CIA Admits Stockpiling Lethal Poisons, Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William E. Colby, displaying a deadly electric dart gun that he said could kill silently at 100 yards, today admitted to Congress the agency for five years illegally maintained a stockpile of lethal poisons and weapons.

Colby said his predecessor, Richard Helms, was aware of the 1970 requirement that such material be disposed of. But Colby did not say whether Helms had knowledge of the illegal stockpiling.

Under questioning by Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., Colby said records showing he authorized the development and stockpiling of the deadly biological weapon were destroyed three years ago with Helms' knowledge.

In the glare of television camera lights, Colby showed the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence a telescopic sighted, black dart gun which he described as "a very deadly weapon."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee, gingerly inspected the weapon, slightly larger than a .45 pistol and handed it along to other members of the panel.

Colby said the dart gun, powered by electric batteries, was one of various methods of injecting lethal doses of such poisons as shellfish toxin and cobra venom in "offensive targets."

Defensively, he said, the poisons were designed for suicide pills for captured agents.

Church opened the panel's first public hearings with a statement saying the investigation "involves the illegal possession of deadly biological poisons which were retained within the CIA for five years after their destruction was ordered by the president (Richard M. Nixon) in 1970."

Colby said "middle level" CIA officers were apparently responsible for maintaining the stockpile of poisons and delivery systems.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, was sitting in the back of the packed Senate Caucus Room, scene of the Watergate hearings. Helms, who was CIA director for almost seven years until 1973, is scheduled to testify before the committee Wednesday.

Colby said there is in existence a memo between Helms and Sidney Gottlieb, former chief of the agency's technical services division indicating the records were destroyed by Gottlieb in November 1972, before he retired.

Colby conceded Gottlieb had been at CIA headquarters within the last few days reviewing certain files, but said no one had interviewed him to find out why he had destroyed those vital records.

"Then we run up against a stone wall," said Baker.

The toxins were extracted from shellfish and cobra venom.

Colby was called to testify before Sen. Frank Church's committee which has probed intelligence activities at length in closed sessions. During those sessions the leftover toxins at the Army's biological laboratory at Ft. Detrick came to light.

Instructions to destroy chemical and biological warfare material at Ft. Detrick were issued in 1970. But last May 20, 11 grams of shellfish toxin and eight milligrams of cobra venom were found in the small vault.

"At the time the toxin was found the officer responsible for the (destruction) project in 1970 stated he had no recollection as to how it got there," Colby said.

"This man, who had been the GS15 branch chief in 1970, stated that the toxin had in fact been moved from Ft. Detrick and stored in the laboratory. This was done on the basis of his own decision after conversations with the responsible project officer," Colby said.

Guerillas End Embassy Drama

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Four masked Palestinian guerrillas today surrendered to Algerian authorities and freed five Arab diplomats, ending a drama that began at the Egyptian Embassy in Spain.

Mohamed Shaffel and press attache Mohamed Affifi. They threatened to execute their three hostages unless Egypt withdrew from peace talks with Israel in Geneva.

After 16 hours of negotiations with Arab diplomats, they agreed to fly to Algiers and free their captives.

Iraqi Ambassador Hassan Nagib and Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Khaled Kheladi agreed to go along as volunteer hostages on the flight.

The five diplomats alighted first from the plane and boarded waiting limousines for the trip to Algiers.

The guerrillas met with reporters in the airport's VIP lounge.

"We knew in advance Egypt would reject our demand for a public condemnation of its accord with Israel," Aissa said.

The Iraqi, Algerian, Jordanian and Kuwaiti ambassadors slipped notes back and forth under the study door and talked with the embassy by telephone before convincing the guerrillas to fly to Algiers.

The commandos said they belong to an obscure guerrilla group named after Palestinian leader Abde Kadar Houseini, who was killed by Jewish nationalists in 1947.

Fed Exploits Indians, According to Commission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights today accused the federal government of a "neocolonial" policy toward the Navajo Indian reservation in the Southwest by encouraging private exploitation of mineral resources.

The reservation is rich in mineral resources, but the commission said, "Development thus far has operated primarily in a neocolonial context, with outside developers primarily interested in mineral exploitation."

The commission said profits from such mineral exploitation are invested off the reservation, leaving per capita income on the reservation at about $900 a year.

"The federal government has chosen to run a relief economy rather than a development economy," the commission said.

The commission said the government should qualify the tribe for federal funds as it does state and local governments

In a 144-page report to be issued in Window Rock, Ariz., the commission said the tribe is denied the same rights as state and county governments, although that could be corrected with minimal legislation.

The report was based on hearings in Window Rock in 1973 on civil rights affecting the Navajos—the nation's largest Indian tribe with a population of 137,000 spread over a reservation that includes parts of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, with an area comparable to the size of West Virginia.

Commission vice chairman Stephen Horn said, "We knew that Navajos were among the poorest of America's poor, that the tribe has the least education and worst health of any ethnic group in the United States."

The report said unemployment on the reservation was about 40 per cent.

Caviness Found Guilty On Aggravated Assault

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A Gray County resident, E.M. Stafford, 77, told a 31st District Court jury Monday how he crawled to get his gun in self defense after he was shot on Jan. 31.

The jury found Anthony Allan Caviness, 21, formerly of Pampa and now of Amarillo, guilty of aggravated assault in connection with the incident. Caviness did not take the witness stand.

Stafford was shot twice and he told the jury he reached for his gun and fired.

"I was interested in saving my own life," he said as he told the jury that he was about to bleed to death.

"I pleaded with myself not to black out," he said.

Stafford said Caviness entered his motel and told him he was out of gas, and didn't have a dime to use the phone.

"I furnished him money," Stafford said. "He came back and said he lost the dime. I gave him a second dime and he said the phone wasn't working. I started to see why and he charged me in the door — he had a gun in a shooting position and ran into me knocking me back and immediately shot me in the left side."

Stafford explained that his weapon was about eight feet from him, but when Caviness knocked him down he crawled within reach of it.

Under cross examination, Gene Storrs, attorney who represented Caviness, asked Stafford if "in fact you shot first because you were scared."

Stafford repeated his earlier statement to the jury, and said to Storrs:

"You've got a lot of misunderstandings in your head, haven't you?"

At that point, Judge Grainger McIlhenny instructed Stafford that he was not to propound questions to the attorneys.

Stafford then testified that he fired five shots "shot out a picture window that cost me $122."

Storrs asked Stafford if he knew that Caviness was in critical condition as a result of the shooting and inquired how Stafford kept from hitting his wife during the gunfire.

"If you had been married 52 years you wouldn't shoot your wife either," Stafford replied.

"All I knew is that I had better try to get him before he got me and her."

As the cross examination continued, Stafford announced: "Everything I told you is true. I ain't lied about nothing. He shot first and when I shot he bawled 'Oh, Lord!' and tried to run."

"Isn't it true that you got nervous and shot him first?" inquired Storrs.

"No sir," replied Stafford. Mrs. Stafford testified that she was in another room when Caviness entered the motel.

"We didn't know he had a gun — just thought he was a lost kid," she said.

"Were you scared?" asked Guy Hardin, district attorney. "Scared to death," she answered.

During final arguments, Hardin called attention to the alleged gunshot by Caviness and asked: "Is that the way to repay an act of kindness — by shooting him (Mr. Stafford)?"

Storrs argued that it is the case of an older man afraid of what was going to happen.

"I submit to you that Mr. Stafford shot first," Storrs said. Hardin said in his opinion anyone in business should have a gun for self protection.

The jury was elected to set the punishment and deliberations were scheduled to begin this afternoon. The state opposed probation.

Hospital Board

The financial loss at McLean General Hospital, the expected increase in patients expected as a result of the closure of Worley Hospital on Oct. 15, and inspection of hospital boilers were discussed Monday night at the Highland General Hospital board of managers meeting. From left are

Ford May Ban CIA Acts Abroad

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Ford told the Chicago Sun-Times he may ban covert CIA political activities abroad and revamp duties of the intelligence-gathering agency.

In an interview with the newspaper, Ford said a decision on whether to limit CIA activities and shift some of its functions to another agency would be announced soon as part of a package of recommendations for CIA reorganization.

It was Ford's first intimation he was considering such action. But the President refused to answer specific questions about any CIA realignment.

"I have listened to both sides and I would not want to preempt what we are going to recommend by answering your question because there are strong feelings on both sides," he said.

The President has been a staunch defender of the CIA activities including intelligence-gathering and so-called "dirty tricks."

Ford said there was no CIA involvement in Portugal. He said the anti-Communist turn there was produced by normal diplomatic pressure.

But he refused to rule out possible future covert intervention in other countries and rejected the contention that U.S. policy toward Portugal was more effective than policy toward Chile, where the CIA became embroiled in political intrigue.

McLean Hospital Loses $6,440

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

McLean General Hospital lost $6,440 in August with an average of 4.7 patients per day.

"But things should be better next month," Bob Monogue, administrator of Highland General Hospital reported Monday night to the hospital's board of managers.

"We have had a 10 plus patient average this month," he added.

The financial picture at both Highland General and McLean General hospitals was discussed at the September board meeting. Board members also examined the patient load at Worley Hospital, scheduled to close Oct. 15, leaving Highland as the only hospital in Pampa.

Fred J. Neslage, board chairman, announced that the board feels that Highland will have no problem in handling the additional patients.

However, Dr. R.M. Bellamy, board member, noted that during the flu season that the 126 beds at Highland will probably be 100 per cent occupied.

Monogue reported that in working with Worley Hospital he found that the facility had averaged 15 patients daily during the past few months. Worley had seven patients at the time the decision was made to close the facility.

Both Highland General and McLean General hospitals are owned by Gray County.

McLean has lost $67,872.48 during the first eight months of operations this year.

"We're looking at about an $8,000 per month loss down there pretty consistently," Neslage noted.

He inquired if Monogue has everything at McLean "operating as efficiently as possible to provide top notch service economically."

"Think so," replied Monogue who explained that when the patient load drops to two or three, as it has on many occasions at McLean, "you're overstuffed and there's nothing anyone can do."

Neslage said the books show that Highland General gained about $83,000 this year and McLean lost about $88,000.

"We're losing two thirds of each dollar gained at Highland to McLean," he said.

Board members said the Highland General Revenue is generated from paying patients.

Occupancy at Highland General Monday was 81 patients.

Highland General Hospital admitted 394 patients during August for a total of 2,212 patient days. During the first eight months of this year a total of 3,609 patients have been admitted with 20,239 patient days recorded.

McLean General Hospital admitted 21 patients last month and recorded 147 patient days. Statistics show that 142 patients have been admitted this year for a total of 1,144 patient days.

Monogue reported that the boilers at Highland General are being repaired and the cost estimate is about $10,000. However they should last for another 20 to 30 years, he added.

Dr. Bellamy said the boiler tubes have been there since 1948.

Board members inspected boilers following the meeting.

Monogue announced that during the past 30 months Highland General has refurbished almost all patient rooms and beds, which will cost about $150,000 and be paid from the hospital's operating fund. An additional $100,000 was spent on the parking lot.

FISCAL ALBATROSS

Food stamp waste escalates

The food stamp program was started in 1964 as part of President Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society" at a time when the United States of America had built a huge food commodity surplus that could be used to help its needy citizens. It has grown into a giant fiscal albatross.

