Predicts Vetoes Will Lead to Gloom

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield today predicted President Ford's vetoes of energy control legislation will lead to further reversals in the nation's economy.

The Montana senator also conceded during an impromptu news conference Sunday night at the Southern Governors Conference that Alabama Gov.

George Wallace is the current frontrunner in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. But Mansfield said he could not support Wallace because "he is not going to get the nomination."

Mansfield, frustrated in his efforts to convince Florida Gov. Reubin Askew to seek the presidential nomination, said he did not know if he would support

Wallace should he get the nomination.

"I'd have to think about it," Mansfield said shortly after arriving at a dinner party to greet his friend Askew. "He has been the frontrunner in early stages before, but hasn't been able to get the nomination. He is the only one who has strength that I think will not get the nomination."

The veteran Democratic leader was the leadoff speaker at today's opening of the 41st annual meeting of the Dixie governors, which was focusing primarily on problems of the economy, energy and the environment.

In a prepared speech, Mansfield said President Ford's rejection of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act extension "stripped whatever protection was left to the nation against price gouging in petroleum products.

"I am frank to say that I do not know the exact toll — the specifics of what will happen in the next few months and in the years," he said. "But the door has been opened wide — and, unless there is a reasonable compromise — to widespread economic hardship and disarray."

On other matters Sunday, South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards said he will introduce a resolution asking the governors to urge Congress to draft a constitutional amendment to "limit excessive federal government spending."

Edwards said he has not lined up any co-sponsors but expects support from North Carolina's James E. Holshouser Jr., a Republican, and Oklahoma's David L. Boren, a Democrat.

Meanwhile, a proposal for a regional primary to give the South a strong voice in the selection of the presidential nominee gained some support among early arrivals Sunday.

Democratic Gov. Ray Blanton of Tennessee said he'd like to go a step further and abolish the convention method of picking presidential nominees.

"Conventions are a hoax on the public and a farce," he said. "The people should vote directly in a presidential primary."

Blanton and Mississippi Gov. William L. Waller, also a Democrat, said it probably would not be feasible to attempt to get a regional primary going for 1976.

Two Killed in Accident

An accident that occurred about 4:45 p.m. where Texas 70 curves to meet I-40 about 18 miles west of McLean claimed the lives of Herman Hampton, 33, and Verna Ervin Taylor, 33, both of Paducah. (Pampa News photo by Robert Echols)

Two Die Near McLean

Two traffic fatalities were recorded in Gray County Sunday afternoon. Two other persons were seriously injured in a one car accident when a vehicle crashed into a deep ditch and slammed into a concrete abutment at the interchange Texas Highway 70 and Interstate 40, 18 miles West of McLean.

Justice of Peace Ed Anderson of Pampa pronounced Herman Hampton, 33, and Verna Ervin Taylor, also 33, both of Paducah dead at the scene of the accident.

Their bodies were taken to Lamb Funeral Home in McLean and will be sent to Paducah.

R.C. Parker of the Texas Highway Patrol, investigating officer, said the two apparently died instantly. Katie Ervin, 53, also from Paducah, was in serious condition this morning in the intensive care unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Ann Vaughn, 28, Paducah, a passenger in the car, was in serious but stable condition today at Groom Memorial Hospital.

Parker said the accident occurred at about 4:45 p.m. when the vehicle "failed to negotiate a curve" on Texas 70, where it curves to meet I-40.

A witness to the investigators said that the car was traveling north toward I-40 when it left the roadway. Officer Parker said today he did not know the destination of the four persons.

Police Shoot Gunman

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A police sharpshooter today shot to death a 24-year-old gunman who tried to hijack an empty Continental Airlines 727 jet with four hostages. His death ended a four-hour rampage during which he stabbed a woman he tried to rape in her home.

The gunman, identified by police as Fred Solomon, of San Jose, began the hours of terror when he entered the apartment where the woman lived with her children late Sunday night and stabbed her in the heart.

He then drove to San Jose Hospital, kidnaped Dr. Frank Wiefels at gunpoint, and sped with him to Reid-Hillview Airport, where he encountered a security guard and demanded a small plane and pilot.

Police said that when Solomon discovered no plane was available, he took the guard hostage as well and drove shortly after midnight to San Jose Municipal Airport, where he found two maintenance men preparing the 727 for an early morning flight.

Brandishing a .38 caliber revolver, he took them hostage also and ordered them to get him a flight crew, a gun and ammunition.

Negotiations between Solomon and the airport control tower began, with a maintenance man relaying the hijacker's demand by radio, said assistant San Jose police chief Jay Propst. Control tower workers immediately notified police, who arrived at the scene within several minutes with sharpshooters—members of the Special Weapons and Tactical Team known as SWAT.

During the negotiations, the security guard and one of the maintenance men escaped while Solomon was distracted, Propst said. The doctor was shot in the leg when he tried to escape from the plane, police added.

Officers said the negotiations were in process for half an hour. They shot out the tires as the aircraft started to taxi down the runway.

"There was no possibility that the plane could have been flown," said police Lt. Don Trujillo.

Solomon decided to give himself up and began walking down the plane's ramp, clutching his gun in one hand, Trujillo said.

Police said the hijacker was ordered three times to drop his pistol. He lowered it in the direction of an officer, whereupon a SWAT team sharpshooter pulled the trigger.

"He was shot in the head and killed instantly," Trujillo said.

The stabbing victim underwent surgery and her condition was described as critical. The doctor, who also was unidentified, was in serious condition after surgery.

Police said names would be released after relatives were notified.

Mobeetic Approves City Tax

Mobeetic voted in the city's first sales tax in an election Saturday.

Tax is now five cents on a dollar; one cent goes to the city. Citizens also voted to retain the present water system. They turned down a proposal of a FHA loan of $100,000 to upgrade the water system. The vote means the city will improve the system as funds become available through grants or other means.

The water system was recently taken over by the city from private ownership.

Two absentee and 66 other ballots were cast in the election.

Jury Selection Begins On Aggravated Assault

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff

Jury selection began this morning in 31st District Court here for the trial of Anthony Allan Caviness, 21, formerly of Pampa and now of Amarillo, who is charged with aggravated assault in regard to pulling a gun on Jan. 31 at the Plainsman Motel.

Guy Hardin, district attorney, told the panel that the evidence would show that the defendant pulled the gun and E.M. Stafford, owner, was shot twice, once in the hip and once in the side.

Gene Storrs, Amarillo attorney, who is representing Caviness, said the youth has elected to have the jury set the punishment in case he should be found guilty.

The maximum penalty is 10 years in the state penitentiary. During questioning of the jury panel, Stafford, a witness was sitting at the back of the room and began talking.

Judge Grainger McElhany, recessed court and asked Hardin to instruct the witness.

The judge asked the jury panel to disregard whatever they may have heard that Stafford said.

"Some of you may have heard a witness talking in the back of the room. It is not in accordance with good procedure," the judge explained as he instructed jurors to put whatever they may have heard out of their minds.

Back in the courtroom, Storrs told the prospective jurors that they could see that he and "Mr. Stafford disagree violently on what happened out there."

Two or three of the panel members said they knew the Stafford.

"Can you reach a not guilty decision and face Mr. Stafford the next day?" Storrs asked.

Hardin said that Stafford gave Caviness a dime for the telephone when he entered the building and said he was out of gas.

"Everything must be proven from the witness stand," Storrs emphasized.

The trial is expected to continue through today and Tuesday.

Clemency Ends Today For Viet War Resisters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After one year, the clemency program for Vietnam war resisters ends today. The man who ran it says he is pleased with the program, but many of those it most affected are not satisfied.

The 18-member board will submit its final batch of recommendations to President Ford this week. The President has scheduled a farewell meeting with the group Tuesday.

