CIA Weapons Unsuccessful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With exotic weapons ranging from exploding seashells to poison cigars, the CIA plotted unsuccessfully to murder Cuba's Fidel Castro and Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba and helped rebels who killed three other foreign leaders, a Senate report said Thursday.

The Senate intelligence committee said the Central Intelligence Agency planned at least eight attacks on Castro, including one to make his beard fall out. It said the agency also gave arms to insurgents who, on their own, killed officials in the Dominican Republic, South Vietnam and Chile.

approved of the plots, the report said. "Whether or not the respective Presidents knew of or authorized the plots, as chief executive officer of the United States, each must bear the ultimate responsibility for the activities of his subordinates."

The controversial 347-page report recommended passage of a law making it a federal offense to conspire to kill foreign leaders abroad.

that "on balance, the likelihood that presidents knew of assassination plots is greater than the likelihood that they did not."

But it cited "concrete evidence" of at least eight plots against Castro and one against Lumumba.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and committee vice chairman John Tower, R-Tex., said they opposed publication of the report.

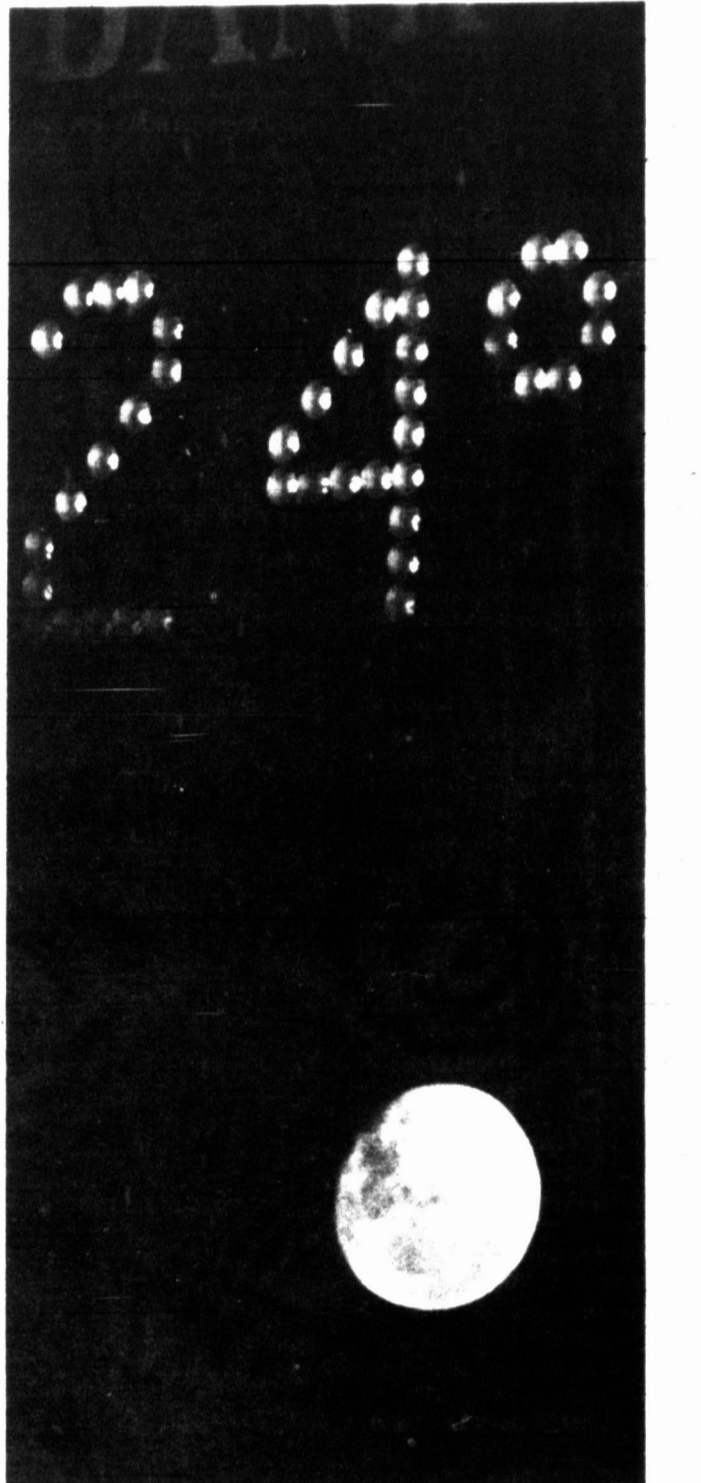

Committee chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, told a news conference as copies of the white-bound, inch-thick report were handed to reporters that Ford made a "considerable effort" to prevent publication right up to the last moment.

The report included 12 names of individuals the administration had argued should have been censored for their own safety.

Church said failure to publish the report would have damaged U.S. interests abroad and led to endless "speculation and innuendo."

Eisenhower" and that former President Richard Nixon had authorized actions in Chile, although he was not linked to any specific murder scheme.

High officials named in the report as having knowledge of some of the plots against Castro and Lumumba included the late CIA Director Allen Dulles and his deputy, Richard Bissell, and former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, now president of the World Bank.

Cold Moon Arising
If the time and temperature sign at the First National Bank is any indication, winter weather has set in. As the moon was rising Thursday night — about 7:30 p.m. — the temperature was 24 degrees. Continued cold is predicted through Saturday with the temperature expected to dip below 20 degrees. The low Thursday night was 17 degrees. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Nixon Sent CIA to Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon personally ordered the CIA to prevent the 1970 election of former Chilean President Salvador Allende and that "carte blanche" authority apparently led to the killing of an army general, a Senate committee report said Thursday.

The Senate Intelligence Committee called the Oct. 25, 1970, shooting of Gen. Rene Schneider in a bungled kidnap attempt "tragic and unintended."

But, it added, there was no evidence of an intent to kill anyone.

The CIA was instructed by President Nixon to play a direct role in organizing a military coup d'etat in Chile to prevent Allende's accession to the presidency, the report said.

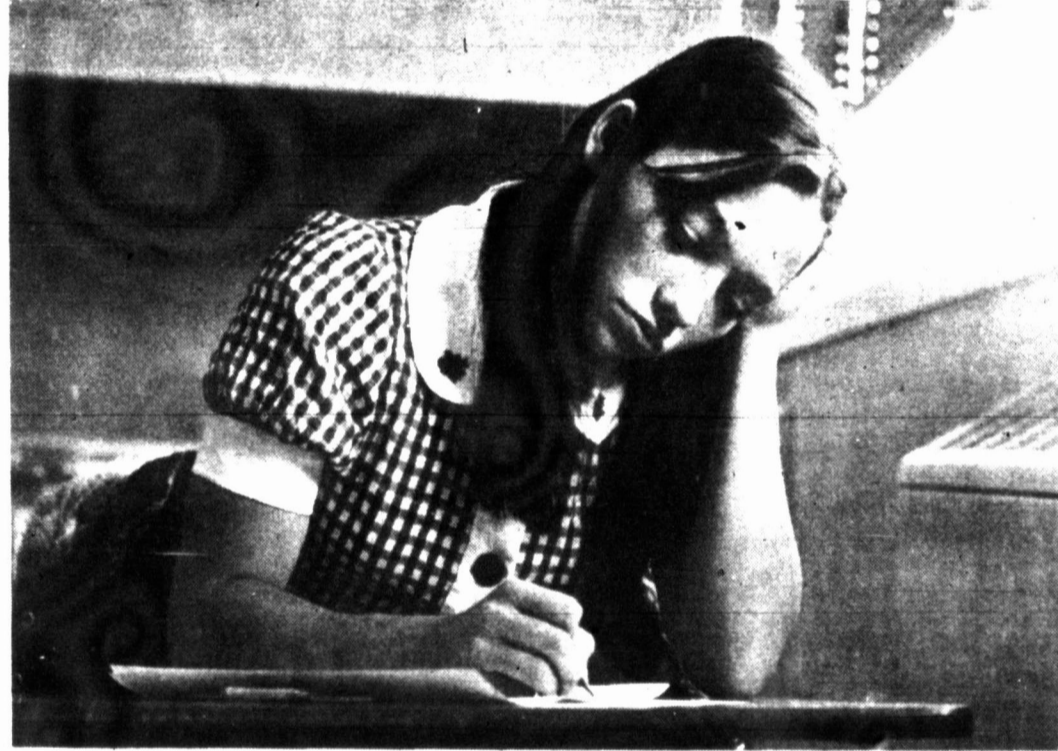

Lending Rate Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its prime lending rate to 7 per cent, the lowest in the industry and a reflection of the Federal Reserve banks easier credit and monetary policies.

Whether the prime will drop back to that level in the current downward trend is questionable. Many observers feel the prime may have reached its low point at 7 per cent.

Canada Slows Oil to US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canada is sharply advancing its timetable for halting oil exports to the United States. U.S. officials, seeking to cushion the impact, are planning to make many American refiners look elsewhere for oil next year.

The Canadian National Energy Board reported Thursday that country's oil self-sufficiency will end within seven years, about a year sooner than was forecast last year when Canada made plans to curb exports to the United States.

Most U.S. refineries using Canadian oil are in the northern United States, from New York to Washington state, although some are as far south as Louisiana.

Gurney To Be Retried

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., will stand trial for the second time on charges involving an alleged $233,000 political slush fund, the Justice Department announced today.

Gurney, 61, who was elected to the Senate in 1968 and served on the Watergate Committee, was on trial for six months in Tampa, Fla. on seven counts of bribery and conspiracy. He was acquitted Aug. 6 on five of the counts, but the jury deadlocked on the remaining two, causing a mistrial.

Government prosecutors, according to a Justice Department spokesman, spent months trying to decide whether to try Gurney again on the two charges and finally agreed to proceed.

Startling Ideas

We often have said that if the understanding of economics was more widely held, the chances of politicians selling foolish ideas would diminish. We would hope that as times got more difficult for individuals what with higher taxes, inflation and decline in the quality of goods and services, there would be an increase in demands by individuals for politicians to get out of the way.

thom marshall's Forum and against em

I was talking on the telephone the other day to a local Gray County hospital administrator and he asked me if I thought it was proper for The News to print the salaries of the various department heads at that hospital.

It was a shocking statement, I thought. I find it most difficult to believe that someone in such an important position in a public institution would want to withhold from taxpayers and voters how much they are paying him.

The county commissioners have the responsibility of final approval on budget matters.

Then we come to the top rung on the ladder. Like it or not, voters and taxpayers are the final board of managers for the hospital, the same as they are for city, county, state or federal institutions of any kind.

So, yes, I believe that readers of The News, taxpayers, voters, have a right to know how much they are paying the administrator and the department heads and anyone else on a public payroll of any kind.

It may be that most folks feel the administrator's monthly wage of $1,950 is not sufficient. He is, according to public records, the highest paid individual on the county payroll. But I wouldn't have his job for $1,950 per month. I couldn't take it for any amount because I am not a hospital administrator. If I were, I would imagine that being administrator of a hospital in a prosperous place like Pampa, where folks tend to pay their bills pretty well, would be somewhat easier than being administrator of a hospital someplace where it is harder to collect for services rendered. I expect that the hard-working, honest, bill-paying Gray County populace simplify the duties of an administrator.

In all fairness, the administrator of the local Gray County hospital has not always been paid such a large salary. In July 1972 the position drew but $1,200 per month. A year after that it went to $1,600 monthly and on Dec. 2, 1974, it became $1,750 where it stayed until Oct. 1, this year, when it got up to the current level.

Of course, the administrator of the local Gray County hospital also is responsible for the operations of the McLean General Hospital, also a Gray County hospital. That facility lost $7,950.19 for the month of October making a grand net loss total to date for 1975 of $77,996.78.

Not that the administrator is to blame for that deficit. A big part of the problem is that there just aren't many folks using the McLean Hospital.

