IN GRAY COUNTY

Official Canvassing Of Votes Tuesday

That handful of constituents watching the second edition after election day for the correction that might change defeat into victory for their candidate have watched in vain so far as Gray County and its congressional districts are concerned.

The only correction necessary in the Gray County tallies was a transposition in Eddie Leary's total: 669 changed to 696. This brought his Gray County vote to 734 but still left Cates' plurality at 2,265.

Official canvassing of all votes will be conducted beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Gray County Annex.

County delegate commitments to presidential hopefuls was a rather vague think without an accurate tabulation in the city and incomplete tabulation in outlying precincts. This is no serious oversight since the Gray County convention will officially draw the lines. In lieu of a state presidential primary, delegates are committed at precinct, then county levels.

All precincts had 119 delegates. Of these 90 were listed as uncommitted. Four were pledged to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as a favorite son. An equal number were pledged to Alabama Gov. George Wallace. McGovern and Humphrey drew one each. The rest were out-of-the-city delegates commitment was unknown.

The Gray County convention will open at 2 p.m. Saturday in the district courtroom.

U.S. IPPA Oil Operators Urged To Fight 'Tax Jag'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The nation's independent oil operators have been advised to perfect strategy to battle a "tax jag" that is developing at a rapid pace against the petroleum industry.

Reports placed before the tax committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America indicate attacks against the industry's tax structure are certain in 1973, if not later this year.

The committee met Sunday to open the association's three-day mid-year policy review.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Senate Finance Committee chairman, was to speak before the independents today.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is heading a group that has indicated it will try to amend the Social Security Welfare Reform Bill later this month with anti-oil proposals they say would boost the petroleum industry tax bill more than $1 billion a year.

Two Washington spokesmen for the industry said Sunday they believe the Kennedy-led attack will not succeed this year, but that a tax reform bill affecting petroleum is a certainty in 1973.

William I. Powell, the association's assistant counsel, predicted the Kennedy attack will not amount to much more than a "side show" this year, but said oilmen will be shocked by the tax proposals they will have to fight next year.

Tom Martin, the American Petroleum Institute's tax division manager, said the Democratic party may try to embarrass the Nixon Administration by passing a tax bill this year.

Martin minimized the chances of this happening but added, "We must focus momentum on the situation, for if it goes unchallenged, there will be hostility toward private enterprise."

"Even though it may not be until 1973, we have a big fight on our hands," he said.

Kenneth J. Mutzel, a Dallas, Tex., tax specialist, said the Democrats already have received appeals that their party platform this year include further reduction for oil's 22 per cent depletion tax allowance.

Senate Panel Holds Hearings On Viet Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee reaches back through two decades of history in hearings this week exploring the origin of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., announced the hearings today, after the committee made public a staff report assessing the current prospects for peace as bleak.

Fulbright said the hearings Tuesday through Thursday are designed "to illuminate the lessons of the past and benefit present and future policy."

Testimony will be based on the once-secret Pentagon Papers which traced U.S. involvement in Vietnam through the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The staff report concluded that the success of President Nixon's Vietnamization policy has no bearing on the prospects for peace in the embattled nation.

The analysis was based on the assessments of James G. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose, committee staff members who visited Laos, Cambodia and Thailand last January.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., chairman of the subcommittee on U.S. security agreements, released parts of it Sunday after executive-branch security officers censored it.

Democratic nomination for governor while Lt. Gov. Barnes ran a trailing third and Gov. Preston Smith finished a poor fourth in his bid for a third term.

The winner in a June 5 runoff will vie with either State Sen. Hank Grover or veteran GOP leader Albert Fay, who advanced to a showdown at that time for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

And the latest tabulation by the Texas Election Bureau pointed to a possible victory for challenger John Hill in his effort to unseat Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin, also in the Democratic primary.

There seemed no doubt that the results of these and other contests reflected the determination of Texans to switch to new leaders in state government because of the Sharpstown bank loans and stock insurance scandals, plus late disclosures about elected officials dealing financially with the state and reports of nepotism in the legislature.

With returns tabulated from all 254 counties in the state and 212 of those complete, Robert Johnson, chief of the Texas

Election Bureau, estimated that votes from no more than 40 to 50 precincts remained to be counted.

The agency's latest tabulation for the first time gave Hill slightly more than half the total counted for attorney general.

Runoffs still loomed for Democrats running for U.S. senator, lieutenant governor and comptroller.

These were the latest figures from the Texas Election Bureau:

Democrats: Senator—Tom Cartledge 65,336, Barefoot Sanders 759,014 (38.24 per cent), Alfonso Veloz 52,345, Hugh Wilson 120,553, Ralph Yarborough 987,516 (49.75 per cent).

Governor—Ben Barnes 370,756, Dolph Briscoe 925,569 (44 per cent), Frances Farenthold 588,141 (27.9 per cent), Robert Looney 9,802, Bill Posey 13,595, Preston Smith 185,215, Gordon Wills 10,446.

Attorney general—John Hill 954,366 (50.17 per cent), Crawford Martin 855,179 (44.91 per cent), Bill Pate 92,629 (4.87 per cent).

Comptroller—Dallas Blankenship 132,847, Robert S. Calvert 645,356, Randy Pendleton 151,616, Bill Robertson 65,480, Stanford Smith 79,934, Vernon Smith 103,477, Jim Wilson 188,222.

U.S. Planes Resume Raids On Hanoi Area

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes returned to the Hanoi area today for the first time in three weeks and bombed storage depots, barracks and training facilities supporting the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam, the U.S. Command announced.

The command said waves of carrier-based Navy planes hit targets about 15 miles west of Hanoi and that all the jets returned safely.

The command made no mention of any enemy MIGs being shot down, but other sources had reported earlier that several were sighted and destroyed.

The command also said only tactical fighter-bombers took part in the raids and that there were no B52 strategic bombers used. It did not say how many planes were involved, but it was learned that at least two carriers are in the Tonkin Gulf, with about 150 planes available.

READY TO ZERO IN, South Vietnamese on an armored personnel carrier and a contingent of tanks awaits the go-sign near Cam Lo up in the battle-wracked DMZ region of South Vietnam.

White House Talks Stirs Speculations

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the United States renewed air strikes on the outskirts of Hanoi, President Nixon met with his highest-level advisers today to chart new Vietnam strategy.

The President's Moscow summit visit was perhaps swaying in the balance as he conferred in the Cabinet Room with members of the National Security Council and other top advisers.

The meeting was cloaked in such secrecy that the White House refused even to say who was attending. A spokesman also said he expected no announcement following the session.

A few hours before the meeting began, reliable American sources in Saigon said Nixon had ordered U.S. warplanes to bomb fuel and supply depots and other military targets on the edges of Hanoi.

They were the first raids on the Hanoi area since April 16.

One of the extraordinary circumstances was Nixon's mid-stream interruption of William P. Rogers' European journey so the Secretary of State could attend the top-level policy parley.

Since Rogers indicated he intends to hurry right back to Europe afterwards, this spurred speculation that:

—Nixon is shaping a new diplomatic move along with any military step-up in Vietnam, so he wanted the Secretary of State on hand.

—Nixon still intends to keep his Moscow visit date two weeks hence. Otherwise he would have called off the remainder of Rogers' talks with the European allies, which were scheduled as a preliminary to the U.S.-Soviet summit.

But this admittedly was speculation. The few insiders directly privy to Nixon's thinking weren't talking.

The suspense has been building up with each report of further North Vietnamese advances into South Vietnam and White House declarations of presidential determination to bar the invaders from taking over the South by force.

Nixon has warned Hanoi and, in a more veiled way, the Soviet Union. He has beefed up American air power in Southeast Asia. He briefly reopened the Paris peace talks last week and dispatched adviser Henry A. Kissinger to see North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho.

But the President has yet to specify just what he would do if the invasion continues and the peace talks broke down, as they have. And with small military measures seemingly insufficient to turn the tide, the Nixon watchers are guessing about big moves: stepped-up bombing, re-introduction of new combat troops or major diplomatic moves designed for a new peace offer in Moscow.

Caribbean Has Red Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist diplomats were told following the 1962 Cuban missile crisis that the Soviet Union deployed missiles on the Caribbean island in an effort to change the world balance of power, says a former Hungarian diplomat.

Janos Radvanyi, who defected to the United States in 1967, attributes the claim to Anastas Mikoyan, top trouble-shooter for the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

In a forthcoming book entitled "Hungary and the Superpowers," Radvanyi quotes Mikoyan as saying in November 1962 that "the missile deployment was aimed at defending Castro on the one hand, and on the other, at achieving a definite shift in the power relationship between the socialist and capitalist world."

"Almost in a flash I grasped for the first time the ultimate goal of the Soviet Union," Radvanyi says. "I realized that the purpose of the extremely dangerous Soviet missile deployment was to upset the balance of power."

Radvanyi said Mikoyan also reported briefly on a visit he had with President John F. Kennedy the day before he spoke with the diplomats.

State Primary Elections Bring About Turnover In Top Officials

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Broadening a trend which developed early in the counting of Texas primary election votes, the latest returns today indicated an almost complete turnover in the state's top officials.

Voters already had demonstrated their resolve, which some voiced to pollsters in advance of Saturday's balloting, to put newcomers in the final running for governor.

Uvalde rancher-banker Dolph Briscoe and State Rep. Frances Farenthold of Corpus Christi surged into a runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor while Lt. Gov. Barnes ran a trailing third and Gov. Preston Smith finished a poor fourth in his bid for a third term.