In the 11-year period since the program began, it has become a bureaucratic nightmare costing $3.7 billion annually compared to an original appropriation of $75 million. It is subsidizing the grocery bills of 17 million Americans, many of them with no legitimate claim for such aid. In California, for example, a recent investigation showed that 39.2 per cent of the persons receiving stamps were not fully qualified for the program.

Some families with incomes of more than $10,000 a year have been receiving food stamps. Strikers and college students have found ways to make themselves eligible. Recently, a grand jury indicted a Washington, D.C., food stamp certifier in a $300,000 stamp scandal.

Agriculture Secretary Earl

Butz, whose department reluctantly administers the program calls the spiraling cost "frightening."

President Ford was on the right track when he tried to put a lid on the program that would have saved the taxpayers $648 million in fiscal 1976. But Congress voted to nullify Mr. Ford's order that would have required food stamp recipients to pay $30 instead of $18 for stamps worth $46 at the grocery.

The government estimates that 62 per cent of the people who might be qualified for food stamps have not applied for them. Thus, with only 38 per cent of the eligible persons enrolled — and an unknown number of ineligible dipping into the pie — the cost has no way to go but up. Estimates place the potential cost of the program in 1977 at $10 billion — with 60 million people using the stamps.

It is clear enough that the food stamp program is duplicative, unfair and rife with inequities. It represents all that is bad about overgenerous, open-ended welfare programs.

Getting it together

The Chicago lawyer who proposed a month ago a "hands across the nation" Bicentennial spectacular for July 4, 1976, says his plan has won an enthusiastic response because "it's the first idea ... that doesn't involve buying anything."

But Marvin Rosenblum estimates that his project to form a hand-to-hand link from East Coast to West Coast would involve about 5 million people assuming 1,320 to the mile.

And, since the massive display of unity will cross state lines, it obviously will be subject to federal regulation, taxing severely the capabilities of the bureaucracy.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare will want certification of the proper ethnic, racial and religious mix of elements in the human bridge.

The Labor Department will require assurances that the standards of the Occupational Safety and Health Act are observed.

The Department of Transportation must provide clearance for utilization of portions of the Interstate Highway System.

The Federal Communications Commission must give clearance to essential broadcast contact.

The pace at which government deals with demands upon its services would likely delay completion of the most basic paper work until the Tricentennial observance.

should be able to rely more extensively on the system in screening potential employees.

Now Congress must be persuaded to pass a perfectly reasonable bill providing stiff penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens to work for them.

"WE'RE WORKING ON IT!"

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Ousting An Ancient Wheeze

By WILLIAM RUSHER

It is time to lay at rest, once and for all, the popular myth that Barry Goldwater's 1964 trouncing by Lyndon Johnson proved no true conservative can win the presidency.

This ancient wheeze is a standard item in the kit of every liberal who writes about politics. The latest to employ it is Garry Wills, who recently poured vials of scorn all over the conservative contention that, by nominating an authentic conservative, the GOP could substantially broaden its base. "Well," he boomed, "they got the chance in 1964, with Barry Goldwater's nomination." Q.E.D.

Worse yet, a good many conservatives apparently buy the argument themselves. Goldwater was a real conservative, wasn't he? Yes indeed. And the Republicans nominated him, didn't they? True enough. And he got licked 62 percent to 38 percent, didn't he? Indubitably. Well, doesn't that prove that a conservative can't win?

No. Not at all. The 1964 election proved a number of things, but very definitely not that. It proved, for example, that the liberal Republican minority will desert any republican nominee who it perceives as seriously conservative. The whole function of this permanent liberal Trojan horse in the GOP is to prevent that from happening; to force the party to compromise toward the left — to pick Dewey over Taft (1948), Nixon over Reagan (1968), Ford over Reagan (1976). Only once has a Republican convention ignored the implicit threat.

That was in 1964 — and the Republican liberals promptly made the threat good, by deserting Goldwater and the GOP in droves.

Even that threat, however, if we are looking to the future, is subject to various qualifications. The 1964 convention was the first at which a new coalition of Southerners, Midwesterners and Westerners seized control of the GOP from its fading Eastern leadership. The outrage of the liberal Republicans was fresh, and correspondingly high. Goldwater, moreover, is by nature an outspoken dogmatic man. He positively enjoys preaching the conservative gospel "with the bark on."

There is every reason to think that Ronald Reagan, with his smoother manner and genuinely pleasant personality, would hold onto a far larger proportion of the basic Republican vote, if he were nominated in 1976, than Goldwater did in 1964.

But what the 1964 debacle theorists invariably overlook is the crucial importance of the nature of Barry Goldwater's vanquisher, Lyndon Johnson. Johnson was a man whom no

Democratic national convention would ever, on its own initiative, have selected for the presidency. With the exception of Harry Truman, and Johnson himself, both of whom first attained the White House on the death of men under whom they had served as vice president, there hasn't been a Democratic presidential nominee from the South, or even from a border state, since the Civil War.

The whole strategy of the Democratic party in modern times has been to give its presidential nomination to some Northern liberal — and then blot off its ancient social-conservative constituency (especially, through not wholly, in the South and Southwest) with the vice presidency.

It was the Goldwater strategists' preception of this fact that made their tiger such a deadly threat to the 1964 reelection prospects of John Kennedy. Goldwater might ultimately have lost to Kennedy (or he might not — "Time" magazine in 1963 was far from sure), but the craggy Arizona would certainly have torn an enormous hole in the entire social-conservative wing of the Democratic party if he had been pitted against the elegant young multimillionaire liberal from Massachusetts.

Instead, Oswald's bullet killed John Kennedy, and did what no Democratic convention would have dreamed of doing: confronted the challenge of Barry Goldwater with the response of Lyndon Johnson. Now it would be Texas versus Arizona, and the Federales versus the Colorados. Many millions of conservative Democrats, all over America, decided this was no time to desert the faith of their fathers.

But they deserted it in 1968, to vote for George Wallace, and again in 1972, to reelect Nixon over McGovern. And they are ready to desert it yet again, in 1976 — if only somebody is listening. (Copyright, 1975)

REGULATORY MANIA

Burgeoning Bureaucracy Shriveling Self-Reliance

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Paul McKalip, editor of the Tucson, Ariz., Daily Citizen, is a newspaperman who is concerned about burgeoning bureaucracy and shrinking self-reliance in America. He is alarmed about the extent of federal interference with private decision-making.

The other day his concern was expressed in a characteristically outspoken column captioned "Someone Needs To Say It." His comments were prompted by what he referred to as "resentment at the insistent eagerness of government regulators to act for Americans, as though they couldn't think for themselves."

Mr. McKalip has generously allowed me to reprint portions of his column. This is what he said: "The fuse was lighted by a couple of unrelated items on the AP news wire the other day.

"From Salt Lake City came the report that a 71-year-old man who had begun a 1,200-mile bicycle trip suffered a fatal heart attack only hours after the start. He was pumping his bike up a hill when stricken.

"From Washington, D.C., came the latest blast from the Federal Trade Commission against cigarette companies because they are not putting the surgeon general's warning about smoking in large enough type.

"Now I submit that there can hardly be a man, woman or child in this free country of ours who by now is not informed and aware that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health. Nevertheless, the FTC with all the self-righteous imperative of what someone has labeled 'pointy-headed' bureaucrats, keeps hammering away.

"I have to wonder how many of them there are in the FTC's cigarette compliance department, determinedly protecting us from ourselves at our expense as taxpayers.

"At the same time, why isn't there a regulation, and a department either in FTC or HEW (Health, Education and Welfare) to enforce it, that requires bicycles to carry warning labels? They could read: 'If you are more than X years of age, riding this bicycle is dangerous to your health.'

"Wouldn't you say that anyone with common sense should know better than to start doing something at an advanced age that involves extreme physical effort?

"Why not a sticker on the windshield of every automobile? Warn us that driving it too fast is dangerous to your health."

"No, instead, the Nader psychosis that gripped our bevolent bureaucrats had us forced to wear seat belts and then shoulder straps until the majority of the motoring public showed its disapproval by disuse. Sure, there are those who comply voluntarily and that's their business, too.

"Speaking of automobiles, let's talk about liquor. If there is one thing the public knows as much as it knows that cigarettes are harmful, it is that drinking and driving makes a dangerous combination. Why doesn't the FTC demand that skull-and-crossbones be printed on the label of every bottle of hard liquor and in every liquor ad?

"The story of alcohol's devastating, and frequently death dealing, effects on our society is a continuing story that we chronicle regularly. But, for some reason, neither society nor its bureaucratic protectors want to attack that one too seriously.

"While it is not permitted to advertise cigarettes or hard liquor on television, beer and wine flow in glamorous, exciting, inviting little on-minute dramas on the tube. The cigarettes and liquor ads find their places in print and on billboards and the press from time to time is attacked for publishing those.

"Remember when the regulators decided that cyclamates were bad for us? Then the regulators decided that cyclamates were all right, after all.

"Lately all those aerosol cans are giving another group of Washington bureaucrats fits. The cans came close to being banned last week, whether or not you like them for shaving cream and for plant spray.

"Because some of our greatest golf pros were nearly killed by lightning recently, look for your next set of clubs to carry a warning: 'If used during a thunderstorm, this club could be dangerous to your health.'

"The fact is that life has been a hazardous journey for the human species since our species began. It is just as hazardous today, though in different ways, as it was when our pioneers came west by wagon train and wrested Arizona from the Apaches. Life will always be hazardous."

Someone needed to say that. Ideally, every thinking American should be concerned and outspoken about federal regulators who attempt to make personal decisions for the American people. In the absence of a groundswell of concern and protest, it is cheering to have a former president of the National Conference of Editorial Writers speak out against a society of maximum regulation.

Shake-and-wake

Alarm for Deaf

DEAR ABBY: Your recommendation for an alarm clock that lights up to awaken the deaf may not be seen if the sleeper's face is turned away from the alarm clock.

A deaf person I worked with was never late for work, due to the following homemade alarm system: He removed one blade from a small electric fan, which vibrated when operated because it was unbalanced. He attached the fan to his bed springs, then unplugged the fan into an alarm clock with an electric "timer."

When the alarm went off, the bed would vibrate and he'd wake up!

B.W.

DEAR B.W.: Another reader offers this suggestion:

DEAR ABBY: I've been deaf since the age of 15 and have been practicing law since the age of 21. I have been living alone for the last five years and have yet to miss a morning appointment.

Upon retiring, all I do is concentrate on the time I want to wake up, and some mystical equipment in my subconscious does the rest. It's infallible!

HAROLD DIAMOND, PHILA.

DEAR HAROLD: Joe Murray, editor of the Lufkin News in Texas, says he's used that system for years and it's never failed.

DEAR ABBY: A reliable and inexpensive way for deaf people to be awakened is to attach a vibrator (we used a foot massager for my husband, who is deaf) to an alarm clock with an electric timer, then to place the vibrator on the corner of the bed! Before retiring, set the timer. The vibrator is activated at the desired time, giving my husband some independence and me uninterrupted sleep. I have often wished we could tell other deaf people about this, but we had no way of publicizing it.

MRS. K., COLLEGE PARK, GA.

DEAR MRS. K.: For yet another peach of an idea from Georgia, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a traveling man with a responsible position. I'm also very hard of hearing, so the problem of waking up at a certain time was a serious one for me.

