

Back Tax Total Almost $1 Million

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Local tax entities are putting additional push into efforts to collect as much as possible of the nearly $1 million dollars in delinquent taxes owed to the City of Pampa, Gray County and the Pampa Independent School District.

A check with tax officials shows uncollected back taxes in the amount of $400,000 are owed to the school district, $383,000 to the city, and $190,000 to Gray County. That totals $973,000.

Don Lane, school tax attorney, said he had been authorized by school trustees to step up lawsuits against delinquent taxpayers.

Currently he has on file ten suits, three on real estate and seven on personal property back tax claims.

City Attorney Bob Gordon said he files approximately 35 or 40 cases a year to collect delinquent city taxes.

Gordon stated he has "six cases going" right now and three more in preparation involving both personal and real property.

County Tax Assessor Collector Jack Back said Gray County joins the other two tax entities — city and school — in suits filed to collect delinquent taxes.

Back stated county taxes have been on a 97 per cent collection basis during the past two years.

"That's real good," he added.

Gordon reports city collections run from 95 to 98 per cent and Pampa rates among the top 10 Texas cities in the amount of taxes collected.

In all three instances — county, school and city delinquent taxpayers are notified of intention to file court action and given an opportunity to "come in and pay off" thereby avoiding court costs which are piled on top of the delinquent tax bill if foreclosure is ordered.

Delinquent real estate taxes are uncollectible in court under state law if they date back longer than 1939. The statute of limitations on personal property delinquency is four years.

If property owners who owe back taxes ignore notice of the delinquencies, the taxing entities can file suit and if judgment is obtained the property can be sold at a minimum bid of taxes due.

In some cases, according to the tax collectors, the amount of the tax overdue is more than the value of the property.

Lane, working on the school delinquent taxes, explained that the tax entities "are not interested in putting widows and old folks out of their homes" in the drive to collect delinquent taxes.

All three — city, county and school tax officials — indicated their chief interest is in delinquent taxpayers whom they feel are able to pay.

Gordon said he has much success in talking personally with delinquent taxpayers when he explains the advantages of paying up instead of allowing the case to go to court.

Tax officials say property owners fall into the delinquent tax category for a number of reasons. These include going out of business, leaving the city, bankruptcy on personal property, deaths, inheritance and estate legalities and non-resident owners on real property.

A majority of cases are settled before getting into court, tax officials say. Others go the full route of foreclosure and sheriff's sale and still others do not reach court because taxpayers make arrangements to pay upon receipt of notice that they are facing court action.

Teams competed against others their own age in 8-, 9-, and 10-year-old classes, and class champions raced for the grand championship. Eight-year-old winners were Pack 411, Den 4 from Lamar School, Austin School's Pack 410, Den 2 were the 9-year-old winners, and the 10-year-old class and grand championship were won by Pack 409, Webelos Den of Woodrow Wilson School. The race was open to Cub Scout dens from the Santa Fe district, which includes Clarendon, Miami, McLean and Lefors. The contest was sponsored by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Johnny Snuggs and 8-year-old Johnny Jr. watch their Den Pack 422 push to victory in the first heat.

Dallas Man Here To Challenge Ticket

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Do you have any objections to a citizen fighting city hall?"

"Do you feel that there is anything wrong because I am here taking up your time because I believe myself to be innocent?" inquired H.C. Willis, 45, of Dallas this morning at a Gray County jury panel.

Willis was issued a speeding ticket on Feb. 27, four miles south of Pampa, by the Texas Highway Patrol.

He is challenging the constitutionality of the Gray County courts in accepting "anything but gold and silver coin as tender in payment of debts."

He appealed the charge from justice of peace court and was granted a jury trial here on Sept. 2 by County Judge Don Cam who set the trial for today.

"This is a typical speeding case," said John W. Warner, county attorney who said Willis was clocked traveling 72 miles per hour in a 55 mile zone.

Willis is acting as his own attorney in introducing Willis, Warner said he had conducted some classes in past years in Pampa and that he (Willis) opposed to paying income taxes.

Willis, in correcting Warner, said he is a "tax resister."

"I claim all the dependents I am legally allowed and all the exemptions I am allowed and pay no more taxes than the law requires," he told the panel.

"I do pay income taxes," he emphasized. "My philosophy is that every citizen, including the president, should obey the same laws in the same manner," he added.

Jury selection was to be completed by noon, and the trial was scheduled to begin shortly afterward.

The Willis case is one of 92 scheduled for trial in Gray County court this week.

The charges against individuals include making available alcoholic beverages to a minor, driving while intoxicated, possession of marijuana, criminal trespass, burglary of a coin operated machine, sale of beer during prohibited hours, assault, reckless driving and appeals from justice and municipal courts on various traffic violations.

Moroccan Marchers Leave Sahara

By JACQUES CLAFIN
WITH MOROCCANS IN SPANISH SAHARA (UPI)

Thousands of Moroccan volunteer marchers, many expressing surprise and disappointment, began withdrawing today from Spanish Sahara on orders of King Hassan II.

The king, threatened by war from Spain and Algeria, called off the "peace march" to claim the Spanish territory in a dramatic television and radio address Sunday night.

This morning he flew from the march command post in Agadir to his winter palace in Marrakesh officially ending the bizarre invasion by an estimated 200,000 civilians.

His marchers stopped six miles inside the Sahara territory facing Spanish troops and minefields.

Still another contingent of 150,000 marchers were caught by surprise by the announcement Sunday as they were crossing the border to reinforce the first group.

The volunteers, obeying orders to pull out, packed up their dishes and tents at dawn and began heading in trucks back to Morocco at 8:30 a.m. The Spanish news agency Europa Press said.

"We have a profound conviction that our march has fulfilled its mission and attained its objective," the king told his people Sunday. "That is why, dear people, we must return to our point of departure in order to treat the problems with other methods and new procedures."

The volunteers, who began crossing the Spanish Sahara frontier last Thursday, heard the king's speech over loudspeakers mounted on top of vehicles in the sprawling camp.

While the king's speeches usually raise cheers, most of the volunteers near the loudspeakers remained silent. No shouts of protest were heard but thousands of faces turned sullen.

The marchers, armed only with the Koran, had vowed to "liberate" the territory even if it meant crossing dangerous Spanish minefields.

Hassan's Oct. 16 call for a "peace march" by 500,000 men, women and children to claim Spanish Sahara has set off a wave of religious and nationalistic fervor among Morocco's 17 million people.

Ford Admits 'Growing Tension'

By HELENTHOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford acknowledges he fired James Schlesinger because of "growing tension" between the former defense secretary and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that was causing "an overall problem" in national security matters.

Ford also said Sunday in a nationally televised interview that operations in his campaign organization "could be better" but that he would enter all 30

GOP presidential primaries next year to let voters judge him on his record.

He indirectly challenged Ronald Reagan to do the same.

Ford said at his news conference last Monday he fired Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby only to put "my own team" into sensitive national security positions.

He provided no details on the Schlesinger-Kissinger rivalry but said he removed the defense secretary "to permit me as President to do a better job."

Ford predicted "the atmosphere will be infinitely better" if the Senate approves former White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld as Pentagon chief and U.S. envoy to China George Bush as CIA director.

Ford also broke with past statements by conceding his campaign organization was having problems, but indicated he did not expect them to keep him from victory over Reagan if the former California governor gets into the race.

"There will be no withdrawal by me" before the GOP convention in August, he said. "The voters of this country will make the final decision on the basis of success or failure of the programs that we espouse."

The President said it is unlikely Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev will make his long-planned visit to Washington this year and that he feels under no pressure to arrive at an agreement on the second round of strategic arms limitation talks "by a precise date."

Ford appeared on an hour-long version of NBC's "Meet the Press" to honor moderator

Lawrence Spivak who was ending his weekly association with the 30-year-old program.

Questioned at the outset about last week's "Sunday Night Massacre," Ford at first said his news conference answers last week were "the simple truth; there were no hidden motives; there were no devious actions taken."

Later, he was asked why on Oct. 1 he said possible differences of viewpoint between Schlesinger and Kissinger could be healthy but on Nov. 2 fired Schlesinger.

Ford replied "I found in the last month or so that there was not as comfortable a feeling in the situation that I desire" and it was creating some problems.

For me to do the job as well as I possibly can I need a feeling of comfort within an organization — no tension, complete cohesion.

I would say that it was an overall problem and I felt that the best way to remedy it was to take the actions that I did."

Asked to elaborate, Ford said Schlesinger has done a "fine job" in various high-level posts, but "there was a growing tension and I was uncomfortable in the situation."

GM Silent on Antitrust

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors' top executives are silent about reports the federal government may try to break up the world's largest auto company in what would be the biggest antitrust action in six decades.

Since reports of the possible action began circulating during the weekend, GM spokesmen issued a single brief statement: "We are totally unaware of any action of this kind."

