Angola Could Become 'Another Vietnam'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warning against "another Vietnam," Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today Congress should demand an explanation of secret U.S. arms aid to Angola from the secretary of state and CIA director.

He called for Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the issue, and said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and William Colby, the CIA chief, should be called to testify.

"We do not want another United States involvement as in Vietnam," Mansfield told reporters, "and the Congress has every right to know what we're doing there."

"We'd better get an explanation about why $25 million has been spent by the United States in military aid to Angola and why we're going to spend another $25 million," he said.

Some other members of Congress also were clearly angered by weekend news reports that the United States was aiding two Angola guerrilla groups.

Although foreign affairs committees apparently were informed to some extent, other congressional leaders had not been. House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said he said the civil war in central Africa is one of the most serious problems

Congress faces this week, as it tries to wind up for Christmas recess.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said he was concerned a U.S. commitment for arms aid could trap America in a Vietnam-style conflict in Angola.

Clark, who heads the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on African affairs, told reporters the United States apparently has provided only dollars — and no people — so far to two Angola factions which oppose the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Clark said he was not free to specify how much aid has been given, but noted that U.N. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan had confirmed Sunday that Washington is funneling $50 million through neighboring Zaire to anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

"I'm inclined to think it may be somewhat greater than that," said Clark.

Clark, interviewed on CBS Morning News, said he expects to see passage Tuesday of an amendment he introduced, which would prohibit sending military equipment to Angola without congressional approval.

"I think that there are no people involved," he said. "There are indications that we do have some pilots going down in there delivering material and some pilots going down for reconnaissance purposes, but I don't think there are any advisers there. I don't think its gone that far yet."

Clark said there is a clear division within the administration and within the Forty Committee on the Angola issue.

O'Neill said sentiment in Congress opposed American involvement.

"I know the feeling of the Congress is, no troops, no advisers, no Americans whatsoever. I can assure you, will be sent to Angola," O'Neill said Sunday in response to reports the CIA secretly sent $25 million worth of U.S. arms and has an equal shipment on the way to help combat a Soviet-supported faction.

Appearing on a network panel show (NBC "Meet the Press"), O'Neill said the younger members of the House are "appalled" at U.S. involvement and that sending any Americans to the former Portuguese colony "is not the will of the Congress of the United States."

He said Congress is "tremendously upset," though apparently members of key committees were briefed by administration officials in recent months. O'Neill said Congress wants to know — "and they are going to find out within this week" — how the decision to send aid was made.

Members of Congress interviewed by UPI during the weekend expressed fear the Angola situation could lead the United States into a Vietnam-style war or even direct confrontation with the Soviets.

"The Angolan situation has all the potential for embroiling us in another escalating and interminable conflict on the order of a Laos or, at worst, another Vietnam," said Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash.

Just Around the Corner

Christmas is just a few days away and youngsters are making their wishes known by writing Santa at the North Pole or visiting one of his many helpers in person. Leigh Ellen Osborne, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Osborne, appears to be a bit apprehensive about talking to the "Jolly Old Elf," but communications no doubt were sufficient to insure a smile or two on the morning of the 25th.

Compromise Wanted In Tax Bill Deadlock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today Democrats remain confident they can override a presidential veto of the tax cut extension bill, but said he preferred to break the impasse with President Ford through compromise.

Mansfield said he could support a sense of the Congress resolution, reportedly being drawn up by Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., in which Congress would declare its intention to hold down spending in the next fiscal year budget.

But Ford has vowed to veto a simple six-month extension of this year's tax cuts unless it is accompanied by a firm spending ceiling for fiscal 1977. The bill is to be taken up in the Senate today.

"I hope it will be possible to achieve a compromise," Mansfield said. "There's no reason why it could not be worked out among reasonable people."

Mansfield said he could support a nonbinding "sense of the Congress" resolution to hold down spending, but it was doubtful whether Ford would accept it as an alternative to a binding pledge.

Mansfield said the tax bill would probably go to Ford by Wednesday and added that he will personally ask Ford to act immediately so that if he vetoes it, Congress can vote to override before adjournment by the end of the week.

"I think the President has a good proposal," Mansfield said. "I just think he's going about it the wrong way."

"I believe we will override his veto," House majority leader Thomas P. O'Neill said Sunday. Asked on a network panel show (NBC "Meet the Press") why Ford would veto a tax cut, O'Neill suggested politics.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, head of the Senate budget committee, suggested another reason. He said Ford may not understand details of Congress' own budget system, under which a final figure based on the administration's proposal and Congress' own goals is drawn up by May 15, before any money has been appropriated.

"I had an opportunity to discuss this with him for two hours in the Cabinet room of the White House the other night," Muskie said, "and it was quite clear from several points I made that there were points that were new to him."

Work Begins On Sewage Plant

Excavation work for the first phase of Pampa's new $12 million sewage treatment plant was started today.

City Manager Mack Wofford said preliminary layout work was begun last week by the E.D. Baker Co., Borgerr sub-contractor.

Bulldozers and scrapers were on the job this morning to move 30,000 yards of dirt in preparation for building oxidation ditch forms.

The plant will be brought up to date to meet requirements of the federal Environmental Protection Agency and Texas Water Quality Board.

General contractor for the project is the Wes Tex Construction Co. of Borgerr, low bidder among five firms that submitted bids last Oct. 24.

First Loss

Groom's first loss of the season was one of the most heartbreaking for a Tiger team in years. Big Sandy whipped Groom 28-2 for the Class B state championship Saturday in Jacksboro. After the game, Groom senior Jay Witt, 51, finds it hard to shake off the loss. Tiger fans and cheerleader Julie Ledwig, right, watch the action during the game and their expressions tell the story. There was some consolation in the fact that Groom was one of only two teams still alive in the state playoffs.

Soviets Tell 5-year Plan

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's economic blueprint for the next five years calls for an increase in trade with the West but little relief for the hard-pressed Soviet consumer.

The new five-year plan also contains lower production quotas in virtually every sector but grain.

Soviet newspapers published the six-page set of goals for the 1976-80 plan Sunday.

There was no opportunity for public debate of the plan, which was approved by a secret session of the Communist party central committee earlier this month.

The document will be presented to the party's 25th congress in February and then become law.

The directives show that Soviet planners aim at steadily expanding trade with the United States and other Western countries — a sign that the Kremlin is contemplating no major changes in its detente policy by 1980.

The five-year plan just ending emphasizes foreign trade with Communist bloc countries. But the Soviets are now obviously in the market for Western technology to solve their industrial and economic problems.

The new plan calls for an increase in foreign trade of 30 to 35 per cent, one of the few figures not reduced from previous years.

Industrial production targets were set lower than in the current plan, with a new emphasis on better quality — probably to increase Soviet competitiveness on world markets.

The new plan calls for industrial production to increase by 35 to 39 per cent, compared with 42 to 46 per cent in the current plan.

Average annual grain production during the next five years was set at 215-220 million tons, a major increase over the average 180 million tons produced during the last plan.

Only an estimated 137 million tons were harvested this year in the country's worst agricultural disaster in more than a decade.

The consumer was again given low priority and taking into account population increases is not likely to have a greatly improved standard of living.

Production of consumer goods was planned to increase by only 30 to 32 per cent against the previous 44 to 48 per cent.

The average monthly wage at the end of the plan in 1980 will be $238, even though many products cost as much or more than in the West.

Officers To Patrol Holiday Driving Habits

Law enforcement within the city is being stepped up today under the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program in an effort to keep accidents and crime down during the holiday season.

In announcing the locations to be worked under the program this week, Sgt. Charles Morris, coordinator, said during the holiday season, STEP officers will concentrate enforcement efforts in the downtown area due to an anticipated heavy traffic increase.

Officers will be issuing summons for the following hazardous violations: unsafe backing, failure to grant right of way, impeding traffic, illegal turns, signal light violations and unsafe lane usage," Sgt. Morris explained.

He added that the largest number of accidents in Pampa occur in the areas where law enforcement is added. Most involve unsafe backing violations, he said.

Locations for the week include: Monday from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. — Cuyler Street from 300 South to 300 North; Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at same location; Wednesday 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.; 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Officers will be checking for driving while intoxicated offenses on U.S. 60 from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. Friday.

The Saturday extra schedule includes Cuyler Street from 1 to 5 p.m. and U.S. 60 from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m.

The expenses of the stepped up law enforcement this year will be covered by a $17,012.29 grant from the Governor's Commission on Traffic Safety to the City of Pampa.

The grant money was announced in October with Pampa cited as the smallest city in the state to receive such grant.

The money will go to reimburse the city for every expense in the program.

Police Chief Richard Mills said Christmas week schedules will be released later.

Two major problems confronting the Pampa Police Department are a high accident rate and a large number of driving while intoxicated offenses. Mills said Under the STEP program officers hope to reduce accidents by 20 per cent and to increase DWI arrests.

The aim of the STEP program is not increased tickets, but a decrease in accidents and to make the streets safer for motorists. Mills emphasized "it is not a secret game."

Defense Budget May Be Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has been meeting with the Pentagon hierarchy to discuss next year's defense budget, which he is reported to be ready to cut by $5 billion.

