Bombs Damage Three Major Cities

By United Press International
A series of simultaneous early morning bombings today damaged five buildings in New York City, the State Department in Washington, the Sears and IBM buildings and a major bank in Chicago.

The Armed Forces of National Liberation, a Puerto Rican nationalist group, claimed responsibility for all the bombings.

No injuries were reported from any of the blasts.

A police spokesman in New York City, Capt. Charles V. Horke of the Crime Laboratory Section, said the FALN left a letter in a lower West Side phone booth in which the group termed the blasts "a simultaneously coordinated attack against Yankee governments and monopoly capitalist institutions in New York, Washington, Chicago and Puerto Rico."

No bombings were reported in Puerto Rico.

The full text of the letter was not made available.

Five Manhattan banks and the U.S. Mission to the U.N. were damaged in the blasts, all of which detonated between 1:43 a.m. and 2:10 a.m. Two of the banks were in the Wall Street area and the others in midtown Manhattan.

At the same time, bombs exploded at the State Department in Washington, the Sears Building — the world's tallest — in Chicago and several other buildings in the Midwest city.

New York police said they were looking for three white males and a woman seen early today driving around the Wall Street area in a late model maroon-colored Chevrolet.

In Chicago, three black powder bombs exploded within 20 minutes outside three downtown skyscrapers, shattering windows and stonework. A fourth bomb, a potential killer wrapped in a bouquet of red roses, was found outside the Standard Oil building and disarmed.

One of the powder bombs shattered 10 windows and ripped apart a granite bench on the plaza of the 110-story, 1,454-foot Sears Tower.

Other explosions damaged the IBM Building on the near North Side and the Continental Illinois Bank in the heart of the city's financial district.

The bank had previously been bombed by Puerto Rican terrorists.

Bomb and arson squad members found five sticks of dynamite concealed in the bouquet of roses under a bench eight feet from the entrance of the Standard Oil Building.

Central District Police Commander Paul McLaughlin said the black powder bombs were relatively small devices apparently intended to draw attention rather than to kill. "But he said the dynamite bomb, had it gone off, could easily have killed anyone near it."

Scores of policemen searched 76 downtown buildings, primarily government and financial institutions, for other possible bombs. No others were found, officials said.

The FALN claimed responsibility for a number of past bombing incidents, including the Jan. 24 explosion at Frances Tavern in New York in which four persons were killed and 56 injured. One of the banks damaged in Chicago, the Continental Illinois Bank, was once bombed by Puerto Rican terrorists.

In Chicago, an FBI spokesman said, "It sounds like some coordinated group since we have these explosions here in other cities, but we're waiting for the reports from our men out in the field before we can say anything definite."

The State Department blast shattered windows and doors on three floors of the building. A police spokesman said the smell of powder was detected at the bombing site.

As many as 60 windows were blown out at the 110-story, 1,454-foot Sears Tower in Chicago, the world's tallest building. Other bombing sites in Chicago's downtown district included the IBM Building and the Continental Illinois Bank. Police said an unexploded bomb was found outside the Standard Oil Building and was disarmed by the bomb and arson unit.

In New York, the first blast was reported at 1:43 a.m. EST at the National Westminster Bank on Wall Street. It blew out five windows. Moments later, a bomb exploded outside the First National City Bank on Wall Street, damaging the building's marble exterior and blowing out windows at the Chase Manhattan Bank across the street.

"These were definitely both explosive devices," acting deputy fire chief Lawrence Surat said of the Wall Street blasts. "Just what they were, we don't know yet."

At about the same time, explosions were reported at the Chase Manhattan bank and the First National City Bank, both on East 57th Street, and at the U.S. Mission to the U.N.

Damage to the two midtown banks and the U.N. mission was generally confined to broken glass.

A Packed House

Here's the scene in the district courtroom of the Gray County Court House this morning as spectators packed the place in the hearing for a beer and wine permit in a night club planned for 2201 Perryton Pkwy. Roy Underwood, the applicant, is seen seated at far left on the witness stand. The hearing before Judge Don Cain had to be moved from the county courtroom because of the overflow crowd.

Sadat, Ford Set Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt tests the new spirit of improved relations between his country and the United States today when he meets with President Ford at the White House.

Sadat left Williamsburg, Va., where he spent the night for Washington for two days of talks with Ford and other administration officials as part of his 10-day visit to the United States — the first time an Egyptian head of state has visited this country.

In an interview taped in Cairo before he left for the United States, Sadat made it clear that a major reason for his trip was to get U.S. arms.

"Up until this moment I haven't replaced any piece of arms that I lost in the war, while Israel has replaced every arm it lost," Sadat said.

Sadat said he wants to buy American arms, not get them as grants. "I am not going to the United States as a beggar," he said.

"I shall be seeking all over the world, if the United States does not agree to provide me," he said.

Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger has said any decisions or agreements reached between Sadat and Ford will not be announced immediately, but might be included in a total foreign aid package the administration soon will send Congress.

In an interview televised Sunday, Sadat said the Soviet Union is responsible for the split between his country and Syria over the new Sinai agreement.

"There is a hobby for the Soviet Union to try and make contradictions between the regimes in the Arab world," Sadat said.

Sadat indicated he has high personal regard for Ford.

"Sure, I trust the man (Ford)," Sadat said, "and I like him very much. Really, he is an honest and straightforward man. With Dr. Kissinger, I have stated, and I repeat it again, he has never failed his word with me up until this moment."

Sadat, accompanied by his wife and four children on a flight from Paris, was greeted during a rainstorm on his arrival in colonial Williamsburg Sunday by Kissinger and his wife.

Kissinger said Saturday the United States "will look very sympathetically at Egyptian requests" for economic aid and "we are prepared to have a general discussion" of requests for military assistance.

Under terms of the recent interim Sinai accord, Kissinger promised the United States would give Israel about $2.6 billion worth of economic and military aid and provide Egypt with about $600 million in economic assistance only.

"We believe that what we are doing in the Middle East is not the result of any agreement but is the result of long-term American interests," Kissinger said.

In the interview (on ABC's Issues and Answers) Sadat said he is "in a very peculiar position" because "up until this moment I haven't replaced any piece of arms that I lost in the (1973 Yom Kippur) war while Israel has replaced every arm it lost."

Administration sources say the United States has assured Israel it will not sell any sophisticated military equipment to Egypt for at least one year, probably not until after the 1976 presidential election.

But officials said Sadat is seeking at least $600 million in economic aid this year plus assurances of future American military aid including F16 jet fighters, tanks, Hawk missiles and electronic equipment.

Sadat also is reported to want a promise from Ford the United States will not sell Israel Pershing missiles, whose 450-mile range Sadat feels would make Cairo and other Arab capital an Israeli target.

He also wants a commitment from Ford that the United States will try to solve the Palestinian problem and continue other efforts to bring about a total peace in the Middle East.

Club Hearing Attracts

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

A hearing on an application for a beer and wine permit necessary for opening a night club at 2201 Perryton Pkwy. drew such a large crowd this morning it had to be moved from the county courtroom to the district courtroom of Gray County Court House.

The hearing was still in progress 11:45 a.m. before County Judge Don Cain. The district courtrooms also was not adequate to accommodate the audience, made up mostly of persons objecting to issuance of the permit.

Roy Underwood, the applicant, was the first witness called. He was on the stand for slightly more than one hour, questioned by his attorney, Jean Martindale, and cross-examined by County Atty. John Warner who said he was acting only in his capacity as attorney for the county and had not been employed by any group or individual.

Underwood told the court of his employment by other night spots in town and stated he had never had any financial interest in any of them. His only interest, he stated, was in furnishing a band to supply music for dancing.

Underwood said he had answered all requirements satisfactorily to be an applicant for the beer and wine permit.

He stated he would be the sole owner and that Mack Taylor, former radio announcer, would be the club manager.

Underwood testified he planned to open the club from 1 p.m. to 12 midnight daily. He said it would be a supper club known as the "Ace of Clubs" and there would be dancing only on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. He said he planned to use a minimum of three security guards to see that the club operated without disturbances of any kind.

County Atty. Warner introduced in evidence petitions which he said contained 2,404 signatures of persons opposed to locating the night spot at the Perryton Parkway address.

Attorney Martindale asked that the petitions be thrown out on the grounds that they contained misstatements and were hearsay evidence.

Underwood, on direct examination, told the court the location for the wine and beer permit had been approved in a prior conversation with Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Sheriff Jordan had previously stated he would oppose issuance of the permit at today's hearing.

Underwood said he first tried to locate the club outside the city limits on Price Road but testified the sheriff said he was opposed to that because his department was not staffed to handle any trouble at the location. The sheriff was among witnesses still to be called.

Underwood further testified that the Perryton Parkway location was the only available building in town for locating the club.

Donna Fielding, police department file clerk, followed Underwood on the witness stand. The county attorney subpoenaed police records of trouble incidents which he stated had taken place at the various night spots in town where Underwood's band had played including reports of happenings at the Catalina Club on S. Cuyler St. where his band had played from 1973 to 1975.

With perhaps eight or ten witnesses still to be called by County Atty. Warner, the hearing was expected to continue this afternoon.

'Get Rid of Mondays'

By ERMA BOMBECK

For years, Mondays have been getting on my nerves.

Frankly, I don't see any excuse for them. They come on too strong. They're the longest day in the week, and besides they put a damper on your Sundays just thinking about them.

Mondays are so ordinary. They lack luster and excitement. Think about it. Does the circus ever open on Monday morning? Does anyone get married on Monday? Have a party? Buy a boat? Get their car washed? Or roast a turkey?

The only reason I am bringing it up is that I sounded out a group last week and they thought with little publicity we might just conceivably get rid of Mondays.

Here are some of the arguments. To begin with, attendance on Mondays is falling off. Fewer people are showing up for it. The automotive industry reported absenteeism on Mondays was not only excessive, but that those who did who were so surly and hung over, it reflected in the workmanship of cars.

Secondly, Mondays are becoming expendable. They are the dumping grounds of the seven-day week. Have you ever noticed that whenever they want to pick a working day to discard or use for a holiday, they pick Monday? There has been such a trend toward discontinuing Mondays as part of a work week that this year we only observed 45 Mondays. The rest of them were given over to Washington's Birthday, St. Patrick's Day, Memorial Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Columbus Day and Canadian Thanksgiving. Ask yourself: How long will it be before we throw all of the holidays to Mondays?

More and more we encounter restaurants that are "CLOSED ON MONDAY," small businesses that remain closed and did you ever try to get your hair done on Monday? Forget it. Imagine for a moment what a Mondayless week would mean. No more diets. That's right. There would be a whole country of chubbies sitting around eating cupcakes waiting for a Monday to roll around.

We could stamp out the proverbial washday. Blue Monday (that term applied to the beginning of a week after a swinging weekend) would disappear as an American condition.

No one has to make a decision now. Just think about it and call me Mon. Tuesday

Franco Still Grave

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco is suffering from continuing heart failure and his condition remains grave, his doctors said today. The 11-man team of doctors treating him was increased to 14 today.

The 82-year-old Franco has battled weakly for life after a series of near-fatal heart attacks which began last Tuesday and a dangerous stomach hemorrhage Sunday night.

A medical bulletin timed at 8 a.m. EST and signed by the 14 doctors — the fifth bulletin of the day — said the Caudillo spent a quiet morning and remains conscious.

For the first time it spoke of "slight blood congestion," but it said the troubles with the rhythm of his heartbeat reported Sunday had not recurred.

However, it said there are continuing signs of heart failure and that his condition remains grave.

It said the stomach hemorrhage, which caused a crisis late Sunday, has not recurred.

The bulletin said "He has spent a quiet and lucid morning. There is slight blood congestion. Normal arterial tensions have been maintained and there have been no troubles again with the cardiac rhythm. Signs of heart failure persist. The gastric hemorrhage at the present moment is being controlled. The condition remains grave."

Government leaders, politicians and church figures continued to stream to El Pardo palace where the aged leader is lying ill to inquire about his condition and to pay their last respects.

Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro spent some time there and then returned to his downtown office.

The first two bulletins issued this morning by the team of doctors treating Franco said he was resting quietly and receiving little new medication after rallying slightly from Sunday's internal bleeding.

The report came six hours after doctors said a stomach hemorrhage and heart beat irregularities had left the 82-year-old generalissimo in critical condition.

"He has spent the night resting quietly, treatment has almost totally stopped the gastric hemorrhage and the disturbances in the heart rhythm, improving the cardio-vascular condition," doctors said this morning.

The medical team treating Franco during his week-long fight for survival said he "is maintaining a normal consciousness level" but "the gravity continues."

Prince Juan Carlos de Bor-

bon, Franco's handpicked successor, rushed to the generalissimo's Pardo Palace Sunday night when a medical bulletin said "the situation is considered critical."

"The clinical condition of the chief of state has undergone a secondary aggravation as a result of a gastric hemorrhage and serious disturbances of the heart rhythm with marked increase of congestive heart failure," it said.

