US-Russian Agreement For Wheat Not Concrete

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Thursday night the Soviet Union has agreed to buy a very substantial amount of U.S. grain over the next five years. But, he said, the deal is not concrete yet.

Agriculture Department sources said sales to the Soviets might reach 8 million tons a year, but added Ford was unlikely to lift his current embargo on grain shipments abroad until a final agreement is signed.

Ford told reporters the tentative deal calls for Russia to buy wheat and other U.S. grain at going market prices.

Members of an American negotiating team returned home from Moscow Thursday to report to Ford on negotiations with the Russians, who have been hit hard by a bad crop this year.

The USDA scheduled its latest crop report on an expected record U.S. harvest later today and indications were Ford would also base any embargo decision on the October report.

USDA sources say it would be "optimistic" to expect the embargo will be ended since the final details of a long-term grain purchasing agreement with the Soviets are still being worked out.

"I don't think you'll find a lifting of the embargo until you've a signed agreement," one official said.

Ford said during a Thursday night news conference the grain deal will cover a five-year period during which the Soviets will pledge to buy a "very substantial" amount of American grain each year at going market prices. There may also be a "possible option to buy more," he said.

Such an arrangement would put the Soviet grain purchases on a more stable basis and avoid the price fluctuations that have followed the sporadic and massive Soviet purchases of the past.

Agriculture Department sources said an annual purchase figure of 5 to 8 million tons of grain would be "in the ballpark."

Ford said the grain deal "will be a very good agreement" if the fine points can be worked out. He also said negotiations were progressing on a related deal that is hoped to bring Russian oil to the United States at "favorable prices" in exchange for U.S. grain.

But the President said it is "not firmly decided yet" whether the grain and oil deals will be tied together and said it was more likely the grain pact will be announced and negotiations will continue on oil.

The grain sales embargo has been in effect since August when the Soviets purchased 10 million tons of grain and indicated they wanted more.

Ford later extended the moratorium to mid-October.

"Prices have been soaring for the things insurance must pay for, and companies have had one of the worst years in their history as a result," Lee said.

"Unfortunately, this means that this announced rate change leaves us with inadequate rates right from the beginning."

Lee said inflation put more pressure on the insurance companies than the public realized.

"Every price index suggests that there is little relief ahead. I would be surprised if there isn't an availability problem — but we'll just have to wait and see."

The increases will average 6.9 per cent on annual premiums and 12.9 per cent on three-year policies, but Christie said the higher rates will not go into effect until Feb. 16, 1976.

Increases of 9.3 per cent on one-year policies and 23.5 per cent on three-year policies were requested by the firms. They also asked for a new surcharge for persons buying three-year policies. The board rejected the surcharge idea, but agreed to do away with long-time discounts on three-year fire and extended coverage insurance policies.

Christie said the new rates reflect inflationary costs companies must pay to repair or replace damaged property.

action — which was proposed by Rep. Joseph Karth, D-Minn. — if it is eventually approved by Congress.

U.S. House and Senate members would be required to attend a day's session to be eligible for a maximum deduction for that day of $44.

Only Rep. Richard Vander Veen, D-Mich., voiced dissent during the vote, saying, "I'm still having a hard time explaining my vote on the (congressional) pay raise."

Welfare Frauds Found

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Five cases of welfare fraud in Gray County were filed here in the county's clerk's office following an investigation into the local food stamp program.

John W. Warner, county attorney, filed the suits citing a total of $1,692.82 obtained illegally through aid to dependent children and in food stamps.

"And I expect others will be filed later," Warner said. He advised anyone who thinks he or she may have given any false information in order to obtain welfare to contact local officials and attempt to explain.

Warner said the charges were filed after following an investigation by a team from State Department of Public Welfare.

Most of the cases involve persons who have someone else living in the same household and failed to report it.

They are the first welfare fraud cases filed here and the names of the persons charged were not released since they are not in custody.

However, Wanda Carter, Gray County Clerk, said cases have been filed over the past few years as a result of fraud in obtaining unemployment benefits.

Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Texas Employment

Commission Pampa office, said the charges stem from claimants' failure to report money derived from work while drawing unemployment.

Penalty for welfare fraud, upon conviction, carries from six months to two years in jail and a $100 fine or both.

Information on the five petitions includes a woman charged with unlawfully and wilfully obtaining $374.88 in aid to dependent children by falsely reporting that she was unemployed.

One man illegally obtained $142.50 in food stamps by failing to report that his wife was working.

A woman who received $172.74 in aid for dependent children falsely reported that she and her children were the only members of her household.

The fourth person named in a complaint allegedly received $818 in food stamps from the State Department of Public Welfare by stating that she and her children were the only members of her household.

The fifth person charged reportedly received $184.74 in aid to dependent children by falsely reporting she and her children lived alone.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported earlier this month that the number of Texas families illegally receiving food stamps is "pretty small."

Priscilla Shaw, a USDA official, said the complexity of the food stamp program gives rise to a wide variety in the kinds of errors that occur. She said about half the errors were attributed to administration, and half to applicants.

She added that the rate of criminal fraud in Texas during the 1974 was less than 1 per cent.

During the period covered by the report, nationwide participation in the food stamp program grew by three million to a total of 17 million recipients.

Updated USDA figures show that in May, 1.2 million Texans were receiving food stamps, an increase of 92,000 over May of 1974.

Ford Asks Congress to Create $Billion Federal Corporation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress today to create a $100 billion government corporation to aid and financially underwrite the commercial development of unconventional energy sources.

Ford said the rapid development of such things as solar energy and synthetic fuel from coal and oil shale are vital to the achievement of U.S. energy independence, but might not be financed by traditional sources because of the high risks involved.

"America cannot permit the excessive delays associated with the commercialization of unconventional energy technologies," Ford said in a message to Congress which accompanied his proposed legislation.

"This legislation would create a new partnership between the private sector and the federal government to assure action on vital energy projects in the next decade," he said.

The new corporation, called the Energy Independence Authority, is the brainchild of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller who used similar techniques when he was governor of New York.

The corporation would be set up to operate for only 10 years. It would have authorized capital stocks of $25 billion and could issue loans totaling $75 billion at any one time to finance private industry in energy independence ventures.

White House officials said the organization could issue direct loans, loan guarantees and price guarantees to projects contributing to the nation's independence from foreign oil sources.

But, they said, it could only aid those projects "which would not be financed without government assistance."

"Risks are such in many of the projects necessary to develop domestic energy resources and reduce consumption that private capital markets will not provide necessary financing," Ford said.

"The uncertainties associated with new technologies inhibit the flow of capital."

Higher Rates Okayed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Fire, extended coverage and home-owner insurance rate increases averaging 6.9 per cent on annual premiums have been approved by the state, but an insurance official says the increases are not nearly enough.

The State Insurance Board Thursday approved the increases which will add about $25.6 million to insurance company receipts.

But Tom Lee, general manager of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, said the increases were based on data that was a year old and inflation already had made the statistics obsolete.

"Prices have been soaring for the things insurance must pay for, and companies have had one of the worst years in their history as a result," Lee said.

"Unfortunately, this means that this announced rate change leaves us with inadequate rates right from the beginning."

Lee said inflation put more pressure on the insurance companies than the public realized.

Probes Electronic Spys On American Citizens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watch it. Your electric toothbrush might be eavesdropping on you.

The possibility came out in a public hearing by the House Select Committee on Intelligence which is investigating electronic spying on American citizens.

Martin Kaiser, president of a Maryland corporation that specializes in manufacturing some 300 types of electronic surveillance and counter-measure equipment for U.S. intelligence and other agencies said, "I ship the goods. I have no idea what they do with it."

But he said he was intrigued at what he saw during a visit to Ft. Holabird, Md.

"I noticed that my equipment was being inserted into a number of imaginative objects, including but not limited to, mattresses, golf clubs and electric toothbrushes," he said.

Kaiser's said his clients included the CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency, Army Intelligence, the Air Force Office of Special Investigations, Drug Enforcement Agency, U.S. Postal Service, Secret Service, Air Task Force, Internal Revenue Service, Treasury, the FBI and numerous state and local law enforcement agencies.

Michael Hershman, former chief investigator for the National Wiretap Commission, said he was concerned about "the frequency of illegal wiretapping and bugging in the United States" despite the Federal Wiretap Act in 1968.

Anthony Zavala, former officer with the Houston police department, told the panel that between 1968 and 1972, "I was personally involved in about 35 illegal wiretaps. I would estimate that during the time I was there, the narcotics division conducted somewhere between 700 and 1,000 illegal wiretaps. It was the most effective law enforcement tool we had."

Zavala pleaded guilty to one count of illegal wiretapping in Houston and begins a three-year prison term next week.

President Says Americans Want Tax, Spending Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, stung by congressional criticism of his proposed $28 billion tax cut package, today labeled members of the Senate and House a "can't do Congress."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford believes Congress "is thinking of new excuses every day" for why it cannot go along with the plan to combine a tax cut with a $395 billion ceiling on the federal budget.

In his news conference Thursday night, Ford said Americans want reductions in their taxes and government spending and should throw congressmen out of office if they refuse to go along.

In his 19th full-scale news conference, Ford also said — A five-year agreement on grain sales to Russia is taking shape.

— He had full confidence in his campaign organization.

— He doesn't believe the federal government should bail out financially ailing cities.

— He doesn't think young people should smoke pot.

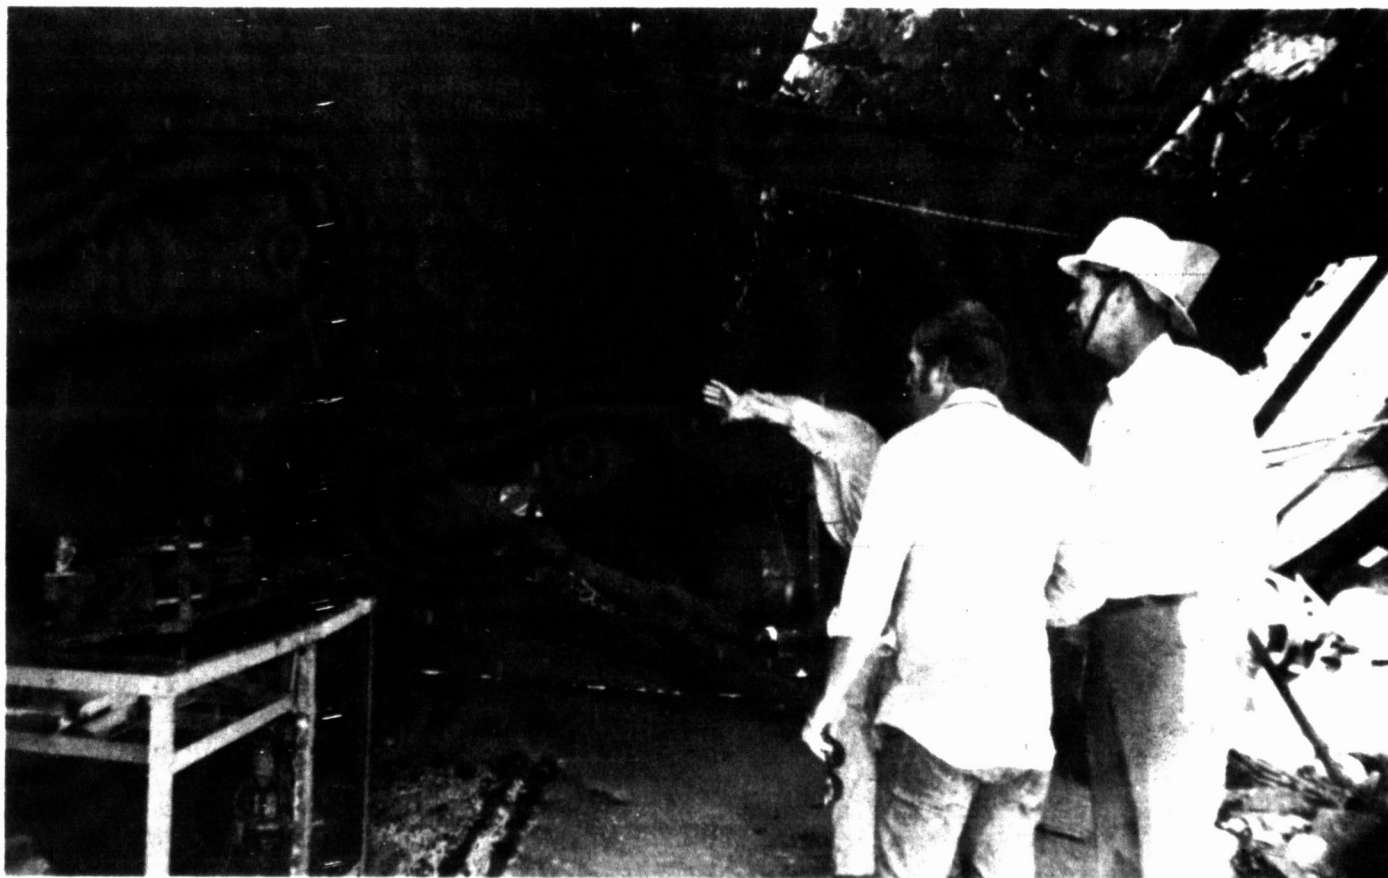

Today Ford meets with King Olav V of Norway, sees Portuguese Foreign Minister Mello Antunes, sends legislation to Congress for a $100 billion corporation to develop energy supplies, then flies to Detroit for another news conference and a Republican fundraising dinner.

