Pampa News readers will have noticed that we did have a picture of Willard Speck's pet crow, Jim, in The News. We would have. We'd planned to. But the day before we were going to go out and take some pictures and talk to Speck and the crow, Willard called and said he'd given the crow to his grandparents.

They wanted him so bad, I just gave him to them," Speck said. "He's over in Oklahoma with them now."

Speck said his grandparents had fallen in love with Jim several months ago on a previous visit and when they visited this time, he decided to give them the bird.

Some of the less delightful yet more constant news concerns our pocketbooks. Specifically, how much more it costs to live in Pampa this year than last.

First, our cars. According to the Hertz Corporation, you and I are each paying between $200 and $300 more this year to own and drive our cars. Round that off to $250.

Next, we in Pampa must add the utility hikes which the city commission is about to approve. 20 cents for the minimum water rate, 80 cents in sewer charges a month, and $1.20 for garbage and trash collection.

That's $26.40 a year more to the utility bill.

Then Henry Kissinger reports that the new Sinai peace pact will cost Americans $200 million divided by the number of Americans, that makes about $1 each.

And of course, there is food.

If a family of four spends $50 a week on groceries, which according to County Extension Service agent Elaine Houston is about average, that is $2,600 a year. This, at the current rate of inflation, increase to $2,977 a year.

That total increase is almost $707 a year just for those items and there are still higher mortgage rates, higher insurance rates, 13-cent stamps, and school employe and congressional pay hikes to pay for.

I hope I haven't spoiled your evening.

But some Pampans have sharpened their minds and their pencils and have come up with solutions for Pampa's money problems.

Some officials may believe that a tax hike or a rate increase will solve everything, but several local citizens are sick and tired of their tax money being squandered.

One problem solver, who is handy with a calculator, has uncovered a hidden cost of $150,000 in the city budget.

Coffee breaks for professional employes.

This person reports that one three-man department in the city takes two coffee breaks daily. Figuring that each man takes 45 minutes each break (a conservative figure, the caller said) and makes $5 an hour (another conservative figure), here are the caller's calculations:

45 minutes times three men times twice a day times $5 an hour times 52 weeks a year times 25 departments in the city equals $150,000 a year.

This conservative estimate would go quite a way to bail the city from its deficit of $270,000. And save Pampans on their water and garbage bills.

The community is saddened by the death of Worley Hospital which has served Pampa since its oil boom days of 1928.

Worley's patients numbered seven when the announcement came that the hospital was closing.

That makes us wonder about the McLean hospital where the average daily patient attendance was less than three in July and where the county lost $6,397 that month alone.

But, oh, we almost forgot Worley is a private hospital, a business. If business is bad the business closes.

Gray County operates McLean Hospital on taxpayers' money and officials seem to think that taxpayers can afford the loss. It's always easier to squander other people's money.

Police Auction

Lt. J.J. Ryzman of the Pampa Police Department was auctioneer Tuesday at a sale on the City Hall parking ramp. There were 52 items sold and they brought top bids ranging from 30 cents to $41. An estimated 70 persons attended the auction. Assistant Police Chief George Wallace, holding the clipboard, helped keep the records straight at the sale. Money produced by the auction — $505.16 — will go into the city's general operating fund. (More photos on page 3.)

Family Believes Hoffa Murdered

DETROIT (UPI) — For more than a month, James Hoffa's son steadfastly maintained his father was still alive.

But Tuesday, 40 days after the former Teamsters union president vanished, the younger Hoffa said publicly for the first time he believed his father was dead.

"I don't think we'll ever see him again," James P. Hoffa said.

"I think he was assassinated. Although he did not say exactly what changed his mind, the younger Hoffa indicated it was the length of time Hoffa has been missing. He also said he doubted investigators would ever find his father's body."

Hoffa disappeared July 30 after telling his family he was going to a suburban Detroit restaurant for a meeting with three men. He was last seen in the restaurant's parking lot.

'Jaws' Hits Biggest Money

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Jaws" has become the biggest money-making movie in cinema history, Universal Studios announced Tuesday.

In the 78 days since its release, the tale of a giant shark eating his way through the swimmers of a New England beach resort has taken in $124.3 million at the box office, surpassing the record set by "The Godfather."

The box office take, measured up to last Friday, represents the United States and Canada alone. Foreign showing will not begin until December.

Congress Squares Off Over Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Congress faced each other today in a new energy policy confrontation, this one over Ford's veto of a bill extending U.S. oil price controls for six more months.

Democrats, fearing the inflationary impact of decontrol, hoped to override Ford's veto this afternoon but acknowledged it would be hard to muster the necessary two-thirds majority. GOP leaders said they thought the veto could be sustained.

The outcome, said one ranking Democrat, hinged on five Democrats and 11 Republicans listed late Tuesday as undecided.

Ford's veto Tuesday opened the door for prices to more than double — from $5.25 per barrel to the world market price, currently about $13 — on 60 percent of the crude oil produced in the United States.

But the President, appearing no more anxious than the Democrats to see a sudden upward surge in domestic oil prices, included in his veto message an invitation for compromise.

Ford said the six-month extension of controls was unacceptable, but urged passage of a new bill extending controls for just days to allow time for Congress and the administration to work out a plan for gradual rather than abrupt decontrol and price increases.

There was sharp disagreement over the potential impact of decontrol. Studies by the Library of Congress and the Congressional Budget Office said decontrol could boost gasoline prices by three or more cents a gallon, cost 600,000 jobs by the end of 1977, increase wholesale prices by 4 per cent, reduce economic growth by up to 200 per cent and cost consumers $72 billion over the next five years.

But Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb disputed those predictions, saying the impact would be minimal. Even with immediate decontrol, Zarb said, gasoline prices are not likely to change for three to five months because of decreasing demand.

If no compromise is reached, Zarb said, Ford will remove his $2 per barrel tariff on imported oil, in effect reducing the top price of domestic oil to $11.

Baker and Lamar Elementary Schools were visited Monday by HEW representatives to determine if the ethnic balance at the schools is proper.

Long said that Baker is 2.25 per cent above the level considered acceptable by HEW, but the HEW officials did not seem concerned by that small margin or the 23 per cent above the acceptable level that was noted at Lamar.

Lawyers for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund which brought the suit say the ruling will force HEW to cut off federal funds for those districts if they do not comply with desegregation standards.

Long said that the letter from HEW will indicate "whether we have complied or must take additional action."

Worley Will Close Oct. 15

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Worley Hospital will officially close Oct. 15, but no admissions will be accepted after Sept. 20.

The announcement was made Tuesday by C.L. Pope, group vice president of American Medical International Inc., owner and operator of the facility.

"I've been to happier funerals," Jean Burch, day supervisor, said about the closure.

Residents from throughout the area called the hospital last weekend following a Pampa News story revealing the forthcoming closure.

Three women from White Deer called Mrs. Burch wondering what they would do without Worley.

Amy Russell, administrator, said she had received numerous calls asking if there was any way to keep the hospital, which has served this area since 1928.

"The economics of operation of the hospital are such that current utilization of the facility by the community does not permit continued operation of the entity," Pope said.

He added that AMI has examined total utilization of Worley Hospital and Highland General Hospital and it appears that the patients can be "concentrated within the latter to provide the most efficient and economical hospital care for the citizens of Pampa."

Worley had planned to build a new facility on an 11-acre tract off Kentucky in the vicinity of the two local nursing homes.

Today that tract of land is for sale. The downtown building is for sale or rent.

Over the past several years, AMI has subsidized hospital care to the community of Pampa in excess of a quarter of a million dollars through losses in the operation of Worley, Pope stated.

Indications are that we can only expect continued losses. Rate adjustments to overcome losses could not and should not be borne by the patients who use this hospital.

Mrs. Burch described the situation as one you can't believe is happening.

There are a lot of tears and a general atmosphere of gloom, she added.

Mrs. Russell said she made the announcement to employes this week.

"No one said a word and I said no more than I had to," she explained.

Thousands of patients have received treatment at Worley through the years.

"These walls have seen life and death — joy and sorrow," said an employe, who remembered the days when babies were born at Worley.

Mrs. Russell said the hospital has been the birthplace for three generations in several families.

It is sad," Mrs. Russell said. "Things serve their purpose and then they are gone."

But there are those who won't give up. Tuesday morning an elderly man was admitted for surgery because he refused to go elsewhere.

Officials expect that each of the seven patients in the hospital will be able to be dismissed by Oct. 15.

As for the 46 employes on the payroll, AMI has offered transfers.

"I expect some," Mrs. Russell said. "But many cannot leave their families."

As the days of Worley fast come to an end, young and elderly alike walk in and out and wish for bygone days — the days when Worley had so many patients some were confined in the halls.

