

No Conspiracy Linked To Murder Attempt

By RONALD COHEN and RICHARD E. LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — From four rows deep in a welcoming crowd, a tall young woman held her daughter across the heads of people in front to shake hands with the President of the United States.

Gerald Ford, smiling and eager, stretched across a restraining fence to touch the child with one hand while grasping at other well-wishers closer to him.

In that moment — as in countless others — the President was making the personal contact he values so highly in trying to reach out to Americans.

But in such moments, not even the best efforts by Secret Service agents can protect him entirely.

And hours later, only a mixture of good fortune and bungling by another young woman — this one reaching out with a gun — saved the President's life.

The first scene at Boeing Field in Seattle and the second in Sacramento were wholly different but equally simple and so typical of the potential risks inherent in Ford's totally open style of campaigning. The question left in the wake of the attempt on his life is whether Ford can and will change that style.

Despite Friday's close call, Ford said the incident "in no way will prevent me or preclude me from contacting the American people as I travel from one state to another."

He then passed up his first two opportunities to prove it by waving from a distance instead of plunging into large crowds cheering him as he left a Sacramento hotel and McClellan Air Force Base to fly home.

"We had a great trip — just a fraction of a second or two that disturbed things — but everything else was superb," Ford said as he arrived at the White House. "I don't know why all the bother."

But several White House aides predicted Ford would temper his campaign style for a while — much like a driver slowly regaining confidence after an automobile accident.

Lynette Alice Fromme came into Ford's life shortly before he was to deliver the last of eight speeches in a grueling West Coast trip through three states in less than 24 hours. Ironically, she appeared in a crowd as Ford was making his way on foot to the California Capitol to call anew for mandatory prison sentences for crimes committed with a dangerous weapon.

It was a sunny, hot California morning as Ford walked a curving tree-lined roadway. The crowd of several thousand was enthusiastic. The President responded, shaking hands and exchanging pleasantries with hundreds of them.

Suddenly, he was face to face with Miss Fromme, petite red-haired daughter of a Southern California electronics engineer and long-time follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson.

She drew a deadly black .45 caliber Colt automatic pistol from her large red purse, aimed it point-blank at Ford's chest, and chaos erupted.

Ford saw the gun and ducked as Secret Service agents shoved him aside. In the same instant, the hands of agent Larry Buendorf flashed forward, grabbed the woman's arms, twisted them up and over her head and wrestled the weapon away.

As Ford, his face ashen, was rushed to the safety of the Capitol less than 75 yards away, Miss Fromme could be heard yelling: "It didn't go off, can you believe it? It didn't go off!"

Authorities said four bullets were in the automatic clip but none were in the firing chamber. A .45 must be activated manually to bring the first bullet into the chamber and it appeared that Ford's assailant simply botched a perfect chance to assassinate the President.

No evidence of a conspiracy to kill President Ford exists, a U.S. attorney said Saturday of the assassination attempt by a woman worshiper of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson.

The suspect, 27, was held under $1 million bail on a charge of attempted murder of the President.

Investigators said she apparently pulled the pistol from a holster strapped to her right leg on the outside of her calf under a flowing red robe.

"There is no evidence at this time indicating a conspiracy in this particular attempt," U.S. Attorney D. Dwayne Keyes said at a Sacramento news conference.

Keyes said the .45-caliber automatic carried by Miss Fromme had not been stolen. He said the owner, a man whom he would not identify, knew Fromme had the gun.

He said Ford would not be required to attend Miss Fromme's trial, which he said probably will be held in four to six months. There were no plans to have Manson appear before the grand jury which will hear the case next week.

Some critics questioned why Miss Fromme got within an arm's length of the President with a pistol despite a long police record.

"Law enforcement officials can't take any credit for the miraculous fact that the President is still alive," said Vincent Bugliosi, the man who prosecuted Manson for the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in Los Angeles in 1971.

Perhaps nobody was more surprised by the episode than Ford.

His associates said later the President naturally always knew such a thing could happen, but because he was so comfortable with large crowds and so eager to please them he tended to forget the possibility anybody would want to hurt him.

Moreover, the President is said to feel that he campaigns better in the informal settings of airports and city streets than behind a lectern with a prepared speech — reflecting his 25-year career as a congressman from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Some aides said Ford was so quick to downgrade the seriousness of the Sacramento incident because he wanted to maintain his style.

But the same aides acknowledged that the assassination attempt brought home with dramatic impact the limitations of the Secret Service and they wondered whether Ford could ever really return to the carefree manner he had before his brush with death.

It was close to midnight Thursday in Sacramento and Ford was visibly weary from a 20-hour day that brought him across the country for Republican campaign appearances in Seattle and Portland, Ore.

But he shrugged off his fatigue and walked over to greet a crowd of about 300 well-wishers waiting outside the Senator Hotel where he would spend the night.

As a mariachi band played loudly, he spent 10 minutes shaking one hand after another. It was vintage Ford.

As he watched, Ford's longtime friend and political adviser Robert Hartmann scratched his head in amazement.

"The man's just not human," he said.

FBI Had Oswald Threat

DALLAS (UPI) — A secret note delivered to the FBI from accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald threatened to bomb the police and the FBI offices, the Dallas Time Herald reported in its Sunday edition.

The copyrighted story by publisher Tom Johnson said sources confirmed FBI secretary Nancy Fenner was the first person to see the note and that she believed it contained a bomb threat.

The paper said Mrs. Fenner refused to comment on the report.

A week ago the Times Herald announced in another copyrighted story, the existence of the note to the FBI and said the paper's questions in connection with the case had instigated an internal FBI investigation.

FBI internal investigators, including FBI chief of the inspection division, Harold Bassett, have received other versions of the note's contents, the sources said. Bassett personally is heading the Dallas investigation of the Oswald note, its contents, its reported destruction, and of the agents who saw or knew of the note.

The newspaper said Mrs. Fenner received the note from Oswald when he went to see agent James P. Hosty several days before the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination of President John Kennedy.

Sources said Hosty was not in at the time and Oswald left the note with Mrs. Fenner. The note allegedly said Oswald would use violence unless Hosty ceased efforts to interview Oswald's wife, Marina. Among FBI personnel interviewed in recent days, there are variances in memory about the note's actual contents.

The paper said some agents believed there was no threat in the letter, others said it was a non-specific threat and still others confirmed Mrs. Fenner's version.

"One indicated if Hosty wanted to know anything, he should come to Oswald rather than his wife, Marina," a source said. "He wanted Hosty to leave Marina alone, to stop interviewing her."

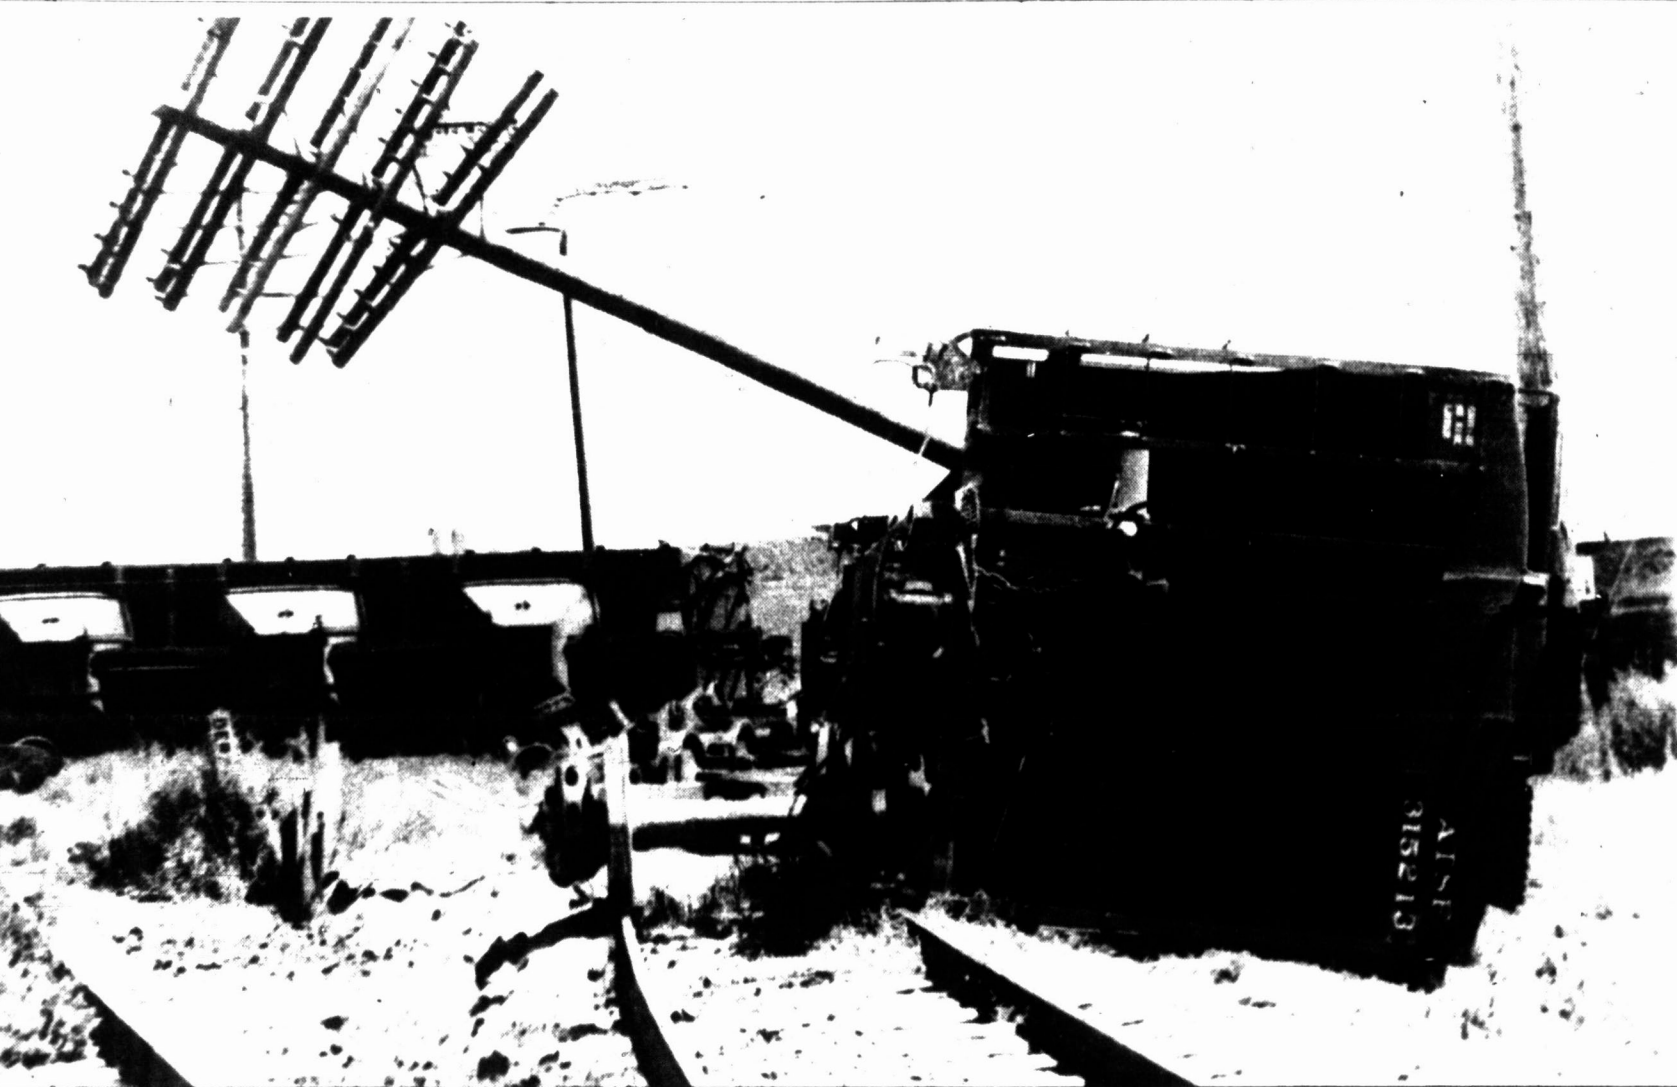

The Times Herald said it learned at least six other agents and another clerk in the Dallas office knew of the note. The paper said publication of their names was being withheld until it could determine which agent actually saw the note.

Several FBI employees who reportedly saw the letter, as well as those who were told about it, have been questioned by Bassett and other investigators. Many of the interviews have been under oath.

The FBI said various statements must be evaluated before a determination is reached on the note's actual contents and reasons for destruction.

On Aug. 31, FBI Director Clarence Kelley confirmed that Oswald personally delivered the letter to the Dallas office shortly before the Kennedy assassination.

Kelley also confirmed the letter was destroyed by the FBI. The FBI statement said Kennedy apparently was not mentioned in the Oswald letter and that it did not warn of the assassination attempt.

Earthquake Kills in Turkey

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (UPI) — A rumbling earthquake collapsed homes, schools and mosques in mountainous southeastern Turkey Saturday, claiming an estimated 1,300 victims in the tremor-prone area's worst disaster since 1966. Government officials in Lice, a town of 9,000 inhabitants 45 miles north of Diyarbakir, said rescuers recovered at least 800 bodies from collapsed buildings. Diyarbakir Province Governor Nazim Kemal Diniz told newsmen several hundred houses collapsed in villages around Diyarbakir, located near the Syrian border, and intermittent after-shocks were hampering rescue efforts.

Teams of army and civilian rescue workers pulled bodies and survivors from the rubble, mostly the remains of modest two-story mud and brick peasant dwellings. As darkness set in, rescue operations were called off until dawn Sunday.

"Almost all government buildings, four mosques and the high school are destroyed," a government official in Lice said. "Looking at the scene, I presume 75 per cent of the town's houses have been leveled."

Turkish national radio said reports from mountain villages around Lice have put the total death toll in this area at 1,300. "Both radio and television stations began broadcasting programs of mourning."

Officials said the quake, on the first day of the Moslem fast of Ramadan, also rumbled through the provinces of Urfa, Maras, Gaziantep, Hakkari, Adana, Van, Kayseri, Erzurum and Erzurum, in the foothills and mountains of the massive Taurus chain in Southern and Eastern Turkey.

Several army helicopters dropped tents, medicine kits and blankets to victims and ferried survivors to hospitals in Diyarbakir.

In Ankara, Premier Suleyman Demirel and Gen. Semih Sancar, the armed forces chief of staff, said they would fly to Diyarbakir Sunday.

The earthquake was the region's worst since a late night shock Aug. 19, 1966 killed 2,529 persons. On March 28, 1970, another quake killed 1,066 persons in western Turkey.

The Seismological Institute at Uppsala, Sweden, measured Saturday's tremor at 6.8 on the Richter scale. A 7-point reading is "severe."

It struck at 20 minutes past noon (6:20 a.m. EDT). Some farm laborers may have still been in the relative safety of fields at the time but government officials said most people were probably having lunch at home or praying in the mosques.

The governor of Diyarbakir, Nazim Kemal Diniz, said intermittent aftershocks were hampering the efforts of rescue teams airlifted to the disaster area. He said several hundred mud and brick houses had collapsed in villages near Diyarbakir.

Officials said Diyarbakir, Lice and Hazro were the hardest hit inhabited areas. The tremor also rocked the provinces of Urfa, Maras, Gaziantep, Hakkari, Adana, Van, Kayseri, Erzurum and Erzurum. The last serious earthquake in eastern Turkey caused 2,529 deaths on the night of Aug. 19, 1966.

It was eastern Turkey's worst earthquake since August 19, 1966, when 2,529 persons died in a strong tremor that struck late at night.

Troops Arrest Busing Rioters

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Police, reinforced by 800 National Guard troops Saturday, herded some 75 arrested protesters aboard the symbol of their fury—yellow school buses—to break up a banned march in this riot-torn city.

The arrests followed a night of escalating violence in which police clashed near three suburban high schools with more than 10,000 rock-throwing, fire-setting demonstrators, venting their anger over the nation's largest new racial school busing program here.

Gov. Julian Carroll, responding to local appeals for help, called out the guardsmen early Saturday from two Louisville-area units to help cope with demonstrators rioting over court-ordered busing of 22,000 students.

Saturday's arrests raised the total of persons taken into custody since the busing program began Thursday morning to more than 300, including 192 in the disorders Friday night and Saturday morning. More than 50 persons, including 15 policemen, were injured.

Anti-busing demonstrators, including the state leader of the Ku Klux Klan, were loaded onto two school buses and driven to a special booking and arraignment center. Reporters at the scene said they were arrested as soon as they arrived at the area where protesters planned to assemble for a downtown march.

