President, Mao Discuss Detente

PEKING (UPI) — President Ford and Mao Tse-tung discussed the touchy issue of U.S. Soviet detente in their long private chat. White House officials said today, declaring it would be a terrible mistake to underestimate the value of Ford's Peking mission.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen also confirmed there would be no communique to mark any new breakthroughs in U.S. Chinese relations at the close of Ford's visit, but he insisted the mission produced many "good signs" that should offset skeptical questioning of this development.

Every public sign has been a good sign, Nessen told reporters at the end of the third of Ford's four days in Peking. There have been no bad signs.

In response to questions, he confirmed Ford and Mao indeed had discussed detente — which China has blasted publicly during Ford's stay — and agreed with a reporter's suggestion they had achieved a better understanding "as a result of their talk."

Ford and Mao met Tuesday for one hour and 50 minutes — a remarkably long audience for the ailing 81-year-old Chinese Communist party chairman. Ford today called it a significant conversation.

Ford, beginning to show signs of fatigue from his grueling schedule of summitry and sightseeing, made his comment at the start of another 2½ hours of formal talks this morning with Acting Premier Teng Hsiao-ping in Ford's Peking residence.

Nessen took pains to squelch speculation Ford's visit might be interpreted as a failure because of the lack of visible progress in improving U.S. Chinese relations.

You should not take the absence of a communique as a negative factor, he said. The accomplishments and purposes of this meeting have nothing to do with a signed document.

When a reporter suggested Ford and Mao might have had a diplomatic battle over the question of U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, Nessen warned:

You are making a terrible mistake to believe the meetings are not going well.

Ford put in another full day of diplomacy and protocol at a pace that seemed to be fatiguing him, starting with the morning meeting with Teng.

Little information has been disclosed on the substance or tone of these talks, perhaps because there is little room for agreement on such major issues as U.S. Soviet detente and America's Taiwan policy. The White House merely described this round as a continuation of significant discussions on a wide range of issues.

Then, in rapid succession

Ford conferred for two hours on U.S. budgetary problems with an aide, tramped through the stuffed animal and communal farm of an agriculture exhibit, attended an informal dinner thrown in his honor, and watched an exhibition of ping pong and gymnastics in Peking's sports arena.

All this activity seemed to be taking its toll on the President and on daughter Susan.

Ford appears tired and somewhat somber — not his usual sunny self. When he grabbed a 25-minute cat nap during the day, press secretary Ron Nessen said, "He needed it."

And Susan, 18, bowed out of the dinner and sports events in the evening. Susan is just tired, Nessen said.

At this point in their 10-day Far East tour, in fact, the buoyant Ford was Betty. She took a solo tour of the old imperial Forbidden City, pronounced the gold-roofed pagoda and priceless jades, fascinating — and join the fun at a Peking dancing school.

The First Lady, once a professional dancer, kicked off her shoes and joined a troupe of young female dancers at the Central May 7 Art College and swayed through a Northern Chinese folk dance. She was a little out of step and laughing, asked reporters, "You won't send this home will you?"

The Chinese media played Ford's trip prominently. A picture of Ford and Mao was splashed on the front page of the Peking People's Daily and Chinese television showed film of the two leaders greeting one another warmly at Mao's residence.

Rumors that recent strokes have left the 81-year-old Mao all but a cripple largely were dispelled by Ford's visit.

Mao Tse-tung was right on top of it, there is no question about it, George Bush, head of the U.S. liaison office, said today. Mao was right in there.

The site of Ford's talks with Teng today was the President's own residence, Guest House No. 18, where the Fords live surrounded by landscaped gardens, Chinese Army guards and electric fences.

Opening the third day of his four-day visit, Ford enthused over his audience with Mao as he opened the morning talks at a table set with Chinese face cloths, tea and mild Chinese Panda cigarettes for the chain-smoking Teng.

It was a significant conversation, Ford said of his long hoped-for session with the fabled father of Chinese Communism.

It covered a very wide range of matters on the international scene as well as our bilateral relations.

Two Mothers Convicted Of Welfare Fraud Here

By ANNA BURCHELL

Pampa News Staff

Two Pampa mothers, one with six children, were convicted this morning on charges of welfare fraud and fined $100 on each count and granted one year probation terms.

Nita Y. Jeffery, 32, the mother of six, who works part time at Highland General Hospital and still receives a monthly welfare check, was convicted of receiving $18 in food stamps to which she was not entitled during February, March, April and May.

She also pleaded no contest to receiving $184.74 in aid to dependent children.

Evyone S. Hall, 22, of 1949 Varnon Drive pleaded no contest to charges of receiving $172.74 in aid to dependent children to which she was not entitled.