He will return to the White House late tonight.

Ford said "the American people want a $28 billion tax cut and a $28 billion reduction in the growth of federal expenditures."

Congressional Democrats favor the tax cut but say it is "preposterous" to ask them to set a limit on next year's budget, which they haven't yet seen.

But Ford, his voice rising, said other Congresses have done it in 1967 and 1968, the American people believe in it and "I can't imagine Congress not having enough imagination to combine a spending limitation and a tax reduction. If they don't, there ought to be some changes up on Capitol Hill."

Crall To Reopen Plant

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Officials of Crall Products Inc., a local manufacturing plant that fire destroyed completely Monday, said today that most of the company's 300 employees will be back at work soon.

"We are in the process of renting two or three buildings," said George Oakes, comptroller. "We had to do something. We just couldn't sit here and let grass grow under our feet."

As for the number of days before operations begin, Oakes said he doesn't know. "But we are going along with our employees as best we can."

While Oakes described the fire as causing "confusion," he expressed appreciation to the community for its offers of help. "It has been tremendous," he said. "We have even had clerical help offer services free."

Damages from the fire were originally estimated at $250,000.

Oakes said he has not had time to make an accurate count.

"We will have to lift the building to get an accurate figure," he said.

He explained that underneath will be skeletons of the metal and other contents.

Crall Products Inc. went up in flames 30 minutes after the siren initiated National Fire Prevention Week Monday.

Finace Dyer, fire chief, described the fire as "one of the biggest in blaze — even though not in dollars."

Firemen were hampered by lack of water, and exploding gases within the facility.

Crall has been in business here for the past 30 years. The plant employs about 30 persons. Various oilfield supplies, sub-elevators, adjusters, visual couplings and all sizes of filter cones were manufactured there.

The payroll was estimated in excess of $250,000 annually. Owners are A.F. Hickman and J.W. Gordon Jr.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Try It, You'll Like It!

We do not know of a better cure for that sense of fear generated by a feeling of inadequacy — that "inferiority complex," if you will — than hard, conscious, protracted and productive work.

It's amazing how a difficult piece of work, well done, acts to buoy up the spirits. It's the knowledge of having really tried, along with the sense of accomplishment, that does it.

Next time you're down in the dumps, try it. You'll be pleasantly surprised at how well it works.

Pretty good "employment insurance," too.

But-by-But

Each "little" expedient compromise of principle makes the next one easier, until, finally, when all the "little" compromises are added up, they constitute the whole and there is nothing left of trade away in the name of "expediency."

No one in his right mind favors a totalitarian system on principle, because that would mean that the individual, himself, would become one of totalitarianism's victims. Everyone, on principle, favors the free society over the slave state.

Nevertheless, it is a totalitarian system we are in the process of getting and the reason is not hard to understand. Although favoring a market place based on the principle of voluntary exchange on principle, millions upon millions of individuals are willing to make a socialistic exception when, by calling on the coercion of the political state, they can see an expedient advantage in it for themselves.

The free and unconcoerced market is fine, but, but, but, is the refrain.

And it is those millions of "buts," added together and combined, rather than a general belief in socialism, itself, that is doing us in.

Percy and Eyeglasses

There's nothing wrong with Sen. Charlie Percy's vision when he takes a look at laws in 36 states that prohibit the advertising of eyeglasses.

The Illinois Republican has asked the Federal Trade Commission to annul the laws, which have the unfortunate effect of lifting eyeglass prices to artificial levels many pensioners cannot afford.

Many lower- and middle-income Americans, the senator charged, are forced because of the artificial prices to wear lenses that are scratched or broken.

Old people in Miami, he found, are sometimes asked to will their spectacles to friends who cannot afford their own.

There was a time when, citing such horrors, a politician would demagogically propose that taxpayers subsidize eyeglasses for those who cannot afford them. In fact, there are doubtless such politicians ready to make such idiotic proposals right now.

Senator Percy is to be saluted for seeing the relationship between bad laws and bad prices; he is correct in calling for the repeal of those laws in lieu of more government activity.

Senator Percy has always wanted to be a trendsetter. If we're lucky, other politicians will want to call for repeal of other artificial price levels.

Nation's Press One Worse

(Wall Street Journal)

However bad an energy program the President comes up with, the congressional Democrats can be counted on to do him one worse. So on the heels of the President's $100 billion energy bank, the House has passed a bill ordering the oil companies to (1) reduce prices and (2) reduce production.

Congress thinks gasoline consumption is too high, and its solution is to fine the oil companies if they sell too much. But it also thinks crude oil prices are too high, so it will fine the oil companies if they charge too much. Of course, lower prices will increase demand. If the price is not allowed to move, there must be some other method of allocating the reduced supplies among the increased demand. In its wisdom, Congress does not instruct the oil companies about this detail.

Now of course, the bill is not serious but frivolous, as the addition of a rider banning school busing shows. Congress often tries to avoid facing serious issues by playing King Canute, or trying to repeal the law of gravity. But seen coolly in terms of public policy, the bill does make a clear decision.

To wit, the House has voted that gasoline supplies should be allocated not by prices but by lines at gasoline stations. We hope that during the next recess, the Representatives try that one out on their constituents.

More drivers than passenger autos

In 1974 there were 125.6 million licensed U.S. drivers, or nearly 59 per cent of the total population.

According to the Highway Users Federation, there were 135 million motor vehicles, including 105 million passenger cars, 25 million trucks and buses and 5 million motorcycles.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"I HEAR THE NEW CARS ARE SMALLER THIS YEAR."

Independence In Energy A Must for US

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

With the international oil cartel having hiked prices by 10 per cent, it is more important than ever for the United States to achieve energy independence. It is clear that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will raise prices again in the not too distant future.

President Ford's proposed $100 billion Energy Independence Authority is not the way to solve America's energy problems, however. This grandiose design is a great leap backward to Great Society era planning, when vast federal programs were designed to throw money at complex problems.

The Wall Street Journal, in a critical analysis of the Energy Independence Authority plan, said that the $100 billion will be spent on projects "too risky" for private enterprise, or in other words, "into the least promising energy alternatives." The Journal explained that government spending could reduce the cost of solar energy, but not enough to make it economical.

With the federal government pouring large sums into solar energy research and other unprofitable projects, billions of dollars would be withdrawn from capital markets. Industries with the capability of providing additional energy would be starved for the capital necessary to build new installations.

It is very unfortunate that President Ford has embraced the Energy Independence Authority concept, which is the brainchild of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his team of advisers. As the Journal noted, "In one swoop, he's embraced the principle of government preemption of the private sector, credit allocation, fiscal gimmickry, bigger bureaucracies and multi-billion dollar subsidies."

Americans can be sure that more government spending and more bureaucrats on the payroll won't result in energy independence for the United States. The free enterprise system can provide that independence however.

The United States has vast coal deposits, especially in the Western states. These aren't being fully developed because of pressure from governmental agencies and environmental extremists who oppose more extensive coal mining. Apparently they prefer that the U.S. submit to the economic blackmail of the oil cartel, and suffer further recession as a result of higher prices paid for imported fuel.

Hardly a day passes when someone in Congress isn't demanding new controls in the energy industries and new federal allocation rules for fuel which strike at free market operations.

A case in point is the Hollings-Dingell Emergency Natural Gas Act (S 2310 and H R 9464) which would extend federal price controls to the intrastate market and legislatively permit a rollback of current prices on new offshore natural gas. Such legislation does nothing to increase the supply of energy for homes and industry. It is completely counter-productive.

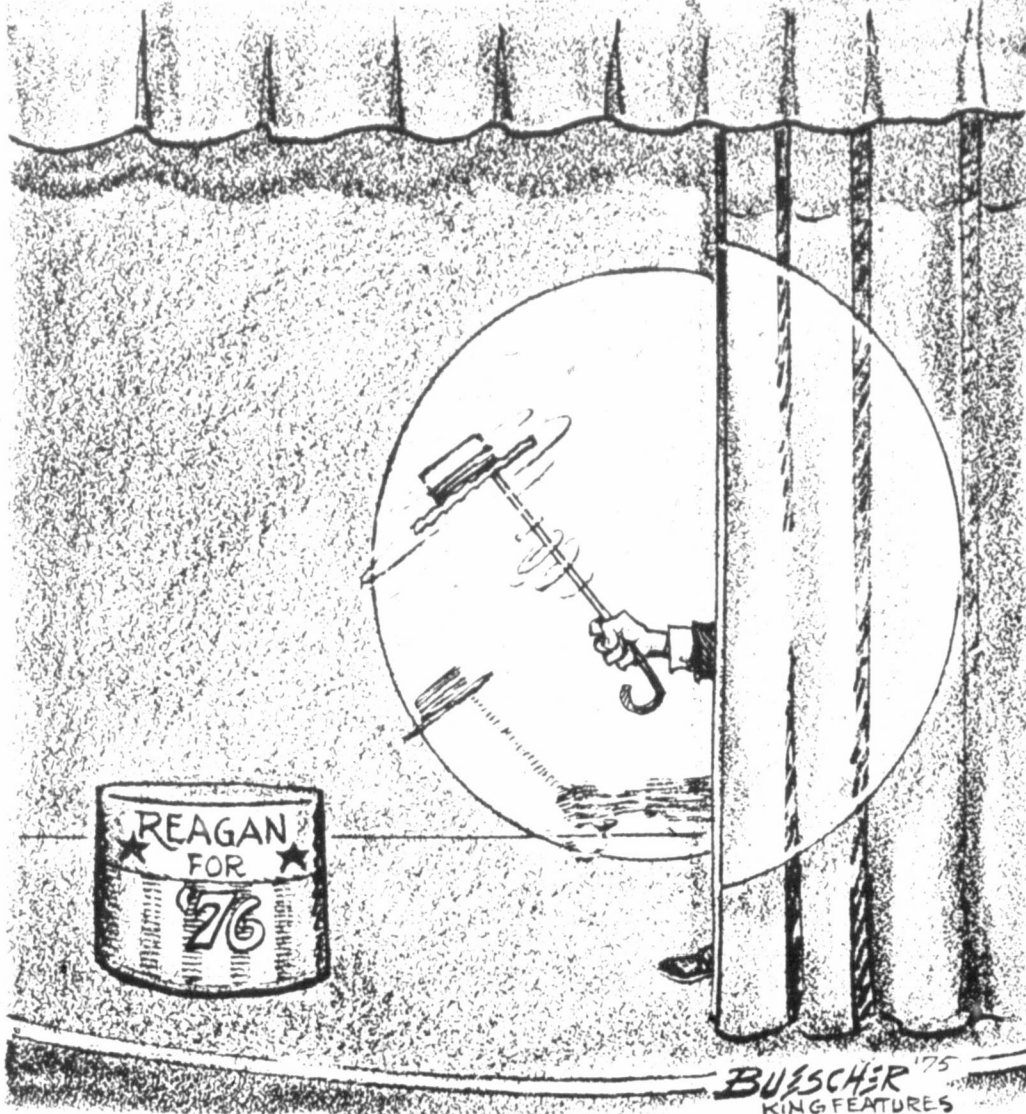

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said in a recent speech that "80 government agencies tell the petroleum industry where it can produce, when it can produce, what environmental rules it must obey, whom it must supply, how much it must supply and what prices it can charge." It is no wonder that the goal of energy independence is illusive.

