When you go to vote Tuesday, don't expect the ballot to enlighten you about what you are voting for or against.

Proposition No. 5, for instance, makes whopping changes in such things as tax assessment, tax levying by cities and counties, tax relief for poor and aged.

On the ballot it reads, "The constitutional amendment revising the Finance Provisions of the Texas Constitution"

From the looks of the number of absentee votes cast, there seems to be a genuine lack of concern about the election. Or is it total confusion?

About 70 absentee ballots were cast in Gray County.

The Texas legislature changed school financing and gave school employes a raise, a half million dollars worth in the Pampa schools this year.

More money gets better teachers, many say, and we want our children in the best possible hands.

Taxpayers in the form of oilmen, gas producers, farmers and ranchers agree. They want good teachers and good schools, too, but they can't pay more.

The school administration says other districts are paying more taxes to keep better schools. Pampans should, too. And the school budget is already too tight.

School board president admits that the board already is neglecting areas because of the lack of funds. School buses and school buildings don't get the attention they need.

But school board agrees taxpayers have been bled enough.

Pretty soon the buildings may fall and the buses may fail. Few teachers, no matter what the pay, will come to teach in school buildings slums with rundown equipment and no assistance.

And the taxpayers will have no schools.

Is anybody right? Is anybody wrong?

Economist Elliott Janeway says that New York City's financial plight dramatizes the nationwide weakness in the public sector of the economy.

"The default is reminding us that government is out of business as the presumed source of leadership and stability for the entire economy," he writes.

The economic woes can be traced to the high price of oil from the Middle East, he added.

New York City has 348,000 public employes, more people than live in the entire state of Wyoming.

Ever wonder where the first name "Jimmy" came from? Pampa's Mayor R.D. Wilderson?

We asked him recently and he said it all started back in 1936 when he went to work at a lumber yard on a Monday morning. The fellow he replaced, who had left the job the previous Friday, had been named Jimmy.

An unobservant truck driver at the lumber yard didn't notice that it was a different young man than before and kept using the name Jimmy.

Others picked it up, as a joke at first, and before long the name stuck and R.D. to this day, is Jimmy.

Congressman Jack Hightower reported that his daughter, Ann, who recently graduated from college, is living with him in Washington D.C.

Hightower's wife Colleen is in Vernon recuperating from surgery.

When Ann decided to move to the nation's capitol, her father warned her that he could in no way help her get a job. So she ventured on her own and now works in the capitol building with the receptionist.

She accompanies her father on affairs of state which the junior congressman attends. One of the most recent was the Rockefeller housewarming which Vice President Rockefeller gave when he and Mrs. Rockefeller moved into the new vice presidential home.

Ford Proposes Court Control NYC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today proposed legislation permitting a federal court to assume control of New York City's finances if the city defaults on its debts.

Such court control, the President said, would assure that vital services to New York City's 8 million residents would not be interrupted.

Ford said he would veto "any bill that has as its purpose a federal bail-out of New York City to prevent a default." This was a hardening of his previous stand in which he had not yet seen any legislation he could sign.

"The people of America are asking why New York City should get special advantages," Ford said in a speech prepared for delivery before a luncheon of the National Press Club.

"Why, they ask, should all the working people of this country be forced to rescue those who bankrolled New York City's policies for so long — the large investors and big banks," Ford said.

Ford expressed confidence New York City's default — which could come as early as Nov. 17 — would not cause a financial panic. "We have heard enough scare talk," he said.

Ford said the financial markets had already anticipated and discounted the possibility of the city's default.

Ford said the legislation he was proposing would give the U.S. District Court in New York "authority to preside over an orderly reorganization of New York City's financial affairs — should that become necessary."

But in order to file a bankruptcy petition with the courts, the city would also have to present "a good faith plan" for repaying its debt and "a program for placing the fiscal affairs of the city on a sound basis."

Then Ford said the court would be empowered to authorize debt certificates — a type of bond — covering new loans by the city. Future revenues would be bound to pay off these new debts.

New York owes $12.3 billion. Since March it has not been able to sell bonds to raise money to pay debts as they become due. Without a federally guaranteed loan, it is expected to go into default on its debts when the new round of bonds become due.

Some Democrats in Congress are pushing legislation to provide $4 billion in guaranteed loans. But the proposals have aroused hostility in and out of Congress.

Under Ford's proposal, the holder's of the city's bonds would have to wait for repayment and for interest.

But Ford said his plan would prevent the city's funds from being tied up by lawsuits, provide for an orderly plan for repayment to bondholders and provide for a way of new borrowings while the city is in default.

The President was critical of the way the city had carried on its fiscal affairs over the years. "During the last decade," he said, "the officials of New York City have allowed its budget to triple. No city can expect to remain solvent if it allows its expenses to increase by an average of 12 per cent every year, while its tax revenues are increasing by only 4 to 5 per cent a year."

Ford said the bills in Congress would disrupt the U.S. system of federalism.

"I see a serious threat to the legal relationships among our federal, state and local governments in any congressional action which could lead to disruption of this traditional balance," he said.

"Our largest city is no different in this respect than our smallest town. If Mayor (Abraham) Beame (of New York City) doesn't want Governor (Hugh) Carey to run his city, does he want the President of the United States to be acting mayor of New York?"

Administration sources said Ford might not object to a federal loan to the city after default occurs, probably in early December.

But they said there had been no change in Ford's adamant opposition to proposals in Congress to provide billions of dollars in federal loan guarantees to enable the city to avert default.

That legislation is advancing. The Senate Banking Committee was on the verge of sending a $4 billion loan guarantee bill to the floor Tuesday, but decided to delay until after Ford's speech.

The city owes $12.3 billion and since March has been unable to sell bonds. Default is expected to occur when a new round of debts becomes due for repayment. Gov. Hugh Carey says the state then might default on its debts in the spring — it, too, has been unable to sell bonds to shaken, skeptical investors.

In Congress it was unclear whether Ford's continued opposition to legislation to save New York before default would kill that proposal. Sentiment against New York was strong and a Senate filibuster is threatened.

But a caucus of the House Banking Committee Democrats produced a big show of support for a loan guarantee plan.

The plan that's expected to emerge from the Senate Banking Committee Thursday would provide $4 billion in loan guarantees renewable every year. For the city to get the money the state would have to raise taxes the banks and other bondholders would have to agree to reduced interest and delayed repayment and the unions would have to agree to employ contributions to pension funds.

The Haunted House, 100 N. Ward, will be ready to receive guests by 6:30 p.m. today — the beginning of a two-night open house sponsored by the Junior High group of the First United Methodist Church. The group did the work themselves and are rehearsing their acts. The house will be open from 6:30 to 10 p.m. today and Thursday. Admission will pay for class projects. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Gray County Budget May Include Raises

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Gray County's operating budget for 1975 is $1,751,559.38 — and it is time to look at the figures for 1976. Salaries account for about 46 per cent of the total budget or $801,569, according to A.C. Malone, auditor.

"Between now and Jan. 1, the commissioners court will adopt a budget for 1976 — and raises will have to be considered along with a proposed budget," said County Judge Don Cain.

City employes received a 10 per cent pay increase, and the Highland General Hospital Board of Managers is considering salarying hikes which average 12 per cent.

But no figures have yet been mentioned for the 113 fulltime and parttime county employes.

County salaries now range from $16 per day for part-time employes to $1,401.71 a month for the highest paid official — the county judge.

Other elected and appointed officials receive the following monthly salaries:

- $1,051.58 for the county sheriff
- $1,079.69 for the county tax assessor-collector
- $1,049.69 for the county clerk
- $1,049.69 for the county treasurer

— $1,049.69 for the county attorney

— $1,049.69 for the county auditor

— $600.86 for Gray County justices of peace

— $637.59 for the welfare office director

— $573.04 for the constables

— $1,049.69 for the district clerk

— $731.17 for the juvenile officer

— $639.59 for the museum curator

— $226.20 for the county health officer

— $707.02 for the county veterans service officer

— $785.75 for each of the four commissioners

Many who work in the courthouse offices are paid $496.16 monthly.

Records show that a new employe working as a clerk in a county office generally is paid $450 monthly as a beginning salary.

The October payroll totaled $58,915.69, excluding matching monies for social security benefits and retirement.

The break down shows that $9,323.91 came from the general fund, with $25,999.57 from the salary fund. Those who work in the precincts on county roadways were paid from the road and bridge funds including $6,090.36 for Precinct 1, Lefors; $6,875.47, Precinct 2, Pampa; $4,760.41, Precinct 3, Grandview, and $5,865.97 for Precinct IV, McLean.

Elected officials and their employes are paid from the salary fund while appointed employes, including custodial employes, are paid from the general fund.

The county judge and each commissioner receive $150 monthly for travel. The district clerk and the county clerk each receive $25 monthly for travel expenses.

Those who work in the road and bridge departments are paid from $624.39 to $672.56 each

Shotgun Squad Set To Protect Stores

The increased possibility of crime, including robbery, during the holiday season has resulted in the establishment of a "shotgun squad" to protect Pampa stores that stay open late.

The announcement was made this morning by Police Chief Richard Mills who said businesses which remain open late are high risks for holdups.

Officers will either be assigned inside the store during high crime time or outside the building, the chief said.

They will probably be in plain clothes and the "shotgun squad" operation is scheduled to start Friday.

Selected stores will be chosen and officers assigned, the chief noted.

"Pampa is almost unique in armed robberies being so few," he said.

He explained that officers in Amarillo have initiated a concentrated effort to stop the robberies.

"I don't want those people (the robbers and burglars) to come to Pampa," he said. "If Amarillo makes it hot for them — here is Pampa 54 miles away and the second largest city — and a wealthy city."

He added that the police department is already overburdened with the crime load.

"So we are taking preventative action to deter robbery — and if it takes place to provide apprehension on the scene," he emphasized.

The chief said the police department would not want any resident to observe the holiday season with loss of property or life if it can be prevented.

Pampa has an estimated population of 25,000 persons with 22 commissioned law enforcement officers on the police department staff.

"We have a little of every kind of crime a larger city might have," Chief Mills commented.

Armored Cars Evacuate Foreigners from Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanese security forces penetrated battle scarred Beirut in armored cars today to evacuate Americans and other foreigners trapped by warring Christian and Moslem militiamen.

The rescue mission was carried out at the request of the United States while Christian and Moslem fighters battled with mortars, rockets and machine guns across the blazing streets of the city that once was a popular tourist attraction.

