Pennypincher Pinches Stationery Allowance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — H. R. Gross, one of the top government penny-counters while he was in Congress, took $23,611.55 in stationery allowance funds into retirement with him.

Now he thinks a bill to end the practice does not go far enough.

Gross, during 26 years as a Republican House member from Iowa, railed long and often at what he considered government extravagance. So his name stood out in the House Clerk's report on those taking a stationery allowance the first six months of 1975.

Under current law, each House member gets $6,500 a year for stationery, which can be spent without account or allowed to accumulate from year to year. Gross was one of 76 former members taking their accumulated allowance in cash on retirement.

Senators do not have this break. Their stationery allowance is part of expenses which must be accounted for by voucher. Leftover money each year goes back into the Senate fund.

Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., introduced a bill last week to limit the House stationery allowance to office supplies, with leftover cash reverting to the House fund every two years.

Gross, explaining his own case, said "I operated my office on a tight budget and saved the taxpayers a good deal of money."

Informed of Studds' bill, Gross told UPI, "That's one way of stopping what has been going on, but what they should do is cut back the amount of the allowance. We got something like $2,500 to $3,000 in allowance when I came to Congress. That's plenty."

"Why, they could buy tires from the stationery store (in the House office building) at one time. You can still buy a lot of unrelated items there. You can also put that money into campaign funds. That shouldn't be allowed."

Now living the Virginia suburbs, Gross paraphrased what he said so often on the House floor: "It's spending like that that's going to run this country."

Asked if he is doing any work to supplement his $23,000 a year federal pension, Gross said "No, not yet. But I'll tell you one thing, if Congress and the President don't get together and do something about this inflation I'm going to have to go out with hat in hand on the street corner."

Six Killed in Floods

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Danny Bretz and his wife have always loved the Susquehanna River, even when it is bloated by hurricane rains and sends many persons scurrying for higher ground.

The Bretzes and their 10-year-old son Geoffrey have been in a tiny plywood houseboat moored across the river from Harrisburg since last Friday night.

They rode out one of the worst floods in Pennsylvania's history. Six people were killed and early estimates put damages at more than $150 million.

"Well, we saw the water coming up toward our house and we could have stayed with friends, but we figured, what the heck, we're independent, so we stayed in the houseboat," Bretz, 31, said.

His friend, Larry Shank, 23, moored a n o t h e r small houseboat nearby. Shank has been on the river since last Wednesday night. He said a person has to be optimistic about floods.

"It's great out here, fantastic," he said. "The only problem is that people driving by on the highway look at us like we're some kind of animals. I guess we are pretty different."

There aren't many other people in Pennsylvania who feel the same about the big river, swollen to 10 feet above flood stage by rains from Hurricane Eloise.

The flood reached its peak late Friday and Saturday. Dozens of small communities along the river were partially flooded, but the damage was not as heavy as anticipated.

Most of the estimated 25,000 people who were forced from their homes in the 27,500 square mile Susquehanna River basin returned Sunday.

Many found layers of cakedon ooze — a mixture of mud and fuel oil — that had to be scraped away. But many others found flood waters did not reach predicted stages.

President Ford declared 30 counties in a corridor along the river a major disaster area, clearing the way for millions of dollars in federal aid to help farmers, businessmen and homeowners.

State and federal officials said an extensive system of dikes and levees constructed after devastating floods in 1972 saved many Pennsylvania towns.

"The people's spirit is amazing," said Police Chief John Oberdorf of the hard-hit town of Muncy, Pa. "They've been through many floods and they are already fighting to get back in business."

Their spirits got a boost as Hurricane Faye spun away from the East Coast, easing the threat of further rains.

The National Hurricane Center reported Sunday that Faye had turned toward the open North Atlantic and was "no longer a threat to land areas in North America." Weather officials also said Hurricane Gladys, in Atlantic waters to the south, was weakening.

Torrential downpours triggered by the remnants of now-dead Hurricane Eloise had sent floodwaters raging through a dozen eastern states, causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and claiming nine lives. Thousands of persons were forced from their homes by rampaging creeks and rivers.

President Ford declared a 30-county area of Pennsylvania a major disaster area, clearing the way for millions of dollars in aid to homeowners, farmers and communities along the Susquehanna River, gorged by Eloise' stormy backlash.

The river crested at the Conowingo Dam in Maryland Sunday, gushing billions of gallons of rain water into Chesapeake Bay. Thirty-three of the 53 flood gates were opened and the water level was just 10 feet from the top of the dam wall at one point. The crest marked the end of the worst flooding to hit the Mid-Atlantic states since Hurricane Agnes, which killed 50 persons in 1972.

Pennsylvania was hardest hit. A civil defense spokesman estimated damages at more than $150 million. The flood knocked out 13 water supply plants and 16 sewage treatment plants, forcing residents of small towns to boil their drinking water.

Some 3,300 National Guardsmen who assisted Saturday in evacuating about 26,000 persons from their homes turned their efforts towards the cleanup on Sunday.

Patty, Harrises Reject Jury

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris have turned down "invitations" to testify before the county grand jury about their activities in southern California in May of 1974, according to the prosecutor who will present the case against them.

Several witnesses who had contact with the SLA fugitives during that period were scheduled to appear, however, as the 23-member panel prepared to open its inquiry today.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Samuel Mayeron, who confirmed the start of the three days of hearings, also disclosed that the Harrises were expected to appear at a special hearing this morning on a petition by their attorneys for permission to participate in the closed-door grand jury proceedings.

Attorneys Leonard Weinglass, a law professor at University of Southern California, and Ed Rucker, a public defender, were granted a hearing by Superior Court Judge William Rutz on their request to question witnesses that Mayeron calls before the grand jury.

The prosecutor said Miss Hearst and the Harrises were informed by letter that they are "targets" of the probe and were "invited" to testify.

He said it is routine practice to send such letters to persons who may be subject to indictment, and in most cases the invitations are declined.

The Harrises already face 18 charges and Miss Hearst faces 19 in connection with a crime spree on May 16 and 17 of last year.

A grand jury indictment would have two primary effects — it would shorten the expected period for pretrial court proceedings and it would deny defense attorneys a chance to cross-examine witnesses before the full trial.

One of the witnesses scheduled for the three-day grand jury hearings, sources said, is Thomas Dean Matthews, the Lynwood, Calif. student allegedly kidnapped by the three after they talked with him about buying his van.

Hearst's defense team, dropping hints of its legal battle plan, worked today on strategies for getting the newspaper heiress out of jail — either by bail or for psychiatric care.

"Her health is deteriorating here and she is getting melancholy," Terence Hallinan, one of her attorneys, told reporters Sunday night after visiting Miss Hearst in the San Mateo County Jail.

He said a motion would be filed in federal court Tuesday for Miss Hearst's transfer "to a more appropriate setting in light of her medical problems," namely, the psychiatric ward of San Francisco's St. Mary's Hospital.

The facility, Hallinan said, could provide better physical and mental care for Miss Hearst, whom he said did not appear "as spaced out as when she was arrested."

In Hartford, Conn., the newest addition to the defense squad, Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey, said Sunday that California was "not a very good state" for an insanity or diminished capability plea.

He said he would advise her not to plead insanity. Bailey also said he would not seek a change of venue for the trial.

In an affidavit last week, Miss Hearst claimed she was subjected to inhumane treatment by the Symbionese Liberation Army after they kidnaped her from a Berkeley, Calif. apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. The document said she was under constant fear of death and finally joined the terrorist group that April because she thought there was no other direction to take.

Communists Take Control Of Portugal Mass Media

LISBON (UPI) — Prime Minister Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo ordered troops to occupy the nation's Communist-controlled radio and television stations today and said the move was taken to prevent Portugal's falling into anarchy.

His move triggered one of the most explosive crises in the country's 17-month-old revolution.

Troops sent to one of the stations rebelled against their orders and joined the workers. The far left called for mass protests to paralyze the country.

The Revolutionary United Front urged workers to throw up barricades in the streets and launch a general strike.

The front formed by an alliance of leftist groups appealed for soldiers and sailors to mutiny against the government and mobilize themselves on the side of the left.

"We are now in one of the most serious situations since the start of the revolution," Information Minister Antonio Almeida Santos said.