Spokesmen refused further comment and executives were unavailable for comment.

But it should come as no surprise, one source said, because a company the size of GM is always under investigation and executives have said they are out to grab as many car sales as possible, despite GM's already larger piece of the market.

NBC reported Saturday the Federal Trade Commission is moving toward a decision whether to charge GM with antitrust violations.

Such a move would be the largest such action since the government broke up Standard Oil in 1911.

However, FTC spokesmen in Washington said no decisions have been made on the matter.

In an interview with UPI in September, GM President Elliott Estes said, "We're after everything that we can get."

Even if we increase our share, we shouldn't be in any trouble in Washington," he said. "After all, there's still all that competition from the domestic and foreign automakers."

NBC said the FTC's Economics and Competitions bureaus contend GM's share of the market — more than half the cars built in the United States — is so large it is tantamount to a monopoly.

GM's sales last year amounted to $32 billion, second only to Exxon Corp., and its profits totaled $950 million, down 60 per cent from its record $2.4 billion profits the year before.

GM has been the subject of several antitrust actions in the past and Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, has talked for years about breaking up GM.

In the past seven years GM has been consolidating its divisions to more central control in anticipation of possible antitrust action.

Through last October, GM had grabbed 52.9 per cent of the 5,795,880 domestic car sales this year.

"That kind of dominance is tantamount to monopoly," the FTC staff said.

The statute, passed as a result of the Watergate scandals, limits the amount candidates may spend and contributors may give. It also established a Federal Election Commission to police the law's provisions.

Prof. Ralph K. Winter Jr. of the Yale University Law School, representing a group of challengers, told the court today

Professor Says Campaign Act Smacks of Political Repression

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A law professor told the Supreme Court today that the 1974 Campaign Reform Act "smacks very much of repression of political opponents."

The justices scheduled four hours of arguments today on wide-ranging challenges to the new law hailed at birth as a remedy for political abuses inspired by big money.

The statute, passed as a result of the Watergate scandals, limits the amount candidates may spend and contributors may give. It also established a Federal Election Commission to police the law's provisions.

Prof. Ralph K. Winter Jr. of the Yale University Law School, representing a group of challengers, told the court today that an incumbent congressman now may accept $40,000 to prepare material for franked mail entirely outside restrictions of the 1974 act, while a challenger would be subject to its newly enacted limits.

"This smacks very much of repression of political opponents," Winter said. "It involves millions and millions of dollars."

Arguments from other challengers and the government were to be heard later in the day.

Winter also contended the law discriminates against independents because political parties are allowed to help finance candidates of their particular persuasion.

Impairing the ability of challengers to raise and spend money makes it more difficult to overcome the exposure incumbents enjoy, Winter told the court.

"You cannot bring about equality without causing more inequality," he said, adding, "The greatest campaign reform law ever enacted was the First Amendment to the Constitution. Good speech will drive out bad."

Because of its scope and the variety of the constitutional challenges, the case is one of the most complex in recent memory the nine justices have had to decide.

The Justice Department itself made history by giving its views in three separate briefs. In one, it defended the law on behalf of the FEC as it would normally be expected to do.

But it disagrees with the FEC in some respects — whether, for instance, the agency has power to disqualify for a year a candidate found to have committed campaign violations.

The FEC is speaking for itself on those matters.

Finally, the department is a "friend of the court" as giving the justices another 122 pages which it says is merely an analysis and does not take sides.

"No other statute in our nation's history has comprehensively regulated the conduct of political campaigns for the offices of president, senator and representative, reaching not only candidate activities but also the amount and method of citizen participation," the Justice Department said.

The challenges came from an assortment of persons and groups, including Sen. James Buckley, CR-N.Y., independent presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy, and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Common Cause and the League of Women Voters were among the supporters of the act.

Several parties are urging the high court to do nothing at this stage because the law, already upheld by a federal appeals court, is so new.

Tax 'Loopholes'?

The penchant of Americans to label problems and issues with colorful phrases and clichés rarely has been more misleading than the current habit of calling legal tax deductions "loopholes."

In the context of federal laws, a loophole would be an ambiguity or omission in the text of a statute through which its intent of obligation can be evaded.

Tax "loopholes" now being studied by the House Ways and Means Committee with an eye for offering possible revisions to Congress, are anything but ambiguous or deceitful. Instead they are laws which permit such things as tax concessions for certain investments in real estate, motion picture companies, cattle ranches and farms, overseas businesses, energy exploration, cable television companies, auto racing events, computer leasing and many other legitimate business ventures.

Moreover, the laws represent deliberate policies by Congress to serve what it considers proper goals such as adequate housing, bountiful farm production, local financing of parks, stadia, schools and so forth.

Nevertheless, the Ways and Means Committee of the House has promised a "crackdown" on the loopholes and plans to submit its proposals to Congress and begin hearings on national health plans.

The tax priorities outlined by Chairman Al Ullman, include curbs on real estate, farm and

Party-Pooping NLRB

If you are an employer and thinking of giving the office a party and, perhaps, a half-day off with pay, better go slow. The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) will get you if you don't watch out.

Your first precautionary move would be to find out if the gang at the office has voted recently on the question of unionization. If there has been no election, then, presumably, you are safe. Go ahead, order the champagne.

If there has been such an election, further checking becomes necessary. How did the election go? If the union was accepted, you are still on safe ground. Go ahead with the party; that is, if having your business turned into a "closed shop" puts you in a partying mood.

But, if the election went against the union, all signals flash red. Why? Because the NLRB has ruled that giving a party after one's employees have voted against unionization is a no-no.

According to the Wall Street Journal, management at CBS Records threw a party and gave its employees a half-day off with pay after the workers had voted against unionization, with the result that the firm came into immediate confrontation with the NLRB. Parties and half-days off with pay are illegal under such circumstances, ruled the union-lining Board, because employees are likely to see the moves as "a promise of

Concern High Over Land Use Control

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
LONDON, ENGLAND — Government controls on land use were instituted by the first post-war socialist government. Today, the socialists continue to undermine the rights of property owners.

The immediate cause of concern here is the Community Land Bill which has passed in the Commons but still must go before the House of Lords.

The essential purpose of the bill, according to The Spectator, is "to compel local authorities to acquire all development land in the country on a ten-year ahead basis."

Americans who have been concerned about land use control legislation in their country should consider this British legislation. It shows how far land use controllers are prepared to go in striving for what amounts to nationalization of land.

Under the British bill, a businessman who wants to develop part of his land would be required first to sell the acreage he wishes to develop to a local government authority. Then he would be given an opportunity to buy it back — often against competition. A more absurd and outrageous system can hardly be imagined.

And what is development land? The definition of development land, under the bill, is so wide that it can be read to include almost any land the government wishes to have treated as such. This bill also virtually abolishes the right of appeal from a bureaucratic decision to take a property as development land. The Spectator has noted that his land nationalization bill has "few protections built in than any earlier nationalization legislation."

British opponents of this legislation have noted that the opportunities for corruption are enormous. Unfortunately, the U.S. public seems less aware of the likelihood of payoffs in the land use control systems proposed in Congress in recent years.

Many of the objections raised to the British Community Land Bill also apply to American legislation in this area. Laws of this type are likely to hamper food production, as public authorities will have to take land out of agricultural use if they plan for developmental uses over a 10-year period.

Land use control laws will increase unemployment because of the delays imposed on industrialists who have plans for productive use of properties. In Britain, as in America, this kind of land bill will damage the interests of church, colleges and often non-profit groups with substantial holding in land for future use.

The ultimate objection to the Community Land Bill and similar proposals in the U.S. is that they would make bureaucratic socialism felt on every level of society. Such legislation would affect every citizen with the ambition to own his own house or lot in the country. It would interfere with and impair his right to possess property in however small quantities.

Here, then, is an issue on which it should be possible to rally strong public support in the two great Anglo-Saxon nations on opposite sides of the Atlantic.

LOST SOUL

DR. KISSINGER

Will Richardson Replace Him?

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The possibility of becoming Secretary of State was undoubtedly part of the lure that convinced Elliot Richardson he should accept an unexciting appointment as Secretary of Commerce.

Whether the possibility of succeeding Henry A. Kissinger was discussed or not, it was undoubtedly on the minds of both Richardson and President Ford in filling the post being vacated by Secretary Rogers Morton.

There was a moment of disbelief among the press when the President made the surprise announcement that Richardson will leave the U.S. embassy in London to head Commerce. Why would the brilliant, articulate and ambitious hero of the Watergate "Saturday night massacre" want to take on such a dreary and unexciting job?

The answer can be found in Richardson's long-time ambition to be Secretary of State and in the cooling of President Ford's relationship with the temperamental Dr. Kissinger, who is periodically threatening to quit.