That has been as recently as seven years ago, Mrs. Russell remembers.

Pope said Worley's closure is "plainly a situation where the number of beds available in a city exceed the community's need."

Highland General Hospital has 126 beds. AMI has the highest regards for Mrs. Russell and her staff of employes. The doctors and employes are wonderful," Pope emphasized.

The furniture and equipment at Worley is expected to be shipped elsewhere since AMI owns facilities in all parts of the nation as well as overseas.

New War Between States

Fight Begins for Scarce Heat

United Press International

Portions of the United States face an energy-scarce winter.

It is compounded by a "war between the states" over the price of natural gas, a wildcat strike by coal miners, and the possibility the Middle East again will turn off the oil pumps that help keep American homes and cars fueled.

"Let the best ride freeze in the dark," proclaim bumper stickers on cars throughout the Gulf states, in response to suggestions that industries in their states shut down partially this winter so natural gas used there could be channeled to Northern states to heat homes.

Texas, the nation's leading natural gas producer, already may have fired the first volley in the war.

The Texas legislature in April passed a law prohibiting out-of-state natural gas sales until all Texas needs are clearly met.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe called the bill an "effective and timely message to the non-energy producing states of the Union."

The natural gas industry's leading lobbyist blames Northern lawmakers for creating the shortage.

"Those politicians are screwing their own constituents by their stupidity to oil and gas production," said Sherman Hunt, president of the

Here's how it shapes up.

Natural Gas

Cooperation may be difficult to wheedle from Southern states such as Texas, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Louisiana, unless natural gas producers there get a better price for their product, like oil, a resource that for decades has been sold cheaply and used lavishly.

"They want us to give them cheap natural gas from down here," said Sherman Hunt, an independent dealer from Texas, where 37.6 per cent of the nation's natural gas is produced. "We have enough gas to take care of ourselves. We've got to try to sell in Texas before I ship it out of state."

The reason is simple. Hunt and other producers get two dollars per thousand cubic feet of the colorless, odorless gas they sell within the state where it is produced. But an artificial 55-cent ceiling has been imposed by the federal government for the same amount transported over a state line.

The Ford administration is proposing lifting controls on interstate gas prices, to prevent shortages and save jobs of workers in factories that may close if gas supplies run out. The President faces a tough battle getting Congressional approval.

Coal

Coal could be in short supply because of a wildcat miners strike that cost the industry eight million tons of unmined coal and shut down coal pits in at least eight states. Most of the 60,000 miners that walked picket lines have returned to work, but the strike ate into surplus supplies and split the loyalty of rank and file members of the powerful United Mine Workers.

More than 65 per cent of the bituminous coal mined is sold to electric utilities, which in turn produce power for homes and industries.

The stockpile has been reduced to about 95 days for electrical utilities, said Herb Foster, vice president, public relations for the National Coal Association. "That's less than we'd like, but it's not dangerous."

Heating Oil

If there is a bright side to the winter energy outlook it is in the home heating oil industry. Three giant oil suppliers — Exxon, Mobil and Gulf Oil — say they expect no trouble supplying residential and commercial customers.

Our heating oil supply situation hinges on whether or not there will be a shortage of natural gas, and of course, the severity of the weather," said a Gulf Oil spokesman in Pittsburgh.

Mobil and Exxon foresee no difficulties either. But one spokesman, mindful of the situation two years ago, said, "If the Arabs get mad they've still got a weapon that can make this a damn uncomfortable winter."

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

A Dangerous Man

Henry Kissinger, the U.S. Government's Secretary of State, is a dangerous man.

Not because he is ambitious; ambition, in its proper channels, is healthy rather than dangerous.

Not, as some have suggested, because he talks with a foreign accent; the way a man talks has nothing to do with whether he is dangerous or not.

Not because he is an appointed, rather than an elected official, were he elected, he would still be a threat.

And, certainly, not because he is a Jew, as still others have suggested. Jews, individual by individual, are no more dangerous than anyone else.

Why then, is Henry Kissinger a dangerous man? Simply because he wields power; the power to commit YOUR life, YOUR property, to the consumption of HIS ends.

The noted military strategist, von Clausewitz, correctly pointed out that diplomacy is war under a different name. With the lessons of Vietnam hopefully learned, the people of this country would do well to keep that fact in mind in the days ahead as diplomat Kissinger goes racing around the world making military and economic commitments, involving the lives and fortunes of the American people, with the heads of various governments.

For, just as sure as apples produce little green apples, Henry Kissinger, step-by-step, is going to bog us down in the swamp of another "Vietnam" in the Mideast if he is not stopped. Already, the U.S. News and World Report points out in its September 1 issue, the commitments he has made in the Mideast, including billions of dollars in U.S. aid, are staggering. "Significantly increasing America's involvement in the explosive Mideast."

In his latest round of "shuttle diplomacy" of August 20, alone, USN&WP went on to document. Kissinger has committed this country to:

- Sending U.S. technicians (They were called "advisors" in the early stages of Vietnam. Remember?) to man radar sites in the Sinai.
- Guaranteeing deliveries of oil to Israel, the cost of which is estimated at 350 million dollars a year.
- Providing Israel with other long-term U.S. military and economic assistance, with that government's current request alone running to $2.5 billion or more "to be given immediate and positive consideration."
- Furnishing the Egyptian government millions of tons of grain on easy terms, plus further shipment of military equipment.

These are just the commitments that have surfaced and been made public. One guess is as good as another, based on our government's inclination to meddle, as to what other commitments have been made in secret.

All, mind you, without a peep of protest from the "liberal" front which raised such storms of protest over our governmental meddling in Vietnam.

Order in Society

"We call a multitude of men a society when their activities are mutually adjusted to one another. Men in society can successfully pursue their ends because they know what to expect from their fellows."

The above are the opening two sentences in an essay, kinds of "order": the one easily written by Friedrich A. von Hayek, recipient of the 1974 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science.

Professor Hayek then goes on to explain that there are two kinds of "order": that one easily perceived, because it is ORDERED by someone; the other not so easily perceived, because it is SPONTANEOUS but, nevertheless, real.

Another way of putting it would be to say that the first kind of "order" is imposed by force or the threat thereof, while the second kind of "order" is achieved—by voluntary interaction between the people of a given area.

In all of history there has never been a society based entirely on either of the two; to date, all known societies have been based on a mixture of the two, kinds of "order"—a mixture of force and voluntary action. But this fact does not prevent us from comparing and judging the relative merits of the two systems.

In those areas where force has been extensively relied on as the prime mover, people have done little more than they were forced to do by those doing the ordering. This, in turn, has called for an even greater resort to force in an effort to jerk the people out of their apathy and to greater productive effort, a self-defeating program leading to abject slavery and widespread poverty. As Hayek shows in his monumental treatise of that title, this is the "Road to Serfdom."

In those times and places where "order" has been, to the greatest extent, based on voluntary and spontaneous interaction, on the other hand, such as in the United States until relatively recently, the results have been just the opposite. Freedom of action, plus the knowledge that one could keep and use most of what one earned, generated such a burst of creative activity and prosperity as the world had never known before.

The one, "order" based on force is the regimented "society" known as socialism.

The other, "order" based on spontaneous activity and voluntary exchange, is the true society of the market place.

The question is: Which do we want? For, with the growing sophistication and efficiency of the methods of coercion, there is the distinct probability that the two systems can no longer exist side by side.

Question Box

QUESTION: — The liberal establishment is throwing a fit over the proposal of Treasury Secretary William Simon to reduce taxes for corporations and stockholders. Conservatives are inclined to say that if liberals are against it, it must be good. But won't a reduction of taxes for corporations mean the rest of us will have to pay more taxes? Isn't it just a rip-off in favor of the wealthy people of the country?

ANSWER: There are a great many ifs which must be considered before one can give a definite answer. If all other factors remain constant, then one could say that a production of taxes for one person or group of persons would result in higher taxes for all the rest of the tax payers. But if a reduction in tax rates for some would result in greater investment in productive enterprises with increased taxable income, the ultimate result: would be more jobs, more taxable income, and generally improved economic conditions which would help everyone, even the politicians and bureaucrats.

The theory that removing corporate taxes results in higher taxes for individual tax payers is a part of the theory of most members of the so-called liberal establishment, and some so-called conservatives as well, that there is only a certain amount of wealth, which should be distributed equally. That may be partially true in a socialized, collectivized society. It is not true in a growing, productive society in which individuals are free to improve their own and others' well-being.

Too much of the populace in the United States seems to have absorbed the socialist theory that business and industry are opposed to the interests of the workers. It's an attempt to "divide and conquer." If the socialists can get the people to think the workers are exploited by employers and the customers are exploited by the producers and distributors they will be accomplishing their objective of destroying capitalism.