Both mothers were ordered to make restitution. Mrs. Hall said she had learned the lesson that she wanted no more welfare.

It just isn't worth it, she told Gray County Judge Don Can. John S. Warner, county attorney, was the prosecutor.

Judge Can told both mothers that welfare fraud is a serious offense.

You need to get your affairs in order, he said to Mrs. Hall. She had previously told him she had a job.

Mrs. Jeffery told the judge that her neighbors had said that I was not going to work because I was on welfare.

That is very not true. As for my neighbors I don't even know them, she added.

She told the court she was divorced and if she went to jail there would be no one to take care of her children.

Mrs. Hall had been convicted in February of swindling by worthless checks.

She is still on probation at the present time, Warner said. He added that she had not paid her fine in that case.

That was nine months ago, Warner said. However, the law allows probation in this case if it is a different offense.

Warner said the charges in Mrs. Hall's welfare fraud case stemmed from failure to report all the income of members of her family.

Spanish Cabinet Open To Full-Scale Overhaul

MADRID (UPI) —

King Juan Carlos selection of a right wing educator as parliamentary president has opened the way for a full-scale cabinet overhaul that will bring reform-minded politicians into power, government sources said today.

Juan Carlos has pledged to make extensive improvements in the regime he inherited 12 days ago from Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Toruato Fernandez Miranda, the new parliamentary president, was scheduled to take his oath of office for a six-year term at noon 6 a. m. EST today at Zarzuela Palace.

Juan Carlos chose the 80-year-old Fernandez Miranda for the job Tuesday from a list of three names given him by the Council of the Realm, an advisors body to the king.

Under the constitution, the president of the parliament or Cortes, is also the president of the Council of the Realm. The two posts had been vacant since last week when Alejandro Rodriguez de Valcarlos wound up his term as Cortes president.

With the selection of Fernandez Miranda, the Council was free to focus on finding a successor for Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro, whose resignation has been all but official for several days.

When Arias leaves, the Council will present the 37-year-old king with a list of three names from which he can choose a new chief of government.

A full-scale cabinet shake-up is then expected.

Government sources said

Juan Carlos chose Fernandez Miranda, a former member of the right-wing Falange to appease Spain's strong conservatives before selecting reformists in the impending government overhaul.

Fernandez Miranda, a law professor and one of Spain's leading educators, was first named to a cabinet post in 1969.

He later moved up to vice president of the government and served as acting chief of government for two weeks when Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco was killed in a bomb attack by Basque guerrillas in December 1973.

In earlier years, Fernandez Miranda supervised Juan Carlos' education when the teenage prince was studying liberal arts and science.

New York Aid Passes House

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

President Ford's proposal to help New York City avoid bankruptcy with up to $2.3 billion in quick repayment federal loans has squeaked through the House by 10 votes.

It was scheduled to come up today in the Senate, where up to five filibusters may await it.

Ford's change of heart on federal aid for New York City failed to sway many House Republicans. Only 38, including 12 from New York state, voted for his bill while 100 opposed it by a 175-103 margin.

The Senate is expected to pass the bill eventually, although Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., was threatening a filibuster, enough to delay further consideration until Friday.

However, Sen. Harry Byrd, Jr., D-Va., another opponent, conceded. The odds are against us.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd, W-Va., said four additional cloture votes may be required after Friday to settle the issue and to pass the required appropriation measure to provide the money for loans.

If the Senate demonstrates overwhelming support for the measure, Byrd said the delay tactics may end.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said after Tuesday night's House vote, "We will redeem ourselves as members of the Union. But he told reporters

Ford's plan would work only if nothing goes wrong. Under the bill, Treasury Secretary William Simon can make loans of up to $2.3 billion for the brief periods over the next 30 months when New York City's expenditures exceed its revenues. But the loans must be repaid by the end of each fiscal year.

Ford opposed federal intervention until last Wednesday when he said, "New York City has bailed itself out through a plan under which city taxes were raised, union pension fund trustees lent the city $2.5 billion and the state declared a moratorium on repayment of $1.3 billion in bonds coming due over the next three years."

Thai King Abdicates Throne

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) —

King Savang Vatthana of Laos abdicated today and the nation's coalition government was disbanded, completing the Communist takeover of the country, the Laotian national radio reported.

The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said the coalition government led by Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma was abolished in response to the demand of the people.

The broadcast said the country would now be known as the Democratic Peoples Republic of Laos.

Several demonstrations were recently held in the Laotian capital of Vientiane demanding the ouster of the 19-month-old government.

