

Suit Names County In PRPC Controversy

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Gray County and the City of Pampa were among five counties and eight cities in the Texas Panhandle named as defendants in a suit filed Thursday in 47th District Court at Amarillo asking that tax funds to support the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission be cut off and the law authorizing the PRPC be declared unconstitutional.

The suit was filed by Dr. Donald Todd, a West Texas University professor, and other plaintiffs listed as residents, taxpayers and citizens of the State of Texas.

Jack Skelly of Pampa is among the citizen plaintiffs who joined Dr. Todd in the suit. The plaintiffs contend payment of tax funds to support the PRPC is "unauthorized and illegal." They charge that consolidation of functions of government in Texas requires approval of a majority of the voters in each political subdivision and that PRPC has been functioning without that approval.

The petition further charges that the statute authorizing formation of the PRPC omits provision for voter approval and is therefore also unconstitutional.

Dr. Todd, who filed the suit, will be in Pampa Monday night to address an open forum meeting in the county courtroom of the Gray County Court House. He is scheduled to discuss the proposed revision of the Texas Constitution to be voted on at the Nov. 4 election. The meeting sponsored by the Top O' Texas Republican Women's Club is set for 7 p.m.

Other defendants in the PRPC suit include Potter, Parmer, Wheeler and Deaf Smith counties and the cities of Canyon, Amarillo, Farwell, Shamrock, Perryton, Spearman and Borger, all members of the PRPC.

Among plaintiffs joining Dr. Todd in the court action are J. Ernest Stroud Jr., Bryan L. Denson, M.H. Dwight, Wanda Casias, Cletus E. Hyatt and I.C. Phillips, all of Amarillo; Fletcher Sims Jr. of Canyon; Albert Johnson of Farwell; Carl Martin of Shamrock; W.B. Owen and Florence Trawek of Hereford; Clarence Morris of Perryton; G.O. Birdwell of Spearman and Raymond Jarvis of Borger. George Loudder, executive director of the PRPC, also is named as a defendant in the suit.

City Commissioner Joe Curtis is Pampa's delegate to the regional planning commission's general assembly and County Commissioner Don Hinton represents Gray County.

City Manager Mack Wofford, when asked about the suit today, said the city had received no official notice yet.

"This is the first I have heard about it," Wofford said.

The city manager indicated he would contact Mayor R.D. Wilkerson and City Atty. Bob Gordon to discuss the matter.

Sam Anderson, firm chairman for Cabot Corporation's United Way Campaign, and Dorothy Stowers, United Way president, saw the $125,000 goal surpassed today by more than $1,000. Cabot and employees donated $36,600 of the $126,107.58 raised in the drive. "I'm delighted and kind of overwhelmed at Pampa's response. I knew they could do it," Mrs. Stowers said. Pampa went over the 1974 goal of $111,000 by raising $119,000, she reported. The campaign funds will go to nine human care agencies: Gonzales Warm Spring Foundation, Southwestern Diabetic Foundation, USO, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Genesis House, Pampa Milk Fund, American Red Cross and the Salvation Army. Fund coordinator Dutch Holland urged any workers who still have pledges outstanding to send them in. "There's always shrinkage in any campaign," said Holland. "This campaign out to reach about $130,000." (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Pill Can Cause Defects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration plans to tell women over 40 to avoid birth control pills.

The FDA said Thursday it has drafted warning labels for birth control pills which will inform users that sex hormones in the pill can cause birth defects such as stunted limbs and malformed hearts.

About 10 million women in America use the pills. The new warnings, if approved, will tell women who take them they face an increased risk of suffering fatal and nonfatal heart attacks. Women over 40 years old increase chances of blood clots and related problems such as strokes if they use the pills, the FDA said.

Women who wish to stop taking the pill and become pregnant will be advised to wait at least three months because studies show there is a possible increased risk of spontaneous abortion in women who become pregnant shortly after discontinuing the pill. The label would also advise any woman who misses one period while on the pill to have an immediate test for pregnancy to minimize the risk of damage to the developing child should she continue on the pill.

Such damage can occur, the agency said, because sex hormones such as estrogen and progesterin present in the pills have resulted in some extremely rare birth defects such as heart malformations and stunted limb development among women who became pregnant despite the pill but continued taking it unaware of their condition.

The agency said it will circulate the proposed new label among consumer, industry and professional groups for comment and then publish it in the Federal Register. After a 60-day period for comment, a final order will be prepared and may be issued some time next year.

Nobel Prize Winner Says Cure for Cancer Closer

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The University of Wisconsin professor who won the Nobel prize for medicine Thursday said his research has not shown the cause of human cancer but has given other researchers a lead in tracking it down.

Dr. Howard M. Temin said the virus in chickens he studied was unlikely to cause cancer in humans. But he said his work should show other scientists they should look at chemicals such as asbestos and cigarette nicotine as major causes of human cancer.

Temin, 41, shared the Nobel award for physiology and medicine with Drs. David Baltimore of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Renato Dulbecco of the Imperial Cancer Research Laboratory in London. Temin was cited for his study of how viruses interact with genes in cells.

Temin, a professor of oncology

(the study of tumors), said his research and that of Baltimore and Dulbecco "has enabled workers, especially at the National Cancer Institute and elsewhere, to ask whether viruses like the rous sarcoma virus exist in human cancer."

And I think that it would be fairly generally accepted that the majority of human cancers are not primarily caused by an infectious virus," he said. This negative result indicates that other factors must cause human cancers and chief among them would be radiation and chemical carcinogens.

Temin suggested the government increase its control of substances such as asbestos and discourage people from smoking. There are cures for certain fast growing cancers, certain specific types of cancers, but as yet no cures for the majority of cancers, which actually cause human death," Temin said.

We are working continually, many people, to try and develop better means of therapy for cancer, but now there's a general belief that we would have much more influence on human cancer if we could prevent it. And so, if people would stop smoking cigarettes and there were less cancer-causing chemicals put out into the environment, this would be the most efficient way of preventing cancer.

US Industries Quicken Pace

United Press International — The nation's industries have quickened production at the fastest pace in almost 11 years and Help Wanted signs are popping out according to reports from government and industry.

The four auto makers said more than 4,600 workers will be hired next week to meet overtime demand for hot selling mid-sized cars, vans and luxury sedans.

The industry has not worked as much overtime since the start of the Arab oil embargo in late 1973 that touched off the worst economic recession since the 1930s.

The news from Detroit Thursday was followed by federal government reports that jobless benefits declined for the third straight week and industrial production increased 1.9 per cent in August.

The Federal Reserve Board said it was the biggest one-month increase in the physical output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities since a 2.8 per cent gain in November, 1964, after an auto workers' strike ended.

The Labor Department said 5.4 million persons were receiving jobless benefits in the week ending Sept. 27, the lowest number in nine months.

General Motors chairman Thomas Murphy said sales of 1976 cars should increase 21 per cent over 1975 models from now to Dec. 31. Sales should be at an annual rate of 12 million cars compared with 9.5 million last year's fourth quarter, Murphy said in a speech in Anaheim, Calif.

Lefors Dedicates Center

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

"I've fought a good fight. I have finished the course and I have kept the faith," Sheriff Rufe Jordan compared the rebuilding of Lefors in the past two months to the Biblical scripture quoting the Apostle Paul during his dedicatory address Thursday night.

An estimated 300 persons were present for the dedication of the new $95,000 civic center.

The old one was destroyed by a tornado on March 27. In my lifetime I have never seen such a coordinated effort like in Lefors to get things under control," the sheriff said.

He received a call shortly after midnight on that spring morning saying that a vicious cloud was upon the city. The Gray County Sheriff's officers and other law enforcement agencies from the area rushed to Lefors.

The sheriff said as they looked over the heart of downtown Lefors, with this building gone, 160 homes removed, many in the hospitals. I say to all of you as we here observed the greatest and most coordinated effort I've seen. It was a tremendous job, if you please, everyone's heart was heavy.

He cited one officer, the Lefors constable R.B. Ben White, who worked 48 hours without removing his boots. Hundreds were fed each and every day through the efforts of many — much came from our huge markets in Pampa," the sheriff said. "Oh yes, it was the greatest effort I've ever seen in my entire life."

However, Sheriff Jordan said he personally knew the town would build back. I've been here 62 years the 8th day of this month. There has always been a Lefors. This was the county seat at one time," he said. "This is a little bit home to all of us. It is truly great. I think the engineers have done a magnificent job." He said the new building looks like the old one, a lot newer and a lot nicer.

Calling the rebuilding after the storm one of the "greatest blessings," the sheriff said, "it is with great pleasure I stand here along with my wife as we dedicate it (the new center) to you. Thank you for asking me down here."

The sheriff gave tribute to several, citing many by name for the reconstruction work.

Mayor J.J. Archer presided over the dedication of the facility before an audience that filled the room to its capacity, with many standing.

Harold Comer, Pampa attorney, called the building a symbol to the courage of the people of Lefors. He gave much credit to the mayor and city councilmen who spent unlimited hours in bringing this city back to its feet.

Gray County Judge Don Cain said, "I can't express how proud I am of this community. It is a miracle that we are all here."

Sgt. David Womack of the Texas Highway Patrol, stationed in Pampa, said, "As we drove in and everything pitch black I was afraid that we had lost half the people. I hope it never happens again."

Skeet Wagner of Gray County Red Cross Chapter gave credit to the many "who lit in and helped without any whimpering and complaining."

Bill Gething, a Gray County rancher in the area, called it "real team effort."

Libby Shotwell, executive secretary to Gray County Red Cross Chapter, said, "We are still working. We have not completed our job. We will keep working till we do."

Lefors City Councilmen, Leonard Cain, J.W. Franks, Neal Cates, Royce Gee and David Livingston, expressed appreciation for those "who pitched in and pushed."

One said he would like to buy a big ad in all the newspapers and thank everyone.

But Lefors can't buy anything for a while," he added.

McLean Mayor Johnny Haynes said he played football against Lefors a long time ago. "I know one thing," he said, "that tornado could have hit McLean. We've all got to stick together."

Pampa Mayor R.D. Wilkerson said Pampa residents are fortunate to have Lefors citizens as their neighbors.

And then, from the audience, a woman stood and commented that she and others were thankful "our public school was not touched."

Pampa City Manager Mack Wofford and Pampa City Commissioner Leo Braswell were among those who attended the dedication ceremonies in Lefors.

New York Debts Due Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City, battling for months to avoid default, had $453 million in debts due today but not enough money to pay them.

Only a miracle will save us, said City Council President Paul O'Dwyer, "and I don't expect that miracle."

Urgent phone calls were placed to the White House, the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve Board as Mayor Abraham Beame fought to stave off default.

"I called the White House to inform the President of the change of events," said a weary Beame early today. "He was asleep, but we left a message with the officer on duty."

Weather

Clear skies and cool temperatures are forecast for today and Saturday with highs in the 60s today, climbing to the 70s on Saturday. The lows tonight will be in the 40s.