Its chairman, Charles Goodell, said, "We're quite pleased with the work the board has done."

The program has completely failed in all areas," said Warren Hoover, executive director of the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors. "Less than 20 percent of the people eligible applied and many of them have since dropped out."

Both sides concede the program failed to reach vast numbers of young men who found themselves in legal jeopardy because of the war.

Ford said when he announced the program Sept. 16, 1974, that its "primary purpose" was the "reconciliation and restoration of essential unity of Americans."

The latest preliminary statistics show the Clemency Board received about 16,500 applications from an estimated potential of about 100,000.

Draft dodgers and deserters, including many who went to Canada and Europe and still have not been indicted, were eligible to apply for generally low-paying, public service-type civilian jobs.

After serving for up to two years, but usually after only a few months, they would avoid prosecution or would receive a presidential pardon if they had convictions.

Almost before the ink was dry on Ford's proclamation, most amnesty proponents said the program was "punitive" and the major exile organizations abroad were calling for a boycott of the Ford program while continuing to demand universal and unconditional amnesty.

"We feel that we did a good job," Goodell said. "Our intentions were good and everyone who came through here got a fair shake. We did a service for these people."

Palestine Guerrillas Seize Egypt Embassy

MADRID (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas seized the Egyptian Embassy today and threatened to kill the ambassador and two other Egyptian diplomats unless Egypt renounces the interim peace agreement with Israel by midnight (6 p.m. EDT).

A spokesman for the guerrillas told UPI by telephone that five Palestinian raiders had barricaded themselves inside the embassy and mined the building.

"The moment someone opens the door or a window, the whole place will blow up," he said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat held the Palestine Liberation Organization and its leader, Yasser Arafat, personally responsible for the consequences of the embassy raid, an Egyptian official announced in Cairo.

The official said the Egyptian leader warned he would take "decisive measures" if the PLO and Arafat failed to ensure the immediate release of the Egyptian ambassador and his aides.

In Beirut, a spokesman for the PLO and other major Palestinian organizations denied involvement in the attack.

The guerrillas called their commando unit "The Group of the Fallen Abdel Kader al Houseni," after a Palestinian leader killed in a clash with a Jewish group in 1947.

They demanded that the Egyptian peace delegation to Geneva leave the Swiss city by midnight without signing documents of the interim Sinai agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Simultaneously with the raid on the embassy, another band of about 50 Arab students occupied the Madrid offices of the Arab League, but they later voluntarily surrendered and released two hostages, the news agency Cifra said.

Egypt and Israel initiated the interim peace accord Sept. 1, but their delegations in Geneva are now negotiating terms on ways of putting the accord into effect.

It widens the buffer zone in the Sinai Desert separating the two armies and calls for Israeli withdrawal from the Mitla and Gidi passes and the Abu Rodeis oil fields and the stationing of 200 American technicians in the Sinai as peace monitors.

The agreement has come under attack from radicals in the Arab world, who charge that it ignored the interests of the Palestinians and the other countries—Jordan and Syria—whose territory Israel also occupied in the 1967 war.

US, Ethiopia Talk Of Base's Future

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — The United States and Ethiopia have begun urgent talks on the future of the Kagnew communications base where Eritrean separatists kidnaped two American technicians Friday. Western diplomats said today.

The naval facility, in the Eritrean capital of Asmara, once employed 4,500 American technicians, but the staff has been gradually reduced to about 40 because of the increasing number of attacks by secessionist rebels.

The two men kidnaped Friday were identified as Army Spec 5 David S. Strickland, of Orlando, Fla., and Navy ETN-3 Thomas C. Bowidowicz, of Jersey City, N.J. No ransom demands have been received.

Eritrean rebels still hold two other technicians kidnaped from the base two months ago. Brig Gen Tefari Bante, chairman of Ethiopia's Provisional Military Government, told newsmen Sunday that the Kagnew base would be closed "this year."

Later, the government issued a second statement saying although the base was "in the final stage of closing down" this would be completed within the current Ethiopian calendar year which runs until next September.

Uncomplicated issue

Congress has been subjected to some well-deserved criticism for its dilatory approach to such major problems as energy costs and shortages, inflation and unemployment.

But Congress has demonstrated to the American people that it can move with speed and smooth efficiency when it tackles an issue dear to the hearts of its members.

We refer, of course, to the measure raising congressional pay along with that of other federal employees that was approved in blitzlike fashion just before Congress slipped out of Washington for the August recess.

Congressional Quarterly, the capital-based research publication, called the House and Senate action a "coup" in reporting recently on the secretive and cautious planning that preceded floor action.

The legislation, according to the CQ account, was put together in an unusual display of House, Senate and White House unanimity over a six-month period. Timing ranked equally with content among those who participated in drafting the bill.

The pay increase was introduced as an amendment to a minor postal bill just five days before it won final passage. Its appearance was a surprise to opponents of a pay hike, who had been excluded with the public from preparation of the legislation.

Proponents conceded that they wanted to move on this thing before the editorials started being written about it."

Congress, said CQ, was divided into three camps on the matter of a pay hike — those openly in favor of raises, those in opposition because they considered them improper and those who privately wanted more money but were wary of public reaction.

For whatever motive, it is to the credit of 29 senators that they voted against the bill and to the credit of 213 representatives who voted "no" in the House, where approval was by a single vote. One House member described the floor debate as "vicious" and "disgusting," citing the pressures exerted on opposition "heroes."

It is entirely possible that a case can be made for the 5 percent pay hike this year. It is an unfortunate example, however, to be set by national leaders who publicly advocate national belt-tightening. Neither is inclusion of an annual cost-of-living increase likely to win favor with inflation-pinched consumers. And the methods utilized were ugly and contemptible.

Lawmakers explained the dispatch with which they handled the pay bill by noting that it was not "complicated," and frankly voiced their confidence that the issue would be forgotten by next year's election day.

Their constituents should set them straight.

Subsidizing tobacco

No juggernaut, crushing beneath its weight the bodies of its devotees, moves with more irresistible momentum than a government program that is long established and heavily supported by powerful special interests.

Such is the tobacco subsidy program of the federal government.

The doctors total the number of victims of cigarette smoking — 600,000 deaths a year from coronary heart disease with cigarettes blamed as the leading cause, 72,000 deaths from lung cancer and 25,000 deaths from chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

The Journal of the American Medical Assn. estimates that the United States spends $1.5 billion a year for health care costs resulting from cigarette smoking.

The Congress has prohibited radio and television advertising of cigarettes and required the manufacturers to print the surgeon-general's health warning on every pack.

And yet Congress continues to vote $60 million a year to support the cultivation and promote the marketing of this deadly plant.

This summer the Department of Agriculture finally agreed to stop spending taxpayers' money to advertise cigarettes abroad, 11 years after the surgeon general's report.

But those who benefit from the crop price support program have their representatives in Congress who pop up to defend the program whenever it is threatened, and they have always prevailed.

Government sponsorship of this program is more than a waste. It is a downright shame.

If the congressmen don't take the health hazard more seriously than this, how can anyone expect to take the surgeon general's warning to heart?

One Of The Issues He'll Have To Run With

CANAL GIVEAWAY
New State Dept. 'Finesse'

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 — Finesse is the name of the game in the State Department's latest finagling on the Panama Canal giveaway.

Balked in its prolonged maneuvering and manipulating to counter overwhelming bipartisan congressional opposition, the State Department is resorting to a new ploy — a loudly fanfare-d-so-called "compromise."

That's what really is behind Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker's latest trip to Panama for a new round of negotiations on a Canal treaty.