Ford met Saturday with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and other top officials to hear their arguments against the reported cuts, and planned to meet with Rumsfeld again this morning for the third time since Friday.

Pentagon sources have said the spending reductions were proposed last month by Budget Director James T. Lynn and Ford has decided tentatively to recommend the cuts in a message to Congress next month.

The president, according to published reports not denied by the White House, will propose a budget of $110 billion rather than $116.5 billion for the 1977 fiscal year starting next Oct. 1.

Former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger sharply opposed defense cuts and after a meeting with Ford on the subject last month was fired. In a magazine article this week U.S. News & World Report, Schlesinger warned that unless the United States strengthens its military power, the Russians will have a "strategic edge" by 1980.

Ozone Scare Based On Theory, Not Facts

An anti-business, anti-growth mentality is busily at work across the length and breadth of the land. Making use of unproved theories, rather than hard scientific facts, and working through lobbying pressure groups, that mentality has effectively stopped or drastically curtailed production of additional energy this nation critically needs, disrupted one industry after another, and pushed through thousands of laws and regulations which act to inhibit our individual freedom.

The cranberry scare, the mercury in fish hysteria, the ban on DDT and other pesticides, the banning of cyclamates, the campaign to hold up the Alaskan pipeline, the concerted efforts to stop offshore oil drilling and the mining of western coal, the drive to stop or slow down construction of nuclear energy plants, are all cases in point.
Latest of these scare tactics to make the headlines is the claim that "fluorocarbons" (the propellant used in aerosol sprays and the chemical used in refrigerators and air-conditioning systems primarily) are destroying the ozone shield that protects us from ultra violet rays from the sun. Cognizant of the damage such campaigns have done to other industries in the past, concerned members of the aerosol industry, in cooperation with the Manufacturing Chemists Association, have launched a $5 million multi-faceted, three-year global study in an effort to separate fact from fiction.

"Hopefully," according to a bulletin published by the Western Aerosol Information Bureau of Beverly Hills, California, "these tests will give the answer as to whether factors would support or disprove a disturbing theory put forth by (some) scientists last year."

Since every theory, whether scientific or social, attracts people who equate theory with fact and demand immediate remedies, the bulletin went on to explain, attempts are being made to introduce legislation that would ban the use of fluorocarbons; this despite the fact that industry scientists have consistently pointed out that "to little is yet known about the various layers of swirling gases which envelop our globe, to draw any true picture or conclusions now."

Direct evidence for or against the theory has yet to be obtained by in-depth testing," the bulletin went on at greater length, "but most scientists deem the risk involved in taking time to gather this evidence is small since the target date for obtaining this critical data is barely more than two years away and increased exposure to ultra violet sunlight would be less than many people incur during sunbathing."

If, on the other hand, the scaremongers are successful in getting a premature ban imposed on the use of fluorocarbons, the bulletin warned, "it would completely disrupt an $8 billion industry employing more than 1,100,000 Americans."

As Patrick McCurdy, a McGraw-Hill editor wrote on the subject, "In short, we're talking about a basically unknown effect on a little understood phenomenon brought on by a debatable cause. And yet a number of people have set in motion what amounts to a star chamber proceeding to ban a product before anything like a clear-cut case has been made against it."

All In The Name

Did you know that federal agencies require assorted forms, reports and paperwork amounting to more than 10 billion sheets of paper per year? That the cost to the American economy for this mountain of pulp comes to some $40 billion annually?

Who said so? Why, the Commission on Federal Paperwork, which recently sent out a two-page press release on the subject to Lord knows how many American newspaper editors. The commission is meeting this week in San Francisco, 3,000 miles from its official Washington residence, in order to assess the "actual extent of the burden imposed by Federal reporting."

The press release further informs us that the Commission on Federal Paperwork was established by Congress and began its activities on Oct. 3, 1975. It is composed of fourteen members, whose names and illustrious titles are listed on the second sheet of said release — handy, no doubt, so that newspapermen won't need to commit the names to memory.
We have it right there on paper — beautiful, white, mimeographed, blessing-to-the-forest-industry, tax-supported paper. Which is what the commission — need we say it? — was enacted to do. Well, maybe it wasn't supposed to fight it. Maybe the Commission on Federal Paperwork was formed to commit federal paperwork, after all.

Federal Insurance Not Answer

By RICHARD L. LESCHER
WASHINGTON — The largest single supplier to General Motors Corporation is not U.S. Steel, as you might suspect, but rather Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which provides health insurance for many of the industrial giant's employees. And if all the separate Blue Cross - Blue Shield plans covering GM employees were combined, they would be in first place, Metropolitan Life a distant second, and U.S. Steel a remote third.

Those startling facts illustrate why American businesses are trying hard to find better ways to provide good health care at reasonable cost.

Does that mean a government health insurance program, as some have suggested? It might. But we have to be very careful what kind of government program. Just throwing money at the problem is not only not a solution, it may well be compounding the trouble. Medical costs have risen twice as fast as the rate of inflation since 1950. Such an outcome is inevitable when the money available to pay for a product or service is increased faster than the supply of that product or service.

Somehow, we have got to find a way to insure that no one suffers from lack of needed medical attention, while the total cost of the health care system remains affordable.

We already live in a society in which nine out of 10 people are covered by some form of health insurance. The near universality of this coverage has tended to make physicians, patients and hospitals careless about costs. ("Don't worry about the bill, the insurance company will pay for it.")

There are a number of other factors contributing to the steep rise in medical care costs:

PRESTIGE. Hospitals often buy costly equipment that is used infrequently. It's the medical equivalent of keeping up with the Joneses. Good regional or metropolitan-area health care planning can insure that all necessary services are available, while preventing wasteful duplication.

MANPOWER. Several problems here. Physicians tend to be in oversupply in wealthy, metropolitan areas, and hard to find in rural areas and urban slums. There are also too many physicians in some specialties, not enough in others. And finally, we now use the highly trained, expensive physician to do work that could safely be delegated to lower-cost technicians.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE. It is a lot cheaper to keep a person well than to cure him after he's sick. But as things are now organized, most health insurance plans pay only for the treatment of sickness or injury. Also, most plans pay only for hospital care, which creates an incentive to use hospital facilities for things that could be done in a doctor's office. One answer is modification of existing insurance plans. Another is the "health maintenance organization," which agrees to treat whatever ails you for a flat monthly fee.

FINANCIAL INCENTIVES. Nonprofit hospitals have little incentive to watch costs — they just pass them all along in their bills. Most medical services make money only when the patient is ill. There's no financial incentive to maintain good health. One of the biggest advantages of the HMO concept is that these organizations have a financial incentive to keep you well and to treat you adequately at the lowest possible cost if you do become sick.

PEER REVIEW. The quality of care provided and the utilization of health care facilities should be monitored by special committees of physicians. It is understandably — a responsibility that physicians dislike. But it should be clear by now that unless the medical profession does an adequate job of policing itself, someone else less qualified will do it.

DEFENSIVE MEDICINE. Physicians are keeping patients in hospitals longer than necessary and ordering many needless tests to cover themselves in case of a malpractice suit. These practices add to costs, as does the soaring cost of malpractice insurance. This issue is so complex and thorny that it is probably best to see what comes of the various experiments underway in individual states before trying to adopt a national policy. In any case, state law governs most malpractice matters.

As you can see, there is no single "solution" to our health care problems.

JURORS' NAMES Withheld in Connally Case

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — In action unprecedented in federal court, U.S. District Judge George Hart continues to not reveal the jurors who acquitted former Treasury Secretary John Connally of bribery charges.

Although the trial ended nine months ago, Hart feels the secrecy should be continued so the jurors will not be harassed by the press about the verdict.

"I would never impose a secrecy on the names of jurors in any cases involving gangsters or labor racketeers, or in any other case where I believed there was a possibility of a jury fix," Hart said.

"Even in this case, if anyone came to me with any evidence of a jury fix, I would make the names of the jurors public. However, with Governor Connally as the defendant, represented by Mr. (Edward Bennett) Williams, a distinguished member of the bar, I think that any improper actions would be highly unlikely."

Hart does not know of any other judge — state or federal — who has put such a cloak of secrecy around a jury.

"I've talked to a lot of jurors after they have returned their verdicts, and they usually express appreciation for the fact that they are referred to only by number in the courtroom, because they are often fearful of retaliation by the defendant or friend of the defendant," Hart said.

Hart conceded that "due process of law" requires that the defendant in each criminal case be given the names, age, employment, and background of each of the jury members, and that keeping the names publicly secret does not lessen the possibility of retaliatory acts from an enraged defendant.

Hart said jurors in the Connally case did not ask for the secrecy, but "when the trial was over, a number of them told me that they appreciated that their names had not been released."

More judges may be imposing secrecy on jury lists, Hart said, noting that many of his colleagues have become aware of juror fears of retaliation by defendants and heckling by the press.
Hart said that at the present time the names of federal grand jury members are frequently kept secret "to avoid retaliations by those who are indicted," and when they return the indictments "they are identified only by number" when they appear in open court.
Hart claims to have taken those procedures "only one step further" in imposing secrecy on a list of petit jurors in the Connally case.

