Getting Ready for Winter

Employees of Hogan Construction Company of Pampa are caulking and washing windows at the Hughes Building — making things weather tight for the coming colder weather and making it a bit easier for those inside to see out. The equipment to raise and lower the workers was rented in Oklahoma City. There are a total of 438 windows involved in the work — floors two through seven in the oldest part of the building. (Pampa News photo by Robert Echols)

Ford Seeks Compromise To Prevent Gas Hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats, thwarted in their effort to keep oil price controls in effect for another six months, turned their attention today to a possible compromise with President Ford in hopes of stemming immediate price hikes for consumers.

The Democrats scheduled a caucus to discuss the possibility of enacting a measure to extend the price controls for a shorter period while compromise negotiations are held.

They also were expected to discuss Ford's package of proposals to ease the effects of expected price boosts if compromise attempts fail.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, chairman of the House Commerce Committee that has handled most major energy legislation, said he will do all he can to keep Congress from being "submissive" on Ford's energy program, "come hell or high water."

Staggers said the nation's economy cannot afford to let oil price controls either end abruptly or go out gradually as Ford urges.

Staggers' committee scheduled a markup of a control extension bill and the House Rules Committee was set to give it quick action later today. The proposed extension would be shorter than the six months Ford successfully vetoed.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told reporters the Democrats were unwilling to let the President take the political blame for a probable spurt in consumer prices stemming from decontrol.

Mansfield said he found "extremely little" sentiment in discussions with his colleagues for forcing Ford to accept sole responsibility for failure to reach accord on energy policy.

But he said there was an equal lack of enthusiasm for a short extension of controls while compromise efforts continue between the White House and Congress.

Assistant Senate GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin said Republicans were waiting for a signal from the Democrats that they are "willing to move" on the oil-price crisis before broaching their own new proposals.

The result is the controls, which expired Sept. 1, are now off. That opens the door for prices to more than double on 60 per cent of the oil produced in the United States — rising from $5.25 per barrel to the world market price, currently about $13 a barrel.

This in turn would raise gasoline prices by about three cents a gallon and increase prices of other goods in which fuel is part of the cost.

Intelligence Agents Knew Before Attack on Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An official of the Pentagon's security agency told Congress today U.S. intelligence agents had sufficient information to indicate that Egypt and Syria would attack Israel in 1973, but failed to evaluate it properly.

John Wobensmith, a National Security Agency official, testified before the House Select Committee on Intelligence that "from a variety of sources they knew something was brewing in Syria and Egypt" but the analysis "did not provide a warning of impending hostilities."

He said there was some "rather timid cautionary advice" but it was watered down with qualifications. Wobensmith said the analysts talked of limited action and not an all-out war.

Rep. Otto Pike, D-N.Y., the panel chairman, contended there were different assessments by different agencies in the intelligence community on whether war was imminent.

Pike indicated he had a copy of a Defense Intelligence Agency report correctly predicting on Oct. 3 the attack was imminent. The Arabs launched their offensive on Oct. 6.

He asked Wobensmith to read a one paragraph from a DIA bulletin dated Oct. 3, but the NSA official refused unless the committee went into executive session.

Pike today received some of the documents he requested under a subpoena Wednesday relating to intelligence efficiency before the 1973 war.

Earlier, Ray Cline, who was head of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence at the time the war broke out, said his group had also made an assessment on Oct. 5 that war was imminent and tried to alert Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was then in New York. Cline said he was told by Kissinger's staff they "they didn't want to trouble him."

The material was sent up by carrier pouch but before it arrived, Egypt and Syria had attacked, Cline said.

Cline made clear—without mentioning Kissinger's name—that part of the trouble in getting intelligence evaluations to the top for decisions was that they always ended up with one man.

Kissinger, in addition to being Secretary of State, has also retained his post as National Security Adviser to President Ford, his former position under Richard M. Nixon.

Cline, in his recommendations how to improve the system, said the jobs should be separated and not held by the same man.

On Wednesday, the White House delivered, under subpoena, secret government information on the intelligence community's internal memoranda about Middle East conditions before the 1973 war.

"This is the most sensitive information a government can have," White House counsel Roderick Hills told UPI. "To put it out to the public would substantially compromise the security of the United States."

Roommate Says 'Family' Involved in Murder Plots

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The FBI has picked up a copy of a radio tape in which the roommate of Lynette Fromme, accused of attempting to assassinate President Ford, said at least six businessmen in the South would be killed by a group called the "People's International Court of Retribution."

Sandra Good, whose name has been associated with the Charles Manson Family, was interviewed Wednesday by Bob Ruby of WWL radio. She said the "family" was deeply involved in the assassination plot.

"Assassinations are necessary," she said, "since people are asking for trouble by hurting the earth and from what they are programming on television."

An FBI spokesman said the threats were being studied, and the people named as assassination targets had been contacted.

"Any time a threat has been made you have to give credence to it until you can determine otherwise," said Al Simms, the spokesman. "The only thing that we're doing right now is investigating to determine if there has been any violation of any federal law which we have investigative jurisdiction under."

"We have talked to these people (named in the conversation), and other than that I can't say much more. Whether they are being provided with a guard by their local police, I do not know. I have no knowledge of that," Simms said.

During the interview, Miss Good, 31, also threatened the life of Ruby, but the threat was edited out before broadcast.

She said these men and their wives were marked to die by the "People's Court," and gave a reasons in one case.

—Floyd Lewis, president of Middle South Utilities, of New Orleans. She said the group was upset over Middle South plans to build nuclear reactors.

—Gordon Ryan, an executive with Starr Broadcasting, also of New Orleans.

—Fred Kaiser of Atlanta, a candy manufacturer.

—Herbert Grey of Atlanta.

—William Berrin of Atlanta.

—Richard Davis of Houston, who works for an oil company.

Ryan, contacted after the interview and told of the threat, said he would prefer not to comment.

"But truthfully," he added, "I hate to have myself and my wife identified with the list because it may cause other persons who may be unbalanced to single us out."

Fromme Indicted

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The indictment read that she "did knowingly and willfully attempt to kill Gerald R. Ford, President of the United States of America." With that, Lynette Fromme added to her part in the nation's history.

Two years after the assassination of President John Kennedy, Congress enacted a law making it a federal crime to assassinate or attempt to assassinate a President, vice president, or an official next in line. Until then, such crimes were prosecuted under state laws.

Wednesday, Miss Fromme, a 26-year-old member of the murderous Charles Manson cult, became the first person indicted under that law. If convicted she faces a maximum life sentence.

The indictment was handed down by a 22-member federal grand jury. Chief U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride continued her bail at the maximum $1 million and ordered her arraigned today.

U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes said he expects to go to trial in 60 to 90 days.

Last Friday, Miss Fromme pointed a .45-caliber Colt automatic pistol at Ford as he walked across the state capitol grounds at Sacramento. The gun, although loaded, did not fire.

The jury returned the one-count indictment after an all-day session in which seven other routine cases were considered. Among witnesses called was Harold "Zeke" Boro, 66, a retired federal employe and owner of the weapon the red-robed Miss Fromme drew from a leg holster and aimed at Ford from point-blank range.

Boro, described in state intelligence reports as a "sugar daddy" to Miss Fromme and her roommate Sandra Good, 31, a fellow Manson cultist, was rushed in and out of the federal building amid tight security.

Keyes said Miss Fromme's indictment did not "rule out" the possibility of other arrests for conspiracy in the assassination attempt against Ford. He declined further comment, citing a gag order issued by MacBride which prohibits those involved in the case from discussing it with newsmen.

Keyes previously said investigators found no evidence of a conspiracy.

Woman Held for Robbery Of Bank Shocks McLean

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff

Although not a dozen people from McLean knew the name of the woman who allegedly robbed the First National Bank of Amarillo of $41,787 Wednesday, the whole town was shocked.

"We were completely shocked and amazed that someone from this nice, quiet refined little town of 1,200 people would do a thing like that," one resident said.

The suspected robber was identified as Verna Lou LeMond, 31, who lived in a modest two-room apartment in McLean with no apparent money problems.

Her mother is Mrs. Oma Wilson of 519 Walnut in McLean who was described to The News this morning as a "lovely lady."

Mrs. LeMond allegedly was held at gunpoint by a bank guard before she could leave the vicinity of the bank with the money.

She is now in Potter County jail in lieu of $75,000 bond set by U.S. Magistrate Bob Sanders of Amarillo.

McLean Deputy Sheriff Jim Shelton said he watched the report of the robbery on television and couldn't believe it happened. "Not in this part of the country and a local girl," he said.

The few McLean residents who knew Mrs. LeMond described her as extremely quiet and very polite.

"She was just as nice as you could expect," said Mrs. R.M. Rhoten of Simpson's Market in McLean where Mrs. LeMond had shopped for groceries.

"She gave a check and it was good," Mrs. Rhoten said. The woman apparently had a checking account at the American National Bank in McLean.

She told the U.S. Magistrate during the arraignment Wednesday afternoon that she had $3,000 in a savings account in Yuma, Ariz.

One woman said Mrs. LeMond had worked at Marie Foundations "just a short time" and quit Marie Foundations would not comment on the report. Mrs. LeMond reportedly told a teenager in McLean that had a job with a bank in Amarillo.

"She didn't have money problems — not one," said one resident. "She had just sold her house in Yuma. She had nice clothes."

The woman said she had observed that Mrs. LeMond had no adult friends.

"She related mostly to children," she added. "She was very quiet — the timid type — in fact I didn't know her last name until Sunday."

Asked about Mrs. LeMond's social life, the woman said Mrs. LeMond had none.

Mrs. LeMond was described in Amarillo as "bold and unusually calm" when she allegedly entered the bank and pulled a .22 caliber deringer on the teller, Mrs. Barbara Harlan.

Police said she shoved a white purse across the counter and ordered "fill it up and I won't hurt you."

Mrs. Harlan obeyed and placed several stacks of money on the counter.

"Is that enough?" asked Mrs. Harlan. "Yes, that's enough, thank you," Mrs. Harlan quoted the woman as replying.

The robber then walked through the lobby with the money, but was followed by a bank guard, Walter M. Hearn.

Hearn said that outside she walked to the signal light at 8th and Tyler, looked back and saw him, then ran.

She got into a car and started the engine before Hearn leveled the gun.

"She didn't drive away. She stayed there," he said. Police soon arrived and ordered her out of the car for a search. She offered no resistance, officers said.

Overrides Education Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans deserted President Ford in large numbers on an aid to education bill, allowing Congress to enact the $7.9 billion measure over Ford's veto.

The Senate action Wednesday, following a similar House vote by a day, was the sixth time in 14 attempts Congress has overridden one of Ford's 37 vetoes — and was expected.

The Senate vote was 88-12, 21 more than needed. The House voted 379-41 Tuesday to override, 99 more than needed.

Twenty-eight Republican senators joined 80 Democrats to vote for override, while only one Democrat, William Proxmire of Wisconsin, voted to sustain. In the House, 103 Republicans deserted Ford while only 36 voted to sustain.

The bill provides funds for public schools and colleges for 15 months retroactive to July 1. It also includes $2.6 billion in advance funding for the 1977 fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1976.

The major aid program is $2 billion for poverty area schools under the popular "Title I" project. It was nearly $100 million over Ford's request, but his main objection was to the $680 million for aid to schools serving children of federal workers, a level $414 million over his request.

Democrats argued the bill represented only a $255 million increase over last year's education spending — a 3.6 per cent boost necessary, they said, to cover the cost of inflation.

"The real importance of this education bill is not the effect it will have on budget deficits but its long-term impact on the education of school children," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, however, "excessive federal spending breeds inflation and inflation, as we have just witnessed, leads to depressed economic activity."

Falsie Alarm

A door on a truck came open Wednesday as the vehicle was leaving Pampa's Marie Foundations plant for the company's McLean location with a load of bra padding.

Dale Greenhouse, manager of the Pampa plant, said that at first it was feared that the entire load of the padding had been lost from the truck, scattered from Pampa to McLean, but investigation revealed that only four bags of the material fell out of the truck. "Some of the good neighbors of Pampa helped us get the padding all gathered up," Greenhouse said.

Local Concerts Set

Tickets for the Pampa Community Concert Association's 1975-76 season will go into the mail next Monday, it was announced today by Mrs. Kermit Lawson, membership secretary. Mrs. Lawson said association members who have not received their tickets by the end of next week should notify her at telephone 665-2004.

The first concert attraction will be the "Little Angels of Korea" Tuesday, Oct. 7, in the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium. Other concerts will include Longstreth and Escosa, dual harpists, Thursday, Dec. 4; "The New Christy Minstrels," Tuesday, Jan. 6, and "1776," a musical play about the men of the American Revolution, Friday, Feb. 27.

Concert season tickets were sold out in the association's membership drive earlier this year.

Mrs. Lawson said there will be no box office sale of seats for any of the attractions.

Only available seats, she stated, will be of tickets turned in by members who have moved from the city or who will be out of town on the nights of concert performances.

Weather

Partly cloudy and cooler today and Friday with highs in the mid 80s and lows in the 50s. There is a 60 per cent chance for rain tonight.

