesquites - Thomas Ranch and the F. Yturria Ranch.

Briscoe, in proclaiming the special day, said it was in "appreciation of those families who have persevered for a century or more on farms and ranches of this fertile state."

US Resists Oil Export Nations

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and other industrial countries today resisted attempts by oil-exporting nations to set a rigid agenda for the December conference on energy and raw materials.

Ten delegations representing industrialized, oil-exporting and developing nations agreed Monday to hold the first stage of the world economic conference in Paris Dec. 16.

But the delegates have yet to work out the agenda for the conference, popularly known as the "North-South dialogue," specifically the tasks for four commissions on energy, raw materials, Third World development and finances.

The United States, Japan and the European Common Market have urged the oil exporters and developing countries to stick to the vague terms of reference for the commissions drawn up by the French hosts.

But spokesmen said that some nations, including Saudi Arabia, wanted to make the agenda for the finance committee precise, steering it in the direction of overall world monetary reform.

The West opposes this and wants the committee to deal strictly with the financial implications of the work of the other three commissions.

"It would be a mistake to define too clearly in advance how they will function," said the U.S. delegation chief, Undersecretary of State Charles W. Robinson.

Hirohichi Miyazaki, the Japanese delegation chief, urged the preparatory conference here to "avoid involvement in substantive problems."

An earlier attempt last April to prepare the "North-South dialogue" failed over the issue of how much would be discussed.

Delegates here clearly hoped to avoid this problem and pass all tough questions onto the full conference in December, when the nations will be represented by foreign ministers.

Army Chief Tries To Calm Mutinous Troops in Porto

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Army chief Gen. Carlos Fabiao flew to northern Portugal today in an attempt to reach a settlement with mutinous troops occupying a military base on the outskirts of Porto.

Military sources said the soldiers have demanded the ouster of the military district chief Brig. Antonio Pires Veloso and the return of the Communists to government power as their price for ending the week-old occupation. The rebellious troops, who have been joined by soldiers from 18 other units and left-wing civilians, have become the focal point of the government's battle to halt the growing lack of discipline in the armed forces.

Fabiao made the peace-making trip as pro-Communist officers, purged from positions of power, continued their campaign to promote more army mutinies and undermine the authority of Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro De Azevedo's Socialist-dominated cabinet.

Azevedo stressed the dangers of a military disintegration in a televised address to the nation Monday night.

He said growing military unrest and civil strife created an "intolerable situation" that threatened to bring down the ruling Armed Forces Movement's sixth coalition.

The prime minister, who came to power last month at the head of a Socialist-led coalition, criticized the far-left "campaign to disrupt and discredit the military."

He said military mutinies breaking out across the country are a serious threat to the government because "a disciplined and cohesive army is an essential condition of governing."

Funeral services for Mrs. Eartha Mae Williams, 59, will be at 3 p.m. Thursday at St. Mark's United Methodist Church with the Rev. N.G. Gilbert, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Duengel Funeral Home.

Mrs. Williams died Monday. She was reared in McKinney and moved to Dallas when she was 21. She came to Pampa from Dallas in 1948.

Mr. Williams was a member of St. Mark's United Methodist Church.

Survivors include the widower, George; two daughters, Mrs. Rosa Clemons of McKinney and Mrs. Frances Dorsey of Pampa; three sons, Danny Williams and Billy Payne, both of Pampa, and Jimmie Lee Johnson of McKinney; a brother, William B. Johnson of Pampa; 16 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Brownies Share Camp Fun

Dona Darby, 8-year-old daughter of John and Marcia Darby

More than 330 Brownies from the Quivira Council area participated in an outing Saturday at Camp Mel Davis south of Pampa.

The Brownies spent the morning in three groups learning to cook twist biscuits over a camp fire, to tie a square knot, and the basics of knife safety. Camp leaders reported 352 biscuits consumed and no cut fingers.

Troop Two Leader Penny Newman, who directed the camp activities, remarked, "This is the largest number of girls we've had at one of these." The Quivira Council includes Pampa, Memphis, McLean, Clarendon, Skellytown, Wheeler, Canadian and Miami. There were 223 girls from Pampa.

Supporting Newman at the camp were Celia Fowler, executive director of the council, and Margaret Fowler, field director for the council. Twenty Brownie leaders and 47 Brownie mothers participated.

The day's activities began with an opening flag ceremony followed by songs and games. At noon the girls ate picnic lunches then marched a quarter mile to the Canadian River to wade in the ankle deep water and play in the sand. Relay races and games there were followed by a closing flag ceremony at 3:30 p.m.

Camp Mel Davis is a 15-acre plot on the Canadian River operated as a Girl Scout Camp for the last 30 years. Brownies conduct council functions there three times each year.

