US, Soviet Sign Wheat-Oil Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have signed a five-year agreement providing for more stable Russian purchases of U.S. wheat and corn. They still are negotiating a deal for American purchase of Russian oil.

The embargo on Soviet grain sales was imposed in August after the Russians had purchased 9.8 million tons of American wheat and corn. Ford's decision to seek a long-term agreement, announced Sept. 11, convinced the AFL-CIO longshoremen to suspend a boycott against loading the Soviet grain onto ships.

The longshoremen feared the sales would hike domestic food prices as happened after large Soviet grain purchases in 1972. The two countries also are trying to work out details of a five-year proposal for U.S. purchases of Soviet oil. Administration officials said price is the main problem.

Federal Energy Administration Frank Zarb said the United States wants the oil at favorable prices — presumably below the going world rate. The grain agreement, negotiated in Moscow, provides for a minimum annual Soviet purchase of six million tons of corn and wheat over five years starting Oct. 1, 1976. Ford said it represents $1 billion in annual export revenues. The pact allows the Russians to buy an additional two million tons a year if they want and provides an escape clause for the United States should U.S. crop production fall short of need.

Ford released a "letter of intent" to the Russians which says negotiations will resume this month for American purchase of 200,000 barrels a day of Soviet crude oil and petroleum products.

Zarb said 200,000 barrels of oil a day is not a "significant" amount, but any effort to establish a new source of fuel supplies is important.

Deal Causes Dissension

By THOM MARSHALL, Pampa News Staff
Local farmers, national farm organization leaders and the commodities market are not reacting in a positive manner to the announcement of the five-year U.S.-Soviet grain pact.

Henry J. Harnly, who farms east of Pampa and is a director on the board of the Texas Farmers Union, said that grain deal with Russia means nothing. Harnly places little importance on the deal since the U.S. has an escape clause, there's no price set on the grain, and the Russians can back out to.

Owen Lafferty, general manager and vice president of Wheeler Evans Elevator Co. But when he spoke with The News shortly after 11 a.m. he said, "Right now prices are down. Soybeans are off 13 1/2 cents. Corn is off 5 cents. Chicago December wheat is off 9 1/2 cents and Kansas City December wheat is off 5 1/2 cents."

stimulated anything. In order to have it go up, you're going to have to have some new fresh news about new purchases. In a United Press International story today, American Farm Bureau President William Kuhfuss called the five-year grain pact a breach of faith with American farmers and ranchers that "establishes a dangerous precedent for future political international commodity agreements and constitutes further interference with the market system in world markets."

Whaley said, "I think anything to take the lid off is going to help some. I think you're going to see wheat move up. I think we're going to see $5 wheat. We won't see it soon, but it will be climbing. Several countries are buying wheat and we're the only country in the world with a surplus. The county agent also commented on another factor that could have an effect on the market. The wheat situation for 1976 in the Great Plains area is in skimpy shape for this time of year," he said.

Warner Reprimand Dismissed Monday

A reprimand issued by the State Bar of Texas in 1973 against County Attorney John W. Warner was officially dismissed Monday by District Judge Grainger McIlhenny. The judge said he found that Warner "is not guilty in any degree of any professional misconduct."

Warner brought the suit on Nov. 10, 1973, to set aside a private reprimand issued by the grievance committee no. 13 of the State Bar. Declaring the reprimand unjust, Warner asked the court to set it aside. The reprimand carries no penalty and if the case had not been filed few would have known.

Republicans Hear Speaker Oppose Proposed Constitution

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Part of the attempt to bring about establishment of One World government is the changing of state constitutions in the United States. J.C. Phillips, editor of the Borger News-Herald, told a public forum audience Monday night at a Top O' Texas Republican Women's meeting in Gray County Court House.

Phillips made the statement in his introduction of Dr. Donald Todd, West Texas State University professor, who filed a lawsuit in Amarillo last Thursday asking to have the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission declared unconstitutional and have tax funds cut off from PRPC support.

Dr. Todd was invited to the meeting sponsored by the Top O' Texas Republican Women's Club to point out what he termed fallacies in the proposed new state constitution Texas voters will be asked to approve or reject at the Constitutional Revision election Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Dr. Todd told his audience there is nothing in the present state constitution that authorizes establishment of regional planning constitution and implement regional government originated in Washington.

"It did not originate in Texas by Texans," he said. "It came from the Washington and Texas Federalism planners."

He said there is documentary evidence that the proposed Texas Constitution was pushed by the National Municipal League down to the Texas Municipal League, and from the National Association of Counties to the county local scene — urging Texas Constitutional Revision — so as to pave the way for regional governments and so-called home rule for counties that call for the consolidation of government with a county into one county-wide government.