Jailbreaker Eludes Lawmen in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Authorities were convinced that Dennis D. Hunter, the sole remaining fugitive from a daring five-man jailbreak from the maximum security federal penitentiary at Marion, Ill., had gotten away.

The small army of police and FBI agents combing the forest land surrounding Salem, Ill., a southern Illinois community 250 miles south of here, had given up the search.

It was then that Hunter made his move — the first in a series of actions that brought him from the sparsely populated farmlands to the nation's second largest city.

Hunter "really could have gone anywhere," FBI agent James Powers said Thursday.

By now he could be on the West Coast or the East Coast.

Hunter escaped from the Salem area by abducting a 79-year-old man and forcing him to drive about 170 miles to Rantoul. The hostage escaped and police cornered Hunter in a cornfield there Thursday.

FBI agents and metropolitan area police mounted an intensive search today, hoping to change their luck in efforts to recapture Hunter, 23, a convicted kidnaper whom authorities described as "armed and extremely dangerous."

Good Things Of Life In Switzerland

By WILLIAM RUSHER

It would be unforgivable to spend even a few days in this incomparable Switzerland without pausing to pay it tribute; yet one cannot help thinking that everything has already been said. You feel as helpless as God presumably felt when (so the story goes) He kindly offered to design the perfect county for tourists to the specifications of a convention of travel agents, only to have them tell Him: "You've already done it Switzerland."

Let me, then, touch on just one point that struck me forcibly, in my visits over the years, about that amazing nation. That is its tremendous essential unity of character. We are forever being assailed with the statistics of Switzerland's diversity: 74 per cent German-speaking, 21 per cent French, 4 per cent Italian, 1 per cent Romansh (a Latin language all its own), in religious terms 58 per cent Protestant, 40 per cent Catholic, and so on. And yet, it seems to me that, beneath and in spite of these important differences, Switzerland is at bottom, and even culturally, one of the most homogeneous nations I have ever known — vastly more so, certainly, than Britain, and probably more so than even such one-religion nations as France and Italy.

Fly into Zurich, in the heart of German-speaking northeastern Switzerland, and who do you see? Modern office buildings, graceful older residences, superb little chalets with geranium boxes in every window, a sky-blue lake with a promenade of neatly-spaced lindens.

Ah, but then drive to Geneva, on the western edge of French-speaking Switzerland, and who do you find? Graceful older residences, modern office buildings, a sky-blue lake with a promenade of neatly-spaced lindens, and superb chalets with geranium boxes in every window.

Very well, then, but let us put Switzerland to a harder test. Approach it from Italy, crossing by train from that wonderful land of gay dishevelment — the exact antithesis of Swiss order and precision — into Switzerland's southern (and mostly Italian-speaking) canton, Ticino. Here the towns have names like Lugano and Locarno and Ancona and Bellinzona, and there will be spaghetti and fettuccine and antipasto and vino rosso. Yes, and there will also be a sky-blue lake with a promenade of neatly-spaced lindens, and superb little chalets with geranium boxes in every window, and graceful older residences and modern office buildings.

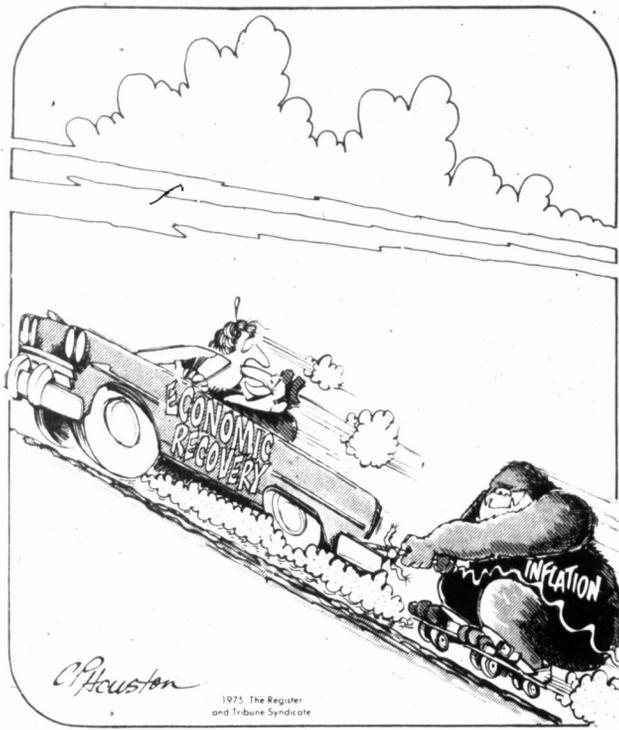

Am I complaining? Not on your life. I suppose one might conceivably tire (though I never have) of sky-blue lakes with promenades of neatly-spaced lindens, but then one could always plunge into the bustle of those handsome cities, with their modern office buildings and graceful older residences. And, if that began to pall, one could betake oneself to shoe heart-stopping snow-peaks in the central Alps, and live for a time in a superb little chalet with geranium boxes in every window. Switzerland may not have everything, it could, after all, be contained — all of it — in a circle with a radius of 70 miles. But that circle of similar size anywhere else on earth.

In fact, just about the only widely-desired thing Switzerland doesn't have is an ocean beach, one of those big beautiful jobs like Copacabana or Waikiki, where the rollers come in from Lord knows where. And, to tell you the truth, that doesn't bother me as much as it may some other people, because at heart I'm a mountain man.

Did my distant ancestors, I wonder, inhabit some upland valley like these, where brown cows graze under the eye of pure white glaciers? I don't know. All I know is that a little beach, with its brutal sun and pounding surf and ever-present sand, goes a long way with me. It is here, amid the immense peaks and green mountain valleys and cold glacier-fed streams, that I am most at home. Here, for me at any rate, the heat feels most surely the upward thrust of man's inmost impulse: toward those peaks, and the blue, blue sky above the and whatever it is that lies beyond the sky.

In Hungary at one time only a man who had slain a Turk might wear a feather.

"Wowie! We're really picking up steam now!"

BATTIN' AROUND

Save the Tall Grass Prairies

By C.R. BATTEN

Tallgrass once covered an area of roughly 400,000 square miles, stretching from Texas to Canada, from Kansas to Indiana. Now the plough has claimed nearly all of it, except for some 4,000,000 acres in the Flint Hills of east central Kansas. When that is gone, the tallgrass prairie will be no more," according to Jan S. Garton in the September issue of National Parks and Conservation Magazine.

The Forest Service says that there are 38 million acres in tallgrass prairie, where 70 per cent of the vegetation is tallgrass reaching heights of 5 to 6 feet. But it is in the Flint Hills that a Tallgrass Prairie National Park has been proposed. So its promoters find it convenient to forget about the 34 million acres outside the Flint Hills. To create a sense of urgency, they must convince Congress and the public that nearly all of the prairie has been turned over by the plow, covered by pavement or tract homes, or criss-crossed by power transmission lines.

There is no doubt about it — the Flint Hills have a character and a beauty all their own. As one gazes out over a vast expanse of rolling hills covered with green grasses, it is not difficult to conjure images of vast herds of buffalo, or of an Indian encampment down in the cottonwood-shaded stream valley.

The shortage of trees here, as in other areas of the prairies and great plains, led early settlers to build their first homes of sod. After the coming of barbed wire, that same shortage of wood resulted in lines of limestone fence posts which can still be seen along some back roads, grooved by many years of wear by the wire strung between them.

It was here in the Flint Hills where, in the early 1960's the Secretary of Interior Udall inspected likely areas for a national park. He landed his helicopter to get a closer look — and was promptly ordered off the property by the rancher who ran cattle on the land.

In the 1960s Congress turned down a proposal to establish a Prairie National Park, because the shallow soils of the Flint Hills are underlain by limestone so close to the surface that it is impossible to plow. Congress saw no threat to the tallgrass prairie, and even Garton admits that its existence is due in part "to careful range management practices of ranches in the past." But the proposal for a 60,000-acre park is back, for in the minds of the park promoters nothing is "saved" or conserved unless it is taken away from the private owners who have devoted their lives to it, and put under the dubious custodianship of government.

The "Save the Tallgrass Prairie" organization has not been able to effectively count the powerful lobbying of agricultural organizations opposing the park. "Nevermind that perhaps the Congress merely continues to recognize that there is no need for such action."

That same "powerful lobbying" by agricultural interests is credited by Garton as convincing the Kansas Senate to pass a resolution urging Congress to reject any bills to establish a Tallgrass Prairie National Park created from private lands. Two thirds of the people of the state live in urban areas. In these days of one man, one vote, it is difficult to understand how the agricultural lobbyists could be so powerful, if there were any real merit to the establishment of the park.

One major argument of the park proponents is that an example of every natural ecosystem should be "preserved" in the National Park System. The question arises whether there is such a thing as a "natural" ecosystem, if "natural" means an ecosystem that developed in the absence of man and his influence.

"Fire was a natural part of the early tallgrass ecosystem," said Garton. "Whether ignited by lightning or by Indians..." If man's influence is unnatural as implied by park proponents, but fire set by Indians is a part of the natural ecosystem, then the Indians must not be human — which obviously is not true. So something else must be wrong with their reasoning.

The truth of the matter is that man did have an influence in creating the tallgrass prairie environment, and that environment will continue to be better "preserved" without putting it into government's hands.

'Fundamental School' Results Encouraging

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "You were supremely euphoric and downright gung-ho a few months back in regard to the new 'Fundamental Schools' being established in places like Pasadena and Denver, designed to give parents interested in the basics an option for their children's education. How have these '3-R' schools worked out? Any data which would justify your original enthusiasm? How are the students achieving?" — M.K.V., Norwalk, Conn.

A — Very nicely, thank you. I have no late data from John Marshall School in Pasadena, but a recent wire service dispatch from Denver documents the phenomenal progress being made by students of the Jefferson County Fundamental School there.

At the time of the report, the school had been in operation only six months. During this time, its students gained as much as two years in basic skills. Principal Paul Rold in this connection voices the following blasphemies against the Holy Ghost of St. John Dewey:

"Our whole idea is based on order, discipline, high moral standards, respect and courtesy."

"We expect the children to be well-behaved. Teachers and children know what to expect of each other."

"When a child is finished with the third grade, he should know his multiplication tables. He should not have to look them up on a chart."

"We believe rote memorization is the way a child is going to learn the basics. When he has those, he can go on to explore kinds of learning. He has the tools."

I'll knock this off here so that I won't shock you unduly with more hair-raising heresies than one column should include, contenting myself with saying that the Fundamental School's "foundation program" in reading is based on phonics, takes just 16 weeks, and at the end of it all the children can read.

Principal Rold wraps up the whole incredible phenomenon with one simple statement, so unusual in this day and age as to be almost unbelievable: "Our children read fabulously!"

Of course they do. So would any children, taught with those techniques in this kind of school. And so would yours, gentle reader, so would yours.