The judge conceded this "probably eliminates one of the safeguards" against a jury fix, but he felt conditions in the Connally trial were such that he could do without the safeguard he believes would be essential in a case of someone like former Teamster President James R. Hoffa.

Hoffa, now missing and believed dead, was convicted of conspiring to bribe a federal jury in Nashville, and one of Hoffa's lawyers and one of his associates were convicted of attempted jury tampering in the trial in Chattanooga where Hoffa was eventually convicted.

Hart recognizes that jury fixing is a constant problem "with certain types of lawyers and defendants. He said he would have removed the secrecy from the jury list "if there was any hint of anything wrong" or "if the verdict had been at odds with the evidence as I viewed it."

Sensing the News N.Y. Scandal Needs Grand Jury Action

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Though President Ford has allowed New York City to escape formal bankruptcy proceedings, the Justice Department should not permit the city's politicians to escape scrutiny by a federal grand jury.

It is clear that certain officeholders in New York City violated a public trust when they sold bonds on the basis of a misrepresentation of the city's financial position. They lied in describing the size of the city's tax base and forecast a high level of revenues which they knew could not be attained.

In telling these falsehoods, they set the stage for the city's financial downfall. They imposed staggering burdens on the taxpayers of New York City. They created a situation wherein the taxpayers of the entire nation will be called on to finance a rescue operation for the metropolis. In short, their offenses against the public well-being are much worse than those of the various Watergate figures. The latter also lied but did not create a major financial crisis.

But one doesn't hear talk of a Watergate mentality in connection with the spender politicians who mismanaged New York City's affairs for years. The liberal chic elements that praised the Watergate grand jury to the skies and demanded the most intensive grand jury proceedings are strangely silent with regard to the super-liberals in charge in New York City. They aren't insisting that former mayors of the metropolis be called to testify or that current officials be indicted.

What we are witnessing is a classic case of the liberal double standard. Yet it is a crime to make fraudulent representation in issuing bonds. Reckless borrowers in charge of New York City's finances managed to borrow huge sums by citing anticipated taxes. But many of the taxes cited were on tax-exempt public properties, including a school, a park, an urban renewal site, and properties owned by diplomatic missions.

There is good reason to believe that more than one public figure in New York City should be put in the "slammer" because of what U.S. Rep. James Quillen of Tennessee has referred to as "fraudulent bookkeeping."

Another Tennessee congressman, Rep. Robin Beard, has rightly said that "the Justice Department should investigate the city officials who have juggled their books to hide deficits in the billions of dollars." He added that "if any businessman had played games with the books like that, he'd be under the jail today."

Indeed there is a vast amount to be studied in the New York situation. Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia has declared that the banks of New York, which hold much of the city's bonds, should be required to disclose how they would benefit from the Ford administration's bailout legislation. The senator said: "We ought to know how much the taxpayers are benefitting these banks."

Incidentally, the nation's taxpayers owe a debt of gratitude to these members of Congress and others, such as Sens. James Allen of Alabama and Jesse Helms of North Carolina, who have valiantly opposed federal subsidization of New York City.

The New York financial mess is a scandal of immense proportions. The public must not allow the liberals in Congress to sweep the scandal under the rug. A giant fraud has been perpetrated in New York City over a period of years. The fraud is much more serious than the Watergate affair.

The only way to get the whole truth and expose the wrongdoers is for a federal grand jury to be empaneled to call those who have mishandled New York City's fiscal affairs for the past decade or more.

Son To Sue Parents For Premature Surgery

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, age 32. My parents had me circumcised when I was an infant. We are Christians, so there was no religious reason for having maimed me in this manner.

I feel that subjecting a helpless child to such barbaric surgery is an assault on his person and a violation of his rights, and I am seriously considering suing my parents for $100,000 for having permanently disfigured me.

Do you know if such a suit has ever been filed?
SERIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR SERIOUS: No, I don't. But if you win, you could call it "severance pay."

DEAR ABBY: Like a lot of other people, I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I have something to say. I lived with my husband for a year before we were married because we both wanted to be sure we were right for each other in every way.

I know the heartache it causes parents who have trouble accepting that sort of thing, but believe me, divorce, which is dirty and painful 99 per cent of the time, is even harder on them. I know. I've been there, too.

I never slept with my first husband until we were married, and that marriage was a nightmare. We dated for three years before we were engaged, but we didn't really know each other.

I don't think kids who have lived together should expect their parents to give them a big wedding and honeymoon, but I don't believe a wedding can make a marriage.

Living together may be no guarantee that the marriage will succeed, but at least both parties will know what they are getting into.
It may not be the answer for everyone, but I wish people would quit condemning those who think it's best for them. I've been married for two years and have an adorable 4-month-old baby.

NEVER BEEN HAPPIER
DEAR NEVER: When you assume that living together for a year will teach both parties "what they are getting into," you're buying at the moon. A successful marriage is made of three parts: luck, patience and effort. I know of no sure shortcuts.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently called for jury duty for three weeks. I work three hours a day and made arrangements to make up the work at odd hours so I could serve as a juror. I felt it was an honor and a privilege, but when I mention it to people, they make me feel as though I must have been crazy to let myself get "trapped" for jury duty. They say I should have had a doctor write me an excuse or have my boss say that it would jeopardize my job.

Am I a nut for feeling as I do? Or do only suckers serve?
HONORED

DEAR HONORED: You're no nut. You are a good citizen, and others could learn from you.

Third Man Arrested In Murder of Knight

MIAMI (UPI) — Salvatore Soli, the third suspect sought in the Philadelphia slaying of newspaper heir John S. Knight III, was arrested at a Miami motel late Sunday. A female companion alerted authorities to his whereabouts.

Soli, 37, was captured without a struggle as he walked into the downtown South Winds Motel. The arrest climaxed a week-long search which concentrated in Philadelphia and southern New Jersey.

Miami Homicide Detective Jimmy Beall said Soli and two female companions, aged 18 and 19, arrived in Miami by bus from somewhere in Georgia Saturday and checked into the motel. One of the girls apparently "got scared" and called police headquarters, Beall said.

Authorities said Soli had shaved his mustache and bleached his hair to alter his appearance.

A magistrate hearing was set for 10:30 a.m. today on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Soli, a convicted drug user with more than 50 previous arrests, was one of three men accused in the Dec. 7 murder.

Another suspect, Isias "Felix" Melendez, 20, was found shot to death near a golf course in Pine Hill, N.J. A third man, Steven Maleno, 25, surrendered to police Friday.

Knight, 30, special projects editor of the Philadelphia Daily News, was stabbed to death in his apartment during an apparent robbery, police said.

Melendez' body was found by a caddy on a dirt road near a golf course at the Pine Valley Country Club.

Maleno was arraigned on charges of murder, robbery, attempted murder, aggravated assault, burglary and criminal conspiracy and was held without bail for a preliminary hearing Dec. 17.

Murderer Hits Handicapped

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Although witnesses saw only one man, police suspect several persons may have been involved in the murder of two women during a break-in at a home for the handicapped.

Jacksonville homicide Lt. J.L. Suber said the assailant or assailants terrorized residents of the Bethesda Center on U.S. Highway 1 briefly Sunday morning, after breaking in through a back door about 3 a.m.

In the next 15 to 20 minutes, police said, Mrs. Thelma Eloise Lehman was stabbed to death, Mrs. Delta Post Bemis was fatally shot and her husband, Joseph Thomas Bemis, was seriously wounded. In addition, a handicapped man and woman were beaten.

A man reportedly entered the room of Gary Jackson Reach, a cerebral palsy victim on duty as a switchboard operator, bound him, threw him on the floor and beat him into unconsciousness before making his way to upstairs rooms in the facility.

using a set of keys entrusted to Reach.

Suber said there was apparently a scuffle in Mrs. Lehman's room during which she was stabbed. The bandit then apparently went to the room of Joy Denise Castlen, 22, a blind resident, and lured her downstairs by telling her he was the manager and there was a fire.

Once downstairs he began beating Miss Castlen, who began screaming, waking Bemis and his wife. The couple reportedly went out to the hall and the shooting erupted.

Police said during the confusion, the blind woman managed to telephone police and lock herself in a rest room. The bandit had fled when police arrived but Suber said Miss Castlen would not come out of the restroom until she heard a police radio.

Bemis, an unsalaried staff worker, was in serious condition at University Hospital.

Terrorist Band Surrenders

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — A band of Bible-reading terrorists who held 23 hostages aboard a hijacked train were "nice helpful fellows" who tried to make their captives comfortable, one of the released passengers said today.

The six young South Moluccans, who killed three persons during the 12-day ordeal, surrendered meekly Sunday after meeting with a mediator and praying with their hostages. Police said the six would be charged with murder.

Hospital officials said the hostages were in good condition.

Dutch officials said they hoped the capitulation would persuade a second band of South

Moluccans holding 25 hostages in the Indonesian consulate to surrender as well.

But there were no signs the gunmen inside the red-brick consulate planned to give up. Officials said they hoped to resume negotiations with them this morning.

