

Hearst Family Reunite in Jailhouse

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI said today it cracked the Patty Hearst case with "very diligent, painstaking" detective work by agents across the nation. The fugitive newspaper heiress held a jailhouse reunion with her parents and said she wanted to go home.

The FBI said the arrest was no fluke.

A spokesman in Washington said agents staked out the neighborhood where Miss Hearst was arrested the day before the capture.

"This apprehension came about as a result of a very diligent, painstaking effort by FBI agents throughout the entire United States," the spokesman said in a statement.

"Following up on leads in an effort to locate Patty Hearst, we attempted to interview numerous individuals we believed to have knowledge of her or associations with her."

"In the course of these attempts we developed a reasonable basis to believe that Patty Hearst was in the Morse Street house where she was apprehended," the spokesman said.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelly scheduled a news conference later in the day in Kansas City to discuss the end of one of the most bizarre searches in U.S. history.

Miss Hearst's parents brought a bouquet of yellow roses to their jail cell reunion with their daughter who apparently was transformed from a quiet college coed to a gun-toting revolutionary during the more than a year and a half she was missing.

The capture ended the mystery that captured the attention of the world, but left unanswered questions of where has she been, what's going on to her now and was she really a revolutionary?

But her parents just were happy to have their daughter back safely.

"She said she wanted to go home with us," a beaming Catherine Hearst told reporters after a meeting with her daughter in the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City, 25 miles south of here.

Mrs. Hearst said she, her husband and two of their daughters "all hugged each other, laughed and hugged each other."

"We told her we love her and held her and kissed her."

Mrs. Hearst said her daughter was "happy to see us. She was nervous and thin. But best of all she was happy to see us. She had her hair dyed."

"We are eternally grateful to the FBI and San Francisco police for bringing Patty in safely."

Miss Hearst, with a plea of "Don't shoot," surrendered to FBI agents and police Thursday, ending her bizarre disappearance which frustrated U.S. law enforcement for more than 1 1/2 years.

Randolph A. Hearst, her father, told reporters his daughter was "very calm — perfectly willing to come home. She enjoyed seeing us and seeing her sister."

Hearst flew home from New York City when he learned of his daughter's arrest. Mrs. Hearst returned from Los Angeles where she was attending a University of California Board of Regents meeting.

When Miss Hearst renounced her past life to become a "soldier" in the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnaped her, Miss Hearst called her father "a fascist pig."

Miss Hearst will appear before a U.S. District judge this afternoon for a bail reduction hearing. After her arrest, bail here was set at $500,000. She also faces a $550,000 bail situation in Los Angeles where she is wanted on 19 charges that, on conviction, could send her to jail for life.

Three other fugitives from the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army also were arrested in the case which began as the nation's first political kidnaping and grew into one of the most incredible crime cases in American history.

"Don't move or I'll blow your head off!" shouted one FBI agent as he stormed into a two-story home in a quiet, ethnic neighborhood to arrest Miss Hearst.

There was no violence and no injuries in the arrests.

It was the end of the "underground" life for the star figure in the case which captured the nation's attention for months during 1974. Even with her arrest, her whereabouts in recent months remained a mystery.

Miss Hearst, 21, now faces federal charges of bank robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. She also must answer more than two dozen state charges including assault with intent to kill and kidnaping.

She was locked up in the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City, 25 miles south of San Francisco. Bail was $1,050,000.

The arraignment of Miss Hearst before U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff was quiet. Dressed in tan slacks and a purple striped sweater and wearing dark glasses, she appeared demure and polite.

"Is this your true name?" Woodruff asked in outlining the complaint.

"Yes," she murmured.

"How old are you?" Woodruff asked.

"Twenty-one," she replied.

Just before this, Wendy Yoshimura, a 32-year-old artist arrested with Miss Hearst, was arraigned. As she was led from the courtroom she touched hands with Miss Hearst in an emotional departure.

Miss Hearst's father, Randolph A. Hearst, in New York when she was arrested, and her mother, who was in Los Angeles rushed back to San Francisco to be reunited with her.

Miss Hearst, granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst and whose father is president of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnaped — half-naked and screaming — from a Berkeley, Calif. apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, just 10 miles across San Francisco Bay from where she was captured.

Within a short time, she decided to forsake her past life in favor of becoming a "soldier" in the army of her kidnapers — the SLA. She took the revolutionary name "Tania."

At a home nearby William Harris, 30, a former Indiana school teacher, and his wife, Emily, 28, were arrested simultaneously as they finished jogging.

Stephen Solia, 27, a housepainter, was taken into custody on a charge of harboring federal fugitives. Federal investigators said two others were arrested but declined to detail their role in the crime. The other two were not identified.

The arrest of Miss Hearst was described by Jerry Prill, who was in the basement of the home at the time.

"I heard her laughing when I was cutting some wood. All day she was laughing. I was just trying to go when the FBI jumped me. They showed me badges and they showed me pictures and then I knew it was her."

"They took me through the garage to the back, and the FBI went upstairs and went inside

One of the girls tried to run through the front.

"I heard an FBI man say, 'Don't move! I'll blow your head off! Stop!'"

When the five FBI men charged the room, Miss Hearst shouted, "Don't shoot! I'll go with you!"

Mrs. Harris tried to bolt from officers but they quickly caught her.

It apparently was a tip from a citizen which led FBI agents to the Harris and Miss Hearst. The arrests came at 2:25 p.m. PDT. Surveillance had been set up at the Harris home on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

The precision arrests wrote the final chapter for the SLA, a small terrorist group which had its roots in the California State Prison system.

"This effectively puts an end to the SLA — everyone I know of in the SLA," said Charles Bates, agent-in-charge of the FBI's San Francisco office.

Russell Little and Joseph Remiro were the first "soldiers" to be taken into custody. They now stand convicted of the assassination of Oakland, Calif. School Supt. Marcus A. Foster.

Then, in May 1974, a bloody shootout with police in Los Angeles left six other members dead. They included a plumb-wine drinking escaped convict named Donald DeFreeze, who called himself "Field Marshal Cinque."

It was a series of communiques to radio stations which outlined the SLA's philosophy of "Death to the fascist insects who prey on the lives of the people." Miss Hearst's communique of renunciation called her father "a fascist pig."

Harris conducted himself at his arraignment like a revolutionary. Giving the clenched-fist salute, he said loudly, "Hello comrades."

Then — still clad in a green polo shirt and wrinkled tennis shorts — he lifted both arms over his head and again with clenched fists said, "Keep truckin'!" Terence "Kayo" Hallinan, lawyer for Miss Hearst and the Harris, quickly pulled him to his chair.

Mrs. Harris was quiet and subdued. She, too, was still in her jogging clothes.

Woodruff outlined the charges against them — unregistered possession of firearms and possession of automatic machineguns. Bail for each was set at $500,000. But they also face multiple charges in Los Angeles County.

"This ain't no big deal, comrades," he mocked as he was led from the courtroom.

At Redwood City, Miss Hearst and the Harris were placed in adjoining cells. Sheriff's deputies said Harris was "very quiet."

Sheriff John McDonald said Miss Hearst was very quiet and looked thin and frail. "She looks just like her picture when she smiled — which she was doing very frequently," he said.

Hallinan said the Hearst family planned to post bail for Patricia U.S. Attorney James Browning said he would not oppose a request for "a reasonable reduction in bail." But the federal prosecutor said he would not go along with release on her own recognizance.

Miss Yoshimura was transferred to Alameda County Jail in Oakland because the explosives charge must be answered there.

Authorities said Miss Yoshimura had been born in a Japanese internment camp in California during World War II. She worked for a time as an artist for an advertising agency.

Neighbors said they saw men helping Miss Hearst and Miss Yoshimura moving their belongings into the modest home in the Mexican-American and counterculture neighborhood.

The SLA was formed by Donald DeFreeze when he was an inmate at the California Medical Facility in Vacaville.

Prices Rise... Just a Little

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living rose 0.2 per cent in August, the smallest monthly increase in more than two years, the Labor Department said today.

Consumer prices declined for beef, fresh vegetables and some other foods, offsetting higher prices for clothing, used cars, gasoline, medical care, auto insurance, pork and sugar.