Dallas Mayor Moonlights As Radio Sportscaster

DALLAS (UPI) — Mayor Wes Wise, whose financial problems have not been helped by the meager $50 a week salary he receives as chief executive of the eighth largest city in the United States, is moonlighting as a radio sportscaster.

"The job doesn't interfere with my duties as mayor," Wise said. "And let's face it, I can use the money."

Wise, a radio-television sports director for several area stations before entering politics, opened his live morning sports talk show a week ago today and "I'm already right at home with it."

"I've had a long background in radio reporting and I always found it quite relaxing. It's the same way now. There's no way I could consider sports broadcasting a burden."

Burden or not, the popular mayor needed the job.

Besides his city salary, Wise makes about $22,000 a year as a vice president of the World Trade Center. But Wise is deeply in debt — and he readily admits it.

Last year Wise and a former business partner were ordered to pay off a $30,000 court judgment rendered against him for nonpayment of a $25,000 loan they secured in an unsuccessful business venture. The creditors claim they have not received "one nickel" toward that judgment.

Wise reportedly is interested in running for higher office next year — Congress is the most often mentioned — and needs to retire the debt to clear the way for him to begin political fund raising.

"I'm certainly looking at a possible race. I'll admit that," he said, "but the whole purpose of taking this job was to repay my debts — all of them — and not just one especially publicized one."

The mayor's new job requires that he be an early riser. His first of four daily 10-minute live sportscasts begins about 6:30 a.m.

"He gets his own shows up five days a week and he works up his own scripts and material. He can do most anything he wants on the shows including interviews," KVIL station manager Dave Spence said.

"We approached him earlier this year with an open ended contract — no specific contract, just a gentlemen's agreement," he said. "We think — we hope — that the mayor will increase our ratings. He's as popular as any mayor is going to be as witnessed by his landslide in the last election."

"It should help us a great deal. And if it also helps him with his financial problems, all the better."

Neither the station nor the mayor will say what Wise's salary is, but Wise has told associates he expects his debts can be paid off by the end of the year, about the same time he is expected to announce his future political plans.

"I'm not the first mayor, nor probably the last, to go on the radio or television while he was in office," Wise said. "Pete Flaherty, the mayor of Pittsburgh, is on the air too, and as a disc jockey I hear."

Wise is not even the first mayor in Texas to become a regular-broadcast personality. Tom Vandergriff, the mayor of the Dallas suburb of Arlington, is the color commentator — unpaid, however — of all televised Texas Rangers baseball games.

"I love sports broadcasting and I really missed it when I went into politics," Wise said. "I missed the excitement of the buildup of the really big games. I enjoyed commenting on them and it added another dimension to the enjoyment of the sport."

And for criticism, there has been none.

Although the mayor's job requires full-time work, past city fathers have felt the salary should be minimal so, as one former mayor said, "the mayor serves in the interest of the city and not out of self-interest."

"The mayor's office has been a plaything for the wealth men of Dallas," he said. "I am not independently wealthy, which usually is a pre-requisite for becoming mayor here. Very few people are willing to take the chance to go into debt as I have to become mayor of Dallas."

"Obviously some changes must come about and soon. There is a trend toward average — non-wealthy, that is — persons becoming mayors of their large cities, but that is not the case in Dallas and is unlikely to be the case until the mayor's wage scale is brought up to a more realistic level."

"I have said countless times that as soon as I am out of office, I will speak out strongly on that matter."

"And I have a lot to say."

She Finds Prejudices Against Soviet Women

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union says it has put women on an equal basis with men, but feminist Karen DeCrow said today she finds no understanding here of Western-style women's liberation.

Ms. DeCrow, President of the National Organization for Women in the United States, said she finds the "same prejudices here that she is battling at home."

Ms. DeCrow is in Moscow to attend the International Conference of Young Women, organized by the Young Communist League and the Soviet Youth Committee to mark International Women's Year.

In a message to the 400 delegates at the opening session today, Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev said the younger generation of women is engaged in a battle "against exploitation..." and against the discrimination of women that continues in many countries.

Ms. DeCrow said something like her own organization would never get off the ground here.

"After a week in the Soviet Union, I cannot begin to imagine anything like a Civil Liberties Union here," she said.

A non-Communist herself, the 37-year-old Ms. DeCrow said she does not know why she was invited. She said she jumped at the opportunity to question representatives of Soviet women's organizations about the status of women in this country.

But she said since arriving last week "I haven't spoken to anyone I wasn't supposed to speak to and I suspect I'm not always getting straight answers."

She said that although most Soviet women hold jobs and are well integrated into the economy, prejudices which her organization NOW is battling in the United States are upheld even by women's organizations here.