The setback came hours after Franco's 75-year-old wife, Carmen, and other close family members joined him in the palace to hear mass and receive communion.

FHA Loans To Local Farmers

The Farmers Home Administration now is making emergency loans in Armstrong and Gray Counties in Texas. This action is possible because these counties were declared a natural disaster area by the Secretary of Agriculture.

J. Lynn Futch, state director of FmHA, said adverse weather conditions this year have caused extensive damage to local crops and farm production.

Farmers or ranchers in the designated counties who have suffered losses may be eligible for Farmers Home Administration emergency loans to cover actual physical or production losses. Other loans under the emergency program can be made for annual operating expenses or to make major adjustments to the operation.

Applications for assistance in the disaster stricken counties will be accepted by Farmers Home until Dec. 22, for physical losses and July 23, 1976, for production losses.

Loan funds may be used to buy feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, or to meet interest and depreciation payments on current real estate and chattel debts, or to replace damaged or destroyed buildings, including homes.

Emergency loans are repayable as soon as possible consistent with the repayment ability of borrowers. Mr. Futch said Loans beyond actual losses have various maturities, depending upon the purpose of the loan. Loans covering actual losses are repayable in their entirety at an interest rate of five per cent. Other loans will be made at current interest rates for long-term or short-term credit.

To be eligible for a loan, an applicant must have suffered losses from this disaster and have no other means of recovery or sources of credit.

Loans are made through local offices of the Farmers Home Administration serving designated counties. Robert A. Keown is the county supervisor for Gray and Armstrong Counties and his office hours are from 10 a.m. to noon on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at the courthouse annex in Pampa.

Claude office hours are from 10 a.m. to noon on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at the courthouse.

McLean office hours are from 10 a.m. to noon on the fourth Wednesday of each month at the city hall. Office hours in Clarendon are from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. each Friday afternoon at the Agricultural Building.

Weather

The weather forecast today calls for fair skies, with highs of 85s with cooler temperatures on Tuesday. The low will be in the 40s tonight.

Reluctant partners

Three million federal employees and military personnel enjoy a 5 per cent increase in their pay effective immediately, but it would have been more if Congress had not made itself a party to the salary resolution. President Ford urged adoption of the lesser figure as an alternative to an 8.66 per cent hike recommended by a federal pay study commission. His arguments in the face of stubborn inflation were persuasive. Even so, it seems likely that members of Congress would have voted to accept the larger hike if it were not for public outrage over the arrogance of the lawmakers in cutting themselves in on the pay benefits. The resulting clamor made Congress wary of inviting further attention to its self-serving action. The congressional restraint in a period of economic uncertainty must be viewed as the responsible choice. But the government workers cannot be blamed if they harbor some resentment of the power play by which Congress adopted them as unwilling partners.

'Second gun' shot down

Almost everybody likes a detective story with unexpected turns in the plot, and this may account for the recent fascination with the theory that the accepted version of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination was not the true one. Now, a meticulous examination of the evidence under the direction of the presiding judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court has failed to support the contention that a "second gun" had figured in the 1968 shooting at the Ambassador Hotel. The ballistics experts assembled from around the country to study the evidence met every test of expertise and impartiality. It would appear to be fruitless to expend any more resources on investigation of the second gun theory. The record can stand that Senator Kennedy was the victim of a single assassin—the man now imprisoned in San Quentin.

GUN BAN LAWS

More Problem Than Solution

Firearms owners sense, with good reason, that the banning of so-called Saturday-Night Specials would be the entering wedge in a drive that would ultimately lead to the banning and confiscation of all firearms. So far as law-abiding citizens are concerned, proponents of ever stricter prohibitions against the right to own property in firearms have sought to allay such fears with assurances that there is no intent to deny citizens the right to own firearms, or even handguns; that the sought-after ban on the "Specials" would be sufficient because they are the chief weapon used in the commission of most violent crimes.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley, however, gives the game away. Like the anti-gun clique which has sought to allay gun owner fears, Kelley also favors a law banning the cheap handguns called "Saturday Night Specials"; unlike them, though, he is honest enough to admit that he is already considering more draconian measures in anticipation that the highly propagandized banning of the cheap handguns will fail to do what is being claimed for it. Cited as being in favor of a ban on "Saturday Night Specials" in the October 20 issue of U.S. News and World Report, Kelley was also quoted as saying, if that (the proposed ban) fails to reduce crime, "then we'll have to go after more" than just cheap handguns. Director Kelley's words should serve as a "handwriting on the wall" warning. For who can doubt that, when the cheap handgun ban fails to do what is being claimed for it, the hue and cry will begin to ban all handguns and, that failing in its turn, to outlaw the ownership of rifles and shotguns? Of course, the outlawing of firearms ("Saturday Night Specials" or otherwise) won't solve the problem of violent crime any more than Prohibition solved the problem of alcohol, or ever stricter laws have solved the problem of narcotics addiction.

What such laws would do, however, would be to ultimately disarm the law-abiding citizens, leaving them facing an armed government bureaucracy, on the one hand, and an armed criminal element, which will always be able to obtain firearms by stealing them or via a blackmarket, on the other. As this newspaper has warned, whether conscious or not this drive against the right to own property in the form of firearms ends up a part of the drive to destroy the concept of private property, itself. The very essence of criminality is a contempt of and disrespect for the property rights of individual persons; a contempt and disrespect which has been vastly increased and intensified by actions of the government, itself. When government "legal" incursions against the property rights of individual citizens are on the increase, there tend to be greater "illegal" incursions by the criminal element. When this is realized, the way is then opened to the realization that the gun-ban laws, along with the other laws which violate individual property rights, are themselves, part of a much bigger problem, rather than a solution.

REFLECTION

Letters To The Editor

Editor:
The "New State Constitution" propositions to be voted upon within the next few weeks will in essence turn the state into an oligarchy consisting of the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the house of representatives, attorney general and Chief Justice of Texas. These five individuals can use their positions as appointees of the nine-member compensation commission to manipulate bills through the two houses of the state that are most favorable to their own special interests by offering to have pay increases approved or disapproved. Remember they are only human and subject to all human failings. Elective positions do not grant halos to the holder.
Granted, the "OLD" constitution is wordy and to the financial jugglers outdated. But it was written with this purpose in mind to prevent the type situations that exist in New York, California, Michigan and etc. To fully understand the gravity in passage of this new document we must be aware of those deletions from the present instrument.
Here are only eleven proposed deletions that in no way will benefit the tax payer. To be repealed from the 1876 Constitution:
Article III: Sec. 49B. Veteran's Land Program.
Sec. 50A. Medical Education Loans.
Sec. 50B. Student Loans.
Sec. 51D. Aid To Law Officer Survivors.
Sec. 54. Liens On Railroads.
Sec. 59. Workman's Compensation.
Sec. 60. Workman's Compensation.
Sec. 61. Workman's Compensation.
Sec. 62. Minimum Salary For The Governor, et al.
Sec. Article IV: Sec. 26. Notaries Public.
Article VIII: Sec. 5. Taxation On Railroad Property.
There are over 100 more. Total additional taxes in excess of $1,000,000,000.
Each of the eight propositions is loaded in this manner and when we go to the polls our concern should be how much more do we want to spend on non-productive state government. Our state officials in the house and senate presently make over $132 per day for the 140 days in two-year session. This does not include travel pay or the $3,000 monthly office expense. These same officials could not agree on this very document last year and now, amazingly, we should! If we are to remain a solvent state the people must retain our "Horse and Buggy" constitution and maintain control of our state government.

To the Editor:
Recently, from coast to coast, a topic making newspapers, radio talk shows and nationally known magazines is the citizen band radio. The good, the bad, the legal and illegal use of it.
As a licensed CB operator, I would like to take this opportunity to write this to the editor of the Pampa Daily News.

First of all, let's look at the good of the C.B. I, myself, like millions of C.B.'s have answered numerous 10-33 (emergency) messages. Notified the police, highway patrol of wrecks, stranded motorist, call in fires to the fire department, notified motorist of emergencies in their family. I am only one of millions who have done this. In disaster striken areas where the telephone service was out, you can bet your last dollar C.B.'s were there to help. It was because we wanted to. Whether I use my call letters or my handle, if I can save someone's life, property or time and money in an emergency, I'll do it.
With all the good, there's got to be some bad and I'll be the first to say so. I would say that profound language would be the biggest. Once in a while someone will get on his radio and use those four-letter words or cuss in general. Those people aren't smart enough to know better and need their radios taken away from them. If you say anything back at them it just makes things worse.
Chit-chat is another complaint. As for myself, if someone wants to talk, let them, but if someone needs the channel, let them have it. Recently, I visited on the phone to the FCC agent in Dallas, Tex. He said the rules were recently relaxed so much that if you talk five minutes, break one, then you can talk again.
As for "Smoko Report", notifying traffic of patrolman, this is illegal but I look at it as do some highway patrolmen. When you hear of a patrol in the area you slow down. That's promoting safety. The patrolman's job isn't to see how many tickets he can write.
Now I'll let you be the judge? Does the good over weigh the bad. Whether you use call letters or a handle. Oh, by the way, like most, I have a license but I use a handle and monitor Channel 8 on my base and 19 when I'm on the road.

What Bugs You Most? Here Are Poll Results

By MAX RAFFERTY
Well, now at least I know what's bugging you these days. Remember my list of the ten trivia which annoyed me the most? I invited you to rearrange the items according to your personal priorities and send 'em back. Well over a thousand of you did so, and apparently enjoyed a vast amount of catharsis doing it, if the expletives I had to delete from your accompanying comments are any indication. The trusty computer did the rest and here they are — for you and possibly posterity to marvel at — in the order of your comparative abhorrence.
1 — TV's increasing tendency to talk dirty.
This was a runaway winner. I hope the networks get the word. They're losing friends and — more important by far to them — customers.
2 — Entire nations like West Germany and the Netherlands coddling skyjackers and kidnappers.
The overwhelming sentiment seems to be, "Kill the creeps!"
3 — The current campaign to canonize Harry Truman.
This item rates high in my Vexation Derby, largely due to a flood of mail from Missouri. Typical "Show Me State" comment: "The rest of the country knew him only through the commentators. Here we actually had to live with the (you know - what deleted)."
4 — Electronically amplified rock combos.
Most of the profanity was in connection with this one.
5 — Anything Muhammad Ali says or does.
Old Big - Mouth seems to bug a lot of folks beside me.
6 — Southeast Asia in general. This includes South Korea, and according to my mail a surprising number of Americans think we ought to get the heck out of there.
7 — Buzzing and blinking car safety belts.
The only reason this didn't rate higher was because of the widespread feeling that this particular pest is due to be knocked on the head very shortly.
8 — The statements by self-styled experts that everything I really enjoy eating, drinking and doing is suddenly bad for me.

Consensus remark: "I wonder how our ancestors lived to such ripe old ages if their way of life was as cancerous, artery-hardening and nerve-destroying as these apostles of doom keep telling us."
9 — The pretense that professional boxing is still on the up-and-up.
Little interest here.
10 — Magazine covers that shed their colors all over me.
Typical question: "What about the (censored) newspapers that shed newsprint ink all over you?"
So there they are, folks: your choices of bugs, in assorted sizes. Oh, a lot of you berated me mildly for limiting the number of items. In order of "Gee - I-wished - you'd - listed - this" preference, here were your favorite omissions: bleeding - heart judges and powder - puff penalties for grievous crimes; the way the news media are castrating the CIA and the FBI; forced busing; the abolition of the death penalty; foreign aid to nations which hate us, and bureaucrats in general — in that approximate order.
To which I can only respond that I was specifically limiting myself to trivia. All the braintrusts and pointy-headed columnists pontificate gravely and frequently on the major woes and disasters of our troubled times; almost never does anyone zero in on the niggling, picayunish, scurvy little perplexities which plague us almost beyond endurance.
Yet it's the little things that count, now as always. As the old man said on his golden wedding day when asked the secret of his successful marriage: "Fifty years ago, Marthy and I agreed to let me take care of the important problems and she would look after the unimportant ones. And you know, Sonny, in half a century there hasn't been a single important problem come up."

Teen Enters Wrong Beauty Queen Contest

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.
DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print my letter to warn other girls against mistaking the Miss U.S. Teen Pageant for the Miss Teenage America Pageant. I made that mistake.
I paid an entry fee of $75 and drove 260 miles from my home after being accepted as a Florida entry in the Miss U.S. Teen Pageant. I had to pay all my own expenses for an overnight trip, plus buy a special wardrobe.
The girl who won first prize got a $500 scholarship for a LOCAL college—a far cry from the $10,000, four-year scholarship for the college of her choice, which is what the winner of the Miss Teenage America Pageant gets.
Too late I discovered that I had entered a LOCAL Teen Queen contest, thinking it was the National Miss Teenage America Pageant!
After checking, I learned that any girl can enter the preliminaries of the Miss Teenage America Pageant in her home town, and it doesn't cost her one penny. And she doesn't have to be sponsored. She can enter as a candidate at large.
I have chalked up my mistake to experience, but you could do teenage girls a big favor by advising them to find out exactly what each pageant does or does not offer before they enter.