The light hike in prices, when combined with an August increase in average hourly pay, meant the average worker's real spendable earnings rose a significant 0.9 per cent last month, the department said.

The August increase in the seasonally adjusted Consumer Price Index broke a strong inflationary surge that began earlier this year and culminated in July, when consumer prices rose 1.2 per cent.

Not since July, 1973, have consumer prices risen by as little as 0.2 per cent. The modest August rise translated into an annual cost of living increase of 2.4 per cent—a sharp drop from the annual rate of 14.4 per cent in the previous month.

The Consumer Price Index was 162.8 in August, up 8.6 per cent from a year ago. This meant that goods that cost $100 in 1967 now cost $162.80.

Food prices, which held steady in August, were the primary reason for the good economic news. Other commodities increased 0.5 per cent, as did services.

Beef prices declined in August for the first time in five months, and the prices of fresh vegetables, which took a big leap in June and July, were also down last month.

Cereal and bakery prices declined, not yet reflecting the recent increases in wholesale grain costs that have resulted from the sale of 10 million tons of grain to the Soviet Union.

Pork prices, meanwhile, rose sharply for the fifth straight month. Sugar prices were up for the first time this year and dairy products also increased substantially.

Clothing prices were primarily responsible for the increase in non-food commodities, reflecting the introduction of the new fall styles. The prices of used cars, gasoline and motor oil, fuel oil and coal also increased, but not as much as in recent months.

Medical service costs rose 0.6 per cent, much less than the 1.1 per cent rise in July. The costs of drugs and prescriptions also increased.

The prices of new cars also rose in August, following a decline in July. The increases in rent and transportation services also went up more last month than in previous months.

Weather

Partly cloudy skies with highs in the upper 60s and low 70s are forecast for today and Saturday with lows in the 40s.

Workers Gain Buying Power

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer

Consumer prices increased only 0.2 per cent for the most moderate rise in three years and wage-earners made their first annual gains in buying power in two years, the Labor Department reported today.

Double-digit inflation in the past two years has more than eaten up wage increases for workers. But that trend ended in August, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The average weekly pay for a worker with a wife and two children—after deducting Social Security, federal income taxes and erosion by inflation—rose 0.9 per cent in August and stood 1.1 per cent higher than August a year ago.

This is the first time since February 1973 that real spendable earnings have shown an increase over the year. BLS said.

The consumer price increase was the lowest since August, 1972, when they went up only 0.1 per cent.

Consumer prices declined for beef, fresh vegetables and some other foods, offsetting higher prices for clothing, used cars, gasoline, medical care, auto insurance, pork and sugar.

Economists cautioned that the 0.2 per cent increase did not mean an abrupt cooling of inflation. Administration officials have said that consumer prices would be "turbulent" until late this year and food prices are expected to rise again this month.

Administration officials expected today's report on consumer prices in August to show moderation from the sharp 1.2 per cent increase in July, which was the highest monthly rise since the fall of 1974.

Prices for used cars, fuel and food accounted for most of the increase in July, when the impact dropped the average worker's real income — wages plus fringe benefits with inflation deducted — 0.3 per cent below the level of a year ago.

The consumer prices report followed good economic news Thursday from the Commerce Department. It said revised data on the nation's output of goods and services for the second quarter was 0.3 per cent higher than last month's preliminary report. It also revised corporate profits up $4.4 billion.

In other developments — Retail sales at a seasonally adjusted $11.74 billion last week were 7 per cent higher than the same week a year ago, which means volume actually declined because sales did not keep pace with the 10 per cent inflation rate in the same time span.

The nation's money supply grew at an average rate of 5.6 per cent in the latest four weeks, well within the Federal Reserve's target range for monetary growth on an annual basis. Interest rates rose for Reserve System and commercial paper loans.

General Motors said the number of its employees on long-term layoffs will drop to 55,000 by the end of the month, the fewest since Christmas.

Boyd Taylor Will Head Chamber of Commerce

By TEX DEWEES
Pampa News Staff

Boyd Taylor, Cabot Corporation executive and current vice president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the chamber at a meeting of the civic organization's board of directors today.

J.C. Roberts was elected vice president and Arthur Aftergut finance director.

Taylor will succeed C.E. Steel. Roberts moves into the vice presidency occupied by Taylor and Aftergut will succeed Gary Stevens as finance director for the chamber's 1975-76 fiscal year.

The new officers and seven recently elected directors will be installed at a banquet meeting of board members and their wives Thursday, Oct. 16, in the Coronado Inn.

The new directors to be installed are Dudley Steele, Bill Hite, Tim Hoiles, J.C. Roberts, Verl Hagaman, Dr. Dan Long and Jerry Holmes.

Also to be installed will be three new directors appointed by Taylor to serve one-year terms on the board. Their names are expected to be announced within a few days.

All officers and directors will assume their new duties at the chamber's annual banquet in M.K. Brown Auditorium Oct. 30.

At today's meeting directors also approved a resolution supporting the establishment of a new tourist center at the intersection of U.S. 83 and Interstate 40 in Shamrock. The action was taken at the request of Phil Cates, manager of the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce.

Directors approved a three-year contract with Cabot Corporation for the Chamber of Commerce to continue its occupation of office space in the Hughes Bldg.

It was announced that ticket sales for the annual chamber banquet are nearing the sold-out stage.

'US Distorted Cong Strength'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former CIA agent says top U.S. intelligence and military officials deliberately distorted reports on Communist troop strength to convince the American public the United States was winning the Vietnam war in 1968.

Samuel A. Adams, who was the CIA's principal analyst on the Viet Cong for seven years, told the House Select Committee on Intelligence Thursday that all intelligence officials involved with Vietnam, including CIA Director William Colby, should be fired for "screwing up intelligence on Vietnam."

He said that because of "corruption in the intelligence process" the United States was caught off guard by the severity of the 1968 Communist Tet offensive, during which thousands of U.S. planes were destroyed on the ground and fighting spilled into the American embassy compound in Saigon.

"Although our aim was to fool the American press, the public and the Congress, we in intelligence succeeded best in fooling ourselves," Adams said.

"In the months before the offensive, U.S. intelligence had deliberately downgraded the strength of the enemy army in order to portray the Viet Cong as weaker than they actually were."

asked whether Adams meant intelligence reports were made to fit political decisions previously made.

Yes, sir, Adams replied.

Pike also said the committee would go to court to force the White House to comply with its subpoena for documents "without strings attached" among them reports dealing with Tet.

Adams, who resigned from the CIA in 1973 and now raises cattle in Virginia, said he informed top CIA officials repeatedly the Viet Cong strength was nearly 600,000 — twice the figure used by the military command of General William Westmoreland.

Teachers Return to Jobs

By United Press International

Teachers were back on their jobs today in the nation's two biggest cities but strikes in smaller districts resulted in the imprisonment of strike leaders and left more than 300,000 children to enjoy extended vacations or sit in understaffed classrooms.

In Rhode Island, Superior Court Judge Joseph R. Weisberger sent six leaders of the Woonsocket Teachers Guild to jail refusing to order union members back to work and said teachers would be fined $20 a day if they persist in their refusal to return to work.

The Rhode Island State Supreme Court denied a motion to free eight Pawtucket teachers union leaders jailed Tuesday for defying three court orders to end a strike that has disrupted school for 11,000 students.

Cranston, R.I., teachers ended their strike today, but strikes in three Rhode Island cities affected 22,300 children.

Classes resumed for 1.1 million New York public school children and 530,000 Chicago public school students Thursday following contract agreements in both cities.

Waukegan, Ill., teachers struck today, closing schools for 15,000 students.

But Fort Wayne, Ind., teachers defied a court order to return to work and carried their strike through a third day today, closing 62 schools to nearly 40,000 pupils.

Strikes and lockouts in 21 Pennsylvania districts idled 116,000 children, the most for any state.

Hawthorne, N.J., teachers ended a three-day strike today, but strikes in three other New Jersey cities affected 23,000 students.

Eloise Loses Strength

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical Storm Eloise churned westward off the southern coast of Cuba today and forecasters said another disturbance in the Central Atlantic appeared to be building toward Tropical Storm Fay.