New energy sources are expensive to develop. Great risks are involved in drilling for oil. The liberal-dominated Congress, however, seems determined to cripple the petroleum industry's ability to finance allowance for all but the smallest producers, and increased taxes on foreign operations.

At the same time, efforts are under way — such as the Jackson bill — to create a federal oil and gas corporation. The liberal element is bent on phased nationalization of the oil industry, despite the fact that nationalization has been an economic disaster in Great Britain and elsewhere.

The United States has the capability of achieving energy independence. But that capability is inherent in the traditional American free enterprise system. If that system is prevented from working, and if huge government entities absorb capital needed by private industry, the United States will never achieve energy independence. Instead, we will become increasingly vulnerable to the economic — and political — demands of the oil-producing countries of the Middle East, Africa and South America.

SHOW BUSINESS

HE HAS REASONS Wallace Plans European Trip

By WILLIAM RUSHER

VIENNA — The announcement by Alabama Governor George Wallace that he will leave shortly on a trip to London, Brussels, Rome, Bonn, West Berlin, Paris and Edinburgh stimulates various reflections that have little in common save, perhaps, their novelty.

In the first place, isn't Wallace partially paralyzed and hence in no shape for such a strenuous journey? That is what the rumor-mills would have us believe; yet here he is, preparing to take off on a tour of half a dozen European nations. If he can maintain, on this trip, the sort of pace that winded at least one able reporter who followed him around Los Angeles recently, that feat will go far toward putting to rest the notion that he is simply unfit for the national political grid.

That, indeed, is probably one of the chief reasons Wallace is making the journey. The Governor is known to feel that a sound grasp of American foreign policy is not directly related to the number of individual Alps he has personally viewed. He recently told a Yugoslavian reporter that he could learn more about Yugoslavia sitting right in Montgomery (and reading the appropriate books) than he could be viewing all the "trees, grass and concrete" in Belgrade — which is undoubtedly true.

Wallace's trips, then, is to be understood as largely a political demonstration. Unlike the typical New York candidate for public office, however (who traditionally makes a pre-campaign pilgrimage to "The Three I's": Ireland, Italy and Israel), Wallace is concentrating on the major nations of Western Europe. It is a sensible decision.

But a note of incongruity unmistakably remains: George Wallace — in Rome? What goes on here? What is the chief executive of a medium-sized, rather poor Deep Southern state doing in the Eternal City? Yes, we know he is a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, and that presidents must devote a fair share of their time to foreign affairs. If Wallace is truly serious about running for the presidency, busing may be a principal issue — even, in a symbolic sense, the major one — but the grave and growing problems of American foreign policy can scarcely be ignored. Yet even if he reads all about Yugoslavia, and personally visits six major European nations, who is George Wallace to concern himself with such arcane and altitudinous matters?

U.S. foreign policy has long been the private deer-park of a small group of Foreign Service professionals, academic specialists, multinational corporate types, and the journalists who serve them. Oh, from time to time it has been necessary to "go public" and rouse the yahoos — usually when, through mismanagement or bad luck, the lives of the yahoos' sons had to be risked or forfeited to right some delicate balance that had gotten out of kilter. But by and large American foreign policy has been little more than the secret vice of a specialist clique. George Wallace, I hardly need say, is not a member in good standing of that clique.

To protests based on this point — and they constitute the really serious objection to his European trip, i.e., its sheer presumptuousness — Wallace replies, mildly but with the slightest touch of asperity. Who are these "experts" and just how well have they done?

It is a piercingly effective answer. Our midget Metternichs have not exactly covered themselves with glory during the past decade. They mired a great, brave country in a miserable bog of a war in Vietnam, then denied it the strategy and weapons with which to win. They plunged into a dicey game of mutually-contradictory "detentes" with both the Soviet Union and Red China — and threw away in the process (probably because they had never heard of it) the whole moral dimension of the American world cause, which chiefly distinguishes it from that of the Communists. They are in fact today presiding, with their usual aplomb, over the final collapse of the West.

So good luck to George Wallace, as he sets out on his trip to Europe. He may not know as much as the "experts" — but then, he has far less to unlearn. And, in the field of courage alone, he has a lot to teach them. (Copyright, 1975, Universal Press Syndicate)

For Once, Columnist Agrees With A.C.L.U.

By MAX RAFFERTY

This just has to be the day, folks. The moon is blue. The lion has lain down with the lamb. And Max Rafferty is in agreement with the American Civil Liberties Union.

No, I'm not putting you on. After 30 years of battling that well-beeled collection of uptight legal eagles and professional bleeding-hearts, I've found one issue on which the ACLU and I see eye to eye. It's Pennsylvania's Educational Quality Assessment Program, a testing device which asks fifth, eighth- and eleventh-grade pupils questions like these:

"Do you enjoy school? Do you like your teachers? Do you get along with children of different races and religions? Do you smoke marijuana? Drink beer?"

There's more.

"How do your parents feel about your school? Do they think it's doing a good job? Do they support the school program?"

See what I mean? The ACLU calls this kind of "attitude testing" an invasion of privacy, damaging to children who are "sensitive about revealing their innermost thoughts." In rebuttal, the Pennsylvania Education Department says that measuring attitudes is as crucial as testing ability to read.

"You can't get away from the fact," says Robert Coldiron, director of the program, "that attitude has an influence on learning."

Now let me barge into the act right here.

This is the kind of deliriously non-sequitur logic that you hear so much of from members of the educational Establishment. It drives me right up the wall.

Of course "attitude has an influence on learning." But what the Quaker State is doing is trying to measure attitudes via standardized tests, and this is a horse of quite another color. Schoolchildren can be tested very nicely on such things as arithmetic, reading and spelling. Regardless of whether Junior comes from a happy home, mugs old ladies or is a compulsive kidder, 2 plus 2 continues to equal nothing but 4, and "embarrass" still has to be spelled with two Rs.

But when you start testing attitudes, you open a gigantic can of worms. Junior may not want to admit that his parents are slob, so his test response makes them sound like the Waltons. And Junior himself may hate Chicanos like a

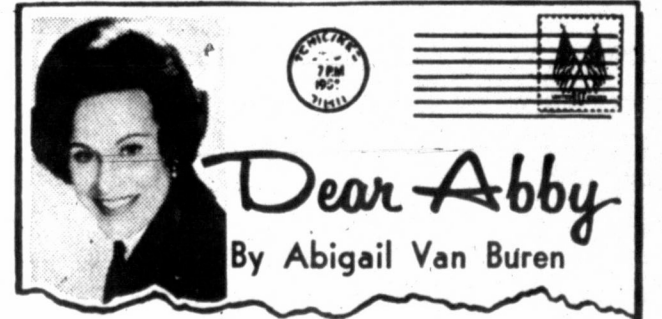

Potomac Fever

By JACK POSNER

The White House is worried about the state of the union. New York, Illinois and California want to secede.

Instead of worrying about protecting presidential candidates, the government should consider protecting us from them.

Ford refused to curtail his public appearances. No one is going to prevent him from playing golf.

Gals Forced To Do 'Look-busy' Work

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is probably a common one, but I haven't yet seen a solution to it in your column, so I thought I'd write.

There are four girls in our office. (It's an insurance agency.) At times we are very busy, but there are times when there is absolutely nothing to do.

In the past, when we had nothing else to do, we just sat around and talked, did needlework or read magazines — anything to keep from pulling our hair out from sheer boredom.

Now our bosses have instructed us to "look" busy with "insurance business," even though we aren't. In other words, we have to be typing something — even if it's personal correspondence. We can't read books or magazines, do needlepoint or manicure our nails.

I know this doesn't make one bit of sense, but those are our orders. Do you have any suggestions about how we can make our bosses see how ridiculous their orders are?

BORED FOURSOME

DEAR BORED: Better follow instructions or else your bosses might wise up to the probable fact that they've got more help than they really need.

DEAR ABBY: Add this one to your list of how a husband can tell if his wife is fooling around: if she suddenly starts to get pedicures and shaves her legs every day.

CAUGHT ON IN COLORADO

DEAR CAUGHT ON: And here's another tip for the wives on how to tell if hubby is fooling around: if he starts shaving twice a day and suddenly makes constant use of those breath-sweeteners. Also, if he "loses" more than two handkerchiefs a week, follow him!

DEAR ABBY: I own a nice little two-bedroom cottage, which I advertised for rent. A nice-looking young fellow answered the ad, saying he planned to be married soon. He liked the house and said he wanted his fiancée to look at it. (She lived in another town.) She arrived the next day, saw the house and liked it, and he signed a year's lease.

The next day, they bought some furniture and moved right in — together! Abby, they've been living there in my house for two months now, just like husband and wife, I presume.

This is a small town, and I have my reputation to think of. I go to church and am an Eastern Star, and I don't approve of couples living together before marriage.

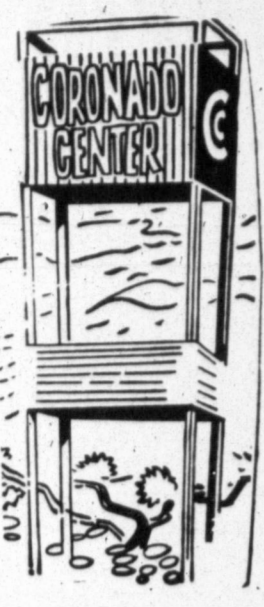

Yesterday, I asked her if they had set their wedding date, and she said, "Not yet."

What do I tell the neighbors when they ask me who the new couple is? And should I tell this young man and his fiancée that if they don't get married, they'll have to move?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: You'd better not tell them to move until you know what the law (and their lease) reads. There ARE two bedrooms in the house, so as long as they pay the rent on time, don't damage the property and don't disturb the neighbors, how can their personal sleeping arrangements harm you or anyone else?

Israel Signs Final Peace Agreement Paper

By United Press International
Israeli representatives today signed the final document of the interim peace agreement with Egypt.
The signing in Jerusalem followed U.S. Senate approval Thursday of legislation permitting the stationing of 200 American civilian technicians in the Sinai Desert to monitor the disengagement pact between the two countries.
The House of Representatives approved the proposal Wednesday.
The Israeli signing signified official implementation of the pact negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.
Government sources in Cairo expressed satisfaction with the Washington and Jerusalem steps completing the second interim agreement between Egypt and Israel.

"We are glad all the procedures have been completed," the sources said. "We look forward to smooth implementation."
In Jerusalem, a government official said Israeli cargoes will start moving through the Suez Canal later this month as provided in the pact.
Today's 10-minute signing ceremony was held at Government House, the U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem.
In other developments:

— Israeli government sources said Thursday Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has decided to postpone sending Israeli-bound cargo through the Suez Canal in order to ease Arab criticism of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for agreeing to the new peace accord.
— Syrian President Hafez Assad arrived unexpectedly in Moscow Thursday night for what the official Tass News Agency said would be a "short friendly visit."
— Israeli military sources said Thursday Syrian armored units have moved from the Iraqi border back to their bases between Damascus and the Golan Heights cease-fire line.

Tries To Discredit Sakharov

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union opened a campaign today to discredit dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, winner of the 1975 Nobel peace prize.
The official Tass news agency described Sakharov as "anti-Soviet" and opposed to the cause of lessening East-West tensions.
Tass quoted from an article appearing in the French Communist newspaper l'Humanite. The Soviets often use the technique of quoting others to express their own views.
The acerbic attack on Sakharov was the first official mention of the Peace Prize since the Norwegian Nobel committee made the announcement Thursday in Oslo.
Tass quoted the newspaper as saying the award was "undoubtedly a political gesture testifying to the clear wish to kindle the anti-Soviet campaign and impede the process of easing international tension."

Tass quoted l'Humanite as saying Sakharov "gave up of his own will in the seventies the continuation of most of his scientific research and completely devoted himself to drawing up and circulating manifestoes that are hostile to the Soviet system."
The article charged that Sakharov was a supporter of U.S. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and the Chilean military junta. In both cases it attempted to portray him as an opponent of detente.
After the prize was announced Thursday, Sakharov said he hoped the Kremlin did not view the award as a challenge to its position but as part of the process of detente.