Definitely triggering this reputed compromise is double-barreled pressure. On one hand was the House's jolting 246 to 164 vote explicitly barring use of federal funds "for the purposes of negotiating the surrender or relinquishment of any U.S. rights in the Panama Canal Zone."

Sponsored by Rep. Gene Snyder, R., Ky., this extraordinary curb was quickly followed by a similar measure in the Senate by Harry Byrd, Ind., Va. — with the certainty of powerful bipartisan support there. Thirty-eight Senators are publicly on record against a new Panama Canal treaty — four more than the one-third necessary to kill ratification. Of these, seven are Democratic chairmen of major committees, six top Republicans on such committees. Meanwhile, Panama strongman Omar Torrijos and his clique of virulently anti-U.S. and pro-Soviet henchmen have given vent to threatening talk.

They have direly warned of recourse to "the struggle for liberation waged by Ho Chi Minh," use of guerrilla tactics, and the strong likelihood of student riots and violence — which have occurred in the past with unmistakable official connivance and support.

In other words, the dictatorial Torrijos cabal countered Congress's tough legislative crackdown with a flurry of menacing blather.

Vague Compromise In an obvious effort to avoid jarring show-downs and ease ominous tensions, the State Department resorted to finesse.

It suddenly announced Ambassador Bunker was returning to Panama for deliberations on a "compromise" — whose exact nature and scope are not known.

All that has been forthcoming are nebulous hints and intimations from anonymous State Department sources. Last time the 81-year-old diplomat was in Panama was in March, when it was claimed he and strongman Torrijos reached understandings on so-called secondary issues — which have never been explained. Until the recent abrupt decision to hustle Bunker back to Panama, the State Department line was that there was no likelihood anything would be done on a Panama treaty until after the 1976 presidential election.

Reasons for this were obvious: sweeping U.S. public opposition to a Canal giveaway, forcefully reflected by similar congressional hostility; and the profound reluctance of politicians to tangle with his highly explosive issue in an election period.

Clearly finesse was in order, and the new round of Bunker negotiations on a "compromise" is the hopefully stalling ploy.

Whether this tactic works only time will tell. Also, only time presumably will make known just what the reputed compromise consists of. It's as secrecy-cloaked as Bunker's discussions with Torrijos and his close henchmen — Foreign Minister Juan Tack, UN Ambassador Aquilino Boyd and Finance Minister Jose Aizpu, all ardent Castroites and U.S. baiters.

All known about the compromise is that there has been some kind of understanding between the State Department and Defense Department on the duration of continued U.S. control of the Canal Zone and the strategically crucial waterway.

Under the 1903 treaty, the U.S. was given ruling rights "in perpetuity."

The State Department is prepared to relinquish these rights by the year 2000. The Defense Department is credited as holding out for another 50 years — with some Joint Chiefs of Staff flatly against any time limit.

Just how these differences were ironed out (if they were) is not known.

That's another of the many mysteries in this affair. It's a full of them.

Holding Fast In Congress, opposition forces continue unyielding on giving any ground on the Canal issue.

While the State Department nervously maneuvers and finagles, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff are under heavy pressure to support a giveaway agreement, congressional foes are determinedly holding firm against any concessions.

Latest manifestation of this adamant stand is a letter to Secretary Kissinger by 17 bipartisan opponents of a new Panama treaty.

In this unpublicized pronouncement they forcefully remind the Secretary of State of the 246 to 164 House vote barring use of federal funds to "negotiate the surrender or relinquishment of any U.S. rights in the Panama Canal Zone," and bluntly demand compliance with that overwhelming edict.

"To date, you have done nothing whatever which recognizes the express will of this House in its proper role," the legislators sternly admonish. "Instead, you have lobbied incessantly and sent others to cajole and exert influence on those who are supporting the language of the Snyder amendment."

"We ask you to cease such arbitrary and contrary activity regarding the Panama Canal. You should be aware that the House expresses the same sentiment as shown by the American people in all recent public polls. Since we in Congress seek to represent the interests of the people first, we insist that you and your associates do the same."

EDUCATION IN U.S.
Alternative Explanation
For Falling Test Scores

By MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "I don't know if you 'scared the bejabbers' out of me (in your column on declining reading test scores for college freshmen); however, you did raise enough ire that I would like to attempt to place your remarks in perspective. You are correct when you speak of declining mean scores on college reading exams. But that doesn't account for the top students whose scores are as good or better than top students' scores have ever been. I heard it explained once: 'Our top students do as well as anyone's top students. Our worst students do as badly as anyone's worst students. It's the middle, average students who make or break test score averages.'"

"In the 1930s, 1940s and even the early 1950s, it was either the 'John-Boy Walton' type or the 'children of the Rockefeller's' type that enrolled in college. That is, either those with brilliant minds or those whose parents were rich enough to buy the college. Today, a college education is viewed as a birthright. When the masses show up, the average goes down."

"Perhaps Sid Marland's current emphasis on a 'career-oriented' education will dissuade some from attempting unnecessary college careers. I doubt it. As long as mothers dream of watching their child accept a sheepskin (which is now paper), we will continue to see low mean scores on entrance exams and high attrition at the Christmas break." — T.R.W., Jacksonville, Fla.

A — But not lower scores every year! And that's what's happening now. Under your theory, the scores began to go down when the colleges ceased to be elitist. Well, by your own statement, from the mid-Fifties on, we've had a nonelitist student body in our institutions of higher learning. That was 20 years ago! Why are the scores still going down every year?

Q — "Our school has made a reputation for itself as being very innovative — team teaching, self-pacing, individualized instruction and so on. Next year, a large part of our budget will be used for the learning-disabilities room. Slow readers in all elementary grades will get visual motor training from a learning-disabilities teacher and eight noncertificated aides. Children who haven't crawled will be taken through these stages. Exercises such as 'angles in the snow,' proper skipping and so on will supposedly make for better readers."

"Are we getting a bit carried away? Or does research prove that this is a good way to approach the teaching of reading? My children never crawled and are excellent readers." — Mrs. M.L., Milbank, S.D.

A — Skipping, crawling and flopping around in the snow are healthy, muscle-building and great fun. They have nothing to do, of course, with learning to read.

Q — "What is your opinion of the recent television special by CBS on 'The I.Q. Myth'?" Having been a schoolteacher for the past 28 years, I am firmly convinced that the capacity for learning and innate abilities are inherited from parents and ancestors. Cultural influences, environment and so on may be helpful or hindrances in a person's development, but the 'intelligence genes' are bequeathed by Mom, Pop and grandparents. These in turn are either poor, average or superior, regardless of chitchat by Harvard professors, psychologists or John Doe." — Mrs. E.M.J., Monroe, La.

A — I.Q. tests are just like medical thermometers; they are valuable in diagnosing individual cases, but capable of abuse. I never pay any attention to a single I.Q. score. I demand at least three, preferably given more than two years apart. If all of them show either giftedness, retardedness or normality, I begin then to sit up and take notice.

Incidentally, Mrs. E.M.J., I'm with you in your stand on the age-old battle of heredity vs. environment. It's still impossible to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

Raunchy Romeo
Crushes Relationship

DEAR ABBY: I should be so lucky as the woman who for 30 years has been sleeping back to back with her husband like a pair of fireplace logs.

We've been married for 32 years, and my 220-pound Romeo holds me in his arms every night until my ribs ache. One night, with him and I feel like I've been run over by a semi.

He smokes cigars and loves salami, pickles and garlic, so you know what his breath is like. I've smelled better cesspools.

His toenails are 2 in. long and sharp as razor blades, and he wraps his legs around mine like he's climbing a rope. He sleeps in his shorts, and his chest is covered with bristly hair. It's like sleeping with a raccoon all summer. On top of this, he thinks he's the world's greatest lover, which he isn't.