Downgraded from the hurricane strength that claimed at least 34 lives in the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico, Eloise had peak winds of only 45 to 50 miles per hour today but the National Hurricane Center in Miami said it may regain hurricane force over open water.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Eloise was located in the Caribbean about 225 miles southeast of Havana, Cuba. The storm was moving slightly north of west at 12 m.p.h. but was expected to turn more to the northwest during the day.

After the center moved over open water, early morning satellite pictures indicated the circulation has become better organized and Eloise may regain hurricane strength again within 12 to 24 hours, the 6 a.m. advisory said.

Satellite photographs also showed the tropical depression in the Atlantic about 900 miles west of the Cape Verde islands was continuing to strengthen as it moved west-northwest at 12 m.p.h.

"It is expected to become a tropical storm today," the National Hurricane Center said, but added the storm would not affect any land area for the next several days.

A Civil Defense spokesman said the storm caused $50 million in damage in Puerto Rico and may have caused heavy crop damage in the Dominican Republic and Haiti.

Recovery plan lacking

Sweet-and-sour is the best label for the unemployment statistics released recently. There is vinegar in the 8.4 per cent jobless rate for August, unchanged from July. Another month passed without this key index reflecting the recovery which other economic indicators began signaling earlier in the summer.

The sugar is that in the same month of August the number of Americans employed increased by 750,000. This healthy jump in the total number of jobs suggests that the recovery is no illusion. What kept the unemployment rate from coming down was the fact that the labor force — the total number of Americans holding jobs or seeking work — was increasing at the same pace new jobs were being filled.

What this tells us is that the rehiring that began at many plants and factories this summer and the creation of new jobs has to proceed at a quickening pace before the economy will begin absorbing workers faster than the labor force itself increases.

Sustained growth is the key, and President Ford outlined the dimensions which that growth must reach in his talk to California businessmen recently. Business and industry, he said, must invest $4 trillion to create the 11 million new jobs needed by 1980 to keep our labor force occupied and self-supporting.

Assuring the flow of capital and credit for that investment and stimulating the competitive enterprise that creates jobs must be the thrust of economic policy in the coming years. The trouble is, the United States is as much at sea in terms of establishing long-range economic policy as it is in formulating a long-range energy policy.

While the government might claim that its tax cuts and other pump-priming devices helped turn the economy around this year, those measures are creating a federal budget deficit which Congress now projects at $68.8 billion for the current fiscal year — or nearly $10 billion higher than what President Ford's economists regard as the upper limit to avoid renewed inflation. Indeed, the rise in the wholesale price index reported recently adds to the fear that inflation is renewing its vigor.

Inflation and the fear of it are not the ingredients of sustained economic growth. Neither is heavy government borrowing to finance budget deficits, which might have short-term benefits in an emergency but is disastrous as a long-term policy. Neither is the elaborate structure of regulatory agencies which the President has identified as a major impediment to competition and growth. Neither are tax laws which limit sources of investment capital. Yet those are features of what passes for economic policy today — a combination of short-term expedients and outdated tax and regulatory policies.

A return of confidence has been evident in America in recent months. That confidence and the economic growth it nourishes can be sustained when the government lays down a clearer picture of where its own economic policies will be taking us in the future.

Doing the Big Apple

The Democrats from all the states and territories will gather in New York City for their quadrennial nominating convention next July. The location was made official by their convention committee recently.

It should be quite a barbecue. Not having had a president since 1968, the Democrats will be hungry for a winner. It appears there will be no lack of candidates for the nomination. Unless a clear choice emerges from the many presidential primary elections, the convention will be open for maneuver, for combinations, for the unexpected.

The last time the Democrats met in New York, in 1924, it went to 103 ballots, lasted 16 days, and many delegates ran out of money. Some of them tried to adjourn the convention to Kansas City.

Such a marathon today would be exhausting for the television audience as well as for the delegates. It probably couldn't happen. The entire country would insist on an early decision to bring back regular network programs.

Meanwhile, however, New York's reputation as the country's Big Apple, is going to get a much-needed polishing. Congratulations, Mayor Beame, and good luck.

KING FEATURES

FOR DEMOCRATS
Bylaws Battle in the Making

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — The Democratic National Committee is on a tough spot. It was put there by its own Bylaws Committee — set up and hand-picked by national chairman Robert Strauss only a few months ago as a device for getting around the deadlocked faction-riddled Compliance Review Commission (CRC).

At an unpublicized meeting the Bylaws Committee submitted a comprehensive set of regulations for selection of delegates to next year's nominating convention — the job the CRC has been futilely grappling with since early this year, chiefly because of leftists' obstructive insistence on so-called "affirmative action in all party affairs."

While adhering to the "affirmative action" requirement of the charter, adopted by the party last year, the Bylaws Committee interpreted that so as to give state organizations latitude to formulate their own plans for meeting this provision.

Notably excluded were quotas or numerical ratios of any kind, and specific representation by minorities, women, youths and other segments.

These gimmicks are the favorite stratagems of the militants to manipulate control of local and state organizations and, as the McGovernites strikingly demonstrated the 1972, the national convention.

Omission of these radical contrivances quickly stirred up a hornet's nest of factional opposition.

Momentous Showdown
Leftists served notice they would submit a dissenting report when the National Committee meets next month to pass on the proposed moderate bylaws.

It's a toss-up what will happen. Generally, committee insiders are of the view the bylaws will be approved. They admit there will likely to be an acrimonious factional brawl — with militants doing their utmost to water down or completely rewrite the recommendations to suit their ideological ends.

What the National Committee does on these moderate bylaws could well determine the 1976 Democratic presidential slate.

Two backstage factors support the inside opinion the bylaws will be approved:

(1) National chairman Strauss favors them. He ought to because he quietly had a big hand in their drafting. He worked closely with the three Bylaws Committee leaders who compiled the 20-page report — chairman Sheldon Cohen, former Internal Revenue commissioner, and co-chairmen Patricia Roberts Harris and Richard Samuels.

(2) Most state chairmen are for the bylaws. In fact, they were primarily responsible for Strauss's naming the Bylaws Committee to do what the CRC, bogged down in factional feuding, wasn't able to do. The frustrated and disgusted state chairmen demanded Strauss top pussyfooting and "do something."

While Strauss was not at the Bylaws Committee meeting, his right-hand assistant was keeping a watchful eye on the proceedings and deftly steering them.

Secret Alliance
Despite coy disavowals, there are definite ties between McGovern and Humphrey forces — for a common purpose. Their aim is to stop Sen. "Scoop" Jackson — current frontrunner.

Chief mover is Sen. George McGovern, who has never forgotten or forgiven Jackson's plain talking in the 1972 pre-convention battle. Also strongly held against him by McGovern is Jackson's powerful insistence on maximum U.S. military defenses, and close relations with labor forces, outspoken against McGovern in 1972.

There is irony in McGovern's allying with Humphrey. In 1972, it was the voluble Minnesota who, in effect, gave the coup de grace to McGovern's loudly-touted "soak the rich" tax plan.

Humphrey torpedoed it in a televised debate between them during the California primary — by pointing out that the grandiose scheme would cost more than $200 billion. Even McGovern appeared startled by that disclosure, and from then on had little to say about his "pie in the sky" come-on.

While Humphrey and McGovern claim they are not actively running for President, both have lightning rods up and both are still hopefully dreaming of another shot at the prize. They pass up no chance to further these yearnings.

Busily promoting the "get Jackson" operation is Alan Baron, chunky radical whom McGovern installed on his senatorial staff at $38,000 some months ago.

Baron is a highly adept and resourceful political manipulator and operator. While nominally McGovern's "press man," Baron actually is his principal campaign wheeler-dealer. It was Baron who took the lead in bringing McGovern and Humphrey together to oppose Jackson.

For that purpose, Baron has been zealously wooing Humphrey and adroitly playing up to him.

Phantom Candidate
Sargent Shriver's "now-you-see-it, now-you-don't" presidential campaign is about to enter a new stage — so he says.

The Kennedy brother-in-law and McGovern running-mate is telling (privately highly doubtful) friends that he is getting ready to embark on a "nationwide" tour to sound out public sentiment.

One politico suggested Shriver undertake a walkathon.

"You've got to do something to get your campaign off the ground," advised the oldtimer. "If you were in the baking business, I'd say you need a lot of yeast. In place of that, I'd advise either walking, or bicycling, or ballooning. Something different to call attention to yourself. Otherwise you're in a bad way."