The evacuation of American nationals from the strife-torn Lebanese capital was accelerated with the departure of 160 nonessential staffers and their dependents and a group of 50 teachers from the American Community School.

Beirut airport was crowded with foreigners leaving at the rate of about 400 per day. France today joined other nations in advising citizens to get out.

An estimated 75 persons were killed and more than 150 wounded in the past 24 hours, raising the casualty toll from seven weeks of civil war between right-wing Christian and left-wing Moslem militias to about 950 dead and 2,300 wounded.

A convoy of internal security forces in armored cars and personnel carriers stormed through Moslem lines around the embattled Kantari district of uptown Beirut and evacuated several hundred persons, including 200 Lebanese and foreign nationals, from the embattled and burning Holiday Inn.

The fleeing Americans crowded into the suburban airport with other foreign families advised by their embassies to leave the war-ravaged city as soon as possible.

20 Per Cent US Adults Functionally Illiterate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A "shocking" 20 per cent of adult Americans have difficulty coping with necessary everyday skills like shopping or getting a driver's license, a government study revising traditional concepts of literacy showed today.

The report on the four-year Adult Performance Level Study, released by the U.S. Office of Education, redefined the concept of functional literacy as being more than the ability to read or write at a chosen grade level in school.

Skills necessary to function as an adult also include reading job notices, making change, locating community services or understanding insurance or income tax concepts, the report said.

By these standards, 19.7 per cent of Americans aged 16 and older "function only with difficulty," and another 33.9 per cent "are functional, but not proficient," said the report.

"It is surprising, perhaps even shocking, to suggest that approximately one of five Americans is incompetent or functions with difficulty and that about half of the adult population is merely functional and not at all proficient in necessary skills and knowledge," the report said.

Adults had the greatest difficulty with the consumer skills, the report said, including counting money and making change, using catalogs and consumer guides, knowing how to order food and tip in a restaurant, understanding credit, or buying and maintaining a car or housing.

Almost 30 per cent of the population, 34.7 million, function with difficulty in these consumer areas and another 39 million can cope, but not too well, the study said.

Other findings:

- Males and females perform about the same.
- Sixteen per cent of white persons are estimated to be functionally incompetent, 44 per cent of blacks and 56 per cent of Spanish-surnamed groups.
- Adults who function best have the highest levels of income, education and job status.

About 50 American embassy employes and dependents fled the country Tuesday.

Some of the fiercest fighting raged along the most expensive stretch of real estate in uptown Beirut — the fashionable seaside hotel district.

Premier Rashid Karami in a new peace initiative, called a meeting with nine top political leaders, but three failed to show up.

Karami vowed to meet with the newly formed Security Committee day and night at his bullet-scarred government palace until the fighting between Moslem and Christian militias stops.

At least 35 persons died Tuesday and nearly 100 were wounded as the seven-week round of fighting escalated. Total casualties since the conflict began in mid-September mounted to 850 dead and nearly 2,200 wounded.

The battle surged across the most expensive piece of real estate in Lebanon, a quarter-mile square area containing the city's three leading hotels.

Terrified diplomats, businessmen and tourists, many of them Americans, crouched in terror in the basements of the hotels as shells ripped through the roofs.

Rockets and mortars smashed into the Holiday Inn. Machine gun bullets tore into the Phoenix and St. George hotels overlooking the Mediterranean.

The nearby U.S. embassy, under sniper fire since Monday, was in a virtual state of siege. U.S. Marine guards wore combat fatigues for the second day in a row.

A spokesman for the United Nations said 550 dependents of U.N. personnel had been advised to leave.

Karami vowed the keep meeting with Lebanon's leaders after parliament failed to raise a quorum, even though some deputies were brought by armored car through embattled streets.

Hospitals, overflowing with wounded, turned away further patients and food ran low.

Weather

Clear skies and cool temperatures are forecast today through Thursday. The highs will be in the 60s, with lows in the 40s.

A Look At The 'Con' In Conrail

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
It is very difficult to explain to the American housewife that the union featherbedding on the railroads contributes to the high cost of the goods she buys.

Yet if union featherbedding could be quantified in dollars and cents, there would be a national protest that would compel Congress to band antiquated, costly union work rules. With the abolition of such rules, a giant step would have been taken to restore the nation's railroads to fiscal health.

At the moment, however, Congress isn't even considering a ban on featherbedding. Instead, it is planning to spend billions of taxpayers' dollars to create a huge government agency, ConRail, to take over bankrupt railroads in the Northeast and Middle West. ConRail is a step in the direction of all-out nationalization of the railroads. It also is a bottomless pit insofar as the taxpayers are concerned.

When the Penn Central went bankrupt, Congress became alarmed. But instead of encouraging efficient, free enterprise transportation services in the Penn Central area, it decided to retain as much as possible of the transportation network of yesterday — at colossal cost to the taxpayers. In the words of Congress, it aimed at retaining "as much as possible, existing patterns of service."

This is an absurd objective, for, in many areas, truck transportation fills the bill. No need exists to resurrect old-style freight services.

In other areas, of course, there is a place for a modern, efficient railroad system carrying containerized freight and bulk cargoes such as coal. But an efficient railroad system cannot be created through the agency of federal spending, especially as Congress refused to do anything about union work rules fashioned in the age of steam.

The prospect the nation faces in the formation of ConRail has been accurately described by David P. Morgan, editor of TRAINS Magazine. In an editorial captioned "The Con In ConRail," Mr. Morgan noted that the group charged with studying the rail situation should have returned to Capitol Hill and said: "We are beset with approximately twice as much fixed plant as is needed to get the job done, we have a horrendous labor situation stemming from too many names on the payroll and steam-era work rules."

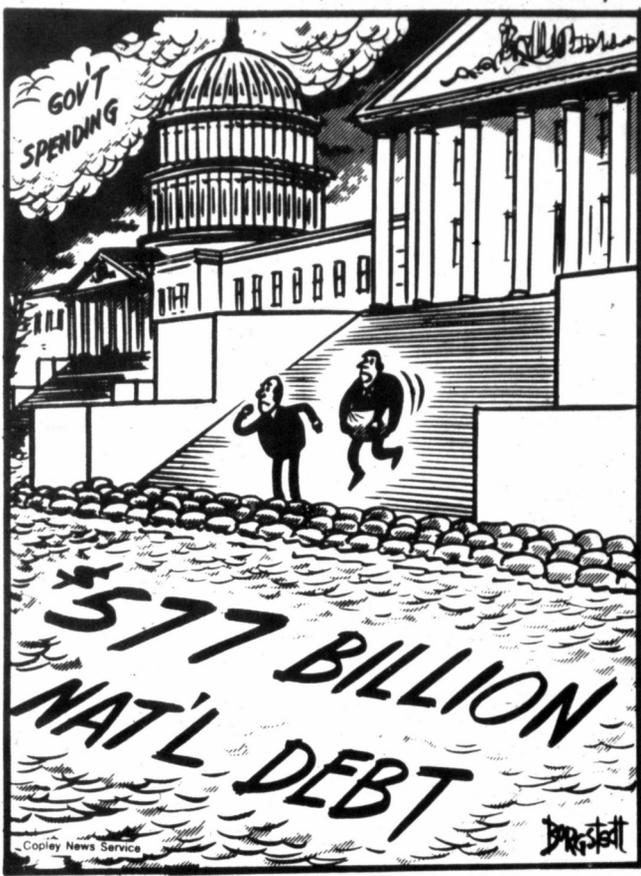

But the truth wasn't publicly stated. Thus the taxpayers are in danger, Mr. Morgan said, of being obligated to "shore up a tax-exempt, deficit-incurring railroad — the nation's biggest — forever."

The problems of the nation's railroads are problems of labor and regulation.

One railroad in the United States — the Florida East Coast Railway — has been able to escape from union control and operate on the basis of manning levels determined by its own management. Operating with smaller crews, and at lower costs, the FEC has been a leader in safety while marking up impressive profits. But the price the Florida East Coast paid was a labor "war" against the line, including bombings and other acts of sabotage.

Yet, if American is to have a fully 20th century railroad system in the final decades of the 19th century work rules. Taxpayer subsidies won't create sound railroads. Indirect government control of rail lines will result in political insistence on retaining tracks where tracks aren't economically justifiable.

The free market system must be allowed to operate again in the railroad industry.

FOR AND AGAINST Truman: The Pros And Cons

By MAX RAFFERTY
Q — "I'm responding to your column where you listed the top 10 trivia that bug you the most. Your biggest pet peeve — that of all the plaudits these days for Harry Truman — is the most galling of all. Mr. Truman was one of our greatest Presidents, as the nation has grown to realize. I only wish he were still around to tell you where to get off, which I'm sure he could have done quite eloquently." — J.R.B., Birmingham, Ala.

A — Oh, I'm sure he could. The same charming, oldworld, courteous way he used to write letters to music critics, as you may recall. Or the way he used to use four-letter words to describe newspaper columnists he happened to disagree with.

Q — "Your normal good mental health must have suffered a relapse. All you said about Harry was of questionable truth except him being 'kicked upstairs' by a fickle fate into a job three times too big for him. He was more equal to the job than any President in this century." — G.T., Neosho, Mo.

A — Including Teddy

Roosevelt? Aw, come off it, G.T. Q — "Why didn't you mention the following in regard to Harry Truman?"

1 — He fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

2 — He dropped the bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

3 — He caused the creation of the state of Israel in 1948.

4 — He vetoed the resolution passed by both houses of Congress which would have outlawed communism in the United States.

5 — He, of course, was not solely responsible for all of this, but it could not all have happened without his sanction. He was President at the time. So it was more than the job being too big for him, as you said.

"Do you dare print the truth when he is being practically sainted or deified? This is more than a pet peeve with me. He changed the course of history in too many ways. A curse on his actions!" — D.C.R., Indianapolis, Ind.

A — Now, now. Let's not get carried away. I just said Harry was no saint; I didn't say he was the devil. He worked hard and I'm sure did his best. It's just that he was a 22 caliber man in a 45 caliber position.

Q — "You listed the books you'd like to have on a desert island. Being a bit of a pragmatist has led me to choose these:

1 — A book on boatbuilding for laymen.

2 — One on desert-island survival.

3 — A first-aid pamphlet.

4 — A book with maps of the local shipping lanes.

5 — One on edible plants and fishes of the area I'm stranded in.

6 — Something amusing with which to pass the time — like the Nixon tapes, for instance.

7 — A family album so I won't forget faces." — K.K., Fairfield, Ohio.