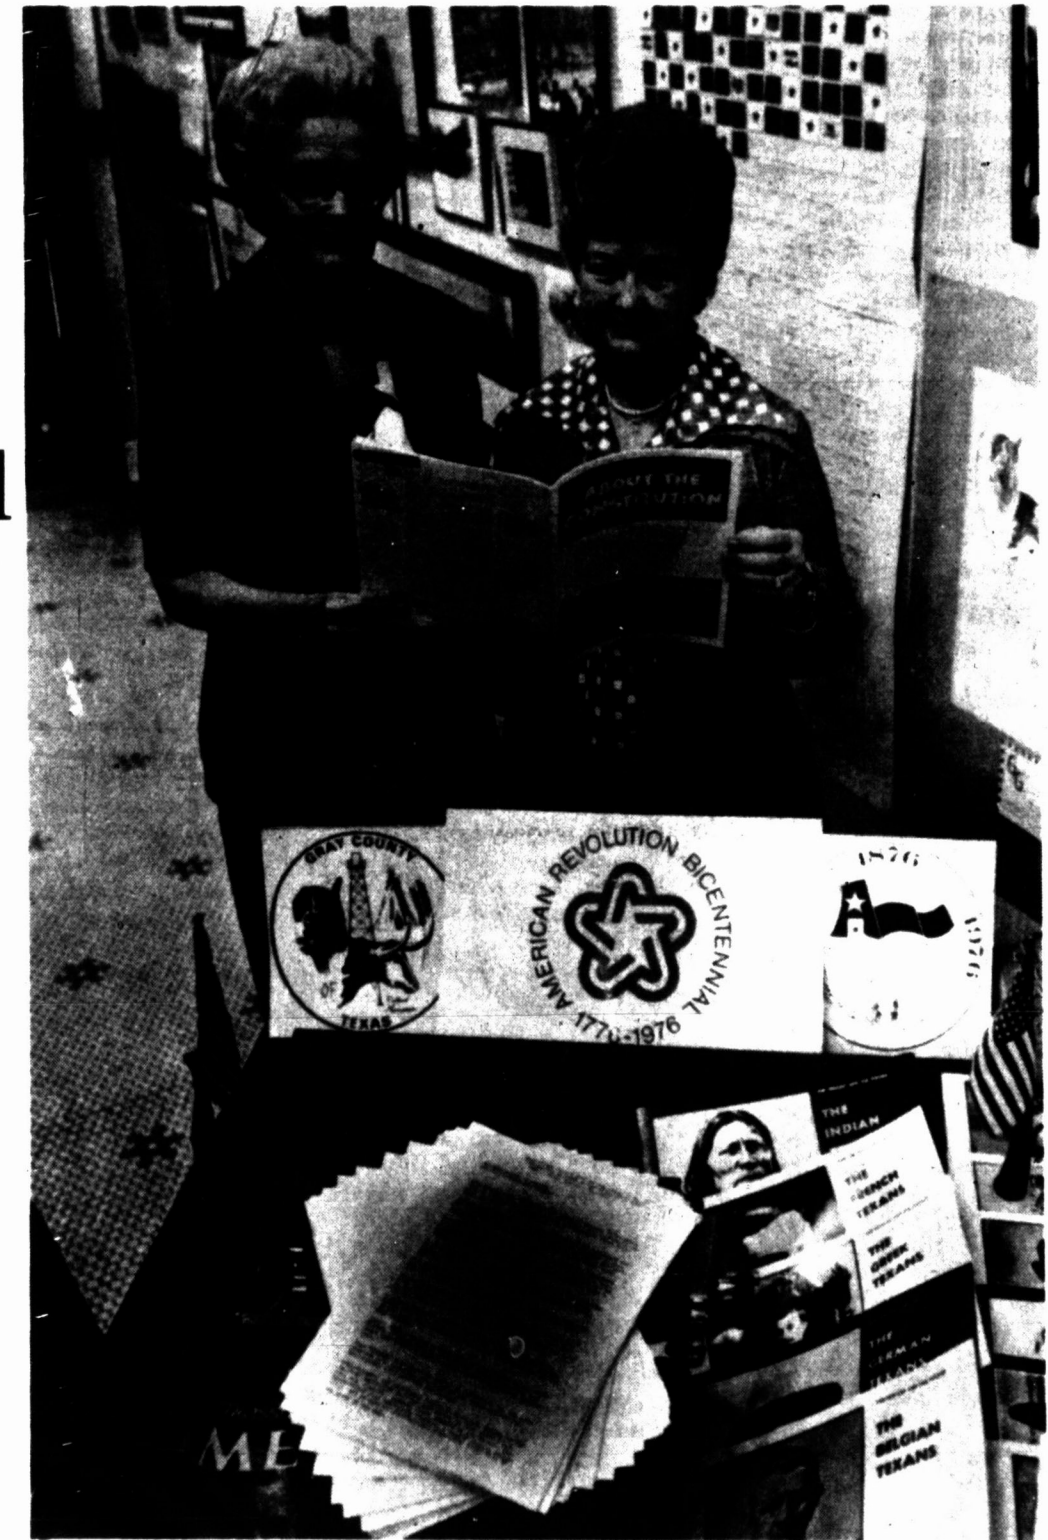

He said the prime minister would address the nation tonight.

Santos briefed the press shortly after the prime minister issued a statement saying that the action was necessary to reverse Portugal's slide towards anarchy, which he said was being promoted by the radio and television stations.

The prime minister made his move as the country emerged from a weekend of diverse mob violence that battered Lisbon and Porto and struck at the roots of governmental authority.

The occupation was effected by military forces of the three branches of the armed forces and is designed to assure nonmanipulated news at the service of the country and the revolution," a statement issued by Azevedo's office said.

Spaniards Protest Execution

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI) — Strikes in protest against Saturday's execution of five urban guerrillas paralyzed parts of the Basque country today and brought an extraordinary session of the government in Madrid to consider the violent Spanish and foreign reaction to the deaths.

Heavily armed police used clubs to quell street demonstrations in some of the Basque towns and cities. There also was a guerrilla-style $535,000 robbery in Barcelona and a vast forest fire that devastated great areas of the Basque region.

The two-day general strike was called by underground labor organizations for the four Basque provinces where extremists seek independence from Spain. It paralyzed several towns in Guipuzcoa province and idled thousands of workers in the industrial center of Bilbao.

A wave of anti-Spanish demonstrations swept Europe and Latin America Sunday and again today and Mexico called for the expulsion of Spain from the United Nations. A dozen nations recalled their ambassadors from Madrid. There were street demonstrations in Madrid Sunday by 1,500 youths shouting "Freedom" and in Lisbon, Portuguese burned the Spanish Embassy.

The executions stirred protests in Spain and abroad because of lingering hostility to the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, widespread opposition to the death penalty and because of the way the executed were tried.

They were convicted by military tribunals which, except in one case, rejected all defense witnesses and evidence. One trial that produced five death sentences—three of them later commuted—lasted three hours after civilian defense lawyers had been expelled for interrupting proceedings with protests.

The government said it estimated that 15 per cent of the total work force of Guipuzcoa province heeded the strike call and said no incidents had been reported.

But about 90 per cent of the shops in San Sebastian were shuttered, and plants, offices and many schools were closed in surrounding towns such as Zarauz and Azpeita.

The Basque country has traditionally been a center of antigovernment activity by Basques demanding an independent Basque nation. Two of the five guerrillas executed for murdering policemen were Basque militants.

In Barcelona, three men and two women armed with tommyguns carried out a guerrilla-type attack on the Francisco Franco Social Security Hospital, stealing the $535,000 monthly payroll and critically wounding two policemen.

The police announcement on the attack did not mention any political connections. Guerrilla groups have been financing part of their activities by holding up banks and offices.

Industry sources reported that most of the big plants in the industrial center of Bilbao were affected by the strikes. A spokesman for the government-controlled trade union organization estimated 6,000 out of 21,000 workers of 16 plants in the Bilbao region had walked off their jobs.

Unlike San Sebastian, shops were open in Bilbao.

The morning plane from Madrid to San Sebastian was diverted to Bilbao because of "weather conditions," travelers reported.

Europa Press also reported a huge forest fire near the Basque town of Arteba in an area owned by the Marquis of Socorro. Firemen from Bilbao battled the flames all night but did not put them out.

In Barcelona six gunmen today attacked the Francisco Franco social security hospital, stole $535,000 and injured two policemen shooting their way out.

There was no indication whether the attack had any political significance. Basque and Marxist guerrilla groups have financed some of their activities by holding up banks or kidnapping wealthy individuals.

In the town of Azpeita where plants businesses and all schools were closed club swinging police scattered 1,500 demonstrators marching through the central Ruiz Santinas de Loyola street.

The two day strike was called for the four Basque provinces by underground labor organizations. It appeared to be 90 per cent effective in Guipuzcoa province and parts of neighboring Vizcaya province.

In San Sebastian 90 per cent of the merchants shuttered their shops even though authorities threatened them with a $875 fine if they joined the strike.

In Zarauz on the Atlantic coast the strike shut down all of the town's industry — a number of furniture manufacturing plants.

Among the few businesses open in the San Sebastian region were gas stations belonging to the government controlled Campa oil company.

In an industrial suburb of Bilbao police opened fire on demonstrators Sunday. According to the national news agency Cifra six persons were wounded by gunfire but the agency later said only one person had been hit by bullets.

The Madrid government meeting began at 11 a.m. at Premier Carlos Arias Navarro's offices in the Presidency building. Generalissimo Francisco Franco did not attend.

Gray County To Hire Interpreter for Voting

By ANNA BURCHELL Pampa News Staff

An interpreter will be in the Gray County Clerk's office during absentee voting Oct. 15 to Oct. 21.

The county clerk's office also will have an interpreter on election day, Nov. 4.

The announcement was made this morning by Wanda Carter, county clerk. Her action follows a memorandum from Secretary of State Mark White.

Gray County was placed under the Voting Rights Act last week and will have bilingual ballots for the election.

Judge Don Cain said an interpreter will be available in case anyone speaks Spanish, but is unable to read and understand the ballot.

During election, Mrs. Carter said if any one of the precincts needs help, the Gray County Sheriff's Office will transport the interpreter to the polling place.

Election judges for each of the 11 precincts will receive a copy of the memorandum this week, Carter said.

"The recent amendment to the Voting Rights Act of 1965 has resulted in the necessity of providing certain aids to voters who do not read or understand the English language," White said.

He also stated that the U.S. Justice Department has required that all local election officials provide Spanish interpreters in those precincts where voters may have need of them.

"The interpreters that you feel it necessary to provide under this requirement should be appointed as clerks in the precincts," he said.

White also called attention to a portion of the Texas Election Code which says that a voter is entitled to communicate through an interpreter of his choice.

Gray County is one of 46 Texas counties placed under the Act by the federal government.

The determining factor was whether 5 per cent of the county's voting age citizens are members of a language minority.

The 1970 census had revealed a 6.3 per cent total minority with a population of 25,700 including only 1635 minority.

Preparations for the bilingual ballot and interpreter began Friday following a call from White's office saying that the decision had been made. It calls for "use of interpreters in all appropriate polling places for the Nov. 4, 1975, constitutional revision election."

Boston Teachers Agree Hoffa Search Continues

BOSTON (UPI) — A tentative agreement, apparently ending a week-long strike by Boston's teachers, was reached today.

Details of the agreement between the teachers and the School Committee were not disclosed immediately.

Henry Robinson, president of the union, said the agreement would be studied by the union's Executive Board and then would be submitted to the teachers for a vote.

Contract disputes still plagued school districts in Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, California, New York, Ohio and elsewhere in Massachusetts.

The Boston settlement came as Albert Shanker, president of the parent American Federation of Teachers, told the striking Boston teachers that the AFT would stand behind them. "No matter how long, no matter the odds, you're not going to go through this alone," Shanker told about 1,500 cheering Boston teachers Sunday.

"You'll have total national support for whatever it takes to win the strike."

Shanker said recent teacher strikes in New York, Chicago, Wilmington, Del., and Boston had brought education's labor problems, caused by President Ford's policies and tight economics, to the forefront.

Boston schools remained open last week, but few teachers and only about 13 per cent of the 84,000 students showed up. Those who traveled to school by bus were provided massive police protection, stipulated under the city's federal court-ordered desegregation plan.

A news blackout was imposed on weekend negotiations aimed at settling the 19-day-old teachers strike in Wilmington. Negotiators went to the tables again Friday, pledging to bargain in good faith and avoid the name-calling which ruined earlier efforts to end the walkout.

In Indiana, 4,500 pupils in the Jennings County school district awaited word on whether their teachers would be in the classroom or on the picket lines. In Berkeley, Calif., there was no sign of settlement in a 24-day strike affecting 900 teachers and 14,000 students.

Contract disputes went on in 200 of New York State's 750 school districts. In New Bedford, Mass., the school committee voted to close schools after teachers had been on strike for 13 days. Other strikes closed schools to 9,000 students in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Teachers in Trotwood, Ohio, who had been working without a contract since April, began a strike today over a salary dispute.

"We are facing a national crisis," Shanker said. "We have a president of the United States who will give money to Russia and to Egypt, but not one penny for the cities."

"I don't know of a teachers union anywhere that is asking for anything unreasonable," Shanker said. "We're just trying to hold onto what we have."

A 11th soldier was rescued from the gushing river by electrical workers who heard his screams for help. The victims were part-time soldiers who supplement the regular army.

Other awards, presented at a weekend fund-raising dinner, went to Lt. Gvs. George Brown of Colorado and Mervyn Dymally of California; sociologist Kenneth Clark; and Dr. Mathew Walker and Howard Jessamy of the Mount Bayou, Miss., community hospital.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro Sunday criticized U.S. inaction in ending an economic blockade against his country and warned Cuba did not intend to "renounce even one" Marxist Leninist principle to resume diplomatic relations with any nation.