Please help me. I'm about to cave in.

WATERLOO WIFE
DEAR WIFE: I assume you're on speaking terms with your Romeo, so start talking. Insist that he wear pajama tops, trim his toenails, use a mouthwash and loosen his grip. But don't tell him he's not the world's greatest lover because he'll wonder how you found out.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old, single career woman. I live alone and recently decided to take up jogging to keep myself physically fit.

The first time I went out jogging, I was stopped by a cop. He said he had noticed me running for two blocks and wanted to know what the trouble was. I told him there wasn't any trouble and that I was just jogging.

I have tried to find others who would jog with me, but no luck. The people I know are a just too lazy.

So, Dear Abby, where can a person jog in peace, without appearing that she had just robbed somebody and is making a getaway?

WANTS TO JOG

DEAR WANTS: First, get yourself a sweatshirt and have printed on the back, "JUST JOGGING!" Then, drive your car to a park or playground where other joggers jog and join them.

DEAR ABBY: I have received some expensive gifts (jewelry) from a gentleman with whom I have been keeping steady company for quite some time.

Shouldn't he pay for insuring these gifts? He surely must know that I don't have that kind of money, but so far he hasn't mentioned it.

GIFTED

DEAR GIFTED: So YOU mention it.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding AFFECTIONATE FATHER: There are a couple of guys — 25 and 32 — I see a few times during the year. They always greet me with a bear hug and a kiss on the cheek, which I return. A 42-year-old 6'3" guy also gives me a big hug.

They're my two grown sons and son-in-law, and when that happens, my day is made.

Calls for Oswald—FBI Probe

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Waggoner Carr, Texas' attorney general at the time of the Kennedy assassination, today called for a congressional investigation of links between Lee Harvey Oswald and the FBI and CIA.

Carr cited recent reports FBI agents destroyed and covered up the threatening letter Oswald sent authorities only days before the assassination.

Texas' former top lawyer said he personally urged the Warren Commission to individually question every CIA and FBI agent in Dallas but the commission relied on self-serving testimony by the heads of the two agencies denying any failing on their part in protecting the president.

"Although evidence was abundant that the FBI and CIA knew that Oswald was in Dallas, that he worked at the Texas School Book Depository building and that this building was on the parade route, and that none of this information was passed on to the Dallas Police Department until after the death of the president, it was not admitted, at that time, by the FBI that Oswald was known, prior to the assassination, to be capable of assassinating the president."

Carr said he sees no useful purpose in reopening the entire investigation.

"None of the so-called 'new' evidence warrants that, inasmuch as most of it is not new and what has been brought out lately only applies directly to the question of learning how the protection of President Kennedy failed."

Carr released copies of letters he sent Sens. John Tower, R-Tex., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., urging an inquiry by the Senate Intelligence Committee to conduct a thorough, independent public investigation.

He said the investigation should determine if Oswald was connected with the CIA and FBI as persistent rumors indicated at the time, and if the FBI, CIA or Secret Service had advance information that Oswald was a threat to the life of the President but failed to take adequate security precautions.

"I assure you that I have no desire to harm or damage the proper image of the FBI, CIA or Secret Service, but, rather, I desire to make it accountable to the American people for its failure, if any, as well as to plaudits of the American people for its accomplishments," Carr said.

"This cannot be attained by cover-ups or misleading public statements."

Carr said if a new inquiry reveals evidence of perjury, obstruction of justice or other crimes on the part of those who testified before the Warren Commission, offenders should be dealt with as severely as those involved in the Watergate scandal.

NY Teachers Expect Agreement on Strike

By United Press International
Negotiators for striking New York teachers hope their walkout can be settled with an hour of bargaining tonight, but striking Chicago teachers were preparing for a long standoff.

The United Federation of Teachers in New York said it was so close to reaching agreement with the school board that another hour of talks could clear up remaining details.

New York schools were closed for the Yom Kippur holiday and formal negotiations were in recess until sundown today because for the observance. But the union's 75-member executive board was to meet tonight "either to ratify a prospective agreement or reaffirm the strike."

If teachers approve an agreement, a union spokesman said, the results could be counted by Tuesday afternoon and classes for the city's 1.1 million students could resume.

Both sides were optimistic an agreement could be reached by 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, when UFT President Albert Shanker faces a possible jail sentence for defying a twice-delayed court order to send the teachers back to work.

But schools were closed to 530,000 Chicago public school pupils for a ninth class day today and no new negotiations were scheduled between striking teachers and the school board.

Chicago Teachers Union President Robert Healey said chances of a settlement look so bleak that teachers will start alternate schools and field trips for the youngsters this week.

"We had been working on this idea in case we had a long strike, which we didn't anticipate," he said. "But we are now preparing for a long road."

The two major unresolved issues in Chicago were salaries and class size.

Teacher Slashes Rembrandt

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — Museum experts say it will take months of delicate repair work to patch up the slashes in Rembrandt's masterpiece, "The Night Watch."

An unemployed teacher who said he was guided by "supernatural forces" fought off a museum guard Sunday and ripped the painting more than a dozen times with a knife, police said.

Pieter van Thiel, deputy director at the Rijksmuseum, said the painting was seriously damaged but restorers could fix the slashes in about four months. He said only experts would be able to detect the repairs.

Police said the suspect—

Wilhemus Adrianus de Rijk, 38, a former mental patient—arrived soon after the Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam's state museum, opened for the day.

"A man showed up in front of the painting who looked like any normal visitor to the guard," van Thiel said. "Suddenly he pulled out a big knife and started slashing away at the lower part of the large canvas."

He said the suspect slashed the painting again and again, fighting off a museum guard and a visitor before finally being subdued by a stranglehold.

A witness counted 13 vertical tears, some almost three feet long. He said a triangular piece of canvas, measuring three by 11 inches, fell to the floor.

Police said de Rijk had a history of mental instability and had been a patient at a mental hospital. A museum spokesman said the suspect lost a teaching job for being medically unfit.

Police said the suspect told officers he felt an "irresistible urge" to attack the painting and had been "forced to act by supernatural forces."

"I did not attack a human," the suspect was quoted as saying. "It was a painting, I had to do it."

The painting, measuring 11 feet 9 1/2 inches by 14 feet 4 1/2 inches, was the largest and one of the most famous works by the 17th century Dutch master.

The painting, which reflects Rembrandt's genius for contrasting shades of light, shows a company of guards turning out for duty under their officers.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here is a small suggestion... I secured a small plastic wastebasket by cup hooks onto the door of my cabinet under the sink, put a plastic bag in it, and it holds my wet garbage.

I don't have a disposal, and it was really a bother to run to the trash can everytime.

This sure has saved me steps!

Woody Graham

Now, Woody, would you believe that I have exactly the same thing in my kitchen?

It has been there since I printed the following article in 1968. Thought you, and others, might like to see a reprint.

Dear Folks:

I got so tired of using the wastebasket clear across my kitchen, (and isn't that usually the ONLY space there is for it?), until I realized I could eliminate this situation for less than a dollar. Here's what I did.

There are usually two cabinet doors under the sink. If you only have one, it doesn't matter at all.

Use two cup hooks and screw them about 12 inches apart on the inside of this door near the top. (Of course, the doors must be wooden.)

With your pliers, bend the hooks out a little so they will form two "L" shapes sticking straight up on the ends.

Buy a rectangular plastic wastebasket. With your icepick, punch two holes in one side near the top of the basket to fit over the cuphooks on your door.

Now hang your basket on the inside of this most fabulous door. The reason I say it's the greatest is, if you analyze how you spend your kitchen time, you will find that most of it is centered right at the kitchen sink!