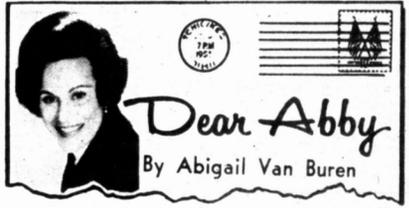

Q — "I've just read your column about innate intelligence and I agree with you. The school 'establishment,' with all its claptrap about making students out of ignoramuses by making the environment 'right for learning,' should be exposed, and you have made a good start."

"I am a retired English teacher. Once a college president urged his faculty to give special consideration to a worthless klunk because he was a big contributor's nephew. But the numbskull was impossible. I wrote the prexy a note in which I included the following parable:

"Once there was a master workman who had several people working under his direction. He gave them a stack of hardwood and ordered them to saw it, plane it, polish it and make a beautiful cabinet of it. They set to work and produced a beautiful and useful cabinet. Then he gave them a rotten log and told them to produce another such cabinet. But try as they might, they could not produce another such cabinet as they had made from the hardwood."

"I had hoped that the president — who had once been a preacher — would have understood the parable. I'll never know, for he didn't answer me." — L.E., Lansing, Tenn.

A — What could he have answered, after all? Seriously, education can improve and better all kinds of human raw material, from rotten logs to expensive hardwood. The one thing it cannot do is to transform the former into the latter. The errors in expecting more from education than it can conceivably deliver — in confusing education with a national magic wand.

Kids Score Dad for Escorting Secretary

DEAR ABBY: Our mother and father were going to a business meeting last weekend when my mother got the flu and couldn't go. My father's secretary, who had planned to go with them, decided that since she had a reservation, anyway, she would go with my father. She left her husband behind.

They are all good friends, but we all know that she cares about my father. There were lots of people there who know them, and we are sure that my father's being seen with his secretary alone caused a lot of talk.

My brothers and I are very upset that our father would do this to Mom, but none of us is saying anything because it might upset her.

We are 13 and 15. Do you think Dad should have taken his secretary to this affair?

UPSET FAMILY

DEAR UPSET: Since it was a business meeting, and the secretary was going with your parents, anyway, perhaps your father needed her there for business reasons. I'm not sure I know in which way or how much this secretary "cares" about your father — and neither do you, so don't jump to conclusions.

It might have looked better, however, had the secretary's husband gone along. But don't sweat it, kids — it could have been entirely innocent.

DEAR ABBY: My problem all started Friday night when I asked my dad if my friend could stay all night. My father said he could if we went to bed at 10.

I said, "Daddy, I'm 12 years old — almost 13," and then he said something to me, and I said, "What?" instead of "Sir?" and next thing I knew he said, "Now, it's 9:00 bedtime for you!"

Then I called him a "retarded ape," which was a big mistake because just for that he said I couldn't have any overnight company.

Abby, I am going to lose all my friends and nobody will ever want to stay overnight with me if I have to go to bed at 9:00.

Please help me.

A BABY AT 12

DEAR BABY: If you want to be treated as an adult, start acting like one. And you'd better get over that babyish name-calling bit.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sex problem that I have tried to handle myself, but it's not getting any better. I don't have a minister to talk to, and even if I did, I don't think I could discuss this with him.

You see, when my husband and I make love, I don't feel anything. I mean, I get aroused, but nothing happens. I'm 27 and have four children. Shouldn't I feel something?

This is my second marriage, and it was the same way with my first marriage. Does this mean I'm frigid?

I am afraid my husband will start shopping around for a replacement if I don't put a little more enthusiasm into my lovemaking. I pretend I'm getting something out of it, but I'm afraid I'm not very convincing.

Abby, please help me.

MISSING SOMETHING IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR MISSING: First, see your gynecologist. After a thorough examination, he will know if something physical needs correcting. If it's not physical, ask for his recommendation. Your local university has a human sexuality program that offers excellent counseling. If it's any comfort to you, your problem is far more common than you think.

Environmental Balance Needed

Just suppose you picked up the paper and read about the formation of a new environmental organization called "Society for the Preservation of Black Widow Spiders, Rattlesnakes, Sewer Rats, Mosquitoes and Houseflies."

The title alone would be enough to send you hurrying to your eye doctor for a checkup and the fitting of new specs.

Reading further, however, you find that the society was formed on the premise that black widow spiders, rattlesnakes, sewer rats, mosquitoes and houseflies are endangered species because human beings are always trying to kill them, therefore, that as parts of the natural environment, they ought to be preserved.

The purpose of the society, you are further informed, will be to lobby for laws prohibiting any human activity whatsoever which might interfere in any way with the propagation and health of the five species named.

Reading thusly, you would no doubt conclude that the society was made up of proper candidates for the booby hatch.

Yet, as ridiculous and far-out as all that might seem, it is hardly more so than things that are actually being done in the name of those two "sacred cows — ecology" and "environment."

Take, for instance, the minerals industry of this nation. Like the oil industry before it, it is slowly being regulated to death — the inevitable consequences of which will be, as in the case of oil, to put us in the mercy of foreign government-controlled metal cartels for the metals our economy must have if it is to survive.

And nowhere is the "man versus nature" (as if man, himself, were not part of nature) hysteria more evident than in the federal government's policy with respect to the mining of minerals on so-called public, but actually governmentally owned or controlled lands. No less than Dr. Jack W. Carlson, Assistant Secretary — Energy and Minerals, Department of the Interior, has seen the absurd and dangerous nature of that policy.

In a recent talk to the American Mining Congress ("Confused Federal Minerals Policy Staggers U.S. Economy," GT, October 1), Dr. Carlson warned that a melange of bureaus, agencies and departments in all branches of government had locked the mining industry out of so much promising federal land that the base of the economy was threatened. "This nation," he said, "has been working overtime to make it harder than ever to obtain raw minerals from domestic sources. This is being done in the face of our sharply growing need for new sources of minerals, and in spite of the lessons we learned about undue dependence on foreign sources of vital raw materials."

As late as 1968, Carlson pointed out, only 17 per cent of federal lands had been withdrawn. But today, just eight years later, 67 per cent of all federal lands (an area equal in size to every state east of the Mississippi except Maine, some 500 million acres) have been totally closed to mining and exploration.

Comparing the piecemeal withdrawal of land by self-serving empire-building government agencies to the fabled "death of a thousands cuts" (each cut in itself was not dangerous but, taken together, they killed the victim), Carlson warned that if the process is continued until 1980 all federal land, one third of the entire United States and some of our best mineralized areas, will be closed to mining.

And this, Carlson — himself an environmentalist in the proper sense of the term — pointed out, "cannot and must not happen." There is no reason, he concluded, calling for a policy based on multiple use of land, why land cannot be restored to other beneficial long-term use after the mineral resources have been extracted.

We agree. After all, man, being a part of nature himself, is entitled to some consideration.

Tribute To Mars

Mars should be pleased. Humanity is increasing its sacrifices at the altars of the war god.

The Institute of Strategic Studies, an international group of experts with its headquarters in London, finds that much of the new oil money that is being drained from the Western economy is going into weapons.

Iran and Saudi Arabia tripled their military budgets in the last year. Iran, at $10.4 billion, spent more than Great Britain.

Meanwhile the superpowers continued their arms spending at a high level — the United States at $430 per person, the Soviet Union $409.

Money spent for war is lost to peaceful purposes. The dollar that buys a gun cannot feed a starving child.

Some people believed that gold was begotten by the sun and that the heat of underground veins wholly burned everything they came into contact with, turning those substances into gold.

'Good Things Linked To Bad in Constitution'

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff

There are some good things in the proposed Constitution Texas voters will be asked to approve at the Nov. 4 election, but they are linked with too many bad things that will also become law if adopted.

That's what Jim Blair of the Amarillo law firm of Perdue, Blandon and Blair told Lions Club members Thursday at their weekly luncheon in First United Methodist Church.

Blair explained there are eight propositions on the ballot. However, he stated, each proposition contains several articles (not shown on the ballot) and a "yes" vote on any one of the propositions means that each article under that particular proposition is approved.

"The articles should not be confused with the propositions," Blair stated. "Voters cannot cast their ballots on the articles alone. A vote for the proposition includes a vote for all of the articles."

Blair said Article 8 of Proposition 1, for instance, would change the Texas tax system completely.

He stated Article 8 would do away with local equalization board and transfer local control from the counties, schools and cities to the state comptroller in Austin.

The comptroller would have the authority to fire local tax officials and would set farm valuations for tax purposes, he declared.

"If a farmer were to decide his assessment was too high and wanted to fight it," Blair said, "he would no longer have access to district court jurisdiction in his own area but would have to take his action in court at Austin.

"And," Blair added, "you know what his chances would be in that kind of situation."

Blair pointed out that in the proposed Constitution it is mentioned 154 times that the state legislature "may be general law" do this and that as it sees fit.

"That is taking the power away from local people and giving it to Austin," he said.

The proposed Constitution also would establish annual sessions of the state legislature and take away from the people the right to vote on salaries of their state legislators, he stated.

Under the proposed Constitution, Blair stated, a nine-man salary commission would be appointed by the governor, lieutenant-governor, attorney general and a couple of other top state officials.

Salaries of the nine-member salary commission would be set by the State Legislature.

"The nine-member salary commission then would set the salaries of the state legislators," Blair said, indicating it was rather peculiar arrangement.

Blair stated that under the proposed constitution there would be only one way for taxes to go.

"That would be up," he said. The Amarillo attorney concluded by saying:

"We have lived with our present Constitution for 100 years and Texas is financially one of the top states in the nation.

"I could talk much longer about the proposed changes, but it can be pretty well summed up when you say they would take power away from the people and move it to Austin, cause taxes to go up and increase state expenditures."

Salamites Tells Ford He's Nervous But Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford picked up his Oval Office phone Thursday and asked the young driver of the car that crashed into his limousine how he was feeling.

"I'm not hurt, but I'm pretty nervous," replied James Salamites, of Meriden, Conn., the 19-year-old sheet metal and roofing worker, who drove the 1967 Buick that collided with Ford's eight-ton, $500,000 armored limousine in Hartford Tuesday.

"You shouldn't be nervous," said the President. "Thank you for being such a fine young man in the way you handled it."

Salamites asked how the President was feeling. "I feel fine," Ford said. "It was kind of a jolt, but there were no body bruises." But the crash, he said, "shook the old bones."

The President said he saw Salamites' mother on television and she "sounds and looks like a great lady."

"She cried all night," said Salamites. The collision occurred when Hartford police failed to guard an intersection for the President's motorcade. Salamites had the green light and was not charged. Police said the alcohol count in his blood measured .05, "which denotes about two beers."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Thursday the White House limousine had seat belts, but the President wasn't using them. Nessen said he did not know if Ford ever uses the belts.

New Chamber Men Installed

New officers and directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce were inducted Thursday night at a dinner meeting in Coronado Inn.

Boyd Taylor, Cabot Corp. executive, was installed president to succeed outgoing president Gene Steel, general manager of Celanese Chemical Co.

Other chamber officials installed by Brac Biggers, president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, were J.C. Roberts, vice president; Arthur Aftergut, finance director and directors Dudley Steele, Bill Hite, Tim Hoiles, Veri Hagaman, Dr. Dan Long, Jerry Holmes, Clyde Carruth, Glen Turbeville and Ken Plotner.