He also said he hoped to go to Oslo Dec. 10 to receive the $143,000 prize in person, but said he would insist on an ironclad guarantee that he and his wife Yelena, now in Italy for eye treatment, would be allowed to return to the Soviet Union.
The 54-year-old scientist — the first Soviet citizen to win the peace prize — told reporters at an impromptu news conference Thursday he doesn't want the award to be considered a challenge to the Kremlin.
Sakharov, who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb before becoming a political dissident, said he hopes the Kremlin will let him go to Oslo in December to pick up the prize and $143,000 cash award.
In announcing the award Thursday, the Norwegian Nobel committee said Sakharov's "fearless effort in the cause of peace among mankind serves as a mighty inspiration to all true endeavors to promote peace."

Sakharov has been an outspoken critic of the Soviet system and a campaigner for political rights in his homeland.
He told reporters the award acknowledges "the merits of all who fight for human rights, for publicity, for freedom of conviction and especially for those who have paid the high price of personal freedom."
Sakharov said he hopes the award of the peace prize to a Soviet dissident "will not be used as a challenge" to Kremlin policy, but "will be viewed as part of the process of detente."

Western diplomats considered the selection of a leading Soviet dissident for the prestigious award a slap at the Soviet leadership, which had been pushing Finnish president Urho Kekkonen for the prize.
He said he hopes the award would "support the battle for human rights" and appealed for amnesty for Soviet political prisoners. The amnesty, he said, was now "nearer than before."
Among the first to congratulate Sakharov was fellow Soviet dissident Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who won the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature. Solzhenitsyn picked up his award last December after being expelled from the Soviet Union.

No Action on Mob Money

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — State officials, investigating possible Mafia financing of South Texas businesses, say they may not be able to act against the businesses, even if mob money is involved.
Assistant Attorney General Tim James confirmed an investigation had been conducted, but said even if reputed Louisiana underworld head Carlos Marcello was involved in Texas businesses, nothing could be done if the businesses were legitimate.

"Marcello usually is an invisible man in his property acquisitions," James said. "You won't find his name on any of the papers."
"It's not against the law to have a reputation as a Mafia boss. It's not an illegal act for Carlos Marcello or anybody else to come into Texas and buy property or buy companies or what have you."
Disclosure of the possible link came in an interview of Assistant U.S. Attorney John Smith of Brownsville by Westlaco television station KRGV.

TV. Smith said state investigators were studying the financing of Texas firms by the New Orleans businessman.
James, who heads the attorney general's organized crime task force, says Marcello's son, Joseph, was identified as one of three owners of the Pelican Tomato Co. in McAllen.
James said he had ordered the tomato plant closed four months ago and it is now in receivership, allegedly owing up to $500,000 in penalties and interest to the state.
"When we found Pelican Tomato of Louisiana down in McAllen, we sued them, enjoined them from doing business," James said. "They did not have state authority to do business."

James said his agents also checked alleged Mafia connections with construction on South Padre Island. The town of 600 permanent residents was incorporated three years ago and a number of luxury hotels, marinas and condominiums have been built there.
Asked if his agents uncovered any link between organized crime and the island's building boom, James said he could not comment but added that there is a continuing investigation through South Texas.
"They have reports that a group they consider to be organized crime out of New Orleans is doing things in these counties in an attempt to launder some of their money," he said.

Paul Harvey Talk Complete Sellout

A complete sellout of tickets for the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting Oct. 30 in M.K. Brown Auditorium was announced today by chamber officials.
E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, said the last of the 1,500 tickets were sold Thursday.
"We are sorry we do not have more tickets available to meet the demand," Wedgeworth said.
He added that a waiting list will be set up to dispose of any tickets that will become available from persons who for some reason will be unable to attend.
The speaker for the annual meeting, when officers for fiscal 1975-76 take over, will be Paul Harvey, nationally known newspaper columnist and radio commentator.
The new officers and ten directors recently elected and appointed will be inducted at a banquet for board members and their wives next Thursday night in Coronado Inn.

The installing officer will be Brac Biggers, president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce and regional manager of Southwestern Public Service Co.
Officers to be installed are Boyd Taylor, president; J.C. Roberts, vice president, and Arthur Aftergut, finance director.
Recently elected directors who will serve three-year terms are Dudley Steele, Bill Hite, Tim Hoiles, J.C. Roberts, Veri Hagaman, Dr. Dan Long and Jerry Holmes.
Three directors appointed by the new president to serve a one-year term are Clyde Carruth, Ken Plotner and Glen Turbeville.

Gunmen Battle Police in Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gunmen believed to be three escaped convicts shot and killed one policeman and wounded another today in a fierce battle near the Houston Ship Channel.
Police said two of the gunmen were wounded or killed but shots were still coming from the house.
The gunmen are believed to be three convicts who escaped from a Texas Department of Corrections facility at Sugar Land on Wednesday by threatening a guard with a pistol.
Police said one officer was shot and killed in the opening minutes of the battle but gunfire was too heavy to recover his body immediately. Another officer was wounded soon afterwards.
The three escapees were identified as Noel F. Smith, 29, Michael Robbins, 37, and Benjamin F. Windberry, 29. All three men were described by police as "armed and dangerous."

Scouts To Participate In Atomic Energy Confab

Many Pampa boy and girl scouts will be among the expected 1,000 Texas Panhandle scouts participating in a four-session Atomic Energy Merit Badge Seminar.
The program will be conducted on Saturday mornings beginning at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Other sessions will be Oct. 18, 25, and Nov. 1 at Amarillo High School in Amarillo.
The merit badge program is being offered through the joint efforts of P.R. Wagner, United States Energy Research Development Administration area manager; D.R. Dunham, plant manager for Mason and Hanger - Silas Mason Company, Inc. — the prime operating contractor for the Pantex Plant; and W.A. Sherman, division manager, Sandia Laboratories.
About 100 scientists, engineers and technicians are involved in planning and conducting the seminar. Adults from the scout councils participating will assist with the sessions and graduates of the 1969, 1971 and 1973

Police Report Dog Bite

A burglary, theft under $5 and a dog bite were reported Thursday to the Pampa Police Department.
Officers reported a burglary at the Crystal Lounge where someone took a hammer and broke into the coin operated machines.
A suspect took a $2.25 cent package of meat from a local grocer without paying. Charges of theft under $5 were filed.
A small child was bitten by a dog at 124 S. Faulkner. The dog will be kept under observation for 10 days.

Patty Receives Hate Mail

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorneys for Patricia Hearst say they are worried over her safety because of the hate mail she is receiving.
"I think there are those with rational thinking or otherwise who would like to harm her," said attorney Al Johnson Thursday. "I've seen evidence of that in her correspondence."
The hostile letters sent to Miss Hearst at her jail cell are another sign the public has turned against the 21-year-old newspaper heiress, said Johnson, an associate of F. Lee Bailey, who is heading the legal team.
"I think people have been offended by what they believe to be the facts," he said.

Thursday "I'm simply suggesting that what they believe to have been the facts may not have been and, in fact, were not."
As a result, he added, the defense has an obligation to keep the public advised about the case "because of the tremendous public resentment which has built up against her in this country."
Johnson also said he and Bailey have lined up their own investigators to look into Miss Hearst's kidnapping and subsequent conversion to radicalism and their own psychiatrists to examine her.
The psychiatrists will start their tests after three court-appointed psychiatrists finish studies of her mental capacity.

U.S. Attorney James Browning refused Thursday to move Miss Hearst to Los Angeles for arraignment on state charges until after the specialists complete their work. A federal court hearing on their report tentatively is scheduled Oct. 22.
In Sacramento — Federal Defender E. Richard Walker says he is disappointed that the U.S. Supreme Court refused to reduce the $350,000 bail for Lynette Fromme, accused of trying to kill President Ford.
Justice William O. Douglas denied Walker's appeal and virtually ended hope of Miss Fromme, acting as her own defense attorney, of being released from her isolation jail cell before the start of her trial Nov. 4.

It described "discipline and order" as the "basic condition of any and every politics and any and every government."
The attack on extremists came as rebellious Communist-backed soldiers occupied an artillery base outside the northern industrial city of Porto for the third day in a row.
The mutinous soldiers vowed Thursday to remain in the occupied base until anti-Communist commanders call off a crackdown against far-left troops.
Civilian supporters brought food and blankets to the rebels and massed in front of the entrance in an attempt to prevent loyalist troops from moving against the base.

Enters Weekend Fair Happy Hands Make Quilts

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

"I'm just an old Texas quilter," Mrs. Eula Baldwin will tell you with a grin as she points out the 11 quilts surrounding her.

But don't let her kid you. She only began quilting two years ago and she's handstitched each of the 11 quilts since then.

Mrs. Baldwin, 824 S. Banks, started quilting for a pastime when she retired. And she just can't seem to stop. She's quilted a quilt for each of her children and her grandchildren and is running out of family. But she quilts on.

Right now her projects is an appliqued tulip design and she plans to do the apple blossom next.

"I'm making something that will last from now on," Mrs. Baldwin says proudly. "I'm starting a family heritage."

She stitches a grandchild's name on the corner of each quilt... so they can have them when the time comes," Mrs. Baldwin says.

Two Baldwin quilts won prizes at the Tri State Fair in Amarillo in September.

Mrs. Baldwin's original bi-centennial design carries the embroidered names of each US president. She won a blue ribbon with her dresden plate quilt.

She's entering three quilts in the Quilt Fair this weekend in Coronado Inn and M.K. Brown Center. The Pampa Garden Club, Fine Arts Association, Gray County Bicentennial Commission and County Home Demonstration Council are presented a Quilt Fair, Arts and Crafts Festival and flower show.

The free event will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Baldwin, who quilts on a pair of saw horses rigged by her husband, pieced her dresden plate quilt in 1927 but "I just got in the mood to finish it this year," she laughs.

Her other quilts are gleaming stars, which Mrs. Baldwin says was the hardest because it had the most quilting, maple leaf, drunkard's path, lovers ring and star.

She picks a pattern out of books, tries the pattern and if she doesn't like it she picks another one. She'll make a pattern only if she enjoys stitching it.

Many of the fabric scraps she uses came from her sister-in-law in Waco, who works at a clothing factory and salvages pieces of material which are to be thrown away.

"I had to do something with them," Mrs. Baldwin says about the scraps sent to her. So she started making quilts from them. "She had such pretty scraps," the quilter adds.

What is Mrs. Baldwin's secret to maintaining the perseverance required by quilters?

"I never let up, I'm always working," she says with her usual laugh. "Only it isn't work, it's fun."

Stich in Times Keeps Her Busy

Mrs. E.A. Baldwin "just can't sit still" she says, so after she retired she began quilting quilts and now she can't quit. She holds the pattern she's working on now, but usually, the quilter likes to work on two designs at a time so if she gets tired of one she can sew on the other. Her quilts are completely hand sewn.

Create Own Garden Effects

Copley News Service

The end of summer doesn't have to mean the end of happy days in the garden.

Even if you live in an apartment or condominium, it is relatively easy to bring the garden inside for the winter and create your own green environment with plants.

In fact, the plants, if displayed properly, could become the focal point in a living room or den. This can be achieved by building a simple yet attractive structure against one wall just for the plants.

The materials are not too costly and can be found in local lumberyards or do-it-yourself home centers.

The directions may have to be altered for your needs, but here's one design for you to follow.

Place two 4x4 vertical posts 30 to 36 inches apart depending on the width of the room. At the ends, use two 2x4s to hold the posts in place.

Measure 18 inches from the end of the wall and place 2x8-foot boards at the floor and ceiling between the posts. If the floor is carpeted, cover the area below the plant display with vinyl to protect it from dampness.

The plants with saucers underneath to catch the water should then be displayed in an attractive arrangement. The space in between the plants can be filled with medium-sized pebbles or black polished rocks.

If you don't wish to alter the wall of an apartment, the structure can be installed by attaching angle irons to the back wall before it is covered with boards.

There are a number of furniture styles which enhance the greenhouse atmosphere. Anything from country and wicker furnishings to modern can be used.

For young couples furnishing their first apartment, wicker is a good choice. It isn't as costly as some furniture, yet represents a good investment. When the couple moves to a larger apartment or home, the wicker furniture can be used in a den or patio.

In a condominium which is fairly well lighted, walls could be painted dark green with white wood trim and ceiling. In this case, bright multicolored chintz window shades or Roman blinds would be a better choice for the windows than heavy drapery material.

Educators Society Gathers in Pampa

Six chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma, an international society of women educators, will convene Saturday in Pampa for the Alpha state regional meeting.

Beta Delta Chapter, with members from Pampa, Shamrock, Canadian, Miami, McLean and Wheeler, is the hostess chapter at First United Methodist Church.