The truth is that when individuals are permitted to invest some of their earnings in future production, they do it with a selfish motive of seeking their own best interests. And incidentally they are creating opportunities for others to improve themselves. As the late R.C. Hoiles used to remark regularly, an individual must spend or invest his money. It does no one any good to have a specific number of paper dollars — or even a store of gold — buried in tomato cans in his back yard. He must either spend it on his needs and wants (bringing employment to suppliers), or invest it directly in some productive enterprise, or invest it in some bank or financial institution which puts it to productive use. Therefore, the more money available for investment, the better chance there is for all persons in the free society to advance themselves financially.

Removing some corporate and investment taxes, all other factors remaining the same, seems to us to be the best way to get the nation back on its financial feet. It should bring more investments and more and better expenditures. Other jobs. But it would not please those who seek to destroy what is left of free enterprise capitalism.

We do not accept the idea as a true tax reform. We continue to remind our readers that true tax reform must include reduction in government expenditures. Otherwise, the government measures of cutting taxes to pay for the same expanding bureaucracies must be construed as tax shifts rather than reforms. But cutting corporate taxes to allow more earnings is one of the least objectionable shifts we can think

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Just How Liberal Is Rocky?

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Several decades ago, some forgotten Tin Pan Alley tunesmith briefly got a little mileage out of a ditty entitled, "Whose Is Izzy — Is He Yours or Is He Mine?" If the copyright hasn't run out, its present owner might earn a buck or two by reissuing it now and peddling it to liberals and conservatives alike with slightly revised lyrics: "Whose is Rocky — Is He Yours or Is He Mine?"

The question of just how liberal Nelson Rockefeller is has been around ever since he was elected governor of New York in 1958 and started running for the presidency. It confronts us today in its acute form because he wants to stay on the GOP ticket as President Ford's vice-presidential running-mate in 1976. To this end he has been down South recently, trying to persuade Republican leaders there that he is not as liberal as he is painted.

I don't know what Rocky privately tells the liberals, but his confidential pitch to conservatives has remained substantially the same since at least 1961, when he used it on several members of the national board of Young Americans for Freedom in the course of an unsuccessful attempt to woo those conservative youngsters. (I know it hasn't changed because I got it, substantially without variation, earlier this very year from a world-renowned scientist, friendly to Rocky, who was trying to shut me up on the subject.) It goes as follows:

"I'm hard on offense, hard on fiscal responsibility, and soft on welfare. You've got two-thirds of me — what more can you ask?"

The trouble, of course, is that thus far Rocky's career has given him ample opportunity to demonstrate that he is indeed as soft as a ripe Camembert on the subject of welfare, but there has been little chance to show how tough he allegedly is on defense. As for "fiscal responsibility," it is perhaps enough to note that New York State's deficit was $1.35 billion when he became governor and $8.86 billion when he stepped down, despite major increases in the state income tax during his administration.

But a methodical review of Rockefeller's public career leaves no doubt whatever that he is, and always has been, in his public capacities a Stakhanovite liberal.

Nelson Rockefeller was recruited for the New Deal by FDR's confidante, Harry Hopkins, back in the 1930s, when Harry was collecting millionaires for his boss. Rocky had graduated from Dartmouth in 1930, and apparently wasn't even a Republican by 1940, let alone a conservative. In that year, at any rate, as World War II approached America, FDR did him the handsome favor of giving him a soft civilian berth in the White House, where he remained straight through to V-J Day.

Then it was home to Pocantico Hills for Rocky, who had evidently liked the White House and longed to return. By 1952, however, the Democrats had been unhoisted at last by Dwight Eisenhower, and the GOP nomination to succeed Ike in 1960 must have seemed the perfect vehicle for an ambitious multimillionaire. So it was off to the races — in this case, the 1960 gubernatorial race.

The first time I personally ever laid eyes on Rocky was at the GOP convention of 1956 in San Francisco, where he was busy buttonholing members of the New York delegation on behalf of Jacob Javits' drive for the Republican senatorial nomination that year. Since then, both as a resident of New York and an observer of Republican politics, I have watched Rockefeller lead the left wing of the state and national GOP with every appearance of zest. In 1970, to be sure, heeding the warning of his private polls that conservative sentiment was on the rise, Rocky cautiously modified his "image" and began a crabwise crawl to starboard. But, significantly, his first (and probably only) important act as vice president, early this year, was to make the crucial ruling which alone enables the Senate's liberal majority to have its way despite conservative filibusters.

So "Whose is Rocky?" Few conservatives have any doubt. He is — theirs.

On Monopolies

It's Time To Do Away With Double Standard

By H.C. GORDON

Imagine the Attorney General of the United States recommending the merger of American and General Motors — or the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission suggesting that the eight major oil producers be reduced to two — and you will gain a pretty fair idea of the double standard which governs official attitudes toward monopoly in this country.

Of course, neither the Attorney General nor the Chairman of the FTC is about to advocate any such thing. On the contrary, not only are both these officials calling for stricter enforcement of existing antitrust laws, but critics of big business in both houses of Congress are proposing further legislation to break up highly concentrated industries. The irony lies rather in the fact that while the bureaucrats and politicians are in full cry after alleged corporate monopolization of vital industries, the work forces of most of these industries are already dominated by giant labor union monopolies which are entirely legal.

Furthermore, that federal government has actually promoted such monopolization. Currently, for example, merger talks between the United Rubber Workers and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers are proceeding with the active encouragement and assistance of Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop and Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service Director W.J. Usery, Jr. Mr. Usery, who believes that large, strong unions contribute stability to collective bargaining, hopes to have the merger completed in time for next year's contract talks in order to establish industrywide bargaining with the nation's five leading tire companies.

It would be entertaining to ask Mr. Usery if he thinks that the merger of the tire companies would also contribute stability to collective bargaining, but there can be little doubt as to what his answer would be. The plain truth is that our double standard on antitrust, which prohibits corporate but not union monopolies, is designed to pit a united labor force against a divided management — in plain English, to stack the deck in favor of union monopolies to the detriment of management and, ultimately, of the consuming public.

The enormous power of these union monopolies — of which the ability to extort inflationary wage increases is only the most obvious example — is what makes the current hue and cry against corporate business seem almost absurd. Surely there can be no question as to where the real need exists for a vigorous antitrust policy. As economist Alan Reynolds has noted:

"Employers, no matter how big, have no labor market power remotely comparable to that of unions. They are simply intermediaries between labor costs and the prices charged to consumers. Employers certainly can't pay less than the going rate for comparable labor without losing all their best workers to competing firms. A power in product markets comparable to union power in the labor markets could only be said to exist if all the producers in an industry got together and said: 'We are going to stop production as long as necessary until we get a 20 per cent price increase, and we will picket and boycott anyone who tries to hire our laid-off workers'."

Accordingly, it behooves our government's enthusiastic trust-busters to at least be even-handed in their approach. If corporate monopoly is contrary to the public interest, labor monopoly is certainly no less so. It is high time that we did away with the double standard.

Gramps Shies from Kin's Skin Show

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 72-year-old man. Two weeks ago when I went to my son's house, his wife greeted me at the door topside!

She said my son was not home, and she stood there smiling, then asked me to come in and have a cup of coffee. I didn't know what to do, so I just kept looking her in the face and told her I just remembered I had to meet a fellow in a few minutes. Then, I left fast.

I said nothing about this to my son or anybody else, but yesterday my son asked me to meet him at his house. When I got there, his wife greeted me at the door with absolutely nothing on! I told her I left some tools in my car and then I got into my car and drove straight home.

Abby, I don't think I can ever look that girl in the face again. I hate to tell my son, but if his wife acts like this with me, I am afraid she acts this way with others.

Should I tell my son or just forget about it?
NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: Tell your son. His wife is in need of psychiatric help—and the sooner, the better.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married eight months ago. When I mailed the wedding invitations to his relatives who all live out of state, I enclosed a little note inside, which read, "Money would be the gift most appreciated."

The main reason I did it was to avoid duplications of gifts and to save them postage on the gift. I was only trying to do them a favor, but I got a lot of criticism for it.

Was that wrong? And if so, why?
MEANT WELL

DEAR MEANT: I think you were wrong. An invitation to a wedding should be just that—an "invitation." To express one's preference in a gift indicates that a gift is expected. And even more presumptuous is the request for money. A gift is a gift—not an obligation.

DEAR ABBY: Stick to your guns. You are right. Nowhere in the Bible does it say that Jesus had long hair. However, your correspondent referred to Jesus as a Nazarete! He is wrong. A Nazarete was a member of a sect whose male members took a vow never to cut their hair, shave their beards, drink wine or touch a dead body.