A — Your book list is a lot more practical than mine. You'd be surprised at some of the suggested additions to my original "desert island reading" list which some of my palpitating readers have sent in: the current Sears-Roebuck catalogue; a year's supply of Playboy magazines; a book on transcendental meditation; a biography of Groucho Marx; "How to be Happy though Poor" by Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, and so forth, and so forth.

Press Freedom

"Is the relinquishment of... the liberty of the press necessary for your liberty? Will the abandonment of your most sacred right tend to anyone's security? Liberty... give us that precious jewel and you may take everything else." — Patrick Henry.

Our country was born in a time of crisis. We have lived through dangerously troubled times throughout our history.

The men who signed the Declaration of Independence knew the heavy responsibilities that came with independence. Each one was aware of the dangers and hardships that lay ahead, as they signed.

Democracy has never been, and never will be, an easy form of government to live under, because it is a government of the people.

Democracy itself is a fragile plant which must be well rooted in public understanding and confidence if it is to survive. As Winston Churchill observed democracy as a form of government has many weaknesses but still it is better than anything else. A free press is indispensable to a democratic society. And in the end, we cannot avoid the conclusion that despite abuses and the potentialities of abuse, the alternatives to a free press are far worse. There are some prices we have to pay for democracy and its institutions.

A free press in a free society. This is our choice, and we prefer to live with it.

"Error of opinion may be tolerated so long as reason is left free to combat it." These words of Jefferson sum up the press of free speech and academic freedom.

The press must not be arrogant and wrap itself in the First Amendment. It must welcome all opposing points of view with a willingness and humbleness to publish giving accountability to the readers and not the "official view" presented by institutional spokesmen which is self-serving and seeks to use the press for its own ends.

The public is concerned, however, that the press show a sense of responsibility in exercising its great freedom. Central to its responsibility is what we would describe as a sense of faithfulness and fairness in discharging its function. While this responsibility cannot be commanded or policed by law, the force of public opinion and a wholesome skepticism by the public in regard to what it reads and hears can be potent forces in sensitizing the press of this responsibility.

Whether or not the public agrees with what it reads, hears, and sees is not, and never should be, the criterion of its confidence in the media. The criteria is, and must forever be, public belief that what it reads, hears and sees is accurate and fair. No matter how much time and effort we devote to talking with each other within the media about our "inviolable First Amendment rights," the public doesn't really give a damn unless it believes that those criteria — accuracy and fairness — are being met.

This freedom of the press is not something handed down to Moses on Mount Sinai, but is rather a civil privilege granted us by the people when they approved the First Amendment. And what the people can grant the people can take away.

The only effective reporting is that which convinces the reader by the recitation of logical presentation of the facts, without interpretation. It is hoped then that the reader will draw his own conclusions and they will not stem from prejudice or the conspiracy thereof to explain news events.

Another essential ingredient is that the audience read with both eyes and an open mind, and will be willing to accept the bad news, and disagreeable, in good faith and to blame and media for reporting same.

We will only get rid of society's worst problems by being deeply and continually aware of them.

In times like this, the role of the newspaper becomes even more important to the democratic process.

Most publishers and editors agree there never has been greater need for strengthening public understanding of the press. Nor is this simply to protect the interests of the press for the public interest is plainly involved. Indeed, it is paramount. For, if the public does not value a free press, than all our institutions are in peril.

If a crisis develops, if the system falters, each of us shares in the blame.

If the democratic system fails it will not be a crisis that kills it. It will be the ignorance and apathy of the people. As Thomas Paine said, "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must undergo the fatigue of supporting it."

You'll Like It?

We do not know of a better cure for that sense of fear generated by a feeling of inadequacy — that "inferiority complex," if you will — than hard, conscious, protracted and productive work.

It's amazing how a difficult, piece of work, well done, acts to buoy up the spirits. It's the knowledge of having really tried, along with the sense of accomplishment, that does it.

Next time you're down in the dumps, try it. You'll be pleasantly surprised at how well it works.

Pretty good "employment insurance," too.

Legend has it that Chelach the soothsayer, died of laughter at the thought of having outlived the predicted hour of his death.

Question Box

QUESTION: The Census Bureau says that inflation is cutting away increased income. Since the government is responsible for most of the inflation, is the answer to have the government make up the difference? Shouldn't the government have to pay people whose incomes are reduced in buying power because of government-induced INFLATION?

ANSWER: The question implies that the government is an entity which can produce money. This is false. The government has no money at all, other than what it takes from the people, either in taxes directly or by more inflation, which has been described aptly as the most cruel tax of all.

It is true that an inflation, the politicians are able to have the central bank print up more paper "dollars." But these dollars not backed by production of goods and services make the bad situation worse. Inflation, by definition, is an increase in the amount of purchasing media chasing the same or a reduced amount of goods and services.

So any effort to rectify the harm done to individuals because of inflation by more inflation would be self-defeating. And there is no tendency on the part of more than a tiny minority in government to halt deficit spending and to end the inflation.

It does no good to the wage earners to have ever increasing numbers of dollars coming in on payday if the dollars buy even less than the fewer dollars earned previously. Thus the government reported that in 1974 the median household income increased from $10,512 to $11,101, but that the increased income actually represented a 4.8 per cent loss in buying power.

Perhaps some persons actually received more than enough to offset the loss through inflation, but others fell farther behind. And the hardest hit victims, as usual, are the people on fixed incomes, including the elderly retired. Even those on Social Security with the congressional promise of increases to make up for inflation losses will always be a year behind in receiving the higher payments.

We know of no way to halt inflation and eliminate its injuries than to stop government deficit spending and reduce the expansion of purchasing media and credit that is not justified by production.

Hell-fire Priest Uses Funeral For Fund Drive

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, I attended the third funeral in two months, and I promised myself I would not attend another whose services were conducted by this minister.

Each time I was trapped for over an hour with a preacher who started with the sins of Adam and Eve and worked his way through the New Testament.

He said nothing to comfort the family and made no mention of the deceased. Instead, he launched into a tirade, calling everyone present "sinners" and predicting that the world was going to hell because of its greed and selfishness. Then he wrapped it up with a pitch to raise money for the church's building campaign.

It was revolting!

People come to a funeral to pay their last respects to the deceased, not to be bawled out by the preacher or to be solicited for money.

What is your opinion of a minister who would take advantage of a full house in the above manner?

REVOLTED IN ROANOKE

DEAR REVOLTED: I think he's a short-sighted opportunist who believes in shooting the ducks while they're flying.

DEAR ABBY: My husband retired recently and found himself with very few pleasures and interests, so he bought a myna bird. Now he spends all his time teaching the bird dirty words and vulgar phrases.

Needless to say, a foul-talking myna bird is a source of much embarrassment when I have my bridge club meetings here. Also, it's a very bad example for my grandchildren who visit me often.

I have asked my husband to please get rid of that bird, but he refuses.

Please help me before I move in with my daughter and her family.

SERIOUS IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR SERIOUS: Don't move. Instead, move the bird to the garage, basement, attic or some out-of-the-way place where its X-rated monologue will not offend tender ears.

DEAR ABBY: I have this very dear friend I'll call "Agnes." She's alone, so I invite her to my home for dinner occasionally.

Agnes is the sweetest, most generous person I know, but she weighs about 400 pounds, and when she plops herself down, she wrecks our furniture.

First she broke the springs in our new sofa. Another time, she broke my husband's favorite rocking chair. Fortunately, my husband is very handy, so he was able to repair the chair. However, he has instructed me to please invite Agnes OUT for dinner in the future because he's worried about our furniture.

I don't want to offend Agnes, but I don't want to take any more chances with our furniture.

Is there a solution?

AGNES' FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Of course. Lucky you to have a husband who's handy with repairs. Ask him to reinforce one chair to accommodate Agnes. Surely that isn't too much to do for the sweetest, most generous person you know.

Paul Harvey To Arrive Here Thursday

"Bill Smith - Number One"
By James Bama

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff
Paul Harvey, the nationally-known newspaper and radio commentator, is scheduled to arrive around 3 p.m. Thursday at Pampa's Perry Lefors Air Field.

Harvey will be met as he steps off his jet plane by officials of the Chamber of Commerce and will be driven to Coronado Inn.

Following dinner at the inn, Harvey will be the principal speaker at the anniversary program in M.K. Brown Auditorium when officers of the chamber's 1975-76 fiscal year will officially assume their duties.

The topic of Harvey's address to the sold-out 1,550 capacity audience will be "A Time To Be Alive."

The stage of the auditorium has been especially decorated for the affair and the program will carry a bicentennial theme throughout.

Chamber President C.E. Steel will preside. The program will open with the presentation of the colors by the 142nd Infantry Regiment of the local unit of the Texas National Guard.

Following the invocation the Preamble and the National Anthem will be played and sung by the Pampa High School Wind Ensemble and the Pampa High School Singers.

There will be a Bicentennial musical salute by the ensemble and the singers under direction of Jeff Doughten and John Woickowski.

The Chamber of Commerce gavel exchange will be between outgoing president Steel and incoming president Boyd Taylor.

With audience participation, the High School Ensemble and Singers will play and sing "God of Our Fathers," the national hymn designated by President Gerald Ford.

Harvey's address will follow his introduction by outgoing president Steel.

The 50th anniversary meeting will close with the presentation of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by the High School Ensemble and Singers.

Chamber officials again called attention today to the Cowboy Hall of Fame Art Exhibit that will be on display in the auditorium lobby before and after the program. Doors will open at 7 p.m. The program will start at 8 p.m.

The art exhibit also will be open to the public on Friday.

Chamber officers who will take over Thursday night, in addition to President Taylor, are J.C. Roberts, vice president, and Art Aftergut, finance director. E.O. Wedgeworth is executive vice president and general manager of the chamber.

Seven recently-elected directors will assume their new duties. They are Dudley Steele, Bill Hite, Tim Holles, J.C. Roberts, Verl Hagaman, Dr. Dan Long and Jerry Holmes. They will serve three-year terms.

Three directors appointed by President Taylor also will take office. They are Clyde Carruth, Ken Plotner and Glen Turbeville.

Roberts moves into the vice presidency occupied during the year just ending by incoming president Taylor and Aftergut will succeed Gary Stevens in the finance director's post.

Ford To Videotape Testimony on Fromme

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford will undergo unprecedented videotaped interrogation Saturday in Washington on what he saw and heard when Manson cultist Lynette Fromme allegedly aimed a .45 caliber pistol at him.