Richardson, who was undersecretary of State in 1969 and 1970, is a viable alternative to Kissinger. He has broad experience in foreign affairs and a record as "an excellent administrator" for the State Department under Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

It is well to remember that the jealous and notional Dr. Kissinger told President Ford several months ago that he would resign as Secretary of State if he were required to give up his post as special assistant to the President for national security affairs, as was being demanded by congressional critics.

In some manner, President Ford has persuaded him to give up his White House hat and remain as secretary, in what President Ford will try to make a more restrictive role as the election year approaches. The possessive Dr. Kissinger will have less of President Ford's time.

Clearly, this uneasy arrangement that could result in a sudden Kissinger decision to walk out or threaten to walk out. Having Richardson just across Thirteenth Street in the Commerce Department building will be an insurance policy, even as Kissinger continues his travels to the People's Republic of China and completes SALT and related economic agreements.

But, it is asked, why couldn't Richardson continue to serve as ambassador to Great Britain, which is the in the foreign affairs field? The answer is probably Richardson's irritation over criticism in the English press on his role as revealed in the Watergate special prosecutor's final report, and President Ford's desire for private conversations with Richardson that will not go through international telephone lines or Dr. Kissinger's State Department personnel.

The London newspaper, which hailed Richardson as a hero of Watergate when he arrived last March, have been irritated to learn from the final Watergate report that Richardson was somewhat less a hero on Watergate than he had seemed.

The special prosecutor's description of then Attorney General Richardson's efforts to limit the inquiries of the first special prosecutor, Archibald Cox, has resulted in a rash of critical comment that he emerges "as somewhat less than the hero some have painted."

Other papers, which had been admirers, wrote of the "tarnished armor" of the white knight of Watergate, and Richardson has found it irritating because he can not argue with the facts. He can only explain that he was carrying out request for a restricted inquiry from President Nixon.

While the explanations might be acceptable in a court of law as exculpatory, the explanation that he was simply doing what Mr. Nixon asked him to do is something less than heroic.

After only six months in London, reporters who visited Richardson said he very much wanted to go back to Washington and mix in the politics of 1976.

The Commerce Department gives Richardson a convenient stopping off place on his way to Secretary of State, or vice-president if Donald Rumsfeld should become unacceptable to President Ford because of blundering at the Defense Department.

Pot-Smoking By Children Has Doubled

In terms of expediency the action by the legislatures of several states toward decriminalization of the use of marijuana promises to "solve" a law enforcement problem. Police and prosecutors have complained that marijuana violations are so widespread that haling offenders into court lessens their ability to deal with other crimes, including offenses involving harder drugs.

While decriminalization doubtless can lighten the burden of police and the courts, what about the burden on American parents worried about their children experimenting with drugs? Dr. Robert L. Dupont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, says he is alarmed by the "contagious" spread of marijuana use into lower and lower age brackets. A new study shows that pot-smoking among boys and girls aged 12 to 17 doubled between 1972 and 1974. The institute estimates that 55 per cent of the high school seniors graduating this year had tried smoking marijuana or taken some other illegal drug.

The new laws put our society in the hypocritical position of saying marijuana is dangerous enough to prohibit its sale but not dangerous enough to prohibit its use. If children are confused when their parents tell them they should not experiment with drugs, who is to blame? The alarmed Dr. Dupont might ask himself that question. He is among those who are advocating that criminal penalties against marijuana use be dropped. — Copley News Service

Battin' Around Consumers Will Pay

By C.R. BATTEN
A new coalition has been formed, called Environmentalists for Full Employment (EFFE).

Among its sponsors are representatives of such organizations as the Sierra Club, Natural Resources Defense Council, Environmental Action and Zero Population Growth.

It was formed in response to the growing reputation of environmentalists as "anti-poor," "anti-consumer," and "anti-labor" in an effort "to show our commitment to insuring employment to all those who need jobs."

"In the short run," says a letter from EFFE, "our goal is two-fold: to work with labor and social welfare groups to formulate environmentally-sound programs to employ people, and to prevent the current economic trauma from being used as an excuse for emasculating environmental protection programs. Our long run goal is to influence changes in the structure of the American economy so that all members of our society can work productively and harmoniously with each other and with the environment."

Certainly, those are desirable goals; but a look at how EFFE would accomplish them is in order.

"We favor rehiring teachers, police, and fire fighters who have been fired to protect bondholders," says EFFE. It appears to recommend that instead of economizing by reducing their work force, cities should default on their bond payments — that they should ignore their commitment to bondholders, many of whom may be in greater need than city workers who are laid off.

New York is facing bankruptcy now. If New York defaults, and other cities do as EFFE is recommending, how will they obtain money for capital improvements? Certainly, no one is going to invest in bonds if the promise to pay that is written on them is likely to be ignored.

"We oppose further tax credits to corporations for capital investments... many of which are used to disemploy people..." Do the members of EFFE understand that capital investments are? They are investments in tools of production that are needed by the workers, so they can produce consumer goods. A shortage of investment in tools is one of the reasons for our current prolonged depression.

Perhaps EFFE should ask, "what is the real incentive for purchasing more efficient tools that make it possible for each worker to produce more?"

First, it is a demonstrated consumer demand for goods and services. But once an entrepreneur decides that he is going to respond to that demand by expanding his production or going into a new product line, he must balance the efficiency and the cost of the tools he buys with the availability and cost of labor.

Labor shortages and high labor costs stimulate the development of more labor-saving machinery. Artificially high wages have stimulated the development of automation in the factories. Is EFFE prepared to work for the repeal of minimum wage laws and other enforced regulations that have raised the cost of labor to artificially high levels?

Finally, EFFE says, "Let those who have profited (sic) the most from our economic system now pay their fair share for its renovation." Little its members realize that workers and the consumers have profited the most from our relatively free economic system — and that no matter how the members of EFFE plan to accomplish its renovation, workers and the consumers will ultimately pay. There are no others.

It appears that EFFE would overrule the economic judgments of individual investors and entrepreneurs by regulating away their ability to make their own decisions concerning what they would produce and how they would produce it. If so, it is doomed to failure in its stated objectives.

One would hope that before EFFE gets involved in economic issues, its members would study the works of such economic greats as F.A. Hayek, Ludwig von Mises and Murray Rothbard. They might learn that some of the shortcomings that they apparently blame on the free market system are in reality created by the interventions of governments in that system.

HEW Can't Track Down Deserted Spouses

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that wives who have been deserted by their husbands and who have had to go on welfare to support their families should write to the Parent Locator Service, in care of the Health, Education and Welfare Office in Washington, D.C.

You said that department would locate the absent parents through Social Security records, and they would inform the wife of her husband's whereabouts. (In the past, such information was considered confidential, and the department refused to give it out.)

Well, I followed your advice, and the HEW wrote back saying they were sorry but they couldn't help me. How come?

Thanks for nothing.

DESERTED IN TEXAS

DEAR DESERTED: Last August, a spokesman for the HEW wrote to advise me that the whereabouts of an absent spouse would no longer be confidential if he deserted his family and failed to meet his financial obligations. I was advised to inform my readers to write to the HEW in Washington, D.C., for assistance in locating absent spouses.

After that item appeared in my column, the HEW in Washington, D.C., was inundated with requests for help. All were refused.

When I demanded an explanation, they apologetically told me that such a bill had been passed, but that Congress had failed to appropriate the funds to provide that service — and then asked that I please inform deserted wives to apply to their state welfare department for assistance in locating an absent spouse.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this problem in your column, and I really would like to know if there is a solution.

When a person drives her (or his) own car and agrees to pick up others, why should the driver have to pay for the parking?

I think it's enough that the driver uses her (his) car and pays for the gas without having to pay for the parking. Of all the times I've been the "chauffeur," not once has one of the "sheppalongs" offered to pay for even part of the parking.

Please print this, Abby. Most people aren't really cheap; they're just thoughtless.

"THE DRIVER"

DEAR DRIVER: Here's your letter. Are you listening "Sheppalongs"?

DEAR ABBY: I can't forget the letter from OLD FOOL, the 64-year-old woman who considers herself "respectable" but who is having an affair with a married man whose wife is now her "best friend."

You should have reminded her of the Chinese proverb, "One foot cannot stand on two boats."

As discreet or cunning as her married lover may be, he is bound to fall in the drink sooner or later, and he's the one who has something to lose — not she.

He is making a mockery of marriage, and she is making a mockery of friendship, pretending to be best friends with her lover's wife. Meanwhile, OLD FOOL is secure in her retirement with family and friends, and her travels around kill time.

I hope this married man's wife is still around to care for him if he develops a lingering illness. OLD FOOL will probably be cruising in the Mediterranean. Alone.

Taylor Elected to Board

Boyd Taylor, vice president, Cabot Corp., was elected to the board of directors of the Texas Research League at its 23rd annual membership meeting in Austin Friday.