Anyway, those salary raises for the administrator over the past four and a half years — which total $750 per month — probably have done little more than keep up with the rate of inflation.

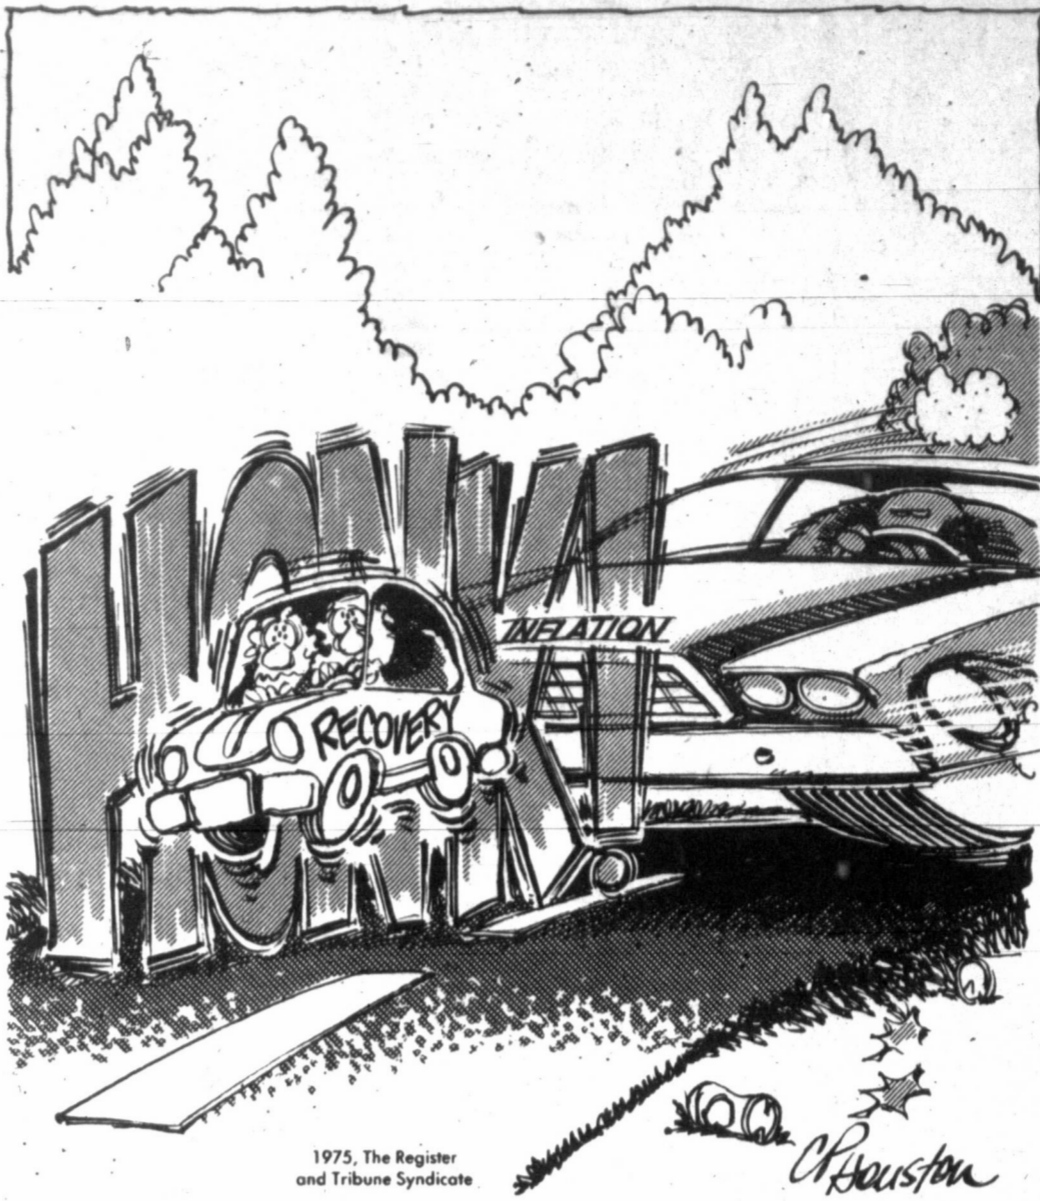

We are all aware of the pains of inflation. Examples are everywhere. Why, just a couple of weeks ago, on Nov. 1, for example, daily room rates at both Gray County Hospitals were increased to an all-time high.

Get sick or hurt and admitted to Highland and you will pay, for your private room, $63.50; and for a semiprivate, $58.50. In McLean the rates are $61 and $56.

Open Letter to New Yorkers

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Dear Fellow New Yorkers:

I address you, not as an outsider, but as a resident of New York City like yourselves. I have lived in midtown Manhattan for most of my adult life, and I intend to go right on living here until and unless the further deterioration of our town makes it too filthy or too dangerous to be habitable, or more expensive than I can afford.

My reasons are not in the least sentimental; if anything, they are selfish. I simply like this city, or at least parts of it, even today. It may be dirty; it may be dangerous; but nobody can (yet) say it is dead. There are more things to do here, and more interesting people to meet, than in any other city on earth.

Within a ten-minute taxi ride of my apartment house door are the television studios from which flow the majority of programs that the rest of America is watching — as well as the editorial offices of most of the magazines they read.

superb restaurants specializing in almost every cuisine on earth — restaurants far better, in many cases, than the best in the capitals of the countries whose food they offer.

New York, in short, still has a lot going for it, and I propose to stay here and enjoy it — and pay what it costs, in both cash and inconvenience.

But that little matter of "payment" brings me to the point of this letter. It was Emerson who wrote, "What wilt thou have? saith the Lord. 'Take it — and pay for it.'" Nothing, my friends, is ever really free. I have told many times the story of a sight-seeing bus tour I once took in Copenhagen. The guide, a gruff old charmer, kept pointing out with obvious pride the "free clinics" and "free hospitals" and so forth of that socialist paradise. Then, on the way back to the center of town, he ran out of things to show us and offered instead a statistic: "Denmark," he boasted, "has the highest income tax in Europe. Und we got a zity income tax too."

Exactly. Well, we New Yorkers know all about income taxes, don't we? We pay federal income taxes along with everybody else, as well as a state income tax which (like almost everything else about our state) is one of the national's biggest. Und we got a zity income tax too — a malignant little thing that piggybacks on our federal tax return, and that is about to get much, much bigger.

It is true, of course, that the astronomical cost of welfare (and now even of police protection) in our town is directly attributable to the policies of the demagogues from LaGuardia to Lindsay who lured America's poorest citizens here to batten on their votes. But there's not much point in us getting mad, retroactively, at Lindsay or Wagner. It takes two to tango, after all — or, more precisely, about two million. John Lindsay's power to hurt New York City would have been zilch if the voters hadn't put him in City Hall in the first place. It is we New Yorkers — not you and I personally, perhaps, but "we" as a collectivity — that voted for all these alleged freebies, despite the clear and repeated warnings of many honest public figures that sooner or later we would have to pay for them.

So now we'll pay: in much bigger city (and state) income taxes, and sales taxes, and all sorts of business taxes that will necessarily be passed along to us. Let's quit blubbering, and quit begging the rest of America to give us a fix, and start paying what New York really costs. As long as I can afford it and survive it, you'll see me around.

Bombings Play Havoc With Peace of London

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN LONDON, ENGLAND — Criminal revolutionaries of the outlawed Irish Republican Army have destroyed the once peaceful atmosphere of the British capital. They have failed to terrorize Britons, but they have forced them to adopt extraordinary security measures.

Today, at hotels, guards search luggage and handbags. Men are required to open their coats for inspection. A suitcase or parcel in a lobby is cause for concern and possible scrutiny by the bomb squad. At railroad stations, police check the track before a train departs.

It is like Algiers in the 1950s, and Londoners hate what the terrorists have done to their city. Unfortunately, no end is in sight. Gang after squalid gang of IRA terrorists is dispatched to Britain to plant bombs in pubs, stores, restaurants, hotels — wherever opportunities exist for mindless slaughter.

The IRA terrorism is barbarism at its worst, for it is violence without specific targets. Rather, everyone is a target — every woman and child, cripple, physician, or other innocent person — within range of a hidden explosive device.

IRA terrorism recently took the life of a distinguished cancer researcher responsible for saving countless lives. It has taken the lives of simple people with no connection to politics or public authority.

The terrorists who do this filthy work are, in the main, young people who have drifted from job to job. They are nihilists, people without belief in any humane value. They not only bomb but torture captives.

How do such vermin appear in the Western world? Nihilism has flourished in the 20th century. The authority of moral values has diminished dangerously. Men and women, who pride themselves on their intelligence and sophistication, have mouthed the slogans of revolution. A new generation grew up hearing revolution described as noble. This generation has seen such types as Fidel Castro, "Che" Guevara, Patrice Lumumba, and Mao Tse-Tung represented as cultural heroes.

Civilized government and even church groups such as the World Council of Churches have given aid to revolutionaries and terrorists. In Peking recently,

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger hailed the communist "long march" as an epoch of the human spirit, whereas it was a triumph of the forces of evil.

The U.S. public apparently doesn't realize that the State Dept. and CIA currently are supporting the forces of Halden Roberto in Angola. Roberto is a terrorist who, 14 years ago, was running Portuguese settlers through buzz saws.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that there are sick, confused young people in the IRA who will booby trap cars and plant bombs in London hotels and pubs?

The sickest people of all are those who praise revolution and give aid to terrorists in Angola, and elsewhere. They provide a model for the maniacs who are trying to terrorize the British people.

What terrorism means — what is signified by the gifts of money to terrorists by organizations such as the World Council of Churches — is that the candles of civilization are burning, low. Paul Johnson, former editor of the liberal New Statesman in Britain recently made this very point.

Mr. Johnson said that the world is now not so much governed by communism or capitalism as by a false lexicon of political cliches. "We all know what they are," he said. Those who do not have only to peer into the otherwise empty head of an average member of the fascist Left — that men with colored skins can do no wrong, and those with white ones no right — unless of course they call themselves communists; that murdering innocent people for political purposes is acceptable providing you call yourself a guerrilla; that, in the right political circumstances, a chunk of gelignite is morally superior to a rational argument."

This mentality is a hideous feature of our times. It is embedded in the "liberal chic" that has been fashionable in America in recent years. Effective police work can curb terrorists and reduce bomb threats. But it is infinitely more difficult to restore a sane mentality that accepts the authentic values of civilization and that rejects revolution and terrorism.

Shattering the myths about freedom fighters and guerrillas is, however, the prime civilizational need of our time.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

The Girl With Everything — But Dates

DEAR ABBY: Anyone want a wife? I'm 24-years-old, and I can't find a guy. I haven't had one date since high school.

Let me state my qualifications: I can cook and bake really well. I can sew and make all my own clothes, and I'm told I'm the best-dressed girl at the office. I have nice skin and teeth, and I keep my hair in the most flattering style for me.

I own my own car, color TV, stereo and have money in the bank.

I love all kinds of sports and outdoor activities like camping, fishing and hiking. I am well-liked by everyone at work and have many close friends.

Know why I don't get dates? I was told (by one of the guys I work with) it's because I'm overweight! Now before you start condemning me, let me say I am not grossly obese. I have lost some weight, but my doctor says I can't lose any more because I am a large-boned girl. I am well-proportioned and can play tennis better than my thin friends.

Why do guys want thin girls? I am ready to give up. DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I don't mean to be unkind, but plenty of overweight girls are dating up a storm. A young woman who has an attractive, outgoing personality and gets involved in activities (church, political or volunteer) is bound to meet a fellow who will want to see her again.

Instead of wondering what's wrong with YOU, forget about yourself and concentrate on doing something for someone else. It will add a charming dimension to your personality and enhance your chances.

DEAR ABBY: At the time of our marriage (three years ago) I took my husband's name to be my legal name.

