

Labor Day Salutes American Workers

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

As the nation pauses today in honor of the millions who labor for a living, residents in Pampa and the Gray County area where thankful for employment opportunities

"Just glad to have a job — and even happier that I'm able to work," said one resident as he took time from his labors for summer's last holiday fling.

The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that 28,606 persons work within a five-county area, including Gray, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Roberts and Wheeler counties.

The unemployment rate is about 3 per cent — among the lowest in the nation — and there are about 50 jobs openings today at the Texas Employment Commission's Pampa office.

Bill Ragdale, manager, said they have skilled to unskilled openings with pay ranges from minimum wage to $1,000 monthly.

Labor Day is defined as a holiday honoring working people and is observed on the first Monday in September throughout the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada. It has also become a symbol of the end of summer.

In Australia however, it is called "Eight Hour Day," and commemorates the successful struggle for a shorter working day.

The Australian holiday varies from state to state. In Europe, Labor Day is May 1.

In the United States President Grover

Cleveland signed a bill in 1894 making Labor Day a legal holiday.

In 1956, a three-cent U.S. Postage Stamp with the words "Labor is Life" commemorated the holiday.

In 1882, Peter J. McGuire, founder of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters suggested a holiday to honor the country's working people. A few months later, workers staged the first Labor Day parade in New York City.

Organized labor campaigned to make the day a national holiday and in 1887 Oregon became the first state to make it a legal holiday.

Labor has been the topic for much action in recent years and will no doubt remain a symbol of life — a means of earning a living.

The Department of Labor was the first

Cabinet Office to have a woman as its head when Frances Perkins became Secretary of Labor in 1933.

The department undertook new responsibilities when Congress passed the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962.

They included planning for the best use of manpower in the United States and to train the unemployed in new jobs because of technological advances in industry.

As Labor Day draws to an end tonight hundreds of Pampa residents will return home from a three-day weekend and prepare to re-enter the work force Tuesday.

The next legal holiday is Thanksgiving, Nov. 27.

Unrest Marks Labor Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "America's workers are our national strength," says President Ford — and on this Labor Day he also commended their "willingness to sacrifice" to help pull the country out of hard times.

But five labor leaders indicated Sunday they would demand big wage increases to protect their members, who they said have been unfairly sacrificed to inflation.

As America took a holiday to honor the working man and woman, a wildcat coal strike with possibly major energy and economic effects was in progress, a walkout by National Airlines stewardesses was threatened and a labor dispute that jeopardized operations of 90 per cent of Southern California's grocery stores was settled tentatively.

In addition, a teacher's union president said there would be as many as 130 teachers' strikes this fall.

The panel of labor leaders, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," contended wages have lagged behind the cost of living. They demanded government action to provide home mortgage subsidies, creation of public works jobs for the unemployed and making permanent the tax cuts voted by Congress this year.

But Labor Secretary John Dunlop said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" he will urge Ford to approve further income and business tax cuts next year. "I am in favor of further tax cuts to be effective in the new year and in a form which will apply both to business and households and that is, I think, the most effective way to create jobs," he said.

United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel promised on behalf of all five labor leaders that wage demands will try to beat inflation during contract negotiations next year.

"I can assure you that as long as the rate of inflation keeps going skyward as it has been, each of us will be in there as we have been to protect our membership," he said. "The workers have made sacrifices that others in the economy haven't, and we don't intend to continue that."

Ford's Labor Day message said, in part:

"America's workers are our national strength. We owe the unprecedented progress we have realized in this century to the initiative, determination and talent of the American worker.

"We are a nation of working men and women whose willingness to sacrifice and eagerness to support responsible economic policies have pulled us through rough periods in our past."

Kissinger Wins Okay On Middle East Peace

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today Egyptian and Israeli negotiators have agreed on the terms of a peace pact that would bring American volunteers to the tank-littered sands of the Sinai Desert.

"There is no more negotiating to be done," a smiling Kissinger said at the end of a marathon, all-night meeting with Israeli officials.

The secretary of state said the Israeli and Egyptian negotiating teams handed the accord over to their cabinets for approval. Diplomatic observers said approval was a virtual certainty.

Kissinger said he hoped the Israeli cabinet would initial the pact in Jerusalem today so he could fly to Alexandria for the Egyptian initialing.

Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said the Israeli cabinet would meet this morning to discuss the pact and might initial the agreement later in the day.

The initialing would wrap up Kissinger's 12-day-old shuttle talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Alexandria and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Jerusalem.

The secretary of state conferred with Sadat until Sunday night, then flew to Israel for talks with Rabin that lasted until dawn today.

Diplomatic sources said the key section of the agreement provides for sending up to 200 American civilians to the Sinai to man electronic surveillance stations between the opposing armies.

Kissinger, his tie askew as the seven-hour talks broke up at dawn, said he would speak to President Ford later in the day about the windup of the negotiations.

"We had a number of issues that we had to examine and I think we have substantially concluded our negotiations," he said. "The Israeli cabinet is now going to meet and will make a decision during the course of the day."

Kissinger said he kept in touch with Egypt during the Israeli talks, but he would have to check with the Egyptians once more to make sure the language agreed on by both nations was identical.

Asked by reporters if he was satisfied with the agreement, Kissinger said, "Yes, I am."

GOP Convention—$1 Million Plus

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Officials say hosting the Republican National Convention would cost more than $1 million — twice the amount the city now has available.

The GOP Site Selection Committee will meet next Sunday to recommend a convention site and Kansas City is reported to be a front-runner along with Miami Beach and Cleveland. A final decision on a site will be made when the Republican National Committee meets in Washington Sept. 8 and 9.

If Kansas City is selected it would be the first time since 1928 the city has hosted a national political convention.

A contingency contract between Kansas City and the GOP calls for not more than $500,000 to be spent by the city for physical changes in convention facilities and operating costs.

The city council has proposed to raise that figure by revising the city's occupational license tax for businesses. Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr., however, is trying to raise $300,000 of the total by private contributions.

Lt. Col. Bryce Thompson, assistant police chief, said it would cost an additional $600,000 to put police on 12-hour workdays if the convention were brought here. That would bring the total cost to $1.1 million.

When the Democrats held their mid-term convention here last December, a last-minute grant from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration paid for the police overtime costs. But police officials said they were unsure whether the LEAA would come through again.

Survivors Head Home

By United Press International
Survivors headed home today at the end of a Labor Day holiday that was plagued by heavy rains in several states.

Some didn't make it. They died in cars, on motorcycles, aboard planes, from a plane propeller, and in heavy rains and at least one tornado.

The National Safety Council estimated between 460 and 560 persons would die on the nation's highways from 6 p.m. local time Friday through midnight Monday.

A UPI count at 10 p.m. EDT

Sunday showed there had been at least 235 traffic deaths since the holiday weekend began.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic 235 Drowning 19 Plane 16 Other 25 Total 295

California led in traffic deaths with 22. North Carolina had 19. Michigan had 18. Texas 14, and Florida, Georgia, Missouri and Virginia each had 10.

A car plowed through 13 motorcycles and knocked them down "like tenpins" near Hurler, Wis., late Saturday. Five persons were killed and eight other injured.

The car, driven by Ronald Ross, 36, of McHenry, Ill., crossed the center line, drove through the cyclists — most of them riding two abreast — and into a car following them. Authorities said at least two of those hospitalized had limbs amputated.

Another five persons were killed near Sunshine Summit in San Diego County, Calif., Saturday when a car swerved across the center line and collided with a house trailer. All five victims, three in the car and two in the trailer, were believed to have burned to death.

Near Crookston, Minn., a tornado blew a car off a road, killing two persons inside the vehicle. Flooding killed at least one person in the northern panhandle of West Virginia.

In Loveland, Colo., Mrs. Gertrude Baxter, 55, who had just arrived in a single engine plane with her husband, stepped into the propeller. She died 15 minutes later in what was to have been the start of a holiday in the Estes Park area Friday.

A UPI count at 5 a.m. EDT showed there had been at least 244 traffic deaths since the start of the holiday.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic 244 Drowning 26 Plane 22 Other 26 Total 318

California led in traffic deaths with 24, followed by North Carolina with 19, Michigan 18, Texas 15 and Florida, Georgia, Missouri and Virginia, each with 10.

America Now Without Oil Price Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America is without federal oil price controls today for the first time since the Arab oil embargo.

The nation's oil companies, wary of a potential compromise plan to reinstate the controls within a few weeks, appear likely to steer clear of price increases for the immediate future.

But the situation is much less certain for the hundreds of thousands of Americans who own oil-producing property and sell that oil to refineries for royalty fees.

Most of the royalty owners have contracts requiring they receive the top market price for the oil they sell.

That contract condition, designed originally to protect royalty owners from oil company moves to hold down their royalties by keeping prices low, provides a legal basis for those whose oil was selling at a controlled price of $5.25 a barrel to demand the top market price of $13 a barrel.

About 60 per cent of the oil produced in America is sold at the lower price under controls.

The controls were voted into law in December, 1973, at the height of the Arab oil embargo, but were made retroactive to 1972 price levels and required oil companies to keep serving every customer they had in 1972.

On Friday, Ford and congressional leaders agreed on a tentative compromise to extend domestic oil price controls for up to 60 days and then remove them over a period not to exceed 30 months — a middle ground between the six-month extension of controls sought by Congress and the immediate decontrol threatened by Ford.

Federal energy officials said the compromise would be retroactive, thus preventing oil companies from raising prices immediately.

UN Talks on Global Economy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Diplomats from around the world gathered today for the start of a special U.N. General Assembly session on giving the developing countries a bigger slice of the global economy.

The United States said it was "ready to do business" at the 12-day, 138-nation meeting to find ways to improve the lot of the Third World countries.

The new talks between "have" and "have-not" nations on the course of the world economy was a prelude to the Sept. 16 opening of the regular 1975 General Assembly session.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan was standing in for peace-shuttling Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who had planned to address the talks on "development and international cooperation."

"We are ready to do business at this special session," Moynihan told the UPI editorial board last month.

The newly appointed American ambassador was scheduled to address the opening session this afternoon, one of some 100 delegates listed to speak at the special assembly meeting.

Moynihan's speech, the product of intensive collaboration by U.S. diplomatic, economic and financial specialists, was expected to set the tone of the special session.

In a July 14 speech at Milwaukee, Kissinger said the United States believes "the time has come to put the technological and economic genius of mankind into the service of progress for all."

He said the United States would approach the economic talks "with determination to make progress" and would "make concrete and constructive proposals."

But British Ambassador Ivor Richard warned Third World delegates against entering the talks with hopes for spectacular developments.

"I think that if one approaches the special session looking from some dramatic and obvious change or some dramatic results to flow from it, then I suspect that we are going to be disappointed," he said.