Biggers told the new officers they were assuming important jobs that require a lot of work. "The community is depending upon you to make Pampa a better city," Biggers said. "The Chamber of Commerce is a serious business."

He told them the Chamber of Commerce is not a part of government, not a social club, not a civic club and not a welfare organization.

"It is a place where businessmen get together to make their town a better place in which to live," Biggers said.

"The community is depending upon you to perform a special task."

Taylor, new head of the chamber, congratulated outgoing president Steel and told other officers and directors he was looking forward to a "year of planning what we want Pampa to be."

"It should be an exciting bicentennial year ahead," Taylor said. "We can take pride in the 200th anniversary of our nation and the 50th anniversary of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. With your help and effort, we should have a good year."

Retiring president Steel was presented with a 1974-75 chamber year scrapbook by Mrs. Lois Steward and Mrs. Nancy Crocker, members of the chamber staff. The book contains in photographs and newspaper clipping of chamber activities under Steel's presidency.

The new officers and directors will officially assume their duties at the chamber's annual banquet Thursday, Oct. 30.

5000 Pounds Is Big Bust

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Authorities confiscated about 5,000 pounds of marijuana valued at $1.5 million at a farm owned by a former assistant U.S. attorney Thursday and arrested nine persons who a federal agent said were part of a nationwide ring.

The nine were charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver and they were scheduled for arraignment today, a spokesman at the Washington County sheriff's office said.

A spokesman for the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration at New Orleans identified the nine as William L. French, 30, and his wife, Barbara Rainsback French, 28, of Parthenon, Ark.; Kathy Savage, Maggie Lopez, Guy J. Payne, 53, of Muskogee, Okla.; Katherine Comerford, 31, of Oklahoma City; Frank D. Comerford, 29, of Concord, Mass.; Bruce R. Thompson, 26, of Chicopee Falls and Hampton, Mass., and Wayne M. Masterman, 28, of Hull, Mass.

"These arrests are only the beginning," said Ken Miley, deputy regional director of the DEA. "There is a continuing investigation into the international ramifications of this case."

UFO Pied Pipers From Texas

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Authorities say the son of a Texas Presbyterian minister and a nurse devoted to astrology are the pied pipers of a new religion promising a trip to a better life on another planet.

Marshall Herff Applewhite, 44, and Bonnie Lu Trusdale Nettles, 48, both of Houston, were identified Thursday as the couple previously known as "The Two" who recruited two dozen persons in Oregon for a journey on an unidentified flying object to "a higher life."

The Oregon followers, joined by others from Washington, Texas, California, Colorado, Wisconsin, Arizona and Canada, were last seen in an Illinois state park 45 miles northwest of Chicago.

The disappearance of the Oregon volunteers on the mission triggered a story that has been shrouded in religious mystique for weeks.

Investigators for the Oregon State Police and Lincoln County on the Oregon coast at Newport say the pair is not wanted on any criminal charge. However, it was learned they spent time in jail in Brownsville, Tex., after being arrested in Harlingen, Tex., last fall. Applewhite was arrested for allegedly failing to return a rental car that had been reported stolen, Miss Nettles for alleged misuse of a credit card. Applewhite, records showed in St. Louis, pleaded guilty and served four months in the county jail on the auto charge. Miss Nettles apparently never was prosecuted.

Melvin Gibson of the Oregon State Police said identification of the pair was made from photos sent from Texas with verification by a number of persons who attended a recruiting meeting in Waldport, 16 miles south of Newport, Sept. 14, after which the Oregon followers vanished.

The number of followers as reported camped at the Illinois park had reached about 70.

Applewhite taught music from 1966 to 1971 at University of St. Thomas in Houston. Miss Nettles reportedly worked as a nurse in the Houston area where she met Applewhite, according to The Houston Post. They called on that newspaper's religious editor to discuss their founding of something called the Christian Arts Center, which they told the paper was "devoted to studies in astrology, mysticism, healing, metaphysics, theosophy and comparative religion."

The Post said the woman had learned from her astrology charges the couple "knew each other in previous lives."

A spokesman for University of St. Thomas told The Oregon Journal in Portland that Applewhite was the son of a Presbyterian minister in Spur, Tex.

Harmful Lead Found In Canned Baby Food

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says potentially hazardous levels of lead are showing up in canned baby food.

Lead poisoning can cause brain damage and other problems, particularly in children. Lead in canned foods could come from the solder or other metal in the can.

In addition, the agency said it found that "lead levels in some adult canned foods are undesirably high from a long-range public health perspective."

The FDA said it will focus on getting the levels of the poisonous metal in canned baby and infant food curbed and also will seek reductions of lead levels in adult foods frequently eaten.

The agency announced the results of a survey it made of 2,900 samples of 41 different foods produced during 1973.

"Of the (canned) baby foods, orange juice had the highest mean lead level. Next in order in the baby foods were apple juice, applesauce, and peaches... vegetables and beef, and mixed vegetables, had the lowest means."

The FDA said the industry had reported a reduction in lead levels in canned juice since the survey was made and are now about half of what they were during 1973. "The overall results of the survey indicated that heavy metals in foods do not pose hazard to the American people, though total lead intake in children who ingest lead from sources other than food could represent a potential problem."

Children tend to absorb more lead from food than do adults. The highest levels of lead among the adult foods tested were found in canned tomatoes. Canned beans, peas and peaches were next in order, the agency said.

The National Canners Association said in a statement the industry is "continuing to make substantial progress" on programs to reduce lead levels.

Reagan To Run In Primary

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan, who has not announced as a presidential candidate for 1976, will run in the North Carolina Republican primary in March, the Charlotte Observer reported today.

The newspaper quoted sources close to Reagan as saying a "North Carolina Citizens for Reagan" campaign organization will be announced next week, and the actor-politician will announce his candidacy in mid-November.

"He's in for sure," the Observer quoted one source as saying. "He's a candidate."

The chairman of Reagan's North Carolina campaign organization will be backer Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the paper said.

The Observer said Reagan has formed similar campaign organizations in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois.

The newspaper said sources told them Reagan backers in North Carolina include prominent Republicans who, in the past, have been allied with Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr.

Holshouser already has announced his support for President Ford and has been named as his Southern campaign chairman. Holshouser, considered a moderate in the party, was in Oklahoma and Arkansas this week stumping for Ford.

The GOP presidential primary is scheduled for March 23. North Carolina delegates to the Republican nominating convention in Kansas City next summer will be bound by law to back candidates in proportion to the votes each receives in the primary in the first convention ballot.

Holshouser hopes to be the delegation's chairman for Ford and is expected to be play a strong part in the convention.

There already is a feud in the state GOP between moderate and conservative Republicans because Holshouser replaced former state GOP chairman Frank Rouse with his hand-picked choice for the post, Morehead City lawyer Thomas Bennett.

The newspaper said that backers of Reagan will include Raleigh attorney Tom Ellis, Helms' Senate campaign manager in 1972, and Elkin-city executive Hugh Chatham, who has donated $1,000 to Reagan's campaign.

Kissinger To Prepare For China Journey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today dispatched Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to China to prepare for his own visit and a new chapter in Sino-American relations, according to administration sources.

Kissinger, who wears his well-worn 1967 jet plane as a less traveled man might favor a pair of old slippers, was flying to Peking via Tokyo to arrange a visit by Ford after Thanksgiving Day.

The sources said Kissinger, whose first and secret mission to Peking opened the door for former President Richard M. Nixon's 1971 dramatic flight to China, will lay the groundwork for Sino-American relations being conducted not only without Nixon but minus Chinese Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, 82, and Premier Chou En-lai, 77.

Chou's condition has reportedly so worsened that it kept him away from that most halcyon of Peking fetes, the Sept. 30 celebration of the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

Grass Burns On Mobil Lease Near Lefors

The Lefors Fire Department was called Thursday to a Mobil lease site, 4 1/2 miles north of the city after a 60,000 voltage Southwestern Public Service line came down.

J.W. Franks, fire chief, said three to five acres of grass were burned.

He said the fire department stood by because "the way the wind blows and with tall grass one can never tell what will happen."

However, he said Southwestern Public Service officials arrived at the scene very quickly.

Argentine Government Mobilizes Police

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The Argentine government mobilized an "army" of 10,000 police today to guard against left-wing guerrilla attacks at a massive rally called by President Isabel Peron.

The Loyalty Day demonstration provided a dramatic test of strength for Mrs. Peron, who resumed office Thursday after a five-week leave of absence.

She planned to use the rally to make her first major speech since leaving Buenos Aires Sept. 13 to recuperate from nervous exhaustion at an air force resort in the Argentine countryside.

The Montonero guerrillas, representing the left wing of the Peronist movement, issued a communiqué this week accusing Mrs. Peron of representing "oligarchs and imperialists."

The guerrillas threatened to kill anyone attending the rally, which marks the 30th anniversary of a massive labor demonstration in support of her late husband and three-time president, Juan Domingo Peron.

Peronists loyal to the president, beating on drums and chanting slogans, ignored the death threat. Thursday night and decorated the plaza in front of the government palace with banners and posters in preparation for the rally.

To muster loyalist workers, the government declared a half-day holiday today for all employees within a radius of 60 miles of Buenos Aires.

Mrs. Peron's doctor has said she is in perfect health, but press reports said she is still weak and may take another leave of absence soon.

Political violence has soared since she took office in July, 1974. At least 543 persons have been killed this year in battles with leftist and rightist gunmen.

Nobel Physics Prize Awarded Belatedly

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The 1975 Nobel Physics Prize was awarded belatedly today to an American and two Danish scientists. An Englishman and a Swiss shared the Nobel Chemistry Prize.

The Swedish Academy of Sciences said the two chemistry winners were John Warcup Cornforth of England and Vladimir Prelog of Switzerland.

Cornforth, 58, is a professor at the Milstead Laboratory of Chemical Enzymology in Sittinbourne, Kent, England, while Prelog, 69, is a professor at the Eidgenossische Technische College in Zurich.

The two chemistry prize

winners were cited for their "understanding of biological processes."

The Nobel prizes are worth $143,000 this year.

The physics award, worth $143,000 will be shared by James Rainwater, 58, of Columbia University in New York and by Dines Aage Bohr, 53, and Ben Mottelson, 49, a onetime American who became a Danish citizen in 1973.

Bohr is the son of Niels Bohr, winner of the 1922 Nobel Physics Prize for his "investigation of the structure of atoms and the radiation emanating from them." The elder Bohr received his award the same year Albert Einstein was awarded the 1921 Physics prize which had been held up for a year.

In announcing the physics award, the Swedish Academy of Sciences said the three scientists won the prize for their discovery "of the connection between collective motion and particle motion in atomic nuclei and the development of the theory of the structure of atomic nucleus based on this connection."

Bohr is at the Niels Bohr institute in Copenhagen. Mottelson is at Nordita, the Nordic Institute for Technology in Copenhagen and is now on a one-month study visit to China. Rainwater is with the physics department of Columbia University.