What Shriver does about these ideas remains to be seen.

SENSING THE NEWS
Feds' Spending Policy Keeps Taking Us Down

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
Prof. Robert Triffin of Yale University, writing in The World Today published in England, has coined the word "inflation" to describe the economic situation now facing the United States and other advanced industrial countries.

"Inflation," Dr. Triffin says, is shorthand for inflationary recession. One need not be an economist to understand that term. Every housewife encounters the reality of "inflation" when she finds that prices are rising in the midst of recession. According to classical economic theory, prices should drop during a recession.

What Dr. Triffin finds knocks holes in the euphoric view one hears expressed this fall, namely that things are getting much better.

Dr. Triffin states that "the signs of an incipient world recession — or even depression — are multiplying everywhere." He lists the depressing details:

"The growth of real Gross National Product, nearly uninterrupted since the end of World War II, is now sharply slowed down or even reversed in more and more countries."

The professor adds: "Unemployment has risen well over three million in the countries of the European Community. Interest rates have soared up to two or three times their previous levels over the last decade, and yet failed to sustain the interest of investors."

The all-important question is why the Western world is in a recession verging on a depression. Prof. Triffin cites the "explosion of oil prices in the autumn of 1973." But he pinpoints excessive spending as the major evil, referring to the "excessively permissive" or "accommodating" rates of expenditures far in excess of available productive capacity.

There, indeed, is the central evil of our times. The United States government, for example, is spending much more than it is obtaining in tax revenues. This year's planned deficit may total $60 billion. Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has warned of an $80 billion deficit next year. Is it any wonder that the country is in a recession verging on a depression?

Yet the Executive and Legislative branches persist in compounding the spending follies of recent years. President Ford opted for a planned deficit, instead of conducting a last-ditch fight for a balanced budget. The liberal-dominated 94th Congress has no idea but to throw the taxpayers' money at problems. In addition, the liberal coalition systematically opposes any measure designed to increase the supply of domestic fuel and reduce dependence on imported oil.

In the international arena, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger actually proposes giving more money to backward countries seeking handouts. In a recent speech at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Kissinger said Americans should make a permanent commitment to share food with Third World nations.

Such proposals are fantastic. The American people aren't under any moral obligation to prop up Third World nations that oppose capitalist investment and prefer counterproductive socialism.

In view of all this, one can see that the United States is suffering "inflation" as a result of the incredible folly of those in high places who make key foreign policy and economic decisions.

"Inflation" is the result of poor leadership and national irresponsibility. A nation that persists in such irresponsibility and fails to obtain effective leadership is a nation bound to experience suffering. Certainly, it will experience the bitter, lesson of depression.

Dear Abby

Second Spouse Says: Step-kids Go or He Will

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was a divorcee with six children for nine years. Then I married a man who is 10 years my junior. My two youngest children made their home with us. (All of the others were on their own.)

The last two are now 17 and 18 and neither is sufficiently mature to leave home. Maybe it's my fault for not pushing them hard enough, but the fact remains that they still need me.

My husband has issued an ultimatum: "Either your kids go or I do. I am tired of supporting them!"

Abby, my love for this man is indescribable, but I can't send my children away.

How much do I owe my husband? My children? Myself?
TORN APART

DEAR TORN: In my opinion, a man who would give his wife such an ultimatum knows that she will choose her children — which is what I think he really wants.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and my boyfriend is 22. We've gone together for a year. He lives 30 miles from my home and drives over to be with me about four times a week.

He says he loves me, but we sure do fight a lot. And every time we have a fight, he asks me to give him all the presents back that he gave me, plus a check to cover the expense of gas for all the trips he made to see me.

Do you think we should take a vacation from each other for a while?

He wants to marry me, but I'm not sure we can get along with each other. If we do break up, should I return his gifts plus the money for his gas?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: A "vacation" from each other is a splendid idea. Date others and hope that he grows up in the meantime. If you break up, return his gifts and tell him the gas was on him.

DEAR ABBY: This is trivial, I suppose, but I need a "professional" answer and don't know where else to turn. I hope you can help me.

A baby boy was born illegitimately in our family, and he was given up for adoption when he was one-week-old. The natural grandmother insists on counting this child as her "grandchild." She even included him in a family obituary! I think she is wrong. Your comments, please. Thank you.
WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: A child given up for adoption assumes the name of his adoptive parents and becomes a legal part of THEIR family. Of course the memory of the child may linger on in the mind of the natural grandparent, but he is no longer legally part of that family.

Portugal Forms Coalition

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Portugal's military rulers today announced the formation of a new coalition cabinet, severely reducing Communist influence in the government and ending three weeks of political deadlock.

The policy-making Revolutionary Council said the new cabinet, dominated by non-Communists, would probably take office tonight.

Political sources said the Socialist party will receive four cabinet posts in the new lineup, the left-center Popular Democrats two and the Communists one.

The remaining seats were earmarked for military officers and independent technocrats generally to the right of the Communists.

Politicians said there was still some disagreement over how the parties should divide the jobs at the secondary level of government, where the Communists are demanding more representation.

"If we work hard, everything should be settled," one party leader said.

Premier-designate Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo began trying to form a new cabinet Aug. 29 but his efforts were stalled by squabbles over how many posts each of the three leading parties would hold.

The sources said the makeup of the new government represented the sharpest defeat suffered by the quists and their military allies since the armed forces took power in a coup 16 months ago.

The only post to go to the Communists in the new lineup was the Public Works and Environment Ministry.

In the two previous governments, the Communists dominated the key ministries associated with the economy and labor.

The sources said the Socialists, the country's largest party, would now gain control of the economic sector.

An army captain who sided with the military alliance that forced the ouster of former pro-Communist Premier Gen. Vasco Gonçalves was slated to become labor minister, they said.

Azevedo earlier announced that the leader of the non-Communist military alliance, Army Maj. Ernesto Melo Antunes, would become foreign minister.

The council also revoked a controversial, 10-day-old censorship law that barred the press from reporting on military activities unless the government first announced the news.

The breakdown of the new cabinet roughly reflected the returns of last April's elections in which the Socialists polled 38 per cent of the vote, the Popular Democrats 26 per cent and the Communists 12.5 per cent.

Political sources said the Communists' price for backing down on their demands was increased representation at secondary levels of government.

Ford To Open Oklahoma Fair

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — President Ford today visits the Oklahoma state fair, dedicates a bicentennial project and meets Republican contributors in his second tour of the Southwest in one week.

Ford campaigned in Kansas, Missouri and Texas last week and Vice President Rockefeller came to the state last Saturday for an Oklahoma football game and talks with party members.

Today Ford officially opens the Oklahoma state fair, dedicates a bicentennial project and attends a reception for party donors paying up to $3,000 to meet the President.

Ford was hosted at the fairgrounds by Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., whom the President campaigned for last November. Bellmon won by 3,000 votes over former Rep. Ed Edmondson, D-Okla., in a contested election.

Night receptions were scheduled with party contributors paying from $100 to $3,000 each to the GOP.

Ford was to tour a fairgrounds "Horse and Cattle and Children's Barnyard" building in a tour guided by Dean McGee, Kerr-McGee oil company president and state fair president.

Ford was to dedicate the fair's "Independence Arch," an 80-foot high bicentennial project, following a 5:45 p.m. address. Fair officials estimated 35,000 persons could see the president.

Ford was to flip a switch to illuminate the arch, light a 200-candle U.S. birthday cake and activate a water fountain. At the same moment, 2,000 red, white and blue balloons will soar from the fair's space tower.

Ford returns today to California where he will blend handshaking opportunities with speeches and interviews and a little golf.

Despite some criticism that he should not be on the road so much—he has trips planned nearly every week through October — Ford believes he should maintain his personal contacts with people across the country.

Ford heads back to California today for the first time since Lynette Alice Fromme, a Charles Manson follower, pointed a loaded pistol at him in Sacramento Sept. 5.

Departing on a four-day swing, Ford will stop in Oklahoma City en route to the West Coast with two public speaking appearances, at the state fair where he will focus on farm and energy problems and at a Republican Party fund raising dinner in the evening.