The winner in a June 5 runoff will vie with either State Sen. Hank Grover or veteran GOP leader Albert Fay, who advanced to a showdown at that time for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Solons Linking To Ex-Speaker Defeated In Re-Election Races

Three veteran liberal senators and a dozen House members who were linked to convicted ex-Speaker Gus Mutscher were defeated for reelection in Saturday's primaries.

Voters tipped the ideological scales in the Senate away from its current slight liberal edge.

Unofficial returns showed conservatives would have at least an 18-13 edge and could even go as high as a 20-11 majority if they carried run-offs and the general election.

The Senate came within a single vote last year of passing a corporation income tax amendment. Renewed efforts to enact a business profits tax are expected next year.

The 1973 leadership of the House remained in doubt as Speaker Rayford Price was thrown into a June 3 runoff against liberal Rep. Fred Head of Troup, a "Dirty 30" member. Price ran second in a three-man race for re-election, which he must win before contending seriously for the 1973 speakership.

Rep. Price Daniel Jr. of Liberty, a liberal candidate for speaker, won re-election.

Mutscher, who resigned as speaker March 28, also will be in a run-off, against Latham Boone III of Navaosta. Mutscher could not take his seat in the House next year, however, if the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals affirms his bribery-conspiracy conviction before the new legislature convenes in January.

Senators who lost in the Democratic primary were Jim Bates, Edinburg; Ronald Bridges, Corpus Christi; and Don Kennard, Fort Worth. All usually vote with the liberals.

Bates was acquitted recently of charges he received a stolen diamond. He was defeated by Rep. Rai Longoria, Edinburg. Television executive Mike McKinnon defeated Bridges, and W. C. Meier of Eulest beat Kennard.

Thirteen incumbent representatives were defeated. All but Rep. Charles Patterson of Taylor, a "Dirty 30" member, backed Mutscher—at least tacitly—in the tumultuous 1971 Legislature. Patterson was defeated by another "Dirty 30" member, Rep. Dan Kubiak, Rockdale.

Incumbents are involved in 15 of the 57 House run-offs. Most sided with Mutscher last year against various "reform" matters.

One of those defeated was Rep. Neal Solomon of Mount Vernon, chairman of the House Banks and Banking Committee. The successful challenger, former Rep. George Preston of Paris, hammered on the fact that Solomon's committee cleared the way for Sharp's bank deposit insurance bills in 1969.

Mutscher was convicted of conspiring with two aides to accept favorable stock deals from Sharp in trade for their efforts to get the bills passed.

Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth, one of those aides and former chairman of the House Administration Committee, was soundly defeated in his bid for re-election. Shannon was convicted with Mutscher March 15.

Saturday's results guarantee there will be at least 67 new faces in the 1973 House. The run-offs and the Nov. 3 general election probably will make freshmen a majority of the 150-member House. The turnover will be the largest since 88 new members took their seats in 1953.

There will be at least 13 new senators out of a total of 31. Conservatives appear to have captured 18 seats, and the run-offs and November election could push their majority to as high as 20-11. Liberals and conservatives were balanced almost evenly in the 1971-72 Senate.

Since most of the new representatives are political unknowns with no records on legislative issues, it is difficult to say whether the conservative House will swing to the left when the 1973 session convenes.

Major changes in the composition of the House, were wrought by a federal court order dividing Harris (Houston) Bexar (San Antonio) and Dallas counties into single-member, neighborhood-type districts for electing representatives.

The number of black representatives will leap from two to eight or nine because of the court order.

City Delegation To Attend Meet Of TML Thursday

John F. Coleman of Wellington is regional president and David O. DeWald of Amarillo is secretary-treasurer.

Arraignments Set

The clean-up drive will move into Ward 3 next Monday morning and into Ward 4 on Monday, May 22.

Area Has Less Accidents, More Injuries In 1972

April accidents averaged better than one and a half a day according to the area summary compiled by the Pampa police department.

Injuries occurred in five of these mishaps while property damage was noted in 45 of them.

Ages of drivers figuring in accidents continued to average about the same as in months past. The 35-44 year group accounted for the greatest number—12—with the 45-54 group and the 17-year-old group tying for second place with ten each.

This brought the accident toll for the year to 235. This was 19 fewer accidents than in 1971 but with seven more injuries; 42 this year against 35 for 1971.

Witnesses Conclude Convention

Jehovah's Witnesses concluded their three-day "Conscious of Our Spiritual Needs" convention Sunday.

L.C. Erskine presented the main discourse of the assembly. "Are You Marked For Survival?" to a record attendance of 1321.

Erskine said, "All nations of today are on the brink of coming to a knowledge of the one living and true God, Jehovah, in a way that they have not known him before. Not one of us can escape it. We are all part of those nations mentioned by the prophet Daniel at Dan. 2:44.

"Jehovah has promised to bring a ruin to those that are ruining the earth. This is assured for us at Rev. 11:18. But do we stand to survive or be destroyed when Jehovah takes this action?" Erskine continued.

Talking about being marked Erskine said, "Being marked for survival" means in addition to having a Christ-like personality, one would have to have God's view on matters relating to worship. He would have to love the things that God loves and hate the things that God hates."

All local meetings of Jehovah's Witnesses have resumed this week.

1st Texas Black Woman Wins Race For Congressional Seat

State Sen. Barbara Jordan will apparently be the first black sent to Congress from Texas since the days of Reconstruction following the Civil War.

Miss Jordan won overwhelming victory in a new district created in a predominantly black area of Houston in Saturday's Democratic primary race. She pulled a strong 80 per cent of the approximate 50,000 votes cast in the Democratic primary while her Republican opposition put together only 1,100 votes in the newly formed 18th Congressional District.

Mrs. John Dowdy tried to pick up her husband's post in the U.S. House but she took a sound beating by state Sen. Charles Wilson of Lufkin Dowdy, who has represented the deep East Texas 2nd Congressional District for years, was convicted recently in Baltimore.

Automatically re-elected because they had no primary opponents and no Republicans to face in November were Democrats Jim Wright of Fort Worth, Richard White of El Paso, Omar Burleson of Anson, George Mahon of Lubbock and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Another five incumbents are automatically returned to the House because of victories Saturday over primary opponents.

They are Reps. Wright Patman of Texarkana, W. R. Poage of Waco, John Young of Corpus Christi, Eligio de la Garza of Mission, and Abraham Kazen of Laredo.

Five Democrat and one Republican representative had no primary battles but they will face opposition in the general election next autumn.

Rep. Olin Teague of Bryan goes against GOP candidate Carl Nigilazzo of Hearne. Rep. Bill Archer of Houston faces Democrat Jim Brady. Rep. Bob Jack Brooke of Beaumont will go against Republican Randolph Reed of Houston and Rep. Jake Pickle of Austin faces Reinholdt Richter of Giddings.

Cates One Of 3 Winners In Panhandle Area Race

Phil Cates, formerly of Lefors and now residing in Pampa, was one of three winners Saturday in Democratic contests for state representative in the Panhandle.

Cates defeated Ed Leary, Childress used-car dealer, by a vote of 9,598 to 7,306 in the ten-county 66th Legislative District.

He will face Republican Tom Christian of Claude who had no opponent in Saturday's GOP primary.

Christian and Cates will clash in the general election in November because their districts were combined in last year's state redistricting.

The other two state legislative winners on the Democratic ticket were Bryan Poff and Pete Laney.

Rep. Poff, now serving his first term in the legislature, must face Rhett Plank of Canyon in the general election. Poff defeated former representative Hudson Moyer, 9,380 to 3,072, for the Democratic nomination in the 65th District. The 65th includes Randall and Carson counties, the rural area of Potter County and western and northwestern areas of Amarillo.

Laney entered the 76th District race after Rep. Ralph Wayne of Plainview announced he would not seek re-election. The district includes only a small part of Jones' former district which included Hockley, Terry and Lubbock counties.

Plank, a Canyon attorney, defeated Bob D. Slough, Amarillo attorney, for the GOP nomination for the 65th District. Nomination is the same as election for Laney, who defeated Rep. Delwin Jones of Lubbock in the three-county 76th District including Swisher and Hale counties and a rural area of Lubbock County.

There is no Republican candidate in the 76th District.

Honduran Army Hunts Skyjacker

Honduran army troops combed a heavily forested mountain region for a man who parachuted from an Eastern Airlines jet with $303,000 ransom in one of two marathon weekend plane hijackings.

In the second incident, a young Vietnam war protester commandeered a Western Airlines jet over Utah and eventually ordered it to Cuba. He promised to sneak back into the country and do it again.

Both planes were taken over Friday. The Eastern hijacker bailed out over Honduras Saturday morning and a few hours later the Western airliner touched down in Havana.

Both hijackings appeared politically motivated. Eastern crew members said the man told them he didn't want the money for himself but indicated it might be used by a foreign power.

Classified Ad Brings Flood Of Applicants

The Texas Employment Commission does not run help wanted ads for businesses that need help, but they will advertise if the employer pays for the ad.

A dentist who needed an assistant asked the TEC to insert this want ad in The Pampa News:

DENTAL ASSISTANT—No experience necessary. Neat appearance, no smoking. Apply in person Texas Employment Commission, 823 W. Francis. Ad paid for by employer.

Do newspaper Classified Ads get results?

Bill Ragsdale, manager of the local TEC office says there were about 75 replies to that ad the first time it ran in the newspaper.

Those who responded to the ad included women and girls in these occupational categories: waitresses, sales clerks, school girls, cashiers, bookkeepers, clerk-typists, general office clerks, a sewing machine operator and several mature women who want to re-enter the labor market after 15 to 20 years absence.

The dentist, of course, got his dental assistant and one other applicant was placed as a bookkeeper.

So, if you need female help, the Texas Employment Commission has a list of 73 other women and girls looking for jobs.