Lewis H. Bond, chairman of the board, Texas American Bancshares, Fort Worth, was elected chairman of the research league for 1976. Bond succeeds Randall Meyer, president, Exxon Co., U.S.A. of Houston. William H. Seay, chairman and chief executive officer, Southwestern Life Insurance Co. of Dallas, was elected vice chairman, and Robert T. Present, chairman and chief executive officer, Capital National Bank of Austin, was elected treasurer.

The league is a private, non-profit organization which conducts studies of programs and problems of state and local government.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has begun implementing provisions of a law passed last year that provides some schools may remain segregated if integration would require busing children too far.

HEW legal experts have concluded the 15-month-old legislation restricts "the amount of busing" HEW may order, even in the northern and western states where it is now trying to force some school districts to desegregate.

In a letter to officials of a Fresno, Calif. school district, for example, HEW said that city has three unlawfully segregated schools. But only one will have to be desegregated by federal order.

In documents obtained by UPI under the Freedom of Information Act, HEW legal experts cited legislation sponsored by Rep. Marvin Esch, R-Mich., and signed by President Ford on Aug. 21, 1974, which says busing should be used only as a last resort to desegregate schools and, even then, should take children no farther than "the closest or next closest school."

"Fresno is one of those cities where we are going to leave several minority schools, strictly because of the Esch limitations on busing beyond the next nearest school," a veteran HEW civil rights official told UPI.

Another top-ranking HEW official said, "There will be other cities; no question about it."

One month after the Esch bill became law, HEW sent Fresno a letter saying that "in light of the (Esch) provisions" it would not force the town to remedy the "illegally segregated status of Carver Elementary and Irwin Junior High," apparently because that would require busing Carver and Irwin students too far.

"The district may, of course, voluntarily pursue the desegregation of these schools by any means it deems feasible," the letter said. HEW still wants Fresno to desegregate a third school.

HEW is responsible for enforcing Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which denies federal aid to segregated public school systems.

Civil rights activists have filed a federal suit accusing HEW of failing to enforce Title VI in 33 northern and western states although it pressed the legislation vigorously in the South.

In response, HEW has stepped up efforts to enforce integration in those states.

Musicians Sit for Pay

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Striking philharmonic musicians say their sit-in at the orchestra's office is a friendly one, but they're determined to be paid for rehearsals they played in before the strike.

The sit-in began Friday because of the musicians' union claim the Philharmonic Association owes them for a week of rehearsals before the strike which canceled the season-opening performance last Tuesday.

Nancy Sines, association general manager, suggested but didn't demand that the musicians leave during the weekend. She said she'd work as usual today in the office around the protesting musicians.

"There's no reason to force them out," she said. "They're our musicians. They're just sitting there."

But Ms. Sines said she has no plans to pay the musicians until instructed by the association's lawyers.

Dale F. Weddle, a horn player, termed the sit-in a standoff and said he was sure the musicians eventually would be paid for the five disputed rehearsals.

"We're not accustomed to something like this," Weddle said. "We're artists, not factory workers. This isn't the usual labor-management kind of problem. I think we're a little friendlier than that."

Larry Hartshorn, chairman of the musicians' bargaining unit, said the attorney for the Kansas City Federation of Musicians Local 34-627 told musicians they should be paid for the rehearsals which led up to the canceled concert Tuesday.

The strike is over the musicians' demands for a 38-week season and a salary raise of 8 to 10 per cent over the $210 per week minimum pay last year. The association said because banks were pressing it to cut its deficit it could offer only a 28-week season and a 2 1/2 per cent pay raise.

Ford Still Opposed NYC Loan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford told five Democratic senators today he is hopeful New York City can avoid default, but is still opposed to giving the city federal loan guarantees.

The five senators, led by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, said they are still hopeful the President will change his mind. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, told reporters that after meeting with Ford in the Cabinet Room for more than one hour he found "no change" in Ford's position. "The most important impression I got is that he (Ford) very much wants New York to avoid default," Proxmire said. "He feels that default can be avoided without federal intervention." Proxmire said he and the other senators explained their proposals to stave off a New York City default by guaranteeing federal loans.

"The President was very firm that New York must meet its obligation," Proxmire said. "I base that on nothing we've heard today, but I believe as time goes on, he may change his view."

As for Ford, Proxmire said, "I would say he said 'no.' (on the loan guarantees) but I think we made progress. I think he listened. It's a much tougher bill" and would require the city to make sacrifices.

The Senate Banking Committee has approved legislation calling for $4 billion in federal loan guarantees and establishment of a three-member panel, chaired by Treasury Secretary

William E. Simon, to oversee the city's finances.

Ford, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, said "there will be no serious ramifications in the money market of this country" if the city defaults.

Asked his opinion of a House bill providing $7 billion in loan guarantees, Ford replied, "The bill I've seen I think is not the right kind of legislation to help New York City."

Mansfield said Saturday, "I am always hopeful that we can work together, but with the deadline extending anywhere from Nov. 14 on, I think it's time to face up to the situation. We can't bury our heads in the sand."

Mansfield asked Sens. William Proxmire, Adlai Stevenson, Edmund Muskie and assistant majority leader Robert Byrd to go with him to see Ford.

He said the delegation would lay out the Senate Banking Committee's $4 billion loan guarantee proposal, which is why Proxmire, chairman of the committee, and Stevenson, a member of the panel, were asked to attend. Muskie is head of Congress' joint budget committee.

Ford said Sunday federal intervention is not the answer for New York because "right now the (state) government, the mayor, the bankers and labor are working to find the answer... This is in the best interests of the eight million people of New York."

Asked if he considered the possibility he might be wrong about how to handle New York City, Ford replied:

"I have carefully considered that. I have gotten advice not only from experts in my administration, but I have read considerably the views of others and I think it is the weight of the evidence that if New York City unfortunately goes into default, there will be no serious ramifications in the money market of this country."

Franco Struggles To Survive

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's doctors reported him still in very grave condition today, struggling to survive the critical period of recovery from surgery that removed most of his stomach.

An afternoon medical bulletin, the first in 17 hours, said "the prognosis is the same," meaning that his condition remained "very grave" following the Friday operation.

The bulletin said a kidney apparatus had offset Franco's kidney failure; his breathing was stable with the help of a respirator, and the blood clotting in his left leg was under control.

It said he rested quietly through the night.

"The postoperative development of the chief of state continues without incident," the bulletin said.

Doctors consider the present days of recovery critical. It will be a period in which his body will accept or reject the nearly two gallons of blood given him.

His wife, Carmen Polo, and his successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, visited La Paz hospital on the 25th day of Franco's struggle for survival. The prince was welcomed by warm applause from the dozens of bystanders outside the hospital.

For the prince, it was his first public appearance since King Hassan of Morocco Sunday called off his "green march" into Spanish Sahara—the first test of the new Spanish leader.

On the political front, the leading Roman Catholic prelate in Spain added his voice Sunday to the increasing calls for an end to authoritarian rule.

Cardinal Vicente Tarancon, the archbishop of Madrid, said all Spaniards should participate in the nation's political life in the post-Franco era.

The prelate said "uniformity"—his carefully chosen euphemism for one-man rule—"is against nature" and "incompatible with liberty."

"The responsible participation of all Spaniards is indispensable so our motherland has an audience in the world," he said.

The cardinal's remarks came after authorities accused the church newspaper Ya of attacking the constitution by advocating "a democratic monarchy" in Spain.

Doctors said Franco was still in "very grave" condition but the 82-year-old general was reacting favorably to massive stomach surgery.

"It's exceptional," Dr. Manuel Hidalgo Huerta, one of his surgeons, said. "The whole medical team is just as surprised as I am."

A medical bulletin Sunday night said intensive treatment had controlled Franco's kidney failure and phlebitis, the circulatory ailment that plagued former President Richard Nixon.

The Spanish leader has been fighting for his life since an Oct. 17 bout of influenza touched off a series of heart attacks and severe complications.

Franco, Spain's dictatorial ruler for 36 years, handed over power Oct. 31 to Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon—temporarily if the general recovers but permanently if he dies as expected.

Quakers Send Illegal Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Friends Service Committee said today it has made its first illegal delivery of aid to North Vietnam.

The Quaker relief group said it informed the White House that 16.5 tons of acrylic yarn had been delivered to Haiphong for making sweaters for North Vietnamese school children.

On Sunday the group announced that the Treasury Department, under the Trading with the Enemy Act, had refused to grant the committee the necessary export license for the shipment, claiming it was economic rather than humanitarian aid. In addition, the Quakers announced they were proceeding with plans to ship fishnets and agricultural equipment, including rototillers, to South Vietnam as well as wood screw-making machines for a cooperative in Hanoi. Licenses for these items have also been denied by the government.

"We do not need the government to tell us what is and is not humanitarian aid," said Friends Executive Secretary Louis Schneider and Board Chairman Wallace Collett in a statement. The two face possible prison terms of up to 10 years and fines of up to $10,000 if the government decides to prosecute them for allowing the unauthorized aid shipments.

