Ford Vetoes Oil Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford believes his forthcoming veto of legislation to extend oil price controls must be upheld by Congress or action on an energy program would probably be stalled until after the 1976 election, Republican leaders said today.

Congressional Democrats, in a last-ditch effort to muster support for an override vote, issued a statement today saying the nation would face a "deepening economic crisis" if the veto is allowed to stand.

Ford was expected this afternoon to veto the bill continuing oil price controls for six months retroactively to Sept. 1 when the former controls expired. The Senate is scheduled to vote on the override attempt Wednesday.

Ford met with GOP leaders for an hour and 45 minutes today to discuss a range of subjects, including the veto message.

"In my judgment the veto is likely to be sustained," Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott told reporters.

Scott also restated Ford's willingness to compromise on a 45-day extension of controls with view toward enactment of a longer phase-out period, preferably 39 months.

Scott warned that substantial progress in drafting an energy program would be virtually halted if the veto is overridden.

The President felt unless the veto is sustained action would probably be stalled until after the 1976 election, Scott said.

The joint statement issued by Democratic leaders in the Senate and House said if the veto is overridden, Congress and the President can back off from confrontation and "have an opportunity to put together in an orderly fashion a comprehensive energy program which will serve the interests of all the people of the United States."

They added, "If the veto is not overridden, and nothing further is done, restraints on the price of petroleum products will disappear. The people and many small businesses will be faced with great hardships. The country will confront a deepening economic crisis."

Democratic senators caucused Monday and said afterward they voted unanimously to continue the veto fight.

"It does not look optimistic," Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said.

"It's going to be tough," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said Ford is "playing hardball and the only way to meet his initiative is to play just as hard in return. The people don't want his policy and we've got to do our damndest to override his veto."

There are widely differing views as to what the effect on prices and the economy will be if Congress, voting later in the week, fails to override Ford's veto.

A Library of Congress study estimated decontrol would cost American consumers $72 billion over the next five years by raising prices of everything affected by petroleum — from gasoline to food.

"Unless Congress overrides the veto and prevents decontrol, America's farmers will face substantially higher operating costs, consumers will face even higher prices for food than has been previously predicted and the economic health of rural America once again will be imperiled," said Sens. Jackson and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., who commissioned the study and released it Monday.

Ford told Los Angeles television interviewer Joseph Benti Monday night he does not agree with predictions of large increases in gasoline prices from decontrol. There might, he said, be a 2 to 3-cent increase over six months.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said the administration expects only "minimal impact" on the economy from the end of controls — either abrupt or long-term. One reason, he said — is that the economy is showing signs of recovering more strongly than expected.

Speaking Monday at a news conference following the first meeting of the Governor's Energy Advisory Council, Gov.

Dolph Briscoe said he learned of the anti-allocation stand at a meeting with the President and several other governors in Washington last week.

"I was particularly encouraged that the administration took a firm position that there would be no attempt to preempt or allocate intrastate supplies of natural gas," he said. "There was a real danger that the administration might try to make that part of its energy program."

Briscoe said he also was pleased "most of the governors present from energy-consuming states recognized the need to deregulate the price of natural gas."

He said the governors made no new predictions of energy shortages this winter but said possible natural gas shortages in North Carolina and other states, which had been predicted prior to the meeting, were discussed.

Coming Down

Wilson Wrecking Co. of Lubbock began tearing down the old Pampa Junior High School building on Labor Day and terms of their contract call for them to have the lot cleared of the old school in 120 days, said Floyd Watson, president of the First National Bank. The bank purchased the junior high and property from the Pampa Independent School District recently. Watson said the wrecking company plans to dispose of some of the salvaged materials on location. He also said that arrangements have been made to place the cornerstone of the building in the White Deer Lands Museum.

Pampans Plea for City To Join Flood Program

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Pampa city commissioners listened sympathetically today to appeals for the city to join the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program, but expressed hesitancy in being "forced into participation" in something they do not thoroughly understand.

Four or five Pampans including Kay Fancher of Panhandle Insurance Agency, Walter Kerr, builder; Lee Fraser of Fraser Insurance Agency, and I.W. Tinney, builder, all urged the commission to take part in the program to relieve what they termed "a financial burden to home builders and property owners" unable to obtain federal FHA and VA loans for building construction and for the sale of property in what the government has declared to be flood-prone areas inside the city limits.

Each spokesman said he appreciated the commission's reluctance to accept "more federal encroachment," but added that there seemed to be no alternative for financial relief to those with property in the designated flood areas.

Commissioner Joe Curtis asked if any consideration had been given to what the city would be obligating itself if Pampa decided to participate in the flood insurance program.

Fancher told commissioners he had been unable to learn of any specific commitments the city would have to make.

Kerr said he had been informed that if the city joins the program the federal government would send in engineers to resurvey the city to determine if some of the areas needed to be removed from flood-prone designation.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson told the group it was not an easy decision for the commissioners to make.

"However," he said, "we will give it further study and report back on what action to take."

In other business today commissioners approved on first reading an ordinance increasing municipal water, sanitation and sewer rates.

The legislation would increase the minimum water rate from $4.30 to $4.50 per month, garbage and trash collection for single family residences from $3 to $4.50 a month and sewer service from $2 to $2.80 per month plus 10 cents for each fixture over five.

Commercial rates for sanitation and sewer services would be increased approximately 25 per cent for various types of services.

Also approved on first reading were ordinances setting the city's operating budget at $3,031,954 and the tax rate at $1.95 for fiscal 1975-76 starting Oct. 1.

The new operating budget is approximately 10.7 more than the budget for the fiscal year.

The tax rate is a boost of five cents over the $1.90 rate now in effect. City Manager Mack Wofford said the five-cent tax rate increase was due to the $300,000 bond issue recently approved by city voters to pay the city's share of the cost of the proposed $1.4 million sewage treatment plant.

Wofford said $1.18 cents of the tax per $100 assessed property valuation will go to pay operating expenses and the other 77 cents will go to paying off general obligation bonds.

Commissioners approved on final reading the annexation of 19 lots in the Northeast Addition just north of the city water tower. The annexation had been requested by builders who plan to construct the first block of new homes in that area.

In connection with the annexation commissioners set Oct. 14 for a public hearing on a zoning change of the lots from agricultural to single-family — 2 construction.

An ordinance regulating burglar alarms in the city was passed on second and final reading.

Commissioners approved a request of the Yellow Cab Co. to move its headquarters to the Crystal Lounge 535 W. Brown.

Approval was given for emergency purchase of a 4-door police sedan to replace one damaged in a traffic accident two weeks ago. The low bid of $3,778.63 was accepted from Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet Co.

Workman's Comp Intervenes In $1 Million Suit Here

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., carriers of workmen's compensation for Packerland in April when Daniel Gary Dalton, 20, died in a fire at the plant, seeks reimbursement of the money they have spent and will spend in the case.

The Guaranty Co. has intervened in the $1 million lawsuit filed here as a result of the death.

The widow, Rebecca Jean Dalton, 20, and her 15-month-old son filed the suit in 31st District Court here.

Defendants are Southwest Vault Builders of Dallas and Cook Paint and Varnish Co. of Houston.

Dalton died while working at Packerland when a fire broke out April 16.

Mrs. Dalton alleges that during the construction of the plant, Southwest Builders installed a "spray on" type insulation commonly known as polyurethane on the walls and the ceiling. She further contends that the insulation was thought to be fire resistant, while in truth it was extremely inflammable as to be explosive.

She said her husband was working according to instructions from his employer, Packerland.

He was cutting a steel wall with an acetylene torch when a nearby ceiling, which had been covered with polyurethane, burst into flames causing his death the widow alleges. She states that her husband tried to escape, but failed.

Cook Paint and Varnish Co. sold the polyurethane to Southwest Builders, who installed it in the vault room, according to Mrs. Dalton. She contends that the polyurethane was a defective product at the time of the sale.

Both defendants have filed general denials in the case.

Guaranty spokesmen say that firm carried workmen's compensation for the employer of he deceased, and "accepted the case as compensable under the death provisions of workman's compensation statutes."

The workman's compensation benefits in the Dalton case have not been determined at this time.

The intervenor, according to the petition, is continuing to pay and by reason of such payments, past, present — and those for which it is obligated in the future — seeks reimbursement.

The reimbursement request includes the full amount of compensation and medical expenses in addition to the amount it pays up to the time of the suit.

The original suit was filed July 28, but no trial date has yet been scheduled.

NY Teachers Strike

United Press International

New York City's 80,000 teachers went on strike against the nation's largest public school system today, forcing up to 1.1 million more children to do without normal classroom instruction.

The New York strike, a continuing Chicago walkout and smaller strikes in nine other states left more than two million students to enjoy extended vacations or sit in cold or half-empty classrooms. San Francisco also faced a strike threat.

Their contract expired at 12:01 a.m. EDT today and New York teachers voted overwhelmingly to strike to protest layoffs, increased class sizes and a longer work week.

Thousands of United Federation of Teachers members filled Madison Square Garden Monday night and others crowded the sidewalks surrounding the garden, unable to gain entrance as the union voted to strike.

UFT president Albert Shanker predicted the strike would be 100 per cent effective. However, schools were ordered open for all but 129,000 students who are bused to school. The school board said pupils who walk, use public transportation or private cars were expected to show up.

"Salary is not the issue," Shanker told the teachers. "The issue is conditions in the schools. They are a danger both to the babies and the babysitters and that we will not go for it."

Schools were closed to 530,000 Chicago public school students for a fifth day today as teachers marched picket lines. The governing board of the Chicago Teachers Union rejected the board's latest contract offer Monday. Negotiations were to resume today.

Members of the San Francisco Classroom Teachers Association were to meet Thursday to discuss possible strike action in a dispute over working conditions and wages. The San Francisco chapter of the American Federation of Teachers threatened to strike Wednesday if no agreement can be worked out.

Strikes in Berkeley, Calif., and suburban San Jose affected 24,000 students.

Teachers strikes affected 65,000 students in 10 Rhode Island communities and 140,000 students in Pennsylvania, Seattle, Wash., schools were open to the city's 66,000 students but were without heat, showers or food service because of a custodians' strike.

Strikes in Long Island and upstate New York affected some 41,000 students.

The teachers were angered by layoffs, increased class size and demands that they work longer hours today struck the nation's largest public school. The walkout by the 80,000 member United Federation of Teachers affected 1.1 million elementary and high school students.

A UFT spokesman said the teachers approved the strike action 22,870 to 900 in a secret ballot taken Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

Pickets were marching outside the city's public schools before today's scheduled start of classes.

Sylvia Roman, a stenography and typewriting teacher and one of nine pickets outside Central Commercial High School in mid-Manhattan, said, "I feel terrible. I'd much rather be working but we can't work under these conditions with 45 kids in a class. It's no longer school, it's just custodial care."

The pickets carried signs reading "Breaking Teachers is No Break for Kids" and "45 Kids Per Class is No Class."

Mark Huberman, a social studies teacher, said if the strike "goes beyond a week it could be similar to 1968 which lasted two months. We're hoping for some kind of intervention."

"I think we can last as long as we have to," Miss Roman said.

JFK Assassination Reopened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker Monday asked the Senate to authorize another investigation into the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy to find out what if any connection Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby had with U.S. intelligence agencies.

The Pennsylvania Republican introduced a resolution asking that the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, of which he is a member, be mandated to "Fully investigate matters relating to the death of former President John F. Kennedy, including the extent, if any, to which Lee Harvey Oswald or Jack Ruby was involved in, or the subject of, activities of U.S. intelligence agencies and the extent to which U.S. intelligence agencies effectively gathered, analyzed and disclosed to the President's Commission all information requested by or relevant Schweiker charged that the CIA and FBI withheld evidence from the original presidential commission constituted by the late President Lyndon B. Johnson after Kennedy's death.

The original commission, headed by the late Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren, concluded that Oswald shot the President from a Dallas storage house window Nov. 22, 1963, and Ruby killed Oswald two days later. Ruby died of natural causes in 1967 while awaiting trial.

"It said there was no sign of a conspiracy involving anyone but Oswald."

A presidential commission on CIA activities, headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, said in its final report this June that "there is no credible evidence that either Lee Harvey Oswald or Jack Ruby was ever employed by the CIA or ever acted for the CIA in any capacity whatever, either directly or indirectly."

Schweiker said Monday there now was evidence from declassi-fication files that the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover at first "lied" under oath that Ruby was not an FBI informer and the agency later admitted it.

Schweiker also said there were anomalies in Oswald's treatment by official U.S. agencies before and after he went to the Soviet Union, renounced and then regained his citizenship and returned to the United States to kill Kennedy. He suggested that there was a CIA link to Oswald — "it looks like someone out there cared for Oswald."

But Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Tower, R-Tex., chairman and vice chairman of the investigative panel on intelligence, said in a joint statement after Schweiker's resolution that "We do not think there is sufficient evidence to justify recommending to Congress that there be a reopening of the Warren Commission's work."

In Los Angeles, new investigation into the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy is moving on two fronts despite objections from the Kennedy family.

Six ballistics experts were named Monday to test the pistol used by convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan, and a city council committee delved into police handling of the case.

The late senator's family opposed the new investigation, but councilman Zev Yaroslavsky, who initiated the council's action, said, "Our job here is not to be concerned about the Kennedy family."

"I know there is sensitivity there."

The six experts were agreed on by attorneys to conduct a court-ordered retesting of Sirhan's gun. Sirhan's attorney has the right to name a seventh man to the panel.

Judges Here Reveal Most Beautiful Yards

A dozen members of the Pampa Garden Club completed judging of Pampa's Most Beautiful Yards Contest Monday and awards for first, second and third places in the six divisions will be made during October, according to Herman Whately, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce City Beautification Committee which sponsored the competition.

Yard winners included Division I 1st, Mr and Mrs H.S. Ayers of 1212 21st Street, 2nd, Mr and Mrs Tom Price of 1221 18th Street, 3rd, Mr and Mrs Robert W. Germany of 1801 Zimmers.

Division II 1st, Mr and Mrs H.L. Porche of 2525 Charles, 2nd, Mr and Mrs Bob Tripplehorn of 1801 Russell, 3rd, Mr and Mrs Eugene C. Sidwell of 1901 Charles.

Division III 1st, Mr and Mrs Henry McClelland of 2205 Aspen, 2nd, Mr and Mrs Ralph Eason of 2149 Aspen, 3rd, Dr and Mrs Malcolm McDaniel of 1940 Evergreen.

Division IV 1st, Mr and Mrs Hank Fiel of 445 Jupiter, 2nd, Mr and Mrs Garland Gray of 737

Lefors, 3rd, Mr and Mrs John L. Cooper of 528 Powell.