I am an artist and feel that my husband has done nothing to merit having his name on my work. It is awkward for me to have to sign my first, maiden and married name on my paintings now when I formerly used only my first and maiden name. How do I get my name legally changed back to my maiden name? My husband knows I love him, and he doesn't object.

I don't know what lawyers charge, but I'm betting it's an arm and a leg. Is there some do-it-yourself book I can get? FATHER'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Do-it-yourself legal work can be the most expensive money-saving gimmick around. Find a lawyer and pay him an honest fee.

DEAR ABBY: I am married and have a lovely set of rings, but I am not sure which ring I should put on my finger first, my wedding band or my engagement ring.

Please tell me the proper way to wear my rings. And I hope you print this because I am sure other wives would like to know, too. Thank you.

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: The wedding band goes on the finger first — then the engagement ring. It's said that the wedding ring should be worn closest to the heart.

Castro Chief CIA Target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fidel Castro was the target of at least eight CIA murder plots that involved hiring gangsters and using poison cigars, pens and pills, an exploding seashell "and other devices which strain the imagination." The agency was setting up one of the schemes on the day

President John Kennedy was assassinated, according to a Senate intelligence committee report released Thursday.

The plotting against the Cuban leader also involved disruptive tactics, including a plan to expose Castro to a special shoe polish that would make his beard fall out and destroy his whiskered image.

"The most ironic of these plots," the report said, "took place on November 22, 1963 — the very day that President Kennedy was shot in Dallas — when a CIA official offered a poison pen to a Cuban for use against Castro."

The report said that "at the same time an emissary from President Kennedy was meeting with Castro to explore the possibility of improved relations."

The report said the first murder plot was hatched July 20, 1960, and that the committee had "concrete" proof of other plots through 1965. The report's section on Castro and Cuba comprised almost one-third of the 347-page document.

It said "one plot, involving the use of underworld figures, reportedly twice progressed to the point of sending poison pills to Cuba and dispatching teams to commit the deed."

In the early 1960s, the agency — knowing Castro enjoyed skindiving — explored the possibility of planting an exotic seashell, rigged to explode. It also considered arranging to have the premier receive a "gift" of a deadly contaminated diving suit. Both ideas eventually were abandoned.

The "beard plan" was to have been used when Castro stopped at a hotel during a trip abroad and, according to custom, put his shoes in the hall to be shined. A CIA operative was to have dusted the shoes with thallium salts, which would have caused his hair to fall out. However, Castro canceled the trip.

A box of Castro's favorite cigars was treated at CIA laboratories with a botulinum toxin "so potent that a person would die after putting one in his mouth." The record did not disclose whether any were delivered.

Milk, Butter Prices Soar

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer demand for dairy products has outpaced national milk production and pushed the wholesale price of butter to a record $1.16 per pound — and it probably will get worse before it gets better.

Indian summer weather, the high price of butter substitutes and thirsty milk drinkers combined to raise butter prices, dairy industry observers said.

They predicted Thursday butter would cost even more before tapering next year, when widespread dairy shortages are expected to ease.

"The shortage of butter is greater than at any time on record for this period of the year," said Gerald Foskett, eastern area representative for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Philadelphia.

Foskett attributed the shortage to unseasonably warm weather which has kept cows in the pasture rather than in the barn producing milk.

"There's no nutrient left in the grass, and the nation just doesn't have enough available milk," said Foskett. He said U.S. milk production trailed demand by a month.

The price of butter began to rise sharply three or four months ago, Foskett said. It kept increasing when buyers failed to curb their demand. "People now are so callous about high prices that they keep on buying butter," he said.

Record high prices for margarine, a favorite butter substitute, have added to the butter price bulge, said Sy Goldstein, general sales manager of Hotel Bar Foods, a large butter manufacturer.

Goldstein said butter became more attractive to food buyers when margarine hit 95 cents a pound last year — more expensive than some butter, which was selling then for about 89 cents a pound.

Soviets Laud Flights As Proof of Cooperation

HOUSTON (UPI) — The technical aspects of July's U.S.-Soviet joint spaceflight were important to scientists, but the demonstration of international cooperation was more important to the Soviet people, according to the Russian director of the mission.

"This mission confirms international cooperation is possible," Professor Konstantin Bushuyev said Thursday. "The people of our country recognize this as a prime achievement of this mission. It is evidence that two peoples, two great nations can cooperate successfully."

"This mission was very important for our mutual understanding between our nations."

Bushuyev headed a 25-member Soviet delegation which worked with American counterparts at the Johnson Space Center for two weeks preparing the final mission report.

American technical director for the flight, said the report would be ready for distribution next week.

"The review continues to show we really didn't have any problems with the standard equipment we were using and indeed the special equipment we designed for the flight performed in excellent fashion," Lunney said. "We are all very pleased with the results."

The historic nine-day flight which began July 15 was an orbital test of an identical docking system developed by the two countries. The compatible docking mechanism will make possible future joint flights and even space rescue.

An Apollo craft carrying three astronauts and a Soyuz ship with two cosmonauts docked in orbit for two days of joint experiments and ceremonies.

"Everything we set out to do was done successfully," Lunney said.

Bushuyev agreed saying, "This flight can be estimated as very successful. All the problems we had in front of us were solved during the mission."

Both directors said future joint spaceflights will be made, but it will be at least five years before the next U.S. manned spacecraft — the space shuttle — is flying.

"I regret we shall not have joint manned flight for such a long time," Bushuyev said.

Man Claims Entrapment Through Sex

AMITE, La. (UPI) — A Hammond man, claiming he was entrapped through sex with a paid police informer, has been found innocent of charges of distributing hashish.

Nick Hermann testified in 21st Judicial District Court Wednesday that the woman arrived in the Hammond area with a state police undercover narcotics agent and developed a sexual relationship with him.

Hermann said she then used sex to induce him to procure drugs for the police officer.

The case was based on the alleged sale by Hermann of $80 worth of hashish to the undercover agent May 12.

Assistant district attorney Joseph H. Simpson said the agent denied Hermann's allegation. He said the agent was approached by Hermann who asked if he wanted to buy an ounce of hashish for $80.

Simpson said the agent and Hermann both testified that Hermann offered to procure hashish through a third party at $1,000 a pound.

Following the acquittal, Simpson said it was the first time he heard of a case in which entrapment based on sex was used as a defense.

Beat the Rattler

James Murphy of Pampa plans to return to work following recuperation from a rattlesnake bite Saturday near the Pampa city limits. He was hospitalized for four days. He attributes the fact that his problems were not so serious to his ability to remain calm "for two minutes."

Local Man Keeps Calm After Rattlesnake Hits

By ANNA BURCHELL

Pampa News Staff

A Pampa man sat Tuesday with his leg propped up in the warmth of his own home at 1618 Harvester counting his blessings.

James Murphy, a Phillips Pipeline employee, was bitten Saturday afternoon on the outside of his left leg below the knee. He was inspecting right of way two miles north of the city limits in high grass.

"He (the snake) gave no warning — never did rattle until after he had bitten," Murphy said. "The bite itself had practically no pain."

He added that he was wearing knit pants at the time and the material probably absorbed most of the shock.

"I attempted to remain calm," Murphy said after seeing the snake three feet away. The bite produced so little pain, Murphy said he could have easily ignored it.

"That would have been bad," he said adding that he was in the emergency room of Highland General Hospital four minutes after the bite.

"I may have pressed the speed limit," he said. "I was calm for two minutes and by the time I got to town I wasn't calm any longer."

The snake was 30 inches long with five or six rattlers. Once inside the emergency room, physicians made an incision and Murphy was given a snake venom shot.

"I really don't feel any pain now until I stand," he said. "I'm doing fine and will be back at work within a few days."

He remained in the hospital for four days following the bite. Murphy had taken first aid classes many times and he knew proper procedure.

"The important thing is to remain calm with as little exertion as possible," he said in commenting on why he did not attempt to kill the snake.

He said he had been doing this type work for 24 years and had never been bitten by a snake before, and never been a hospital patient.

Murphy didn't take time to put a tourniquet on his leg.

"If I had killed the snake I would have exerted some effort. I was real fortunate in not having the snake coiled around my leg," he said.

He described his care and treatment at Highland General Hospital as "tremendous."

"It couldn't have been better anywhere," he emphasized.

Speaking of his return to work, Murphy says he will be more cautious in the future.

He predicts that rattlesnakes will still be around even after some hard freezes. He attributes his quick recovery to the fact that he remained calm and received treatment very quickly.

"It is very difficult — next to impossible to remain calm," he said.

His pickup was about 50 feet from the place where the snake bite.

"I was fortunate to have access to real good help. Some are not that fortunate," he added.

His wife said she knew nothing about the incident until her husband was in a hospital room an hour later. He called her himself.

Murphy advised others if they suspect a snakebite to seek help.

"Ignoring the possibility could be fatal," he said. He described the bite as "something like a rosebush briar."

FDA May Boost Booze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price of beer, wine and liquor will probably go up if and when the Food and Drug Administration orders labels for those products to list their ingredients. But no one knows by how much.

The wine industry says its costs might go up by $100 million a year. The people who make distilled spirits say it will be in the "millions."

The government says it doesn't really know yet, while one consumer advocate says the impact on beer would be minimal, about one cent for every 35 six-packs.

The FDA said Wednesday it will soon order the industry to begin ingredient labeling. When and whether the labeling will come about is still subject to doubt, however, because Congress is considering legislation that would tell the FDA if does not have authority over liquor.

O'Rourke Campaigns Here

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A 29-year-old Houston Attorney, campaigning for the seat on the Texas Railroad Commission being vacated by Ben Ramsey, said Thursday that "The oil and gas business is changing. One of the roles of the Texas Railroad Commission, more than it ever has been, is to fight federal bureaucracy."

Terence O'Rourke, in an interview in The News office Thursday afternoon, said "The Railroad Commission has the role of being the trustee of much of the nation's oil and gas. Texas produces a third of all oil and gas that is produced in the nation."

The former assistant attorney general for Texas has been campaigning for the commissioner's spot since August. He said that "most of private donations" are funding his campaign.

The first Democratic primary election in 35 years for a Railroad Commission seat will be held in May. Ramsey is retiring.

Speaking of the Environmental Protection Agency, O'Rourke said, "There is a place for federal action in environmental matters, but the EPA is the worst of big government. There is nobody really at the helm; you can't get a decision when you need one. The EPA has not just regulated for a clean environment, they have polluted the decision making process."

The young attorney said that he has "done a lot of work — mostly against the EPA. If I'm elected to the Railroad Commission, I don't want inexperience and indecision controlling the EPA. If an agency refuses to give you a decision, it's worse than being denied."

O'Rourke said that he feels the Railroad Commission is misnamed since most of its efforts go into oil and gas production regulation.

"It was set up in the 1890s to protect farmers from being gouged by railroads," he said. "In 1920 the ICC took almost all jurisdiction over railroads except for intra-state rate setting. The Railroad Commission again became important in the 1930's with the development of the East Texas fields."

The Texas Railroad Commission currently functions through five divisions: oil and gas, gas utilities, liquefied petroleum gas, transportation, and administrative services.

The transportation division is the only arm directly descended from the originally chartered Railroad Commission. Its responsibilities include regulation and enforcement of laws pertaining to the transportation for hire of persons and property — either by train or by any motor vehicle operating on any public highway in the state.

The commission fixes rates, schedules, and services for virtually all commercial forms of on-the-ground transportation. Various sections of the Transportation Division deal with insurance, permits and licenses, auditing, railroads and railroad statistics, and transportation rates.

Christie To Speak At Chamber Meet

Joe Christie, chairman of the State Insurance Board, will speak to the November membership meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Monday in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Reservations, which can be made by calling the chamber office, will be accepted until 10 a.m. Monday. The chamber expects a sellout.