Why walk across the kitchen or throw something across the room when all you have to do is open that cabinet door and drop it in?

And if you'll open the door completely back, you can rake off nine-tenths of the counter scraps right into this handy-dandy basket.

Try it. It doesn't cost you anything except two cup hooks and an inexpensive wastebasket. You can't lose, because the basket can always be used somewhere else if you don't like it.

This may reduce the "basketball" practice of your family. At least it sure saves your time — and the kitchen wall.

Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: I got quite a chuckle from "Reader's" letter regarding clean chair rungs and a cleared drainboard.

In days gone by, when I did not have the time to clear the drainboard, I shoved everything in the oven — out of sight. Alas, now we have glass windows in the oven doors... Not perfect

Dear Heloise: Have your readers ever arrived at some place and found they have hair clips or extra bobbypins in their hair that they had forgotten to take out at the last minute?

To avoid this, when a clip is put in my hair, I also put a clip on my handbag or car keys to remind me to remove the one in my hair as I leave the house.

Barbara Heisey

Dear Heloise:

When I want something out of the refrigerator that seems lost in the taller clutter, especially on the high shelves, I bend over and look up through the shelves to spot its location. Then, I just reach over and grab it out.

Faithful Friend

Dear Heloise:

I've just found a way to save money and help conserve energy.

My family loves banana nut bread, but when using a regular loaf pan, it takes an hour to bake it. I tried using layer cake pans and found it took half the time to bake.

The "cake" can be iced if you like. Cream cheese icing is delicious.

Ann Moeffert

Dear Heloise:

For those who like hot cocoa, I want to share my idea...

If you don't always have the time to make it from scratch or think the instant is too expensive, use my homemade recipe.

Use enough instant low-fat milk to make one quart of reconstituted milk. Add three tablespoons of cocoa, six tablespoons of sugar and a dash of salt if desired.

Mix these dry ingredients well and store in a tightly covered jar.

When ready for hot cocoa, put three to four heaping teaspoons of the mix in a cup and fill with boiling water.

Stir and enjoy.

Bonnie Clement

Dear Heloise:

I have a tip that might help in time of inflated sugar prices. When measuring brown sugar in a plastic bag, place the measuring cup inside the bag.

Now press the sugar into the cup from the outside of the bag. No crumbs spilled or wasted, and less mess.

S. M. Long

Dear Heloise:

Do you want to know about an easy way to roll out a pie crust? I use plastic wrap, one piece on the bottom of the pie, and one on the top.

No flour is needed, just put the dough between the plastic wrap, flatten it with your hands a bit, and roll it out.

It is so easy because nothing sticks to the rolling pin or the counter top.

You can also shape it with your hands by squishing it around.

When you have it as flat as you want it, peel off the top piece of plastic (comes off without a fuss), and plop the piecrust into the pan.

Peel off the other pieces of plastic wrap and you have a beautiful and effortless crust.

A Touch of Bohemia in New York's Newest Artists Colony

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WHEN sightseers check into New York City, they head for the conventional attractions—Rockefeller Center, Radio City, the Statue of Liberty, Central Park, the museums. What they tend to miss are the colorful neighborhoods that give Gotham its unique flavor—ethnic sections, such as Little Italy and Chinatown, Madison Avenue with its Parisian-like chic and, New York's newest non-conventional neighborhood, SoHo, an artist colony that's colorfully Bohemian.

Here, undiscovered, struggling artists make their homes and studios in old factory and office buildings that provide large airy quarters at minimum rent. It's worth a trip just for the sights you see on the streets. If you've entree to a studio count yourself lucky. Some artists get along with the bare essentials, others improvise and "decorate" with how-to or make-do furnishings. One studio, for example, is almost totally furnished with empty wooden packing cases and vegetable crates that serve as bookcases, tables, even chairs.

The living area of the studio pictured is cozy, comfortable, homey—and the furnishings didn't cost a fortune. Bare brick walls provide a background for living. A handy hammock serves for naps when inspiration fails the artist resident. Budget-wise furniture by Decorion makes colorful seating. Floor cushions are available for an overflow crowd. Hanging plants fill the windows with a touch of greenery and add a fresh look to the view of neighboring lofts and crowded city streets.

Aptitude Should Decide Job Categories-Not Sex

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

Not long ago I read yet another essay by a woman proclaiming her right not to work — women's lib be damned. It made me feel just as if I'd been caught by a neighbor buying a dress at an inexpensive shop. "My dear," the neighbor would sniff, "why on earth do you shop here when Saks has such nice clothing?" Of course she's right, Saks is marvelous, but frankly I shop elsewhere because my budget says I must. And honest, I only work because I have to.

Says Ruth Daniloff, author of that Washington Post essay, "Despite more sex all around, liberation comes with its own quota of Puritanism, and the work ethic is very much part of the creed." Now she really has me feeling guilty for working. Most women I know would rather not have jobs. I'd even venture to say many of the men I know would like to spend their afternoons playing tennis, but they have no more choice in the matter than I do. "I am rediscovering the delights of trivia. I can sit in the sun and read a book that has nothing to do with anything." And Mrs. Daniloff takes naps in the afternoon and goes to movies if she pleases. She's living the life of my wildest daydreams. Me and 17 million American women who work because they are a family's primary source of income are green with envy. And yet Mrs. Daniloff has a point. "As for self-fulfillment, that is a personal choice, which, if it includes 'doing nothing' is none of society's business." Now if we could just extend the same privilege to pharmacists, receptionists, and truck drivers. That wouldn't be practical, but perhaps there's another way.

Let those who get their kicks in the "Monopoly game" of banking spend their days foreclosing; let those who revel in research, work at discovering; let those who wish to teach and care for children do what makes them happiest. And those who can find a means of livelihood while remaining idle could do that, without preordained categories for either men or women.

In fourth grade I had a marvelous teacher. He was exceptional in that he made us memorize poetry, and rewarded us for learning our spelling with an extra hour of softball. He had a whale of a good time teaching. I often heard parents comment that Mr. Frazier proved that men made better educators than women, and I wondered why... until I went to college myself, and discovered that men became teachers because they wanted to and girls became teachers because they were girls.

From the minute I registered, counselors pushed me into that field. Many of my friends succumbed, and some of them made dreadful teachers. They liked children well enough, but there were other jobs they'd rather be doing. As for Mr. Frazier, he got promoted to principal quickly, then moved to district administration, the way a man is supposed to do. But from then on his success faltered, and health soon failed. I never knew for sure, but I suspected there was another job he'd rather have been doing.

I've always felt bad for Mr. Frazier, and even worse for all the children who missed having him as an inspiration. But back to Ruth Daniloff, and her wish to do nothing and be happy at it... more power to her.

If the women's movement breaks down job barriers and frees women for other work... what good is it if it bars them from choosing to be full-time wives and mothers, or doesn't allow them to be nurses and secretaries if they genuinely love doing that? So Mrs. Daniloff, it's OK with me if you stay home; it's OK with me if men become househusbands or choose to teach kindergarten. As for myself, I've always had a hankering to drive a truck.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

Larry Weiss, of Los Angeles, is not only the official photographer of the American Contract Bridge League, but he is also one of our nation's top-ranking players. But just as there are those days when even the best photographer comes up with a bad photograph, so there are those days when even the best players are swindled by an adversary. The latter was the case in today's deal, which came up in the 1975 Life Masters Pairs Championship. Weiss was sitting South.

Abortion Terminology Upsets Her

By ELEANOR B. ROGERSON B. DELEONAR, M.D.

Q. Why didn't you explain completely and honestly how abortions are performed all the way through the third trimester of pregnancy? No matter your convictions, or mine, people should be told what is done to their babies. Perhaps then some may regard the unborn as unborn, rather than the "product of conception," you mention. How cold, ruthless, and frightening your terminology is!