U.S. interest in the session centered on the creation of a world food reserve, one of six items on the agenda for the economic talks.

Other items to be discussed were trade, monetary reform, science and technology, industrialization and new economic and social structures.

Labor Theory of Profit

The cost of all things is labor, everything else is free.

A thoughtful reader once wrote that to us. Our first inclination was to offer an amendment. We wanted to say that raw materials and profit had to be considered. But then we started thinking.

Where do raw materials come from? Well, of course, they come from labor. After all, raw material is just an early stage of the final product. When you look at sheet iron or steel bars, however, you remember they originate from iron ore. The ore itself represents labor because it had to be dug, transported, and smelted. All those activities are labor. The machinery to perform them also was built by labor. But what about the mine from which the ore came, is it also merely a labor cost?

We had to think that point through. To be sure the mine was developed (labor), but the land upon which the mine is situated was acquired at a price. Did that price include any more than labor cost? Suppose, the first proprietor of the recorded parcel to have been the U.S. government which acquired the same in a larger land package from France, as for instance in the Louisiana Purchase. The price tag in that transaction must have represented the cost of discovery and exploration — both human labor. Eventually surveys be a necessary — again labor. Eventually, thus, speaking of iron ore as representative of raw material at the very early stage of production, we learned that labor cost was a very significant component of its production expense. Still, a question remains whether labor cost is the total cost?

With that, we started moving the other direction. Surely someone must have made a profit as the ore wended from the mine to the mill. Indeed,

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Old Right And New Right

By WILLIAM RUSHER

There is a good deal of talk in political circles these days about the Old Right and the New Right, and whether the twin can ever meet. Since the whole political future of this country probably hinges on the answer, it is worth our careful attention.

The Old Right, in these terms, consists of those — largely traditional Republicans — for whom the Eisenhower administration and the Eastern leadership of the GOP proved too liberal. These were the individuals and forces who, between 1955 and 1960, consciously broke with the national leadership of the Republican party and began speaking — and organizing — explicitly as "conservatives."

They included Bill Buckley and the whole group of intellectuals who with him launched "National Review" in November, 1955; James Burnham, Willi Schlamm, Frank Meyer, Russell Kirk, John Chamberlain, Henry Hazlitt, Brent Bozell, Suzanne LaFollette and others — many already well-established as conservative spokesmen in their own right.

In strictly political terms, recruits were few — naturally enough, since politicians generally like to watch somebody else take the plunge before doing it themselves. But the Young Republican and Women's Republican organizations (no doubt in part because they had less at stake) were hotbeds of conservative dissent, and there also sprang into being a number of nonpartisan political organizations dedicated to furthering the conservative cause.

Of these, the most widely publicized and most durable was the John Birch Society, which, however, narrowed its appeal and fatally weakened its effectiveness by attributing all

Injurious to Character

A system for the support of inadequate persons in the United States was never contemplated by the authors of the Constitution, nor can any good reason be advanced why, as a permanent establishment, it should be founded for one class or color of our people more than another.

Pending the war many refugees and freedmen received support from the Government, but it was never intended that they should thereafter be fed, clothed, educated, and sheltered by the United States. The idea on which the slaves were assisted to freedom was that on becoming free they would be a self-sustaining population.

Any legislation that shall imply that they are not expected to attain a self-sustaining condition must have a tendency injurious alike to their character and their prospects. — By President Andrew Johnson from his Veto Message of February 19, 1866.

Imagine Rationing

The Federal Energy Administration has provided a peek at what would confront the American people if it became necessary to ration gasoline.

The government would have to hire 93,000 people to administer the program. It would cost $400 million just to start and if rationing remained for a prolonged period the annual cost would be $2 billion.

The $2 billion would not drill a single well, dig one lump of coal or pay for any research into alternate sources of energy that would relieve the demand for petroleum.

If Congress needed any further reminder of the penalty to be paid for failure to keep our energy from developing into another crisis, the staggering waste of rationing bureaucracy ought to provide it.

FORD'S INFLATION

Economic Recovery Is Slowed

By JOSEPH KRAFT

President Ford and his men, hooked on conservative ideology, strain every nerve in battle against a classic inflation which doesn't exist. They do nothing to check — indeed they positively whip up — an oil and food inflation which does exist.

So the Consumer Price Index goes through the roof. Economic recovery is slowed and the American people are given yet another reason to mistrust government.

The classic inflation is caused by intense economic activity which allows business and workers to bid up costs for goods and services. Mr. Ford and his economic advisers are fighting that disease with a vengeance, at least partially because they seem to like the medicine.

Thus the President has put a lid on government spending and advertised it in well-publicized vetoes. The Federal Reserve Board is expanding the money supply at a slow rate.

Unfortunately, intense economic activity is not the cause of the present inflation. With unemployment running at 8 per cent, the economy is operating well under capacity. All the tight budgetary and monetary policies accomplish now is a slowdown in economic recovery.

The true agents of the present inflation — and of the earlier inflation of 1973-74 — are food and energy costs. The forces symbolized by the Arab oil boycott and the Russian wheat deal account for 60 per cent of the run-up to double-digit inflation in 1973-74.

Similarly with the present rise in the Consumer Price Index to the 14.4 annual rate announced, last Thursday, for July. Without the rises in gasoline and food costs, the figure would surely have been well below 10 per cent.

But on energy and food, the Ford administration caters to political clients in the oil companies and on the farms. Far from holding down prices, it works to push them up.

The centerpiece of Mr. Ford's energy program is decontrol of oil prices. He intends to let price controls on oil lapse at the end of this month. That in itself will assure some further rise in the Consumer Price Index.

As part of his strategy for achieving price decontrol, moreover, Mr. Ford has applied a $2-per-barrel tariff on imported oil. That levy is due to be scrapped with decontrol. But it may be applied later to curtail oil consumption.

Unfortunately the oil-exporting countries grouped in the OPEC cartel know how to read. They can only read the ups and downs of the import levy one way — as an invitation to raise their own prices by $2 barrel. Thus courtesy of the Ford administration we are virtually sure to get another increase in the cost of gasoline when the OPEC nations meet in Vienna next month.

As to food, the huge American harvest this year should have curtailed prices. That hope disappeared when it became known that a drought in Russia combined with high demand elsewhere to create a worldwide shortage of grain.

But the Ford administration rejected the idea of protecting the American consumer by holding down prices here while raising them to foreigners. On the contrary it has been encouraging foreign buyers to come into the American market and bid up grain prices.

Early this year American traders were allowed to sell 10 million tons of wheat to the Russians. A hold on these sales has now been applied. But President Ford has assured the Russians there will be more grain for them in September. And Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, by such devices as telling the East European nations to come into the American market to buy grain here, has been practically coaching the Russians on how to maximize their grain purchases in this country.

I do not think runaway inflation is about to begin. Even though cost of living increases are bound to stimulate big wage demands, heavy unemployment will act as a brake. Still the latest rise in the Consumer Price Index will give the Ford administration an excuse for continuing with its restrictive monetary and fiscal policies — thus only further slowing down recovery.

Worse still is the impact on the national mood. Inflation is the problem which most bothers most people. We have the right to expect government to help, not hurt, in dealing with the problem. But the spectacle of incompetence and ineptitude provided by the Ford administration only serves to turn people off on government, politics, Washington and "all that jazz."

Question Box

QUESTION: What is your opinion of a national tax strike as a means of forcing a return to Constitutional government in America? It appears that this action is protected by Amendments 1, 4, 9 and 14. — M.S.

ANSWER: We are of the opinion that if the people ever are to regain individual liberty it will be through their ability to regain the power to control their lives and property. That would mean elimination of the government's power to tax.

Whether a national tax strike is feasible we can only guess. If there were some way for a spontaneous refusal of a huge number of persons to pay the governmental extractions, we believe it would be successful. But it must be realized that any attempt to organize such a movement would be dealt with harshly by the politicians and bureaucrats whose empires would be threatened. This includes the courts, which are a part of the system.

As to a return to constitutional government, it should be remembered that one famous justice remarked, before he reached the highest court in the land, that the Constitution is what the judges say it is. (Charles Evans Hughes). As long as such an attitude continues to prevail, the vaunted claim that this nation is governed by laws, not by men, is a foolish error.

It should be remembered that the Constitution authorizes the national government to seize all every person's income, so to speak of a return to institutional government while advocating a tax strike is contradictory to say the least.

Whether the first, fourth, and 14th amendments to the Constitution protect individuals' rights to advocate a tax strike, to be secure against seizure and to retain one's undesignated rights seems to be questioned under the dictum of Justice Hughes.

Politicians and bureaucrats will use every power at their command to keep individuals under subjugation. And they will not hesitate to use physical force against those who threaten their empire.

We continue to see signs that individuals are "shrugging" as in Ayn Rand's "Atlas Shrugged." Producers are either withdrawing or reducing production to lower their earnings — and tax liability — so they will not be so vulnerable to the publicans.

Up With Equal Rights! Give Groom a Shower

DEAR ABBY: This might sound crazy, but how come people don't give showers for men who are getting married? Brides get linen showers, kitchen showers, lingerie showers, and all kinds of showers. But grooms never get anything.

Women are now screaming for equal rights, so how about giving men equal rights? A man who's about to be married could use some new pajamas, shirts, underwear, and even spark plugs and fan belts.

Well, Abby, what do you say?

FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

DEAR FOR: I'm all for it. But where have you been? Not long ago I published a letter from a man whose wife left him and took everything; so his pals at work gave him a shower to help set him up in housekeeping. Bravo!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old woman who is engaged to a wonderful man, age 40. He has three fine children and has been a widower for two years. He is very clean cut, considerate, and I think I'm the luckiest woman in the world.

Now, my problem: He frequently says, "my wife," when referring to his deceased wife. I think he should call her his late wife. Also, he is very close to his late wife's parents and he refers to them as his "in-laws." Are they not his "former in-laws"?

Am I being small-minded, jealous and unreasonable to feel as I do, or am I justified? I want to be fair. I certainly don't want to damage our relationship, but this one habit of his is driving me up a wall.

Is this worth mentioning?

NEEDS SOME WISDOM

DEAR NEEDS: Anything that drives you up a wall is well worth mentioning. But first you must realize that his former in-laws will always be a part of his family because they are his children's grandparents; so don't demand that he refer to them as "my former in-laws." But do tell him that he'd better start referring to his late wife as just that because you will be his wife soon.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a grandmother has to babysit with grandchildren who are disobedient and disrespectful?

I have two married sons who each have two little boys — all under 10. The sons of one family are a pleasure to be with. They are well-mannered and obedient, and I love sitting with them either at my own home or at theirs.

The sons of the other family are just the opposite. The boys are mouthy, rude, and they actually abuse me. I don't even want them in my home because they are so wild and destructive.