Article 9 in Proposition 6 on the ballot, is approved," he said. "will make regional planning constitutional in Texas. And, of course our lawsuit filed last week cannot be pushed if regional planning is made legal."

Dr. Todd attacked the proposed constitutional changes as being insufficient in detail and declared that "where the present constitution vests powers in the people, the proposed constitution gives powers to the legislature instead of the people where it belongs."

"And there is a great lack of detail in spelling out the sovereignty placed in the hands of the legislature," he said.

Dr. Todd said the argument that the present constitution is a "horse and buggy document" doesn't hold water.

The present constitution, he stated, has been amended many times in recent years.

"Backers of the new constitution are trying to get rid of some of the issues voters have approved as recently as the past four years."

Examples of that, he stated, are the annual sessions of the legislature and the right of the people to vote on salaries to be paid state legislators.

The new constitution would establish annual sessions of the state assembly and take the salary setting right away from the people. Both of these were rejected by voters in 1973.

Dr. Todd said it was his belief that "built-in land use and Metro (regional) government" are the two main overall goals of the proposed new constitution for Texas.

He stated the source of the main urge to re-write the state constitution and implement regional government originated in Washington.

He stated the source of the main urge to re-write the state

"Land use," Dr. Todd stated, "means loss of control of private property and regional planning means removal of local control to centralized control."

The speaker stated the proposed new constitution would combine into the system the separate civil and criminal courts in Texas and powers would be taken away from local county courts.

"It would give the state legislature a blank check telling what county courts could do and how much jurisdiction a county judge would have and district clerks could be combined with county clerks 'by general law,' a phrase that is used so many times in the new proposal," he said.

In summing up, Dr. Todd said:

"The proposed changes in the Texas Constitution amount to a brazen attempt to increase the powers of the state legislators at the expense of the people — and give a tremendous amount of additional spending authority to the state legislature."

"And, of course, the proposed changes have as their chief goal the land-use control over private property and the very definite aim toward removing local control to regional control through regional planning bodies."

The open forum meeting was presided over by Mrs. Twila Nunn, president of the Top O' Texas Republican Women's organization.

Proponents of the proposed new constitution — including Attorney General John L. Hill, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby, House Speaker Bill Clayton and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong — Monday announced the names of 50 Texans joining the "Thousand for Texas" group working for approval of the document.

Doctor Won't Stop Life Machine Even If Ordered

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph and Julia Quinlan are trying to convince a court their daughter's vegetable-like existence should be ended — by disconnecting the machine that keeps her alive. But one doctor says it would violate "medical tradition."

New Jersey Attorney General William Hyland said the family's plan would be homicide.

The Quinlans were scheduled to testify in Superior Court that 21-year-old Karen Ann, their adopted daughter, has ended the "earthly phase" of life and should be removed from a respirator.

They want it so she can attain a "better life."

Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan and their daughter, Mary Ellen, 19, sat expressionless Monday as one of Karen's doctors explained his refusal to comply with the family's wish.

"I have disconnected the respirators on several patients but they were considered brain dead," said Dr. Robert Morse, the state's leadoff witness.

"While there is little likelihood that Karen will regain a cognitive existence, it would break medical tradition to remove her from the machine."

Morse testified Miss Quinlan blinks, grimaces and responds to clapping sounds. But in the six months he has treated her, he said, she has not given any indication of recognizing him, he said.

"No doctor ever likes to arrive at the position where someone's condition is definitely irreversible," he told the court.

"She's awake, she falls asleep, but she is in a coma and is totally unaware that we are there."

Miss Quinlan fell into a coma April 14 after apparently taking a combination of alcohol and drugs. Doctors have been unable to determine the exact cause of the coma. "She is in a chronic, persistent vegetative state," Morse said.

Under questioning by several attorneys who oppose the family's request, Morse said Miss Quinlan's condition could improve, although it would reach only a stable level.

"Except for an act of God, I don't think she could live a functional, cognitive life."

"I told the Quinlans that I empathized with them but I could not break medical tradition," Morse said.

Doctors said Karen's weight has dropped from 120 pounds to about 60 pounds, while her $450 daily medical bill has surpassed $100,000.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The capital remained relatively quiet Monday, but scattered shooting still kept the streets deserted. Radio Beirut said roads into the city were dangerous because of sniper bullets and roadblocks.

Rival Christian and Muslim militias kidnaped at least 12 persons at "flying roadblocks" — street barricades erected briefly and dismantled before the arrival of security forces.

Premier Rashid Karami met with military commanders and Interior Minister Camille Chamoun conferred with senior police officers to discuss the failure of the 11-day-old ceasefire to take hold.

High Court Okay Spanking Decision

WASHINGTON — The traditional whack on the backside for misbehaving public school pupils has received a kind of back-handed approval by the Supreme Court.