The meeting will combine a salute to the Pampa Harvesters with the meeting.

Christie, a native of Rising Star, has degrees in geology and law from the University of Texas. He is a former assistant county attorney in El Paso and served six years in the Texas state Senate. He was named Outstanding Freshman Senator of the 60th Legislature by the Sheriff's Association of Texas for his work in aiding law enforcement.

He was author of the Insurance Holding Company Act.

In the Senate, he won the label of a liberal by supporting liquor by the drink legislation.

Christie also has served on the State Aeronautics Board.

The chairman supports the governor's competitive automobile insurance law.

He ran for lieutenant governor in 1972.

The luncheon is the first under the chamber's new administration headed by Boyd Taylor.

Spaniards Bade Franco Farewell

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Thousands of Spaniards bade farewell today to Generalissimo Francisco Franco, their only ruler for 36 years.

The body of the diminutive 82-year-old dictator was transferred today from his suburban residence to Madrid's 18th century Royal Palace, to lie in state for 50 hours of public viewing.

Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, who will be sworn in Saturday as king and chief of state, led 200 Franco family members and government officials at a private mass Thursday in the candle-lit chapel of the general's El Pardo Palace.

Hours earlier, a shiny black hearse carried Franco home for the last time.

The last of Europe's right-wing dictators clung as stubbornly to life as he had to power, but finally succumbed to heart failure at La Paz Hospital after a 34-day struggle against a succession of medical crises.

Within hours after his death, the outlawed political parties that opposed him in life hailed the opening of a new era and demanded immediate democratic reforms.

"With the death of the dictator a new chapter in our history opens," the Socialist Workers Party said in a clandestine statement that amounted to sedition under Franco law.

"It is marked by the necessity of liquidating the authoritarian institutions that make freedom impossible and by the hope and will to build a free and democratic Spain," the statement said.

The 37-year-old prince, a political moderate, favors democratic reform by constitutional means. But he also must avoid alienating Franco's conservative backers and touching off a new era of political turmoil.

Officials said that as many as one million persons may file by Franco's gilded, satin-lined casket to view his body, dressed in a bemedaled commander-in-chief's uniform.

He will be buried Sunday at the Valley of the Fallen, a civil war monument north of Madrid. Franco came to power after leading the nationalist forces to victory over the republican army in the bloody 1936-39 conflict.

Police barred automobile traffic from the area around the Royal Palace to create "an area of silence." They set up barriers to guide Spaniards into the palace from eight different approaches.

One Fourth 13-year-olds Never Drink

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — About one of every four 13-year-olds in the nation can be considered a "moderate" drinker while only 38 percent never drink alcoholic beverages at all, according to a Research Triangle Institute study.

Results of the study, based on a survey of classrooms across the country last year, were released Wednesday by project director J. Valley Rachal at an RTI Board of Governors meeting.

Rachal said about half the students reported that they had been drunk within the past year and the ranks of teetotaling teen-agers dwindled steadily with age from a high of 38 percent at age 13 to less than half that by age 17.

The project director said researchers had anticipated the trend, but were "thoroughly surprised" by the high number of seventh graders who drank with some regularity.

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The military's Revolutionary Council dismissed leftist Gen. Otelio Saraiva de Carvalho as commander of Lisbon's military district today in a bid to end a strike by the Portugal's provisional government.

The council, which holds executive and legislative powers, said Carvalho would remain as overall military security chief, but a progovernment officer would assume his duties in the Lisbon region.

Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo led his two-month-old cabinet in a walkout Thursday, saying they would not return until the military agreed to supply the authority needed to govern effectively.

A council statement said Capt. Vasco Lourenco, an ally of Azevedo, would take command of Lisbon from the controversial left-wing general.

The council said it realized Azevedo had encountered difficulty trying to govern in Lisbon, but "deplored" his cabinet's decision to suspend activities until their personal safety was assured.

The council said it would ask Azevedo and his ministers "to resume their normal functions until the current crisis can be solved."

The compromise was worked out by the council after an all-night meeting, but its contents were not released until this afternoon.

The council also announced reactivation of the army's political action command — disbanded because of its close identification with the Communist party.

The statement was issued only hours after a pro-Communist newspaper hit the streets with a Carvalho interview publicly supporting the far left's call for the dismissal of the sixth government.

"If this government considers itself incapable of governing under the present circumstances, I think we can consider that the (Azevedo's) government has fallen," he said.

Carvalho's remarks came as leftists besieged Lisbon's presidential Palace, calling on supporters to arm themselves and fight for the creation of a Soviet-style "peoples" government.

The demonstrators marched on Belem presidential palace Thursday, chanting slogans and calling for the replacement of the Azevedo government by "popular power."

"We, the working class, will not leave Belem even if we have to stay here days, weeks, or months, without the president of the republic and Revolutionary Council telling us the sixth (Azevedo's) government has been dismissed," an organizer said.

In a brief speech to the demonstrators, Portuguese President Francisco de Costa Gomes said he wanted "to avoid a civil war at any cost."

Leftist General Dismissed

Fromme Jurors Sequestered

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Jurors in Lynette Fromme's trial on a charge of trying to assassinate President Ford have been sequestered for almost two weeks under strict 24-hour guard and live according to a regimented set of rules.

They are not allowed conjugal visits, are given only carefully censored reading material and drinkers must pay out of their own pockets for the two alcoholic drinks allowed with dinner each night.

The eight-woman, four-man jury plus two men serving as alternates were ordered kept under guard in a "safe and convenient" motel by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride to prevent their being influenced by news reports.

The all-white, mostly middle-class panel is under the eye of federal marshals around the clock. As it turned out, the jury has missed much of the important courtroom legal drama that has marked the historic case.

Miss Fromme, who pointed a .45-caliber pistol at Ford, was the first person ever charged under a federal law with attempting to assassinate a U.S. president. The gun did not fire.

The jurors spent four days this week in an isolated courthouse room waiting to return to court and hear attorney John Virga open the defense case for Miss Fromme, 27, a devoted disciple of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson.

The opening of the defense case was delayed while Virga argued for dismissal of the charge against Miss Fromme or a mistrial. Because such arguments must be made out of the presence of jurors, they will not know of Virga's demands — denied by the judge — until they reach a verdict — possibly next week.

The specific conditions of their confinement, which the judge called a "great burden" during the jury selection process, demonstrate that jurors lead a close regulated life.

Jurors are allowed to watch television or listen to radio only in a common room and marshals check the content of news and entertainment programs with the broadcasting stations to insure that if there is mention of the trial the program can be turned off.

Even the windows of the bus in which they go to and from the court are blacked out.

Family visits are allowed on weekends, but only in the common room and are chaperoned by marshals.

"People always ask if I can save them money on car insurance. It's amazing how often my answer is, 'yes.'"

I Love the Canyons, I Love the Flowers'

Mrs. Betty Drake

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Mrs. Betty Drake has spent the last 11 years tromping the Texas Panhandle canyons ferreting out wildflowers.

"I love the canyons and I love the flowers," said the wildflower specialist from Phillips. "Flowers are God's thoughts of beauty taking form to gladden mortal gaze."

There are 3,000 flowering plants in Texas and 1,000 of them are showy enough to be called wildflowers, she reported. "My best year I got 401 on my list and I don't count the grasses." Her list this year contained 380 flower names.

When Mrs. Drake finds a flower she can't identify, she mails it to Dr. Marshall Johnston at the University of Texas and he names it. But she studies technical journals and books to learn as much about her plants as she can. "It is a separate language, you have to learn a new vocabulary," she said.

And all this information Mrs. Drake knows: what time of day the wildflower blooms, its relatives and its pioneer uses, how it got its name.

Many of the Panhandle wildflowers have common names; Indians named some of the plants.

One plant is called oyster plant because the cooked fall roots taste like oysters. Verbena is believed to be sacred and a peace-maker. It has been used in marriage ceremonies and by statesmen.

Young milkweed pods were cooked and eaten. Indians used the floss to pad cradle boards. The floss is warmer, lighter and more buoyant than wool and was once used to line aviators flying suits.

Juice from the Sampson plant is supposed to be strong medicine to cure toothaches, cuts and burns. Lazy Day's Eye (daisy) got its name because it opens during the day and closes at night. The Texas Sleepy Daisy bloom opens at noon.

Because their blooming times vary, Mrs. Drake must search the canyons during different times of the day. She's been keeping records on her finds since 1961. She records what she sees, when she sees it and often where she sees it. And she takes color slides of her find.

Her collection now contains 600 slides.

Mrs. Drake has never seen a rattlesnake but admits that she doesn't look for them because she's so busy looking at flowers.

Her wildflower interests, which began when her daughter Doreen had to collect flowers for a Girl Scout project, led her to enroll in the Phil-Pic Camera Club in Phillips. She wanted to learn to photograph the sights she saw.

Mrs. Drake's husband Cliff doesn't mind her avocation. "It keeps me quiet," Mrs. Drake smiled.

Mrs. Drake is recognized as an expert in the wildflower field. The park naturalist at Lake Meredith went to her to learn about plants native to the Panhandle.

Wildflowers are a part of our heritage," Mrs. Drake pointed out during a recent conversation in the Pampa home of Mrs. Thelma Bray. She wants everyone to plant red, white and blue wildflowers to celebrate the bicentennial.

Here are her suggestions:

Red: copper mallow, poppy mallow, Indian blanket, butterfly weed.

White: blackfoot daisy, white larkspur, white beard tongue, prickly poppy, dog daisy, white evening primrose, Western yarrow, Prairie snowball.

Blue: blue gilia, day flower, prairie spiderwort, blue salvia or sage, mealy cup sage, blue wild indigo.

Turkey Low in Calories

Turkeys have come a long way since you went over the river and through the woods to Grandmother's house.

Unless you raise turkeys on a farm or lead one home on a leash, they usually arrive on your table via your supermarket. Today they are sold fresh or frozen, plain or self-basting. Which is better for you and your family this holiday season? The Better Business Bureau offers this advice on selecting a holiday turkey.

Your supermarket will usually carry more frozen turkeys than fresh. Transporting turkeys fresh from production to consumption areas is costly. Thus, fresh turkeys tend to cost a little more per pound than those that have gone through the freezing process.

Self-basting turkeys are those that, during the freezing process, have oil or fat injected beneath the skin. As the turkey cooks, the fat melts and bastes the turkey. Convenient as they are, self-basting turkeys cost as much per pound as fresh turkeys. Not only that, you are paying for basting fluid at the same rate that you pay for meat.

There also are other factors to consider. For one thing, coconut oil, a highly saturated fat, is often used to inject the turkey. For people who must watch their cholesterol and fat intake, this addition of fat reduces the advantage turkey has as a low-fat meat.

Another word of caution on basting fluids is that they contain such things as artificial colorings and flavorings, emulsifiers, flavor enhancers and oxidants. For some people, it may be worth the search for that fresh turkey.

Due to this year's low supply, turkey may be priced a little higher than last year. However, fresh or frozen, turkey is still a good buy. Nutritionally, it is high in protein and low in calories. It has slightly less fat than chicken and a great deal less than other poultry such as duck or goose.

Compared to hamburger, a 3 1/2 oz. serving of turkey white meat, for example, contains 176 calories. A like amount of hamburger has 286 calories and has a lower percentage of an adult's daily protein need.

Unfortunately, whole turkeys are not always available all year round. Larger turkeys, with more meat on the bone, are a better buy, but there can be a problem with what to do with all the left-overs. Not everyone relishes weeks to turkey noodle dandy and turkey parmesan. However, the Better Business Bureau reminds you that turkey parts are even cheaper per pound than the whole carcass.

Should you only shop for Grade A turkeys? The answer is no. The Department of Agriculture criterion is based solely on appearance — the shape of the bird, the proportion of meat to bone, the amount of fat in the under the skin, and the absence of defects like cuts and bruises. The ratings have nothing to do with tenderness or juiciness.