TAKEN IN FLORIDA
DEAR TAKEN: Consider it done! Yours is only one of many such complaints I've received.
Girls, beware!

DEAR ABBY: I am a sunny-dispositioned Aquarius who likes to write ragtime music, but my mother is making my life unbearable.
She is 72 and a Virgo. She is also the most self-righteous woman in the world. When I was 9, my father blew his brains out. Whether my mother drove him to it, I cannot say for certain, but the few memories I have of my father are the visits I paid him in a local hotel where he would stay frequently because he and my mother couldn't live at home together in peace.
My mother insulted my Edgar Cayce study group the other evening when she called them "a bunch of nincompoops," so I decided to move out of the house. I could write a book. If all this is karma, I have paid my debt.
Now my mother wants me to come back so she'll have somebody to yell at. Am I wrong to refuse to return? I don't need her to provide me with room and board, but I feel guilty leaving her alone even though she does nothing but abuse me when I'm with her.
My psychiatrist tells me I shouldn't feel guilty. Should I?
FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: No. TRY not to feel guilty. Be honest about your feelings. If you still feel guilty when you know you have no reason to, ask your psychiatrist how to turn off feelings that aren't justified.

Corporal Punishment Common In Nation's Schoolhouses

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Writer

From Maine to California and many places in between a pat on the back — lowly placed — doesn't raise eyebrows in the schoolhouse.

Corporal punishment, given the distinction of U.S. Supreme Court approval Monday, isn't rare among disciplinary practices in the nation's schools.

That pattern emerged in a United Press International survey of reaction to the Supreme Court opinion upholding that of a North Carolina court.

For instance, there are no laws against corporal punishment in Maine. A bill was filed in the last session of the legislature to end corporal punishment. It was defeated.

Asa Gordon, Maine's Deputy State Commissioner of Education said, "Maine has always relied on an old court decision which says that a teacher has the same right as a parent in disciplining a child. We don't see the Supreme Court decision changing anything here."

In California, Dr. Henry Myers, president of the Pasadena School Board — population 26,000 students — helped introduce the fundamental or basic school to the public school system.

This is an old-fashioned type school with old math, uniforms, patriotism teaching — and corporal punishment. There are 2,100 students, all volunteers in the fundamental schools in Pasadena.

Parents at the beginning of the school year sign a permission slip on compliance with rules and regulations.

"One of the stated policies is corporal punishment," Myers said. "Many times we call parents in when paddling is indicated. It is done by the dean or principal — never by the teacher.

"A standard broad paddle is used. It is injurious only to the ego."

Dr. Myers said despite the compliance to corporal punishment regulation, the fundamental or basic school has a waiting list with "never less than a thousand on it."

A California law taking effect next year will require schools to have written signed permission for corporal punishment.

In Washington state, the law is that corporal punishment is undesirable and "should be used only when other means in dealing with the child have failed."

In Oregon, Verne Duncan, superintendent of public instruction, says corporal punishment is legal but should be used only as a "definite last resort."

In Jackson, Miss., assistant School Supt. Dudley Watson says, "This system has always had corporal punishment as one method of discipline and we see no reason to discontinue it."

He said the Supreme Court ruling "doesn't change a thing."

The Pittsburgh board of education voted last week to delay for one month consideration of a resolution to reinstate corporal punishment in city school. It has been banned for two years.

Board members said they wanted to study the Supreme Court decision.

Ray Corns, an attorney for the Kentucky Department of Education, said the Supreme Court said "in effect what we've been saying for 15 years.

"The recommendations for state school officials has been that corporal punishment may be used 'so long as it is reasonable and so long as it does not place the child's life and limb in jeopardy.'"

State education officials recommend that corporal punishment be used as a last resort for discipline, that an adult witness be present and the punishment be applied "to that portion of the anatomy which has been provided by nature as appropriate."

In Ohio, at Bay Village Public schools outside Cleveland, a spokesman said, "I don't see any problems about it so far as we are concerned. Paddling is not generally used in our system, so I don't see any restrictions on us."

"We basically use other means. The court decision sticks in a couple of provisions in that might not be used by some schools. The prior warning and witness. So it might tighten the situation a little."

ton, assistant superintendent for administration of Hillsborough County Schools, said the policy there coincides with the Supreme Court ruling.

Policy requires teachers take offending students to the principal first and outline the situation. The principal can agree or disagree, but the teacher has the final say. Wharton says the policy gives the teacher "a chance to cool down."

In dozens of other communities the report is the same: The Supreme Court ruling will cause no major changes in policy on corporal punishment. Among the places are Knoxville, Tenn., Columbia, S.C., San Antonio, Tex.

In Knoxville, spanking is prohibited without parents' permission. In Greenville, S.C., parents are called in if spanking is involved. If the parents say no, there is no paddling.

The policy in San Antonio is that a teacher cannot spank the child in the halls or classroom.

They have to take the child to the principal's office and then, if the principal agrees, with him and another adult supervisor present, corporal punishment can be given.

Harvard psychology professor Jerome Kegan, stresses consistency as the key to the appropriateness of spanking in school. He told UPI, "Each child gets accustomed in the first five years of his life to a certain form of discipline from those parents who are consistent. Some children never are spanked. Other children are."

"Although I personally am against physical punishment and feel children can be socialized without it... I think by all means it should be used if it is consistent with parents' form of socialization."

"I don't think the schools should use corporal punishment for children that are not accustomed to it."

Oklahoma City Policemen Return After Pay Dispute

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Policemen returned to work at the 11 p.m. shift change Sunday night, ending a pay dispute with the city council that resulted in a work slowdown and a walkout.

"We are ready to return to work," Fraternal Order of Police President Jim Parsons said after policemen approved a city proposal calling for a 9 per cent pay increase.

About 550 members of the 698-man force walked off the job Thursday following a two day work slowdown. They were demanding a 10 per cent pay raise and increased benefits.

The package approved by the officers, however, called for a reduction in some benefits, including a one-third cut in the educational incentive allowance.

City Manager Howard McMahan said the proposal also specified officers would receive no pay for the time they were off the job and would be penalized two-days pay for participating in the walkout.

He said the proposal would be worked into a formal contract and presented to the council Tuesday for final approval.

"It is a very good proposal," Parsons said.

"The (police) chief is inviting the officers to the third floor (of police headquarters) where he is welcoming them back, simply saying: 'Welcome home,'" Parsons said.

"I think we showed the citizens of the Oklahoma City that we are professional men and women," he said.

He had been in nearly continuous negotiations with city officials since the officers turned in their badges in a city hall demonstration about 48 hours after the city council rejected a 10 per cent pay increase recommended by an arbitration panel.

City Manager Howard McMahan, appearing at a joint news conference with Parsons Sunday night, said the offer stayed within the general dollar guidelines set forth by the city council.

Highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies filling in for the missing police officers were advised by dispatchers to stay on assignment until officially relieved because it might not be possible for all of the 11 p.m.

shift officers to get to work on time.

Parsons, who said throughout the walkout "lines of communication remain open," failed to appear at a FOP membership meeting this afternoon because he was meeting with McMahan and other city officials.

Speculation was strong before the 7 p.m. meeting of the policemen an acceptable offer would be presented.

Newsman were kept out of the meeting room, but as soon as the vote was taken officers filing out were heard to make comments such as: "Where do I find my badge? I've got to be at work in about two hours."

Less than 30 minutes later Parsons and McMahan made the formal announcement the walkout was ended and police returned to their jobs.

The British sovereigns William and Mary in 1692 issued a grant to Thomas Neale to set up and maintain a post office in the American colonies for 21 years. Neale paid about 80 cents a year to the Royal Treasury for the franchise. He never visited his American postal operation.

FBI Investigates SLA Auto Drivers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI is checking out leads in its investigation of the Symbionese Liberation Army based on a traffic ticket issued to Steven Soliah, Patricia Hearst's lover who is charged with harboring her before her arrest.

One key lead involves a young San Francisco nurse whose car Soliah was driving when he was stopped for speeding Feb. 26 about 45 miles north of Redding, Calif., near a Hearst family estate.

"They want to talk to her, but so far they have been unable to find her," one law enforcement official said.

Sources indicated law enforcement officers were seeking others who also had driven the unidentified woman's car in the past 18 months, and owners of automobiles that the woman was driving when she was stopped for a series of traffic violations.

Soliah, 27, was stopped by California Highway Patrolman Darel Barham for traveling 65 miles an hour at Castella, about 22 miles south of Highway 89, the turnoff to Wynton, a secluded mountain retreat owned by the Hearst family.

The ticket was issued the day after the Guild Savings and Loan Association in Sacramento was robbed of $3,700. Authorities think that robbery may be linked to the SLA.

State records show James

Kilgore, 28, whose fingerprint was found on the license plate of a stolen car used in a fatal Carmichael bank robbery April 21, was stopped by police in the San Francisco Bay area last November. At the time, he was driving a car registered to the same nurse.

Kilgore's fingerprint led authorities to suspect an SLA connection with the bank robbery, at which he was tentatively identified as a "lookout." On the same license plate, a fingerprint of Soliah was found, sheriff's deputies said.

Kilgore and Soliah's two sisters, Kathleen and Josephine, are sought by the FBI for questioning.

Soliah, a reclusive college football and track star who Miss Hearst said lived with her prior to her arrest, was arrested Sept. 18 on charges of harboring a fugitive after Miss Hearst and long-sought radical Wendy Yoshimura were captured in an SLA hideout in San Francisco.

Kilgore, a 1969 economics graduate from the University of California at Santa Barbara, has been identified as a frequent visitor of the Harrises when they secretly rented a dingy apartment in Sacramento for eight months.

In published reports, which the U.S. Justice Department said were basically correct, Soliah and his sister, Kathleen, were described as the SLA's "new team." This was in the summer of 1974.

Heir Keeps Widow Locked Up Two Years

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police say for two years Edna Halbedel, an 83-year-old wealthy widow, was kept in a locked room and under heavy sedation in her home by two men, one of whom was the sole beneficiary of her will.

Finally a family friend became suspicious because she was not allowed to see Mrs. Halbedel and notified authorities.

Firemen climbed a ladder and broke into the French Quarter home Friday to rescue the women. She was hospitalized and reported in fair condition Sunday.

Authorities say there are many questions still to be answered about the conspiracy which made the woman a prisoner in her own home.

"It's going to be pretty horrible when it's all revealed," said a spokesman for the district attorney's office. "There are some doctors involved in this thing. They just had her all doped up in this room — no visitors or phone calls or anything."

Arrested and booked with aggravated kidnaping were John R. Villarrubia, 42, a publicity agent named in Mrs. Halbedel's will, and Noel J. Dube, 44, a school teacher. Their bonds were set at $200,000 each.

A special grand jury was expected to meet Tuesday to study the case, made even more bizarre by a defense attorney's disclosure that the wife of District Attorney Harry Connick executed Mrs. Halbedel's will.

Attorney Raymond McGuire, who represented Villarrubia and Dube during a bond hearing, said the will had been executed by Anita Connick.

"I can't discuss my wife's legal practice," Connick said. "But I can tell you that my wife does not represent either of the arrested subjects."

The spokesman for Connick's office said a nurse who reportedly attended to Mrs. Halbedel and administered the sedatives, also was being questioned.

"She was an unwilling accomplice," he said. "She was hired to take care of the lady and give her medicine, but she had no idea what was going on."

Death Right Decision Awaited

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — Sometime in the next few days, a judge must decide whether comatose Karen Ann Quinlan can be removed from a life-sustaining machine and allowed to die — but the prosecutor says religion and emotion will not be at issue. Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. is expected to make his decision in the "right to die" case this week.

Morris County Prosecutor Donald Collester said he would call several medical experts at the resumption of the trial today.

Karen, 21, has been in a coma since April 14 when, according to friends, she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol during a birthday party for a friend. She is kept alive only by a respirator, and her family wants it disconnected to permit her to die.

The state contends that to remove her from the machine would amount to homicide.

Muir refused last week to see Karen because he felt the emotional impact might impair his legal judgment.

"Whether there is a philosophical or religious argument in this case is only tangential," Collester said during the weekend. "It is being conducted in a court of law."

Collester and other attorneys opposing the Quinlans' request to remove their adopted daughter from the respirator.

"If you told Karen Ann Quinlan she would go into a coma and check out and then she signed a statement that she did not want to prolong her life, it would not be the case," said Collester.

Karen's parents, Roman Catholics Julia and Joseph

Quinlan, did not attend church Sunday and instead stayed at home, praying the court ordeal would soon be over.

The Quinlans, generally expressionless through four days of testimony last week, said their "love, faith and courage" brought them into a court of law. "The Quinlans don't say the respirator is sinful," said Paul W. Armstrong, the family's attorney who has based his argument on the rights of privacy and religious freedom.

"They believe Karen's life has drawn to a close and further treatment draws her back from the enjoyment of a better and more fulfilling life," he added.