Lower tribunals over the past couple of years have seen an increase in challenges to spankings administered by teachers or principals.

The nine justices have yet to take a close look at whatever constitutional issues may be involved. Some objectors claim a paddling is the kind of "cruel and unusual punishment" the Constitution forbids.

Monday, the high court simply affirmed without comment a decision by a special three-judge panel in Greensboro, N.C. The panel — with certain stipulations — approved spanking with a wooden drawer divider, even over a parent's objection.

Three states — Massachusetts, Maryland and New Jersey — ban corporal punishment in public schools. Statutes in the rest of the states either permit it, sometimes with certain reservations, or are silent on the subject.

Alan Reitman, associate executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York, said the ACLU has a special national committee dedicated to the abolition of corporal punishment of school children but that he is not optimistic about its early success.

The only argument to win much support in lower courts is a requirement that there must be parental approval before the paddle can be applied.

But in the North Carolina case, the lower court held that a parent's right to select the proper discipline must yield to the state's interest in maintaining order in the schools.

"It's going to be an uphill fight," Reitman said.

Pampans Meet In Perryton

Several Pampans recently attended a disaster nursing course in Perryton, according to Libby Shotwell, executive secretary of the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Conducted by Odell Woody, West Texas Division nursing consultant, the course was held in the Community Room of the First National Bank.

Attending from Pampa were Mrs. Clarence Kirby, Mrs. C.W. Huff, Mrs. Raymond Linville and Mrs. Perry Moose. Mrs. Shotwell said.

Torture Slayings Increase in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Each morning at sunup, a police patrol edges cautiously up to the Charles Helou Bridge, counting the bodies along the most dangerous 100 yards in Beirut.

The street below the downtown overpass, nicknamed "The Bridge of Death," is the main dumping ground for torture-slayings in Lebanon's religious warfare.

On Monday, two more bodies were found below the bridge, raising the toll in the latest, five-week-old round of fighting to about 600 dead and 1,400 wounded.

In a city where a sniper may be lying in wait around almost every corner, the bridge has earned a disquieting reputation that Lebanese don't take lightly.

Zarb Says Fuel Crisis Worse Now Than Before

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While congressmen debate everything from bringing back the blimp to making cars less gas-thirsty, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb warns that the nation is worse off — fuel wise — than before the Arab oil embargo two years ago.

But he said Americans are more conscious of saving fuel and more aware of the shortages. And drivers are demanding more fuel-efficient cars, he said. "There is a vote being generated in the showroom" and automakers are responding.

House and Senate conferees report said a task force of energy bill agreed Monday that automakers should be forced to meet certain gas mileage standards: 18 miles per gallon in the 1978 models that come out in 1977, 19 miles in 1979 models, and 20 miles in 1980 models.

State Board Approves NY Plan

By PETER MACKLER NEW YORK (UPI) — The state board overseeing New York City finances has given last-minute approval to a plan to cut city expenses by $724 million over three years by eliminating jobs and programs and freezing wages.

Mayor Abraham Beame had been required to submit the program to the Emergency Financial Control Board. The board's approval Monday night — two hours before a midnight deadline — cleared the way for allocation of $2.3 billion in state funds designed to stave off city default through November.

Beame's proposal would slash $200 million from the present budget and $262 million in each of the next two years.

In addition to expense budget cuts, $390 million will be cut over three years from the capital budget — which covers construction — bringing it to $3.6 billion.

Mills Introduces Bill To Save New York City

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., announced Monday he was introducing legislation aimed at saving New York City and other major American cities from financial crisis.

forestall the inevitable demise of New York City's financial structure. Mills compared such action "to pouring gasoline on a raging fire." But he said, total inaction could mean a crisis in municipal finance across the country.

Beame went to Washington to plead for federal aid and was given a mixed reception Monday. Rep. Thomas Rees, D-Calif., a supporter of aid for the city, said after a House banking subcommittee finished with the mayor, "I thought we had a 40-50 chance, but now I think maybe it's one chance in three."

Kenneth Axelson, deputy mayor for finance, said "the thrust of the cuts would be made through accelerated attrition of jobs in the city" and the rest through program reductions and layoffs.

He declined to specify the number of layoffs that would be necessary, but said it probably would be "a number of thousands" with an announcement expected by the end of the month.

United States Makes Surge in Games

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Seven years after United States black athletes held their fists high at the Olympic Stadium in protest against their country, Bill Collins stood on the same winner's stand and wished he had a giant American flag to wave.

leg of the 400-meter relay. "We know America is No. 1 and we wanted to show it." American athletes showed it with a rash of gold medals Monday — winning six of eight finals on the last day of track and field and four out of five in swimming.