The tape could be introduced by the defense in the attempted assassination trial of Miss Fromme which begins next Tuesday, but a federal judge ordered it cannot be broadcast publicly.

Acting on White House orders, federal prosecutors asked U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride to modify his order that Ford answer before videotape cameras defense and prosecution questions about the Sept. 5 incident in which Miss Fromme allegedly aimed the automatic at him point blank. But MacBride refused Tuesday to change his mind, labeling as "unacceptable" the alternatives suggested by the prosecutors — a transcribed deposition or written questions and answers.

The tape will be introduced in the trial only if Miss Fromme and Virga think it will help her case. The prosecution cannot use it.

Room Rates To Leap At Highland, McLean

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Hospital room rates at Highland General Hospital in Pampa and at McLean General in McLean will leap Saturday to an all-time high.

But the two local hospitals are not alone — officials throughout the nation are raising room rates to keep up the Minimum Wage Law changes and soaring costs of operations.

Before the new wages become effective on Jan. 1, hospital officials must adjust their budgets to finance the added cost.

Rates in Pampa increase 13 per cent — or $7.50 per day while in McLean they go up to 19 per cent or $10 per day.

Pampa rates will be $58.50 and $63.50 per day. The new rates in McLean will be $56 and $61 per day.

The Highland General Hospital Board of Managers is considering a proposal to increase salaries by $207,380 in 1976 — an average increase of 12 per cent.

The Minimum Wage as it applies to hospitals makes a $2.20 hourly rate compulsory Jan. 1. The rate for industry will be $2.30 per hour.

Medical care has become more advanced with the years.

Robert Monogue, Highland administrator, explained.

The average stay at Highland General Hospital when it opened in 1950 was 8½ days. Today, patients stay an average of 5½ days.

The number of workers per patient has about doubled since 1940. On the average hospitals have more than 2½ workers per patient day, Monogue said. "The average length of stay has been cut by one quarter since 1940. Better care means a shorter stay and return to the job a lot sooner."

Time was when a patient went back to his room immediately after surgery.

"Today," Monogue said, "the post-operative patient gathers strength in a recovery room where highly skilled personnel utilize modern techniques and life savings equipment. It is back to the floor only when things are safe."

In 1950, a total of $9.25 per patient day went for salaries. Today, salaries cost $58.80 per patient day.

In 1951, Highland General Hospital had no registered therapist. Inhalation therapy was unknown, Monogue said.

People are no longer looking for the limited facilities that were available 25 years ago, Highland officials said.

Today's life span is longer and the advances in medical science have been many.

In 1940, it took three years for nurse certification, and girls could still get a mail-order education. Today's specifications call for three years in an approved school offering a vastly expanded curriculum.

As for doctors in 1940, they spent four years in college, four years in medical school and one year as intern. Today, many young doctors go for resident education beyond internship — adding between one and six years.

Pharmacists in 1940 completed a year of formal training (not necessarily a college) plus apprenticeship until he or she could successfully pass state examinations. Today, pharmacists must have five years of college for bachelor's degree, plus graduate work required by most supervisors.

Half the drugs in use today were undiscovered 10 years ago. Modern, advanced medical techniques and procedures have made blue babies and the iron lung a thing of the past.

Hospital salaries were first affected by the Minimum Wage Law in 1967 when officials were required to pay at least $1 per hour.

In 1969, as room rates kept moving upward, administrators throughout the Panhandle became more and more concerned.

"There is no place to stop," said Frank Cheevers, administrator of Dumas Memorial Hospital whose rates were $15.50 and $17.50 at that time.

Right To Die Bill Proposed in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A Missouri legislator will sponsor "right to die" legislation allowing terminally ill patients to decide if their lives should be prolonged by respirators or other life sustaining devices.

"I believe there is something tragically wrong with our present laws and customs when a person that is hopelessly and irreversibly ill does not have the right to die with dignity rather than be kept alive for months and even years by respirators and other extraordinary mechanisms," Rep. Vick Downing, D-Bragg City, said Tuesday.

He said the bill is in response to recent cases involving comatose patients whose families have sued to disconnect artificial life-supporting systems.

The bill, which Downing said he will introduce before the General Assembly convenes in January, will legally define death as "irreversible cessation of total brain functions according to usual and customary standards of medical practice."

Soil Water Board Okays Two Plans

Board members of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District met Oct. 15 in the Gray County Courthouse Annex.

They acted to approve conservation plans for A.C. Harris and Craig Morris, and discussed securing easements on the McClellan Creek and Red Deer Creek watershed sites.

Board members signed district agreement sheets, replacing paper work which was lost in the Lefors tornado last spring. A review of Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 was included in the meeting. Curtis Schaffer, and Milton Carpenter reported on the state meeting of soil and water conservation districts in Fort Worth.

Charter Draws Shivers Comment on Court Load

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Texas Gov. Allan Shivers says the proposed state constitution would overload the state court system but supporters of the charter argued it would reduce caseloads in urban areas.

Shivers said Tuesday the constitution's judicial article would jam state courts because it authorizes new trials in cases appealed from administrative state agencies.

"The appeals from such litigation also would create a heavy additional burden for the Supreme Court," Shivers said. "And not only would the matters under consideration be delayed for several years, but the additional costs to taxpayers would be astronomical."

Shivers said Travis County alone would need an additional 10 or 15 district courts to handle the increased litigation.

Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade disagreed with Shivers, saying the new constitution would cut the backlog in urban areas.

"Some of our urban areas are in bad shape with heavy caseloads," Wade said. "The new system can reduce backlogs by moving the judges where the action is."

Former State Bar presidents Lloyd Lochridge, Jim Bommer, Clint Small and Albert Jones said the revised courts would be a lasting improvement.

"Some of the courts in large cities are so far behind schedule it would take them a year to clear their dockets even if they stopped accepting new cases today," they said in a joint statement.

"The new court system would reduce these case backlogs by making our Texas Supreme Court responsible for equalizing dockets and by helping make our judicial system work efficiently."

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said critics of the new constitution had misrepresented facts about the charter and his views on the issue.

"The small, but heavily financed group against the constitution is, by innuendo, attempting to falsely portray me and others to the public as opponents of the entire document," Mauzy said.

"The opponents of the constitution have not advanced one rational argument in their slick and expensive public relations campaign to take away from the people the best opportunity they have had in a hundred years for good, responsive, people-oriented government," Mauzy said.

Inmates End Prison Takeover

GRANITE, Okla. (UPI) — Prison officials were ready with harsh threats and plans of force, but finally depended on negotiations Tuesday in persuading seven inmates to free four hostages and surrender peacefully.

State Corrections Director Dr. Ned Benton said force would have been used if the hostages had been in immediate danger during the 25 hours they were held in the Oklahoma State Reformatory kitchen.

"We spent about four hours going over a plan to take that unit by force," he said. "If any hostage was in danger we had a plan we could have initiated within five minutes."

In another contingency move Gov. David Boren prepared a harsh message for the inmates, which negotiators were prepared to use if necessary.

Boren's statement said: "If you harm one hair on the heads of the two hostages, as governor of the state of Oklahoma, I will see to it that you all burn in the electric chair. If the U.S. Supreme Court won't allow me to burn you, I'll see to it that none of you ever see the light of day."

Benton said the inmates agreed to a three-part decision: they would plead guilty to kidnapping with seven-year sentences, instead of the normal 10-year recommendation; there would be no change in a policy banning Christmas gifts and no inmates would be transferred from Granite to the state penitentiary in McAlester "without my specific authorization."

Released unharmed were Louis Sirmans, 53, and his brother, A.J. Sirmans, 46. Guard Leonard Summers, 53, who had a history of heart trouble, was released by the inmates earlier Tuesday. The names of the two inmate hostages were not released.

Allen W. Avery, 52, a kitchen employee, said about 1:50 p.m. Monday he saw waving knives and the Sirmans brothers being backed into the kitchen by inmates. He asked an inmate what was happening and the inmate said, "Mr. Avery, get out of here."

It was first believed all nine inmates were holding the employees hostage. But the employees and seven inmates corroborated the two inmates' most prominent women. Among them, Betty Ford and Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, reportedly were too busy to strike.

But Davlyn Jones, coordinator of the NOW strike, said many women were ready to withdraw all services — work inside and outside of the home, banking, purchasing, babysitting and cooking.

"And that means sex too,"

Feminists Call Strike

United Press International America's women were asked to cancel all normal activities — work, shopping, banking, cooking, child care and even sex — as part of a nationwide feminist strike today to show the system how much it depends on them.

The one-day strike, known as "Alice Doesn't," was called by the National Organization for Women in hopes that "every-thing will stop in this country" without the services of thousands of striking homemakers, businesswomen and even prostitutes.

Opponents of the strike, who promised a counter-protest called "America Does What Alice Doesn't," predicted it would fail and demanded that employers fire any woman who goes on strike.

The strike takes its name from the motion picture "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore."

Some women intended to show their opposition to the strike by wearing pink dresses, working harder than usual and preparing their husbands' favorite meal.

The strike also did not win the support of many of the nation's added a NOW official who declined to be identified.

Rallies, bazaars, luncheons and workshops also were arranged by NOW in many of the nation's larger cities, including Washington, Los Angeles, Indianapolis, San Francisco and Honolulu.

Among the women who intended to strike were members of Coyote, the San Francisco prostitute's union, which launched its protest with a "Hookers Masquerade Ball" Tuesday night at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

year-old Spanish leader improved slightly this morning after a near-fatal relapse in his dramatic, nine-day fight against heart failure.

The 8:30 a.m. communique said Franco was lucid with his pulse and blood pressure sufficient. It said intensive treatment stopped stomach bleeding and the spread of blood clots.

The cardiac situation maintains itself at a stable level, and the vital functions are adequate," it said. "Intestinal movement has begun to return partially."

"The condition is still grave," Franco's family rushed to his bedside Tuesday night as doctors reported his most serious relapse and described his condition as "extraordinarily grave."

Msgr. Pedro Cantero Caudrudo, the archbishop of Zaragoza, laid a sacred Roman Catholic relic on Franco's bed — a step usually taken when a Spaniard is near death.

"His excellency accepted the cloak of the Virgin of Pilar, kissed it and then spoke with his wife and children," a government communique said early today.

One of Franco's doctors said the Spanish leader cried after kissing the ancient cloak.

Ford California Trip Under Tight Security

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I don't want my daddy ever to go to California," said 18-year-old Susan Ford.