She said one official told her that women are banned from certain jobs and sports because they have weaker constitutions and because they have menstrual periods.

"That nearly knocked me over," Ms. DeCrow said. "We are trying to get rid of all distinctions between men and women but it's the opposite here."

Boston's Carbo Not Bitter At Sparky

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
CINCINNATI (UPI) — Sometimes it's difficult for one man to go up and tell another he made a terrible mistake, that he developed such an intense dislike for him it was almost a loathing, but with the passing of time he had grown much smarter so that where once there was this hate in his heart, now there was something else instead, something approaching love.

Bernie Carbo, one of the Boston outfielders in this World Series, wanted to find some way of expressing his feelings to Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, a man who had been a "second father" to him for almost 10 years, only he didn't know how to go about it.

maudlin or phony. He wanted it to come out purely the way he felt inside.
Carbo played for Anderson in the Florida Instructional League, with Asheville in the Southern League and with the Reds for more than two years, and it always seemed to him Anderson worked him harder and way on his back more than anyone else. Anderson worked him so hard and so long sometimes, Carbo's whole body ached and throbbled, and frequently his hands bled from continuous hours of gripping the bat.

"God, how I hated that man," says Bernie Carbo, looking back. "He was always on to me for something or other. Look at your sideburns. They're getting too long," he'd say. Or maybe it would be my hair, or my clothing. It was as if he was my father and I was his son. Sometimes I felt if I did something wrong, he was gonna take away my license and I wouldn't be able to have the car anymore.

That's how it was with him and me in the minors from the time I first met him in 1967, and when he took over the Reds in 1970, he brought me up from Indianapolis and it was the same thing all over again. He was always on me."

From a baseball standpoint, Anderson employed Carbo perfectly in 1970. Carbo batted .310, driving in 63 runs and hitting 21 homers to wind up National League Rookie of the Year.

The following spring, Carbo held out. When he finally did report, he didn't play as much as the year before. Nor did he have anywhere near as good a season, taling off sharply to .219, only 20 RBIs and five homers.

"I couldn't see myself sitting on the bench even though I wasn't hitting," says the 27-year-old Carbo. "I didn't look at it from his side at all, only mine. Just me, me, me. I cursed him and said things to him I shouldn't have. I forgot he had traded Alex Johnson more or less to give me the job. It got to the point where I didn't have any use for him anymore, and felt he was harder on me than anyone else."

Carbo was traded to St. Louis in May of 1972 for Joe Hague and the Cardinals sent him to the Red Sox at the end of 1973 along with Rick Wise in the Reggie Smith deal.

"I'm a father myself now and I've gotten much smarter," says Bernie Carbo. "I can see nobody else cared for me the way Sparky Anderson did. He actually made me a big league ballplayer. He's the one responsible for me being here right now. I think I've done this man wrong. I honestly used to hate him, but now I have a feeling for him that's like, well, I guess you'd call it love. I wish I could just go up to him and tell him I'm sorry for the way I acted the past few years. I only wish there was some way I could tell him."

The day before the World Series opened, after both teams had finished their workouts at Fenway Park, Bernie Carbo approached the Reds' manager out in right field and asked if he could talk to him a few minutes. Anderson said sure, and the two of them, walked toward a bench used by the groundskeepers and sat down on it.

"I've had something on my mind I'd like to tell you," Bernie Carbo began. "You once said to me, 'Bernardo, you think I'm always picking on you. Some day you're gonna play for someone else and you're gonna see that I care about you. I care what happens to you now and later in your life.'"

Bernie Carbo paused a moment before continuing.

"I think I've grown up now," he went on. "I was immature then and didn't understand what you meant. Now I do, and want to thank you for everything you've done for me."

The Reds' manager listened silently. "Let me tell you something now," he replied. "You played for me when I was still immature. I also have to admit to you I think I've grown up. I appreciate what you've told me, Bernie, but I want you to know we all have faults. As soon as we realize that, we become what is commonly known in our society as a man."

Sparky Anderson and Bernie Carbo shook hands. They got up from the bench and began walking in. Both looked straight ahead so each wouldn't see the mist in the other's eyes.

Reds Hosting Play

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Gary Nolan and Rick Wise, a pair of right-handers, draw the starting assignments for tonight's game when Cincinnati and Boston meet to break a one-game tie in game three of the World Series.

Nolan, given up for lost by the Reds after two seasons of almost no activity because of a bone spur in his pitching shoulder, earned his starting nod with a 15-9 record and a 3.16 earned run average as the National League's surprise pitcher of 1975.

Wise, an ex-National Leaguer, missed nearly all the 1974 season after coming to the Red Sox but had a 19-12 record for the Sox this year.