The Friends said they expected some 200 supporters to hold a silent vigil across the street from the White House during a meeting between the religious leaders and administration officials to discuss the matter.

Friends officials announced that some 2,000 people across the country have publicly associated themselves with the Service Committee's decision to make the illegal shipments by

East Sets Heat Record

By United Press International

For much of the nation's midlands and the central Rockies, Indian Summer is over. But in the East, it goes on—at a record pace.

Even as New York City and Philadelphia basked in record high temperatures Sunday, snow, rain, raging winds and tornadoes belted the country's heartland.

More than a foot of snow piled up in Denver and heavy falls socked other portions of the state, stretching into the Black Hills of South Dakota and touching northwestern Iowa.

Snow-slicked roads triggered travelers' warnings in the Black Hills, and slushy snow combined with thunderstorms to hamper motorists in the Minneapolis area.

Snow continued today in Minnesota and stretched into Wisconsin. Heavy snow warnings were posted for portions of both states.

Northwestern Iowa was christened with its first snow of the season Sunday, although unseasonably mild temperatures accompanied powerful thunderstorms in most of the remainder of that state.

A tornado skipped across Waterloo, Iowa, ripping up power lines and causing scattered damage to homes and businesses, then hit the tiny town of Dunkerton, Iowa, demolishing at least 10 homes in a new residential area. There were no injuries.

Wind-whipped rains deluged portions of northern Iowa. Clarion, Iowa, reported gusts of 50 miles an hour and more than 2½ inches of rain.

Thunderstorms sent wind gusts of nearly 60 miles per hour through Emporia, Kan., and other storms buffeted portions of Missouri and Illinois.

Another batch of severe weather hit in southwestern Alabama and a tornado struck an area 10 miles northwest Biloxi, Miss., causing minor damage.

Isolated snow showers hit the northern Rockies and scattered showers and thunderstorms dampened the eastern Gulf Coast.

Ford Defines Detente

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford was asked Sunday to define the word "detente," commonly used to mean a relaxation of tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Ford, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," said: "I'm not sure that's the best word, but that's the word that's being used."

"Detente means to me that two superpowers, who are strong militarily and economically, who represent differing political and governmental views, instead of confronting one another, can consult with one another on a wide variety of areas of potential dispute, whether it's trade, whether it's military potential conflict, whether it's a number of other things."

"It is a mechanism for the relaxation of tensions, so that instead of glaring at one another and opening the potential of conflict you can sit down and discuss differences of opinion... without military conflict."

Ford Believes Nixon Should Not Return

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It would not be in Richard M. Nixon's "best interest" to attempt to take up a new role in public life, President Ford said Sunday.

Ford was asked on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" if he would consider giving Nixon any role, even a ceremonial one, in his administration.

"I see no possibility of that," replied the President.

Ford was appointed by Nixon as vice president and became President 15 months ago when Nixon resigned because of Watergate scandals. In one of the most controversial moves of his administration, Ford pardoned Nixon before the former President had been charged with any crimes.

Nixon has been said to be considering a return to public life.

Police Report Weekend Burglaries

Burglary and theft were among the reports received last weekend by the Pampa Police Department.

A.C. Powell, custodian at Woodrow Wilson School, reported that someone stole one of the fire extinguishers from the school.

Paul Odessa reported that Mrs. Floyd Granthoff of 1028 Huff left $125 in cash in an envelope at his home, but when he returned the envelope was opened and the money gone.

Eric Copenhaver of 427 Naida said someone took three guns from his residence. Entry could have been gained through an unlocked window.

Kansas Town Wants Federal Bail Out Too

By SYLVIA MORENO STERLING, Kan. (UPI) — This central Kansas town of 2,300 people has something in common with New York City: both want something from the White House. New York City wants $7 billion in loan guarantees; Sterling only wants a doctor.

The farming community has Dr. Thomas Simpson every other weekend while he finishes his residency and he wants to move there permanently. But that decision is now up to President Ford.

Last week Kansas Gov. Robert Bennett sent Ford a letter asking him to waive Simpson's commitment to the Navy made under the now-defunct Berry Plan.

"I honestly believe I'm building my country more by staying here, than by going into the service and being a cog in their wheel," says Simpson, 28.

Simpson, who enlisted in the Navy in 1971 while still in medical school, will finish his residency at a Wichita hospital in December. Though the draft expired in 1973, he has orders to report to a clinic at a Navy shipyard in Portsmouth, N.H., in January.

In July, he asked the Navy to waive his commitment because he believes the one-doctor rural community needs him more.

Almost everyone in the town agrees with him, but no more than Sterling's only full-time physician, Dr. Jack Dysart.

"I've heard from fairly authentic sources that where he's going they have about three doctors for fairly small load of patients," says Dysart. "They need him as badly as a pig needs two tails and we need him so badly here."

He's apparently right according to Simpson.

"The military set-up is one that does not make good use of its doctors," Simpson says. Though he does admit the Navy is understaffed medically some places, he says he can look forward to a light patient load, sharing night calls and having every other weekend off at the Portsmouth base.

The fate of Sterling's 21-bed hospital and sole doctor depend on whether Simpson is forced to fulfill his two year obligation as a Navy doctor.

"If he can't stay I will definitely retire," 63-year-old Dysart says. "I can't take the responsibility by myself forever. Physically and emotionally it's just impossible for me to continue. I just don't have the old drive."

Dysart has practiced in Sterling for 34 years and has taken care of the townspeople by himself since late 1972.

Bennett's letter to Ford was prompted by a self-appointed, one-woman force named Annie Wyatt.

"I just decided I'd start a one-woman campaign on the premise that if I could reach President Ford and the secretary of the Navy, they'd listen to my problem," says the 48-year-old housewife. "It's a very naive approach but I feel I could just tell them my story, they would listen to me."

Attempts were made by the town's three-man Medical Aspects Committee to get the Navy to let Simpson stay, also. But when they went to the Navy personnel office in the Pentagon in mid-July, they were politely told "no" and informed of an appeals process to the Navy Secretary. The letter denying Simpson's waiver request had been sent just that morning.

Hospital administrator Richard McGee said the hospital has received more than $100,000 in contributions to keep it running since September, 1974. Donations were first solicited to update the facility, but now the small farmers and businessmen keep contributing in hopes of getting the Navy to let Simpson stay.

"We're not even asking the federal government for money," McGee says. "We're just asking for a doctor."

New Railroad Born Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Quietly and with no fanfare, a new railroad will be born Sunday.

Nothing obvious is changing. No new trains will start running. None will stop.

But behind the scenes, a new corporate entity called the Consolidated Rail Corp. is coming into existence. It represents a milestone in northeast railroading.

ConRail, as it is called, will consolidate bankrupt northeast and midwestern railroads — mainly the 20,000-mile Penn Central — into one trimmed-down system and rehabilitate it with government money.

ConRail was planned by a government agency called the U.S. Railway Association.

Under the law, either the House or Senate could have blocked the USRA plan. But no one in Congress was sufficiently offended by the proposed branch line abandonments and other politically sensitive changes to even offer a resolution opposing the plan.

Congressional action still is needed to fully implement ConRail, including at least a doubling of the $1 billion in federal funds and federally guaranteed loans originally written into the Regional Rail Reorganization Act.

As a practical matter, ConRail has been in operation for several weeks, both in Philadelphia and Washington, with a skeleton staff of about 50 permanent, temporary and borrowed employees. Philadelphia will be the headquarters.

The new corporation must work quickly to prepare for a key date in its history — Feb. 27, 1976.

At 12:01 a.m. on that Friday, ConRail will physically take over seven bankrupt lines — the Penn Central, Jersey Central, Reading, Erie Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, Lehigh & Hudson River and Ann Arbor.

Manpower will be no problem. Except for top management, all employees of the bankrupt lines have been asked to stay on.

ConRail's problems only begin with the complex change in ownership. After that, the new firm must try to turn one of the greatest corporate failures in history into a profitable rail system.

Board Threatens Schools on Fees

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The State Board of Education Saturday threatened the accreditation of any school district in Texas which refuses to abide by Attorney General John Hill's ruling prohibiting the collection of most student fees.

The board, in a resolution unanimously adopted, noted Hill's ruling will remain the law unless it is successfully challenged in court.

"The State Board of Education will enforce this law through the school accreditation process," the resolution said.

"This opinion resulted in an extraordinary financial burden to virtually all the school districts of the State of Texas at a time when no avenues of relief were open to the local districts."

The resolution said Gov. Dolph Briscoe is attempting to determine if he can transfer funds from appropriations for the Traffic Safety Act to the education agency to aid in funding driver education programs.

Other October activities included an outing to the Mineral and Gem Show Oct. 4, a visit to the Central Fire Station during Fire Prevention Week, and overnight camping trip and workday Oct. 17-18 and a Halloween party Oct. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Brock invite you to hear Paul Burlison in Revival at Hobart Baptist Church tonight at 7:30.