However, Ford today is going back to California, where twice last month his life was threatened at gunpoint.

He will attend a Republican fundraising dinner in Los Angeles tonight. On Thursday he will fly to San Francisco to address a fundraising luncheon at the St. Francis Hotel, which still has a bullet mark from the shot Sara Jane Moore is accused of firing at him on Sept. 22.

Security was expected to be extra tight in and around the hotel, where Ford will spend a few hours before flying on to Milwaukee for still another fundraising dinner Thursday night.

walls of the 18th century palace. "God has been in this room many times and, perhaps, he will return," a doctor said on leaving Franco's chambers.

Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, Franco's handpicked successor, joined the general's wife, Carmen; daughter, Maria del Carmen, and son-in-law, Cristobal Martinez Bordiu, a heart surgeon, at the palace.

Medical communicues at 2:25 a.m., 3:20 a.m. and 5:18 a.m. said there was no change and he remained in "extremely grave" condition. Unlike previous bulletins, they failed to say he was resting.

Francisco had rallied from two heart attacks and two previous setbacks.

Francisco, the last of Europe's right-wing dictators, came to power 36 years ago after leading the Nazi-backed Nationalist forces to victory over the Communist-supported Republican army in the 1936-39 civil war.

Reagan Will Toss Hat

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan's formal declaration of candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination will come next month, said a Reagan campaign official.

Hugh Gregg, Reagan's New Hampshire campaign chief, said Tuesday Reagan will make his declaration in Washington sometime in the final two weeks of November.

On the same day, he said, Reagan will fly to New Hampshire, site of the nation's first presidential primary on Feb. 24, and to other key primary states.

Reagan lieutenants quietly but noticeably have been laying groundwork for the campaign. President Ford's New Hampshire operation has been more open, concentrating on recruiting GOP officeholders for campaign posts. Neither campaign openly discusses the status of organization at the local level.

"We are in the embryonic stage now," Gregg said. "When he announces and comes here, we will surface as an organization."

E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, said there is a waiting list of persons wanting to buy tickets to the meeting which will be addressed by Paul Harvey, nationally known newspaper columnist and radio news commentator. "Persons having tickets they will be unable to use should call the chamber office where there is a long list of names of persons wanting tickets," Wedgeworth said.

Seating capacity of the M.K. Brown Auditorium, where Harvey will appear, was completely sold out several weeks ago.

Balance of Payments Surplus Declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's balance of payments surplus declined $1 billion in the third quarter, mostly due to increased demand for petroleum and other imports, the Commerce Department said today.

In another key report, Commerce said the index of leading economic indicators dipped 0.9 per cent in September for the first decline in seven months.

Many economists say the leading indicators point the future direction of the economy, if a trend continues for several months. But the primary reason for the September decline suggested an increase in consumer spending, which would be a boost for the economy.

In the balance of payments, the third quarter surplus slipped to $2.3 billion after a $3.3 billion surplus in the second quarter, Commerce said.

Despite the weakening in the balance of payments, the surplus so far in 1975 is $9.9 billion compared with a $5.3 billion deficit for the first nine months of 1974.

Commerce said there was a 0.7 per cent drop in liquid assets, which means money in savings accounts, credit unions, loan companies, savings bonds and short-term Treasury bills.

The slight decline in the leading economic indicators was the first since February, Commerce said.

Commerce said the index, which often is a harbinger of future economic trends, fell 0.9 per cent from August's upward-revised 102.8 to 101.9. The August index figure was initially put at 101.7, but was later revised upward to reflect new data.

Government economists were reluctant to say what the small decline means, but pointed out that economic trends cannot be determined until the index has established a definite course over a two or three month period.

Girl Struck In Canadian Auto Mishap

Janine Pearce, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pearce, formerly of Canadian was struck by a backing vehicle Wednesday on a ranch near Canadian.

She was in fair condition this morning at St. Anthony's Hospital.

The Pearce family had recently moved to Oklahoma, but had returned to take care of business when the accident occurred.

Moore Declines To Plead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A smiling Sara Jane Moore, wearing red, white, and blue striped pants, declined to enter a plea Tuesday on a charge that she attempted to assassinate President Ford.

So federal Judge Samuel Conti entered an innocent plea for her and set a trial date for Dec. 15.

Public defender James Hewitt argued that Miss Moore was not prepared to enter a plea and said he would appeal the judge's action.

Judge Conti also said the psychiatric examinations of Miss Moore were completed and set Nov. 17 for a hearing on whether Miss Moore was mentally able to stand trial. The 45-year-old defendant smiled and chatted with her attorney throughout the 15-minute hearing, attended by about 50 spectators, most of them reporters.

Miss Moore's innocent plea came the same day that another woman accused of attempting to murder President Ford, Lynette Fromme, appeared in a Sacramento, Calif. courtroom for a hearing on whether the President should give a videotaped deposition in that case.

Her plea also came just before President Ford was to return to California for the first time since the shot was fired at him outside the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco Sept. 22. The President will speak again at the St. Francis on Thursday.

The federal charge against both women carry a possible sentence of life in prison.

When Judge Conti asked Miss Moore to enter a plea, Hewitt objected.

"We are not prepared to do anything, your honor," he replied, and the judge entered the innocent plea. Conti also set Nov. 26 for a hearing on pretrial motions and Dec. 5 for other pretrial matters, but noted those would be canceled if she is found incompetent.

Conti held a sharp exchange with Hewitt over provisions of the recently enacted federal Speedy Trial Act, which orders that a trial must begin within 90 days. Hewitt argued that time spent on mental examinations should not be counted.

"Your honor, I can't prepare the case in 90 days," Hewitt said.

Conti replied, "The law merely says if she is not competent there is no trial. If she is competent to stand trial, then she stands trial. Congress says that there has to be a trial within 90 days, and that's exactly what we're going to do."

Color Selection Most Basic Decision

By ADELE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

The hardest, yet most basic, decision to be made in decorating an apartment or condominium is selection of colors.

You may love the jazzy, bright print of a new blouse, but it would get old fast if you had to look at it every day on your sofa. You also may be crazy about blue, but there can be nothing more depressing than a dark room done in cold shades of blue.

Color selection, therefore, involves physical and psychological, as well as emotional, considerations. Lighting and texture also should influence what colors are chosen for a particular room.

The primary colors — red, blue and yellow — are easy to recognize. However, it gets more confusing when we begin discussing the secondary shades of orange, green, yellow-green, purple, blue-green and the other intermediaries.

Saturation and brightness of color also are major considerations in planning the design for any room. Too much of a good thing is too much.

In discussing colors, terms such as "heavy," "light," "cool" and "warm" are used to describe the psychological impact. To achieve the proper balance, a room should have the right combination of both heavy and light shades.

For example, heavy dark walnut paneling at one end of the room is balanced by a deep, warm, beige and brown patterned drapery with some orange on the opposite wall.

If it is a small room, a medium brown value such as camel would be appropriate for the floor covering.

The walls of such a room should be beige with upholstery picking up the lighter values of brown and beige. This would suggest a rather drab room, but if the orange in the draperies were repeated in a piece of lacquered enamel furniture, this would provide a bright, colorful note. The room also should have a touch of blue-violet in an accessory or wall decor as an accent.

Colors also can be used to solve some architectural problems in a room. If, for example, the living room is long and narrow, it will appear to be wider if the walls and carpeting are the same color.

In this case, I would suggest using a strong color at one end of the room to bring it closer in.

If it happens to be a window wall and you can't paint it, select draperies of a bold pattern.

Mirrors also can be used effectively to expand a room. In the narrow room with the windows at the end, you might consider breaking up the long wall with 30-inch-wide vertical floor-to-ceiling bookcases.

Place the bookcases about five feet apart and install floor-to-ceiling mirrors in between. Have a hole bored in the center of the mirror about six feet up from the floor so that you can hang a picture, clock or decorative wall accessory on the mirror.

The baseboard should be removed so that the mirror goes all the way to the floor. An alternative to the bookcases would be tall chrome etageres with glass shelves which you could fill with plants. This gives the room a light and "soft" appearance.

If you have trouble visualizing colors and how they go together, consult a professional interior designer who will help get you started with your plan, scale of furniture and color scheme.

Lighting the Bicentennial

The Bicentennial motif — ceiling of white stars on a blue field with red- and white striped wallpaper — receives an added highlight with Halo's Power-Trac, the first residential track lighting designed by the Halo Lighting Division of McGraw Edison Co.

But Too Much Color Creates Confusion

In apartments where space is tight, the color scheme becomes of major importance.

Too much color can create a feeling of confusion and make the room seem as if it is closing in on you. Softer and quieter color schemes are better because they make the area seem more spacious than it really is.

Choosing color schemes should be a family affair. Color definitely is a personal sensation and too often the woman of the house imposes her tastes on the rest of the members of the household.

In many cases an interior designer ends up being a marriage counselor when husband and wife can't agree.

It's true that opposites do attract. Many times a woman might have a "thing" for blue — a cool, calm, withdrawn and formal color — while her mate prefers bright, exciting shades.

The majority of people, however, respond most favorably to rich tones and shades rather than the highly decorative, clean, bright colors. The bright shades may make an interesting showcase, but do not provide a pleasant and congenial atmosphere for day-to-day living.

The first step before buying anything is to put the entire scheme together. Care should be taken so that there is a proper balance of colors, wood textures and scales of fabric patterns.

The plan should start with furniture groupings.

Be sure that fabric design and colors are in the proper balance so that all patterned fabrics don't end up on one side of the room.

Select a pattern you like and then consider the carpeting. Let's say you pick a rich, deep caramel for the floor covering. The room built around this could include the following elements:

The fabric for the sofa might be reminiscent of crewel embroidery — a loose design of colored flowers. Stems in the design would be bright yellow and green with some shaded tones of green and blue and orange. Flowers in the pattern would be raspberry, clear yellow, blue and violet with small amounts of orange, on a clean background.

The walls in the sample room would be eggshell white with neutral-colored draperies.

A lightweight texture would be selected for the drapes, with a heavier horizontal band in a deeper shade of beige for interest. Fold-up blinds like Roman blinds in woven woods could be used instead to give an "au naturel" look.

The dining room chairs could be painted deep tan with an overglaze of eggshell and upholstered with a copper brown, beige and Watteau-blue fabric. A walnut table would go well with this combination.

Opposite the sofa, a pair of blue chairs would pick up the color in the sofa pattern. Another pull-up or desk chair could be covered in a small geometric pattern of apricot and lime on beige.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

When today's deal was played a few years ago in a tournament held in Malaga, Spain, our South declarer gave a neat demonstration of top-notch declarer's play.