It was solved for less than $10 when I bought a small electric timer at a discount store. (It's the type used to turn on coffee pots at a predetermined time.) I plug it into the wall and connect it to a floor or table lamp, then I position the lamp directly over my bed. I just set the timer, and the moment the light goes on, I'm up!

Christians, Moslems Kidnap Motorists, Shoot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival Christian and Moslem militias traded gunfire in suburban Beirut today, set up roadblocks and kidnaped motorists despite a government threat to send in troops to quell the growing violence.

The heaviest fighting centered in the Moslem suburb of Chiah, where leftist militiamen fought right-wingers from the neighboring Christian region of Ain Rummanah.

The leftists also used two armored cars stolen from the internal security forces to send shells ripping into homes in Ain Rummanah, witnesses said.

Rightist Christian groups blocked the main Beirut-Tripoli highway near Jounieh and kidnaped about 15 Moslems from passing cars.

They told a reporter they were holding the Moslems in exchange for two Christians kidnaped from a nearby village Monday night.

Despite a statement by Interior Minister Camille Chamoun that the government would clamp down on the warring militias, security forces in the trouble spots did not intervene to stop the fighting.

Chamoun said the Lebanese cabinet agreed Monday to impose "firm measures" if the opposing militias reject a truce.

Asked if the government might send in soldiers to stop the fighting in Beirut's suburbs, he replied, "Yes, that is one possibility."

Premier Rashid Karami sent 2,000 troops to northern Lebanon last Thursday to set up a buffer zone between the warring militias of predominantly Moslem Tripoli and largely Christian Zghorta.

The situation in Tripoli, where the army killed 12 leftist gunmen early Monday, was reported tense today as troops warily patrolled the buffer zone.

Police sources said at least 15 explosions ripped through the streets of Tripoli Monday night, culminating a day of shooting and kidnaping in Lebanon's second largest city.

The mainly Christian-led army killed 12 Moslem members of the Oct. 24 Socialist Movement early Monday in a two-hour shootout at a military roadblock south of the city.

Unofficial reports from Tripoli, 53 miles north of Beirut, said the Moslems retaliated with widespread kidnappings of soldiers, policemen and government officials.

Militiamen from Chiah and Ain Rummanah traded gunfire and threw up roadblocks around their streets Monday, raising fears of a new round of all-out religious warfare in Beirut.

About 2,200 persons were killed or wounded last spring in three outbreaks of fighting between Christian and Moslem militias in the Lebanese capital.

Commanders on both sides said they were under orders to refrain from opening fire first, but sporadic exchanges sent bullets ricocheting in the streets.

Hunt Heirs Deny Conflicts

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — The heirs of legendary oil billionaire H. L. Hunt deny there is any conflict within the fabulously wealthy family and say an embezzlement scheme by two Hunt employees led to the wiretaps of their father's aides. If convicted, they could be sentenced to five years in prison and a $60,000 fine.

Many relatives, including younger brother Ray Hunt, were expected to forsake their usual seclusion and the trial in a show of family solidarity.

Lamar Hunt, a brother who owns several sports teams and is usually seen independently of the family, was in town.

U. S. Attorney Frank McCown, hopes to prove the brothers were involved in the wiretaps. The brothers and the rest of the family, preceding the trial, have been busy attempting to justify the wiretaps. Complicating the affair are allegations that the wiretaps were family spying upon family.

"We're innocent, and we have confidence the judicial system will find the charges to be groundless," said Bunker Hunt.

Lamar, owner of the NFL Kansas City Chiefs, said at a joint news conference whatever the brothers did was done "to protect our father who had become vulnerable to outside influences."

"No such feud existed," he said.

The 69 prospective jurors will be questioned individually until a panel is seated, probably in about two days. The trial, moved to U. S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward's courtroom from Dallas, is expected to last two weeks.

Monday, hours before the trial was to begin, defense attorney Philip Hirschkop filed a motion asking for grand jury testimony he said the government had withheld despite an earlier court order. He also asked the information be declared inadmissible since the defense did not view it.

Woodward rescinded rules he placed on attorneys restricting what they could say to the news media.

"The original purpose of the order was to prevent any publication of statements that would tend to prevent the fair administration of justice," Woodward said. "After considering it under the circumstances, I don't believe this is going to occur, so there's no need for the order."

Hirschkop, however, had called the order a gag rule and questioned its constitutionality.

The government alleges Bunker and Herbert Hunt hired private detectives Jon Joseph Kelly and Patrick McCann III, both of Houston, to bug the telephones of three Hunt aides.

Grease Death

HOUSTON (UPI) — A 72-year-old grease trap cleaner drowned in a cafe's grease trap Monday, police said.

Employees found the body of Roosevelt Green upside down in the 34-inch diameter pipe.

The Harris County Medical Examiner's office said Green's face was submerged in water and grease at the bottom of the trap. The examiner said Green's bare feet barely were visible at the top of the pipe.

Astronaut To Sell Beer

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Retiring astronaut Charles M. Duke Jr., the 10th man to walk on the moon, will sell beer in Texas.

The Adolph Coors Co., the nation's fourth largest brewery, Monday granted permission to Duke and seven other businessmen to distribute its beer in San Antonio.

"I hate to leave NASA and the Air Force, but it's an opportunity I've been looking towards and I'm really excited about it," Duke said.

"It's something I want to do. It will give me a chance to run my own business and meet people. It's a great product. It's my favorite beer."

Duke, who became the 10th man to walk on the moon April 20, 1972, announced his retirement from the Air Force Friday, effective Jan. 1. He needed only another year and a half in the Air Force to reach the 20 year service level, which would have earned him a retirement of half of his military pay as a colonel.

Coors markets beer in 11 western states and is expanding sales in Texas with the establishment of 29 new distributorships. The expansion, the first since 1966, began in mid August.

A Coors spokesman said Duke and Richard J. Boushka, president of Vickers Energy Corp., of Wichita, Kan., would handle distribution in the northeast San Antonio area.

Prices Don't Deter '76 Auto Buyers

DETROIT (UPI) — Higher prices on 1976-model cars apparently were no deterrent to buyers who helped the U.S. auto industry to its fifth highest early September new sales mark in history.

Nearly one of every five cars sold in the Sept. 1-10 period was a 1976 model on which average prices were up over $200. Formal introduction is not until late September, but automakers have given dealers permission to sell the cars as soon as they receive them.

Sales in the period totaled 150,241 cars, down 7.5 per cent from a year ago but up nearly 5 per cent from the same period in 1973, just before the Arab oil embargo jolted the industry into its two-year slump.

Detroit automakers are counting on cars such as the new Chevrolet Chevette, a 40-mile per gallon minicar, not only to pull the industry out of the slump but to turn back the tide of imports which have grabbed a record one of every five sales this year. The foreign automakers report their sales on a monthly basis.

Sept. 1-10 period, turning in its best performance since 1971 with sales up 2 per cent from last year and 1976 models accounting for 30 per cent of its sales. Ford Motor Co. sales were down 21 per cent but still the second best early September sales in 15 years.

Chrysler was off 2.3 per cent and American Motors, with new models taking 55 per cent of its sales, turned in a 14.5 per cent drop.

Compared with August, Sept. 1-10 sales were off 9 per cent with the traditional dropoff closer to 19 per cent.

Analysts attributed most of the drop from last year to the lower price increases already announced. Last year, talk of average $400-$500 increases pushed sales to near-record levels.

New York Strike Could End

By United Press International
A tentative agreement was reached today that could end a week-long strike by New York City teachers.
The strike has affected 1.1 million students.
United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker said the teacher union's delegate assembly would meet at 9 a.m. today for ratification of the agreement, but would not predict if the 55,000 teachers would approve the pact.
"I'm not moving the contract so anyone can claim a great victory," he said. "I'm recommending it because it's the best that can be gotten under the situation—not good—but the best."
The tentative agreement was reached between the UFT Executive Board and New York City Board of Education came after a night-long negotiating session which started on a sour note.

Last minute snags developed in talks Monday night and the union canceled a midnight meeting of its delegates.
Presentation of a contract had seemed likely at the meeting.
In Chicago, teachers union President Robert Healey said teachers were preparing for "a long road."
Schools were closed for the 10th class day to Chicago's 530,000 public school students.
Healey said the union was lending money to striking members and that it hoped to open alternative schools for some students Wednesday.
A UPI count showed some 1,940,000 children out of school or otherwise affected by strikes in 10 states — New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Delaware, Ohio, California and Washington.
Teachers in seven Pennsylvania school districts returned to classrooms Monday, but those in five other districts went on strike.

Lynn, Mass., teachers ended an 11-day strike that kept nearly 16,000 students out of classes.
Teachers at New Bedford, Mass., suffered a setback when 90 administrators who had threatened to join the strike instead reached a contract settlement.
City officials at Wilmington, Del., did not have teachers arrested as threatened. Attendance dropped Monday in the strike against the 14,200-student district.

School Buses Stoned, Driver Hurt in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Attendance has reached a new high at the start of the second week of expanded school desegregation, but for the first time Monday buses were reported stoned.
Three buses, two carrying schoolchildren, were pelted with rocks.
Citywide attendance reached 70 per cent of the projected enrollment of 76,127. Increases were most noticeable at South Boston and Charlestown High Schools, centers of opposition to the court-ordered school desegregation plan.
A black bus driver was treated for minor injuries inflicted by broken glass. There were no other injuries in the stonings.
Officials were optimistic the increase of more than 4 per cent over last week's average indicated a weakening of a boycott by whites. They said it was impossible to determine how many Jewish students observing Yom Kippur were absent.

Despite the relative calm, a task force of local, state and federal officers, some in helicopters and on motorcycles, remained on duty. A police spokesman, citing a federal court mandate to keep such information secret, refused comment on reports of reduced staffing at some points.
A teen-aged white youth stoned a bus returning black and white children home from the Guild School, an East Boston elementary school, police said. A bus window was broken.
A bus with whites and blacks aboard at Dever School in Dorchester was stoned by black children, school officials said.

In South Boston, the windshield of a Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority bus — not involved in busing students — was shattered by stones.
About 200 women, some pushing infants in baby carriages, staged their daily "mother's march" in the shadow of the Bunker Hill Monument near Charlestown High School Monday.
They paused at a post office where about 50 of them mailed protest letters to President Ford.
The Phase Two desegregation, ordered by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., includes most sections of the city and calls for the busing of about 26,000 students.

King Caught In California

Billy Earl King, 30, was arrested this week in San Diego, Calif., on a warrant from the Pampa Police Department on charges of burglary.
The Texas Department of Corrections will begin extradition proceedings to return him to Texas since he is on parole.
He is charged with burglarizing two Pampa lounges in 1973.

Transportation Meet Draws Local Group

Pampa will be represented at the Texas Panhandle observance of National Highway and Transportation Week Tuesday, Sept. 23, in Amarillo.
City Manager Mack Wofford said today a local delegation will go to a reception and dinner at 7 p.m. in the Quality Inn.
The reception is scheduled for Mark Goode, Austin, assistant engineer - director of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Goode will speak at the dinner set for 7:45 p.m.
The affair, expected to attract officials from over the entire Panhandle, will be sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.
Brack Biggers, president of the Amarillo chamber, said: "We who depend on highways for our transportation should maintain our strength of unity in support of highway development."
Wofford said names of Pampans attending the meeting would be announced within a day or two.