Trade union official Louis Laurier, one of the hostages aboard the train, said the passengers had begun to feel some sympathy for their captors.

"Whatever we asked for from the hijackers, we were given, for they were very kind to us," he said. "They kept both the train and the lavatory clean themselves."

He said there was "hardly an explanation why we agreed that they were nice, helpful fellows who gave their scarves to the women, even though we abhorred the killings."

Laurier said the hostages killed time by "dozing, kneeling, reading pamphlets on the Moluccan cause distributed by the hijackers, playing cards and sometimes singing psalms."

The terrorists seized the two-car, yellow train as it sped through a potato field near Beilen, about 75 miles north of Amsterdam. They demanded independence for their island homeland from Indonesia, a former Dutch colony.

After the prayers, the long-haired gunmen, some wearing bright scarves around their necks, jumped from the train and walked across a cow pasture to where police and marines waited to arrest them. One waved a defiant clenched fist.

Most of the hostages were able to walk from the unheated train and some even carried their luggage.

Kissinger Journeys To Fuerteh

FUERTEH, West Germany (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today accepted the highest honor granted by the Bavarian birthplace from which Nazi terror drove his family 37 years ago. He then prayed at his grandfather's grave.

Accepting the city's Golden Citizen Medal — Kissinger was the 17th native to receive it — the Secretary warned of the "dark force of brutality and raw power at large in the modern world."

"Of all the species on this planet, man alone has inflicted on himself the great part of his own anguish," he said.

Louis and Paula Kissinger accompanied their famous son in a shiny Mercedes limousine provided by the city council to take them to the New Jewish Cemetery.

Kissinger, witnesses said, prayed for about five minutes in the subfreezing cold at the grave of Falk Stern, his maternal grandfather.

Although about 3,000 Jews lived in Fuerteh when Kissinger was born, most died in the Nazi holocaust and only about 200 now live in the city of 100,000.

About 10 of Kissinger's own relatives lost their lives in Nazi concentration camps.

"We are very proud and happy that he has come," said Simon Rottermann, who prayed alongside Kissinger.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher welcomed Kissinger on his arrival from London.

Kissinger, so the story goes, negotiated his first peace settlement in Fuerteh in 1934.

with a bully who threatened to beat him up.

Now 53, and the first foreign-born secretary of state, Kissinger returned to Fuerteh in triumph to accept the Golden Citizen's Medal — a rare honor previously accorded only 16 other natives, including Ludwig Erhard, father of West Germany's "economic miracle."

Kissinger's mother, father and brother arrived in Fuerteh Sunday to take part in the ceremony honoring him.

The Secretary of State had planned to visit the graves of relatives, but decided to cancel when he learned that he would have been followed by a horde of reporters and cameramen.

In a speech he delivered in German, Kissinger said the award of the city's Golden Citizen's Medal to him showed "to what extent we have overcome an unhappy past."

Obituaries

MRS. VIDA E. HANCOCK Mrs. Vida Elizabeth Hancock, 67, of Sunray, died Sunday.

Services will be 3 p.m. Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church in Sunray with the Rev. Norman Cobb, pastor, officiating. Burial by Morrison Funeral Directors of Sunray will be in Lane Memorial Cemetery.

Mrs. Hancock was self-employed in the income tax service business. Born in Danville, Ark., she had lived in Sunray 34 years. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving are the widower, W.W. "Red" Hancock; two brothers, Dan Cowger of Anaheim, Calif., and Charles Cowger of El Dorado, Ark.; three sisters, Mrs. Janie Eckhart of Pampa, Mrs. Robert Beagon of Benton, Ark., and Mrs. Walter Hart of Tulsa, Okla.

Adkins, 25, of Farnsworth will be 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Perryton with the Rev. Jack Pearce, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Ochiltree Cemetery by Boxwell Brothers Funeral Directors.

Mr. Adkins was killed Saturday in a car crash on U.S. 83 about four miles north of Perryton.

He had been a resident of Farnsworth about one month and he was an employee of Ford Tool Co. He moved to Farnsworth from Moore, Okla., where he worked for Dayton Tire and Rubber Co. Mr. Adkins was a Baptist, a U.S. Navy veteran and a native of Omaha, Neb.

Survivors include the widow, Susan; two daughters, Angela and Stacey, both of the home; his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Johnson of Perryton; a brother, Howard of Farnsworth; two half brothers, Ted and Rickey Johnson, both of Perryton; and a half sister, Cathy Johnson of Perryton.

Controversy Embroils Gov's Mansion

By RAE F. AMOS
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri's century-old governor's mansion has been embroiled in controversy throughout the years — from the surrender of outlaw Frank James to Gov. Thomas Crittenden to recent squabbles over restoration.

The current battle over the French-Italian structure situated on a bluff overlooking the Missouri River centers around a $2.8 million restoration proposal for the nation's only unairconditioned state executive mansion.

First Lady Carolyn Bond last week unleashed her Kentucky temper on reporters who disclosed a new plan by St.

Louis Architect Theodore J. Wofford for Missouri Mansion Preservation, a private group established last year by Mrs. Bond.

The group raised $20,000 for a 65-page report, which she delivered to a Kansas City newspaper. After publication, a Democratic candidate for governor promptly criticized the proposal, saying the Bonds' taste was obviously too expensive for Missouri and it was understandable why they would want to keep the project cost secret.

Mrs. Bond, who has actively campaigned for mansion restoration for three years, said there was no attempt at secrecy. But, she was critical of stories which focused on Wofford's recommendation that a $1.5 million, 300-seat dining room be carved out of the stone bluffs under the mansion — providing a panoramic view of the Missouri River valley for diners.

The first lady contended the dining room recommendation was only one paragraph of the report. Basically, she said the interest of the commission is in restoring and renovating the mansion.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond has publicly supported his wife's recommendations for restoration, but opposes the dining room because of the tight state budget.

"The architect's report was just the beginning," she said. "We felt before we could start restoring rooms, we had to make sure the building was safe. What we're trying to do is to restore and preserve a historic house.

"The governor's mansion belongs to all the people of the state and we want it to be not only a safe and comfortable home for the first families who live here, but for the thousands of visitors who come to the mansion each year."

During Bond's administration, the four-story, 27-room mansion has been open to the public on a regular basis for the first time in its history. Mrs. Bond said more than 85,000 persons have toured or have been entertained in the mansion the past three years.

The Victorian parlor where the last member of the Jesse James gang, Frank James, gave up his pistols to Gov. Crittenden and went to prison on Oct. 5, 1882, is being redesigned to serve as a library.

"This is the only governor's mansion in the country without air conditioning," Mrs. Bond said. "It has only three sources of heat, and today it's snowing outside and we can't get the heat on the second floor. It would be impossible to retain any fine antique furniture because of the temperature problems and the lack of any type of humidity control."

Expenditures for the mansion have been controversial throughout its 104 year history.

It was built under Gov. B. Gratz Brown in 1871 for $75,000, which was $25,000 more than the legislature appropriated. Former state Planning and Construction Director John D. Paulus Jr. estimated in 1970 it would cost $1.5 million to replace the mansion.

In 1957, newly elected Gov. James T. Blair Jr. refused to move his family into what he termed the "rat-infested fire trap."

Mrs. John M. Dalton continued restoration after the Blairs vacated the mansion, and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes undertook extensive rebuilding programs. In 1969, Mrs. Hearnes broke her arm when she tripped over tools left by workers in a darkened dining room.

May Protect Lockheed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger asked a federal judge to protect "unsubstantiated, sensational and potentially damaging information" about Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s alleged payments to foreign government officials, the State Department said Saturday.

The request was in connection with a Securities and Exchange Commission attempt to acquire internal Lockheed documents pertaining to more than $100 million in payments to foreign sales agents and government officials including at least one European country.

During the period in question, Lockheed's primary European business was the sale of F104 Starfighter jets to West Germany. More than 140 Starfighters have crashed, killing more than 80 pilots.

West Germany's Federal Audit Board wrote a report in 1971 critical of the purchase, which had been recommended by Franz Joseph Strauss when he was defense minister.

Northrop Corp., which last spring acknowledged payments to European government officials including a former member of the West German Parliament, said it was following common practice. Lockheed denied its activities were similar to Northrop's.

Millions Wasted on Health Care

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal investigators say the government has wasted millions of dollars promoting experimental health care programs that are often mismanaged and ineffective.

A new General Accounting Office report said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is "keeping a sinking ship afloat" by subsidizing so-called Health Maintenance Organizations around the nation.

HEW auditors themselves are bearing down on federally-financed HMOs in an effort to eliminate waste and improve performance.

HMOs are a relatively new concept in health insurance, in which medical organizations offer a wide range of health services for a fixed, prepaid subscription fee. This approach is supposed to promote preventive medicine and thus reduce the long-term cost of health care.

When he signed the subsidy law, Richard M. Nixon hailed the approach as "an important response to the challenge of finding better ways to improve health care for the American people."

HEW has spent $57.5 million for 251 HMO grants since 1970. The GAO report, presented Friday in connection with public Senate hearings, rated the results of this program dismal.