At least 1,000 people gathered outside the office and home of Souvanna Phouma, demanding that he be removed from office.

Souvanna 74 is a neutralist and has been a symbol of the country's faltering stance against swelling Communist influence.

The Laotian throne was established 600 years ago. The Communists began consolidating their power in the landlocked country last May. The broadcast said the king's offer to abdicate was reviewed by the Central Committee of the Peoples Patriotic Committee in Vientiane Dec. 1-2 and representatives of the entire people of Laos accepted the abdication.

Richard Hooks in hospital

Hooks Boy Rests Feet After Lengthy Search

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff

Richard Hooks saw the planes searching for him Sunday, and once he tried to stand and wave to a helicopter.

He was lost. He had spent the night with only leaves to blanket him against the below-freezing temperatures.

About three hundred people were involved in the search for Richard but they couldn't find him and he couldn't find any of them in the rough Canadian River country near the border of Hutchinson and Roberts Counties.

When he saw the helicopter, he made himself as tall as possible by rising to his knees and he waved and waved at the chopper.

But it went on. The 7-year-old told his mother later — after he had spent a second night alone in the rough country with only leaves for a blanket against below-freezing temperatures.

Richard has told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hooks of Stunnett, much of what happened during the time he was lost, but sometimes the memories are painful and he gets upset.

He is listed in good condition today at North Plains Hospital in Borger, and it was thought he might be released later, after the doctor makes his rounds. But there are problems.

His feet are still swollen, Mrs. Hooks said Tuesday, and he has two toes that are giving him quite a bit of trouble. He still gets severe stomach cramps when he tries to eat much and he has been having severe nightmares.

She said that this reporter could visit with Richard if questions wouldn't be asked that would upset him. However, Richard was not in a talkative mood and was more interested in the Bewitched rerun on television than he was in discussing the events which have made him an area celebrity.

Richard's problems began Saturday afternoon when he wandered a short distance from camp to investigate something in the bush. He returned to go back the direction he thought was right to reach camp, but when he had gone far enough the camp was there.

Several other newspapers in the area, United Press International wire service, television and radio stations said that Richard had been left alone in the camp while everyone else was out hunting. That information was not correct.

How could anybody believe I'd leave my baby alone? Richard's father asked his wife when he learned of the incorrect account.

It happened like one of Richard's uncles, Claude Hooks, told The Pampa News Sunday evening at the campsite.

We were cooking supper, he said. They were playing in front.

It was a big family — type-outing with Richard's father and 13-year-old brother Bill, Uncle Claude and his son, Toddy, 12, Uncle Don and his boys, Don 9 and James, 4, Cousin Michael Hedgecok, 12, and Uncle Preston Garrard.

At no time were the little ones alone in camp, Mrs. Hooks said. Richard had seen something over in the bush. He asked his cousin to go with him, but he said no, he was going to eat.

Only minutes before, John had passed by his son and the nephew on his way to help with supper preparations. He told the boys the meal would be ready in a few minutes.

But it was about 40 hours — two nights, all day Sunday and parts of Saturday and Monday — before anyone saw Richard again.

He said he followed a road for a ways and then climbed a hill to see if he could spot the camp. A bull, apparently thinking that the human was going to feed him something, began following Richard.

He finally shook the bull, but he was cold, hungry, and it was getting dark. He stumbled over a log and landed in some leaves.

Then Richard remembered a program he'd seen on television last summer. There should be more programs like that one, his mother said.

In the show a boy had become separated from his father in some wilderness area and when night fell and temperatures dropped, he kept from freezing by covering himself with leaves. That's what Richard did.

He remembered something from another show where someone had made signs pointing out which direction he was going. So Richard broke branches and piled rocks in the shape of arrows.

That's real Boy Scout stuff, someone commented to him.

Yeah, and I'm not even a Boy Scout, Richard said.

Searchers didn't, however, find the signs until Richard's ordeal was over.

It was tough going for the little fellow. Others might not have lived through it. But Richard was in top physical shape.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooks credit Calvin Cosley, Stunnett chief of police and boxing coach, for Richard's stamina.

Because of his physical fitness and because he had seen the boy cover himself with leaves in the television program, Richard was still alive when he finally was found about 9:30 a. m. Monday by John Bridwell, who with his father and brother, was searching for the boy on horseback.

When Bridwell saw the leafy pile of boy laying on the ground, he jumped off his horse and hollered, Richard, Mrs. Hooks said. He got no reaction and as he got closer, he called, Son.

Richard must have thought it was his daddy and he looked up, Mrs. Hooks said. Bridwell took the boy on his horse to meet a helicopter that flew to the Borger hospital.