Congress Appears To Have Lost Its Authority Over Appropriations

The principles underlying the government of the United States are decentralization of power, separation of power... Attorney Richard M. Nixon, 1963

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON AP) — The Constitution gives Congress sole authority to appropriate money from the federal Treasury, but more and more the White House is pulling the purse strings and Congress is left holding the bag. Currently, the White House is refusing to release to other federal departments and agencies $12.3 billion which Congress appropriated for use in fiscal 1972.

The stated reasons include White House belief that the agencies involved don't need the money, and the White House contention that expenditure of the impounded funds wouldn't coincide with President Nixon's policies.

Some members of Congress decry the White House action as an illegal encroachment on Congress' constitutional authority over appropriations. The real issue, however, is who has the authority to spend.

At the moment, based on a practice dating back 20 presidential administrations, the authority rests with the White House through its Office of Management and Budget, an agency little known outside Washington but feared here like the pharaohs feared the locusts.

In testimony before Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearings on the practice of impounding funds appropriated by Congress, former Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said the White House didn't steal the power of the purse.

Udall suggested that when a president impounds appropriated funds, Congress could get action by placing the president in a whipsaw.

The president always has his own things that are very urgent," Udall said. "He is sending up requests for supplementary appropriations and Congress can simply say, 'We are not even going to consider these until you start spending this money that we consider very vital.'

Congress could do it, but it has for some reason considered that it was not proper to do it," Udall added.

Caspar W. Weinberger, deputy director of OMB, says Congress could force the White House to spend every appropriated nickel by simply ordering it to do so.

If the Congress ordered money spent, the president would then have to spend that and from time to time that was the course Congress had taken and it has not been challenged," he said.

One of the most publicized case of this type was the 1970 Hill-Burton hospital construction act which required that all appropriated funds be spent.

Nixon vetoed the bill, saying that the requirement was unacceptable. Congress overrode the veto.

In March, OMB released its annual list of impounded funds, congressionally appropriated money which OMB has decided will not be spent this fiscal year. It totalled nearly $1.8 billion, including $280 million held back solely to implement Nixon's directive to cut the federal work force by 5 per cent.

Among the other cuts were: —$58 million in sewer and water grants from the Farmers

Home Administration and another $500 million in similar grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

—$107 million earmarked for Rural Electrification Administration loans.

—$18 million in Atomic Energy Commission funds.

—$24 million for NASA's Nevada nuclear rocket.

In addition, OMB placed another $10.5 billion in budgetary reserve. Those funds still could be spent this fiscal year, but OMB thus far has declined to do so on the ground that the money isn't needed. At what point, if ever, it will be needed will be determined by OMB, not the agencies involved.

This reserve included: —$198 million for the food-stamp program.

—$1 million for consumer protective, marketing and regulatory programs.

—$115,000 in forest fire prevention funds.

—$105 million for the Model Cities program.

—$30 million in land and water conservation funds.

—$40 million in Federal Aviation Administration funds for safety regulation.

—$300 million for the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

Much of this rankles members of Congress who contend an appropriation is an order to the President to spend the money as specified by Congress.

OMB counters that an appropriation is merely a notice from Congress that certain money is available for expenditure.

Citing a turn-of-the-century law called the Anti-Deficiency Act, the OMB claims it has the power to ignore that availability.

OMB cites also the constitutional provision that the president must "take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Although the Constitution does not specify whether the president is supposed to be faithful to the nation, to the will of Congress or to his own politics, the general inclination has been for the White House to interpret the clause as meaning "faithful to the best interests of the nation."

Occasionally the "best interests of the nation" look to Congress more like the best interests of the President, and the grumbling on Capitol Hill becomes cacophony.

Among those who claim that the practice of impounding is illegal is Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., the Senate's leading authority on constitutional law.

"He (the President) has no authority under the Constitution to decide which laws will be executed or to what extent they will be enforced," Ervin said.

"Yet by using the impounding technique, the president is able to do just that."

Spokesmen for OMB reply that someone must hold the spending line and that Congress isn't doing it. They say Congress sets spending ceilings and ceilings on the national debt and then ignores them when appropriating funds.

"Congress does not have to nor do they estimate outlays," said Weinberger of OMB. "We have to estimate the outlays. And if our estimates are wrong, the outlay ceiling does not expand automatically at all. It remains firm. It is a lid on expenditures; it is not a lid on congressional appropriations."

If impounding stopped there, it might never have become an issue, but OMB concedes that presidents use impoundment to implement their own policies.

"It is simply a naked question of whether or not the president can withhold funds from a program which he personally opposes," Weinberger said.

"The presidents in the past have taken actions that indicate they do feel they have this basic power."

So has the President in the present.

Harvey C. Mansfield, professor of government at Columbia University, told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee last year:

"Partly by vetoes and partly by cutbacks of grants for health research, urban renewal and model cities, defended as anti-inflationary moves, the President (Nixon) tried to make room for funds for the SST, for NASA, for a larger merchant marine, for Safeguard ABM installations, and so on."

"Plainly the object was not an over-all reduction, or not wholly an over-all reduction, but despite continuing inflationary pressures, a redistribution of emphases in order to favor different constituencies from those the Johnson administration had cultivated."

The most oft-expressed concern of Congress is that impoundment gives a president the power of a line-item veto, that is, a veto over selected sections of a larger bill. Legally, a president must sign or veto any entire bill. He gets a line-item veto in effect, however, if he signs a bill and then has OMB impound funds for one or more of its provisions.

The realities of the matter are more subtle than the politics. It may be that a social program doesn't really need all that is appropriated for it, but Congress over-appropriated to make itself appear concerned.

The White House then is being economically prudent in holding up some funds.

Or it may be that the president's own policy, expressed through OMB, is to give lip service to the social program while not really backing it at all. In that case, OMB may be withholding funds so that program can't get going.

It boils down to a question of motivation, and that is what makes the debate so difficult to resolve.

"Impoundment is a process, a technique, an instrument of policy not intrinsically evil and accordingly it is to be judged by its uses: by whom; for what purposes, temporarily or permanently or something in between, indefinitely; and with what consequences," said Professor Mansfield.

The only thing that is clear is that the authority of the OMB to spend or impound, for whatever reason, makes it the single most powerful government agency in the nation.

But he never promised you a rose garden

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband has one brother and one sister. The brother married a very rich girl and he has no money worries. The sister married a professional man who does very well, and they are also on easy street. They both have lovely large homes, help in the house, etc. My husband is barely making it.

Twelve years ago my father in law lost his wife and didn't want to live alone. The others couldn't take Grandpa because they traveled too much, etc., so he came to live with us.

We gave up our bedroom and moved into a dinky guest room so Grandpa could have the best. For 12 years this selfish, complaining, demanding old man lived with us. Two years ago he suffered a stroke and I had to care for him 24 hours a day, bathing, feeding, everything! He could have afforded to go to a nursing home because he had money socked away and plenty, but he wouldn't hear of it.

I put up with his cursing, complaining and demanding, and so did my children. All the while, he never gave us one penny for his keep! Well, Grandpa died two weeks ago, and his will read:

"All my children shall share and share alike."

Would you care to comment? A COUPLE OF CHUMPS

DEAR CHUMPS: It seems inequitable, to put it delicately, but I'm reminded of an old Yiddish saying, "If you come for the inheritance you might have to pay for the funeral."

DEAR ABBY: This is an open letter to my mother:

Dear Mom: If you should ever suspect me of taking drugs, please invade my privacy because I know that you always want the best for me.

I always tell you not to worry about me but I suppose that it is silly of me to say this, because if you should cease to worry about my welfare you will cease to love me.

I pray that I will never do anything to hurt you or Dad in any way. I also pray that I will never do anything to hurt myself but if I do, and you should find out, I know that you will do everything in your power to try to stop me, and I will love you for it. YOUR 16-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I appreciated your letter, and while I know that many will agree with you, some will not. Please read on for another 16-year-old's point of view:

DEAR ABBY: I am absolutely furious with you! What do you mean saying that you thought parents had the "right" to search their children's drawers and closets and go to all lengths necessary to find out whether their children were involved with drugs?

I am 16, and it is my "right" as a citizen to do what I want with my body. And if I want to take drugs my parents have no business spying on me to find out whether I am or not.

I have always thought you were reasonably fair minded, but not any more. And it won't do you any good to retract your statement because I am thru reading your column. FORMER READER

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter in your column relating to the difficulties of getting an arrest stricken from the record after an acquittal:

In Illinois, the procedure is simple: One files a petition with the Chief Judge of the Criminal Court, and states simply that he was arrested and acquitted and desires to have his arrest record expunged.

Not only will his arrest be expunged, but if his fingerprints and photographs were taken, those will be returned by the Chief of Police and absolutely no record is kept of the arrest. J. L. E., CHICAGO ATTORNEY

DEAR MR. E.: Congratulations to the progressive State of Illinois!

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Jim: "How about showing a few hands where the best line of play falls to work. It does happen that way sometimes."

Oswald: "A good idea. We might start with last Tuesday's hand. Leave the North and South hands the same, but change East and West a trifle."

Jim: "South starts out by winning the third lead of hearts. Then he notes that he isn't going to make his contract if West holds the ace of clubs, but will make it if East holds the ace of clubs and either the spade finesse works or diamonds break 3-3. He sees that he can afford to test the diamonds as a starter so cashes the high diamonds. East shows out on the third lead so South goes after clubs. East wins and shoots back a spade."

Oswald: "Here is where the expert really gets burned. He can take the ace of spades and cash a total of eight tricks but that is the coward's line of play. Expert South plays the queen of spades and winds up down three."