PRESIDENT HAS VITAL ISSUE

Bureaucracy can be cut

Volumes could be filled with political speeches promising to do something about the size and cost of government and its intrusion into our lives. As a theme of American politics it goes back to the Declaration of Independence. King George III was denounced not just for his oppressive taxes but because he had "erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

In the modern context the problem of burgeoning government bureaucracy dates mainly from the New Deal and the wave of federal programs and agencies spawned to treat the depression problems of the 1930s. President Ford's speech to hardware manufacturers in Chicago recently had a familiar ring, but his vow to "cut big government down to size" must be placed in a new perspective.

The "mountain of paperwork and quicksand of regulation" which are Mr. Ford's target represent something more than an expensive nuisance. A country which has one person working for government for every four in private employment is facing serious problems in sustaining its economic productivity.

Ironically, the surge in growth of government and its power began in response to the economic depression 40 years ago. Today, the tax burdens and regulatory restraints of big government are being identified as factors holding back recovery from the current recession.

Thus the head-count in government offices symbolizes more than the tendency of bureaucracy to breed more of the same. It represents a government requiring such a share of our national income that private industry is concerned about the supply of capital to finance its need for plant replacement and expansion. It represents regulation which may have been inspired by the public interest but which has grown to the degree that it is now working against the public interest by discouraging if not stifling competition in the marketplace.

President Ford takes pride in a reduction of 52,000 in the federal work force under its current authorized size. He has high hopes for weeding out some of the 5,000 different forms which various government agencies demand that citizens fill out and return. This chipping away at the federal edifice can be meaningful, however, only if there is a shift in the philosophy which has been building that edifice to such towering size over the last generation.

If Mr. Ford uses the menace of big government as a campaign theme in 1976, he will not be the first candidate to do so. Yet our economic problems are giving the public a fresh understanding of what big government really means. In 1976 voters may not be as interested in how the government is going to solve all their problems, as in getting the government monkey off their backs.

The food stamp 'mess'

The federal food stamp program serves two purposes. It benefits low-income Americans by allowing them to stretch their food dollars and it has given needed support to the nation's agriculture and food industry.

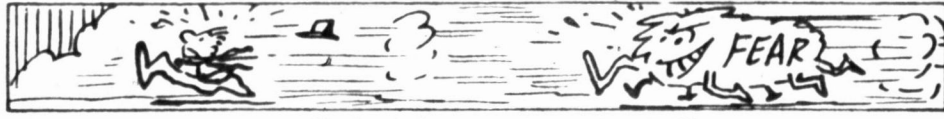

But with rapid growth in both numbers of eligible recipients and federal funding, increasing controversy centers on abuses of the system. Officials concede that lax controls allow too many ineligible persons to buy stamps, while, paradoxically, red tape keeps many of the deserving needy from participating.

The bureaucratic "error rate" is estimated at 20 per cent. Reports of fraudulent use of the stamps by beneficiaries and storekeepers proliferate. Carl B. Williams, deputy U.S. commissioner of welfare, calls the system a "mess" and says the government "is giving away billions of dollars with virtually no controls at all."

Moves to cancel or reduce the program are unlikely to be successful, nor should they be. Reform is essential, however, if the system is to endure its own weight.

With 20 million people expected to be receiving $6 billion in stamp subsidies within the next year, the focus must be on insuring that the assistance goes to those in real need.

Phobophobia is the fear of fear itself.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

A City Is Held For Ransom

By RICHARD L. LESHER
WASHINGTON — Try this on for a movie plot: Gang of outlaws takes over major American city; threatens citizens with fire, destruction of property, looting, rape, murder, robbery, and other forms of violence unless demands are met. Mayor's house bombed. Mayor declines offer of help from state police, gives to outlaws. Citizens pay "protection" money. Outlaws get off scot-free.

Too improbable, you say? Can't happen here? Well, something very close to that just did in San Francisco.

Does it really make any difference that the "outlaws" were allegedly members of the Police Officer's Association of San Francisco? They remained on strike in violation of a court order. And they knew quite clearly what kind of pressure they were bringing to bear on the helpless citizens of the city. The president of the police association observed pointedly that the residents were "not safe in their homes or on the streets."

THE FIREMEN voted to join the police. One was quoted as saying, "when you get a burning building with people screaming, just try sending in a laborer."

Mayor Joseph Alioto initially proclaimed the strike "illegal." On August 19, he announced a "get tough" attitude, and warned that San Francisco "can go the route of New York unless we call a halt right now. We are going to fire any officers who are on this strike unless they get back to work immediately," he said.

On August 21, he defied the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and gave the strikers everything they wanted, including a promise to punish no one for the walk-out. His one "compromise" amounted to postponing the raises until October 15.

The Mayor's actions are at least consistent with his past behavior. Early in 1974, when the city was crippled by another group of public employees, Mr. Alioto directed his police to ignore a court order ending the strike. "Our police department is not going to be turned into a squad of strikebreakers," he said then.

For breaking the law and subjecting the people of San Francisco to numerous dangers, the police and firemen got a 13 per cent raise — twice as much as the Board of Supervisors said the city could afford. The pay for rookies went up from $16,044 to $18,216. For captains, it went from $25,944 to $29,316.

Some labor leaders like to say that if a public employee isn't permitted to strike, he is a "slave." Nuts. No one says a public employee can't quit any time he chooses. That's a straw man. What's meant by "right to strike" is not just the right to withhold one's services, but also the "right" to prevent anyone else from performing them. There are millions of jobless people in this country right now who would not consider pay of $16,044 to $25,944 a year cause for a strike.

Public employees don't work for a private company. They work for the citizens of the political unit that pays them. And they are paid out of taxes levied on those citizens. If the citizens don't have the right to determine the use of their tax money — through the ballot — then they are the prisoners and slaves of those who do make that determination.

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES who threaten the safety of the public to get what they want sound a lot like the two-bit hood who offers to "protect" a small merchant from having an "accident" for a monthly fee.

New York City is currently reaping the rewards of a system that, among other things, permits municipal employees to retire on pensions higher than the pay they made on active duty. It looks like San Francisco will not be far behind. And then whose turn will it be?

The New York Times — not known for its anti-labor stands — said of Mayor Alioto's action: "He has reinforced the conviction that unions in control of vital public services can compel the community to capitulate by holding a strike gun at its head. This is not only the road to municipal bankruptcy; it is the road to anarchy. It is a death knell for democracy."

Would you believe that Congress is seriously considering legislation to legalize strikes, by public employees everywhere?

Plutarch writes about a Greek engineer named Artemon Periphoretus who was so safety-conscious that he required two of his servants to hold a brass shield over his head at all times. During the most recent decade, an Artemonlike preoccupation with safety has pervaded federal and state laws dealing with everything from seat belts to children's pajamas. The latest participant in the parade of safety-inspired regulations is a proposed code for lawn mowers. If the agency charged with the review of the code (Consumer Product Safety Commission) gives to it the power of law, the code will produce effects that will be apparent, quite literally, "right in our own backyards."

How is it proposed that lawn enthusiasts will be protected from the dangers of their grass-cutters? Among other things, the regulations would make mandatory on all mowers an expensive clutch system designed to allow the blades to be disengaged while the engine continues to run. If we assume that this and other less important changes will actually reduce the likelihood of accidental injury, what will the increased safety cost the consumer?

Experts say that the incorporation of the clutch and other such features into the design of an economy model mower will increase its price by about 75 per cent. This means that a twenty-inch, push-type rotary mower which costs $85.00 currently would cost $149.00 after the code was enacted.

In addition to the dollars-and-cents burden placed upon new mower purchasers, the unfairness of the proposed code can best be seen by imagining what might result if legislation were enacted requiring convenience equipment instead of safety equipment on all mowers. For example, suppose it was decreed that every mower should possess an automatic starter and a riding seat. A barrage of objections would follow such an enactment. Purchasers would argue that the law was forcing them to buy convenience that they really did not want, leaving them with less money to spend for other goods. Fellow citizens would easily see the unfairness of the convenience — promoting law and soon force its repeal.

What happens when legal regulations leave the same consumer with no alternative but to purchase unwanted safety equipment? The support of other citizens can only occasionally be rallied. After all, how can reasoned arguments about cost be heard above the emotional roar of lost fingers and toes? How can the calm exposure of unfairness convince where there exists a firmly-held belief that safety can only be extracted from manufacturers by government bureaus? How can consumers be expected to care about encroachments on their "yard-care rights" when they have apathetically accepted regulatory intervention almost everywhere else? What relief can the overburdened buyers look forward to when the tidy standards of the statute books are so popular and the natural order of the market place is so misunderstood?

As the members of the Consumer Product Safety Commission continue their deliberations, they would do well to remember that not all consumers consider product safety to be a paramount value; that safety has a price tag attached to it which consumers must ultimately pay; and that even Artemon did not insist upon gathering all those besides himself under his shield.

Sentiments are for the most part traditional; we feel them because they were felt by those who preceded us.

Diamond Seals Navel Engagement

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My girl friend is a rather kooky, unconventional but lovable gal. We plan to marry soon. I told her I wanted to buy her a diamond ring, and she said she didn't want a ring—she wanted a diamond for her navel instead!

I thought she was putting me on, but she wasn't. She says belly dancers wear them. She is not a belly dancer; she's a receptionist at a recording studio.

Can you please tell me where a navel diamond can be purchased? (How would it stay in?) Have you ever seen one? I don't mean a fake one. I mean a real one. Thank you.
SERIOUS IN L.A.

DEAR SERIOUS: I've never seen a navel diamond and haven't the foggiest notion how one would "stay in." But if you have the money, I am sure one of many creative jewelry designers will be able to come up with something to fill the bill—and your girl friend's navel.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem concerns a young couple who lives near us. I'll call them Joyce and Bill. He's 20 and she's 19, and they've been married for 10 months.

We could be a happy foursome but they overdo the lovey dovey bit. They're always cuddling, kissing and fondling each other. It really gets embarrassing.

I suggested having them over for bridge last night because they really are good company otherwise, but my husband said the way they carry on is too sickening.

Is it possible for a couple to be TOO married? How can we let Joyce and Bill know that we would see more of them if they would save that love stuff for their own bedroom? We hate to hurt their feelings.

ANOTHER COUPLE

DEAR COUPLE: It's not possible to be TOO married, but it is possible to carry the lovey dovey bit beyond the limits of good taste in public.

Technically, Joyce and Bill are still honeymooning, so don't be too critical. In time they'll cool off. (But frankly, isn't their behavior preferable to that of couples who put down, needle and belittle each other?)

DEAR ABBY: I'll soon be having my first baby, and I plan to breast-feed it.

I'd like to know how you and others feel about seeing a mother nursing her baby in doctors' offices, waiting rooms, shopping-center malls, restaurants, etc.?

With the increased popularity of breast-feeding, plus Women's Lib, I have seen more and more public breast-feeding.

Does it make some people uncomfortable to witness it? Should I hide from house guests and visitors?

MOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR M-T-B: Breast-feeding a baby is natural and beautiful, but if you have a choice, do it privately. If you do nurse your baby in public, wear a shawl that can be lightly tossed over your bosom while baby nurses and be as inconspicuous as possible.

Local Man Found Guilty On Marijauna Charges

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A Gray County court jury found Robert Wayne Caskey, 23, of 1345 Duncan guilty Wednesday on charges of possession of less than two ounces of marijuana — a misdemeanor offense.

The defendant entered a plea of innocent and chose to have Judge Don Cain assess his punishment in case he should be found guilty.

The judge fined him $350 and sentenced him to 90 days in jail, but granted a 12-month probation term in lieu of the jail sentence.

The maximum penalty for such an offense is $1,000 fine and 180 days in county jail.

John Warner, County attorney, told the jury that the state would oppose probation since Caskey had received a probation sentence earlier for fleeing from a police officer.

Robert McPherson, attorney for Caskey, said his client is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

"This defendant sits before you innocent and will remain so until a verdict. If he is found innocent the case will end," McPherson said.

He also cited a change in the probation statutes made by the Texas Legislature during its last session. The law states that anyone placed on probation in a five-year period can be eligible for probation on a cause other than the one he was placed on probation for.

"It is a new change in an old law," he added.

Sgt. Charles Morris and Sgt. Roy Denman of the Pampa Police Department testified for the state. Morris said the Pampa Police Department received a complaint at 1:10 a.m. July 19, 1974, in regard to loud music in an apartment on Coffee Street.

Inside a strong smell of marijuana was present, he said. McPherson asked him to describe the smell of marijuana.

"The smell is distinctive — like the smell of burning hay or weeds — sorta a sweet smell," Morris replied.

Caskey, in taking the witness stand in his own defense, said he dropped by the apartment after drinking several beers. He said his younger brother, Raymond Michael Caskey, 19, had entertained friends with a party there.

He denied that he had been smoking marijuana. However, he said he had consumed several beers.

Warner asked if he were telling the jury that he was drunk when he drove his car to that address.

"I didn't drive," Caskey emphasized, relating that a friend had driven him home.

Testimony revealed that the brother had pleaded no contest to possession of marijuana on April 8, 1975, and was sentenced by the Gray County court to serve 90 days in the county jail.

Following the jury's verdict, arguments about probation began.

"His brother was sentenced to 90 days in jail," said Warner. "And the state recommends 90 days in jail for him (Caskey)."