A. I seem to have aroused your wrath by the use of general medical terms which I have tried to make as easily understood as possible.

"Product of conception" is descriptive of everything inside the uterus during a pregnancy — not only the fetus, but amniotic fluid, the placenta. "Abortions" are not performed in the third trimester, the last part of pregnancy. Abortions are done in the early weeks of pregnancy before survival outside the uterus is possible. If, because of some medical condition of the mother (high blood pressure, toxemia, diabetes, etc.), early delivery is necessary, a premature delivery is induced, or a cesarean section performed, and every effort is made to save the baby as well as the mother.

A woman who requests an abortion knows exactly what will happen to her developing fetus (the name of one "product of conception" before delivery). She knows it will be dead, that is why she is having her abortion. Dead is dead, a rather final result. Finally, whether you like it or not, you and all of us are "products of conception."

Q. I'm very interested in the new method of delivering babies in a darkened room. If it brings babies to the outside world without upsetting them, isn't that the way they should all be delivered?

A. I think delivering a baby without upsetting it is a good thing, but, as a doctor responsible for the baby's welfare, I would want to see what I was doing every instant. There are always emergencies when there are newborn babies and newly delivered mothers, and minutes can make the difference between life and death.

Many factors must be considered: the mother wants an atmosphere where she will do her best; she wants her doctor to be able to do her best; she wants an active, happy baby. We desire our children to grow normally and smoothly with little psychic trauma, but, life being what it is, there are bound to be unexpected jolts.

Starting out with a shock may not be harmful at all. The time-honored method to start a baby breathing has been to give it a slap on the buttocks: Isn't it possible the baby may thus be given a good initial boost? It is not going to live many months without running head-on into other insults. Isn't this turmoil part of maturing? Doesn't this turmoil make life interesting?

We will have to wait many years before we can be sure that deliveries in the dark will produce healthier, happier adults.

Notre Dame 7-Point Choice Against BC

UPI Sports Writer
The script is the same every year. Spring practice starts ... college coaches everywhere clamor about competing with the Oklahoma, Southern California and Ohio States ... and then comes that first unfortunate full college weekend when sweet dreams turn into harsh realities.

While many of those teams harboring great expectations were shot down by college football's perennial powerhouses Saturday, Boston College hopes to move back into national prominence on television tonight by tackling an emotionally charged Notre Dame squad, playing its first game under new coach Dan Devine.

The Fighting Irish have won their last 11 openers and are 7½-point favorites, but Devine isn't taking the Eagles lightly.

"Our coaching staff and players are alert to the fact that Boston College is a team with experience, talent and motivation," said Devine. "And I can tell you all of us have a healthy respect for Joe Yuka's team."

And with good reason. The Eagles, whose dream is to challenge Penn State for supremacy in the East, have not appeared in a bowl game since 1942 but they won their final six games last year and sport a well balanced attack.

Two keys to that dream are quarterback Mike Kruczek, who completed an NCAA record 68 percent of his passes last fall, and fullback Keith Barnette, who rushed for 1,097 yards and led the nation in scoring with 134 points.

The Irish, ranked No. 8, open with a no-name offense. Rick Slager, who logged only 18 minutes playing time at quarterback last year, will direct an attack that has lost eight starters from the team which upset Alabama in the Orange Bowl on New Year's day.

During the weekend, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Southern California, Michigan and Penn State all emerged easy winners. That can only mean bad news to the upstarts who had hoped to climb back to prosperity.

Ohio State and Michigan took care of two Big Ten dreamers—Michigan State and Wisconsin—by beating them on their own home turfs.

Third ranked Ohio State opened Coach Woody Hayes' 25th season by drubbing Michigan State 21-0 at East Lansing. The win avenged last year's 16-14 loss which had bolstered Michigan State's dream of taking the Big Ten title this time. Pete Johnson scored on TD runs of six and nine yards and Archie Griffin gained over 100 yards for the 22nd successive time for the Buckeyes.

Wisconsin's dreams were spurred by Billy Marek, who led the Big Ten in rushing last year. But when Michigan held Marek to just 58 yards, all Badger hopes went by the wayside. The fifth ranked Wolverines trounced Wisconsin 23-6 as Gordon Bell piled up 210 yards and a touchdown.

The Big Eight figured to be the usual two-team race with Oklahoma and Nebraska fighting for the crown. But judging from each team's opener, the race is all but over.

Oklahoma, the nation's top ranked team, got a sterling performance from its second and third string, particularly Horace Ivory and Jim Culbreath, who each scored two TDs and combined for 221 yards in a 62-7 rout of Oregon State.

No. 7 Nebraska, although playing at home, had a surprisingly tough time with Louisiana State, shading the Tigers 10-7. The Cornhuskers, favored by 15 points, needed a 37-yard field goal by Mike Coyle and a five-yard TD pass from Terry Luck to Bob Thomas to gain the victory.

Second-ranked Southern California gave notice to Pacific Eight dreamers who figured things might be easier this time around now that Anthony Davis has graduated. The defending national champions steamrollered Duke 35-7 Friday night and in the process found the perfect replacement for Davis—Ricky Bell, a junior who rushed for a school record 256 yards and scored four touchdowns.

Ninth-ranked Penn State, which squeaked by Temple last week, bounced back in solid fashion, thumping Stanford 34-14. Rich Mauti scored two TDs and Chris Bahr kicked field goals of 39 and 33 yards.

No. 6 Auburn, whose hopes had to be enlivened after Alabama was thrashed by Missouri last Monday, suffered a disheartening blow when it was upset 31-20 by unranked and unheralded Memphis State. Kippy Brown threw for two TDs to present former Alabama aide Richard Williamson his first win as a college head coach.

Elsewhere Saturday, UCLA, headed by John Sciarra's three TDs, ripped Iowa State 37-21. No. 10 Texas A&M blanked Mississippi 7-0. No. 11 Texas routed Colorado State 46-0. Miami of Ohio extended the nation's longest unbeaten string to 24 games with a 50-0 drubbing of Marshall. Tennessee upset 14th ranked Maryland 26-8. No. 15 Florida blasted SMU 40-14. Wake Forest stunned 17th ranked North Carolina State 30-22. No. 18 (tie) Colorado trimmed California 34-27. Rice ripped No. 18 (tie) Houston 24-7. South Carolina ambushed Georgia Tech 23-17. Army ran over Holy Cross 44-7. Navy shellacked Virginia 42-14. Tulane downed Clemson 17-13 and Northwestern surprised Purdue 31-25.

Patriots Favor Canceling of Openers

UPI Sports Writer
The most important game of the National Football League's final weekend of exhibition play was the one that wasn't played Sunday.

That was the scheduled game between New England and the New York Jets at Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn., and it was canceled when the Patriots voted to strike in protest against the NFL's failure to reach a contract agreement with the Players Association.

The NFL Management Council, which represents the league in negotiations, has threatened to stop the Patriots' salaries and keep them from practicing until an accord is reached.

In explaining the mechanics of the strike, Patriot Player Representative Randy Vataha read a statement calling for "the other 25 NFL teams also to commit themselves to the effort to precipitate meaningful negotiations between the Management Council and the NFLPA. To have all 26 teams (on strike) would be ideal but the first thing is to stop the 13 games next week. We want to find out how many teams are behind us. We now have 100 percent backing of our players. Any players who said no (on Saturday) now are backing us."

New England players initially voted 37-2, with five abstaining, to strike.

"We took the action to pressure our union as well as the Management Council to get this thing settled," Vataha said. "It's already the longest arbitration that the federal mediator has ever dealt with."