Mayor Harvey I. Sloane announced early Saturday a city ban against demonstrations and parades "until further notice."

"We cannot and will not allow this disruption and disorder to continue," he said. "I want to be completely assured of the tranquility of this community."

He also said he wanted to assure black parents that their children would be protected from harm in riding school buses.

School buses carrying black youngsters home from suburban Fairdale High School were pelted with rocks and other objects by white demonstrators

Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Local officials, believing that drinking may have fueled the violence Friday night, said they had obtained a pledge from the tavern operators association to voluntarily close bars and other liquor establishments at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Concerning the disorders Friday night, Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach said, "we had intended to turn the other cheek again, again and again, but there is a limit to how much you can tolerate."

Hollenbach, the county's chief executive officer, said, however, that he did not plan to impose a ban against demonstrators in the suburban county area as long as they remained peaceful and orderly.

School officials announced Saturday afternoon that all high school football games and other extracurricular activities scheduled Saturday night had been postponed.

County Police Chief Russell McDaniel said violence reached its peak shortly before midnight Friday when more than 10,000 rioters went on a rampage near Valley, Southern and Fairdale high schools in southern and southwestern Jefferson County.

He said an unruly crowd numbering more than 8,000 gathered in the vicinity of Valley High School.

"We tried to move them off, met much resistance and had to call for assistance from state troopers," McDaniel said. "We saturated the area with tear gas. They couldn't fight the tear gas and we regained control."

Near Southern High School, another 1,000 protesters started bonfires in the streets and set two school buses on fire, while a vacant house was burned to the ground by a smaller group of demonstrators near Fairdale High School.

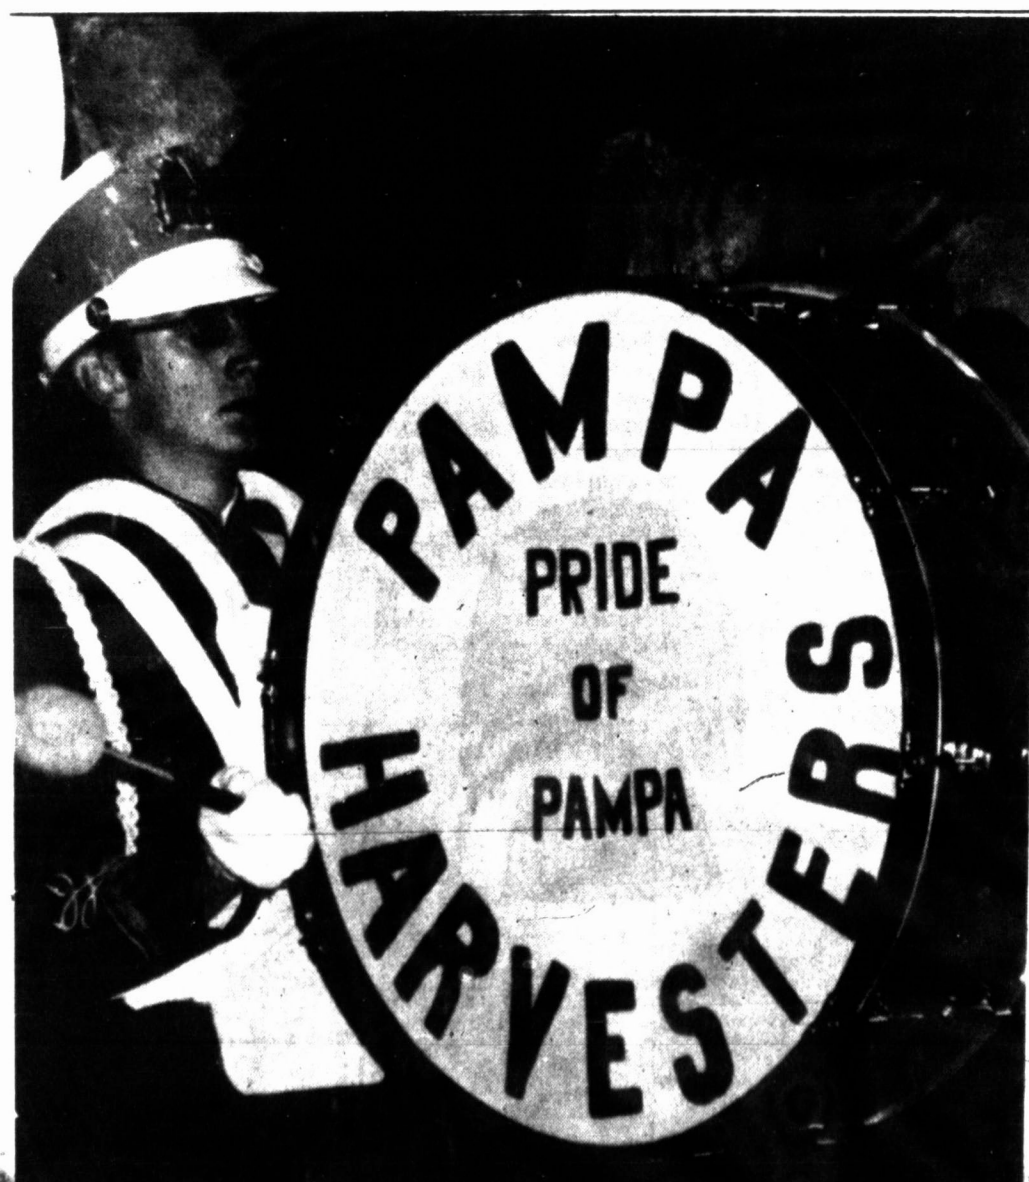

"The whole series of incidents appeared to be organized," said Louisville Safety Director Allen Bryan.

Before the fresh outbreak of violence, Jefferson County school administrators said they were pleased with an apparent rising trend in student attendance Friday over the opening day of school Thursday.

While attendance rose 12 per cent to a total of 68,650 students, the absenteeism rate still was an estimated 44 per cent of the revised projected total enrollment of 118,286 for the system's 165 schools.

Won't Seek Reelection

DA Predicts Regional Jails

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

District Attorney Guy Hardin of Shamrock Friday reaffirmed an earlier statement that he will not seek re-election in 1976.

His term expires Jan. 1, 1977, and he will have served the 31st District eight years.

The work in this five county area is never-ending, and Gray County alone has about 60 cases now pending, Hardin said.

Hardin's application for an assistant district attorney was ranked 33rd in priority by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. He had asked for not more than $15,500 for funding the position.

"Frankly I'm tired of public office. I do not believe in making public office a lifetime career," he said.

Hardin is a graduate of Baylor Law School in Waco. He enrolled in law school to prepare himself for work with the Federal Bureau of Investigation — not to practice law.

He has been in law practice at Shamrock for 26 years.

Speculating on the future,

Hardin says within the next 10 years there will be regional jails rather than county jails.

"And most towns will be without a hospital," he added, referring to the doctor shortage which exists in practically every city in the nation, including Pampa.

Hardin blames government intervention for a lot of the existing problems of today.

"I was reared on a farm, and one of the main things that sticks in my memory is when the government slaughtered the cattle and wouldn't let hungry people have them to eat," he remembered.

"That's stuck with me through the years. They paid my father $96 for 12 cows — $8 a head."

Hardin will represent the state in a criminal case which begins at 1:15 p.m. Monday in the 31st District Court here. A total of 110 Gray County residents are scheduled to report for possible jury duty.

Fourteen cases are set for trial during the week of Sept. 15. In addition that 17 indictments were returned about a week ago and those named are scheduled for trial as soon as possible.

Trials are set for persons charged with robbery, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, burglaries, forgeries, driving while intoxicated, second offense and drug related cases.

The 31st District which Hardins serves includes Hemphill, Gray, Lipscomb, Wheeler and Roberts counties with an estimated 50,000 population.

Million Dollar Bond Set For Would-be Assassin

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Law officers Saturday questioned Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, to find out how she got within an arm's length of President Ford with a .45 automatic in her hand despite a long police record.

"Law enforcement officials can't take any credit for the miraculous fact that the President is still alive," said Vincent Bugliosi, the man who prosecuted mass murderer Charles Manson for the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in Los Angeles in 1971.

Miss Fromme, was held in city jail under $1 million bond, charged with attempted assassination of the President. A federal grand jury will take up her case Wednesday.

"It is absolutely incredible and inexcusable that someone with her background would be permitted to get within two feet of the President," Bugliosi said.

He and other critics claimed Miss Fromme should have been kept away from Ford during his California visit Friday because of her police record and role as chief cheerleader for Manson's cause while he is in San Quentin.

State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger said he doesn't know if law enforcement agencies "slipped up" but "I'm going to find out."

Lawmen knew a lot about Lynette Fromme, who as a 16-year-old was kicked out of her Santa Monica, Calif., home by her father and then hooked up with Manson, now 41, as the first convert in his "family" that was responsible for at least nine murders and other crimes.

She now is 27 and police had kept her cheap attic flat under surveillance for at least two years. She had sent threatening letters to newspapers and radio stations. And she was charged three years ago in a double slaying but went free for lack of evidence.

It was only two months ago that Miss Fromme made a veiled threat to Ford.

She mailed letters to reporters and they gave an indication of the thoughts behind her forehead, which still bears a slightly scarlet scar of an "X" which she gouged in her flesh during the Manson trial "to show we've been crossed out of society."

"If Nixon's reality wearing a new Ford face continues to run the country against the law, our homes will be bloodier than the Tate-La Bianca houses and My Lai put together," she said in one letter. "Children will come running through your bedrooms with butcher knives."

Despite criticism that the Secret Service and other law officers failed to mark Miss Fromme as a potential threat to the President and keep her away from him, one agent who performed heroically was Larry Buendorf, an ex-Navy pilot who joined the Secret Service five years ago.

The 106-pound daughter of an aeronautical engineer was arraigned in five minutes Friday and the million-dollar bail was set because federal authorities said they feared she would flee if released pending trial.

Backers Believe Reagan Will Challenge Ford

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said Saturday he believes Ronald Reagan has made up his mind to challenge President Ford for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination and will reveal his decision within the next few weeks.

Laxalt said in an interview that the former California governor left little doubt during two days of strategy talks last week that he has decided to declare his candidacy and challenge Ford head-on in the GOP primaries.

Laxalt is chairman of the Reagan for President Committee formed with Reagan's permission to seek out support for the GOP conservative.

He disclosed that Reagan has given the go-ahead for the committee to begin a nationwide polling effort to measure voter attitudes on the issues.

"His whole attitude, his whole demeanor," Laxalt said, "was that of a man who has made a decision and feels he can make a distinct contribution in the campaign."

Asked if he came away from the meeting convinced that Reagan has decided to run, Laxalt said: "Yes, I think he has."

"In my judgment he is totally turned on and ready to go," he said. "He looked like a candidate ready to wage battle. The meeting moved him to the brink of a declaration of candidacy."

"I think we can safely say that the decision will be made (known) within the next few weeks."

But he said no specific date has been set for Reagan to publicly announce his decision to run.

Laxalt met with Reagan in Los Angeles last week with John Sears, Richard Nixon's chief delegate hunter in 1968, and the committee's director.

He said he reported to Reagan that "the party structure is substantially in Ford's corner which we expected. But we also found there is strong grassroots support for Reagan." Initial fundraising mailings have proven "highly successful," revealing a broad base of small contributor support, he said.

Promotes Mileage Boost

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris says the administration should require auto makers to boost the mileage of their cars instead of taking controls off of oil and gas prices.

Harris, speaking Friday night at the University of New Mexico Law School, said President Ford's position on gasoline prices "ought to be sufficient to turn him out of office."

"We ought to be saying to the automotive industry that it cannot produce cars that cannot attain at least 22 miles per gallon," he said. "Instead, President Ford is urging the deregulation of prices of oil and gas that will result in increased costs to the consumer."

Joseph P. Segal Joins Lovett Library Staff

Lovett Memorial Library has added a second professional librarian, Joseph P. Segal, to its staff, according to Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, library director.

Segal, who comes to Pampa from the Fort Worth Major Resource System, received his B.A. in English from Wesleyan University, Connecticut, and an M.S. in library science from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. He has worked in public libraries in Vicksburg, Miss.; San Antonio, and Fort Worth.

Segal called Lovett Library best and most progressive, in building, staff, and collection he's seen in libraries of its size. "I see a large part of this as due to the excellent support the library gets from city government, and from the public. This is a very library-minded town, and that interest and affection gleams from every corner of this library."

"Librarianship is no longer 'woman's work', just as medicine and law enforcement are ceasing to be 'men's work'. I became a librarian for the same reason any good librarian does: I love books. I enjoy people, and I'm an incurable matchmaker

Commissioners To Talk Flood Insurance Again

The federal government's National Flood Insurance Program will come back into focus at Tuesday's regular meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

One of the items listed on the agenda states the commission will "hear a request in regard to the City's participation" in the program.

Commissioners had taken no action on joining the flood insurance plan, following questions concerning inclusion of certain areas within the federally-established flood prone boundaries in Pampa.

A written request for further information, sent July 23, to the Flood Insurance Office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, went unanswered and the commission took no further action.

Within the past week, the Federal Insurance Administration and the Insurance Counselors Association of Texas both have urged Pampa's reconsideration to participate in the program.

Without the insurance program, it has been pointed out by federal officials, Pampa property owners would not be eligible of FHA and VA construction loans.

Another top item on the Tuesday agenda will be first reading of an ordinance setting rate increases to take effect Oct. 1 on municipal services including water, sanitation collection and sewer charges.

Commissioner also will take action on first reading of ordinances adopting the municipal budget and setting the tax rate for fiscal 1975-76.

Tuesday's meeting will open with a public hearing on the proposed removal of abandoned buildings at 530 - 36 N. Warren and 703 S. Ballard.

Other matters scheduled for consideration include:

- First reading of an ordinance providing for a special use permit on Lots 5 and 6 in the Hillcrest Sub-Division.
- Second and final reading of an ordinance annexing a portion of North Crest Addition to the City of Pampa.
- Setting Oct. 14 for a public hearing on a zoning change from Agricultural to Single Family - 2 on a portion of the Northcrest Addition.

Second and final reading of an ordinance regulating burglar alarms within the City of Pampa.

Request of Yellow Cab Co. for a change of business location.

An emergency measure to purchase a 4-door sedan for the city police department.

Release of a paving lien in regard to Lot 6, Block 1 of the Simonton Sub-Division.

Routine salary changes for August and payment of current accounts due.

Hightower To Support Mideast Peace Pact

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News' Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, said last week that his "initial feeling" is to support the Ford Administration in the recently announced U.S. - negotiated agreement between Israel and Egypt.

However, Hightower added that he was "cautiously" viewed the key elements of the accord — placement of 200 American technicians in the Sinai desert to monitor troop movement. "The technicians are something we are going to have to look at very carefully," Hightower, a first term congressman, said. "It may be in the national interest to do so."

Besides placement of American personnel in the Middle East, the accord reached by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger after his latest round of shuttle diplomacy calls for nearly $3 million in U.S. aid for Israel and Egypt.

Texas' two senators also have adopted Hightower's cautious approach to the Middle East question.

A spokesman for Senator John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, said the senator generally supports the agreement, including assignment of technicians in the Sinai if that "in fact is the only way."

A spokesman for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Houston, said that while the senator has some reservations regarding the role of technicians, he "is inclined to support" the pact.

Ford Talks Energy, Gun Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford told some Democratic senators Saturday what it was like to face the gun. "He gave the Democratic senators a very brief synopsis of the episode, almost a replay of his remarks yesterday," press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters after Ford met a Senate delegation in the White House.

The meeting was supposed to focus on an energy policy compromise — and for the most part, it did — but first the visitors wanted to hear more about what the whole nation is discussing, the assassination attempt.

As he did Friday night on his return from Sacramento, Calif., and his brush with death there, Ford seemed to treat the subject in an almost off-handed manner.

As he headed out to play in a local golf tournament after the conference with the Senators, a reporter remarked the President looked a little tired even though he slept a bit later than usual Saturday.

"Oh, we had a little exercise over the past few days," Ford responded.

Will he be easing his schedule to get some more rest? "You should know better than that," the President said with a smile.

He turned aside another question on whether he intends to investigate the Secret Service for not having had his assailant under surveillance as a potential threat, saying, "I don't think I should comment."

On Friday in Sacramento, Lynette Alice "Squeaky" Fromme, a 26-year-old disciple of mass-murderer Charles Manson, pointed a loaded 45 at Ford from point-blank range as he shook hands in a crowd. Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf tackled Miss Fromme before she could fire the pistol and Ford was unharmed.