Speaker and director for the meeting will be Cortez Dowlen, regional director. She will speak on "A Past to Remember: A Future to Mold" at a noon luncheon in Fellowship Hall.

A 8 a.m. breakfast at Coronado Inn will honor the presidents and vice presidents of regional chapters. They are Fay Watson, Beta Delta; Jean Chism, Gamma Theta with members in Berger and Stinnett; Zola Donald, Gamma Kappa from Clarendon; Lugenia Carter, Gamma Xi; Stratford, Dumas, Dalhart and Sunray; Bernice Back, Eta Alpha, Darouette, Follett, Spearman, Booker, Gruver and Perryton; and Marjorie Ewing, Theta Delta, Panhandle, Pampa, White Deer and Skellytown.

Each chapter will present a phase of the program. Sessions include How Does Your Committee Work?, Delta Kappa Gamma Hat, How Our Members Link Together in Supportive Fellowship, Developing Pride in Our Heritage and Golden Gift Fund.

Registration and coffee at 8 p.m. will be in the patio area at the church.

BSP Chapter Completes Rush With Sock Hop

Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi completed its fall rush with a 1950's Sock Hop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Chase. Those attending were clothing typical of the 1950's, including bobby sox, rolled up jeans or full skirts, and pony-tail or duck-bill hairstyles.

Nancy and Dwight Chase won the dance contest; Alyce Bridges was the outstanding "hoola-hooper"; Steve and Virginia Dewey made the most spectacular entrance, with a motorcycle and black leather jacket.

Members took pictures of themselves as they were in the 1950's.

Hostesses were Jan Ott, Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Bridges, and Andrea Wyatt.

Others attending the sock hop were Rochelle and Calvin Lacy, Dennis Wyatt, Cle and Harold Taylor, Jimmy Bridges, Bill Ott, Patsy and Danny Strawn, and Jo and Gary Keim. Guests were Marge and Ken Lemons.

Goodwill HD Welcomes Two

Mrs. A.P. Coombes, 1220 E. Fredrick, recently entertained the Goodwill Home Demonstration Club. Two new members, Mrs. Boyd Maule and Mrs. Jimmy Harper, were welcomed.

Those members present were Sydney Jackson, Helen Hogan, Laura Kilgore, Boots Barnett, Mary Johnson, Lettie Smith, Joe Maule, Jackie Harper, Sue Frazier and Laverne Coombes. Elaine Houston, county extension agent, gave the program on scarves.

Houston Tells HD Club How To Tie Scarf

"How to Tie a Scarf" was presented by Elaine Houston, Gray County Extension agent, during a recent meeting of the Top of Texas Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Bob Muncy.

Two members will attend the Rural Homemakers Day at the Villa Inn, Amarillo, on Oct. 23. Show and Tell Day is scheduled Oct. 27. This will also be a covered dish luncheon in conjunction with other Gray County clubs.

Cookbooks composed of recipes compiled by members are for sale at $2 each.

Light and Life

The designer of this room, Peg Walker, not only added plants to make the room summer year around, but removed drapes and dressed the window with sunlit yellow shades. Pulled down when it's sunny, they keep the room degrees cooler.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

When the story of our civilization is told, there will probably remain three questions of etiquette that time has never been able to answer.

1. Does she or doesn't she use a hair coloring?
2. Do you offer a lady a Tiparillo?
3. Do you ask a man in a leisure suit to take out the garbage?

The leisure suit (for those who have been "leisureing improperly dressed") is a no-wrinkle, two-piece slack and casual jacket, worn with a coordinated open-at-the-throat shirt with the cuffs turned up.

In the ads, the suits are always modeled by a big, broad-shouldered man with no stomach, an animal's tooth around his neck, and dark glasses that shade his entire face. He's the type who when he says he uses a baby powder after he showers, no one laughs.

For some reason, the leisure suit has captured the attention of men everywhere — even my husband, the conservative dresser. (He wears a necktie to open his mail, and considered zippers in trousers a fad until the U.S. Army issued them in World War II.)

He owns three leisure suits. "What are you going to do with three leisure suits?" I asked. "You're overdressed for tennis and underdressed for dinner."

"Good heavens, woman," he said, "don't you know what leisure means?" It's your time away from employment during which a person may indulge in rest and recreation. You burn around... or grub around as the kids say.

During the coming weeks I was to discover that the leisure suit had its limitations. You couldn't swim in it, play golf, picnic, row a boat, camp, swing in a hammock, play ball, tinker with the car, cut grass, fish, clean out a tackle box, paint, cook in it, shoot pool or ride a horse.

"If you can't play in it, you'll just have to wear it to work," I said.

"What! And get it soiled?"

Now that I've thought on it, I think the leisure suit has been one of the shrewdest con operations ever to be perpetrated on women. The leisure suit is the twilight zone of the fashion world. A man climbs into his leisure suit and he is "untouchable" by work or play.

As my husband said with that crooked little smile, "You women should get a leisure outfit that temporarily gets you some free time and rest."

"We have," I said. "It's called a hospital gown."

Baptist Women Announce World Prayer

Forthcoming events announced during the general meeting of the Baptist Women include the Baptist World Day of Prayer Nov. 3, a review of a foreign mission study book on Oct. 29, and a film to be shown here Wednesday Oct. 15 to 21.

Time changes for the current year meeting are officers council at 11:45 a.m.; lunch at 12:30 p.m. and the royal service program at 1 p.m.

The foreign mission study book, "Sick and Ye Visited Me" will be reviewed Oct. 29.

"The Hiding Place" will be shown at the Capri Theater.

Mrs. M.J. Porter directed the Royal Service program. The topic was "Japan." The prayer calendar was presented by Mrs. Ed Langford. Mrs. L.V. Hopp and Mrs. E.E. Shelhamer led the prayer.

the recent meeting of the Las Pampas Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution.

Hostesses for the meeting in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co. were Mrs. P.R. Britton and Mrs. John Skelly Jr.

Mrs. White and Mrs. Britton reported on the division meeting held recently in San Angelo. A request was made that each member contribute a book of green stamps to refurbish the DAR schools.

In reporting for the defense committee, Mrs. Skelly quoted Rep. John Asbrooke of Ohio who said not only Panama, but Columbia, Costa Rica and Venezuela, are demanding that we give the Panama Canal back to the Panamanians.

These countries, she said, suggested that this would be an appropriate way to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the United States. It would come in conjunction with the 150th anniversary of Independence declaration by Simon Bolivar, the region's foremost independence hero.

Many of the early settlers brought their favorite remedies when they came to this country and learned of new ones from the Indians.

Both are native Texans.

Bible Approach Urged In Foreign Investment

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service
NEW YORK — A biblical approach to international business operations is being urged by one of the largest Protestant denominations.

The United Church of Christ, long among those in the forefront of church campaigns against exploitation of underdeveloped countries by American business and industry, has issued a handbook on "The Role of the Transnational Business in Mass Economic Development." It notes that as of early this year more than half of direct investments abroad belongs to U.S. corporations.

The research was completed before the recent flurry of massive overseas investments by oil-producing nations but it did not take into account that Britain, Japan, West Germany, Switzerland and France also have heavy foreign investments.

Although sponsored by the United Church of Christ — made up of Congregational and Evangelical and Reformed congregations — the report was prepared by a group of volunteers representing a wide variety of religions and disciplines — the ministry, the law, philosophy, industry, government, labor and education. Among its members were Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., and William F. May, chairman of the board of the American Can Co.

Explaining its concern, the United Church noted that as an institutional investor, it is one of the American religious bodies that are officially committed "to the proposition that how the church's money makes money is just as truly an ethical issue as how the church spends the money it makes."

Dow To Talk Sunday About Giving Grace

The Rev. Norman D. Dow Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at 525 North Gray St., has chosen as the title of his Sunday sermon, "The Grace of Giving". Assisting Rev. Dow in the pulpit will be Wm. S. Dixon, ruling elder.

Minute for Mission speaker this week will be Don Lusher with a message about Genesis House.

Special music will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Green. Doris Goard, organist, will have Prelude, Offertory and Postlude selections. The choir is under the direction of Wanetta Hill.

The Women's Bible Study Group will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday, in the home of Frances Appleby at 1305 Charles. The session will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the West Room and choir rehearsal is at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

transnational companies investing in the lesser-developed nations tend to control some sectors of the economy of those nations by buying out local enterprises unable to compete.

The wages are usually found to be low, the labor unions weak, the tax and corporation laws advantageous. There is little apparent concern on the part of the governments about the possibility of overdependence on American capital.

In its conclusions the group called for an "intelligent grasp of the Christian faith" to protect individuals and help "to express the love of God and love of humanity in skillful work."

Quoting chapter and verse, the report turned to the Bible in "setting forth" religious perspectives on economic activity in relation to basic human needs," stating:

"The story of humankind which lies between the biblical beginning and end is of a species which misconceives the boundaries of its freedom, fails its missions, breaks covenants and misidentifies the manner of its salvation."

Acknowledging that no human institutions will bring salvation, the report says that they must be judged by their performance in helping people carry out their stewardship of the earth and its inhabitants.

An investment in Your Future
...ATTEND CHURCH

AFTER THE PARTY IS OVER

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

©Coleman Adv. Ser.

Have you ever felt like this little girl after a big, exciting day at the Fair, or a party? You know how you feel — excited, exhausted; but you feel good, too. Sometimes you just want to lie down and think about it. But like the little one in this picture you, also, are too tired to remove your party hat or your shoes.

Sometimes it is delightful just to lie down and think of something good and wonderful and happy. It is good just to be still and sort of day-dream about what has happened.

There are other times in our lives when we need to achieve a sense of quietness and think of God. The Psalmist says, "Commune with your own heart upon your bed and be still." Psalm 4:4. God says in Psalms 46:10 "Be still and know that I am God."

We invite you to attend church and sense the still, quiet holiness that is God's presence in the midst of the congregation.

Highway Engineering To Stay in Operation

The Texas Highway Department's Engineering Division in Pampa will remain in operation with some restructuring of personnel.

The announcement was made today by A.L. McKee, Amarillo district engineer, who said 34 employees out of the Amarillo District payroll of 542 persons have been asked to find other employment by Dec. 31st.

T.R. Kelley, supervising resident engineer in Pampa, said he anticipates no layoffs here, but he will be operating with a reduced budget and two additional employees.

Salary cuts will be forthcoming for some, Kelley said.

"But that is better than losing the jobs," he added.

Three weeks ago it appeared that Pampa might lose its $158,000 payroll from that department.

McKee today announced a reduction in personnel and consolidation of some offices.

The three Amarillo offices will be consolidated immediately into one office under the supervision of George J. Cannon.

As soon as existing road projects terminate the Perryton and Canadian offices will be phased out. The Perryton and Canyon offices will be combined and headquartered in Canyon. The Canadian and Horger office will merge in Horger.

The Dalhart office, like Pampa, will remain with restructuring of personnel. Kelley said one of the employees from Perryton will transfer here.

A 90-day statewide study to determine the number of people of pertinent skills needed to implement and carry out responsibility in all phases of the department has been completed.

The shortage of funds began in 1974 for the first time in history. That along with increased construction costs necessitated a reduction in forces and in some cases a reduction grade of some of those persons involved," McKee said.

On Sept. 1, division and district budgets were cut to a minimum and the August letting of contracts for road repair and reconstruction was not held due to lack of funds.

Congressman Jack Hightower told the Pampa News that he had testified before a Washington subcommittee about the importance of highways to rural areas throughout the nation.

The Amarillo District encompasses 17 counties of the Texas Panhandle, including a highway network of some 3,700 miles.

Proposition 7 Includes Lotteries, Controversy

Editors Note: This is the last in a series of five articles concerning the proposed new Texas constitution being submitted to voters Nov. 4 in special election. This story explains the general provisions and mode of amending articles of the proposed new charter. General provisions come under Proposition No. 7 on the ballot, and the mode of amending article is Proposition No. 8.)

By ROLAND LINDSEY
UPI Capitol Reporter

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — "Keep Grandma off the streets, legalize Bingo," said a bumper sticker popular a couple of years ago.

Bingo has been banned in Texas under a lottery prohibition in the 1876 constitution, but a provision of the proposed new charter being submitted to voters Nov. 4 would legalize Bingo and raffles for churches and other nonprofit charitable organizations.

South Texas legislators who claimed Bingo were a significant source of revenue and recreation for churches in their areas argued strongly for the provision despite contentions by some that insertion of the trade name "Bingo" in the charter would be an embarrassment to Texas.