In a speech commemorating the 15th anniversary of the establishment of the Committees for the Defense of the Revolution Castro said "the U.S. government has adopted some measures in connection with the lifting of the blockade but they are not very strong because basically they still maintain the blockade."

The hour and a half speech was broadcast over Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

The search of a 29-acre site where James R. Hoffa's body may be buried has been called off until authorities get fresh information from a tipster who claims he witnessed the Teamster leader's burial.

An investigator for a Senate subcommittee said Sunday that the tipster was being held by underworld gangsters anxious to prove they were not involved in Hoffa's death.

Police dug with a power shovel for three hours Sunday before calling off the search, which began Saturday in a 29-acre rural area of woods and swamp in Waterford Township, about 35 miles northwest of Detroit. Squads using a helicopter and a specially trained dog were unable to find any evidence of a grave, which the tipster reportedly said was dug the day before Hoffa's disappearance.

William B. Gallinero, an investigator for a subcommittee chaired by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said underworld contacts told him and fellow investigator F. Keith Adkinson the informant had been tracked down and was being held by a gangland chief, according to the Detroit Free Press.

Information from the man reportedly was being relayed by courier to a go-between who contacted Gallinero about four weeks ago.

In an interview Sunday, Gallinero and Adkinson said they had mistakenly thought the tipster had been brought back to the grave site by underworld figures, and that he had precise directions to the grave. But the two men said they learned later the man had relied on his memory when he drew a general map of the supposed burial site.

Vincent Piersante, director of Kelley's organized crime task force, said Sunday he wished the investigators "would get the informant here and put a cross on the spot."

"We don't know about the mental condition of this person who made the estimates (of direction to a burial site). Look, if you have Hoffa's body in the back of your car, every 10 seconds seems like an hour and a half, every hundred yards seems like three miles," Piersante said.

Sadat Reveals US Promise To Negotiate Peace Pack

By United Press International Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said the United States has promised to get Israel to negotiate a peace settlement with Syria and the Palestinian guerrillas.

In a three-hour speech in Cairo, Sadat said Sunday President Ford also promised to keep Israel from attacking Syria if tensions rise on the occupied Golan Heights.

"I have got an undertaking from the American President that Israel will not attack Syria, that a second disengagement will be concluded on the Syrian front and that the Palestinians will participate in a settlement," he said.

Sadat told a joint meeting of Egypt's parliament and only political party the Soviet Union has been "hitting one Arab regime with another" in an effort to increase its influence in the Middle East.

The president's comments appeared to be in answer to widespread Arab and Soviet charges that Egypt sold out its allies by signing the new peace pact with Israel.

Sadat said the United States now seems to be acting "honorably" toward ending the Middle East conflict, but he accused America of sending technicians to help Israel in the 1973 war.

"I had the Americans and Jews in front of me — America with all its might and its new arms which had not left the United States before," he said. "They brought them along with their technicians and entered the battle."

Sadat, speaking on the fifth anniversary of the death of his predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, said Ford's promises were part of the secret U.S.-Egyptian appendices to the formal peace pact.

Israeli and Egyptian negotiators signed the accord in Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4 at the end of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's 10th peace mission to the Middle East.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro Sunday criticized U.S. inaction in ending an economic blockade against his country and warned Cuba did not intend to "renounce even one" Marxist Leninist principle to resume diplomatic relations with any nation.

In a speech commemorating the 15th anniversary of the establishment of the Committees for the Defense of the Revolution Castro said "the U.S. government has adopted some measures in connection with the lifting of the blockade but they are not very strong because basically they still maintain the blockade."

The hour and a half speech was broadcast over Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

The search of a 29-acre site where James R. Hoffa's body may be buried has been called off until authorities get fresh information from a tipster who claims he witnessed the Teamster leader's burial.

An investigator for a Senate subcommittee said Sunday that the tipster was being held by underworld gangsters anxious to prove they were not involved in Hoffa's death.

Police dug with a power shovel for three hours Sunday before calling off the search, which began Saturday in a 29-acre rural area of woods and swamp in Waterford Township, about 35 miles northwest of Detroit. Squads using a helicopter and a specially trained dog were unable to find any evidence of a grave, which the tipster reportedly said was dug the day before Hoffa's disappearance.

William B. Gallinero, an investigator for a subcommittee chaired by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said underworld contacts told him and fellow investigator F. Keith Adkinson the informant had been tracked down and was being held by a gangland chief, according to the Detroit Free Press.

Information from the man reportedly was being relayed by courier to a go-between who contacted Gallinero about four weeks ago.

In an interview Sunday, Gallinero and Adkinson said they had mistakenly thought the tipster had been brought back to the grave site by underworld figures, and that he had precise directions to the grave. But the two men said they learned later the man had relied on his memory when he drew a general map of the supposed burial site.

Vincent Piersante, director of Kelley's organized crime task force, said Sunday he wished the investigators "would get the informant here and put a cross on the spot."

"We don't know about the mental condition of this person who made the estimates (of direction to a burial site). Look, if you have Hoffa's body in the back of your car, every 10 seconds seems like an hour and a half, every hundred yards seems like three miles," Piersante said.

Moslem Rebel Pirates Release Freighter

ZAMBOANGA CITY, Philippines (UPI) — Some 40 Moslem rebel pirates released a hijacked Japanese freighter and 29 hostages unharmed today, then surrendered to a navy admiral.

Both rebels and hostages—26 Japanese crewmembers and three Filipinos — transferred from the hijacked ship Suehiro Maru to a Philippine navy boat headed into this southern Philippine seaport 500 miles south of Manila.

"Not one cent was involved," said Rear Adm. Romulo Espaldon, commander of military forces in the Southern Philippines. "The rebels were trapped. Had they resisted, they would have been killed."

Espaldon told newsmen approximately 40 rebels surrendered assorted firearms, including two light machineguns, one Communist-made B41 rocket launcher, two

U.S.-made M79 grenade launchers and several rifles. The rebels seized the 3,953-ton lumber freighter in Zamboanga early Friday morning, ordered it to sail 40 miles out into Tungawan Bay and demanded a ransom of $133,000 for the release of hostages and ship.

A navy flotilla consisting of 14 vessels immediately surrounded the ship while negotiations took place. The rebels released two Filipinos as emissaries Sunday, then progressively softened their demands, finally agreeing to release the rest of the hostages, leave the ship and abandon the ransom, provided they were granted safe passage out of the area.

Apparently, Espaldon refused to accept the rebels' terms and demanded their unconditional surrender.

The admiral boarded the Suehiro Maru at noon Monday, met with the rebels over lunch and by 4 p.m. accepted their surrender.

He then flew to Zamboanga by helicopter and reported the release of the ship and its passengers to Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos by phone.

Says UT President Kept Enemies List

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Some faculty members at the University of Texas say new UT Austin President Lorene Rogers reduced or eliminated scheduled salary increases for professors who disagreed with her.

Eight professors scheduled a news conference today to discuss what they said was Mrs. Rogers' "enemies list." The news conference marks the beginning of the third week of protest activities by students and faculty opposed to Mrs. Rogers' appointment.

Student leaders have called for a "teach out" Wednesday in which protesting faculty members are to hold classes out of doors and an "evacuation day" Friday in which teachers have been urged to call in sick or hold classes off campus.

House Speaker Bill Clayton announced during the weekend two legislative committees will investigate the administration of the University of Texas system and Mrs. Rogers' appointment.

But Clayton refused to appoint a special committee to make the study.

He said the investigations will be handled by the Joint Advisory Committee on Governmental Operations and Financial Advisory Task Force.

Clayton rejected a request by Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, to appoint a special committee to investigate the UT system.

Barrientos based his request on a series of actions by the board of regents during the last 10 years which have been highly unpopular with the students and faculty, including a 53 regents vote Sept. 12 to promote Mrs. Rogers from interim to permanent president.

"If in the light of what has transpired we do not conduct an investigation, we will not only allow the university to slip into mediocrity, we will be treated as buffoons by the architects of that mediocrity who will know we can be bought off with tickets to a football game," Barrientos told Clayton.

Opposition to Mrs. Rogers is based primarily on her unanimous rejection by a faculty-student advisory committee on four occasions prior to her appointment by the regents.

President To Travel To Chicago

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford resumes his travels this week but will be back at the White House Thursday for the state visit of Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

The President arranged a meeting today with Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Burns will be a chief author of America's response to the higher import oil prices, set in a meeting in Vienna Saturday by the oil exporting cartel.

The President's travel will take him to Chicago Tuesday for a fund raising affair for the Republican Party. The next day he will visit Omaha, Neb., to attend another in the series of White House conferences on domestic policy.

Ford will welcome the Japanese emperor and Empress Nagako to Washington on Thursday, and host a state dinner for the royal couple that evening. Hirohito is the first Japanese monarch to visit to the United States and this trip will be under a tight security wrap according to advance notice.

A Senate subcommittee which oversees the Secret Service Tuesday will begin a review of political assassination attempts. Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., will be looking into Secret Service procedures for protecting candidates.

Police Report Vandalism, Burglary

A lost billfold, vandalism and burglary were reported Sunday to the Pampa Police Department.

Roy L. Allen of 2212 Coffee reported that he lost a brown western type billfold containing a $725.80 check from American Bakeries, $200 in cash and his drivers license.

Three reports of shattered glass found after church Sunday were made. They included 601 N. Zimmers, 532 Roberts and 1713 Barker.

During a burglary at 857 E. Locust, someone entered the front door and took medicine for pain, flu and a cold.

will have an opportunity to see the exhibit before and after the program. The exhibit will be held over Friday so that local school children will have an opportunity to see the art. Pictured is "Sharing An Apple," a painting by Tom Ryan of Stamford.

Gunmen Hold Hostages In London Restaurant

LONDON (UPI) — Police today called in their airport antiterrorist chief to direct the siege of three quarreling gunmen who have held seven Italians hostage in a restaurant basement storeroom since 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

The arrival of Police Commander Christopher Payne, who headed negotiations during a plane hijacking at London's Heathrow airport last January.

Lonnie Loter Wins Contest In Football

Lonnie Loter of 2325 Navajo picked eight out of eight winners correctly and came closest on the White Deer - Lefors tiebreaker to win the Sept. 21 Pampa Daily News Football Contest.

Loter predicted Caprock over Perryton, Borger over Dumas, Canadian over Panhandle, Groom over Wheeler, Dallas over St. Louis, Oilers over San Diego, SMU over Houston and Arkansas over Tulsa.

He predicted White Deer would beat Lefors 20 - 6 and the actual score was 12 - 0. Jimmy Jeffrey of 2201 Evergreen also picked eight winners correctly. He said White Deer would win 31 - 10, which was good for second place.

J.D. Boland of 801 E. Francis missed one winner and placed third. The three won $15, $10 and $5, respectively.

sparked reports that the bandits had demanded a getaway car and a plane to take them out of Britain.

But Payne refused comment. "I cannot confirm reports that I was brought in because of my previous experience of dealing with terrorists," he said. "This is a long operation and it's just a question of changing staff."