Division V 1st, Mrs Bessie Keaton of 344 Tignor, 2nd, Mr and Mrs L.O. Thornton of 420 Graham, 3rd, Mr and Mrs C.A. Jones of 913 E. Barnard.

Division VI 1st, Mr and Mrs Adrain Carnage of 1029 S. Banks, 2nd, Mr and Mrs J.J. Alexander of 1201 S. Sumner, 3rd, Mr and Mrs William Prock of 1022 S. Banks.

There were no categories for businesses, but some local business locations received honorable mention from the judges. They include Culberson Stowers Chevrolet, Hobart Street Baptist Church, Post Office, First Christian Church, Dan Carter Phillips 66 Service Station, and the Coronado Conoco Service Station.

Judges, under the direction of Mrs. Rue Hestand, included Mrs. W.V. McArthur, Mrs. A.B. Cross, Mrs. Bert Robinson, Mrs. Marion Brown, Mrs. E.L. Hudson, Mrs. H.H. Boynton, Mrs. J.R. Spearman, Mrs. J.A. Knox, Mrs. J.V. Young Sr., Mrs. Booker Mohon, and Mrs. James McCune.

OFFICIAL IGNORANCE Blunder On Packer Bonding

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — It is to be hoped the normal decision-making process in the Ford White House is far above the sloppy incompetence that resulted in President Ford's decision to oppose legislation to require the bonding of meat packers to protect livestock producers.

Sympathetic Republicans such as Senator Carl Curtis, the Nebraska conservative, have commented "they just didn't know what they were doing in this case," but Democratic critics have called it "an ignorant decision" and characterized it as symbolic of faulty decision-making on energy, economics, and world diplomacy.

"It is a case of the blind leading the blind," commented Representative Neal Smith (Dem., Ia.). "We've suspected it on other policies, but in this case the record is now clear that those responsible for the opposition to packer bonding had no experience or understanding of livestock marketing."

Privately, key White House advisers admit the White House staff, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Justice Department made a major blunder in opposing the packer bonding legislation strongly recommended by the Agriculture Department.

But, instead of admitting the errors publicly, those advisers now are trying quietly to switch positions on the issue. This indicates grave weakness in the Ford White House.

It could be tragic for the nation and for the world if other policies "to deregulate business" are being initiated and pushed through by people with such superficial understanding of the issues as those men whose advice prevailed in rejection of legislation to require packer bonding.

Under normal circumstances, a heavy layer of secrecy makes it impossible to penetrate White House decision-making processes and pin responsibility on the errant or uninformed officials.

But a number of unusual circumstances related to the packer bonding legislation has made it possible to explore and reveal almost the entire decision-making process in this incredible situation.

Since 1958, more than 40 meat packing firms had gone out of business owing farmers and ranchers more than $20 million for cattle and hogs paid for with worthless checks but slaughtered and marketed before the farmers and ranchers realized the firm was insolvent.

Farm organizations from the conservative American Farm Bureau to the liberal-oriented National Farmers Union agreed that the packers should be brought under the bonding regulations of the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 that already required bonding by stockyards, commission houses, and commission men who purchased livestock from farmers and ranchers.

Big meat packers had effectively opposed this legislation until the stunning financial collapse of American Beef Packers, Inc., of Omaha, in January, 1975.

More than 1,200 livestock producers were left with worthless American Beef checks totaling more than $22 million for cattle and hogs delivered in the days just prior to the time the firm filed for bankruptcy.

The repercussions of this financial collapse resulted in renewed demands for packer bonding. More than 20 state legislatures put through widely varying bonding requirements, and the packing industry faced with a multiplicity of state laws and regulations, finally came around to support federal legislation as essential for uniformity.

Livestock marketing experts and technicians from the Packers and Stockyards Administration helped draft the bipartisan reform legislation that was introduced by Senator Curtis and Senator Dick Clark, the liberal Iowa Democrat.

Even Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, usually an outspoken critic of government regulations, became convinced that federal packer bonding legislation was needed.

Butz' recommendation went to the White House with the initial assumption that it would routinely receive White House approval. However, that assumption did not take into account a routine referral to the Justice Department by the office of Management and Budget.

In the Justice Department, the measure again was routinely referred to the anti-trust division, and routinely ended up on the desk of a young and inexperienced 1974 law school

Oil Price Controls

What damages the credibility of the private enterprisers is that often a spokesman for that community sides with government interference in market place activity.

Usually there is a variety of reasons, all of which amount to expediency, but the net result is that the consumer is left with the suggestion that the private enterpriser believes in the market place rule — "However..."

Another translation might be that the enterpriser is saying "we've got ours made, let's not rock the boat."

These comments are prompted by the remarks of Rawleigh Warner Jr., chairman of Mobil Oil Co. who opposes the immediate decontrol of oil prices.

Warner may be correct in his appraisal that the shock would create trouble for the consumer in the form of high prices, but he might have served the consuming public better had he pointed out that the difficulty with oil prices in the first place has resulted from government interference with the oil industry. He could have used his forum as an educational platform, advising the consuming public of the error of government interference. Instead, his remarks come down

BACK TO SCHOOL Desegregation Petering Out

By JOHN KRAFT
The return to school this year registers an undoubted failure for American democracy. The drive for racial desegregation in the Northern cities has petered out.

The best sign of what has happened is a Justice Department list of school districts where new desegregation plans, or modifications of old ones, are being put into effect this year. The list is remarkable for only one thing — skimpiness. There are only 20 school districts across the length and breadth of the land where new legal action to promote desegregation is even being contemplated.

Eleven of these districts are in five Southern states which are now completing the desegregation process initiated by the Supreme Court 20 years ago. That includes three districts each in Alabama and Texas, two in Mississippi and Tennessee, and one in Louisiana.

The most prominent big Northern cities are undertaking no action at all. There is nothing happening in Chicago or Philadelphia or Los Angeles or, except for a junior high school in Coney Island, New York City.

Most of the Northern cities where desegregation action is underway are very special cases. Detroit, for example. In a landmark case last year, the Supreme Court rejected a plan for desegregation by busing between the white suburbs and the black center city on the ground there was no proof that the suburban school districts had been established primarily for racial reasons. Now the Detroit school board and the courts are working out a plan for desegregation of the center city in a way that does not touch the suburbs.

Three other major cases — Indianapolis, Louisville and Wilmington, Del., are cities where the logic of the Detroit decision cuts the other way. In each of these cities there was evidence that the breakdown between suburbs and center city was designed to promote school segregation. So in these three cities, there are going forward — subject to court decisions — plans for transfer of students between the downtown and the suburbs.

Finally there are a handful of cases where desegregation action in Northern cities is being forced by a specially persistent black leadership with access to particularly resourceful legal advice. Boston, where a new

Confusing, Not Amusing

When the federal government began adding import taxes to oil coming into the country, it was done in the name of conservation. The import tax would make gasoline more expensive for consumers, it was argued, consequently, they would buy and use less of it.

So far, so good. But now, things begin to get a little stickier.

Now, when it is proposed that oil prices be decontrolled, some of the same government officials who were for the import taxes in the interest of conservation now jump to the other side of the fence. Decontrolling oil prices, they

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Would like to compliment you on the article of Aug. 28, 1975 on Packerland. I agree with all that was said by the people about the horrible smell. We live east and south of the plant and we get the same smell.

One of my main complaints is the water pressure. We at times don't have enough pressure to flush the commode, run bath water, washing machines or dishwasher.

We have all complained to the City about not having water pressure and we have received some very weak answers. One man, a Mr. Anderson, did say it was the packing plant that was taking the pressure.

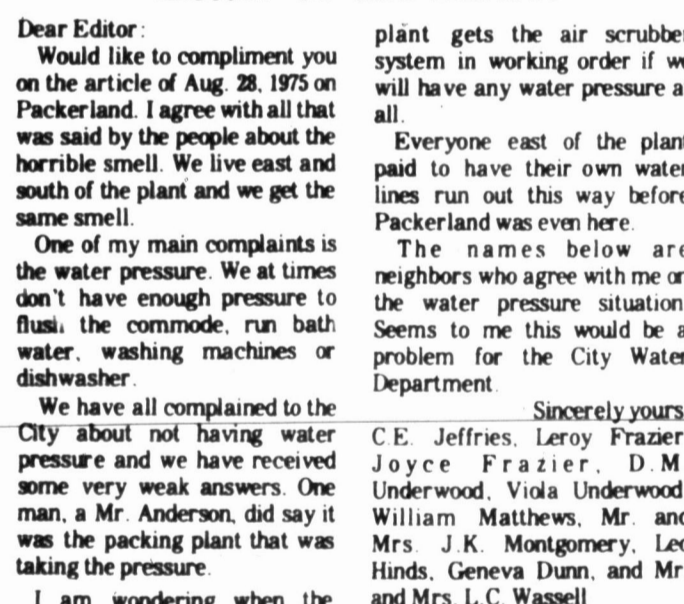

I am wondering when the plant gets the air scrubber system in working order if we will have any water pressure at all.

Everyone east of the plant paid to have their own water lines run out this way before Packerland was even here.

The names below are neighbors who agree with me on the water pressure situation. Seems to me this would be a problem for the City Water Department.

Sincerely yours,
C.E. Jeffries, Leroy Frazier, Joyce Frazier, D.M. Underwood, Viola Underwood, William Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. J.K. Montgomery, Leo Hinds, Geneva Dunn, and Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Wassell

Telltale Signs to Catch A Cheat

DEAR ABBY: All I can say is, "thanks a whole bunch" for giving a husband a few tips on how he can tell if his wife has been out with another man: ("gets all dressed up to go shopping, comes home late, out of breath, with no packages, and her pantyhose inside out").

Well, there have been times when I got all dressed up to go shopping, came home late and out of breath with no packages, and maybe my pantyhose was inside out because that's the way I put it on, but it didn't mean I had been with another man!

I have a very jealous husband, and that item in your column sure didn't help matters much.

Since you gave me tips on how to tell if their wives are cheating, how about giving wives a few tips on how to tell if their husbands have been fooling around.

CAMILLUS, N.Y.

DEAR CAM: A cinch: When a husband suddenly starts wearing his best clothes to work, says he's working "overtime" but doesn't have the money to show for it, puts extra miles on the car, sometimes gets lost all day Saturday, smiles and whistles a lot and starts telling you what a great, understanding wife you are — watch out!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old widow. I have a good job, my home is paid for and I'm able to take care of myself. I've been keeping company with a 34-year-old man for two years. (We are not living together.) We got along very well, but I can't see this relationship leading to marriage.

I was very lonely before I met him, but when we are in public, I feel uncomfortable. I'm afraid people will think I am his mother. The age difference never seems to bother him, but it bothers me.

Also I'm afraid my daughter and son (they are 30 and 27) think I'm making a fool of myself.

What's wrong with me, Abby? Other widows my age would give their right arm to be in my shoes.

TOO OLD FOR HIM.

DEAR TOO: Your signature is the tipoff. If you feel that you're too old for him, you are. If you can't rid yourself of that feeling, try an older model for comfort.

DEAR ABBY: "Warm in Georgia" asked if there was a dress code for church.

It seems a young married woman came to church in a halter with her bare middle showing. You said, "Common sense and a little old-fashioned respect for a house of worship are all the dress rules necessary."

Well, I'm only 17, but I could have given a better answer than yours. What the heck difference does it make what that girl wears to church? The point is that she's there worshipping God.

I'm sure it makes no difference to God if she was stark naked or wearing her Sunday best.

WORSHIPS IN CUTOFFS

DEAR WORSHIPS: It may make no difference to God, but how about a little consideration for the other worshippers?

Floods Sweep Callup

GALLUP, N.M. (UPI) — The Rio Puerco rushed over its banks Monday, sending flood waters up to six feet deep through a couple of blocks in the middle of town, causing extensive damage to businesses and homes.

Police said no injuries were reported, although several cars were completely covered by mud and water and several families were temporarily evacuated from their homes.

Greatest damage was to a handful of businesses.

City crews in heavy trucks bladed the mud from streets and surveyed the area assessing the damage which occurred in two hours of flooding before the water receded.

Even after the river returned to its banks the only vehicles which could navigate some of the mud filled streets were National Guard trucks with four rear wheels, deputy police chief Frank Gonzales said.

The flood area, mainly a couple of blocks paralleling the river to the north, was hardest hit by more serious flash flooding in the spring of 1972.

One of the business places most severely damaged both in 1972 and Monday was Sutherland Furniture Co. The establishment, owned by Lee R. Davis and his wife Gertrude, had just reopened in July after a $110,000 fire last spring.

"We lost everything we had three years ago," Mrs. Davis said. "It took the whole front of the building then."

She said the flood hit at about 6 p.m. Monday and seven employees and four customers barricaded the doors to keep the water out and started stacking appliances and furniture.

She said the building's east wall pulled away from the foundation and water started coming in.

"There are 20 people in here now, scooping mud, trying to save the floor," Mrs. Davis said. "We'll be here the better part of the night."

Mrs. Davis said the rushing water "floated" a barber shop across the street from her store. She said she saw a drunk man toppled by the rushing water while trying to retrieve his hat.

"All I could see was arms turning over and over," she said. "Someone pulled him into the store as he was rolling down the street."

She said her husband, who was away from the store when the flood struck, had to leave his pickup truck and wade through deep mud after the river returned to its banks.

Gonzales said a flood-control project was scheduled to begin soon.

"They finally got the (federal) money for the project. It was to start in about 10 days," he said.

The deputy chief said all off-duty police were called in to help with the flooding emergency.

He said the flooding closed off the Santa Fe Railway tracks.

"We couldn't cross the tracks. It also put some water onto Interstate 40."

Cambodian Prince Returns Triumphant

HONG KONG (UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk ended five and a half years of exile and made a triumphant return to Cambodia today, the Phnom Penh radio announced.

The radio, monitored in Bangkok, said Sihanouk and members of the new Cambodian administration arrived at Phnom Penh airport at 1 p.m. from Peking, where the prince pledged to help build a "people's democracy" in his native land.

The New China News Agency said the Cambodian chief of state flew to Phnom Penh this morning after Chinese leaders gave him a warm sendoff at Peking airport.

NCNA news agency said "tens of thousands" cheered the 52-year-old prince as he drove through Tienanmen Square in the heart of the Chinese capital.

The report said thousands of others were at the airport to join China's leaders in "a grand sendoff ceremony" for Sihanouk, titular leader of Cambodia's Communist regime.