Mrs. Hooks said that John Bridwell will have a sore neck when I get hold of him. He's just like an angel to me.

We sure appreciate the people that showed up, John Hooks said, those CBers, the sheriff's people, just everybody.

People in the Texas Panhandle are the greatest in the world, Mrs. Hooks added.

A Longwood College, Virginia researcher asked children if they liked Daddy or TV better. Nearly half of the 4 to 6-year-olds questioned liked TV best.

Another educator, the president of Bard College in New York, blames television for the decline of language and many of the problems in youngsters.

While some blame today's educational systems, for the national trend in lower scholastic aptitude test scores, he blamed television.

TV has replaced reading aloud, physical activity, conversation, communications and imagination in children, he declared.

Another author is so brash as to claim that television is causing the decline of Western civilization. Malcolm Muggeridge, former editor of Punch, spoke out against the plethora of trash fed over the television set.

On TV they see the family ridiculed, marital fidelity ridiculed, and a crass materialism constantly being preached, he said.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals have echoed his alarm over the effects of TV on teenagers. It recently went on record against TV programming for youth.

But television has its good points.

And children do learn from television.

I once interviewed a woman who had taught lower grades in a two-room school house in the Wyoming high country for years. She told me that last year she had to completely revamp her lessons for first grade. All three of her first graders could read.

She credited the development to television shows which teach children.

Seven-year-old Richard Hooks proved the value of television too.

He was found Monday morning after spending a day and two nights lost along the Canadian River near the Hutchinson-Roberts County border. He survived the cold by burying himself in leaves, a trick remembered from a TV show.

He also left signs for his searchers. That idea Richard recalled from another television show. The trackers, however, didn't find the signs until after they found Richard.

Helen Witt Groom, football fan who just happens to be the mother of one of the team stars, sent Sports Editor Paul Sims a limerick. Mrs. Witt said she writes a poem for the Tiger coach before each game on Groom's march to the state championship.

This one she wrote before the team beat Jayton.

There once was a team from Jayton

Who boasted a very high rating.

Then they met the Dreaded Red

And said, "Wish we'd stayed home in bed."

Those Tigers are tougher than Satan!

Groom will play in the state semi-finals Friday against Cehna in Vernon.

In another bit of investigative reporting, Sports Editor Paul Sims asked a biologist why animals insisted on crossing highways in front of cars. He was researching a story on the highway fatalities of animals.

"To get to the other side," the biologist answered.

Reporter Jeanne Grimes told Sims she thought the answer fit the question.

Jeanne is a new staffer for The News. She comes to Pampa from Oklahoma City where she worked for Orbit, the Sunday magazine for the Daily Oklahoman. Other journalism background includes promotion assistant for the State Fair of Oklahoma. She raises Appaloosa horses and enjoys sailing and water skiing.

Change Philosophy

Volume could be filled with political speeches promising to do something about the size and cost of government and its intrusion into our lives. As a theme of American politics it goes back to the Declaration of Independence. King George III was denounced not just for his oppressive taxes but because he had "erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

In the modern contest the problem of burgeoning government bureaucracy dates mainly from the New Deal and the wave of federal programs and agencies spawned to treat the depression problems of the 1930s. President Ford's speech in Chicago recently had a familiar ring, but his vow to "cut big government down to size" must be placed in a new perspective.

The "mountain of paperwork and quackery of regulation" which are Mr. Ford's target represent something more than an expensive nuisance. A country which has one person working for government for every four in private employment is facing serious problems in sustaining its economic productivity.

Ironically, the surge in growth of government and its power began in response to the economic depression 40 years ago. Today, the tax burdens and regulatory restraints of big government are being identified as factor holding back recovery from the current recession.

Thus the head-count in government offices symbolizes more than the tendency of bureaucracy to breed more of the same. It represents a government requiring such a share of our national income that private industry is concerned about the supply of capital to finance its need for plant replacement and expansion. It represents regulation which may have been inspired by the public interest but which has grown to the degree that it is now working against the public interest by discouraging if not stifling competition in the marketplace.

President Ford takes pride in a reduction of $2,000 in the federal work force under its current authorized size. He has high hopes for weeding out some of the 5,000 different forms which various government agencies demand that citizens fill out and return. This chipping away at the federal edifice can be meaningful, however, only if there is a shift in the philosophy which has been building that edifice to such towering size over the last generation.

If Mr. Ford uses the menace of big government as a campaign theme in 1976, he will not be the first candidate to do so.