West's jack of diamonds opening lead was won by South's ace. At first glance, it appeared as though the success of South's contract would depend on avoiding the loss of a trump trick, since a club trick ruffed to be lost to the defenders' queen. But, paradoxically perhaps, the contract was fulfilled by losing a trump trick instead of a club trick.

At trick two, a trump was led to the board's king, after which a diamond was ruffed by South. Then came a club to dummy's ace, and the board's remaining diamond was ruffed in the closed hand.

A low heart was now played and taken by dummy's king. The four of trumps came next, and when East discarded a diamond, the loss of a trump trick to West's queen became inevitable. Declarer captured this trick with his ace.

The ace and queen of hearts were now cashed, after which a trump was led, thrusting West into the lead. With spades, hearts, and diamonds having been eliminated from West's hand, West had no choice but to lead a club.

Declarer, quite naturally, played the deuce from dummy, hoping that West had been dealt the queen of clubs. When East followed suit with the eight-spot, declarer breathed a sigh of relief. He won the trick with the nine, and then claimed his slam contract.

The irony of the hand is that, perhaps surprisingly, no other South player had made 12 tricks (which doesn't speak well for the caliber of play in Spain). Thus if South had gone down, he would have secured the worst score on the deal; whereas if he had bid only a game, and made only 11 tricks, he would have tied for top score on the deal. Putting it another way, if he had bid only a game, and made the 12 tricks which he made, he would have secured the identical top score he received for fulfilling his slam contract!

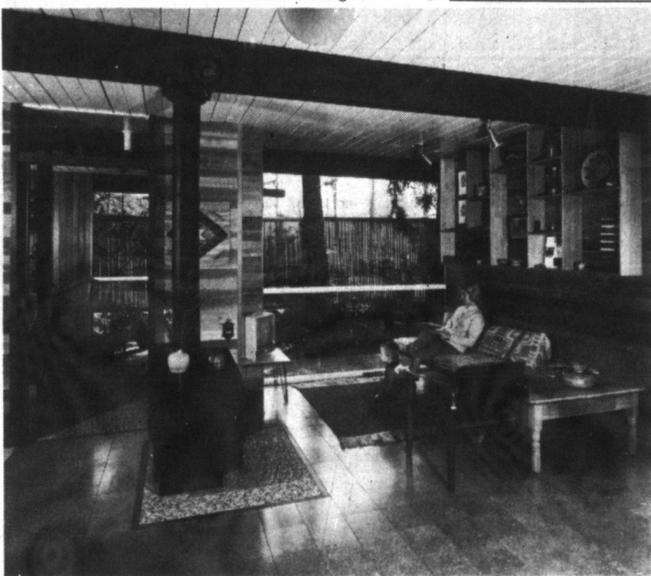

WSIs Complete Red Cross Class

Several Water Safety Instructors have completed an updating class in water safety with Jack W. Chisum, WSI trainer.

They are Mrs. Vickie McChristian and Mrs. Eddie Breeding from Miami; Roberta Adams and Mrs. Linda Davis from Wheeler; John King, Ruth Carter, Nell Carter, Jan Robertson, Evangeline Turner, Donna Holland, Betty Casbeer, Sally White, Lavaya Baggerman and Virginia Eltheridge from Pampa.

All instructors must take the updating before December 31, or lose their authorization, according to the Gray County Red Cross.

The next class will be in the spring.

Enriched Room

Well-planned additions and remodeled not only add space, but increase the efficiency of the original house. This new family room includes a conversation-lounging-television area. Large window walls expand the house into a newly landscaped front courtyard. Warm, natural tones of horizontal cedar paneling blend with outdoor screens and plants. Western pine decking over fir beams extends ceiling outside as an entry-walk cover.

Eating Fast, But How Well?

By JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition,
Harvard University

Like millions of other Americans, I have been grateful on occasion to have one of those nationally franchised, fast-food eateries nearby. They are clean and well lit, their service is dependable and their prices, for the quantity, are reasonable. And although the food will never rate a mention in Michelin's, at least it is edible.

But is it always nutritious? The answer is a qualified "yes." Jeanne Goldberg, a registered dietitian and one of my colleagues, recently produced a nutritional profile of a number of convenience foods after compiling data furnished by MacDonald's, Pizza Hut, independent studies and her own research.

In Ms. Goldberg's profile, pizza achieved the best overall nutritional score (which could be improved even further if a glass of milk is added).

In almost all of the meals, protein abounds. But the ubiquitous small hamburger provides only 20 per cent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of protein, while pizza offers more than 50 per cent and fried chicken, when consumed with coleslaw and a roll, totals almost 67 per cent.

All of the meals analyzed contain satisfactory amounts of B vitamins thiamine, riboflavin and niacin (pizza provides up to 40 per cent of the RDA), but were very low in vitamin A and, with the exception of the chicken-roll-coleslaw menu, vitamin C (cabbage, the main ingredient in coleslaw, is high in C).

The lack of vitamin C in pizza came as a surprise to me, since the tomato-sauce topping should contain a good supply of it. I can only figure that vitamin C is destroyed either by excessive exposure to air in preparing the sauce or by excessive heat in cooking.

The RDA percentage of iron and calcium varies from food to food. Although cheeseburgers contain 22 per cent of the RDA of iron, pizza contains only 2 per cent. Hamburgers offer 5 per cent of the RDA of calcium, while the cheese in pizzas contains 60 per cent!

The rolls and pizza crust are highly refined and made of white flour, which means they lack a number of B vitamins, vitamin E, trace minerals and fiber.

Surprisingly, the small, basic fast-food hamburger (unlike the larger ones) is made of a leaner beef than that ordinarily purchased for anything other than a premium price. So, the small hamburger offers you fewer calories, more protein and less fat. But pizza made the best low-fat showing; it contains about twice as much protein as fat, no matter what the topping may be.

Speaking of calories, most of the meals are high in calories — especially if you down an empty-calorie soft drink and end your meal with a calorically high piece of pie. I've purposely exempted French fries, for although they, too, are high in calories, potatoes are a good food and not to be snubbed if you can afford the extra fat.

The chicken-roll-coleslaw meal above contains about 900 calories, which is a lot for lunch. A hamburger, French fries and a shake would set you back 800 calories. But a careful calorie shopper could get a nutritionally adequate lunch for only about 340 calories by eating a hamburger and milk.

Ledbetter To Participate In Science Conference

Elaine Ledbetter, 1611 Grape, a chemistry teacher at Pampa High School, is a participant on the program for the 22nd annual conference for the Advancement of Science Teachers at Pan American University, Oct. 30 - Nov. 1 at Edinburg.

Ms. Ledbetter will be chairwoman of a workshop session dealing with the fun and facts of physics.

The chairwoman earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Oklahoma and a master of education degree from North Texas State University. She has been named an Outstanding Chemistry Teacher in Texas and has been listed in Who's Who of American Women. The three-day conference will attract 1,000 teachers from throughout Texas and is designed to appeal to teachers from all grade levels and science disciplines.

Allegro Sees Heart Film

"Know About High Pressure" was the theme presented by Mrs. Robert N. Johnson for the Twentieth Century Allegro members.

Hostess was Mrs. Dick Maxey, 1801 Holly Lane.

"What Goes Up," a film obtained through the American Heart Association was shown. Mrs. Johnson took the blood pressures of the members following the film.

She emphasized that the patient and the medical team must work together in order to keep blood pressure under control.

Attending were Mesdames Rex Bradford, Glen Turbeville, Jack Reeve, R.N. Johnson, W.R. Whitsell, Allan Wise, Virgil Ackfeld, Bill Ott, Dick Maxey, Lee Porter and Kenneth Giggly.

Mrs. Steve Munden was a guest.

HD Studies Citizenship

A program on citizenship was presented during the Goodwill Home Demonstration Club's recent meeting with Mrs. Helen Hogan as hostess.

Mrs. Laura Kilgore, vice president, directed the business session where roll call was answered with "my mother's favorite food."

If the Shoe Fits

By Gary Gattis

What causes a "Pump Bump"?

"Pump Bumps" are those swollen knobby bumps at the back of women's heels. They tend to build up near the point at which the top line of the shoe fits against her heel. Pump bumps range from soft puffs of flesh to very hard callouses.

For some women, the bump remains approximately the same size and shape. For other women, the bump swells and becomes painful each time she breaks in another new pair of pumps.

Pumps fitted too short cause pump bumps because the top line is too tight. Heavy set women often develop the bumps when they insist on compressing their feet into shoes with unsuitable lasts; the flesh tends to spill over the shoe top line, settle above the heel and form a decided bump.

Proper fit is vital to healthy feet. Women in recent years are becoming more knowledgeable and insist on proper fit. The notion that a small feet and tight shoes are a symbol of gentility has been discarded.

Miami Team Punished for Recruiting

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Shortly before school was out last spring, a freshman girl at Bellville, Tex., High School received a series of telephone calls which resulted in Interscholastic League disqualification of Miami's girls basketball team for the upcoming season.

Miami, convicted of illegal recruiting, will be permitted to play but will not be eligible to win the District 3-B championship.

The Bellville girl, a starter on the high school team which competed in the Class AA state finals last season, was asked if she would be interested in transferring to Miami, according to the UIL and Tom Golson, Bellville principal.

"There was a call to us here in the office asking for this young lady, asking to talk to this young lady," Golson said. "We don't call our students out of class unless there's an emergency. So, he wanted to know the parents' name."

"He asked one of our students. She didn't want to give out the information and, besides, she didn't know. She referred him to my secretary, and my secretary asked if he could call back."

"Before we could get a message to get the girl out of class, the person called back again, asking a bunch of questions to the student on the telephone. The student approached me on it because she didn't want to give information out."

"I told her to get the girl out of class. The girl came to the phone and talked to him. He asked her if she'd like to play basketball and what her parents did and so forth."

Bill Daugherty, Miami school superintendent, admitted he called the Bellville girl at school and, later, her mother.

Daugherty said the reason he contacted the girl and her mother was Miami's need for a school custodian.

"We tried to contact a man at Bellville, Texas. We only got his wife and told him we had a job open here. This school turned us in for recruiting — for the telephone call to the parents. They say this construes recruiting if you have even contacted anyone with a job that you have," Daugherty said last week.

Golson verified that. "Our head coach called Miami and George Scott, the basketball coach, and told him if she got any more phone calls, we'd report it to the league for recruiting."