If a turkey doesn't get a Grade A rating, there is still nothing wrong with the meat itself. Perhaps a wing, which has little meat anyway, is missing; the National Turkey Federation maintains these Grade B "parts missing" turkeys represent an excellent buy for the consumer. It should be noted that few turkeys are marked Grade B. In fact, there is no uniform grading system. Often, turkeys are not marked at all.

Cook turkey as the instructions direct. Don't follow old cookbooks, for turkeys today are grown faster, and thus are

Hints from Heloise

Hey Folks:
This is Heloise talkin' so please do listen...

Know those popular patent or vinyl shoes (specially black) that you THINK are so hard to shine? Specially you men who wear 'em.

Well, I remembered what my mother said years ago.

"Hon, just go get a biscuit in the kitchen and rub 'em and they will look as good as new."

They did!

So when you cook those canned biscuits (and don't knock 'em 'cause I do, too, sometimes), use one to swipe 'em off.

Another thing I learned was that you could take a piece of fresh white bread, tear the center out and just swipe away... that sounds goofy but it sure does work.

I especially feel sorry for all of you fellows who wear those shiny shoes and don't really know how to clean 'em or take all the "oo' off, and make 'em real pretty and new-looking again.

So take heed, fellows.

After all, you can always use the heel of the bread to shine the heel and toe of your shoes, right?

And what's it gonna cost you? A half of a biscuit or half a slice of heel from that bread you most likely would have thrown away, anyway?

So cheerio until we meet again in tomorrow's paper. And let's hope both of us do.

Dear Heloise:
When making a house dress or even a party dress, I often buy a remnant and end up with an extra yard of material so I make an apron to match my dress.

Even a fancy apron does a service when those last minute details must be looked after just before your guests arrive.

I have had many com-

Dear Heloise:
In these days of rising prices, a head of cabbage in the refrigerator is a moneysaver. Sliced very thin, it takes the place of a bed of lettuce for a salad or in a tossed salad.

And you then always have some cabbage available for your vegetable soup.

Dear Heloise:
You know those plastic clips that keep picnic table cloths from blowing off?

Mine never got much use until I thought of using them indoors at children's birthday parties.

Besides keeping the cloth in place, the clips can, at the same time, anchor paper streamer decorations.

It has worked beautifully for me.

Cost of Living Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living climbed 0.7 per cent in October, the third largest monthly increase this year, the Labor Department said today.

Higher prices for new cars, fuel oil, dairy products, coffee, clothing, mortgage rates and auto insurances caused the overall increase, which was slightly higher than most economists expected.

The increase, which translates into an annual rate of 8.4 per cent, was 0.2 per cent larger than September but far below the 1975 inflationary peak set in July when consumer prices rose 1.2 per cent.

Prices for 1976 model cars rose 2.7 per cent, but seasonal adjustment caused the index for new cars to decline 0.1 per cent, the department said.

Fuel oil and coal prices rose 1.8 per cent after seasonal adjustment — the biggest increase this year. Gasoline prices declined, but less than they usually do in October.

Bigfoot Finds Friends

ROSEBURG, Ore. (UPI) — When Jean Fitzgerald sees monster-like footprints, she quickly rubs them out.

"We destroy them so some 'Bigfoot' hunter won't stumble across them," said Mrs. Fitzgerald.

She is crusading for legislation to protect the legendary Sasquatch — the monster known as "Bigfoot," a sort of lowland North American version of the Himalayan "abominable snowman."

Mrs. Fitzgerald said she and her family have seen the ape-like creatures often and once spotted nine of them together.

"They proved to us they don't mean any harm," she said

Wednesday. "Each time we saw them, they were as curious about us as we were about them."

Her husband, Steve, said he once left a candy bar for a Sasquatch, hid nearby, and watched the creature devour the treat — wrapper and all.

Bigfoot's existence has been debated for decades, but Mrs. Fitzgerald says the family has seen the nine-foot hairy mammal on numerous occasions over the past two summers.

She described the creature as covered with short, black hair, except for the face, hands and feet, which she said were dark brown and "weather-beaten." It also had high cheek bones, a flat nose and hands like a human being, except that the thumb was the same length as the fingers.

"He could have killed us many, many times over the past two summers if he so desired," she said. "He's so huge he could have done almost anything he wanted to."

Her son, Danny, 15, said he once saw six of the Sasquatch "leisurely walking across the road in order, the tallest first, down to the smallest."

Danny said his school chums have ridiculed his sightings as tall tales. For that reason he disagrees with his mother, who is against the capture of the creatures.

"I'd like to see somebody bring one in so it could be proven once and for all," he said.

Before you spend money on new holiday decorations, look around the house for do-it-yourself ideas. Upside down wine glasses in varying sizes and shapes make pretty candlesticks for table settings. Secure candles to the bases with florists' clay and hide the clay with bits of real or plastic greenery.

When you shop for your holiday turkey, look for extra turkey necks and tails (both by-products of the turkey roll industry) to use for making stock for giblet gravy.

Day of Thanks To Be Observed

Sunday, a "Day of Thankfulness," will be observed at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock, with sermons delivered by the Rev. LaVon Thompson of Amarillo.

Rev. LaVon Thompson

Services Sunday include Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., morning worship at 11 a.m. and evening evangelistic services at 7 p.m., according to the Rev. Albert Maggard, pastor. The congregation will gather for lunch in the fellowship hall of the church after the 11 a.m. service.

Rev. Thompson, superintendent of the Great Plains Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, oversees activities of churches and ministers in an area which includes New Mexico, west Texas and the Oklahoma panhandle.

Rev. Maggard said the public is invited to the services.

Baptist Mission Projects Approved

Monthly mission action projects were approved by two Baptist Women's Bible study groups at recent meetings.

Pastor Names Sermon Topic

The Rev. Robert L. Williams, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West, has announced "a World - Wide Obligation" as his sermon topic for the 10:50 a.m. worship service Sunday.

At the 7 p.m. gospel hour, he will speak on "The Greatest Philosophy in the World." Scriptures will be taken from Acts 20:35.

Services are open to the public.

Thanksgiving Meal To Follow Service

A Thanksgiving sermon, "Thanksgiving - For What?" will be followed by a turkey dinner in the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray, according to the Rev. Norman D. Dow, Jr., pastor.

The meal will be prepared by the men of the church and tickets will be on sale at the Hall after the 10:45 a.m. worship service.

Ruling Elder John Horn will assist in the pulpit and Minute for Mission speaker will be Mrs. Jane Kadingo. Scriptures will be taken from Matt. 6, Hab. 3 and Ps. 65.

The Chancel Choir will sing luncheon meeting. The group met in the E.E. Shelhamer home, 2101 Charles, and Mrs. S.E. Waters directed the study of the last two chapters of Acts. Study of Paul's letters was started by the 13 members present with the first two chapters of 1 Thess.

Their next meeting will be announced in the First Baptist Church bulletin.

Mrs. W.B. Franklin reported to the Vada Waldron Bible Study Group on nursing homes as potential mission action projects for November and December.

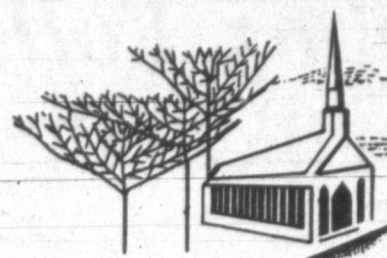

That group met Nov. 12 in the Corine Wheeler home, 1906 Coffee.

Bible study for the meeting was taken from 1 and 2 Thess. by Mrs. Katie Wilson. Fourteen members and one guest attended.

Next meeting of the group will be Dec. 10 in the O.V. Batson home, 1012 W. Buckler.

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

The Marvels of God's Creations

WHY DO FISH LIVE IN WATER? We can answer this question partially by saying: that their lungs were created to draw oxygen from the water. However, to know how and why, we must look to God's word.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." ... "And God said, let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life . . ."

Attend Church and worship the one who created these marvels.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Bishops Take Stand

Revival Dates Announced

Revival services at the Pentecostal Faith Assembly, 1101 S. Wells, will begin Friday, Nov. 28, and continue through Sunday, Nov. 30, according to the Rev. Harlan Gamber, pastor.

Preaching at the 7:30 p.m. services will be the Rev. Mark Meinschein of Mt. Vernon, Ind., and the Rev. Decarol Williamson of Chattanooga, Tenn. The pair are second year students at Christ for the Nations Institute in Dallas and are active in the Dallas area street ministry.

The revival services are open to the public.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - The United Methodist Council of Bishops has objected strongly to the recent United Nations resolution which classifies Zionism as a form of racism. But the Council says the United States should not withdraw its support of the U.N.

The bishops, in a 40-3 vote, approved a resolution which said withdrawal of United States support of world food programs would penalize the helpless and hungry who are not responsible for the U.N. action.

The resolution said, in part, "The presence of the United States in that body is essential to the relative stability of the global community."

Baptist Women Hear Programs

Four mission groups of Baptist women from the First Baptist Church met recently for a variety of programs.

"Living Sacrifices," a book by Jessie Fletcher chronicling the experiences of Baptist missionaries in China, the Philippines and Korea, was reviewed by Claudia Everly at the Nov. 12 meeting of the Maxine Ray Round Table Group. The seven members attending voted to be in charge of the Royal Service program for the January general meeting.

The Ruby Ashworth Mission Prayer Group also met Nov. 12 to hear a program on Ghana, West Africa by Mrs. S.E. Waters. The membership noted that Week of Prayer for foreign missions will be Nov. 30 - Dec. 7.

Pampa Nursing Center will be the site of November activities of the Nursing Center Mission Group, which met Nov. 13 in the Claudia Everly home, 722 E. Browning. In planning the activities, members studied the book "The Nursing Home Visitor."

Thirteen members of the Lala Owens Current Missions Group met Nov. 6 to review general plans of the Women's Missionary Union and to collect funds for use by the Rev. Silva, who is involved with Spanish mission work in Canadian. The program for the meeting, given by Nellie Richey, was on communications media in the Philippines.

Pampa Chapel Revival Runs Five Nights

The Rev. Jim Fox, pastor of the Apostolic Faith Church in Balco, will speak at revival services for the Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester, according to the Rev. Edwin Waterbury, pastor.

The revival, which started on Wednesday, will continue through Sunday with services at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Sunday services will be at 6 p.m. Rick French will provide inspirational music.

Rev. Fox and his wife, LaMoyné, have conducted several revivals across the United States and have visited the Holy Lands.

The revival is open to the public.

Jukebox Folks Recover From Wurlitzer Shock

NEW YORK (UPI) — The jukebox manufacturing industry has recovered from the shock of the Wurlitzer Co.'s decision to quit the business in 1974.

When one of the four biggest competitors in an industry decides to quit, normally there would be added sales for the remaining firms. But when Wurlitzer quit, it unloaded a big inventory on an industry with a rather modest domestic market of $45 million to $50 million a year.

Wurlitzer also made no bones of saying it was coming to the end of the jukebox as thought of an end, a statement which shook the industry.

"That simply hasn't happened and isn't going to happen," says David J. Barton, president of Rowe International, Whippany, N.J., the coin machine division of Triangle Industries, Inc.

"People like music too much," he said. "They like it when they are in a snack restaurant, a bar or lots of other places as well as when they are at home and they want to be able to choose the tunes or songs they listen to much of the time instead of being always dependent on the whims of a radio disc jockey."

Spokesmen for the other two large remaining jukebox makers, Jack Gordon of Seeburg Co. and David R. Rockola of Rock-Ola Manufacturing Co., both of Chicago, agreed.

The decision of Wurlitzer to quit making jukeboxes gave the business a setback by impairing the confidence in its future of distributors and operators, they said. However, they agreed things now are back to normal with prospects for a steady domestic growth and a very big growth abroad.