O'Dwyer's Find

At this writing, U.S. Treasury officials are feverishly combing their archives to find some scrap of proof that the national government paid back a loan from New York made at the time of the Civil War. When it was revealed the city once sent the Lincoln administration the loan, the interest on which would now compute to more than enough to see the municipality through the next 11 months of payments, the gleam returned to City Council President Paul O'Dwyer's eye.

O'Dwyer composed and sent a letter brimming with righteousness to Treasury Secretary William Simon, not mind you, demanding repayment, but reminding him how generous the people of New York were at Washington's moment of distress. It is as if some tawdry lady of the night, broken down with few remaining workable parts, had just found a 15-year-old photograph of all her delicious pulchritude; she would send it, by heaven she would, to that dandy who'd just straight-armed her on the corner. Such is City Hall's desperation for rectitude.

Really, Treasury ought to save its energy. The Civil War loan, arranged in a gesture to spare the Republic, cannot constitute an admissible parallel to the city's current crunch. And there is every evidence that a federal loan to New York would itself tear what's left in the Republic's fiscal solvency asunder. It would simply obliterate the principle of local fiscal responsibility.

Such a consequence is so painfully obvious that the politicians, funny enough, are getting to ignore reality anew.

An 18th century English pugilist was so insensitive to pain that, for a small sum, he would allow anyone to strike him on the side of the face with all his force.

At one time, moral courage was believed to be in the heart, physical courage in the stomach, wisdom in the head, affection in the kidneys, and spirit in the blood.

Question Box

QUESTION: Without doubt the most idiotic thing I ever read in the Clearing House was someone saying illegal aliens should become citizens after living here three years. How on earth could we know they were illegal in the first place if they didn't tell us?

ANSWER: We do not recall the context in which the statement was made. However, it sounds like some of the current thinking which tends to promote acceptance of present practices, even though they may have been considered wrong at the time in which they were engaged.

A fairly common defense of political violations of legal restriction is that such practice has been engaged in by others, therefore it is acceptable. Some Republicans contended that some of the illegal activities of the Nixon administration should be condoned because they were no worse or even less harmful than some activities of previous administrations. An Orange County official seems to have gained partial exoneration of charges because the acts alleged were "common practice." We suppose the thinking is that the government might as well make the illegal entries legal since they have been accomplished and are "common practice."

How officials will learn about the illegality is outside our knowledge. Frequently such cases are uncovered through an entirely unrelated incident, such as a traffic mishap.

There is still another condition to be considered. The state has set up artificial barriers in the way of boundaries which are designed to prohibit the peaceable passage across those boundaries, and has established citizenship for persons who reside inside their boundaries legally. Politicians then determine who is entitled to a citizen and participate in certain activities. Individuals who believe in freedom question whether such government privileges are of benefit to the people.

The late R.C. Hoiles used to paraphrase French philosopher Frederic Bastiat's dictum on free trade to say that where goods and services people are prohibited from using national boundaries, soldiers will be opposed both tariffs and immigration restriction as barriers to peaceable commerce between nations and their people.

One free man says frankly what he thinks and feels in the midst of thousands who by their actions and words maintain just the opposite. It might be supposed that the man who has frankly expressed his thought would remain isolated, yet in most cases it happens that all, or the majority, of the others have long thought and felt the same as he, only they have not expressed it. And what yesterday was the noble opinion of one man becomes today the general opinion of the majority. And as soon as his opinion is established, at once by imperceptible degrees but irresistibly, the conduct of mankind begins to alter.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON

Hearings Reveal HEW Laxity

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recent hearings on frauds and mismanagement in student loan program demonstrate a laxity at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that borders on incompetence.

The Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee (HEW) headed by Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) established that men were able to take the student loan program for millions of dollars through pay-offs to a federal official, conflicts of interest and thievery.

But, more significant than the corruption at the institution known as West Coast Schools was the testimony on an investigation by HEW after being informed of irregularities.

The responsibility for the weak and indecisive investigation is shared by the HEW audit agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the office of the United States Attorney that rejected prosecution of frauds before any of the key witnesses had been questioned.

The following chronology demonstrates the laxity of HEW investigators and the Federal Bureau of Investigation:

1. In May, 1973, the certified public accountancy firm of Alexander Grant & Company found evidence of diversions of major sums, including a $290,000 check drawn to cash and $265,000 in questionable commissions.

2. In early June, 1973 officials from Alexander Grant obtained further information from a school accounting employee of illegality of the diversions and information that he had documents at home which identified amounts diverted by the top three officials of West Coast Schools.