Ford's schedule allows two days for golf at Pebble Beach near Monterey along with addresses at Stanford University Law School Sunday and at Disneyland before the National Association of Life Underwriters.

At Pebble Beach, Ford will be staying at the home of Ambassador to Denmark Leonard Firestone.

A White House aide said there were no plans for him to call on former President Richard Nixon at San Clemente.

Johnson To Lead Revival

Revival services will be conducted at 8 p.m. Sept. 22 to 26 at St. Mark CME Church.

The Rev. A.J. Johnson, pastor of Wesley Chapel CME Church, Henderson, will be guest evangelist.

Gospel music will be provided by the choir of the city.

Naked Truth Embarrasses Police Chief

KILLEEN, Tex. (UPI) — Nancy Wilson showed up at the police station wearing only a raincoat. Policeman Alan Mayton needed some evidence.

Police arrested Miss Wilson June 11, 1974, on charges she violated an ordinance banning nude dancing. She arrived at the station wearing only a raincoat.

Miss Wilson dropped her raincoat and posed nude for photographs shot by a police lieutenant. She was upset and sued for $50,000 damages.

Miss Wilson has settled out of court and received an apology from police chief Arthur C. Butler and Lieut. Alan Mayton, the officer who snapped her picture.

She said Butler and Mayton ordered her to remove the raincoat and pose nude for seven nude color photographs by Mayton.

"These photographs were apparently taken by the police officer in the belief that they were necessary to preserve evidence of the offense for which you were arrested," Butler said.

"In such cases, efforts will be made to obtain such photographic evidence at the scene of the alleged offense, rather than at the Killeen police station."

Mayton also apologized.

"Upon reconsideration it is my sincere belief that you should have been allowed to dress yourself instead of wearing the raincoat," Mayton said.

New Cavern Discovered At Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — Officials at Carlsbad Caverns National Park say a 106-foot tall column discovered in an undeveloped cavern in the park backcountry may be one of the tallest known cave formations in the United States.

The stalagmite formation, which has been named the "Bicentennial Column," is located in Ogle Cave, one of 60 undeveloped limestone caverns in Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

The tallest formation in Carlsbad Caverns, the developed portion of the National Park, is "Giant Dome," 62 feet tall, park service officials said.

Park Service officials also say they have found stalagmite which measures 97 feet in circumference in another undeveloped cave in the Carlsbad Caverns National Park backcountry.

Forbids Sterilization Of Retarded Youngster

LONDON (UPI) — A woman judge has forbidden the sterilization of a mentally retarded 11-year-old girl on the grounds women have a basic right to bear children.

Justice Rose Heilbron ruled this week at the end of a five-day closed hearing in a suit brought by a psychologist to prevent the operation on the unidentified girl.

The girl, from Sheffield, England, suffers from sotos syndrome, a congenital disease that causes behavioral problems and mental retardation.

Two doctors, with the consent of the girl's widowed mother, urged that she be sterilized. They said there was a risk any child she bore would inherit the disease.

Israel Begins Pullout

By United Press International
Israel has begun pulling equipment out of frontline positions in the Sinai Desert as the first step in implementing the new Middle East peace accord with Egypt.

Israeli officers at Ras Sudar, the first Sinai area to be abandoned, said recruits had already cleared miles of barbed wire and mines from outposts along the Gulf of Suez.

face-to-surface missiles and laser-guided bombs — "are basic needs in order to face danger in the future."

It was the second Israeli pullback arranged by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger since the 1973 Middle East War. Israel abandoned a strip of land along the east bank of the Suez Canal early last year.

Hunt Jury Completed

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Jury selection was completed today in the federal wiretap trial of millionaire businessmen W. Herbert and Nelson Bunker Hunt and a judge ordered testimony to begin Monday.

The Hunt brothers, sons of the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt of Dallas, are charged with hiring private detectives to tap the telephones of aides and Hunt family members.

Woodward asked attorneys to present for consideration during the weekend suggestions for his final charge to the jury, allowing for some revisions later after testimony is introduced.

Nelson Hunt, Woodward said the tape could not be played before the jury.

Scanner Code
The series of lines and numbers which are appearing on many products in the grocery store enables the stores to use a computer checkout system if desired. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Groceries by Computer May Reach Stores Here

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
A universal code for electronic cash registers which price, take inventory and re-order with a click of a button, is expected to be installed in supermarkets in Pampa within the next five years.

discussion trade magazines.
George Horn of Hom's Thriftway doesn't plan to use the scanner.
"I heard they cost about $100.00 each and I'm not going to use one," he said.

Harold Butler, manger of Furr's Family Center here, said Furr's chain operates the pricing code in a Lubbock store.
Many Piggly Wiggly stores in Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Lubbock use the scanner operator, according to David Tinson, assistant manager for the chain here.

"It is a pretty big deal to set up and use it since all items are not yet priced by the universal code," he said.
He said Pampa might have the scanners within two years.

Several states have passed laws requiring item pricing.
The California Assembly earlier this month passed and sent to the governor Senate Bill 261 that would require stores to put individual price markings on all items offered for sale.

Shriver To Announce
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sargent Shriver will become the seventh Democrat to formally declare his candidacy for the party's presidential nomination at a news conference Saturday.

Key factors in the Senate decision were reluctance of senators to vote themselves more than Ford proposed and a $1.6 billion additional cost the 8.66 per cent increase would have involved.

French Authorities To Pay Ransom to Bandit

FAVERGES, France (UPI) — French authorities announced today they will pay a masked bandit a $1.45 million ransom and give him a getaway car to save the lives of five hostages held captive in a bank.

The gunman asked that half of the ransom be made out in 500 franc ($100) notes and the rest in 100 franc ($20) used banknotes, police said.

kill one hostage every half hour.
"They are sitting on the chairs talking and smoking," the gunman said. "But I don't allow them to go to the toilet. One of them already managed to get away," he said.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., told his colleagues, "Congress does not deserve a pay raise... They haven't earned it." Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., added he did not feel "the supergrades and Congress merit an increase."

The decision was made to protect the lives of the hostages," Haute Savoie county Prefect Robert Hayem told a news conference.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Friends:
I just got my heart wrung out because I showed up at a birthday party and it was my duty to light all those 100 birthday candles...

The darling gentleman who ran it said to me (AFTER the first candle died down — before the 44th was lit...)

"Don't you have a solution for this? Half the 100 candles don't even light. WHY?" (And he wanted a definite answer right then.)

On a stage with cameras flipping and TV going, just how can a 105-pound gal fix it immediately?

And that doesn't mean five minutes later, folks.

SO ol' Heloise (and I sure am — 56 now, but my tomato plants are growing), thought the answer was to light each candle BEFORE any party and let them burn about 45 seconds. That means until the wick is black, and THEN blow each (or the) candle out.

They relight immediately. Or did you know that? All you have to do is just be sure that the wick (that's the string part in the middle of the candle), is burned a wee bit and then blow it out.

Absurd, AIN'T it? I thought everybody knew this.

But — since I was told by a boss that this should appear in a column soon — don't think I didn't follow directions...

So light all your candles, and let 'em burn a bit. It's gonna break your heart to waste that smidgen of wax, but don't let it bother you, folks.

It's gonna pay, and say in the long way, "the day you're gonna need it."

Love for every birthday and every candle you light ANYWHERE, ANYTIME.

Because I love you, Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I wish I could take the credit for this idea, but it doesn't belong to me. My mother-in-law deserves it all.

When you find an onion that has sprouted while in storage — its middle is soft and unfit for use — don't throw it away.

Put it in water and let it grow. When the tops are high enough, cut them off and use them to add color and flavor to salads or in cooking.

After awhile, the tops will grow again, so don't throw them out with just one cutting.

Marilyn Miller
Dear Heloise:
When you plan on grinding cranberries for a particular recipe, freeze them first and you won't have juice going everywhere.

I stumbled on this by accident, but it sure eliminates a big mess.

Mrs. C.A. Witt

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:
Just love to read your column — I feel as if you are my good neighbor, Mother, and best friend all rolled up into one... My favorite saying is, "Heloise says to..."

(Now if you could only tell me how I could eat all of my favorite desserts and breads without gaining weight!)