Prof. Sten Johansson, a nuclear physicist and a member of the prize-awarding Nobel Committee, said he thought the three received their awards "too late."

"They came up with the idea during the early 50s and they should have gotten the prize much earlier," he said it was a "great fundamental discovery" and the most important since the 1920s.

Rainwater developed the theory that the atomic nucleus is not always spherical but can also be egg shaped.

"This has no immediate practical meaning but is extremely essential to scientists," Johansson said.

He said the theory was refined by the two Danes who proved the theory by experiments. Lamek Hulthen, a professor in mathematical physics, said their findings had helped to "understand the fusion process and the division of the atomic nucleus."

Constitution Topic For Monday Forum

The proposed Texas Constitution will be discussed by Dr. Donald Todd, associate professor of music at West Texas State University, at 7 p.m. open forum meeting Monday in the county courtroom of the Gray County Court House.

Dr. Todd will be introduced by J.C. Phillips, editor of the Borger News-Herald. The speaker will present his views on the proposed revision of the state constitution and will conduct a question and answer period dealing with the proposed changes.

The open forum meeting will be sponsored by the Top O' Texas Republican Women's Club.

Dr. Todd, concert master of the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra, is a graduate of Northwestern University, received his doctorate from the University of Illinois School of Music and currently is serving as president of the Texas Committee for the Constitution, Inc.

The proposed Constitution will come before Texas voters on Nov. 4 and Dr. Todd will present a program at the Monday night meeting designed to offer a better understanding of the propositions that appear on the ballot, according to Mrs. Twila Nunn of Pampa, president of the T O T Republican Women's Club.

"We hope the public will take advantage of this opportunity to learn details of the proposed constitutional changes," Mrs. Nunn said.

Court Martial Board Convicts Sergeant

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (UPI) — A court-martial board has convicted a 33-year-old staff sergeant, the first of nine Army drill instructors to be court-martialed on charges of soliciting money and favors from trainees.

Sgt. Marshall Wilhelm was convicted and sentenced Thursday to loss of $80 a month pay for four months, reduction in rank to sergeant and reprimand.

Pre-trial hearings were set for today for two other drill instructors, Sgt. John Dent and Sgt. Henry W. Caver.

Wilhelm's court-martial board deliberated an hour Thursday, then recalled six prosecution witnesses. After re-examining the witnesses the board returned the verdict of "guilty as charged."

Capt. Robert Williams, defense counsel, made a strong plea for leniency.

"Let's give him another chance," Williams said. "Don't take away his rank or his freedom. For a man with a proud military career, we submit that it is too much for a first offense."

Wilhelm testified that recruits gave him a birthday card with $50-$60 in it but denied any knowledge of how the money was collected from recruits.

Pvt. Larry Rhum, now stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va., testified Wednesday a birthday card and $66 was given to the sergeant at a formation. He said Wilhelm asked that the money be collected for his birthday.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that he got it because I was standing next to him when Pvt. Ronnie Smith handed him the envelope with the money in it," Rhum said.

A trainee's report that some drill sergeants had been paid money by recruits set off an investigation this summer. Thirty-four non-commissioned officers and a second lieutenant and several drill instructors were cleared, but others still are under investigation.

Elva Gauber, the blood drinker by night, had revived. As his ear touched the musty bedding, it brought to him once again the echo of footsteps... rhythmic, confident. They were eager. Elva Gauber was coming to seek again her interrupted repast.

The literature of horror holds many such moments of heart-stopping waiting in chilly moonlight for sweet and terrible death from the blood-thirsty kiss of nosteratu, the Undead Vampire, the evil that feeds on the very life-force of the innocent.

Some of the most exquisite horrors in the genre have been collected in Peter Haining's anthology, "Vampires at Midnight." John Poldoski's 1819 classic, "The Vampire," Montague Summers' seemingly journalistic, but grisly, "Fritz Haarmann"; Fritz Leiber's "The Girl with the Hungry Eyes" and Stephen Grendon's "The Drifting Snow," beautiful examples of the delicately feminine, and fatal, vampirism; and Ray Bradbury's complex and gripping blend of science-fiction, satire, and horror, in "The Pillar of Fire." Those stories vary widely in tone and texture, but all give you the pleasurable shudder of a convincing confrontation with the incomprehensible, the supernatural, primal evil, the dark depths of the soul. Haining's "Vampires at Midnight" will deepen and intensify the pleasures of Halloween, as that "cold-hearted orb that rules the night" rises over your house.

RAPID ROUNDUP
Thor HEYERDAHL, "Fatu-Hiva." Dr. Heyerdahl, author of "Kon-Tiki," tells of his first visit to the South Pacific, as a young newlywed, going "back to nature." Gauguin-style, to seek a direction for his life. He and his bride, Liv, build a bamboo hut, make fire with sticks rubbed together, and contend with fire, disease and insects, like modern Robinson Crusoes.

Eilat WIGGINTON, "Foxfire 3." More Appalachian crafts and tales, including the gathering of ginseng root, the making of cornshuck dolls, and the tanning of hides. Many illustrations.
Drew MALLROY, "Target Manhattan." A criminal mastermind demands $5,000,000 ransom... or he will drop a load of 500-pound bombs from a World War II surplus Flying Fortress, onto the densely packed humanity of mid-town New York. Can he be foiled?
John BRUNNER, "The

Shockwave Rider." "This man's different. He hasn't given up. On the shockwave of tomorrow he floats and leaps and is himself. For how long? At work day in, day out, and never weary, the patient emotionless computers are on the trial of this long fugitive who dares defy laws made to suit machinery, not men."

"Prize Stories 1975: The O. Henry Awards" - Edited by William Abrahams Doubleday and Co. Inc., Garden City, N.Y.C. 1975.

When I discovered the new O. Henry awards anthology on the library shelf, I rushed home with it greedily, visions of plummy stories from earlier O. Henry years dancing in my head.

Home, at last, I opened my box of treats, dug in, and found - not sugar plums or rich chocolate creams, but something more like the glassed-in goodies served up daily in New York City automats.

Well, such is life. Or rather, death. For death - of the body, the spirit, and sometimes both - is the theme of most of these tales. And with few exceptions, the protagonist is the alienated city dweller.

One gets taste after stale taste of plot and characterization plainly reminiscent of Sue Kaufman's "Diary of a Mad Housewife" and "Falling Bodies." Here and there, I found a flavor of warmed-up John Cheever.

Even E.L. Doctorow's "Ragtime," taken from his best-seller of the same name, seems little more than yellow journalism in Norman Mailer style.

The top winners, a tie between Harold Brodkey's "A Story in an Almost Classical Mode" and Cynthia Ozick's "Usurpation (Other People's Stories)," are both extraordinary, but in this reader's opinion, too long.

I liked Ann Arenberg's "Art History," possibly because of a hint of dry self-mockery usually found only in English literature.

Alice Adam's "Verlie I Say Unto You" is spare and moving; Patricia Zelver's "Norwegians" says some nice things about women without the usual militant American feminism.

One thing the writers of these stories have in common is a mastery of technique and command of the language that borders on the sublime.

In the last analysis, it's really their incredible gift of catching a thought or feeling in a net of perfect words that keeps you reading.

The O'Hara Concern, by Matthew J. Bruccoli.
(Random House, $15)

To John O'Hara, writing became as necessary as breathing.

When he wasn't at work on a novel, he was turning out short stories. At the height of his literary fame, he wrote opinion columns for a national magazine and a suburban paper. In his last years he peppered newspapers with letters to the editors on current topics and friends with letters on innumerable subjects.

Some critics contend that O'Hara would have been more successful as a novelist if he had been less productive. Still, he created a few fine novels and some of the best short stories written by an American. His Appointment in Samara, while dated, remains a lucid, telling portrait of upper middle class society in a small town.

O'Hara's writing made him a millionaire but never seemed to bring him the security for which he longed. A petulant, often cantankerous man, he remained throughout his life something of an outsider and ended his life in splendid exile in Princeton, N.J.

His biographer, an English professor at the University of South Carolina, writes with clarity and displays immense knowledge of the period in which O'Hara flourished. He is a leading authority on F. Scott Fitzgerald, an early friend of O'Hara's.

O'Hara was the product of a middle class upbringing in a small town, a background that furnished much of the material for his fiction. He won success early in his career and moved in the boisterous New York literary circles of the 1930s and 1940s. Like many of his cohorts, he did a scriptwriting stint in Hollywood.

But more fascinating than the encounters with prominent people of the era is the perplexing O'Hara character as revealed in his pounding ambition and touchy relations with others. The problems of marital sex and adultery run through almost all his work, and this may shed some light on O'Hara, the man.

Bruccoli has done a thorough, competent job of exploring the psyche of an odd, talented writer.

We Almost Lost Detroit, by John G. Fuller. (Crowell, $8.95) In 1956 an explosion at a nuclear power plant near Detroit was avoided by a hair's breadth. In this shocking book Fuller, a specialist in disaster books, spells out how it happened and how it might happen in the other 50 nuclear stations around the country. The atomic age has never seemed more hazardous.

May Limit Creditors On Questioning Women

By SARA FRITZ
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A final compromise by the

Baptists Study Spanish Church

The Maxine Ray round table and mission study group met October 8, in fellowship hall for business and a planning meeting.
Mrs. George Smith presided. Mrs. Ross Buzzard was chosen as assistant leader. Mrs. E.L. Anderson was selected and prayer chairman and Mrs. L.V. Hopp as telephone chairman. Claudia Everly will be reporter.
An offering was taken to aid the Spanish church here in Pampa.
Mrs. Hopp led the prayer calendar and Mrs. E.E. Shelhamer led in prayer for the missionaries.

Federal Reserve Board would limit the questions creditors could ask women applicants about their marital status or spouse's income.

The rules, which Federal Reserve officials promised to make public today, were written and revised once during the past year to reflect the Equal Credit Opportunity Act that goes into effect Oct. 28.

Although the new rules were final and portrayed as a compromise, they could promote a new battle between creditors and women's groups, who claim creditors discriminate against women applicants.

The final rules generally would provide a woman more access to credit by prohibiting a creditor from asking female applicants certain questions about their marriage status or her spouse's income.

The first preliminary regulations issued April 23 raised complaints from the creditors that the Federal Reserve Board had favored women. A second proposal issued Sept. 8 prompted women to charge that the creditors had gained the upper hand.

The key dispute between these two groups was a provision in the original proposal that would have required creditors to provide a written statement to any rejected credit applicant who requested an explanation. That rule was dropped from the second proposal.

The women's groups also complained that the second proposal opened a loophole that would have allowed creditors to ask about the "childbearing intentions" of a woman credit applicant. Such questions were prohibited in the original draft.

In a private meeting with about a dozen congresswomen last Sept. 18, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns and several other board officials reportedly promised to rewrite the final regulations to ban child-bearing or birth control questions.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A newly patented contraceptive device combines features of the pill and intrauterine devices — and is safer and more effective than either method, a Chicago gynecologist says.
Dr. Antonio Scommegna, inventor of the "Progesterone IUD," said Wednesday the device has been tested in 6,000 women during the last four years and proved 99 per cent effective.