"I'd be lying if I told you we were counting on Gary Nolan this year," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "When we went to spring training in February, he wasn't even listed on my 12-man pitching prospectus."

Nolan was stricken by a mysterious shoulder pain when he tried to throw out Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates on a routine grounder in 1972. He could not convince anyone he was really hurt.

Only after Dr. Robert Kerlan operated was the bone spur discovered, and it still took years of alternated rest and rehabilitation for Nolan to come back.

"There was a time," said Nolan, "back in 1974 when I really began to think the cards were against my having a long career. I wasn't to the point where I was beating my kids, but it was hard to joke around like I do knowing the joke was on me."

Similariy, Wise, who threw his shoulder out pitching on a cold and rainy April day in the 1974 season, had his doubts about making it back.

"I had never had an injury to my arm in my 10 years in the majors," Wise said. "and there's always that prospect running through your head that you're never going to play again."

Wise had pitched a no-hitter against the Reds in 1971 and a one-hitter two years later.

To maximize his team's speed, Anderson moved Ken Griffey, one of his fastest players, from seventh to the number two spot, while dropping Morgan to third.

"It gives us more speed at the top of the order," Anderson said.

"You have to be aware of Griffey's stealing and the pitchers had better be throwing fastballs or they're in trouble."

The Reds won 64 games at home this year plus two playoff wins against the Pirates. That could make Sunday's ninth inning 3-2 loss to Cincinnati loom even larger for the Red Sox in these next three games at Riverfront.

Starting District Play

Among the Harvesters who'll be in action Friday against Amarillo Caprock are offensive tackle Jim Crocker and split end Jerry Rhoades. Pampa will try to rebound off a 14-0 loss to Lubbock Monterey and open district play as it did last season, by whipping the Longhorns, who are favored in 3-AAAA. (Pampa News photo)

Porkers Next for UT

By United Press International
The Texas Longhorns are disappointed with their loss to second ranked Oklahoma and the bruised hurt more because of it. But coach Darrell Royal says there is no time to mull over the loss — Arkansas is ready for its turn.

Oklahoma wrestled a 24-17 victory over Texas last weekend in a match that drained the Longhorns physically and emotionally. Arkansas pounded defending Southwest Conference champion Baylor 41-3, a victory Royal said helped prepare the Razorbacks for the game at Fayetteville.

"We've got a tremendous problem on our hands," Royal said Monday. "We gave a maximum effort against Oklahoma and fell short. We're bruised and disappointed, and we've got to get ready to play a team that just came off a sparkling win.

"They're in the best psychological position they've been in a number of years."

Texas A&M, undefeated and ranked fifth, meets winless Texas Christian and Southern Methodist plays Rice in other SWC games. Houston is at Miami (Fla.) and Texas Tech is at Arizona. Baylor is off.

Texas, 4-1, lost its fifth straight game to Oklahoma but Royal was proud of his team.

"Sure the defeat is bitter and disappointing, but I can truly say I'm proud of them," Royal said. "They fought tooth and nail. It was one hard fought football game."

Royal said quarterback Marty Akins, fullback Earl Campbell and tackle Bob Simmons played exceptionally well.

"I thought the performance of Akins had to be considered outstanding," Royal said. "He just finally ran out of gas and by the end of the game he just wore down to a frazzle."

"But it was his execution and Simmons blocking that partially neutralized Leroy Selmon and allowed us to make some yards. I'm not saying we took a lot of liberties with Selmon — nobody does that."

Coach Frank Broyles was excited by Arkansas' domination of Baylor.

"We had the best execution offensively and defensively we've had all year," he said. "Certainly this will build our confidence. But it will take more than confidence to handle Texas Saturday."

Arkansas placekicker Steve Little, blocked unconscious on a kickoff, pinched a neck nerve, doctors said. He was questionable for the regionally televised Texas game. Little was hit by Ronnie Lee, a 6-3, 248 pound freshman who lined up five yards offside. The block upset Broyles, but he said it was legal.

"The whole thing was that he was offside," Broyles said.
Baylor coach Grant Teaff felt the sting of the Arkansas loss and said so.

"I was sorely disappointed in our showing Saturday night," he said. "For the first time since I have been at Baylor University I feel that I owe an apology to our fans for what they saw."

Baylor has lost 16 fumbles this year and Teaff said it hurts.

"You cannot have this kind of breakdown and win football games," he said.

A&M coach Emory Bellard said his Aggies cannot be complacent about winless TCU.

"We have no reason to be because coach (Jim) Shofner has his TCU team playing better and better each week," Bellard said. "They played both Arkansas and SMU close, tough games and could have won either."