Jesus was NOT a Nazarete—he was a Nazarene, which means he came from the city of Nazareth. Jesus drank wine, touched the dead, cut his hair and shaved his face. Just keeping the record straight in...

Sinai Commitments Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger calls the recent Sinai disengagement agreement more significant than the others he negotiated. Getting Congress to agree is more difficult, he said, because Americans would be placed between hostile armies in a faraway part of the world.

Up to 200 U.S. civilians would be between the lines, manning three short-range electronic sensor fields in each pass and helping both sides with "strategic early warning" stations, essentially radar and other longer-range devices.

It will be too late for one side to mobilize in response. State Department sources were reluctant to describe the civilians as "political hostages," but acknowledged a psychological effect on both sides.

House Overrides Education Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration urged senators today not to be taken in by what one official called a "con game" vote by the House to override President Ford's veto of a $7.9 billion education appropriations bill.

The House voted 379-41 Tuesday to reject the veto, 99 votes more than the two-thirds required for an override. The Senate was to vote late today on the veto.

The measure would fund major federal aid to education programs in the nation's grade and high schools as well as colleges. The money would be for a 15-month period that started July 1 and includes $2.6 billion in advance funding for fiscal 1977 which starts Oct. 1, 1976.

James T. Lynn, Ford's budget director, said after the House action that "this vote... reminds me of the 'con game' plot of the movie, 'The Sting'. The bill taken together with many, many others, pretends to be handing out money, but actually is picking our pockets through inflation."

The bill includes $2 billion for the single biggest aid program in the measure, so-called "Title I" help for poverty area schools. That figure is some $100 million over Ford's request.

Youngsters Beat Cousin to Death

HOUSTON (UPI) — Boys aged 11 and 12 have confessed to beating to death their 4-year-old cousin with their fists and feet and whipping him with a belt for breaking their model car.

L. H.A. Contreras said the two will be brought before a juvenile referee and murder charges requested in the slaying of Robert H. Battles on Saturday.

A 9-year-old was released to the custody of his parents because children under 10 cannot be held criminally liable, Contreras said.

"These are the youngest kids we've ever handled for murder that I can remember," the officer said. "An adult killing a child is not so unusual but children in a household gangling up on one of the kids is."

The victim's brother, Daven, 5, also was beaten and was in fair condition Monday night.

Police said the beatings occurred during a two-week period with the last one from about 9 to 10 p.m. Saturday.

The Battle boys, their 7-year-old sister and their mother, Rosemary Johnson Battles, 25, moved in recently with an aunt where the boy's body was found lying on a pallet in the living room.

The adult women were working as maids when the attacks occurred, police said.

A juvenile referee can decide to detain the boys for up to 10 days. The youths can be tried before a juvenile judge.

If found delinquent or in need of supervision, they can be placed in a reform school or a foster home until 18 or placed on probation.

Jury Complete For Carrillo Trial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — A jury of five men and seven women will remain sequestered during the federal income tax evasion trial of State District Judge O.P. Carrillo and County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo.

The jury was seated Tuesday and opening arguments were scheduled late today. U.S. District Judge Owen D. Cox said he expected the trial to last two to three weeks.

O.P. Carrillo, who faces an impeachment trial in the Texas Legislature, and Ramiro were accused of failing to pay taxes on the proceeds of what the government has alleged was a "paper" store in Duval County.

The charge, which also was included in the impeachment case, said the store was used to circumvent a state law prohibiting the county from purchasing materials from a store owned by a county officer.

The government has alleged the Carrillos set up the Zertuche General Store and the county purchased materials from it.

Then, the charges said, funds from the Zertuche store were transferred to the Carrillos' Farm and Ranch Store.

Rivals Stop Lebanon War

ZGHORTA, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival political factions stopped their 10-day-old war around Tripoli today, allowing the government to withhold immediate use of army troops to prevent further clashes.

Known casualties in the battle between Moslem leftists from Tripoli and right-wing Christians from nearby Zghorta topped 300 dead and wounded with a higher toll likely when a full count is made.

In Beirut, Premier Rashid Karami, whose hometown and political stronghold is Tripoli, recessed an emergency cabinet meeting after a two-hour session without announcing any decision on the question of calling in the army. The sixman cabinet was due to meet again in the afternoon.

During the earlier meeting, army Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Said Nasrallah, his deputy Brig. Moussa Kanaan, and the head of military intelligence, Brig. Jules Bustany, were called in to join the talks.

The lull in combat came after another night of heavy fighting between militiamen in Zghorta and Tripoli, with both sides using mortars, rockets and machine guns. The battles were closer to Tripoli than to this village, which is the birthplace of Lebanon's president, Suleiman Franjeh.

Church bells rang out to summon reinforcements from neighboring villages to repel attempts by armed bands from Tripoli to infiltrate Zghorta five miles away.

The village was peaceful Wednesday, and, except for the presence of hundreds of armed men, life appeared normal.

The villagers stressed that he the political overtones in the battle overshadowed religious issue.

Fighters said they had been forced to take up arms to "protect our property from thieves and looters from Tripoli."

The clashes between Moslems and Christians in Tripoli, 50 miles north of Beirut, spilled over into neighboring villages

Tuesday and threatened to touch off a full-scale civil war in the country.

Hundreds of Moslems from Tripoli, seeking revenge for the massacre of a busload of compatriots earlier in the week, attacked Christians from the nearby town of Zghorta with rockets, mortars and machine guns.

Militiamen sealed off the area with roadblocks, but reports reaching Beirut said the Moslems fought their way to the outskirts of Zghorta.

Under a complicated plan that apportions government posts by religion, Moslems and Christians have shared power in the divided nation of 2.9 million since independence from France three decades ago.

Submarine Skipper Loses Job Over Topless Dancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A nuclear submarine skipper who allowed a topless go-go dancer to gyrate on deck as the boat left port in Florida has been relieved of command and shunted to a desk job, the Pentagon said today.

"I've never seen such a bunch of smiling men go out to sea," said the 23-year-old dancer, Cat Futch, of the incident last July 10 at Port Canaveral, Fla. "It really boosted the men's morale."

But the Navy saw no humor in the incident. A Pentagon spokesman said Cmdr. Connelly D. Stevenson, 41, was ordered to sail the submarine USS Finback home from sea Aug. 1 and was relieved of command.

Stevenson was given a desk job at the Norfolk, Va., Navy base pending a full investigation. The Washington Post reported today that friends of Stevenson said Monday he had allowed the dance by Miss Futch for the 121 crewmen as a reward for their hard work.

Some crewmembers were quoted as saying, however, that the bare-breasted show was staged to impress the crew of a sister submarine moored at Port Canaveral.

"I only danced for about 10 minutes," Miss Futch said. "The music was not very good."

"Then I got off the submarine and took the pilot boat to shore."

She said she showed up at 6:10 a.m. on July 10 at the main entrance to Port Canaveral, her white robe hiding a skimpy go-go costume. Less than an hour later, she said, she stood on the big fin under the Finback's coning tower as the submarine headed toward the open sea.

She said she went into her topless dance as the crew piped music outside.

Miss Futch says she boarded the boat after some of the men invited her to take a tour while catching her act at a nearby night club.

"I'm really interested in the Navy," she said.

The dancer, who currently performs at a night club at Fort Pierce, Fla., said it started as a joke and Stevenson did not know about it.

After taking the tour, Miss Futch said, some of the men and officers started "joking" about her dancing on the boat. So, she said, she decided to dance.

Miss Futch began dancing after the crew provided some recorded music and then returned to the port in a pilot boat.

"It really boosted the men's morale," Miss Futch said. "It didn't hurt them or me."

"I've never seen such a bunch of smiling men go out to sea," she said.

But on Aug. 1 Stevenson, cruising the Atlantic, was ordered to return immediately to Norfolk where he was relieved of his command.

CIA Stockpiled Cobra Venom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms was summoned today by a Senate investigative panel to tell what he knows about the CIA's stockpiling of "lethal bacteriological toxins" — including cobra venom — despite a 1970 presidential order to destroy them.

Underwriters Head Talk On Planning

Estate planning was the subject of Russell E. Jones, president of the General Agents and Managers Association of Amarillo, as he addressed the September meeting of the Top of Texas Life Underwriters Monday noon in the Crown and Shield Room of Coronado Inn.

Black members of the state legislature filibustered against the bill, claiming the discretionary provisions would be unfairly applied against blacks. Wallace disagreed.

Among the aggravating factors that could lead to the death penalty are mass murder, murder committed during commission of another felony, murder committed for financial gain, murder by a prisoner, murder by a person previously convicted of a violent crime, murder committed at the risk of death to many others, and murder whose purpose is to disrupt a governmental function.