Enroute home from California Friday night, the President joked and chatted with Secret Servicemen aboard Air Force One and was greeted on the White House lawn by aides who cheered and held up signs reading, "Well Done Agents" and "Especially Good to Have You Home."

Ford pledged the incident would not deter him from meeting and mingling with the American people, as President and presidential campaigner. And he played down the significance of the Sacramento attack.

"We had a great trip," he said. "Just a fraction of a second or two that disturbed things.

"I don't know why all the bother."

Back to business-as-usual with the senators Saturday morning, Ford resumed his drive for compromise with Congress on energy policy by telling them he would consider a 45-day extension on oil price controls.

He set a White House meeting of Congressional leaders for Monday in a bid to head off plans to override his prospective veto of a bill extending the controls for six months.

Although some of the senators seemed pleased by the compromise offer, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he sees little chance Ford can protect his planned veto from an override attempt.

"As far as I am concerned, the veto action for 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Senate is still in effect," Mansfield said in an interview. "I don't know what is going on there (at the White House). We'll find out when we go there Monday."

His guests were Independent Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia and Democratic Senators Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, John C. Stennis of Mississippi, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Robert Morgan of North Carolina, Sam Nunn of Georgia and John Sparkman of Alabama.

The senators told reporters later Ford said he would consider a 45-day extension of price controls on domestic oil provided Congress moves quickly to approve a gradual phaseout of the controls over a 39-month period.

Talks Continue To Seek Teacher Strike Calm

By United Press International

Talks to settle teacher unrest went on in the nation's two largest cities Saturday as negotiators sought to settle a strike in progress at Chicago and to head off one in New York City.

Police in Louisville, Ky., reinforced by 800 National Guardsmen, made mass arrests of anti-busing rioters after a night of violence.

Nearly a million school children in a dozen states were affected in the past week by strikes of teachers or custodians. A walkout in New York City, where the United Federation of Teachers has set a midnight Tuesday strike deadline if no contract is agreed on, would about double the number of pupils out of classes.

Negotiators on the New York teachers' contract said there was progress toward agreement.

In Chicago, President Robert Healey of the Chicago Teachers Union said he would ask Mayor Richard J. Daley to get into negotiations resuming Saturday. Daley has often shown his considerable skill as a mediator in settling school walkouts. Earlier in the week he said the city's half million school children must be allowed to get into classes.

Healey said he believed the Chicago school board would agree to meet with Daley and students could be back in classes by Monday. Almost all of the city's 27,000 teachers have been on picket lines or refused to cross them in the walkout which began Wednesday.

The New York City area, however, had other strikes. Lay teachers, members of the American Federation of Teachers, were picketing the five high schools of the Roman Catholic diocese of Brooklyn, where 7,650 students were hit by a strike. In Half Hollow Hills, Long Island, 800 teachers and 13,000 students were away from classrooms, with a hearing on a back-to-work injunction scheduled for Monday, along with resumed negotiations. Both strikes began Wednesday.

Outside of Chicago, the biggest unsettled walkout in Illinois was in Elgin, where 26,000 children were affected. A court refused to issue an injunction returning teachers to their jobs, but classes were to remain closed Monday when another injunction hearing was ordered.

In Pennsylvania, negotiations were expected to continue through the weekend to get settlements in 29 teachers strikes or lockouts which have kept 150,000 students and 7,500 teachers away from classrooms. Another 116 teacher districts have not yet settled on contracts.

About 90 per cent of the 963 teachers at Berkeley, Calif., were off their jobs and only 5,000 of the area's 14,000 students went to classes manned by substitutes and volunteers Friday.

Sherman To Speak To Democrat Club

State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo will speak at the monthly meeting of the Top O' Texas Democratic Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Hospitality Room of the Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

Senator Sherman, listed recently in Texas Monthly Magazine as one of the top 10 state legislators in Austin, will speak on the subject, "The Government Is You."

J.D. Holmes, club president, said Saturday the meeting will be open to the public regardless of party affiliation.

Holmes said bringing the state senator to Pampa is part of the club's policy to consistently carry out its organizational pledge of establishing a source of information concerning governmental and public affairs and a better channel of communication between public officials and citizens.

In urging attendance by the public at Monday night's meeting, Holmes said: "It will give members of the audience a chance to question Senator Sherman about any legislative act or policy which has been or may be before the Texas Legislature."

Holmes indicated Sherman probably will answer questions about the new State Utilities Commission and the proposed new Texas Constitution along with his views on other legislative matters.

Judges Practicing

Mrs. Georgia Mack, Mrs. Rue Hestand and Mrs. Marion Brown practice judging for the Most Beautiful Yard Contest in Pampa. The women are members of the Pampa Garden Club, the organization which will judge yards on Monday. The city is divided into six divisions for the competition and first, second and third places will be awarded in each division. Awards will be presented at an October meeting of the contest committee and color slides will be shown of yards and public plots in the city.

Burglars Hit Lefors

A burglary at Lefors which netted subjects more than $2,000 in merchandise is under investigation by Bill Batten of the Texas Rangers and officers of the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

The Florence Variety Store in Lefors was hit Tuesday night. Entry was gained through the north side entrance by prying panels from the door with a screw driver.

"All kinds of merchandise was missing," said Batten.

He said burglars apparently became frightened or forgot a basket of merchandise just inside the door.

Ken Keith and Randal Nichols of the sheriff's office assisted with the investigation.

Owners of the store are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Florence.

Duchess Dies In Texas From Car Hit

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — A French duchess was fatally injured Friday night on the Padre Island beach by a car driven too fast by a teenager.

The Nueces County medical examiner's office ruled the death homicide by murder vehicle. The office spokesman said the 15-year-old driver had been drinking and did not have a driver's license.

The victim was Lydwine de la Roucheoucauld, 21, of Bologne, France. She was in Corpus Christi as a foreign exchange student.

Police reports said she was standing in a group of people on the Padre Island beach just south of the Bob Hall Pier, located 18 miles down the beach from Corpus Christi.

The car, police said, came down the beach at 50 to 60 miles per hour and hit Miss Roucheoucauld. The incident occurred at 9:30 p.m. and she died at 10:15 p.m. in a local hospital.

Officials from the French consulate in Houston will arrive in Corpus Christi Monday to handle the funeral arrangements.

The Midwest also has symbolic value to the GOP. President Ford was born in Nebraska and built his political career in Michigan; the Republican Party was founded, depending on whose version is accepted, in Wisconsin or Michigan.

Some of the same factors would seem to boost Cleveland. It has a nationally known Republican mayor, Ralph Perk, and Ohio Gov. James Rhodes was the only Republican to oust a Democratic incumbent in otherwise disastrous 1974 state elections.

School Board Sets Meeting On Thursday

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Carver Educational Service Center Board Conference Room, 321 W. Albert.

The agenda includes a request by Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International for the use of Austin School's cafeteria.

Other items for consideration will include reports on delinquent taxes, workmen's compensation insurance, a proposed resolution on university interscholastic league and the budget report.

Following the business session, board members are scheduled to attend a dinner meeting at Dyer's Restaurant with the visiting committee of business persons who will conduct the evaluation of the school district's fiscal and physical operations.

Republicans Expected To Select Kansas City

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republicans are expected to choose a city Sunday in the Midwest heartland, where the GOP was born, for the party's 1976 national convention.

The GOP site selection committee scheduled an evening meeting to vote on a Bicentennial year convention city. Its recommendation will go to the full Republican National Committee for expected ratification Monday.

Kansas City, Mo., is regarded as leading contender for the convention, which starts next

Aug. 16 or 23. Cleveland and Miami Beach, where Republicans met in 1968 and both parties chose candidates in 1972, also are in the running.

Kansas City may be chosen despite some disadvantages. The city has had to line up housing as far away as Topeka, Kan., — 60 miles by freeway — to match the 16,000 to 18,000 room guarantee the GOP seeks.

But Kansas City has an ample convention hall, Kemper Arena, and is in the center of the GOP's depleted power base. The governors of Missouri, neighboring Kansas and Iowa are Republicans; 11 of the Senate's 39 Republicans come from nearby states; and four of the 11 GOP-controlled state House delegations come from states just to the west and north of Missouri.

The Midwest also has symbolic value to the GOP. President Ford was born in Nebraska and built his political career in Michigan; the Republican Party was founded, depending on whose version is accepted, in Wisconsin or Michigan.

Some of the same factors would seem to boost Cleveland. It has a nationally known Republican mayor, Ralph Perk, and Ohio Gov. James Rhodes was the only Republican to oust a Democratic incumbent in otherwise disastrous 1974 state elections.

Henry Believes Gromyko Will Halt Sinai Discord

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger still believes he can convince Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to halt opposition to the interim Sinai agreement despite Israel's belief Moscow will mount a major sabotage effort, a U.S. source said Saturday.

"I think we will just have to wait and see what happens over the next couple of weeks," the source said. Kissinger is scheduled to meet Gromyko later this month when the Soviet minister comes to New York for the U.N. General Assembly session.

"Other than that the Secretary's statement yesterday (Friday) will have to stand," the source said. Kissinger said Friday he believed that he and Gromyko would "reach an understanding about the relationship between the U.N. activities and the reality rather small U.S. activities."

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said in Tel Aviv Saturday he believed "that the Russians will attempt to undermine the agreement — by means of Libya, the Palestine Liberation Organization and any extremist element in the Arab world."

The PLO issued its strongest denunciation to date of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, calling him a "traitor and conspirator" and thousands of youths demonstrated against the Sinai accord in the streets of Damascus, chanting slogans against Sadat and the United States.

"As you know, there is a lot of rhetoric in that part of the world and there is no reason (in the denunciations) to think that an agreement, already signed, would not be implemented," the source said.

TEXAS TALK

By Doug Howard

Cattlemen are being outdone by prune producers. At least as far as product promotion is concerned. Paul Horn, writing in one of this summer's issues of THE CATTLEMAN, cites the fact that the prune growers association of California spends more total dollars pushing prunes than the entire cattle industry does in promoting beef. This latest wrinkle comes as a part of the continuing push for the Beef Development Plan which could provide as much as 40 million dollars a year for the promotion and development of beef markets. Hold up on the operation still involves composition of the 68 member "Beef Board" and the mechanics of operating the "beef check-off" system which would provide financing for the promotion by collecting three-tenths of one percent of the sales price of slaughter cattle. If the still lingering problems are ironed out, collections could begin as early as next year.

Police Report Burglary

Burglary, wreckless damage, theft and disturbance were all reported to the Pampa Police Department Friday night and Saturday morning.

A burglary took place Friday night at 609 S. Barnes in a Playmore Music storage building.

Several machines were broken into and some were damaged. A total of $162 in cash was taken.

A resident said someone broke into her home at 305 Henry and took a stereo and $75 in cash.

Police received a call from a man at the Coronado Inn who reported that two women were creating a disturbance.

"They were begging for money and got into a fight with the complainant," the report reads.

Police found the women had left the scene when they arrived. They were later picked up, counseled and released.

Halfback Ricky Moore and quarterback Garland McPherson combined for 179 yards rushing and two touchdowns to pace Pampa to a 20-7 come-from-behind win over Hereford in the teams' season opener Friday night in Harvester Stadium. Pampa's defense took up where it left off last season when it limited 10 opponents to a total of 51 points as the Harvesters held Hereford to an early first quarter touchdown. Hereford scored when halfback Terry Brady, one of three juniors in the Herd backfield, rambled 18 yards off left tackle at 10:49 in the opening period. The score was Hereford's second play from scrimmage after the visitors recovered a David Caldwell fumble on Pampa's 22-yard line. After a Kelly Baker punt on Pampa's second series, it looked as if Hereford might score again. The Herd drove from its own 39 to Pampa's 18 before the Pampa defense stiffened and forced a field goal attempt. The kick was wide. In the second quarter, Pampa, capitalizing on a 29-yard interference penalty and a 22-yard pass from McPherson to Jerry Rhoades, drove from its own 28 to Hereford's one but Moore was stopped short of the goal line of fourth down. Hereford used three downs to move the ball to the eight. Baker blocked Mike Crim's punt and Pat Bailey fell on the ball for a Pampa touchdown with 2:20 left in the first half. Sammy Gonzales blocked Joe Cout's conversion effort. The Harvesters scored on Moore's six-yard run at 6:46 in the third quarter. The TD ended an eight-play, 54-yard drive after Pampa had taken over following a Hereford punt. Caldwell swept right end for two extra points, giving the Harvesters a 12-7 lead.

Hereford, finding it difficult to establish the ground game that was so effective early, punted late in the third quarter and Pampa took over on its own 15. Three plays later, McPherson connected Rhoades on a 46-yard bomb, putting the ball on Hereford's 25. It took the Harvesters another three plays to score, with McPherson bursting off left tackle for 10 yards and the touchdown. Paul Sloan missed on the conversion attempt. Hereford, late in the game, managed to drive to Pampa's 17, but a fumble recovered by the Harvesters' Tony Stafford, nixed the threat with 11 seconds left in the game. Defense, like last season, played a huge part in Pampa's win. Noseguard Bailey, defensive end Baker and tackle Dub Taylor were instrumental in shutting off what started out to be an explosive offensive attack. Hereford, at times, was able to move the ball effectively, particularly through the air. Mike Crim completed eight of 22 passes for 126 yards. His leading receiver was split end Archie Crim with three receptions for 40 yards. Brady led Hereford rushers with 58 yards on 10 carries. Pampa's running attack resulted in 204 yards, including 112 on 21 carries by Moore. McPherson added 67 yards on 17 tries, while Caldwell managed 17 yards on five attempts. "I think our defense played real well," Pampa coach John Welborn said. "They made a few mistakes but a lot of effort covered up for it... I was pleased we won. I wasn't completely happy with the entire game." "Like parts of our kick coverage — we just didn't tackle well. We didn't have an extra point kicker. Joe Cout's split a toenail and couldn't kick. Kelly Baker had his foot stepped on."

"I think we played well in spots. Anytime you win that first ball game, you should feel pretty fortunate."

About Pampa's slow start in the contest, Welborn said, "I think it takes a few plays to get adjusted to the game."

The Harvesters travel to Dumas Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game. Dumas lost 20-0 to Amarillo Palo Duro Thursday in Amarillo's Dick Bovins Stadium.

Pampa was the only District 3-AAAA team to win over a non-conference opponent Friday. In other games, Odessa whipped Amarillo High 30-18, Odessa Ector surprised Amarillo Caprock 31-12, Midland High crushed Amarillo Tascosa 27-7 and Perryton bounced Borger 20-7.

In games involving 4-AAAA schools, Wichita Falls blanked Lubbock Coronado 6-0 and Lubbock Estacado surprised Plainview 6-0.

This Friday, Amarillo travels to Odessa Permian. Palo Duro visits Hereford. Caprock hosts El Paso Andrews and Borger entertains Canyon. Tascosa and Plainview play Thursday night in Amarillo.

Southwest—Could It Be Anybody's Ball Game?

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

It's been quite a few months now since the Baylor Bears won the Southwest Conference championship. And it's still hard to believe. The totally unexpected win by Baylor, following six years of domination by the Texas Longhorns, ignited renewed fan interest in SWC football.

Now what will the conference do for an encore?

Will the Bears pull off almost as big a surprise and repeat as champions? Will the talent-laden Texas Aggies throw off their can't-beat-Texas syndrome and produce the title they are seemingly capable of producing? Will the Longhorns put a quick end to their one-season losing streak and reassert themselves as league best?

Whatever happens, unless it should be TCU and Rice finishing in a first-place tie, this year's season is likely to be a letdown.

There can be little in the way of a final outcome that could be more shocking than the 1974 Baylor success story. And that success story refuses to die.

A rabid Baylor fan can purchase any number of books and magazines retelling the Bears' 1974 season, can lay down $6.00 for a tape recording of coach Grant Teaff giving a lecture on motivation or spend $7.00 for a phonograph record reliving each key moment of "the Bears golden year."

Along with sacking up the conference crown in 1974, Baylor demonstrated that anything is possible.

And that should be good news for Texas A&M.

The Aggies again in 1975 are possessors of some of the best talent around. And again, just as last season, they should have an excellent chance of becoming the SWC titleholder.

Even the American Broadcasting Company likes the Aggies chances because ABC has talked Texas A&M and Arkansas into moving their contest — originally set for Nov. 1 — back to Dec. 6 for a regular season ending national telecast.

Texas A&M has been made the consensus choice for the league crown this year because of its defensive strength — which is considerable — the rejuvenation of David Shipman at quarterback and the arrival on campus of Tom Wilson, who used to call the offensive signals for Texas Tech and will do the same thing at Aggeland.

The Aggies have been the Southwest Conference's mystery for years. A lack of consistency has plagued them at times when it appeared no one could touch them. If consistency comes to College Station this year, a SWC title should follow.