It said GAO auditors examined 38 HMO projects which got $33.4 million in federal aid over the first three years of the subsidy program, through 1973.

They rated only three — in Cambridge, Mass.; Rochester, N.Y.; and New Hyde Park, N.Y. — as "promising." They reported "serious doubt" about 18 others and found the remaining 17 had either lost their federal aid or had "little prospects of producing useful results."

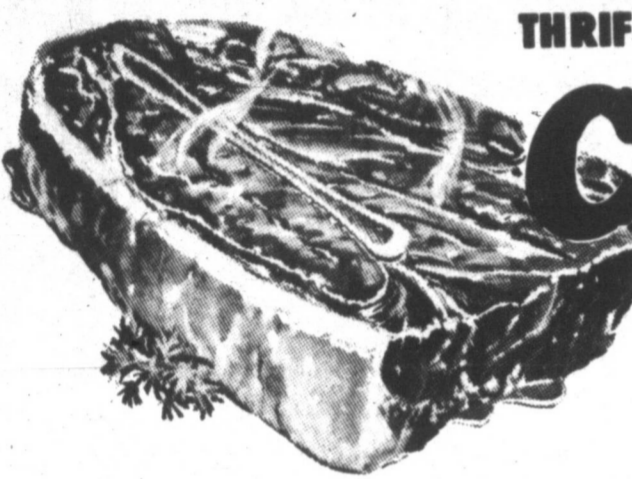

The auditors cited cases of "inadequate accounting and internal control systems, overcharges to federal agencies due to errors in reporting expendi-

Mrs. Lois Fagan put the limelight on some young performers during the last of three recitals she sponsored for her piano students Friday and Saturday. Playing "We Three Kings" by John H. Hopkins are, left piano, from back, Toni Robertson, Elaine Kelley, Tami Robertson and

Fagan Students Give Holiday Piano Recitals

Three piano recitals were given Friday and Saturday by young musicians, ranging from kindergarten to high school levels. The performers were all piano students of Mrs. Lois Fagan who sponsored the recitals.

High school and junior high students presented a Christmas concert Friday night, beginning with "O Come, All Ye Faithful." Participating were Janelle McCabe, Nancy Kelley, Becky Ogdon, Mrs. Earl Davis, Randie Miller, Becky Winters, Brenda Veach, Wanda Ledford and Terri Lyn Prentice. Assisting in the performance were Doug Eubanks and Doyle Gil.

The first of two programs on Saturday featured students on the kindergarten and grade school classes. The morning performance was offered by eight musicians, including Melissa Wadsworth, Deena Kelley, Jyeton Jaco, Sheila Gordon, John Williams, Terry Winters, Cliff Kelley and Donna Denham.

The Saturday matinee highlight was a trio and a quartet playing on two pianos, accompanied by a rhythm section. They played "We Three Kings" by John H. Hopkins. Performers for that segment were Toni Robertson, Elaine Kelley, Tami Robertson, Malley Kay Hammer, Melissa Wadsworth, Deena Kelley, Jyeton Jaco, Donna Denham, Sandra Sanders, Sheila Holmes and Darla Denham.

The Christmas recitals were given for the parents of the performers. Following each recital, students participated in Christmas gift exchanges.

Hospital Board Today To Reconsider Budget

By ANNA BURCHELL
 Pampa News Staff

The Highland General Hospital Board of Managers will meet at 5:30 p.m. today in the conference room of the hospital.

When contacted this morning, Robert Monogue, administrator, said resubmission of the $3.6 million budget is on the agenda.

"As ordered by the Commissioners Court?" inquired a reporter.

"I'm worried about what's ordered by my board," Monogue replied.

The board of managers, headed by Fred Neslage, is appointed by the Gray County Commissioners Court.

The Commissioners Court Friday kicked back the $3.6 million budget which included a 12 per cent increase for wage hikes alone. Commissioner Don Hinton of Pampa, who had attended the Nov. 17 meeting of the hospital board, when the budget was approved, submitted the motion to return the budget for study.

The budget includes proposed expenses for the operation of both McLean General and Highland General hospitals.

A proposed increase in malpractice rates also will be discussed during the meeting tonight. The proposed rates, Monogue said, will be announced tonight.

In other action the board will consider changing the employe retirement plan from 5 to 7 per cent as requested by the commissioners court.

The hospital budgets took up considerable time during Friday's meeting of the Gray County Commissioners Court. Several local residents addressed the board in regard to the budget increase.

The hospital budgets ultimately must be approved by the Commissioners Court. Judge Don Cain said that unless the budget is approved by the end of this pay period, Dec. 25, the only raises that will become effective will be those needed to comply with the minimum wage law.

The new law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, compels hospitals to pay at least $2.20 hourly.

The budget calls for a minimum of $2.30 hourly — the minimum wage law as it will apply to industry at that time.

Joan Little Jailed

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, a black woman acquitted of murdering her white jailer, has been arrested and jailed in Women's Prison for failing to appear last week to sign bond papers on another charge.

Miss Little, 21, was arrested Sunday in Durham, N.C., 23 miles away. She had failed to make a routine appearance Thursday at the clerk of Supreme Court's office to sign bond certification papers. She had been free on bond while appealing a larceny and breaking and entering conviction.

Durham police said they received a tip on Miss Little's whereabouts from Orange County police, and arrested her in a Durham motel at 6:35 p.m. EST. They said she was with her mother and brother at the time.

Summary of Weekend News

By United Press International Consumer Agency's Future

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first and only head of the two-year-old Consumer Product Safety Commission says senior members of the agency's staff have drawn up a plan to phase the agency out of existence by 1982.

Chairman Richard Simpson, who has announced his resignation, said in an interview with UPI some agencies can outlive their usefulness. He said a plan to phase out his agency, for instance, can work if the commission has finished its task by then and "products would no longer present unreasonable risks."

Simpson said there has been a growing trend toward public concern for safety since the agency began operating in May, 1973. More important, he said, manufacturers are showing more concern about product safety.

"Product safety has been raised to the attention of the board level, as opposed to keeping it locked up in the engineering department," he said.

"I wouldn't want to have this agency still around in the tricentennial celebration, 100 years from now."

Financial Collapse

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The man who bought three American banks with funds backed by the Soviet Union has gone bust, it was reported Sunday.

Sources in Hong Kong and Singapore, quoted in the Sacramento Bee, said that Amos Dawe's multi-million dollar empire had been delisted on Asian stock exchanges and his line of credit from the Moscow Narodny Bank withdrawn.

Federal officials said that the three banks purchased by Dawe last year, Peninsula National Bank of Burlingame, Tahoe National Bank and First National Bank of Fresno, are fiscally sound, despite Dawe's apparent financial collapse.

The Bee had reported the banks were purchased by Dawe, who made his fortune trading in Asian real estate, through a line of credit that was traced back to the Soviet bank's Singapore branch.

The newspaper quoted a "former top official" for the Peninsula bank as saying news accounts revealing the Soviet backing for the purchases triggered the default. Following the news accounts the Russian bank withdrew its $10 million line of credit.

Food Wasters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Studies of family garbage in Tucson, Ariz., and school garbage in show that middle income Americans waste more food than the rich and the poor.

The National Observer reported in this week's edition that the two studies show millions of dollars worth of food being wasted by Americans. A study of school garbage in Springfield, Ore., showed children who away large amounts of their daily school lunches.

The newspaper said the Tucson survey found that some middle income families wasted about 25 per cent of the food they buy. Overall, the study found that about 10 per cent of the food brought to homes in the city ended up in the trash. The value was estimated at up to $11 million yearly.

The Oregon study consisted of examining the discards of about 3,000 students participating in school-lunch programs at nine schools. It was found that the wasted milk alone would provide a full day's protein requirements for 117 children.

The Tucson study found that the most significant waste was of such staples as beef, fruit and vegetables and most of it occurred in middle class neighborhoods. Both the poor and the wealthy were more frugal.

Health Care Waste

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office has reported that millions of government dollars have been wasted promoting experimental health care programs that are often mismanaged and ineffective.

The weekend report said the Health, Education and Welfare Department is "keeping a sinking ship afloat" by subsidizing Health Maintenance Organizations around the nation.

HMOs are a relatively new concept in health insurance, in which medical organizations offer a wide range of health services for a fixed, prepaid subscription fee. That approach is supposed to promote preventive medicine and thus reduce the long term cost of health care.

HEW has spent $57.5 million for 251 HMO grants since 1970.

Of 38 studied, the GAO report rated only three — in Cambridge, Mass.; Rochester, N.Y.; and New Hyde Park, N.Y. — as "promising." They reported "serious doubt" about 18 others and found the remaining 17 had either lost their federal aid or had "little prospects of producing useful results."

had close ties to Salazar, who suffered a stroke in 1968 and was replaced by Prime Minister Marcelo Caetano. Salazar died in 1970.

Tenreiro was also president of the central junta of the Portuguese legion, a paramilitary organization that was one of the mainstays of the Salazar regime.

Portugese Hunted

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Authorities have launched a manhunt for Adm. Henrique Tenreiro, a former associate of the late Portuguese dictator Antonio Salazar.