Soliah Wants Two Lawyers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Steven Soliah, Patricia Hearst's lover accused of bank robbery and murder, wants to be represented by a legal defense team familiar with radical causes.

Soliah, linked to the Symbionese Liberation Army, says he wants as his legal counsel San Francisco lawyers Sheldon Otis, who helped defend Communist professor Angela Davis, and Steffan Imhoff, who aided in the defense of Wounded Knee Indians in South Dakota.

Soliah told U.S. District Judge Philip Wilkins Friday that because he was charged with a capital offense he was entitled to two attorneys at taxpayer expense.

Wilkins agreed to provide Otis but postponed until Monday a ruling on whether the 27-year-old house painter and former college track star was entitled to a second defender.

Soliah was indicted by a federal grand jury in the April 21 robbery of a suburban Sacramento bank in which $15,000 was stolen. During the robbery, Myrna Opahl, 42, was killed by a 12-gauge shotgun blast while making a deposit for her church.

The pretrial hearing for Soliah, who is being held in lieu of $250,000 bail, was held next door to where Lynette Fromme was on trial on a charge of attempting to kill President Ford.

Investigators allege they have linked Miss Hearst to the crime through a stolen car believed used in the robbery.

Chief Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Nicholas argued that Soliah should be allowed only one attorney at taxpayer expense, like other defendants, since the death penalty portion of the statute under which Soliah is charged has been ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Soliah was sharing his San Francisco apartment with Miss Hearst when she was arrested Sept. 18. The original charge of harboring a fugitive was dropped when he was indicted on the bank robbery-murder charge.

Playboy Reports Hoffa Called Fitzsimmons Gutless

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shortly before he disappeared this summer, former Teamster boss James Hoffa said his union successor Frank Fitzsimmons "hasn't got the guts" to have him killed, Playboy Magazine reported Saturday in its December issue.

Hoffa said he never used bodyguards — "What the hell am I going to be afraid of?"

"The only guy who needs a bodyguard is a liar, a cheat, a guy who betrays friendship."

In an interview at his Lake Orion, Mich., home about a month before he vanished without a trace July 30, Hoffa depicted Fitzsimmons as a "power hungry" man who "has failed" as Teamster president.

However, he quickly dismissed a question about the possibility that Fitzsimmons might try to eliminate him, with the curt, "Hasn't the guts."

Asked to explain this, Hoffa said, "Very simple. We never asked Fitzsimmons to go on a picket line or get involved in violence. We never asked Fitzsimmons to go out and do anything that could get him bad publicity, because in every union you have to have somebody who the newspapers can't rap."

Hoffa said Fitzsimmons "has failed. He has failed in every promise he made to the union convention. He can't show one single thing that he did he would do that he did."

Hoffa depicted Fitzsimmons

as "a man I took off the truck. Made him an officer in the union, saw that he had more than one suit for the first time in his life, that he lived in a decent home, had an expense account. Kept raising him through the ranks of labor. And when I went to jail, he took over the presidency and then he became power hungry. He accepted the belief that he was a great labor leader."

Cargo on the Panama Canal in the fiscal year 1970 reached 118,909,221 tons.

Firemen Learn Resuscitation

The Gray County Heart Division of the American Heart Association has sponsored a cardiopulmonary resuscitation demonstration program to a shift of twelve firemen of the central fire station of Pampa. A training manikin, the anatomic Anne, was used.

Assisting Mrs. Jessie Newberry, R.N. chairperson of the community service committee, was Margaret Hernandez, LVN, of Highland General Hospital.

Future demonstrations are pending for all Pampa firemen.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOV. 11
Your birthday today: This is your year to mature and break habits you've outgrown. You are idealistic, but you must be practical in instituting your plans. Relationships are under stress at first but run smoother later. Today's natives are tireless, imaginative workers if motivated and strongly partisan as a rule.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Don't advertise what you're doing; be sure you're right and go ahead. The heart of discussions has little or nothing to do with the subject matter.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Business enterprises thrive. This is the time to test the strength and reality of relationships. Say only what you truly mean.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You scatter more energy and money than you can afford and also waste time just trying to cater to friends or to keep up with competitors. Stick to business and get what you've paid for.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]:

Normal effort along familiar lines yields good results. Put in overtime if circumstances warrant it. Avoid shoptalk at home and listen to what is on your family's mind.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Now that you are past a relatively low point in your cycle, you're on an upward trend. Tensions ease with the exciting stimulus of new plans. Romance isn't favored; too many distractions exist at the moment.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Since it's unlikely that you can prevail in the general drift of events, concentrate on those special-interest items you do successfully. Be gentle with people you cherish and forgive any errors.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Look after your health first and play it safe. Ongoing work produces large gains. Let romance wait; it doesn't cool as quickly as you think.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: There's just enough resistance to provoke you to take action. Use the morning for troubleshooting and the afternoon for making serious business agreements.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: What begins as a profitable development diverges into higher expenses under conditions that leave no room for complaint. Accept friends' sentiments for what they are.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Be alert for long-term opportunity rather than spur-of-the-moment deals. Once past the morning's crosscurrents, there's clear sailing, with everyone helping out.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: No one agrees with you completely. Stick it out. You'll learn enough to build a new program that has a stronger chance for survival. Bring home gifts that indicate your feelings.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Depart a bit from accepted ideas, do your own reasoning and ask intelligent questions. Creative projects thrive. Personal contacts are competitive. Word from distant places is important.

Perot May Get Giant Tax Break

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas industrialist H. Ross Perot would be the beneficiary of "what may be the most gigantic tax break in industry" if an amendment to a major tax bill becomes law, the Wall Street Journal said today.

The amendment offered by Rep. Phil Landrum, D-Ga., to the House Ways and Means Committee, would provide a special three-year carryback of capital losses in excess of $30,000 providing huge tax refunds for wealthy persons who had heavy losses in the stock market, for example, in 1974 or 1975. At present, such losses are only permitted to be carried forward.

The Journal said Perot, "who lately has suffered some huge business reversals", could regain as much as $15 million.

The amendment, which was passed Tuesday night, 20-14, came at a time "when the committee was tired. They already had spent more than three months on the tax bill, and they had little stamina for extended debate," the paper said.

According to the Journal, Perot contributed $1,000 to Landrum's election campaign in 1974. "Indeed," the article said, "Mr. Perot contributed a total of $27,400 to 12 of the 38 Ways and Means members. Curiously, all the contributions except the one to Mr. Landrum were made after the November 1974 elections. On Tuesday night 10 of the 12 Congressmen receiving Perot contributions voted for the Landrum amendment."

The Journal said that Landrum and the others on the committee who received campaign contributions, "say they didn't have any idea the amendment would provide a giant tax break for Mr. Perot."

Perot's lawyer, former IRS Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen, confirmed that he had drafted "such an amendment on Mr. Perot's behalf and said it 'apparently was used' as the basis for the committee decision," the paper said.

Perot's secretary said today the industrialist was out of town but refused to divulge his whereabouts. She said she had never heard of Cohen.

Chemical Bill May See Action

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Although it is running slightly behind schedule, proposed legislation which empowers the federal government for the first time to regulate dangerous chemical substances prior to their use by consumers may soon get congressional action.

A House subcommittee is expected to approve the proposal, sponsored by Rep. Robert Eckhardt, D-Houston, sometime by the end of the year. The House's Consumer Protection and Finance Subcommittee is scheduled to begin final consideration of the bill beginning Nov. 11.

Eckhardt, who represents a highly concentrated petrochemical area in the eastern parts of Houston, redrafted the bill after subcommittee hearings this summer. He had initially hoped that legislation introduced last spring would be passed by both the House and Senate this year.

The 8th District congressman said the new bill incorporates several changes which developed from the hearings. He added that it now provides for testing of chemicals "without placing undue burden on chemical manufacturers."

"As a representative of one of the largest chemical producing districts in the country, I am acutely aware of both the blessing and the curses of modern chemistry," said Eckhardt. "Suspicious chemicals must be tested and withdrawn from the market if found to be dangerous."

The legislation now requires notice to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) before any new chemical substances can be marketed and provides for an advisory committee to assist the EPA in its findings. During earlier hearings, representatives from the EPA, while questioning certain provisions of the Eckhardt bill, endorsed its general concept.

"Recent events such as deaths from vinyl chloride exposure, and the damage to the ozone layer by fluorocarbons have emphasized the necessity for this legislation," Eckhardt has said. "Presently, regulation against hazardous chemical substances is done only on a haphazard, piecemeal basis, with protective action occurring only after serious injury has been done to human health and the environment."

The bill, known as the Toxic Substances Control Act, would also give EPA authority to prescribe criteria for the development of data on chemicals which pose risks to health and the environment.

Congressional opponents of the legislation maintain that the bill duplicates current federal testing measures. They also say that its costs — $11 million for the first year and $10 million for the second — are excessive.