Jim: "Note that the expert line has suffered the maximum loss. A South player who did not attack diamonds first would never lose a diamond trick and would only be down two when the spade finesse lost. On the other hand our unlucky expert has given himself the best play for his contract, which is the way experts are supposed to play."

CHARITY IS FINE—BUT NOT WITH MEDICINES

Is it all right to share your medicine with someone else? Definitely not. As your doctor will tell you, don't ever take medication which has been prescribed for another person. This could lead to many problems, and instead of helping, it could be harmful to the person sharing the medication. Your doctor takes into consideration such things as age, weight, sex and physical condition when writing your prescription.

Yes, your doctor is the only one who should prescribe a drug for treatment. Friends and neighbors can offer free advice, but your physician is the expert on matters of health. He is the one you should look to for professional help. So please take our "free advice"—never share your medicine with somebody else.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Professionalism Lives in the Cockpits

For jet jockeys like Gordon Weed, Vietnam is still the only war we've got.

job is to bomb. And we are not so altruistic as to think we don't kill civilians sometimes. We have safeguards against that — but if anybody comes here worried about it, then he just doesn't belong flying attack planes."

So the pilots, almost to a man, do not worry about the possibility of killing civilians. And if that is hard, then the pilots are hard. Critics have said they are this way because they seldom see the results of their bombs — the people with no heads, the bodies glued together in a bunker. "Well, that's true," says one man here. He nods his head. And says nothing more. He cannot afford addendum.

The idea in the cockpit is to be efficient. And brave. Period. Especially now, as the enemy pushes its offensive with, as the Pentagon has put it, "the most sophisticated anti-aircraft defense in air combat history." Thus, by necessity, there is an aura of machismo among fighter pilots. A man may be a little of it all, feeding long distance with his wife, even frightened — but in the group, "with all these fearless son of a bitches around me," he hangs tough.

"Wha'd you get?"
"A tank—blew it to hell."
"Oh, God, you lucky bastard."

This is the way it is, then. "Hose 'em down." Drop the bombs and let God sort the dead. It is cruel and merciless. But many men, like the crew of the 8th SOS, spend much of their young lives working and wrestling for the job. "I just love it," "I couldn't do anything else." Somehow the pilots have escaped the world's spreading sensitivity to war. This is not to fault them — they are bright, decent and, God knows, necessary men. Just the same, one wonders.

Boom.
Bull's-eye.
Outstanding?
(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By TOM TIEDE
BIEN HOA AIRBASE, Vietnam — (NEA) — For the past 10 months Gordon Weed has repeated, a gain and again, almost 300 times, the most gut-wrenching job in this war. Dive bombing. Once, twice, often three times a day he has strapped into an A-37 jet, flown to some bleak battle, angled to 30 degrees, floorboarded to 300 knots, waited until he could "see their mouths open," then dropped up to 12,000 pounds of ordnance through withering protests of enemy flack.

Boom.
Bull's-eye.
"Outstanding," his radio crackles, "just great."
Others have gone home from the Nam. Still others are waiting to go. But for some few remaining pilots, like Gordon Weed, the war continues as before. If it's not "just great," it is at least "outstanding." After all, the jet jockeys mug: "It's the only war we've got."

It is at that. And since

many of the 550 pilots still in Vietnam are career people, that is to say they like their job, they make the most of it. Gung ho is a term rarely used in Vietnam anymore. It died with My Lai. But professionalism lives on in the cockpits of attack fighters. Weed, lieutenant colonel, is commander of the 8th Special Operations Squadron, and there is nary a discouraging word in it. The enlisted men aren't plotting assassinations. The brass is not figuring out how to steal mamma sans into their tents. And the pilots? Well, the pilots still love to "sanitize (kill) the enemy."

"It's not just patriotism and loyalty," says Weed, a 45-year-old Mormon from Salt Lake City. "And, actually, since we all have our differences with the way the war's been fought, we have to exclude politics too. What we think we're doing is saving lives. We're the last bastion, so to speak, and the Vietnamese still need us. When I unload on a target I don't think about winning the war. I think about saving a town from being overrun, or keeping an allied company free to maneuver, or denying the enemy a bridge."

Weed speaks for the majority of pilots here, and probably those elsewhere in Southeast Asia. "Winning" is no longer a consideration. "Doing" has become the whole number. "Actually, I don't like the war itself," says Capt. G. G. Nicolai, an Oregonian, "but flying? God, it's great. I don't like getting shot at. I have a more or less constant fear of being a prisoner of war. But the bird is great. It's like a little sports car. I'd fly it all day long if they'd let me."

The "bird," in the case of the 8th SOS, is indeed the sports car of American fighter planes. A revamped, one-time training ship, its cockpit comes only chest high, its wings reach a cozy 15 feet to the side. But despite its Lilliputian size, say the jocks, "it stings like a bee do." A row of 500-pound bombs lock to the wings, rocket canisters sit next to the fuel tanks, and 9 seconds of 7.62 ammunition is housed in a nose cone gatling gun.

The plane, of course, has more than a sting. It's a killer. A 500-pound bomb dropped within five meters of a tank will zap the occupants by dreadful concussion. Enemy soldiers are often found with their bodies split in two by jet-tossed rockets. And if napalm is used, the afterscene of an A-37 raid is brutal to witness.

Yet the pilots do not talk about this nitty gritty. They cannot. "You can't reconcile war," says Weed. "Our

Early Retirement May Depend on Pension Plan

If none is listed, write to the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Dear A. T.: Probably not. A recent decision under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act said an employer cannot force an employee's retirement before age 65 if he is not a member of the firm's compulsory retirement or pension plan.

Dear M. T.: Your employer could be violating the Equal Pay Act which requires that men and women receive equal pay when they work in jobs requiring equal skill, effort and responsibility. However, the law makes an exception where, for example, an employer can show that the wage differential between a man and a woman employee is based on a bona fide seniority or merit system, or some other factor besides sex. It may be that the man you work with is receiving higher pay for the same work because he has been with the company longer than you. But do not hesitate to contact the Department of Labor's Wage

W. S. of Geneva, Ill., writes: I know that under federal law, only "disposable earnings" are subject to garnishment. What does this mean?

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The National Weather Service departed from its usual designations Tuesday in listing the 5 p.m. weather conditions here.

Mrs. Billy M. Henderson, the victim's mother, District Court Judge R. L. McKim promptly declared a mistrial Tuesday.

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Travel agents are now arranging group honeymoons including an airport wedding and a 16-day swing through Japan, Taiwan and Hong Kong. Thirty Malaysian couples are scheduled for the first "Flight of the Doves" July 23.

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — An enraged mother elephant succeeded in getting her baby released from police custody. Police had rescued the young elephant from a jungle well and tied her to a palm tree. That night the mother, backed by a herd of 13 other elephants, charged the police post. Baby was released and all the elephants disappeared into the jungle.

Instead of the usual "cloudy," "partly cloudy," "hazy," etc., the weather service said the weather condition simply was "smoke."

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A glass firm here has a billboard over its store saying "Thanks for boys with baseballs."

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Theresa Johnson, 3, has four functioning kidneys, a medical phenomenon so rare that the odds are 20,000 to 1 against it.

Dr. George B. Vassilakis said Theresa's condition was discovered while she was undergoing treatment for a kidney infection at Grace Hospital, where she has been a patient since March 29.

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The trial of Richard S. Armendariz, 19, charged with assault to murder, was halted almost before it began.

Miller Threatens Legal Action

Did White Sox Blacklist Horlen?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—If Joe Horlen wouldn't toe the line, then the Chicago White Sox wouldn't let him toe the rubber either.

That was essentially the charge by Marvin Miller, head of the Players' Association, when he threatened recently to file a charge of unfair labor practices with the National Labor Relations Board.

He still may. But there is no hurry now. Joe Horlen has a new job. He caught on as a relief pitcher with the Oakland A's, a couple of weeks after the White Sox had surprised him by asking waivers on him.

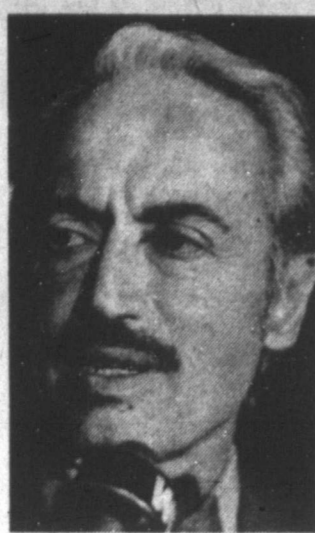

The White Sox told him that his services would no longer be needed on the very day that he and 23 other major league player representatives were meeting, March 31. A unanimous vote for the strike was the result of that meeting.

Horlen today does not say that the White Sox cut him because of his union activities. He does say, though, that it was "strange timing."

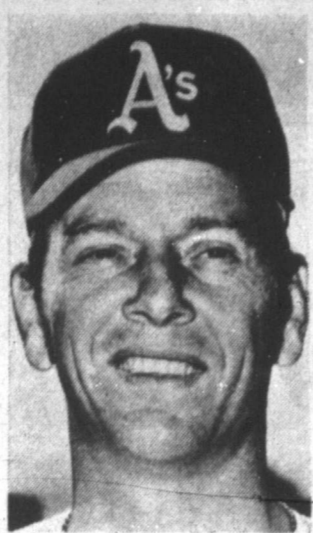

In fact, just before spring training, Horlen says, he received a sweet "note from management" saying they hoped he still could pitch a few more seasons for the White Sox and then, because he had given such standout service over the last 10 years, he could have a job somewhere in their organization when his playing days were over.

Little did he know how quickly sentiments can change.

His downfall, Horlen be-

Marvin Miller

Joe Horlen

lieves, came about five days before the strike. And in the midst of strike talk.