Police kept up their attempt to wear down the bandits, hoping exhaustion would force them to surrender without use of force. They turned off the air conditioning but passed in drinking water for the terrorists and their victims.

Police listening through a ventilation shaft said they could hear the bandits—said to be two West Indians and an African—quarreling angrily. Police marksmen continued to watch all exits.

Italian Consul General Mario Manca talked with the Italian hostages for the first time through the locked door Monday morning.

"I found them in pretty good condition, considering their long ordeal," he said. They reported the 9 by 13 foot room was very hot.

Only one lane of traffic was allowed in front of the Spaghetti House Restaurant in fashionable Knightsbridge, where the three gunmen grabbed eight hostages early Sunday after the quick arrival of police frustrated a robbery attempt.

The gunmen released one of the hostages, Alfredo Olivelli, Monday afternoon after talks with West Indian-born Lord Pitt, former chairman of the Greater London Council.

Olivelli told police the men were armed with a shotgun and two pistols.

Police passed drinking water to the 10 men huddled in the basement, but switched off the air conditioning in hopes of forcing out the gunmen. More than 250 police, equipped with gas masks, tear gas canisters and ammunition, surrounded the restaurant in one of London's fashionable shopping areas.

"We have made it quite plain to the men that there will be no bargaining of any kind, and that if they throw up their arms and come out they will not be harmed," Sir Robert Mark, the metropolitan police commissioner, said.

Hunt Sons Acquitted of Wiretaps

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — The late H.L. Hunt liked to talk about the American dream — the chance that made it possible for him to begin life as a poor farm boy and parlay a little luck and a lot of hard work into an oil empire worth billions of dollars.

But Hunt's descendants say the federal government has tainted that dream by persecuting the family.

Two of Hunt's sons, Nelson Bunker and W. Herbert Hunt, were acquitted Friday of illegal wiretap charges but they still face charges of obstruction of justice in connection with the wiretapping.

Bunker Hunt, soon after the innocent verdict was handed down, called the pending charges "totally unwarranted" and "completely without merit."

"I can't imagine why the government is pursuing that case," he said.

Bunker Hunt has said the government was persecuting the family because he twice refused to let the CIA place agents in his foreign oil operations.

Attorney Philip Hirschkop, who headed the Hunt defense in the wiretapping case, agreed the CIA was behind the charges.

"The CIA is responsible for that prosecution, and will probably push the justice obstruction. But if their name was not Hunt, they never would have been prosecuted," Hirschkop said.

The trial on the obstruction of justice charges is tentatively set to begin in January, but U.S. Attorney Frank McCown said he is not sure what action the government will take.

"We'll have to wait until we get back to the office and take another look at it," McCown

'CIA Not Giving Money's Worth'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's intelligence community is not giving the taxpayer his money's worth and its red tape might prevent advance warning of an enemy attack, according to the chairman of the House intelligence committee.

"We are drowning in information in intelligence which we are not absorbing," said Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y.

He also accused Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of engineering the administration's refusal to provide information the committee considers essential to its investigation of intelligence operations.

Pike made the comments Sunday in advance of a meeting today with his Select Committee on Intelligence to decide whether assistance of the full House will be requested to obtain testimony and classified documents being withheld by the White House and the CIA.

The panel's counterpart in the Senate, meanwhile, called a closed meeting today to map out further open hearings this week on the CIA's interception of mail involving some of the nation's top officials.

Pike, interviewed Sunday (CBS-TV: Face the Nation), said he believes Kissinger "has been the one who's been trying the hardest to block the investigation in the first place."

If the House is asked to back up the committee's demands, Pike said, it would be the first step toward a contempt of Congress resolution if no solution to the impasse can be reached.

Asked for an overall assessment of the nation's many and varied intelligence operations, Pike said:

"I think that there are thousands of dedicated men risking their lives to get intelligence. I think that there are other thousands of brilliant men creating magnificent scientific techniques for getting intelligence.

"Above the gathering level, however, it just bogs down every single time. It is not absorbed, it is not delivered. As far as our getting our money's worth out of it — no way are we getting our money's worth out of it....

"If an attack were to be launched on America in the very near future, it is my belief that America would not know that the attack were about to be launched."

A spokesman for the CIA said Director William E. Colby "obviously disagrees with Chairman Pike's assertion that our country is open to surprise attack" and has "said before and repeats today that American intelligence is the best in the world."

Highway 60 Group Will Elect Heads

Officers for 1976 will be elected at a meeting of the Texas Branch of the U.S. Highway 60 Association tonight in Amarillo.

Attending from Pampa will be Harold Barrett, Howard Buckingham and E.O. Wedgeworth, national secretary.

Also scheduled to attend the meeting, set for 7 p.m. at Rice's Dining Room, will be Raymond Raillard of Canyon and Holm Bursom of Socorro, N.M., president and secretary respectively of the national Hwy. 60 Association.

Current officers of the Texas branch are Barney Weigand, president, and Byron Vermillion, both of Amarillo.

Howard Hunt Considered Drugging Anderson

NEW YORK (UPI) — Convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt says he once explored the possibility of drugging columnist Jack Anderson, but never contemplated murder, as was reported last week.

In an interview in the current issue of Time magazine, Hunt said former White House aide Charles Colson once suggested that Anderson might be discredited if he appeared on his live radio program under the influence of a drug.

Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, another convicted Watergate burglar, discussed the means for doing this with a former CIA physician, Time reported.

Among the possibilities that the three considered were placing a drug that enters the body through the skin on the steering wheel of Anderson's car, slipping a hallucinogen into a medicine bottle that Anderson used and dropping a drug into Anderson's drink at a party. Hunt told the magazine.

Hunt said each of the schemes was discarded as impractical.

"It was just another wild idea that never got beyond the proposal stage," Hunt told a Time reporter at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, where he is serving a prison term for his role in the Watergate break-in.

The Washington Post reported last week that Hunt told some of his former CIA associates that he was ordered to assassinate Anderson, who was disclosing information on Nixon administration policies obtained from national security leaks. In the interview with Time, Hunt denied that action as serious as murder was ever contemplated, but revealed the drugging plot.

Volunteers Help Hospital Patients

Brighten the Day

Auxiliary members attempt to brighten the day of each patient. Mrs. Robert Darling drops in to deliver flowers and adjust television for Miss Isabel Huselby of Mobeetie, who was admitted to Highland Hospital on May 7, 1971. A native of Mobeetie, Miss Huselby's father came to this country from England and settled near Mobeetie. (Pampa News photo)

The fears and anxiety of each patient and the families who are emotionally concerned can always look for a ray of sunshine among the Highland General Hospital Auxiliary's 90 volunteers.

Their duties are many and varied — but most of all they are concerned about the patient, the hospital, its employees and the community in which they live.

They have given thousands of hours of service and $34,500 for the purchase of special equipment and hospital furnishings since the auxiliary was organized in 1964.

A brief glance at their duties reveals auxiliary goals: ... to let each patient know that someone cares.

... to make the patient stay as cheerful as possible.

... to assist hospital employees, the hospital management and staff in every way possible.

... to let each patient know that someone cares.

A few days ago the auxiliary presented the hospital board with a check for $4,000 to purchase a critical care respirator. Mrs. Arthur Teed, director of volunteers, said 90 women are on the list.

"And we could use more," she added. "Not more than half of those enrolled are active, but of course we are grateful for each volunteer."

During the summer months, Candy Strippers (high school students) assist with volunteer services.

"We enjoy them very much. They are like a shot in the arm," Mrs. Teed said.

Organized almost a dozen years ago, the auxiliary was formed to promote and advance the welfare of Highland General Hospital, through service. All fund raising is approved by the Highland General Hospital Board of Managers.

Mrs. Homer D. Johnson of 2372 Aspen was the first auxiliary president. Mrs. Edward M. Dunigan of 1801 Charles is now president of the organization.

Robert Monogue, hospital administrator, said the auxiliary "does us a fine job."

"If we didn't have them we would have to have a greater labor force. They have also donated money for capital improvements."

He explained that through the work of the auxiliary, the hospital management has been able to keep operating costs lower than otherwise would have been possible.

Cost control is important in hospital operations, he added.

The auxiliary members work in the snack bar, the laboratory, X-ray, art display and take baby photographs in the nursery.

Draperies for several areas in the hospital have been paid for with auxiliary contributions.

Other purchases made from auxiliary monies include a projector and screen, a heart machine, a special chair, expenses for open house for a new addition, a flag pole and a walkway, a phototherapy lamp, bought a defibrillator, monitoring systems, intensive care beds and furniture for several areas.

New Divorce Law Gives Woman All Property

By HARRY CULVER

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — An Oklahoma divorce law that takes effect Wednesday gives a wife all of a couple's property, even hubby's socks and pipe.

Chaos will result if the Oklahoma Supreme Court doesn't intervene, complained attorneys who asked the justices to rule on the law's constitutionality.

Mrs. Caywood's attorney, Robert Flager, said the law very clearly gives a wife all and the court shouldn't read it otherwise.

"When a divorce shall be granted," the bill states, "the wife shall be restored to her maiden or former name if she so desires, and also to all the property, lands, tenements, hereditaments owned by either party before marriage or acquired by either party in their own right after such marriage, and not previously disposed of."

law unconstitutional in a pretrial hearing.

Until the court rules, the Caywoods' attorneys said, "chaotic conditions will prevail trial courts, leaving the disposition and division of property of litigants in divorce cases in a state of uncertainty."

Caywood is represented by two legislator-attorneys, Rep. Kenneth Nance, D-Okahoma City, and Sen. Lee Cate, D-Norman, who filed a Supreme Court brief contending the act is unconstitutional.

"To say that a wife should, as a matter of absolute right, receive all the property is discriminatory," they wrote. "This is not so," Flager said. "Federal equal protection requires only that all persons similarly situated are treated equally."

"All members of these two classes are treated equally by this legislative provision: all divorced husbands' rights are identical and all wives' rights are identical."

Caywood's attorneys also contended the bill is unconstitutional because its title does not mention the divorced wife would take all.

How the bill became law has evoked almost as much interest as its wording.

Rep. L. H. Bengtson Jr., D-Okahoma City, joined Young as House author for the measure but now has asked Boren to call a special session to repeal it.

Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester, said he agreed to be a co-author because "it sounded like a good deal."

"It was supposed, to treat husband and wife alike," Stipe said. "I didn't read it. As a matter of fact there were about 50 of us senators plus 100 House members that should have read it."

Boren signed the bill June 12 after getting clearance from his chief counsel, Robert Mitchell, a former assistant attorney general.

The Lubbock Jaycee - Ettes are sponsoring the three-day sale.

Officials announced that any type of original work of art is acceptable, including a variety of oils, water - color, etchings, sculpture, carvings, china painting, pottery, jewelry or stichery.

Dylan Performs Again

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
A television studio, Chicago, mid-September, 3 a.m.: Bob Dylan is on stage, taciturn, glassy-eyed and unsteady on his feet, performing for the 150 or so diehards who have waited seven hours and more to see him. It is the first time Dylan has been in front of a camera since 1969, when he joined with Johnny Cash to mangle his own "Girl From the North Country."