The American surge was best represented by Collins and his 400-meter relay teammates — Clancy Edwards, Larry Brown and Don Merrick. Collins took the baton two strides in front of Triana but quickly the Cuban came alongside the American.

Tommy Smith bowed their heads and raised gloved fists during the playing of the Star Spangled Banner. Smith had won the 200-meter dash and Carlos finished third, but for their action they were banished from the Olympic Village by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

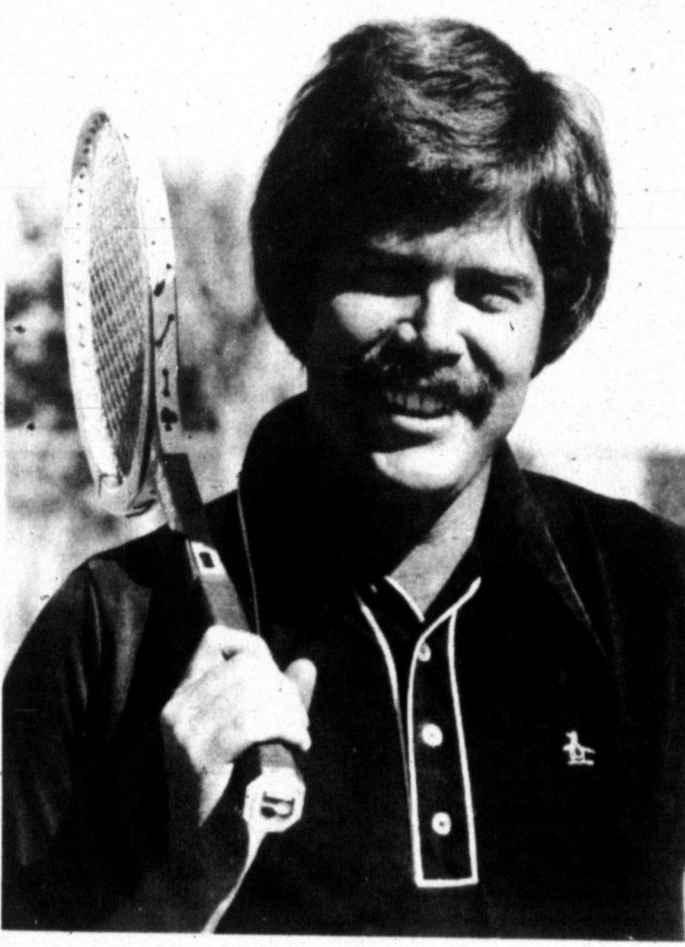

Along with the 400-meter relay victory at the track, the Americans came up with victories from Tony Waldrop of Columbus, N.C., 1,500-meter run; Sherry Calvert of Los Alamitos, Calif., javelin; Earl Bell of Jonesboro, Ark., pole vault; and the men's 1,600-meter and women's 400-meter relay teams.

In swimming the U.S. won with Steve Furniss of Santa Ana, Calif., 400-meter individual medley; Laura Stierling of Modesto, Calif., 100-meter breaststroke; Kim Peyton of Portland, Ore., 200-meter freestyle (her second gold in as many nights); and the men's 400-meter freestyle relay team. In addition the American basketball team whipped Canada 84-73, in its toughest game to date, and the baseball club kept its gold medal hopes alive with a 4-0 win over Puerto Rico.

KENT KING "Tennis Is a Game"

IT SIMS TO ME

King Encouraged With PHS Netters

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor The situation at Burleson wasn't much different. His players were younger, for the most part, than those on his Pampa tennis team, but the situation was basically the same.

"The way I feel about his year's team is the same way I felt about last year's team at Burleson," said King, who is in his first season at the Pampa tennis helm.

King's young team won every match until the players reached the finals. "There, the experience was just too much for them. They were all freshmen," King said.

King, at Pampa, inherited an inexperienced team, although not quite as green as the one at Burleson. "When I first got here, I found we had a lot of kids interested in the program. There was a lot of encouraging enthusiasm during the summer. Overall, the kids were gonna have to start from scratch. "The girls team has the potential — they have their strokes — they've hit their strokes for so long, they've gotten used to them. But they had quit thinking. They never got their game together."

King, like every coach with a successful record, has a philosophy about working with players. And it's that philosophy which makes one believe Pampa will be more competitive than usual in the future.

Are Sooners Slumping? Or Is Big 8 Balanced

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The University of Oklahoma has not lost a football game since Oct. 21, 1972. Fact is, the Sooners have had precious few close calls in Big Eight Conference play.

Before this fall and since Colorado's 20-14 victory in '72, the Sooners' narrow margin of victory in conference play was a 17-14 decision over Nebraska that same season.