3. In late June, 1973, the Alexander Grant firm wrote to four top officials of HEW, including Dr. Leonard Spearman, director of the Division of Student Assistance in the Office of Education, and Wedward W. Stepnick, director of the HEW audit agency, spelling out the allegations and stating that documents were available through former employees of the school.

4. In the summer of 1975, Permanent Investigating Subcommittee investigators La Vern J. Duffy and John Walsh questioned the former employees of West Coast Schools and learned that the key witnesses had never been questioned by HEW or the FBI.

5. In hearings on Nov. 17, 1975, documents were produced and two former employees of West Coast Schools testified with direct evidence of pay-offs of $1,000 a month to Jim Hoffe, a senior program officer for student aid in the San Francisco office of HEW's Office of Education, and on major diversions of cash from federal grant funds.

Two key witnesses had never been interviewed by federal officials until the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee questioned them, and one witness said he had been called by an FBI agent and asked about the financial operation of West Coast Schools.

The witness said he told the FBI agent that he did not wish to talk about the operation of the school until he had talked to his lawyer. He said he never heard any more from the FBI.

It was only after the subcommittee started its investigation that HEW launched an investigation of Hoffe, and it wasn't until a week before the public hearing was scheduled that Hoffe agreed with his superior to resign.

Stepnick admitted "sloppy handling of the information in the letter."

"We had the obligation to go after all of the witnesses and documents mentioned by the Alexander Grant auditors, and we didn't do it. I didn't think we had to spend it out to our regional audit agency office, for they had received the same information," Stepnick said.

Stepnick said that his agency found that West Coast Schools had nearly a million dollars in funds that could not be accounted for, and had recommended that the Office of Education take steps to recover those funds but not press for criminal prosecution.

"We had no knowledge of the fraud evidence involving Hoffe because that was being handled by another investigation division," Stepnick said.

"The FBI and the United States Attorney's office also had a good many lost opportunities to make a big fraud case out of this one, and didn't get the job done."

Stepnick said that his audit agency was unaware of the allegations and evidence of fraud involving Hoffe until it was called to his attention by Duffy and Walsh.

"Since then we've taken steps to tighten down our operations so there won't be any repetition of this kind of sloppy handling," Stepnick said.

Congressional investigators point out that as early as August, 1968 a House Government Operations Subcommittee criticized the laxity of the Office of Education and the Department of HEW for its investigations of "conflicts of interest" and fraud in the awarding of grants and contracts.

Problem: Energy Lack Where Most Needed

By RICHARD LESHER
WASHINGTON — The latest reports on Alaskan energy finds are encouraging. The latest reports on getting the fuel out of Alaska are not.

Right now it looks like millions of cubic feet of natural gas may be thrown away — at a time when we are seriously short of it — because of the years required for the Federal Government to make a simple decision to let private investors build a gas pipeline at their own expense.

Here's the situation: The exploration for petroleum in Alaska is also turning up large quantities of natural gas — more than 10 per cent of the known U.S. supply, according to conservative Interior Department estimates.

Many of the gas deposits are mixed in with oil, as is often the case. When one comes out of the ground, so does the other. That's fine if the gas can be piped off to users. But what if there's no pipe? Natural gas is difficult to store. What comes up with the oil must either be distributed or burned off — wasted.

THE FAMED trans-Alaskan oil pipeline is scheduled to begin limited operation in mid-1977. The wells will start pumping then, with or without a gas pipeline.

The four-year period required to build the oil line — the largest construction project in history — is surpassed slightly by the time it took to get all necessary governmental approvals — the largest pile of red tape in history.

If a similar amount of time is needed for approval of a gas pipeline, then three predictions can confidently be made: (1) Virtually all of the gas associated with the first oil through the oil pipeline will be wasted, perhaps for several years. (2) In the meantime, the lower 48 states will experience such severe natural gas shortages that even some private homes will be cut off. (3) The ultimate cost of building the gas pipeline will escalate by several billion dollars, due to inflation.

The history of the oil pipeline furnishes ample evidence in support of point number three. When first proposed in 1969 — as a slightly smaller pipeline — its cost was estimated at $900 million. The current estimate is $5.3 billion, and even that is optimistic.

Two companies are now seeking permission to build gas pipelines. One proposed route would cross Alaska from north to south, near the oil line. The gas would be liquefied at an ice-free port on the south coast and shipped to the lower 48 by special tanker. The other route would cross Canada and feed directly into existing gas pipeline networks here.

EACH PLAN has its advantages and disadvantages. But neither, as far as I can see, has problems great enough to outweigh the critical need to get started — on something. Construction alone will take from three to five years.

Does it have to take another four years to get federal approval? No. But a great deal of effort and leadership and statesmanship would be required to cut the red tape. And I don't see much of it in sight.