I have flatly refused to baby-sit for the boys who give me a hard time, and now I am being criticized by the whole family.

Do you think I should treat ALL my grandchildren alike when they behave differently? And am I wrong to favor those who are mannerly and cooperative?

After 35 years of teaching, almost 50 years of marriage, three children, eight grandchildren and eight great grandchildren, Mrs. C.D. Anderson of 2101 Wells enjoys retirement.

She can reminisce about the one room school where she taught near Chanute, Kan., and the advantages students of today have over those who enrolled half a century ago.

Mr. Anderson and her husband, former superintendent for Cities Service Gas, retired in 1973. She had taught school here 18 years before she retired from St. Matthew Episcopal Day School.

Her teaching career dates back to 1924 when she taught in a one room school in Kansas.

She remembers the old coalstove in the classroom where she built the fires to keep the children warm.

"Parents brought the children to school in a horse and buggy," she said. "Many times, they waded deep, deep snows and mud."

Mrs. Anderson had 35 students that first year and they were enrolled in grades one through eight.

She cleaned her own room and had water from the well available in large buckets in the entrance hall.

During noon and recess, the boys played ball and the girls played house.

Mrs. Anderson had taught in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

She is the former Florence Richmond, who married C.D. Anderson in 1926.

The couple's household and personal property were blown away in cyclone near Newkirk, Okla., in 1935.

Anderson looked up and saw the storm rolling in from the west. He took his wife and three children to a neighbor's home and when they returned, "everything was gone. We had nothing," she said.

"It was a terrible feeling, but we were so thankful we had our lives and little ones. Material things can be replaced lives cannot," she said.

Friends and neighbors hosted showers for the Andersons, and the children were outfitted in clothes.

"You find great people wherever you go," Mrs. Anderson said.

When Mrs. Anderson grew up in the country teenagers looked forward to Sunday School and church, Sunday school parties, high school athletics and extracurricular activities.

Entertainment in farm communities once centered around a gathering for ice cream and cake.

"It is almost a thing of the past and we need to go back to it," she said.

However, she added that she has lovely neighbors on Wells.

Mrs. Anderson has a reputation as an outstanding cook.

"I learned to cook as a child on the farm," she said.

"My mother was a marvelous cook. She canned all summer from my daddy's garden. I can also remember when my daddy buried carrots, apples, turnips, etc. to keep them from freezing," she commented.

"They were like fresh from the garden and off the trees," she said.

"Cooking is one of my great joys and I have a large collection of cookbooks — I especially enjoy cooking for holidays."

The Andersons attend the First Methodist Church of Pampa and she is a member of the United Methodist Women.

They travel and both hold membership in the Eastern Star of Lyons, Kan. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge of Braman, Okla.

They will celebrate their 50 wedding anniversary on June 18, 1976.

Their children include Carl D.

Anderson Jr. of 337 Ann, Richard Anderson of 1714 Hamilton and Sue Staples of Blackwell, Okla.

Pumpkin Bread
(A recipe of Mrs. Anderson's)

4 eggs
3 cups sugar
a 16 ounce can of pumpkin
1 cup water
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 cup cooking oil
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 cup pecans
1 teaspoon salt.

Cream eggs and sugar. Add oil and pumpkin; add dry ingredients alternatively with water. Add nuts.

"You can bake in bundt pan, one pound coffee cans or loaf pans. This freezes well and makes nice gifts for Christmas, birthdays or just to say 'I love you' to friends and loved ones. It is great to serve at coffee time," the cook suggested.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

Late Summer, 1775:

Named an aide-de-camp to General Washington on July 27, 19-year-old John Trumbull, the son of the Royal Governor of Connecticut, is transferred to New York; within a year he will resign his commission in a dispute with General Horatio Gates. But young Trumbull is destined for the heights. He returns to Boston where he studies art, and in 1780 departs for London to become a student of the renowned painter, Benjamin West. Almost immediately British authorities jail Trumbull on suspicion of treason. Later he resumes his apprenticeship under West, and by the late 1780s has established himself as the leading American painter of the Revolution. Among his most famous works are The Battle of Bunker Hill and The Death of Montgomery.

Rocky's Politics Same

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Southern Republicans were wondering aloud last week if there is a new conservative Nelson Rockefeller. Was this man calling for taking the "cheats" of welfare the same man who has epitomized liberal Republicans?

Reporters who have covered Rockefeller for years knew better. Rockefeller has not changed his political philosophy since he was first elected to public office as governor of New York in 1958.

The vice president himself says the labels "liberal" and "conservative" don't apply to him. He calls himself a "pragmatist."

"I believe in doing what's do-able," Rockefeller has said for years.

What was "do-able" when New York State had lots of money and the economy was booming was to spend $4 billion a year on welfare, build a $1 billion office building complex in Albany, and create a massive State University system plus other $1 billion programs for needs ranging from drug rehabilitation to pure waters.

What was "do-able" when New York ran low on money later in the Rockefeller years was a residency requirement for welfare recipients, a law putting able bodied welfare recipients to work, mandatory life sentences for drug pushers and across the board cuts in most social programs.

Then there was Attica. That won Rockefeller the conservative label—at least to liberals.

He would be the first to blame his latest conservative image on the economy. That is why he believes there is no inconsistency in going to Mobile, Ala., and Columbia, S.C., last week and calling for cutting government bureaucracy and getting the "cheats" off welfare. These things cost too much, he argues.

"We simply can't afford to do all the things we'd like to do for people," Rockefeller said. "We simply don't have the money. We have to do only those things we can afford. For too long politicians, and I'm among them, have over promised and underdelivered."

Rockefeller implies, and his record backs it up, that if the economy were sound, he'd be all for liberal programs. But since they can't be afforded, he's for conservative programs.

FHA Interest Climbs on Homes

By LEONARD CURRY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The median home buyer can expect to pay an extra $10 a month for a government-backed mortgage when the interest ceiling goes to 9 per cent Tuesday.

But from the viewpoint of the average seller, the new rate could mean an additional $1,500 from the sale of a home.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills announced Friday the interest ceiling for mortgage loans guaranteed by the Federal Housing and Veterans Administration will rise Tuesday from 8.5 to 9 per cent in response to upward pressures in the money markets.

She said this, the second increase in five months, would ease "excessively high" penalties owners are bearing to sell their homes.

But the National Association of Home Builders — whose members would benefit as the owners of a half million new houses and condominiums — condemned the new rate. The NAHB said the government must be in "panic to increase interest rates when it should be holding the line."

The NAHB feels the increased interest rates may discourage potential home buyers and therefore reduce sales.

After peaking at a record 9.5 per cent 13 months ago, the interest rates on federally backed mortgage loans moved down steadily to 8 per cent last March.

The Mortgage Bankers Association, which financed two-thirds of FHA-VA loans in 1974, said the "timely and appropriate" increase would stimulate housing sales and new construction.

The higher rate means the buyer will pay $27.85 per month on a 30-year, $30,000 loan — an increase of $10.28 per month over the same loan at 8.5 per cent. For the life of the mortgage, the buyer will pay $3,700 more.

Ironically, the higher rates will take effect while mortgage lending institutions are bulging with savings and searching for borrowers.

Charges Bakery Fixed Prices

BANTON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Price-fixing charges are still pending against four baking executives and an Alexandria bakery, but the defendants have been cleared in their first trial.

A jury acquitted them on federal anti-trust charges of conspiring to fix bread prices in the Baton Rouge area after deliberating two hours and 20 minutes Friday. Similar conspiracy charges are still pending in the Lafayette-Lake Charles-Alexandria area.

Clifford Curtis, of Tyler, Tex., a former manager of Cotton's Holsum Bakery in Baton Rouge; Gene Cotton, president of Cotton's, Inc.; Frem Boustany Sr., the chief executive of Hoval Baking Co.; and Hoval itself were all acquitted.

A number of other bakeries and executives were charged in the case. Many of them pleaded no contest.

No trial date has been set in connection with the other charges.

COIN SHORTAGE
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's mysterious small coin shortage has finally been solved.

Police said today they raided a farmhouse outside Stockholm Saturday and arrested a gang which had been melting the nation's silver coins and selling the silver bricks at tremendous profit on the industrial black market.

Officials estimated that as much as $5 million in silver crowns have been melted down by the gang in the last few years. Sweden stopped minting silver coins in 1968, but many are still in circulation.

From Cyclone to Socials

Mrs. C.D. Anderson of 2101 Wells recalls her years of teaching in a one room school in the 1920s. She developed her "love" for cooking as a child when she worked in mother's kitchen. Her pumpkin bread is second to none, those who taste it claim.

Advice on Alaska: Get Job First

Many people who are going to Alaska in hope of obtaining lucrative work on the trans-Alaska pipeline are finding something else instead. What awaits them is high unemployment, few job opportunities, an extremely high cost of living, and, in addition, very cold temperatures.

If you're thinking about going to Alaska to find a job, the Better Business Bureau urges caution, unless you have a written, confirmed job offer.

There are not even enough jobs for the people who live in Alaska now. In June, the unemployment rate in Alaska was 8.6 per cent. Roughly one out of every 12 Alaskan workers is unemployed.

The pipeline's general contractor has an agreement with major labor unions calling for most jobs to be filled from labor union sources, regardless of whether the jobs are unskilled, semi-skilled or skilled. Dozens of construction companies under direct contract with the contractor are doing the work. These firms do the hiring for pipeline work through their collective bargaining agreements with unions. Preference is given to Alaskan residents.

The cost of living in Alaska is 20 to 35 per cent, or even higher than in the rest of the United States. For instance, a plain hamburger can cost $2 to $3. To buy a milkshake, you might pay about $1.60 or $2. A Washington, D.C. priced $175 two-bedroom apartment rents for about $300, or even twice that amount, in Fairbanks.

It is hard to get used to. Along the 800-mile pipeline route, temperatures normally reach lows of 60 degrees below zero in the winter. Even in springtime, temperatures at work camps near the Arctic Circle are 20 to 40 below zero.

If, in spite of these facts, you are still interested in looking for work in Alaska, the Alaska Department of Labor suggests bringing arctic clothing, at least $1,000 for the first month's expenses, and a round-trip plane ticket.

Another caution: job hunters planning to travel by car across Canada should plan to have enough money to finance a return trip. Otherwise, they may be refused entry at a Canadian port of entry if Canadian non-immigrant requirements cannot be met.

Job hunters should check their local unions for job possibilities. Also, local State Employment Service Offices may have information on jobs that can't be filled by Alaskans.

The Better Business Bureau issues this reminder to job hunters: if you find a job and apply for it, make sure you are hired and have it in writing from your new employer before you move.

MANILA (UPI) — A group of Filipino real estate developers announced plans to construct a $17 million hotel in Cebu City, 350 miles southeast of Manila.