At a banquet, before leaving Peking, Sihanouk pledged to "sincerely serve the cause of world peace" and build "a truly people's democracy turning our society into a society with only one class."

He said Cambodia would pursue a policy of "nonalignment" in foreign affairs, but in almost the same breath he demanded an end to America's "military occupation of South Korea," pledged "unconditional and unflinching support" to Palestinian guerrillas and called for the "prompt return of Taiwan" to China.

Sihanouk thanked China for helping him set up an exile government after he was ousted in a March, 1970, right-wing coup that plunged Cambodia into full-scale war.

Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, the Chinese leaders most responsible for the Communist victory in Cambodia last spring, didn't attend the banquet. Chou was too ill, Mao too old.

Cambodian Prime Minister Pen Nouth and Deputy Prime Minister Kheue Samphan accompanied Sihanouk on the flight from Peking to Phnom Penh.

Kheue Samphan left Cambodia last month in an attempt to convince the prince to return home. Diplomatic sources said the two men managed to resolve undisclosed differences.

Politics start at home...Senator Max Sherman

Sherman Urges Citizens To Study Amendments

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff

Politics should be the part-time profession of every citizen, State Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo told a capacity audience at the monthly meeting of the Top O' Texas Democratic Club Monday night in the Hospitality Room of Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

"Government is managed by people selected and elected through political processes," Sherman said, "and it works best when people really participate in it."

The senator stated politics is organized group action, adding that it is also local as well as state and national.

"It all starts at the grassroots level," Sherman said.

The speaker, who was introduced by club president J.D. Holmes, argued his listeners to read and study the proposed new Texas Constitution which will be placed before voters at the November election.

He explained that copies of the document are supposed to be mailed from the office of the secretary of state to every household in the state.

Senator Sherman called attention to the need for Texans to re-register in order to be eligible to vote.

"Next year is a presidential year," he said, "and all of our people need to be qualified to vote."

The senator also discussed the Courts Bill which would create 22 new district courts in Texas, including one for Gray County.

Sherman said the bill needed to be voted on one more time in the Senate when the last session of the Legislature ended at midnight on its 140th day.

He said Senator Mauzy of Dallas raised a point of order that the last vote on the measure could not be taken because the time was past midnight.

"That was how the bill died," Sherman said.

In a question and answer period, Sherman discussed the new Texas Utilities Commission and stated it will be about a year before it is completely organized and really becomes effective.

Other speakers included Sheriff Rufe Jordan, District Judge Grainger McIlhany and County Judge Don Cain, all of whom touched on various aspects of crime and law enforcement.

The monthly meetings of the Top O' Texas Democratic Club, are according to president Holmes, to bring the people in closer touch with elected officials and to acquaint the public with governmental operations.

The next meeting will be on Monday, Oct. 6.

Texas City Again Gets Desegregation Orders

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — For the fourth time this year, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ordered a school district in New Braunfels, Tex., to expand its desegregation efforts.

The appeals court Monday told the New Braunfels Independent School District to end 65 years of discrimination against Mexican-Americans. Earlier the 5th Circuit issued desegregation orders against school districts in the Dallas area and in Midland, Tex.

In Monday's ruling, the appeals court rejected a desegregation plan which a federal district court earlier had approved for the New Braunfels district.

"The record demonstrates that the NBISD has a history of deliberately segregating Chicanos going back to 1910 when the first Mexican school was built," the 5th Circuit said. "The existing isolation of Mexican-American students was a result of NBISD's long-standing segregatory intent."

From CIA Interpreter To Cong Colonel Ranks Filled with Cong

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Only now can it be seen in South Vietnam just how riddled with Viet Cong were the ranks of the pro-American administrations in that country.

Familiar names and faces pop up daily. Some of the most fanatic anti-Communists, it seems, were working all along for the other side.

My personal souvenir of Vietnam is one of those pith helmets worn by combat troops of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

It is personally autographed by the military police commander who gave it to me. He worked for years inside the South Vietnamese Central Intelligence Agency headquarters while waiting for the Viet Cong victory.

A new province chief today is a Viet Cong lieutenant colonel who also holds rank in the North Vietnamese army. His former job was chief translator and interpreter for U.S. CIA agents in his home province.

The day Viet Cong forces captured his home province, he was with the American adviser there. He was considered by all Americans who knew him to be a dedicated anti-Communist who likely would have his head chopped off by any North Vietnamese troops who captured him.

An American still in Vietnam recently did a survey of the 20 Vietnamese who had worked in his architect's office before the Provisional Revolutionary Government took over the nation April 30.

Card-carrying members of the PRG included the chief surveyor — who was in charge of drawing plans for highly classified ammunition storage sites and bases — and an office maid who emptied the trash every day.

The surfacing of these long-time Communist agents is an education in security and intelligence. It makes it clear the Communist side had good security and intelligence, while the American side had little or none.

Names of men in the Communist hierarchy, totally unknown to sophisticated agents of the American CIA, pop up almost daily.

News men scour old documents and files trying to find out who are men such as Nguyen Van Linh, Vu Van Kiet — and often find no hint as to their former jobs.

Since May, these men — and other mysterious names like them — have appeared on reviewing stands at important celebrations. On official lists, their names appear before those of better-known Viet Cong, indicating they are the real powers in the new government.

According to the lists, most are members of the shadowy People's Revolutionary Party — the Communist party in South Vietnam.

"It was not possible before our victory to speak of these men, because they were in very sensitive jobs," a foreign ministry spokesman in Saigon said.

U.S. intelligence once estimated about 20,000 Viet Cong agents had infiltrated U.S. and South Vietnamese ranks. The number was probably right.

No one realized, however, just how high the penetration went.

Ford Predicts GOP Will Win If....

By United Press International

President Ford predicts widespread election gains for the Republican party next year "if we join arms and work together."

He addressed about 300 party and elected officials in the White House East Room Monday night and said he would keep traveling around the country to help raise funds for the GOP.

Party chairwoman Mary Louise Smith told the crowd Ford's efforts have brought in $1.7 million and that he "has done more than any other single individual in 1975... to get the Republican party back on the road to victory."

Ford said he hoped "every state organization can enter 1976 with a balanced budget and money in the bank."

Next year, he said, "we can win, and I believe we will win, if we join arms and work together. That's the best insurance I know for a happy day after election day, 1976."

Ford said he would stick to his current campaign themes, emphasizing "fiscal responsibility," expansion of free enterprise and "more local control" over programs funded largely by the federal government.

Senators Turn Down Allowance

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Four senators have decided to turn down a $30 per day expense allowance permitted them during a three week recess in the impeachment trial of District Judge O.P. Carrillo.

Under the constitution, the senators are entitled to receive the daily expense allowance even though they are not in Austin and the trial is in recess.

Sens. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, Grant Jones, D-Abilene, and Mike McKinnon, D-Corpus Christi, all notified Senate secretary Charles Schnabel Monday they do not want to be paid for the days they are not in Austin for the impeachment session.

The Senate met Sept. 3 to consider the impeachment charges against Carrillo, then voted to recess until Sept. 29 to allow Carrillo to be tried on federal tax charges in Corpus Christi.

Robinson Pleads Guilty

Nathaniel Robinson Jr. pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated in Gray County Court Monday.

He was scheduled for a jury trial and the prospective jurors were present. Lawyers had begun to make their challenges when Robinson changed his plea from innocent to guilty.

Judge Don Cain fined him $200, sentenced him to 30 days in jail and granted a six months probated term.

School Boycott Eases For Louisville Students

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — There were indications today that a boycott of schools might be easing as several buses rolled up to a school in the heart of an antibusing neighborhood jammed with students.

At Fairdale High, scene of antibusing demonstrations last Friday, one bus pulled in with standing room only.

"I'm very pleased. It looks like a lot more are back today," said assistant Principal Don Matlock.

"My mom believes things have cooled off and it's safe," said Lillian Max, a senior at Fairdale.

At Southern High, located in another community of strong antibusing sentiment, several loaded buses pulled into the school, although another was nearly empty.

Louisville experienced its first calm night Monday since a

Young Seeks Compensation For Injury

A Pampa resident, Roselene Young, has named the Houston General Insurance Company as defendant in a civil suit in 31st District Court here as a result of an injury at the Pampa Nursing Center.

Ms. Young, an employee there on Aug. 14, says she sustained "serious, painful and disabling personal injuries."

The Houston General Insurance Co. carried the nursing home's workmen's compensation insurance.

Ms. Young seeks $70 weekly for 40 weeks. She says she has no medical training and cannot describe in exact medical language for her injuries, but adds that the lower back is injured.

Police Shield Boston Busses

BOSTON (UPI) — Student attendance increased at police-guarded public schools today after a troublesome night in which seven officers were injured and a firebomb hit the birthplace of President John F. Kennedy.

Two girls—one white, one black—in South Boston High School had what Headmaster William J. Reid described as a "racial" fight.

Seven policemen were injured during a series of rowdy incidents in the South Boston area during the night. One officer was hit with a dart, but was not hurt. Police arrested one person in the case on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

At Charlestown High, 358 students arrived for classes today—263 whites, 85 blacks and 10 others, officials said. Monday's attendance was 235 whites, 66 blacks and 14 others for a total of 315. The school has a projected total enrollment of 873 students.

Headmaster Reid said South Boston attendance today was 643 students, 234 more than on opening day. Public Safety Secretary Charles Barry said 160 blacks were at South Boston High today, compared with 89 Monday.

At the Conlon School today, one person was arrested on a charge of being disorderly.

50 Cases Set Here For Trial

Gray County Court convened this morning with a jury trial scheduled, however the jury's services were not needed.

John Warner, county attorney, apologized but added that in many cases a jury is the deciding factor, and defendants change their minds and their pleas.

No announcement was made of what type case was set for trial today, but Warner said 104 cases were scheduled for the week.

"And we anticipate 50 will be completed," he said.

He told the jury that a chemist from Lubbock would testify in marijuana cases and one from Amarillo on the workings of a breath analyzer in driving while intoxicated trials.

Three hundred witnesses were lined up for trials here, including several police officers who testify in more than one case.

Judge Don Cain explained that due process of law must be extended each defendant who has a right to change his or her plea at any time.

Jurors will return Wednesday. Warner said both a driving while intoxicated case and a drug related trial are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

County Sets Morning Meet In Courtroom

The Gray County Commissioners Court will meet at 10 a.m. Friday in the county courtroom.

Commissioners will consider a resolution regarding a tourist bureau proposal near Shamrock as requested by Representative Phil Cates.

Other items on the agenda include consideration of the welfare report, the treasurers report and certificates of cancellation regarding state and county taxes.

Portuguese Censors News

LISBON, Portugal (UPI)—A decision by the military regime to impose censorship on military news today provoked a chorus of complaints from Portugal's editors and reporters.

The Communist-controlled station Radio Clube criticized the move in several of its news broadcasts and at least two non-Communist afternoon newspapers said they planned to run complaining editorials.

"The military is not going to be able to solve its crisis by keeping the people in ignorance," one editor said. "These restrictions will only promote more rumors and make the crisis worse."

Several editors protested against the vagueness of the new law approved by the 23-man Revolutionary Council Monday night and indicated they may not bother to obey it.

"We won't voluntarily go against the law, but we don't understand what it is supposed to mean," Caceres Monteiro of the weekly newspaper O Jornal said. "We hope, however, that it will have the same destiny of many laws made in this country—it won't be carried out."

Raul Rego, the editor of the Socialist newspaper Luta, adopted a similar stance.

"I don't know yet whether we will obey it," he said.

The crackdown appeared to only affect the Portuguese press, but its restriction on the sources of information seemed certain to make the job of foreign newsmen more difficult as well.

Under the law only a few military officers at the top levels of government were given the right to comment to the press.

An editor at the afternoon newspaper A Capital called the move "the first step towards the reintroduction of full censorship."

As the press protested, President Francisco da Costa Gomes resumed his efforts to create a so-called "platform of understanding" with the political parties.

The president, who has met with the major parties several times, devoted himself to talks with the Popular Democratic Union, an insignificant left-wing splinter group, and the Popular Monarchist party. Between them, these two parties polled less than one per cent of the votes cast in the April elections for a constituent assembly.

The Revolutionary Council adopted the press restrictions, which forbids reporting about the military unless it is officially sanctioned, at an emergency meeting with the president.

The council, meeting under President Francisco da Costa Gomes, accused the national press of aggravating the two-month-old political crisis in Portugal.

Besides provoking confusion and alarm in public opinion, producing a loss of spirit and confidence in the population, it caused situations highly pernicious in the rank and file of the armed forces," the council said.

The council said the press had "excited and confused" the Portuguese people and encouraged divisions in the armed forces.

The restrictions, which took effect immediately, prohibited reports on military developments around the country as well as comments by individual servicemen.

The statement said only members of the Revolutionary Council would be permitted to grant interviews to the press on military matters.

The council said daily media would be suspended for 10 days for failing to comply with the restrictions. Weekly media would be suspended for 40 days under the decree.

Burglars Enter Office Of Braswell

Burglary, theft and aggravated assault incidents were all reported to the Pampa Police Department during the past 24 hours.

Dr. Roy Braswell of 1700 Duncan said someone entered his office through a window on the north side and took $58 in cash.

A burglary was reported at Furniture Exchange, 324 E. Tyn, but nothing was missing.

Morris Brown of Kellerville reported that while he was at the Moose Lodge in Pampa Saturday someone took a CB radio from his vehicle.

Thomas Reuteria DeLas Santos of Seminole was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon as a result of an accident on Mary Ellen several days ago.

Justice of Peace Ed Anderson set bond at $2,500.

Lt. Aufleger Is Awarded

Lt. Gene Aufleger of the Pampa Police Department has been awarded the Intermediate level of certification by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and Education.

Police Chief Richard Mills said the award is based on education, training and experience. Only 30 per cent of law enforcement officers receive this level of certification.

Lt. Aufleger is one of seven members of the Pampa Police Department who holds this certification.

Moslems, Christians Battle in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Moslem and Christian gunmen battled with rockets and mortars in the streets of Tripoli today, turning the city into a chaos of rubble, flame and death.

Police said at least 50 persons were killed and scores wounded in Monday's fighting, pushing the casualty toll for nine days of civil strife in northern Lebanon to nearly 300.

The sources said hundreds of shops and businesses in the mainly Moslem city, the second largest in Lebanon, were blown up during the day. Witnesses said Tripoli was in a state of chaos.

Roadblocks manned by Moslem and Christian militiamen cut off access to the city. Thick columns of black smoke could be seen spiraling upward in a dozen places.