The Food and Drug Administration is considering applications to place it on the U.S. market, he said. It already has been approved for sale this year in Britain, Canada, Mexico and West Germany.

Scommegna, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Michael Reese Hospital, developed the device under a Ford Foundation grant.

The contraceptive is fashioned after an IUD except it is smaller, more pliable and "eliminates some of the pain and bleeding" of the IUD, Scommegna said.

It is implanted in the uterus and is designed to prevent pregnancy by slowly releasing a progestational agent identical to the hormones released from the human ovaries after ovulation.

"Progesterone is the first naturally occurring substance that has been used in birth control," Scommegna said. "It is manufactured in the laboratory."

Birth control pills contain synthetic progesterin, which often causes uncomfortable drug-related side effects, he said.

In use, the "Progesterone IUD" should be replaced at least once a year.

Application of the device is much simpler than standard IUD's which have come under FDA scrutiny, he said.

He said 80 per cent of the women who tried the device were still using it at the end of a year, and only 60 of the 6,000 became pregnant.

Birth Control Pills May Carry Warnings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration said today it soon will propose new labels for birth control pills advising women over 40 not to take the pills and warning all users they may risk blood clots and heart attacks.

The labels, on both the packages the doctor receives and the brochures available to the patient, will suggest that women over 40 not take the pill.

The warning also will state that the women who become pregnant despite the pill run the risk having children with birth defects or suffering complications during pregnancy.

The new labeling will update and revise current warning labels to reflect various studies which have been made the past several years. An estimated 10 million American women use oral contraceptives.

Earlier this year, the FDA issued a drug bulletin saying women past 40 are more than five times more likely to suffer a nonfatal heart attack than younger women taking the pill. The FDA said the new labeling would reflect that earlier warning.

The agency also said the new language on the label will state there is no longer any doubt that there is a link between taking the pill and blood clots and related diseases such as strokes.
The draft proposal also states that the FDA believes there is no connection between the pill and cancer, as the agency long has contended.

A British study earlier this year reported that women on the pill ran a risk of nonfatal heart attacks that was 2.7 times greater than women not taking it.

Doctor Demonstrates 'Reverse Vasectomy'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A doctor demonstrated a "reverse vasectomy" operation which he told fellow physicians Wednesday has enabled some of his patients to become fathers.

The operation was performed at San Francisco Veterans Hospital and color telecast to the annual meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Sherman J. Silber, of the University of California School of Medicine, developed the technique by experimenting on the tiny blood vessels of animals.

He said in 19 consecutive similar operations the men have since become fathers or have a baby on the way.

"With the sadly increasing rate of divorce and remarriage in this country we may expect to see an increasing number of men requesting vasectomy reversal," said Silber.

He said most men who want to regain their fertility "have a history of divorce and remarriage and wish to have a child by their new wife."

Silber said the loss of the power to conceive children through vasectomy—the cutting of sperm tubes—has been generally considered almost irreversible up to now. Less than one-fourth of those having the vasectomy reversed through standard surgery were able to become fathers afterwards, he said.

One of the advantages of studying books on play is that the student becomes familiar with many standard, recurring types of situations. Thus, when he is confronted with one of them at the table, he is spared the time and trouble of working it out.

In the deal presented below, our South declarer encountered one of these book plays. He handled it correctly.

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

North and South were employing the Stayman Convention. North's two-club bid asked South to name a four-card major suit, if he had one. The two-diamond response denied possession of a four-card major.
West's six of clubs opening lead was taken promptly by dummy's ace. The nine of diamonds was laid down next, and the finesse taken, losing to West's king. West was now stymied. If he cashed the club king, he would fell his partner's queen; and, simultaneously, promote South's ten-spot into a stopper. If West led a low club instead, East would win the trick with the queen — but he would have no club to play back.

Had declarer played low from dummy on the opening club lead, he would have gone down. In this case East's queen would have won the trick, and a club return would have driven out the board's ace. West, upon obtaining the lead with his king of diamonds, would then have cashed three club tricks.

Declarer's play of the club ace at trick one had to be correct. If the adversely held clubs were divided 4-3, South would lose only three club tricks whether he took the ace or didn't. The worry was that West possessed five clubs.

If the latter were the setup, then East had either the doubleton K-x, the Q-x, or the J-x, since West would not have led the six-spot (as his fourth-highest) from an original holding of K-Q-J-x-x. Hence, by putting up the club ace at trick one, South knew that East would now have remaining either the singleton king, queen, or jack; and that the defenders, if they obtained the lead, would be unable to cash four club tricks. South's play of the club ace "blocked" the club suit.

YOUTH NOT POLITICAL

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Baby doctor Benjamin Spock believes today's young people are wonderful, but not political enough.

"They're still wonderful, even though not as political as I think they should be," he said.
Dr. Spock, here to address a hospital seminar, said he gets fewer invitations than he once did to speak to militant student groups.

"Students are more cautious" than in the 1960s, the pediatrician said Wednesday. "They don't feel they have to be active now because no one is asking them to go out and kill."

EDY DRESSES UP
LOS ANGELES (UPI) —

Nude movie actress Edy Williams dressed in uncharacteristically sedate fashion for a court hearing Wednesday on a divorce petition filed by her estranged husband, sex movie producer Russ Meyer.

Miss Williams, 33, known for her camera-attracting costumes in public, wore a conservative suit and had her long hair in a spinsterish bun. She tried to escape photographers after the hearing by leaving through the judge's chambers. A photographer said a woman with her grabbed and scratched him when he photographed them.

Meyer, 52, filed for divorce in December and obtained a restraining order forbidding his wife to shoot him or use any dangerous weapon against him.

Many Refugees Await Sponsors

Copley News Service

NEW YORK — It will soon be six months since the first Indochinese refugees arrived on American shores after the fall of Vietnam to the Communists, and a number are still waiting in barracks and tents to start life anew.

Religious organizations — Protestant, Catholic and Jewish — are conducting active campaigns to find sponsors for the still homeless refugees, most of them Vietnamese families, but thus far they have encountered bigotry and resistance borne out of a continued reaction against the war in Indochina and out of fears that the new arrivals will deprive Americans of jobs.

There is a growing concern that as the Indochinese situation fades deeper into the back pages of newspapers and off the television screens, public awareness of the plight of the refugees will fade, and with it concern for their futures.

More than 130,000 Indochinese refugees are either in the United States or waiting on Western Pacific islands to be brought here. Of these, 100,000 have been resettled in communities large and small, often with entire church congregations as sponsors, but about 35,000 wait in four transition camps, the prisoners of American red tape, while others are still overseas.

A spokesman for Church World Service, the branch of the National Council of Churches that is working with the new arrivals, said that the longer the refugees stay in the camps, the lower their morale will become and the more difficult it will be for them to adjust to the American way of life.

The Department of Immigration and Refugee Service of the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A. has been conducting a letter-writing campaign to 3,000 potential sponsors and to Lutheran pastors urging them to help resettle Vietnamese families, which often include aunts, uncles and grandparents, as well as couples and their children.

The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board has settled more than 1,000 refugees but many still are in temporary camps for whom homes are being sought.

Recent figures showed that nearly 90,000 refugees had arrived at the centers at Camp Pendleton, Calif.; Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; Ft. Chaffee, Ark.; and Indiantown Gap, Pa., and only about 30,000 had been processed out. A large number were waiting passage to the United States.

Nine agencies, four of them religious, are involved in resettlement under contract to the government. The religious bodies, in addition to Church World Service and the Lutheran organization, are the U.S. Catholic Conference and the United Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society (HIAS). The Seventh-day Adventists, Southern Baptists and Assemblies of God are working with Church World Service. Some of the missionaries these groups formerly maintained in South Vietnam are working in the refugee camps.

Although some of the resettlement projects have been heartwarming — including the incorporation of an entire orphanage into a children's Baptist home in Dallas — the acceptance rate has declined.

In an effort to revive interest, the heads of the three major Lutheran bodies — the American Lutheran Church, the Lutheran Church in America and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod — sent mailgrams to their congregations pointing out that "the situation in the refugee camps is critical." They emphasized that the refugees are becoming anxious about their futures and concerned about their children as they wait to start new lives "in a nation they do not know or understand."

"Every day in camp for a family is a day of tragedy," the message said. "Time is of the essence."

Commentary: Methodists And Kent State Again

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

When the concerns of churches or church people collide—or even gently touch—with issues that are perceived as generally secular, one can expect a lot of raised hackles.

When those concerns are also accompanied by misinformation the results can be truly alarming.

A dramatic instance of both those principles can be seen over the recent controversy stirred by reports that United Methodist Church's Board of Church and Society was channeling trial expense money to the victims or families of victims of the Kent State tragedy in order for them to challenge state officials and National Guardsmen in court.

Some newspaper accounts, at the time of the Aug. 27 court decision absolving the Ohio officials and guardsmen of personal liability for deaths of the four Kent State students, said the Board of Church and Society was paying up to $235,000 in court costs.

"Telephones began to ring and mail to arrive in the offices of the board and of the bishops and district superintendents in Ohio, asking whether this was true and what authority the board had to spend denominational funds this way," said Winston Taylor, a denominational communications official.

This is not a new phenomenon, either for the United Methodist Church or other Protestant denominations. Throughout the 1960s, as national church bodies became more outspoken in such areas as civil rights and the antiwar movement, grass roots lay and clerical who differed with the positions often challenged them and frequently, as a means of protest, withheld funds from the national agency.

Bob Buess To Address Fellowship

Bob Buess, an ordained Southern Baptist minister, for 20 years will speak at the Monday meeting of the Full Gospel Men's Fellowship International's Spearman chapter.

The meeting will be at Martin Steak Gardens in Spearman, with dinner at 7 p.m. and the program at 8 p.m.

Buess was a missionary to the Indians for 12 years.

George Collard is president and Harold Groves is secretary.

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International was formed in 1953.

Action Church Is Theme For Revival

The 20th Century Church in Action will be the theme for a revival at the Calvary Baptist Church Saturday to Oct. 26.

The speaker will be Evangelist Phillip Watson of Stamford. Local officials have invited every resident of Pampa and the area to attend.

Revival music will be provided by John Glover, minister of music at the First Baptist Church in Pampa.

Two services are scheduled daily including a 12 noon salad luncheon and Bible study, and the 7 p.m. evangelistic service.

Baptist Group Enlists

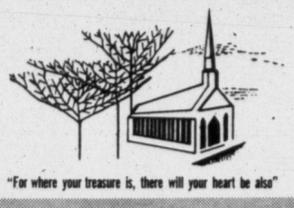

Members of Baptist Young Women of First Baptist Church held an enlistment meeting Oct. 8, in Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. Joe Stewart presided.

The program consisted of a review of the Baptist Young Women handbook by Mrs. Stewart, a fashion show where members modeled various ensembles and then told a phase of Baptist Young Women work that would interest new members, and a noon luncheon.