"Her parents — her mother — got a phone call about a week later. After that next call, he came back the next day and reported it. We called Bailey Marshall (UIL's director of athletics) and he asked us to put it in writing to the league office."

"From there it was up to them." Daugherty, who has two lawyers working on a defense, denied the charges of recruiting this morning.

"There never was an offer of any type, period," Daugherty said. "I never did get to talk to the man I wanted to talk to. They were told — they, meaning his wife — to return the call if they were interested in interviewing for the position."

"I called the school to secure the phone number of Mr. Brown (the girl's father). I didn't have the information. We called the school to get the phone number of Mr. Brown."

The meeting at which Miami was assessed the disqualification and one-year probation penalty was held Oct. 9 in Austin, where the UIL is located.

Among those in attendance were Daugherty, Golson, Bellville superintendent Tom Galbreath and the UIL executive committee, which included Dr. Marshall.

was violating the rules or not. I felt he got off real light. The reason was, he was honest with them."

Marshall said that Miami was only the second school during his eight-year tenure at the UIL to be convicted of recruiting.

"It's virtually impossible to prove recruiting unless you get in a situation of this nature," Marshall said.

"There are many instances we feel relatively sure that recruiting is involved. But there is no way to prove it. I should say we have occasional instances. I don't want to sound like there is a lot of this."

"He (Daugherty) did not feel like he was recruiting. He had an opening and he was trying to hire. The committee felt like it was recruiting."

Marshall added that the punishment was not severe.

"The most serious punishment is suspension from playing girls basketball. They could be suspended for one year."

Braves Rout Rockets

By United Press International

Ernie DiGregorio, or "Ernie D" as he's better known, appeared to be completely recovered from left knee surgery which forced him to miss most of last season as he scored 22 points and had nine assists Tuesday night in the Buffalo Braves' 124-106 victory over the Houston Rockets.

"I have no problem," DiGregorio said of his knee. "I've worked hard over the summer and I feel good."

The Braves, paced by Bob McAdoo's 34 points, actually broke the game open late in the first quarter when they scored 10 successive points to open up a 34-18 lead. They led 64-51 at the half and 98-78 after three quarters.

Guard Randy Smith added 20 points for the Braves, who won their second game of the young season without a loss, and Ken Charles had 17 in a reserve role.

Ed Ratleff was high for the Rockets with 27 points and Rudy Tomjanovich and Mike Newlin had 16 apiece.

The Golden State Warriors defeated the New York Knicks 111-94, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 99-92, the Chicago Bulls topped the Seattle SuperSonics 101-90, and the New Orleans Jazz downed the Portland Trail Blazers 99-90, in other National Basketball Association games.

The San Antonio Spurs scored a 108-103 victory over the Virginia Squires in the only American Basketball Association game.

Warriors 111 Knicks 94
Jamaal Wilkes scored 23 points to lead Golden State to its victory at New York. Rick Barry scored 24 points for Golden State while Walt Frazier had 19 and Spencer Haywood 16 for the Knicks.

Lakers 99 Bucks 92
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, returning to the Milwaukee Arena as a visitor for the first time, scored 30 points, had 19 rebounds and blocked nine shots in leading the Lakers over the Bucks. The Lakers led 52-47 at the half. Cazzie Russell had 33 points for the Lakers and Dave Meyers led Milwaukee with 21.

Bulls 101 Sonics 90
Bob Love scored 18 points in the second half and Rowland Garrett added 11 as the Bulls rallied for their victory over the Sonics. Love scored 12 of his 23 points in the third period when the Bulls took a 63-62 lead which never was overcome. Slick Watts had 18 points for Seattle.

Jazz 99 Trail Blazers 90
Louie Nelson had 29 points, Nate Williams 17 and Pete Maravich 15 to lead the Jazz. Bill Walton scored 17 points in the first half but was held to four in the second half as the Trail Blazers dropped their third straight game.

Spurs 108 Squires 103
James Silas' 31 points led the Squires to their win in a game which was tied 29 times.

Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Shouse returned to Pampa from Deer Island, West Galveston Bay, where he successfully battled the 45-pound amberjack his wife is helping him hold. It took Shouse an hour and four minutes to bring the big gamefish in on 16-pound test line. "You got to let him have his way until he tires out," Shouse said.

Landry Says Slump Natural

DALLAS (UPI) — Tom Landry thinks it is natural that a slump has set in for the Dallas Cowboys. After all, they have been riding pretty high for much of the season.

"We have not played good football the last two weeks," Landry said Tuesday. "But I think we spoiled a lot of people early in the season. A young team, which we are, can feel the pressure when it is on top."

"I think your emotion tends to go up and down, naturally. We played six preseason games and now we are six games deep into the season and your enthusiasm tends to level off about now. It certainly can't be the same every week."

"This is the tough part of the year for most teams. The teams that can win in this area of the season are the teams that will make the playoffs. And as the playoffs approach the enthusiasm returns for obvious reasons."

After jumping off to a 4-0 start the Cowboys have struggled the past two weeks — losing to Green Bay and narrowly edging Philadelphia on a last-play field goal by Tom Fritsch.

But if the enthusiasm does not return to the Cowboys' camp this week there is little hope that it ever will for this is the week that Dallas faces Washington. And the Redskins are something special for the Cowboys.

"We feel very strongly about Washington," said Landry. "It is always a great challenge. Washington is always capable of playing well because of its vast experience."

"But right now I don't think they are any better than we are and I don't think they are any better than St. Louis. I think we are all in a group and it is going to be a thrilling race."

Dallas will carry a one-game lead over the Redskins and Cardinals in the NFC East into this weekend's contest.

"I think this game is a little more crucial to Washington because the Redskins are a game behind," Landry said. "This is a game they probably feel they must win."

Lynn Named League's Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Lynn is halfway toward being the first rookie to win the rookie of the year and the most valuable player awards.

The 23-year-old outfielder of the Boston Red Sox Tuesday was named winner of the American League's Rookie of the Year Award and will now wait to see if he also is to receive the league's most valuable player award.

Lynn is the leading candidate for MVP honors as well, and no rookie in baseball history ever has received both awards. The AL MVP award will be announced on Nov. 26.

In a balloting of 24 sports writers—two from each AL city—Lynn came within one-half point of being a unanimous selection for top rookie honors. One writer Jim Rice, split his vote giving Lynn and his teammate Jim Rice a half point each.

Lynn is only two years off the campus of Southern California and had one of the finest rookie seasons of any player. He batted .331, second to Minnesota's Rod Carew, and he led the league in slugging percentage (.566), doubles (47) and runs scored (103). He also hit 21 homers and seven triples while driving in 106 runs.

Lynn made many fine catches and has a strong, accurate arm.

Perhaps the least surprised by his spectacular season was Lynn himself. He spent only 1½ years in the minor leagues but displayed all the poise and confidence of a seasoned veteran throughout the entire campaign.

"There are things in the majors that make it easier than the minors," said Lynn. "I remember two years ago at Bristol. I was tired near the end of the season and in a slump thinking, 'Isn't this thing ever going to end?' In the big leagues, not only are the conditions better, but with the crowds and situation, it is easier to get yourself geared mentally to get up every day. "My RBI totals surprised me, but I always believed I belonged here."

Without Lynn, Rice would easily have won rookie honors. The 22-year-old outfielder, who played part of the year as a designated hitter, batted .309 with 22 home runs and 102 RBI.

'Muscle Wishbone' To Visit Mustangs

By United Press International

The SMU Mustangs and the Texas Longhorns play Saturday in Dallas in a game that both coaches say could be a battle for control — both in the air and on the ground.

Mustang coach Dave Smith says Texas, the second wishbone team they've faced this season, was a good team last year and is even better this year.

"They have been more basic," he said. "Although they break the bone some to throw. They are more dangerous throwing, especially deep, and they are effective."

"It's a muscle wishbone. Texas just comes right at you."

Longhorn coach Darrell Royal says the Mustang backs could give his defense fits.

"The Mustangs have a lot of firepower," Royal said. "They have a lot of long-range scoring ability — people like Freeman Johns who caught a long bomb against us last year, like quarterback Ricky Wesson, the water bug who can really scramble and a great running back in Wayne Morris."

"But they also have the ability to control the football. Like in one game this year when they held the ball for 11 minutes and 22 plays on a long scoring drive. That's unusual execution."

In other conference matchups Saturday, Texas Christian travels to Waco for the Baylor homecoming and Rice meets Texas Tech. Houston heads north for a nonconference game with Cincinnati.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff was hoping for a breather this week against TCU, but now he's not so sure. Last week Baylor dropped an important conference match to Texas A&M.

and Teaff says all three are doubtful for Saturday.

TCU's defensive coach Don Lawrence says he is preparing to meet a strong wishbone attack from Baylor. On the basis of past games against wishbone teams, he has moved Darryl Lowe to free safety.

Against Texas A&M Lowe came off the bench to make 15 tackles, then topped that with 20 against Alabama last Saturday.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, who have the day off Saturday, will spend their time letting injured players heal. Quarterback Scott Bull sat out practice for the second straight day Tuesday and quarterback Mike Kirkland is recovering from a knee injury.

'Locke Day' At Mobeetie

Ellis Locke, former Mobeetie High School principal and athletic coach, will be honored by an Ellis Locke Day on Saturday, part of the Mobeetie homecoming festivities.

Locke initiated the Mobeetie High School football and basketball teams during the 1930-31 school year.

During the first year, Coach Locke's football team compiled a 7-7-1 record, despite the fact that only four of the players had even seen a football game before the season.

Competing in 31 games, the Mobeetie High School basketball team played to 25 wins under Coach Locke.

Locke is expected to attend the homecoming which Bob Mickey, Mobeetie school superintendent, said is expected to draw 200 persons.

An informal reunion for the class of 1930-31 will be held between 1-5 p.m. The dinner begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by the homecoming program at 6:30 p.m. The basketball game will be at 7 p.m.

Volleyers Tip 'Rock'

AMARILLO — Amarillo Caprock whipped Pampa 15-6, 9-12, 8-14 to open the second half of district girls volleyball play Tuesday here.

The win gives Caprock a 1-0 record in the second half, while Pampa is 0-1 in district play and 14-7 overall.

In the junior varsity match, Pampa downed the Longhorns 15-6, 15-8 to up its record to 8-6 for the season.

The Harvesters host Amarillo Palo Duro at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Think Radial...and look to the leader.
MICHELIN'S been proving fuel economy for over a decade.