Police said the Tripoli home of Tony Franjeh, the son of Christian President Sleiman Franjeh, was doused with gasoline and set ablaze by Moslems Monday. The fire was one of dozens that raged unchecked in the city.

On the streets, militiamen attacked each other with rockets, mortars and bullets. Police reported bomb blasts at the rate of one every two minutes.

In Beirut, Premier Rashid Karami called an emergency cabinet meeting to discuss ways to restore calm to the north and prevent the fighting from spreading to the capital, 50 miles south.

Battles between rival right-wing Christian and left-wing Moslem militias in Beirut last spring claimed more than 2,200 casualties.

But hopes for an early ceasefire received a setback late Monday when the fighting spilled over from Tripoli to the town of Zghorta, 9 miles to the east.

Some of the heaviest fighting was reported raging between supporters of the Christian president and Moslem premier.

The religious warfare threatened the already shaky balance of power in Lebanon, where Moslems and Christians share in running the government.

Karami's 10-week-old cabinet was reported divided over whether to call in the army to bolster the strength of the 5,000-man internal security force.

Karami is reluctant to call in troops for fear Moslems would react violently to intervention by the predominantly Christian led army.

Brothers Plead Guilty To Carrying Weapon

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A long-standing Spanish feud between two Gray County families unfolded Monday in 31st District when two brothers pleaded guilty to charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon on premises licensed to sell alcoholic beverages.

Marcasal and Predo Rodriguez, ages 32 and 26, of 1324 E. Frederic were given five year probation sentences and ordered to pay a $250 fine each in addition to monthly probation fees.

The charges stem from different incidents. Judge Grainger McIlhenny advised each of his rights including the right to appeal the probation sentences.

District Attorney Guy Hardin said both charges resulted from a feud between two Spanish families.

The Rodriguez brothers are two of 21 children. Their father, Frank Rodriguez, who operated the Royal Bar here, was murdered about six months ago, according to Pampa attorney Rowdy Bowers.

The two men testified that they have attempted to take care of their mother and the younger children picking up "where their father left off."

There are 16 persons living in the Rodriguez home at this time, including Marcasal his wife and five children, along with his mother, brothers and sisters.

Marcasal told the court his father was assaulted last year when leaving the bar.

"Two guys jumped him," Marcasal said.

"And they beat him up pretty good?" inquired Bowers. Marcasal said they did, and added that his father filed a complaint and "no one ever did anything about it."

Apparently the feud continued until Marcasal's younger brother received a message, according to the testimony.

He said he went to Dottie's place with a pistol in his boot. He said at the time his gun fired, he was in fear of his own life. Marcasal said he has been shot in the stomach eight times and is not able to work at this time.

"Everytime we sign a complaint they never do anything," Marcasal repeated to the court. He added that he is trying but he says he is followed.

"I even stopped drinking because I do not want to get into any more trouble. While we stay away from bars we have to take our wives to wash and to get groceries," Marcasal explained.

Marcasal completed the third grade in school and his brother, Predo, has never been to school.

They said their father's place has been closed since he was murdered.

Marcasal was his brother's interpreter. However, Predo understands some English and communicated with the court, himself on several occasions.

His charge stems from an incident at the Catalina Club on Jan. 11. He said he was inside his father's bar when he went to the Catalina and saw some guys who had given his brother trouble.

"I told them if there was any trouble we would go outside," he said.

Once outside Predo said he was going to solve the problems with a fist fight, but someone shot twice and he lost an eye.

"I shot back and hit him twice," he said. The other parties in the alleged feud were not identified in the testimony.

Predo is married and has stepchildren. He said his wife returned to Michigan after the incident and he hopes the court will allow him to go to her.

The judge, in granting probation, told both men they would be required to serve the five year term in prison if probation rules were not obeyed.

"And that means you can't have one swallow of beer," he added.

The men will be required to pay a $10 monthly probation fee and Marcasal must repay the county $250 for attorney fees in addition to the $250 fine.

Marcasal Rodriguez was scheduled for a jury trial and 110 Gray County residents were summoned to report for possible jury duty before Hardin received word that he wanted to plead guilty.

The jury was dismissed prior to the guilty plea and sentencing by the judge.

Malpractice Rates Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Some neurosurgeons in Texas will pay more than $14,000 a year for $100,000 worth of malpractice insurance under new rates approved by the State Insurance Board.

The latest rates, approved Monday, were 40 per cent lower than originally requested by the Texas Medical Liability Insurance Underwriting Association.

The rates affect "assigned risk" physicians, surgeons, hospitals, podiatrists and nurse anesthetists who can't get coverage on the open market, said insurance board chairman Joe Christie.

Under the rates, physicians in Harris County who don't do surgery will pay $1,800 a year for $100,000 in malpractice coverage. The same type physicians in other areas of Texas will pay $1,200.

Neurosurgeons and orthopedic surgeons will pay the highest premiums for the $100,000 coverage — $14,400 in Harris County and $9,600 in the remainder of the state. Premiums for plastic surgeons were set at $10,800 a year in Harris County and $7,200 in other areas.

Christie said the new rates for the assigned risk pool showed a turn for the better in Texas medical malpractice insurance.

"We set standardized rates for the open market on a one-year basis that have all but done away with the renewal dilemma, and we've gotten relief to those medical providers who haven't been able to find any form of insurance."

"I think this double-edged approach will keep a competitive market and at the same time provide insurance coverage to medical providers who might otherwise be forced to practice without liability insurance or quit providing medical care services for lack of insurance."

Analyzes Amendments

The eight proposed amendments aimed at revising Texas' 100-year-old constitution will be analyzed by the Amarillo League of Women Voters 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association, 1501 S. Polk.

The adoption of any one or all of the amendments to the constitution will be decided in a special state election Nov. 4.

The League of Women Voters supports the Alma eight amendments which would revise the present document. Although the League is a nonpartisan organization and does not support or oppose political parties or candidates, it does study and take a stand on issues. Constitutional Revision is one of the stands we have maintained for over 25 years, Miss Hall added.

At the present 220 amendments have been tacked to the Texas constitution compared with 21 amendments added to the U.S. Constitution in twice as many years, according to Miss Hall.

League studies reveal that voting on amendments in recent years costs the state $17,700 per amendment in printing costs alone.

The new constitution provided by the eight amendments would preserve the traditional aims of Texans by prohibiting the forced sale of homesteads and the garnishment of wages. It still allows local-option elections for the sale of alcoholic beverages and maintains the community property system. It also retains the tax exemptions for homestead, property used for educational and charitable purposes, actual places of worship, VFW property and property of disabled or deceased veterans.

The new constitution also provides a more efficient form of government with annual sessions of the legislature; legislators salaries set by a salary commission; a unified judicial system; home-rule extended to all cities with a population of 1,500-5,000; and a periodic review of state agencies by the governor," the league said.

Uganda Halts Elephant Hunt

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda has forbidden elephant hunting, the government announced during the weekend.

Because of skyrocketing prices paid for ivory in the past few years, poachers have been active throughout East Africa. Some officials fear that unless governments stop it, the world's last great elephant herds could be wiped out within a decade.

Space Agency May Resume Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency is considering resuming exploration of the moon in 1980 with a low cost, unmanned satellite that would map the entire lunar surface from orbit.

The proposed spacecraft, together with a small communications relay satellite, would gather information on a global scale that scientists need to help tie together the vast amount of data collected during the Apollo manned lunar expeditions.

"There's a lot of support for the mission from the lunar science community," said Marius Weinreb, manager of the project's study at the Goddard Space Flight Center in nearby Greenbelt, Md.

The project is now before NASA administrators faced with the task of formulating the agency's budget for the next fiscal year under the tight money restrictions of the White House. It is not known whether NASA will be permitted to start new projects in fiscal 1977 such as the lunar mission.

The satellite would be the first of its kind to study another body in the solar system. Previous orbiters of the moon and Mars have been concerned primarily with photographing the surface.

One of the most important missions of the proposed moon mapper would be to chart the lunar gravity field on a detailed, global scale. This is important because variations in the moon's gravity at certain points tell scientists something about the makeup of the moon itself which in turn relates to the moon's origin and evolution.

The lunar gravitational field is mapped by precise tracking of satellites as they orbit the moon. Gravitational quirks may raise or lower an orbit in places.

Scientists learned a lot about the gravity on the moon's front face from tracking Apollo moonships, but little is known about the gravity of the far side because the Apollos and earlier satellites were out of sight of Earth stations.

To correct that deficiency, the new satellite will be accompanied by a high orbiting relay satellite that would be able to "see" both the lower scientific satellite and the Earth at the same time and thus relay tracking and other scientific information to Earth.

The orbiter also would be equipped with x-ray and gamma ray sensors to map the main constituents of the lunar crust and other instruments to study the moon's slight magnetic field.

Weinreb said in an interview that the lunar rock samples brought back to Earth by Apollo astronauts can be checked to confirm the data being radioed back by the satellite.

Disciple Says Guru Became 'Too Wordly'

DENVER (UPI) — A former disciple of the Guru Maharaj Ji says he's leaving the Divine Light Mission because the teenage religious leader is too worldly.

"He does need one car but he doesn't need 15," Mahatma Vijayanand said Monday. "He doesn't need motorcycles, motor boats and all the houses he has. I came to realize the truth about eight or 10 months ago."

Vijayanand, 24, said the guru rented rooms in hotels and ate in "fancy restaurants (while) people in India are starving."

Earlier this year, the guru, 17, flew to New Delhi and attempted a reconciliation with his mother and brother who tried to take control of the Divine Light Mission in India. The guru's mother, said her son, a resident of Malibu, Calif., had become too worldly.

The Divine Light Mission claims to have a following of two million persons worldwide.

Joe Antel, press spokesman for the Divine Light Mission, said the Vijayanand's criticisms of were "his personal opinions." Antel also said Vijayanand might be unhappy because he was assigned to work in a mission grocery store.

Horse Death Protested

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver-based American Humane Association says the death of a horse during filming of a western movie in Montana probably will be protested to the Motion Picture Association of America.

The association said the horse died because the film crew was careless. The movie, starring Jack Nicholson, is about a group of horse rustlers in the 1880s.

Designer Talks Fashion

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Olive, fashion designer, believes that clothes, like children, should be seen and not heard.

"What I mean is that to be fashionable is to be observed, not noticed," said the Milwaukee-born Olive. "You don't dress to make an entrance, to make the whole room stop. We used to have that ostentation when total glamour was the goal. I called it chandelier dressing."

"I can remember when you would see a woman at nine in the morning so done up you wondered where she was going, or coming from."

"Oh, there might be an occasional reason for ostentation. But the multitude of women today just do not indulge in that kind of thing."

"Dress is softer, more personal."

Olive defined the fashionable woman as "distinctive looking in her clothes. She wears an air of confidence, of assurance."

And she certainly is not caught up in fashion's vagaries. "She knows what suits her," said the designer. "She builds a wardrobe. She does not change it every season. That era is gone."

In turn, Olive said, he "resents" dress that has become "too totally casual. I don't like seeing levis everywhere. If you're going to the theater, a fine restaurant beforehand, I think the woman should reward her escort by being attractive. Why I've even seen women dining out with pins in their hair."

But Olive is pleased that the era when one fashionable figure could set a whole nation of women copying her has ended. There is no longer a Jacqueline Kennedy, who as First Lady in the early 1960s had women by the millions emulating her dress, including the famous pillbox hat.

"It was terrible to see women thinking if they didn't wear a pillbox, they weren't smart," he said. "They just had to wear one, no matter how it looked."

And this comes from a man whose business since the 1950s has been millinery.

He got into ready-to-wear last year ("although hats are my first love") simply because he believes a designer has to consider the whole costume neck, what goes around the neck, what goes on the feet..."

His fall and winter leisure wear collection includes "sort of jumpers" in suedelike fabric and woollens, plus hostess dresses, skirts and vests, that work together in layered looks.

Olive takes his fashion message to women, and gets feedback from them, in regular visits to stores across the nation. He will leave his New York base Sept. 8 for a couple of days in New Orleans, and by the time he gets back in late October he will have visited stores and participated in fashion shows in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Seattle, San Francisco, Cleveland, Chicago, Washington, and Atlanta.

"To survive," he said in an interview, "you have to get out and see what's going on."

The creation of the "total look" should come readily to the designer. He began his career as a costumer.

Olive studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, but dropped out in his sophomore year to go into show business costuming.

He worked the show circuits of the West Coast and then came East "aiming for Broadway." The late, great designer Norman Norell saw some of his designs and suggested, "Why don't you do hats?"

Olive did — and succeeded. His trademarks are use of feathers, derbies, turbans, soft and crushable materials, jeweled evening or "theater" hats. His "cavalier," a version of a swaggering brim with enormous, long quill decoration has "copies in all price ranges — I wish I had the royalties," he said.

To Olive, the place for "drama" in dress is the hat, which he called "the number one accessory. There are few great bodies. But everyone has an interesting face."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

While vacationing we travel in many other states. We always become frustrated as we could never find the road map we wanted at the right time.

So one day I got a box as wide as the road maps are long, and cut it a bit higher than the maps are wide.

I then made file cards of lightweight cardboard, and filed all the state maps alphabetically. There was also room in the box for a few city maps and leaflets for interesting tours.

Needless to say, it simplified our map hunting considerably. Frances Everitt

Dear Heloise:

I have another use for nylon net. A few months ago, I bought a new vanity for my bathroom. The handles on the lavatory were shiny and smooth and I found that when my hands were wet and I tried to shut off the water, my hands would slip and wouldn't grip tightly enough to shut it off.

I used several thicknesses of the net to match the colors in my bathroom and placed over the knobs and tied them securely with nylon thread around the base.

I then trimmed the edges neatly and now find my hands no longer slip when I shut off the water. Mrs. Stella Placie

Dear Heloise:

To obtain pieces of raw cauliflower for dipping or for cooking, with a sharp knife cut most of the way through the solid stem (cutting from the bottom up, after trimming off the excess stem parts), then pull apart the rest of the way. This avoids cutting through the flowerettes and having little crumbled pieces of cauliflower flying in every direction. Mrs. Walter Sellers

Dear Heloise:

I find my drapes stay new looking for several years since I've started doing this. Mrs. Kinder

Great! If that sweet husband of yours comes up with any more such suggestions, send them along. We loved hearing from you and "yours."

Dear Heloise:

While cleaning the cellar, I was going to throw away some ice cube trays that never get used anymore, only to have my husband suggest I use them as baking pans.

Terrific! As they are aluminum, they won't rust and can be used over and over for breads and cakes, making two or three layer, long loaf cakes. Mary Dobin

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Instead of marking the burner controls on an electric range, "Left Front," "Left Rear," "Right Front," "Right Rear," in small letters, why not mark them in large letters, "FRONT" and "REAR."