Tenreiro escaped Friday night during transfer from prison to a clinic for medical treatment.

"The prisoner took advantage of this opportunity to escape," a government announcement said. "All necessary measures have been taken for his recapture."

Tenreiro was a wealthy businessman who ruled the Portuguese fishing industry and inhaling the toxic gas.

Walter E. Fitzgerald, manager for productions at Hooker's Special Chemical Division, said the blast came from the edge of the plant where a number of employees were working.

Police cordoned off a one-mile section of the city near the chemical plant but the fumes began dissipating a short time after the explosion with the aid of 20 to 25 mile per hour southwesterly winds.

The explosion sent a cloud of chlorine gas over the area, but a Hooker spokesman said the cloud dissipated within hours.

The dead were identified as Clyde McBride, 34, Raymond Zaso, 60, James D. Calquhoun, 29, and Lester Docks, 63, all Niagara Falls residents employed at the chemical plant.

Niagara County Coroner Oscar A. Bell listed the tentative cause of the deaths as inhalation of chlorine gas. Autopsies were scheduled for today.

George Socci, 35, also an employe at the plant, was listed in critical condition.

A hospital spokesman said most of those treated were employes in the immediate area of the chemical plant at the time of the explosion. He spokesman said most of those admitted complained of feeling ill after

Blast Releases Deadly Gas

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — An explosion in a railroad tank car at the Hooker Chemical plant killed four persons and unleashed clouds of deadly chlorine gas over this honeymoon resort city Sunday night.

At least 87 other persons, some as far away as three miles, were injured. One was reported in critical condition. The cause of the blast was not known.

Company officials said the explosion occurred in one of three tank cars used for storage of recovered chlorine. Firemen extinguished the fire, but continued to stand by early today to check a small leak in another tank car which was ruptured in the initial explosion.

Each tank car contained 30 tons of liquid chlorine, company officials said.

"I'd rather explain higher gas bills than why you don't have gas."

Your natural gas bill is higher. And, you have every right to know why.

One reason is lower temperatures brought on by winter.

The main reason, however, is simply that you are paying more for natural gas. Because we are paying more. This chart shows how much:

This increase hurts both you and Pioneer. It adds to your bill and to our cost... a cost for which Pioneer is not entirely compensated. It is passed through without mark-up or additional charges.

Why does gas cost more? Competition... particularly from petrochemical and other industries. The competition for gas has never been so fierce.

We will have to pay more for gas than in the past. But by working together, and without outside interference, you'll have the gas you need today and in the future.

Colts Return To Playoffs

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Coach Ted Marchbroda capped the biggest turnaround in pro football history Sunday when his young Colts edged the Miami Dolphins 10-7 in overtime to move to the brink of the American Conference Eastern Division title.

—Tony Linhart, an Austrian-born kicker with a reputation for being erratic, ended the tense struggle with a 21-yard field goal in the 15-minute sudden death overtime with a 31-yard field goal in a dense fog. The victory left Baltimore and Miami tied a 9-4.

But the race isn't settled —

yet. Each team has a game left and if both win next week, Baltimore, having beaten Miami twice, would be division champ.

If the Colts lose to New England next week and Miami beats Denver, Miami would go to the playoffs. If Baltimore wins, Miami still has a change for a wildcard berth if they win and Cincinnati loses to San Diego.

Marchbroda, a former assistant at Washington who took over a team that finished 2-12 last year.

“We beat a great Miami team,” said the 44-year-old Marchbroda. “I’m really proud of our guys because they came back against the champions in the last quarter... We’ve got one more game to go yet.”

Miami took a 7-0 lead in the third quarter on Mercury Morris’ three-yard run but Baltimore tied the game with 5:36 left on Lydell Mitchell’s six-yard burst.

Miami took possession first in the overtime but the drive stalled and Larry Seiple punted out of bounds on the Colt four. Bert Jones took it from there, converting time and again on key third down situations before the Dolphins finally stopped Baltimore at the Miami 16. Linhart then sent the screaming crowd of 59,398 into frenzy with his winning kick.

“I was disheartened at what was a super punt by Seiple,” Marchbroda said. “I figured we had to go 96 yards but that’s what we’ve been doing all year, coming back from a difficult situation.”

The AFC East is the only race yet to be decided with one week left in the regular season. Pittsburgh captured the AFC Central title Saturday with a 35-14 triumph over Cincinnati and Dallas secured a wild card berth in the NFC by ousting Washington 31-10. On Sunday, St. Louis won the NFC East championship with a 34-20 romp over Chicago. The first round of playoffs will be Dec. 27-28.

In other games Sunday, Houston edged AFC West winner Oakland 27-26. Detroit stopped NFC Central champion Minnesota 17-10. NFC West champion Los Angeles dumped Green Bay 22-5. Buffalo whipped New England 34-14. Cleveland crushed Kansas City 40-14. Atlanta dined San Francisco 31-9. Denver beat Philadelphia 25-19 and the New York Giants stopped New Orleans 28-14. The New York Jets are at San Diego tonight.

DePaul Stuns Cards In Role of 'Sleeper'

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

DePaul University, labeled a “sleeper” by Marquette Coach Al McGuire in his preseason sizeups of major college basketball powers, took a long step toward national recognition Saturday night by upsetting seventh-ranked Louisville, 78-76, on the road.

It was Louisville’s first loss this season in four games and its first home defeat since December, 1973. During that span the Cardinals had won 24 in a row at home.

DePaul led 30-14 in the first half before the Cardinals rallied to within one point, 37-36, at halftime. But the Demons refused to lose their poise and held on for their third triumph in four games.

“We played pretty well and retained our poise,” said Coach Ray Meyer, who is the winningest active major college coach with 512 victories. “We feel that this team is maturing. We could be a good team in a couple more weeks.”

“Normally on the road... we’ve been cracking under pressure in the last few years... The difference between this year’s ball club and last year’s is that we’re not beating ourselves.”

Although the Cardinals had the high national ranking, Meyer felt all along his boys had a chance to win... if center Dave Corzine was able to play. Corzine had run a needle into his foot a week ago but appeared fully recovered and was instrumental in the victory.

The 6-foot-11 Corzine scored 17 points and handed out 13 assists. Joe Posnetto also was a major contributor, hitting on eight of 11 field goal attempts to lead DePaul with 18 points.

McGuire will get a first-hand chance to see how right he was about DePaul next month when his second-ranked Warriors visit the Demons for the first of two meetings this season. Marquette also will host DePaul Feb. 18. DePaul also plays eighth-ranked Notre Dame on Jan. 28.

In other games involving the top 20 ranked teams, Marquette crushed Drake 80-58; No. 8 Notre Dame beat St. Francis (Pa.) 103-73; No. 9 Arizona edged Southern Methodist 83-81; No. 11 Cincinnati downed Bowling Green 98-81; Nevada-Las Vegas, also ranked 11th, routed South Alabama 122-82.

Camarillo Top 'Poke'

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Leo Camarillo of Oakdale, Calif., won the title of world champion all-around cowboy Sunday by the narrowest margin in the history of the Rodeo Cowboy Association.

Camarillo, awarded the honor at the conclusion of the National Finals Rodeo, earned $50,831 on the professional rodeo circuit this season to edge Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla., for the all-around trophy. Ferguson finished the season with $50,719.

Camarillo also won the world championship in team roping by earning $28,104 in that event.

Other world champions included Joe Alexander, Cora, Wyo., in bareback bronc riding with $41,184 in earnings; Frank Shepperson, Midwest, Wyo., steer wrestling, $34,863; Monty Henson, Mesquite, Tex., saddle bronc riding, $29,788; Jeff Copenhaver, Spokane, Wash., calf roping, $34,629; Don Gay, Mesquite, Tex., bull riding, $34,851; and Jimmie Gibbs, Valley Mills, Tex., barrel racing, $22,569.

Lakers Wallop Pistons

By United Press International

The Los Angeles Lakers have won 14 straight games at home and haven't lost there in more than seven weeks. But the same team has lost nine of 13 away games.

The Lakers, whipped in Phoenix 116-108 Saturday night, rebounded Sunday night for a 110-100 victory over the Detroit Pistons, who lost their fifth straight. The win left the Lakers one game behind Golden State in the NBA's Pacific Division.

"I'm pleased with the way I'm playing," said Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who grabbed a career high 34 rebounds, scored 27 points and blocked eight shots Sunday night. "I feel I'm playing as well as I ever had."

Detroit also was missing center Bob Lanier, who was out with a sprained ankle.

A week ago Detroit was the highest scoring team in the NBA, averaging 110 points a game. But then the Pistons lost starting guards Kevin Porter and John Mengel with injuries.

"We weren't very fired up," said Laker coach Bill Sharman. "In fact, we were very flat. I guess the letdown was because Lanier didn't play and it was our third game in three nights."

The Lakers, who not lead the NBA with an average of 111 points a game, saw Abdul-Jabbar hit 11 of 17 shots from the field and contribute six assists before leaving the game in the final three minutes.

For Detroit, reserve center Lindsey Hairston got 17 points.