The proposal, included in the general provisions article listed as Proposition No. 7 on the ballot, requires proceeds from the raffles and Bingo games be used for charitable purposes within Texas. The same language requires the legislature to ban any other forms of lotteries in the state.

The far-reaching general provisions article, considered a collecting point for miscellaneous provisions scattered throughout the century-old present constitution, contains a number of other items which have stirred mild controversy.

One such provision prohibits discrimination against legislative conservatives have argued the provision could take away an employer's right to hire whom he chooses for job openings.

Other sections of the general provisions article:

- maintain the present ban on garnishment of wages.
- keep the present system of local option approval for sale of alcoholic beverages.
- require the quality of the environment to be protected.
- modify a ban on transferring water from one water basin to another to allow such transfers if the water transferred is replaced by water from out of state.
- require the legislature to regulate bank holding companies.
- set a state goal of access to comprehensive health care for every individual in Texas.

The general provisions article has been one of the least controversial of the eight propositions on the ballot, although legislators drafting the new constitution debated for hours over language in the lottery and bank holding company sections.

The final proposition on the special election ballot — Proposition No. 8 — is the article dealing with methods of amending the constitution. It makes little change in the present method of requiring voter approval for a constitutional amendment.

Under the section, however, the legislature would be required at least once every 30 years to submit to voters the issue of whether another constitutional convention should be called to consider updating the charter.

Bentsen Selects Key States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says he will focus his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in eight or 10 key states, hoping the party will turn to him at a deadlocked convention.

Bentsen said his strategy is to "play to your strengths" in carefully targeted areas of key states and minimize costly statewide primary campaigns.

Bentsen outlined his strategy for a limited campaign in an interview with United Press International. He denied speculation he would withdraw from the crowded field of Democratic candidates.

"No, I'm not pulling out," he said. "Not with $700,000 waiting for me in January" in federal matching funds. "That makes no sense at all. Not with $200,000 (on hand now) in the bank."

Bentsen said he believes no one candidate will enter the convention next July with enough support to win on a first ballot. He said he hoped to go to the convention with enough delegates to make him a realistic alternative if a deadlock should occur.

"These people who think they are going to walk away with the first ballot are daydreaming," Bentsen said. "It's not going to happen. I think it's going to be pretty badly divided."

He said he expected to run statewide in several primaries, including California and Ohio, but in other key states he will run only in non-urban areas where he has the greatest chance of picking up delegate support.

Thus, he said, he would seek delegates in upstate New York but avoid New York City; bypass Chicago but run in downstate Illinois; run in Michigan, but only outside Detroit; and campaign in certain areas of Pennsylvania, avoiding Philadelphia.

He indicated he would not seek delegates in the early Iowa precinct caucuses, would not run in New Hampshire and possibly would avoid Massachusetts.

But, he conceded, "If someone takes off in the primaries, that's it. It's all over," he said.

Farmers Union Back Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Opponents of a proposed revision of the Texas Constitution say the document would remove power from the public and transfer it to the legislature.

"This proposed new constitution has been written for the benefit of the legislators, not the people," said R.A. Brookshire, a new steering committee member of the Citizens to Preserve the Texas Constitution.

"It lets them set their own salaries, and authorizes them to call themselves into session, and have unrestricted annual sessions. These are all things designed to take power away from the people and give it to members of the legislature."

Rep. R.B. McAlister, D-Lubbock, disagreed, however, saying the legislative provision was crucial, especially the section calling for annual sessions.

"Without annual sessions in years ahead," he said, "the legislature will completely bog down; the lobbyists, bureaucrats and power groups will dominate, and the results will make Watergate and Sharpstown look like a Sunday School picnic."

Despite the contradictory views, the Texas Farmers Union Thursday endorsed the revision and the Texas League of Women Voters announced a statewide campaign to promote its passage.

"It is a viable, working document which will bring government operation in Texas to a level on which it can effectively deal with the challenges of a growing state," said Jay Naman, union president.

Naman said the union's executive board endorsed the constitution and urged its 10,000 members to vote for all eight propositions.

"The league has worked for constitutional revision for 27 years," said L.W. state president Betty Anderson of Lubbock. "We are supporting all eight propositions of this document. It's a definite improvement."

Interior Head Okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday night confirmed Thomas Kleppe as Secretary of the Interior and Roderick Hills as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Kleppe, a former North Dakota Congressman, has been head of the Small Business Administration. He succeeds Stanley Hathaway who resigned soon after confirmation this summer citing health reasons.

Hills, married to Carla Hills, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, will be designated as chairman of the SEC by the President. Hills succeeds Marmaduke Roberts Ligon who resigned.

Kleppe, in confirmation hearings, had little trouble with the environmentalists who attacked Hathaway's record as a protector of natural resources. Kleppe, 56, a millionaire, agreed to have the managers of his assets, which are in a blind trust, sell off investments related to natural resources.

President Richard Nixon appointed Kleppe to the Commerce Department post in 1971 after Kleppe's losing bid for a Senate seat held by Quentin Burdick. Kleppe had been a Congressman for two terms before entering Congress, he was a mayor of Bismarck, N.D.

In the SBA, Kleppe road out 1973 allegations that the SBA was engaged in wrongdoing, including bribery, kickbacks from borrowers, and improper lending.

Junior Hi Singers Chosen for Honor

Thirty members of the Pampa Junior High School Choirs participated in auditions for the TMEA Region I All-Region Junior High Choir for 1975, Oct. 4, at Horace Mann Jr. High in Amarillo. Twenty-three were selected for the honor choir.

Those chosen were: first sopranos - Allison Craig, Mary Ann King, Cindy Quattlebaum, and Mary Skoog; second sopranos - Cherie Anderson, Kelly Caswell, Diane McNeely, Pam Mills, and Shelly Thompson; Altos - Kayla Coffee, Debbie Gattis, Cathy Parr, Kim Rich, and Angie Richardson; tenors - Kevin Gantz, Kevin

Hall, and Dan Keim; baritones - Tom Bruce, Mickey Bynum, Marvin Goad, and Vaughn Roby; and basses - David Anderson and Joe Martinez.

Seventeen junior high schools participated in the auditions. There are more all-region choir members from Pampa Junior High than from any of the other schools.

All-Region Choir will meet at Bonham Junior High, Amarillo, Nov. 8 with Don Collins, Conway, Ark.

The Pampa Junior High School Choirs are directed by Miss Elena Donald.

Secret Service Files Full of Possible Agents

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you are a young man or woman and thinking of joining the Secret Service as an agent to range around the United States and the world protecting the President, forget it for now.

A visit to Secret Service headquarters two blocks from the White House disclosed that the elite branch is full up at the moment and has enough qualified candidates on file or from the Civil Service Register to keep it going indefinitely.

"We have no recruiting program," special agent Lewis H. McClam said. "Candidates generally come to us through word of mouth. At present, we have 200 applicants who have taken the tests."

Even if the number of special agents is increased by some 200 to 300, as has been suggested to cope with increased security threats against the President and officials, the Service anticipates no difficulty in filling the ranks.

"The turnover rate is very low, slightly over 3 per cent," McClam said.

But if a young man or woman — there are 16 women agents — did persevere, he was asked, what are the qualifications?

McClam produced a booklet which, after stipulating that "only the most qualified applicants are appointed," listed these requirements:

- At least 21 years old;
- Excellent physical condition.

Applicants are required to pass a comprehensive medical examination. Distant vision, without correction, must test at least 20-20 in one eye and no less than 20-30 in the other. Weight proportion to height.

- A bachelor's degree or;
- Three years experience of which at least two are in criminal investigation, or;
- A comparable combination of experience and education. College level study in any major field is acceptable, but courses in police science, criminology and law enforcement are desirable.

Special agent training includes comprehensive courses in protection techniques, criminal law, criminal investigative procedures, use of scientific investigative devices, document and handwriting examination and analysis, first aid, the use of firearms and arrest techniques. Subjects such as rules of evidence, surveillance techniques, undercover operations and courtroom demeanor are also studied.

Classroom work is "supplemented by on-the-job training."

At present the Secret Service has 1,361 agents, including 16 women.

The women have on occasion been assigned to Presidential protective detail but not on a full-time basis; they have been assigned protective details for foreign dignitaries.

They take the same training as men and have to live up to the same standards.

The first five women were sworn in as Special Agents Dec. 15, 1971. Two of the original quintet later left to marry.

McClam said the Service is happy with its women agents and would like more.

The hours are long in the Service and the pay not as exciting as the job.

Starting salaries for agents range from $8,500 to $10,520 a year — equivalent to Civil Service grades of GS5 and GS7 — but progress with seniority and promotion as in the Civil Service.

But the word from headquarters is not to rush to your nearest Civil Service Commission Area Office to apply. They're booked up.

The primary responsibility of Special Agents is protection of the president, a duty carried out since 1901.

In addition, Special Agents protect:

- The immediate family of the president;
- The vice president;
- The president-elect;
- The vice president-elect;
- A former president and his wife during his lifetime;
- The widow of a former president until her death or remarriage;
- Minor children of a former president until they reach 16 years of age;
- Major presidential and vice presidential candidates;
- Visiting heads of foreign states or foreign governments.

Secret Service protection has already been offered to six Democratic presidential candidates for the 1976 elections and will probably be offered to former Sen. Fred Harris as soon as his eligibility is officially confirmed.

The others are: Senators Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas; Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona; Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and former governors Terry Sanford of North Carolina and Jimmy Carter of Georgia.

A spokesman would not say which of the candidates has accepted protection or when he wants the protection to begin.

Americans Develop Pessimism

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A decade of war, assassinations, corruption and a troubled economy has radically changed the American people and made them pessimistic about the future, pollster Louis Harris said Wednesday.

Harris told the National Conference of State Legislatures that politicians who offer easy answers or appeal to the fears of voters will be "turned off" and defeated at the polls.

"The old left, right, liberal and conservative positions are 30 to 40 years out of date," Harris said. "These Don Quixotes are going to be disappointed by the reaction they get from Americans."

Harris told the 1,700 state legislators and staff attending the conference that his polling shows a dramatic drop in the confidence Americans have in important institutions.

In 1966, 55 per cent of the persons polled said they had confidence in American business. The figure dropped this year to 18 per cent.

Confidence in state government has dropped from 34 per cent to 20 per cent in just three years, although state and local officials rank higher than the Congress or the President, Harris said.

"The American people still want leaders, but they want them to know that all the options are changing," Harris said. "They no longer want leaders who operate in the same old political method. Ninety-five per cent of the people still want the system to work but they are not looking for messiahs with panaceas and cure-alls."

Harris said his polling shows that Americans are apparently more willing to make sacrifices, but feel they are being ignored by people in power.

GM Urges Moratorium On Emission Standards

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chairman Thomas A. Murphy of General Motors held a series of news briefings Wednesday to argue that Detroit needs a five-year moratorium on federal emission standards.

A city official and three separate organizations seized the opportunity to challenge Murphy directly, claiming New York's air pollution problem is getting worse and that more stringent controls are needed.

Murphy and GM's top scientists on the environment, research and engineering held the briefings at a Manhattan hotel on GM's progress in development of cleaner and more efficient engines.

But Ethan Eldon, the city's commissioner for air resources, and the three organizations held a briefing of their own in the same hotel to claim the auto industry has not done enough to reduce pollution from auto exhaust.

In a polite tit-for-tat, the antagonists invited one another to their separate news conferences, allowing questions and time for rebuttal. GM paid for lunch.

For visual aids, GM put some of its 1976-model cars, including the industry's fuel economy leader, the mini Chevette, on display and held a slide show. The environmentalists brought a beat-up catalytic converter from a 1974 Ford Pinto, and the city put its air pollution testing equipment to work on the street outside the hotel.

The issue was joined. GM said a five-year delay is needed on federal emission standards so the auto industry can concentrate on fuel economy and develop technology for further advances on pollution control.

boost that to 53 per cent by 1980. The trend will be reversed if the auto industry is forced into more stringent emission standards, he said.

Eldon and the environmentalists said the auto industry can do both at the same time and should be forced to do so by Washington.

Houston Discourages Halloween

HOUSTON (UPI) — The city council has passed a resolution urging parents to forbid their children to go out trick-or-treating for candy and other food on Halloween.

Council members cited the death last Halloween of Timothy Mark O'Bryan, 8, of Deer Park, who died after eating powdered candy with cyanide in it.