Oklahoma's final five games are against Iowa State, Oklahoma State, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska. It's generally conceded that Missouri and Nebraska will have the best chances to derail the Sooners.

Borger Leaving

Borger will leave District 3-AAAA and join District 1-AAA, it was announced Monday by the University Interscholastic League.

Again this year, most folks expected Coach Barry Switzer's forces to stream unhindered through the conference race. But, after two Big Eight games, the rest of the league is beginning to smell blood.

Fullback Horace Ivory suffered an ankle injury in the Kansas State game and may not be able to play against Iowa State. Ivory earlier replaced Jim Little, who was injured.

Other area schools will be affected by the realignment. District 1-B, which has been comprised of Groom, Lefors, Booker and Texline, will add McLean and Wheeler from District 2-A and Darrouzett, Follett, Higgins and Higgins from eight-man districts.

So, Oklahoma's 35-game streak without a loss remains intact. And the Sooners have won 26 straight since the 7-7 tie with Southern Cal in '73. But Oklahoma's 1975 performances, including the 20-17 and 24-17 victories over Miami (Fla.) and Texas, respectively, have given the rest of the conference hope.

District 2-A will also lose Silverton, which joins District 2-B. 2-A will consist of only five schools — Clarendon, Claude, Memphis, Shamrock and Wellington.

Canadian of District 1-A will become part of District 1-AA, joining River Road, Boys Ranch, Dalhart, Panhandle and Spearman. Phillips will drop from 1-AA to 1-A.

the first quarter. The second Buffalo touchdown, set up after linebacker John Skorumpan intercepted a Craig Morton pass, came when Bills quarterback Joe Ferguson hit J.D. Hill in the end zone with a 13-yard pass.

Morton moved the Giants 91 yards in eight plays later in the first half, capped by a 20-yard touchdown pass to Ray Rhodes.

Ferguson threw two second half interceptions which led to New York field goal attempts from 50 and 47 yards, which both failed. The Bills John Leybold was wide to the right on a 19-yard field goal attempt with 3:16 left in the game and missed another from 50-yards with 1:02 remaining.

Simpson finished with his 29th 100-yard game of his career — 126 yards on 34 carries — but most of the yards were tough to get.

"We wouldn't give Simpson the breakaway," Mendenhall said.

Gray County Will Have Poll Inspector on Nov. 4

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
Secretary of State Mark White has notified Gray County Judge Don Cain and County Clerk Wanda Carter that poll inspectors will be present for the constitutional election on Nov. 4.
"I have called for volunteers from your local bar association to serve as poll inspectors. You might wish to advise all election judges and personnel of this in advance of the election," White said in his letter.
He added that poll inspectors have the same authority as a poll watcher designated by a candidate or political party to observe the election.
"They will in no way interfere with your conduct of the election," White emphasized.

He added that the appointment of these poll inspectors should in no way be construed as indicated that officials in Gray County "have not or cannot run fair, open and honest elections."
"On the contrary," White said, "I believe that Texans can run their own elections without outside interference."
"These inspectors can become the means for creating a closer working relationship between our state and county offices."
Judge Cain said notices will be mailed to each of the 11 election judges and to Gerald Sims, absentee judge.
A poll watcher has the authority to mention or note any errors he may see in testing the voters, counting the votes and making out the returns.

He may report in writing all violations of the law and unrecertified irregularities.
His findings may be reported to the authority which canvasses the votes — in this case the Gray County Commissioners Court.
The next course of action would be the Gray County grand jury.
Absentee voting is in progress now in the Gray County Clerk's office and only 20 votes have been cast. An additional five or five have been mailed to voters on request, officials said.

In his letter announcing poll inspectors, White said the 64th Legislature passed Senate Bill 1046 which provides for the appointment of poll inspectors to assist election officials in all state elections.
Ms. Carter said records show that there are 11,277 registered voters in Gray County.
Absentee votes may be cast in the office on the second floor of the Gray County Courthouse from 8:30 a. m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday through Oct. 31.

Texas Oil Wells To Pump Maximum

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas will pump its oil wells at the maximum level for the 44th straight month in November.
The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates petroleum production, Monday ordered full production for November in all but selected fields where extensive pumping would result in waste.
The oil production allowable has been at 100 per cent on a statewide basis since April, 1972 and commission officials indicated there is little possibility it will slip below 100 per cent again.
Commissioner Jim C. Lang-

don said oil production in Texas declined by about 5,000 barrels a day during August, while oil imports showed a steady increase.
Langdon said imports during September totaled 4,597,000 barrels daily, an increase of 824,000 barrels a day over the import level recorded on Jan. 3 of this year when President Ford said the nation would reduce its oil imports.
Oil company demand for Texas crude increased dramatically for November, primarily due to Exxon Corp.'s demand for additional crude above its regular field nominations.