Defensive back Dennis McGehee of TCU will miss Saturday's game because of strained knee ligaments.

Buckeyes Keep Spot In UPI Grid Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State is still the overwhelming choice of the UPI Board of Coaches with 34 first place votes of the 42 cast but second ranked Oklahoma narrowed the gap somewhat with their hard-fought victory over arch-rival Texas.

The Buckeyes rolled over winless Iowa, 49-0, Saturday to improve their season mark to 5-0. Despite their impressive victory over the Hawkeyes, Ohio State lost three of its 37 first place votes a week ago to Oklahoma after the Sooners defeated Texas, 24-17, in a brutalizing game.

Ohio State dominated the UPI poll with a total of 413 points, followed by Oklahoma with five first place votes and 372 points. Except for the slight reshuffling among the bottom teams, the top 10 remained virtually as it was last week.

Southern California, with two first-place votes, again was third, and Nebraska again was fourth. Texas A&M, which picked up the other first-place vote, climbed from sixth to fifth.

Alabama continued its climb back among the leaders, after losing its season opener to Missouri, and moved up a notch from last week to sixth. Michigan and Penn State also moved up one spot to seventh and eighth, respectively.

Texas, which was fifth last week, dropped to ninth. Missouri, which made the biggest gain of the week, jumped from 18th to 10th after demolishing last week's 10th-rated team, Oklahoma State, 41-14.

The UPI Board of Coaches top 20 college football teams with won-lost records and first place votes in parentheses.

Redskins Cut Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

George Allen, a man of caution, gambled on a rookie and a fake field goal and his Washington Redskins raked in a three-touchdown jackpot worth a 27-17 nationally televised victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night.

Mike Thomas, a fifth round draft choice, was used by Allen, who prefers veterans, and responded with 100 yards rushing and two touchdowns in less than three quarters of action.

In the third period and the score tied 10-10, Allen agreed to forego a Mark Moseley field goal effort from the 37 and the result was a 30-yard touchdown pass from ball holder Joe Theismann to John Pergine, a reserve linebacker who goes in as a blocking end for the kicking unit.

'Middle Class Fed Up' Wallace

LONDON (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace swept under Big Ben and into the historic Parliament complex today to meet Conservative opposition leader Margaret Thatcher.

A three-car convoy, with Wallace in a silver limousine, drove through New Palace Yard as the hands of the big clock showed 11:40 a.m. under gray skies that carried the chill of winter to the British capital.

Aides lifted Wallace from the car into his wheelchair and, after he bade his wife, Cornelia, and their three children goodbye, pushed him into the building and through the ornate corridors to Mrs. Thatcher's office.

Mrs. Wallace and the children—daughter Lee, 14, and sons Jim, 13, and Josh, 11—went on a sightseeing tour to Westminster Abbey, the houses of Parliament and the Tower of London, the city's No. 1 tourist attraction.

It was the second day of Wallace's first European tour, a 13-day visit designed to broaden not only his foreign policy background but also his voter appeal for the 1976 Presidential campaign. He is a Democratic hopeful.

The governor was scheduled to go to Brussels later in the day after a meeting with British industrialists interested in investing in Alabama.

Mrs. Thatcher, 50 years old on Monday, is the first woman political party leader in Britain and therefore the first woman to have a chance to be prime minister. Wallace met Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson on Monday.

During his two-day stay in Britain, Wallace has striven to present himself as the guardian of America's middle class from too much government and, therefore, excessive taxation and federal spending.

He and Mrs. Thatcher, during their 30-minute meeting, found common ground on these issues.

Wallace appeared on British television to set forth his views.

"We have hundreds of thousands of civil servants telling people how to run their unions, how to run their businesses and their children, and the American people, especially the middle class, are fed up," he said.

He made his comments to British television Monday on the first day of a 50,000-mile trip apparently aimed at picking up international credentials for his unofficial campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wallace's theme of protecting the middle class is similar to the position of Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, the British Conservative party leader meeting him today.

Wallace, confined to a wheelchair, appeared to withstand the rigors of being led around London—surrounded by secret service men—during his tight schedule of meetings.

"My health is all right," he said. "Not a thing wrong with me except that I am paralyzed."

Two Economists Share Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — American economist Tjalling C. Koopmans and Leonid Kantorovich of the Soviet Union today shared the 1975 Nobel Prize in economics for their study into supply and demand of the world's resources.

Kantorovich, 63, is the second controversial Russian to win a Nobel prize this year. Last Thursday, leading Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov won the Nobel Peace prize.

Koopmans, 65, is a professor at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., and Kantorovich is a professor at the Siberian Department of the Soviet Academy of Sciences at Novosibirsk.

Koopmans, reached at his home in Hamden, Conn., expressed "honor and delight."