But Donald R. Coburn, Karen's court-appointed guardian, argued in court that Karen's quality of life was no reason to end it.

"You just can't extinguish a life because it is an eyesore," said Coburn. "Their belief is an optional belief. There is no Catholic mandate which prevents extraordinary medical treatment."

The state also has a vested interest in protecting Karen because a court decision in favor of the family would rock New Jersey's homicide statutes.

Worley Could Become Detoxification Center

By ANNA BURCHELL Pampa News Staff

Three possibilities for Worley Hospital, a Gray County landmark which ceased operations as a hospital on Oct. 15, were released today.

Amy Russell, administrator, said the possibility of opening it as a detoxification center for alcoholics has been discussed at length, but no concrete offer has been submitted.

Another possibility is use for a senior citizens apartment house and "then there are those who still hope it will reopen as a hospital," Mrs. Russell said.

The building is for lease or sale, but the American Medical International Inc., owners, have not yet put a price tag on it. Mrs. Russell said she will attend the AMI annual meeting Nov. 13 and 14 in Beverly Hills, Calif., where she hopes to learn more about the future of Worley. Four Worley employees still remain including Mrs. Margie Holland, Gwyn Masterson, Emmett Teakell and Mrs. Russell.

Those who wish to transact business at the hospital may ring the front door bell, Mrs. Russell said.

Although the announcement was made that the hospital, which stood for almost half a century, could no longer operate due to lack of revenue to justify the operations, many still feel that it will reopen.

However, officials have stated repeatedly that Highland General Hospital with 126 beds can take care of the sick in Gray County.

Worley was born during the oil boom days and was the first hospital here to have an elevator.

When the announcement was made in September that the hospital would cease operations, many still hoped for developments to warrant its operations forever.

In making the announcement that Worley would close, C.L. Pope, group vice president of AMI, said the firm has subsidized hospital care "to the community to Pampa in excess of a quarter of a million dollars through losses in the operation of Worley."

Worley had planned to build a new facility on an 11 acre tract off Kentucky in the vicinity of the two nursing homes.

That track of land is also for sale.

Police Force Double At Boston High School

BOSTON (UPI) — Police forces at South Boston High School were more than doubled today in an attempt to prevent a recurrence of the racial brawling which broke out Friday.

A permit has been granted to opponents of busing to hold a march and to rally at Marine Park in South Boston at 11 a.m. EST.

City Public Safety Coordinator Peter Meade said 500 policemen were assigned to South Boston today, rather than the usual 200.

Last week, racial tensions flared in South Boston and in Charlestown. Other parts of the city generally have been quiet during the school desegregation process this year.

Fighting between whites and blacks at South Boston High Friday resulted in 15 arrests, several injuries and closing of school an hour early. At Charlestown High School, about 100 blacks refused to attend classes Friday after racial slurs were exchanged by blacks and whites.

Boston School Supt. Marion Fahey said problems in South Boston were "very serious, most difficult."

Eleven white youths were arrested Friday night and Saturday morning in Charlestown because of incidents of rock and bottle throwing. About 500 persons marched peacefully in an antibusing protest in Charlestown Saturday afternoon.

The marchers said the city would die if busing was not stopped.

"We the people of Charlestown wish to make clear that in no possible way will we allow this funeral to actually happen," said Pat Russell of the Charlestown Powder Keg Information Center, which sponsored the march.

Marcos Aide Shot

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A top aide of President Ferdinand E. Marcos was shot dead inside Malacanang Palace today in the first assassination of a high Philippine official since martial law was imposed three years ago.

Official sources said Guillermo De Vega, 44, a presidential assistant with cabinet rank, and concurrent chief government movie censor, was gunned down in his office at noon.

A suspect, identified as Antonio Arceo, a movie producer and former newspaper reporter, was arrested by presidential guards. A snub-nosed .38 caliber pistol was found near De Vega.

A government spokesman said no details of the incident would be released until after investigation was completed by Maj. Gen. Fabian Ver, chief of presidential security.

Palace sources said the incident appeared to be isolated and there was no indication it was part of a plot that included Marcos or any other government officials as targets. But guards immediately closed all gates at the palace, screening everybody entering and leaving.

Bomb Maker Wins Nobel

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei Sakharov, the dissident physicist who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb, has called for world disarmament and "the total prohibition of nuclear weaponry."

Evoking memories of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, he also urged equalization and gradual abolition of the thermonuclear military equipment of both the United States and the Soviet Union.

In a speech published in the current edition of the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists, Sakharov called for equalization of tanks and divisions between the NATO nations and the Warsaw Pact countries and for "an equality of the armed forces of the Soviet Union and the Chinese People's Republic concentrated along the common frontier."

"The most important aim of detente must be the total prohibition of nuclear weaponry and full disarmament," Sakharov said. "This aim can be reached only gradually."

The Nobel laureate's remarks were delivered in Japan to the Pugwash Symposium on New Designs for Complete Nuclear Disarmament.

Sakharov, a political dissident in his own country, was unable to attend the August conference at Kyoto, Japan, and his paper on disarmament was delivered by his friend and fellow physicist, Frantisek Janouch, a Czech expatriate living and working in Sweden.

Sakharov called for international inspection teams to make sure the equalizations were being carried out and urged that such teams have free access to all regions of countries being inspected. He proposed a ban on further development of strategic weapons.

"It is indispensable to get rid of, once and for all, spy mania," he said. "Notions like 'military secret,' 'secret work' or 'publication suppressed for reasons of secrecy' should not exist in the world of the future."

Under the rules of the Pugwash Symposia, designed as meetings of the world's top scientific minds on matters of world importance, records or reports of statements by participants are not kept — a step taken to allow more freedom of expression.

However, two scientists provided a text of Sakharov's paper, translated by Janouch.

'Voters Would Guard Against Pay Increases'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Speaker Bill Clayton says voters will provide a safeguard against large legislative pay increases if the proposed state constitution is adopted.

The proposed charter would create a pay board to recommend legislative salaries and opponents of the revision say under this system legislators probably would receive large salary increases.

"I maintain the pay board would not mean salaries for legislators any greater than the voters themselves want them to have," Clayton said during the

State Reports New Project On Highway

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has announced a new construction project of 0.457 miles of river bank protection adjacent to State Highway 273 on the western edge of Lefors.

The project will consist of constructing a dyke and installing a line of car bodies anchored with steel cables attached to timber piling.

The work will begin later this month and is scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

Earthmovers Inc. of Amarillo was the low bidder at $57,377.40.

The engineering will be handled by the Pampa Office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, under the supervision of T.R. Kelley, resident engineer.

Secretary of State Mark White Jr. reminded Texas voters the deadline for absentee voting in the special constitutional revision election is Friday.

Lefors Club To Buy Items

Fourteen members of the Lefors Art and Civic Club were present at the last meeting for a program on Cal Farley's Boys' Ranch.

During the business meeting, Mrs. R.W. Beck and Mrs. Carl Hall reported on items purchased with stamps for the new Civic Center and members discussed additional items needed.

Members were reminded of the Board Meeting Oct. 29 in Perryton.

Senator Calls Northrop Probe Whitewash

By PETER GRUENSTEIN
Pampa News

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Proxmire, D - Wis., charged today that a Department of Defense investigation of Pentagon employees who were guests at the Northrop Corp.'s goose and duck hunting facility in Maryland was "an obvious whitewash" that undermined strict federal regulations prohibiting government employees from accepting anything of value from firms doing business with the government.

"The Pentagon's legal stance is either inept or a determined coverup of violations of a presidential executive order," Proxmire said in a statement accompanying a five-page, single spaced letter to Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger. "By claiming the 50 plus Pentagon officials entertained by Northrop were all personal friends of Northrop employees, the Pentagon lawyers hope to get the brass off the hook," he said.

The Wisconsin Democrat also charged that, "If this practice is as widespread throughout the defense industry as some think, we begin to find a reason why so many programs are mismanaged and ill conceived."

On Oct. 3, the Pentagon sent to Congress the result of a five month investigation which concluded that while the goose hunting visitors may have acted "contrary to the spirit and intent" of federal regulations, they did not technically violate the gift prohibition because the invitations were accepted out of friendship and not because of any business relationships.

Many of the Pentagon guests were high ranking officers who were directly involved in decisions possibly worth billions of dollars in sales to the Los Angeles-based aerospace firm. Last January, Deputy Secretary of Defense William Clements told DOD employees they were prohibited from accepting "any tangible items, intangible benefits, discount tickets, passes, transportation and accommodations or hospitality" offered by any individual or firm doing business with the government. "These prohibitions are not a matter of degree," Clements stated. "There will be absolutely no relationship with defense contractors which violates or appears to violate the provision."

In its Oct. 3 report, the Pentagon cited an exemption from the prohibition allowing for the "customary exchange of social amenities and between personal friends and relatives when motivated by such relationships and extended on a personal basis."

However, Proxmire said in his letter, the DOD report failed to cite amplifying language which adds: "...when circumstances make it clear that it is obvious family or personal relationships (such as those between parents, children, or spouse of the employee), rather than the business of the persons concerned, which are the motivating factors." The Wisconsin lawmaker, who is heading up a probe by the Joint Committee on Defense Production of Pentagon employees' relationships with defense contractors, also noted that Northrop, not the "friends" who invited the DOD employees, paid for the hunting trips.

"The facts are, not all these Pentagon officers were close personal friends of Northrop employees and, even if they were, they are not covered by an exemption in the executive order," Proxmire said.

The Pentagon said it would have no immediate comment on the Proxmire letter, which pointedly asked Schlesinger to personally respond. The Defense Secretary was reportedly quite upset when he recently learned the number of top brass who accepted Northrop's hunting invitations.

There has been some mystery concerning why the Pentagon duck hunting report was signed by Deputy DOD General Counsel Benjamin Foreman and not his boss, Leonard Niederlehner. Niederlehner was asked through both his secretary and a Pentagon spokesman whether he fully endorsed the report, but he failed to respond to those and other attempts to reach him.

In his letter to Schlesinger, Proxmire also criticized the DOD report for: not attempting to check out the statement of the goose hunting invitees; failing to obtain 1974-75 goose hunting lists (The report was based on data from 1971 to early 1974); and for not investigating "any other favors or entertainment from the Northrop Corp., e.g. tickets for sporting, social or cultural events, free pre-game lunches, North Carolina fishing trips, payment of golfing fees, or provisions of liquor or meals."

In addition, the senator said that the Pentagon report failed to include information on other goose hunting invitees, including former Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans, Gen. Henry W. McMillan, and Rear Adm. R.S. Brown. Capitol Hill News Service recently reported that the costs of the hunting lodge and Redskin football tickets and pre-game brunches were frequently billed to the government by Northrop. The firm is presently the subject of an FBI investigation.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28
Your birthday today: Opens an upbeat year of progress in both material and spiritual interests. Your career runs in about the same pattern as earlier, with considerably more details to work out. Your social circle widens, but you're in the middle since not all your friends like each other. Today's natives are involved in economics or politics, are active, difficult to stop, given to abrupt, arbitrary decisions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Tension eases as your efforts to organize begin to pay off, and you achieve more positive results. Review of recent facts gives you perspective and a chance to make corrections. Forgive errors at home.
Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Think in terms of the future. Put in your bid for better positions, higher rewards and civic improvements. Gather friends and family to celebrate the end of a misunderstanding.
Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Settle down to serious business. Make use of all resources to consolidate current progress. Update correspondence. Restrict travel to what contributes directly to an established project.
Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Local conditions rally. Recoup past losses and consolidate scattered enterprises. Keep trips and visits brief. Romance shows promise.
Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Promote personal ventures. Circumstances favor your creative ideas. Take the trouble to listen carefully; much useful information can be picked up where you least expect to find it.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You needn't go to extremes in your selections or search for perfection. Bargains are available. Plan on a larger scale. Romantic hopes rise.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Move with confidence since all concerned are doing the best they can. Reach an agreement, but be sure you understand the responsibility you're taking on and how you'll handle it.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Attend to a health problem and decide how your habits affect your well-being. Work requires skills you haven't fully learned. Settle differences among associates.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Cheer up! Prospects are bright for mending fences and redeveloping old programs. Call in advisers to get a second opinion. Be social at home and don't talk shop.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Exploit all opportunities that contribute to your plans. Proceed as if the whole world were watching what you do. Examine your next move.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Teamwork and group efforts add up to winning combinations. Keep in touch with distant people for some important word. Let your true feelings be known tonight.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Charity begins at home. Things are on the upturn and you make headway in your plans. Buy new tools and apply new techniques. Recruit somebody nearby to help.

An Acci-dental Discovery Bar DK Aps Have Winning Ways

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Dr. Harbord Cox's tranformation is nearly complete.

The mounted deer heads, fish and pheasant hanging prominently in the Cox home are being edged out by an impressive array of gold, sterling and satin — show awards that qualified three horses for the World Wide Appaloosa Performance Show Nov. 13 - 16 in Oklahoma City.

Bonanza's Drifter, Comanche's Warrior and Cajun Prince will compete in the November show.