"Personally, I think Wurlitzer could have stayed in our business profitably," Rowe's Barton said, "because the international market has barely been tapped although sales there already may be as much $25 million to $30 million and American companies have most of that."

Barton pooh-poohed the notion the growing popularity of discotheques, locations where a human attendant plays music from a large stock of records by his own programming methods or on request from the audience, is hurting the jukebox industry.

"They don't appeal to the same kind of customers and aren't suitable for the same locations as the coin-operated music machine," Barton said. "The discotheque depends more on the showmanship and personality of the proprietor and his disc jockey than on the music played, and it's a relatively small volume thing," he said.

Although music machines are less important in total volume to the coin machine industry than game and vending machines, they are in a very real sense the backbone of the business, Barton said.

They have one enormous advantage over game machines, he said. Machine games go out of style quickly and have to be moved to other locations and replaced by new games. This means expense for the operator. But the jukebox lasts for years — only the musical records change. So the music machines continue to earn money for the operating company and the store owners after they have been depreciated off the books.

Panel To Examine Business Act

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The 39-year-old Robinson-Patman Act, the so-called protector of America's small businesses, will come under heavy scrutiny in the weeks ahead by both a congressional committee and the Ford administration.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, is heading an ad hoc subcommittee of the House Small Business Committee, which hopes to thwart expected efforts by the Ford administration to amend or rescind the Robinson-Patman Act altogether.

Congress passed the law in 1936 to prohibit various discriminatory pricing and merchandising practices by big firms against small business. However, critics of the act, named in part after one of its drafters, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Texas, maintain that the legislation perpetuates a de facto price fixing system.

The Ford administration has not taken a specific position on the act. However, the Department of Justice has recommended that the act be repealed or that major surgery be applied.

"Basically, we are concerned that the Robinson-Patman Act in the long run does not really protect the small businesses," an anti-trust attorney in the Justice Department said. "It prevents business competing with other business on the basis of price... and keeps prices up."

Because of the Robinson-Patman Act, a wholesaler in most cases must sell his product to all retail outlets at the same price, regardless of the quantity purchased. In effect, observes the small business community, this prevents large conglomerates from undercutting price and forcing the smaller businesses out of the area.

"We don't want the act changed," Herbert Lievenson, vice president for governmental affairs of the National Small Business Association here, says flatly. "It's a cornerstone of small business in this country."

In fact, it should be strengthened. It has not been working, in part, because the FTC (Federal Trade Commission) and the Justice Department have abdicated their responsibilities. They have not pursued certain cases brought to them."

However, Lievenson would not stipulate the cases he had in mind. He said he would elaborate at the committee hearings scheduled for mid-November.

The subcommittee, chaired by Gonzalez, is expected to review implementation and enforcement of the act. It will also study the growth of conglomerates and mergers and attempt to judge their impact on the small and independent businesses in the country.

Little Loses Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, the young black woman acquitted of murdering a white jailer she claimed sexually attacked her, has lost an appeal of a breaking and entering conviction.

A three-judge panel of the North Carolina Court of Appeals found "no error" Wednesday in the trial that convicted her of breaking and entering and landed her in the Beaufort County Jail, where the jailer was stabbed last year.

Miss Little, 21, a former construction worker, was on a national speaking tour and could not be reached for comment on the decision. She will remain free on bond as long as the case is under appeal.

Jerry Paul, her chief attorney, had earlier said he would appeal an adverse ruling, and he told reporters in Cincinnati, where he was appearing before a university group, that he was not surprised by the court's action.

Miss Little was given a seven-to-10-year sentence and placed in the Beaufort County Jail, where on Aug. 27, 1974, jailer Clarence Allgood was stabbed to death. Miss Little, the only woman prisoner at the jail, fled but surrendered eight days later and said she had killed Allgood because he forced her to perform a sexual act.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOV. 22

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your birthday today: The Sun enters Sagittarius at 5:32 p.m. EST. Both Scorpios and Sagittarians face a year of challenge, new and erratically fluctuating conditions and complex temperaments. Results vary according to what you have made of past opportunities and how motivated you are. You're luckier than usual this year. Today's Scorpios lead causes; the Sagittarians search for knowledge. All are energetic.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Today is good for negotiating agreements and making adjustments of personal and business relationships. Pass up physical work such as home maintenance, and repairs. Don't overdo partying, either.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Others don't share your energy or enthusiasm. Being impatient merely complicates matters. Concentrate on new items you can manage singlehandedly. Quit early.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You handled the work week to the best of your ability; now get away from financial arrangements. Romantic overtures are misunderstood. Be somewhat reserved.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: It's easy to get so involved in local or temporary business situations that you lose interest in personal projects. You aren't the only sensitive person around. Don't pass the buck!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your pride or somebody else's gets in the way. Give everyone time to reconsider. Play it safe and pay attention to your health. Travel runs into delay. Leave repairs to the experts.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Avoid fiddling with current financial terms, particularly for speculation or additional sidelines. Expect little display of romantic sentiment.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Rather than scatter money and time dashing about, stick to weekend routines and home base. Avoid legal moves. Stay out of the affairs of neighbors; let well enough alone in your own family.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Your speculative impulses are highly creative but unrealistic. Friends are on the move; go along with them. Leave reserve funds untouched. Keep within budgeted expenses.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You misjudge yourself and others. Pray for serenity and humor. React casually to adverse comment or conditions. Be gentle with loved ones; they have cause for anxiety, too.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Boredom prevails unless you recognize the importance of getting through routine chores first. Don't make changes just for the sake of change. Some emotional expressions surprise you.

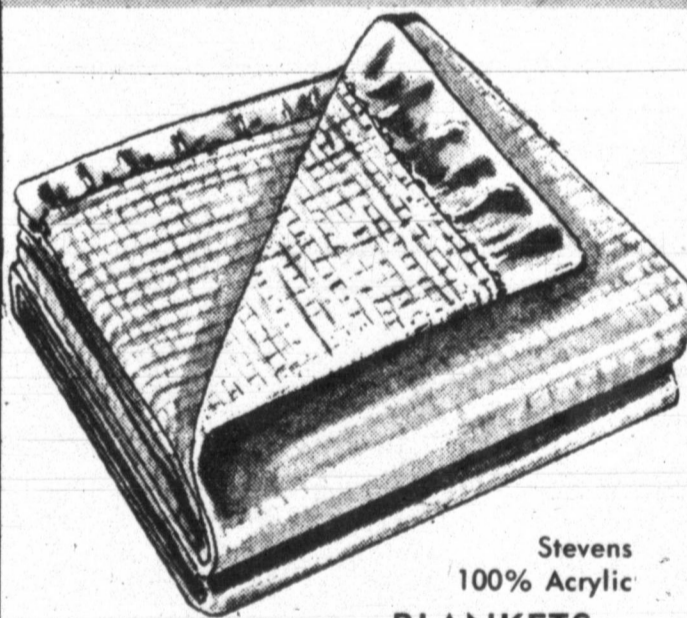

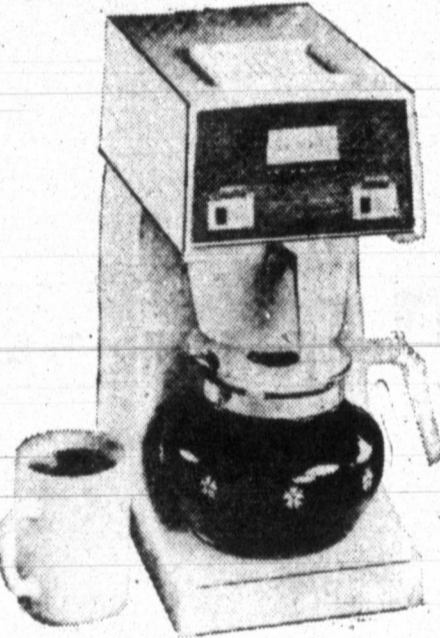

Pisces [Feb. 18-March 20]: Pursue the course of least resistance as long as it doesn't involve money. Finances remain a source of disagreement and subject of tense talks. Be calm as you stand by your budget.

OU-Nebraska: Tossup

By CHARLIE SMITH
UPI Sports Writer

Big Eight coaches have been hesitant to pick a winner of Saturday's Nebraska-Oklahoma clash. Most have listed the reasons why either could win, but refused to predict one or the other.

Kansas State's Ellis Rainsberger, whose team played both respectably — losing 25-3 to Oklahoma and 12-0 to Nebraska — likes the Cornhuskers, however.

"First of all, I think emotions will have a lot to do with the outcome," says Rainsberger. "Nebraska has a little more momentum, but the game is at Oklahoma and they (the Sooners) do have great personnel. But, when you get down to it, I just think Nebraska is a little stronger at this stage of the season."

Still, Oklahoma is listed as a four-point favorite by the oddsmakers. The 9-1 Sooners, upset victims by Kansas, and

Groom, Sudan Meet Tonight

HEREFORD — Groom, blessed with enviable size, a bulldozing fullback and a pair of breakaway threats at the halfback positions, puts its season-long unbeaten string on the line as the Tigers meet Sudan in a Class B bi-district football contest at 7:30 p.m. today here.

The winner will meet today's Jayton — Grand Falls Royalty winner in the regional playoffs next week at a site to be named later Jayton and Grand Falls play at Seminole.

Groom, in the playoffs for the 15th time in 20 years, carries a 9-0-1 record into today's game. Sudan is 8-3 but has won its last seven games.

"After the Springlake-Earth game, we had a meeting of the mind," Sudan coach Jackie Stewart said. "It was before we played Valley. We decided to play football. We played Valley, who was state-ranked and undefeated at the time and we beat them 10-0."

Since then our kids have played real fine football."

According to the Associated Press state rankings, the Hornets are the eight-best Class B team in the state. Groom is ranked No. 4 in the poll and No. 2 by another rating system.

Groom tied Boys Ranch, a District 1-AA school, 0-0 five weeks ago, then mauled five Class B opponents. The Tigers are led by fullback Chris Britten, halfbacks John Krizan and Thomas Reed and a line that averages over 200 pounds per man.

Britten, a 190-pound junior, has carried 142 times for 1180 yards and 12 touchdowns, while Krizan and Reed have 750 and 624 yards per rush, respectively. The Groom halfbacks are averaging seven and 12 yards per carry.

Sudan fullback Danny Williams, who, like Britten, is a power runner, has 1375 yards and 14 touchdowns on 288 carries. Williams has played in only nine games this season because of an ankle injury.

the 10-0 Cornhuskers will be playing for an Orange Bowl berth opposite the Ohio State-Michigan loser. Nebraska already has clinched a share of the Big Eight championship, but Oklahoma can gain a tie with a victory Saturday.

Missouri's Al Onofrio sounds like he may be leaning toward the Sooners.

"If Oklahoma plays errorless football like they did against us, they will be hard to beat," says Onofrio. "Of course, the same can be said for Nebraska. But I think OU's balanced offense (ability to run equally well to either side) is what might hurt Nebraska. How well Nebraska is able to play in a balanced defense will be a big factor."

While those two are playing in the Big Eight's top regular-season finale before a sellout crowd of 70,000-plus, Missouri and Kansas, both 6-4, will be playing for a Sun Bowl berth in Lawrence. In addition, Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl-bound Colorado (8-2) will host Kansas State (3-7) and Oklahoma State (6-4) will visit Iowa State (4-6).

The Missouri-Kansas game is rated even, while Colorado and Oklahoma State are 24 and 8 point choices, respectively.

Sixth ranked Oklahoma needed a 71-yard touchdown run and two-point conversion by Joe Washington to keep from being eliminated by Missouri last week. Washington's sensational turn-around play with 4:20 remaining enabled the Sooners to gain a 28-27 victory.

Meanwhile, second ranked Nebraska was cruising, 52-0, over Iowa State.