"It is a great honor," he said. "I'm delighted to be combined with professor Kantorovich, whom I've met on several occasions in 1965 and 1970 in the Soviet Union," he said.

Prof. Lars Werin of the Swedish Academy of Sciences, which announced the $143,000 award, said Kantorovich "is not very popular in the Soviet Union."

With his theory, he is criticizing the Soviet system and is going against Soviet principles," Werin said.

The two economists were awarded the prize for "contributions to the theory of optimum allocation of resources," the academy said.

The academy said Koopmans had developed the so-called "activity analysis," a theory which interprets the relationship between input and output of production processes and the calculation of prices.

Kantorovich became a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences in 1964 and holds three orders of Lenin, including the Lenin Prize.

He has worked on problems of the Socialist economy, price formation, the theory of rent efficiency and on capital investment.

The academy said that although the economists worked independently, both had "developed methods for the analysis of the classical problem of economics as regards to the optimum allocation of scarce resources."

"Prof. Leonid Kantorovich and Tjalling Koopmans, largely independent of one another, have renewed, generalized and developed methods for the analysis of the classical problem of economics," the academy said.

The award, presented by the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences in memory of Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, carries a cash award of $143,000.

The economics prize was established in 1968 by the Central Bank of Sweden as a tribute to Nobel, who died Dec. 10, 1896.

The American economist was born in the Netherlands and received a Ph.D. in economics from Leiden University. He is a naturalized U.S. citizen.

He came to the United States in 1940 and joined the Yale faculty in 1955 following teaching assignments at New York University and the University of Chicago.

The Nobel Prize for medicine will be awarded Thursday and the Physics and Chemistry prizes on Friday. The prize for literature will be awarded next week.

Kansas Inmates End Protest

LANSING, Kan. (UPI) — About 100 inmates armed with baseball bats agreed to end a seven-hour protest at the Kansas State Penitentiary and returned to their cells today to await negotiations with state officials on the prisoners' complaints of harsh security.

"The inmates who staged a sit down strike at the Kansas State Penitentiary were all secured in their cells without any violence of any kind," said R.A. Atkins, assistant director for corrections.

Atkins said the inmates gave him a half-page list of complaints, but he refused to make the grievances public. He said Kansas Secretary of Corrections Robert Raines would meet with a group of inmates today to discuss the complaints.

Some of the prisoners held baseball bats and golf clubs they seized from the exercise area where the protest began. But Atkins said none of the inmates threatened prison personnel.

When the protest ended, the inmates dropped their bats and clubs. Guards carrying nightsticks escorted the protesters back to their cells.

"No force was used," said Atkins. "We didn't even have a lot of hollering and screaming at each other."

The inmates started their protest Monday night by sitting down in the prison yard.

Kansas Inmates End Protest

Raines said about 100 of the 700 inmates at the prison were participating in the protest, and the others were locked in their cells.

Prison Director Raymond Maynard talked with the prisoners about their complaints, which apparently centered on tighter security at the northeast Kansas facility following the stabbing of a guard Saturday, and the closing of a hobby shop Monday after drugs were found hidden in it.