New Signs Show Economy Recovering From Recess

United Press International
There are new signs the economy is recovering from its worst recession in 30 years despite nagging pressures for higher consumer prices and interest rates.
Industrial production — the output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities — jumped 1.3 per cent in August, the biggest monthly gain in nearly three years.
Business completed a sixth month of declining inventories in July, the longest such period since the eight-month runoff heralding the end of the 1957-58 recession. Declining factory inventories mean production will have to increase even more in the months ahead to meet consumer demand.

The combination of rising production and declining inventories indicates deep cuts could be made this fall in the ranks of the nation's 7.8 million unemployed — provided the cost of living does not return to the double-digit rates of last year.
Treasury Secretary William Simon said the economic recovery of recent months "has been stronger than most forecasters predicted."
"I think it will continue to be stronger and that the unemployment rate will come down more rapidly than many now think," he told the opening session of the Southern Governor's Conference in Florida Monday.
But Simon said a resurgence of inflation could seriously hamper the recovery. Bank of America, the world's largest bank, and other big banks in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and Pittsburgh raised the minimum interest rate for their best corporate customers to 8 per cent.
In reaction to higher interest rates, stock prices dropped 16 cents a share on the New York Stock Exchange and six cents on the American.

Guardsmen May Leave If Louisville Quiet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — If there are no more outbreaks of antibusing violence, all 1,000 National Guardsmen activated 10 days ago to help quell disorders may be withdrawn by tonight.
Maj. Gen. Richard Frymire, Kentucky's adjutant general, said late Monday "commitments of the Kentucky Army National Guard will be met through Tuesday. If all remains calm, the Guard units will be deactivated by Tuesday night."
School attendance was up Monday and the first antibusing demonstrations permitted since the first violent weekend were held without incident.
There have been no major incidents in more than a week, allowing officials to send about half of the guardsmen home in phased withdrawals beginning this weekend.
The guardsmen were sent to the Louisville area Sept. 6 by Gov. Julian Carroll following clashes between antibusing demonstrators and police over implementation of court-ordered school busing Sept. 4.
The guardsmen helped arrest protesters the first day, and later both guarded parked buses and rode them to protect some of the 22,600 students involved in the busing plan.

A substantial amount of narcotics was taken Monday night in a burglary at Heard & Jones Rexall Drug, 114 N. Cuyler.
Bill Hite, manager, said this morning the exact amount missing will not be known for several days since a "pill count" must be taken.
A patrolman for the Pampa Police Department discovered the burglary about 5 a.m. today when he noticed a plate glass window broken at the drug store.
The building was entered, he said, and he notified the manager.
Hite said this isn't the first time the store has been burglarized, and added he did not think as much narcotics is missing this time as on other occasions.

Hospital To Recruit Doctors

Highland General Hospital is preparing a booklet to try to ease doctor shortage pains in Pampa. It hopes the two-color pamphlet describing the hospital, city, county, schools, parks, library, churches, country club and scenic points of interest in the area will attract at least six physicians to Pampa.

Judith Auwen, public relations director, said the publication has been designed to attract both physicians and their wives.

Statistics on the growth of the city when the population was 12,895 in 1940 to the 1974 estimate of 22,500 will be included in the information which scheduled to go to the printer within 90 days. The story of Highland General's operations since it opened 25 years ago will be related throughout its pages.

The hospital now has 20 physicians on the staff, 17 of those are in private practice. The hospital board of managers has called the doctor shortage critical here.

The average age of the hospital's staff physicians is 56. Efforts to actively recruit physicians began about four months ago here. Since two have moved to other cities.

A county-owned 126-bed facility, Highland General will be the only hospital serving Pampa when Worley closes, Oct. 15.

Ms. Auwen said the county's many industrial plants will be featured in a separate brochure prepared by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

The publication will describe Pampa as the "pace setter for the Top O' Texas... a city with a love for the past and an eye for the future."

It is a trade center for more than 100,000 persons.

The information will call attention to the fact that several large industrial concerns with ties all over the world create a cosmopolitan air not found in cities of comparable size.

The "super car and service" administered by the medical staff and the more than 300 employees is reflected not only in the many patients who use the facility, but the accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, consisting of the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association.

The emergency room is staffed 24 hours a day by hospital personnel, with physicians on call.

Inducements

These photographs will be included in a pamphlet now being prepared by Highland General Hospital to recruit doctors here in effort to correct the shortage here. Geneva Gobin, registered nurse, is shown in the intensive coronary care unit where electronic monitoring provides both an audio and visual monitor of the patient's heart beat. The second photo shows surgery in progress.

UT Group Wants Probe Of University President

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas chapter of the American Association of University professors says the selection of Dr. Lorene Rogers as university president is an ill-considered, arbitrary decision and humiliates the school.

The group called on the association to investigate the action. It said the Texas regents rejected the wishes of faculty and students in selecting Mrs. Rogers and did not want their participation in the decision.

The regents last week approved 5-3 the appointment of Mrs. Rogers, 61, as president of the Texas-Austin campus. A biochemist and home economist, Mrs. Rogers was not among the candidates for school president recommended by a faculty-student advisory committee that examined hundreds of prospects.

Last year UT Chancellor Charles A. Lemaistre fired school president Stephen H. Spurr and named Mrs. Rogers acting president.

"By offering the presidency to a candidate explicitly, repeatedly and unanimously rejected by the faculty-student advisory committee, the regents have announced to Texas and the nation their commitment to the continued total disenfranchisement of faculty and students and to the reputation, thereby of all generally accepted principles of sound university governance," the executive committee of the UT-Austin AAUP chapter said.

"Once more, public humiliation and national ignominy have been visited upon our university by those charged with defending it and cherishing its reputation, the board of regents," the AAUP officials said.

The AAUP leaders said a reorganization of the governing procedures of the UT System is needed to end what they termed campus turbulence, rancor and inefficiencies.

Penny Miller Wins Ribbon At Bake Show

Penny Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller, represented Gray County in the District I 4-H Better Bake Show Saturday at the Tri-State Fair grounds.

Miss Miller received a red ribbon in the contest. Seventeen counties were represented in the contest. She made plain yeast rolls and chocolate chip cookies. Contestants were also required to turn in a 4-H Food record form.

Miller won the Gray County bake show in August at the Gray County 4-H Fair.

'Airmail' Unnecessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service today announced changes in the first class service that will make airmail stamps almost unnecessary.

The Postal Service said its first-class service is so good now it expects to be able to deliver more than 90 per cent of first-class mail the next day or the second day after posting, effective Oct. 11.

"The practical effect of the improvement program is that domestic first class postage will purchase the level of service that previously only airmail could buy," a spokesman said. The program covers first class mail that weighs 13 ounces or less and the familiar white-top post boxes used by airmail patrons will be collected and converted for other purposes, the Postal Service said.

Beginning next Monday, post offices will accept air mail stamps and stamped cards and envelopes in exchange for the equivalent value in ordinary stamps, envelopes and cards. Stationary that is marked "airmail" will be allowed at first-class rates.

There are hundreds of ideas on how to make money—but here's the best and safest way.

Oriental Looks

A trio of Oriental looks, toggle-tied topper in the middle bracketed by two variations on the Chinese influence so evident in collections for Fall. Quilted jacket on the left features stand-up Chinese neck-band with braid loop-and-button closing. Big top in the right repeats the collar and adds bamboo toggle closing.

Chinese Flavors in Fashion

NEW YORK, "The Chinese influence is just that — an influence," says Rita Perna. "When we talk about the so-called 'Chinese Connection' in this year's fashion drama, we are talking about character — not caricature. We're talking about the ingredients of an easy, classic style as it is being adapted to the requirements of our Western life style." Various Chinese and other Oriental themes are showing up this season throughout the fashion world, says Ms. Perna, reviewing the lines she selects from the giant retail-catalog chain. "The Chinese influence translates readily for evening and loungewear," says Ms. Perna, "but the real creativity in translation comes into play in sportswear. Here the look is that of Chinese work clothes with their combination of trim line and easy fit in fabrics as forthright as the good earth, used with a new exciting accent." Quilting appears everywhere from sportswear to evening attire, along with dropped kimono shoulders and the wide kimono sleeve; stand-up neckband collars on everything from daywear to evening dresses and loungewear; asymmetric necklines with frogs and bamboo toggles or ball buttons; pipings and corded edgings to delineate yokes, cuffs and slit-side skirts; wide obi sashes and Eastern flavored prints in traditional Chinese colors such as lacquer red, jade, green, black and Ming gold in sweet-and-sour combinations.

Silhouettes vary from simple, tubular shapes to full smocks in the Big Top category, free flowing or cinched in with wide sashes or rope-like belts. Tunics, tabards, gilets and vests are variations on the theme, layered and topped with this season's scarves and shawls to the wearer's taste.

GOP Women

Dallas Convention Ends

DALLAS (UPI) — The three-day Republican women's convention which attracted every GOP presidential hopeful last weekend, produced an air of party optimism and 13 generally non-controversial resolutions. President Ford, Vice President Rockefeller, former GOP presidential Candidate Barry Goldwater and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan were the key speakers at the convention which ended Saturday after adopting the resolutions.

Only two of the resolutions — one on antibusing of school children and the other commending Ford's foreign policy — were mildly controversial enough to prompt even mild debate from delegates attending the National Federation of Republican Women. On the whole, the resolutions reflected the white, middleclass attitudes of their authors. Besides commending the President and federation leaders, the resolutions called for: — retention of present U.S. rights over the Panama Canal. — a strong national defense system. — prohibition of court-ordered school busing to achieve desegregation.

— continuation of economic measures against Cuba. — application of anti-trust laws to labor unions. — encouragement of energy producers, particularly in the deregulation of natural gas prices and restoration of the oil depletion allowance. — the placing of restrictions of federal agencies, in particular the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and opposition to a consumer protection agency. — reform in food stamp and welfare programs. — a law and order program, including the re-institution of the death penalty. — restoration or continuation of internal security committees in both houses of congress.

There was some mild dissent. Black Connecticut delegate Helen Bosley of New Haven proposed an amendment to the antibusing resolution calling for the provision of equal educational facilities and opportunities for all. The addition was made, but only after another amendment had substituted the word "quality" for "equal." Ms. Bosley consented to the change, but admitted to reporters later that "I think I prefer the word 'equal.' Who is to define what 'quality' means?" California delegates also lost out in a move to strike from the Ford commendation a line saying the president "has demonstrated his ability as a world statesman in his recent travels." The Californians said they had grave misgivings about "the results of detente with China and Russia."

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Generally speaking, when declarer has a loser in his own hand which he can trump in dummy, he does so. But situations arise where this straightforward play is a losing one. This point is demonstrated in today's deal, which came up during the 1975 National Championships held in Miami Beach this past summer. Sitting South was Rita Seamon. North was her husband Billy. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

♠ AK 6 2
♥ AK Q 7 3
♦ K 8 5 3 2
♣ A Q 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

North's jump to two no trump was a "stretch" of one point (as a passed hand, he promised 12 points). From South's position, slam prospects looked bright, especially since North, for his bid, rated to have the diamond queen. When North subsequently showed that he had club support, the Blackwood Slam Convention was employed to make sure that the opposition did not possess the two outstanding aces.

The opening heart lead was won by dummy's ace, after which a heart was trumped in the closed hand. A diamond was then led to dummy's queen, and this was followed by the trumping of the board's remaining heart. Next came the ace, king, and queen of trumps, gathering in the adversely held pieces.