McPherson argued that jail is not always the answer. He said his client now has a job as a pipefitter and if not allowed to continue working would lose it.

"If a young man is working, providing his own way, he should be given that chance," McPherson emphasized.

Warner called attention to the marijuana problem in the community.

"In all fairness if two are equally guilty and one with a prior conviction they should at least be given an equal amount of time," Warner stated.

Judge Cain said the decision was difficult, and warned the defendant that if he should violate terms on probation he would be required to serve the entire year in jail.

DALLAS (UPI) — A desegregation plan submitted to the federal courts would cost more than $5.5 million to implement and leave nearly one-third of the students in the Dallas School District enrolled in predominantly one-race schools.

The school board, working under a court-ordered deadline, Wednesday voted 5-4 on the program which would involve busing 18,000 students, 12,000 of them non-white. The plan was to be submitted to U.S. District Judge William Taylor late Wednesday.

Taylor, whose own desegregation plan was rejected by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in July, must order a desegregation plan implemented by the middle of the 1975-76 school year.

School board president Bill Hunter, who joined the board's three minority members in voting against the plan, refused to speculate whether the court would find Wednesday's desegregation proposal acceptable.

"I voted against the plan. I have a basic conception difference with the one accepted," Hunter said. "But I have no comment on its probable acceptance or rejection. We have attorneys who will submit the plan and evidence will be presented to the court at that time."

Hunter said additional buses would have to be obtained by the school district and most of the 18,000 students to be bused would be sent to schools within 14 miles of their homes.

Kindergarten and elementary children up to the fourth grade would be exempt from busing, but Hunter said most students would attend four or five schools during their secondary school career. The most busing would occur in the fourth to seventh grade levels.

Hunter said the $5.5 million cost of the plan, $2 of which would be spent on busing, already had been allocated through a tax increase.

The most controversial aspect of the desegregation proposal was the retention of 46 predominantly one-race schools. Those schools house 40,000 students or approximately 29 per cent of the district's total school population.

Hunter said all of the district's predominantly white high schools would be integrated, but the city's four all black high schools would remain segregated.

Some school trustees have indicated privately this section will not meet the approval of the federal appeals court or of Taylor. Hunter also declined to explain why the one-race schools were retained by the board.

Of the 18,000 students to be bused under the school board plan, 10,000 would be black, 2,000 would be Mexican-American and 6,000 would be white.

"This is approximately 11,000 more students being bused than the 1971 plan which was mandated by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals," Hunter said.

Ford Visits New Hampshire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford flew to New Hampshire today on his first venture outside Washington since a young woman tried to kill him in California last week. The Secret Service planned no "major changes" in protecting him.

The President scheduled a daylong, 120-mile political motorcade from the southwest corner of the state to the seacoast to boost the Senate candidacy of Republican Louis Wyman, who faces Democrat John A. Durkin in a special election next Tuesday.

Ford's visit followed one by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and included more than 15 stops in nine hours. He had a promise of all the fresh vegetables he could eat in Amherst, where residents prepared lunch from their gardens.

Reagan said while campaigning for Wyman Wednesday night he would decide before year's end whether to run against Ford for the 1976 presidential nomination.

New Hampshire is the first state to hold a presidential primary next year and it could become the first major battleground between the President and the conservative former California governor.

Wyman and Durkin scored a virtual tie in a turnout of some 223,000 New Hampshire voters in last November's regular election and are expected to be close on election day again next week.

"We do not anticipate any major changes in security," a Secret Service information officer said. "We're constantly reviewing procedures."

Secret Service director H. Stewart Knight and Ford have said security is adequate and does not need to be strengthened.

Lynette Fromme, a Manson cultist arrested for pointing a gun at Ford in Sacramento Friday, was indicted Wednesday on federal charges of attempting to murder the President.

Ancient witches avoided use of implements handed down through generations. The belief was that using such tools diminished their power.

South Picks Bentsen

NEW YORK (UPI) — A poll of executives in the top 200 companies in the south gave Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., a 19 per cent edge as the most popular 1976 Democratic presidential nominee, the current issue of The South Magazine reported.

Bentsen was picked by 30 percent of those responding as the best all-around candidate. Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington was second with 11 per cent.

Of the 34 per cent who answered the survey, 54 per cent said Sen. Edward Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was most likely to win the party nomination, and 61 per cent thought Kennedy had the best chance of 17 possible Democratic candidates to be elected president, the magazine said. Eleven per cent thought Bentsen could win the nomination, the magazine said.

Bentsen was chosen by 35 per cent as the candidate who would best serve southern interests, including business, if elected. Alabama Gov. George Wallace was second with 18 per cent. Twenty six per cent of those polled thought Bentsen the candidate most capable of handling the job of president. Wallace was second with 18 per cent, while four per cent named Kennedy.

Judge Fines DWI Cases

Gray County Judge Don Cain handed down several fines this week after defendants entered pleas of either guilty or no contest.

Court cost in each case is $52, and probation fees are $10 monthly.

The defendants and their sentences include: David Lee Jenkins, driving while intoxicated, a no contest plea, $200 fine, 30 days in jail and six months probation.

Martin Durwood Allen pleaded no contest to charges of possession of marijuana of less than two ounces, fined $250, sentenced to 60 days in jail and six months probation.

Leroy Flye pleaded guilty to two charges of driving while intoxicated; sentenced to $200 fine and three days in jail on one, $100 and three days in jail on the second.

Bobby James Barnett pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated, fined $200 and sentenced to 15 days in jail.

Michael McKinney Jones, pleaded no contest to driving while intoxicated, fined $50 and sentenced to three days in jail.

Raymond Wendell Bridwell pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated fined $50 and

Inflation Kills Erotica

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Erotic art has been beaten by inflation.

The International Museum of Erotic Art announced Wednesday it was closing its doors because of the rising costs of maintenance, space, insurance and taxes.

The museum, home of the multi-cultural Kronhausen Collection, opened its doors in March 1973.

"Without subsidization or outside funding, we simply can no longer afford to exhibit the collection," Museum Manager Janice Epp said.

"But the more than 150,000 people who have viewed the collection have amply demonstrated the museum's value in sexual and social enrichment."

Couple Found Guilty Of Honeymoon Murder

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A couple accused of killing and robbing an Erie, Pa., social worker on a honeymoon trip to New Orleans and stabbing his bride of 10 days were found guilty early today.

The jury deliberated three hours before finding Clifford McGraw, 31, guilty of first degree murder and Valier Manchester, 22, guilty of second degree murder. The death sentence is mandatory for first degree murder.

The pair will be formally sentenced Sept. 22.

They were convicted of the murder of Gregory Kress of Erie, who was beaten and shot to death Feb. 24. Kress and his bride, Janet Robie Kress, 22, had met their assailants in a French Quarter bar and had accepted an invitation to go to their apartment for breakfast when the attack occurred.

"My wish is to see both of them hanged by the pillars of this courthouse," said Helen Kress, mother of the slain man, who attended the trial with other relatives from Erie.

Jim Kress, father of Gregory Kress, said he was satisfied with the verdict in McGraw's case "as long as they actually execute him and don't procrastinate for 50 years," but was disappointed that Miss Manchester received only a second degree murder conviction.

"She'll be back on the street in 10 years and God only knows who will suffer next," he said.

Janet Kress, daughter of the executive assistant to the mayor of Erie and the state's key witness, testified during the two-day trial that she was beaten and left for dead by the defendants.

"I just remember screaming," she testified. She said she and her husband went to the apartment where McGraw and Miss Manchester lived to have breakfast, but once there McGraw took Kress into a separate room.

She said when she heard a commotion coming from the room she made a move for the room but Miss Manchester grabbed her and beat her.

Mrs. Kress suffered broken jaws, loss of several teeth, and facial cuts from a crude leadum knife, but escaped and was hospitalized. She has since recovered and has undergone extensive plastic surgery.

Police, who found Mrs. Kress dazed and bleeding, followed a trail of her blood back to the apartment where they found Kress' body in a nearby parking lot.

An autopsy showed Kress died of several crushing blows to the head and six gunshot wounds.

Policeman Jack Smith testified he then spotted Miss Manchester on a second-floor balcony with a broom, sweeping away what appeared to be blood mixed with water.

Police said they found travelers checks and other property that had belonged to Kress in McGraw's possession.

Folklore has it that a witch could be released from demonic power by spitting three times in rapid succession.

The Three R's Go Hand In Hand With Nutritious Lunch Box Meals

By Bobby Combs
Pampa News Staff

The beginning of the new school year is here and for many mothers this means it's time to think about packing lunch boxes again.

A timesaving tip for busy mothers is to freeze a week's supply of sandwiches. Wrap them individually in plastic, then in heavy-duty foil, sealing well, and then freeze. Pack in lunch boxes while still frozen and they'll be just thawed by lunchtime. Do not keep frozen longer than two to three weeks.

For fillings in frozen sandwiches, use cooked egg yolk, peanut butter, cooked chicken, turkey, meat, fish, dried beef or drained crushed pineapple. Do not use very moist fillings, cooked egg white or raw vegetables, as they do not freeze well. Milk, dairy sour cream, applesauce, or lemon, orange, pineapple or other fruit juice can be used as binders. Mayonnaise and salad dressing, which separate when they are frozen, should not be used.

Some suggestions for frozen sandwich fillings are: minced hard-cooked egg yolks with sour cream and chopped dill pickle; grated cheese with sour cream and chili sauce; thinly sliced ham with cream cheese and chopped chives; cream cheese and chopped pecans; chopped chicken with sour cream and red-pepper relish; and liver pate with crumbled crisp bacon.

For non-frozen sandwiches, imagination can create interesting, nutritious fillings. A slice of favorite cheese adds extra nutrition to a tuna, chicken or egg salad sandwich. Chopped raw vegetables such as carrots, celery, and cucumbers add extra vitamins to egg, chicken, or tuna salad.

Special sandwiches such as the Reuben, which is a combination of thinly sliced corned beef (thinly sliced ham, roast pork or luncheon meat can be substituted), well-drained sauerkraut, and Swiss cheese on rye bread, adapt themselves well to lunch boxes.

For both frozen and non-frozen sandwiches, vary choices are some tips and menus from home economist for attractive, nutritious noontime meals for children (and the rest of the family, too).

To avoid the dull luncheon meat sandwich-and-chips rut, make lunch box meals as attractive and colorful as possible. For a nutritious, appetizing lunch, include the following: a protein such as meat, poultry, fish, cheese, eggs or peanut butter; a crisp food such as carrot or celery sticks, radishes, pickles or a salad; a beverage, either hot or cold; a fresh, canned or dried fruit; a sweet such as cookies or cake.

When grocery shopping, keep in mind supplies that will simplify lunch box packing.

Remember that small cans of juice such as apple or tomato can be frozen and packed with the lunch. They help to prevent spoilage of perishable foods by keeping them cool.

When packing hard-cooked lightweight insulated lunch box. Try the dessert recipes published today. The kids will love 'em and so will you. One batch will probably disappear within hours, but if they don't, you can freeze them or store in an airtight container for a couple of weeks.

Bike Hike Bars (Makes 24 Bars)

3/4 cup shortening, soft
2-3 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1 1/2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 cup dark seedless raisins
1/2 cup wheat germ

Heat oven to moderate (375 degrees). Beat shortening; add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs and vanilla. Sift together flour, cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg
2-3 cup milk
1/4 cup shortening, soft
1, 8-ounce can (1 cup) crushed pineapple, undrained

Heat oven to hot, 425 degrees. Sift together into bowl, corn meal, flour, baking powder and salt. Add sugar, egg, milk, shortening and pineapple. Beat with rotary beater until fairly smooth, about 1 minute.

Oatmeal Bars
1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/4 cup finely chopped pitted prunes

3 tablespoons milk. Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees.) Combine oats, flour, brown sugar and cinnamon in bowl; stir to mix. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add prune and milk; toss lightly with fork to mix. Press dough in greased 8-inch square baking pan. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees.) 15 to 20 minutes. Cool on rack. Cut into bars. Makes 12 bars.

Peanut Butter Cookies

1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup shortening
1 cup peanut butter
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 tsp. vanilla
2 1/4 cup flour

Mix in order given. Pinch off small pieces and form balls. Place on cookie sheet and press with fork. Bake at 400 degrees about 8 minutes.

Sugar Cookies

2 sticks oleo
1 1/2 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 egg unbeaten
2 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream sugar and oleo. Add eggs and vanilla. Add flour, soda, cream of tartar, salt (mixed first) to first mixture. Drop by spoonful on cookie sheet. Press down with fork. Bake in 350 degree oven for 12 minutes.

TAKE ALONG BIKE HIKE BARS

eggs, leave the shells on. The shell helps to preserve flavor and freshness.

Make sure all meat and poultry products are thoroughly cooked and refrigerated shortly after cooking.

Keep in mind that food for lunch boxes should be kept at its intended temperature.

When preparing carrots or celery for a meal, set aside some sticks for lunches. Save any leftover fruit or vegetable salt and cloves. Gradually stir into creamed mixture. Add oats, raisins and wheat germ; mix well. Spread to cover bottom of a greased and floured 13 x 9-inch pan. Bake in preheated oven (375 degrees.) 35 to 40 minutes. Cool before cutting. Serve with cream cheese, if desired.