General manager Stu Holcomb gathered all the White Sox players at spring training in Sarasota, Fla., to discuss the primary issue of the threatened strike, the pension plan. He told the players of the myriad generosity of the plan.

When Holcomb left, Horlen, as player representative, came up front. "What Holcomb was saying wasn't altogether true," Horlen says today. "I told the players that and I told 'em why."

"I know all that got back to Holcomb."

Before this, it seemed Horlen had a spot on the pitching roster of the White Sox, as he had for the last decade. And for the first time in three years, he was sound physically. He had knee operations the last two seasons but was strong at season's end in 1971.

His record over the last two years was 6-16 and 8-9, Hardy 19-12, as it was in 1967.

"But this spring training, I started four games and pitched 11 innings and no one scored a run off me," he said.

Nevertheless, no team claimed him when the White Sox put him on the waiver list. Was it a conspiracy among the owners? Miller insists that these things exist. He discovered it, he says, soon after taking over the Players' Association. In 1967, he did file an unfair labor practice charge against Charlie Finley, owner of the A's.

Finley had allegedly fired Ken Harrelson for uncomplimentary personal remarks. Finley, through baseball commissioner William Eckert, had arranged for the other (then) 19 club owners to blacklist the recalcitrant Harrelson, Miller said. But Boston reneged, thinking they could use Harrelson's bat more than they would want to punish him. Harrelson decided, then, that there was no reason to continue legal action.

Ironically, it was Finley, the most wildly individualistic of owners, who gave Horlen a chance, after Horlen had been turned down by several teams short on pitching.

A's manager Dick Williams didn't claim Horlen because he was scared off, he says. He figured Horlen had a sore arm (he hasn't had a bad arm in years) or his knees were still troublesome. Surely, Williams thought, the White Sox wouldn't release Horlen only because he's 35 and carried a $50,000 a year salary.

"A healthy Horlen would help any major league team," said Williams. "He's an experienced, accomplished pitcher."

But then Williams watched Horlen pitch in workouts. He watched him run in the outfield. Horlen, thought Williams, is healthy. Williams signed Horlen.

Miller's office is investigating further into the Horlen-White Sox matter. Miller, if he has Horlen's sanction, wants to go on with it. He feels the issue of owners intimidating players is of major significance, not a one-shot problem with Horlen.

And Horlen? "Right now," he says, "I'm just thinking about pitching. I've been putting on a baseball uniform for 20 years. I didn't want to take it off overnight. I want to take it off gradually."

Iverson Wins

Shreveport Classic

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Don Iverson, a second-year pro from LaCrosse, Mich., fired his fourth consecutive two-under-par 69 Sunday to win the $5,000 first prize in the Shreveport Golf Classic.

Iverson, 26, finished with an eight-under-par 276, two strokes ahead of Rolf Deming, who led after the second round. Deming won $3,000.

Deming started the final round trailing Iverson by two strokes. He closed the gap to one shot when, playing in the twosome ahead of Iverson, he birdied No. 16.

Iverson went back ahead by two strokes minutes later when he birdied the same hole. Both men parred the last two holes. Although Iverson had won $11,000 on the tour earlier this year, he had never won a tournament as a pro.

Bettenhausen Drives 190 At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Gary Bettenhausen, a second-generation race driver, has posted the second 190 mile an hour speed of the season at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., driving a McLaren-Offenhauser hit one lap at 190.235 m.p.h. and another at 190.315 Sunday at the 2 1/2-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Bettenhausen was one of 24 drivers practicing for the two weekends of qualifications leading to the 500-mile race May 27.

David Pearson Wins Winston 500 Race

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP)—Bobby Isaac, as cool-headed as any driver around, ignored an official black flag in the Winston 500 Sunday and made a sizeable profit out of one of the wildest stock car races in years.

Isaac, 37, who quit school in the sixth grade to go racing, was leading a bumper-to-bumper duel on the lightning fast Alabama International Speedway with five laps to go when the black flag was displayed as the nose of his Dodge crossed the starter's line.

Officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing had detected the cap on his fuel tank dangling awkwardly as he raced around the 2.66-mile oval, and they displayed the traditional black flag ordering him to his pit for consultation.

Isaac, at the time, was leading the pack by about two car lengths over eventual winner David Pearson in a Mercury. Isaac ignored the flagman and went blithely on. Two laps from the finish, however, he ran up behind a slower car on the high-speed front stretch and was crowded against the wall. He bounced off and continued racing, but Pearson took advantage of the momentary lapse to drive by and go on to triumph by 4.9 seconds.

Isaac was fined $1,500 for ignoring the black flag, but was allowed to keep his second-place winnings of $13,895. Had he gone to his pit as directed, the best he could have done would have been fourth place for a payoff of $6,095—a loss of $7,800.

Pearson, a three-time NASCAR champion, earned $23,745

for his second victory since taking over the Wood Brothers Mercury from A. J. Foyt a month ago. He needed 3 hours, 53 minutes and 15 seconds to complete the 188 laps for an average speed of 134.400 miles per hour.

The race was slowed seven times by caution flags, and the race was stopped twice for a total of 30 minutes when light rain fell on portions of the course.

Even so, it was a hotly contested affair from the start and a record 71,400 spectators loved it.

Pearson, Isaac, Dodge-driving Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison, Richard Petty, Clifton "Coo Coo" Marlin and Fred Lorenzen swapped the lead 53 times as they battled at speeds over 185 m.p.h. during periods when the racing flag was displayed.

Chuck Thorpe Challenges Devlin

HOUSTON (AP)—Rookie Chuck Thorpe, with a day off to consider his challenging position and pamper his nervous stomach, went after his first pro victory today in the rain-delayed final round of the $125,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

"I feel real proud of myself, being only three shots away," said Thorpe, one of the few black players on the tour, after Sunday's scheduled final 18 holes were washed out by a steady day-long rain.

"If I get lucky, I can beat Mr. Bruce Devlin."

"I feel like I can win. I feel like it's my week to win."

The rangy, 6-foot-3 power hitter trailed the pace-setting Devlin by three strokes after 54 holes. Devlin, a 34-year-old Australian who now lives in Miami, has a three-round total of 206, 10 under par on the Westwood Country Club course. Young Hale Irwin was next in the chase for a $25,000 first prize with a 208 total.

Thorpe, the 25-year-old son of a greenskeeper in Roxboro,

N.C., was tied at 209-seven under par and three back of Devlin—with veteran Doug Sanders and tour regular Jack Ewing.

Most of the game's top stars, including Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Gary Player—decided to skip this event.

The rainout marked the second week in a row on the tour that officials had been forced to extend a tournament scheduled to Monday in order to complete the regulation 72 holes.

Chi Chi Rodriguez won the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas last Monday after the first round of that tournament had been rained out.

Today's schedule called for a 9 a.m. start with threesomes going off both the first and 10th tees.

Sports Picnic Tuesday Night

The Spring Sports picnic, sponsored by the Pampa Booster Club, is scheduled for tomorrow night at 6:30 in Central Park.

It was erroneously reported in the Sunday paper that the picnic would be held tonight.

The picnic is held yearly to honor the participants in Harvester spring sports: track, baseball, golf, tennis and volleyball.

It was also reported that the public is invited to the picnic. The public is welcome to come by the park, but the picnic will be for the participants in sports and members of the Booster Club only.

Pacers Happy With Victory

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—After being down nearly the entire series against the Utah Stars, Indiana Pacers' Coach Bob Leonard couldn't help but be relieved after his team's 124-103 victory over the New York Nets Saturday.

The victory gave Indiana a 1-0 lead in the best-of-7 American Basketball Association championship playoff series. The second game will be played at Indianapolis Tuesday night.

Baseball Tips

2—Pitching

(Second of 10 Parts.)

Good control is the key to being a good pitcher. Concentrate on every pitch. And immediately after delivery, get ready to be the fifth fielder.

(Extracted from the Official Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit & Throw Competition "Tips" Booklet, available free to every boy who registers and which may be obtained at any PH&T registration location or by writing to: Pitch, Hit & Throw, 505 Park Avenue, Suite 1412, New York, N.Y. 10022.)

Use a half windup; a full windup wastes motion and energy and doesn't help the speed of the ball. Pitch with the whole body, not just the arm.

Come off the rubber as hard as you can. Keep your eyes on the catcher's glove at all times. Work on control.

Los Angeles Lakers Win First NBA Championship

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain's scowl could scare a bear, but he wore a smile of satisfaction when he said, "I think that winning this title should make life a little easier for me."

The 7-foot 1-inch captain of the Los Angeles Lakers relaxed today in his $1.5 million home and the easier life to which he referred reflected acceptance as a team player.

He blocked shots, scored 24 points and hauled down 29 rebounds despite a painfully injured right wrist as the Lakers shrugged off years of frustration Sunday with a 114-100 victory over the New York Knicks.

That gave the Lakers their first NBA championship since they came to Los Angeles in 1960 and their first since 1954 when they made Minneapolis their home. The margin in games was 4-1, four straight since losing the opener.

For Chamberlain, this was a big moment. He has been criticized during his 12-year NBA career and accused of not getting along with his coaches or fellow players.

As the Lakers won a record 33-in-a-row and total of 69 during the regular season, there was no such criticism. None came as they beat Chicago and defending champ Milwaukee in playoff games.

The 35-year-old basketball millionaire was named the Most Valuable Player. And it wasn't until late that it became evident he had sufficiently recovered from the sprained wrist suffered last Friday night in New York. He wore a protector usually worn by defensive linemen in pro football.

Los Angeles jumped out to a 10-0 lead and then found themselves 53-50 at the half. Their third quarter made the difference.