During hearings, representatives for chemical companies differed in their views on the bill. Some adamantly opposed the legislation. Others generally said new laws should be passed, although they characterized the Eckhardt legislation as too stringent.

Shah May Spy on Countrymen

United Press International
The Shah of Iran — second wealthiest man in the world — cannot buy loyalty.

But according to some Iranians, he may be financing a secret police network in the United States to spy on his countrymen.

Iranian students in the United States say the Shah's repressive government has created a bloodbath in their home country. They also say their demonstrations in America are monitored by Iranian secret police and that their lives are in jeopardy.

"I'm even paranoid over here," said one Iranian student at Huston-Tillotson College in Austin, Tex.

Like most of the Shah's subjects who have challenged his authority, the student would not give his name. But his opinion of the sovereign, whose personal fortune is second only to oil multi-billionaire J. Paul Getty's, was clear.

"He is a dictator, a fascist, like Hitler. There are many demonstrations against the Shah in Iran, by workers and students. The Shah has his army arrest them and kill them. The government doesn't let any bad news go out."

"In Iran," said another student at the University of California at Berkeley, "if you stand in the street and speak about the government, a Sevak (intelligence agent) will find you and you will go to prison for 10 years. And they can find you over here too."

In Washington, Papoli Samii of the Iranian Embassy's student and cultural section said, "I would see no reason or logic for the Sevaks to be watching them. It does not require much labor or effort to find out who they are."

But Samii did not deny that Sevaks agents are at work in the United States.

"What the CIA is doing out of the United States, the Sevaks is doing out of Iran," he said.

A State Department official said he had no knowledge of any Sevaks operation in the United States, but did not deny it could exist.

A measure of the students' fear was seen on Oct. 31 — Halloween — when the Iranian Student Association at the University of Oklahoma went to court in Norman, Okla., to win the right to wear masks at their demonstrations.

A 50-year old state law, designed to cope with the Ku Klux Klan, prohibits mask-wearing at public gatherings. The Iranians contend that if treat-or-treaters can cover their faces on Halloween night for candy, they can too — for self-protection.

In San Francisco, students who marched on the Iranian consulate in June wore masks. They said Sevaks agents would track them down otherwise.

"If you are a member of a student organization you get three years in jail," one explained. "If you are active, you get 10."

He said American police cooperated with Iranian authorities in Houston during an October protest at the residence of the Iranian ambassador.

"The police said they were arrested for disturbing him and that was the only reason. That's not true. That's a lie."

In Jefferson City, Mo., Mayor

Robert Hyder sent the names and photographs of 27 Iranians to the Shah after an Oct. 3 demonstration. He said the Iranian ministry had asked him for the information.

"They asked us for a parade permit to march down Main Street and asked to wear masks," Hyder said. "We authorized them to march on the sidewalk, but not to wear masks."

The mayor said the students were led by Rajab Moinu of Chicago. "He's a professional... and told the police he's a Communist."

Hyder doesn't give the students' motive much credit.

"I believe they're doing it to stay in this country. They've been making money here and don't want to go back, and they're trying to arouse public sentiment. (Some) have been working at this for nine years and if the Shah doesn't know about it by now, he's dumber than I think he is."

The Shah's critics do not underestimate him.

"The Shah has the U.S. in his pocket," said the student in Austin. "He has oil, and that's money."

East To See Through Wet T-Shirt Gimmick

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — With hundreds of leering young men screaming "Show it all!" the curvaceous young brunette stood on a makeshift disco stage and lifted a clinging, wet T-shirt up from her jeans and over a well-developed bosom.

She collected roars of approval and the $75 "maxi" prize against three busty challengers Sunday in the latest staging of an exhibitionist craze that has swept the city like a hurricane — wet T-shirt contests.

A less well-endowed but equally agreeable young lady won the $75 booby prize against a half-dozen others.

Occasionally during the flesh parade recorded howls of a pack of dogs blared over the disco speakers and one pendulous but worn looking girl with a tattoo drew shouts of "Get the hook!"

The wet T-shirt contest is a beauty contest based on the maxim that it's what's up front that counts. Most contestants are students or young working girls. Many are coaxed from the disco crowd with taunts and the chance of a cash prize.

They are provided with T-shirts by the host bar and wet down with water until every curve is clearly visible through the clinging cotton. Then they are paraded before the crowd to shout its approval.

Cash prizes are given to the biggest and the smallest-chested of the girls. The few who withstand the cajoling and remain covered never win. Some, in their excitement, have stripped completely.

It may be a pox on the feminist movement but the wet T-shirt fad is great for the bars, which lay on a cover charge of $1 or $2 for the events and pack the spectators wall to wall. And the contestants appear to enjoy themselves.

"It's fantastic," said maxi winner Debbie Tomlinson, a buxom 24-year-old brunette who moved to New Orleans from Jacksonville, Fla. three weeks ago.

Miss Tomlinson won $50 in a previous contest and an offer of a job at the host bar.

"I'll do it again wherever there's another one," she said.

Red-haired mini-winner Tammy Ward, 18, who added to her appeal by writhing suggestively, said it was her first try.

"It was a lot of fun," she said. "I was a little embarrassed at first but I got over it."

It all started in late summer at a bar in adjacent Jefferson Parish. Co-owner John McGuire of Pierre's planned to have a simple T-shirt contest, with prizes for the best tied-dye shirts. A customer suggested he wet them down. It was a smash success, which he repeated several weeks later, and other bars immediately grasped the commercial appeal.

Some club owners have become worried at possible police action because of the increasing raciness of the contests, and radio stations which used to co-promote some events have backed off.

There have been variations such as Foxy Lady contests for sexy and flashy dressers, but the ultimate may be yet to come.

"I'd like to give a wet drawers contest for men," said egalitarian-minded Patty Taylor, secretary-organizer and house mother for Cord's Underground which put on the Sunday event.

Pushes Hijacker To Death

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (UPI) — The hijacker gave charter pilot Richard Leibundguth a choice — die by a bullet or in a plane crash. With that, the pilot kicked the gunman out the door to his own death.

The hijacker, Jack R. Johnson, 19, of Evansville, Ind., plunged 3,000 feet into a muddy southeastern Missouri soybean field.

Leibundguth said he put the single-engine Cessna 150 into a suicide spin on orders from Johnson — but as the craft hurtled toward the ground, he booted the hijacker out the door.

The pilot said Johnson "had told me I had a choice of dying in an airplane crash or dying of a bullet wound."

Leibundguth said Johnson, recently released from the Army on a medical discharge, paid him $5 to "take a joyride around Evansville." Leibundguth is an employee of a charter service, Tri-State Aero Co., in Evansville.

A few minutes into the flight, the pilot said, Johnson pulled a .22-caliber pistol and told him to fly to the Kentucky Lake area of Kentucky.

During the flight Johnson talked about suicide and said he had personal problems.

Leibundguth said.

When the plane was over Kentucky Lake, Johnson said the "area below is too populated" and ordered the pilot to fly around Paducah, Ky., and on across the Mississippi River into Missouri.

At 8,000 feet altitude, the pilot said, Johnson shoved the pistol into his side and ordered him to put the plane into a suicide dive. Leibundguth complied.

"After losing little more than 5,000 feet, I spun the plane to the right — and kicked."

"The pilot felt the gun leave his side... saw the door on the right side was open and rolled the plane to the right," said Mississippi County Sheriff W.J. Simmons said. "The pilot kicked the passenger and out he went."

Simmons found the body in the soggy field eight miles north of Charleston. The gun was not recovered.

Texas GOP To Create New Campaign Fund

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Republicans have approved the creation of a new campaign fund to be used for GOP candidates in selected races for Congress, the legislature and county offices.

The Republicans voted Sunday to approve the proposal submitted by Rep. Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas, chairman of the state Republican party.

Hutchison said under his plan campaign funds will be distributed by a 15-member committee to the Republican candidates with the "greatest chance of winning."

He said the fund would not be used during primary elections.

Hutchison said new federal campaign expenditure laws would have eventually forced the Republicans to adopt some type of selective contribution program.

The members of the state Republican Executive Committee Sunday also chose Pat Archer, wife of Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., to replace Rita Bass Clements on the national committee.

Mrs. Archer was elected over state Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, by a 33-30 vote.

Mrs. Archer told the Republicans the Democratic Congress has been "totally inconsistent."

"This is the worst Congress in history if you believe in private enterprise and individual liberties," she said.

The committee members decided to hold the GOP's first state convention in Fort Worth next June 19, and the second in Austin Sept. 11.

The committee decided Texas Republicans will elect 96 of their 200 national convention delegates in the 24 congressional districts. The remaining delegates will be chosen at the state convention.