Every cook knows her left from her right, but from the way I consistently turn the wrong burner on, it is obvious that I don't know my "Front" from my "Rear." Helen Bauer

Dear Heloise:

I have an idea that may help some frustrated gardeners.

We live in a new housing development without any fences at all, so far.

We had "trouble" with neighbor children and our vegetable garden until I got the worst offenders interested in the garden by letting them each plant something of their own. Overnight, their attitude changed, and they are so careful of balls, etc.; and their own little feet.

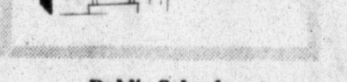

They also have the thrill of watching plants of their own grow and develop.

This idea takes a little extra time and trouble, but I can guarantee healthier vegetables and flowers. A Reader

Dear Heloise:

I hate to throw away greeting cards — birthday, baby, Christmas, etc. so I've come up with a terrific idea for everyone. Using an index card for a pattern, I cut around the greeting card and use them for recipe cards.

On the front, I write down the occasion, date and who sent the card. We received so many beautiful cards on the birth of our daughter. Wouldn't it be great to give these cards back to her when she marries, filled with all the good recipes she loved?

Texas' Jordan Sets Fast Pace

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

As women across the nation look for means to strengthen their political clout, they face a dilemma of leadership. Experienced, strong leaders aren't easy to find.

Shirley Chisholm is too blase and Bella Abzug is repellent to gather a large following. However, when Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., spoke up in that God-like voice of hers at the Watergate hearings, heads turned.

Who is this fast pacer from Texas who comes on, as Mark Twain would have said, "like a Christian-holding four aces?"

The daughter of a Houston Baptist minister, Jordan's religious upbringing no doubt accounts for her almost evangelistic style. She must believe, however, that God helps them who help themselves because she doesn't waste any time getting right to work.

When Jordan plunged into politics in 1962, blacks weren't doing well, and women weren't doing worse. Yet she's tallied an impressive list of firsts, the toughest of which was becoming the first black member of the Texas Senate since the Reconstruction.

After a second unsuccessful try for a state office, Jordan considered abandoning her dream of a political career, or perhaps moving to another state where resistance would be less. "I didn't want to do this. I am a Texan; my roots are in Texas," she said. At last, reapportionment made it possible for her to run in a precinct which was 38 per cent black, and she swept in with a 2-to-1 margin.

The first year she was voted "outstanding legislator." She then became president pro tempore of the Senate, and after two terms, easily won a seat in the U. S. House of Representatives.

As a member of the powerful Texas delegation, which controls nearly one-third of the standing House committees, Jordan found many doors open. Rep. Charles Wilson, who served with her in the Texas Senate, says, "I know there'll be some who disagree with me, but in my view, Barbara Jordan is the most influential member of Congress. I mean, if you're talking about one person who is able to get to just anybody, I don't care who it is, and make them stop and listen to what she has to say and convince them that she's right, then you're talking about Barbara."

Much of her success results from an independence and dedication to hard work, which sometimes irritates even civil rights groups. She doesn't always agree with the tactics of the House Black Caucus. "I am here simply because all those people in the 18th District of Texas cannot get on planes and buses and come to Washington to speak for themselves. They have elected me as their spokesman, nothing else, and my only job is to speak for them," she says.

The women's group in the House of Representatives would like to see more of her. "I attend meetings when I can — but every minute that I am in this office, I am dealing with issues that effect women."

Some consider her too willing to make compromises; her intelligence intimidating; her manner cold. When confronted with these criticisms, she neither denies nor justifies. "A person is not the same every day, you know, and then some people perceive me in one way and some perceive me in another way. I can't control that, and all I can say is that I am just the way I am and I am very comfortable with me," she says.

As for compromising principles, she says, "I want everyone to be able to work together in a spirit of cooperation and compromise and accommodation, without, you know, any caving in or anyone being woefully violated personally or in terms of his principles."

So what will she do now that she's got your attention? Ebony Magazine suggests that Jordan likes the job she has now, and maybe she does. But there's talk of her running for the Senate, and some speculate that the next Democrat in the White House will nominate her to the Supreme Court. Wouldn't they be surprised if Barbara Jordan was the next Democrat in the White House?

Is French Food Era Finished?

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

A French-born Canadian named Pol Martin thinks the era of great French food of Escoffier and other famed chefs is finished, never to be reborn.

"La grande cuisine Francaise is part of the past. We can take a little of it, but rich food with cream, wine and butter is too much," Martin said in an interview. "I don't think the body and the way we live can take it. We no longer walk as grandfathers did."

Martin operates his own cooking school in Montreal with one assistant, a woman. He also conducts a syndicated half-hour cooking show on Canadian TV five days a week, appears on a one-hour-a-week open-line radio show and writes a food column for a Montreal newspaper. Starting in September, he will conduct an 8 to 12-minute live French cooking show as part of the early morning news program on Canadian TV.

In his spare time, he has written a paperback cookbook, "The Art of Cooking The French Way," (Dolphin) in which he extols the virtues and pleasures of simple fare.

"What is better than new potatoes, new peas?" he asked rhetorically. "Never boil vegetables. They are too fragile. Steaming is better."

"Just plain fruit, and once a week, a dessert."

"He thinks the high price of food may improve eating habits. 'People eat way too much,' he said."

He disagrees with those who say you must go on a very strict diet to lose weight.

"Eat less, chew well," he said. "People in restaurants gobble. They eat a one-pound steak."

He deprecates the tendency of both Canadians and Americans to eat only about 12 pounds of fish per capita.

"The fish we had 20 years ago was overcooked. Well done meat is edible; overcooked fish is terrible — like the sole of the shoe."

A father of three children, ages 2, 9 and 13, his message to other parents is: make your own baby food (his wife did, using a blender to puree food she had cooked); and start teaching your children to cook when they are about eight years old. Don't wait until they are 20.

"I used to have a class of 8 to 15 year olds. They did everything the grownups did, and as well."

"People are not aware they can have delicious meals with the cheapest meats," Martin added. "Chuck is the cheapest cut and the best meat for boeuf bourguignon. For braising, you need fat, or the meat becomes dry."

To save money and remain healthy, he recommends more shopping for bargains, increased consumption of fish and vegetables and decreased consumption of sugar.

He said Americans and Canadians eat 120 to 130 pounds of sugar per capita, an amount he finds shocking.

Trained at the famed Paris hotel school, Martin said he gets great satisfaction from his students.

He said his most interesting

For a great breakfast muffin, lay a cooked sausage link in the bottom of each muffin tin before spooning in the batter. For another variation add crumbled bacon to the batter.

Scoop out the insides of leftover muffins and fill with a creamed meat or vegetable mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in 350 degree oven for 10 minutes.

Before baking biscuits brush with melted butter and sprinkle with our favorite herb, for a savory variation.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

Rustling is considered to be one of the worst crimes in the book in the San Antonio territory where Life Master Ben Fain stables his fat collection of master points, but no when it comes to resulting up an overtrick in a duplicate game. Overtrick seekers have to be quieter than prospectors for uranium ore; so they cannot use a Gieger counter: the clicks might warn the opponents. Upon winning the opening lead with his jack of hearts, Fain played the king of diamonds. East taking the trick with the ace. East promptly returned a club to kill dummy's one - side entry to the diamond suit. At trick four South led a diamond to his queen, both opponents following suit.

To trick five South banged down his king of spades! When West declined to take his ace, declarer next led the ten of diamonds to the board's jack. When play had ended, he had made 12 tricks: one spade, four hearts, five diamonds, and two clubs.

When South guilefully led the king of spades to trick five, he knew that he had a lot going for him. The opponent who possessed the ace of spades might be completely in the dark as to whether South had the missing ten of diamonds, or whether South had the missing ten of diamonds, or whether his partner had that card. And if he took the king of spades with the ace, South, if he had the K-Q-x of spades, would use his low spade as an entry to the board's jack, for the cashing of the diamonds.

And it worked as South had hoped. West assumed that South had the king and queen of spades, so he allowed the king to win the trick.

Of course South recognized that if either opponent possessed both the ace and queen of spades, the deceptive play of the king of spades wouldn't work. But South also appreciated that if either opponent happened to have both the ace and queen, after taking the king with the ace he would not be likely to cash the queen. So even if South's ruse didn't work, it rated not to cost anything.

How's your American history? Here's a test to put you in tune with the Bicentennial. The questions have to do with circumstances and events attending the nation's founding 200 years ago.

Oil Boat Collides With Tanker

VENICE, La. (UPI) — An oil company supply boat collided with a Norwegian tanker early Monday and capsized about 25 miles up from the mouth of the Mississippi river, blocking the channel to deep draft ships heading in and out of the nation's second largest port at New Orleans.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the 200-foot Exxon supply boat, Dearborn 204, collided with the 557-foot Norwegian ship, Braconda, at 12:23 a.m.

He said the crew of the Dearborn 204 managed get off the vessel and was picked up by the tanker.

The population of Iowa was 2,825,041 in 1970, compared with 1,194,020 in 1870.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

September, 1775:

In an ill-fated military excursion to wrest Canada from British control, 1,200 Continental troops under Major General Philip Schuyler and Brigadier General Richard Montgomery set out from Ticonderoga in late August. They lay siege to St. Johns — a British outpost at the northern tip of Lake Champlain — on September 5. Schuyler becomes ill and is invalided to the rear, the command falling to Montgomery on the 12th. St. John's capitulates on November 2, only after surrender of the nearby British outpost at Chambly to an American contingent on October 18. Montgomery then pushes on to Montreal, which he takes without resistance on November 13. With about 300 troops remaining to him, Montgomery joins with about 600 troops under Colonel Benedict Arnold on the Plains of Abraham to prepare the December 31 assault on Quebec.

Sunken Ships Form Reef

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Edward W. Scripps, a shiny new Liberty ship commissioned in 1943, ferried war materials to the wharves of Britain and the beaches of Normandy in the final years of World War II.

On Aug. 22, the Texas Coastal and Marine Council detonated two small charges in the Scripps' stern, sinking her in 100 feet of the Gulf of Mexico off South Padre Island.

And there she will sit alongside two sister ships as an artificial fishing reef for the use of anglers, divers and marine researchers.

Howard Lee, director of programs for the Coastal and Marine Council, said the first of 12 liberty ships planned for four reefs off the Texas Coast in the next year went entirely according to plan.

"She left the Port of Brownsville about 2:30 a.m.

towed by a tug and had about 14 miles to reach the open gulf and then about 25 miles to the site. About 8:30, we removed her temporary running lights and planted two light plastic charges in her stern," Lee said.

"After the charges detonated, it took about 50 minutes for the water to reach two large holes we cut in her side and she slid under in another seven minutes.

"We sent down a diver to attach a marker buoy and he said she settled perfectly — sitting right on her keel in about three feet of sand."

The Scripps, and other liberty ships destined for the bottom of the gulf, was stripped of its top deck and all non-ferrous metals and flotsams prior to sinking. Large holes were cut in her sides to allow water circulation and easy access for large fish.

mental Protection Agency) inspector along and he said he was surprised at how clean the hulk was," Lee said.

The reef has a clearance of 75 feet and is marked by a six-foot-wide, 28-foot-high buoy with a light visible up to five miles and a fog horn audible to one-half mile.

"Nobody ought to hit it accidentally," Lee said.

Mrs. Robert P. Scripps sponsored the ship at its christening in Los Angeles in 1943. The ship saw Atlantic duty for the remainder of the war and was decommissioned in 1948. She was reactivated for Pacific duty during the Korean Conflict and mothballed for good in June, 1962, at the Defense Reserve Shipyards in Beaumont, Tex.

Her namesake was the founder and publisher of the Scripps-Howard newspaper group and the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in California.

Lee said he hopes to sink her two companion ships at the South Padre Island site later this month, weather permitting. The Joshua Thomas, named for the evangelist of Tangier Island who warned the British not to attack Baltimore in the War of 1812, and the George Farley, named for a Massachusetts educator-agriculturalist, both served in the Atlantic in World War II.

By the end of the year, Lee plans to sink three more at a reef site 18 miles south-southeast of Port Aransas and early next year complete a third reef 23 miles south-southeast of Matagorda Bay.

IT SIMS TO ME

Wrestling on The Move—But Not Locally

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

High school wrestling isn't sanctioned by the University Interscholastic League but the number of schools with wrestling programs is increasing and that's why it might be practical for Pampa to consider adding the sport to the curriculum.

And, if the sport is found to be not feasible as a part of the overall athletic or intramural program, it might be a good idea for an organization or club in Pampa to sponsor wrestling.

Manny Holden, a Pampa funeral director who has instructed high school wrestling in Richardson, and James Kile, grappling coach at Amarillo Tascosa, share those opinions.

However, Holden would rather see Pampa pick up wrestling on the high school level than on the club level.

"The problem with it right now is it isn't sanctioned by the UIL," Holden said. "If it was to get enough teams in enough districts the UIL has already committed itself that it would go ahead and sanction it."

"In five years in the state of Texas it's gone from maybe 10 teams to 40 teams."

That's still a far cry from the necessary thirty-three percent, which is how many of the state's schools would have to have a wrestling program before the UIL would vote on sanctioning the sport.

Dr. Bailey Marshall, director of athletics for the UIL, says the number now is "more like 10 percent."

He said, "We currently have a policy where at least one-third of the schools participate in an activity before the legislative council will vote it into the program. And as of right now, it's more like 10 percent that actually have a wrestling program and it's isolated in the following areas—in the upper Panhandle area, the El Paso area and the Houston-Dallas area has a little bit."

"Unless there is some increase or change or unless the legislative council changes its policy, then it's not likely that we will have wrestling in the league within the next four or five years."

Holden realizes that and he is willing to wait. For the present, he is trying to get it started on the intramural level in Pampa. "The only way for a team to get started is for an individual to push it. I would be interested in coaching and in a couple or three years, the school could pick it up and hire a coach," he said.

Amarillo schools have a type of intramural program, competing almost solely against each other and Boys Ranch. A city championship is determined annually and the teams are represented in the state meet.

Kile would like to see a district formed, with Pampa and possibly Borger joining Boys Ranch and the four Amarillo schools. "You're not just whistling," Kile said.

"We'd have to come on our own expense but we'd be there," he added, in regard to his team's willingness to travel outside of Amarillo to compete.

To see wrestling get started in Pampa, Kile said, "We'd come up there and give a clinic or whatever is necessary. I'd take my kids and some Caprock kids and we'll put on an exhibition."