Since 1948, companies have proved for themselves that they could reduce their fuel costs by equipping their vehicles with Michelin 'X' steel-belted radial truck tires. They've found out, too, that Michelin offers many more miles of trouble-free operation over conventional tires... and at a surprisingly low cost-per-mile. If you're interested in fuel savings of up to 15% — and maybe more, give us a call soon. You'll be glad you did.

3-year-old Son Testifies

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The 3-year-old son of a murder victim is the only person who could place the suspect at the scene, a police homicide investigator testified today.

Public Defender Terri Corley objected to the testimony by investigator Jack Powell because of the child's age, but Special District Judge Earl Truesdell overruled the objection.

The prosecution concluded its case in a preliminary hearing for James Washington, 29, after Powell's testimony. Corley said Washington refused to make a formal statement about the Oct. 14 slayings of Leceta Burk, 29, and her daughter Terrance, 11.

"He became very cold and said he was going to burn for this anyhow and wondered why we didn't go ahead and kill him," Powell said.

Prosecutors did not call the boy, Chad Chancey, to testify during the preliminary hearing. They said no decision had been made on whether he would be called as a trial witness. Assistant District Attorney Jerry Truster said the decision would be up to District Attorney S.M. Falls Jr.

"It's up to him and he's still kicking it around in his mind," Truster said. "We'll want to back up and take a look at all our evidence for trial purposes. It's really too early to tell."

If the prosecution does call Chad, whose graphic description of the Oct. 14 shootings and identification of Washington from police file pictures led to a quick arrest, the judge would have to decide whether the youngster could give clear and meaningful testimony.

Corley says the mere presence of the child on the stand might have a severe emotional impact on the jury, but Truster said that would not be a factor in the prosecution's final decision.

"The only thing we look at in any case is how much evidence we can give to the jury under the law, subject to an overall presentation." The prosecutors are convinced they would have no trouble having Chad declared competent to testify. The investigating officers called him amazingly lucid in describing the loud argument he heard in the next room as he lay in his bed and how his mother and sister stopped screaming when "James clapped his hands real loud."

Those "claps," officers said, were the sounds of a .32-caliber pistol used in the slaying of Leceta Burk, 29, and her daughter, Terrance, 11.

A company spokesman said steel operations dropped to their lowest level for any third quarter since 1959. The firm also spent $10.6 million in costs associated with closing meat packing plants at Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City.

Packers See $Million Loss

DALLAS (UPI) — The LTV Corp. suffered a net loss of $23.4 million for the third quarter of 1975. A company spokesman blamed it on low demand for steel and the costs involved with the closing of two meat packing plants.

LTV reported a net income of $9.2 million, or $7.2 per share, for the first nine months of the year.

LTV's sales were $3.2 billion during the first nine months. A company spokesman said steel operations dropped to their lowest level for any third quarter since 1959. The firm also spent $10.6 million in costs associated with closing meat packing plants at Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City.

US Balance Of Trade Increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an increase in oil and sugar imports, the U.S. balance of trade figures registered their eighth consecutive monthly increase in September, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said, however, that the $976 million surplus last month was $59 million below August.

The trade figures for the first nine months of 1975 showed a surplus of $8.4 billion.

The department said oil imports — in the last month before the 10 per cent world price increase — rose $329 million. Sugar imports increased $144 million, apparently because of storm damage to U.S. sugar plantations.

Partially offsetting the rise in oil and sugar imports was a $326 million decline in imports of cars, trucks and other transport equipment.

All imports in September totaled $8.2 billion, up 2.9 per cent from August. Total exports increased only 1.9 per cent to $9.2 billion.

The Commerce Department said $112 million in wheat exports were the primary contributor to the monthly increase.

Bar Accuses Insurance

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Spokesman for the Texas Bar Association today accused the State Insurance Board of exceeding its authority with proposed regulations over group insurance to cover legal services.

The Bar's Committee on Group and Prepaid Legal Services urged the three-man insurance board to drop some proposed rules and alter others.

Robert Clines of Bedford, Tex., attorney for the bar committee, said the board lacks statutory authority to require policyholders to be offered a 10-day free look at benefits or to restrict types of groups that can purchase legal insurance.

"We're not particularly opposed to the 10-day free look on all of our products, but I'm sure some others will not go along with it," Clines said.

Doing Richnow, executive director of the corporation set up by the bar to develop a prepaid legal services program, Clines said the bar is most concerned with eliminating provisions in proposed rules restricting the types of groups that can purchase legal services coverage for members.

"We're fighting for the right to market to any group that we can sell to," Clines said.

Joe Christie, insurance board chairman, indicated the insurance board will act in 10 days to approve temporary rules and allow companies to begin filing plans for prepaid legal service programs.

Richnow said fees for the bar's policy will be between $5 and $7 a month per family.

The Commerce Department said $112 million in wheat exports were the primary contributor to the monthly increase.

THURSDAY, OCT. 30 Your birthday today: Wishful thinking clashes now with hard reality; in a few weeks you will be over the hump and free to go on in grand style. Take the money, let the credit go and convert static or latent resources into usable forms or cash in hand. Don't pile up obligations. Relationships suffer from temporary misunderstandings but survive if you are candid. Today's natives are tireless workers who are brave and blunt.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Plans made today encounter different conditions tomorrow; leave yourself free to change your mind. Vague gaps exist in the data at hand; call in those concerned and let them sort out the facts.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Pay special attention to details and make notes. You may as well declare your emotional ties since you're wearing them on your sleeve. Ask direct questions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Find out about recent trades and how they affect your ventures. Some items are simple questions and are wise enough to recognize subtle responses. Let your interest show, but avoid being bossy.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Mistakes made today are honest errors. Give everybody the benefit of the doubt and the right to be wrong until corrected. Your reactions are more important than usual.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Pull in your horns to avoid exaggeration, impulsive spending and the temptation to pass on an exciting rumor. Personal activities become expensive despite your strict budgeting.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Beware of responding to exaggerated stories. Wait for more information, then pick your way through mixed conditions. Traditional methods in winding up pending matters are still foolproof.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Quietly search for profitable angles, but stay out of secret deals with in-laws or political connections. Concentrate on your home and public events.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Minding your own business is difficult when you are so curious. Finances are influenced by wishful thinking. You can spin a tall tale tonight to good advantage.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: An impartial evaluation reveals that your program is impractical in present circumstances. Try for a middle-of-the-road approach and act as a go-between. Make introductions when feasible.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Current mysteries are readily solved if you ask simple questions and are wise enough to recognize subtle responses. Let your interest show, but avoid being bossy.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You might be misunderstood if you express your most idealistic views. Stick to plain terms and ordinary actions. Be the first to make a move toward reconciliation.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: People who know you well socially are all for you. Those who only know you through business aren't too helpful. Planning is uneven. Check travel conditions.

The U.S. forces joined with air, ground and sea-going units from Italy, Turkey, Belgium, The Netherlands, West Germany and the United Kingdom, to test the operational readiness and capabilities of defense elements on NATO's southern flank in the Mediterranean.

The Sarsfield, homeported at Mayport, Fla., has also been awarded three efficiency awards for superior performance in anti-submarine warfare, battle efficiency and communications and operations.

EMMETT TEAKELL Emmett Willie Teakell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Teakell, of Pampa, Texas, enlisted recently in the United States Air Force, according to Sergeant Jack Fry, local Air Force Recruiter.

Teakell attended Pampa High School. He has departed for Lackland AFB to take six weeks of basic training, and has selected the job of Weapons Mechanic for his technical training.

PRESTON STEELE FT. POLK, LA. — Army Private Preston F. Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Steele, 832 Fisher, Pampa completed nine weeks of advanced individual training at the U.S. Army Infantry Training Center here.

He received general training as a light weapons infantryman and as a mortar and recoilless rifle crewman, in addition to specialized weapons instruction.

Steele also was taught the proper use of high explosives and the placement, detection and disarming of mines.

Teamwork was emphasized while he learned to work as a member of a rifle squad, mortar squad or direct fire section. Each team member completed the training well qualified to perform other jobs in case of casualties.

Bar Accuses Insurance

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Spokesman for the Texas Bar Association today accused the State Insurance Board of exceeding its authority with proposed regulations over group insurance to cover legal services.

The Bar's Committee on Group and Prepaid Legal Services urged the three-man insurance board to drop some proposed rules and alter others.

Robert Clines of Bedford, Tex., attorney for the bar committee, said the board lacks statutory authority to require policyholders to be offered a 10-day free look at benefits or to restrict types of groups that can purchase legal insurance.

"We're not particularly opposed to the 10-day free look on all of our products, but I'm sure some others will not go along with it," Clines said.

Doing Richnow, executive director of the corporation set up by the bar to develop a prepaid legal services program, Clines said the bar is most concerned with eliminating provisions in proposed rules restricting the types of groups that can purchase legal services coverage for members.

"We're fighting for the right to market to any group that we can sell to," Clines said.

Joe Christie, insurance board chairman, indicated the insurance board will act in 10 days to approve temporary rules and allow companies to begin filing plans for prepaid legal service programs.

Richnow said fees for the bar's policy will be between $5 and $7 a month per family.

The Commerce Department said $112 million in wheat exports were the primary contributor to the monthly increase.

Tom Seay of Amarillo said Christmas Seals are currently supporting heavy research and medical training programs,

Local Men in Military

BOBBY STUCKER LUBBOCK — Special recognition was accorded to a Pampa man at Reese AFB recently.

Airman First Class Bobby G. Stucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wess Stucker of Pampa, was selected Outstanding Airman of the Month in his unit for his duty performance and exemplary conduct.

Airman Stucker, a nondestructive inspection specialist, is assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron, a unit of the Air Training Command.

He was graduated in 1973 from Pampa High School and attended South Plains Junior College, Levelland.

ALBERT DOMINGUEZ Albert Dominguez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Dominguez, of White Deer, Texas, enlisted recently into the United States Delayed Enlistment Program, according to Sergeant Ronald Carter, local Air Force Recruiter.

Dominguez attended Amarillo High School.

He will depart Nov. 14 for Lackland AFB, San Antonio for six weeks of basic training, and will become Security Specialist in his technical training.

TERRANCE PAIR CAMP PENDLETON — Navy Hospital Corpsman Third Class Terrance R. Pair, grandson of Mrs. Stella Patterson of Groom, recently graduated from Field Medical Service School at the Marine Corp's base in Camp Pendleton, Calif.