The obvious roadblock is Texas. The Longhorns have Marty Akins at quarterback and Earl Campbell at fullback and that combination alone is enough to scare you.

But, again, the Longhorns are suspect in the secondary and Texas Tech proved last year it only takes a couple of breakdowns in the Texas defensive backfield to pick up a victory.

Arkansas, moving from the wishbone to the veer offense, and Texas Tech, with new coach Steve Sloan, fall in line with Baylor as pretenders to the throne. A win by any of the three would be surprising, but not totally outlandish.

SMU, although it should put on a good offensive show, TCU and Rice are being counted out before the first whistle.

The season could likely come down to Texas A&M-Texas meeting Thanksgiving Day in College Station.

The Aggies return 10 of their 11 starters from 1974 and four of them will be starting for the fourth year — Bubba Bean, Skip Walker, Carl Roches and Richard Osborne.

And four-year starters Ed Simonin and cornerback Pat Thomas anchor the stingy Aggie defense.

On paper the Aggies seem to be the best. But that has been said before and somehow A&M did not wind up on top.

"We have maturity and experience and excellent leadership," says Aggie coach Emory Bellard.

"Our defense was second in the nation last year and we don't expect any dropoff. Our offense should be better and more consistent. We've expanded our offense, adding the I-formation attack to the basic Wishbone.

Pampa Volleyers 2nd in Tournament

BORGER — Pampa tied with Borger and Perryton in the three-team Borger Invitational Volleyball Tournament but since Borger gave up fewest points in the tourney, the Bulldog girls won the championship trophy.

Pampa beat Perryton 15-4, 15-13 and Hereford 15-3, 15-2, then lost to Borger 15-12, 15-4. Borger allowed 46 points in the tourney. Pampa was second and Perryton third.

Evert, Connors Win Open Tennis Matches

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Chris Evert defeated Evonne Goolagong Cawley to win the U.S. open tennis title Saturday after watching Jimmy Connors, with whom she has again been seen keeping company, beat Bjorn Borg in a tense three-setter to get within one match of retaining his championship.

Miss Evert won the two-hour match 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, in a fifth visit to the West Side Tennis Club. For Miss Goolagong suffered the heartbreak of losing for the third straight year in a three-set final.

Connors defeated Borg, 7-5, 7-5, 7-5, and his opponent in Sunday's final will be the winner of the second semi-final between Guillermo Vilas of Argentina and Manuel Orantes of Spain.

For Miss Evert, 20, it was her 84th straight victory on clay which started with her win in the U.S. Clay Courts tournament in 1973. But it was uphill all the way.

Chris, who had watched the final set of Connors' semi-final, dropped the first set of her own match at the very point when Jimmy returned to the packed stadium court. But knowing of his presence, Chris, who had said "I play better when he's watching," began to raise her game.

After Miss Goolagong had received her loser's check of $12,000, Connors walked into the stadium and planted a kiss on Chris' cheek.

Chris, who received $25,000 and an automobile as her prize, now has won $280,027 with this, her 10th, victory of the year.

Sox 20, Brewer 6

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Carlton Fisk and Rico Petrocelli, hitting a home run apiece, combined for seven hits, seven rbi and six runs to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 20-6 rout of the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday afternoon.

Dwight Evans added five hits and Juan Beniquez and Rick Burleson three apiece as the Red Sox set American League season records of 20 runs and 24 hits.

Cards 6, Mets 3

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ted Sizemore's two-run double capped a four-run first inning and Al Hrabosky recorded his 21st save and drove in another run Saturday afternoon to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-3 victory over the New York Mets.

The victory pulled the Cardinals five games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Watson Leads World Series

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — British Open Champion Tom Watson shot an even par 35 Saturday to grab the lead halfway through the first round of the $77,500 World Series of Golf.

Watson, of Kansas City, Mo., held a one-stroke margin over Tom Weiskopf, who was two shots ahead of U.S. Open winner Lou Graham and three in front of Masters and PGA Champion Jack Nicklaus.

Watson, playing in his first World Series, led or shared the lead the entire front nine of the 7,180-yard, par-70 Firestone Country Club Course after hitting his approach shot on the first hole less than a foot from the pin for a tap-in birdie.

He picked up his only bogey on the front side when he drove into a fairway trap on the 465-yard fourth. He came out short, caught another bunker in front of the green, but got down in two from there for a five.

Weiskopf, who gained entry into the 14th annual WSG with his win in the Canadian Open, the first alternate event, parred the first hole despite taking a one-stroke penalty when he hit an unplayable drive.

He had a share of the lead before he bogeyed the ninth after a poor four-iron, second shot.

Nicklaus, making his 10th appearance in 14 years of the WSG and seeking his fifth triumph, missed a chance for a birdie when he three-putted from 40 feet on the par-five, 500-yard second hole.

After that, Nicklaus struggled with bogeys on the fourth, fifth and ninth. He also had to get down in two from a bunker to save par on No. 8.

Graham, making his first World Series appearance, dropped a shot when he bogeyed the 450-yard, third hole, missing the green to the left and picked up another bogey on the 225-yard seventh when he put his tee shot in a trap and missed a 10-foot putt.

Britten Paces Groom Upset over 'Horns

VEGA — Fullback Chris Britten racked up 251 yards on 21 carries to pace a high-powered Groom rushing attack and lead the Tigers past Vega 26-12 Friday night here in the teams' season football opener.

Groom was a 19-point underdog prior to the game, according to the Harris Rating System.

The Tigers, expected to battle Booker for the 1-B crown, managed all their offensive yardage on the ground, piling up 422 yards. On the other hand, Vega rushed for 107 yards and passed for 16 as the experienced Tiger defense had an unsurprisingly easy time holding off the 1-A Longhorns.

Vega, which stayed close for most of the contest, drove to inside the Groom 10 twice in the game but was unable to score.

Thomas Reed swept 44 yards around right end for the first Groom score, at 10:50 in the first quarter. It was the first play from scrimmage for the Tigers. Bimbo Bivens kicked the extra point.

Vega came back with seven minutes left in the period on a six-yard run by Kevin Montgomery, who had been moved from guard to tailback prior to the game. Montgomery's TD was set up when Vega recovered a fumble punt on the Tiger 20. Montgomery was stopped on the conversion run attempt.

Chris Britten scored on a six-yard run off tackle with 34 seconds left in the first period. Britten also led Groom in the 80 yard scoring drive with a 42-yard run, giving the Tigers first down on the hosts' 15.

Britten was held on his try for two extra points.

Vega scored early in the second quarter as Montgomery plunged over from the two. The Longhorns drove 60 yards for the score ("They didn't have any long plays — they just moved us right out," Groom coach Don Sessom said.)

Quarterback Larry Richardson tried to pass for extra points but failed.

With seven minutes left in the first half, Britten broke four tackles and rambled 86 yards for a touchdown. Bivens kicked the extra point, giving the Tigers a 20-12 advantage, the score at halftime.

Neither team was able to score in the third quarter. With eight minutes left in the game, Groom scored on a 10-yard run by John Krizan, who capped a 90-yard drive.

Sessom, naturally, was pleased with Groom's performance.

"I was really happy with that ball control," he said, concerning the final touchdown drive.

"We had 147 yards in penalties but other than that we looked all right. I was surprised by the offense — we controlled the ball real good, especially in the last quarter.

"Our offensive line looked real good. They opened some pretty good holes for us. The defense looked real good — we held them in some clutch places."

About Britten, Sessom said, "He was the difference of the ball game as far as the running backs are concerned."

Reed added 71 yards on 14 tries, while

Krizan also picked up 71 yards, carrying 15 times. Bivens rushed three times for 29 yards.

Bivens passed five times but failed to complete a throw. "We dropped most of them," Sessom said.

Groom visits Claude Friday, while Vega travels to Sunray.

Oakland Passing Barrage Too Much for Dallas

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Tom Landry said about the same thing before his Dallas Cowboys met Oakland Friday night. But he said it again after the game.

"Oakland is ready for the season," Landry said. "They were ready for the season from the first day of training camp because their team is set. There is no question they are the big favorite in the AFC."

Landry was properly impressed since the Raiders overwhelmed Dallas in a nationally televised game, 31-20.

All Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler had to do was draw back his arm and a big gain seemed to materialize. He threw only eight times during his one half of work and completed six of them for 171 yards and two touchdowns.

The Raiders, undefeated in five exhibition games, jumped in front by a 21-0 count before Dallas could put anything on the board.

"Oakland is such an experienced team when their second unit is in there they still have experience," said Landry. "When we put our second unit in there you can tell it."

"They gave Stabler excellent protection and we let them make the big plays."

Those big plays included a 49-yard Stabler-to-Cliff Branch pass that set up Oakland's first touchdown — a two-yard run by Clarence Davis.

Then Stabler hit Branch with a 30-yard touchdown throw and found Charlie Smith with a screen pass that turned into a 53-yard scoring play.

George Blanda got into the act in the third quarter with a 40-yard field goal and Pete Banaszak scored on a 10-yard run in the final period to complete the Oakland domination.

Dallas drew fairly close at 21-13 at the half on a one yard plunge by fullback Charles Young and Young's 16-yard touchdown catch from Roger Staubach. But that was as close as the Cowboys could get. They added a touchdown in the final minute of play on a two-yard run by Scott Laidlaw.

Tigers Shock Bucks

WHITE DEER — Halfback Gary Danner scored from two yards out early in the second quarter to lead Last year's Panhandle paties, the McLean Tigers, to a 7-0 upset win over White Deer Friday, in Buck Stadium here.

McLean lost all 10 games last year and, prior to this season, was given little chance of turning things around. However, the Tigers surprised area prognosticators by unleashing a solid defense, which limited the Bucks to six first downs, and playing with what Coach Robert Mears called "good character for a bunch of kids that hadn't won very much."

Danner's touchdown came at 10:06 in the second quarter. The McLean halfback finished with 33 yards on 11 carries. Curtis Simpson, one of several sophomores on the team, paced Tiger rushers with 71 yards on 17 rushes.

McLean drove to the 22 in the third quarter. White Deer had two scoring opportunities but missed field goal attempts. The second miss was the result of a high snap from center.

"Once we got the touchdown," Mears said, "we got the touchdown," Mears said, "we thought we'd try to go for the first down and hold onto the football. Marty Dunivan called a tremendous game at quarterback."

"The kids are so excited they don't know what to do. We played pretty good on offense. Still, we weren't consistent enough. Our defense came through."

"I told some of our kids yesterday (Friday) prior to the game that if we could score, our defense would win the ball game for us and it did."

Linebacker Dean Tren led McLean's defense with 12 tackles, two unassisted.

White Deer coach Mike Purcell was disappointed by his team's inability to score.

"We didn't play well enough to win. We didn't execute well. I sure was disappointed. We're gonna try to get our injured people back as quick as we can — we think that hurt us."

Steve Williams rushed 12 times for 141 yards for the hosts.

"We had four opportunities to score," Purcell said. "We got inside the 10 twice, inside the 20 four times. They (Tigers) played good ball."

White Deer, at times, was able to get its passing game, one of the strong points of the team, going. Sandye Hodge caught three passes for 30 yards.

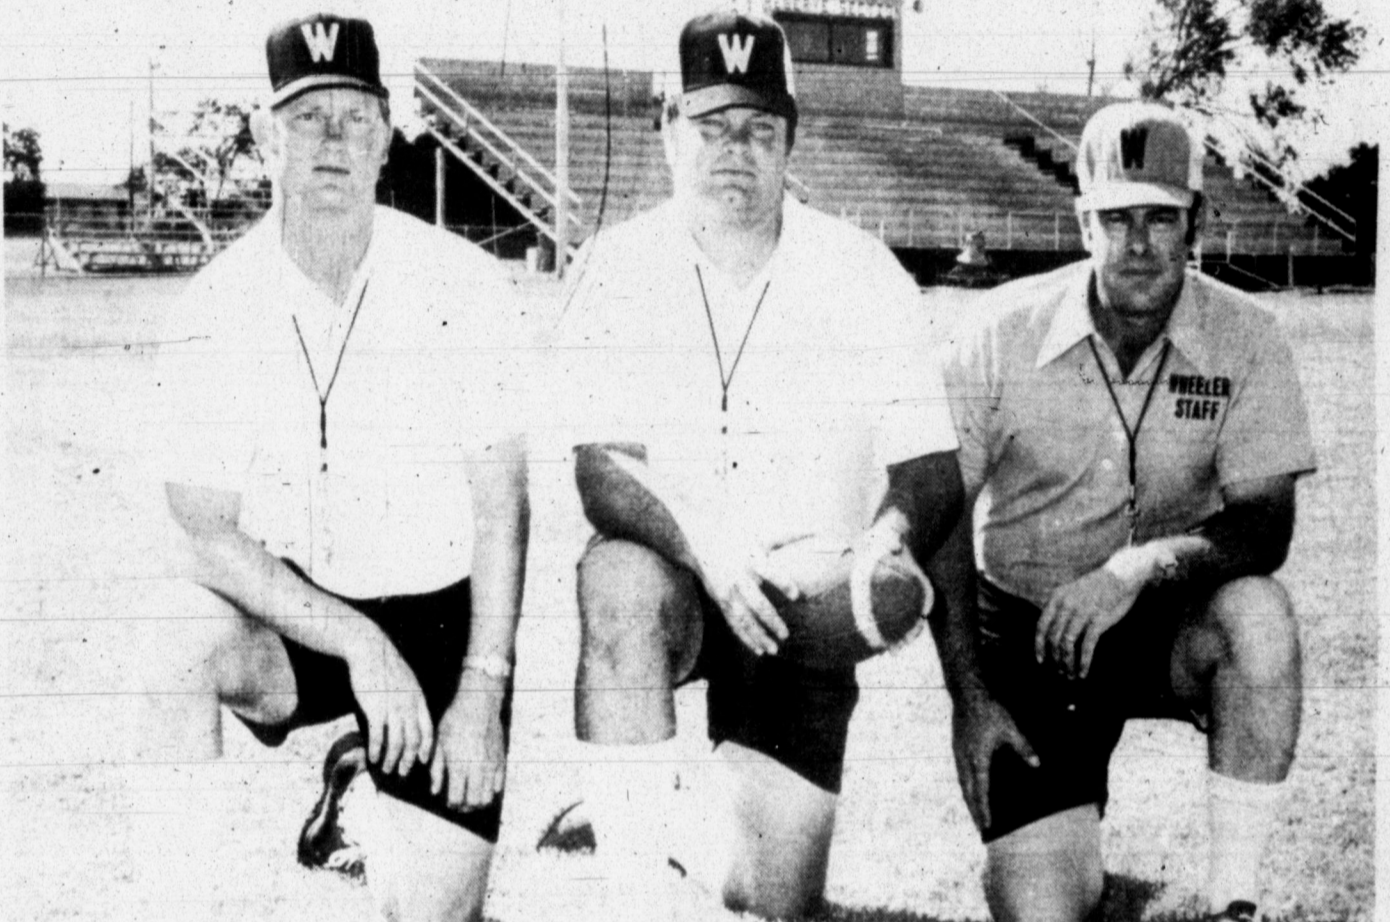

McLean hosts Lefors in the Tiger homcoming contest Friday, while White Deer visits Clarendon.

Miami Walks Past Forgan, 30-0

FORGAN, Okla. — Miami overcame a slow first half with a 24-point outburst in the third quarter and crushed last year's Oklahoma state champion, Forgan, 30-0 in eight-man non-conference action Friday night here.

The game opened the teams' respective seasons.

Miami scored midway through the second quarter on an 18-yard scamper up the middle by Kirk Flowers. David Beane failed on the running try for extra points.

Early in the third period, Beane burst five yards up the middle for a score, and Juan Segovia ran over the extras, making it 14-0.

Miami's next TD came on a 16-yard run by Segovia, who scored in the middle of the third period. Flowers was stopped on the conversion try. Miami kicked off. Forgan got the ball deep in its own territory and, on the second play from scrimmage, Stan Cowan tackled Forgan's Brent Nichols in the end zone for a safety.

Forgan kicked off to Miami. Flowers returned the kick 60 yards for another touchdown. Segovia ran over the conversion.

Miami's slow start in the contest was partly due, according to head coach Bill Gilliland, "early season jitters."

"He added, "We didn't do very good for a while. Rusty Early (right guard) had to quit us last week and we didn't block too well. We started using our backs as lead blockers and then we got going."

"I was real tickled with the defense."

Miami outgained the hosts 229-135 in total yards. Flowers led the Warriors with 71 yards on 12 carries, followed by Segovia, 11 for 43 yards, Beane, eight for 28, and quarterback Mark Mercer, five for eight.