The construction of the 12-story hotel is part of a program to develop Cebu, site of the country's second international airport, as a vacation spot for tourists.

NY Teachers Threaten Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — New Yorkers began paying more money to travel, and the financially harassed city faced fiscal pressure on yet another front today — a demand from its teachers for wage increases, and a threat to strike if the hikes were not forthcoming.

Even as Mayor Abraham Beame and his top aides looked for ways for the city to meet its September obligations, United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker said odds were "10 to one" the teachers would walk out when their contract expires Sept. 9, one day after schools are scheduled to open.

In a television interview Sunday, Shanker said the action was threatened because the board of education has "been holding very strongly to all of its demands," including increases in teacher workload, workdays and class size.

A mediator from the state Public Employment Relations Board was assigned to enter the contract talks when negotiations between the board and the UFT reached an impasse last week.

Shanker indicated the UFT might lower its demands or possibly make some concessions because of the city's fiscal crisis. "It (a new contract) will not bring about significant gains, like we've been used to," he said.

He suggested the teachers' opening demand for 25 per cent wage increases over three years will be — or has already been — lowered. "We've never ended up getting what we asked for in the first place," he said.

Mayoral press secretary Sidney Frigid said Sunday Beame, his deputies, Budget Director Melvin Lechner and other members of the budget staff planned a Labor Day session "to see what else has to be done" to keep the city afloat.

The latest crisis appeared to be the worst. Many credit sources that bailed out New York with billions of dollars before seemed to have dried up.

The city, with a total deficit now listed at $3.3 billion, needs $886 million for its obligations just for the month of September.

One source of additional revenue, an increase in transit fares, went into effect at 12:01 a.m. EDT today. A ride on the bus or subway now costs 50 cents, up from 35 cents.

Although the new fare structure officially takes effect today, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority is continuing its half-fare program for holidays. The real increase will be felt on Tuesday when workers return from their Labor Day holiday.

Suburban train commuters on the Long Island Rail Road and Penn Central commuter divisions ran into fare increases of 23 and 25 per cent respectively. And New Yorkers driving home following the last three-day summer weekend found a costly welcome if they had to cross any one of the nine toll bridges and tunnels within the city. Tolls went up from 10 to 100 per cent.

Portuguese Leader Forms Cabinet

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro Azevedo began forming his new cabinet today with clear indications that the government would retain its controversial pro-Communist character.

Government officials said the cabinet probably would be formed Tuesday and that only two major ministerial changes — labor and information — were so far envisioned.

They said Azevedo, an admiral promoted from chief of the navy, also was expected to continue the pro-Communist policies of former Prime Minister Gen. Vasco Gonçalves, who has been shifted to the post of chief of staff.

Moderate officers in the divided armed forces said Sunday they would not accept the choice of Gonçalves as the top military commander in the country.

Some officers angrily referred to the appointment as a "game of musical chairs" that only the Communists could win. Several leading military men opposed to Gonçalves hinted they might use their troops in an emergency.

Reports in Lisbon said troops in the northern military region refused to obey pro-Gonçalves Brig. Eurico de Corvacho and placed themselves under Brig. Franco Charais, the moderate commander in the central district.

Reported weekend troop movements and military alerts across the country renewed rumors in Lisbon about a possible move by moderate officers against Gonçalves.

The commander of troops in the Azores Islands cabled Lisbon protesting the appointment. But the national radio denied reports of an anti-Gonçalves military uprising in the Madeira Islands.

Troops in a military police company under orders to leave this week for war-ravaged Angola circulated leaflets calling on their comrades to refuse to go. They called a protest demonstration this evening.

President Francisco de Costa Gomes fired Gonçalves as prime minister Friday night, but gave him the new — possibly more powerful — post of armed forces chief of staff.

Police Report Vandalism

Vandalism at Travis School, burglary, husband problems and malicious mischief were among the reports received Sunday night by the Pampa Police Department.

The playground equipment at Travis School was damaged and a pickup was painted red.

The hood and seats was removed. The hood was stomped and the seats were ripped with a knife.

A resident on Darby Street reported that someone tried to gain entry to her home. Police said it looked as if someone had taken a screwdriver and tried to pry open screens.

A local business, the Exchange, was broken into, but the extent of the damage is not known.

Two husbands allegedly struck their wives; one threatened with a knife.

Beer bottles were thrown against one vehicle, denting the door on the driver's side.

FBI Investigates Note From Oswald

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI is investigating the destruction of a note delivered to its Dallas office by Lee Harvey Oswald several days before the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley said Sunday the note apparently was destroyed after the assassination but he did not say by whom.

The note warned an FBI agent not to attempt any further interviews with Oswald's wife, Marina. Kelley said in a statement. It did not mention President Kennedy and in no way "would have forewarned of the subsequent assassination."

Kelley said the FBI recently began investigating the 12-year-old accident after getting information about it from the Dallas Times Herald. The agency previously had "no information concerning this visit and note" in its records, he said, and an internal investigation is continuing.

Oswald apparently visited the Dallas office "as the result of an interview by an FBI agent of his wife, Marina," in connection with an agency investigation of Oswald prior to the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination, Kelley said.

Caroline Reduced To Tropical Storm

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Caroline, her hurricane fury reduced to a weak tropical storm, drifted slowly through Northeastern Mexico today drenching the United States-Mexican border area with more than 8 inches of rain.

The National Hurricane Center said Caroline would probably weaken below tropical storm strength today as her disorganized center continued to move inland. The National Weather Service said Caroline's ill defined center was over Mexico about 100 miles west southwest of Brownsville Sunday night.

A few gale force winds were occurring in rain squalls within 75 miles of the center.

Caroline slammed into a sparsely populated section of the Mexican coast 130 miles south of the United States with 115-mile-per hour winds before dawn Sunday.

Coastal resident from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Tampico, Mexico had prepared for the storm but there were no injuries and only moderate damage to the isolated fishing villages between Tampico and the Texas border.

But the NWS said Caroline's torrential rains still posed a threat of flooding in Northeast Mexico and extreme South Texas. The weather service said rains of up to 10 inches could be expected before the storm's center disintegrates during the next few days.

Five inches of rain fell in Brownsville Sunday and Raymondville, 45 miles northwest of Brownsville, received more than eight inches.

"We've been practically flooded out here. Several streets are blocked off and in some places the water is up to three feet deep," said Raymondville police dispatcher Dale Ingalsbe.

"We have evacuated quite a few families but there haven't been any serious injuries. It's just been raining and raining and it looks like it's going to keep raining."

The rain was welcomed in Mexico.

"The storm actually was beneficial, bringing us badly needed rains after a long drought," said Enrique Cardenas Gonzalez, governor of the state of Tamaulipas who moved his state headquarters from Ciudad Victoria to the village of Soto La Marina.

Fire Spreads Through Forest In California

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Wind fanned a fire on two fronts in the Sequoia National Forest Sunday, spreading it to an estimated 11,000 mountain acres.

The blaze was in terrain so steep that motor vehicles could not negotiate it and a pack train of horses and mules struggled through the thick smoke to bring in supplies for the 1,800 men working in fire crews, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said.

A carelessly tended campfire apparently touched off the fire Thursday at the forks of the Kern and Little Kern rivers, an estimated 35 miles east of here.

"It's burning on two fronts now," the spokesman said. "In the Kern drainage and along Soda Creek, into the Forest and Beach camping areas."

Winds of 15 to 20 miles an hour fanned the fire as it burned on both sides of the Kern River Canyon. Hiking trails around the blaze were closed.

Weekend News Summary

CAPITALISM POLL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Labor Day public opinion poll distributed by the People's Bicentennial Commission showed one-third of the Americans polled think the capitalist system "has reached its peak in terms of performance and is now on the decline."

The poll, taken by Hart Research Associates, also said most people think the two major political parties put big business before the average voter.

At the same time, however, a whopping 84 per cent said they think it would do "more harm than good" for the government to own and run major companies.

The survey team contacted 1,200 persons in all income levels in all parts of the country.

LATIN AID WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House International Relations Committee report said Saturday U.S. foreign aid officials in four Latin American countries are more responsive to needs of the poor than the governments of those countries.

"On the whole, (Agency for International Development) missions appear more responsive to the needs of the poor than do host governments, whose official words on that score sometimes far outrun their deeds," the report said.

WRECK BLAME FIXED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board said both the driver of a school bus and a Southern Railway flagman were to blame in a Georgia train-bus collision that killed seven students and injured 71 others last year.

Investigators said the driver

DISREGARDED A LAW THAT HE STOP BEFORE PULLING OUT THE TRACKS.

They said the flagman, directing train movements by radio from inside the caboose as it backed up, failed to comply with railroad rules to guard the crossing.

FORD POLITICKING

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Capping a day of politicking in Maine and Rhode Island, President Ford mingled with New England's high society at a Republican fund-raiser where he discussed his economic and energy programs and defended his vetoes of congressional legislation.

"We saved the American people roughly $6 billion," Ford told an audience Saturday at the estate of millionaire John Slocum. "We're going to keep on doing it until they (Democrats in Congress) get the word."

The President was greeted by well-wishers at most of his stops. In Newport, there was a demonstration to dramatize the fact Rhode Island leads the nation with 26.3 per cent unemployment.

JUROR'S OPINION

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The judge's decision to divide defendants into separate groups in the Kent State University damage trial influenced the jury to return a verdict exonerating defendants of all civil liability, a juror reported Saturday.

The $46 million suit against 29 officials and National Guardsmen who played a role in the May 4, 1970, shooting deaths of four students and the wounding of nine others ended in acquittal.

Ellen Gaskalla, one of the jurors who dissented against the verdicts clearing all the DEFENDANTS, ALSO SAID OHIO GOV. JAMES A. RHODES WAS ABSOLVED IN THE FIRST BALLOT AFTER THE 14-WEEK TRIAL.

NIAGARA TRAGEDIES

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Three tragedies within 24 hours claimed nine lives and dampened the normally festive mood of this vacation town at the beginning of the Labor Day weekend.

A 3-year-old boy died early Friday, three persons drowned when an experimental 29-foot rubber raft overturned in the Niagara River and five workers died in a cave-in at a sewer tunnel construction site.

SOVIET PROTEST

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union signaled its opposition Saturday to American volunteers acting as Middle East peace watchdogs.

PERU'S NEW LEADER

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez took the oath of office as the new president of Peru Saturday after reaffirming his military regime's neutralist foreign policy and its commitment to the social policies of ousted strongman Juan Velasco Alvarado.

Morales Bermudez was sworn in the presence of the top military commanders who overthrew Velasco Friday for running the leftwing military government as a one-man show.

ERSATZ EMERALDS

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese ceramics firm reported today it was making artificial emeralds that can be sold for about half the price of natural ones.