An investment in Your Future

...ATTEND CHURCH

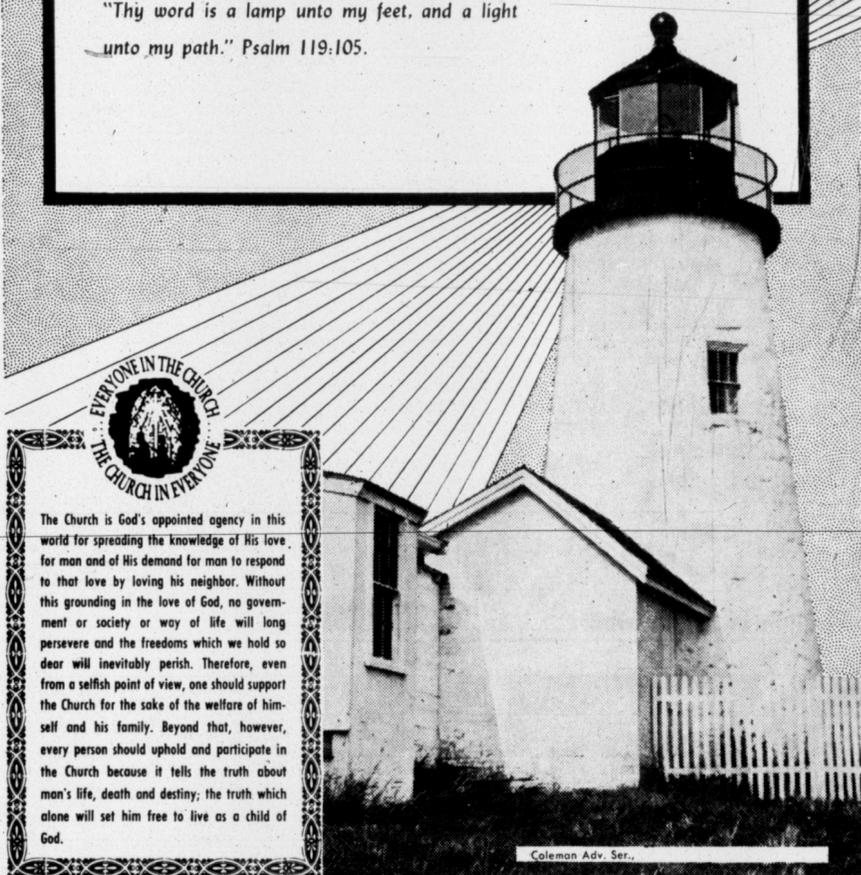

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

The Protecting LIGHT

This lighted tower is a light shining in the darkness to guide sailors and ships through the night. Our Lord is our light who guides us faithfully through life, even though it be as a stormy sea — He knows the way. His word, as proclaimed in His church, will light your way and bring peace, joy and comfort.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Psalm 119:105.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'Horns Host PHS As 3-4A Play Opens

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Amarillo Caprock and Pampa have so much in common you probably could give them identical uniforms and not be able to tell the teams apart as they played.

The two schools open District 3 - AAAA action at 7:30 p.m. today in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium. In other district games, Amarillo High travels to Borger today, while Amarillo teams Palo Duro and Tascosa tangle at 2 p.m. Saturday in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Statistically, there is little difference between Pampa, last year's district runner-up, and Caprock, the third-place team. Prior to this season, Caprock and Pampa were ranked first and second, respectively, while Palo Duro was a close third.

Caprock currently is No. 2 in total offense, averaging a shade less than 300 yards per contest. Pampa is third, averaging 272.8 yards. Defensively, the situation is just the opposite — Pampa is second, allowing 207 yards, while Caprock follows with a 214.8 clip.

"I think it's gonna be one heckuva ball game," Caprock coach Ray Basinger said earlier this week. "If Pampa wins the first one, that puts them in the driver's seat, for awhile, anyway."

Thursday, Basinger repeated his prediction, although he sounded a little more worried.

"Pampa has the offense that can score from 90 yards out as easy as they can from five yards. We don't have anyone with the speed of (Mike) Glover or those other twg running backs (Ricky Moore and David Caldwell)."

Moore and Glover have gained 567 and 236 yards on the ground in non-conference play. Quarterback Garland McPherson and halfback Caldwell, who has seen limited action, have picked up 302 and 56 yards.

Caprock, like Pampa, is a run-oriented team. Halfback Chuck Velasquez ranks third, behind Palo Duro's Robert Sillivent and Moore, in rushing with 536 yards on 111 carries. He has rushed more than any other 3-AAAA-ball carrier.

Quarterback Bobby Stewart has gained 311 yards, while fullback Dennis Skelton has 287.

"We're primarily a running team and we're gonna run," Basinger said. "We're also gonna pass."

Perhaps the reason Caprock will pass is the success Lubbock Monterey's Scott Gardner had against Pampa last week. The 6-5 Gardner completed 11 of 18 passes for 158 yards to spearhead a 14-0 win, Pampa's loss of the season.

"I thought Pampa played good on defense," the Caprock boss said. "The big thing probably was Monterey got that fumble down there and got that early touchdown."

Monterey jumped to a 7-0 lead with 4:59 left in the first quarter when David Walden circled left end and ran 13 yards. That was the first play after Monterey recovered a Pampa fumble.

Basinger also singled out Gardner's performance as a reason for Pampa's demise.

"I don't think we have a Scott Gardner. I think our passer (Stewart) is adequate but I don't think he's anywhere in Gardner's category.

"I'd hate to play Monterey and that passer."

Basinger implied one key to stopping Pampa will be stopping Moore, who has scored five touchdowns on the ground and is averaging 6.3 yards per carry. Basinger compared Velasquez to the Pampa Junior.

"Chuck is just a hard running back like Moore is a hard-running type of back. Chuck hits the soft spot real good and he's got good forward lean."

One of the few differences in the teams is Pampa's edge in backfield speed. Stewart, surprisingly, is Caprock's fastest man (4.7 in the 40). Skelton and Velasquez are not fast (4.8 and 4.9 in the 40).

Pampa's backs are in the 4.5 to 4.6 range.

Pampa coach John Welborn hopes that will be an advantage.

"I hope it is. It all depends on how well we execute the option," said Welborn, who is entering his second district schedule as Harvester coach.

"They try to four-five-six yards you to death."

They try to keep it all night. They're not extremely quick or explosive but they make yardage, make first downs.

The thing about Caprock is the fact they don't make many mistakes. They play good, sound defense and they're aggressive.

About Velasquez, Welborn said, "I won't say he's the key but he is such a good runner. He's hard to get a good shot at — he's elusive and real wily."

"I don't think you disregard Stewart on the option or the fullback."

Caprock lost its opener to Odessa Ector 31-12 but has won four straight.

Caprock has improved tremendously from that ball game. They're an awful good team.

Perez Homers Reds To Lead

BOSTON (UPI) — Tony Perez broke out of his 0-15 series slump and hit two home runs Thursday night pushing the Reds to the brink of their first World Series championship in 35 years with a 6-2 win over Boston.

With a 3-2 edge in games, the Reds need only to win one of the two remaining games at Fenway Park to win their first championship since 1940 when they beat the Detroit Tigers in seven games.

"My wife gave me a pep talk before the game," said Perez, who slammed a solo homer to tie the game 1-1 in the fourth and a three-run shot to put it out of reach in the sixth. "She said it was going to be my day."

Reds manager Sparky Anderson tried reverse psychology. "Doggie," he said, "do yourself a favor and don't get a hit for the rest of the world Series. You know those little boys of yours, Victor and Eduardo. If you don't get a hit, they can tell their kids someday Grandpa set a World Series record that nobody else ever touched. What'd ya say?"

"I don't want the record," Perez said.

It was Perez' hits that won the game and the pitching of Don Gullett that kept the Sox scoreless.

Gullett, the classy 24-year old southpaw, gave up a triple to Denny Doyle, which became the first Boston run in the first, and didn't give up another until Dwight Evans singled with one out in the eighth. At one stage, Gullett retired 16 straight batters, six on strikeouts.

"This was one of the best games I've ever pitched," said Gullett, who was taken out in the ninth when the Red Sox scored again on singles by Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk and a double into the right field corner by Fred Lynn.

"He was tired, plumb tired," said Anderson. "Sometimes when he tries for the last out, his pitches straighten out."

Reliever Rawly Eastwick didn't waste a moment, striking out Rico Petrocelli on three pitches.

Leading 2-1, the Reds got their leadoff runner on base in the sixth when Cleveland walked Joe Morgan on a 3-2 pitch. Johnny Bench then followed by hitting what looked to be a possible double play ball between first and second.

Second baseman Denny Doyle broke the wrong way and the ball rolled into right field for a base hit. The throw from right fielder Evans went over third baseman Rico Petrocelli's head, off the protective fence in front of the Red Sox dugout, putting runners on second and third and setting up Perez' second home run.

GO HARVESTERS — Pampa High cheerleaders, including Becky Snell, left, lead Pampa football fans in a yell Thursday evening downtown. The pep rally was sponsored by the downtown merchants. Pampa travels to Amarillo today to open district play against Caprock. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Dick Bivins Stadium. (Pampa News photos by Michal Thompson and Robert Echols)

Volleyers Trip Rebs

Pampa played its best match of the season, according to Coach Lynn Wolfe, and whipped Amarillo Tascosa 15-8, 14-8 in a district girls volleyball match Thursday in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The win gives Pampa a 13-6 season record and 2-1 district mark.

"The varsity played better than they ever have played," Mrs. Wolfe said. "I hope they can keep this up — I hope they weren't playing over their heads."

"Pam Edgar spiked several, downed them — they didn't get them back. And she blocked several. Wanza Jernigan played real well in the back court and returned Tascosa spikes. She also served seven in a row."

Sherri Free and Theresa Walsh (setters) picked up a lot of spikes and played real good defense.

In the junior varsity match, Tascosa won 15-11, 15-7 and Pampa fell to 6-5 and 0-3.

Both Pampa teams will travel to Amarillo High Tuesday. The Sandies are heavily favored in District 3 - AAAA.

Shockers, Sophs Win

AMARILLO — The Pampa Shockers came from behind twice to edge Amarillo Palo Duro 14-12 in a junior varsity football game Thursday afternoon here.

Palo Duro jumped out to an early first-quarter lead on Mike Stumbo's three-yard run. The conversion ran failed.

Early in the second period, Pampa quarterback Mike Lancaster passed seven yards to Gary Dumas for the tying score. The extra-point attempt failed.

Midway through the third period, Randy Messososi broke 55 yards for the go-ahead score for Palo Duro. The Chicos again failed to pick up the extra points.

Eddie Keller scored on a five-yard run in the middle of the final quarter to tie the game. Levi Bailey ran for two points to put the Shockers in front.

Pampa is 2-3 for the season. In an evening game in Harvester Stadium, the Pampa sophomores, behind the running of Mark Coufal and Dean Smith, whipped Guymon, Okla.'s junior varsity 19-7.