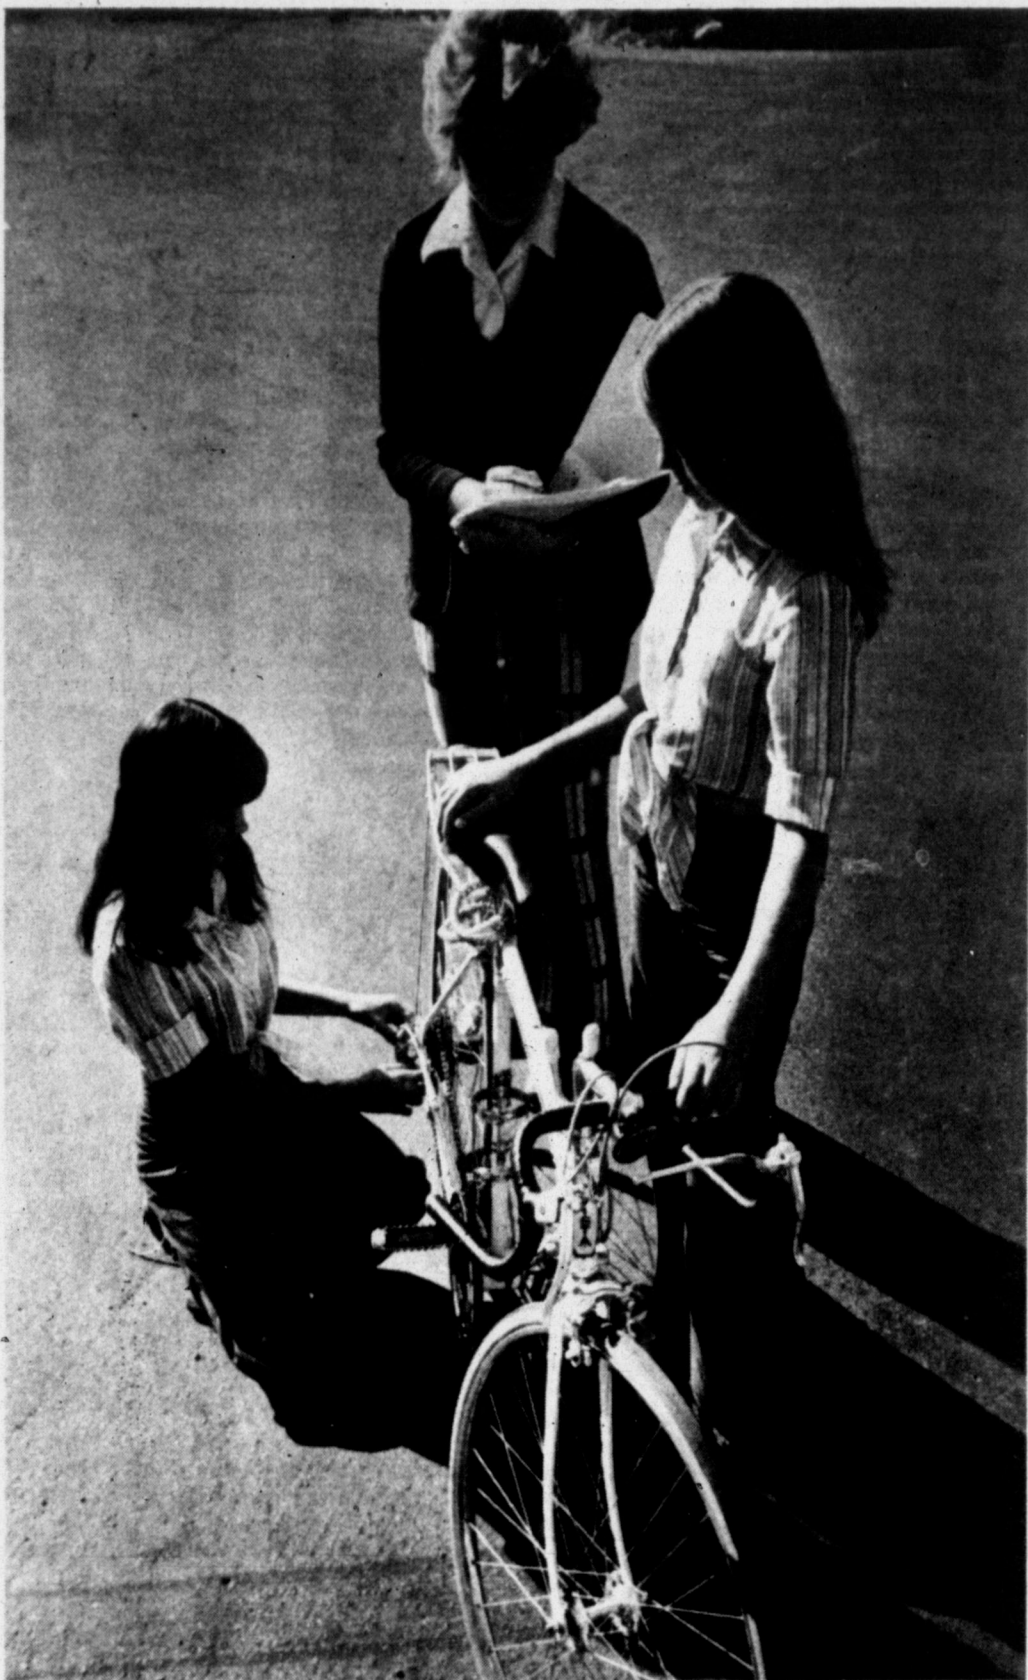

"At this point there's no confrontation on either side, no destruction of property. I'm assuming the inmates will remain there through the night and hopefully they will return their cellblock at daybreak," said Dick Davis, deputy secretary of corrections in Topeka.

Police Report Items Stolen At Pampa Tent

Burglars entered Pampa Tent and Awning at 317 E. Brown and took $113.75 in merchandise, according to reports at the Pampa Police Department.

Melvin Clark said the missing items include a pair of insulated coveralls, two pair of mittens, one sleeping bag, a book of stamps, a flash light, a back pack and box of knives.

Entry was gained through the back door.