Preceding Dylan to the stage had been an astonishing assembly of performers, including Benny Goodman, gospel singer Marion Williams, country-blues harpist Sonny Terry, jazz guitarist George Benson and an all-star cast of swing-era jazzmen.

A more diverse and more distinguished assortment of American popular artists would be difficult to imagine, yet they have something in common: producer John Hammond.

Described by jazz critic Leonard Feather as "the most effective catalyst in the development of jazz," Hammond's musical interests are far broader than such categorization would suggest. He was largely responsible for the discovery and success of dozens of great musicians over a 40-year career, including Dylan, Goodman, Count Basie, Billie Holiday, Aretha Franklin and Bessie Smith.

The taping session in question, then, is a two-hour special edition of the Public Broadcasting Service's "Soundstage" program: "A Tribute to John Hammond." The show (which will air late this fall on PBS affiliates) is the brainchild of innovative "Soundstage" producer Ken Ehrlich, who scored a major coup in bringing it together.

The live, hand-picked audience for the marathon taping session was clearly divided into two groups: middle-aged couples with some inside connection with Columbia Records, Hammond's label, and the under-30s, many of them journalists, who came mostly for the chance to see Dylan close up.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Folks:

I happen to have a son who adores pepper (that's the stuff that ordinarily goes with salt), and I ate at their dinner table one night, and for goshin' sakes if I didn't pick up the pepper shaker and truly get some pepper for a change without shaking 99 times...

I asked him, "Where did you and your wife get this pepper shaker? I must have one just like it!"

Answer? "Mother, all I did was put the top from the salt shaker on it and vice-versal!"

His mother flipped... (that was ME!)

I immediately came home and changed all mine, too, and it's a flipperoo around this house. "Twouldn't be bad in anyone's domain who likes hot, heavy, pepper, right?"

You can see how much of that heavenly stuff you're puttin' on. It's black, remember? And wouldn't this be a whiten, kicking, kidding idea for those of you who are on low salt diets, or who don't like very much salt?

Works beautifully.

Heloise

P.S. I think it's about time all of us homemakers, (that includes all bachelors, widows, widowers, and just live-aloners), formed our own headshrinkers club and shared ideas. Don't you? Sure would be lots cheaper than going to a real one. So why not?

Just write your letters to me — even if for fun — in care of this paper.

We get so many each day in our mail. Here's one example: Dear Hel:

Why don't you give up? Tell me where you find (deleted), to keep going? And 16 pages followed!

Mostly about the laundry, budgets, quick-time savers, kiddoes, his wife, and mother-in-law... telling HIM how to keep house, etc.

So... the world goes on. It has been going on for years and years, with and without tears and tears.

And now it's time to say thank you to those of you who have written to me when I was ill. Many times it brings tears to my eyes when you write me a thank-you note for something I have done especially for you. I wish I could do something for each of you, but guess it's impossible.

Think I'll be the first to write to the "Heloise Hard-Headed Headshrinkers Club": Dear Honeybees:

What does one do when she can't get her desk cleared of all the mail and answer each letter or call them personally so that for once in 15 years she can see what color the top of her desk is? — H.

Come on now. Laugh with me, folks. I love you all so much. You'll never know. God bless...

Heloise

P.P.S. Every letter that has ever been sent to me has been read by either me or my neighbors who have worked with (NOT FOR) me for years — including my daughter, Heloise II.

And bless her sweet soul, that's all she has heard for all these years. She loves you as much as I do.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

For a truly professional look on the new knit fabrics, press the seams of the garment with vinegar.

I keep a spray bottle on my ironing board at all times for the inside seams and I use a pressing cloth soaked in vinegar for the hems.

It's also good for removing the telltale crease when you need to lengthen a garment.

E. Mooradian

Great, but be sure to lightly press the inside garment seam or hem with just a bit of steam and then use the vinegar cloth to press only the outside or top of the garment. I find I don't get as many seam or hem marks showing, and it does a beautiful job.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I use the two-pound cartons of cheese but with only two people in my family, it does not get used up very fast.

I find that if I slip a plastic sandwich bag over the end of it, before returning it to the carton, that the end portion always stays moist instead of becoming hard and dry.

Without any doubt, the most prominent tournament director in the history of tournament bridge was the late Al Sobel. And the top-ranking woman player was his wife Helen.

In his long career as director, he came across many amusing situations. Here is one he delighted to tell — and even though it may have been that nobody else ever believed that it actually happened, he told it so often that I'm sure he believed it himself. The deal presumably arose in a rubber-bridge game.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

Sobel was occupying the West seat. Mrs. Sobel was sitting East. The narration of this deal is by Sobel.

"We beat the four-spade contract one trick but the amazing thing is that with my relatively worthless hand I took all of the four tricks that our side made!"

"I next led the two of clubs, and my partner's king was taken by South's ace. He then cashed the king, ace and queen of trumps, picking up Helen's three pieces. Seeing that he had to lose a diamond trick, he decided to now lead his two of diamonds. My nine won the trick when Helen followed suit with the six of diamonds. That made three tricks I had won. I then cashed the club jack, for the setting trick."

"Needless to say, I politely inquired of my partner why she had doubled with such garbage in her hand. Her answer was a simple straightforward one: 'So you would have a good story to tell.'"

Whether Sobel's little tale is true or apocryphal, we will never know. But I think we will all agree that when one can win four tricks with a hand containing three high-card points, the deal warrants a "look-see."

Simpson, Buffalo Devastate Pittsburgh

BY JOE CARNICELLI
United Press International

Leave it to O.J. Simpson to make the Steel Curtain look like tin foil.

People are not supposed to run against the Pittsburgh Steeler defense. After all, hadn't they held Buffalo, Oakland and Minnesota to a grand total of 146 yards rushing in post-season competition as they marched to the Super Bowl title last year. And hadn't they completely frustrated Simpson last Dec. 22, holding him to just 49 yards in a 32-14 playoff victory over Buffalo.

Simpson absolutely devastated the Steeler defense Sunday, carrying for 227 yards, including a 88-yard touchdown burst, as the Bills stunned Pittsburgh 30-21.

The 227 yards were only 23 short of Simpson's single-game NFL record of 250 set two years ago against New England and give him a total of 450 in two games. He carried for 173 in a 42-14 rout of the New York Jets last week.

The Bills' overall net yardage of 434 yards and 310 yards rushing were the most ever gained against a Steeler team coached by Noll.

Simpson carried 28 times and the most spectacular was his 88-yard TD run in the third period. The Juice took the ball, bolted to the right outside of linebacker Jack Ham, who got himself trapped inside, and outran the entire defense to the goal line.

It was the fourth 200-yard game of his career, tying him with former Cleveland star Jim Brown for the NFL record.

Seven other teams remained unbeaten after two games. Dallas stopped St. Louis 37-31 in overtime. Washington crushed the New York Giants 49-13. Oakland overtook Baltimore 31-20. Cincinnati shut out New Orleans 21-0. Houston ripped San Diego 33-17. Minnesota trounced Cleveland 42-10 and Detroit edged Atlanta 17-14. Elsewhere, the

New York Jets downed Kansas City 30-24. Miami overcame New England 22-14. Los Angeles dumped San Francisco 23-14 and Chicago shaded Philadelphia 15-13. Green Bay is at Denver tonight.

Cowboys 37, Cardinals 31 (64)
Roger Staubach's three-yard flip to Billy Joe Dupree at 7:53 of overtime lifted Dallas past St. Louis. The score ended a passing duel between Staubach and the Cardinals' Jim Hart.

Redskins 49, Giants 13
Bill Kilmer and Randy Johnson each threw two TD passes and Larry Jones stunned his former teammates with a 52-yard punt return for a score as Washington rolled over New York. Kilmer passed 31 and nine yards to Roy Jefferson for scores and Johnson, also an ex-Giant, threw 13 yards to Charley Taylor and four to Alvin Reed. The Redskins now have 90 points in two games.

Raiders 31, Colts 20
Rookie Neal Colzie set up three TDs with punt returns of 26, 43 and 23 yards as Oakland rallied to beat Baltimore.

Bengals 21, Saints 0
Ken Anderson threw three TD passes, two to Isaac Curtis, to lead Cincinnati past New Orleans. Anderson hit Curtis with scoring passes of 52 and five yards and also threw a 14-yarder to Charlie Joiner. The Saints have yet to score a TD in two games.

Oilers 30, Chargers 17
Ronnie Coleman rushed for 110 yards and rookie Don Hardeman added 107 to carry Houston over San Diego. Coleman had a 46-yard TD run and defensive tackle Curley Culp returned a fumble 38 yards for another score. Jessie Freitas had a 30-yard TD pass to Dwight McDonald for the Chargers.

Vikings 42, Browns 10
Fran Tarkenton threw for two scores, ran for one and set up a fourth as Minnesota buried Cleveland. Tarkenton threw 29 yards to John Gilliam and 13 to Chuck Foreman and ran in from the two. Willie Miller threw 26 yards to Reggie Rucker on an end-around for the Browns' only TD.

Lions 17, Falcons 14
Altie Taylor plunged across from a yard out with only 80 seconds left to lift Detroit past Atlanta. The Falcons led 14-7 on a 17-yard run by Haskell Stanback and a 26-yard TD pass from Steve Bartkowski to Gerald Tinker before Errol Mann's 29-yard field goal and Taylor's TD won it for the Lions.

Jets 30, Chiefs 24
John Riggins and Carl Garrett combined for 280 yards rushing and three TDs and Joe Namath threw a nine-yard TD pass to Richard Caster for the deciding score as the Jets held off Kansas City.

Dolphins 22, Patriots 14

Norm Bulaich drove over from a yard out for the goahead score in the third period and Garo Yepremian added his second and third field goals as Miami downed New England. The Patriots took a 14-0 lead as Neal Graf threw 31 yards to Randy Vataha and five to Russ Francis before the Dolphins stormed back.

Rams 23, 49ers 14
Tom Dempsey kicked three field goals, including a 51 yarder and Los Angeles beat San Francisco. James Harris also threw a 22-yard TD pass to Lawrence McCutcheon and Mike Williams ran six yards with a blocked punt for Rams scores.

Bears 15, Eagles 13
Bob Thomas' 26-yard field goal with eight seconds left boosted Chicago over Philadelphia. Thomas earlier had kicks of 44 and 24 yards. Gary Huff had a seven-yard TD pass to Sid Edwards for the Bears and Roman Gabriel hit Harold Carmichael from 14 yards out for the Eagles.

Dallas Edges St. Louis

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — After producing enough big plays to fill a highlight film Sunday, it was simply a question of whether it would be the Dallas Cowboys or St. Louis Cardinals who would make the last one.

And it turned out to be Dallas.

Five minutes deep into a sudden death overtime period, with St. Louis already within range of a Jim Bakken field goal attempt, Jim Hart tossed a short, second-down pass toward Terry Metcalf.