Proposal Would Divide Texas, Increase Clout

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The move to divide Texas into five states to increase its political clout on the national level is still alive, says Sen. Bob Gammage, D-Houston.

Gammage said he initially got almost 100 per cent negative reaction to his plan. Now, he says, many of those who once opposed it have decided it deserves some serious consideration.

His proposal got nowhere in the legislature, but he says he'll revive it again in 1977.

There has been talk of possible creation of a 51st state in the Great Lakes area, or of having Puerto Rico become a new state, Gammage said.

Pampa Garden Club Plans Flower Arranging Lecture

Flower arranger and instructor Mrs. Lana Ferrier of Fort Worth will make a return appearance to Pampa Monday, Sept. 22, for a lecture-demonstration sponsored by the Pampa Garden Club. She will present a morning program on line design in arrangements at the Flame Room, 9:15 a.m. to 12 noon.

A workshop will be conducted by her at the Flame Room from 1:30 p.m. until 3 p.m.

Tickets for the combined day's event are $3 and may be purchased from any member of the Pampa Garden Club or by calling Mrs. Rue Hestand, 665-8807.

Mrs. Ferrier, a National Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. Master Judge and Flower Show School Instructor, has taught flower arranging at the Museum of Science and History in Fort Worth for over 15 years. She teaches eight-week courses for garden groups and church groups throughout Texas. A conductor of tours of European gardens, Mrs. Ferrier has demonstrated and lectured at flower shows in Amsterdam and London. Her lectures have taken her to several states, including Nevada and Florida. She teaches each year in the Florida Short Course presented by the University of Florida and the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. Ferrier strives to use what is readily available in plant material in her arranging. She believes that many people are not really aware of the many things they can use effectively as dried weeds, vegetables and fruits from the grocery store, etc. She feels that all women are creative and that imagination can be developed and combined with common design principles for great fulfillment. These points will be reflected in her lecture-demonstration.

Botulism In Home Canning

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Home canning can save money, but it also can kill you if you aren't careful.

Five of the seven Americans who died last year of foodborne botulism poisoning contracted the disease by eating home canned food. Commercially processed food accounts for only 10 per cent of the botulism outbreaks in this country, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

And last year America 19; and Detroit, July 8.

Among the messages the USDA spokesmen will deliver is this:

Whether you garden or buy your produce for canning, you can't avoid the deadly bacteria that cause botulism poisoning. They are common in garden soil, and even careful washing of food cannot remove all the poison spores. The only way you can be sure of killing Clostridium botulinum is by processing food-filled jars or cans in a pressure canner at 240 degrees Fahrenheit for periods of time determined by the type of food and the size of the container used.

At a Washington news conference, government spokesmen also answered some of the questions about canning most frequently asked by consumers, and passed on tips to help assure safety.

Don't take shortcuts or experiment, particularly with low-acid produce, which includes all vegetables except for some varieties of tomatoes. Use only tested, approved methods, such as those described in USDA's booklet, Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables, Home and Garden Bulletin No. 8.

Don't use overripe produce. The chemical composition of fruits and vegetables changes with age and can reduce the acidity level which is critical in safe canning. For the same reason, avoid poor quality produce that is bruised or has soft spots.

Don't overpack. Forcing too much solid food into one jar can cause under-processing and spoilage.

Never use canned foods that show signs of spoilage: bulging or leaking lids, off-odors, mold. Destroy them promptly and in such a way that neither humans nor pets can reach them.

Don't even taste home canned food that looks or smells all right, until you have boiled it. Bring the food quickly to a rolling boil, cover the pan and boil at least 10 minutes for most foods; 20 minutes for meat, corn and spinach.

Leave canning of soup and other combination foods to commercial packers. The correct time and temperature needed for canning them should be determined scientifically, and home experiments can result in unsafe food.

High acid tomatoes can be packed safely by the water bath method. It involves rapidly boiling filled, sealed jars in water for a set length of time, depending on the size jars used. But if you add celery, green pepper, onion or other foods, the mixture should be processed at 240 degrees in a pressure canner.

Woman Mayor Hopes China Tour Re-Set

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Lila Cockrell, the only woman mayor and only Texan among a group of 13 mayors who canceled a trip to China, today said she hopes the visit can be rescheduled.

The mayors canceled their proposed trip because the Chinese government refused to grant a visa to the mayor of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

San Juan Mayor Carlos Ramiro Barcelo was denied a visa because he favors statehood for the island nation. The Chinese favor independent status for Puerto Rico. The mayors who canceled the trip said the exclusion of Barcelo from the tour was an intrusion in domestic U.S. affairs.

Club Women Discuss Activities

To begin the new year's work, 29 members of the Theta Delta chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society met Saturday in the Heritage Room of the First National Bank of Panhandle for committee planning, business, and a luncheon.

Mrs. Genie Murray, music chairman, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Ruth Smith, led the group on singing the official Delta Kappa Gamma song and a new chorus "Sing with Joy."

Miss Marjorie Ewing, president, presided at the business meeting. She announced that Mrs. Nan Wiseman had transferred to another chapter and that Mrs. Fay Burk had asked to be relieved, for this year, of her duties as second vice-president, chairman of the Professional Affairs committee, member of the Program committee and of the Coordinating Council. The president appointed Mrs. Judy Sherrod to fill those positions.

She also appointed Mrs. Mojie McCray to serve on the Research committee as chairman of Bicentennial activities and to compile information on early women educators of this area, and Mrs. Ida Lou Dickson to continue as chairman of the World Fellowship committee.

Miss Thelma Holman, treasurer, reported that a check had been mailed to Mary Hernandez of Pampa, recipient of the chapter's grant-in-aid.

Miss Ewing stated that the Regional meeting of the six upper Panhandle chapters will be held in First United Methodist church in Pampa, Oct. 11, with Beta Delta chapter as hostess. Theme of the meeting will be "A Past to Remember, a Future to Mold." Theta Delta will present a skit on "Our Image in the Community." Mrs. Cortez Dowlen of Canyon will be the director, with Mrs. Lynn Harwood, secretary.

Beta Delta will also be hostess for the joint meeting of the two local chapters, Dec. 13, in the Cornado Inn, and Theta Delta will be in charge of the program and initiation.

Plans were made for a tea celebrating the tenth birthday of Theta Delta chapter, April 10, in White Deer, with Beta Delta members and a state officer as guests.

Mrs. Nita Williams, first vice-president, presented the program theme for 1975-78, "Positive Leadership for Purposeful Action," with emphasis for 1975-76 on "Emerging Awareness."

Three members who attended the State Convention in Dallas in June gave brief reports: Miss Claudia Everly stressing the fun of fellowship; Miss Mary Ewing, the Golden Anniversary Fund; and Miss Marjorie Ewing, a rhymed summary of the major events.

Between the business meeting and the committee planning session a luncheon was provided by the Panhandle members under the supervision of Mmes. Vera Copeland and Dorothy Broadway, and Miss Mary Ewing, and Sister Valentina.

Woman Wants Patrol

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—Kristen Heemstra, 23, says she's tired of "pushing a lot of papers" in a job she describes as nothing more than a "glorified secretary."

She is a police matron in the Polk County sheriff's department, she wants to be a full-fledged police officer in Iowa—and she's gone to court to press her demands.

Miss Heemstra, a former Prairie City High School sprint star, has been rejected for jobs as a police officer in Des Moines, Ames and Newton. Officials say she is too small.

She claims her 5-foot-3½, 125-pound stature should not be allowed to stand in the way of her obtaining a policeman's job. "I've been trying without luck to get a police patrol job for the last two years," she said.

"Iowa towns are backwards when it comes to law enforcement. We have these old fuddy-duddies who think you have to be a big man to be a good police officer. In many other states, they do hire women."

But she's had no luck, so she's working as a matron. "I push a lot of papers and I'm just a glorified secretary now. I would rather be on a police patrol."

She has joined in a civil rights suit she said is aimed at preventing herself and others who want to become police officers from being discriminated against because of size.

Miss Heemstra is one of 12 plaintiffs in the $20 million class action suit filed last week by the American Civil Liberties Union against the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the Department of Justice.

In the suit, the ACLU is seeking to force the LEAA to cut off federal funding to local police departments in non-compliance with civil rights laws.

The suit also asks a total of $20 million in compensatory and punitive damages for alleged discriminating against persons such as Miss Heemstra.

Many occasions arise when, after the opening lead is made and the dummy comes into view, it is obvious that the contract is a poor one. In these situations, declarer has two hopes going for him: (1) that the opponents make a mistake, or (2) that a lucky lie of the opponents' cards exists.