Leading 75-74, Happy Hairston sank a basket and then Wilt added a pair, sandwiched around a shot by Walt Frazier which he blocked. The Lakers had built a seven-point lead.

The Knicks made one more run but it fell short and in the fourth period, the Lakers pulled away.

Gail Goodrich scored 12 in the final period and 25 for the game. Jerry West had 23 and Jim McMillian 20 as four Lakers scored 20 or more.

Hairston, the other starter, had 13 points but was second to Wilt in rebounds with 14.

The 33-year-old West, who has won almost everything in the NBA during his career except a title prior to this one, commented: "I couldn't feel happier if we had won 10 titles. I was disappointed that I didn't shoot better, but I feel I contributed in other ways."

For the Lakers, the title means about $17,000 extra in playoff money per man. The losing Knicks get about $10,000 each depending on how many

SHAVING STROKES

27—Addressing Sand Shots

The sand shot is the easiest in golf—but only once you've mastered it. The average player has trouble with it.

I have noticed that most people play the ball too far forward in the stance from a sand trap. They play it up off their left heel, where they would play a driver or long-iron shot.

In sand, the ball needs to be struck with a descending blow. You don't want to try to scoop or lift the ball out. I suggest that you position the ball the same place you would for a fairway wedge shot. That probably will be more toward your right foot than your left.

Exactly where is up to you. You have to experiment and find what works best. But be sure you aren't playing the ball too far forward in sand.

Ironically, it was Finley, the most wildly individualistic of owners, who gave Horlen a chance, after Horlen had been turned down by several teams short on pitching.

A's manager Dick Williams didn't claim Horlen because he was scared off, he says. He figured Horlen had a sore arm (he hasn't had a bad arm in years) or his knees were still troublesome. Surely, Williams thought, the White Sox wouldn't release Horlen only because he's 35 and carried a $50,000 a year salary.

"A healthy Horlen would help any major league team," said Williams. "He's an experienced, accomplished pitcher."

But then Williams watched Horlen pitch in workouts. He watched him run in the outfield. Horlen, thought Williams, is healthy. Williams signed Horlen.

Miller's office is investigating further into the Horlen-White Sox matter. Miller, if he has Horlen's sanction, wants to go on with it. He feels the issue of owners intimidating players is of major significance, not a one-shot problem with Horlen.

—And Horlen? "Right now," he says, "I'm just thinking about pitching. I've been putting on a baseball uniform for 20 years. I didn't want to take it off overnight. I want to take it off gradually."

Walt Frazier led the Knicks scoring with 31 and Earl Monroe, pressed into service at guard, finished with 16.

Iverson Wins

Shreveport Classic

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Don Iverson, a second-year pro from LaCross, Mich., fired his fourth consecutive two-under-par 69 Sunday to win the $5,000 first prize in the Shreveport Golf Classic.

Iverson, 26, finished with an eight-under-par 276, two strokes ahead of Rolf Deming, who led after the second round. Deming won $3,000.

Deming started the final round trailing Iverson by two strokes. He closed the gap to one shot when, playing in the two some ahead of Iverson, he birdied No. 16.

Iverson went back ahead by two strokes minutes later when he birdied the same hole. Both men parred the last two holes.

Although Iverson had won $11,000 on the tour earlier this year, he had never won a tournament as a pro.

Bettenhausen Drives 190 At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Gary Bettenhausen, a second-generation race driver, has posted the second 190 mile an hour speed of the season at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., driving a McLaren-Offenhauser hit one lap at 190.235 m.p.h. and another at 190.315 Sunday at the 2 1/2-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Bettenhausen was one of 24 drivers practicing for the two weekends of qualifications leading to the 500-mile race May 27.

David Pearson Wins Winston 500 Race

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP)—Bobby Isaac, as cool-headed as any driver around, ignored an official black flag in the Winston 500 Sunday and made a sizeable profit out of one of the wildest stock car races in years.

Isaac, 37, who quit school in the sixth grade to go racing, was leading a bumper-to-bumper duel on the lightning fast Alabama International Speedway with five laps to go when the black flag was displayed as the nose of his Dodge crossed the starter's line.

Officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing had detected the cap on his fuel tank dangling awkwardly as he raced around the 2.66-mile oval, and they displayed the traditional black flag ordering him to his pit for consultation.

Isaac, at the time, was leading the pack by about two car lengths over eventual winner David Pearson in a Mercury. Isaac ignored the flagman and went blithely on. Two laps from the finish, however, he ran up behind a slower car on the high-speed front stretch and was crowded against the wall. He bounced off and continued racing, but Pearson took advantage of the momentary lapse to drive by and go on to triumph by 4.9 seconds.

Isaac was fined $1,500 for ignoring the black flag, but was allowed to keep his second-place winnings of $13,895. Had he gone to his pit as directed, the best he could have done would have been fourth place for a payoff of $6,095—a loss of $7,800.

Pearson, a three-time NASCAR champion, earned $23,745

for his second victory since taking over the Wood Brothers Mercury from A. J. Foyt a month ago. He needed 3 hours, 53 minutes and 15 seconds to complete the 188 laps for an average speed of 134.400 miles per hour.

The race was slowed seven times by caution flags, and the race was stopped twice for a total of 30 minutes when light rain fell on portions of the course.

Even so, it was a hotly contested affair from the start and a record 71,400 spectators loved it.

Pearson, Isaac, Dodge-driving Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison, Richard Petty, Clifton "Coo Coo" Marlin and Fred Lorenzen swapped the lead 53 times as they battled at speeds over 185 m.p.h. during periods when the racing flag was displayed.

Chuck Thorpe Challenges Devlin

HOUSTON (AP)—Rookie Chuck Thorpe, with a day off to consider his challenging position and pamper his nervous stomach, went after his first pro victory today in the rain-delayed final round of the $125,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

"I feel real proud of myself, being only three shots away," said Thorpe, one of the few black players on the tour, after Sunday's scheduled final 18 holes were washed out by a steady day-long rain.

"If I get lucky, I can beat Mr. Bruce Devlin."

"I feel like I can win. I feel like it's my week to win."

The rangy, 6-foot-3 power hitter trailed the pace-setting Devlin by three strokes after 54 holes. Devlin, a 34-year-old Australian who now lives in Miami, has a three-round total of 206, 10 under par on the Westwood Country Club course. Young Hale Irwin was next in the chase for a $25,000 first prize with a 208 total.

Thorppe, the 25-year-old son of a greenskeeper in Roxboro,

N.C., was tied at 208-seven under par and three back of Devlin—with veteran Doug Sanders and tour regular Jack Ewing.

Most of the game's top stars, including Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Gary Player—decided to skip this event.

The rainout marked the second week in a row on the tour that officials had been forced to extend a tournament schedule to Monday in order to complete the regulation 72 holes.

Chi Chi Rodriguez won the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas last Monday after the first round of that tournament had been rained out.

Today's schedule called for a 9 a.m. start with threesomes going off both the first and 10th tees.

Sports Picnic Tuesday Night

The Spring Sports picnic, sponsored by the Pampa Booster Club, is scheduled for tomorrow night at 6:30 in Central Park.

It was erroneously reported in the Sunday paper that the picnic would be held tonight.

The picnic is held yearly to honor the participants in Harvester spring sports: track, baseball, golf, tennis and volleyball.

It was also reported that the public is invited to the picnic. The public is welcome to come by the park, but the picnic will be for the participants in sports and members of the Booster Club only.

Pacers Happy With Victory

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—After being down nearly the entire series against the Utah Stars, Indiana Pacers' Coach Bob Leonard couldn't help but be relieved after his team's 124-103 victory over the New York Nets Saturday.

The victory gave Indiana a 1-0 lead in the best-of-7 American Basketball Association championship playoff series. The second game will be played at Indianapolis Tuesday night.

Baseball Tips

2—Pitching

(Second of 10 Parts.)

Good control is the key to being a good pitcher:

Concentrate on every pitch. And immediately after delivery, get ready to be the fifth fielder.

Use a half windup; a full windup wastes motion and energy and doesn't help the speed of the ball. Pitch with the whole body, not just the arm.

Come off the rubber as hard as you can. Keep your eyes on the catcher's glove at all times. Work on control.

Harvesters Meet Amarillo

The Pampa Harvester baseball team finishes up its season this afternoon against the Amarillo Sandies at 2:00 in Optimist Park.

The game has no bearing on the district race, as Amarillo High was eliminated from contention last week.

The Harvesters need the victory to even their district record at 5-5.

Pampa's probable pitcher is Jeff Hogan, senior right-hander. Hogan's season pitching record is 6-4. The Sandies number-one pitcher is Dennis Ator.

27—Addressing Sand Shots

The sand shot is the easiest in golf—but only once you've mastered it. The average player has trouble with it.

I have noticed that most people play the ball too far forward in the stance from a sand trap. They play it up off their left heel, where they would play a driver or long-iron shot.

In sand, the ball needs to be struck with a descending blow. You don't want to try to scoop or lift the ball out.

I suggest that you position the ball the same place you would for a fairway wedge shot. That probably will be more toward your right foot than your left.

Exactly where is up to you. You have to experiment and find what works best. But be sure you aren't playing the ball too far forward in sand.

Hoover's Legacy Blots Criticism

By DON OAKLEY

If a man is to be judged by what he leaves behind him, few men have deserved better tributes from their fellow citizens than those paid to the memory of J. Edgar Hoover.

What he left behind is something he virtually created by himself and maintained over nearly half a century as one of the finest and most respected organizations of its kind in the world. The Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Any criticisms that have been or may be made against Hoover pale before this fact.