Eunice Mooradian

I'd be some kind of wizard, wouldn't I? Sorry, honey-chile... No way!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Never throw away the little slivers of cloth when you cut out a new item.

Put them in a bread wrapper and use them to stuff a pillow. Make an inner lining first if desired.

Sloofoot

Wouldn't this be great for all the double-knit slivers (not scraps — save them for something else) we wind up with. I've always just tossed mine in the wastebasket, but no more. Thanks, Sloofoot (whoever you are)...

Heloise

THIS COLUMN is written for you, the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, SEPT. 20

Your birthday today: Let the credit pass in this year of general personal improvement. Lump-sum settlements at least make you conscious of where you stand and leave you free to start something else on a sure footing. Relationships are peaceful or amenable to reconciliation. Today's natives are always eager to build sidelines into big enterprises, experience recurring ups and downs in their main vocations.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: As personal projects expand and improve, you have to put in much more work and perhaps increase your investments. It takes extraordinary tact to cope with friends' moods.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Trivial incidents stir up endless rounds of discussion. Travel is maddeningly frustrating. You have more to gain by remaining close to home base.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Conflict arises from over-scheduling yourself. Distribute the burden among friends and get back to dealing with chores that bring earnings or some other reward.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Don't ask for favors. Put off journeys until you're sure you've got the situation fully settled and can go without complication. Family concerns clash with business. Make your choice.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Stay out of today's wheeling and dealing or speculation. Search for basic information that is useful for future investments. Associates clash but it's not your job to bring them together.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Go early and directly to your intended destination. Attend to business as much as you can. Relationships are tested; you gain insight on how to improve them.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You're in for more exertion and longer hours. Pace your efforts; avoid haste and waste by examining where your actions lead. Money becomes the main topic of controversy.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Associates are ready to defend their program. Don't provoke them or participate in their schemes. A soft answer disarms the opposition and gives you time to reorganize.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Take your pick early and do the necessary to make it feasible. If you select business, don't let personal ventures intrude on matters at hand. Mend your fences locally this evening.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal came up in the Life Masters Pairs Championship of 1975. South arrived at a game contract which the defenders could have defeated immediately. But the defense took the wrong twist — and our declarer twisted it a little more to score an overtrick. Neither side vulnerable East deals.

NORTH
♦ K Q 10 6
♥ 10 7 3
♦ K J 3
♠ 8 7 4

WEST EAST
♦ J 8 7 4 2 ♠ 9
♥ 9 2 ♥ Q 4
♦ A Q 9 6 4 ♠ 10 8 5 2
♠ J ♦ A K Q 9 5 3

SOUTH
♦ A 5 3
♥ A K J 8 6 5
♠ 10 6 2

The bidding:
East South West North
1 ♠ 1 ♥ 1 ♦ 3 ♥
Pass 4 ♥ Dbl. Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

It should be stated that North's jump to three hearts was in accord with the North-South system: the bid showed 9-11 high-card points.

West's opening lead of the club jack was overtaken by East's queen. East then paused for a few moments to consider what to lead next. He finally came to the conclusion (via wishful thinking) that his partner, West, rated to possess the ace of spades. So, at trick two, he led his singleton spade to West's (presumed) ace so that at trick three East could trump a second spade lead. But it didn't work out that way.

East's spade lead was won by dummy's ten when West played low, after which two trump leads picked up the defenders' four trumps. Declarer next cashed three more spade tricks, discarding a club from his own hand. Then came the jack of diamonds, which was won by West's queen.

West had just become end-played. If he returned a spade, it would be ruffed with dummy's last trump as South, on this trick, would discard his remaining club. And if, instead, West played back the ace of diamonds, South would ruff it. He would then re-enter dummy via the trump ten and get rid of his last club on the high king of diamonds. If, upon winning with his diamond queen, West chose to lead a low diamond, South would put up the board's king, to win the trick with that card.

It is apparent, of course, that if East had played normally at trick two, and had continued playing clubs, the defenders would have won the first three tricks in this suit. With West giving a high-low signal in diamonds on the second and third club leads (first the nine and then the four), East would lead a diamond at trick four, and West's face would take the setting trick.

Miss Shirley Presents Club Meat Program

The program, "Meat Alternatives" was presented by Marilyn Shirley, assistant county extension agent, at the recent meeting of the Jane Long Home Demonstration Club. The group opened the meeting at the Court House Annex with the Club Prayer.

Mrs. Paul Graham was awarded the door prize and refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Rusty Williams.

Members present were Mmes. Rusty Williams, Neil Fulton, Bill Carter, Paul Graham, Glenn Knight. Guests were Marilyn Shirley, Mrs. Ozzello and Mrs. Elaine Houston, agent.

The next meeting will be Oct. 14 in the Court House Annex with Mrs. Glenn Knight, hostess. The program will be "Label Logies" given by Mrs. Houston.

Walters Interviews Quinn

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — When a man says something complimentary about a woman, it's criticism, but if a woman criticizes another woman she's being catty. Nobody can accuse Barbara Walters of being catty about Sally Quinn.

To this day she has never said anything disparaging about the Washington newswoman CBS brought in to co-host the CBS Morning News two years ago.

This week Miss Quinn is appearing on Miss Walters' "Not For Women Only" talk show along with three other successful newspaperwomen — UPI White House correspondent Helen Thomas, New York Times Op Ed Page editor Charlotte Curtis and syndicated columnist Harriet Van Horne.

The talk centered Wednesday on Miss Quinn's disastrous but brief time as co-anchorperson of the morning show. Again the audience had to wonder what Barbara Walters really thought.

There had been the build-up Miss Quinn was given, including a magazine piece headlined, Good morning, I am Sally Quinn and CBS brought me here to make trouble for Barbara Walters. That was the tone of the publicity about Miss Quinn.

It was Miss Quinn's combination of ego and amateurishness that eventually did her in. She believes she was a "natural" in the newspaper business, rising rapidly at The Washington Post despite her lack of journalistic education or training. She thought she could repeat the miracle on television.

Barbara Walters, on the other screen, is a television professional who has always done her homework, works killing hours, and has spent more than a decade climbing to the top of the daytime ladder. That was the instant success spot CBS had a mind for Miss Quinn.

Miss Walters probably came as close as she ever has to expressing her views, a sort of baffled annoyance, as she questioned Miss Quinn yesterday.

In a reference to Miss Quinn's book on her experience, "We Are Going To Make You a Star," Miss Walters said she "kind of resented" when Miss Quinn wrote about drinking every afternoon, about television being an industry of fear in which many individuals survive through drinking and taking pills.

Later, when Miss Quinn said that she would not have accepted the CBS job if she had been told it would require six months of training, Miss Walters asked: "Why not? We all have to train. Why this arrogance, really...?"

Miss Quinn insisted her attitude was not based on arrogance but on the fact that it was curiosity that prompted her to accept the television job, because it was handed to her on a platter and she could start at the top.

When Miss Quinn said her starting salary was $56,000 and she classified that as "not very much," Miss Walters questioned her statement and went on to say:

"If you are comparing yourself to me 11 years later, I started out and I was so glad to get it, at what (pay) scale was, which was a lot of money for television — $750 a week. I was grateful. I worked my tail off."

Miss Walters talked about The Washington Post calling to ask how she felt about Sally Quinn. She admitted, "...I don't have all that confidence, I didn't want you to knock me off the air, I didn't want to lose my job."

She added that she "felt that if you really didn't make it, that it was going to be tougher for all women...I did root for you and I felt that a lot of the things that happened were a reflection on all of us."

At another point, Miss Walters mentioned Miss Quinn's "reputation as a sex pot" and said, "I never felt so drab in my entire life."

Somehow the whole thing was a little like the ant and the grasshopper, complete with happy moral ending that hard work pays off.

A popular necklace look for fall and winter mixes cultured pearls with semiprecious stones: coral, jade, lapis lazuli, among others.

Navy and gray are the newest looks in furs for fall.

Looking for real fur garments from nonendangered species? Pick squirrel, muskrat, raccoon, mole, marmot, bassarisk (civet cat), sable, chinchilla or nutria.

Fill in the necklace of a shirt or simple dress with a shiny silver tube-like collar, from which a colored stone such as tiger's eye, onyx or malachite is suspended.