Forgan's leading rusher was 196-pound fullback Nichols, who gained just 16 yards on 20 attempts.

Bill Grantham gained 18 yards on one pass reception for Miami. Miami travels to Balco, Okla., Friday.

Wheeler returns nine offensive and eight defensive starters off last season's 6-4 team and that experience is why Mustang coaches feel they have a title contender in District 2-A. Head coach is Jim Robinson, middle, in Wheeler's ground game, which managed 257 yards, was headed by Helton. Brown (three tries for 46 yards), Terry Tidwell (two for 40) and Mike Izard (13 for 34).

"We played real good," Wheeler coach Jim Robinson some plays. We played like a young team — made some mistakes and were out of position. The kicking looked real good."

"The Pirates punted 10 times, including several quick kicks, for a 43.3 yard average."

Lefors travels to McLean Friday, while Wheeler is open.

Tea Ceremony from Ken Wolfgang's "The Soul of Japan"

"The Soul of Japan"

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1975

KEN WOLFGANG

FROM THE DESTRUCTION and despair of her defeat in World War II, Japan has become one of the most imaginative, progressive nations in the world. The great progress of this small island nation is due to its "Soul" — the feeling that all Japanese have of belonging to their own immediate family, their company family, and their national family.

In viewing Japan, a day is spent with Mitsue Ohta, who works for the oldest shipbuilding company in Japan. His friends talk of Yuki Matsuro (the Sapporo Snow Festival), the tancho zuru (Japanese Cranes) on Hokkaido, and the Mischievous Yuki Saru (Snow Monkeys).

Japanese New Year is celebrated with such activity as visiting the Imperial Palace to pay respect to the Emperor.

The family makes an annual visit to the hometown of their ancestors. Here are found old roots of the system that has helped Japan develop into the thriving nation it is today.

The new spirit of Brazil is seen in Sao Paulo, a modern and commercial city. The world's foremost research center for the study of poisonous reptiles is Buntantan, a blood bank of life, saving serum.

Coffee is king in Santos, the port city where it is tested, tasted and shipped. The magnificence of Rio de Janeiro is enjoyed from Guanabara Bay, blessed by the Christ Statue and mosaic sidewalks, local artists, and outdoor markets.

"IRELAND"

MONDAY,

NOVEMBER 24, 1975

CHRIS BORDEN

All aspects of Irish life are explored by Chris Borden in his colorful, lively presentation that has a good deal of Irish humor.

Dublin's bustling city life gives way to the serenity of the Wicklow Hills, the great cathedral at the Rock of Cashel, and an interesting day - in - the - life sequence with a large Irish dairy farm family.

Borden also includes the Waterford Glass Works where the famed crystal is still created by hand, the port city of Cork, and Blarney Castle with its celebrated Blarney Stone. He visits the late President John F. Kennedy's cousin, Josie Grennen, at Dungastown, and explores Ballinasceally, where Henry Ford's father lived.

Borden's Ireland includes Bunnraty Castle, the tiny village of Ballyvaughn in County Clare, Gateway, and a visit to the Aran Islands, plus Donegal and Killarney.

"Ireland" is a refreshing journey to the land where the far off hills are always green.

Elephant on the Road! from Thayer Soule's "Cape to Kenya"

"Cape to Kenya"

WEDNESDAY,

JANUARY 28, 1976

THAYER SOULE

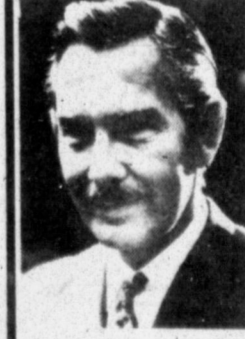

Africa is a unique travel experience. From the Cape of Good Hope at the southern tip of snow-capped Mount Kenya on the equator, jet planes and modern roads have opened the land of explorers to safaris of another type — swift, comfortable, and cheaper than ever before. Thayer Soule, who took us through Switzerland last year, shows us an exciting cross section of Africa!

The great reserves are more fascinating than ever. Development of farming has forced more animals into the protected areas, so game viewing and photography are at their best. On the Nile are hundreds of elephant, crocodile, and hippo, all close enough to touch. New lodges provide every comfort, and good roads go everywhere.

Featured also in the film are fall colors in the Cape Province, the story of gold and diamonds, Zulu dancers and the thundering majesty of Victoria Falls. You won't have to buy a bush jacket to see this once "Dark Continent."

Tea Ceremony from Ken Wolfgang's "The Soul of Japan"

"The Soul of Japan"

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1975

KEN WOLFGANG

FROM THE DESTRUCTION and despair of her defeat in World War II, Japan has become one of the most imaginative, progressive nations in the world. The great progress of this small island nation is due to its "Soul" — the feeling that all Japanese have of belonging to their own immediate family, their company family, and their national family.

In viewing Japan, a day is spent with Mitsue Ohta, who works for the oldest shipbuilding company in Japan. His friends talk of Yuki Matsuro (the sapporo Snow Festival), the tancho zuru (Japanese Cranes) on Hokkaido, and the Mischievous Yuki Saru (Snow Monkeys).

Japanese New Year is celebrated with such activity as visiting the Imperial Palace to pay respect to the Emperor.

The family makes an annual visit to the hometown of their ancestors. Here are found old roots of the system that has helped Japan develop into the thriving nation it is today.

Amazon River trading boats unload From Clay Francisco's "Brazil"

"BRAZIL"

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1975

CLAY FRANCISCO

Rio de Janeiro to the mighty Amazon — a vast country with great diversity. The new spirit of Brazil is seen in Sao Paulo, a modern and commercial city. The world's foremost research center for the study of poisonous reptiles is Buntantan, a blood bank of life saving serum. Coffee is king in Santos, the port city where it is tested, tasted and shipped. The magnificence of Rio de Janeiro is enjoyed from Guanabara Bay, blessed by the Christ Statue and mosaic sidewalks, local artists, and outdoor markets. Brazilia is the new capital with architecture that signals Brazil's gigantic effort to open the interior. Brazil's most colorful ladies carry a portable cadd on their heads in Bahia. In traveling up the Amazon River into the interior, one can visit the Uruba Indians. See Manaus, A European city built by the ber boom, and for a climax, view the might Iquacu Falls deep in the bush!

15th Century music & songs performed in the medieval surroundings of Bunratty Castle

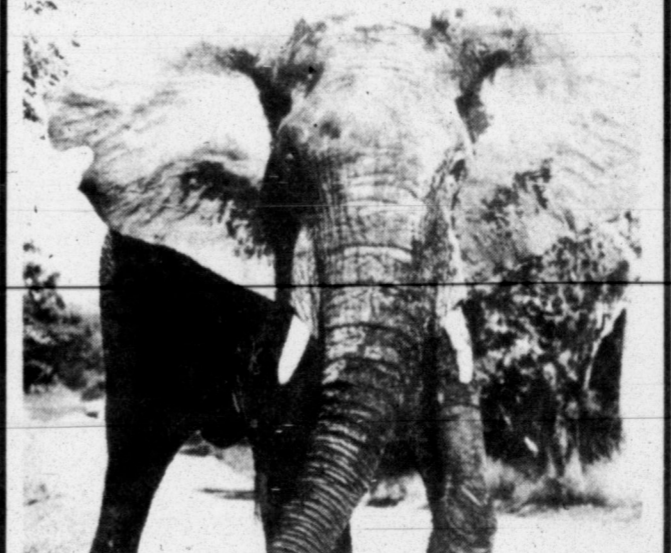

"IRELAND"

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1975

CHRIS BORDEN

All aspects of Irish life are explored by Chris Borden in his colorful, lively presentation that has a good deal of Irish humor. Dublin's bustling city life gives way to the serenity of the Wicklow Hills, the great cathedral at the Rock of Cashel, and an interesting day - in - the - life sequence with a large Irish dairy farm family. Borden also includes the Waterford Glass Works where the famed crystal is still created by hand, the port city of Cork, and Blarney Castle with its celebrated Blarney Stone. He visits the late President John F. Kennedy's cousin, Josie Grennen, at Dungastown, and explores Ballinasceally, where Henry Ford's father lived. Borden's Ireland includes Bunratty Castle, the tiny village of Ballyvaughn in County Clare, Gateway, and a visit to the Aran Islands, plus Donegal and Killarney. "Ireland" is a refreshing journey to the land where the far off hills are always green.

Elephant on the Road! from Thayer Soule's "Cape to Kenya"

"Cape to Kenya"

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1976

THAYER SOULE

Africa is a unique travel experience. From the Cape of Good Hope at the southern tip of snow-capped Mount Kenya on the equator, jet planes and modern roads have opened the land of explorers to safaris of another type — swift, comfortable, and cheaper than ever before. Thayer Soule, who took us through Switzerland last year, shows us an exciting cross section of Africa! The great reserves are more fascinating than ever. Development of farming has forced more animals into the protected areas, so game viewing and photography are at their best. On the Nile are hundreds of elephant, crocodile, and hippo, all close enough to touch. New lodges provide every comfort, and good roads go everywhere. Featured also in the film are fall colors in the Cape Province, the story of gold and diamonds, Zulu dancers and the thundering majesty of Victoria Falls. You won't have to buy a bush jacket to see this once "Dark Continent."

Six Gateways To The Carribean

TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 1976

ERIC PAVEL

To close our season, we travel to the Carribean region. Mr. Pavel, back for his third appearance, will take us to the Panama Canal to see its operation as seen by a canal pilot. From here we travel to Fort San Lorenzo, Panama City, and the Canal Zone. Next its off to Venezuela to see the Maracaibo Lake Oilfield and its people and Caracas, the modern city. We then travel to Trinidad to see cocoa plantations and orchid farms. While shopping in the colorful city of Port of Spain we will see suits hand - tailored in 24 hours. In Guatemala, we visit an Indian family in their home and community life. At our next stop, Martinique, we drive through magnificent scenic areas of the island including the ruins of St. Pierre and the sugar plantations of Ford De France. Our last stop is Haiti, where we will see the highlights of the beautiful city of Port Au Prince and witness secret voodoo ceremonies at the Citadel.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

Your birthday today: Adjustment is the only word that describes how to cope with this year's swiftly changing situations. Much that you think is over and done with is not. Don't declare any relationship finished even though it appears so. Financial strength is certain to improve. Today's natives go in for professions that, although within a narrow sphere, paradoxically require extended involvement of the mind.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: It takes two to tango. Don't do it or you'll find you've stirred up more than you can handle. Other plans would be spoiled. Settle down and cooperate.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Early differences can be resolved with patient effort. Make your regular Sunday appearance, then get to work. Answer correspondence, set up new budgets and make plans.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Allow for sensitive feelings on all sides. Think of activity that might meet general approval, or arrange to meet with people you do enjoy. Youngsters play a prominent role.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: It's your choice: sulk in private, working it out, or in public, generating a new round of confusion. Either way, get back on the track soon. Later hours are happier.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Start out very late, if you plan to travel or make visits. Friends are more reasonable, but ask nothing unusual from them. News is very good; listen for special implications.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Watch what others do, see where you are in relation to your group, and adjust your behavior accordingly. Expect a streak of good luck for enthusiastic, thoughtful attention.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Live with your impatience through the morning. Present conditions are nobody's fault. Later you can be expansive, catch up with family and community circle activities.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]:

Reach out for contact with new people with similar tastes. Teach if you have an audience and something to say. Social movement is spontaneous. Don't balk.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Prepare for some debate, and minor disagreement, but do get out and mix with friends nearby. Make peace among those you've upset lately. Build a new group enterprise.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Quietly fill your appointed duties. Call neglected colleagues and include their friends within your field. In later hours share in the bright social whirl.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Prepare a schedule that allows for both home and its improvement, your public image and its enlargement. Don't waste a minute of this potentially productive day.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Put aside money maneuvers for the time being. Establish an understanding between good friends and neighbors. Polish major projects before they're launched next week.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8
Your birthday today: Opens a year of unexpected progress in sidelines other than what you plan as a main career. You thrive by learning to take each day as it comes, making the best of it. Relationships assume an allies-in-the-field mystique, as sharing of many minor crises leads you to accept all sorts of people as friends. Today's natives have their own ideas about everything but can fit into almost any existing scheme or system.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Older people present problems, asking good questions. Youngsters create holiday-like conditions. Arrange to cope with both. Romance sparkles for the eligible.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Nobody is going out of the way to meet you or to be cooperative. Try to get work done, and the sooner the better. Later hours include surprises, interruptions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Let financial maneuvers wait. Sudden events require prompt response; be ready to make changes. Social contacts are sensitive and casual words are misunderstood.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Balance home obligations against work commitments. A switch in direction makes you rush to get things back into reasonable order. Get going while you can!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Figure out what terms will serve you best, and arrange other matters accordingly. At least reduce complications. Romance thrives if you'll show some interest in the other person.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You've decided what the score is. But still listen as you may gain from the opinions of others. Repercussions of old actions bring unexpected benefits.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Quick decisions put you in the middle of more than you're prepared to handle. Expect resistance and have alternatives ready. Parents and older folk add restrictions. Patience helps.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Set an even pace on the job, avoiding haste, and loss of detail. Make sure work is delivered right. Abrupt changes include a few you hadn't thought of. Tonight is for small parties.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Amuse your friends, but exclude them from your financial plans. A speculative proposition means upsetting established formats. Decide if it advances your interests; and act accordingly.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Touch base this morning. News, support, supplies, and fresh energy arrive simultaneously at midday, starting you on a productive work week, and lively social whirl.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Prepare and organize. Try to counterpoise each activity for a stable week ahead, as new people must be included in fixed schedules. Fun and games this evening!

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Conservative methods still prevail in dealing with money matters. Renrench rather than expand or make risky commitments. Home arrangements entail extra expense.

Oklahoma Hunters Seek Hairy Monster

NOXIE, Okla. (UPI) — Farmer Ken Tosh said he saw the monster — seven feet tall, hairy, foul-smelling and with eyes that glowed like worried people, that is, not the monster.

"I was within 10 feet of it before I saw him," said Tosh, 30. "He growled and ran one way. I screamed and ran the other."

Tosh is one of several residents of this tiny farming community to report sighting what has been dubbed the "Noxie monster."

"The people are scared," Tosh said. "Anything that comes around, they'll shoot. We couldn't capture him."

The reported sightings panicked residents, and armed bands of hunters have been roaming the rolling timber-covered hills along the Oklahoma-Kansas border hoping to get a shot at the creature.

Frank Phillips College Sets Enrollment

Frank Phillips College will conduct late registration until Friday for those students who were unable to attend regular registration until Friday.

The Registrar's Office, located in the Administration Classroom building, will be open through Friday 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Evening hours will be from 6 to 7 p.m. The last day and time to register for the 1975 fall semester is set for 7 p.m. Sept. 12.

Students who wish to enroll under the early admissions program, available to certain high school students or persons who wish to enroll for career purposes or personal enrichment for credit or non-credit are also encouraged to take advantage of the late registration hours.

"A young person in this day and age, with long hair and a lot of stuff on his face, might at night look like a wolfman and one of these guys that are drinking their beer might want to blow him to bits."

Arnold attributes the "Noxie monster" to a combination of beer, heat and vivid imagination.

Despite his skepticism Arnold says he'll keep an eye out for the creature.

"Maybe we'll luck out and find a monster and a UFO both," he joked.

"I've never seen one of those, either."

Council Of Clubs Hear Report

For the first regular meeting of the Pampa Council of Clubs in the City Club Rooms, with Mrs. Georgia Mack, president, presiding, each club told of the work done during the summer months.

Mrs. Libby Shotwell spoke for the American Red Cross's swim program and Mrs. Marguarite Nash told of trips she had taken. Clara Lee Rhodes told of a book she had printed and Mrs. Mack told of a quiet summer but urged the group to work for a productive fall and winter club year.

Fern Bowman, representative for Delta Kappa Gamma Club, told of plans that are being made for the club year.

Mrs. Mack appointed the following chairmen for the club year: Business & Professional Club, kitchen committee; Mrs. Faye Eaton, program and calendar committee; Libby Shotwell reporter; and Clara Lee Rhodes, telephone committee with Fern Bowman.

Mrs. Wanda Talley director of Senior Center in Pampa, spoke to the group in the Senior Center projects in Pampa. She told of the great work done by the committee in giving volunteer work and in making contributions to the Senior Center Committee.

The next meeting of the group will be Nov. 6.

The lowest temperature ever recorded in Iowa was a minus 47 in Wasta on Jan. 12, 1912.