A spokesman for Kyoto Ceramics Co. said its ersatz emeralds have almost the same color, shape, hardness, specific gravity and transparency as natural emeralds.

The firm plans to start marketing them mounted on rings, brooches and other personal accessories in late September.

The spokesman said the artificial emeralds are made from the same ingredients as real ones — oxides of beryllium, aluminum and silicon. They take about six months to produce.

TEXAS FESTIVAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The 1975 Texas Folklife Festival is scheduled Aug. 7-10 at the Institute of Texas Cultures.

More than 6,000 Texans from 30 towns and cities will recreate the music, food, costumes, games, arts and crafts of the state's 26 different ethnic groups at the 15-acre site.

Skating for Charity

Jerry Lewis clowns with young skater Angela Bonacci as she prepares for one of the hundreds of Skate - a - thons sponsored by the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association across the country to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Local Skate-a-thon To Aid MD Drive

A Jerry Lewis Skate - A - Thon to help the fight against muscular dystrophy began at 10 a.m. today at the Pampa Roller Rink.

All proceeds from the event will be donated to the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon. "We're delighted to be a part of Jerry's fight against dystrophy. It's truly a worthwhile cause," Bill Watson said.

The skating benefit will continue until 10 p.m. There will be an admission charge of 50 cents an hour or $2 all day with skate rental of 50 cents.

Last year's ninth annual telethon, raised more than $16.1 million for the fight against muscular dystrophy. Lewis predicts an even greater response this year.

Watson noted that more has been learned by science about muscle disease in the last 24 years than in all the preceding history of medicine. This period of medical progress roughly parallels the existence of Muscular Dystrophy Association, founded in 1950.

Lewis national Chairman of the voluntary health agency, says he'll continue lead the fight against muscular dystrophy "until it's won."

Making It as a Woman Realtor

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — All the rewards for a woman's career in real estate sound as rosy as the bushes blooming along the picket fence.

It means money, meeting people, and that magic ingredient called self-fulfillment.

But hold on there before you plunge into the field. It also can be a dive into a career where the unknowledgeable fail and the disappointments are disastrous.

The pros and cons of women selling real estate are outlined by Mrs. John H. Hirt, of Indianapolis, president of the Women's Council of Realtors, and a sales record of better than $1 million per year for the last 12 years. Her specialty is residential properties.

The council is part of the National Association of Realtors, which sets the code of ethics for its half million members. Some 12,500 women are in the council alone and Mrs. Hirt said it would be anybody's guess the total of women brokers today. She does know their numbers are rapidly increasing "and I doubt if we've yet scratched the surface."

Helen Hirt is definitely pro women in the field, but warns that the one who says, "I like people, I like houses, so I'm a natural" is not apt to make it.

Qualifications must include empathy, she said, "enjoying working with people, understanding their wants and needs."

You must have the ego drive, the unqualified urge not to fail.

You must have the education. Different states offer different courses in all phases of real estate handling. Indiana University, for instance, has a 16-week course which the state's real estate commission requires before licensing.

"And licensing really means licensed to learn,"

said Mrs. Hirt. "From then on, you get into the nitty gritty."

For selling real estate is not "something to do in your spare time. It is not a get rich quick business," she said. "The idea that all you have to do is have a car and call up some of your friends is nonsense."

"Actually, you have to make a commitment, examine your goals, have an understanding family because there are night calls and weekends of showing property. You're in for a seven day week."

But the awards monetarily alone can make it all worthwhile—"To earn $25,000 to $30,000 a year is not at all unusual," said Mrs. Hirt.

She feels that now is an opportune time to enter the field, although the nation's economy is hurting and the home buildings business is in a slump. Several national factors will "put the carpenters back" this spring and summer because of housing needs, particularly for the "middle market"—the single family house at a moderate price, she said.

I talked with Mrs. Hirt when she came to New York to meet with the area women's council. She is visiting its 13 regions, where members are putting on educational and leadership training sessions.

Getting into real estate was more from need than early ambition for the star saleswoman. She was studying music at Wittenberg College when the Depression of the '30s caused her to drop out of school.

She went to work as a secretary and accountant in a real estate office. She also on the side took every course she could find on such matters as mortgages, credit, and appraisal.

Today she is vice-president for administration and sales manager for A.H.M. Graves Inc. in Indianapolis.

DOUBLE-BREADED wrap coat in muted herringbone plush fabric by Bert Linder has sable-dyed opossum collar.

Bert Linder

"A coat," he says, "should not be just something to cover a dress in cold weather. It should be suited to the wearer's life style and styled to perfection not for just one season but for many."

To find out what women need in outerwear, the designer does his own market research, traveling across the United States, visiting shops and department stores.

"A coat starts with fine fabric and demands quality workmanship and design," he says. Nothing delights him more than a customer who brags she's worn one of his designs for three or more seasons.

He's a Poet

Something of a novelty in the fashion world, Linder may be the only designer who has a book of poetry to his credit. Before entering the family coat business, he made his living writing. He was an English and philosophy major at Williams College and studied theater at the Yale School of Drama.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

"WHETHER you're dealing with thoroughbred coats or thoroughbred horses, it's the same thing," says Bert Linder. "You must know what they will be used for and design them or breed them for the long run."

That's what Linder does on both counts. Designer for the 65-year-old coat firm, Shagmoor, his lifelong hobby is raising horses for stud. Because of his career and his hobby, he divides his time between Scranton, Pa., and New York City's Seventh Avenue.

Whether he's talking horses or coats, Linder has thoroughbred standards.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the attributes of the expert player is his ability to interpret alerting signals that would not even be known or discernible to the average player. An example of this alerting signal can be evidenced in today's deal. East was the transmitter, and West the receiver.

North-South vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:
West North East South
1♠ 2♣ Pass 3NT
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.
West, probably feeling that a spade lead might give South a present of a trick, chose to open the queen of hearts at trick one. Had West led a spade, our South declarer would have been set before he ever won a trick.

The opening heart lead was won by South's ace, after which he led a diamond and successfully finessed dummy's queen. He then re-entered the South hand via the ace of clubs and led his remaining diamond. When West put up the king, declarer allowed that card to win. On this trick played the JACK of diamonds!

West now took a rather lengthy time to reflect on the situation. He knew that East still possessed the missing four of diamonds, for if declarer had held that card he surely would have captured West's king with dummy's ace, hoping for a 2-2 division of the four outstanding diamonds. And, from declarer's viewpoint, if the missing four diamonds were not divided 2-2, he could give away a third diamond lead, and use dummy's king of clubs as an entry for the cashing of the board's three remaining diamonds. Why, then, had East voluntarily played the diamond jack on West's king?

The only reason, West said to himself, was that East was trying to send a signal to West. This signal: just had to be the "suit - preference" signal, whereby a player indicates his desire to have partner lead one suit, rather than another; and the play of an unnecessarily high card asks partner to lead the higher - ranking of the obvious suits.

So West, instead of continuing hearts, led the five of spades. East winning the trick with his queen. East returned his remaining spade, entrapping South's jack, and enabling West to cash four more spade tricks. So declarer incurred a two-trick set, owing to circumstances beyond his control.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I read in your column about the lady who used the outline of her grandchild (drawn on butcher paper) to buy clothes for her.

I enlarged upon that fantastic idea a bit and use it when I'm sewing for my grandchildren. But instead of butcher paper, I used my cutting board to draw the outline of the child, including arms, as the cutting board is firmer and easier to work with. (Of course, I know this only works when sewing, not shopping.)

One could use the back of the board if you don't care to have the outline drawn on the front, but to me it's more convenient on the front. My cutting board is usually out when I'm sewing and I don't have to pick it up and turn it over to use the child's outline.

For each child I sew for, I drew his or her outline using a different color of marking pencil. (Be sure to use something to mark with that won't rub off.) I marked the waist, knees, ankles and wrists. I also noted, right on the cutting board, the measurements of the chest, waist, neck, upper arm and wrists, in pencil, so as to be able to change them a bit from time to time.

Of course, when they completely outgrow the outline, you'll have to draw another.

I find it's really a time-saver whenever I get ready to check a garment for fit and, to me, it is easier and more accurate than using a tape measure.

Mrs. Amy Buckner

Dear Heloise:
I too have discovered the virtues of apple butter. It turns vanilla or plain yogurt into delicious "apple and spice" flavor.

Great in cottage cheese, too.
Marian Hubbard

Dear Heloise:
I have small children and it seems I always have the door open to the freezer getting ice for drinks — and I drink iced tea all day.

Since my freezer is frostless, this could cause it to run quite a bit more than normal. So I thought about removing my ice trays in the morning and putting them in my small ice bucket.

I have ice close at hand all day without keeping the freezer running.
Jancy

Dear Heloise:
While using oil-based paint, I discovered that foamy shaving cream is wonderful for removing paint from the hands.

The can of shaving cream I used said for regular beards, but I'll bet the one for tougher beards would be even better.
Jane C.

Either one would be easier on the hands than most conventional paint removers, I'll bet.

You're a doll for sharing this with us.
Heloise

Dear Heloise:
This is great for mothers with babies.

The empty tissue boxes, decorator kind (some are very pretty), are great to put booties and socks in.
(Also odds and ends.)
Veronica Eyerman

Dear Heloise:
I'm teaching my son and daughter how to cook AND filling the freezer with family favorites at the same time.

I buy double or triple ingredients, demonstrate to the children who make the same dish right along with me.

A great way to "double" and "triple" any recipe!
Peggy Stanwood

Absolutely fantastic! You are o-n-e smart mommy! Simplest way I've heard of to teach children to cook and so practical! Love you.
Heloise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: First Lady Betty Ford says her children "must follow their own path" and she realizes she cannot stand in their way.

She also says she has "no regrets" that her statements in recent interviews have aroused criticism.

She has taken stands that none of her recent predecessors would voice in public, but she feels she got her real initiation when she came out strongly for the equal rights amendment. She was picketed outside the White House and other places.

After Mrs. Ford said in a CBS-TV interview that she "wouldn't be surprised" if her daughter Susan came to her and said she was having an affair, she had much mail, pro and con. There also were newspaper editorials, and the White House daily news summary contained many items about the response. She read them all.

Recently when Mrs. Ford was invited to a spoof the traveling White House correspondents put on, mainly of the President, she was told there would be a song about her. "Am I going to laugh or cry?" she asked.

And when she was told there was a crowd of reporters and photographers waiting outside the front door of a restaurant where she had lunch, she declined to duck away. She walked out the main entrance with a smile on her face and her head high.

The Ford's son Jack, 23, graduated from Utah State last June with a major in forestry. But being a President's son inhibits him from applying for a job with the United States Forestry Service.