"Present controls are already doing a good job," said Murphy in his luncheon speech. "Emissions are down as much as 90 per cent, compared with older, uncontrolled cars."

Auto pollution in urban centers is measurably less, Murphy said.

At the same time, he said, GM achieved a 38 per cent increase in fuel economy and expects to

After years of exposure to TV conceptions of spaceflight, ranging from pre-Sputnik "Disneyland" speculations, through "Star Trek" up to today's "Space: 1999", we all develop stereotypes of what astronauts look like and do: they wear surgically sterile white plastic spacesuits, are grimly efficient, logical, and scientific, and spend their time in front of panels full of blinking lights, hitting an occasional switch, or calculating such esoterica as trajectories, perihelions, and "wrap factors" right? Wrong! Real spaceship life is of this sort: "I got scrounging and scrounging as the trip went on... I decided if (Dave and Al) weren't going to shave, neither would I... Fortunately, I took a bar of sweet-smelling soap along. It was the high point of the day just to take out the soap from a container and let the scent waft around the spacecraft. It almost made us feel clean."

fighter pilot and test pilot, constantly blocked by his reckless love of speed and tricky maneuvers; his nearly-fatal crash; his beautiful marriage, which produced five children, which he could barely afford. The moon flight was a turning point for Jim Irwin, as the awe and isolation of the mountains of the moon brought him closer to God than he had ever been before. He came back to Earth with a sense of mission, a sense of the brotherhood of men, crowded together on a world he now realized was very small, very unique, and very beautiful. Jim Irwin tells in To Rule the Night how the spiritual voyage to the moon resulted in his resigning from the Air Force to found High Flight, an evangelism organization, through which he encourages people around the world to take "the highest flight of all", beyond the Moon to its creator and guide. To Rule the Night is available at Lovett Memorial Library in both regular-print and Large Print versions; if your eyesight is as bad as my 20-200, you might enjoy not having to struggle with fine print (I did).

Jim Irwin, who took part in the Apollo 15 moon mission (the one involving the golf cart), has told the true, human, sometimes hilarious, sometimes awe-inspiring story of this moon voyage, and of the simultaneous spiritual voyage he took, in To Rule the Night. He also tells us about his up-and-down life before an unlikely chance tapped him to fly to the moon: his career as a

Consultant Visits Lovett

Lovett Memorial Library was visited Tuesday by a consultant from the Texas Panhandle Library System as part of a continuing program of interlibrary co-operation.

Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, director of Lovett, said that Kathleen Wilkerson, a professional librarian retained by the 16-library co-op, discussed reference collections, upcoming changes in inter-library loan procedures, and other matters relating to the Pampa library's growth and participation in system activities.

"Many of the people in Pampa have already made use of the inter-library loan and reciprocal borrowing programs, which make all of the library resources of the state available to every reader in this city," Miss Wilkerson said. "However, we would like to see more people using these free services."

The system also makes available, without charge, 16 mm films from the Amarillo Public Library's collection for group programs, Miss Wilkerson said.

"Co-operation between libraries also benefits local users indirectly, by funding improvements in special collections, such as Pampa's business and technology sections, and by facilitating the exchange of expertise and experiences between librarians," she said.

"We are very pleased with our participation in the System," said Mrs. Cockrell, "and we are looking forward to the expanded programs planned for 1976 and 1977."

Library Sets Metric System Workshop Here

The second session of the Friends of the Pampa Library's metric system workshop will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Lovett Memorial Library. Admission is free and open to the public.

After reviewing material on distance and area covered in the first session, instructor Mark Stenzel will discuss volume and weight, the area of measurement with which we can most often expect to deal in our everyday life.

A third session, to be at 7:30 p.m. at the library on Monday, Oct. 20, will focus on converting measurements involving energy.

LIBERACE SUED
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pianist Liberace was sued for $22,000 Wednesday because he allegedly cannot decide where he wants the Liberace Museum located.
 The American Showcase and Furniture Co. filed suit, saying it built $20,000 worth of showcases and other fixtures for the museum at Liberace's request. They were delivered and installed in March at Liberace's home, the suit said, then moved to another site a month later, and then moved again the following month.
 The pianist has not paid the original bill, the suit said, which has grown by $2,000 in moving fees.

STEVE IN RODEO
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Steve Ford, the President's youngest son, will compete in quarter horse events at the Forum International Horse Show this weekend, organizers announced.
 Ford, 19, currently is attending Utah State University, majoring in range science, and has been studying rodeo skills and western riding. He will compete Friday, Saturday and Sunday, organizers said, and will also be grand marshal of the show during those three days of the six-day event.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Madame Huang Chen, wife of China's top diplomat, waited 20 minutes outside the White House gates Wednesday before she was admitted for afternoon tea with First Lady Betty Ford.
 Officials said Madame Huang, wife of the chief of China's liaison mission, lacked sufficient identification, and guards could not let her proceed to the family quarters of the White House until the proper checks were completed.
 When Madame Huang finally was admitted, she posed for pictures on the White House south portico with Mrs. Ford and then disappeared inside.
 "We're going to have a nice visit and some tea," Mrs. Ford said.

A NEW OSMOND
PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Mary Osmond, wife of one of the singing Osmond Brothers, has given birth to a six-pound, 15-ounce boy at Utah Valley Hospital.
 Mrs. Osmond and her husband, Merrill, said Wednesday the boy would be named Travis Merrill. The birth occurred Tuesday.
 The father is the third oldest of the singing team. He was married on Sept. 17, 1973.

BARRY WOULD HAVE LOST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, who failed to win the presidency in 1964, would have been rejected by the Congress as vice president in 1974 if President Ford had nominated him, according to Ford's campaign committee chairman.
 Chairman Howard "Bo" Callaway told a group of conservative Republicans Wednesday that Congress would never have accepted a conservative such as Goldwater or former Gov. Ronald Reagan for the vice presidential nomination shortly after Ford became President upon Richard Nixon's resignation.
 Asked, "Do you think that Goldwater would really have been rejected by the Congress?" Callaway replied, "Absolutely. Without any question."

KING AT SALMON BAKE
SEATTLE (UPI) — King Olav V of Norway, a skilled yachtsman, will have a cruise on Puget Sound during his visit Oct. 18-21.
 The king will be the guest of honor of the Norwegian-American Anniversary Commission at an Indian salmon bake on Blake Island Oct. 19, said Svein Gilje, Seattle area chairman for events commemorating 150 years of Norwegian immigration to the United States.

GOODBYE, DALI
PARIS (UPI) — Spanish artist Salvador Dali has been fired from his first movie acting job by film director Alexander Jodorowsky for making pro-Franco statements following the execution of Spanish political militants convicted of murder.
 The director had hired Dali to play the emperor of the galaxy in the film version of the science fiction best-selling book "Dune."
 Dali, in Toulouse, France earlier this week, praised Franco's order to execute the guerrillas.
 "I would be ashamed to use now in my work a man who in his masochistic exhibitionism demands the ignoble death of human beings," Jodorowsky said.

Jets Meet Vikes

UPI Sports Writer
Charley Winner ought to remember Fran Tarkenton very well. He once cost him his job.

It was December, 1970, and Winner was coach of the St. Louis Cardinals. His club was 8-3-1 and held a half-game lead over Dallas for first place. A victory over the New York Giants would hand St. Louis the division title.

But Tarkenton, then the Giants' quarterback, hit 14-of-21 passes for 242 yards and three touchdowns as New York upset St. Louis. That was Winner's last game as coach of the Cardinals.

Both are in new situations as they prepare to face each other Sunday. Winner is coach of the New York Jets and Tarkenton has returned to Minnesota, but the Jets' coach hasn't lost any respect for the veteran quarterback.

"Fran is a sonof-a-gun," Winner said. "I'd like to see him outlived. I hate to play against him because he has two opportunities on every play. He has the play he called in the huddle and if that doesn't work, then he can scramble like no one ever in pro football. I watched him through his whole career and watched his improvement. I don't think he's changed much. He's become a more intelligent quarterback. He used to scramble just to do it. Now he only runs when he has to."

While Winner sings the praises of Tarkenton, the Vikings are doing a little worrying of their own. Jet quarterback Joe Namath put on an awesome passing show in a 36-7 rout of New England last week and claims he's feeling the best he has all season.

Namath passed for over 200 yards in the first half before settling into a ball control game with a big lead and finished with four touchdown passes. Two of them went to tight end Richard Caster, who is becoming one of the most feared receivers in the game. The 6-foot-5 Caster already has 15 receptions for 282 yards and four touchdowns and is averaging close to 19 yards a catch.

"I feel good," Namath said. "Sunday was the first time this season I was able to get in a full week's work before a game and I felt very accurate. First the strike wiped us out before the Buffalo game and then my knee got swelled up before we played Kansas City. I just felt very sharp against New England."

The Jets' victory was their second in three games but both have come against teams which have yet to win. The true test will be against Minnesota, which is unbeaten in three games and has allowed only three touchdowns.

In other games Sunday, Philadelphia is at Miami, Dallas at the Giants, Atlanta at San Francisco, Chicago at Detroit, Denver at Pittsburgh, Houston Bay at New Orleans, Green Bay at Cleveland, Kansas City at Oakland, Los Angeles at San Diego and New England at Cincinnati. St. Louis is at Washington on Monday night.

UPI Sports Writer
Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer is the first to admit it.

"There's no question about it, we're not the team we were in 1974," said Switzer, coach of the second-ranked Sooners, who collide with the No. 5 ranked Texas Longhorns Saturday in the Cotton Bowl. "Texas is much improved over the team we met last year. They're probably improved as much as we're off."

But despite Switzer's talk about his team's shortcomings and the improvement of the Longhorns, Oklahoma has been rated an eight point favorite in one of this season's best confrontations thus far.

Texas possesses the nation's No. 1 offense led by running back Earl Campbell, the nation's seventh leading rusher with 508 yards on 63 carries. The Longhorns have been devastating on offense, leading the nation in rushing offense, total offense and scoring. Texas, which has outscored its opponents this season 176-25, has averaged 44.2 points and 465.7 yards a game.

The key to the game is simple—will Oklahoma's well respected defense be able to stop the Texas running game. The contest will provide a true test for the Sooner front five led by Dewey and Leroy Selmon and end Jimbo Elrod. Coach Switzer sees the stopping of Campbell as crucial.

"Earl Campbell is awesome," Switzer said. "He is definitely the key to the game. We've got to be able to stop him."
Oklahoma has had two close games in the last two weeks. The Sooners managed to beat Miami (Fla.) by only three points two weeks ago and Colorado by only one point last week. But Switzer said he hopes two tough games in a row will be an advantage.

Oklahoma has won the last four meetings between the two schools but trails in the overall series 42-25-2. Last season the Sooners defeated a mediocre Texas team 16-13.

Elsewhere in the UPI top 10, Ohio State hosts Iowa, third-ranked Southern California entertains Washington State, No. 4 Nebraska is at home to Kansas, sixth-ranked Texas A&M is at Texas Tech, No. 7 Alabama hosts Washington, No. 8 ranked Michigan plays No. 16 ranked Penn State takes on visiting 11th-ranked West Virginia.

Reds Probably Better Overall

BOSTON (UPI) — Nobody's going to argue which team is better. The Cincinnati Reds are without question. By how much? By a one-sided 6-2 ratio if you're going position by position, but the World Series seldom is decided that way and that's why I like the Boston Red Sox to become baseball's new world champions in five games—or less.

The way I count, the Reds are superior to the Red Sox at six of eight positions, and when you get to that all-important ninth one, pitching, call it even because whatever edge the Red Sox have with their starters, the Reds make up for with their relievers.

Going down the line, I'd have to take Tony Perez over Cecil Cooper at first base; Joe Morgan over Denny Doyle at second; Dave Concepcion over Rick Burleson at shortstop, and Pete Rose over Rico Petrocelli at third base.

In my opinion, Carlton Fisk is the No. 1 catcher in the American League, but he's matched with the best in baseball in Johnny Bench, so the Reds come out on top here, also, as well as in right field where Ken Griffey rates over either Dwight Evans or Bernie Carbo.

That makes it six-love for the Reds right there.

The only two places where the Red Sox have the edge are in center field where their 23-year-old super rook, Freddie Lynn, gets the call over Cesar Geronimo, and in left field where I'll still take 34-year-old Carl Yastrzemski over 26-year-old George Foster even though Foster out-hit Yaz by 31 points.