Why hasn't Pampa started a wrestling program? "What I think it is, basically,"

Kile said, "is they're not acquainted with amateur wrestling. There's a difference between amateur and professional wrestling—they don't see amateur wrestling on television."

And that's why wrestling hasn't caught on across the state, says Marshall.

"I think it goes back to school officials. In Texas, when we think of wrestling, most of the school officials think of wrestling like you see on television—the groan-grunt-slam-floor approach. Not many of our school officials in Texas have seen good high school or amateur competitive wrestling."

"That's one thing. The big thing, of course, is the interest (or lack of it) of people in community. I imagine it's for the same reason."

The bloody lips and noses, the badly broken limbs, the concussions—they're all a part of Big-Time Rasslin', not collegiate or high school wrestling, says Holden.

"The most expensive injury I've seen is a broken bone or maybe a separated joint," the former Richardsonite said.

Kyle, too, has seen few injuries in wrestling. "We've had fewer injuries in wrestling," he said. "I would say in the last five years than football has had in one year. There's been no serious injuries and it's been in Amarillo since the 1940's."

"The name of the game is not to hurt—it's to outpoint your opponent."

"We've got a kid right now on my wrestling squad that's in the hospital. He wasn't hurt wrestling—he was hurt playing flag football."

Kile added, "There's never been an amateur wrestler die as a result of a blow—you can't say that's true about football."

Bailey and Dr. Dan Long, superintendent of Pampa Independent School District, point to the cost factor as another reason wrestling hasn't spread throughout the state—and to Pampa.

"It's not a real expensive sport."

Marshall said, "but it does take money for travel and coaches. Right now, schools are hurting financially. There's a lot of good athletic activities you could have in a program. It's just how much can the school do and oversee and fund."

Long says the Pampa school board would likely be willing to consider adding wrestling but he doubts the sport would be approved.

"I think we'll look at anybody that's got a good proposal. But I would place emphasis somewhere else—in a lifetime sport. There are several things we would want to look at."

"We don't have a gymnastics program. I think right now gymnastics would offer us more variety than the grunt-and-grown sports."

"We'd have to weigh it and decide what we could afford and what we would want to do. If we were going to look at another program, I would certainly want us to investigate gymnastics."

A "lifetime sport" Long said, is one that would have "a lifetime value."

Sure, it might be a good idea for Long and the school board to take a serious look at wrestling. But, it would likely be a better idea for Holden, who is engineering a drive of sorts to see the sport take hold in Pampa, to go the club route.

Colts Stampede Houston, 26-20

HOUSTON (UPI)— Baltimore Colts head coach Tom Marchibroda spent 11 seasons as an assistant to George Allen and he has at least one thing in common with his former boss. Marchibroda would like someone near his own age and maturity to quarterback his team.

But there's a problem. Third-year quarterback Bert Jones ripped apart the Houston Oilers defense Monday night and Marchibroda is becoming Jones' man.

"I was at Los Angeles the four years Roman Gabriel was there," Marchibroda said late Monday. "I was at Washington when George brought in Billy Kilmer. And I will say this, Bert has progressed as far as either one of those two (at equal points in their careers)."

Jones, a 6-foot-3 scrambler from LSU, has experienced the bumps of pro football since stepping into the No. 1 quarterback spot early last season. But he has also hit some high spots.

His team trailing 7-0, Jones marched the Colts on three long scoring drives in the final 20 minutes of the first half in route to his team's second preseason win in five games by a 26-20 score.

Toni Linhart's second field goal following a Houston fumble and a four-yard touchdown run by Jones in the third quarter after a blocked punt sealed the win against the quick-striking Oilers, but otherwise the game featured the Bert Jones show.

In the first half alone Jones was 13 of 19 for 147 passing yards. He threw 10 yards to Lydell Mitchell for a score.

In the second half he ran four yards for the final Colts score, the one set up by a blocked punt.

"We converted a lot of third down passes in those drives," Jones said, "and they were with the defense knowing what was coming. That shows we are coming along." The success Jones had hitting receivers Monday will likely send Oiler coaches, who had been encouraged by a 2-2 preseason record, into sessions looking for defensive changes.

Bucs Bump Cubs

UPI Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates have arrived at that giddy time of the year when it's fun to play the "number game"—the magic number game, that is.

The magic number is the one that puts a team in the divisional playoffs—gateway to the World Series and big money—and the Pirates today have a realistic number of 12.

Following their 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night, the Pirates have a 6½ game lead with 21 games left on their schedule. Should they win 12 of those 21 games, the Cardinals would have to win 18 of their last 20 games to tie and the Phillies would have to win 18 of their last 19.

Willie Stargell drove in two runs and Al Oliver's triple started a three-run sixth-inning outburst that sparked the Pirates to their victory. Dock Ellis went six innings, allowing five hits and one run, to raise his record to 8-7. Bill Madlock had two hits for the Cubs.

The Phillies defeated the Cardinals 6-3, Houston beat Atlanta 9-6, Montreal swept New York 6-5 and 6-1, Cincinnati edged San Diego 3-2 and Los Angeles topped San Francisco 4-0 in other NL games.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 6 Milwaukee 2, Cleveland 4 Boston 1, New York 3 Detroit 0 and Oakland 8 Kansas City 2.

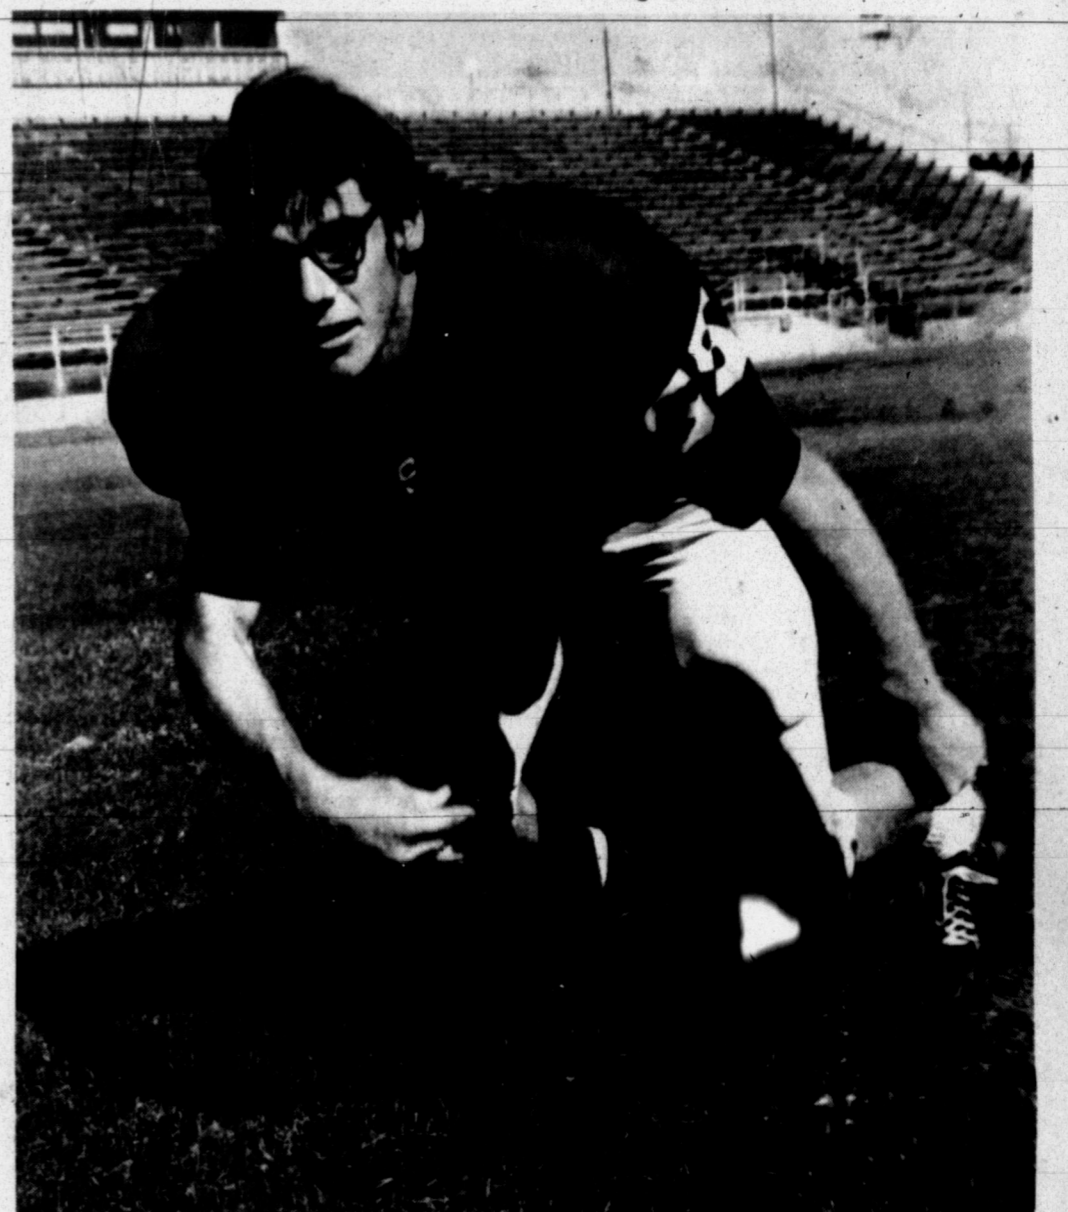

Phillies 6, Cardinals 3
Greg Luzinski drove in three runs with a single and a double and Tom Underwood went seven innings to win his 14th game for Philadelphia, which dealt St. Louis' Ron Reed his 10th loss. Tug McGraw pitched the last two innings for the Phils and earned his 13th save.

Astros 9, Braves 6
Cesar Cedeno knocked in six runs with two homers and a double to lead Houston's 10-hit attack which brought reliever Jose Sosa his first win. A crowd of only 737 turned out in Atlanta—the smallest crowd in the history of the Braves in that city.

Expos 6-4, Mets 5-1
Rookie Pat Scanlon singled with the bases filled and one out in the bottom of the ninth to provide Montreal with its winning run in the first game. Don Carrithers scattered eight hits and went the distance for the third time this season to win the second game for the Expos. Dave Kingman hit his 31st homer for New York.

Reds 3, Padres 2
Johnny Bench hit his 28th homer and Clay Carroll won his seventh game for the Reds, who scored their 96th victory after a night flight from Cincinnati where they clinched the NL's Western title Sunday. Bill Greif was the loser for San Diego.

Dodgers 4, Giants 0
Andy Messersmith pitched a three-hitter for his sixth shutout and Steve Garvey's sixth-inning double was the key hit for Los Angeles. The victory raised Messersmith's record to 16-14. The Dodgers are now 5½ games ahead of San Francisco in the race for second in the NL West.

Defensive Star

Pampa noseguard Pat Bailey blocked a punt as teammate Kelly Baker fell on the ball in the end zone for Pampa's first touchdown in the team's 20-7 win over Hereford Friday. Bailey and the Harvesters will be in action Friday at Dumas. (Pampa News photo)

Missouri Stuns 2nd-Ranked Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama's bid for a fourth perfect season in five years didn't last long.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide, favored by 20 points, was soundly trounced 20-7 Monday night by the Missouri Tigers.

"They kicked the hell out of us. What more can I say," said Alabama Coach Bear Bryant in a subdued voice.

The beating was almost as bad as the one Alabama took from Missouri in the 1968 Gator Bowl. That time, in the last previous meeting between the two teams, Missouri won 35-10 without completing a pass.

The Tigers only completed four passes Monday night but they had the running of 225-pound tailback Tony Galbreath—and that was the big difference, although the Missouri defense deserved a big share of the credit.

Galbreath got 89 of his 120 rushing yards during the first half when the Tigers scored all of their points and so completely dominated play that they scored on four of the five times they had the football.

"I think we were pretty fortunate not to be beaten worse," said Bryant. "They beat us worse than the score indicates."

The loss was only the second in the last 45 regular season games for the Crimson Tide and the other, coincidentally, was also here at Legion Field—a 17-16 upset by Auburn in the final game of the 1972 season.

"All in all, it was a good old sound country beating," Bryant said of Monday night's debacle in which Alabama didn't score until the final period. "I don't know how we'll react. If we're the kind of people I think we are, we'll work at it and try to improve. If we don't, it will be the longest season ever around here."

Missouri jumped in front the very first time it got the ball, driving 58 yards with Galbreath getting 48 of that and the final three to put the Tigers ahead 7-0 with eight minutes gone in the first period. The next time Missouri got the ball Kim Gibbons kicked a 44-yard field goal to make it 10-0 with 1:53 left in the first period.

Five plays later, Missouri recovered a fumble and John Blakeman went across from nine yards out to make it 17-0 with only 3:09 gone in the second period. Missouri's final points came on a 46-yard field goal by Gibbons with 1:40 left in the first half.

The Tide's only score came with 10:24 left when Richard Todd completed his third consecutive pass, a 14-yarder to Ozzie Newsome. That touchdown was another Alabama break since the ball was tipped by a Missouri defender and Newsome caught it while lying on his back in the end zone.

"I think we caught them by surprise in that first half," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "Like a typical Alabama team, they came back hard in the second half."

Lake Taneycom, in southwest Missouri, is the oldest and smallest of the larger Missouri lakes, according to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

Sooner in Pursuit of Heisman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The final collegiate saga of Joe Washington, Oklahoma's whirling dervish of a ball carrier, will be unraveled this fall on the football fields of the midlands. And Joe leaves no doubt that winning the Heisman Trophy in his senior season is a goal he wants to achieve.

"I don't have any idea what kind of a season I would have to have to win it," said Washington. "But I know what I have to do to satisfy myself—and that's go (score) two times a game and gain 1,500 yards."

Washington, of course, will have the added burden of battling an incumbent Heisman winner, Ohio State's Archie Griffin.

Unlike previous seasons, Coach Barry Switzer says he will let Washington do all the playing he wants. Last year, for instance, Washington carried only eight times against Utah State and nine times against Wake Forest.

For Joe to win it, says Switzer, "We'll have to be very successful as a team and he'll have to produce a lot of yardage in the early games. The award may be determined by what happens through the Texas game (the Sooners' fifth) and certainly it'll be all over by the seventh or eighth game."

Washington sums up his Heisman chances by saying, "First of all, I'd have to have 11 real good football games and my getting hurt wouldn't help either."

As for playing after the game is in hand, Washington says, "I like to leave that up to the coach. Those are his decisions."

But what if he asks, as Switzer indicated he might?

"Well, I like to play. If he asks, I'll probably be in there."