Oklahoma definitely will be without split end Billy Brooks and linebacker Daryl Hunt. Brooks has a pulled hamstring and Hunt has a dislocated elbow and neither will suit up. Nebraska is expected to be at full strength, although monsterman Wonder Monds sat out the romp over Iowa State last week.

Oklahoma will gain a bowl berth, win or lose. The Sooners have agreed to go to the Fiesta Bowl if they lose, but Nebraska has chosen to stay out of the post-season picture in the event of a loss.

Nebraska has not whipped Oklahoma since the memorable 35-31 triumph at Norman in 1971, when both teams entered the contest unbeaten and ranked 1-2 in the nation. Since then, Oklahoma has won 17-14, 27-0 and 28-14.

Missouri and Kansas also will offer varying views for the equally sold out crowd (51,500) in Lawrence. The Tigers have the best pass-catch combination in the league in Steve Pisarkiewicz and Henry Marshall and can run with Tony Galbreath or Curtis Brown.

JV Forward

Forward Keith Fisher, on the varsity roster a few weeks ago, scored 21 points for the Pampa junior varsity Tuesday in a 56-51 win over Abilene's JV. Fisher and Shocker teammates will be in action at 6 p.m. today as Pampa hosts Midland. The Harvesters and Midland will start at 7:45 p.m.

Pampa Hosting Midland Today

Pampa, already having beaten two of the region's top-ranked teams, might have a breather tonight against Midland High but the Harvesters, realizing the coaching prowess of James Cagle, won't be taking the 5-AAAA opponent too lightly.

The Harvesters and Midland meet at 7:45 p.m. today in Harvester Fieldhouse. The teams' junior varsities play beginning at 6 p.m.

Midland, ranked No. 6 in 5-AAAA's eight-team district, returns only one starter, 6-3 senior center Ernest Modkins, off last year's 22-12 club. Senior guard Tim Johnson, 5-9, also logged much playing time last season.

Modkins and Johnson averaged 13 and eight points per game, respectively.

Three juniors off last season's junior varsity round out the starting lineup — 6-3 Craig Dunn, 6-3 Elvin Stewart and 6-3 Mike Wiley.

Midland last season tied Midland Lee for the second-half championship in district play. Lee won a playoff 72-68 in triple overtime, then beat first-half winner Abilene High in overtime for the district title.

Cagle is expected to have one of his most inexperienced teams this year. But the Midland coach has taken young teams before and turned them into contenders. Prior to last season, Midland went to the state tournament two consecutive times.

Others who might see action against Pampa are 6-0 senior Billy Shock, and 6-2 senior Jeff Gotcher, who averaged 7.5 points last year in a part-time role for the varsity.

Midland is 0-1 this season, having lost 60-56 to Del Rio.

Pampa, 2-0, has defeated Odessa Ector 54-52 and Abilene High 56-51 in overtime Tuesday. Both of the Harvesters' opponents are expected to contend for the 1-AAA and 5-AAAA titles, respectively.

Against Abilene, guard Rayford Young scored 20 points to lead the way, while forward Richard Lane added 10. Brian Bailey, Donnie Hughes and Jewell Landers eight each and Forest Taylor four.

Bo Seeking Upset, Roses

By BILL MADDEN
UPI Sports Writer

This weekend, we will all be witnesses to college football's version of deja vu.

The scenario from Ann Arbor, Mich., to Norman, Okla., to New Haven, Conn., to Stanford, Calif., we already have seen so many times before.

For starters, we have those two excitable hard losers, Woody Hayes and Bo Schembecher, throwing or running everything they have at each other in an effort to nail down the Big Ten championship and a ticket to Pasadena, Calif., for the Rose Bowl.

One year it was Ohio State's Hayes doing the throwing-downs markers that is—after his Buckeyes were beaten by the Wolverines. On other occasions, Woody has been known to throw punches at fans or photographers.

Similarly, Michigan's Schembecher has done his share of throwing—tantrums, of course—sometimes at the Big Ten for failing to provide an alternate choice of bowls for the loser of this traditional season's end grudge affair; other times merely at the officials after a Wolverine loss to the Buckeyes; and most recently at a photographer for attempting to take pictures of Bo's closed practice session from a nearby apartment building.

The oddsmakers, overlooking Michigan's home field (105,000 capacity) advantage, like Hayes' unbeaten, untied top-ranked Buckeyes to remain that way—by six points. No matter what, however, this year's loser will go to the Orange Bowl.

Then at Norman Okla., we have the annual Big Eight bloodletting between No. 2 Nebraska and No. 6 Oklahoma. Back in 1971 when these two teams met, they called it the game of the century—and it almost lived up to that, too. This year, it's somewhat less than that the Orange Bowl berth and possibly an eventual national championship could ride on the outcome.

At New Haven, Conn., Harvard and Yale will again lock up for their version of "The Game" with (what else?) the Ivy League championship again at stake. To no one's surprise, "The Game" is pick-em.

Porkers, Raiders Meet

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

Arkansas may be the No. 1 rushing team in the nation, but when the guys who have produced that prestigious ranking are not in the lineup, difficulty seems to be likely.

Unless there is a Roland Fuchs around.

Ike Forte and Jerry Eckwood, who have combined to average more than 200 yards a game for Arkansas this season, will miss the action Saturday when Arkansas meets Texas Tech. So the Razorback hopes of keeping their Cotton Bowl dreams alive will be resting with Fuchs, a backup to Eckwood, and quarterback Scott Bull.

Fuchs and Bull combined for more than 200 yards rushing last week in the Arkansas victory over SMU, but in Tech the Razorbacks will be facing a somewhat testier defense.

Forte suffered three dislocated toes in the SMU game and Eckwood will miss his second game in a row with a knee injury.

Those two have helped Arkansas to average 349.1 yards a game on the ground, a figure which leads the nation and is seven yards a contest better than second place Michigan.

The Arkansas-Tech meeting is the highlight attraction Saturday on a Southwest Conference card that serves as a prelude to next week's Texas-A&M showdown.

Arkansas has not been to the Cotton Bowl since 1966, a fact not lost on Razorback players.

"Our main goal, no, our only goal, is to be in the Cotton Bowl," said Arkansas' senior center, Richard LaFarge.

"Last year's senior class went through school and never got a bowl invitation. I've never been to a bowl and knowing we're going, well, that is exciting in itself."

"But our whole season is in front of us. We have to beat Tech and A&M to have a chance to go to the Cotton Bowl and even though we will go to the Liberty if we don't make the Cotton, we're not thinking about the Liberty right now."

The 17th ranked Razorbacks, with a 4-1 league record, are walking a narrow line these days. To reach the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1, Arkansas must first beat Texas Tech, Texas A&M then must down Texas on the day after Thanksgiving and finally the Razorbacks must whip Texas A&M in Little Rock, Dec. 6.

If any of those three games goes the other way Arkansas will make a trip to the Liberty Bowl Dec. 22 against USC.

And Tech should provide Arkansas with a difficult time since the Red Raiders have won four in a row and are much improved from the team that first-year coach Steve Sloan sent on the field in September.

The other SWC battles Saturday should be grim affairs in which losing teams will be trying to regain at least a little pride.

In Waco the defending conference champion Baylor Bears, owning only two victories all year, will host the SMU Mustangs, winners just three times. It will be the season ender for SMU.

And in Fort Worth, the TCU Horned Frogs — losers of 20 in a row — will have their last chance of the season to pick up a win. TCU entertains Rice, a mere two-time winner in 1975.

The only other event of note this week in the conference is

Ace for Wilson

Elmer Wilson, playing in a forsome with Sherwin Cox, Lyndon White and Homer Miller, Tuesday recorded the first hole-in-one of his lifetime, aing No. 5 at the Pampa Country Club.

Wilson used a seven wood on the par-three, 150-yard hole. He finished with a one-over score of 72 for the round, played in windy, cool weather.

Cox is the assistant pro at the Pampa club, and White is pro at the Clarendon Country Club.

Rockefeller Warns GOP Against Rightwing Party

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, addressing the Republican governors both he and Gov. Ronald Reagan served with, today warned that the GOP cannot survive as a narrow political party of the right. Rockefeller keynoted the winter meeting of the Republican Governors Association, shrunken in recent years to 13 members, and sounded the call for a party "open to persons of all backgrounds and a wide spread of political opinion." Rockefeller also attacked Congress' energy bill, saying it would make the nation indefinitely dependent on foreign oil and hurt the economy. "The whole exercise is more reminiscent of the Missouri Compromise than of the Declaration of Independence," he said. Rockefeller's RGA appearance was a homecoming to a world that once was his oyster. He was a strong voice in the organization for years as appeal to a narrow minority, neglecting the opinions, the interests and the aspirations of a vast majority of the electorate," Rockefeller said. "It will not serve the nation to have our major parties polarized at ideological extremes. Our American major parties have been, are, and should remain open to all persons of all backgrounds and a wide spread of political opinion." Rockefeller also attacked Congress' energy bill, saying it would make the nation indefinitely dependent on foreign oil and hurt the economy. "The whole exercise is more reminiscent of the Missouri Compromise than of the Declaration of Independence," he said. Rockefeller's RGA appearance was a homecoming to a world that once was his oyster. He was a strong voice in the organization for years as governor of New York but this was his first — and apparently last — visit as vice president. Meeting with reporters after arriving at McConnell Air Force Base Thursday night he, discounted Reagan's chances of beating Ford. "Now that I am out of it, I don't think (Reagan) will cause him any problem." On hand to greet Rockefeller, the association chairman, Christopher Bond of Missouri, expressed concern about an all out GOP battle. Bond said Reagan "deserves to be heard." But Bond said he hoped the former California governor would avoid a confrontation "that would be debilitating and divisive for the party."

Sold Phony Texas Oil Wells

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—A state official's suit charging 15 companies allegedly selling stock in phony Texas oil wells bilked Floridians out of at least

$3 million has been called "a bunch of baloney" by an official of one of the firms involved. State Comptroller Gerald Lewis said Thursday the 15 involved were located in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana. In his suit, filed in Miami, he asked the court to put the companies out of business and return the money to investors. Circuit Judge Francis Christy later issued an order preventing the firms from doing further business in Florida but set no date for a later hearing.

Arnold May, 57, said he set down a down payment of $1,175 in the "petroleum exploration" ventures of Mark F. Freddy and Associates of Shreveport on the advice of a friend.

"He told me about this firm that was drilling in Louisiana and that they needed investors," said May, a sportsman manufacturer. He said the down payment was "to help pay for the drilling with no guarantee that it wouldn't be a dry well." May said he later received a letter from the company that "informed me the well was good and that they were ready to go ahead with the pumping of oil." He said he responded to the firm's letter with a second payment of $1,860.

"I was supposed to receive substantial monthly dividends for years to come," he said, adding he has received just two checks totaling less than $75.

Bailey Found Guilty Of Codeine Possession

By ANNA BURCHELL Pampa News Staff A 31st District Court jury Thursday night returned a guilty verdict in the case of Bobby Wayne Bailey, 25, of Pampa, charged with possession of codeine. Sentencing will be at a later date. Bailey and his attorney, Rowdy Bowers, elected to have District Judge Grainger McIlhenny assess the penalty. Conviction carries a penalty of two to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. However, probation is a possibility. During testimony Wednesday, Bowers questioned the legality of a search warrant issued to Justice of Peace E.L. Anderson on an affidavit from Officer J.J. Ryzman of the Pampa Police Department. Judge McIlhenny ruled Thursday that the warrant was legal.

under control of the defendant." Hardin also called attention to information previously provided by the informant, whose name was not revealed, which had been accurate. Ryzman said he and three others from the police department went to an apartment on Ballard to search for the controlled substance. He told the jury that 17 codeine tablets were found in a bottle in the bathroom, and 60 in the defendant's automobile. "Was there a physician's prescription attached to these pills?" Hardin inquired. "No, sir," Ryzman answered. Bailey testified that two of his friends visited the apartment prior to the search. "Are you saying they planted this on you?" Hardin asked. "Not exactly, sir," Bailey answered. Under cross examination Bailey said he served 10 months in the penitentiary for possession of marijuana in 1972. He explained that he was living with another GI when officers came to his trailer house looking for his roommate and found marijuana. "Was that yours?" Bowers asked. "No, sir," Bailey answered. "I was the only one there. They were looking for my roommate." The defense said it was "a set up deal and he (the roommate) needed a scapegoat." "You're telling this jury that you were set up on that one as you were on this one," Hardin said. "To take the tongue twisting out of what Mr. Hardin said you were living there with another guy and you were the only one there. The marijuana was not yours," Bowers said. Bailey said Bowers' statement was correct. Bowers said his client was convicted for that charge when possession of any amount of marijuana was a felony. Following testimony, the judge read the charge to the jurors and attorneys waived final arguments.