Court Won't Interfere

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal appeals court has refused to interfere with a two-year-old law granting U.S. military aid to Israel, saying the issue was purely political and beyond its jurisdiction.
"We affirm the dismissal of the action, agreeing with the district court that this cause clearly presents a nonjusticiable political question beyond the jurisdictional limitations imposed upon federal courts by Article Three of the Constitution," the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Monday.
"Among the areas which the courts have traditionally deemed to involve political questions is the conduct of foreign relations, which is committed by the Constitution to the executive and legislative — the political — departments of the government," the appeals court said.

The law in question was the Emergency Security Assistance Act of 1973, which provided emergency military assistance or foreign military sales and credits to Israel. Its legality was challenged by Fagan Dickson, a resident of Austin, Tex. However, since the case involved a political issue, the court stopped short of even considering the validity of Dickson's complaint.

Man Shot in Courtroom

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Nathaniel Sanders walked into the courtroom to face a possible charge of murder. Minutes later, he himself lay dead.
Spectators in the courtroom screamed and dropped to the floor for cover Monday when a gunshot rang out.
Sanders died with a bullet in his back.
Police arrested Mrs. Harriet

Roberta Jones, 25, daughter of the man Sanders was charged with killing.
Sanders and his brother, Robert, were arrested Saturday on preliminary murder charges after Harry Thomas, 59, was found beaten to death in his home.
Sanders, 34, of Indianapolis, was a son-in-law of the victim. Sanders' wife left him about a

Mrs. Jones is a sister to Sanders' wife.
Sanders was brought to the sixth-floor courtroom in the City-County Building for a hearing before Judge Frank Harlor, who was to decide whether Sanders' case should be bound over to a grand jury.
The bullet that killed Sanders narrowly missed his attorney, George Popchiff, who was standing to one side of Sanders, and detective Sgt. Jerry Campbell, who was standing on the other.

raised her arm in the air, pushed her against the wall and disarmed her.
"There was so much screaming going on."
Spectators, including a group of high school students getting a first-hand look at court operations, scrambled to the floor when the shot rang out.
"I was just scared to death," said Debbie Royalty, 17, one of the half dozen Beech Grove High School government students in the courtroom. "I was shaking. I didn't think anything like that would ever happen. I was in tears."

Torches Used To Rescue Mexico Subway Survivors

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Rescue workers using acetylene torches cut through the wreckage of two subway trains today in a desperate, night-long search for survivors trapped in "the safest system in the world."
Authorities reported at least 26 persons killed and 55 injured in the "impossible accident" — a two-train crash in Mexico City's ultramodern subway system.
One train slammed into the back of another Monday when the supposedly foolproof safeguards of the city's computerized subway broke down.
"It was an impossible accident — until today," subway spokesman Francisco Galvez Betancourt said almost tearfully.
Witnesses said somebody pulled the emergency handle to stop the nine-car, rubber-wheeled train at the aboveground Viaducto station, four stops from downtown Zocalo Square.
A second train speeding over the tracks behind, swept down a slope and ploughed into the back of the first train, crushing many of the victims to death.

One witness said two of the cars reared up to form a "V" before flying apart and ripping open the brightly colored station's roof.
The subway spokesman said the safeguards in the $400 million, French-built system should have switched off power and brought all trains to a halt at the first sign of trouble.
"Even if a driver wanted to exceed the limit, he couldn't," he said "It was the safest system in the world — until today."
Little children screamed for lost mothers. One woman stumbled from the wreckage, but returned in a daze to find her husband hanging through a smashed window.
As rescue workers pulled the wrecked cars apart, families visited hospitals and morgues anxiously looking for lost relatives.

MEXICO Subway Survivors

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Rescue workers using acetylene torches cut through the wreckage of two subway trains today in a desperate, nightlong search for survivors trapped in "the safest system in the world."

Authorities reported at least 26 persons killed and 55 injured in the "impossible accident" — a two-train crash in Mexico City's ultramodern subway system.

One train slammed into the back of another Monday when the supposedly foolproof safeguards of the city's computerized subway broke down.

"It was an impossible accident — until today," subway spokesman Francisco Galvez Betancourt said almost tearfully.

Witnesses said somebody pulled the emergency handle to stop the nine-car, rubber-wheeled train at the aboveground Viaducto station, four stops from downtown Zocalo Square.

A second train speeding over the tracks behind, swept down a slope and ploughed into the back of the first train, crushing many of the victims to death.

One witness said two of the cars reared up to form a "V" before flying apart and ripping open the brightly colored station's roof.

The subway spokesman said the safeguards in the $400 million, French-built system should have switched off power and brought all trains to a halt at the first sign of trouble.

"Even if a driver wanted to exceed the limit, he couldn't," he said "It was the safest system in the world — until today."