The 5-10, 184-pound senior from Port Arthur, Tex., surprised himself by finishing third in the voting to Griffin and Southern Cal's Anthony Davis last year.

"Well, I wasn't really considered in the early part of the season last year," he says, "so I looked at anything I got as a plus."

Washington gained 630 yards rushing playing part-time as a freshman, 1,173 as a sophomore and 1,321 last year. He's led the Big Eight the last two years.

"Joe was as good when he came here as he is now," says Switzer. "He's improved his techniques, that's all. But he had us whooping and hollering from the first practice."

Through his career, Washington has averaged 6.4 yards per carry from scrimmage. And, of course, he's OU's premier punt and kickoff returner, too. In three seasons, Washington has scored 31 touchdowns.

Since his freshman season, Washington has been held out of spring and fall scrimmages by Switzer, who won't hesitate to tell you he doesn't want his star hurt.

"Really, though," says Washington, "the only thing I haven't done is go through scrimmage. I've done the blocking and everything else."

"I do everything but get tackled."

And that's just the way it is on Saturday when 70,000 fans are watching, too.

Cowboys Trade for Halfback

DENVER (UPI)—Bobby Anderson says he's always considered himself a "Walt Garrison type" running back.

The Dallas Cowboys hope Anderson is right.

Anderson, whose five-year career with the Denver Broncos has been plagued with injuries, Monday said he was traded to Dallas. Sources said the Broncos received a future draft choice for the former All-America quarterback at the University of Colorado, but neither team would comment.

"I'm not going to burn anybody with long runs but I hope I can give the solid game which Garrison was known for," Anderson said, "coming through with big plays and not making mistakes."

Garrison announced his retirement in August after injuring his knee in a summer rodeo accident. That gave the Cowboys a serious problem as earlier, Calvin Hill jumped to Hawaii of the World Football League.

"I know I am going to get a good chance to play and hope I develop into a Walt Garrison type back and fill that void," Anderson, who missed last season after breaking his ankle in the final preseason game, told United Press International. "I'm healthy and ready to go."

Anderson's trade had been rumored for several weeks as the Broncos have eight running backs on their 51-man roster, which must be cut to 46 today and then to 43 by next week.

He was considered expendable after the way Jon Keyworth performed when he took over the starting fullback job in midseason last year and would up leading the AFC with 10 touchdowns.

"Coach (John) Ralston and I had a discussion a couple of weeks ago and he asked me where I'd like to go," said Anderson, who despite missing part of 1972 and all of last year with injuries is the third leading career rusher in Bronco history with 1,281 yards.

"That's one thing I really respect coach Ralston for," Anderson said. "He tries to do things the Players Association is asking coaches to do like talking to veterans and trying to trade them to teams they want to go to."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10
Your birthday today: If you resist a tendency to take the easy way out early this year, you can make exceptional headway in both career and personal enterprises. Intuition and perspective increase as your aims logically change in response to changing conditions. Social and emotional ties strengthen. Today's natives work and save to reach their goals, showing a talent for philosophy. Some have accumulated great wealth.

Last year American manufacturers shipped about 4,400 private airplanes valued at more than $300 million to some 85 foreign countries—or about 23 planes for every one imported.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Ride out today's mixed influences without turning about everything in sight. People are uncertain of what they want or what is best. Give them time for determination.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: In about a week the tide turns strongly in your favor. Meanwhile, accept things as they are. Smooth discrepancies. You have more emotional support at home than you think.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Sincere or flippant, your careless remarks are misunderstood. They precipitate confusion and endless talk over trivia. Concentrate on jobs you can do single-handed.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Creativity is under a passing cloud, drifting into many false straits. You'll wish to change lines later. Leave matters open to correction. Attend to long-term obligations.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Curb your hopes and drive for perfection. Nothing pleases you now, and nobody is ready to agree on details. Accept your part in the incomplete state of the world; continue building.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Again, it's not so much what you do as how you pursue established goals. A technical shortcut is available, but be wary of unplanned side effects and additional activities.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You spend money easily and wonder later what you bought with it. Entertainment or keeping up with the neighbors seems very important, but should be viewed more conservatively.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Efforts to pull people closer together only drives them apart. Uncompleted business has the higher priority as you find item upon item that needs setting straight.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Select an unusual specialty. Organize contingency funds for near-future improvements. Take care. People are sensitive and your charm lacks its usual perfection.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: People are awaiting word from you. Where you go is more significant than what you decide upon arrival. Choose your itinerary carefully; travel the shortest possible distance.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You have extra work covering for others or adjusting their uneven performance. Youngsters take up much time but deserve particular attention if they're related.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Friends aren't going to help or collaborate, but they'll let you pursue what you want without getting in your hair. Don't pass on gossip or rumors.

Washington Watch FPC Ruling To Raise Natural Gas Prices

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Natural gas is expected to cost Texas consumers more in the wake of the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) recent decision to permit certain out-of-state industries to buy gas at unregulated prices.

The FPC ruling, aimed at easing natural gas shortages heavily affecting the country's eastern region, should increase demand for intrastate natural gas, which is not regulated by federal price controls. Since Texas consumers will now be competing against out-of-state industries for intrastate gas, its price should rise.

"By increasing the number of competitors for the gas it should increase the price of gas in intrastate purchases, such as in Texas," said Peter Schuck, director of the Washington office of Consumers Union, a non-partisan consumer activist group. "It's also likely to direct a good deal of gas away from residential use."

However, Schuck has some reservations about whether the decision, likely to be challenged in court, will fulfill its intent. He theorizes that natural gas users in Texas will likely outbid the out-of-state industries because of less expensive costs in transmitting the gas.

Either way, he adds, the price for Texans will jump.

Industrial user had asked his company to transport unregulated gas across state lines at the higher price.

He said Panhandle, Eastern, based in Missouri with offices in Houston, favors complete deregulation, which Congress so far has refused to do. He said his company and its subsidiaries, which service customers in about 15 different states, believe deregulation is "the most prudent and best way" to find further natural gas.

Besides noting cost increases to consumers, opponents of deregulation contend that the gas industry is withholding huge reserves in an attempt to extort higher prices from the government.

The Ford Administration favors deregulation.

In late August, Briscoe joined the majority of the governors in recommending to the President that a five-year moratorium be placed on the federal regulations of newly discovered natural gas.

PUBLIC NOTICE SUMMARY OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS (S.J.R. NO. 11) SPECIAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 4, 1975

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the separation of powers, legislative and executive provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article II, Separation of Powers, is amended to:

Provide that the powers of government of the State of Texas are divided among three distinct branches: legislative, executive, and judicial. Except as otherwise authorized by the constitution, members of one branch may not exercise any power properly attached to either of the others.

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the judiciary provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article V, The Judiciary is amended to:

Establish a unified judicial system consisting of the supreme court, court of appeals, district courts, and circuit courts. Existing county courts and county judges are continued until otherwise provided by law. All judges (except municipal judges), district attorneys and district clerks must be elected by the people. The supreme court and the court of criminal appeals are merged into a single court of last resort, and this supreme court is authorized to provide for efficient administration of the judicial system and to balance case loads. Individual rights for the accused are continued. The state is granted the right to appeal in criminal cases in limited circumstances, and the legislature is permitted to establish methods of appeal to the courts from decisions of state agencies.

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the voting and election provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VI, Voter Qualifications and Elections, is amended to:

Provide for registration and qualifications for voting including voter residency requirements to be established by law. A citizen of the United States who is at least 18 years of age and who meets the registration and residence requirements provided by law is a qualified voter unless the person has been convicted of a felony and for that felony is incarcerated, on parole, or on probation, or unless the person is mentally incompetent as determined by a court. Voting by the people in all elections must be by secret ballot, and the legislature shall provide by law for residence, registration, and absentee voting

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the education provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VII, Education, is amended to:

Provide that the Permanent and Available School Funds and the county public school funds are continued for the support of the free public schools. The State Board of Education is retained and the Permanent and Available University Funds are continued for the benefit of The University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems. A new Higher Education Fund for Texas is established for the benefit of colleges and universities outside The University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems. The state ad valorem tax of ten cents on $100 valuation is continued as the source of revenue for the fund. The ten cent higher education tax may be changed by law within the ten cent maximum. The legislature may allocate by law a portion of the Higher Education Fund to certain state vocational and technical institutes. The article provides that the public education system must furnish each individual an equal educational opportunity, but a school district may provide local enrichment of educational programs exceeding the level provided by the state consistent with general law. Authority to issue Permanent University Bonds is continued but the bonds may not exceed 30% of the Permanent University Fund.

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the finance provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VIII, Finance, is amended to:

Provide that state taxes may be levied and collected only by general law and to prohibit any state ad valorem tax on real property or tangible personal property except the ten cent tax provided for in Article VII and a

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the local government provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article IX, Local Government, is amended to:

Provide that the counties of the state are those that exist on the date of adoption of the local government article and that county boundaries may be changed if approved by a majority of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. Counties may be merged or county seats relocated if approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. The present elected constitutional county offices are retained and four year terms of office are provided. The voters of a county may create additional offices, eliminate offices, or combine the duties and functions of offices. The voters may also grant ordinance making power to the governing body of the county. Cities and towns having more than 1,500 inhabitants may become home-rule cities. Tax limitations are established for operating purposes for cities and counties, and the legislature is required to fix debt limits for cities, towns, counties, and school and community junior college districts.

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the general provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article X, General Provisions, is amended to:

Provide the basic requirements relating to public officials such as the official oath and residency requirements. The provision defining the separate and community property of spouses is retained, and the protection of a homestead from forced sale is continued. The legislature is required to protect certain personal property from forced sale. Current wages for personal service are not subject to garnishment. A private corporation may not be chartered except under general law, and no bank may engage in business in more than one place in this state. The legislature must provide for the regulation of bank holding companies. The present system of local-option elections for the prohibition or sale of alcoholic beverages is continued. The legislature is required to prohibit lotteries and gift enterprises but may permit certain bingo games and raffles. The presently existing provisions for retirement benefits of teachers and other public employees are modified to allow the state to contribute more than 10%. A policy that the quality of the environment of the State of Texas is to be protected is established, and the legislature is required to implement and enforce this policy. No state funds may be used to remove surface water from the river basin of origin if the surface water is necessary to supply the reasonably foreseeable water requirements of the basin for the ensuing 50 years, unless the removal of water is sufficiently replaced to the point of removal from outside the state or is on a temporary, interim basis. The seaward beaches of the Gulf of Mexico and coastal submerged lands belonging to the state are held by the state in perpetual trust for the people, and subject to reasonable limitations prescribed by law, the public has the free and unrestricted right of use and benefit of the beaches. The provision is continued that, except as otherwise provided by law, a rate of interest in excess of ten percent a year is usurious, and that if a contract does not specify a rate of interest, the rate under the contract may not exceed six percent a year. Discrimination against handicapped persons is prohibited, and a goal of the state is established to provide every resident access to adequate, comprehensive health care.

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the mode of amending provisions of the Texas Constitution. The proposed article will be the last article of the constitution. If only Proposition No. 8 is adopted, the article will replace Article XVII of the present constitution. If other propositions are adopted, the article will be appropriately renumbered to remain the last article of the constitution. If all propositions are adopted, the article will be Article XI. Article XVII, Mode of Amending the Constitution of the State, is amended to:

Establish a procedure for constitutional amendments requiring a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature and majority approval by the voters. The calling of a limited or unlimited constitutional convention with voter approval is provided. The question of whether to call a constitutional convention must be submitted to the people every 30 years.

tax of two cents on the $100 assessed valuation to provide funds for the State Building Fund. Provides that all real property and tangible personal property must be taxed equally and uniformly in proportion to market value. Existing exemptions from ad valorem taxation are continued. The present deduction of motor fuel taxes for highway purposes and the Available School Fund is retained. The "pay-as-you-go" principle for the operation of state government is retained. The legislature shall establish separate formulas for appraising land to promote the preservation of open-space land devoted to farm or ranch purposes and may establish separate formulas for appraising land to promote the preservation of forest land devoted to timber production. The $3000 exemption from state ad valorem taxation for residential homesteads is continued and the legislature by law may increase this amount. A separate $3000 exemption from ad valorem taxation by political subdivisions is provided for the residential homestead of persons at least 65 years of age and the political subdivision may increase this amount. The legislature by law may exempt from ad valorem taxation certain property owned by veterans' organizations, non-profit water corporations, and persons in need because of age or disability, and economic circumstance. The legislature may also exempt property to preserve historical, cultural or natural history resources. Taxpayers are provided a new method of correcting inequitable tax assessments by paying ad valorem taxes under protest and suing for a refund in a district court. State debt may be authorized by law only if approved by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature and submitted to and approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the state voting on the question. Public funds and public credit may be used only for public purposes and no public funds or public credit may be used to influence the election of a public officer. The article prohibits a retail sales tax on agricultural machinery or parts, fertilizer, feeds or seeds, prescription drugs or medicine, or food, except food sold by restaurants for immediate consumption. An assessment voted by marine food or agricultural producers on their product sales is not a tax if provision is made for the individual producer to receive a refund of the assessment when the producer does not desire to be assessed.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the SEPARATION OF POWERS, LEGISLATIVE, AND EXECUTIVE PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

State Prisons Predicted Full By 1980

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—The director of the Texas Department of Corrections today said the state's prisons will be full by 1980 if present incarceration trends continue.

"We are running out of room," W. J. Estelle Jr. said. "The great danger is that with overcrowding, the safety of inmates, staff and the general community of Texas will become threatened."

Estelle said increased crime rates and greater law enforcement efficiency had combined to swell the state's prison population. Legislation allowing offenders seeking appeal of sentences of 15 years or more to be committed to TDC rather than await a decision in county jail also contributed to the current condition.

TDC research estimates an inmate population of 22,300 by 1980, about 400 more than it will be able to house.

In a public report Estelle said the TDC escape rate currently is about one-tenth the national average and called the system's 14 units the safest in the country for both inmates and staff.

"We want to keep them that way," he said.

WHALE EXHIBIT

MYSTIC SEAPORT, Conn. (UPI) — A collection of 10 paintings by Richard Ellis, depicting the different species of great whales, is on display at Mystic Seaport until Oct 4.

The paintings are in the Campbell Room beneath the Seaport Planetarium. The Campbell Room is regularly used for the "Whales. Whaling. Whalemans" slide-talk demonstration which offers an historical account of the American whaling industry. Included in the talk is a description of whaling's decline and the increasing awareness of the need to conserve these largest of mammals.

The 30-minute whaling programs are free to Seaport visitors.