NEW FERRY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — One of Texas' seagoing highways will be expanded. The ferry service across Bolivar Roads between Galveston Island and Bolivar Peninsula will get a new ferryboat, and the three vessels already in use on the three-mile crossing will be enlarged.

The Texas Highway Department hopes to have the new ferry in operation by the summer of 1977.

ODOR FREE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Homemakers who run their electric dishwashers only with a full load should sprinkle a handful of baking soda in the bottom of the machines when they put breakfast dishes in it. The soda deodorizes the washer, just as it absorbs refrigerator odors.

Nominates Big Bird for President

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Sesame Street" doesn't look like it has undergone serious urban renewal, but actually the show has been slowly evolving and changing over the last six years.

The news for this year is that it will include segments for retarded children, their teachers and parents. It also will include Bicentennial material and Big Bird will run for president.

"Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" are products of the Children's Television Workshop. The news at "Electric Company" is that once this year's and next year's shows are in the can, the program will go over to reruns, which incidentally is what Fred Rogers of "Misterogers' Neighborhood" is doing.

CTW president Joan Ganz Cooney is proud of the changes and she likes to put them in perspective.

"Our first year on the air we had five or six goals we were trying to accomplish," Mrs. Cooney said in an interview. "These were to see if television could teach at all. Children all over the country were singing commercials. If television could teach that, could it teach children to recognize letters and numbers, to recite the alphabet?"

The answer, as any child knows, was yes. Mrs. Cooney said that during the first year "Sesame Street" had no "affective" goals, no teaching aims for its 2-to-5-year-old audience beyond basic academic subjects.

It was during the second year of "Sesame Street" that CTW experimented with an "affective" goal — teaching the word and meaning of cooperation.

"We wanted to see if we could teach a concept. Research indicated that at the end of the year children knew what cooperation meant; they even used the word, which is a long one for children," she said.

Research has played a big role in CTW programs and decisions. At first outside research firms were hired to discover how much children had learned from "Sesame Street." Increasingly CTW uses its own research department to go into day care centers, classrooms, even private homes, to test segments of the shows and feed back the findings to the shows' producers for what Mrs. Cooney calls "mid-course corrections."

"In our third year," she said, "we increased the cast to include Hispanics and included counting in Spanish and using words in both English and Spanish in certain animations. Now 'Sesame Street' has a number of bilingual aspects."

"This coming season we will include something entirely new. Every Wednesday morning there will be a segment for retarded children — something that nonretarded children also can enjoy but from which the parents and teachers of retarded children can learn."

She said the Bicentennial material would be based on the American Issues Forum Bicentennial calendar, and when the Forum's topic was the executive branch of government, Big Bird would run for president.

"We will continue to expand in the world of 'affect,'" Mrs. Cooney said. "One of the hottest issues in education right now is just how the emotions affect the ability to learn. We always have tried to show people treating each other kindly, and we've had an integrated cast. But I think we have found that we can teach more than a limited number of cognitive skills."

Mrs. Cooney said CTW wanted to do more in helping children to like themselves and accept themselves, an area in which "Fred Rogers has done such a lot. He's been wonderfully successful."

"The Electric Company" also is going to take a leaf from Fred Rogers' book, but in quite a different way.

Mrs. Cooney said research shows that television is available as a teaching aid in 50 per cent of all second and third grade classrooms in the United States, and more than a third of them now use "Electric Company" as part of their curriculum.

Carson Group To Dedicate Freedom Hall

Panhandle History

The 12-foot Eclipse windmill, gathered part by part from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Colorado, took three years to assemble and make work. The slow-moving, no-gear windmill played an important part in the development of the High Plains. Beside sets the Square House museum.

The Square House Museum and Bicentennial Committee of Carson County Saturday will dedicate Freedom Hall, the sixth and final building of the museum complex.

The dedication will be in conjunction with the Annual Museum Day and will include guests, speakers, events and exhibits.

Ribbon cutting will be at 3:30 p.m. followed by a 4 p.m. reception in War Memorial Building.

A barbecue from 5 to 7:30 p.m. will be in Country Agricultural Building. Donations, with minimum of $4 for adults and $2 for students, will go to support the museum.

Bicentennial exhibits and an art exhibit by Dr. Michael Frary, University of Texas art department, will be displayed.

The dedication will begin at 2 p.m. with a band concert in the high school. John Ben Shepperd will be guest speaker for the event.

Freedom Hall focuses on the three freedoms: the birth of the nation, the birth of Texas and the freedom sought by early Carson County settlers in 1876.

Also on display will be county school children's interpretations of "What America Means to Me."

The historic Square House was a range headquarters house on the British Syndicate Franchlyn Land and Cattle Company land. It was reported in 1965 by local contributions and is operated by 145 volunteers.

It has been rated as the "Outstanding Small Museum in America." It is the smallest fully accredited museum in America.

Today it is a complex of six buildings worth more than a quarter of a million dollars, and that doesn't include the dioramas, artifacts and cases.

The complex consists of the Square House, a brick annex, a dug-out dwelling, a railroad caboose, a red barn-type structure for farm and ranch exhibits, a wildlife-small tools exhibit hall. Every building and item on the quarter block is significant to the area's history.

The Square House, a Victorian stick cottage, has been awarded the official Restoration Seal by the State of Texas. Only 17 other structures, including the Alamo, have been given the seal.

The museum is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tours and lectures are offered.

"Texas and the American Revolution," a traveling show in pictures and story produced by the Institute of Texan Cultures at San Antonio, will be on display at Freedom Hall Saturday until Oct. 15.

The exhibit was produced by the research and exhibits staff of the institute, an educational research arm of the University of Texas at San Antonio. The show is a result of almost five years of planning, research, design and fabrication.

Former Pampan Uncovers Major Scientific Find

Dr. Weymar Zack Osborne, a graduate of Pampa High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wood Osborne of 1315 Williston, has discovered something that may lead to an "unlimited energy source," according to information recently printed in a Houston Post story.

Lawrence Pinsky, physics professor at the University of Houston, said their discovery of a magnetic particle is one of the major scientific finds of the century and it may eventually affect modern theories of gravitation and high energy physics.

however, that their find may never have practical application for the average citizen. Working with a pair of California scientists under a NASA grant, Osborne and Pinsky have uncovered the existence of a magnetic monopole — a single-pole magnet.

They said the monopole is the basic quantum of magnetism, comparable to the electron in electricity. Earlier theories, Osborne told the Post, indicated that a monopole should exist to balance out the symmetry of nature. For 40 years scientists have been attempting to prove the existence but had been unable to locate a magnetic particle that did not have both a positive and negative pole.

Osborne said the monopole mass is produced by concentrating a huge amount of energy into a small area. "Its mass is 200 times as large as a proton's mass," he told the Post. "It's rare because it's so massive."

According to the scientists, a 1973 series of balloon flights to trace ultra-heavy cosmic rays was the first step in their discovery.

The cosmic rays were tracked in dense, photographic-like material that is sensitive to ionizing particles. It was necessary to study that material for two years to uncover the monopole track and rule out other possible causes for that track.

"The monopole, if real, has such a bearing on physics that it would ultimately have practical effects," Osborne said, "but we don't know enough about its properties yet to speculate on it."

Pinsky added that "if another one is found soon, it could mean a change in our modern concept of physics."

State Construction Shows Strong Recovery

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas construction industry is showing strong recovery signs, reaching its highest index level ever for July, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Research associate Charles P. Zlatkovich, writing in the September Texas Business Review, said the bureau's seasonally adjusted index of total building authorized in Texas reached 220.2 in July, up from 185.7 in June. It was the highest level since May, 1974, and the highest ever recorded for July.

"Even more encouraging was the gain in the seasonally adjusted index of residential construction, which increased from 161.0 in June to 208.6 in July, the highest level since April, 1974," Zlatkovich said. "The unadjusted index of nonresidential building for July also established a record at 222.9, the highest level recorded since May, 1974. The unadjusted index of additions, alterations and repairs dropped from June to July, but at 225.6 was still the fourth highest monthly level on record."

Total estimated value of building authorized in July increased 12 per cent over June, he said, but the total for the first seven months of 1975 trailed the same period in 1974. Total construction value is 20 per cent below the 1974 year-to-date level, with residential construction 19 per cent behind and nonresidential construction 24 per cent behind.

Museum Commemorates World War Birthday

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — One of the exhibits in a private museum commemorating the 30th anniversary of the end of World War II had an unusual impact on summertime visitors. "It's been one of our best visited exhibits in many years, and almost every visitor has been moved by it," said Pat Allgood, acting supervisor of the exhibit at the Museum of Texas Tech University.

Four veterans of the war and one civilian, all graduates in museum science at Texas Tech, put the exhibit together. They traveled approximately 5,000 miles — mostly on their own time and at their own expense — collecting and arranging for items reflecting activity in Africa, Europe, the Pacific Theater and on the home front.

"The man from the 36th Division said the exhibit was very moving, refreshing his memory which wasn't very dim anyway. And the German man had his son along to translate for him."

"High school students in most cases began the tour with indifference, but before it had been completed they had become completely engrossed in it," Allgood said. "Most of them had never seen World War II exhibits, and the only kind of a war they knew anything about was the Vietnam conflict which caught a nation torn within. They seemed impressed when they realized what it was like to

"We also had a woman who ferried aircrafts for the British army, a Texan who served in the 36th Division Lost Battalion which was featured in the exhibit, and a German man who couldn't even speak English who was part of the Wehrmacht Division and served his nation in Russia," Allgood said.

"The man from the 36th Division said the exhibit was very moving, refreshing his memory which wasn't very dim anyway. And the German man had his son along to translate for him."

SEW FAIR

Plans are under way for another Sew Fair to be held in Pampa Sept. 24 at the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium. Three professional home economists will be in Pampa to present current trends in sewing. Local merchants will have exhibits. Mark your calendar now and plan to attend the "Sew Fair." Watch the newspaper for more information.

HD CLUB NEWS

The Home Demonstration Clubs have a busy year of programs and activities planned. Now would be a good time to visit a club and join this busy group. They are constantly learning to improve themselves, their homes and family life.

QUILT FAIR

The Home Demonstration Council is hosting a Quilt Fair Oct. 11-12. Entry forms are available from the White Deer Land Museum and Extension office. The Quilt Fair will be held in conjunction with the Top O' Texas Arts and Crafts Festival at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

There are four categories prizes will be awarded in - originality of design, historical or bicentennial motif, sewing skills and heir-loom. No kits or stamped embroidered quilts will be eligible. Entry fee is $5 for three quilts or less.

A quilt made by the Gray County Home Demonstration Council will be given to the holder of a lucky number. Home Demonstration members have the tickets.

FOOD PRESERVATION

We received an interesting news release from Mrs. Nancy Steorts, special assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture for Consumer Affairs. Home canners are being advised not to experiment with canning lid substitutes. Because of the shortage of lids, consumers are trying questionable methods of reusing old lids. Some products being used are sealants, rubber cement, glue, bathroom caulking and cellophane.

Consumers are strongly advised not to take short cuts or experiment in home canning. Do not reuse sealing lids and use only jars and lids made especially for canning.

If you have run out of lids freeze products. The Extension Service has an excellent bulletin "Frozen Foods" available free to the public. Call and we'll mail you one or stop by our office in the Courthouse Annex.

FREEZING TOMATOES

We've had several calls about freezing tomatoes - the Extension bulletin recommends that tomatoes should be stewed first. Remove stem ends, peel and quarter ripe tomatoes. Cover and cook until tender (10-20 minutes). Place pan containing tomatoes in cold water to cool. Pack into containers. Seal and freeze immediately.

Cooking Record Recorded

PITTSBURG, Kan. (UPI) — Peggy Snyder, 42-year-old divorcee and veteran short-order cook, says she can improve her world record of 111 hours of continuous cooking.

Labor Day weekend at the restaurant where she works, preparing 6,363 pancakes, 2,460 eggs, 915 hamburgers and an uncounted batch of French toast, steaks, shrimp, fish, chicken and other menu items.

Her record has been tentatively acknowledged by the Guinness Book of Records and she says she is eager now to try for a 140-hour standard.

"I lost 10 pounds during the cooking," she said. "But I feel fantastic now. I know what I did wrong and I can do better. I know I can go 140 hours."

Monte Brannon, her boss, put only one stipulation of her record attempt.

"She had to keep up her appearance and the quality of her food had to remain at maximum level," Brannon said. "Toward the end she was getting slower, and she was starting to burn things, so I told her to quit."

Peggy started at 6 a.m. Friday and stopped at 9:30 p.m. Monday. She suffered from aching legs, swollen ankles and greasy-spattered eyes.

"She was allowed a five-minute break each hour."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Dolls: That means both men and women, because aren't we all? I sure do think so when I talk with you.

Anyhoo, we all wear boots at one time or another, whether they be cowboy (which, being a Texan with some sweetheart cattle, I have to — catch that?), daytime boots that are so fashionable now, English boots, etc.

Sometimes we cannot get them on because our feet swell, or if you put them on in the afternoon (and this is a laugh, but is true, so says the Board of Podiatrist that I work with) your feet are bigger. This is why I wrote about never buying a new pair of shoes in the morning. Wait until after lunch to buy new shoes.

I learned last month to put my nylon knee socks on first, then take a box of bath powder and powder the STOCKING itself... especially across the instep and the back of the heel.

If you have no box of bath powder, shake some 1 love baby powder for this) into your hand and wipe or dust your socks!

Most people shake this into their boots but really that is no good because it just goes right down into the arch of the shoe, which is not the trouble when it comes to plunking your footies into it. Ever try to figure that out?

Well, for those of you who use neither powders... try baking soda. It's a beaut! Also helps do away with a few odors if your feet perspire. But don't just dump it in, folks. Rub-a-dub-dub on your socks.

And for the gals who wear those knee-high plastic boots, why don'tcha try it? You'll find it a pretty piece of powdered advice that poor Heloise practices herself!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: When you have trouble with a place mat or table cloth sliding, put a thin bit of foam rubber, such as used in making flowers, underneath.

This also works fine for keeping pots and pans from sliding in a trailer or camper when you are traveling. Marcella N. Janes

Dear Heloise: Most everybody has trouble with dogs turning over their garbage cans and making quite a mess. Here is a way to solve the problem as it keeps the lid on. Buy two ordinary screen hooks and eyes and an ordinary screen door spring.

Drill a small hole in each handle and fasten an eye of the hook to each handle. Fasten hooks to each end of the spring.

Hook to one handle and draw spring across the handle of the garbage can lid and fasten on other side with the other hook.

Can be removed easily for access to garbage can but the lid will not come off if turned over.

M. S.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER: Dear Heloise: Husbands make great house pets!

How come my husband, who is never wrong (his words), applied tooth paste to his hair for hair cream the other morning?

Well now, doesn't everyone know that tooth paste when properly applied is a great hair restorer?

Never underestimate a perfect husband girl! Mrs. J. S. N.

Dear Heloise: I subscribe to many magazines and, since I work, I never seem to have time to get back to the article or recipe that I wanted to look at later.

Now I tear a tiny piece at the corner and fold it out so I can immediately turn to the page I wanted to see again. Also I tear a tiny corner off the front cover when I finish so I can rapidly sort through the magazines to pass on to friends, hospitals, etc.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

A woman in Texas wrote that she stopped reading the column for awhile because frankly she was worried about me.

Not only was I whimpering about washers that ate one out of each pair of socks, but I had publicly stated there was a Loch Ness washer monster that scrambled everyone's laundry and you often ended up with a pair of shorts you had never seen before in your life.

Last week she wrote, "For several weeks my husband has been forced to wear a pair of women's support pantyhose, size medium although he is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. They were with my pantyhose I had washed on gentle cycle, but THEY WERE NOT MINE AND WHO ELSE'S COULD THEY BE?"

Good grief, woman, get hold of yourself.

I could take the easy way out and put you in touch with a reader in Portland who, last December, lost a pair of women's support pantyhose and in its place got a maternity top (she's 73) and contact the woman in Palo Alto who lost her maternity top and ended up with a Marine jumpsuit, but it's time consuming it's futile.

The plain and simple truth is washers were never meant to be domesticated. I never see a Frankenstein movie but that I don't visualize a washer on a table in a laboratory ... with lights flashing, test tubes bubbling and slowly the washer begins to pulsate and the dial turns slowly to pre-soak, the lid begins to jiggle, and a monster is born.

A monster with a mind of its own who can fade things pink in an all white load, put lint on socks that are washed alone, and know the exact day when the warranty expires.

Day by day I see the washer of this country getting smarter and smarter. I saw one the other day that is programmed to pre-soak, release the bleach, add the soap, and cut loose softener. The only thing it needs a human hand to tear the machine apart looking for the mates to all the socks.