Dr. Cox's haphazard entry into the horse business began two years ago and quickly became a family venture.

In the fall of 1973, the Pampa dentist moved his family into the farm near Kingsmill which his grandfather had homesteaded more than 70 years earlier. The move to the farm, 480 acres of dry land wheat and good grass pasture, seemed the perfect opportunity for Dr. Cox to buy his wife Dolores something she had always wanted — a black horse.

He found just the animal down the road from his farm and, knowing little about horses, regarded the white spotted rump it sported as something of a colorful bonus.

"I thought I had bought a Quarter Horse," Cox sheepishly admits today. Dolores, however, quickly identified the animal as an Appaloosa.

"Our family fell in love with the Appaloosa breed because of that horse," Mrs. Cox said.

After witnessing his first horse show some time later at the Tri - State Fair in Amarillo, Dr. Cox decided he wanted show horses. A magazine classified advertisement led the family to Jess Robertson's ranch near Dalhart, where they purchased an Appaloosa brood mare and colt.

Cox decided to breed the mare, Drifting Deer, to Robertson's stallion, Scouts Bonanza. The 1974 colt, Comanche's Warrior, was earmarked for the show ring.

Subsequent trips to the Robertson Ranch increased Cox's knowledge of horses and he noticed a poor, half-starved yearling stallion, Bonanza's Drifter, running in the pasture.

"It was the middle of a drought and Jess just didn't have the pasture to keep the horse in good condition," Cox explained.

"Dolores thought I was crazy when I told her I wanted the horse, that I was going to turn him into something. We talked to Jess and he agreed to let us take the horse if we would feed him."

Bonanza's Drifter became a permanent member of the steadily growing Cox herd. And with proper care that included three grain feedings daily, Drifter blossomed into a show quality animal.

The family continued to make contacts with Appaloosa breeders, owners and trainers, including Dolores and Gene Moore of Fritch.

They entered Comanche's Warrior in the Golden Spread Appaloosa Show and later in the Southwest Regional Appaloosa Show in Amarillo and took fourth in each. Both times the class winner was Cajun Prince, owned by Wayne Walston of Fritch.

The 1974 show season came to an end at the Tri - State Fair in Amarillo in September. Warrior finished this year with another fourth.

After the 1974 season, Dr. Cox purchased three brood mares in foal to Little Booger from Gene and Dolores Moore. The Moores approached Dr. Cox about a partnership in six of their best brood mares and their young stallion, Nugget Rude.

Nugget Rude died of a twisted intestine after the 1975 Tri - State Fair and we dissolved the partnership," Dr. Cox said, "though we still own half interest in another Moore stallion, Little Booger."

The final 1974 addition was Cajun Prince, purchased from Wayne Walston of Fritch for daughter Julie.

"Lawton, Okla. was the first show in 1975," Dr. Cox said, "and we entered wondering if we would ever place higher than fourth."

But their entries won the 1974 stallion class, the 1974 gelding class and placed in English pleasure and produce of dam competition.

Bonanza's Drifter, the half - starved full brother of Comanche's Warrior, compiled an impressive show record in 1975 under trainer Mary Hummel of Yukon, Okla.

He finished the year as the champion gelding in the Oklahoma Appaloosa Horse Club, champion Junior English pleasure horse for the Indian Territory Appaloosa Horse Club, and earned enough points with the Golden Spread Appaloosa Horse Club in halter, junior western pleasure, junior English pleasure and junior reining to qualify for the World Wide Performance Show.

In the Amarillo show, Mary Hummel entered Bonanza's Drifter in junior reining, though the horse had never been trained in the reining pattern. He won the class and is now training under Mary Hummel for future reining competition.

The Bar DK (bar decay) Ranch, as the dentist calls the place, needed a stallion and Cox contacted J.E. Baker of Oklahoma City.

"J.E. told me he had the horse I was looking for," Dr. Cox said.

The horse, Cricket Britches, was on consignment from Cecil Ford of Stroud, Okla. The four - year - old son of Cricket Bars, world champion Appaloosa running horse, was in race training when Cox bought him.

"We brought Cricket Britches in off the track and he is now being retrained for reining and cow work by Toots South of Miami. Toots breaks out all of our horses," Cox said.

A new barn and stallion paddock is nearing completion and will be ready for Cricket Britches when he returns from Miami.

Dr. Cox discussed plans for the future of his Appaloosa enterprise, which he visualized as a combination youth horse center and breeding farm:

"I am looking toward the day when a youngster can come here to buy a horse for youth activities and spend a week to 10 days here taking care of that horse under the instruction of a professional trainer."

"When they leave here with the horse they've purchased, the youngster will know and the parents will know they have a dependable mount."

Dr. Cox foresees a farm which will breed, train and sell the finest Appaloosa horses in the country.

Of 20 mares covered by Nugget Rude in his only year at stud, seven are owned by Bar DK.

"These will be the only Nugget Rude foals ever and we feel so fortunate to own these mares in foal to him. He was a great horse and we are all very anxious for these foals to hit the ground," Mrs. Cox said.

Drifting Deer, dam of Bonanza's Drifter and Comanche's Warrior, is in foal to Nugget Rude and is high point brood mare in Oklahoma. One mare is in foal to Little Booger, and yet another to Mr. Prince Plaudit II. A Johnny Dial show mare from the Walter Merrick Quarter Horse Ranch in Sayre, Okla. will, the Cox's hope, produce more generations of colored foals for Bar DK.

Voters To Control Pay

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The proposed new state constitution might allow legislators to get higher salaries, but the pay would not go any higher than voters desire, Speaker Bill Clayton said Saturday.

Opponents of the new charter being submitted to voters in a special election Nov. 4 have cited the legislative pay provision as one of the primary reasons citizens should vote against the revision.

"I maintain the pay board would not mean salaries for legislators any greater than voters themselves want them to have," Clayton said. He said the pay board would recommend salary levels, and legislators could accept or reduce the recommendations, but could not set salaries any higher than the pay board suggested.

Before the raises would take effect, Clayton said, the legislators who approved them would face voters in a general election.

"I can't name a legislator who would want to be in a contested race and have a big salary boost on his record," the speaker said.

Reps. Joe Wyatt, D-Victoria, and Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, also issued statements Saturday favoring the constitutional revision. Wyatt, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, noted the present constitution requires taxes on all personal property and intangibles, although the state has found it impossible to collect such taxes.

"It is tragic that, because our present constitution establishes a system of taxation which cannot be administered and requires taxation of such personal items and intangibles as these, we are all unwitting violators," Wyatt said. He said the new charter would clear up the tax problems.

Secretary of State Mark White Jr. reminded Texas voters the deadline for absentee voting in the special constitutional revision election is Friday. He expressed hope absentee voting will increase substantially in the final five days.

Troop 404 Wins Merit Badges

Nineteen Troop 404 Boy Scouts received merit badges and advancements during Court of Honor ceremonies recently in the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall, according to Harold Lawley, scoutmaster.

Scott Martin, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Martin Jr., 800 Bradley, was presented scouting's highest honor, the Eagle Scout badge in a special ceremony.

Scott has 41 merit badges and is senior patrol leader for Troop 404 in addition to being a Brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow. He is also active in the Chief Lone Wolf Lodge, the Pampa Junior High School Band and serves as Den Chief for Cub Scout Den 8, Scott.

a member of the First United Methodist Church, also received the Bronze Palms and the Lifeguard patch.

The Spanish interpreter patch went to Kevin Gantz, Scott Grayson and Todd Clements. Mike Gage, Kevin O'Neal, Chris O'Neal, Gregg Wilkins, Eugene Thompson, Pat Wilson and Robbie Wilson were awarded tenderfoot badges.

Second class badges recipients were Richard Steger and Jamey Hulsey. Kevin Gantz and Jamey Hulsey took first class badges and Scott Grayson was presented the Star Scout badge.

Assistant Scoutmaster Carl O'Neal assisted in the presentations. Special guests were Kenneth Bergquist, district scout executive for the Pioneer District, Guymon, Okla.; Dan Duggins, field director; Allen O. Cox, district scout executive for the Santa Fe district, and C. Warren Fatheree, council commissioner.

Con Artists Hustle Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — A species of con man thought extinct a decade back has cropped up again to swindle businessmen.

He is the hustler of shoddy, off-brand or used-up office equipment, peddled to unwary customers at inflated prices as pretended bargains.

"These hustlers usually get away with their swindles because of human inertia or because the victim is ashamed to admit he has been had," said a spokesman for Purchasing World magazine, which reported resurgence of the old swindle.

The con man does not approach the victim company's regular purchasing manager. He picks on some other executive he suspects of being gullible enough to bite at an apparent bargain. He drops the name of another executive "who suggested I call you."

A telephone call to the owner of the dropped name would stop the swindle cold in most cases.

Then the hustler comes up with a fanciful but plausible excuse for offering the bargain. "A widow is liquidating her husband's business ... a batch of office supplies has been bought for a song from an Army depot ... a customer in your area canceled a big order and we're stuck with this lot ... or I just accepted a position with the United Nations and I've got to liquidate quickly."

The gullible executive buys without even getting a firm commitment on the price. When the merchandise arrives it is shockingly inferior and the bill much higher than expected.

Purchasing World said a distressing aspect of the revival of this swindle is that the hustler also seeks to corrupt his victim. He offers the businessman a fancy color TV set or an expensive cartridge music player as a bribe to get a bigger order. Acceptance of such a bribe also may insure the executive will keep his mouth shut when the swindle becomes apparent.

Once a company has been cheated not much can be done, the magazine said, except report it to the postal authorities if the mails were used by the hustler and to local authorities who may be gathering information from other victims of the same con man or his associates.

The quick way to determine whether someone is making a bona fide offer of distress merchandise at a bargain or is trying to work a ripoff is to look for four signs:

—The dropping of another executive's name.

—A seemingly reasonable but vaguely specified reason for being able to offer good merchandise cheaply.

—The caller says he is on the road and can't give a phone number where he can be reached.

—When asked for a formal price quotation in advance, the caller says he has to check back with the seller. That usually is the last the intended victim hears from him.

Nixon Discusses Becoming Broadcaster

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has discussed becoming a broadcast commentator with the man whose firm syndicates Ronald Reagan's radio shows.

Harry O'Connor of O'Connor Creative Services said Saturday he met with Nixon at San Clemente Sept. 9.

"He (Nixon) said that he thought radio might be the strongest medium for him, rather than writing a newspaper column or going on television," O'Connor said.

"He said it was better than TV because it didn't have the element that people would be turned off by the kind of necktie he was wearing."

O'Connor said there had been no commitment of any kind and it appeared Nixon was talking a year or 18 months in the future after he completes his memoirs and already contracted television interviews with David Frost.

Reagan's radio programs consist of three-minute commentaries, five days a week.

The program is called "Viewpoints," and is heard on 314 radio stations in every state except Delaware. Stations pay anywhere from $20 to $300 per week, O'Connor said.

"Any producer who has any business sense would want to do it," he said, referring to a Nixon show. "I'm not concerned about the cons of such a program. I think they would definitely be outweighed by the pros."

The three television networks were less enthusiastic.

Richard C. Wald, president, NBC News, said in New York that putting Nixon on the air was something he had not considered.

"His opinions are of interest, certainly," Wald said. "I'm not sure I'd be particularly interested in him as a journalist—his efforts in the past have not been particularly sympathetic to the general run of what people in this business do for a living."

CBS and ABC had no comment.

Halloween Revolution--- Home Children's Party

COLLEGE STATION—Texas now boasts another woman on the statewide campaign trail. She's a foods and nutrition specialist with a "revolutionary" idea for celebrating Halloween.

"Suprise the family with a new Halloween tradition this year — a party at home for children and friends," Pances Reasonover with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, suggests.

She pointed out that this will help assure a safe holiday season — devoid of broken razor blades or other harmful materials that are plaguing the Halloween celebrations in recent years.

"Games and food can be planned around a theme — why pumpkins mean Halloween's here" is one theme suggestion. Older children can research the local library to learn all they can about pumpkins and Halloween before the party. And younger children could talk with their oldest friends or relatives to find out all they know about pumpkins.

"Then everyone can tell stories around a large pumpkin jack-o-lantern named 'The Great Pumpkin'."

To start "pumpkin lore" research, Miss Reasonover said that although the custom of jack-o-lanterns at Halloween is considered native to America, actually Irish people made lanterns as far back as Druid worship, long before the discovery of America.

But since pumpkins didn't grow in Ireland, people hollowed out large potatoes and turnips, then cut faces in them for lanterns. Irish immigrants who fled the famine in the 1840's discovered that the American pumpkin was excellent for carving the jack-o-lantern, the specialist continued.

"Pumpkin is nutritious — it's rich in Vitamin A needed for growth and night vision. Vitamin A also helps protect against infection by keeping linings of the mouth and digestive system in good condition.

"On third cup of pumpkin will furnished the average adult almost all the Vitamin A needed daily and more than the daily requirement for young children," she pointed out.