Congress has floundered around for two years trying to come up with a national energy policy. The best they've been able to do is recommend a temporary rollback of prices (just long enough to get them through the 1976 elections). Our legislators evidently prefer to let crisis develop, then charge off seeking scapegoats, rather than preventing trouble before it starts.

The problem — in more ways than one — is lack of enough energy where it's needed.

Indian Faith: Their Church Is the World And Worship Is Free

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother died in a hospital a year ago, and one thing still bothers me.

I wish all those ministers and priests who go around to visit the sick would tell them they should prepare to meet their God.

This happened to my mother, and she said she had no idea she was going to die. She did, of course, but I just know that had it not been for the minister's visits, my mother would have lived longer. She just gave up hope.

In the first place, the minister shouldn't even have visited my mother because she didn't belong to his church. She was an American Indian and didn't belong to ANY church.

We Indians believe that our church is the whole world. In all Good Books, it says, "The Lord created heaven and earth," so we worship any time, any place — not in a building, only once a week. And there is never a collection plate. Worship is free.

If you think this will help people to understand the faith of the American Indians, please put this in your column. Thank you.

JIMMY LITTLE TURTLE
HARRISBURG, PA.

DEAR JIMMY: I do and I will. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are planning our wedding for next spring. All of those I've selected for my bridesmaids have accepted. My problem: Two of the girls are very overweight.

After attending a wedding not long ago where four bridesmaids were overweight and four were slim, I decided I didn't want these heavy girls to be in my wedding. The procession was terrible. Fat, skinny, fat, skinny, fat, skinny and finally fat, skinny.

I just can't let my fat friends ruin my wedding. I know I should have thought of it before I asked them, but I didn't. Abby, this will be hard for me since we've all grown up together. How can I tell the news to my two fat friends without hurting their feelings?

FAT-FREE WEDDING

DEAR FAT-FREE: You can't. And if you are that hung up on having uniformly slim bridesmaids, hire professional models. You've made your commitments. Stick with them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a mail carrier, and I'm sure very few people know what their mailmen have to contend with. For example: With the crime rate so high, many people keep mean dogs to protect their property. That's fine, but these dogs should be tied up so they can't attack deliverymen.

My husband averages about one bite a week from dogs whose owners claim they "never bite anyone, but like to make a lot of noise."

Another problem: The mail carrier is charged for all postage due on mail on his route, and if the customer doesn't reimburse him, the money comes out of the mailman's pocket.

You may say, "Two or 3 cents isn't all that much," but my husband has over 300 stops to make some days, and it all adds up.

Care to comment?

PHOENIX WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I am informed that mail carriers are not obligated to deliver mail at homes where watchdogs are allowed to run loose.

As for postage-due mail: True, the carrier is charged for all postage-due mail on his route. He leaves the mail and an envelope stating the amount due, and if the customer doesn't reimburse him, he's out of luck.

Pampa City Credit in Top Condition

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff
With New York City in serious financial trouble — on the brink of default — citizens of other municipalities around the nation, including Pampa, turn to thoughts about their own situation regarding debt and expenditures.

They wonder if city fathers are spending tax money extravagantly and if they are buying and building things they could get along without. They wonder, too, if obligated debts are being paid off when they fall due, if the city stays within its annual budget, if the public purse strings are carefully tied, if elected and appointed city officials keep a watchful eye on income and outgo and if waste is being eliminated wherever possible. In other words, taxpayers wonder could their city possibly be headed for the same fate faced by New York City. The best place to find the answers to most of these questions, according to Pampa City Manager Mack Wofford, is the financial report compiled and published by the Municipal Advisory Council of Texas in Austin. The Texas Municipal Reports are published by the council principally for bond houses to keep them abreast of financial information about Texas cities — information upon which the municipal bond ratings of cities is based. The most recent report on Pampa, issued last Oct. 10, shows the city to be in good shape financially. City Manager Wofford points out that Pampa is in such good shape as far as its finances are concerned that the city currently has an "A" rating with the bond houses. The "A" rating, Wofford said today, is the highest rating a city in Pampa's population category can receive. The Texas Municipal Advisory report also shows the city's payment record on obligated debt is excellent. Pampa has never defaulted on a payment, the report states.