Declarer now cashed the ace and king of diamonds, hoping that the six outstanding diamonds were divided 3-3 originally. Had they been so divided, declarer's fourth diamond would become the only one remaining in the deck. On it she could discard the board's two of spades, and her only loser would then be a spade trick.

But when she cashed her two top diamonds, East discarded a heart, revealing that West still retained the high jack of diamonds. South now led her remaining diamond, and West played the jack. Declarer, however, did not trump. Instead she discarded the board's deuce of spades, allowing West's diamond jack to win the trick. Having nothing remaining in his hand except three spades, West was forced to lead this suit. When he led the seven-spot, the five was played from dummy, and South's queen became her slam-going trick.

Panhellenic Installation October 27

Pampa Panhellenic members will have their annual installation banquet Monday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m. at the Crown and Shield Room of the Coronado Inn. Reservations for the banquet must be made through the Panhellenic delegates or by calling Mrs. John Reeve, 665-4034. Meal tickets will be $4.75.

Dues for the 1975-1976 year should also be paid to the Panhellenic representatives and are due at the banquet or by Nov. 1 to the treasurer Mrs. Walter Colwell, 1812 N. Zimmers.

Panhellenic members were recently entertained at an informal party and business meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Stowers.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Afraid to use your broiler in your electric oven? Nothing to it! Fill broiler pan with at least one inch of water and bring to boil.

Place meat on rack under broiler unit. Crack oven door about one inch. As a result, no messy oven and just a greasy water pan to wash.

I tried baking a meat loaf by this method. All fat dripped in the water.

Great! Love to use my broiler, but oh how I always hated to clean the oven afterwards. Won't need to worry now with your great hint.

you have taught us. How much easier life would be by remembering all the hints!

Dear Heloise: Use your wire cheese slicer for paper-thin slices of cold cooked potatoes used in potato salad.

I have always wanted to take a course in drying flowers but never had the time. A friend gave me a lovely bouquet of hydrangeas and I wanted to preserve them somehow.

I just sprayed them with hair spray and they have kept very well.

I don't know if this will work on all flowers but it was better than just throwing them out.

Higher Rice Prices

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — In a nation that likes to eat, another shortage is shaping up that may sock epicures in their collective midsections — and their pocketbooks.

The natural wild rice crop virtually was wiped out this year in Minnesota, where about 90 per cent of the country's crop is produced.

Heavy spring rains that devastated the Red River Valley also drowned much of what had appeared to be a bumper wild rice crop growing in rivers and lakes — the second straight year the crop has been damaged by a weather quirk. In 1974, frost was the culprit.

Production may be off as much as 50 per cent. What there is of it may go up as much as a dollar a pound.

It's bad news for gastronomes, but not totally black. Spokesmen for the industry say there will be some Minnesota rice on the market.

Also, although the domestic crop also has been hampered by bad weather, marauding black birds and rice worms, it is expected to produce 1 to 1.5 million pounds of rice.

"Paddy rice is excellent all the way back to failure — like all the rest of the agricultural crops this year," David Rued, president of the Minnesota Wild Rice Growers Association, said.

"Generally speaking, it's medium, barring frost damage, and enough to meet 50 per cent of the demand," he said.

Wild rice is a tender, long-grained delicacy first harvested by American Indians. It grows wild in Minnesota, some portions of Canada and northern Wisconsin and Michigan. Wild stands still are harvested in the old way, with canoes and two flails.

Paul Krueger, wild rice coordinator for the state Department of Natural Resources, was less encouraging. "In a lot of areas there's absolutely no rice to harvest," he said. "A patch of rice here, a patch there."

Harvests were being called off or simply not materializing in some areas of the state, including the White Earth Indian reservation, to leave seed for next year's crop. However, Krueger said, two bad years in a row doesn't mean an end to naturally grown wild rice.

"With good water conditions and weather, we could come up with a bumper crop next year," he said. "This has happened before. I just don't recall any worse than this."

Rued predicted wild rice, while not at the exotic prices of a few years back, probably will go up at least a dollar a pound from last year's levels.

Frank Gleeson, vice president of Lunds grocery stores that feature wild rice specialties each fall, agreed the crop was in trouble and prices would rise.

"With the lake crop almost devastated, down 90 per cent, and two bad years back-to-back, I foresee higher rice prices, there's no doubt about that," Gleeson said after a tour of northern rice growing areas. Last year Lunds featured a wild rice special for $2.49 a pound. Gleeson wouldn't predict this year's marketing plan, but said he doubted whether it would increase by a dollar a pound.

Senior Center Corner

By Linnie Lester
Sixty-six of Pampa's seniors attended the party Thursday at Memorial Library, sponsored by the Alturas Club and hosted by OES Chapter 65. All enjoyed a lovely afternoon of games and fellowship.

Mrs. Wanda Talley, executive director, was a visitor, also Mrs. Lyda Nichols and Mrs. Ida Leffert.

Alturasans present were Mrs. Lora Dunn, chairman and Mrs. Louise D. Sewell, Olive Hills and Lillian Snow. Serving sandwiches, coffee and cake were Mrs. Mary Kratzer, chairman, Johnnie Alexander, Georgia Holding, Vie Cobb, Betty King, and Laura Bell Cornelius.

Door prizes were awarded Mrs. Lyda Nichols and H.G. Lawrence.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Kendrick will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary, Sept. 29.

We were grieved at the death last week of one of our oldest seniors, Mr. J.C. Moseley. He and Mrs. Moseley observed their 62nd anniversary a few weeks ago. Our sympathy to his lovely family.

We regret Mrs. Genia Noland is having such a lengthy stay in St. Anthony's Hospital. Hope for her better days.

Mrs. Edith Norris returned recently from Seattle, Wash. where she reported a wonderful vacation with a sister and several grandchildren.

Mrs. Lillie Fulton accompanied her son, Jerry and family to Oklahoma City to spend the weekend.

Guests in the home of Mrs. Ruby Stovall recently were Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Clepper and daughter, Mrs. Donna Morgan and Martha Meyer, all of Fort Worth. They attended the wedding of David Shelton at Stinnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelton Stinnett spent a few days with Mrs. Ruby Stovall and visited Mr. and Mrs. E.O. Dibbs in Amarillo.

Mrs. Mattie Dixon and sister, Janie Woods are visiting relatives in Arkansas.

Oil Decontrol Pits Have Against Have-Not States

By LINDA HEISERMAN
Pampa News
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The split within the oil industry over decontrol of domestic petroleum prices is developing into a battle between those companies that produce large volumes of domestic crude oil and those that do not, regardless of whether they are "major" companies or independents.

When controls end, the Wall Street Journal speculated recently, aggressive marketers among large producers of crude oil may hold or even cut prices at the pumps in an effort to siphon business from their smaller competitors who don't produce much crude oil and thus must buy it at the decontrolled prices.

According to this theory, the large producing companies — whether "Big Oil" or the smaller independent oil companies — would be able to hold pump prices down and absorb their own higher costs because of the higher prices they will get for the crude oil they sell to the "have-nots."

Under current controls, "old" domestic crude oil is sold under a ceiling of $5.25 a barrel. With controls lifted the price of his oil is expected to rise to $11 or $12 a barrel.

If the Journal's theory is correct, it could lead to new alignments in the oil industry, cancelling the current major-independent division.

The Defense Department fuel bill will increase by $150 million to $160 million when domestic petroleum prices are decontrolled September 1, according to Pentagon calculations.

Pentagon officials, whose annual fuel bills have climbed from $1.4 billion in late 1973 to more than $3.4 billion in the budget now before Congress, calculate that the Defense Department gets between 60 per cent and 70 per cent of its fuel from domestic sources affected by decontrol.

The officials are reportedly unhappy about having to meet increased fuel costs within a defense budget already under attack in an economy-minded Congress.

Spokesmen for Kuwait and Iran, two members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), have suggested oil price hikes of between 10 per cent and 30 per cent when the current OPEC price freeze ends September 30.

Responding to reports that the more radical members of the 13-nation oil cartel would increase prices by 30 to 35 per cent, Kuwait Finance Minister, Abdul Rahman Atiqi, predicted that, as a result of the shrinking U.S. dollar, the oil price jump will be held to about 10 per cent when the OPEC freeze is lifted.

"The OPEC countries never increased their prices for the sake of increase," Atiqi told a news conference in South Carolina. "OPEC prices have been depressed for 23 years and no one is willing to consider this."

Denying the price hike rumors, Iranian Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar claimed that in the last nine months the oil-exporting countries have seen their purchasing power from oil revenue cut by between 30 and 35 per cent.

"Logically and fairly, we are supposed to be compensated by 30 per cent, but we are not going to do that," Amouzegar said.

Atiqi said OPEC nations will continue to use oil embargoes if they feel their survival is threatened. "We will not hesitate to use any weapon," he said.

Ford Won't Lift Grain Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford held a "very frank" meeting farm leaders Monday but apparently turned down their request to lift a one-month government moratorium on grain sales to Russia.

President William J. Kuhfuss of the American Farm Bureau told reporters after the 45-minute White House meeting the farm officials came away "not completely satisfied."

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who also attended, said Ford reaffirmed his "commitment to a free market economy" but added that he "faced a dilemma" in terms of the longshoremen's boycott of wheat sales to Russia.

The President earlier agreed to halt the controversial grain sales to Russia until at least mid-October in return for a guarantee by union longshoremen that grain already sold would be loaded on Soviet-bound ships for the same period.

Butz said Ford also told the farm leaders that while the administration believes in keeping its commitments to farmers for no government interference in their dealings, Russia was an exception.

Butz expressed the view that an agreement could be worked out with Russia for grain sales on a long term basis by mid-October—the deadline for ending the moratorium.

Kuhfuss said Ford was urged to eliminate the moratorium and not to permit "the secretary of labor and labor leaders to be in the forefront" of deciding agricultural matters.

Butz said Ford told the farmers he was in a "difficult dilemma and simply wanted to cool it for 30 days" while a U.S.

negotiating team is in Moscow trying to work out the long-term agreement.

"The President also reiterated his opposition to getting back into the commodity" business, Butz added.

Kuhfuss attacked the role that both the unions and government have taken in the grain dealings.

"We have the dilemma of a few labor leaders and the Department of Labor negotiating and speaking for farmers," the farm leader added. "We feel their (labor) interests are selfish interests."

Kuhfuss said farmers did not believe any increased prices to consumers of bread and other food products were due to sales of U.S. grain to Russia, which already total some 10 million tons this year.

"There are other factors largely related to labor," he said. "We have to get into perspective what are the real costs."

Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger have indicated some thought is being given to a possible agreement with the Russians to swap U.S. grain for Soviet oil. Ford has sent an emissary to Moscow for talks on long-term U.S.-Soviet grain trading.

The President, who played golf Sunday after returning from a weekend trip to Missouri, Kansas and Texas, also had meetings scheduled this week with his energy advisers, presumably to work out an elusive compromise with Congress on a timetable for decontrolling domestic oil prices.

Ford, wearing a bulletproof vest at times but apparently undaunted by heavy security arrangements on his weekend travels, returns to the West Coast for another weekend of speechmaking and politicking starting Friday.

It was in Sacramento little more than a week ago that a young woman aimed a .45 caliber pistol at Ford from two feet away.

Next weekend's foray represents Ford's attempt to keep his image in the home territory of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, a possible challenger for the presidency.