Dallas middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan picked it off at the Cardinal 20, stormed back to the St. Louis 37, and from there the Cowboys took it in to score with Roger Staubach hitting tight end Billy Joe Dupree with a pass for the final three yards 7:57 deep into the extra period.

That gave Dallas a 37-31 victory in only the third regular season overtime game in NFL history and left the youth oriented Cowboys unbeaten after two games.

"Talk to the coach about that pass," said an obviously upset St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart. "We send plays in from the coach to the quarterback. It's one of those cases where you can't go to the well too many times."

And when Cardinal coach Don Coryell was consulted, he took the blame.

"It was a dumb call and I called it," said Coryell. "Maybe we shouldn't have tried it, but it's over and done with. I know Bakken could have gotten us some points down there."

Dallas coach Tom Landry was a relieved man. He had seen his team lose a 14-point lead in the fourth quarter and miss two chances to win when Toni Fritsch field goal attempts failed.

The second of those misses came with only three seconds left in regulation and followed by only 43 seconds the 37-yard touchdown pass from Hart to Mel Gray that had deadlocked the game at 31-31.

"It's enough to turn a man gray," said Landry, whose fast balding top has little hair left to change color. "I thought we'd lost it, then won it, and then lost it again."

During regulation play the two sides produced one big gainer after another.

After a bland first half the two sides erupted for 35 points in the third quarter. Dallas scoring on a 12-yard Staubach-Drew Pearson pass, a one-yard plung by Charlie Young and a 97-yard kickoff return on a trick play with rookie linebacker Tom Henderson.

St. Louis responded in that quarter with a 23-yard scoring pass from Hart to Gray and an 80-yarder from Hart to Earl Thomas.

In the final quarter, after falling behind by 14, Hart hit tight end Jackie Smith with a 35-yard touchdown throw and then found Gray with the tying touchdown.

In all Hart connected on 15 of 32 passes for 314 yards and four touchdowns while Staubach completed 23 of 34 passes for 307 yards and three scores.

Seaver 22-9 After Victory

UPI Sports Writer

Tom Seaver of the New York Mets put the finishing touches Sunday on a 1975 performance which could win him honors as the National League's Cy Young Award winner and comeback of the year player.

Seaver wasn't around at the finish of the Mets' 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies but received credit for the win. He thus completed the season with a 22-9 won-lost record and with the third lowest earned run average in the league.

Randy Jones, Seaver's only serious rival for the Cy Young Award, lost his 12th game against 20 victories Sunday when the San Diego Padres were beaten by the San Francisco Giants, 5-3. Jones has a league-leading 2.24 ERA followed by the 2.29 by Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Seaver's 2.38.

Seaver's superb 1975 performance followed a 1974 campaign during which he had an 11-11 record and feared that his career as a star was over.

The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-6, the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2, the Chicago Cubs topped the Montreal Expos 9-6, and the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2 in other National League games.

In the American League, it was Oakland 5 California 0 as four pitchers combined in a no-hitter for the A's, New York over Baltimore 3-2 after a 3-0 loss, Texas 3 Kansas City 1, Chicago 6 Minnesota 4, Milwaukee 7 Detroit 0, and Cleveland 11 Boston 4.

Mets 5 Phillies 4
Rusty Staub drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies and the Mets took advantage of three errors to beat the Phillies.

Pampa Girls 3rd at WT

CANYON — Pampa whipped Amarillo Tacosco 15 - 12, 15 - 3 Saturday here for the third-place trophy in the West Texas State Invitational Girls Volleyball Tournament, which was won by Amarillo High.

Pampa, prior to the third-place match, downed Plainville 15 - 2, 15 - 5 Friday and Amarillo Caprock 15 - 6, 9 - 15, 15 - 13 Saturday.

Amarillo High then whipped the Harvesters 15 - 4, 8 - 15 to send Pampa to the third-place match. Tacosco lost to Amarillo Palo Duro prior to playing Pampa.

Pampa coach Lynn Wolfe was impressed with defending District 3 - AAAA champion Amarillo.

"They're really good," Mrs. Wolfe said. "We didn't play as well as we did the other two games. Of course, when a team plays really well it makes you look bad.

Buckeyes To Be No. 1?

United Press International

The Miami (Fla.) Hurricanes may have stirred up quite a storm in the college football ratings.

Miami gave No. 1 ranked Oklahoma its biggest scare in nearly three seasons Friday night when the Hurricanes came close to upsetting the Sooners at the Orange Bowl, and with No. 2 Ohio State winning big over North Carolina, 32-7, on Saturday, the Buckeyes could conceivably assume the top spot in the ratings this week.

That, of course, is up to the UPI Coaches Board to decide but, even if the Buckeyes don't become No. 1 this week, there's no doubt that they'll close the gap considerably on the Sooners.

Oklahoma, which hasn't lost since 1972, was outplayed at Miami but, as all good teams do, took advantage of two breaks in the second half to score a 20-17 triumph. The Sooners turned a blocked punt and a recovered fumble into second quarter touchdowns then withstood a 10-point fourth quarter Miami rally to win their 23rd consecutive game.

Miami, however, dominated the statistics, outgaining the Sooners in total yardage 289-176. The Hurricanes also held All-America running back Joe Washington to just 43 yards rushing in 14 carries.

By contrast, Ohio State was its usual awesome self in downing North Carolina for its third straight triumph. The Buckeyes, employing a ground attack that completely overwhelmed the Tar Heels, got 148 yards rushing and five touchdowns from fullback Pete Johnson and 157 yards rushing from All-America Archie Griffin. It marked the 24th regular season game in a row that Griffin had surpassed the 100-yard rushing mark.

In other games involving the top 10 ranked teams, No. 3 Southern California topped Purdue 19-6. No. 4 Nebraska whipped Texas Christian 56-14. No. 5 Missouri downed Wisconsin 27-21. No. 6 Texas walloped Texas Tech 41-18. No. 7 Texas A&M crushed Illinois 43-13. No. 8 Notre Dame routed Northwestern 31-7. No. 9 UCLA tied Air Force 20-20 and No. 10 Michigan played Baylor to a 10-10 deadlock.

Quarterback Vince Evans scored two touchdowns to spark Southern California's victory over Purdue, quarterback Terry Luck tossed for three touchdowns in pacing Nebraska over Texas Christian. Henry Marshall caught a pair of TD passes in leading Missouri past Wisconsin and fullback Earl Campbell rushed for 150 yards and two touchdowns in leading Texas over Texas Tech.

Bubba Bean rushed for 158 yards and scored two touchdowns in helping Texas A&M defeat Illinois, quarterback Joe

Brewers Axe Crandall, May Hire Homer King

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Del Crandall, who returned as a hero to the scene of his playing triumphs, left a loser Sunday when he was fired as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Crandall's firing has been all but a certainty for weeks and his departure added heat to the already intense speculation that all-time home run king Henry Aaron would be named to replace him.

Brewer president Bud Selig refused to speculate whether Aaron was in line for the job.

"All I know is that he has one more year remaining on his contract as a player," Selig said.

"I really can't comment specifically on being a manager," Aaron said after he learned of Crandall's firing. "I've been in this game a long time and I have certain ideas about how a ball club should be run. I can't rule out becoming a manager. I just can't rule it out."

Aaron and Selig both said there had been no discussions concerning him taking the Brewer helm. Selig also refused to discuss the reasons why Crandall was fired.

"There were obviously a lot of things that went into the decision," Selig said. "But to go into specific reasons for the dismissal would be cruel and insensitive."

"From the time when baseball was first played and clubs have not lived up to expectations, the manager is the one who gets the blame," he added.

Crandall, who spent 3 1/2 years trying to turn the Brewers into a winner, was fired prior to the team's last game of the season.

"I felt it was important and fair to Del to tell him about my decision as soon as we made up our minds," Selig said. "I told him and he said he didn't want to

Three Women of September

Hearst, Fromme, Moore—A Common Link

By DUSTON HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — All three were shaped by San Francisco's counter-cultures of drugs and radical politics. All three picked up the gun and tried to change history. All three failed. All three gained the attention of the world. All three could spend the rest of their lives in jail. All three are women—reflecting the confusions and stresses of a decade of social change. But there the similarities end for: —Patty Hearst, a wealthy heiress converted by kidnapers, either voluntarily or by brainwashing, into an "urban guerrilla." —Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, a drug-dazed dropout following a guru of "helter skelter" sex and death. —Sara Jane Moore, a middle-aged misfit finding a place and a profit on the fringe of the leftwing. In 17 short days of September—in cities less than 100 miles apart in northern California—a 19-month chase ended with Miss Hearst's capture and Miss Fromme and Miss Moore allegedly trying to assassinate President Ford. A year and a half after she was dragged half-naked from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment, Patty Hearst was captured 10 miles away in a San Francisco apartment by FBI agents. During the interval, the 21-year-old granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst took part in one of the most bizarre conversions in the annals of American crime. Miss Hearst joined her abductors in a bank robbery and kidnaping, adopted the name "Tania" and spouted revolutionary cliques in taperecorded manifestoes to her parents, who gave away $2 million in groceries to poor people in an effort to win her freedom. She faces three federal charges and 19 state charges in California. Among them are kidnaping during two days of flight after she was identified as the woman who sprayed machine gun bullets at a sporting goods store. Miss Hearst, who had a pistol in her purse when arrested, gave her occupation as "selfemployed urban guerrilla" when she was booked into jail. But that later was changed to "no occupation." Less than a week later, she claimed in a court affidavit that she was terrorized, drugged and driven nearly insane by her radical captors, forced to join in a San Francisco bank robbery and couldn't remember the rest of the crime spree. The affidavit filed by her lawyers said Miss Hearst was slipping into insanity and brainwashed to the point that her criminal actions during her 19 months of flight were beyond her control. She said she first returned to the real world when she hugged her father, mother and sisters in jail. In the affidavit she said she wanted to go home with her parents and was "completely convinced of the love and affection of her family and that she will find safety and comfort in its midst." But during a tape-recorded jail conversation with a girl friend, she told a different story, saying she didn't want to be "a prisoner in my parents' home." She also told the old friend, Patricia Tobin, that she now had a "revolutionary feminist perspective." She also disclosed in the conversation that she had been living in the San Francisco hideout where she was captured with a 27-year-old housepainter named Steven Soliah.

Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, 26, a member of the murderous Charles Manson family, pointed a .45-caliber Colt automatic at President Ford Sept. 5 as he walked across the California Capital grounds at Sacramento. The gun, although loaded, failed to fire. Miss Fromme, indicted on federal charges of attempting to assassinate the President, was ruled capable last week of aiding in her own defense and given permission to act as her own attorney. After her arrest, she told a jailer she had to try to assassinate Ford because nobody paid attention to what she was saying. The tiny, red-haired woman was thrown out of her home by her father at age 16 and migrated to San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district during its drug-drenched heyday with a young drifter named Charles Manson. She later estimated taking at least 1,000 trips on LSD and other drugs. Manson was convicted of masterminding seven murders in Los Angeles in 1969, including that of movie starlet Sharon Tate, as part of a "helter skelter" terror plot that he expected to lead to a race war that would eventually captivate him into a ruling position in the United States. During the two trials, Miss Fromme—whose high-pitched voice won her the sobriquet "Squeaky"—acted as the Manson family spokesman. She settled with another Manson family alumnus in Sacramento while Manson was held in nearby Folsom Prison. Miss Fromme and roommate Sandra Good, 31, agonized over environmental damage, prepared lists of corporate targets in the family's "war" against polluters and presented the news media with rambling broadsides.