On paper, the Reds are clearly a stronger, better team than the Red Sox, but the better team doesn't always win. Nor is baseball played on paper. If it was, the A's probably would be in this Series, and not the Red Sox. Watching them lately has made me believe they have the necessary confidence and rhythm now to beat anybody.

this year and is getting better every day.
Winners of 108 games this season, up to their ears in firepower and showing they also can run if they have to with 11 stolen bases in as many tries against the Pirates in the National League playoff, the Reds seem to have everything. That's why the oddsmakers have them favorites. They've got power, speed, experience and momentum, having won their last nine straight games and 14 of their last 15. Still, the way the Red Sox handled the Oakland A's in the American League playoff, I can't see anybody beating them, not even the Reds.

For one thing, I don't think the Reds are going to be able to run on Boston's pitchers and Fisk as they did on Pittsburgh's pitchers and Manny Sanguillen. Luis Tiant has one of the best moves to first base of any right-hander in either league. Left-hander Bill Lee also has an excellent one, and right-hander Rick Wise's move is good enough at least to keep the Reds' runners honest.

I'm reasonably sure the much publicized left field wall at Fenway Park will be a major factor in the Series, perhaps as big a one as it was in Boston's playoff victory over Oakland.

PHS After 5th Straight Win

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor
A win over Lubbock Monterey today would make the Harvesters the first Pampa team since 1952 to win its first five games.

However, the opportunity to be 5-0 won't come without a dogfight, as Monterey should be Pampa's toughest opponent so far this season.

After wins over Hereford and three District 1-AAA opponents—Dumas, Perryton and Canyon—Pampa (today at 7:30 p.m. in Harvester Stadium) has the chance to test its veer offense against one of the best defenses in West Texas. Monterey, 3-2, owns 4-AAAA's best defense, having yielded an average of 164 yards per game.

Teams have gained an average of 3.2 yards per carry on the ground against James Odom's Plainsmen.

Monterey's most impressive performance was a 19-7 win over Wichita Falls Rider, then ranked No. 2 in the state.

Texas Offense Explosive

Longhorns lead the nation in rushing offense, total offense and scoring. Texas has averaged 44.2 points and 465.7 yards a game. Oklahoma ranks 10th in rushing with 315.5 yards a game and second—behind Texas—in scoring with 37.2 points a game. The Sooners are not in the top 40 in total offense.

And in the second place, Oklahoma just may not be as good this year as it was in years past.

There's no question about it, we're not the team we were in 1974," said Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer. "We have talent but we also have inexperience and we're inconsistent."

As an example, Switzer pointed to the Sooners' woes against Colorado last week. The Sooners failed to control the ball consistently against Colorado, running about 50 offensive plays instead of the usual 70 to 80. And Oklahoma also had some problems making first downs against the young Buffs' defense.

"How many times last year did you see Oklahoma with a third and three and not make it?" Switzer said.

Switzer said, "He is definitely the key to the game. We've got to be able to stop him."
Oklahoma has had two close games in the last two weeks. The Sooners managed to beat Miami (Fla.) by only three points two weeks ago and Colorado by only one point last week. But Switzer said he hopes two tough games in a row will be an advantage.

Oklahoma has had two close games in the last two weeks. The Sooners managed to beat Miami (Fla.) by only three points two weeks ago and Colorado by only one point last week. But Switzer said he hopes two tough games in a row will be an advantage.

Switzer said, "He is definitely the key to the game. We've got to be able to stop him."

Jerry Weaver

Boys Build Kit Cars

David Waggoner and Jerry Weaver, a couple of 18-year-old 1975 Pampa High School graduates and former students of Don Cole, auto mechanics instructor, recently completed projects that have provided them with some stylish transportation.

Waggoner built a three-wheel motorcycle powered by a Volkswagen engine. He invested about $2,400 and a month and a half of weekends and evenings on the project, working in the garage at home and under the carport.

The body and front end for the cycle were ordered from a California firm, Waggoner said.

Weaver's car, a Sterling, was built from a kit ordered from California Component Cars Inc., he said. He spent, "roughly

$5,300 on the project and has been working on it "almost every night and on weekends since April."

The kit came with "everything but the running gear," Weaver said — "chassis, motor, transmission." A VW engine powers the vehicle.

Weaver is employed at Pampa Foreign Car Service and Waggoner works for a contractor at Cabot Corp.

William Miller Arrington of Pampa is among the 350 students who pledged Greek social fraternities at the University of Oklahoma.

David Wayne Cash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane C. Cash, 117 Garland, is one of more than 455 new students admitted to the College of Santa Fe for the fall semester. College officials report enrollment has reached 1,262.

Zarb Attacks Congress Inaction

HOUSTON (UPI) — Federal energy chief Frank Zarb says until this country implements an energy policy to demonstrate the guts, "petroleum exporting countries will dominate the oil marketplace with high prices and threats of another oil embargo."

Zarb, who heads the Federal Energy Administration, Wednesday continued President Ford's attack on congressional inaction on a national energy policy, saying that all Congress had done was to vote an extension of price controls for a 45-day period.

"Simply having a formula of decontrol over a lengthy period of time doesn't get the job done," he said.

He said Congress could still take action to counter steady price increases by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"We could demonstrate that we have the guts to put together a program that would tell OPEC its days are numbered," Zarb told reporters. "I blame our own inability to legislate an energy program. Right now they (OPEC) must have to laugh at us."

Zarb said if petroleum prices had been permitted to increase in the early 1960s the nation would have been on its way to developing supplemental energy programs.

Reydon High Offers Rodeo

The junior class of Reydon, Okla., High School will sponsor a junior rodeo at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 18, and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 19.

The books open Tuesday Oct. 14, and close at noon on Friday, Oct. 17. Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Leo Swope Jr.

Contestants must be 19 years or younger.

College Notes

Frank W. Henderson of 419 East Foster is among the 550 students named to the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences honor roll at the University of Texas for the spring semester.

In order to qualify, a student must have compiled a minimum of 32 grade points and have passed all courses.

Gary Haynes of Pampa is one of the officers directing the student senate for the 1975-76 year at Panhandle State University.

Activities include student government, homecoming, dances, and outside entertainment. The senate is also made up of committees that include election, job opportunities, publicity, recruitment and student grievance.

Karen Ann Allen is majoring in cosmetology and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Moon, Pampa.

Jackie J. McGaughey is majoring in cosmetology and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McGaughey of 637 N. Sumner, and is a graduate of Pampa High School.

Also named to the same honor were James Ray Samples, Cindy D. Barrett and Donald W. Smithee, all from Pampa.

Smithee is majoring in drafting and design technology. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard C. Smithee of 533 S. Ballard.

Miss Barrett is majoring in printing technology. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barrett of Route 2, Pampa.

Samples, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Samples of 528 Red Deer, is majoring in printing technology.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11

Your birthday today: You encounter your own limitations but overcome them by finding and using your own resources. Relationships need initiative and determined care. Today's natives select a special, demanding vocation, and push themselves hard to master it. Their financial affairs present a lifelong riddle.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: More work is involved to complete the project than anyone expected. Discussions turn into harsh disagreements. Leave the way open for reconciliation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Errors crop up. Pay close attention to what you say, take the consequences and keep trying. Minimize travel and dealings with strangers or unfamiliar products.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Handle money cautiously. There are limits as to what it will buy or the ways in which it can impress people. Youngsters stir up complications. Expect confusion and a clash of ideas.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: The closer the relationship, the more certain some conflict. Business runs into heavier costs and fewer sales. If you put it off, give yourself a break.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: If you must work with mechanical things, take your time, observe the rules or let some pro do it. You offer too many unsolicited opinions.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You may be able to see all the subtle details but you have to learn to live with the weaknesses of business associates and loved ones. Forgive people who can't see the fine points.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: If you're the one who supplies the money and materials, be the one who decides how they're to be used. Expect an argument, but try to sit this round out.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Travel offers poor results and is subject to delay. If a deal must be kept quiet, stay away from it. Don't waste time arguing with in-laws. Investigate the problem to know what you're talking about.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: That urge to make the social scene is expensive and ill-timed; wait until you understand the situation. Don't borrow except for emergencies. Leave friends out of your planning.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Stay away from your accustomed round of places and regular contacts. Seek professional advice and technical know-how. You spot recent errors that can be corrected before it's too late.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Just remember what's yours and what isn't and don't get in a huff. There are more details to be attended to than you thought, so start early. Moods brighten as the day goes on.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Forget about what your friends think you should do. Make up your own mind first, then begin preparations. No one is going to help much or understand what you're trying to do.

Taylor Spraying Service

Eugene Taylor has been in the pest control business for the past dozen years and he said that business has never been better than recently.

"There's been more termites this year than there has been in many years past," he said.

Fall and winter are normally busy months for Taylor because the "bad weather drives rodents inside."

And he figures that there are more of them around to be driven in by the weather as a result of the wet spring and the resulting availability of food for them. The wet weather also "has brought a lot of termites on this year," Taylor said.

He is state licensed and fully insured and he said he goes to school "occasionally to keep updated on pesticides and laws governing their use."

The pest controller said that "when used right, the chemicals are of no danger to pets or children."

He said that he employs two part-time helpers in the business.

Two Honored

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America will honor 13 area residents for their combined 125 years of service at a dinner Tuesday at the Coronado Inn here. David B. Heller, left, of Pampa received the top award with 35 years of service. Virgil D. James of White Deer, right, was recognized for his 25 years of service. Natural Gas Pipeline is the transmission subsidiary of Peoples Gas Company. It supplies natural gas to 49 utility customers in the Upper Midwest, and is one of the nation's largest natural gas transmission companies with more than 11,000 miles of pipeline and related facilities in 12 states.

Bentsen Opposes Protection

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Although now flanked by Secret Service agents during his public appearances, presidential aspirant Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Houston, does not believe that his protectors should be armed with any new "weapons" to ensure his safety.

Specifically, Bentsen, in a recent press conference, said he would be opposed to suggested measures in which the Secret Service could "detain" individuals judged to be a threat to a President or other national figure.

"Just put these people under surveillance," Bentsen said. "I don't think the Secret Service can go and lock a person up just on suspicion."

New means to detain people considered dangerous to a President in certain situations has been one suggestion surfacing in the wake of two recent Presidential assassination attempts. Bentsen suggested that Ford himself should adapt some added precautions in his journeys, such as not mingling with crowds.

"But by no means do I think he has to spend his time only in Washington or the Oval room (the presidential office)," Bentsen added.

Despite some initial hesitancy and reluctance, Bentsen decided last week (OCT. 1) to accept Secret Service protection. In a statement he said he was basing his decision on a recommendation of an advisory committee to Secretary of the Treasury William Simon, who oversees the Secret Service.

Bentsen and five other Democratic presidential aspirants, by virtue of each having raised at least $100,000 in campaign contributions, were eligible to receive Secret Service protection beginning Oct. 1 for the duration of the campaign. However, Bentsen initially did not accept the offer.

The Secret Service protection is being offered to candidates for the first time this early in a campaign in the wake of the assassination attempts of President Ford.

In a press conference, the Houston millionaire said he and his family would sacrifice both "some personal privacy" and freedom of movement if he decided to accept the federal protection. He also said he had "some question" as to passing on the expense of protection for his personal campaign "this early" in the campaign to the taxpayer.

Under a new policy adopted late last month, the Secret Service will provide protection for certain presidential candidates, unless the presidential contenders specifically refuse the offer. Others eligible to be shadowed by Secret Service agents — all Democrats — include Alabama Gov. George Wallace, former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, Washington Sen. Henry Jackson, Arizona Rep. Morris Udall and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Airlines Challenge Regulatory Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says air fares would be cheaper under his plan to break the regulatory power of the Civil Aeronautics Board. But the airline industry challenged the proposal.

"For many Americans, air travel has become too expensive to afford," Ford said in a message to Congress Wednesday.

Ford says his reform legislation would mean lower air fares, the first true price competition between domestic airlines and an end to outmoded "protectionist" CAB rules set up in 1938.

The airline industry, with few exceptions, disagrees. Often hotly.

Administration officials say Ford's liberalized price rules and more open competition could reverse the upward spiral of air travel costs, possibly lowering fares an average 20 per cent over the next five years.

Congress might pass the bill in as little as six or eight months, they say. But they also acknowledge that dire predictions voiced by the airlines might "scare the Congress" into rejecting the President's reforms.