Melt-Aways

1 cup butter, softened
1/2 cup water
1 package (6 oz.) chocolate chips
1 package (6 oz.) butterscotch chips
4 cups miniature marshmallows
1 can (1 1/4 cups) shredded coconut

Stir together flour and oatmeal. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Blend in water until crumbly. Press mixture firmly and evenly into well-greased 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-inch jellyroll pan. Bake in preheated 325 degrees oven 15 minutes. Remove crust from oven. Layer chips, marshmallows and coconut on crust. Bake in 325 degrees oven 20 minutes, or until coconut has lightly browned. Cool before cutting.

Pineapple Muffins

1 cup enriched corn meal
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup pineapple, crushed
1/2 cup raisins

Heat oven to moderate (375 degrees). Beat shortening; add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs and vanilla. Sift together flour, cinnamon of breads often. There is a wide variety of wheat, rye, pumpernickel, Russian black, French, club rolls, and poppy seeds buns to choose from. All add interest to a sandwich. All fresh breads freeze well.

For non-soggy sandwiches, remember to spread softened butter or margarine evenly to the edges of each bread slice. Peanut butter and moistened cream cheese also keep moist fillings from soaking into the bread.

Unpacking the lunch box should be one of the day's pleasantest moments. Following salads and make them a part of lunch box meals. Keep a good stock of lunch box materials on hand. Important items include a wide-mouth vacuum bottle for soups, baked beans, chili, stews, etc.; napkins, plastic spoons and forks; plastic containers with lids for salads, canned fruits, leftovers or anything juicy; paper cups and plates; foil, waxed paper, plastic wrap and waxed sandwich bags; individual packages of salt and pepper, if available; and paper bags (clean bags from the market can be used) or a plastic container with lid for soups, stews and casseroles dishes for a hot lunch at school. Also canned puddings, fresh fruits and cheese cubes make perfect lunch box treats.

Avoid using meat, fish or egg salads in packed lunches, because they may spoil unless refrigerated. Creamed sauces and dishes and custards are not recommended either, if they are to remain at room temperature.

Other lunch box ideas are "fun foods" packed with nutrition—carrot sticks, celery curls and apple wedges. These create lunch box surprises that are safe and nutritious.

Safe Sack Lunches For School Children

"Mothers who know" prepare school lunches following the Basic Four Food Groups, a foods and nutrition specialist said this week.

Lunches can be nutritious and still delicious with this guide, Sally Springer, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

"For example, a meat or cheese sandwich, fruit and cookies, along with milk purchased at school, makes the four food group scoreboard perfect."

Sandwiches Help Start the Day

We all know that a good breakfast helps you start the day off right. It keeps you mentally alert and feeling good throughout the morning.

However, in spite of our good intentions, many of us skip breakfast entirely. Early morning is probably the busiest time of day in most households, but breakfast need not be an elaborate sit-down meal to be a nutritious energy lift.

Delicious eye-opener sandwiches can help you solve this morning meal crisis! Start by spreading peanut butter or cream cheese on crisp, hot toast. Add bacon, fresh or canned fruit and your favorite jam or jelly for a tasty treat no one will want to pass up. Served with a glass of milk, these protein-packed sandwiches provide a wholesome breakfast with very little effort.

Set out all your ingredients first thing in the morning including a variety of jams, jellies and preserves. Their natural fruit flavors make these tempting sandwiches a great way to start the day. Let everyone assemble their own sandwich before heading out the door. For other great sandwich ideas write for a free copy of "Take A Sandwich to Lunch." Send a postcard to: Advisory Council for Jams, Jellies & Preserves, Room 815T, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Strawberry Cream Toast

Mandarin orange slices
Blend cream cheese and oranges; stir in candied ginger. Let set several minutes to blend flavors. Spread on hot toast and top with strawberry preserves. Garnish with whole mandarin orange slices. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Warm And Yummy Toast
1 cup peanut butter
1/4 cup crumbled cooked bacon
6 slices toasted whole wheat or white bread
1 medium banana, sliced
3/4 cup grape-jelly

Combine peanut butter and bacon. Spread on toast. Top with grape jelly and slices of banana. Place on baking sheet. Heat at 350°F. for 5 minutes. Serve warm. This sandwich is also very tasty unheated. Makes 6 servings.

SCOP PSYCHOLOGY

A gift of the highest quality creates good feelings two ways: the giver knows he has chosen something truly fine and the receiver knows that he is thought of highly. So, it's good psychology to give a small gift that is the best of its kind (like a fine silk scarf), instead of a larger one of lesser quality.

Entertaining guests is like gift-giving, so here, too, it's good psychology to give the finest. Take coffee. Making a truly good cup means you really care. An easy, fool-proof way to make great coffee is the filter method. A disposable paper filter traps grounds and sediments and your coffee is pure, clean, flavorful, without the bitter taste of perked coffee.

Serve reheated muffins as a breakfast brightener. To reheat, add a few drops of water, wrap in aluminum foil and heat for 10 to 15 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

THERE ARE suits, suits and more suits in the fall collection of California's dynamic young Italian designer, Dattilo. The big fashion news: Many of them are skirted.

women want this season because they're feminine, flattering, easy to wear, very versatile and they also offer a pleasant change from pantsuits.

Women who lack the knack of putting separates together flock to Dattilo who does the job for them. He color-schemes cleverly. For example, a poppy printed beige blazer pairs with a jet black skirt; a gold suit in looks-like-suede double velvet can be bought solo or with a blue and gold blouse that does chic things for it.

FEMININE suit (right) with swiny skirt by California designer, Dattilo, is done in a new double velvet that is 100 per cent cotton and a big plus-hand washable. His poppy print blazer with its beige ground (center) is dramatically teamed with a side-pleated black wool skirt. Coral and taupe checks highlight his coat and suit (left). Suit has cardigan neck, straight jacket.

Daughter Reads X-Rated Best Seller

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. In my 16-year-old daughter's room I found a copy of what I would call an X-rated novel. Just because it has recently been a best seller and written by a woman doesn't make it any more acceptable to me. The words it uses and the situations it describes certainly peg it for what it is — trash.

So what do I do now — confront her with what I think is wrong (reading such junk, I mean) or ignore the situation?

I'd like to tear up this and all similar books, or burn them, or ban their being printed.

A. You'd have a huge job on your hands, and even if accomplished the result would probably be to drive them underground.

As hard as this fact is to accept, we live in an environment far different from the one of our own childhood.

If through our families and schools we can give our youngsters a sense of right and wrong and the ability to separate facts from fiction and to see themselves objectively, perhaps they will then be able to stay on an even keel in what is a strange new world for many of us.

Books and movies that you feel are trashy or just plain filthy and the dishonesty that they see in many personal and business relationships then won't faze them much or at all. So important is the foundation we can give our children to sort out the good and bad around them.

It's a tough task, but the most significant one of most parents. Together with the second difficult one of being able to "cut the cord" gradually that binds them to us, it adds up to the main job of parenthood.

Q. Don't you think parents deserve to get away from their children once in a while? My wife doesn't, and it's been the most serious continuing argument we've had in our ten years of marriage.

She just won't take a vacation — even a weekend — with me alone. We have three healthy children, and I feel that both they and we would benefit by an occasional separation.

I didn't think it could happen, but our youngsters are honestly driving a wedge between us.

Her worrying gets more serious all the time — about sickness, breaking into the house, and all the things that could happen whether we're there or not.

Please provide some suggestions for me.

A. Easy does it — a gradual slow approach. A long evening on the town (dinner and a show perhaps), with the children in the hands of a competent mature "baby sitter" — and if you've passed that stage, then an excursion away from them for part or all of a day. The overnight separation can follow, then a weekend, and on to longer periods.

She has to be shown that she can enjoy time with you alone, but it doesn't mean that the two of you won't spend time with the children too.

This plan is a kind of methodical "conditioning," a step-by-step program to relax her and demonstrate that as important as the children are, so are you.

Few women can resist a husband's expressed desire to spend time with them alone. At least they can't if there is a basic affection between the two of them.

Q. How early can a child be taught to swim? Our 4-year-old is probably ready to learn, but we wonder whether lessons are important or whether we should just let him learn on his own as so many of us did years ago.

What do you think?
A. You're probably a few years too late, but since it will never be any earlier, the time is now.

The combination of adventuresome little children and unsupervised home swimming pools, creeks, irrigation ditches and even bathtubs should be enough of a warning to delay no longer.

However, rather than stress the fear and danger side let's emphasize the fun of it all. The local "Y," community center or similar agency might help your youngster learn safely how enjoyable swimming can be.

Letters may be sent to Our Children, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column as space permits.

The underachiever, the slow learner, the learning disabled child. Write to Dr. Abraham, P.O. Box 572, Scottsdale, AZ 85252 for complete list. Please send stamped, return envelope.

Taos Festival of Arts

Taos, New Mexico, art capital of the Southwest, as well as one of the major art markets in the world, will have its first all-encompassing Festival of Arts during Oct. 1 through 5.

Taos has long been renowned as an important art center. This began quietly in 1898 with the initial visit of E. L. Blumenschein and Bert G. Phillips. Their glowing reports attracted other artists to the area, resulting in the formation in 1912 of the Taos Society of Artists. Blumenschein, Phillips, Berninghaus, Dutton, Coussé, Sharp, Ufer, Higgins, Hennings and Adams contributed masterpieces to the art history of America. Strangely enough, although they lived and worked here, there has never been a composite show of their work held in Taos. Thus the "Taos Founders Show" will be a real first, and one of the major segments of the Taos Festival of Art.

There will be an average of three paintings by each artist, many of them from private collections, and never before exhibited publicly. The Founders Show will be held in the former courtroom of the old county courthouse on the north side of the Taos Plaza. The murals in the courtroom will also add interest to the show.

Two other major parts of the Taos Festival of Arts will be a craft show, and an exhibit, "Taos Art Today" of paintings, drawings, sculpture and photographs by present-day Taos artists.

"Taos Art Today" will be hung in the Stables Gallery on North Pueblo Road. There are currently over 150 artists living and working in Taos. The variety of styles, attitudes, and cultural influences finding expression here is truly amazing. There will be art to suit every taste, including everything from realism, impressionism or representational to the most contemporary and abstract. Some of the well-known Taos artists who have entered the Taos Art Today Show are Dorothy Brett, Emil Bistram, Robert Daughters, Lawrence Calcagno, Dirk Van Driest and Will-Amelia Sterns, along with many others. It is expected that the majority of the present-day Taos artists will be represented in the show. All works exhibited will be for sale.

Many of the more than 100 existing galleries and shops will be holding special shows and exhibits during the Festival of Arts. A recent survey disclosed that there are in excess of 500 artists from throughout the United States currently exhibiting in the Taos shops and galleries.

The Craft Show portion of the Taos Festival of Arts will be a living illustration of the increasing quality and importance of the crafts being done in the Taos area. Weaving, wood carving, jewelry, pottery, Indian crafts and macramé, along with others, will be presented. There will be demonstrations of workmanship and processes by skilled Taos area craftsmen.

Third show is scheduled for the center of the Taos Plaza, although the unexpected possibility of a renovation program for the historical Plaza could result in a change in location, with several nearby options available. The Craft Show will be for the latter three days of the Festival, Oct. 3, 4, and 5. All articles will be for sale.

In addition to the three segments outlined above, there will be performing and visual arts. Nat Simmons, long known for his work on Broadway, and his Taos Student Repertory Company will offer their production of "Wait Until Dark" in the Community Auditorium, on the nights of Oct. 1 through 4.

Bill Whaley has just put together an outstanding film festival at his Plaza Theatre. The series will consist of nine rare films, beginning on Sept. 29, through Oct. 6.

An additional bonus for visitors to Taos is that the Festival of Arts immediately follows the San Geronimo Fiesta at Taos Pueblo on Sept. 29 and 30.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here's a novel idea for a handy storage area for those little spice cans and containers that always seem to get lost on the pantry shelf, or there's not enough room for all the varieties on your spice rack.

My husband removed the long narrow board from the front of the kitchen sink. Inside there's a small space just the right size to hold these small cans.

With thin strips of veneer, he boxed in the area and covered the wood with adhesive-backed paper so it's easy to keep clean. Then using two spritng hinges, he reattached the board to the front of the sink.

No one knows this handy storage cabinet is there until I flip down the little door and everyone is amazed to see my neat rows of spice containers!

A Happy Wife

Now that's a whing-dilly of an idea! This extra space can be used for so many little things: bread-twisters, can or bottle openers, rubber bands, etc. that are always getting lost in the clutter of kitchen drawers.

Give your husband an extra hug from all us gals for his great hint!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I always wash dishes with a vegetable and bottle brush close by.

The vegetable brush has come in very handy when I've wounded my finger and must keep the dressing dry.

The bottle brush is not only for glasses, but it's particularly great for cleaning square or rectangular baking pan corners.

Dear Heloise:

While helping my wife freeze the garden vegetables, it was my task to fill the bags.

After spilling the beans and peas all over the table and not putting the proper amount in every bag, I hit upon an idea:

I selected a jar that held the amount that we wished to freeze. Using a wide-mouthed funnel, I filled the jar, slipped the plastic bag over the jar top, turned the jar upside down and, presto, the bag was filled and ready for the twist.