Pumpkin lends itself to a variety of dishes — perhaps each person attending the party could prepare a pumpkin dish to bring. This could turn into a sorsgoboard of taste treats, from sandwiches on pumpkin bread to pumpkin chiffon pie for dessert.

Miss Reasonover suggested the following pumpkin treats:

Pumpkin Bread
 1/2 cup shortening
 2 1/2 cups sugar
 4 eggs
 2 cups or 1 - pound can pumpkin
 (cooked, mashed carrots or winter squash may be substituted)
 1/2 cup water
 3 1/2 cup flour, sifted
 2 teaspoons soda
 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1 teaspoon cloves
 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts
 1/2 cup raisins

Cream shortning and sugar. Stir in eggs, pumpkin and water. Stiff together flour, soda, salt, backing powder, cinnamon and cloves. Blend into a smooth dough. Stir in chopped nuts and raisins. Fill baking pans about three-fifths full. Place baking pan in center of preheated oven, at 350 degrees F. Bake large loaves 60-70 minutes, or until a clean wooden pick inserted into center of bread comes out clean. Remove from oven. Let stand five minutes in pan. Remove from pan and cool. Yields: 2 loaves 9 x 5 x 3; 3 loaves 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2; 4 no. 2 1/2 can-size breads; or 30 cupcakes.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie
 2 teaspoons plain gelatin
 1/4 cup water
 3 eggs, separated
 3/4 cup light brown sugar, packed firm
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon ginger
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1 teaspoon orange peel
 1/2 cup milk
 1 1/4 cups pumpkin
 1/4 cup white sugar

Soak gelatin in cold water. Put egg yolks in top of double boiler and beat slightly with a fork. Add brown sugar, salt, ginger, cinnamon, orange peel and milk. Then add the pumpkin. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Remove from heat. Add soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which 1/4 cup whitesugar has been added gradually. Pour into 9 - inch baked pie shell. A frozen shell may be used. It may be served with whipped cream if desired. Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt.

consumer marketing information specialist, adds her support to the "celebrate Halloween at home" campaign with some other ideas.

"Among items to consider for both decorations and refreshment are apples, popcorn and cheese, along with pumpkins — all available at the local food store.

"For decorations of jack-o-lanterns, select a pumpkin 10-12 inches in diameter, weighing 20 pound or even more. When the pumpkin has a thin shell it enables light from within to really glow. But remember to use extreme care in lighting a jack-o-lantern — a flashlight will give the same effect as a candle and will be much safer," she said.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Red Delicious and Jonathan are two popular apple varieties for "bobbing" at the party, as well as for eating and table decorations.

"And a favorite to all is popcorn — a bowlful of butter popcorn with apples is always welcome for a snack, and youngsters will be sure to appreciate popcorn balls.

"Try a cheese plate to add variety and flavor — and nutrition — to the Halloween party. Serve it with fruit or crackers for a snack.

"Youngsters are more likely to enjoy mild flavored cheese. Remove the cheese from the refrigerator about an hour before time to serve it because cheese develops full flavor at room temperature," she said.

Man Outlives Coma

DALLAS (UPI) — While a New Jersey court decides whether a comatose woman will be allowed to die, a man in West Texas who spent eight years in a coma-like condition is alive and recovering, his doctors report.

But they hasten to say the cases of Karen Anne Quinlan, 21, of Morristown, N.J., and Gene Tipps, 29, of Seymour, Tex., who awoke to full consciousness May 16, eight years after an auto accident, are vastly different.

And Tipps' mother says she never believed her son would remain incapacitated for the rest of his life. Even during the coma he entered as a result of the accident and the unique, semi-coma which remained constant until his surprise recovery this year, she believed.

"I had faith all along he'd snap out of it," Mrs. Tipps said, and added even if he had not, the family would have continued caring for him.

Tipps had conscious use of his primary senses and retained certain reasoning abilities but doctors described him as disinterested and withdrawn, having no memory of his past life as a student in junior college.

His mother said he required help in dressing, eating and caring for himself and spent long hours sleeping. He was home most of the eight years of his condition and spent brief periods watching television but was easily tired by it, Mrs. Tipps said.

His condition ended last May 16, awakening from anesthetic given for a gall bladder operation with his full mental powers suddenly restored.

"The first thing I remembered when I woke up was being back in college in 1967," Tipps said in a telephone interview. "I thought I'd been away two or three weeks, and it had been seven or eight years."

He said he couldn't believe at first so much time had passed but later he was able to recall some parts of his years of semi-consciousness.

"I remember there was something called Watergate and that it was important because they kept talking about it on TV."

He said he was dimly aware at the time that "President Nixon got kicked out and got in a lot of trouble but I didn't know why. I also remembered something about the Democrats' hotel getting broken into."

Dr. Russell L. Adams, a clinical psychiatrist at the University of Texas Medical School in San Antonio, said "in a medical sense Gene was not in a coma most of the time. He was comatose only a matter of days."

"He is unique. As far as I know there is no other identical case," Adams said.

Adams said Tipps' mental faculties appear to be totally restored.

"He is functioning now in the average range. He has the intellectual capability to pursue college work again."

But Tipps retains some physical disabilities from the accident. He has difficulty using his eyes on exercises such as reading. An apparent nerve problem in his right arm prevents him from writing. A speech difficulty noticeable in talking with Tipps was with him prior to the accident, the family says.

Doctors are hopeful these problems can be treated and Tipps intends to try to enroll in college again.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Blindness is not an insurmountable obstacle in bridge. At tournaments in which blind players are expected to participate, bridge decks marked in Braille on the corners always are ready for use. When a hand is played, each player calls his card as he plays to each trick, and a blind player may at any time ask that the remaining cards in dummy be read to him.

One of the more prominent blind players is Dr. Lois Wiley, of Chicago. She is a Life Master, the highest rank of player in the American Contract Bridge League. An example of her ability can be observed in today's deal, which came up in a national championship event a few years ago.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠.

North's cue bid of two spades was designed to enable South to bid hearts, so that the latter would become the declarer, and thus have the advantage of the opening lead coming up to her, not through her.

After West had opened the king of spades, Dr. Wiley perceived that West had to have nearly every missing high card for his opening bid. And it appeared to her that East, for his one-spade response, rated to have the spade queen. If the king of spades were captured, then East could later get the lead via the spade queen to play a club through South's king.

So, Dr. Wiley allowed the spade king to win — and the defenders were now helpless. A spade continuation was taken by South's ace, after which trumps were drawn.

The ten of diamonds was then surrendered to West's ace, and West's diamond return was won by South's jack, a club being discarded from dummy. On the king and queen of diamonds to more of dummy's clubs were discarded. All declarer lost from here in was a club to West's ace.

If South had captured the opening spade lead, West, upon subsequently gaining the lead with the ace of diamonds, would have led this remaining spade to East's queen. East would then have shifted to a club, and the defenders would have made two club tricks, to defeat the four-heart contract.

Auxiliary To Mark Day

The American Legion Auxiliary has decided to observe Nov. 11 as Veteran's Day, according to Mrs. Frank Shotwell, president.

Other business at the Oct. 23 meeting included announcement of a special cancer, heart disease or stroke insurance plan available to all Auxiliary members under age 75. In further action, the Auxiliary voted to repeat their 1974 cash gift to the VA Gift Shop.

The group's next meeting will be a covered dish supper Nov. 20 in Mrs. Shotwell's home, 1312 Duncan.

Watson - Watt Engagement

Wedding plans for Lisa Kay Watson, 820 N. Christy, and Billy Carson Watt, 1947 N. Nelson, have been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Watson, parents of the bride-elect. Miss Watson is a 1975 graduate of Pampa High School. Watt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Watt, is a 1973 graduate of Pampa High School and has attended Amarillo College for two years. He is employed by Beacon Supply of Pampa. The wedding will be Nov. 26 in the First United Methodist Church.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

HELP!
 Do you or any of your readers know how to prepare an iron pot to keep it from rusting?

I've heated lard in it, but it still rusts. The only way I can use it is to line it with foil, which is not very satisfactory.

Thank you and bless you!

Fannie Winchell

I have really been getting oodles of letters asking for the answer to this question... so let's see what we can do about preventing rust for all you sweet gals.

Most of the cast-iron utensils sold nowadays have already been pre-seasoned, so should not require more than just ordinary care. For ordinary, everyday use, cast iron should NEVER be scoured with powders. To scour them is to remove that very necessary seasoning.

For most cooking purposes no further seasoning is necessary. All that is needed is to wash and thoroughly dry the utensil. But if Dutch ovens and chicken fryers are to be used for stews or simmering, etc., a little more grease may be needed while they are still new to prevent rust caused by condensing moisture.

But I'll bet a lot of you gals have utensils that have been handed down from your mothers and grandmothers!

Rust, discolored food or food with a metallic taste are all indications that the seasoning has been removed from the pores of the metal. If this is their present condition, it will now be necessary to start all over again. (This is called re-seasoning.)

First clean all that old rust off, using a scouring pad only if necessary, then wash and dry. Next, coat the inside with a heavy film of UNSALTED grease (preferably suet). And don't forget the lid!

Place the pan in a moderate oven and leave it there for about two hours on the lowest possible heat. It might be a good idea to wipe more grease on the sides again after about an hour. Wash in good soapy suds and it should now be ready for use.

After each use, wash in hot, soapy water. Wipe dry, then coat the inside of utensil with oil or shortening. Or crumple up newspaper and put in the pan to absorb moisture. Turn the lid UPSIDE down on the pot to store.

When ready to use next time, wipe well with a paper towel. Grease again and cook food as usual.

Follow the plan of coating the utensil before and after using the first few times. Many successful cooks always coat the inside of a cast-iron utensil with grease before putting foods in to cook, to help control the rust problem.

Dolphins Sink Bills

By RICK GOSSELIN
UPI Sports Writer

When Pete Rozelle ruled late last week no National Football League team could sign any players away from the large pool of unemployed World Football League talent, there was a gnashing of teeth in Miami.

The ruling meant Larry Csonka, the game's most punishing ball carrier, would not be able to play for the Dolphins this year even if Don Shula and his band of legal advisers could talk John Bassett into relinquishing a personal services contract he has with the big fullback.

With Csonka out of the picture, Miami was forced to live or die on its inside running game with 5-foot-10, 210-pound Don Nottingham—a nice little parcel to have in one's backfield but certainly no Csonka.

No Csonka, that is, until he has to be—then Nottingham does, a pretty good impersonation, as was the case Sunday when he punched through the Buffalo defense for three touchdowns to give Miami first blood in their two-game series and first place in the AFC East.

Nottingham scored on short bursts of one, three and one yards to provide Miami a 35-30 victory over Buffalo and a one game lead in the East over the Bills, who have now dropped two games after winning four straight at the start of the season. Miami is now 5-1.

It was the 11th straight time Miami has beaten Buffalo and the Dolphins were successful because of their ability to shut down O. J. Simpson, holding him under 100 yards for the first time this season. He gained 88 yards in 19 carries.

In other games, Baltimore crushed the New York Jets 45-28. Kansas City eluded Denver 26-13. Cincinnati beat Atlanta 21-

14. Houston thumped Detroit 24-8. Pittsburgh nipped Green Bay 16-13. New England battered San Francisco 26-14. Washington swamped Cleveland 23-7. Dallas edged Philadelphia 20-17. Los Angeles mauled New Orleans 38-14 and Oakland blanked San Diego 25-0.

On Saturday, the St. Louis Cardinals outlasted the New York Giants 20-13.

Colts 45 Jets 28

Rookie Marshall Johnson made his first two pro pass receptions good for touchdowns of 15 and 68 yards from Bert Jones and Jackie Wallace had a clinching 38-yard interception return for a score to lead Baltimore to its upset over New York.

Chiefs 26 Broncos 13

Jan Stenerud kicked four field goals and Mike Livingston started Denver with an eighty-yard touchdown run on a naked reverse in the fourth quarter to propel Kansas City past Denver.

Bengals 21 Falcons 14

Quarterback Ken Anderson snuck into the end zone from three yards out with 2:04 left in the game to keep Cincinnati unbeaten at 6-0. The Bengals' other touchdowns came on a 30-yard interception return by Ken Riley of a Pat Sullivan pass and a 30-yard pass from Anderson to Charlie Joiner.

Oilers 24 Lions 8

Billy Johnson ripped 52 yards for one touchdown and caught a 27-yard pass from Dan Pastorini for another to give the Houston Oilers their fifth triumph in six games. Johnson raced 52 yards for the score on a punt return for his third such touchdown of the season.

Steelers 16 Packers 13

Roy Gerela's 29-yard field goal with 64 seconds to play lifted Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh over an opportunistic and heavily underdog Green Bay team.

Patriots 26 Oilers 14

Rookie quarterback Steve Grogan, replacing the reinjured Jim Plunkett, threw two touchdown passes to give New England for its second straight victory after dropping the first four.

Redskins 23 Browns 7

Bill Kilmer hit 15 of 37 passes for 205 yards and a pair of touchdowns to hand Cleveland its sixth straight loss of the season. Kilmer hit Mike Thomas with a three yard scoring toss in the second quarter and Larry Brown with an 11-yard touchdown pass with 11 seconds gone in the final quarter.