HOUSTON OPERA

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Grand Opera's 1975-76 season, opening Oct. 17 with the American premiere of Handel's "Rinaldo," will feature only American singers. Star of Rinaldo is mezzo Marilyn Horne. There also will be a world premiere, Carlisle Floyd's "Bilby's Doll," about witchcraft in colonial New England.

Other productions will be Gounod's "Faust," Verdi's "Otello" with James King, Evelyn Lear and Sherill Milnes, Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and Puccini's "La Fanciulla del West."

RABID ANIMALS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Department of Health confirmed almost 400 cases of rabies in animals during 1974, a 46 per cent increase over 1973.

Of the confirmed cases, 89 involved dogs, nine involved cats, and 132 involved skunks.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Stephen Jenkevice, a self-styled promoter, believes everyone should follow their dreams and not just talk about them.

Wallaby Mate To Be Used In Search

ZUMBROTA, Minn. (UPI) — Hoping that marsupial love will attract wayward Wally the Wallaby, officials of the Como Zoo in St. Paul, Minn., plan to use his mate Wanda in the search.

Wally, who escaped at the Goodhue County Fair Aug. 9, has been sighted several times. He was seen Sunday on a covered bridge in a park near here.

A zoo official said there has been no shortage of food for Wally, a vegetarian who is living off corn and soybeans, nipping flowers in the local cemetery and eating alfalfa, which he loves.

But the wallaby, a kangaroo-like animal, can survive outdoors only until frost sets in.

So when David Wilson told him he had dreamed of canoeing around the world for the last 28 years, Jenkevice quickly asked why he hadn't.

"He said he had never found another nut to go along," Jenkevice said, "but I knew someone just as crazy and introduced them."

Enter Curt Kinkead. "I was going to be the promoter and raise the money for them, but as I worked more and more on it, I decided I wanted to go, too," Jenkevice said.

He said Wilson's goal has become the goal of all three men.

"The trip may take five years, or seven or whatever, but that's not important," Jenkevice said. "We're making the trip for a lot of reasons, but more than anything else, just to see what's around the next bend."

A two-man canoe-kayak combination called a Folbot was converted to a three-seater and the three men from Los Angeles began the first leg of their 57,000-mile journey. Jenkevice, 34, Wilson, 38, a chef, and Kinkead, 33, a pharmaceutical salesman, left the Portofino Inn in Redondo Beach, Calif., and paddled 40 miles before loading the 17½-foot canoe on a trailer donated by U-Haul and heading for the Gulf Coast.

The second and most important leg of their trip began Wednesday at the Watergate Inn on Clear Lake near the Johnson Space Center. A fourth member of the team, Ron du Vernet, will follow the canoers in a truck and they will put ashore each evening and camp whenever possible.

The next stop is Montreal, by way of intracoastal waterways, 7,500 miles of paddling ahead. They also hope to break the world record set in 1937 — 7,155 miles. Jenkevice and his friends think the trip will cost them about $5,000 a year for food.

Games Help Develop Reading Readiness

UPI Education Editor This day a Mom in the know puts a banana in a shoe box, covers the top of box with a paper towel held on by a rubber band.

To Rollo, her son, 4, she calls: "Let's play discovery." Rollo, an obedient child, runs over, closes his eyes, holds and shakes box.

"Is it something to eat or play with?" he asks.

"You find out," his mother says.

"Turn your head away, take off the towel and feel what's inside. Don't look — just feel. Then, tell me what it is."

Rollo did that. Since the banana has such a distinctive shape, he came up with the right answer the first time!

The "discovery box" game is a reading-readiness exercise among many which Rollo's Mom and Dad perform with him. Only they don't tell him it's pre-school work meant to get him off on the right foot.

The game with the "discovery box" becomes complicated as it escalates, helping the child to build his vocabulary and heighten his awareness of characteristics about everyday objects.

Dr. Priscilla Lynch, a reading expert, recommends many other stratagems — in the nature of fun and games — to get the preschool child's eyes, ears, mind and psyche in the mood for reading.

A teacher for more than 20 years and reading consultant to several state school systems, Dr. Lynch created Scholastic's Individualized Reading Program — a highly successful system.

"Talking," she says, "is the first step to reading."

Dr. Lynch suggests starting out with something simple — spoon, hard boiled egg, fork, banana, orange, apple. It helps if child can eat the mystery object when game ends.

Later he can graduate to more complicated mystery items.

Some other reading readiness game plans from Dr. Lynch:

— Practice with sensory words. Ask child to tell how something smells. Sweet or sour, salty, peppery, spicy, vinegary? Use a pickle, an onion, a garlic bud, a clove, cereal.

— Comparison words. Use measuring spoons or cups to show the difference between small, smaller, smallest. For deep, deeper, deepest, use three pots. For fat, fatter, fattest, use three carrots or onions. Find items for thin, pretty, short, tall, big, dark, heavy, light.

— Description. Mom shuts her eyes and child selects an object in the room, asking Mom to describe it. She asks — Is it edible? Is it smooth like an egg? Is it rough like a scouring pad? Then she makes the questions more complicated, using such terms as bigger than, smaller than, soft as, and terms relating to shape, use, color, texture, odor, fragility. This interplay is can be fun, hardly like a reading readiness exercise.

— When child is trying to stomp his Mother, she should come up with some of these words: shape (round, square, oval, triangle, rectangle, flat, pointed, curved), use (cook with it, eat it, play with it, clean with it, wear it, put things in it) and texture (smooth, rough, bumpy, squishy, lumpy, prickly, fluffy, gooey, sticky, rubbery).

After child stumps Mom or Dad a half dozen times, it's time to reverse roles — giving him practice at asking questions.

Dr. Lynch also recommends lots of reading aloud to your child, preferably with child in lap and being cuddled. This will help him to associate pleasant feelings with reading.

At some point buy a large notebook and felt marker and ask child to tell you something about his day. Keep sentences and words short when you print big letters in the notebook.

All of these things put the toddler in position for reading lessons in school.

"Some children," Dr. Lynch said, "come to school without having ever realized that words are made up of letters."

SWAN SONG
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A San Antonio woman has been instructing synchronized swimming for young girls, known as "Cygnet," for 20 years, teaching them to do graceful swimming exercises to the tune of violins. The teacher's name is Margaret Swan.

Nation's Leaders Like Modern Bed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $35,000 modern art bed was the hit of Nelson Rockefeller's first party at the nation's new official residence for the vice president.

President Ford said he thought the bed was "tremendous." Secretary of State Henry Kissinger raved that it was "marvelous." His wife Nancy said less enthusiastically it was "very pretty." First Lady Betty Ford wouldn't comment on it.

Happy Rockefeller admitted she and the vice president had not yet "inaugurated" the bed. She told a reporter, "You have to give us time."

"I think it went over very well," Rockefeller said. "They realize that it's a true work of art."

The Rockefeller's threw the first of nine housewarming parties at the new vice presidential mansion Sunday night. About 200 members of the cabinet, Congress, the diplomatic corps and other dignitaries viewed the bed and other furnishings and munched a buffet dinner that included lobster, shrimp, roast beef, turkey and ham.

The bed is the creation of 20th century surrealist American artist Max Ernst. The king-sized bed, with its milk cover, has cage-like bars on both ends, two circular paintings and a large modern painting on a screen at one side.

Hidden somewhere under the polished wood base is a complete communications system, including a concealed telephone.

"Never ask what anything in modern art means," Mrs. Rockefeller said when asked to explain the bed.

"Tremendous," President Ford said when asked about the creation that Rockefeller bought for the master bedroom of the Victorian mansion as his "gift to the country."

"You girls have a one-track mind," Kissinger said when a group of women reporters asked him what he thought about the bed. "I think it's marvelous."

Mrs. Ford refused comment on the controversial bed but said she thought the new home for the vice president was "really great."

Soviet Chess Champ Asks To Marry French

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former world chess champion Boris Spassky is battling Soviet authorities for the right to marry a French woman ordered to leave the Soviet Union, friends of the two said today.

Spassky and the woman, Marina Stcherbatcheff, had planned to marry Nov. 11, but she has been ordered to leave her job with the French commercial delegation Sept. 30, the friends said.

Her contract originally ran until July, 1976. The friends said the French apparently were acting under pressure from Soviet authorities in releasing her sooner.

The 38-year-old Spassky was divorced in July and had obtained the papers necessary for marrying Miss Stcherbatcheff, the friends said.

They said she was ordered to leave the country earlier this year because she had lent her car to a Soviet citizen who got in a wreck. However, her diplomatic status protected her against expulsion.

Once she no longer has her job with the French delegation she could be liable for prosecution in the Soviet Union.

Spassky, who lost his world chess title to America's Bobby Fischer at Reykjavik, Iceland, in 1972, met Miss Stcherbatcheff last November.

Role Stressed Of Private School

Copley News Service

Private schools have been in big financial trouble for several years, yet despite declining enrollments their role in education has not diminished.

Many leading educators believe that privately endowed institutions are still able to provide a better learning environment than can be found in most public schools.

A consensus of parents with children in private elementary or high schools supports these educators, for a variety of reasons.

"In the last few years there have been news reports of increased student misconduct and violence at schools near our home," says a mother of two girls who attended public school but were transferred to a private one a year ago.

"I trust my daughters, but sometimes this sort of thing rubs off, because children are impressionable. We just couldn't take the chance, especially when some of the students were apprehended for smoking pot."

Another mother says she took her daughter out of public school because she refused to dress in anything but hippie-style clothes and sometimes came home from school without her shoes.

"Her excuse was that she went barefooted because the other kids did, and then forgot to pick up her shoes before she came home," the mother explains. "It seems public school authorities have given up their efforts to require even the simplest rules of tidiness for students. That goes for sloppy-looking hairdos for both boys and girls."

At the private school, she says, students must dress neatly, cut their hair to reasonable lengths.

Some parents are more concerned with the quality of education taught at public schools than with the campus environment.

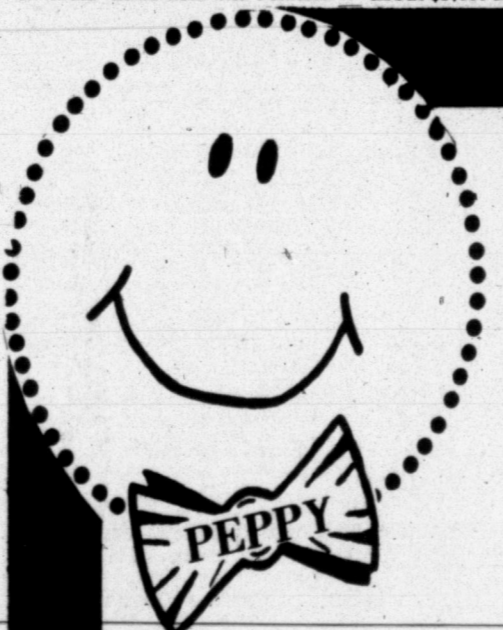

One father recalls, "My son was getting mostly C's and D's and couldn't seem to get interested in any subject, especially mathematics. We put him into a private school and in a single semester his grades improved. Now, 18 months later, he is getting B's and even a few A's."

The father believes that the key to his son's academic turnaround is the smaller classes and greater amount of individual attention his son has received.

He noted that his son's public school class sizes ranged from 38 to 50 students while the private school classes were seldom more than 25 and often less than 20.

Parents acknowledge there are drawbacks to the change-over from public to private education. In addition to the added expense which only a selected few can afford, transportation is often difficult to arrange.

However, most parents believe that the added expense and inconveniences of sending the sons and daughters to private schools are worth it if it means their children will go on to higher levels of education and greater achievements.

PEPPY SEZ

First National Bank

If all the resources of the First National Bank were changed into dollar bills and placed end to end they would reach 4,581.24 miles.

A dollar may not go as far as it used to in pre-inflation times, but the $48,377,963.82 reported in a June 30 statement of condition still reflects a healthy local economy.

Total assets at the bank in 1960 were around $16 million, according to Floyd Watson, bank president. "It's been kind of a steady growth," Watson said. "A lot of it is inflation, but there is still much good, steady growth."

The bank has 48 full-time employees and operates three drive-in windows in addition to in-building services.

The bank was organized in 1906 and, according to DeLea Vickers who joined the bank in 1909, it was nationalized in 1908.

Vickers served as president of the bank from 1934 to 1943. He replaced B.E. Finley who became president a year or so after the bank was organized.

"A fellow named Cole was president until Mr. Finley came in 1907 or 1908," Vickers recalled.

The bank and the city's economy have changed, according to Vickers.

"It was just an agricultural city bank for years," he said. "And we only had a few people in town. Settlers came here to buy cheap land and make a home. They had very little money. There just was no money. They bought land on time from land companies."

Vickers remembers that the discovery of oil in the area in 1927 resulted in some more business for the banks.

But not long after that another problem came along — a two-faceted problem — drought and depression.

"Back in the depression days times were rough," Vickers said. "People just don't know hard times now. Nobody had any money. Everybody had a hard time getting by. The bank helped as much as they could."

According to Watson, Pampa is not feeling the current financial pains being experienced in much of the nation.

"As far as the economy in the nation is concerned," he said, "we kind of have to base our feel for it on what we see and hear about it. But I don't think we've felt it here — or in Texas, even. I think the economy in the state and in Pampa is pretty sound."

The bank president was reluctant to make any predictions concerning local economy.

"The thing that's difficult to project is the uncertainty of the government in the oil business. But it is a stable town. There's not a lot of fast growth, just a slow, steady rise. And the economy is diversified. While the oil situation may be uncertain, the agricultural situation is looking up right now," Watson said.

With an eye to future growth and expanded service, the bank recently purchased the old Pampa Junior High School property downtown and may use the site for a drive-in facility, though currently there are no definite plans, Watson said.

The present bank building was built in 1951 — 50 feet wide. In 1961 a 25-foot wide vacant lot next door to the bank was purchased and the building was added to by that measurement. The drive-in windows were constructed in 1959, the year Watson joined the bank. He has been president since January 1964.

The most recent work at the bank was renovation that resulted in locating the installment loan department in the east end of the building.

Watson said that recent surveys at the bank have revealed that about 50 per cent of all window business is being conducted at the drive-in facilities.

"Longer hours at the drive-up windows is the trend in banking," he said.

The bank's drive-up window hours current are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"We were the last bank in the Panhandle to stop working on Saturdays," Watson said.

"I think financial institutions play a big part in the well being of a community," Watson said. "We're fortunate to have the four financial institutions we have. They all play an important role in the community and take care of the needs of the community. I don't think you'll find two better banks anywhere."