A Smart Husband

Not smart. Brilliant. I'd say!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I've made a fantastic discovery. I like to do things the easy way, like using bottled lemon juice. Only when the recipe asks for grated rind, I am at a loss.

But I've found that when I use lemons for anything, I freeze the leftover rind. Then when I need it, I just grate the frozen rind.

It's so much easier to grate and doesn't stick to the grater like the fresh does. Try it!

Rosine Gosch

Dear Heloise:

Would like to share a hint with someone who lives in one room where space is limited.

Every time I wash sweaters, drip-dry shirts, etc., I hang them on hangers, slip on a large plastic bag (garbage or laundry) from the bottom up, pin the bag to the hanger and hang it up to drip dry.

Makes ironing easier too as the garments are never over-dried.

Just don't forget to empty the water from the bag.

O. S.

This hint would be great for college students.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

To prevent silver jewelry from tarnishing, keep it in a covered container or small plastic bag with some chalk — the regular blackboard type. This will help absorb moisture and prevent tarnishing.

Also good for table silver that is not used daily.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

As used in bridge terminology, the word "gambit" is defined as "the deliberate sacrifice of a trick in order to gain additional tricks." The word is borrowed from the game of chess, in which the word means the sacrificing of a pawn or minor piece to gain some advantage.

In today's deal we have an example of a simple, logical bridge gambit.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♦ Q 6 4 3
♥ 7 6
♦ A K 6 3
♠ 5 4 2

EAST

SOUTH
♦ A 8 2
♦ A K Q J 10 9 5 2
♦ A K

The bidding:
South West North East
2♥ Pass 3♦ Pass
3♥ Pass 3♠ Pass
4NT Pass 5♦ Pass
5NT Pass 6♦ Pass
6♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♦.
Sot's five-notrump bid was made in the hope that North possessed the two missing kings. If that had been the case, South could have counted that he had all 13 tricks, since the king of spades would provide an entry to dummy for the cashing of the diamond ace. When North announced that he had only one king, South settled for the small slam.

The less-skilled player, after winning the opening club lead, might feel that he had no sure entry to dummy for the cashing of the ace and king of diamonds. Having this feeling, he would probably play two rounds of trumps — gathering in the adversely held pieces. Next would come the ace of spades, after which a low spade would be led towards dummy's queen, with the hope that West possessed the king. If such were the case, then dummy's queen would become a winner.

In the actual setup, with East having the king of spades, declarer would lose two spade tricks and his contract.

The better player would surely fulfill his contract without the reliance on the favorable position of the king of spades. After winning the opening club leads with the king of clubs, he would lead the two of trumps towards dummy's 7-6, deliberately losing a trick to the defender's eight of trumps (the gambit). West would win the trick with the eight.

He would then return, let us say, another club, which South would win with the ace. Next would come South's five of trumps to the board's seven-spot. The ace and king of diamonds would now be cashed. South discarding thereon the deuce and eight of spades. Declarer would then chalk up the score for a slam bid and made.

Bicentennial Is Progresso Topic

"Bicentennial Americana," the course of study, was evident when El Progresso Club held its opening backyard brunch Tuesday at the home of Mrs. O.K. Gaylor.

Red, white, and blue streamers marked the pathway to the serving areas which were centered with two large American flags. One flag had 13 stars representing the American Flag of the 13 colonies and the other was the 50 star flag of today. All table decorations repeated the patriotic color motif.

Mrs. Ralph Palmer, president, opened the year's program with "America in the Morning," her motto, "Perceiving the past and participating in the present preparing for posterity."

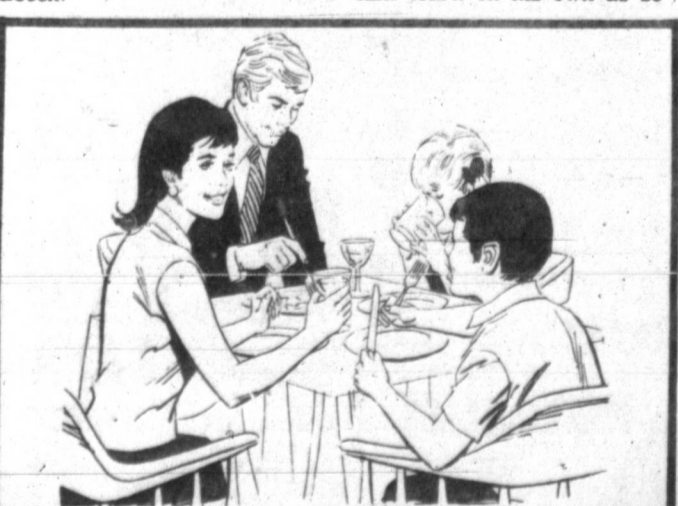

Mrs. Bruce Riehart presented new yearbooks which bore a fly-leaf depicting an Early American patchwork quilt. The pages were designed to represent the format of a small town newspaper, called "American Gazette."

Assisting with the brunch were Mmes. Glen Dawkins, Tom Perkins, Hugh Peeples, Veri Hagaman and R. A. Keagy.

Others present were Mmes. Richard Bray, D.V. Burton, J.F. Curtis, Flaudie Gallman, Kermit Lawson, Roy McMillen, Carlton Nance, Max Presnell, Quentin Williams, Ralph Palmer, and Bruce Riehart.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Kermit Lawson, 2223 Beech.

Guilty in Largest Financial Crime

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (UPI) — Stanley Goldblum once was president and board chairman of Equity Funding Corp. Now he is going to jail for what one prosecutor said was "the largest financial crime in American annals."

Goldblum was sentenced Tuesday to three to 10 years for his part in the $2 billion scandal. Illinois Attorney General William Scott told a Chicago news conference the Equity scandal was "the largest financial crime in American annals" and "the accountants' Watergate."

Goldblum, who resigned as Equity's president and board chairman when massive frauds were uncovered in 1973, pleaded guilty to forgery charges Tuesday in Lake County circuit court. Judge Lloyd Van Deusen imposed the state's maximum prison term for forgery.

Van Deusen also ruled the sentence should run concurrently with Goldblum's earlier California federal court sentence of up to eight years.

More than a dozen Equity officials have been indicted since 1973 in the complex fraud scheme. Authorities said $2 billion in phony insurance policies were issued by a subsidiary, Equity Fund Life Insurance Co., on Equity Funding computers, and figures on Equity Funding assets and income were inflated by millions of dollars to boost prices of Equity stock.

Sugar Daddy Owned Pistol Fromme Used

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Harold Boro, 65, described as a loner and a "sugar daddy" for two Manson cult girls, has been identified as the owner of a pistol used by Lynette Fromme in her attempted assassination of President Ford.

Authorities said Boro, a retired civilian draftsman at McClellan Air Force Base, owned the .45-caliber Colt automatic but refused to discuss his link with Miss Fromme, 26, or others of the Charles Manson sex and drug cult.

U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes planned to present the government's case against Miss Fromme to a federal grand jury today.

Keyes said no charges against Boro were contemplated. Miss Fromme was charged with attempted assassination of the President. Conviction could carry a life sentence.

"Squeaky" Fromme, who reportedly pinch-hits for Manson as "clan" leader since his imprisonment in 1971 for the Tate-La Bianca murders, pointed the gun at Ford at point-blank range Friday as he shook hands with well-wishers in Sacramento, Calif.

The weapon was loaded but no bullet was in the firing chamber. Boro was described in intelligence reports as a "sugar daddy" to Miss Fromme and other Manson cultists, a state government source familiar with her activities reported. The source said Boro was "probably a source of their money."

Rosette Rankin, mother-in-law of one of Boro's sons, said Boro "has money and she (Miss Fromme) was taking him for everything. He could never be involved in that (Manson family) except for a woman. He was starved for attention. She took him for everything."

Rex Gilmore, who lived next door to Boro in Sacramento, termed him a "real loner" who would "go into the house and shut the door and you wouldn't see him again until the next day."

Boro described the pistol as a "World War II keepsake," said Pam Cooper, whose mother owned the home in which he lived for more than three years before moving several weeks ago to the Motherlode Gold Rush community of Jackson, about 40 miles southeast of Sacramento.

They Thought Plants Were Only Tomatoes

WOOD RIVER, Ill. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. John Sheraka planted tomatoes in their backyard and got marijuana.

The Sherakas said they planted 13 tomato plants bought from a mail-order firm that advertised the plants would grow 20 feet high.

Mrs. Sheraka said she was watching a television program which showed a marijuana plant, and it looked like the plants in her backyard. A careful check showed the Sherakas had been growing one tomato plant and 12 marijuana plants.

The Sherakas notified police, who asked the couple to destroy the three pot plants that were still living Tuesday.

Goldblum owed and sold many shares of the stock.

Goldblum and former Equity vice president Fred Levin were accused of forging a letter to deceive a California certified public accounting firm.

Authorities said Goldblum established a letter drop in north suburban Highland Park with a sign on the gate reading "American National Trust Company," making it appear to be a branch of American National Bank and Trust of Chicago, although branch banking is forbidden in Illinois.

Letters by the accountants to check on the existence of $24 million in corporate bonds reputed to be held by Equity Fund Life Insurance were intercepted by Goldblum's representatives and a forged confirmation sent.

Abuse Liberty?

Samuel Adams, a member of the Continental Congress from Massachusetts: "I find everywhere some men who are afraid of a free government, lest it should be perverted and made use of as a cloak for licentiousness. The fear of the people abusing their liberty is made an argument against them having the enjoyment of it; as if anything were so much to be dreaded as slavery."

Select Who Gets Bused

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN
United Press International
Somewhere in Boston this week, a black child is boarding a bouncy yellow bus for the long ride to a predominantly white school. In the next block, his best friend may be going to a neighborhood school.

The same thing is happening in Louisville. And Houston. And Dallas.

The selection process varies from city to city, ranging from a lottery system to computer selection.

The Boston process involves a complex system in which the city is broken up into 800 "geocodes" — or geographical codes.

Each geocode is an area of from five to 15 residential blocks containing from half a dozen to several hundred public school students.

The city was carved into eight districts — each made up of scores of geocodes. Each school within a district has a set of geocodes assigned to it in such a way that the school's student population would reflect generally the racial and ethnic composition of the district as a whole. In that way, neighborhoods are divided, as little as possible and transportation is minimized.

Each child was given an arbitrary number, then a computer randomly assigned the child to a specific school.

In Louisville, Ky., where 22,600 students were marked for busing, white students are being bused through an alphabetical arrangement. For example, children whose last names start with "w" are bused in the 5th and 10th grades. Blacks are bused according to their geographical area.

Parents know in advance which years during a student's entire school career he or she will be bused to achieve racial balance. A majority of white students will be bused two years out of their 12 in public schools.

A majority of black students will be bused eight out of 12 years they are in public schools. The rest will be bused nine years out of 12.

In Houston, busing is not mandatory although the school district provides transportation. Under these programs, students volunteer to attend the magnet school. They choose which school they will attend and if they don't have transportation, they are bused there.

Backs Constitution

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Secretary of State Mark White says he plans to personally campaign during the next two months for a large voter turnout in the Nov. 4 state constitutional election.

"Even with instant communication, one office alone cannot reach each and every citizen to explain the importance of voter registration," White said. "It is an individual's right and his duty to see that every citizen in our state participates in government through the election process.

"If we in Texas truly believe in democracy, then it is up to all of us to make democracy work. I feel we can if responsible citizens work together in a nonpartisan effort to register voters in Texas and to encourage a good turnout at the Nov. 4 election."

Pentagon Tries To Kill Conflict Law

By DOUG LOWENSTEIN
Pampa News' Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Ignoring congressional criticism, the Department of Defense has quietly proposed legislation that would effectively gut a law designed to prevent conflict of interest situations, the News' Washington Bureau has learned.

The law, known as the criminal selling statute, bars for life ex - DOD military officers from selling to their former armed service. It carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The News' Washington Bureau has learned from sources familiar with the law that DOD proposed early this year that the criminal selling statute be greatly modified. The proposed changes would, according to a Justice Department memorandum to the White House Office of Management and Budget, open "a veritable Pandora's Box of ready-made obfuscations to conceal illegal contract negotiations under the guise of permissible contact between ex-officers and present DOD employees."

DOD would modify the law's strict ban on selling by ex-officers to one allowing selling in "special circumstances" as long as no "undue influence" was exerted on DOD.

The Justice Department's memo called the "special circumstances" and "undue pressure" phrases so vague that they would "completely gut and render totally meaningless" the intent of the criminal selling law.

DOD also proposed that the lifetime ban on selling be reduced to a three-year ban. Justice also opposed this change.

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is the White House office that clears all Executive Branch legislative proposals. OMB is presently studying the DOD proposal and Justice's comments.

Disclosure of the DOD proposal is the clearest indication yet, several observers said, that the department has little interest in enforcing a second law aimed at publicizing the revolving door relationship between ex-officers and major defense contractors.

The law, an amendment to the fiscal year 1970 military procurement authorization bill, requires any high ranking DOD official who goes to work for a firm with $10 million or more in government contracts to file an annual report with DOD.

The amendment was authored by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., who was concerned that defense contractors were developing a cozy, occasionally suspect, relationship with the Pentagon.

But only in the last month has the government's legal machinery begun to investigate the dozens of potential conflict cases raised by the reports filed since 1970.