Little children screamed for lost mothers. One woman stumbled from the wreckage, but returned in a daze to find her husband hanging through a smashed window.

As rescue workers pulled the wrecked cars apart, families visited hospitals and morgues anxiously looking for lost relatives.

Gray County Will Have Poll Inspector on Nov. 4

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
Secretary of State Mark White has notified Gray County Judge Don Cain and County Clerk Wanda Carter that poll inspectors will be present for the constitutional election on Nov. 4.

"I have called for volunteers from your local bar association to serve as poll inspectors. You might wish to advise all election judges and personnel of this in advance of the election," White said in his letter.

He added that poll inspectors have the same authority as a poll watcher designated by a candidate or political party to observe the election.

"They will in no way interfere with your conduct of the election," White emphasized.

He added that the appointment of these poll inspectors should in no way be construed as indicated that officials in Gray County "have not or cannot run fair, open and honest elections."

"On the contrary," White said, "I believe that Texans can run their own elections without outside interference."

"These inspectors can become the means for creating a closer working relationship between our state and county offices."

Judge Cain said notices will be mailed to each of the 11 election judges and to Gerald Sims, absentee judge.

A poll watcher has the authority to mention or note any errors he may see in testing the voters, counting the votes and making out the returns.

He may report in writing all violations of the law and unrectified irregularities.

His findings may be reported to the authority which canvasses the votes — in this case the Gray County Commissioners Court.

The next course of action would be the Gray County grand jury.

Absentee voting is in progress now in the Gray County Clerk's office and only 20 votes have been cast. An additional five have been mailed to voters on request, officials said.

In his letter announcing poll inspectors, White said the 64th Legislature passed Senate Bill 1046 which provides for the appointment of poll inspectors to assist election officials in all state elections.

Ms. Carter said records show that there are 11,277 registered voters in Gray County.

Absentee votes may be cast in the office on the second floor of the Gray County Courthouse from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday through Oct. 31.

Texas Oil Wells To Pump Maximum

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas will pump its oil wells at the maximum level for the 44th straight month in November.

The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates petroleum production, Monday ordered full production for November in all but selected fields where extensive pumping would result in waste.

The oil production allowable has been at 100 per cent on a statewide basis since April, 1972 and commission officials indicated there is little possibility it will slip below 100 per cent again.

Commissioner Jim C. Lang-

don said oil production in Texas declined by about 5,000 barrels a day during August, while oil imports showed a steady increase.

Langdon said imports during September totaled 4,597,000 barrels daily, an increase of 824,000 barrels a day over the import level recorded on Jan. 3 of this year when President Ford said the nation would reduce its oil imports.

Oil company demand for Texas crude increased dramatically for November, primarily due to Exxon Corp.'s demand for additional crude above its regular field nominations.

Court Won't Interfere

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal appeals court has refused to interfere with a two-year-old law granting U.S. military aid to Israel, saying the issue was purely political and beyond its jurisdiction.

"We affirm the dismissal of the action, agreeing with the district court that this cause clearly presents a nonjusticiable political question beyond the jurisdictional limitations imposed upon federal courts by Article Three of the Constitution," the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Monday.

"Among the areas which the courts have traditionally deemed to involve political questions is the conduct of foreign relations, which is committed by the Constitution to the executive and legislative — the political — departments of the government," the appeals court said.

The law in question was the Emergency Security Assistance Act of 1973, which provided emergency military assistance or foreign military sales and credits to Israel. Its legality was challenged by Fagan Dickson, a resident of Texas who filed the suit in Austin, Tex. However, since the case involved a political issue, the court stopped short of even considering the validity of Dickson's complaint.

Man Shot in Courtroom

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Nathaniel Sanders walked into the courtroom to face a possible charge of murder. Minutes later, he himself lay dead.

Spectators in the courtroom screamed and dropped to the floor for cover Monday when a gunshot rang out.

Sanders died with a bullet in his back.

Police arrested Mrs. Harriet

Roberta Jones, 25, daughter of the man Sanders was charged with killing.

Sanders and his brother, Robert, were arrested Saturday on preliminary murder charges after Harry Thomas, 59, was found beaten to death in his home.

Sanders, 34, of Indianapolis, was a son-in-law of the victim. Sanders' wife left him about a

Mrs. Jones is a sister to Sanders' wife.

Sanders was brought to the sixth-floor courtroom in the City-County Building for a hearing before Judge Frank Harlor, who was to decide whether Sanders' case should be bound over to a grand jury.

The bullet that killed Sanders narrowly missed his attorney, George Popchiff, who was standing to one side of Sanders, and detective Sgt. Jerry Campbell, who was standing on the other.

raised her arm in the air, pushed her against the wall and disarmed her.