A short while before his death, Hoover wrote a letter to a reporter who had requested an interview. In it he stated that he did not feel it necessary to reply to his critics. Every year, he said, he went before Congress to report on the past year's activities of the FBI and to present his budget for the coming year. He was content to let the record speak for itself.

That record was never having any budget request denied or whittled down, never having to explain a scandal or failure of performance by the FBI.

John Edgar Hoover's personal career statistics are equally impressive. As a young law school graduate of 22, he joined the Justice Department in 1917. In 1924, he took over the FBI's predecessor bureau, one which was indeed subject to charges of ineptness and inefficiency. He set high standards for the FBI from the beginning and never tolerated any departure from them.

Hoover achieved fame as the nation's "top cop"—although the FBI is not and never was a police organization—in the 1920s and 1930s fighting the likes of John Dillinger and Baby Face Nelson and other vicious characters spawned by Prohibition and the Depression.

Millions of kids idolized this man of the stern, bulldog visage and dreamed of being G-men. Perhaps the FBI's greatest triumph was the rounding up of submarine-landed saboteurs and the complete smashing of Nazi espionage in this country during World War II.

Hoover's total government service spanned 55 years, that as director of the FBI 48 years under 16 attorneys general and eight presidents, the last two of whom saw fit to waive mandatory retirement age in his case. No successor will ever equal this.

In recent years, as he grew old and perhaps too convinced of his own indispensability.

Hoover's image became somewhat tarnished. It was said that the FBI ignored organized crime, that Hoover saw too many Communists under too many beds, that he had too keen an interest in the private affairs of prominent people.

It was whispered that he had a dossier on every official in Washington, which was why no one dared oppose him, either in the White House or on Capitol Hill.

But one thing no one has ever been able to charge against the FBI is that it ever played fast and loose with the constitutional rights of Americans. Long before certain Supreme Court decisions, which some claim have "handcuffed" law enforcement, the FBI observed the rights of a suspect against self-incrimination and to be represented by an attorney.

The FBI deals in evidence, meticulously gathered, not the confession tactics of a Gestapo or N.K.V.D.

It is no disrespect to Hoover to say that he left public service in the only way he would have agreed to, had he the choice—still in harness and in full command of the FBI, departing life suddenly to the grief of his admirers and the consternation of those who would have taken pleasure in seeing him put out to pasture.

One of J. Edgar Hoover's last statements was this: "I have a philosophy. You are honored by your friends and you are distinguished by your enemies. I have been very distinguished."

Now he is nothing but honored.

There were 86 commercial banks in the United States with deposits of more than $1 billion on Dec. 31, 1971. The first bank chartered by Congress was the Bank of North America in Philadelphia, which began business in 1782 with a total capital of $400,000. The World Almanac recalls.

On the other hand, organizational and factional problems muddy the situation in Ohio and New Jersey, and draw them down as prospects. Pennsylvania and Michigan, two other big states won by Humphrey in 1968, are still not seen as hopeful for Nixon.

No GOP realist is making giddy claims for Nixon in any of the promising big states. But the important thing is that so many are, at this stage, considered winnable.

Great tests are ahead for the determination of the Saigon government and its people. If they can prove their mettle by stopping the onslaught from the North, they will have inflicted a decisive blow to the aspirations of the communist aggressors. And they will have strengthened our hand in the field of world politics. Victory by the people of South Vietnam will show that we have done a good job in equipping them for the tasks of defense and preparing them for self autonomy. The critics at home will not be silenced but a victory by our allies will diminish the basis of their arguments.

Regardless of the rantings of the liberals in the United States we must continue with some support of Saigon. Too many American men have died in combat and are being held in prison camps for us to cave in now.

GOP Happy Over Dems' Confusion

By BRUCE BLOSSAT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.

(NEA)—Thought the Vietnam war's new phase worries them. Republican governors are of surprisingly good cheer these days about President Nixon's reelection chances.

They don't like the uncertainty the stepped-up combat introduces into the situation, and they wish it would end quickly.

Yet a good many governors and their accompanying analysts are taking heart from the confusion afflicting the Democrats as the latter move to choose a 1972 nominee.

They think the chaos automatically damages the Democratic cause, not least because some of the contenders are beginning to take fairly hard shots at each other. It suggests to some Republicans that the Democrats really can't find the big issue.

The elderly Alf Landon, 1936 GOP nominee, summed up this attitude recently in a note to a friend. He said the Democrats' behavior reminded him of an old farm saying:

"When the trough is empty, the horses bite each other."

An aide to Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie found it especially comforting that Sen. Edmund Muskie has been sidelined by primary defeats. The man said flatly that Muskie would have been the toughest opponent for Nixon next fall.

A veteran GOP analyst supported that judgment, expressing bewilderment over what has happened to the Democratic contender the Republicans seem to fear the most.

But it is not only the new war situation that causes a few governors to lace their optimism with caution. Michigan Gov. William Milliken is among those who think the voters' mood of protest which is upsetting the Democratic picture may have important lessons for the Republicans.

The question was put neatly by an observer:

"What happens when Richard M. Nixon runs into the mood of protest?"

Nobody, of course, has the faintest idea, but it is an unsettling thought in some Republican circles.

It hasn't dimmed the general good cheer among the governors because most can't quite believe, at this time that either Sen. George McGovern or Sen. Hubert Humphrey would be as tough as Muskie to beat. They have the idea that a McGovern nomination would thrust Democratic conservatives into the GOP camp, and that a Humphrey nomination would cause leftist Democrats to stay home or mount a minor party effort.

Right now, in the big states, the Nixon prospect is deemed by one expert to be good and rising in Illinois, excellent in Texas, tough but fairly good in California, a little less promising but still hopeful in Ohio and New Jersey, better than in 1968 in New York. Nixon won all of these last time except Texas and New York.

Texas is said to be so good for him that he could perhaps win it even if Gov. George Wallace made it a three-way race. New York is better because Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and other top party figures are already well organized for Nixon, and moving, which could not be said in 1968.

On the other hand, organizational and factional problems muddy the situation in Ohio and New Jersey, and draw them down as prospects. Pennsylvania and Michigan, two other big states won by Humphrey in 1968, are still not seen as hopeful for Nixon.

No GOP realist is making giddy claims for Nixon in any of the promising big states. But the important thing is that so many are, at this stage, considered winnable.

How You Going to Get 'Em Back on the Farm?

Paul Harvey News The World Is Jigsaw Puzzle of Many Parts

By PAUL HARVEY

Next President Nixon goes to Moscow. The axiom, "East is East and West is West," is outdated now. In 1972, for better or worse, the world is a triangle.

The unpronounceable president of the Sudan in Africa, Maj. Gen. Jafar Numeiri, says his relations with Russia are "very bad." Last April he signed a deal with Moscow whereby they were to provide him with guns. Now, he says, "They want to run my country."

He wanted aid, not domination. He wanted a hand-up with no strings. So now he says the Sudanese equivalent of "nuts to them," says he'll manage without Soviet weapons.

In one African country after another, the Communists have been thrown out. Both Russian Communists and Red Chinese.

What I'm saying is that Communists, who would dominate the world if they could, can't.

The appetite for national identification is everywhere. Leaders in Africa, as elsewhere, have discovered that home folk want a home-flown flag they can salute, a home-grown government they can respect.

They do not want domination by Moscow or Peking any more than I for Chiang Kai-shek, but one cannot honestly oppose American involvement in Indochina and favor it in China.

Americans, whose reach has exceeded their grasp, are reverting to their own enlightened self-interest.

And during the inevitable reshuffle of the Third World, we will serve both them and ourselves better with trade rather than aid and by minding our own business so well that we may again be a worthy example for emerging nations.

While it is true that this commonly occurs as a result of hiatal hernia, it can also occur if a portion of the esophagus extends below the diaphragm. This affects the normal closure of the opening of the stomach and allows regurgitation of acid juices from the stomach into the lower esophagus, which in this case might be below the diaphragm. The lower lining of the esophagus is sensitive to the burning characteristic of acid juice from the stomach. It is possible that this could be associated with being short-waisted.

Regurgitation of the stomach's contents can occur whenever there is any form of disturbance of the normal closure mechanism at the entrance of the stomach.

Now there are a lot of other reasons for waking up with indigestion at night, even including a heart attack, but inasmuch as you say you have had this for years and had it investigated several times, recurring attacks of this sort would be less likely to be caused by heart attacks. Spasm of the esophagus can also cause it.

Since you state that these occur at night, and don't refer to them occurring at other times, I would think it may be the reflux problem very similar to hiatal hernia. In that case the best treatment would be essentially the same things recommended for hiatal hernia. That includes small meals and preferably nothing to eat for about two hours before you go to bed. If you continued to have trouble, it would be well to have the head of the bed elevated.

Be careful not to eat anything after a set time in the evening. Don't drink anything to stimulate acid production. You could try these simple measures at first and if you are still having discomfort take some anti-acid tablets before going to bed.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

A Burning from Stomach Acid

Dear Dr Lamb—What could be the reason for an attack of acute indigestion causing nausea which will wake one from a sound sleep in the middle of the night? All of the discomfort seems to be in the esophagus. I am 45 and have had this problem for years. I have been checked out with X rays several times and no real cause is found. I am short-waisted. Could this contribute to my problem? Several weeks ago I had an attack of severe chest pain and the doctor put me through all the tests in the hospital. He found nothing except that my stomach hits the diaphragm though did not cause hiatal hernia. What are the main causes of such an attack and treatment? What are the precautions against another attack?

Dear Reader—It is very difficult to know exactly what you had on the little amount of information available. You say that you have had acute acid indigestion with nausea. I presume this means the kind of discomfort you could have if you had a regurgitation of the acid contents of the stomach to the lower part of the esophagus.