The latter was the case in today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game. North-South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South West North East
2 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
6 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥.

It is difficult to criticize South for his leap to six clubs. He felt that there was just no way to find out what North's diamond holding was, so he figuratively closed his eyes and gambled out the slam, hoping that he could avoid losing two diamond tricks. West made the normal lead of the king of hearts. South perforce winning the trick with his ace. As declarer correctly viewed the set-up, his prime hope was that the six outstanding diamonds were divided 3-3. If they were so divided, then by cashing the ace and king, and giving away a third diamond lead, South's fourth diamond would become a winner.

So, at tricks two and three he cashed the ace and king of diamonds (if the king were trumped, then South could never make his contract whether he drew trumps immediately or not). When both opponents followed suit, he led a low diamond, upon which West discarded a heart as East won the trick with the jack.

East, hoping that West had a trump that was higher than dummy's six-spot, now played the diamond queen. South following suit with his remaining diamond. West trumped with the three and dummy overruffed with the five. South then drew trumps and claimed his contract.

As is evident, if West had possessed the seven of clubs (instead of East), that card would have won a trick by overruffing. But fate decreed otherwise.

Incidentally, if West had led a low trump at trick one, South would still have fulfilled his contract. He would have played dummy's five-spot. Whether East put up the seven or not, there would now be created a trump entry to dummy for the cashing of the spade ace.

Indians on Warpath, Down Red Sox, 3-2

UPI Sports Writer
Frank Robinson may be the perfect squelch to that age-old baseball policy of firing the manager to juice up a slumping ballclub.
As late into the season as July 29, Robinson's Cleveland Indians were in the American League East cellar along with the lowly Detroit Tigers. And had Frank Robinson been anyone other than Frank Robinson—baseball's first black manager in his first season as a big league pilot—he'd have undoubtedly been fired.
Instead, Indians' General Manager Phil Seghi issued the usual "Frank's doing the best job under the circumstances" vote of confidence and Robinson, who everyone knew wouldn't be fired anyway, remained.

That was six weeks ago though, and today, Robinson's Indians are suddenly the hottest team in baseball, one game under .500, winners of five straight games and 10 of their last 12.
"Two months ago, I didn't think we'd be this close to .500 at this time of the season," Robinson said Tuesday night after the Indians posted a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox in 10 innings to run their record to 69-70.
"We've got our sights on third place now (1 1/2 games separates them from the New York Yankees in the AL East), but second is also a possibility."

Rookie Rick Waits (4-1) went all the way for the victory, yielding both Boston runs in the fourth on a two-run double by Dwight Evans. Waits retired 20 of the last 21 batters he faced. Buddy Bell and Boog Powell drove home the other two Indians' runs.
Elsewhere in the American League, New York outlasted Detroit 9-6, Baltimore routed Milwaukee 9-1, Oakland nipped Kansas City 2-1 in 14 innings. California edged Chicago 5-4 and Texas swept Minnesota 3-0 and 4-2.
In the National League, it was Montreal over New York 2-1, Philadelphia on top of St. Louis 6-2, Chicago shading Pittsburgh 6-5, San Diego drubbing Cincinnati 11-2, Atlanta over Houston 4-1 and Los Angeles atop San Francisco 8-3.

Yankees 9, Tigers 6
The once-heavily touted Yankees stayed 1 1/2 games ahead of fourth place Cleveland by pounding out 17 hits—five by Chris Chambliss—in drubbing Detroit.
Orioles 9, Brewers 1
Home runs by Bobby Grich and Dave Duncan backed the four-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander as Baltimore closed to within five games of Boston in the AL East. Lee May's two-run single highlighted a four-run third and Grich added a solo homer in the sixth.

A's 2, Royals 1
Billy North's two-out 14th inning single scored Bert Campaneris with an unearned run to give Oakland a victory over Kansas City and stretch the A's' lead in the AL West to seven games. Campaneris reached safely when shortstop Fred Patek booted his two-out grounder. He then stole second and scored easily on North's hit.

Angels 5, White Sox 4
Mike Miley, batting just .184, drove home two runs with a single and sacrifice fly as California handed Wilbur Wood his 19th loss. Miley helped the Angels snap a 1-1 tie and go ahead to stay in the fifth when the singled home one run and later scored. Ed Figueroa (1312) was the winner.

Rangers 3, Twins 0, 2
Dave Nelson singled home two runs to cap a three-run ninth inning in the nightcap after Jim Umbarger hurled a four-hit shutout for Texas in the opener. The Rangers battled back from a 2-1 deficit in the second game when Tom Grube led off the ninth with a double and scored on Danny Thompson's wild throw to first trying to nail Mike Cabbage. Lennie Handle walked and Nelson then singled to score both runners.

Andersons Won't Meet

DENVER (UPI)—Bobby Anderson was looking forward to playing against his brother this year.
But neither Bobby nor brother Dick will be around Dec. 20 when the Denver Broncos meet the Miami Dolphins in both teams' regular season finale.
Bobby was traded by the Denver Broncos to the Dallas Cowboys for a future draft choice as part of Denver's efforts to get down to the NFL limit of 46 players Tuesday and Dick, a safety, was placed on the injured reserves by the Dolphins after undergoing knee surgery.
"I guess it just wasn't meant to happen after all," Anderson said. "But I was really looking forward to that. We're awful close."
The Broncos also placed second-round draft choice Charlie Smith, a 6-5, 245-pound defensive lineman, on injured reserves and waived second-year players LeFrancis Arnold, an offensive lineman, and Steve Coleman, a defensive end, and rookie running back Eric Pennick from Notre Dame on waivers.

Smith suffered a knee injury during a noncontact drill in the Broncos' training camp and has not played during the preseason.
"We've only played against each other once in our pro careers," said Bobby, referring to Dick, who is two years older. "And the game was a 10-10 tie in 1971. That's how mom wanted it to come out."
But even if Bobby had been around for that game the chances of his seeing much playing time for the Broncos, who feel they are deep in backs, were slim. He was playing behind four other running backs, including second-year men Otis Armstrong and Jon Keyworth, the Broncos starters.
At Dallas, he'll have a new chance. The Cowboys' lost Calvin Hill to the World Football League and Walt Garrison, who Anderson feels he has a shot at replacing, retired after suffering a rodeo injury to his knee.
"A couple of weeks ago coach (John) Ralston asked me where I'd like to be traded," Anderson said. "I told him either Miami so I could be on the same team as my brother or Dallas because I felt I had a chance to play there."

"That's one reason I have a lot of respect for coach Ralston, because he tried to trade me to a team where I would have a chance to play," Anderson said. "That's something the Players Association is asking for and something coach Ralston has agreed with."
Anderson was the third leading career rusher in Bronco history with 1,281 yards and set a Bronco record with 13 receptions in one game. In high school, he quarterbacked Boulder, Colo., High School to a three-year record of 24-4 and a state championship, while becoming the school's first prep All-American and being named UPI's Colorado High School Player-of-the-Year in 1965.

During his collegiate career at the University of Colorado he set most of the Buffalo offensive records while being named a consensus All-American at quarterback.

Carlton Hurls Phillies into 2nd With 6-Hit Win Over Cardinals

UPI Sports Writer
There are still times when Steve Carlton ranks among the best pitchers in baseball.
Unfortunately for the Philadelphia Phillies, those times were too few and far between.
Carlton, a former Cy Young Award winner whose career has been extremely erratic, pitched the Phils back into second place in the National League East Tuesday night when he beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 on a six-hitter. He also contributed a two-run double during a four-run sixth inning.

But while there are times like Tuesday night when the 30-year-old left-hander resembles the pitcher who won 27 games for a last place club in 1972, there have been too many times this year when he has looked more like a batting practice pitcher. His victory Tuesday night was his first since Aug. 9 and he had gone six starts without a victory.
Carlton, who has only a 12-13 record, blames much of his poor showing this season on a sore left elbow.

"My elbow has bothered me but I felt fine for the past month," Carlton said. "I feel I could have had a good year if it wasn't for the arm miseries. We have a good young ball club and we'll be contenders for many years. There's untapped potential. We have strong arms, good defense and power. If not

Fishing Slow in Area Lakes

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Fishing on three area lakes is generally slow, according to reports from Meredith Greenbelt and McClellan.

Channel catfish, a night feeder so it is not normally affected by summer heat, is the area angler's best bet this time of year.

According to Dean Forrest of Tom and Dean's Bait Shop in Fritch, "Channel cat fishing is good. There's a few walleyes being caught but it's a little slow. The lake temperature is 74 degrees — it needs to cool off three or four more degrees."

Sand bass are fairly easy to catch during the night hours at Meredith.

Black bass and crappie fishing is very slow.