Ford spoke again of the need for U.S. independence of foreign oil at his last stop Saturday, at Midland, Tex., where he dedicated a petroleum museum.

PUBLIC NOTICE

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS (S.J.R. NO. 11)

SPECIAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 4, 1975

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the separation of powers, legislative and executive provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article II, Separation of Powers, is amended to:

Provide that the powers of government of the State of Texas are divided among three distinct branches: legislative, executive, and judicial. Except as otherwise authorized by the constitution, members of one branch may not exercise any power properly attached to either of the others.

Article III, The Legislature, is amended to:

Continue the present structure of the legislature consisting of a senate with 31 members and a house of representatives with 150 members. The present organization and procedure of the legislature are continued except that the provision allowing closed executive sessions of the senate is omitted. Provisions on the conflict of interest of members of the legislature are continued, as is the governor's power to veto bills or line items in appropriation bills. The article provides for single-member senatorial, representative, and congressional districts. A compensation commission is created to recommend the compensation and allowances to be received by members of the legislature. The legislative compensation, set by law, may not exceed this recommendation and does not take effect until after an intervening general election. The article provides for annual sessions of 140 days in odd-numbered years and 90 days in even-numbered years, and a veto session of 15 days upon request of three-fifths of the membership of each house. The legislature may meet in organizational sessions prior to the convening of the legislature in regular sessions.

Article IV, The Executive, is amended to:

Continue the present status of the governor and all other statewide officers, and include the commissioner of agriculture as an executive department officer. The governor is limited to two consecutive terms. The governor is authorized to designate chairmen of state boards, and to remove gubernatorial appointees to state agencies for cause unless the removal is vetoed by the senate. The article mandates the legislature to provide a new governor-elect an appropriation so the governor-elect may organize an office prior to inauguration, and permits the legislature to grant powers of fiscal control to the governor. All governmental agencies, with several exceptions, have a life of not more than ten years unless extended by the legislature, and, at the regular session held in odd-numbered years, the governor shall submit to the legislature a report on the organization and requirements, for the administration of elections, and for the protection of the electoral process. The general election for state and county officers is to be held in even-numbered years on a date prescribed by law.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the SEPARATION OF POWERS, LEGISLATIVE, AND EXECUTIVE PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective January 1, 1976, except Article III, Section 5, which becomes effective January 1, 1981.

efficiency of the executive branch.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the VOTING AND ELECTION PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the judiciary provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article V, The Judiciary, is amended to:

Establish a unified judicial system consisting of the supreme court, court of appeals, district courts, and circuit courts. Existing county courts and county judges are continued until otherwise provided by law. All judges (except municipal judges), district attorneys and district clerks must be elected by the people. The supreme court and the court of criminal appeals are merged into a single court of last resort, and this supreme court is authorized to provide for efficient administration of the judicial system and to balance case loads. Individual rights for a trial by jury and appeal by the accused are continued. The state is granted the right to appeal in criminal cases in limited circumstances, and the legislature is permitted to establish methods of appeal to the courts from decisions of state agencies.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the JUDICIARY PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the voting and election provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VI, Voter Qualifications and Elections, is amended to:

Provide for registration and qualifications for voting including voter residency requirements to be established by law. A citizen of the United States who is at least 18 years of age and who meets the registration and residence requirements provided by law is a qualified voter unless the person has been convicted of a felony and for that felony is incarcerated, on parole, or on probation, or unless the person is mentally incompetent as determined by a court. Voting by the people in all elections must be by secret ballot, and the legislature shall provide by law for residence, registration, and absentee voting requirements, for the administration of elections, and for the protection of the electoral process. The general election for state and county officers is to be held in even-numbered years on a date prescribed by law.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the EDUCATION PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976, except Article VII, Section 9, which becomes effective January 1, 1979.

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the education provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VII, Education, is amended to:

Provide that the Permanent and Available School Funds and the county public school funds are continued for the support of the free public schools. The State Board of Education is retained and the Permanent and Available University Funds are continued for the benefit of The University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems. The state ad valorem tax of ten cents on $100 valuation is continued as the source of revenue for the Fund. The ten cent higher education tax may be changed by law within the ten cent maximum. The legislature may allocate by law a portion of the Higher Education Fund to certain state vocational and technical institutions. The article provides that the public education system must furnish each individual an equal educational opportunity, but a school district may provide local enrichment of educational programs exceeding the level provided by the state consistent with general law. Authority to issue Permanent University Bonds is continued but the bonds may not exceed 30% of the Permanent University Fund.

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the finance provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article VIII, Finance, is amended to:

Provide that state taxes may be levied and collected only by general law and to prohibit any state ad valorem tax on real property or tangible personal property except the ten cent tax provided for in Article VII and a

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the local government provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article IX, Local Government, is amended to:

Provide that the counties of the state are those that exist on the date of adoption of the local government article and that county boundaries may be changed if approved by a majority of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. Counties may be merged or county seats relocated if approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. The present elected constitutional county offices are retained and four year terms of office are provided. The voters of a county may create additional offices, eliminate offices, or combine the duties and functions of offices. The voters may also grant ordinance making power to the governing body of the county. Cities and towns having more than 1,500 inhabitants may become home-rule cities. Tax limitations are established for operating purposes for cities and counties and the legislature is required to fix debt limits for cities, towns, counties, and school and community junior college districts.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the LOCAL GOVERNMENT PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective on September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the general provisions of the Texas Constitution. Article X, General Provisions, is amended to:

Provide the basic requirements relating to public officeholders such as the official oath and residency requirements. The provision defining the separate and community property of spouses is retained, and the protection of a homestead from forced sale is continued. The legislature is required to protect certain personal property from forced sale. Current wages for personal service are not subject to garnishment. A private corporation may not be chartered except under general law, and no bank may engage in business at more than one place in this state. The legislature must provide for the regulation of bank holding companies. The present system of local-option elections for the prohibition or sale of alcoholic beverages is continued. The legislature is required to prohibit lotteries and gift enterprises but may permit certain bingo games and raffles. The presently existing provisions for retirement benefits of teachers and other public employees are modified to allow the state to contribute more than 10%. A policy that the quality of the environment of the State of Texas is to be protected is established, and the legislature is required to implement and enforce this policy. No state funds may be used to remove surface water from the river basin of origin if the surface water is necessary to supply the reasonably foreseeable water requirements of the basin for the ensuing 50 years, unless the removal of water is sufficiently replaced to the point of removal from outside the state or is on a temporary, interim basis. The seaward beaches of the Gulf of Mexico and coastal submerged lands belonging to the state are held by the state in perpetual trust for the people, and subject to reasonable limitations prescribed by law, the public has the free and unrestricted right of use and benefit of the beaches. The provision is continued that, except as otherwise provided by law, a rate of interest in excess of ten percent a year is usurious, and that if a contract does not specify a rate of interest, the rate under the contract may not exceed six percent a year. Discrimination against handicapped persons is prohibited, and a goal of the state is established to provide every resident access to adequate, comprehensive health care.

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the GENERAL PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the mode of amending provisions of the Texas Constitution. The proposed article will be the last article of the constitution. If only Proposition No. 8 is adopted, the article will replace Article XVII of the present constitution. If other propositions are adopted, the article will be appropriately renumbered to remain the last article of the constitution. If all propositions are adopted, the article will be Article XI. Article XVII, Mode of Amending the Constitution of the State, is amended to:

Establish a procedure for constitutional amendments requiring a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature and majority approval by the voters. The calling of a limited or unlimited constitutional convention with voter approval is provided. The question of whether to call a constitutional convention must be submitted to the people every 30 years.

PROPOSITION NO. 9 ON THE BALLOT

The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment revising the FINANCE PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution."

If adopted by the voters, will become effective on September 1, 1976, except Article VIII, Section 2, Subsections (b) and (c), which becomes effective January 1, 1978, and Article VIII, Section 6, Subsection (c), which becomes

Viet Children Face Language Problems

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vietnamese children are having difficulty — because of language problems — with American schools.

As a result, many Vietnamese refugee children have been delayed by one or two years in their education.

Nearly 3,000 refugee students in the Los Angeles area from kindergarten to senior high started school last week one grade lower than if they had stayed in Saigon.

They arrived five months ago. All speak little or no English. Thousands of others are waiting at Camp Pendleton because of the inability of their parents to find a home or a job. There are now about 17,000 Vietnamese living in California and at least three-fourths are of school age.

The French school in Saigon. I think I can beat them all in math.

California has had good results dealing with large ethnic groups like the Chinese, Japanese or Mexicans who congregate in the same communities and go to the same schools.

The children also face great changes in cultural and educational systems but apparently with less difficulty than their parents.

Nguyen Thu Diem, 12, said of her first day in 8th grade at Constitucultural and educational systems but apparently with less difficulty than their parents.

Dual Purpose Pampan

Paul Sloan is Pampa's starting slotback but the senior filled in for injured David Edwards in the defensive secondary last week in Pampa's 14-6 win over Dumas. Sloan and Harvester teammates will be in action Friday when Pampa hosts Perryton of District 1 - AAA. See It Sims To Me.

IT SIMS TO ME

Perryton After 2nd Victory

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Perryton has already disposed of one District 3-AAAA opponent, Borger, and there is nothing Don Beck and his 1-AAA Rangers would like more than to make it two in a row over schools in the bigger district when they visit Pampa Friday.

The Rangers stunned Borger 20-7 in the season opener two weeks ago, and the win gave at least a little truth to the rumor that Beck may have one of the best teams ever.

Just ask Jim Breckenridge, Borger coach. "The most impressive thing they do is they compete," he said. "They're just a great bunch of competitors...They've got a good football team. They're quick and experienced."

Did he say "experienced"? Perryton returns just one starter, quarterback Russ Reagan, off last season's team. And Reagan didn't even play quarterback — he started on defense.

Beck was quoted (Top O' Texas Football Magazine) prior to the season as saying, "This is the most inexperienced team I have fielded in my 17 years of coaching." Breckenridge said, "Although they say they're young, I think they've held several of those kids back a year. They're sophomores but they're junior age. Coach Beck told me."

One of the sophomores is Beck's son, Brad, a tailback. "He's a very good runner," Breckenridge said. "He's got a lot of savvy-cause his dad's the coach."

Russ Reagan, their quarterback, throws well and he has overall leadership. He's a good athlete — he returned a punt over 60 yards against us.

"I have never seen Pampa play, but the team that beats them is gonna have to be aggressive and stay in the ball game for four quarters. That's where they beat us — in the fourth quarter."

The score at halftime was tied 7-7.

"It's hard to draw the line between three - A and four - A competition. The biggest difference is the size of the crowd; the competition, for the most part, is the same."

Breckenridge added one thing — "We didn't play well." — and the result was a 14-point loss. Pampa, should it become complacent due to the fact the opponent is of a lower classification, could also fall.

Perryton has one thing in its favor. The Rangers did not play last week and will have had two weeks to prepare for the Harvesters.

Pampa coach John Welborn is concerned about Perryton's large amount of preparation. "It's a definite advantage," he said. "Unless we play extremely good football, we could very well end up on the short end of the score."

"They're young but they're real quick. They've got fairly good overall size."

Pampa is a slight favorite, due to the home advantage and the fact injuries to key players will probably have healed by Friday. Defensive end Kelly Baker, safety Dave Edwards and halfback Mike Glover are expected to be back in action after missing Pampa's 14-6 win over Dumas last week.