Pittsburgh, Cincinnati Leading Central

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Maybe Bum Phillips should tell his young Houston Oilers not to hit so hard. The Oilers, who had allowed the fewest points in the league before Sunday, went into the game with Pittsburgh as part of a three-way tie for first in the AFC Central Division with the Steelers and Cincinnati. After spotting the Super Bowl champion Steelers a 17-7 lead, the Oilers came roaring back to tie the game at 17-17 with 2:38 left to play. Then the young Houston defense got a little impetuous.

They racked up wide receiver Frank Lewis and Steeler Coach Chuck Noll was forced to replace him with John Stallworth, who had missed the last three games and had been on the bench Sunday with an injury. Four plays later, Stallworth put a brilliant move on cornerback Zeke Moore and caught a 21-yard touchdown pass from Terry Bradshaw with 38 seconds left to lift Pittsburgh to a 24-17 victory. It was Pittsburgh's seventh victory in eight games and left the Steelers tied with Cincinnati, which edged Denver 17-16, for first. Houston fell to 6-2.

In other NFL action Sunday, San Francisco upset Los Angeles 24-23, Baltimore stunned Buffalo 42-35, Washington owned the New York Giants 21-13, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 24-23, Miami whipped the New York Jets 27-7, Minnesota routed Atlanta 38-0, Oakland blasted New Orleans 48-10, Detroit downed Cleveland 21-10, Chicago dumped Green Bay 27-14 and New England clubbed San Diego 33-19. Kansas City is at Dallas tonight.

ahead in the third period on Dave Green's 45-yard field goal and Boobie Clark's one-yard plunge to beat Denver. 49ers 24, Rams 23 Rookie Steve Mike-Mayer boomed a 54-yard field goal with 38 seconds left to lift San Francisco over Los Angeles, the 49ers' first win over the Rams after 10 straight losses. Colts 42, Bills 35 Bert Jones threw two TD passes and ran for a third and Lydell Mitchell had three TDs as Baltimore downed Buffalo. Redskins 21, Giants 13

Larry Brown limped over from the one early in the final quarter to put Washington ahead and the Redskins iced the victory over New York on Bob Brunet's two-yard TD plunge. Cardinals 24, Eagles 23 Jim Bakken's 30-yard field goal with three seconds left boosted St. Louis over Philadelphia and helped the Cards remain tied for the NFC East lead with Washington at 6-2. Dolphins 27, Jets 7 Bob Griese threw TD passes of 59 and seven yards to Norm Bulaich and rookie

Fred Solomon returned a punt 50 yards for a score as Miami ran its winning streak to seven games with a triumph over New York. Vikings 38, Falcons 0 Chuck Foreman scored three TDs to boost his league leading total to 11 and Fran Tarkenton had a scoring pass to move within nine of John Unitas' all-time record as Minnesota swamped Atlanta. The Vikings forced eight turnovers, including Jim Marshall's NFL record 28th career fumble recovery.

Held To 77

Amarillo Palo Duro fullback Robert Sillivent, the district's leading rusher with 1,029 yards per to the Pampa game Friday, was held to 77 yards on 20 carries as the Harvesters whipped the Dons 12-0. Pampa ended the Dons' 21-game unbeaten string which dated back to 1973. The Harvesters can clinch a tie for the district championship with a win over Amarillo High Friday in Dick Bivins Stadium at Amarillo. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Cowboys Host Chiefs

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys' youth brigade, long on enthusiasm, short on experience and tied for their division lead, take on the improved Kansas City Chiefs tonight, hoping to forget the bitter aftertaste of last week's disappointment in Washington. "Our guys had better be thinking about Kansas City," said Dallas coach Tom Landry, whose team dropped a tough overtime decision to the Redskins a week ago. "This isn't the same team we saw in the preseason (when the Chiefs won). They had won three games in a row and almost beat Houston. "There is no more than three to seven points difference between our team and any other in the league. Every team gives us its best." It will be only the second time the two teams have met in a regular season game, although in the early days of both clubs (when the Chiefs were the Dallas Texans) they played in the same stadium. And the Cowboys must defeat Kansas City to keep pace with Washington and St. Louis in the NFC East. Both the Redskins and Cardinals had to rally Sunday to win, but they managed victories that boosted their records to 6-2. The Cowboys (5-2) have used the big play and the extra effort produced by their youngsters to become one of the surprise teams in the NFL this year. When asked to assess why Dallas has jumped into the playoff race this year, Landry's special assistant, Ernal Allen, had a quick answer. "The rookies on our team," he said. "We have 12 of them and they have all made a contribution to our team. And they just don't make the mistakes you expect a rookie to make." "What impresses me about this team," said Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, "is that they seem to always be able to uncover quality players where nobody else can. They draft well and they have amazing success with the guys who are walk-ons. "Everytime you think this team is hurting, they come up with somebody. And, they do it without mortgaging their future. "What it comes down to is the ability to evaluate all that information, to evaluate a player, project what he can do. You're going to be wrong sometimes. But the Cowboys' track record is pretty good."

From The Channel Balance Important With Bowling Bowl

By GIL WUEST
Harvester Lanes
Continuing on the topic of knowing your bowling ball. It shall be constructed and drilled so that no less than six sides shall be in proper balance. For balls 10 pounds or more, not more than three ounces difference between top of ball (finger hole side) and the bottom (solid side opposite finger holes) and not more than one ounce difference between the sides to the right and left of the finger holes or between the sides in front and back of the finger holes is legal. Balance is so important, yet so often misunderstood. You aren't expected to know all about it. The main thing is that your ball should all balance specifications when you purchase it. If you're not certain, have it checked by a qualified ball weighter who can tell you all there is to know about your ball. A good fit will make a ball feel lighter. A bad fit will make it feel heavier. And proper balance, designed for you, can help. It's important for the ball driller to know the type of ball you roll and whether you want help (more hook) or want your ball to set (not hook as much at finish). I will give some final thoughts on the subject next week. League scores — Ladies: R. # Nobel Poet Decision Called Compromise

By EMIL SVEILIS
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — To become a Nobel Prize winner in literature, you don't necessarily have to be popular, nor do you need a slew of best sellers under your belt.

The erratic Swedish Academy of Letters has in past years handed down some controversial decisions and it was no different with this year's selection of an obscure Italian poet by the name of Eugenio Montale.

After the announcement by the 15-member panel, even some Italian journalists in Stockholm murmured that they had never heard of the 73-year-old frustrated opera singer who lives as a recluse in Milan and has only published five books of poetry over the last 50 years.

Questions of power politics and possible conflicts of interest have been raised, but as far as the Nobel rules are concerned, the prize-awarding group is functioning completely on legal grounds.

According to sources close to the selection panel, the decision to pick Montale was a "compromise" and was pushed by the "conservative element" in the Nobel Committee.

The so-called conservative element of the committee is headed by Anders Oesterling, 91, the oldest and most revered member of the group which Swedish newspapers call "the old fossils." Oesterling was also the chief backer of Montale.

He is also the official translator of Montale's works into Swedish.

One reader wrote to the Social Democratic newspaper, Aftonbladet, saying: "When I saw Anders Oesterling on TV reading a translation of a Montale poem, I could not stop to wonder how much academy member Oesterling will earn... from people buying the works of Montale-Oesterling."

"The allegations against Oesterling are ridiculous. They are completely false," said sources close to the committee.

"That is one problem with the Nobel prize in literature. There will always be those who are dissatisfied with the selection of the winner or winners," the sources said. "Since the literature award is an artistic award with no physical substance, it has always been controversial."

In picking Montale, the committee again overlooked some well-known candidates— for example, names like Saul Bellow of America and Graham Greene of England, both of whom have been nominated every year for the past 15 or 20 years and are considered to be frontrunners.

Some sources said Bellow was at one time considered as the primary choice for this year's award, but lost out to the conservatives backing Montale.

Last year's decision to award the prize to Swedes Eyvind Johnson and Harry Martinson caused quite a stir. Neither is well known outside of Sweden and both are members of the Nobel Academy, although they did not vote for themselves.

Montale was not this year's first choice.

but neither was he a last-minute stand-in as reported by some.

The literature prize, unlike most of the other Nobel awards, is not based on hard facts, but is rather given on the pure personal preference of members of the literature committee.

"It is as simple as saying I like him or her and then pushing for that person," highly placed literary sources said. "The person really does not have to exhibit much literary genius as long as he or she has caught the fancy of one of the members."

Exactly how the voting is done is rather hard to find out, because security is very good and leaks have been few—except for the prize in literature.

With two days to go before the 1975 prize was announced, it was leaked that the winner would be a European. A day before the announcement, it was widely rumored that the country would be Italy.

Contrary to some published reports, there was no split or infighting among the members of the literature committee over the choice of Montale.

His name was made official record exactly one week before the final meeting on the day of the announcement. This allowed the committee time to print its stacks of press releases in Swedish, Italian, English and German.

Sources close to the committee said there were the usual three groups within the prizegiving body—conservatives, liberals and the middle-of-the-roads.