Instead he is now studying the ocean depths off the Bahamas with ocean explorer Jacques Cousteau.

Mrs. Ford confesses she does worry about her sons rugged adventures, but she feels they must follow their own desires to learn.

President Ford's chief photographer, David Kennerly, hitched on to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's trip to the Middle East to record the history-making diplomatic mission.

According to informants, Kennerly told Ford he did not think that the previous Kissinger journeys had been photographed in depth. The President told him to go ahead. When Kennerly worked for UPI he won a Pulitzer Prize for his photo coverage in Vietnam.

The new federal campaign limit of $1,000 on the amount an individual can give to a candidate is driving politicians up the wall.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

On my 45th birthday, my family chipped in and bought me a tennis racket. I don't wish to sound ungrateful, but this is like buying the Opeo a Mouseketeer Beanie.

"When are you going to use it?" the kids kept clamoring.

"When it snows and I get another racket to put on the other foot," I said.

The truth is, I have never cared for sports that take me away from the table. (Besides, I tire easily and tend to black out when I spend an evening licking green stamps.)

But these obstacles were small compared to the prejudice I encountered when I ventured to the tennis courts with my brand new racket.

There is no evidence to sustain this, but I have a feeling new tennis rackets secrete an odor that is detected within a 50-mile radius by experienced tennis players. The moment you appear, men in white shorts hurry toward their cars, women in white tennis dresses sniff the air and mumble something about burning dinner, and even small children playing in their bare feet back off and say, "I think I hear my mother calling."

I found one young man trying to scale the fence and said, "Would you like to play a game?"

"Have you ever played tennis before?" he asked.

"No," I giggled. "What gave me away?"

"Your sweat band. You don't wear it to the armpits."

"But that's where..."

"You wear it around the wrist. Listen, I gotta cut out. Some other time..."

from the courts to their cars. "What am I doing wrong?" I asked.

"First, you don't get a new suit if you hit the ball over the big fence. That's baseball. Next, you don't get an extra point if you hit the drinking fountain. And take the press off your racket when you play."

During the next few weeks, I worked like a demon to shake the new racket stigma — playing with anyone I could trap.

Yesterday, I ambled onto the courts and there was a tired-looking housewife in pedal pushers and a Howard Hughes sweatshirt.

"Have you ever played tennis before?" I asked.

She shook her head. "How can you tell?"

"You don't wear the sweat band around your ankle, dear. I gotta go. I hear the timer on my stove going off..."

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: If you feel a bit low or lazy, it's a reasonable response to present conditions. Don't waste time in explanation. A symbolic gift tells your story much better.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Spend the morning organizing, accumulating materials and gathering strength for action late in the day. Then several diverse movements occur within the same span.
Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Whims include a strong urge to take unnecessary risks with potential resources. The home scene generates influences that make coping with work difficult. Say what you will and won't do.

Salinas Leads By 1

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Junior Salinas of Borger fired his second sub-par round but saw his lead drop to only one stroke over charging Oklahoma State freshman Britt Harrison in second round action of the Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament Sunday at the Pampa Country Club.

Salinas shot 70 for the round after an eight-under-par 63 Saturday. Harrison carded his second consecutive 67 for a 134 total. Allen Carmichael of Texas Tech and Amarillo's John Zett, both shot 70 Sunday and are deadlocked for third place at 137.

The tournament will end today with the championship flight playing 36 holes. Flights 1-11 will play 18 holes. Two-11 have been playing match play but will wind up with a medal play round today.

Harrison had only one birdie on the front side — on No. 1 — but managed birdies on 10 and 12 through 15 on the back enroute to his four-round total. He bogeyed Nos. 7 and 16.

"I played better today than yesterday but I messed up on the last few holes," Harrison said. "I made four birdies in a row and I never was in any bad positions."

Harrison, a tall former Texas State Junior champion out of Beaumont Forrest Park High School, gave away a stroke on the final hole. His drive went into the left rough and his second shot was pulled left of the green. He recovered by chipping to within five feet of the pin but his attempt for a birdie lipped out.

Two more rounds like his first two will win the tourney, Harrison said. "I think two more 67's will win it easy. Whoever wins will shoot 12 or 13 under for the tournament."

One Pampan moved into strong contention while another moved out Sunday. Eddie Duenkel shot 70 for a 138 total, pulling to within five strokes of Salinas. David Parker, however, fell from an opening-round 67 to a 76, giving him 143 for the tourney.

Lubbock's John Farquhar, who has won the tourney three times, was another dropping from contention with a 74 for a 143 total.

At 139 are Ken Bailey of Amarillo, Lynn Blevins of the University of Oklahoma and Ron Jumper of Odessa. Max Hickey of Pampa, Rod Nuckols of Wichita, Kan., and Bunky Preston of Amarillo are at 141.

Tied for 12th place at 142 are defending champion Dick Weston of Miami and Steve Long of Texas Tech.

Weston shot his second consecutive par 71 and has counted himself out as a contender for the championship.

"If I shoot two 67's tomorrow (today), I don't think I can win it but I can get right back in it," Weston said.

"I'm not looking for sympathy or anything else but I cracked my finger and I've had to change my grip from an interlock to an overlap. It's not that big a deal unless you've played with an interlock all your life."

"I've surprised myself — I've hit the ball better than I thought I would."

The cut Sunday was made at 144. Bob Eger of Oklahoma State and Steve Hyde of Amarillo qualified for today's round by virtue of shooting 144 for the two rounds.

Failing to qualify were Ron Leverich of Odessa (145), Jim Bertocino of Phoenix, Ariz. (145), Barry Frost of Amarillo (145), Bob Hudson of Pampa (146), Mark Winstrom of Oklahoma State (146), Jim Simpson of Wichita Falls (147) and Bob Buckley of Oklahoma State (147).

Others not making the cut were Donnie Loerwald of Amarillo (148), Neil Haddock of Texas Tech (149), Dr. Jim Johnston of Amarillo (150), Eddie Jones of Odessa Junior College (151), Tim Avery of Amarillo (153), Sammie Pace of Amarillo (154) and Wayne Prickett of Lubbock (157).

Clint Ferguson of Amarillo leads the first flight with 143 after a 70 Sunday. Dr. J. Foster Elder of Pampa and James Avery of Amarillo are tied for second with 145.

Elder fired a 69 in the first round but tumbled to 76 Sunday.

Flights started teeing off this morning for the final round. The championship flight will begin its final 18 holes at approximately 1 p.m.

Cey Leads LA By NY

Sports Page

Ron Cey may already be looking to next year, but he also may have had a dramatic effect on this year's pennant race.

The 27-year-old third baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, headed for his finest season in his three-year major league career, threw a blazing bat in the way of the New York Mets this weekend and spoiled the club's chances of gaining on the Pittsburgh Pirates in the tough National League East race.

Cey cracked out four homers and drove in six runs in two games over the weekend and led the Dodgers to a pair of victories after the Mets had taken the first two games of the series. Thus, the Mets, whom many consider the favorite to win the NL East because of their pitching, three game series with the Pirates in fourth place, five games behind the division leaders.

Cey, a stocky infielder known as "The Penguin" because of his unusual gait, hit a pair of his two-run homers Saturday night to spark a 7-0 victory then came back Sunday with two solo blasts to pace the Dodgers to a 5-2 triumph.

"All we're interested in during the last month of the season is to play well and adapt ourselves to a positive approach and establish some momentum for next season," said Cey, whose club trails first place Cincinnati by an almost insurmountable 18½ games in the National League West.

Cey's two homers, his 21st and 22nd of the season, and a solo shot by Steve Yeager staked the Dodgers to an early lead Sunday but it took some strong relief pitching by Charlie Hough in the ninth inning to preserve the triumph.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh defeated Houston 9-6. San Francisco nipped Philadelphia 5-4. St. Louis topped Cincinnati 5-3. San Diego blanked Montreal 6-0 and Atlanta downed Chicago 3-1 then lost 9-8 in 10 innings.

Oakland edged Boston 7-6 in 10 innings. Kansas City blanked New York 7-0 and Milwaukee defeated Texas 4-1 in a rain abbreviated American League schedule. Chicago at Baltimore. California at Detroit and Minnesota at Cleveland were all rained out.

Pirates 9, Astros 6
Dave Parker drove in three runs and Bob Robertson knocked in a pair to spark the Pirates to victory over the Astros. Parker and Rennie Stennett had three hits apiece to highlight the Pirates 14-hit attack. Robertson had a homer while Jose Cruz connected for Houston. Pittsburgh increased its lead to four games over Philadelphia and St. Louis in the NL East.

Giants 5, Phillies 4
John Montefusco struck out 13 batters in 8 1-3 innings and also tripled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to pace the Giants' triumph over the Phillies. Montefusco's triple and Von Joshua's run-scoring single gave the Giants a 5-3 lead and San Francisco survived a brief ninth inning Phillies' rally to win. Chris Speier homered for San Francisco.

Cardinals 5, Reds 3
Willie Davis homered in the first inning and singled home another run in the ninth, pacing the Cardinals to victory over the Reds. Rookie Harry Rasmussen, with eighth-inning relief help from John Curtis, gained his fourth victory in six decisions and also drove home a run with an infield out.

Padres 6, Expos 0
Brent Strom tossed a three-hitter and Dave Roberts drove in four runs to lead the Padres past the Expos. Roberts, who has hit in 10 straight games since being recalled from the minors, hit a two-run homer in the first inning and singled home two runs in the sixth. Willie McCovey also homered for San Diego.

Braves 3-8, Cubs 1-9
Phil Niekro scattered eight hits in pitching the Braves to victory in the first game under new manager Connie Ryan, but the Cubs came back to win the nightcap on Jose Cardenal's run-scoring single in the 10th inning.

Richley Tips Fergus in U.S. Amateur

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Winning one golf tournament isn't going to turn Fred Ridley's life around, even if it happens to be the U.S. Amateur championship.

"I love golf, but I don't think I'd care to be a pro," Ridley says.

"It's not that I don't think I can play well enough. I just think I can make more money practicing law."

A first-year law student at Stetson University who used to be the No. 7 man on the golf team at the University of Florida, Ridley withstood a charge by 21-year-old Keith Fergus of the University of Houston to win the 36-hole title match 2 up Sunday.

Ridley, 23, was five up after the morning 18 and six up after winning 19 but Fergus won four straight holes in one stretch in the afternoon and three straight in another to get to the final two holes one down.

That's where his challenge died.

And it died, in large measure, because Sunday the lean, mop-haired blond who has won 13 college tournaments the past two years, was forced to do something he didn't have to do all week.

He had to play the final two holes on the Country Club of Virginia James River course—the 206-yard 17th with its elevated, bunkered and smallish green, and the 457-yard 18th, a hole the members play as a par five, that goes uphill, around a bend and into the wind.