Bright spots in the win over Dumas included the running of halfbacks Ricky Moore and Mike Glover, who filled in for Caldwell and scored a touchdown, and the overall defensive play, which forced seven Demon turnovers including four pass interceptions.

Notre Dame Snaps BC

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Boston College has learned that to err is human, but it's no way to beat Devine.

BC found out Monday how much two mistakes can hurt against a powerful team when Notre Dame, under new coach Dan Devine, capitalized for a 17-3 win in a nationally televised game.

The game was played at Schaefer Stadium to accommodate the crowd of 61,501 fans—the largest to watch a football game in the stadium's four-year history. It was the first meeting ever between the two Catholic colleges and had the potential of giving the BC team national recognition.

The perennially strong Fighting Irish and the upset Eagles were tied 3-3 well into the third period when BC recovered a Notre Dame fumble at the Irish 26. But two plays later, the Eagles bobbled the ball back into the arms of defensive end Ross Browner and the game turned around.

Browner's brother Jim, a freshman running back, scored eight plays later on a 10-yard run. Sophomore safety Randy Harrison stole a deflected pass on the Eagles' next possession and sophomore Al Hunter quickly converted it into a 24-yard touchdown run.

"I didn't say much to them at the half," said Devine, the third top active coach with a 121-40-8 record. "But I did tell the guys to be patient and keep their poise. We kept waiting for them to make mistakes for a long time, then they finally did."

BC, a 7½-point underdog, earned the plaudits of Notre Dame players, yet Eagle Coach Joe Yukica said his team hadn't played the way it needed to.

"Had it not been for a couple of stupid plays there in the third quarter, we could have had a victory," Yukica said. "We sacked the quarterback after he had completed a pass (in the third period) yet we wind up with a personal foul; then we recover a fumble and give the ball right back to them. Then they score. As far as I'm concerned, that was the ball game."

Junior quarterback Rick Slager, with 18 minutes of varsity playing time going into the game, kept the young Notre Dame team poised and ready to capitalize on the Eagles' second-half miscues. After a 1-for-5 passing performance in the first half, he hit 6-of-7 in the final 30 minutes to engineer the two touchdowns.

Slager completed three passes for 41 yards and Browner got the inside yardage needed to keep alive the drive that resulted in Browner's TD at 6:52 of the third period.

BC quarterback Mike Kruczek, who set an NCAA pass completion percentage record in 1974, tried to open up the offense on the next series. But his mid-range pass to Bill Paulsen deflected off the flanker's hand and fell into Harrison's grasp at the BC 49.

Aggies Unbeaten

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Two weeks into the Missouri Valley Conference season, New Mexico State is the only undefeated team.

The Aggies won their second game 31-24 over the University of Texas-El Paso in a see-saw game which included a 79-yard scoring punt return by defensive back Donnie Ross.

Kansas State of the Big Eight Conference upset defending champion and pre-season Moval favorite Tulsa in the season opener for the Hurricanes. Flanker Steve Largent's performance, coming off knee surgery last spring, was the only bright spot for Tulsa coach F.A. Dry, who saw his string of 12 home victories shattered before Skelly Stadium's second largest opening game crowd.

Largent, who led the nation in touchdown receptions last year, hauled in eight passes for 92 yards and two touchdowns, and picked up another 19 yards on an end-around play.

West Texas State evened its record by edging Lamar 10-6, while Wichita State was routed 34-0 at Oklahoma State and Southern Illinois fell 27-10 to Southwest Louisiana.

Others To Strike?

Pro Football Roundup
BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

This will be a day of decision for the striking New England Patriots and it could affect the entire 1975 National Football League season.

The Patriots went on strike Saturday and refused to play a final pre-season game against the New York Jets at New Haven, Conn. They had sought to get other NFL clubs to follow but it seems that all they're getting is sympathy.

That and a few harsh words thrown in. The NFL Management Council, the bargaining agent for the league, issued a warning during the weekend that it would not allow any striking team to practice or collect paychecks. The Council also has indicated it may forfeit a striking club's games if necessary.

The Patriots went ahead with the strike and are due to report for their first practice session today. Monday's practice had been postponed because of a conflict with the Notre Dame-Boston College game at Foxboro Stadium.

NFL Players Association head Ed Garvey is charging a lockout and the league is holding fast. So far, only the Washington Redskins have indicated that they may join the Patriots in an actual strike.

Randy Vataha, the Patriots player representative, said, "If we don't get the support we hope for (from the other clubs), then we'll sign a no-strike agreement and go back to work. If that happens, I don't think many of our players are going to want to pay their ($300) annual dues. There's no sense being a union if you really don't have one."

"Even if we are allowed to play, the Redskins said that they have set a deadline and if things are not ironed out by that deadline, they will strike whether we do or not. Our action is decided at this time and will be exposed as it happens. We know what we are going to do but we want to do it with the least amount of uproar. This has nothing to do with the Patriots' management. It's up to the rest of the team and the association."

"There is no lockout at this moment because the players are on strike and you can't have a strike and a lockout at the same time," Patriots spokesman Pat Horne said Monday. "If at any time the players said they were coming back and the management said you're not coming back, then you've got a lockout. But this is something in the hands of a Management Council. We're sitting in limbo waiting for one side to make the move."

"I'm sure (coach Chuck Fairbanks) wants his players but it's up to them. We just hope it will be resolved as soon as possible so our coaches can get back to getting ready to play the opening game of the season."

New England is scheduled to open Sunday against Houston and Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, feels the Patriots were influenced in their strike vote by an injury to quarterback Jim Plunkett.

"I think they realized they can't win without Plunkett so this strike sort of killed two birds with one stone," Adams said. "I think it was the catalyst for the strike. It clinched their decision."

Plunkett separated his left shoulder last week and will be out about two months. The reaction around the league was sympathetic but not to the point of striking.

The 51st State? Superior or Division of Texas

By United Press International

Old Glory has flown with 50 stars for 15 years, but there are more than a few proposals around to add to that firmament with a 51st state — and perhaps more. The next state could be named Superior. Or possibly there might be five more, all born of the present state of Texas.

The idea of new states is as old as the country itself. Some, such as one named Franklin, actually existed for a few years before disappearing. Another, called Sequoyah, adopted a state constitution, but lost out to Republican party politics.

Texas still has the right to divide itself into five states — without approval of Congress — and there's a move afoot to do just that because it would give the area 10 senators instead of two.

There've been proposals to split up Idaho and California: to create new states out of what is now New York City, the District of Columbia, the Navajo Indian Reservation, New York's Long Island, Maryland's Eastern Shore, and Puerto Rico. There have been proposals for other new states to be named Forgotonia, Aroostook, Jefferson, Winston, Indian Stream and Vietnam.

Many have been whimsical or nothing more than efforts to draw attention to the political plight of a region. A few have been serious.

Here's a look at some of them:

Superior — Congress granted the Upper Peninsula to Michigan — taking it away from Wisconsin — early in the 19th Century as a consolation prize for losing the Toledo Strip to Ohio. Michigan state Rep. Dominic Jacobetti recently got legislative approval to spend $5,000 to study the feasibility of creating a new state there, to be called Superior. If it did suddenly find itself a state instead of an accumulation of 15 Michigan counties covered mostly with trees, it would rank 42nd in size and 49th in population — and, opponents of the idea say, 51st in wealth. Dissident groups in seven adjacent counties in Wisconsin have asked to join in.

Jefferson — There was a movement in 1941 to create the "sovereign state of Jefferson" out of the northern tip of California and the southern Oregon coast. Stan Delaplane, now a syndicated travel writer of The San Francisco Chronicle, won a Pulitzer prize for his lighthearted reporting of the Jefferson movement, which died with the beginning of World War II on Dec. 7, 1941.

California — The most significant effort to separate California into two states came in 1965 shortly after the Supreme Court's one man-one vote decision. Fearing domination by the Los Angeles area, the state senate, chosen on a geographical basis, voted 22-16 to split the state at the Tehachapi mountain range about 50 miles north of Los Angeles to create the states of "North California" and "South California." However, the assembly, chosen on a population basis and dominated by the south, easily rejected the plan.

Idaho — There was a proposal in the early 1960s to split Idaho into two states. The north-south talk comes up every time issues in the legislature tend toward sectionalism. Historically the north-south rift goes back to the territorial days when the first capital was established at Lewiston, then pirated away to Boise. The rift nearly prevented Idaho's admission to the Union.

Forgotonia — In 1973, Earl Gamm, then 25 and a Vietnam veteran studying drama at Western Illinois University, proposed that 16 western Illinois counties secede to form a new state called "Forgotonia" to dramatize how the state and federal governments had neglected that part of the state. Gamm appointed himself governor of Forgotonia, and was invited to address the Illinois legislature. He did so, wearing a stovepipe hat and other Lincoln garb. The highwater mark of the Forgotonia drive came when the Mercer County board voted unanimously to secede from Illinois.

Aroostook — There was a serious move to create another state in Maine in 1843. The dispute is still called the "Aroostook County War." The border between United States and Canada had not been settled at that time and residents thought they were being mistreated by Washington. The idea quietly died.

District of Columbia — There is a Statehood Party that usually runs second or third in elections in Washington D.C. The Republicans sometimes run behind them, and the Statehood Party now has a member on the city council. Bills are introduced in Congress almost every session to make the District a state, and they routinely die in committee.

Winston — Some 2,500 residents of Winston County, Ala., established the "Free State of Winston" in 1862, and asked both sides in the Civil War to "leave us alone, unmolested, that we may work out our political and financial destiny here in the hills and mountains of northwest Alabama." Winston issued its own paper money, but neither side left it alone. The county's legislator, C.C. Sheats, was expelled from the legislature and later arrested for treason. He was released in 1864 without being tried. An attempt to abolish Winston County failed.

Franklin — There briefly existed a state called Franklin in what is now eastern Tennessee. Historians now refer to it as the "Lost State of Franklin." John Sevier, a native Virginian, was Franklin's first and only governor, chosen in a convention in 1784 at the state's capitol, now Jonesboro, Tenn. But a military man, Col. John Tipton, declared the new state illegal. It started a war that wasn't settled until February, 1788, when Sevier was defeated in a battle at Tipton's plantation. Sevier later became Tennessee's first governor.

Eastern Shore — Maryland's Eastern Shore juts out past Chesapeake Bay into the Atlantic. There are periodic efforts by legislators from the area to secede from Maryland and form their own state. The efforts usually reach their height at reapportionment time — when the Eastern Shore always loses some representation.

Vietnam — A whimsical letter in a national news magazine at the end of the Vietnam war suggested Alabama be turned over to Vietnamese refugees because the state is mostly rural and its climate is somewhat like that of Vietnam. It suggested the name could be changed to Vietnam.

Navajo — The Navajo Indian Reservation, which covers sections of northeast Arizona, southeastern Utah and northwestern New Mexico, occasionally makes noises about becoming a separate state. But the Navajo nation exists under a treaty with the U.S. government and has authority very close to that of a state anyway. Most of the dissatisfaction over the years has stemmed from Indian frustrations with federal overseers, and in the case of Navajo, this federal domination is rapidly dwindling away.

Long Island — In 1967 the Long Island Association of Commerce and Industry passed a resolution favoring secession from New York state and establishing Long Island as an independent state. The group contends the island, with a population of 2.5 million, could get far more federal aid as a separate state than as a portion of New York.