Greenbelt's channel cats also appear to be affected by the high water temperature (close to 80 degrees). Trotliners are having the best luck, although rod-and-reel fishermen are taking cats at night quite often on minnows and waterdogs.

Bass and crappie fishing at Greenbelt is fair. Fishing for northern pike is, as usual, slow.

"Everything is kind of slow. The temperature is 81 degrees," said Don Wilson, concessionaire of Lake McClellan.

Channel cat and crappie fishing is fair, while only a few bass have been taken recently. However, two bass, weighing three and four pounds, were caught on a spinner last weekend.

Since 1936, almost 2 1/2 million farm ponds have been built in the United States. There are approximately 450 in Gray County alone and Perry Gruhley of the Soil Conservation Service says his department will aid area farmers and ranchers in building more.

"The Soil Conservation Service will do the engineering work and the technical assistance," Gruhley said.

"We also assist in fish pond management and fertilizing and fish feeding."

Last week, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department was in Pampa distributing 6,500 channel catfish and 1,000 hybrid (non-reproducing) perch for area farm ponds. In the spring, bass will be distributed.

Fish are available by application only, Gruhley said.

"People should contact the game warden about getting an application. He'll get it through the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. For bass, I'd do it right now."

From the Did You Know Department — a cottontail rabbit has only one chance in 20 of reaching its first birthday. And 99 per cent of all cottontails live and die less than a mile from where they were born.

Cottontails and cotton rats are the two major food items of South Texas bobcats. Both of those food sources were very scarce in 1971 and very abundant in 1972 so researchers were able to do an analysis on the eating habits of 125 bobcats.

In the scarce year, 21 different food species were found in the bobcat's diet and just 56 per cent of the total diet was cotton rats and cottontail rabbits. In the abundant year, the rats and rabbits comprised 96 per cent of the diet and only six total species were found.

Which goes to show bobcats won't eat hamburger meat if steak is available.

Dogs can be sold for 80 cents a pound to research laboratories and medical schools and that is one reason the canine theft rate is on the increase.

Solution — a dog can be tattooed with the owner's Social Security number. Tattooing clinics are regularly offered by kennel clubs, dog officers and a few municipal agencies. The tattooing is simple, quick and only as painful as a dog's regular inoculations.

Licensed dealers, research labs and medical schools will not buy a tattooed dog.

Here's what Sports Afield angling editor Homer Circle says about a world record largemouth bass:

"The countdown is ticking away in California. Any second, minute, hour or day it could happen. A world record largemouth bass will be caught, smashing the present 22 1/2-pound, 43-year-old mark by a substantial margin. Conjecture? Nope, we have movie films of such a bass."

Circle and a photographer recently filmed a monstrous bass, believed to be in the 28 to 30 pound category, in Lake Mirimar in California.

Mirimar's bass have shown a remarkable growth rate in recent years. The bass are Florida "imports."

Free Fish Fry

A Texas Parks and Wildlife official was in Pampa last week with 6,500 channel catfish fry for local owners of farm ponds who had made applications for the fish. The official also had 1,000 hybrid perch, which, according to Perry Gruhley of the Gray County Soil Conservation Service, "won't reproduce, just grow big." The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will return to Pampa in the spring with a load of bass. A game warden should be contacted immediately about obtaining the bass.

Handling Rattlesnakes Banned in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — In a ruling which it said rips out "the theological heart" of the Holiness Church, the Tennessee Supreme Court banned snake handling and the drinking of poison during religious ceremonies.

The 5-0 ruling Monday, written by Justice Joe Henry, held that public snake handling in the presence of other persons is a public nuisance.

"We recognize that to forbid snake handling is to remove the theological heart of the Holiness Church and this has prompted this court to investigate and research this matter through an unusually extensive opinion," the court said.

It added, however, that the free exercise of religion does not include the right to break the law or to maintain a nuisance.

"Tennessee has the right to guard against the unnecessary creation of widows and orphans," the court ruled.

The ruling stemmed from an injunction sought against Liston Pack, lay pastor of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name, and his followers.

Duck Fever to Hit Nation's Hunters

CHICAGO (UPI) — It won't be long before fall fever takes hold of many of the nation's duck hunters.

The first stab of cold in the lungs on a frosty morning is certain to set minds dreaming, and the avid duck hunter unconsciously glances to the skies as if a flight of ducks or geese will suddenly appear.

It is the waiting period that is the worst for the man who loves this sport, and much time will be spent preoccupied with thoughts of decoys, blinds, wet dogs and the whistling of wings.

The hunter in the north begins watching the trees. As the leaves die, it signals the season is not far off. Decoys must be painted, lines and anchors checked and the strings made ready in duffle bags, baskets or boxes.

Long into the night, the hunter may practice his duck and goose calls, seeking perfection.

Then, waders, hip boots and rain gear must be patched and shotguns cleaned. Then there are last-minute touches to blinds. But all will be done, for some several times over before the season begins.

Evenings become filled with stories of past hunts. The father may coach his offspring. He may share special tricks, such as adding a single goose decoy to a spread to capture the attention of wary puddle ducks, or explain why a loose spread is better in balmy weather and a tighter one in stormy weather.

A grandfather who finds it difficult to endure the elements, may still be quick to add his advice. "Choose a point of land for your spread, and use a v-formation on divers." Also, there may be friendly arguments about who in the family is the best shot, and who wasted the most shells the previous season sky-busting.

Finally, the season will arrive. In rural areas, many students and teachers will be absent from school if opening day falls in the middle of the week.

Hunters begin moving while darkness still engulfs the world. With the aids of flashlights they load their gear into the boat.

The sun has not yet issued a "good morning," but the marsh is alive with whispering voices. Finally, the hunters settle in the blind, wrapping their hands about a mug of hot coffee to bring life into numb fingers as they wait for morning fog to lift and the legal hour of shooting.

Always there is one hunter who is overzealous. His shot will ring out across the marsh, touching off a chain reaction. The duck season has opened.

Can Fish Find Home? A Bluegill Perch Did

The idea of putting a fish back into the water to grow larger appeals to many anglers these days. Catch and release programs are being sponsored by state fish and game departments, as well as most major fishing clubs and organizations.

The question that has always intrigued fishermen is whether or not the released fish goes back to its original home. Most anglers who regularly fish a particular body of water have had the experience of catching a fish time and again from almost the same place. If they've been releasing that fish, soon they begin to wonder if they aren't catching the same fish each time. Perhaps the answer may be found in some information that recently came to the attention of Mercury outboards' fishing department.

It seems that some southwest fisheries biologists were sampling a lake to determine the mix of rough and game fish, and the size and age of fish living in the lake. In the process of taking a sample, they trapped some fish and moved them a considerable distance away where they were placed in a holding pen to be studied later. One of the fish was a large bluegill that was tagged and kept for examination.

Somehow, the bluegill escaped from the holding pen. Its absence was noted by the biologists when they cleared the pen of all fish. Later, as more fish were being caught for a second phase of the survey, the previously tagged bluegill turned up in the capture net in exactly the same place it had been taken the first time.

Evidently, after escaping from the holding pen, the freedom-seeking bluegill went directly back to its home and took up its former position. The distance traveled was about one-half mile.

Although this isn't conclusive proof that fish possess a homing instinct, it does reinforce the belief by many anglers who practice "catch-and-release" that a fish will return to exactly the same log, rock or other underwater debris from which it was first taken.

View from the Plains Teal Not Easy Bird For Hunter to Shoot

By J.D. PEER
I&E Field Officer

LUBBOCK — September is considered a hot, dry month reserved for dove hunting but the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department suggests that state gunners try their skill on another target as the annual teal season opens Sept. 20.

The teal season will continue through Sept. 28, with a daily limit of four birds and eight in possession after the first day.

Included in this species of duck are greenwing, bluewing and cinnamon teal. These small birds can best be identified by their rapid wingbeat. The eating quality is excellent as many surprised cooks have found in the past.

Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset daily. On Sept. 20, sunrise will occur at 7:34 DST at Lubbock. For teal hunters east or west of Lubbock, a calculation of time is necessary. For points west of Lubbock, add one minute for every nine miles and for points east of Lubbock, subtract one minute for every nine miles. Check local newspapers for the exact sunrise - sunset time daily.

A federal migratory waterfowl stamp will be required of all teal hunters and these can be bought at most U.S. post offices. These stamps may be affixed to the back of your new hunting license and must be signed in ink by the holder.

As teal are migratory birds, federal law requires that all shotguns be plugged to hold no more than three shells including both the magazine and chamber. Only 10 gauge shotguns smaller are legal for teal.