Fergus didn't play those holes all week because he did not have to, getting to the finals without being pushed past the 16th hole—a feat that had not been accomplished since Lawson Little did it in 1934.

Sunday, he played those two holes in six over par after playing 110 holes to reach the finals in only three over.

"I thought I hit a good shot at 17," he said. "I thought the wind would draw it in."

It didn't.

"I thought the shot at 18 (a 4-wood from more than 220 yards) would hold."

It didn't.

A par-par finish would have won the championship for Fergus. A bogey-par or par-bogey finish would have sent it into extra holes. Instead, he finished bogey-double bogey, just as he had in the morning round when he played those two holes for the very first time in competition.

"I hit the best shots I could," he said. "They just didn't turn out good. I have no regrets."

Ridley, who had been 23-over par for his 117 holes through Sunday, shot just 10 birdies during the entire tournament—but six of them came in a 10-hole stretch during the championship round. The first, a 10-footer at No. 7 in the morning, put him ahead to stay.

"I've never won anything to compare to this," said Ridley, who never even qualified to play in the NCAA championship in his college days. "Everything I've ever won before has been kind of incidental."

He's only the third man in a decade to win the U.S. Amateur with no plans to turn pro. Vinny Giles, who is the current British Amateur champ but was upset in his first match of this tournament, won in 1972, and Canadian Gary Cowan won in 1966 and 1971. All the other winners since 1965 have turned pro.

Oakland Knocks Red Sox, 8-6

The Oakland A's have given the experts the perfect statistic for establishing the odds in the likely event that they will meet the Boston Red Sox in the American League playoffs.

The A's finished their season series with the Red Sox Sunday with an 8-6 victory that gave them a 6-5 edge on the season. And 6-5 figures to be the betting odds which the books will establish — with the A's favored, of course.

Reggie Jackson drove in five runs for the A's Sunday, including the decisive pair with a two-run ninth-inning single. But looking ahead to the playoffs, the player most likely to provide the difference between the teams is relief pitcher Rollie Fingers.

Fingers pitched 1 2-3 innings of shutout ball to win his second game in the series and give him 10 wins for the season. The Red Sox appear to have no one to match him coming out of the bullpen and, perhaps significantly, can trace Sunday's defeat directly to their bullpen.

Jackson's game-winning hit came after Boston reliever Diego Segui filled the bases by walking Phil Garner, Claudell Washington and Ray Fosse. Anyone who thinks walking three batters prior to facing Jackson isn't a sure-fire formula to lose can ask Jackson.

Connors Tops Goven

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Labor Day is just that today at the United States Open tennis championships — for the player, that is.

The short workdays of best two-of-three sets are over for the men.

Wimbledon champion Arther Ashe and clay court specialist Eddie Dibbs get the program underway in the morning. Defending champion Jimmy Connors ends the program under the lights against Harold Solomon, who can and has played best-of-five-set matches that have lasted five and six hours.

Connors, supremely confident, closed out his first three matches Sunday with a casual 6-3, 6-1 win over Frenchmen Georges Goven. He has never come close to losing a set and dropped only 12 games thus far in this $300,000 event.

Jimmy, who will celebrate his 23rd birthday Tuesday, was looking forward with amusement to meeting Solomon. He has played some long matches against Solly in their Junior tournament days and in his brief time in college when Solomon played at Rice and Jimmy won the NCAA title as a UCLA freshman.

Lubbock To Feature Ranch Heritage Center

When the shot heard 'round the world was fired in Massachusetts no louder echo reverberated than the one from Texas.

Celebrating that echo July 4, 1976, will be the Ranching Heritage Center, an authentic outdoor ranching museum at Texas Tech University.

It is located in Lubbock, one of the first eight cities in the nation to be named an official Bicentennial City, with the expectation that the Center would have a major role providing "significant evidence of the history and development of the West."

The center, scheduled for completion in July, depicts the history of ranching in America. The formal opening will take place July 3, 4 and 5.

Charlie Schreiner, one of the nation's leaders in the breeding of Longhorn cattle and a founder of the Longhorn Association, will boss a symbolic cattle drive arriving at the Ranching Heritage Center July 3. The herd's arrival will start the celebration.

Schreiner's YO Ranch near Kerrville, stocks Longhorn and exotic game. The drive to the Ranching Heritage Center will be a repeat, similar to Schreiner's famous drive of 1966 from Kerrville to Dodge City, Kan.

Opening day visitors will see the premier of a major theatrical production.

Charles G. Scruggs, editor and vice president of Progressive Farmer magazine and a Texas Tech regent, is general chairman for opening day.

Already there are 16 buildings on the site and four more are expected to be in place by the opening. The only building which did not once serve on a ranch will be an orientation center, providing visitors a glimpse of the broad aspects of ranching history.

At the Center are ranch homes reflecting a century of development, from a log cabin built in South Texas in 1836 to a three-story ranch home built in the Panhandle in 1909.

The Escarbas headquarters of the three-million-acre XIT Ranch has been restored. There is a half-dugout and a two-story dugout, a double log cabin and a box-and-strip house. One house at the center grew from a rock and mud room to a comfortable dwelling. Ranch facilities denote various historical periods. These include a bunkhouse, a meat and milk house, a ranch office, a blacksmith shop, carriage house and even a one-room schoolhouse.

Homes reflect the kinds of shelters frontiersmen built with materials at hand. One is a picket and sotol house, using stalks of a yucca-like plant for walls and sacahuiste grass for thatch. Another is a small fort made of limestone to protect a family living in Indian territory.

Brands and messages burned by cowboys on dugout logs still are readable. Dirt floors, a cranky school house stove, rust on an iron bedstead help visitors see the truth of life as it was lived by pioneer ranchers.

Windmills on the site — an Eclipse, a Walpole and a ground tumbler — first drew water for Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas ranchmen. Two already are restored and the Eclipse furnishes water for the meat and milk house which once served the famous JA Ranch.

The Center is a part of The Museum of Texas Tech University, and its development by the private sector has been the work of the Ranch Headquarters Association, established in 1969 to help locate, move and restore the buildings.

Some famous ranches had no historic buildings but helped financially in the Center's establishment, ranches like the Mallet, the Pitchfork and the Matthews Lambhead. Represented by Center building are the U Lazy S, the Randerbrook - Spade, the Matador, the Masterson JY, and the Long S — names that to cattlemen spell the open range and lots of it.

Biscuits and Boiled Coffee

Bobby Allen, cowboy for the Pitchfork Ranch, stops for a bicuit and coffee on a special visit to the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech University. The chuckwagon is part of the scenery at the center which eventually will be landscaped to conform historically to the structures which have been brought from throughout the state to give visitors an experience of the past. In the background are, left, the Masterson JY Bunkhouse and the Harrell House of Scurry County. Each denotes a different stage in the development of ranching in the American West. The Ranching Heritage Center's official opening is set for July 3, 4 and 5, 1976, as part of America's bicentennial celebration. (Tech photo)

Scientist Puts Hope In 'Recycled Society'

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Dr. Glen T. Seaborg, one of the world's foremost atomic scientists, told 1,250 Kent State University graduates Saturday the future of the world depends upon our ability to create a "recycle society."

Seaborg, Nobel Prize Winner for his discovery of plutonium, was the speaker at the university's 62nd annual summer commencement ceremonies.

Calling himself both an optimist and a realist, Seaborg said, "We will eventually—in a few decades—have to create a 'recycle society', a society in which virtually all materials are reused indefinitely and our virgin resources become primarily the 'make up' materials to account for the amounts lost in use and production."

"All waste and scrap—what are now called secondary materials—will become our major resources and our natural, untapped resources (will become) our backup supplies."

Recognizing the earth's total supply of energy and natural resources represents a "closed system," Seaborg forecast other dramatic changes including the standardization of all parts to simplify repairs.

"Furniture, housewares, appliances and tools... will become multi-functional, modular and designed for easy assembly and disassembly, to be readily moved and set up in a different location," he said.

Seaborg, whose research has led to the discovery of 10 new elements and who served as the head of the Atomic Energy Commission under three presidents, said, "We should see extensive recycling of organic materials from agriculture and forest industries."

"Animal wastes will find many uses as fertilizer, fuel and even feed," he said, noting such programs would mean a better life for all since recycling saves energy.

Floods Kill in Nepal

The Nepalese Red Cross said Saturday it has appealed for international assistance to cope with monsoon floods that have killed more than 100 persons and ruined more than 20,000 acres of crops in the Himalayan kingdom.

In Thailand, government officials said Saturday week-long rains have wiped out villages, stranded thousands of tourists and other travelers and virtually isolated Bangkok from the north and northeastern part of the country.

The Nepal Red Cross said in Katmandu that 105 flood-caused deaths have been reported in Nepal so far. It said the death toll was expected to rise.

The Red Cross said the zones of Janakpur and Naranyi on the border with India were the worst affected by the rains, but the situation was worsening throughout the country.

It said some 3,200 houses have washed away and 20,500 acres of cropland has been destroyed.

The Thai government said in Bangkok that all rail and road traffic has stopped between the capital and the northern hill resort at Chiang Mai about 350 miles away. It said an 18-mile section of railroad track had been submerged.

Thai officials said communications problems had held up casualty and damage reports. Meteorologists said heavier flooding was expected.

Scott Joplin Wrote Marches, Waltzes, Too

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
United Press International

Scott Joplin is remembered as a great ragtime music composer, but he also wrote marches and waltzes.

Six Joplin marches and five waltzes may be heard on "Scott Joplin: The Complete Works for Piano" by Dick Hyman, a five-LP album (RCA CRLS-1106).

Joplin's waltzes were much better than his marches, which seemed to drag, possibly because this composer insisted on his music being played slow. The fine texture of the waltzes indicate Joplin might have gained renown as a composer of symphonies and concertos.

The side devoted to the marches is notable because it contains "School of Ragtime," a musical narration by Eubie Blake, now in his 90s, who knew Joplin and played with him before becoming a musical luminary in his own right.

The album covers the period from 1899 through 1917, the year Joplin died in a mental institution after a years-long and fruitless effort to get his opera, "Treemonisha," staged.

Hyman, a musician's musician, is the logical pianist for such a major production. He follows the Joplin score faithfully and though the rags are slow they never drag and a patient fan can listen to all 10 sides without becoming tired or bored.

However, it is suggested that the listener first play sides one and two to get the flavor of the music and then listen to the marches and waltzes. Hyman devotes the 10th side to his own improvisations of Joplin's music.

This is a monument to a man who was often misunderstood in his lifetime and gained recognition as a giant almost 60 years after his death. It is also a major addition to the already impressive library of recordings by Dick Hyman.

If you are over 30, on the sentimental side and have been worrying about whatever became of John Garry, stop wondering.