Indian Stream — In 1832 disgruntled residents of extreme northern New Hampshire set up the republic of Indian Stream. It was during the time the United States and Canada were disputing a common boundary. There were a series of kidnappings. America troops came into the area, and the territory was finally made a part of New Hampshire in 1842 under the Webster-Ashburton Treaty.

Puerto Rico — As many as 2.8 million Puerto Ricans may want to make their island the 51st state of the United States. But that doesn't mean the move is any closer than it was 58 years ago when Puerto Ricans gained U.S. citizenship.

But Puerto Rico receives more than $1.67 billion a year in federal assistance — without paying taxes or providing votes. The most recent test of public opinion was in 1967, when 60.5 per cent of the voters said they preferred to remain a commonwealth, 38.9 per cent supported statehood, and 6 per cent said they preferred complete independence.

Sequoyah — On Nov. 7, 1905, the residents of a new state, to be called Sequoyah, approved a constitution by a margin of 6 to 1 and sent a delegation to Washington. They were members of five Indian tribes and had been promised by years of treaties — the latest only seven years old — that they would be admitted to the union. But in 1906 President Teddy Roosevelt said the new state was a violation of Republican party policy, and declared that party politics superseded government treaties with the Indians. He crushed the effort to establish a separate Indian state in what is now the eastern third of Oklahoma.

The constitution written for Sequoyah became the foundation of the Oklahoma constitution. The Great Seal of Sequoyah, with only minor changes, became the seal of Oklahoma.

New York City — In the 1968 New York City mayoral election candidate Jimmy Breslin proposed that the city secede and become a separate state. The proposal got little attention. But in 1971, Rep. Bella Abzug brought it up again and got the endorsement of three of the city's five borough presidents. She argued that New York City deserves to be a state because its budget is larger than any state's and that the city never gets as much back money as it spends. If admitted, New York City would be the seventh most populous state in the union. That idea is still kicking around, and occasional notices of other moves to make the city a state are seen in the city's newspapers.

Texas — When it joined the union in 1845, Texas retained the right to divide into five states. Texas lawmakers have periodically threatened to use that right to gain more representation in Congress. "I believe it is time we said to them 'we have this right, and we intend to stand up for Texas.' The move has yet to attain any momentum.

B&C Cattle Wins

B&C Cattle Company, Miami, received several blue ribbons in Register of Merit Hereford competition at the Wyoming State Fair in Douglas recently. Among its winners was the winning winter heifer calf, B&C MC L1 Domino 91, who is with Jody Fields, Wyoming Hereford Queen, presenter Bruce von Ferrell and owner Bill Breeding. Other winners from the Miami company included champion and reserve bull in the junior division.

Hereford Champ

Doctor Herefords, McLean walked off with the reserve grand female award in a strong showing of some 200 head of Herefords at the Register of Merit competition at the recent Wyoming State Fair in Douglas. Shown with the winning female are: Wayne Haygood, New Harmony, Ind., judge of the show; Jody Fields, Wyoming Hereford Queen; Joe L. Budd, former president of the American Hereford Association, and at the halter is Jake Hess, owner of Doctor Herefords.

- Inflation Hits Counterfeiters
- WASHINGTON (UPI) — Counterfeiters, like everyone else, are aware that the price of almost everything is going up. So they're printing bigger bills. Although the bogus $20 bill is still "most popular," says Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight, more $50 and $100 counterfeit bills are being printed nowadays. Practically no one is bothering to counterfeit coins.
- Knight told Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., Saturday the 1975 fiscal year produced a record $49 million in counterfeit currency. But about $45 million of that amount was seized by the Secret Service before it got into circulation.

Memory Gardens Cemetery

Late in 1952, the first section of Memory Gardens Cemetery was developed from 25 acres of a wheat field purchased from Roy Kretzmer.

Memory Gardens Cemetery of Pampa, Inc., was chartered May 31, 1952 and the first interment was donated as is the custom of privately owned cemeteries.

Memory Gardens has developed five sections, all with religion garden features, except the veterans section and a Chapel Mausoleum designed for outside crypts.

The landscape of evergreens provides greenery the year around and only flat type memorials are used.

Nine years ago the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Memory Gardens sponsored the Parade of Flags on Veteran's Day. The large casket flags are donated by the veteran's families and flown on 16 foot staffs decorating the roadways.

In the beginning, only 33 flags were used and now there are approximately 200. Each staff includes the veterans metal, name plate and where the veteran was buried overseas. Veterans do not have to be buried in Memory Gardens for a flag to be flown honoring him.

Memory Gardens has been state dedicated and is under perpetual care. This perpetual care fund is supervised by Texas Department of Banking.

Memory Gardens is dedicated to those whose efforts of yesterday, assured a brighter today." state Mildred Haynie, general manager.

Prosecutors Want Fromme Kept Quiet

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Prosecutors want Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, charged with trying to assassinate President Ford, kept under a judge's gag rule to prevent her from talking about the case.

Her right to a fair trial, they argued Monday, is more important than her right to free speech.

Miss Fromme, 26, a member of the Charles Manson cult, was to go to court today to try to have her name removed from the gag order and to ask for a reduction in her maximum $1 million bail.

Miss Fromme pointed a .45-caliber automatic pistol at President Ford on his visit to Sacram. Sept. 5. The weapon, although loaded, did not fire.

In documents filed with federal district court Monday, U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes asked that she be kept under the gag order. He said concern for a fair trial must take precedence when constitutional rights clash.

Keyes' memorandum was in response to written arguments by Miss Fromme's attorney, federal public defender E. Richard Walker, who said she would be denied her right to a fair and speedy trial if she was not allowed to speak freely about the case.

Chief District Court Judge Thomas MacBride issued the gag order last week. It prevents persons involved in the case — including attorneys and Miss Fromme — from talking to newsmen.

However, at her arraignment last week, the spindly red-haired woman said she would seek to have her name taken off the order.

Keyes argued reports of her comments in the news could prejudice her case.

Walker argued that the court had other ways to keep Miss Fromme from the press and the public. They included moving the trial from Sacramento, sequestering jurors from other areas and carefully examining potential jurors for bias.

He said that until Miss Fromme is convicted of a crime "she is still entitled to all of the concomitant rights of citizenship, including the right to free speech."

He also argued that unless Miss Fromme is allowed to speak to potential witnesses and others in the case, she will be denied a fair trial.

STRIPMINING COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Stripmining is increasing dramatically in Texas, researchers with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station report.

An estimated one million acres of Texas land could be stripmined and then reclaimed successfully.

VOLUNTEERS SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — The government Tourist Development Co. is recruiting Puerto Rican students at overseas colleges to act as volunteer tourism promoters for the island during out-of-class time.

Fed Returns Millions In Louisiana Bonuses

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—A total of $136 million representing 20 years of accumulated tidelands oil bonuses and royalties will be turned over to Louisiana Monday by the federal government.

The money had been in escrow since as early as 1956 while the state and federal governments both claimed title to the oil-rich territory a short distance off the Louisiana coast. It was not released until the Supreme Court established the location of the Louisiana coastline and the state's three-mile territorial limit.

Louisiana holds authority to lease and collect royalties on all submerged lands within the three-mile limit, while lands beyond the limit are under federal jurisdiction. The exact location of the coastline was contested because of the coastal bays and marshlands which made plotting the shoreline difficult.

Louisiana sought to draw the line as far seaward as possible, but the federal government wanted it along the shore.

Attorney General William Guste was to receive the tidelands windfall for the state. Guste also said Louisiana may derive more revenue from the tidelands dispute once the jurisdiction of wells close to the three-mile limit has been settled.

"There's still an accounting required on what we call split leases," Guste said. "It has to do with zones where you don't know exactly whether the well is on the right or left side of the (three-mile) line; and some of these wells are draining common pools."

"We estimate (Louisiana will receive) perhaps as much as $50 million from these."

The legislature's appropriation of much of the tidelands settlement to pay current bond debts has ignited another dispute within the state. The new Louisiana Constitution required use of the tidelands funds to retire bonds, but some constitutional convention delegates said the intent was to pay some of the state's bond debts ahead of schedule.

Instead, Gov. Edwin Edwards and the legislature appropriated $65 million of anticipated tidelands revenue to meet current bond payments, thereby freeing other state revenue for a variety of election-year construction projects.

School Loses State Accreditation

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The Benavides school district in politically troubled Duval County has lost its state accreditation, apparently due to violations of the state open meetings law and incomplete record keeping.

The State Education Board, which voted during the week-end to deny accreditation, said the school board had violated the Open Meetings Law, failed to notify a fired principal of a hearing on his appeal and kept only incomplete records of official transactions.

No officials of the district appeared to refute the charges. But state officials said the district may avoid loss of $48,000 in state aid by reapplying for accreditation by Oct. 15 and correcting deficiencies by the end of the current school year.

Woodrow Bean of El Paso cast the only dissenting vote among the 22 board members present. He based his opposition on the unstable political situation in the district. Since the death of George Parr, two families have struggled for control of Duval

County politics. "It's just horrible to get kids mixed up in politics," Bean said. "I don't think the sins of the fathers should be placed on their sons."

Bean said 95 per cent of the complaints against the school had been corrected.

An attorney for the school district and a delegation of parents appeared before the state board's evaluation committee Friday and requested reversal of the July ruling against Benavides by the State Commission on School Accreditation.

In March, District Judge O. P. Carrillo ousted five school board members for alleged misconduct including illegal disbursement of school funds and tampering with school records.

Critics charged Carrillo only wanted to appoint members loyal to his political faction in the place of those aligned with the Parr family.

New Mexico, which is the fifth largest state, has about 155 square miles of water.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your birthday today: Square things away at once to prepare for situations in which you must be ready to move fast. Touches of glamour from time-to-time transform even the slower routines into great adventure. Strive for thrifty budgeting even though you may have temporary increases or promises of better earnings. Today's natives have a knack for assembling seemingly unrelated materials into a coherent, interesting whole.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Get as much done in the morning as conditions permit. Prepare for a long day of drift and coincidental complications. Above all, keep a sense of humor.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Bypass purely commercial pursuits if possible. If you must go on with a regular job, treat it as a rehearsal session and expect results the next time around.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Guide this complex day along previously established lines. On-the-spot choices made to fit passing whims or quirks of circumstances turn out troublesome or unfeasible in just a short while.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Listen to advice carefully even where you haven't asked for it. Put off firm decisions until you've slept over them, brought in a second opinion and thoroughly checked the salient facts.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: No one is very helpful with anything nearby. On theoretical or remote questions, suggestions are plentiful. Your normal energy takes everyone's patience at the present moment. Cool it a bit!

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Fantasy enters into most transactions, so be conservative in dealing with figures. Bright ideas must be well thought out before you base new plans or added obligations on them.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Interruptions are probable as is distraction by those who don't understand the whole situation. Follow existing policies and material phases. Easy does it later when you arrive home!

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Creative effort brings in more money but also gets you off track. Friends are super-sensitive; tomorrow is soon enough to tell them any bad news.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Older people and their concerns absorb your attention and tax your energy. Do what's necessary without complaint; your time is limited. Take care of loose ends.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Today's elation and sense of freedom is illusory. Settle down, the earlier the better, to cooperate with associates and to complete usual routines.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your methods are of utmost importance. Much depends upon fine details and your discretion in carrying them out. Don't revise household arrangements or reopen discussions.