The negotiations began early last year and were not settled after a 42-day player strike. They voted to return to camp and play last season while a contract was negotiated but both sides still refused to budge on the Rozelle Rule or option compensation issue which precipitated the earlier strike.

Players oppose the Rozelle Rule, which stipulates that a club must compensate another club if it signs a player who played out his option with that team. There also has been an objection to reduction in team rosters from 47 to 43 players.

"We can't see letting this thing drag on and on," Vataha said. "If the other teams don't follow our action, we then know our union is not going to strike and we can evaluate our union. Then we know we don't have a strong union and we will have to sign a no-strike pledge and return to training camp on Tuesday or Wednesday. If that happens I don't think many of our players are going to want to pay their ($300 annual) union dues."

New England is scheduled to open its regular season Sunday at home against Houston.

The Patriots had sought to gain support in the strike from the rest of the teams by refusing to play in the nationally televised game but all they got was nominal support. The closest any club came to joining the Patriots was in Miami where the New York Giants voted to strike before their game with the Dolphins. But the intercession of owner Wellington Mara and several Dolphins persuaded the Giants to play the game.

"While the arguments pro and con regarding the Patriots' strike, termed a walkout by the league and a lockout by the players, raged from coast to coast, the other clubs closed out the preseason schedule.

In the only other game scheduled Sunday, Denver downed St. Louis 21-17. In Saturday's games, Houston beat Chicago 24-13. Miami whipped the Giants 31-13. Detroit edged Cleveland 27-24. Dallas shaded Pittsburgh 17-16. Atlanta topped Philadelphia 17-14. Cincinnati blanked New Orleans 20-0. San Francisco trounced Green Bay 24-3 and Minnesota and San Diego tied 14-14.

Orioles Staging Drive

United Press International
It's showdown time in the American League East—and both the Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles are ready.

The Orioles are staging one of their late drives like the 28-6 one that won them the Eastern title in 1974. But the Red Sox, who folded a year ago, are showing no signs of a collapse.

And so, after 5½ months, the AL has a showdown series: the two-game set the Red Sox will play against the Orioles Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Red Sox will go into the series with either a 4½- or a 3½-game lead, depending upon the result of their game with the Milwaukee Brewers tonight. A split would pretty much make the Red Sox "safe" and a two-game sweep would virtually eliminate the Orioles.

The teams prepped for the big series Sunday with victories—the Red Sox defeating the Brewers 8-6 and the Orioles beating the Detroit Tigers 9-3. That left the Red Sox with a four-game lead with two weeks

Carl Yastrzemski's single drove in the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning and rookie sensation Fred Lynn added a run-scoring single in the game-winning three-run rally. Lynn had four straight hits, raised his RBI total to 99 and average to .336. Hank Aaron hit his 12th homer for the Brewers.

Don Baylor and Elrod Hendricks hit two-run homers and Al Bumbry scored three runs for the Orioles, who have won 10 of their last 12 games. Mike Quellar was routed in 2 1-3 innings but rookie Paul Mitchell allowed five hits and no runs in the last 6 2-3 innings to win his third game for the Orioles. Ray Bare suffered the loss for Detroit.

Jim Hunter won his 22nd game as New York defeated Cleveland 6-2. Minnesota beat Oakland 10-8. Kansas City downed California 10-4 and Texas topped Chicago 9-8 in other AL games.

In the National League, it was Pittsburgh 4, Montreal 3, St. Louis 6, New York 2, Philadelphia 13, Chicago 7, Los Angeles 3, Atlanta 2, Houston 4, San Diego 2 and Cincinnati over San Francisco 8-3 after a 4-2 loss.

Twins 10, A's 8
Danny Thompson's three-run homer was the big blow of a six-run first-inning outburst by Minnesota. Bill Butler went 5 1-3 innings to win his fourth game despite homers by Oakland's Gene Tenace and Claudell Washington. Glenn Abbott was the loser.

Royals 10, Angels 4
Harmon Killebrew capped a four-run first inning rally with the 572nd homer of his career as Kansas City bombed Frank Tanana and dealt the California strikeout king his eighth loss against 15 wins.

Rangers 9, White Sox 8
Run-scoring hits by Jeff Burroughs, Tom Greve and Roy Howell enabled Texas to score three runs in the 13th inning and down Chicago. The Rangers tied the game in the ninth with Len Randle driving in a run with a bloop single and rallied again after the White Sox took an 8-6 lead in the top of the 13th.

Garvey 'Good' Unionite

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Ed Garvey has the same habit so many others have. He gets a little carried away sometimes, and in this case, perhaps it was completely understandable.

The New England Patriots had put it to a vote. After a good deal of back-and-forth on the subject underscored by some loud raucous voices now and then, they voted no to proposition one. They decided to strike, and that meant they wouldn't play their final preseason contest with the New York Jets Sunday at New Haven, Conn.

As head of the NFL players' association, it now became appropriate for Ed Garvey to say something about the Patriots' action and he was right there ready with a statement in Washington.

"Hopefully," he said, "this action will bring the owners to the bargaining table in the spirit of compromise. We all admire the courage of the New England Patriot team in helping to bring about a settlement."

The strike by the Patriots, Garvey added, was "an illustration of how alienated the players have now become with the negotiating process."

Garvey was only saying what any good union leader would, and the only objection there is that he was taking one illustration by the players without bothering to consider a far more important one by those who actually pay their salaries. Not the owners, but the fans.

The ones I talked to about the Patriots' strike and the possibility of it spreading to the other NFL clubs didn't seem to care one way or another. They voiced no resentment toward either the players or the owners, only an impassiveness and indifference in what to them was merely another in a steady succession of labor strikes. From discussing the Patriots' action with the dozen or so professional football fans I did, I came away with the distinct impression the fan protest would be far less than anyone would imagine if the pro football schedule was canceled for the entire season. For sure, few housewives would complain.

Possibly there might have been a time when a player strike causing the cancellation of an entire pro football schedule or any other professional sport schedule would rank as a national calamity, but not any more.

People have too many other forms of diversion to occupy their time and interest. Besides, they are deeply involved with their own daily problems like trying to deal with the rising cost of food, gasoline, rent and medical and dental bills, so how can they get worked up at all over an issue like the pro football players being upset with the owners. The fans accepted a seven-week walkout by the NFL players a year ago and that got them sort of used to no pro football. Somehow they'd find a way to struggle along without it even if they had to do so over an entire season.

I know for certain some owners would almost welcome a showdown. They feel they've been pushed as far as they can be, and appear ready to write off the season if it comes down to that. Few players would actually be willing to go that far. Maybe some say they would, but there's a world of difference between saying something and doing it.

The Patriots held a meeting Sunday after their game with the Jets was canceled and said they hoped to gain the support of players on the other 25 NFL clubs. Personally, I think they have the good wishes of those players, but I doubt they'll get their support.

For sure, they don't have either the sympathy or support of the fans. I think the players sense that and it's one of the things that would keep them from ever really thinking of a strike in the long sense of the word.

Nicklaus Wins World

PINEHURST, N. C. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus let the leaders falter in the wind while he picked up a playoff victory Sunday in the World Open golf tournament.

"When you get Pinehurst with wind and they put the pins in the corners, you've got to think," said Nicklaus, who sank a short par putt on the first sudden-death hole to defeat Billy Casper. "That's what's so great about the tournament."

All week Nicklaus had talked about the famed Pinehurst No. 2 course being one of his favorite courses because it's where he won the 1959 North-South amateur at age 19.

"I won here as an amateur and I wanted to put my name in the books as a pro, too," he said after picking up the $40,000 first prize. "You always like to win on a great course."

Nicklaus started the day at 2 under par, five strokes behind Tom Weiskopf. But as the leaders continued to suffer bogeys in the tricky wind, Nicklaus played a "good thinking round" without a bogey and chalked up birdies at the fourth and 18th holes for a 69.