In other National Basketball Association game Sunday night, Boston defeated New Orleans, 102-93. Golden State beat Kansas City, 115-105; Phoenix toppled Portland, 105-96; and Seattle beat Philadelphia, 114-105.

In the only American Basketball Association game Sunday, New York edged Indiana, 99-93.

Celtics 102, Jazz 93

Charlie Scott scored 25 points to lead the Celtics to their sixth straight victory. Paul Silas chipped in with 10 points and 17 rebounds for Boston. Louis Nelson led the New Orleans scoring with 18 points.

Warriors 115, Kings 105

Phil Smith scored 26 points and Rick Barry 25 as the Warriors won their fifth straight game. Nate Archibald had a game-high 32 points for the Kings.

Suns 105, Trail Blazers 96

Rookie center Alvan Adams had 20 points in leading the Suns past the Trail Blazers. Paul Westphal added 19 points and Loyd Neal led Portland with 24.

3 Pampans Get Medals In Wrestling

FORT WORTH — Two Pampa wrestlers earned third-place medals in the Fort Worth Elementary Junior High Tournament Saturday at Brewer Middle School there.

Rex Field placed third in the 94-pound junior high division, while Sam Edwards was third in the 100-pound class. Edwards wrestled Monty Covalt of Pampa for third place.

Seven Pampa entrants were wrestling for the Pampa Optimist Boys Club team.

The club's next meet will be Saturday at the Amarillo Maverick Boys Club.

Ennis, Big Sandy Win

By United Press International

The surprising Ennis Lions and Big Sandy have picked up their state championships and three more teams will follow this week.

Ennis ended the nation's longest high school football winning streak last weekend, bumping off the highly favored Cuero Gobblers, 13-10, to capture the Class AAA title.

Big Sandy grabbed the Class B championship, using the overpowering runs of David Overstreet to def. at Groom, 28-7.

This weekend there will be three more title games. Port Neches-Groves facing Odessa Permian in Class AAAA at 2 p.m. Saturday at Texas Stadium; LaGrange meeting Childress in Class AA at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Abilene and DeLeon taking on Schulenburg for the Class A crown at 8 p.m. Friday at Temple.

Ennis shocked Cuero in the opening seconds of their game with Gary Little running the kickoff back 90 yards for a touchdown. And after Cuero took a 10-6 lead, the Lions' Mart Gant struggled over from 10 yards out for the winning touchdown.

Cuero had won 44 straight games and two straight state titles coming into the title contest.

In Class B, Big Sandy came up with three touchdowns from Overstreet, who finished the season with 3,020 yards rushing and 56 touchdowns.

Port Neches-Groves worked its way into the Class AAAA championship game with a 28-0 decision over San Antonio Lee and Odessa Permian rallied to nip the favored Longview Lobos, 19-9.

LaGrange and Childress won by the same score, 20-14, in fighting their way into the Class AA title match. LaGrange downed Hampshire-Fannett and Childress decked Decatur.

DeLeon easily advanced to the Class A championship contest with a 37-7 victory over Seagraves and Schulenburg outmuscled Groveton, 37-28.

Johnny Hower's one-yard plunge with 2:55 in the contest, along with Russell Wheatley's extra point, gave Permian its win over Longview.

Port Neches-Groves relied on a smothering defense that shut down Lee's prolific passing game. Lee quarterback Jay Lundschen had thrown for 1,799 yards worth of passes coming into the game but could not produce a touchdown.

LaGrange and Childress won by the same score, 20-14, in fighting their way into the Class AA title match. LaGrange downed Hampshire-Fannett and Childress decked Decatur.

DeLeon easily advanced to the Class A championship contest with a 37-7 victory over Seagraves and Schulenburg outmuscled Groveton, 37-28.

Holiday Transportation Gets Tough To Arrange

United Press International
 If, indeed, half the fun is getting there, many Christmas week travelers might do well to prepare themselves for a not too pleasant experience.
 Strikes against two major airlines, United Air Lines — the nation's largest domestic air carrier — and National Airlines, have resulted in a nearly complete Christmas week sellout of all airline seats between major cities in the continental United States.
 A UPI weekend survey of major airlines, travel agencies and offices of the American Automobile Association revealed:
 — Telephone delays of up to one hour in getting through to airline reservation clerks.
 — Only a few seats still available for this week, nearly no seats left for Christmas week and a gloomy outlook for New Year's week.

— Jammed Amtrak trains and Greyhound buses.
 — Absurd routings for connections still available.
 — Crowded airplanes and terminals for persons lucky enough to have obtained confirmed reservations.
 Nearly all flights to the West Coast from the eastern United States have been sold out for several weeks, with hotels in Hawaii reporting full bookings for both Christmas and New Year's weeks, travel agents reported.
 A spokesman for Amtrak, the nation's national passenger rail system, said most of its New York-Florida trains have been sold out. Space on most other trains is scarce and travelers are advised to "call quick" for reservations, chiefly on three routes: Seattle-San Francisco, Chicago-Denver, and Cleveland-Toledo-Chicago. "The airlines have extended themselves," but all extra sections they had put on were full before the United strike," said Gerry Whetherill, an American Automobile Association travel agent. "A few seats — a very few — are still available around the nation for Dec. 14-18, but after that the booking becomes solid."

 Miss Whetherill said she helped one man last week obtain one of the last routings available from Cleveland to Tampa, Fla.
 "But, boy, what a routing," she said.
 "He will fly from Cleveland to Pittsburgh and change planes; and then fly to Baltimore, where he will change planes again; and then fly to Atlanta and make another plane change; and then fly to Ft. Lauderdale, where he will change planes again; and then, finally, into Tampa."
 Many football fans in Ohio, planning to take United flights to California for the Rose Bowl game will not be going — at least by air, a spokesman said.

Honored Teachers

8 Teachers Initiated

Eighty-five members of Beta Delta and Theta Delta chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma attended a joint initiation and luncheon, Saturday, in the Coronado Inn.
 Mildred Sullivan and Claudia Everly, ceremonials chairmen, conducted the ceremony initiating Linda Alred, Lynda Klausek and Rutha Morgan into Beta Delta; and Nancy Coffee, Ramona Hite, Kim Lester, Janetta Maloney and Jean Sossaman into Theta Delta chapter. Officers of both chapters read the ritual and a combined choir directed by Gene Murray and accompanied by Mary Ruth Smith furnished the music.

 Faye Watson, president of Beta Delta, presided at the luncheon. Ann DiCosmo gave the invocation, and Nita Williams introduced the program. The 45-voice Pampa High School Sophomore Girls choir, directed by Louise Richardson, entertained with a group of Christmas selections.
 Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honorary society with more than 125,000 members in eight countries: the United States, Canada, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Mexico, and Iceland. The organization of Alpha chapter in Iceland Nov. 7, brought the total number of chapters to exactly 2,500.

 One of the major purposes of the society is to endow scholarships to aid outstanding women educators in pursuing graduate study and to grant fellowships to women educators from other countries.

President Ford's campaign manager, whose assessment that Nelson Rockefeller would be President Ford's main political liability augured the vice president's withdrawal from the ticket, now apparently has it in for Ronald Reagan.

Reagan has said he will not attack the President personally and Ford is reported to have made the same commitment to Reagan.
 But Ford's manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, attending the Southern Republican Conference in Houston Saturday, said Reagan's campaign is nothing but "a Hollywood facade" and that he would lose the California primary because of his record as governor for eight years.
 On the Democratic side of the Gallup poll, which last week showed Reagan surging ahead of Ford among Republicans, Sen. Hubert Humphrey increased his lead among Democrats.

The November poll showed Humphrey with 30 per cent, up from 11 per cent a year ago, and George Wallace with 20 per cent, far ahead of the rest of the pack. According to the poll, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is favored by 29 per cent of the Democrats when included as a candidate. Among independents, Wallace led Humphrey, 27 per cent to 19.
 At the southern GOP meeting, presumably a bastion of Reagan support, Callaway noted the President Ford Committee has the support of almost every major GOP official in California. He went on to say that as governor Reagan's "rhetoric was great and his performance was poor," specifically on the matter of personal income taxes.

 Reagan, addressing the conference later, called for fellow party members to march under a "banner of responsible Republicanism." He sounded his familiar theme that Congress is irresponsible for its support of high spending and social programs.
 "The result," Reagan said, "is a fourth branch of government, a permanent structure of unelected employees determining policy to a greater extent than most of you know."
 Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who was Humphrey's running mate in 1968, said Sunday the Minnesota senator is "most likely" to win the Democratic nomination next year despite his repeated insistence he is not running.
 Muskie, appearing on a television interview (ABC, "Issues and Answers"), said "there is no question" Humphrey is the "frontrunner and I think very willingly so."
 Elsewhere in the Democratic parade:
 — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., campaigning in Milwaukee said no one is fully qualified to be president, but he is more qualified than anyone else. "I can deal more effectively with the economy, with energy, with the Russians and with foreign policy in general than the other candidates," he said.
 — Jimmy Carter and Sargent Shriver addressed Mississippi loyalist Democrats Sunday.