Lariats are one jewelry answer for a woman who wants a multi-purpose design. They can be worn as necklaces or looped around the waist as swinging belts.

Pick eyeglass frames to enhance the shape of your face. Oval or round styles complement a square face; wide squares, a round face; oversize circles or squares, a long and narrow face, or to draw attention away from a square jaw.

Eyeglass frames will wear better if you put on and remove them by gripping the earpieces midway with both hands.

Johnston Family Has Local Reunion

The family of Roy and Effie Johnston held a family reunion Sunday in the lobby of Highland General Hospital, where Johnston is a patient. Mrs. Virgie Poole, 2421 Navajo hosted dinner for the group at her home.

Every member of the family was present, which included four daughters of the couple; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Virgie Poole, all of Pampa and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis, Perryton.

All eleven grandchildren were present, also, three great-grandchildren and a family friend of Perryton.

EVERYONE WELCOME

The mother church of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, Immanuel Church stands on The Green in historic New Castle.

Delaware's Historic Churches . . .

Religion and the Revolution

The story of the American Revolution is interwoven with the patriotism and courage shown by members of the colonial clergy. From the American point of view, freedom of religion, as well as political and economic rights, was clearly at stake in the revolutionary struggle.

Today, the role of religion in the American Revolution is being revived in the historic old churches of Delaware, where American religious heritage has lain dormant in the silent churchyards and shrines for the last 200 years. At the Welsh Tract Baptist Church outside Newark, the military and religious conflicts are dramatically united near the site of the only Revolutionary War engagement fought on Delaware soil.

In early September, 1777, one of the first Stars and Stripes was unfurled in land battle at Cooch's Bridge. Here Washington's troops attempted to delay the British relocations at the creek while the Commander-in-Chief and Lafayette hurriedly assembled Continental Army units for the defense of Philadelphia.

Outnumbered, the Americans retreated along an old colonial post road and reassembled at the Welsh Tract Church. The advancing British continued their fire, and one cannon ball passed through the church.

Two centuries have witnessed few changes at this oldest primitive Baptist church in the country. The fundamentalist religion is still preached on one Sunday each month by self-taught elders in the severely plain meeting house, where the cannon's scar remains evident in a brick-over portion of the wall. Old Welsh Tract Church is one of 16 historic attractions on the "George Washington Country Heritage Trail," a self-guided tour of the five mid-Atlantic states, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C., that visits sites associated with the life of the First President. A side trip to other Delaware churches—all within two hours' driving time—offers an interesting Bicentennial tour of religion in colonial America.

Nearby is New Castle, a small town which served as the capital of Delaware in the early Revolutionary War era and today retains much of its colonial charm. It is believed that William Penn stood on the present site of Immanuel Episcopal Church in 1683 to conduct the solemn "livery of seizure" ceremony, accepting "turf, twig, soil, and water" to symbolize his taking possession of Pennsylvania and the three lower counties on the Delaware River.

Across the village green stands New Castle Presbyterian Church, its interior restored to an authentic pre-revolutionary appearance. In March of 1776, the year Benjamin Franklin was born, the Presbyterian minister from New Castle met with six others from the middle colonies to organize the first Presbytery in America. The present building was erected the following year end original hand-hewn oak beams, fashioned by expert ship carpenters, still support the gambrel roof of the old church.

Other attractions on the George Washington Country Heritage Trail include the U.S. Capitol, the battlefield which ended the American Revolution at Yorktown, a colonial mill on Maryland's eastern shore, Independence Hall in Philadelphia, and the favorite resort of the colonists, Berkeley Springs, West Virginia.

Additional information on the George Washington Country Heritage Trail is available by writing: George Washington Country, 15 South Fifth Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

Guests Attend Bible Study

Six members of the Baptist Young Women of the First Baptist Church were welcomed as guests at the recent meeting of the Maxine Ray Round Table Study Group. They were Linda Clark, June Stone, Gloria Stephens, Jan Stroud, Vicky Taylor and Nell Stewart, leader.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Claudia Everly. The Calendar of Prayer was given by Bertha Anderson.

Mrs. Smith reviewed the book, "Tramp For the Lord" by Corrie TenBoom told about Miss TenBoom's imprisonment in Germany during World War II. Mrs. Smith quoted from the book, "as she waits for the Lord's direction and goes where He leads," makes her a tramp for the Lord. The book is a sequel to "The Hiding Place," by Miss TenBoom, which has been made into a movie and will be showing in Pampa sometime this fall.

Others attending were Helen Hopp, Roberta Wood, Dorothy Buzzard and Dorothy Porter.

The Cathedral in Lausanne, Switzerland, was built in 1160 and consecrated in 1275. It is 330 feet long and has a belfry just under 200 feet high.

AMNESTY ASKED
RIDGECREST, N.C. (UPI)—A Southern Baptist seminary professor, Prof. Henlee H. Barnette, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, has called on President Ford to grant universal and unconditional amnesty to Vietnam war opponents and said the government "has not shown the same kind of compassion toward our own children" as it had the Vietnam refugees.

Combs Family Slates Sunday Crusade Here

A revival will begin Sunday morning at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church at 1700 Alcock. Evening services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night through Sept. 28.

The Combs Family from Sarasota, Fla. will preach and sing. This family tours the nation in evangelistic crusades. They have recorded several albums of sacred songs which will be available during the revival.

This group has conducted three revival campaigns in Pampa. They also have been in neighboring churches and area camp meetings.

Pampa Church Will Welcome Interim Pastor

Gordon Downing, currently director of the Bible Chair at Amarillo College in Amarillo, has been named interim minister of Pampa Church of Christ.

He also served as director of the Bible Chair at West Texas State University in Canyon for 14 years.

Worship hours Sunday at the church, located at 738 McCullough, are 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

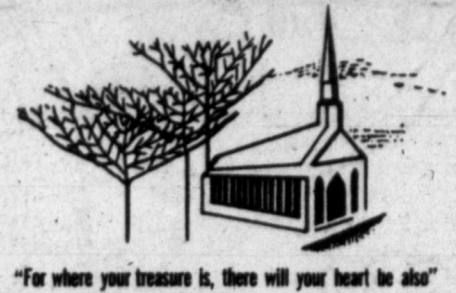

Church Page

Group Sings In Sunday Area Service

A special song worship service at 7 p.m. Sunday in McLean First United Methodist Church will feature Jody Grubb and the Tackett Family of Pampa. Also local talent and guests from Lefors.

Guest speaker for the evening will be James Clieft according to Rev. Harmon Meixner, pastor.

An investment in Your Future
...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

NET

One of the definitions for a net is a trap or a snare. A net is used to catch a fish. There are times in every man's life when, like Job, he feels that God has trapped him in a net. Job 19:6 reads, "Know now that God hath overthrown me, and hath compassed me with his net."

But our troubles and afflictions are never caused by our God. Moreover, His Word says He is ever faithful to deliver His people. The Psalmist asserts: "Mine eyes are ever toward the Lord; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net."

How wonderful are His promises. These promises are proclaimed from the pulpit by your pastor each week for the blessing and edifying of God's people. Won't you attend church this week and partake of this blessing?

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Defense Contractor Bills Parties to Government

Defense Contractor Bills Socialist's Parties to Government
By PETER GRUENSTEIN
Pampa News

Washington Bureau Chief
WASHINGTON — Northrop Corp. billed the government for the costs of lavish parties — given by Washington hostess Anna Chennault and attended by some top Pentagon brass — held for the purpose of selling the aerospace firm's F-5 fighter jet to Asian governments, according to Department of Defense and Northrop documents.

Northrop was routinely reimbursed by DOD for the thousands of dollars the Chennault parties cost — in addition to at least $860,000 in other allegedly illegitimate expenses. The Defense Contract Auditing Agency (DCAA) is presently investigating questionable expenses claimed and received by Northrop said to be far in excess of $860,000. DCAA is also investigating other major contractors' expenses.

Madame Chennault, the widow of Gen. Claire Chennault of Flying Tiger fame, is cited as a "consultant" in two internal Northrop documents. One of the documents lists a total of $871,000 in Northrop expenses during 1972 — including $11,000 paid to Chennault — which the DCAA had ruled "unallowable."