Garry is still very much an important part of the pop musical scene. His latest album, "Constantly," (Kama Sutra KSBS 2606) will further endear him to those who remember him as a sensation of the 60s, and it should gain him fans in the current generation, especially among those who have been weaned away from rock.

Garry's voice is almost unchanged from the past. There are some deeper tones, but generally the notes are clear and crisp.

In this selection, Gary favors "Sweet Caroline," "You Are The Sunshine of My Life," "And I Love You So," and "The Way We Were." He includes two of his own compositions, "Constantly" and "We're Getting There."

"Is It Something I Said?" by Richard Pryor (Reprise MS 2227) isn't for children, and it can't be played on your favorite disc jockey's show. It is loaded with those four-letter words that were verboten on records until the new wave of permissiveness washed ashore not so long ago. But if you like black humor, this monologue delivered at the Latin Casino in Cherry Hill, N.J., is full of laughs.

EXHIBITION
BAKEWELL, England (UPI) — The Duchess of Devonshire has created a farming exhibition for visitors to Chatsworth, one of Britain's most imposing stately homes. Chatsworth, built in the late 17th century near Bakewell, 153 miles northwest of London, for the first Duke of Devonshire, already has a forestry section and nearby woodland walk.

RECAPTURE TOWNS
MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A military official said today government forces had recaptured two villages occupied by Moslem rebels in fighting last week in which more than 30 persons were reported killed. Brig Gen. Mario S. Espina, zone commander in the troubled Mindanao-Sulu region, told newsmen the rebels occupied two villages in the town of Wao, 45 miles south of Manila, for 24 to 30 hours.

Mother Cares

A first day of school can be the first day away from mother. It is a trying experience for both, educators say. They suggest listing and reading to a child exposed to school for the first time.

Parents Can Help Tots Adjust to First School

Copley News Service

Starting school can be a traumatic experience for a child.

How can a parent help make it less so?

Professional educators advise that the most important thing a parent can do is to read to their children — and to listen to them. It will go a long way toward helping them make the adjustments that will be necessary in the days ahead.

Teachers are conscious that they cannot satisfy the individual needs of 30 or more boys and girls in a class, but they believe parents can play an important role.

They say the average dialogue between a parent and a child on its return from school goes something like this:

"What did you do today?"

Answer: "Nothing."

This is a major understatement the teachers point out.

Instead, they say, parents should take trouble to learn how to question youngsters, to get them to act out what happened in school, to ask them what fun things happened.

The first day in school is particularly tough on the kindergarten-age tot of 5 or under.

One way of making it easier for the child to cope with this entirely new experience is for a parent to take it to the school for an advance look at the classroom, to show the youngster what the room looks like and how to get to and from home.

All the same, it is difficult for the average child to visualize that first day at school.

"They cry and fret," said one teacher. "It is quite a scene. The children are not malicious, just confused." Having at least two adults in the kindergarten classroom tends to give a child a better sense of security and therefore helps toward its adjustment.

Some principals, following the theory that two heads are better than one, team children in order to lessen the possibility that one or both will be lost.

Guest stars for the new "Ellery Queen" series include Don Ameche, Anne Francis, Jack Kelly, Ida Lupino and Craig Stevens.

Mainly About Wheeler

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Walsler and daughters returned home Sunday from a week in Colorado, Wyoming with Clay's sister and her husband.

The annual R.O. and Mary Annie Johnson reunion will be in Wheeler on Sept. 7 at the American Legion building hosted by the four sons, Albert Johnson of Kelton, W.H. Johnson of Friona, John Johnson of Muleshoe and Walter Johnson of Springdale, Ark., and the five daughters, Exer Murchinson of Shamrock, Anne Robertson of Springdale, Ark., Ola Cooper of Optima, Okla., Lorene Tucker of Shamrock, and Maryemma Hamilton of Snyder. Okla. Friends and relatives are invited.

Visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Davidson were the Rev. and Mrs. Lee W. Davidson and Lamar of Florida, Miss Susan Davidson of California, and Mrs. Mildred Davidson of Shamrock.

Word has been received of the death of Boone Horne, former teacher in the Kelton Public School. Mr. Horne, 72, was living in Big Spring at the time of his death. He was married to the former Sybil Fuller. She along with two daughters, five grandchildren, one sister and one brother survive. John Clifton Randall and Miss Carla Monroe were married Aug. 9 of Boulder Colo., at Saint Aidan's Episcopal Church in Boulder, Colo. Randall is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ed Randall and the late Mrs. Cliffrine Randall of Gunnison, Colo. and the grandson of Mrs. Irene Sivage.

Tommy Hickman of Hayes, S.D., flew his private plane down and picked up Mr. and Mrs. Nig Clark who accompanied him home for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Walsler and Ina May Anglin spent the weekend in Ceta Canyon attending the annual Walsler Reunion.

Harold F. Sivage who has been a resident of the Abraham Rest Home in Canadian has moved to the Golden Spread Rest Home in Shamrock. Another Wheeler resident there is Mrs. Faye Patterson. Some of those visiting at the rest home Sunday were Mr. Milton Liles, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Burrell, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Abernathy and Mrs. Rena Sivage.

Ford Rejects Fed Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford wants to limit pay raises for five million federal employees — from five percent to 3 percent — as an example of inflation-fighting.

Labor leaders reacted bitterly to Ford's announcement Friday that he rejected recommendations for an 8.66 per cent raise for white collar civil servants and approved only a 5 per cent raise effective Oct. 1.

Congress — whose members' own pay raises are involved — can overrule Ford and opt for the higher raise by majority vote of either house within one month, and judging by initial labor reactions there will be some pressure to do so.

"This is a cruel Labor Day present for federal workers," said AFL-CIO President George Meany.

"It is grossly unfair for the President to say federal employees must sacrifice while his administration's food and energy policies are forcing up the prices of everything they must buy."

President Mason Wolkorn of the National Federation of Federal Employees called it "clearly unconscionable" to "compel this small segment of America's working people to bear the entire brunt of our present economic woes."

President W. Howard McClelland of the Public Employee Department, AFL-CIO, called Ford's decision another example of his "callous economic strategy."

At issue is an annual cost-of-living pay raise for white collar civil servants, including cabinet officers, Congressmen and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, which is supposed to match the national average of recent white collar pay raises in private industry.

Three Tragedies in One Day

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Three tragedies within 24 hours claimed nine lives and dampened the normally festive mood of this vacation town entering the Labor Day holiday weekend.

"There's no question this is the most taxing 24-hour period — and the saddest — we've had in the 80-year history of this hospital," said Ray Smith, director of information services for Niagara Falls Memorial Medical Center.

Smith talked about a period that began Friday morning when a three-alarm, $115,000 fire swept through an apartment complex, killing Darrell L. Cooper, 3, and injuring five other persons.

About 45 other occupants of the three-story complex were rescued by firemen, officials said.

Smith said that "just as that calmed down," initial reports came in that an experimental raft carrying 29 persons had overturned in the Niagara River, near the whirlpool below the famed falls.

The hospital activated its disaster procedure at that point, Smith said. By nightfall, three persons were dead and another 20 had been treated for injuries suffered in the mishap, Smith said.

Police identified the victims of the city's second major tragedy during the 24-hour period as Anthony Sawczyk, 23, of Niagara Falls, and David O.

Ross, 37, and Julia Martinez, both of Toronto.

Smith said he had been home for about half an hour when he received a telephone call that five workmen were trapped in a sewer tunnel construction cave-in.

"It was totally unbelievable," he said. "I thought it was a cruel hoax."

Ten hours later, rescue workers found the five men dead under a wall of water and mud. Police said water 50 feet deep had to be pumped from the tunnel and sandbags placed at one end to keep out more water.

Rescue workers wearing oxygen tanks and masks were lowered into the tunnel to recover the bodies of Waymon D. Owens, 60, of Philadelphia, superintendent of the project; Floyd R. Wilcox, 42, of Ransomville, N.Y.; and Steven Hill, 25, Joseph Dellavalle, 46, and Robert Frank, 47, all of Niagara Falls.

The men were part of a D-Mambro and Majestic Construction Co. night crew working on the city's $64-million sewage treatment installation.

Graham's Wife Cleared

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — The wife of evangelist Billy Graham has been cleared of an assault charge filed by a demonstrator whose protest sign she took away at a speech by President Ford.

Mrs. Ruth Bell Graham, 54, said following her acquittal Friday she would do the same thing if the situation arose.

The demonstrator, Daniel L. Pollock charged Mrs. Graham with assault and battery because she jerked a protest sign from him during a visit by the President to the Mecklenburg bicentennial celebration May 20.

Oklahoma Group Pushes 'Askev for President'

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A movement to draft Florida Gov. Reubin Askew for president is being organized in Oklahoma. Askew's native state.

Robert Rutland, Virginia University history professor and former Oklahoma newspaperman, said Thursday he is touring Oklahoma to seek support for a "Draft Askew" drive.

Another Oklahoman, former Sen. Fred Harris, has announced for the Democratic nomination.

Askew, who was born in Muskogee, Okla., has said he is not a candidate, but Rutland counters that doesn't mean he would not accept a draft.

"Adlai Stevenson said the same thing in 1951 and down to the week before the 1952 Democratic convention," Rutland said.

"Voters will learn more about Askew in the next five months, and by next April he will be third or fourth in the polls," Rutland predicted. "Then, watch out."

"I'll be talking mostly with party leaders," Rutland said of his Oklahoma visit.

Rutland visited Gov. David Boren's office Thursday and said he hoped to see the governor on his return from Washington. He also planned to talk with Democratic State Chairman Rob Funston, Broken Arrow, and Mrs. Lorry Dyson, Guthrie, party co-chairman.

Rutland said he opened a "Draft Askew" movement in Charlottesville, Va., last month through a mail and advertising campaign. He said he has received responses from 19 states and a steady flow of pro Askew mail.

"A strong 'Volunteers for Askew' club is being organized in California," he said.

"A draft movement for Askew makes sense," Rutland said. "None of the announced candidates are exciting voters, and the enormous sums of money they are spending stamps their campaigns with a Madison-Avenue label."

Rutland said Askew's record in Florida is "a good antidote to the Watergate mess." "He has cleaned up the statehouse and held down their taxes," Rutland said. "They still don't have a personal income tax there, thanks to Askew's sound financial program."

"Florida also has had no crisis over school busing, mainly owing to Askew's firmness in saying the law must be upheld," Rutland said. "Askew's handling of the busing crisis showed he had the common sense and integrity so long missing from the national scene."

Rutland, a former United Press reporter in Oklahoma City and native of Okmulgee, Okla., says he is running a "low key, low budget" campaign.

"But only $21,000 was spent on the 'Draft Stevenson' movement in 1951-52," he said.