The Council on Economic Priorities (CEP), a non-profit, non-partisan research group based in New York and San Francisco, conducted two exhaustive reviews this year of the 1,965 reports filed with DOD from fiscal years 1970 to 1974, and concluded that there are about 40 persons who appeared to be violating the criminal selling law.

A Justice Department spokesman said the department is now conducting a "preliminary inquiry" into 34 cases of possible violations of the criminal selling statute, all publicized by the CEP reports. The inquiry was begun in mid-August after Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., asked Justice to follow up the CEP findings. DOD did not ask for any probe.

Among the examples cited by CEP were:

- the hiring by Boeing, prime contractor for major radar warning system, of the system's project director for engineering;

- the hiring by Rockwell International, Inc. of an officer who had been the Air Force's director of procurement policy;
- the hiring by Raytheon, prime contractor for the Hawk anti-air-craft program, of the DOD Hawk project manager;
- the hiring by Northrop Corp. of a former DOD employee who had worked in the Defense Contract Audit Agency. The employee now works in Northrop's Defense Contract Audit Agency at the firm's principal plant in California.

These and similar cases have led Proxmire, Bennett and Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., among others, to suggest that the flow of DOD officers to private firms doing business with the department could raise serious questions about the propriety of some major contracts.

A review by the News' Washington Bureau of the enforcement of the law found that DOD is doing little either to see to it that all officers comply with the reporting law, or to follow up reports where possible conflicts of interest arise.

Among the findings of the review are:

- despite numerous cases where potential violations of the criminal selling law were apparent, DOD has referred only two cases to the Justice Department for further investigation.
- DOD has referred barely a handful of other conflict of interest cases to the Justice Department.
- DOD has made little effort to make certain that all persons who are required to file under the law in fact do so.

- DOD makes only one check, and that an admittedly superficial one, to determine whether possible conflicts of interest exist.

There are three basic federal conflict of interest statutes. One prohibits all former government employees from acting as attorneys or agents for any private party on a matter which fell within the person's official responsibility while on a government payroll.

The other two laws apply only to military officers. The civil selling statute bars selling of any goods or services to any agency of DOD for three years after leaving the department. The second, the criminal selling statute, prohibits for life retired officers from selling to the service in which they hold a retired status.

Selling includes contract negotiations as well as actual sales to DOD.

A Justice Department spokesman said it has investigated only two cases involving DOD employees and the criminal selling law. He said the law has never been used to prosecute anyone. Another source familiar with DOD's performance said DOD referrals regarding the other two conflict of interest laws are "extremely rare."

DOD has shown little enthusiasm for the reporting law itself. Roy Spence, the DOD official charged with collating the reports, said the department asked the General Accounting Office to include the law on its annual list of statutes that are useless or burdensome.

A spokesman for Proxmire described DOD's performance as "unspirited to say the least."

He added:

"They have no self interest in policing the law because the disclosure of conflict of interest cases puts pressure on their past officers and casts doubt on the propriety of large corporations and DOD procurement practices."

CEP criticized "an apparent lack of effort on the part of DOD officials to assure compliance" with the provisions of the law. It found that, in the first three years of filing, about 1,500 persons who should have filed did not.

Spence defended DOD's enforcement, saying it is doing all the law requires.

"The law requires individuals to file. We can request that they do so, we can inform them of the law and assist them in filing. But there is no obligation of the DOD to go out there and police everybody. That would be an impossible job."

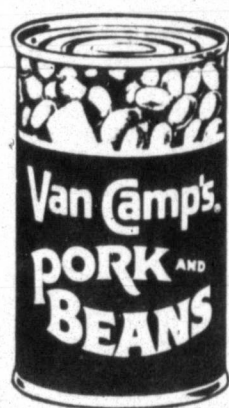

When an individual leaves DOD to work for one of the large defense contractors, he is informed of the law and his obligation to report by DOD, which also reminds the companies on its lists of top contractors that employees should file.

The DOD directive implementing the law states the statute's requirements and advises individuals how to comply.

Spence said the individual service branches make only a " cursory" check of the hundreds of reports filed to isolate potential conflicts of interest cases.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

Your birthday today: Expanding awareness of self highlights this year's experience. You are largely on your own, as people either don't realize the inner changes you're making or can't see any way to contribute. New friendships arise as you emerge from your chrysalis. Develop a sense of humor along with everything else. Today's natives enjoy mathematics or music or any field where precision is the essence of the activity.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Ask no favors. The soft sell works better. Most obstacles are temporary; you distinguish yourself by how you deal with them. Quit early, leaving your progress intact.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Face many, sharply presented demands from the outside world. Set your own affairs in order; aim for reasonable conclusions. Complex questions have no fast answers.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be yourself through today's problem-solving sessions. Differences of opinions are natural. You can talk your way out of any difficulty, or any potential hazard.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: A brief explanation saves much discussion. Otherwise, mind your own business. Stay within your means and wind up your work week in style. Be gentle with loved ones.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Communication is essential, as time runs out. Act while you still can. Those able to help won't; those unable will try. You're far better off on your own.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Go on with conditions as they are, not stopping everything to fuss over recent errors, or minor corrections. Tie up loose ends neatly. Evening has pleasant surprises.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Use common sense. Make a big thing out of your work and you'll need twice the effort. Shopping overlaps, duplicating purchases. To save money check with family first.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Ignore advice offered by self-styled experts. Be sure of your facts. Where dealing in a speciality, no shortcuts are open. Entertaining can

Nursing Home Wedding Set For Couple

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Edward Sylvester Washington Sr. married Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Thomas in Chicago in 1921. They split up a few years later and both eventually remarried. Now they're getting married again, to each other.

The couple hadn't seen each other for 30 years before their son, Edward Washington Jr., reunited them in June at a nursing home where they both now live.

The wedding will take place at the nursing home Sunday afternoon.

"At first I didn't want him. Then I said yes," said Mrs. Thomas, 70.

"After all these years I'm not a fussy kind of fellow," her 76-year-old ex-husband said. "I don't like to fuss."

"If that's the truth we'll be all right," the bride replied.

After they separated, Mrs. Thomas stayed in Chicago, working 11 years before retiring in 1950 to marry again. Her second husband died in 1971 and later that year she suffered a stroke which confined her to a wheel chair and resulted in the move to the Myer Nursing Home and Convalescent Center.

Washington left for La Fayette, Ill., where he worked 20 years as a service manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co. When his second wife died last year, he said he stopped taking good care of himself.

Practicality set Washington in motion to get married again. He was told he would have to share his two-bed room because rooms for men were running short in the nursing home, and replied that he didn't want to share a room with anyone but Mrs. Thomas, so he would have to marry her.

advance your business options.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Almost everybody is difficult to please. Don't look for an argument. Avoid anyone ready to find fault, particularly those in authority. Romance proves to be trouble-free.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Compromise when you're with people you like. Otherwise, set your program, and don't waver. Investigation turns up new knowledge that you can use at once.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Don't try to stick to a definite timetable. Do quickly what is most urgent. As you work, it seems disorganized. But later, it will register as highly productive.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your financial outlook is on the way up. News from faraway places is especially good. There are small misunderstandings to talk over among those nearby whom you cherish.

BANGKOK (UPI) — The Americans still stuck in Vietnam are a cross section of the United States. A few have been arrested, but most are free to come and go as they wish within Saigon.

They include one official government employee and several U.S. contract workers waiting for permission to leave. A hippie, a former Green Beret and several ex-GIs trying to marry their Vietnamese sweethearts are in their ranks.

The last American prisoner of war is in Vietnam — Paul Struharik, captured last March in Ban Me Thuot province capital 163 miles north of Saigon when North Vietnamese forces overran the highlands town.

With Struharik, under detention at an unknown location, are six American missionaries and the daughter of a missionary couple, 5-year-old Luanne Miller.

Government authorities have given no information on Struharik and the missionaries. But other sources in Saigon indicate all are well. They have been moved from detention camps at least twice.

Indications are all the Americans — there are at least 41 still in Vietnam and likely more — will remain there until Washington asks for them back.

Spokesmen in Saigon told UPI the United States has made no approach to either South or North Vietnam toward normalization of relations. Both nations obviously want diplomatic relations with the United States.

After my departure last Wednesday, there was only one American reporter left in Saigon — Frances Starner of the Pacific News Service, an agency generally considered "friendly" to the current Vietnamese administrations.

It is believed that in addition to the Americans from Ban Me

Thuot, at least three others are under detention in Saigon and one or two others in the outlying provinces. Presumably, all are suspected of antigovernment activities.

An order from the Provisional Revolutionary Government issued even before the Communists won the war April 30 guaranteed "all foreigners, even Americans," full rights in Vietnam, as long as they obey PRG laws.

Most of the Americans were caught in the country, either because they could not make the evacuation helicopters or because their fellow Americans abandoned them during the flight from Saigon.

Richard M. (Mike) Mielke, the former Green Beret, stayed with his American wife and daughter in an attempt to continue his voluntary task of searching for the bodies of missing foreigners in Vietnam.

Proposals to the government to continue his work have gone unanswered and Mielke has been able to work only in his office, updating files.

About a half-dozen of the Americans have been forced to seek refuge at the comfortable apartments of the International Red Cross, where they receive room, board and a small allowance. The government provides no help to foreigners in Vietnam.

Except for those under detention (and treatment in jail is said to be relatively good under the PRG) Americans are free to come and go as they please in Saigon.

They have no idea, however, when they are going to get out.

Some Actors Find Stardom After 70

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — In youth-conscious Hollywood, age isn't what you'd call an asset. Yet a surprising number of actors far removed from their years as romantic leading men are finding themselves back in front of the cameras in starring roles.

A few oldtimers are faced with stardom instead of retirement. Cowboy star Roy Rogers is starring in "Mackintosh and T.J.," his first movie in 23 years. Joel McCrea, whose Hollywood career had spanned 40 years when he retired, recently returned to work for a western called "Mustang Country," his first picture in 13 years.

Rogers will be 63 on Nov. 5, the same day McCrea turns 70. George Burns, who quit making movie comedies with wife Gracie Allen in 1939, has completed his first dramatic role — in "The Sunshine Boys" with Walter Matthau — at age 80, having been called in to replace Jack Benny who died at 80 last December.

Fred Astaire, having first announced his "retirement" in 1946, playing a dramatic role in "The Towering Inferno" last year and now is back at MGM for "That's Entertainment, Too!" at age 76, co-starring with the youthful Gene Kelly, 63.

Ray Bolger, famed for playing the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz" and the peculiar "lady" in "Where's Charley?" (in 1939 and 1952), is making his first movie in a decade, playing with Jack Lemmon in a musical version of John Osborne's play "The Entertainer." He is 71. Bob Hope, 72, is after Bing Crosby, 73, to team up with Dorothy Lamour, 61, in "The Road to Tomorrow," their first "road" movie together since 1952.

A comedy currently filming at Paramount, "Won Ton Ton, the Dog Who Saved Hollywood," includes cameo roles for some three dozen movie veterans including Don Ameche, 67; John Carradine, 69; Andy Devine and Sterling Holloway, both 70; Rudy Vallee, 74; George Jessel and Stepin Fetchit, 77, as well as the Ritz Brothers, Jim and Harry, who are 72 and 69.

Also in the cast is William Demarest who appeared in Hollywood's first talking pictures (Jolson's "The Jazz Singer" included) and figures this is his 220th movie. He is 83.

Cary Grant, still the romantic leading man at 71, insists he's retired (he hasn't made a film in nine years) as does James Cagney, 76 (and absent from the screen 14 years), although producers and directors never tire of trying to lure them back to work.

Groucho Marx, 85, William Powell, 83 and George Brent, 71 are retired.

And Charlie Chaplin, 86, may never get around to making that movie he wants to direct with daughter Geraldine and her sisters. Then again, he might.

Henry Fonda, 70, has just been starring in a World War II drama, "Midway," with fellow movie veteran Eddie Albert, 67, and a couple of younger guys named Glen Ford and Robert Mitchum, both approaching their 60s. Fonda and his old pal Jimmy Stewart, 67, left Hollywood just long enough this year to star in separate plays in London's West End.

John Wayne, at 68, is in a class by himself. He'll shortly be seen in "Rooster Cogburn," reprising the "True Grit" role that won him his first Oscar six years ago. His co-star is Katharine Hepburn, a durable 66.

A number of Hollywood stars, some dating back to the silent era, keep busy in films today with supporting roles, among them Walter Pidgeon, 78, Melvin Douglas, 74, and Ray Milland, 70.

Burgess Meredith, 67, could take home his first Oscar next spring for his performance as Karen Black's father in "The Day of the Locust."

TV comic Art Carney's career had slipped badly before he returned to films last year, playing a man in his 70s, through he is merely 56. The picture "Harry and Tonto," won him an Oscar.

Complaints that age has a withering effect on a performer's career are more likely to come from actresses than actors — although not from Mae West, who is 83. She says she'll make another movie as soon as somebody offers her a role sufficiently tailored to her special talents.

Gloria Swanson, 76 but ageless, recently appeared in "Airport 1975" and is far from retired. Nor is Marlene Dietrich, although at 75 she prefers personal appearances in her one-woman-show to movies.

Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell, now in their late 60s, have dropped out of pictures, as have Claudette Colbert, 70, and Irene Dunne, 74. Lucille Ball, 65, may think twice about another picture after the flop of her "Mame." But Bette Davis remains undaunted at 67 — and steadily employed.

Of course they are youngsters compared with Helen Hayes, 74, who retired from the stage a few years ago (having discovered she is allergic to dusty theaters) only to resume a film career that first won her an Oscar in 1931.

Margaret Hamilton, who was in her 30s when she played the Witch of the West in "The Wizard of Oz," remains busy in movies and theatre at 73. Hollywood's most retired actress, Greta Garbo, recently turned 70 as did Myrna Loy, Jean Arthur and Dolores Del Rio. But Miss Loy is to start work shortly on a spoof of her "Thin Man" pictures of the 1930s and '40s. And reportedly there's a part in it for George Raft, nearing 80.

Miss Arthur, retired from movies since "Shane" in 1953, had a television show in the 1960s and is planning to return to acting with a play scheduled for Broadway next spring.

Ruth Gordon began her movie career with "Camille" in 1915 and quit to write scripts instead during the 1940s and '50s. She returned to the screen at age 70 and remains active in movies and television, playing major roles.

Then there is Carmel Myers. The actress does not care to disclose her age but she began her Hollywood career as a stock player for movie pioneer D.W. Griffith. She played opposite such silent stars as Rudolph Valentino and John Barrymore, then quit show business to raise a family after the 1926 version of "Ben Hur."

Accused Saboteur Has Bicentennial Trial

DENVER (UPI) — Activist defense attorney William Kunstler says it is important the trial of accused saboteur Cameron David Bishop was occurring during the nation's 200th anniversary.

Jury selection began Tuesday in U.S. District Court Tuesday in Bishop's trial which is expected to last three days. Bishop, who eluded FBI agents for six years, is charged with the 1969 dynamiting of power lines leading to a war material plant owned by Golden, Colo., brewer Joseph Coors.

"We believe individuals have the right to block government actions if the government does not halt those activities of its own accord," said Kunstler, who is advising Bishop's defense attorney, Michael Tigar.

"That's what happened during the revolutionary war and that's exactly what we're celebrating next year," Kunstler said.

Bishop, 32, who had been on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list since a federal grand jury charged him with four counts of violating the federal Sabotage Act following the bombings, was arrested last March in the small town of East Greenwich, R.I.

"We live in the most horrible society that has ever lived on this earth," Bishop told college students this summer during talks to raise funds for his defense.

He said if he had committed any crimes, they were directed at "the imperialistic government we live under. If we support this government, we oppose the people of the world."

The bombings at the Coors Porcelain Co. plant, which was under government contract to make nose cones for U.S. Missiles, occurred while Bishop was free on bond awaiting trial for participating in a demonstration at Colorado State University.

He also faces state charges of burglary as a result of the demonstration. Dynamite was stolen from a CSU building during the protest. In Rhode Island, charges of conspiracy to rob an armored car and possession of illegal firearms await the one-time student radical.

Tigers After 2nd Win, To Tackle White Deer

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

McLean is thinking in terms of a perfect non-conference record and the District 2-A championship. Either of the goals would be a miraculous step from the nightmare of last season.

McLean tripped White Deer 7-0 in the season opener last week as the Tigers guaranteed themselves a better record than last season when they lost 10 games and were never even close in any. The Tigers will try to make it two in a row when they host the Lefors Pirates at 8 p.m. Friday in McLean's homecoming contest.

"We're just trying to take them one at a time," McLean's first year coach, Robert Mears, said, "and hope we don't get anybody hurt. We'd like to think we could go into district 3-0—that's the goal the kids have set."

"It was a team victory for us the other night."

McLean, Mears said, has to establish consistency before the team is capable of pushing 2-A powers Memphis, Wellington and Wheeler. "We've had real good workouts. I think our offense is gonna get going this week. We're still not as consistent as I'd like to be."

"We'll try to put up some more points this week."

Even though Mears feels "defense is our main thing" he predicts and offensive football games Friday.

"It could be high scoring. They could break one on us real quick. If (Phil) White ever gets outside of us, he's gonna go for a long way."

White, a breakaway halfback, led Lefors in its 27-0 loss to Wheeler last week with 55 yards on 20 carries. White was almost the entire offense for Lefors, which managed just 100 total yards, 79 on the ground.

McLean was a little more effective in its rushing attack, gaining 165 yards as sophomore Curtis Simpson managed 71 yards on 17 carries. Gary Danner added 33 yards on 11 rushes and scored the game's only touchdown on a two yard run in the second quarter.

Simpson, Danner and quarterback Marty Dunivan, brother of Texas Tech signal caller Tommy Dunivan, give McLean a potentially explosive backfield and capable passing attack. White and Bobby Crain, who managed 25 yards on four carries last week, are still adjusting to the Pirates' new single-wing (box) offense, which doesn't have a quarterback, but the two backs give Lefors the long-run threat.

Mears is impressed with Lefors. "I'm impressed with this Phil White and this Larry Franks. He's probably one of the best linebackers in the Panhandle. I wish we had him."

"They want to try to get outside. We want to try to shut them down there. They run that single wing and it's a little different to me. I've never seen one before."

Linebacker Dean Trew had 12 tackles, two unassisted, to pace McLean's defense, which Lefors coach Jim Allen feels was their strong suit against White Deer.

"They go get people," Allen said.

"They're much better than last year. They're young but they want to win."

Allen, concerning the Wheeler shutout, said, "I was pleased in spots. We broke down some but we were pleased—we kept after them."

"We had our best workout of the year yesterday (Tuesday). After the workout, the boys were loose and I think they're mentally ready to go."

The Tigers are three-point favorites.

In other games Friday, White Deer is at Clarendon, Spearman is at Canadian, Groom is at Claude and Miami is at Balco, Okla.

White Deer at Clarendon

White Deer's seven-point loss to McLean was one of the area's biggest upsets last week and the Bucks expect to bounce back. Injuries to linebackers Bobby Tollison and Robin Martin have healed which should help the defensive situation.

Childress crushed Clarendon 41-6 as the Broncos failed to generate either offense or defense. Still, quarterback David Lewis and halfback Lynn Floyd are touted athletes.

Clarendon has too much talent to stay down for long—Broncos by 14.

Spearman at Canadian

Stratford edged Spearman 13-0 last week. In last season's opener, Stratford beat Spearman 20-14 in the opener, the only loss for Great Sherwood's Lynx until they fell 56-26 to Newton in the state AA championship game. It's questionable whether Spearman will have a repeat of 1974 but few forecasters are counting the Lynx out.

Canadian "played a half, then let up," according to Coach Jack Hawthorne, whose Wildcats watched a 7-6 halftime lead turn into an 18-7 loss to Phillips last week. Canadian's TD came on a 43-yard pass from Roy Lee Todd to Mike Arrington.

It's a question of which "cat" is stronger. Since Lynx have longer claws—Spearman by 16.

Groom at Claude

In one of the state's most impressive upsets, Groom throttled Vega 26-12 in the teams' opener last week. The Tigers, as a result, have climbed from 11th to fifth in the state (Class B) according to the Harris Rating System. Chris Britten rushed for 251 yards in the win.

Claude bounced Happy 20-6 behind a solid passing attack, quarterback Wayne Campbell threw 25 teams. Campbell is one of only a handful of starters back from last year's 2-8 team but has seemed to have provided enough leadership to make the inexperienced Mustangs a contender in 2-A.

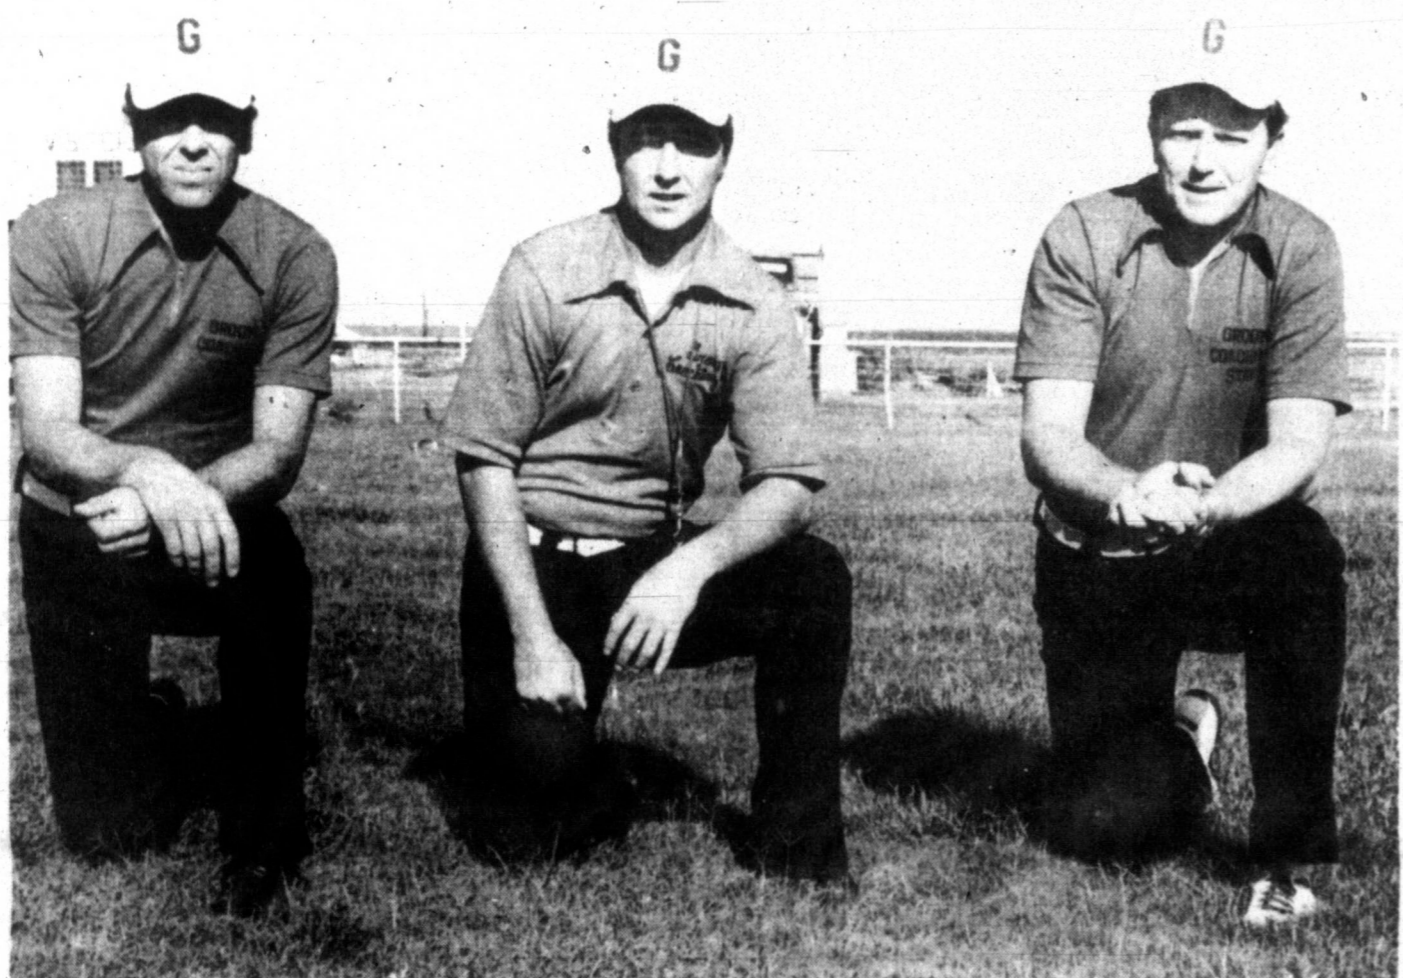

Groom is bigger, more experienced and more physical—Tigers by 20.

Miami at Balco, Okla.

Miami opened with a 30-0 win at Forgan, Okla., last week scoring 24 points in the third quarter. The Warriors, behind Kirk Flowers' 79 yards, outgained the Oklahoma team 229-135 in total yards.

Balco lost 44-14 to Follett, Texas' defending eight-man state champion, in the opener. Halfback Brett Law is Balco's main offensive threat.

Miami could have one of its finest teams in history—Warriors by 26.

Groom Personnel

The Groom Tigers opened their season with a 26-12 win over touted Vega last week, showing why they are regarded highly in the state in Class B. Groom visits Claude Friday. Tiger coaches, (from left) are assistants Kenneth Sweat and Gary Rambo and head mentor Don Season. Among the Tiger players are two-way tackle Jay Witt (upper left) and halfback Thomas Reed, who also starts at defensive cornerback.

Shofner Thinks So

TCU To Be Better?

By JIM SHOFNER
Head Coach, Texas Christian University
Written for UPI

I honestly feel we will be an improved team this fall. The players have had a year now to learn our system and that's got to be an advantage. It's a big transition to completely change from a ground-minded game to a wide-open style as we did. Thus, we suffered our growing pains.

I feel our guys now feel more at ease with the setup. They know how we want things executed and they know their capabilities. Everything is beginning to fall into place.

We have some good football players. Ronald Parker, Marshall Harris and Mike Renfro could play for anyone. We have two outstanding quarterbacks in Lee Cook and Jimmy Dan Elzner.