KKK Won't Use School

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Threatened with the loss of $8.5 million in federal funds, the East Baton Rouge Parish School Board changed its mind Thursday and decided not to let the Ku Klux Klan hold a rally at a high school. KKK national director David Duke said federal opposition to the rally was a violation of the Constitution. A contract for the Sunday rally had already been signed by the board. "I just can't believe it — I'm thunderstruck," Duke said. "Here's the federal government trying to restrict our freedom of speech."

"We're going as far as it takes to obtain our rights," he added. "I'm going to state court and federal court and we're going to file suit to get an injunction to hold the rally." "We're going to have this rally. Whatever is going to be necessary, we'll do it." School board attorney John Ward said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare called the board and later sent a telegram warning the funds would be eliminated because the KKK discriminates against minority children.

PHARR, Tex. (UPI)—A strike called to stop shipment of fruits and vegetables from the Lower Rio Grande Valley had limited effect Thursday but participants said the shutdown would grow along with the potential for violence. Protesting truck drivers, members of the Produce Haulers of Texas, complain they are not being allowed to make money because brokers are skimming profits and federal regulations interfere with fair trade. "As an owner-operator, I'm not making any money," said Larry Jackson, a board member of the Produce Haulers. "It's plain and simple and hard to admit. What's happening is the shipper is paying a broker a rate and the broker's hiring a truck and saying, 'Hey, it don't pay but $800.' He's skimming off the top and giving the trucker what he wants him to have, and then the broker takes an average of 10 per cent of what he gives the trucker for brokerage." Jackson said the organization wanted to negotiate seven items with the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers Association, but the association has refused. The strike began midnight Wednesday but officials said a lull in loading made it difficult to determine how successful it was. One minor incident was reported in the first hours of the strike, but participating truckers hinted there might be more. The head of a truckers' group opposing the strike said any violence would be met with violence. "There are trucks out there loading right now," said broker Millard Holden, president of the rival Independent Produce Haulers of America. "We're having a big barbecue here this afternoon ending the shutdown as far as we're concerned." "Some of the truckers are saying they're going to roll and they'll roll over anybody that gets in their way, or shoot them if they have to, because they've got a living to make. If a guy wants to shut down, let him shut down, but leave other people alone that don't want this."

Senate Votes For Ceiling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate has voted for a ceiling of $375.6 billion on federal spending during the current fiscal year, ending June 30, 1976. That's $8.6 billion more than Congress agreed to last March.

The resolution, approved Thursday by a vote of 69-23, binds Congress under a law enacted last year to appropriate no more than that amount. The resolution contemplates a deficit of $74.8 billion. The administration has requested spending totaling $359.2 billion. The House has passed a resolution calling for spending of $373.8 billion.

Long made his point with doggerel: "Don't tax you, 'Tax the fellow 'Behind that tree.' Kennedy's amendment was defeated 76-21.

Board policy calls for rental of school facilities to any group willing to pay a fee. Duke paid $240 for use of the school grounds, but widespread controversy developed over the use of school property for a KKK rally. Duke, who recently gained 30 per cent of the vote in an unsuccessful race for state senate, expected 1,000 at the rally, which had been planned for weeks. It was to feature bands and speakers, including Duke and Dr. William Pierce of the "National Alliance" of Washington.

Valley Truckers Strike

PHARR, Tex. (UPI)—A strike called to stop shipment of fruits and vegetables from the Lower Rio Grande Valley had limited effect Thursday but participants said the shutdown would grow along with the potential for violence. Protesting truck drivers, members of the Produce Haulers of Texas, complain they are not being allowed to make money because brokers are skimming profits and federal regulations interfere with fair trade. "As an owner-operator, I'm not making any money," said Larry Jackson, a board member of the Produce Haulers. "It's plain and simple and hard to admit. What's happening is the shipper is paying a broker a rate and the broker's hiring a truck and saying, 'Hey, it don't pay but $800.' He's skimming off the top and giving the trucker what he wants him to have, and then the broker takes an average of 10 per cent of what he gives the trucker for brokerage." Jackson said the organization wanted to negotiate seven items with the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers Association, but the association has refused. The strike began midnight Wednesday but officials said a lull in loading made it difficult to determine how successful it was. One minor incident was reported in the first hours of the strike, but participating truckers hinted there might be more. The head of a truckers' group opposing the strike said any violence would be met with violence. "There are trucks out there loading right now," said broker Millard Holden, president of the rival Independent Produce Haulers of America. "We're having a big barbecue here this afternoon ending the shutdown as far as we're concerned." "Some of the truckers are saying they're going to roll and they'll roll over anybody that gets in their way, or shoot them if they have to, because they've got a living to make. If a guy wants to shut down, let him shut down, but leave other people alone that don't want this."

Board policy calls for rental of school facilities to any group willing to pay a fee. Duke paid $240 for use of the school grounds, but widespread controversy developed over the use of school property for a KKK rally. Duke, who recently gained 30 per cent of the vote in an unsuccessful race for state senate, expected 1,000 at the rally, which had been planned for weeks. It was to feature bands and speakers, including Duke and Dr. William Pierce of the "National Alliance" of Washington.

CowBelles Back Week

Top O' Texas CowBelles have stated their participation in 1975 Farm - City Week, today through Thursday, according to Mrs. Kenneth Jackson, Farm - City chairwoman for the Top O' Texas CowBelles. The 1975 theme, "Declaration of Interdependence," was explained by Mrs. Jackson, who said, "We (as CowBelles) feel we are on both sides of the proverbial fence, being both consumer and producer." The 20-year-old tradition of Farm - City Week was started to bring better understanding between rural and urban people and to increase knowledge and appreciation of each sector's contribution to the American way of life. Agriculture, Mrs. Jackson said, is the nation's largest industry with assets totaling $455 billion — three-fifths of the capital assets of all corporations in the United States.

Commoner's Millionaire

METAIRIE, La. (UPI) — John Schwegmann thinks of himself as the common man's millionaire.

"Everybody thinks that when you become a millionaire, you say 'well, to hell with those other people.' I don't feel that way," he said. "Frankly, the people have given me a lot, whether they know it or not. They have given me the opportunity to be where I am today."

It sounds like politician's language, and the 64-year-old Schwegmann is indeed a semisuccessful politician. But at the same time, the multi-millionaire with the giant supermarkets dislikes most politicians and speaks out against almost everything "those crooks" stand for.

"If you only went to seventh grade, you don't have that, that tact," Schwegmann says in his gravelly Irish Channel voice, which borders on Brooklynese.

"I lack finesse, and frankly, I'd rather not have it."

Swegmann has been fighting battles for the ordinary man for years. He was a consumer advocate long before it became a fad.

Prices at his stores are the lowest in town, and each week in his full-page newspaper ads he uses an "editorial" to argue his point about one thing or another or to lambaste a governmental agency.

"I've been fighting for the consumer all my life," says Schwegmann, who was recently elected to the Louisiana Public Service Commission, the state agency which regulates utilities. "Today the public doesn't have a real fighter. And all those consumer groups? They're all worthless."

Swegmann successfully challenged drug pricing laws in Louisiana. He challenged liquor price laws. He challenged fair trade laws, all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, and won. Now he's challenging Louisiana dairy regulations which lead to high milk prices.

Swegmann ran for governor once and lost miserably, spending $75,000 in the process. He served several terms in the legislature, and readily concedes that he did not get too many bills passed. As a matter of fact, he's proud of it — and beams when he says he was frequently the only legislator voting against a bill.

"Somebody had to be the David to fight the Goliath. And I was the David."

"Everyone up there respected me, they feared me and they were only hoping that I'd get out," he said. "There's only two important things in life. One is your reputation and one is your health. If you have a choice, take your reputation. That's one thing that John Schwegmann is not selling — his reputation."

Plea Bargains Struck

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The state criminal appeals court has ruled judges do not have to accept plea bargains approved by prosecutors and defense attorneys in criminal cases.

The appeals court Wednesday turned down the appeal of Pete Cruz, charged with shooting a narcotics dealer. Cruz said his attorneys urged him to plead guilty in exchange for 10 years probation. The judge, however, refused to accept the deal and sentenced him to 10 years in prison.

"The trial court apparently believed that the appellant did not deserve probation," the court said. "We are unable to say that he abused his discretion."

"We recognize that negotiated pleas are an integral and essential part of our system of criminal justice. In cases where the guilty plea is the result of a negotiated plea agreement, the trial court in exercising its authority to assess punishment also serves as a check upon oppressive or unfair bargains or those not in the public interest."

Cruz, of Corpus Christi, wanted to withdraw his guilty plea in the murder case because the judge refused to go along with the agreement. In making the deal, Cruz said he waived the possibility of a potentially good plea of self defense in the case because the narcotics dealer had been reaching for a gun when he was shot.

But the Nueces County judge rejected the agreement, and sentenced Cruz to 10 years in prison.

The appeals court said defendants should be aware of the judges discretion in sentencing so as not to be misled by their attorneys or by prosecutors.

"We can perceive no valid reason why in this manner the whole subject of plea bargaining should not be brought out of the shadows and into the light of day," the court opinion said.

Texas Named Beautification Leader in US

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas has been named the top state in the nation for beautification by a panel of environmentalists and community leaders, Gov. Dolph Briscoe today announced.

The award was bestowed by the national "Keep America, Inc." competition.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation was awarded highest honors sponsored by Keep America Beautiful and the Federal Highway Administration.

Mrs. Briscoe will accept the national award in Washington for the state.

J.D. Wright, Dallas banker and current president of the Beautify Texas Council, will accept the award with the Briscoes.

The council initiates volunteer, community-wide cleanup campaigns across Texas.

Communist Suspicions Led to King Harassment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A six-year campaign of illegal harassment and surveillance by the FBI against Martin Luther King was conducted under the mistaken suspicion he was under "communist influence," according to a ranking FBI official.

Elsewhere, FBI Director Clarence Kelley told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday terrorist bombings were increasing in America at an alarming rate — 46 in the first half of 1975 compared to 45 for all of 1974. Kelley said "new left revolutionaries" were responsible.

James Adams, FBI assistant deputy for intelligence who testified on the King matter, told a Senate investigative panel "there was no statutory basis for justification" of some 25 separate actions carried out against King before he was assassinated in 1968.

The campaign included an anonymous letter written by the FBI to King in late 1964, just before he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize, saying, "You are done. There is only one way out for you."

Although not mentioned at the hearing, the letter was said to have been accompanied by a recording or transcript of material allegedly compromising King's character.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate committee, asked Adams how he would have interpreted the letter.

The witness, accompanied by seven senior FBI officials, testified that FBI investigations were carried out on a wide variety of organizations ranging from New Left movements, almost all black groups, students, antiwar activists and even a pioneer Baltimore women's liberation group because it was suspected of being vulnerable to communist infiltration.

Adams, in ascribing motivation for FBI actions, referred to the temper of the times in the 1950s and 60s when "cities were burning and universities bombed."