While it is true that this commonly occurs as a result of hiatal hernia, it can also occur if a portion of the esophagus extends below the diaphragm. This affects the normal closure of the opening of the stomach and allows regurgitation of acid juices from the stomach into the lower esophagus, which in this case might be below the diaphragm. Stennis Committee to Hold Hearings On Survivors' Benefits Bill—Maybe

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—At long last there is a little good legislative news for the nearly one million retirees and their families throughout the country.

The Senate Armed Services Committee will hold hearings on the survivors' benefits bill, which has been gathering dust in a pigeonhole there since being unanimously approved by the House last October.

At least that's what committee chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., says.

He doesn't say when these long-overdue hearings will take place. On that Stennis is silent—as he was for more than six months on the measure itself. But at least he is now on record as asserting there will be hearings on the survivors' benefits bill this session.

That's a little progress anyway, a slight, encouraging rift in the dense fog of uncertainty and doubt which has engulfed this important legislation in the Senate Armed Service Committee for so long.

At best it's unlikely these hearings will be conducted before next month—and most probably later.

Reason is that Stennis and the committee are preoccupied with the huge multi-billion-dollar military procurement authorization measure. That is top-priority legislation, and with Stennis and all but one committeeman distinctly casual about the military retirees' survivors' benefits bill, they are not going to put themselves out to give it consideration.

Presumably, so says Stennis, they will in due time, but not before then—whenever that is. Certainly it won't be before the procurement measure is disposed of, and that's impossible to predict. The way Stennis and the committee function, it could be several weeks—or several months.

Long Battle The exception on the committee is Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Of the 9 Democratic and 7 Republican committeemen, Goldwater alone has been earnestly and vigorously exerting himself in trying to get action on this long-stalled veterans legislation—which if it ever reaches the Senate is absolutely certain to be approved just as expeditiously and overwhelmingly as it was by the House last October.

The House passed the bill after one hour's discussion by a vote of 372 to 0.

After trying repeatedly to get Armed Services Committee consideration of the survivors' benefits bill, Goldwater has served notice on Sen. Stennis that if the committee doesn't act on the measure he will offer it as an amendment to the military procurement bill.

That is possible in the Senate which doesn't have a "germane" rule—as the House does.

Goldwater isn't kidding. He is deadly serious and Stennis knows it.

That may well have been the impelling factor in his finally going on record as saying there will be hearings.

Stennis did that in a letter to Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.), chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee that drafted the pending legislation after a year and a half of deliberation. It took Stennis more than a month to get around to writing that letter—which was in reply to an unusual joint letter written him by Pike and Rep. Charles Gubser (R-Cal.), co-author of the bill.

They resorted to this exceptional step because of growing concern over the fate of the legislation—which appeared to be "dying on a vine" in a pigeonhole in Stennis's committee.

While the two Congressmen were most polite and discreet, their letter made it evident they were extremely uneasy over the prolonged stalling on the measure.

In Stennis's stiffly formal answer, addressed to Pike, he says there will be hearings after the multi-billion-dollar procurement bill is out of the way. And that's all.

It's not much, but meager as this assurance is it is something. Up to now, there had been nothing but foreboding silence and stalling.

More Loot There is a lot more than meets the eye in that little noticed bill passed by the House last week hiking the government's share of the cost of Federal employees' health insurance premiums from 40 to 75 per cent over a period of five years.

Cumulative cost to taxpayers of this increase will be around $2.5 billion.

And that isn't all. There is a hidden joker in this giant treasury raid: the legislation is so written as also to apply to members of Congress.

In other words, in this measure approved 197 to 148, the lawmakers, in effect, voted themselves a nice little raise—to the $42,500 salary they already get plus another $250,000 in numerous perquisites and benefits.

In the long floor debate over the bill, not one word was said about this significant fact. To be sure, there was some guarded talk about it in the cloak rooms and lobbies, but utterly nothing on the floor where everything said is recorded. There the subject was wholly shunned—with one fleeting exception.

This was an attempt by Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) to bring it up just before the final rollcall vote.

A leading economy advocate, the veteran legislator was against the bill on the ground of its heavy cost and inflationary effect. He contended "it is not only unwarranted because of the nation's desperate financial plight, but also because employees in private industry will demand higher health benefit contributions from employers who in turn must increase the prices of their products to cover the increased costs of production."

To obtain the floor to offer an amendment to exclude members of Congress, Gross asked the presiding officer, "Am I correct in assuming that members of Congress are covered under the provisions of this bill?"

It was a futile move. Quick as a flash, Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okl.) cut Gross off saying, "The chair will state that it is not a parliamentary inquiry"—and then immediately called for the yeas and nays. That was the end of that.

New Books In Library

The following new books have been added to the Texas Collection:

The Randy Matson Story—the life and athletic career of history's greatest shot putter and one of Pampa's own.

Diamond Bessie and the Shepherds—folklore of Texas, including a story on the dust storm of Easter, 1935 by Miss Sylvia Grider, a Pampa girl.

Dallas Stouendmire—an El Paso marshal.

John Hemphill—first Chief Justice of the state of Texas.

The History of Nacogdoches County, Texas

Texas Under a Cloud—story of the Texas stock fraud scandal.

Trial—William Harrington: a gripping, unforgettable novel, full of strong intrigue, among them, murder and the police work that solves it, the morality of capital punishment, and a dramatic trial in a racially prejudiced town.

A Bad Conscience—Jan Hoffman: a man finds himself trapped in the fine mesh of his own lies, and eventually becomes a wanted criminal.

Folio Forty-One—Michael Sinclair: contains the file on the Norsemen, a rapidly rising political group that may or may not be dedicated to the overthrow of the British Government, and the detective assigned to investigate it.

The Trial of Judas Wiley—Lewis B. Batten: a western involving a cattle baron's family and their impact on the small town and the court of justice.

The Doctor's Second Love—Elizabeth Seifert: once again the author takes her readers behind the scenes of a great hospital, giving a realistic picture of its bitter power struggles as well as its contributions to a changing world.

A Woman of Feeling—Violet Weingarten: a charming and moving portrait of that much maligned woman, the middle-class, middle-aged liberal lady, trying to understand her "now generation" children through her memory of her own past.

Gem Weight
Original meaning of the term "carat," used in weighing gems, was "bean" or "seed." The seeds of carob trees were once used as weights for precious stones, which are described as being of so many "beans weight" or "carats."

NO OBLIGATION OR PURCHASE NECESSARY: There is no obligation or purchase necessary. A copy of the paper is available for playing the game at the office of this newspaper - also at the public library - also a Bingo card and/or copies of The Pampa Daily News containing the Bingo numbers may be obtained by mailing your request to this newspaper (please print your name and address clearly.). You may play as many cards as you wish - they are free. Get additional cards - one at a time - each day of the week - from the merchants listed below (ADULTS ONLY).

DIFFERENT COLORED CARDS EACH WEEK: The color of the cards changes each week. To be a winner, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week. Mutilated or altered cards will not be honored. ALL 24 NUMBERS on a card must be matched to win.

CHANCE DETERMINES NUMBERS: Bingo numbers for each week's game are drawn strictly at random at the office of this newspaper. Some duplication of Bingo numbers may appear in the merchants' ads - or elsewhere in the paper. This duplication does not affect the game or the total numbers drawn. All numbers for each week's game will appear someplace in the sponsoring merchants' ads - and possibly elsewhere in the paper. Employees of this newspaper and members of their families are not eligible to win any of the prizes. Newspaper Bingo is a program copy-righted and registered by Marketing-Research Associates, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

PICK UP FREE BINGO CARDS: Each week (adults only, please), pick up your Free Bingo Cards from the sponsoring merchants listed below. Rules of the game allow the merchants to give you only one card on each store visit. You may, however, make as many visits as you wish each day of the week. THE MORE CARDS YOU PLAY-THE BETTER YOUR CHANCES ARE TO WIN.

HOW TO PLAY: Check the ads in EACH DAY'S issue of The Pampa Daily News. The ads of the merchants listed below will contain one or more "Newspaper Bingo" numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol (shown above). Occasionally, numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol may be found elsewhere in the paper. Check the classified ad section for additional numbers. IF YOU CAN MATCH (JUST CIRCLE OR "X" THE MATCHING NUMBERS) ALL 24 NUMBERS ON ONE OF YOUR BINGO CARDS WITH THE TOTAL OF THE NUMBERS PUBLISHED IN ALL THE ISSUES OF The Pampa Daily News, EACH WEEK-YOU HAVE A "BINGO"-AND YOU ARE A WINNER!!!

AT LEAST $50.00 WEEKLY! Winners will share a weekly prize of $50.00 (in "Bingo Bucks"- they spend the same as cash with any of the sponsoring merchants listed below). If there is only one winner, he wins all of the $50.00. If there is more than one winner, all winners will share the $50.00 equally. If there are no winners any week, the $50.00 weekly prize will be added to the following week's prize fund.

CHECK EACH ISSUE OF THE PAPER: A new game will start each Sunday and be completed the following Friday. Be sure to check each day's issue of The Pampa Daily News because some of the numbers may appear in each day's issue. All numbers needed to complete each week's game will have appeared by each Friday's issue. A new set of Bingo numbers will be published for each week's game. A new color of Bingo cards will be available each week at the sponsoring merchants' stores. To be eligible to win, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week's game. The color of the cards for each week's game will be announced each week on this page.

IF YOU ARE A WINNER: If you have a winning Bingo card, on which ALL 24 NUMBERS have been matched with the total of the numbers published during the week in The Pampa Daily News print your name, address, phone number, and the name of the store where you got your winning card, on the back of your card and mail to: The Pampa Daily News, P.