We felt last year that Parker was as good as any tight end in this part of the country. He's an outstanding blocker, one of the best I've seen. Ronald had a great spring and had scouts drooling over the way he would just wipe out one entire side of the defensive line.

Renfro will only be a sophomore, but he'll rate with the best wide receivers. He's going to be outstanding and should be of all-conference calibre. Of course, he's Ray Renfro's son and has been catching passes since he was in diapers. I remember him as a baby when Ray and I were teammates with the Cleveland Browns. I guess Mike was destined to be a top notch receiver.

The guy that is going to surprise people is Harris. Not many people have heard of him. As a freshman last fall, Marshall played on the junior varsity and then we moved him up at the end of the season. He started the final game at defensive tackle.

When we shifted our defensive alignment to a "four down" front in the spring, we put him at end and he was outstanding. Marshall is 6-6, 230 and has unlimited potential. He's going to be a No. 1 draft choice some day. He is a mature youngster and the more pressure the better he responds. He'll open some eyes this fall.

A couple of sophomores Lynn Davis (6-3, 240) and Alan Teichelman (6-4, 240). We are very high on all four of these down linemen. None of them have played very much, but potentially they all have good ability. This is a group we could really get excited about.

Also, we have a good front group in the secondary. Allen Hooker was a regular at halfback last year and Tim Pulliam returns at strong safety.

If you believe that the Pittsburgh Pirates can win 10 of their last 19 games you should send off a check for the National League's Playoff Series in Pittsburgh.

LeVias Given Release

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jerry LeVias' separation from the game of football was not as traumatic as one might think.

Between phone calls from well-wishers, friends, Houston Oilers teammates and newsmen, LeVias spent Wednesday — his first official day off the field in more than 15 years — reading a paperback entitled, "Handbook to Higher Knowledge."

"I don't consider myself a jock, never have," he said. "Versatility is more my style, and that's why when Bum (Oilers coach Bum Phillips) called me in and gave me the news I could quickly get into something else."

"I just called my boss at Conoco and said I'll be working full time instead of part time now."

The cutback by NFL teams to 43 players this season hurt LeVias' chances to stay in the game.

"Someone is going to have to suffer because of that cutback. There will be some unnecessary pain within organizations because of the manpower shortages," he said.

LeVias, 29, a slippery 5-foot-9 receiver and return specialist, never really got a shot in his second go-round with the Oilers. Acquired in a trade from the San Diego Chargers just before this preseason, he severely bruised a knee in the second game and did not catch one pass in five games.

Plus, wide receiver is probably the Oilers' strongest position.

"It does disappoint me that I couldn't come back before my people and do a little better," he said, "but people know I've starred in the NFL. They know I could do what was required."

A Beaumont, Tex., sprinter as a schoolboy, LeVias went to Southern Methodist University and riddled Southwest Conference pass defenses.

"People are giving people a chance now," LeVias said. "It's still severe, but we just coping with it now. And besides, then we didn't have the law on our side."

Drafted in the second round by the Oilers in 1969 despite his size, LeVias quickly made a name for himself by catching 83 passes for 1,225 yards his first two pro seasons. He also returned punts and kickoffs. But Houston, hurting for linemen, traded him to San Diego for two of them.

"I've got nothing to be ashamed of when I look back on my career," he said. "Seven years is more than the average pro player lasts. The credit goes to the guys who just make it to the arena."

LeVias, who works in the oil company's marketing department and still has a permanent home in Beaumont, said he readily would get back into football.

"But only as an owner of a team," he said, "and if that opportunity doesn't come along, I will keep moving my feet somewhere else."

"I have regrets about leaving the game, but it's just like divorcing the woman I loved. That's not an end in itself."

Vanderbilt Utilizes Changes, Communication with Raiders

By STEVE SLOAN
Head Coach, Texas Tech University
Written for UPI

A year ago on September 28, we were on the Astroturf of Denny Stadium in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and our Vanderbilt team was meeting Coach Bear Bryant's Alabama Crimson Tide.

This year on September 27, we'll be at Memorial Stadium in Austin, Tex., and Darrell Royal will be across the field with his Texas Longhorns. I don't know how Texas Tech will fare, but one thing's for certain, we're keeping good company.

My staff and I arrived a little late in Texas after we tied Tech in the Peach Bowl, so we were behind in recruiting right off the bat. In fact, we had two recruiting seasons as the SEC signing date was a good two months before the Southwest Conference's. We'll just have to wait and see how our signees turn out. They're more like suspects than prospects.

In spring training we got a good chance to evaluate our personnel, but the main thing is that we were able to establish communication lines between our staff and the players. That is the most important thing.

We moved several people around during the spring. Most notably, we moved Ecomet Burley, a second-team all-American, to noseguard, probably a more natural position for him than defensive tackle. We also moved Thomas Howard from defensive end to linebacker where we can utilize his speed better. And then we moved quarterback Don Roberts to split end and he should help us replace Lawrence Williams with his speed and size.

Offensively, we should be sound in the backfield where we have some backs that can play for a lot of folks (fullbacks Cliff Hoskins and Rufus Myers and tailbacks Larry Isaac, Jimmy Williams and Billy Taylor). At quarterback, Tommy Duniven and Rodney Lison are about in a dead heat. We'll have to pick one this fall.

We're a little worried about the offensive line. We shifted several people around in the spring so they really didn't get the experience they needed. Too, we lost several fifth-year seniors who decided not to come back. One thing, though, we will have some size that Tech has not had recently. We'll average 6-3, 240 across the front.

We'll also be bigger across the defensive front with several players weighing 230 and up. I imagine we'll need all the weight we can muster against some of the conference's wishbone teams.

Howard, Harold Buell and transfer Jim Scott should make our line-backing corps okay, and we're set in the secondary, another strong suit, with Curtis Jordan, definitely an all conference player, and letterman Selso Ramirez at the other corner and Tony Green at safety.

It is really hard to evaluate the conference race because my staff and I haven't gone through it before.

NFL To Strike Again?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Given an overwhelming mandate rejecting the latest National Football League owners' contract offer, NFL player representatives will discuss with team members possible actions ranging from a strike to litigation and more negotiations.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, said Wednesday that with five teams' votes still to be counted, only six of 749 players had accepted the owners' offer.

When asked how possible a strike is, Garvey said: "I don't know. We're not making any recommendations... Some teams have said they'd like to strike and there are others who would like to continue our actions in court and other similar moves."

"We are hopeful that this vote will convince all 26 owners to get involved in the bargaining process. We expect to commence bargaining this week," Garvey said. "When you look at the pre-season attendance and other factors, you'd think they (the NFL Management Council) would want to stop all the negative talk and get on to some positive talk with the players union. There still is really nothing on the table of any significance."

Sargent Karch, executive director of the management council, said in New York that the owners see no way out of the negotiation deadlock unless the players accept the Rozelle rule or a variation of it.

He said the owners were prepared to make a better offer two weeks ago regarding the pension plan and other important items but the union insisted the contract not include any form of compensation to a team for a player who plays out his option and signs with another team, the gist of the Rozelle rule.

Garvey also called on the owners to increase team roster limits from 43 to 47 players, where it was last season. He called the lower limit "false economy" and said it would dilute the quality of the game.

Hightower Tells Progress On Farmer SBA Loans

Congressman Jack Hightower announced Wednesday that legislative progress had been made toward granting to farmers and ranchers full eligibility for small business Administration loans.

The House Small Business Committee, of which Hightower is a member, approved Wednesday HR 9656, which was drafted to amend the Small Business Act.

"The bill's principle purpose was to make it absolutely clear to the Small Business Administration that small farmers and ranchers are eligible for full SBA assistance," Hightower said.

As the SBA interprets the act today, farmers and ranchers are eligible only for products disaster loans. The Congressman said there was never a statutory prohibition against giving SBA assistance to farmers or ranchers but the SBA had arbitrarily excluded farmers and ranchers by its administrative procedures.

"The committee's action today makes it very clear that we believe farmers and ranchers are businessmen and should be treated accordingly," Hightower said.

He said that during the sub-committee hearings, he and other congressmen advised the SBA administrator, Thomas Kleppe, that the Congress never intended to exclude small farmers and ranchers in the original SBA act.

Mr. Kleppe, who has been nominated as Secretary of the Interior, said the SBA would not change its interpretation of the act without clear statutory expression of eligibility. This bill will provide that expression.

The bill must now be passed by the full House and Senate and be signed by the President before becoming law.

"I will do whatever I can to assure its passage," Hightower said, "and to assure full compliance by the SBA with the intent of Congress."

'Texts Encourage Theft, Disrespect'

AWSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A Longview housewife Wednesday complained spelling books proposed for use in Texas schools encourage silliness, stealing, destructive behavior and disrespect for authority.

Mrs. Mel Gabler told the 15-member State Textbook Committee she also is concerned over how well students can learn to read using the proposed books.

Publishers, however, said the books use well-established teaching methods and denied the texts promote negative behavior.

Mrs. Gabler criticized use of nonsense words and material such as Lewis Carroll's "Jabberwocky" and exercises calling for young students to make up words or stories to fill in the blank for what a boy does when he sees a penny on the sidewalk.

"Encouraging children to be absurd will cause them to behave absurdly," she said. "Why teach children to be silly? They tend to be that way already."

Mrs. Gabler protested an exercise in a Harcourt Brace Jovanovich text calling for students to dictate stories for a parent volunteer to type.

"This puts parents in a submissive position and is very damaging to parents and children and their view of authority," she said.

A picture of boys climbing over a statute also drew a protest.

"This does not teach proper respect for public property and treatment of famous statutes," she said. "How will they remain intact for years if every little kid crawls over them?"

Mrs. Gabler complained many stories in the Follett spelling texts were creepy and encouraged children to think about violence and frightening experiences.

She said 64,000 teachers were physically attacked during the first half of the 1973-74 school year and noted a 56 per cent increase in malicious damages to teachers' personal property.

"With an over emphasis on fear, (and) killing could add to this percentage," she said.

Jimmy Thompson of Fort Worth, Follett's regional sales manager, said most of the stories Mrs. Gabler protested were only exciting or suspenseful.

Mrs. Gabler and publishers' representatives testified at the opening round of hearings on adoption of $3.2 million worth of books for use in Texas public schools. In addition to spelling texts, social studies and mathematics books are being considered.

NOW Denounces Fed Reserve Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Organization for Women has denounced the Federal Reserve Board as selling out to big banking interests by weakening proposed standards against sex discrimination in credit.

In a telegram sent Monday after the proposal was published, NOW President Karen Decrow demanded a meeting with Fed members. She said NOW intends to do everything in its power to change rules she said ignored the intent of Congress and betray the interests of the nation's women.

The revised regulations were written to implement a law that Congress passed in 1974 to ban credit discrimination by sex or marital status. They take effect Oct. 28 after a three-week period of public comment.

They are considerably less stringent than the preliminary rules proposed in April.

NOW and other women's rights advocates objected principally to elimination of a provision requiring creditors to tell a rejected applicant why he was denied credit. Also at issue was a new loophole through which creditors could indirectly ask working women whether they intend to bear children.

Millionaires Didn't Pay Any Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1973, a total of 24 American millionaires got away without paying a penny of federal income tax, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said Tuesday.

"This is only the tip of the iceberg," Vanik said in a House speech.

"There are many wealthy individuals who only pay a few dollars in tax and thus are not included in this no-tax list. The Congress must devise a more equitable tax system to ensure that all Americans bear some proper support of their nation's activities."

Vanik said the information came from the Internal Revenue Service.

Dan Long To Participate In Conference

Dan F. Long, Superintendent, Pampa Independent School District, has been selected as a program participant for the 1975 Joint Annual Convention of the Texas Association of School Administrators and the Texas Association of School Boards.

Dr. Long will serve as reactor for the group discussion on "School Records: Open, Confidential, or Public Information?"

Convention participants including several from Pampa, will be able to choose from seventeen different topics of current interest which will be explored in the group discussions. The program has been designed to provide information and ideas that will be useful in the operation of schools at the local level.

The convention will be at the San Antonio Convention Center the last of September.

Dr. Abner McCall, president of Baylor University, will deliver the opening address. Noted Texas humorist Dr. James Blakely of Wharton and the Honorable Sam J. Erwin, Jr., former United States Senator from North Carolina, will also speak.

Eagle Radiator Shop

When you think of Eagle Radiator Shop, you might think of small house radiators and car radiators.

However, Don L. Thompson, owner of Eagle Radiator, 516 West Foster, says his shop doesn't build or service house radiators, most of which are outdated anyway, and car radiators aren't his biggest money-making product.

"We sell and service commercial and auto radiators," Thompson said. "We have industrial radiators — for trucks and oil fields. Gasoline plants and oil rigs have radiators.

"We build some radiators for the service department at Cabot and the maintenance department at Celanese. We do big radiators for Cities Service and Cabot at the carbon black plant and some big ones for Skelly.

"It's a lot of hard work — you make a living at it." Eagle Radiator Shop has been in business for "around 50 years," according to Thompson, who has owned the business for eight years. The name "Eagle" has always been with the business and Thompson will not change it.

"It's been a tradition."

Thompson and his wife, Lois, and Randy Rittenbach run the business.