Cowboys 20 Eagles 17

Tony Fritsch kicked a 42-field goal as time ran out to give Dallas a come-from-behind triumph over Philadelphia. The Cowboys had tied the score at 17-17 with 1:04 left in the thick a 42-field goal as time ran out to give Dallas a come-from-behind triumph over Philadelphia. The Cowboys had tied over two fumbles to set up a pair of short first-half touchdown runs by Cullen Bryant to give the Rams their fifth victory in a row.

Raiders 25 Chargers 0

Pete Banaszak ran for a pair of touchdowns and Ken Stabler added a 45-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Branch to hand San Diego its sixth straight loss. It was also the Raiders' second shutout against the Chargers in three weeks and the third time San Diego has been blanked this season.

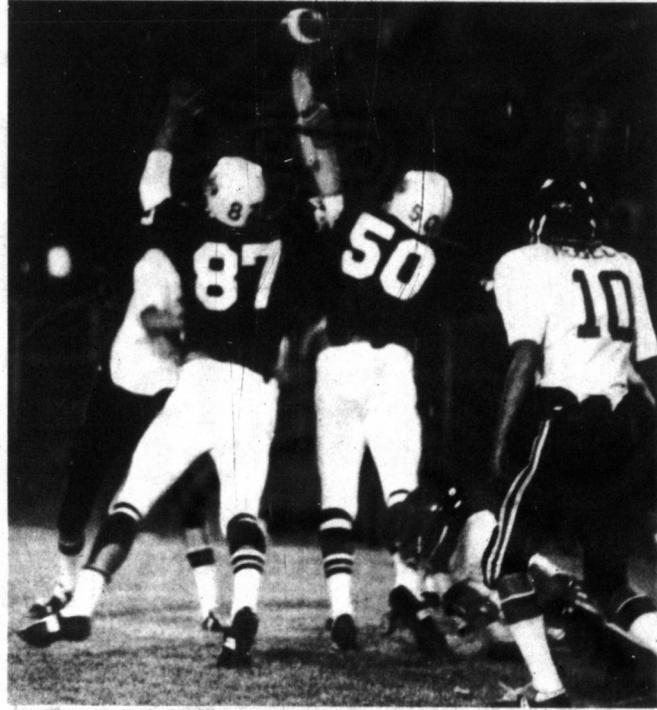

Cardinals 20 Giants 13 (Saturday)

Mel Gray caught a 51-yard touchdown pass from Terry Metcalf on a first quarter halfback option and added a 38-yard scoring reception from Jim Hart late in the final quarter to give St. Louis its second victory over New York in four weeks.

Spark Victory

Pampa stars in Friday's 33-0 win over Amarillo Tascosa included halfback Ricky Moore, (33), being tackled by linebacker Ronnie Foster, defensive end Kelly Baker (87) and tackle Dub Taylor, Baker and Taylor rush Tascosa quarterback Mike Lorenc, who barely gets this pass off. Moore gained 85 yards on 10 carries, while Baker and Taylor helped the defense limit Tascosa to 106 yards rushing and no points. Pampa, 1-1 in district play and 5-2 overall, travels to Borger Friday for another 3 AAAA contest. The Harvesters are tied with Amarillo Caprock for second place in the district standings and are only a game behind Amarillo Palo Duro and Amarillo High. (Pampa News photos by Michal Thompson)

Kick Wins for Dallas

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tom Landry, portrayed as the unemotional, cool and calm coach, was so worried he couldn't watch.

With Dallas and Philadelphia tied at 17-17 with three seconds left in the game, placekicker Tony Fritsch lined up to try a 42-yard field goal and Landry said he decided to look down and wait for the crowd reaction.

"The last split second I looked up and it was a wobbly kick and I said 'uh-oh' and thank God it went through."

Fritsch, who had missed field goals of 49 and 41 yards earlier, made the kick as the clock ran out and Dallas, 5-1, leaders in the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference, had a dramatic, come-from-behind 20-17 victory over the luckless Eagles, now 1-5.

The Cowboys did it by scoring 10 points in one minute and four seconds. With the Eagles ahead 17-10 with 3:50 left, Dallas started a sevenplay, 57-yard drive which was aided by a controversial late hit call on the Eagles' Bill Bradley and a 15-yard penalty.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach ended the drive by tossing a 21-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Drew Pearson and Fritsch's extra point made it 17-17 at 1:04.

After the Eagles failed to move on their series of downs and had to punt, Staubach again moved the Cowboys downfield, passing to Pearson who made a leaping, twisting catch between two Eagle defenders on the Philadelphia 25.

Staubach, who had 27 completions for 314 yards, with a club record of 49 attempts, called Pearson's catch "the big play."

"He caught that pass with two men on top of him and I don't know how in the hell he caught the ball but all I know he put us in a position to win."

Fritsch, who said later "I knew I would make it," then trotted in and booted the game winner.

And the first word out of the usually phlegmatic Landry's mouth as he went into the dressing room was "wow."

Eagles' coach Mike McCormack, who is fighting to save his job, said he "was bitterly disappointed."

"I was proud of the football team," he said. "I tried to win a hard game. It tried to beat a good team."

"I think the officiating was a factor on several plays."

McCormack questioned a second-quarter intentional grounding call when Roman Gabriel's desperation pass as he was being sacked was incomplete but appeared to be thrown to an eligible receiver.

Three players were thrown out of the game — Cowboy linebackers Bob Breunig and Tom Henderson and backup Eagles wide receiver and special team member Bob Picard.

'Little Guys' Win Big In Team Championship

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — The emotion was showing in the eyes of Dean Refram, a man severely burned over 70 per cent of his body just 15 months ago and now celebrating a victory with champagne.

"We're not the little guys anymore," he said softly, without a smile.

Refram and his partner Jim Colbert—both called "the little guys" of the tournament due to their small stature—had just won the $200,000 National Team Championship at Walt Disney World and split a $40,000 prize. The first money Refram had won since he pocketed $395 in this year's Florida Citrus Open.

The two buddies, who work together at a golf resort near Tampa, combined their talents for 36 birdies in 72 holes of golf without a bogey.

They won the last PGA tournament of the year with a 36-under-par 252, three strokes ahead of two teams tied for second place — Bobby Cole and John Schlee, and Curtis Sifford and Victor Regalado.

The happy Colbert, winner of four pro tournaments but having his troubles in recent months, said, "It was time something good happened to us."

"This really tops off my year," added Colbert, who won $50,111 in "official money," not counting the Disney check, despite having dropped off the tour for four months.

"I couldn't play any better," he added. "The little guys made 36 birdies in four rounds. That's unbelievable. All those big guys making eagles and things and we had to settle for nasty ole birdies."

Colbert and Refram shot 63s in the first two rounds of the best-ball competition and moved into the lead to stay with a 62 in the third round.

Regalado shot an eagle and six birdies Sunday while Sifford added only two birdies.

"But I made only two birdies the first two days and Curtis made 11," Regalado said.

Cole hit most of the birdies in the last round as his team also got a 62.

"One of these years Bobby and I are coming back and we'll both play well and shoot an unbelievable score," Schlee said.

Redskins Snag Crown

AMARILLO — The Pampa Redskins extended their unbeaten string to seven games this season by winning the Amarillo Bowl at Paschal Field here Saturday.

The Redskins opened the six-team invitational tournament with a forfeit win over Amarillo Belmar, which had only 11 players at the game's start. Two of those were injured in the first quarter.

The Pampa Packers whipped Amarillo Oakdale 24 - 6 in another opening round game. Jerry Skinner led the Packer attack with touchdown runs of 20, 17 and 51 yards.

Derek Bigham added another TD on an 11-yard scamper. Oakdale's only score came late in the fourth quarter on a 10-yard scamper by Scott Brooks.

Canyon edged the Pampa Colts 7-0 in the first round. The victory, coupled with a second-round bye assured Canyon a berth in the championship game.

In the tourney's only second-round game, the Redskins outlasted the Packers 21-7.

Cavin Coleman scored twice for the Redskins on runs of 45 and 31 yards and added two extra points. Ran Johnson tallied the other six-point on a 11-yard dash and tacked on the conversion.

The Packers scored late in the game on Bigham's 18-yard sprint. Randy Slaybaugh ran over the conversion.

Coleman ran 25 yards for a touchdown and passed to Danny Chatham for another as the

U.S. Gold Rush Ends

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — United States athletes spent the past two weeks in Mexico feeling as if they were invited guests who had been given the back room and told they had to eat out.

So they demonstrated their distaste by rifling their host's treasure chest.

The Americans brought home 116 gold medals and 247 medals overall from the seventh Pan American Games, which ended Sunday with the traditional closing ceremony at the 100,000 seat Aztec Stadium.

The 247 total represents the largest collection of medals ever won in the Games. And the 116 gold medal count has been bested only once — the Americans having captured 128 in 1967 at Winnipeg.

But the outstanding run of U.S. performances, putting the nation's athletes in the proper mood for the upcoming Olympic year, was accomplished under the most pleasant of circumstances.

"I think many of those athletes who have made international trips before realize the American sports figure is not the most popular in the world," said Col. F. Don Miller, executive director of the United States Olympic Committee.

"But those who were exposed to it for the first time found it to be something of a surprise."

From the opening day of the games American athletes were subjected to boing, catcalls and, most of all, the shrill whistle which in this part of the world is the common signal of displeasure.

The boing continued right through to the closing ceremonies. The appearance of the American flag in the parade of nations unleashed the banshee-like whistling.

President Luis Echeverria Alvarez, who was booed loudly himself at the Games opening ceremonies, spared himself further embarrassment Sunday by failing to appear at the official closing of the competition.

"I talked to many of our participants," said Miller, "and they all said the whistling gave them additional motivation. I visited as many of the game sites as I could and I thought the whistling generally came from an isolated, but well organized group."

The most flagrant attack came during the 20-kilometer walk during which American Larry Young, who placed third behind two Mexicans, was shoved, hustled and spat upon.

"Our man was treated so very badly that we took immediate exception to it, of course," said Miller. "The explanation of the Games committee was that the police were not allowed on the grounds of the University of Mexico (most of the race course was through the university)."

"They did apologize for that and they promised better crowd control during the marathon. And we received better control."

The final medal count showed the United States won 54 per cent of the 215 gold medals awarded. The Cubans, who had trained vigorously for the competition since it provided them with a chance to upstage the U. S., won 58 golds — exactly half the American total. Canada won 18 first places and none of the other countries participating could manage as many as 10 gold medals.

Oilers Overcome Detroit 24-8

HOUSTON (UPI) — Despite their tenacious defensive play, the Detroit Lions made one mistake in their game with Houston, according to Oiler coach Bum Phillips.

"They kicked the ball to Billy," Phillips said, "and I wanna tell you, he knew exactly what to do with it."

Throughout the knock-down, drag-out game in the Astrodome Sunday, Lions punter Herman Weaver sailed his kicks out of bounds and placekicker Errol Mann squibbed his kickoffs in order to keep the ball away from the dangerous fleet-foot, 5-9 Billy Johnson.

The Detroit tactics, which were roundly booed by the Houston faithful, paid off until the third quarter. With Detroit backed deep in their own territory, Weaver boomed a towering 38-yard punt straight up the field.

"I never think about running," Johnson said late Sunday. "With the team I've got blocking for me, all I've got to do is catch the ball."

Johnson snagged it in traffic, scooted through an opening and fled 52 yards with the touchdown capping the scoring in a 24-8 Oilers win which kept the Houston team snug with the AFC Central Division front runners.

"After I did my rubber legs in the end zone," Johnson said, describing his knee-knock routine after a score, "I thought about running up to (Paul) Naumoff and giving him a show. I knew Tody and Bubba (Smith) would back me up."

Earlier in the game, with Detroit in a 6-0 lead on two Mann field goals, Johnson fumbled a pass reception and Naumoff, the Lions' linebacker, recovered.

"He, (Ed) O'Neil and some other guy came up to me after the fumble and gave me the rubber legs," Johnson said. "Guess they were trying to get my goat. I just laughed."

The Oilers had to resort to the pass to overcome the early deficit.

MARKS — Roadmap of a Match.

To add interest and keep a reasonably accurate account of how a match stands, the system of totaling marks is used.

This simply means keeping a running total of each team's strikes and spares in each frame, the difference representing the approximate margin in a match.

For each mark a team is ahead of any frame, there is roughly a 10 pin difference, figuring strikes and spares are both worth 10 extra pins. Doubles (two strikes in a row) count two marks in the frame in which the double occurs.

In handicap matches, the difference between teams is compensated for in the first frame. Example: One team has 41-pins handicap. Since a mark equals 10 pins, the handicap would be equal to four marks which should be added to the team's actual marks in the first frame.

In a team match, where a bowler is absent and no substitute has been obtained, leagues use a "blind" score which is added to each game total of the missing player's team. The suggested "blind" score is decided by the leagues when settings up their rules. Blind scores are not allowed in tournament play.