Panhandle Savings and Loan

Panhandle Savings and Loan, which began in 1960 in Amarillo and spread to Pampa two years ago, has been very happy with Pampa, according to Doug Howard, assistant vice president and branch manager. "We've been real pleased with our reception here," he added.

Howard took over leadership in the company here in May.

Panhandle Savings and Loans has offices here, in Canyon and in Amarillo. The offices are linked by a common computer system and customers can transact business at any location.

"We're a full service savings and loan," Howard said, adding that the local group was proud of its very modern facilities.

Deposits for the offices total $58,318,256, Howard said. Gulf Republic Service Corporation headquarters in Houston owns Panhandle Savings and Loan. Stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange so "anyone can buy a piece of us," the manager said.

The company promotes savings and home ownership although they get into some installment and home improvement loans.

"We've been making quite a few home loans now," Howard said. "All we need is for more homes to be built in Pampa."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, SEPT. 11

Your birthday today: Vast satisfaction is achieved as you press forward in a determined effort to better your lot. If you shirk or evade, however, the words duty and responsibility echo through your year. Relationships follow and boost your career, providing comfort. Today's natives dramatize their ventures to attract support, cultivate political or business contacts in outside social groups. Individualism sets them apart.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Select those you wish to help you. Gather close associates for exchange of notes and meshing of plans. Neither travel nor legal procedures are favored.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: The main question is whether you are willing to carry a full range of responsibility and on what terms. Once this is settled you have a chance to express yourself.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Get details exact, and extend them to mean something more than seems obvious. Even this may not get you past the dangers of discrepancies in cooperation and risk of harsh words.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Employment opportunities are wide open, but involve tense choices. Home affairs flow fast and well from one situation to another. Late hours bring disagreement. Don't respond.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Routines benefit from imaginative experiments, but avoid financial frivolity. Nothing of value on sale is a bargain. Close emotional ties are subject to misunderstanding.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Relax, and adapt both attitude and schedules to fit changing circumstances. Nothing goes as planned, but is much better than expected. For once, little is gained by haggling.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: If your information is not researched in depth, it's inaccurate. Don't plunge into speculative action yet. Focus on facts and statistics; assemble unrelated materials into a new pattern.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Although you're convinced your cause and course are right, others take exception. Considered response later is more effective than reaction now. Money is one item in question.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Friends support your views and projects if they understand them. Family matters come to minor crisis with divergent opinions that need understanding and conciliation.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Vigorous inquiry turns up useful items. News from distant or special sources provides stimulus for philosophical review of your situation. Go social. Give a party.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Much can be done to alleviate health and related problems, or to install protective, preventive measures that will insure beneficial conditions. Keep at it, as you said you would.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Expect confusion, crossing mails and misinterpreted comments. Build your reserves through straightforward methods and common-sense thrift. Resist temptation to shout hasty words.

Police Department Quandary More Taxes vs. Less Service

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

What does the public want from its police department?

How much is it willing to pay?

The day may come — perhaps by 1980 — when a decision must be made.

Surveys reveal that a maximum of 25 per cent of police time is spent on criminal activity in Pampa as well as other cities across the nation.

Police Chief Richard Mills said the police department is the only place open 24 hours a day where residents can turn for help.

As the chief was reading the day's reports he looked up to see two of his officers leading a man obviously intoxicated into the jail.

"Not many residents realize that we have people in that condition at 4 p.m. in the afternoon," he commented noting that the one incident required the services of two officers.

"I think that due to increasing costs of providing all services of city government, people are going to have to choose — pay the cost or lower taxes," the chief said.

However, he doesn't think that decision will be necessary here for at least five years.

The Pampa Police Department still offers vacation house checks.

"We like to do them," he said, but he wonders how much longer the department can continue the service. Amarillo and other cities have done away with that service, he said.

"Certainly traffic enforcement is in the line of police work, but when two motorists bump bumpers and they only want a report for insurance purposes, that's a question," the chief added.

Referring to the number of disturbance calls, the chief said 75 per cent could be handled without officers if the people involved "would get out and talk with each other."

The Pampa Police Department received 1,222 calls last month operating more than three persons short. Each officer handled an average of 83 calls and driving time to each incident adds to the officer's time.

During the interview, the chief was interrupted again.

This time a man and woman who were living together were having problems. She had taken something he didn't think belonged to her.

"That's a civil matter," the chief advised.

"If we don't answer them we lose public contact," said about the calls.

"I don't know the answer," he emphasized. The problem is being discussed by police departments nationwide.

The police department offers a psychological comfort to people. "But policemen are not the best liked people in town," the chief commented.

He repeated a comment that a resident made in regard to police.

"We got to have you but we don't have to like you."

The police department in Albuquerque, N.M., recently discovered during the police strike that numerous calls do not require a patrolman on the scene so police were told to be more selective in its response to calls for three months.

The deputy chief said there are a lot of things in which a policeman is called that the caller could deal with himself or talk with police over the phone.

However, Mills said those who call usually want to talk with an officer.

Albuquerque officers, according to the deputy, were to continue responding to "emergencies, crimes in progress and violent family fights."

Non-criminal types of reports would be referred to other agencies.

The results of the Albuquerque experiment are not known at this time.

Want Hearst Witness Jailed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — U.S. Attorneys said today they have asked a federal judge to send two reluctant witnesses to jail for their refusal to testify before a grand jury investigating the Patricia Hearst case.

U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman was expected to announce a hearing date later this week for Micki McGee Scott and Martin S. Miller, who were granted immunity but refused to testify before the grand jury last week.

Ms. Scott is the common-law wife of former Oberlin College athletic director Jack Scott, the target of the grand jury probe into charges Miss Hearst was hidden on a northeastern Pennsylvania farm allegedly rented by Scott.

Both Miller and Scott's wife are accused of "willfully and contemptuously" disobeying Judge Herman's order to answer the grand jury's questions about the case. Miller is a friend of the Scott's.

If Judge Herman finds Miller and Ms. Scott in contempt at the hearing, it will open another round of appeals from William Kunstler and Margaret Ratner, the New York attorneys who represent the Scotts.

"They are just trying to keep these people on tenderhooks...keep them off balance and continue the harassment that began last January," Kunstler said when notified of the government's action.

He said he would ask Judge Herman to set bail that would keep Ms. Scott and Miller out of jail in the event he rules in favor of the government. "We will go all the way with appeals on this thing," Kunstler said.

The request from Assistant U.S. Attorney Laurence Kelly asks Ms. Scott and Miller to show cause why they should not be put in jail for the next 16 months—the lifespan of the current grand jury.

The government has been trying to get the Scotts to testify before the grand jury since last April, but both have repeatedly refused to cooperate.

Benedict Arnold was the first governor of Rhode Island in 1663.

Coal, Wood Combination Could Yield More Power

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI) — Engineers at the University of Missouri at Rolla say they could save taxpayers money by mixing coal with wood waste materials to increase the amount of steam produced by a power plant.

Dr. Virgil Flanigan, associate professor of mechanical engineering, said preliminary measurements show a 24 per cent increase in steam when using the mixture.

"If everything works out, we could save some money for Missouri taxpayers by using the mixture in university power plants both in Rolla and Columbia," Flanigan said.

"Companies using coal to produce electricity might take advantage of the process and it could also help the Missouri wood industries find a market for their waste wood."

Plant personnel mix an equal volume of wood chips and coal, or about 70 per cent coal and 30 per cent wood in terms of weight. The mixture is sent through the existing boiler system in the university's power plant.

The price of coal used by the university has increased to $34.15 a ton from $19.21 a ton in 1973. Last year 11,689 tons of coal were used by the Rolla campus to produce nearly 163 million pounds of steam at a cost of $367,000. Using less coal to produce more steam will hold down costs because wood chips are much cheaper than coal, Flanigan said.

Researchers are making measurements of the behavior of the wood-coal mixture, the actual burning process, the amount of steam produced and the type, weight and behavior of the ash.

"It looks like there are definite possibilities in using wood chips with coal," Flanigan said.

He said with additional financing he hopes to continue the study with different blend percentages of wood chips and coal to determine the most economical and cleanest way to produce steam.

The art of seasoning was probably discovered by an early man who wrapped meat in leaves to keep it fresh, then discovered the leaves added flavor, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says.

Rooney Finds Dream Girl

HONG KONG (UPI) — Actor Mickey Rooney said today he has "found the girl of my dreams" and will make her his eighth wife later this year.

Rooney, in Hong Kong to begin work on a new film, said his bride-to-be was Jan Chamberlain, a 25-year-old American singer-composer.

"At long last I've found the girl of my dreams," Rooney said as he relaxed in his hotel suite with Miss Chamberlain. "I've got a bad case of the flu, but love can conquer anything."

Rooney will be 53 on Sept. 23.