While the Northrop document did not detail the Chennault money further, a draft of a Pentagon report indicated at least some of the $11,000 — and possibly more — went for large parties attended by corporate executives, foreign officials and some top U.S. military brass. The purpose of the parties was described as selling Northrop's F-5 jet, a lightweight fighter, to Asian countries. Chennault's principal duty as a Northrop consultant was described as giving parties.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., who has been investigating Northrop's relationship with DOD, charged that the Chennault expenses "amount to a Defense Department subsidy of the Washington Cocktail Circuit. Every time the Pentagon buys a weapons system for Northrop, the taxpayer shares the costs of these parties."

Armed Services Procurement represented illegal corporate contributions laundered through consultants, but a Northrop spokesman declined to say how much.

However, the firm has already reimbursed DOD for $370,927 in illegal corporate political contributions made over a number of years and billed to the government. According to a source, Northrop failed to keep required documentation relating to its consulting expenses.

The disallowed corporate aircraft expenses presumably included at least one free flight specially arranged for then-Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, as well as other provided some members of Congress.

Les Daly, a Northrop vice president, said that the 1972 expenses question had been resolved between DOD and the firm for "substantially less than $871,000," although he acknowledged the Pentagon is currently investigating other questionable costs. A DCAA spokesman would neither confirm nor deny this.

Daly also said he "didn't know" whether the cost of parties given by Chennault had been billed to DOD, or what years she had served as a Northrop consultant. Asked to describe her duties as a consultant, he replied: "She was a consultant. We've already described the roles of consultants."

The Defense Contract Auditing Agency began investigating the questionable expenses Northrop billed to DOD only after the Securities and Exchange Commission launched an investigation of the firm, following the disclosure in 1973 by the Watergate Special Prosecutor that $150,000 in Northrop corporate funds had been illegally contributed to then-President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

Charles Starrett Jr., an assistant director of the CAA, said he didn't know whether illegitimate expenses charged DOD by Northrop and other large contractors would have been caught under the Pentagon's accounting system if the Watergate prosecutor had not brought them to light. He would not comment on the Chennault party expenses.

Regulation 15-205.11 prohibits companies doing business with the Defense Department from charging their entertainment expenses to DOD as part of their overhead costs.

Northrop, a major producer of fighter bombers, is also a leading exporter of U.S. warplanes, with foreign arms sales of $392 million in 1973-74.

In a second Northrop document, Chennault is listed as having received $15,000 from the firm for services as a consultant between Nov. 1, 1969 and Oct. 31, 1970, but it could not be determined whether Northrop billed the government for these expenses also. Chennault could not be reached for comment and it is not known what arrangements, if any, she had with the firm in other years.

Called by her enemies "the dragon lady," Chennault is known as an astute and charming woman with close ties both to leading American conservatives and right-wing government officials in Asia.

In 1968, a government wiretap on her telephones revealed that she had tried to "undermine" the Vietnam peace talks by attempting to persuade South Vietnam Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky to change his mind about going to Paris. Furious, then-President Lyndon Johnson reportedly considered prosecuting Chennault under the Logan Act, which forbids private citizens from entering into direct negotiations with foreign governments.

During the Nixon Administration, Chennault's parties were considered among the most glamorous and prestigious in Washington social circles. Given in her $175,000 Watergate penthouse, they were frequently attended by top Administration officials, including Henry Kissinger.

Among the disallowed 1972 Northrop expenses DCAA was seeking to recover in December 1973, according to the first Northrop document, were: $504,000 in "consulting fees and expenses"; $208,000 in use of the firm's passenger aircraft for "noncompany business"; $110,000 in "public relations"; $15,000 in "legal fees"; and $34,000 in four other areas.

Part of the $504,000 in consulting costs charged to DOD

Gas Suits Separated

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Seven lawsuits against a South Texas gas supplier charging failure to deliver sufficient quantities of natural gas will be tried separately, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

The suits — totaling more than 100 — are filed against a woman chili cooker who says her contest is unfair.

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — The only female contestant in Saturday's annual chili cooking contest is 117-year-old Genevieve Gutierrez. And Kasey Kirby of Houston says it is unfair.

Ms. Kirby filed suit Wednesday to force cookoff officials to allow women under 100 years of age to compete. But Joe Kohut, chili contest chairman for the annual "Chiliympiad", said the suit in county court is trivial.

"I have bent all I will bend. I think I have been very fair in allowing women 100 years of age and over to cook," Kohut said. "Let justice prevail."

Judge Charles Ramsey of the Hays County Court at Law scheduled a hearing on Ms. Kirby's request for an injunction for 4:30 p.m. Friday at the San Marcos Convention Center — site of Saturday's chili cookoff.

Saturday's chili cooking contest has 134 contestants — 133 men and Mrs. Gutierrez.

"She attributed her longevity to eating a bowl of chili every morning," said Bill Veidt, spokesman for the chili cookoff. Veidt said the suit by Ms. Kirby is "serious up to a point."

The suit seeks to open the competition to all women. In past years, only men were allowed to compete.

$916 million — were filed against Coastal States Gas Producing Co. and its subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., for alleged breach of contract.

The suits seek damages to cover the costs incurred by the utilities and cities to buy fuel oil to replace the natural gas in electrical generating.

The court ruling Wednesday was an attempt to settle jurisdictional disputes involving four district judges trying the various suits.

Attorneys for the gas company said the suits were similar and should be combined under one class action suit pending in Harris County.

"The piecemeal adjudication of six different claims doesn't make any judicial sense at all," said Lo-Vaca attorney Joseph Jaworski. "The expense of trying that case seven times will ruin us."

M. W. Parse, attorney for the gas supplier, said the net worth of Coastal States and Lo-Vaca was $400 million. Suits filed against the firm totaled more than $916 million.

her to discuss anything except her case.

"The press comes second to her case," Miss Good said. "She wants first to be with the ones she loves and trusts."

Miss Good said she would act as Miss Fromme's "legal runner" and would take up most of her visiting time scheduled for Thursday nights. She said reporters would have to negotiate with jailers for interviews at other times.

On Wednesday, MacBride ruled out for the time being the possibility of a news conference with Miss Fromme. But Sacramento County Sheriff's Department agreed to allow Miss Fromme to meet with reporters during her regular visiting hours.

Bill Miller, a spokesman for the sheriff, said visitors, including reporters, could submit their names to Miss Fromme on a list taken at the jail each Thursday night and she would decide whom she wished to see.

Fromme Wants To Be Her Own Attorney

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme is going back to court Friday to enter a plea to a charge she tried to assassinate President Ford and to ask that she be allowed to act as her own attorney.

Miss Fromme, 26, preparing her own case from her isolation jail cell, also will ask again that she be released without bail so she can participate in her defense.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride lowered her bail Tuesday from the maximum $1 million to $350,000. Her attorney, federal defender E. Richard Walker, said at the time he would ask for reconsideration of his request for no bail at the hearing.

Her roommate and fellow Manson cult member, Sandra Good, 31, said Miss Fromme probably would not have time to meet with reporters during her regular one-hour-a-week allowed for jail visitors, despite a modified gag order that allows

Associated General Contractors' adoption of the proposed constitution would cause new taxes and create a fulltime legislature with enormous power.

"Just this year the legislature went through a billion-dollar surplus like it was branch water," McKnight said. "God knows what future legislatures will do if they are given the full powers outlined in this so-called modern constitution."

McKnight said the legislative article of the proposed document would transfer powers now held by the people to the legislature.

Bar Backs New Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The chairman of the State Bar says the proposed state constitution will ease a criminal court backlog which threatens the constitutional guarantee to a speedy trial.

"The citizens of Texas would be horrified if they realized that the backlog of felony cases in Houston and San Antonio is so bad it would take a year just to clear the dockets even if not a single new case was filed in these two counties," Lloyd Lockridge said Wednesday.

He said the present court system does not put the judges where the workload is, but the new judiciary article of the proposed constitution would allow the supreme court to assign judges to help eliminate backlogs of cases.

"We are convinced justice is delayed unnecessarily under our present system of handling appeals of criminal cases," Lockridge said.

"All criminal appeals are bottlenecked in a single court — the Court of Criminal Appeals — it might surprise you to hear that it takes a year and a half from trial through conclusion of an appeal."

Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, told a meeting of the legislature.