"Well, you know, when people around you treat you like a child and pay no attention to the things you say, you have to do something," she told the jailer. Seventeen days after the attempt to assassinate President Ford in Sacramento, Sara Jane Moore, 45, fired a shot at the President from a crowd outside the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. It missed. A former Marine knocked Miss Moore's gun hand down and a city policeman wrestled the .38-caliber pistol away from her before she could shoot again. Miss Moore, reported to be a mother of at least five youngsters who was treated for mental problems in 1950, was ordered to undergo psychiatric tests to determine whether she was competent to stand trial on attempted assassination charges. In an interview, Miss Moore linked her act with the arrest of Miss Hearst, which she said "made a tremendous impact on me." From her jail cell she asked to see Ellen Hume, of the Los Angeles Times. The two had become acquainted when the reporter was doing a story on radicals in California. "There comes a point when the only way you can make a statement is to pick up a gun," Miss Moore said in the interview. But she added that she was glad the President did not die. "It was a kind of ultimate protest against the system," she said. Although she told West Coast acquaintances about an aristocratic background, she actually is the daughter of a chemical company maintenance engineer and grew up in a blue-collar neighborhood outside Charleston, W. Va. She abandoned four children from an early marriage with her parents during the 1950s. At the time of the assassination attempt, her 9-year-old son was attending school in San Francisco. Miss Moore surfaced in the Bay Area during the Hearst food giveaway, working as a volunteer leader in the hastily created "People In Need" program. Her contacts during that period led her into leftwing politics and a role as an FBI informant. She was involved with Wilbur "Popeye" Jackson, a leader of the United Prisoners Union who was shot dead in a parked car on a city street earlier this summer. Miss Moore telephoned a San Francisco police inspector Saturday and warned she might pose a danger to Ford. "I'd like to test the system to see if it works the same for the left and right," she told Inspector Jack O'Shea. On Sunday, she was stopped outside her San Francisco apartment and cited for carrying a .44-caliber pistol in her purse. Later, the Secret Service questioned her but she remained free. On Monday morning, she traveled to suburban Danville, bought a .38-caliber pistol, then returned to take a shot at President Ford. "Squeaky" Fromme showed Sara the way to get back on the center stage," suggests a private detective, Jack Palladino, who tried—with little success—to check her background early last year during the food giveaway. Dr. Rita James Simon, a sociologist who is an authority in the field of women and crime, said both Miss Moore and Miss Fromme seem to match the social profiles of earlier assassins.

trusted by some of the people or causes to which they claim association," Dr. Simon said. "They are not integrated members of those movements. They are not integrated members of anything. That's part of the problem." She is professor of sociology at the University of Illinois, Urbana, and author of "The Contemporary Woman and Crime," published earlier this year by the National Institute of Mental Health. Dr. Simon said Miss Moore particularly fits the patterns set by some of the assassins of earlier presidents, particularly Leon Czolgosz who fatally wounded William McKinley, and Charles Guiteau who shot James Garfield. "She fits in so closely, its eerie, really," Dr. Simon said. As far as Miss Fromme is concerned, the sociologist said, "here, too, we find someone who is attached to all kinds of radical groups, but who really is not perceived as a reliable member of those groups." She also said that the influence of Manson on Miss Fromme might make her case unique. Simon said there has been a large increase recently in the number of women who participate in criminal activities, but she said these are mostly property offenses—larceny, embezzlement, fraud and forgery. She said women generally are not going into crimes of violence. She said she does not think the cases of Miss Moore and Miss Fromme indicate a trend. "I don't attach much importance to the fact that they are women," she said.

What Could Beat That Milo? Shucks, How About a Corn Crop?

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff
Fred Vanderburg Jr., who lives about 14 miles south of Pampa, has 850 acres of corn that may convince other area farmers to plant more of it—and less milo—next year. The area where Vanderburg grew his corn had made "very little milo in the last five years. The grass choked it. Corn will get above the grass and shade it out," he said. Even with problems—"We took the place late and it was hard to get the crop in and there was about 35 per cent hail damage on some of it"—Vanderburg still is averaging more than 8,000 pounds an acre. The hail-damaged portion yielded about 7,000. And he said one strip averaged close to 200 bushels an acre. He said Etchley's Feedlot south of Groom has contracted his corn. "It has about a 2 per cent better feeding value than milo," Vanderburg said. Some other things he likes include the way the corn thrashes out. "You don't get anywhere near the chaff and dust you get with milo," he said. "And the tool you use to harvest it gets under it if it's down and saves more." Vanderburg, who went a couple of years at Texas Tech then transferred and graduated in 1969 from Oklahoma State at Stillwater said "the chemicals you can use with corn do a better job and don't leave a residue in the soil. On milo, the chemicals can cause a problem in double cropping." He said he has cut about 300 acres of corn so far and figures to be finished in about 20 days. But he added that if he cut up to the first of the year he wouldn't have a yield loss like would be expected with late cut maize. And with corn "you can get the crop in earlier—about the middle of April—and you can be out by Sept. 15 which will give more time for double cropping." Vanderburg said that since it was his first year to raise corn, he hired a pest consultant "to help keep down problems. He came in once a week to analyze problems." The entomologist rode a motorcycle between the corn rows to check the entire crop. He told Vanderburg that it isn't practical to spray for ear worms because it would cost more than the damage they cause. He also said that corn borers are not too bad for the first few years of corn growing in an area. "Some people have said that we were just lucky because it was such an exceptionally good early year," Vanderburg said. "It was good—one of the wettest springs in I don't know how many years. But it was dry in the latter part of the season and the corn still held together. I think it's a good gamble." Many area farmers grow milo because "it's a customary thing," he said. "Of course, this all used to be dryland farming in this country and corn won't work in dryland." He admits he probably wouldn't have planted the corn "if we thought milo would work" but the grass problem decided the issue. "The north-south rows control the grass better but the east-west rows pick up better if it goes down," Vanderburg said. When it comes to irrigation, he said, "We've found that even with milo, watering every other row has given good penetration and you can get over an area much quicker." That is important because Vanderburg said he has found that corn is a more sensitive crop than milo. "Milo can go a little dormant without water," he said. "Corn will burn up in a hurry." Up at Etchley's Feedlot, they told Vanderburg that the cattle changed to the corn "like it was candy. They are doing good on it." And there are other possibilities. Vanderburg said that up around Dalhart some popcorn crops are being grown. "You're going to see more and more corn in the area," he said.

Scientific Competence Sought By Post War North Vietnam

(Editors note: Arthur W. Galston, professor of biology at Yale University, spent a month in North Vietnam at the invitation of the Hanoi government which opened the door to foreign scientists for the first time since the war. The following is his report on the progress of scientific research there.)
ARTHUR W. GALSTON
Written for
United Press International
Any country aspiring to an industrial and technological competence must have an underlying strength in basic science. The Vietnamese know this and, taking their characteristic long view, have been organizing their war-depleted scientific cadres into a versatile research nucleus. The effort proceeded all through the war at whatever pace was possible, but wholesale evacuation of educational and research institutes to the countryside hampered progress. As American participation in the war diminished and then ceased altogether, the pace of scientific organization quickened. Now, a few months after the end of hostilities, there are strong indications that the Vietnamese will soon have high competence in the basic physical and biological sciences, as well as in the related applied fields of engineering, medicine and agriculture. About four miles northwest of Hanoi, a large, modern science research center is nearing completion. Financed by the Soviet Union and constructed under Soviet supervision with Vietnamese labor, the center was originally planned and administered by the State Committee on Science and Technology, the leading scientific policy-making group in Vietnam. Since the end of the war, to insure rapid progress, the center, under its newly appointed director, Nguyen Van Hieu, has been placed directly under Prime Minister Pham Van Dong. At a private conference with these two men, I was struck by their close rapport, and by the prime minister's understanding of and direct concern with matters scientific. Hieu is a 39-year-old theoretical physicist who received his training under the noted Professor Nikolai Nikolaevich Bogolyubov at Dubna, the huge research center near Moscow. Five of Hieu's students also received basic training at Dubna, and in recognition of this growing Vietnamese competence in physics, the Dubna consortium recently donated advanced research equipment worth at least $500,000 to the center. This equipment is now largely set up and functioning in a series of huts and basement rooms of the center, but will soon move into spacious new quarters. Hieu is aware of the potential practical importance of research in solid state physics, and recently has shifted to that field, and the laboratory's organization reflects that emphasis. Already, large germanium and bismuth-tellurium single crystals have been grown, their impurities removed in a diffusion separation furnace, and the resulting purer crystals thinly sectioned to furnish the elements of semiconductor diodes for amplifiers. Sprinkled around the lab is a mixture of advanced equipment from many nations in the Soviet bloc, as well as the latest in scientific publications from all over the world, efficiently and cheaply reproduced by the Chinese without benefit of royalty payments. I saw a large Soviet neutron generator used in the activation analysis of minerals and proteins, several multichannel data analyzers from East Germany, a computer of Hungarian design based on American integrated circuits, and even a spectroscopy lab with many components from France, Great Britain and West Germany. A large X-ray laboratory is involved in analyzing the structure of crystals and a solar energy group is using semiconductors to translate light energy directly into usable quantities of electricity. These activities would be thoroughly familiar to western physicists, and it is clear that besides playing a role in the development of science in their own country, Vietnamese physicists are eager to enlarge their contacts with the rest of the world. I could get no exact figures on the cost of the Science Research Center, but I judge its approximate area at 500,000 square feet of usable space. At even $20 per square foot, a ridiculously low level by western standards, the building along will be worth $10 million when completed. Together with its abundant scientific equipment, it should eventually be worth about $25 million. While not especially impressive by American standards, this is enough to make it one of the largest installations of any kind in Vietnam. In the North, it will probably be second only to the $75 million paper mill being donated and built by the Swedes under an official aid program. In addition to the Institute of Physics, the center will house the Institute of Mathematics, founded in 1969 under Le Van Thiem, a German-trained Ph.D.; and the embryonic Institutes of Biology, Earth Sciences and Oceanography, all still without directors. A chemistry laboratory devoted to the study of catalysis will serve as a nucleus for the ultimate development of an Institute of Chemistry, for which the Vietnamese judge they do not yet have sufficient competent personnel. A computer center will complete the presently contemplated facilities. I was the first visiting foreign scientist in what Hieu envisions as an expanding program central to the intellectual life of the center. My lectures on plant physiology and biochemistry were attended mainly by those biologists close to that area, but I was impressed with the fact that physicists attended when I spoke on effects of light on plants, and both animal and microbial biochemists attended when I talked on the biochemistry of plant growth hormones. I instructed a small research group in some new techniques of plant cell culture, using chemicals, equipment and books supplied as a gift by the Scientists' Institute for Public Information and the Society for Social Responsibility in Science, two U.S.-based organizations. I found the young scientists well trained in basic concepts and eager to learn, but several years out of date. They were proud to be the occupants of the first three finished rooms in the entire center. These had been completed well before schedule in connection with plans for my visit, and the Soviet engineer and architect came around during one working day to ask whether I found everything satisfactory. This struck me as meaningful detente in action!