I haven't told this to a living soul, but a friend of mine who always enjoyed a wonderful relationship with her washer, dropped in a cross-your-heart garment last week that came out with only one side left.

Her husband (a practical man) suggested if half of it was missing, that's all she put in. Her washer repairman didn't want to talk about it.

Moral of the story: Never turn your back on your washer. You never know when the 'll go native!

Fabric Core Bulletin Board

By BUROKER & HUNTSINGER Copley News Service

If there is a fabric shop near you or any store that sells cloth material by the yard, chances are the people who work there will be glad to supply the basic material needed to make a practical and pretty bulletin board.

Visit any place that stocks sewing supplies and you will notice how the various kinds of cloth are wrapped in bolts. The center, or core is made of cardboard, which like so many containers, is usually thrown away, burned or otherwise discarded.

Made of a light, smooth cardboard that is both sturdy and porous, these centers are usually 8 inches wide and 24 inches long. Some fabrics may be packaged in longer or shorter pieces, but this is usually the standard size.

Two can be taped together if you want an extra large wall hanging or you can arrange a series of them once they are decorated and ready to be hung.

The first step is to wrap the entire surface. Do the ends first, then the rest of the cardboard. Use sheets of light-colored construction paper 12 by 18 or 9 by 12 inches in size. Wall paper, contact paper, burlap, or other fabrics are also suitable if preferred. This material can be held in place either with glue, thumb tacks, tape or pins. The important thing is to have a smooth area.

Then attach drapery rings or picture hooks to the back or top and this lightweight bulletin board is ready for the wall.

It will prove most handy for pinning up souvenirs, pictures, or any decorations one wishes to add for a distinctive room touch. The nice part about such a bulletin board is that it can be changed whenever you wish.

Plan the defrosting of frozen fish so that it will be cooked soon after it has thawed. It should not be held longer than a day before cooking.

Allow 18 to 24 hours in the refrigerator to thaw a one-pound package of frozen fish.

Frozen fish fillets and steaks can be cooked without thawing if additional cooking time is allowed, unless they are going to be breaded or stuffed. In such cases, the fish should be defrosted.

Shrimp in grapefruit halves makes an attractive, nutritious first course or lunch salad. Remove alternate segments of the fruit and replace with large pink shrimp.

Most families base their decision on a freezer purchase on the space and money available and the family's needs. The USDA says a compact may be the best value for a one or two-person household. Larger families need about three cubic feet per family member, or six cubic feet if large quantities of frozen food are bought regularly.

One way of saving sugar: follow the European custom of using sugar instead of frosting on cake. Sift confectioners' sugar through a doily to make a pattern on the top.

Save money by serving a vegetable casserole with cheese sauce occasionally instead of a more expensive meat and potatoes meal.

When making biscuits, double the recipe. Cut out an extra panful, cover with waxed paper and refrigerate to use the next day. Use within 48 hours.

sors. President Ford takes criticism in stride. When he is angry he keeps his temper under control. When he does let off steam his staffers know it.

Talking to television reporters at Newport, R.I., last weekend, Ford said, "If you worry about everything people say about you, you lose your eye on the ball."

Ford made the remarks after he was asked about an article which author John Hershey wrote in the New York Times magazine after spending a week with Ford. Hershey had done similar pieces in the past on other presidents. His report on Ford was analytical and thorough, but he indicated he found a lack of compassion in Ford.

"He actually, virtually lived here," Ford said of Hershey.

He had permitted the author to be present for most of his meetings except for those with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on national security matters.

The President also heard similar criticism from 12 Republican senators who place themselves in the moderate-to-liberal category. It was a frank discussion. The senators urged Ford to permit a greater liberal influence in his policy making and political campaigning. Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey told Ford that he "hasn't been doing his compassionate nature justice."

The senators specifically said that in stressing budget and fiscal responsibility and in vetoing new social programs, Ford's image was coming through as conservative.

Asked how Ford had taken it, Case told reporters afterwards, "The great thing about Mr. Ford is that he accepts with complete frankness and complete lack of any kind of unhappy feeling the most sincere and earnest expressions of criticism, especially when they are of a constructive nature and particularly from people he regards as friends."

"He accepted this not only in good spirit, but I think he agreed it was a good idea."

Case added, "I don't think that anybody should expect the President to change his views or to change his basic approach. I think it is necessary for him to do what hasn't always been necessary, perhaps for him to do in his role as candidate for the House of Representatives, to make it clear this approach is in his judgment designed to bring about the best result for all the people, including those out of work, including those worried about losing jobs, even though they may still have them, and including those on fixed incomes, attempting to meet constantly rising costs of living."

White House chief photographer David Hume Kennerly may feel he is a moving target. There have been news items cropping up that Kennerly is out of favor with President Ford.

But Kennerly's close friends insist that his relationship with Ford is still "very close."

Kennerly had gone to the Middle East with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for his last round of shuttle diplomacy. During the trip, informants said that Kennerly was in contact with the White House and talked to Mrs. Ford several times.

In addition to being treated like a son by Ford, Kennerly is also a social companion to Jack Ford, 23, and the President's son spends a lot of time at Kennerly's Georgetown apartment.

The Nixon girls, Tricia and Julie Eisenhower were recently seen shopping in the maternity department in Saks Fifth Avenue in New York. Friends say they were buying a gift for a friend.

Now that Julie has curtailed her ties with the Saturday Evening Post, remaining as a consultant, she is expected to try out her considerable talents in the television field.

Both Julie and Tricia are very articulate but during Watergate Julie did most of the talking, becoming her father's chief defender. She also won a lot of applause for her TV appearances and seems to like that media.

Her father also reportedly is very much in favor of Julie trying her wings as a TV personality.

The White House is expected to roll out the red carpet for emperor Hirohito when he arrives in Washington Oct. 2 for a two-day state visit. Some 240 Japanese correspondents have signed to cover the emperor when he tours the United States.

Ford met Hirohito last fall when he visited Tokyo. Memorable pictures were made of Ford in striped pants that were too short.

Former President Richard M. Nixon met the emperor in Anchorage, Alaska, in September, 1971, when Hirohito made a refueling stop on his way to Europe.

The start of the social season at White House on Dec. 25 begins with a state dinner honoring the president of Colombia.

So far the First Lady has not recruited a replacement for social secretary Nancy Ruwe and there seems to be no rush about filling the position.

Mrs. Ruwe, a highly innovative social secretary who put on some of the most glamorous dinners at the White House, had problems with other members of the household staff.

Mrs. Ruwe's resignation was announced before Mrs. Ford traveled to Vail, Colo. for a summer vacation.

Career professionals, including Pat Howard who has been on the social staff for many years, are expected to carry on.

Pope Paul Canonizes American-born Saint

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The late Pope John XXIII called Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton "the flower of American piety."

A Vatican sainthood investigator seeking gaps in the purity of her thoughts and deeds found none. He also judged her "a true physical beauty unmarred by vanity."

Mother Seton, whom Pope Paul VI on Sept. 14 will canonize as America's first native-born saint, saw herself this way:

"If I were a man, I would walk in Xavier's footsteps. The abyss of the sea and the expanded sky would be well explored."

Like St. Francis Xavier, the first Jesuit missionary, Mother Seton left significant footprints. She founded the Sisters of Charity, the first American order of Roman Catholic nuns, and pioneered the U.S. parochial school system and Catholic orphanages.

The morning canonization ceremony to ranches by union organizers for three hours a day before and after working hours and during the lunch hour.

The judge's action, in response to a suit filed by the South Central Farmers Committee, said the rule "deprives plaintiffs of property without due process and constitutes taking plaintiffs, property for public use without just compensation."

Crocker ordered a hearing for Sept. 12 to see if the restraining order should be made permanent. Crocker will be joined by another federal judge and a circuit court of appeals judge in hearing arguments in the case.

Grower response to the AIRB's rule was one of anger and in numerous counties growers ordered organizers of their property at gunpoint.

In San Joaquin County, four members of a vigilante group were arrested Tuesday following a confrontation with deputies. The confrontation was not renewed Wednesday, after the 200 pickers which UFW organizers sought to talk to were moved to another, unidentified field.

The law provides that elections be held within seven days after the petitions are filed.

Immigrants Big Expense

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Large amounts of federal dollars are questionably being spent to support newly arrived immigrants and legal aliens in Texas and six other "critical" states, according to a recently issued congressional report.

The report, prepared by the General Accounting Office (GAO), recommends that governmental arms, namely the Departments of State and Justice, coordinate their efforts to reduce the likelihood of immigrants receiving public assistance within five years of their arrival in the United States.

While there is no law prohibiting legal aliens from receiving public assistance, the intent of the Immigration and Nationality Act is to keep individuals likely to become a "public charge" out of the country.

The fact remains, however, that thousands enter the country in pursuit of the American dream each year. And under the current law, authorities find it difficult to deport an individual who has become a "public" burden.

Although congressional investigators did not examine conditions in Texas per se, the state is described as one of "seven critical" states because of its large population of permanent-resident aliens.

The report notes that 306,991 immigrants resided in Texas in 1974. Further, it points out that one-half of the country's 4.1 million legal alien population lives in either California, New York or Texas.

Nationally, 72 per cent of those immigrants live in one of the seven "critical" states — also including Florida, Illinois, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

"Although we hardly did anything in Texas, I would say that we found should apply there, but we don't know for sure," said John Tipton of the GAO, Congress' watchdog agency. "Texas is politically a very conservative state. It seems that it has been stronger than others in keeping people off welfare rolls than in other states."

A key recommended change, said Tipton, is a redefinition of the term "public charge." Although supported by public assistance, an immigrant can now be deported for financial reasons only if he is legally liable to repay the supporting state or local authority.

GAO recommends that the term "public charge" be broadened to take in any public expenditure which directly supports immigrants unable to earn an adequate living, irrespective of whether the immigrants are legally liable to repay it.

This would enable authorities then to deport any individual who has become a so-called "public" burden.

The report cited another problem in the law which allows certain illegal aliens, who give birth to a child while staying in the United States, to legally return here to work.

"We know in Texas of one example of a woman who came over the border illegally and gave birth and used this later to get into the country," explained Tipton. "What it does is that the child gives them a 'relation' relationship. The person goes back and applies for a visa. Such a relationship is created because the person has a citizen child."

Although the parent does not need a certificate to work here now, he or she in most cases would under the recommended change. The GAO said that a "waiting period" should be established before granting immigrant status and that parents of a "citizen child" would have to wait until the child is 21 for preferential treatment.

States and local governmental entities seldom keep records of how many legal aliens receive public assistance so the GAO could not determine how much federal money is being spent yearly on newly arrived immigrants. However, the report predicts that these "funds are substantial."

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Welfare in Austin acknowledged that figures on the number of immigrants receiving government assistance are not kept.

"Legally entered aliens do add cases and do increase costs, but they are not broken down," said Bill Wagner, assistant director of Informational Services for the department. "Because they are not broken down as a separate entity I cannot give statistics of how much it costs."

Hughes Must Prove Life

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Manhattan Supreme Court justice Thursday gave billionaire Howard Hughes two weeks to prove he's not dead.

Justice Bernard Nadel issued a show cause order directing Hughes, who is seldom seen in public, to state by Sept. 17 why he should not be declared legally dead.

"I think we're going to smoke him out," said Manhattan attorney I. Walton Bader, representing Victor Kurtz.

Kurtz is a stockholder in the California airline Air West, acquired by the Hughes empire in 1969. He brought a $100 million class action suit against Hughes in July charging him with stock manipulation and fraud.

Money To Go for 'Pet' Studies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate Administration Committee has approved spending $631,246 for studies on some lawmakers' pet projects including legislation on regulation of utilities.

Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, won a $91,550 budget Thursday for his subcommittee on consumer affairs — only slightly less than appropriated for the panel's work researching and drafting utilities legislation.

Clower said another hearing may be held to discuss problems in the utilities bill eventually approved by the 1975 legislature, but indicated most of the money will go to draw up a survey detailing all government services available to consumers.

A budget of $115,000 was approved for the Education Committee.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said the committee will study teacher retirement programs, law school tuition and funding and operations of the Texas Education Agency.

Other budgets approved by the Senate Administration Committee include:

— $54,500 for the Jurisprudence Committee headed by Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston.

Mrs. Motley's Memories: Luxuryless But Content

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Eighty-year-old Granny Motley, as she is known throughout Pampa, remembers hard times; times when Christmas meant an apple and an orange, times when school meant no pencil or paper.

"But we were content and happy," she emphasized.

And she thinks that times are even harder today, only in a different way. "People don't appreciate what they have," she said.

Granny, whose real name is Mable, is worried about the younger generation.

"Parents mind the children and it is time parents returned to the drivers' seats. Every day is Christmas to the youngsters now. They have more every day that we had once a year."

"Be content with what God provides," she advised. "And don't go to extremes trying to buy something you're not able to do."

"Right is right," she stated sternly. "And it is never outdated."

Granny's memories of bygone days are vivid.

She came to Pampa in 1947 from near Waco because her son, Samuel was here. She lives at 848 S. Somerville.

She walked 2 1/2 miles to school. There were no desks. The students sat on a bench and used slates. There was a great big stove in the middle of the room for warmth during the cold winter days.

"At Christmas times we got two Roman candles, a package of firecrackers, an apple, an orange and some sweet nuts, a big peppermint stick of candy and a rag doll with a China head, feet and hands," she said.

Her father was a farmer near Mart, where Granny graduated from high school.

"We had plenty to eat. We raised everything but sugar and flour and coffee," she said. But luxuries were nonexistent.

Still Granny insists, "There are no hard times with the Lord." She is active in the Progressive Baptist Church.

"I married the kids' daddy at 23. It was dumb and I didn't know anything about married life," she said.

Her three children were delivered by a midwife. She knew nothing about going to a hospital for childbirth.

Entertainment was something Granny learned about in later years.

"We knew nothing about picture shows. We rode saplings for horses," she explained.

"What's saplings?" inquired a friend.

"Oh, that's a young tree. We bent it down and rode up and down," Granny replied.

Granny can paint a picturesque Christmas scene as tells how stockings were hung by the fireside and the children waited "while not a creature was stirring."

And she can still bake up a storm. Granny said she had to get in that kitchen Thursday and bake an apple pie she had promised a friend for tomorrow.

"I love to cook," she said. She said she cooked for some Jewish people in Waco.

"Their food is highly seasoned and I got away from Mama's cooking," she said.

Granny's husband was a tailor.

"We married in my parent's home and we didn't have one of those fancy weddings," she said. Her husband died several years ago.

Her eyes sparkle as she speaks of her children. She has one daughter, Evelyn, who died some time ago. Her sons Diamond of Brownwood and Samuel of 848 S. Somerville.

What about grandchildren? "I have eight or ten," she replied. "And have great grandchildren and great great grandchildren."

During the interview she told this reporter that she didn't know anything interesting.

"I always ask Samuel what's going on," she commented.

The annual stockholders meeting of the Community Hotel Co. of Pampa will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn, it was announced today by George W. Scott, president.

He stated Jim Nation and Gerald Sims had been appointed agents to vote proxies on the election of director and other business to come before the annual meeting.

Scott urged stockholders to return proxies by mail whether they plan to attend the meeting or not.

A ballot containing 16 names from which eight new directors will be elected to replace eight whose terms expire also was included with the notice of the annual meeting.

Names on the ballot include:

Roy Bourland, Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Paul Carmichael, Joe Cree, Frank Culberson, Clinton Evans, John Gikas, E.L. Green Jr., Dr. R.M. Hampton, Warren Hasse, A.E. Hickman, Malcolm Hinkle, James McCoy, Dr. M.C. Overton, R.L. Pugh and Aubrey L. Steele.

Election results, Scott stated, will be canvassed Thursday, Sept. 25. The newly-elected directors will serve three-year terms.

More Trade Calls for Air Freighter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The airplane capable of carrying 500 tons of freight—five times as much as the Boeing 747—already is needed, says Samir Haddad, an executive of Trans Mediterranean Airways.

Trans Mediterranean is a Lebanese company that flies scheduled freight services all the way around the world as well as charter freight.

Haddad said a freight plane with five times the capacity of the 747—today's biggest—need not be fast although it definitely should be jet powered. "Talk about returning to propeller engines for big aircraft doesn't really make sense," he said.

Such a giant cargo plane would be especially useful in the traffic between America and the Middle East, where the oil rich Arabs not only want huge quantities of western goods but want them in a hurry.

"People in Saudi Arabia and other oil-rich Arab lands cannot get western goods, particularly American goods, fast enough by ship because their ports are not big enough to accommodate sufficient ships," Haddad explained.