Casper dropped a couple of strokes to one under early Sunday but moved back to four under at the 15th and said he thought he would wrap up the victory with a birdie at the par 5, 16th.

"I felt after I hit my second shot at 16 that I was going to win the tournament," said Casper. But his second shot went in the sandtrap and he had to settle for a par and finished with a pair of pars to tie Nicklaus.

Casper's drive on the par-4 first hole in the playoff went in the rough and he missed the green. He chipped about seven feet short and missed, giving Nicklaus his 11th playoff victory in 18 tries.

Nicklaus said 1975 has been "the best year of golf I've played. But whether it's the best year record-wise, that's questionable."

He has five victories and 13 top-10 finishes in 15 tournaments, with winnings of $294,263 for a good lead enroute to the 1975 money title.

Trial of Hunt's Sons Set To Begin Tuesday

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Nelson Bunker and W. Herbert Hunt, heirs to one of the world's richest private fortunes, go on trial Tuesday on charges they wiretapped telephone's of their late father's aides.

The trial, which comes three years after the charges were filed and five years after the wiretapping allegedly occurred, marks the first real exposure to the general public for the brothers, despite their wealth and vast corporate holdings.

The lingering case and the allegations preceding it have unearthed surprising and, some say, unlikely tales of CIA conspiracies, government vengeance against the Hunt empire and dealings with Egyptian terrorist groups.

In recent weeks, the sons of the late, legendary oil billionaire H. L. Hunt, have shunned their previous obscurity and attempted in interviews to appear simply as hardworking businessmen just trying to make a buck.

Bunker and Herbert are charged with hiring private detectives Jon Joseph Kelly, 28, and Patrick McCann III of Houston to bug the telephones of former aide Paul M. Rothermel and other aides.

In late July, the brothers and five attorneys and associates were indicted a second time by a federal grand jury, this time for allegedly conspiring to the investigation and prosecution of the wiretap charges pending against them.

The detectives already have been convicted and served time for the taps. The brothers say whatever surveillance took place was done to protect their father's interests and they refer to an earlier trial in which two other aides were convicted of mail fraud in connection with an alleged scheme to swindle the late H. L. Hunt.

The brothers, through attorneys Travis Shelton and Phillip Hirschkop, also say the government has singled them out for prosecution and have sought to use this argument to have the charges against them dismissed.

"They (the government) went after my clients for who they are and what their political philosophy is," Hirschkop said at one pretrial hearing. "It's that simple."

The claims and counter-claims, most of them engineered by attorneys for the two sons, have tended to overshadow the simple charges. Hirschkop has repeatedly mentioned CIA involvement in the Hunt case and asked the court to order the government to release any such evidence. He also alleges promises of immunity from the government and charged that evidence against the Hunts was, itself, obtained by illegal wiretaps.

U. S. Attorney Frank McCown has denied any such deal. U. S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward has heard these motions in several pretrial hearings, the latest last Thursday. Hunt lawyers again asked for a dismissal of the wiretap charges on the basis that witnesses before the indicting grand jury were improperly questioned.

Wood has rejected most of the defense motions and now, unless Hirschkop gains more time with another request to dismiss charges because the grand jury was improperly seated, trial is expected to proceed.

It is unlikely that information about the alleged CIA involvement, the mention government vendettas and the involvement of senators and former government officials will come out in the trial.

Apaches May Sell Liquor At Resort

SANTA FE (UPI) — New Mexico will allow the Mescalero Apaches to continue selling liquor at their $15 million resort even though it is against state law, Attorney General Toney Anaya says.

But Mescalero tribal chairman Wendell Chino doesn't agree the liquor sales are illegal. And he plans to test the issue in federal court.

The resort, the Inn of the Mountain Gods near the Apache-owned Sierra Blanca ski area, was denied a liquor license this summer by State Liquor Control Director Carlos Jaramillo. He based his ruling on a law prohibiting moving a liquor license within five miles of a town, in this case Ruidoso.

Anaya says he has told Jaramillo that the liquor director can order wholesalers not to supply liquor to the inn. But the attorney general says he told Jaramillo not to enforce the order until Oct. 15 to allow the Mescaleros time to file their suit.

The attorney general says he is reluctant to do anything that would injure the Apaches' new business.

"We appreciate the value of the resort to the Mescaleros and the economy," Anaya said, "but we can't turn our back on the legal issues involved. We certainly don't want to close them down, however."

Weekend News Summary

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A new law that went into effect in Oregon Saturday imposes a blackout on crime information so complete it is a crime for police to tell a woman her husband is in jail.

Gov. Bob Straub called the legislature into special session Tuesday to change the law, which was approved unintentionally in the rush to adjournment last June. The state attorney general said the law was clearly unconstitutional.

Law enforcement agencies and the courts are prohibited from revealing to anyone, other than another law enforcement agency, the fact that a person has been arrested, charged or convicted. The law only allows release of information that a crime has been committed.

FRENCH SLEUTHING

PARIS (UPI) — French police know how to mix pepper and poundage into a pinch. They disclosed Saturday how they tracked down a gang of robbers who held seven hostages in a bank and escaped with a $1.35 million ransom.

The break in the case came when the robbers sprinkled pepper in the back seat of their last getaway car in an apparent attempt to throw police dogs off the scent. The ploy, however, simply told police the robbers must have abandoned the car near their hideout — otherwise, they could not have carried the heavy money bags very far.

A house-to-house search and questioning in a Paris neighborhood led to the arrest of two leading suspects.

WOMEN'S STRIKE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Organization for Women wants all women to go on strike Oct. 29 to show the nation how much it depends on them.

Davlyn Jones, NOW coordinator of the nationwide strike, said

Sunday the day will be one in which "Alice Doesn't," a reference to the movie "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore." She predicted Sunday that thousands of women in each part of the country would strike.

Ms. Jones said women across the nation are being asked not to work or spend any money on that day, and instead to participate in rallies, demonstrations, marches and other mass events in major cities.

Ms. Jones said that in response to the NOW plans, antifeminist forces led by Phyllis Schlafly planned a counter action entitled "Alice Does."

TAXPAYERS' RIGHTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirteen senators and five congressmen plan to sponsor a

"Taxpayers Bill of Rights" aimed at making the Internal Revenue Service more responsive to citizens.

"The IRS has been derelict in responding to taxpayer complaints," said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. "It is notorious for providing inadequate, incomplete and contradictory advice to taxpayers conscientiously trying to comply with the nation's tax laws."

The measure would impose new limits on release of tax return information and allow taxpayers to recover civil damages for unauthorized disclosures. It also would offer safeguards against political misuse of the IRS.

White House Dog Has Nine Puppies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Liberty, the First Family's dog, produced nine puppies in little less than eight hours Sunday on the third floor of the White House.

The process was observed by First Lady Betty Ford and daughter Susan.

Liberty, a golden retriever sent to Oregon in July for mating, had five males and four females in a process that began with the delivery of a male pup at 12:30 p.m. and ended 8:17 p.m. with the birth of a female.

Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Weidenfeld, said all the puppies were "very cute" and the mother was "doing fine."

The new additions to the First Family did not interfere with President Ford's golf game. He was told of the first birth shortly before leaving for Burning Tree Country Club and was back after 18 holes in time for the arrival of the last puppy.

'NO JFK EVIDENCE'

DALLAS (UPI) — President Ford said Saturday he has not seen "any new evidence that would justify reopening" the Warren Commission investigation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas 12 years ago.

On a series of campaign-style appearances winding up a three-day, four-state tour, Ford said "every bit of significant evidence was analyzed" by the Warren Commission.