"There was so much screaming going on."

Spectators, including a group of high school students getting a first-hand look at court operations, scrambled to the floor when the shot rang out.

"I was just scared to death," said Debbie Royalty, 17, one of the half dozen Beech Grove High School government students in the courtroom. "I was shaking. I didn't think anything like that would ever happen. I was in tears."

Refugee Center Boosts City But...

FORT SMITH, Ark. (UPI) — Despite the millions of dollars and hundreds of jobs it has meant, city officials hope the nearby Ft. Chaffee refugee relocation center will close as planned by the end of the year.

Since the center opened May 2, the unemployment rate in Fort Smith has dropped from 11.4 to 8.2 per cent. It is the only major metropolitan area in Arkansas where the rate has steadily declined in the past five months. "It's been a little windfall, but it's not anything our economy depends on," said Ray Riley, Fort Smith city administrator.

Riley and other city officials are skeptical the camp will close Dec. 31 as announced by Julia Taft, head of the Interagency Task Force for Indochina Refugees in Washington. At Chaffee, officials said they expect to empty the camp before that date.

"We'll finish earlier if we maintain our current outflow rates," said Donald G. McDonald, Chaffee's senior civil coordinator.

So far, the camp has resettled 34,866 refugees. There are 13,018 refugees at Chaffee now and last month an average of 224 refugees left the camp daily.

"If we maintain an outflow of 200 a day," McDonald said, "we will empty the camp by Dec. 12."

The Army has contracted for services that will total $12.8 million by December. The payroll for local persons hired to work at Chaffee will total $4.2 million by December.

And the Department of Health, Education and Welfare contracted with Westark Junior College at Fort Smith for $1.4 million to run schools for the refugees.

"It's been good for us," said Paul Lature, chamber of commerce manager, "especially the restaurant, motel, apartment and car rental businesses. But the gas situation is geared to a December closing and we hope it does."

If Chaffee does not close then, it could detrimentally effect thousands of jobs. The pipeline that carries natural gas to Chaffee also supplies the Whirlpool plant that employs more than 4,000 persons and several other large industries near the Army post.

President William Walker of Arkansas Oklahoma Gas Co. said if Chaffee remains open after the end of the year, he may have to cut off gas to the industries because pipeline capacity isn't such it can supply both in very cold weather.

"I think the deadline will be difficult to meet," Riley said. "But they are moving them out faster than we thought they would."

"They're the experts," Lature said. "If they say they'll close Dec. 31... but, some of us doubt it."

The city administrator and the chamber manager both expressed amazement when told almost 35,000 refugees had been resettled.

"If I ever hear anybody cuss bureaucrats again," Lature said, "I'll defend them after seeing what they've done at Chaffee — and I've cussed plenty of bureaucrats myself."

Director David Lewis of the United States Catholic Conference, largest voluntary agency placing refugees with sponsors, said last June it would take a year or two to place the refugees. But this week Lewis said Dec. 31 was an "optimistic, but reasonable goal."

His original estimate was based on figures from past resettlement projects, Lewis said.

Gov. David Pryor initially was concerned the refugees would burden Arkansas' social services. But he said they have not.

"I have always questioned what will happen to those hard to place and have been concerned with the possibility of a reservation type encampment of a permanent nature," Pryor said. "I am pleased the refugees will all be placed and not kept at Chaffee permanently."

Lewis said there was no "refugee who can't be sponsored. There are refugees who are not available for sponsorship but that's a relatively small number."

According to a HEW official, five refugees failed to receive security clearances from the Immigration and Naturalization Service; 42 are being held for medical reasons but most will be released before December.

Three refugees are terminally ill and have been hospitalized; five are aged and will be placed in nursing homes and two emotionally disturbed children have been placed in special homes.

MacDonald said INS will decide what to do with those who do not clear security; the aged, mentally ill and terminally ill will be institutionalized, and everyone else will be sponsored out.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Put off any new beginnings. Pause for a review of the past, make corrections and mend personal fences. You're in an upbeat phase during which you reach understandings more easily.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Treat this as a mini-vacation from your main enterprises. Try to get away from business routines as much as possible. Questions concerning romance can be quietly settled.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Your associates are in a pleasant frame of mind and see everything through rose-colored glasses. Don't you be the one to shake them up. Stay on the track; finish pending matters.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Nothing is quite ready to go, so don't go ahead on that project. Be patient, continue to assemble people, ideas and materials. You make firm agreements with friends this evening.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Pay attention to the implications of statements made now. Nearly everyone has a low level of energy and self-confidence. Check on scattered possessions.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Take a mild wager on whether or not you can maintain a steady schedule with sustained good humor throughout interruptions. A change of purpose is belated and loses its effect.