"Seaports in Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and other Middle Eastern countries have relatively small harbors," he explained, "and these harbors now are so crowded and backlogged it takes from two to six months for goods from the east coast of the United States to reach ultimate destination. For a country like Saudi Arabia that's just not fast enough."

Haddad said he firmly believes an air freighter of 500-ton capacity will be developed and will take over much of the long range cargo hauling traditionally handled by tramp freighters and small ocean cargo liners. The big plane also could handle types of cargo too bulky or heavy to be carried in even the 747s. Cargo from these big craft, of course, would be transhipped from major airports just as it is from ships, via truck, rail or smaller aircraft, even helicopters.

He said as far as he knows, only two aircraft manufacturers, Boeing and Lockheed, have devoted any serious consideration to developing such huge aircraft.

But Haddad's view that the Middle Eastern market for American goods is going to grow at an explosive rate in the next few years, especially if the Sinai settlement between Egypt and Israel proves a lasting one, was echoed by the magazine "Exchange," published by the New York Stock Exchange.

The publication said the oil producing countries of the Middle East soon may be returning to the United States in merchandise orders far more dollars than they are charging American consumers for petroleum.

Grand Jury To Probe Phillips Contributions

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — A new federal grand jury will be convened Monday to begin an investigation of campaign contributions made by the Phillips Petroleum Co.

An earlier grand jury convened with only the minimum number of jurors present was dismissed by U.S. District Judge Allen E. Barrow because of the potential length of the Phillips inquiry.

"We were down to the minimum of 16 jurors," Assistant U.S. Attorney Ben Baker said. "One other finally came in, but in a protracted investigation which may last two or three weeks, if one gets sick the whole thing folds. I'm sure the judge plans to empanel a full 23-member grand jury."

Barrow said his court aides would try to have 50 prospective jurors on hand Monday in the next effort to select a full panel.

"Some may disqualify themselves before me, while others may ask to be excused after going to the grand jury room and learning the exact nature of the case," the judge said.

A full panel had been called for Wednesday, but Barrow said several were sick or injured and some were granted leave because of other commitments.

Local Farmer Urges

Use Common Sense in Ag Biz

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

"As long as they won't let exports be free, we haven't got a free market," said Raymond Maddox who farms 1250 acres of his four and a half sections.

But Maddox doesn't blame Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for the export marketing problems that plague agriculture.

"I think he has tried to do a lot for agriculture," Maddox said of Butz. "He is in a position to only carry out orders. He's not ever going to be able to do very much."

The farmer-rancher said that "We have two monopolies that need to be broken up. One is the government and one is labor."

He said that many farmers aren't working very hard to correct the problems that plague them.

"The average farmer doesn't come out and try to understand what's going on," he said. "The way I put it is that if you can't come up with a better plan than is out there, shut up."

In keeping with his philosophy of agriculture, Maddox said "I've made all the meetings I could make."

Maddox farms about 15 miles south of Pampa and he said that the Panhandle area raised more wheat than ever this year and partly because there was no control on the number of acres that could be planted.

"When they were controlling, I had as low as about 400 acres. I planted more than 800 this year," he said.

Maddox said, "My way of figuring dry land in this part of the country — and every part is different — is that when you've got the moisture, plant every available acre you've got because you never know when you're going to hit a crop."

To point out how his way of figuring can work, Maddox said that in 1973 he "had a feeling, from information I could gather, that they were gonna knock out the government programs. I planted about 845 acres. That was a real good year."

He said that he "learned to hold wheat. Even though you might get burned sometimes."

Maddox has been farming where he is since 1954. Before that he was around the Claude area for three years. He was raised on a farm west of Miami.

According to Maddox, the best wheat crop he ever raised was in 1958. That helped him get through some leaner years.

But figuring out the financing end of farming has been the downfall of many, according to Maddox.

"Many a fellow went broke because he didn't sit down with an accountant and figure out how to dwindle out income from a big crop."

Another important thing to a farmer is taking care of what does the work.

About farming and prices, Maddox said: "When you try to analyze this, it's a worldwide situation. Look at when Australia hit the big wheat crop and flooded the market. It broke the price of wheat."

And in the face of financial problems in the market, Maddox isn't sure that a floor price is a proper answer.

"The trouble with a floor under wheat," he said, "is that it winds up a lot of times being your ceiling."

Two Senators Say Butz 'Kowtows' To Meany

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Republican senators Thursday said President Ford should end Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz's "cowardly kowtowing" to AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., sent a telegram to Ford saying testimony by Butz before the Senate Agriculture Committee indicated Meany was embarking on grain exports with government cooperation.

"This admission reveals unprecedented assumption of power by an unelected private official," the telegram said.

"Equally as disturbing, Mr. President, the secretary's revelation reflects what amounts to an unconscionable abrogation of responsibility by your administration."

The Republican lawmakers called on the President to take a personal hand in ending a threat by longshoremen to refuse to load Soviet-bound grain.

"I urge your personal involvement in actions to terminate Mr. Meany's dictatorial control over U.S. foreign trade policy, and bring a halt to the present cowardly kowtowing to Mr. Meany as described by Secretary Butz," the telegram said.

Dole Thursday also introduced a resolution urging the President to immediately attempt to negotiate a three or four year agreement with the Soviet Union in which the Soviets annually would buy a specified quantity of grain.

"I strongly believe that the agreement envisioned by my resolution would resolve the complaints of the Russian grain sale critics about inflation of consumer food prices, yet it retains the many advantages that we receive from selling grain to the USSR and other nations."

Millions in Refunds Sent to Farmers

YAZOO CITY, Miss. (UPI) — Refund checks totaling a record $32.8 million have been sent to farmers and cooperative fertilizer dealers across eight southern states by Mississippi Chemical Corporation, it was announced today.

President Tom Parry said the $32.8 million represented the profits earned by the cooperative during the last year in producing, handling and delivering over two million tons of fertilizer to MCC farmercustomers.

"This is the largest patronage refund ever paid by our company in the 27 years it has been in operation," said Parry.

He said the 1974-75 checks brings to $248.2 million the total patronage refunded during the firm's 27 year history.

The vast majority of the firm's fertilizer production is sold to and used by MCC's 20,000 farmer-owners in Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Missouri, Georgia, and Florida.

MCC was organized as the world's first farmer-owned nitrogen fertilizer manufacturing company. The firm now produces 10 million pounds of plant food each day at its four production complexes at Yazoo City and Pascagoula, Miss., Donaldsonville, La., and Carlsbad, N.M.

Brucellosis Control Could Ruin Stockmen

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Lane-Denton, D-Waco, says proposed changes in state regulations for control of brucellosis could force some cattlemen out of business.

Denton told the Texas Animal Health Commission Thursday small and medium size cattlemen may be hurt by strict and possibly unfair enforcement of federal standards for brucellosis control.

"There is a danger that our cure for brucellosis may be equal to or worse than the harmful economic effects of the disease," he said.

"I have heard from a number of cattlemen in this state who feel that the tests used by this commission for brucellosis are not accurate, either because of inherent weaknesses in the tests or because of the difficulty in administering the tests," Denton said.

Denton urged the commission to seek help from experts such as Texas A&M University researchers to determine the reliability of tests and make sure cattlemen do not lose their breeding stock unnecessarily.

Denton also urged the commission to review proposed rules and eliminate any unfair or unnecessary destruction of breeding cattle or unnecessary expense to cattle owners.

Fewer Farms; More Jobs

NEW YORK (UPI) — A current paradox of the American economy: the greater the decline in the number of farms, the greater the number of good jobs created in agribusiness.

The Department of Labor estimated not long ago that from 40,000 to 50,000 skilled new farm and ranch managers will be needed each year during the 1980s. That will be true even though the number of individual farms in the United States diminishes yearly.

The average size of an American farm increased by 25 per cent to 385 acres in the 15 years between 1959 and 1974 as the number of individual farms dropped to 1.82 million from 4.1 million.

But if the number of separate farms continued to diminish, the growing dependence of so much of the world on American food has caused a steady expansion of the nation's acreage devoted to agriculture in recent years.

The great era of taking land out of cultivation to control the size of harvests and farm prices that began during the Hoover administration has ended and probably never will be repeated.

John E. Mitchell, executive vice-president for the Americas of Massey-Ferguson, global manufacturer of farm tractors, says the coming need for well educated and highly skilled farm and ranch managers will be only the tip of the iceberg.

"Most of modern agriculture in the Americas is highly mechanized and capital intensive rather than labor intensive," Mitchell explained. There are exceptions to this observation, of course. Harvesting labor is needed for vegetable, fruit and other truck crops, work that tends to be seasonal and undercompensated despite the high prices produce fetches in the supermarket. But the basic crops that used to be so labor-intensive, cotton and grains, for example, no longer are.

Nevertheless, Mitchell said, the mechanization of agriculture creates a great need for highly skilled professional workers for the farms and ranches and, off the farm, for experts on whom the farm owners and managers already are tending to depend more and more.

"In the Americas, at least, the centuries old concept of agriculture as a simple business carried on by poorly informed rustics, whether gentry or the sharecropper-hired man class, is practically ended and will not come back," Mitchell said.

Take the 40,000 to 50,000 new farm managers the Labor Department says we soon will be needing each year, Mitchell added. Every one of those will have to be backed up on the farm not by old fashioned, simple, perhaps ignorant, hands but by workers who either are trained technicians or at least skilled mechanics.

"More importantly," he said, "every one of these farm managers will have to be backed up by five skilled executives and professional people at various levels in agribusiness, men and women trained in our agricultural colleges and the business schools of our universities to help produce, improve and market crops and livestock."

These specialists will include agronomists, veterinary doctors, agricultural chemists, engineers, transportation experts and marketing and financial experts who have specialized in agribusiness.

Supermarkets Don't Get Rich Selling Meat

COLLEGE STATION — Although supermarkets realize higher profit margins from items other than meat, meat does play a key role in the supermarket's overall business.

"Consumers probably think that supermarkets are getting rich from meat sales but that's not the case," points out Dr. William Vastine, marketing and food distribution specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "On the contrary, many meat departments in supermarkets operate at or near break-even, and more often than retailers realize, meats may even lose money."

Then why all the emphasis on meat sales and meat promotions?

"The meat department of a supermarket makes a big contribution to total profits and operations by attracting and keeping customers," emphasizes the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"Consumers place high importance on the quality and freshness of meats, and about 85 per cent of all meats are sold through supermarkets."

"Not only do meat department sales account for about 25 per cent of total store sales and 35 per cent of food sales, but they also have a big influence on the consumers' image of the entire supermarket."

"Consequently, the success of failure of a supermarket may well depend on its meat department," contends Vastine. "If the supermarket loses the consumers' meat dollar, it may well lose the rest of the grocery dollar, too."

As food prices continue to increase due mainly to increased marketing costs, competition in the supermarket business will continue to increase, believes the specialist.

Texas Boasts More Farm Owners

COLLEGE STATION — Texas boasts more farmland owners than any other state in the nation, according to an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Of the 3.3 million farmland owners in the United States, Texas has 267,000 of them followed by Iowa and Illinois," points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga.

Texas also leads the nation in the number of nonfarm land owners, or landlords who lease their land to others, with 87,500 in this category.

"About three out of four farmland owners in the U.S. are active farmers," notes the Texas A&M University System specialist. "Some 28 per cent of all farmers are nonfarm landlords."

According to Hayenga, the average amount of land owned by all U.S. landowners, both active and non-active in farming, totals 320 acres, but the Texas average is much higher at 504 acres. Nationally, non-active operators have more acreage on the average than the active farmers.

"Size of land holdings varies over different parts of the country," says the economist. "In the East, most landowners own less than 100 acres while landlords in the West have larger holdings in terms of value and acreage."

The distribution of ownership among landlords also varies considerably, depending on the type of farming enterprise and land tenure pattern in the particular area, says Hayenga.

There were 398 million acres of farmland rented in 1969, adds the economist. Fifty-nine per cent of this land was cash rented and 30 per cent was rented under share agreements.

Rent received in 1969 averaged $6 per acre in Texas compared to $16 for the nation.

FARM TRACTORS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Farmers in Texas used 297,000 farm tractors to plow their fields during 1974.

The Governor's Energy Advisory Council says 40 per cent of the farm tractors were powered by diesel fuel, 39 per cent by gasoline, 18 per cent by liquefied petroleum gas and two per cent by other fuels.

The trend in the state during the past 20 years has been away from small gasolinepowered tractors and toward large diesel tractors.

Heart Disease Probed

DENVER (UPI) — The American National Cattlemen's Association says increased research by the cattle industry might determine whether beef was a contributing factor to heart disease.

"Some people say beef contributes to heart disease," said association president Gordon Van Vleck Thursday. "Beef producers as well as consumers need to have the facts. So far no one has been willing or able to finance the research needed."

Van Vleck also said the proposed Beef Research and Information Act before the House of Representatives would allow cattlemen throughout the United States vote on whether to donate money to begin research within the industry.

"Frankly, our industry may have reached a plateau in its technological and production efficiency," said Van Vleck. "We need increased research at a time when the federal government has cut back on agricultural research."

Panhandle Water

By Felix W. Ryals

Just a few days ago I read with interest a report by a soil scientist that we would have to become a recycling society in order to maintain our precarious existence on the surface of the earth. He dwelt at length with our planned obsolescence that has so permeated our thinking to such an extent that we are fast running out of the natural resources that has lifted our civilization to the heights never known before.

In recent years we have gone more and more to plastics only to find ourselves loaded down with used plastics that will not go back to mother earth for a long time to come. We must find replacements for our natural resources such as fuels and metals but they must be the kind that will return to mother earth as our fibers do. The slow down in birthrates seems to be taking place only among the white northern European while the darker colors are continuing to multiply rapidly. When one thinks of the great increase in the world's population during the past 50 years, along with the increased production of the natural resources found in the earth's surface, we come to the painful conclusion that we can and will run out of many of these in the next 50 years.

A way must be found to recycle the materials we are using. Water is one of those. When one thinks of the vast rivers, lakes and oceans, it is hard to convince anyone that we are going to run out of water. Water supplies have determined the future of civilizations of the past and water will also determine the future of our modern day civilizations. There was the great Babylonian civilization in what was called the Fertile Crescent along the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers in Asia Minor. The leaders of that day failed to solve their water problems and the Fertile Crescent disappeared.

West Texas is now being challenged to make the best use of the water we now have to prolong the irrigation economy we have built in the past 20 years. The earth does have enough stored water to meet the demands of an industrial society but the water in storage is not distributed evenly. The rainfalls to a greater extent in some areas than in others. The rate of recharge is also much slower in some areas than in others. Studies by water hydrologists of the underground water reservoirs of the West Texas area show that we are getting very little recharge while at the same time the rate of withdrawal is increasing. During the past 10 years many wells along the perimeter of our underground reservoir have failed. As more people have become aware of this they have spread the word and more people are now beginning to realize how precious water really is to them. They also now realize how necessary it is to solve the water problem we are all faced with.

Irrigation on the southern High Plains in the Lubbock area began about 20 years before it did in the middle and upper Panhandle area. Ten years ago many of the irrigation farmers in the Lubbock area began to run out of water. A number of them have relocated in our area.

Those who have are now our best water conservationists.

Today's youth are the best informed and interested people that we can rely on to take positive steps during the next decade in solving our water problems. Jaquetta Thomas, a Pampa high school senior in 1973, wrote in a high school paper on water conservation, "American is the most powerful nation in the world; yet without industry it would soon become the weakest. Therefore, it is important that our industries be maintained and expanded even though this requires an increased use of water. Today, two out of every three gallons of water is used by industry. Sixty-five thousand gallons of water is required to produce one ton of steel. The steel trade is only a needle in the haystack of water-devouring industries. Use water they must. A way must be found however, to eliminate the pollution spin-off in order that the water may be recycled and reused again and again."

The irrigation farmers of the Panhandle area has awakened to the valuable asset the reuse of tail-water can be to offset the rising cost of natural gas. Many of them have installed a complete automated system that operates in conjunction with his underground pipe system.

INSUR-MATION

Gray - Roberts County
Farm Bureau Insurance

I have recently changed my employment situation and am now self-employed. Is there any way to receive tax-saving deductions and set up a pension plan for myself?

Yes. Under the Pension Reform Act of 1974, you may now receive many of the tax benefits enjoyed by employees of corporations. For retirement plan purposes . . . you are both an employer: being permitted to set aside up to 15% of earned annual income or $7,500, whichever is smaller toward a pension plan . . . and an employee: not being taxed on such contributions or on the income earned by the funds during the accumulation period. To receive these benefits, you need to be under a qualified Keogh plan. Life insurance plans can pay retirement income as long as you live and pure insurance proceeds in such a plan are received by your beneficiary free of income taxes.