Fred Vanderburg Jr. tells daughter Gina, 5, about the corn crop he grew on 850 acres about 14 miles south of Pampa. The high yield from the corn has convinced Vanderburg to plant more acreage in it next year and fewer in milo. Corn has an advantage over maize in being able to shade out water grass. NEW YORK (UPI) - A new National Boating Survey done by Chilton Research Services for the U.S. Coast Guard gathered information on recreational boats in the United States. Unusual is a boat more than 40 feet in length. Only 3.9 percent of the boat owners have such craft. Unique, however, would be a canoe, jonboat or rowboat 26 feet or more long. The survey located none.

HEALTH SPENDING

AUSTIN, TEX. (UPI) - Health spending in the United States reached $485 per person for the year ending in June, 1974. The Texas Department of Health said the national figures represent an increase of 10.6 percent in health spending over the previous year. Hospital care was the largest category of health expenditure, accounting for 39 percent of the total spending.

The U.S. Postal Service has announced the design for the first of a series of Bicentennial Era envelopes which will be issued Oct. 13 in Minneapolis, Minn., in honor of seafaring. The series incorporates a new format for envelopes, carrying a silhouette in the lower left hand corner. The series will depict the occupations of the common man which formed the basis of American economy including seafaring, farming, homemaking, craftsmanship and medicine.

Spanish Labor Groups Protest Firing Squad

By ARTHUR HERMAN
SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI) — Outlawed labor groups called a two-day strike in Spain's troubled Basque region today to protest the firing squad executions of five guerrillas. The walkout in northern Spain came as a wave of anti-Spanish demonstrations swept across Western Europe and Latin America to protest the weekend executions.

Young workers defied sub-machine gun-wielding police in northern Spain to hand out leaflets calling for the 48-hour strike across the four Basque provinces. In San Sebastian, a Basque stronghold at the western foothills of the Pyrenees mountain range, youths plastered walls with posters portraying the executed guerrillas. Strikes and demonstrations are illegal in Spain. In an industrial suburb of Bilbao along the Bay of Biscay, police opened fire Sunday on hundreds of protesters marching behind a Basque flag. Six persons were wounded. In Madrid, police scattered some 1,500 youths Sunday as the demonstrators ran from San Isidro Cathedral shouting "no to the death penalty" and "freedom, freedom." Eight Western European governments recalled their ambassadors from Madrid in response to Saturday's executions. Spain, in turn, recalled five of its ambassadors "for consultation."

The recall of Madrid's ambassador to the Vatican signaled a deep crisis in relations between the church and overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Spain. In foreign protests, demonstrators sacked the Spanish embassy in Lisbon, Portugal, and set fire to the top floor of Spain's embassy in the Hague, Netherlands.

PSU Sets Homecoming

The annual homecoming at Panhandle State University will be held Saturday, Oct. 18. The homecoming theme is "Festival U.S.A." Registration of alumni, former students and friends will be from 9 to 11 a.m. in the Student Union Red Lounge. The homecoming parade will be at 11 a.m. and lunch will be served from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the Student Union cafeteria. The Miss Aggie Princess Pageant will be at Hughes-Strong Auditorium at 2 p.m., as well as a National Intercollegiate Rodeo at the rodeo arena. A buffet dinner will be served in the cafeteria from 5 to 7 p.m.

Pre-game activities will start at 7 p.m. at Wooten Field and kick-off time for the football game between Northwestern and Panhandle State will be a 7:30 p.m. Homecoming queen will be crowned at half time. Two homecoming dances are scheduled after the game in the Student Union with a country western band and a rock band playing in the cafeteria area and ballroom.

Bouncy Nixon Reported Well From Watergate

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon has "bounced back" from his serious illness and the emotional trials of Watergate, says his daughter Julie Eisenhower. "My father is very active on his book. He has bounced back physically ... in every way. I think he's getting sorted out," she said in an interview. "He still feels he can be of service to his country." Julie's husband, David, agreed the Nixons "turned the corner last December" and their lives have become more bearable as time begins to heal some of the wounds of Watergate. Seated in her fashionable apartment near the Watergate complex that lent its name to the Nixon administration scandal, Mrs. Eisenhower said any critical judgment on her father's political life should be delayed at least a decade.

"History will judge him differently," she predicted. "I really do feel we need a different perspective." She is clearly unreconciled to the dramatic events that led to her father's political demise and appears touchy when asked about Watergate. The Eisenhowers' living room is decorated with souvenirs and mementos from the Nixon White House days. Nixon, who came near death from phlebitis after leaving the presidency, is writing a book about his side of Watergate. Pat Nixon has remained entirely out of the public eye since his Aug. 8, 1974, resignation. And Julie said the former First Lady "just thinks my father is a great man (and) felt he shouldn't have had to leave the White House when he did ... It was a tragedy with all of us." She said her parents are "closer now than they've ever been. I think they sometimes get on each other's nerves ... but they enjoy watching movies, swimming, walking on the beach." David entered the room midway through the interview. "Mr. Nixon kept Watergate very close to the vest for an entire year and a half," he said. Julie's personal effort to put Watergate behind her has led to a new venture — a cookbook for children published by Doubleday. The 100 recipes include "Captain Kangaroo's Banana Delight" and her favorite brownies. She hopes the simple recipes will encourage youngsters to help in the kitchen — and find it fun.

Crest To Be Designed

The Texas resident who designs the winning official crest for the USS Texas will receive an engraved first issue copy of the crest and a $1,500 U.S. Savings Bond. The Texas, commanded by Capt. Peter B. Fielder, USN, is a nuclear guided missile cruiser. An expense paid trip to the commissioning ceremony of the ship in Norfolk, Va. also will be awarded the winning designer. The savings bond and trip are being donated by the Texas Navy League. Each of 10 finalists will receive color photographs of the ship.

Interested persons may obtain additional information on contest rules by contacting the Navy Office of Information, Dallas Branch, Main Tower Building, 1200 Main Street, Suite 230, Dallas 75202.

The Weatherfords

Jim Holbrook, Lily Fern Weatherford, Fulton Nash and Earl Weatherford will perform at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Fellowship Baptist Church, corner of Francis and Warren Streets. The Rev. E.D. Maddux, pastor, said the public may attend the service.

Gunman Fires at Publisher

SWEETWATER, Tex. (UPI) — Police said an unidentified gunman fired a single shot at the car carrying Sweetwater Reporter Publisher John McDougal and his family Friday, shattering the window inches from Mrs. McDougal's head. No one was injured. L. E. L. Huckabee said the incident occurred at dusk when McDougal, his wife and their two children were returning from dinner. It was the second such incident in this southwest Texas town in a little more than two weeks. On Sept. 11 an unidentified man fired several shots at Police Chief Gerald Byrd, Lt. Floyd Smith and Jim Blakely, an agent for the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board. Sweetwater residents voted Sept. 5 to resume legal sales of liquor and beer in the town, ending 33 years of prohibition. McDougal's newspaper editorially supported an end to the alcohol sales ban.

Red Cross To Instruct

Jack Chisum, swimming and water safety instructor, will begin a class here at 7 p.m. Tuesday to update Red Cross swimming instructors and others. The training session will be at the Pampa Youth Center. Hugh Burger, water safety instructor, will be in Pampa Tuesday morning to update instructors who work in Burger. Local instructors who cannot attend the evening session may attend the morning class. Red Cross hospital volunteers attend the morning class. Red Cross hospital volunteers attended a coffee Saturday in the home of Mrs. Eleanor McNamara. Each of the 17 volunteers was presented a pin and a drop to wear on her uniform. The next coffee will be Dec. 6 in the home of Mrs. Lee Harrah, 2401 Duncan. Libby Shotwell, executive secretary for the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross, will report on the Red Cross participation in the United Way Fund Drive at 9:30 a.m. on KPDM Staff Breakfast. The local Red Cross Chapter sent a wire recently to inquire about the daughter of a Pampa resident who was in the area of Hurricane Eloise. The daughter was safe.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, SEPT. 30
Your birthday today: You gain insight from sudden events and quirks of circumstances. You're on your own more than you have been in recent years. Relationships thin out and become less intense. Today's natives talk fluently but are able to keep secrets.
Aries [March 21-April 19]: With yesterday's muddles straightened out, you're free to take a crack at creative ventures. Don't waste time on unrelated matters if you can avoid them.
Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Make as many adjustments to original plans as you can. Take advantage of prevailing good humor. Don't make recriminations if you can easily avoid doing so.
Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Make use of schedule revisions if you're on deck early. Your original work attracts support; don't hesitate to show off. Your sentimental appeal is acknowledged.
Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Financial problems come to your attention and can be easily solved if you give some thought to the directions in which you are heading. Family reunions expand into celebrations.
Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Make a strong presentation of your current progress. Take credit and responsibility for recent achievement. Bring home a pleasant surprise, but don't talk shop.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Confirm details and set up serious changes that are necessary. Find a quiet spot for a short respite. Meditation provides perspective on the course you should follow.
Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Recruit carefully selected friends and let them help set the pace to get long delayed projects rolling. Backing is available if you're on the right track.
Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Traditional approaches still yield fine results, which comes as a jolt to many around you. Courtesy costs you nothing and pays dividends.
Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Get advice from experts. Communications open up and you profit by talking to distant people. Examine the limitations of those who work with you.
Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Today's cheerful mood deserves special consideration. If you can get away from your regular job or situation, do so. Invite companions for an outing.
Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: If you must repeat an old task, do so cheerfully. Put forth a wholehearted effort to get through routines. A lick and a promise is all that's needed now.
Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: This is an all-purpose day, and any beneficial procedure is suitable. Maintain a healthy self-interest no matter what course you decide to follow. Let colleagues in on some of your moves.

L and R Beauty Salon

Mrs. Verla Long, left, with Mrs. Leona Rhodes

Mrs. Leona Rhodes and Mrs. Verla Long became partners and opened the L and R Beauty Salon in August of 1974. There were several reasons for the ladies opening the business, but one of the major ones was, "It was just too nice a shop to be closed," Mrs. Rhodes said. The building at 1406 N. Banks "had been a beauty shop for 13 or 14 years," she said. Mrs. Rhodes said that business has been "better every day" since the initial slow period of a couple of months was passed. The salon has five operators and offers a complete line of beauty and cosmetic services. "We have Princess Nyla make up and are using some Jirmack Products," Mrs. Rhodes said. The shop is open from 8 a.m. to 6 or 7 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.