To compute the value of the "blind" score for marks add one mark for each ten pins, or major fraction thereof, over 90. A 158 blind score would equal seven marks.

Should a bowler score four pins or less on the first delivery after a spare or doubles, one mark should be deducted. The Girlstown charity tourney is being conducted and I hope all of you will enter and contribute to a very worthy cause.

At Wednesday Concert

Don Hal Haney, sacred music artist, will present a concert of old and contemporary sacred music at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church, 1200 S. Sumner. He has been a featured soloist in numerous conventions, conferences and teaching seminars across the country. The concert is open to the public.

Bentsen Nixes NY Aid

HOUSTON, (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says he is opposed to proposals of federal help for New York City's financial problems. "We cannot isolate ourselves from the problems of New York, but they have been over spending and living extravagantly for years," said Bentsen, who is campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination. "They have been spending beyond their means for years including giving free tuition to students at some of their state colleges."

61 Absentee Votes Cast

Sixty-one absentee votes on the proposed new Texas constitution have been cast in Gray County. Absentee balloting will close Friday. The votes may be cast in the Gray County clerk's office on the second floor of the county courthouse. The election will be Nov. 4.

Pointed Hearst to Feminism

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Symbionese Liberation Army member Wendy Yoshimura influenced Patricia Hearst to reject revolutionary violence and espouse the cause of feminism, according to Rolling Stone magazine.

And the San Francisco Examiner said in its Sunday edition Miss Yoshimura, 30, provided Miss Hearst's attorney with details to support his contention she was the victim of brainwashing after her kidnap by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974.

Both women were arrested Sept. 18 at a home in San Francisco's Mission District. Two other SLA fugitives, William Harris and his wife, Emily, were captured the same day in a home several blocks away.

Rolling Stone said in a forthcoming article Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of Examiner President Randolph Hearst, and Miss Yoshimura aligned themselves against the Harris who espoused violence in changing the world.

The bimonthly magazine said Miss Hearst had become repelled by the SLA's violent philosophy and "machismo." It said she also was homesick and on the verge of quitting the SLA just before her arrest.

"When Wendy initially criticized the SLA as sexist, Patty had defended Cinque and Teko," Rolling Stone said. "But over the summer her opinion changed. She was beginning to view the SLA as a gun-toting gang heavy on machismo."

Cinque was Donald DeFreeze, an escaped convict and head of the SLA. He and five other SLA members died in a police shootout in Los Angeles.

Teko was identified as Harris. Rolling Stone said Miss Hearst "had lost almost all fascination for the intrigue of the underground. Most of her time was spent away from the Harris who no longer seemed like the brother Teko and sister Yolanda (Mrs. Harris) she once admired."

The Examiner said Miss Yoshimura met for several hours with attorney Terence Hallinan at the Alameda County Jail near Livermore and provided details on the techniques used in the "brainwashing" of Miss Hearst.

Hallinan, who recently quit as Miss Hearst's attorney, presented the information to U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter in an affidavit to support his argument his client should be freed on bail.

The newspaper said Miss Yoshimura urged Miss Hearst to sign the affidavit — which she did.

Hallinan said that, when he confronted Miss Hearst with the information, "she changed in front of my eyes and began to talk about the terrible things that happened to her."

Miss Hearst is being held in San Mateo County Jail in nearby

Redwood City on federal charges of bank robbery and using an automatic weapon in commission of the holdup. She also faces numerous state charges in Los Angeles County.

Miss Yoshimura, known in Berkeley, Calif., radical circles as an active women's liberationist, is being held on charges of illegal possession of explosives.

Authorities said she had been involved in a plot to blow up a Naval Architect building on the University of California campus in Berkeley. The bombing never took place.

Moore To Be Arraigned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sara Jane Moore, 45, a onetime FBI informer, will be arraigned Tuesday in federal court on charges of trying to kill President Ford as he left a downtown hotel Sept. 22.

Miss Moore was transferred to the San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City during the weekend from San Diego, where she had been undergoing a psychiatric evaluation to determine whether she was mentally competent to stand trial. Miss Moore was indicted by a federal grand jury last week on a charge of attempting to kill the President. She could be sentenced to life in prison.

Frank Bell, her attorney, said he would seek to delay the arraignment because, "I don't think, under the law, she can be arraigned for any formal proceeding undertaken until her mental capacity is determined."

After the arraignment, Miss Moore will be transferred back to San Diego for completion of her psychiatric examination.

Miss Moore was arrested immediately after she allegedly fired a pistol at Ford. He was not hit. She had been questioned by police and the Secret Service before the incident, but the Secret Service determined she was not a potential assassin.

Police earlier had confiscated a pistol from her, but she bought another one from a gun dealer the day of the attack.

Guns Smuggled Into Mexico

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Federal authorities say the number of American guns smuggled into Mexico has increased sharply, with narcotics dealers and Communist terrorist groups trying to buy weapons ranging from large caliber pistols to machineguns.

"The weapons are commanding such a price in Mexico that they're better than money if you can get them in," said Bill Kline, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration office.

"From our intelligence, I would say this sort of thing is on the rise and has increased substantially."

Kline said drug dealers wanted the military rifles, machineguns and large caliber pistols to battle the Mexican Army, which conducts raids against narcotics traffickers.

Earlier this month, Rep. Bob Wilson, D-Calif., announced the Drug Enforcement Administration had discovered 40 instances in which guns were stolen from U.S. military facilities.

Kline said federal agents in Texas were working on a case in which 34 weapons allegedly were exchanged in Mexico for narcotics bound for the lucrative American market.

"One of the problems is that there is no inspection by U.S. officials of Americans going into Mexico," said Kline.

Another problem, he said, was with Mexican customs officers, who generally failed to search American automobiles destined only for border cities.

"They're taking everything from hand guns to machineguns across the border," Kline said. "I'm sure many of the guns are stolen, but they're so valuable some people are just buying the weapons here and then taking them to Mexico."

The Mexican newspaper, El Norte, reported this month two Chicano activists from Texas were arrested at Monterrey, Mexico, on charges of inciting to rebellion and smuggling arms to Mexico.

The newspaper identified the two as Raul Ramon Chacon and Salvador Abundiz Guzman and said they had implicated a San Antonio restaurant owner in the case.

Trustees Set Tuesday Meeting

The Grandview-Hopkins ISD Board of Trustees will meet 8 p.m. Tuesday to discuss opening of bids on buses, the official budget, the study of preliminary application foundation funds and the superintendent reports.

Police Scrub Bathtub Ring

ASHBURN, Ga. (UPI) — A $200,000 bathtub ring has been broken by police in Georgia and Tennessee.

Three men were charged with stealing $200,000 worth of bathtubs from a factory in Turner County, Ga., and transporting them to Tennessee to be sold. Police say the ring had been operating for been at least a year and a half.

Georgia authorities said David Campbell Jr., 34, of Ashburn, and Harley Campbell, 24, of Sycamore, were arrested last week and charged with theft by taking in the case.

Tennessee authorities said Kyle Campbell, of Elizabethton, Tenn., a brother of Harley Campbell, was arrested in his home town and charged with receiving stolen property.

The tubs allegedly were stolen from the Vacuum Form factory in Sycamore, where David Campbell was employed.

Navy Fliers May Be Held in Soviet Prisons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A mother who never gave up, a private investigator, an insurance executive and a former private labeled a defector have triggered a drive to flush out facts about the fate of a Navy air crew that vanished a quarter of a century ago.

Some may be in a Russian prison.

A PB4Y2 with 10 aboard disappeared over the Baltic in UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Dr. John W. Oswald, president of Pennsylvania State University, recently returned from a two-week study tour of the Soviet Union, says Russian educators are puzzled that American students are permitted to decide their life plans without any government intervention.

"The closed societies are convinced that central planning and decision-making is the best method for societal service and full employment," Oswald said. "and yet they observe the facts of a free society's accomplishments and vigorous survival."

Oswald, vice president of The Association of American Universities, said the American higher education system is not entirely without planning.

April, 1950. The crew was declared dead.

Because of work on behalf of a Muncie, Pa., insurance executive once imprisoned in Siberia, the Senate committee investigating the U.S. intelligence community may look into the case — including the possibility that some of the crew survived.

Under the Freedom of Information Act, the mother of one of the men aboard the flight asked for documents on the incident. Doretha Waldo of Kansas City, Kan., said she never believed her son, Ensign Tommy Lee Burgess, was dead.

"I've already said he's alive and I've never had a service for him. Maybe I feel that way because of some motherly instinct," Mrs. Waldo said.

John Noble of Muncie and William A. Marchuk of Collegeville, Pa., were imprisoned in Siberia. Both heard from inmates a Soviet vessel picked up eight survivors from an American plane that ditched in the Baltic.

Noble hired Theodore R. Grevers, a Grand Rapids, Mich., private detective, to follow up. On Noble's behalf, Grevers also has used the Freedom of Information Act to obtain official accounts of the incident. He also approached the Senate committee on intelligence.

"John Noble is convinced there are many Americans in Russian camps," Grevers said.

Marchuk also was held by the Russians in the 1950s. He was picked up in the Soviet sector of divided Berlin while on a three-day pass in February, 1949. After he was returned to the United States, he was labeled a defector and imprisoned in his own country.

Marchuk said he told U.S. officials what he had heard while in prison of the Baltic crash — that there were survivors. He said Navy investigators were "indifferent, sort of."

"In a way, I was told not to talk about it."

Mack Wofford Appointed To Committee

City Manager Mack Wofford has been appointed to the Membership Building Committee of the Texas and International City Management Associations.

The appointment was made by Amarillo City Manager John Stiff, member of the board of directors in TCMA Region I.

Harvey Westerbohn, Lufkin city manager and committee chairman, said a meeting of the committee will be set up at the annual Texas Municipal League conference which opens Sunday and runs through Tuesday in Houston.

City Manager Wofford and seven other Pampa city officials will be in Houston for the TML meet.

Mrs. Phillips Elected Pres

Mrs. Vickie Phillips, social service director for Pampa Nursing Center, is the new president of the Panhandle Social Concern Association.

The meeting was held recently in Plainview. The organization's purpose is to train, promote, and exchange ideas among employees of nursing homes.

Mrs. Phillips is a native of Pampa. She has been employed at the Pampa Nursing Center for the past 18 months.

She will serve as president of the newly formed organization for two years.

Free Enterprise Stifled

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — The expansion of government and bureaucratic restrictions on private industry have stifled free enterprise and hurt the nation's economy, according to former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"I've lived all my life believing that if you build a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to your door," Reagan said. "Today, if you build a better mousetrap, the government comes along and builds a better mouse."

He said everyone could have a bigger slice of the economic pie "if government will just get the hell out of the way and let the free enterprise system make a bigger pie."

Reagan spoke Friday night at the convention of the New Mexico Association of Commerce and Industry. He also told reporters he would decide next month whether to challenge President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan said the ratio of employees in private business to governmental employees has decreased from 26 to 1 in 1900 to 4 1/2 to 1 today and said the nation is no longer governed by elected officials, but by "middle echelon bureaucrats."

About Dunmore:

George Washington: "If [Governor Dunmore of Virginia] is not crushed before spring, he will become the most formidable enemy of America. Motives of resentment actuate his conduct to a degree equal to the total destruction of Virginia."

American Cattle Jet Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Begun as an experimental technique in the 1950s, air shipment of U.S. cattle has expanded to the point that an estimated 80 per cent of the cattle moving outside North America are members of the jet set.

A growing demand for highprotein food has sparked livestock expansion worldwide, and imports of U.S. breeding and feed cattle for herd improvement and enlargement have grown accordingly.

Some of the biggest cattle export markets today are distant, often landlocked countries, and a trip of less than 24 hours by air has become more popular than a journey of several weeks by ship plus rail or truck.

Another reason for the increase in air shipments is that airline prices in the past few years have been generally competitive with other modes of transportation.

An article in this week's issue of Foreign Agriculture says that during fiscal 1975, a record 24,203 cattle were exported to nearly 50 countries outside North America, and about 80 per cent made the trip by air.

The article says the most common way of shipping these cattle and other live animals is in a type of aircraft known as a "stretched" DC-8. Most of the planes have an interior that is converted into a barnlike environment and divided into stalls or pens.

A stretched DC-8 can carry about 75,000 to 100,000 pounds, which averages out to about 85 or 90 1,000 pound animals. Flying time ranges from 10 hours for some West European markets to 24 hours for markets half way around the world, such as the Philippines.

Smaller jets and propeller flights are sometimes used for nearby Western Hemisphere destinations.

Major air carriers are responding to the cattle jet craze by introducing larger planes into the livestock air shipping business. One carrier is planning to start using DC10s next year.

Pen sizes range up to 10 by 15 feet. Pallet floors are covered with removable cardboard or combinations of plastic sheeting, tar paper and other substances plus wood shavings or other moisture-absorbing materials. Specially designed ramps allow easy movement of animals from a truck or the ground to the plane.