The sophomores are 4-0-1 for the season.

Grid Powers May Have Easy Week

NEW YORK (UPI) — The coaches of the major powers love this kind of week.

The opposition is just good enough they can spend the entire week moaning and groaning. But, they know the opposition is of a caliber to be ground into oblivion.

Top-ranked Ohio State meets Wisconsin. Oklahoma plays Kansas State. Southern California goes against Oregon. Texas A&M plays with TCU, etc.

The coaches gloomily warn. Their record is deceiving. They're the best 1-4 team in the country.

They really say things like that.

A case can be made for Wisconsin giving the Buckeyes a tough game in Columbus Saturday. The Badgers have a great running back in Billy Marek and were tabbed as challengers for the Big Ten crown during the preseason.

But instead of coming into the game this year with a few upset victories under their belt as in last year, the Badgers have been tagged with a few losses.

And, when things looked so promising last year with the red-hot Badgers meeting the Buckeyes in Madison, what was the final score? 52-7.

"Guess" who's the 25-point favorite this week?

Oklahoma fans have been upset by the Sooners inability to bury foes under their usual mountain of points. Things have gone so sour bookies are only giving 20 points for Oklahoma.

Southern California chances against Oregon are slightly better — 28 points.

But Michigan against Northwestern is a different story. The Wildcats are tied for the Big Ten lead with a 2-0 conference record.

Speaking in context of the conference, Michigan coach Bo Schembechler said, "They may be the most prolific team in offense."

But Michigan is a 27-point favorite.

Texas A&M, however, grabs the honors as heavy favorite with a 29-point spread over TCU.

Other major contests Saturday seen as rollovers have Penn State by 15 over Syracuse, Florida 23 over Florida State and Alabama by 20 over Tennessee.

There are a few contests which could be competitive.

Eighth-ranked Texas meets Arkansas in a crucial South-west Conference game.

Fourth-ranked Nebraska, with an impressive 5-0 record at home, plays its first road game against Oklahoma State in one of two vital Big Eight contests. No. 10 Missouri and No. 11 Colorado meet in the other.

Other major games have Arizona State against Colorado State, Arizona against Texas Tech, Notre Dame against Air Force, Pittsburgh against Army, San Diego State against New Mexico State and Miami of Ohio against Ohio University.

Cross Country Meet Slated

Pampa's cross country team, coming off a seventh-place finish in its own meet a week ago, will compete in the Borger Invitational Cross Country Meet Saturday.

The meet will include Pampa, Borger and Amarillo High, Caprock, Palo Duro and Tascosa.

In Saturday's Pampa meet, Brownfield won with 40 points to finish ahead of Amarillo 53, Lubbock Monterey 68, Tascosa 88, Caprock 136, Palo Duro 169, Pampa 206 and Hereford 107.

Pampa runners were Robert Thaxton, No. 34, 12:38; Clinto Henry, No. 37, 12:54; Pete Myers, No. 43, 13:27; Tim Anderson, No. 44, 13:31; and Taron Moore, No. 45, 13:45.

Danny Martinez of Lubbock Monterey won the meet in 11:26

Harvesters In Tourneys

AMARILLO — Both Pampa High golf teams are among entrants in the Amarillo High School Invitational Golf Tournament today at Ross Rogers Golf Course and the Amarillo public golf course.

The four Amarillo schools, Pampa, Borger, Canyon, Hereford and Lawton, Okla., are playing for the team championship.

The boys' tourney is being played at the Amarillo Public Golf Course, while the girls are meeting at Ross Rogers.

Sports Page

Lefors Wins 1st

LEFORS — Mike Steele returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown, then ran over the conversion to pace Lefors to an 8-0 win over Groom in junior high football action Thursday.

Lefors closed out its season with a 1-6 record.

Lefors coach Don Parson was pleased with his team's first win.

"They did an outstanding job on defense," Mike Graham, a defensive back, Ricky Spain, a defensive guard, and Steve Span, a defensive guard and tackle and Mike Rowe, cornerback, played real well.

"I was real happy that they did win. The entire team did a real good job. I don't think Groom got past the 50-yard line, but three or four times."

Pampa Hosts Tennis Affair

The Pampa High School Invitational Tennis Tournament began this morning at the high school courts with Tascosa, Borger, Caprock and Pampa battling for the team trophy.

Tascosa is an overwhelming favorite to capture the team title. Among the top players entered in the tourney are Tascosa's Alexis Hefley and Sharon Satterwhite.

Dumas, BHS Bump Pampa

Dumas whipped the Pampa varsity 36-21 in ninth-grade football action Thursday in Harvester Stadium.

Pampa's touchdowns came on an 80-yard kickoff return by Steve Duke (David Anderson kicked the extra point), a 55-yard pass from Rick Dougherty to Doug Skaggs (passed failed) and a 45-yard run by Julian Clark (Duke ran the conversion).

Pampa fell to 1-4 with the loss.

In an either-grade contest, Borger edged the Pampa Red team 6-0. Pampa is 4-2 for the season.

Washington Watch

Tower, Bentsen Split On Federal Aid to NYC

By B.H.L. CHOYKE Pampa News Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — The state's two senators — Lloyd Bentsen, D-Houston, and John Tower, R-Wichita Falls — have opposing views on whether the federal government should aid financially troubled New York City.

oppose "any direct or indirect assistance" to New York City. He warned that federal aid might "encourage" other municipalities to fall into a pattern of deficit spending which helped cause New York City's problems.

New's Washington Bureau, Bentsen said he generally favored short-term federal aid to municipalities. However, a key element in Bentsen's plan would require New York City to show a balanced budget for two years and a capability to pay off the financial notes.

Administration, which had adamantly opposed federal assistance of New York City, appeared to waiver from its initial position several days ago. Secretary of the Treasury William Simon called for an "immediate study" of the costs to the federal government for assuming New York City's welfare costs.

HUNGRY CHILDREN TRUJILLO, Peru (UPI) — About half of all Peruvians under five years of age are undernourished. At least one and a half million children out of the nation's total population of 16 million population are undernourished, said Dr. Orlando Ramos at a nutrition convention in this northern Peruvian city.

Dr. Ramos, who was president of the convention, said another 400,000 Peruvians suffer from mental retardation or underdevelopment caused by nutrition problems.

CRICKET CRISIS BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The British colony in Argentina is concerned about a shortage of cricket bats and balls. Import restrictions due to the country's staggering foreign debt have made it difficult to bring in new cricket equipment. Enthusiasts of the sport who travel to Britain or Australia are bringing back small numbers of bats and balls in their luggage to relieve the shortage.

Card of Thanks

E.S. (Slim) Overall We would like to thank our friends and neighbors, Lamar Full gospel, First Assembly of God, for all the lovely food and floral arrangements. We want to thank Rev. Priest and Rev. Allen for their comforting words and concern. The lovely music was a message in itself. We thank Dr. Bellamy for his care of our loved one, and Carmichael - Whitley for the impressive service. Slim's philosophy in life was, "take one day at a time."

'People Don't Really Die'

DETROIT (UPI) — Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, who has counseled thousands of terminally ill patients, is convinced that "people don't really die."

psychiatrist, author of "On Death and Dying" and two other books on death, says she knows "beyond the shadow of a doubt" there is life after death.

stories of someone who has worked with too many dying patients," she said. "It is a good feeling to be able to say after many years that people don't really die."

present having their new life ended, she said.

College Dedication Set

The newest community college campus in Kansas will have its formal dedication ceremonies on Sunday, Nov. 2.

classrooms; and the Student Activities Center, highlighted by a bi-level Student Union, a multi-use gymnasium and an indoor swimming pool.

She described her experiences with dying patients at a conference of medical specialists at Detroit's Children's Hospital Wednesday.

"In fact," she said, "it is such a beautiful experience that many of them resent being brought back to their physical body."

Dr. Wade Kirk, president of Seward County Community College in Liberal, has announced.

The campus has recently won two major national architectural awards for innovative utilization of space, and will be open during dedication day for visitors to tour.

Many patients declared legally dead who are later revived.

She says she has interviewed hundreds of patients who were declared legally dead and were later revived and that the details of their experiences were remarkably similar.

Top Suggestion

D.E. Livingston, field operator of Phillips Petroleum Company's Natural Resources Group, Pampa area, has been awarded $385 for his suggestion concerning the savings of gas during compressor repairs.

Dr. Carl Eisdorfer, chairman of psychiatry at the school's Medical Center, said "just because someone has wrinkles or gray hair, that doesn't mean you can write them off."

Bicyclists To Ride Sunday For Cancer

He said those with COBS can be treated. "There are hundreds of treatment programs and most of them work," he said.

Area bicyclists will meet at 1 p.m. Sunday at Coronado Center to leave on the 30-mile trip around the city for the Cancer Fund.

"Every apparent cognitive loss does not necessarily mean a chronic brain syndrome with irreversible change," he added.

Sponsored by the Pampa Jaycees, the event is open to anyone who can ride a bicycle, said Mrs. John Triplehorn, a Jaycee - ette who is working with the project.

He said those with COBS can be treated. "There are hundreds of treatment programs and most of them work," he said.

Riders who need sponsors and persons interested in additional information may contact Mr. or Mrs. Triplehorn after 5 p.m., Mrs. Charles Milam or Mrs. Benny Horton.

PTA Hears Psychologist

The speaker for the October meeting of the Pampa Parent Teacher Association City Council meeting at Carver Center was Floyd Robertson, director of the Pampa Family Services Center.

machinery when it is in good working order," he said.

The center is one of several in the Panhandle operating on state and federal funds.

The center employs work with outpatients from Vernon State Hospital and the Amarillo Psychiatric Center.

Robertson, a clinical psychologist, said there are many prescriptions for good physical health, but few people are aware that there are rules for good mental health.

Officials say the service allows many persons to remain at home instead of being hospitalized.

He listed hobbies, involvement in groups and interest outside of home.

Lee Baggerman, president, presided over the session. Darlene Cross presented the devotional.

Sisters Set Meeting

The district meeting of the Pythian Sisters Temple 41 and Sister Knights is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday in Amarillo.

Special music was presented by Mrs. Doris Wilson.

Announcement was made during a banquet here Tuesday night at Furr's Cafeteria.

Amarillo guests included Mrs. Esther Burgess, Mrs. Alma Bringle and Mrs. Wilma Perchell.

Two grand officers of Texas, Mrs. Naomi Frost, grand chief, and Mary Frances Talley, grand protector, were honored during the banquet.

Also present were Joyce Howell, Aletha Altman, Stacy Stubbs, Pearl Barnard, Marie Boyd, Annie Brown, Lola Mae Fugate, Berniece Goodlet, Joyce Howell, Berniece Keen, Marie Parsley, Lucille Smith and Suritha Thompson.

Following the dinner, Stacy Stubbs, most excellent chief, introduced the two officers and past grand chief Berniece Keen of Pampa.

Mrs. C. Dawes gave the invocation. Announcement was made that Helen Cain, Maggie Smith and Lucille Turner, were still hospitalized.