Shriver, who ran for vice president in 1972, said he wants to "re-establish trust in our form of government and trust in trade which has made this nation great." Carter said, "The candidate that can convince the people that we can have a decent government will be in the White House next year."
 — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., in Milwaukee, said there are "no immediate answers for the intractable problems of the Middle East," but that the United States must maintain its commitment to Israel.
 — Fred Harris announced in San Antonio, Tex., Saturday he would run in the Texas primary. A straw poll among 215 liberal Texas Democrats showed Harris with 38.5 per cent of their votes to 19.2 per cent for Udall and 18.7 per cent for Shriver.
 — George Wallace, campaigning in Atlanta Sunday, said, "People who live in rural communities must have an equal opportunity with those residing in our cities." He said it is time to relieve taxpayers of the burden of urban social costs by "redirecting our attention and efforts to rural America."
 — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., told the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times he will not be a presidential candidate next year. He called it a "definite decision."
 — North Carolina grows more sweet potatoes than any other state.

Temperatures Plummet To Well Below Zero

By United Press International
 A sudden blast of arctic air transformed a mild but rainy day into a wintry nightmare Sunday and brought added strength to a developing storm that stretched from the Plains to the portions of the Midwest.
 Springlike rains and temperatures in the 50s and 60s covered the midlands Sunday when the icy front moved in, creating a frozen maze of ice-slicked streets and highways and adding a coating of snow.
 Temperatures plummeted as much as 45 degrees as the wintry weather took control.
 Des Moines, Iowa, reported a record 60-degree reading Sunday before the wintry weather struck, pushing the temperature to the teens. A record 64-degree reading in Burlington, Iowa, also was wiped out as the temperature plunged. Sub-zero temperatures were expected in much of Iowa today.
 Temperatures plummeted to well below zero in parts of the northern Rockies and the Plains — down to 24 below zero at Havre, Mont.
 Wind-whipped snow swept most of Kansas and stretched into portions of Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota, dangerously reducing visibility at times.

 Only two to three inches of snow piled up Sunday night but continuing snows triggered heavy snow warnings for southeastern Kansas and winter storm watches were in effect for most of the central Plains, the west central Mississippi Valley, the Texas, Panhandle and northern Oklahoma.
 The storm also spread new snows to the west, dumping up to six inches of snow in portions of northern New Mexico. Heavy snow warnings were in effect for the central mountains of New Mexico as the storm continued.
 Warm, rainy weather continued ahead of the approaching storm.
 The clash between the record warm weather and the oncoming cold snap produced at least one tornado. The twister destroyed two houses, several barns and a shed near Hamilton, Mo. There were no injuries but several head of cattle trapped in one of the barns were killed.

$200 Million Superport Put on 'Back Burner'

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—The head of Mississippi's "superport" coordinating office says the $200 million project has not been shelved, but he indicated an immediate filing of a complex application with federal authorities is being held in abeyance.
 "We're not dropping the project. We're just putting it on the back burner" for the time being because of the economic feasibility and several other things," said Jeff East in a telephone interview.
 "We are not real optimistic about the superport at this point but we are going to keep following it and doing the homework that needs to be done in interstate compacts, site selection, contacting industry and trying to get users to make it feasible," he added.

 Mississippi and Alabama joined in an executive agreement in 1972 to construct the proposed monobouy facility in the Gulf of Mexico some 28 miles off the state line. Plans call for supertankers to tie up to the monobouy and transfer there oil through two 42-inch pipelines connected to storage facilities on shore.
 The "game plan," according to East, was not so much getting the superport and storage facilities — which he said would only create about 40 jobs — but other industry the facility would spawn such as refineries, petrochemical industries and fertilizer plants "which would literally create thousands of jobs in each state."

 But East indicated the proposed facility is not economically feasible now because of uncertainties and the tremendous cost.
 Most of the current problems stem from a lack of a federal energy policy, the high price of crude oil set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and the lack of enthusiasm on the part of oil companies to sign contracts for importing the high-priced crude.
 East said, however, "all of these things can change in a matter of months but it would take a crystal ball gazer to say whether it would be for the better.

 "We don't know whether the energy policy is going to encourage domestic exploration and production or whether it will encourage imports," East said, adding that if imports are backed, superports will become more feasible.
 He said oil companies are reluctant to build refineries or anything else until they know what the financial ramifications of the new energy policy will be.
 "We cannot get any more refineries in either Mississippi or Alabama until some of this becomes more certain and some of the OPEC nation policies become more stable," East said.
 Some refineries, East said, cost about $800 million and "firms don't want to invest that kind of money until they know they can get their investment back plus make a little profit."
 He also pointed out it would take 600,000 barrels of crude per day to make the superport feasible and "right now the best we've got is 200,000, which is a third of what we need."
 Columbia has 37 daily newspapers, according to the latest count by the Association of Colombian Newspapers.

Shoppers Fill Carts...Free

DALLAS (UPI)—They began lining up before dawn, 320 men and women standing in the fog and a light-drizzle to collect their Christmas bonuses in canned meats, spices and frozen pizzas.
 "It was one of the wildest hours I have ever seen," supermarket manager Steve McLaren said of the happy scramble Saturday morning that left his shelves almost barren.
 "It was out of sight." It was the second annual "Christmas Shopping Bonanza," a feature created last December by Mary Crowley and Don Carter, owners of Home Interiors and Gifts Inc.
 As a Christmas gift, Mrs. Crowley and Carter open the doors of local supermarkets to their employees, giving them one hour to stack shopping carts — one cart per person — to capacity with their choice of food.

 The company pays the bill. The scramble does not include meat, but each employee is given a $25 gift bond and a free turkey at the checkstand.
 "Last year they started grabbing everything in sight," said McLaren, whose North Dallas store was one of two chosen this year to participate in the rush.
 "But they knew what they were doing this time. They hit the canned meats — the most expensive items — right away, along with the canned vegetables. Spices and soups were about the next most favorite commodity."
 "It took us two hours to check everyone out after the scramble, but you didn't see any sour faces. They were laughing, cracking jokes — just about the most smiling group of people you will ever see."

 Last year the bill at the cash registers totaled $71,000. This year, the tab hit $97,442.
 "It could have been higher except for a few rules.
 "You can't bring any sideboards with you, no big pieces of lumber (to shore up the sides of the carts)," said Bill Hendricks, assistant general manager of the interior decorating firm.
 "Last year they tried to use big frozen pizzas for sideboards," he said. "It was as funny as it could be because by the time they got to the checkout stands, the pizzas had started to soften and everything started to sag."
 They were standing there, draped over the baskets, trying to keep everything from collapsing onto the floor.
 The pizzas were prevalent again this year, store manager Mike Mayo said.

 "Maybe they were frozen a little harder this year, because they seemed to hold up all right," he said. "Others had plastic bags full of goods tied to the outside of their carts. I guess we were lucky some of the carts didn't collapse from the weight."
 Hendricks said the scramble for food was dreamed up last year to boost employee morale and repeated during the "depressing" days of summer.
 "If you'll recall, last December the economy was down and people were sad about the situation," he said. "The 'Bonanza' was designed to make them optimistic about the future."
 McLaren said he didn't know about the shoppers' optimism, but he was certainly caught up in the enthusiasm.

 "It was very contagious. You just had to smile and laugh right along with them," he said.
 "Christmas spirit. I guess I really got it today."

May Embargo Cattle

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Hilmar Moore, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association Saturday said the organization had asked the U.S. district court for an injunction to prevent the USDA from imposing its threat of an embargo of Texas breeding cattle.
 The suit named as defendants Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, Animal and Plant Health Industry Services (USDA) administrator F. J. Mulhern, and deputy administrator J. M. Hejl and Paul Becton, aphs brucellosis head. It seeks to obtain an injunction restraining the order to cut off federal brucellosis funds to Texas cattlemen as well as to implement the embargo.

 The suit charges the USDA has failed to meet requirements in not filing an environmental impact statement on the proposed embargo with the EPA. Such a statement, required by law, entails a lengthy review and hearing with an eventual ruling by the courts.
 The suit claims the proposed action of embargoing Texas cattle and withholding funds for brucellosis control will significantly effect the quality of the human environment within the meaning of the National Environmental Policy Act.
 The resulting increase of cattle numbers from such an embargo and the increase of the disease caused by withdrawal of funds and personnel would have an impact on the quality of the state's air, grasslands, soil and water resources, the suit claims.

 "The state already is overpopulated with cattle by low prices added to the drought situation last fall," Moore said. "The embargo will increase the overpopulation significantly. The disease will have a much better chance to spread."
 Moore said the USDA plans the action because a number of new measures to combat disease have not been accepted by the Texas Animal Health Commission in Austin. The commission refused to accept the new restrictions because it felt they would be too costly to the industry.

 The embargo, if approved, would be across board on all herds in the state and go into effect Jan. 1.
 "The proposed USDA regulations would cost Texas cattlemen many hundreds of thousands of dollars unnecessarily which they cannot afford in the depressed market," Moore said.
 "The increased population — which would result from the embargo — would obviously cause further chance of the disease without federal assistance."