Ready for Ride

Mrs. John Tripplehorn, a Jayceeette, checks out Valisa Fellers, left, and Sandy Warner, a couple of Pampans who plan to pedal 30 miles Sunday in the annual Cancer Fund program sponsored by the Pampa Jaycees. The ride around the city will begin at 1 p.m. at Coronado Center and is open to anyone who can ride a bicycle. Entry forms are available at schools and persons interested in more information who need sponsors may contact Mr. and Mrs. Tripplehorn after 5 p.m., Mrs. Charles Milam, and Mrs. Benny Horton.

Panhandle Police Meet Set

The Panhandle Police Communications Association will open its fall meeting with a

'howdy' night at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The regular session will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Travelodge West, 2035 Paramount in Amarillo. Pampa dispatchers and officers are members of the association.

Program theme is "Communications is the Heart of Law Enforcement." Speakers will include Major

W.C. Bell of the Department of Public Safety in Lubbock, Major Carl Gray Jr. of the Department of Public Safety in Topeka, Capt. Manke of the Arapaho County's Sheriff's Office in Colorado, and Dave Noble, Department of Public Safety in Austin, and Jack Martin of Austin.

Leota Pollard and Frances Lambright of the Pampa Police Department will attend.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, October 15

Your birthday today: Impulsive moves early in the year jolt you off your schedules into activities with which you haven't had much involvement before. Your intuition sharpens to meet generally strong competition as you learn to see people as they are. Relations of all kinds take on greater importance this year. Today's natives are restless and home-loving, need considerable time alone. Many are painters, poets, writers.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: This is a day for general caution but not for a defensive attitude. Dealings that concern money are tense. Just realize people are in contrary moods and have plans that do not include you.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Friends are off on a speculative venture; don't join in their schemes. The older generation upsets the status quo with their opinions. Follow your judgment without fanfare.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You have too many irons in the fire. Take time off from work to attend to home and family, or vice versa. Establish priorities in your heavy schedule. Don't overlook some matter of importance.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You move things around without giving much thought to possible repercussions. Those you love entertain unrealistic ideas about your capabilities or income. Take care while traveling.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Leave joint finances alone. Inspect home and work conditions for safety and take precautions before accidents happen. It's a great day to begin a diet and exercise program.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Newcomers have no grasp of the situation, and there's no time to educate them now. Simplicity is your goal. Drop details that haven't been given the green light.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Your own restlessness is stimulated by others. Becoming too temperamental or impulsive is hazardous in many ways. Avoid taking chances.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: If you're supposed to be in the driver's seat, be there early. If you're not, stay out of the situation and you avoid the pressure and the blame.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: The situation seems placid, as usual, but things aren't quite so tranquil. Everybody concerned is uptight. Stick with familiar rounds and well-known companions.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: While steady business is the ideal, you're unlikely to achieve it. Discussions that try to solve problems end up in confusion and may as well be skipped. Have cash ready to see you through.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: If you're asked for help, do only what is necessary, at your convenience. If you aren't asked, keep out of the problem since your advice isn't welcome.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Sudden questions and minor problems pop up. Nobody is in a sympathetic mood, so go it alone. Impetuous decisions miss the mark. Keep all travel to a minimum.

Deep Rock Service Station

Jay Fielding

About the middle of May, Jay Fielding retired from his duties as a highway patrolman with the Texas Department of Public Safety and purchased the Deep Rock Service Station at 1801 N. Hobart.

"I just wanted to go into business for myself," Fielding said.

He said that the move was a good one. "Business has been great since I've had the station," the former patrolman said.

Some of his customers Fielding met on a more unpleasant basis when he was wearing the uniform. He gave them citations for traffic violations. But it hasn't hurt business at all, he said, and many folks he ticketed have become good, regular customers.

Fielding said he offers both full-service and self-service gasoline pumps, oil, filters, grease, flat service, anti-freeze, ice, and the 32-ounce size Coke and Dr. Pepper.

"During winter we will offer service calls for stranded motorists," he said.

Fielding employs two others at the station and it is open from 7:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m.

TRAVEL INCREASE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer travel aftermarkets are expected to expand from an estimated $48.7 billion in 1976 to $78 billion by 1983.

A Frost & Sullivan, Inc., survey indicates the number of nonlocal travel miles will climb to 500 billion in 1983 from 370 billion miles in 1972. An increase in the number of nonlocal miles is not anticipated through 1976, however.

The greatest growth potential is projected in hotels-motels, eating places, trailer markets and retailing of sporting goods and camping equipment.

WIDOWS ABOUND
NEW YORK (UPI) — Widows outnumber widowers in the United States by a more than four to one margin, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

The institute also said that when a 20-year-old woman marries a 22-year-old man she can expect to outlive him by more than eight years.