Pampa's financial statement as of last June 30, shows assessed valuation for tax purposes in 1975 was $55,609,050. That is based on 40 per cent of market value. Tax collections for the years 1969 through 1973 in Pampa have averaged better than 96 per cent. Total collections for the 1973 tax year amounted to 99.38 per cent. Taxes for the 1974 year will not be totaled until after the Feb. 1 deadline. On that date the city's total general obligation debt outstanding was $4,190,000. The city manager says when Pampa's self-supporting debt of $1,566,911 and the applicable interest and sinking fund of $885,679 is deducted from that total it leaves the city's net debt at $1,727,410. Using Pampa's 1970 population figure of 21,726, that places the city's net debt at $79.51 per capita. Wofford said he did not have average debt figures per capita on other cities in Pampa's population bracket. He added, however, that figures for cities over 50,000 population show the net debt per capita to be $195. The city manager stated the Municipal Advisory Council's figures include the recent $300,000 bond issue approved early in June by Pampa voters for sewage treatment plant improvements. "We have some money problems and have to do a lot of figuring to stay within the budget," Wofford said, "but they are problems that are not beyond solution. We stay within our operating budget. In the budget adopted for the current fiscal year which started Oct. 1 we did not have a single capital expenditure that would come out of local tax money. Capital items set up for purchase all will be paid for out of revenue sharing funds."

Wofford expalined. "Pampa's city operations all are on a current basis," he said, "and it is the plan of the city governing body to keep them that way." The city manager added that out of Pampa's tax rate of $1.95, the city uses $1.18 to take care of current expenses and the remaining 77 cents goes to pay off bonded indebtedness. Enrollment at the University of Rhode Island was 16,385 this fall.

Convicted in Welfare Fraud

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
A Pampa couple whose combined salaries were estimated at $1,000 monthly pleaded no contest Tuesday in Gray County Court to charges of welfare fraud. Earlie Jackson Jr., 34, and Geraldine Avery Jackson were fined $100 each and granted one year probation terms. They also will be required to repay the $521.38 they received in overpayment in food stamps and aid to dependent children. He is employed by Cabot and is paid $4.22 an hour. She now works for Leisure Lodge for $2 per hour. They have seven children, according to the testimony. John Warner, county attorney, told County Judge Don Cain that records show that Jackson received $142.50 in food stamps "because the condition in your home was that Mrs. Jackson wasn't working." She was overpaid $378.88 in aid to dependent children because she was unemployed, according to Warner. He added that Mrs. Jackson went to work for the Lamplighter Restaurant and failed to report her earning to the welfare department. "You filled out forms indicating no change in work status," Warner said. Mrs. Jackson said the owner was selling out at the time the forms were filled out. "And I was still out of a job," she explained. Jackson said he thought an investigation would reveal that his wife went to work after he was hospitalized with pneumonia and a kidney infection. "But when you were in the hospital Cabot continued to pay you, did they not?" Warner asked.

Jackson said he was paid a percentage of his base pay. "Are you willing to make restitution?" Warner asked. "Sure will," Jackson said. "Don't mean to beat anyone out of anything." In asking how much he could repay, Jackson said he could not repay $100 monthly. "We're having a rough time now getting by," he said. "We have seven children." He explained that he had borrowed so much through the credit union that sometimes when deductions are made there is little remaining in his take-home pay. "Could you borrow the money?" Warner asked. "Just got a loan. Owe the close to $3,000," Jackson answered. Warner explained that under terms of probation the money must be repaid or probation revoked. Jackson explained to the judge that neither he nor his wife are receiving welfare payments at this time. "My wife had two children when I married her and she was getting $47 per month," he said. Judge Cain told the couple that welfare fraud is serious...dishonest—a form of theft. "Welfare is designed for those who fit the guidelines. When recipients don't they are cheating everyone," the judge said. Warner said the punishment range upon conviction for welfare fraud is a maximum fine of $100 and a jail term of six months to two years. He told the court that with the couple's seven children he did not think a jail term would be in the interest of justice if they can live up to the terms of probation.

Demo Hopefuls Split On Major Energy Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic presidential hopefuls split on energy policy Tuesday in seeking support at a meeting of the nation's Democratic governors. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said if he were president, he would sign a major energy compromise bill now shaping up in Congress. But Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., told the state leaders he "certainly would veto" the measure. A third candidate, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, challenged one of the government's pet programs, revenue sharing. They were the first of 10 candidates for the party's 1976 presidential nomination to appear at a day-long session of the Democratic Governors' Conference. About two dozen of the nation's 36 Democratic governors were expected to attend. Bayh and Bentsen attacked the compromise energy bill, expected to go to the White House shortly, because it would lower prices of crude oil before next year's election and then set in motion a mechanism allowing prices to rise later. But Bayh said, "I suppose if I were president I would sign the bill."

"I certainly would veto the bill and try for a compromise," said Bentsen. "This kind of fraudulent political promise—for blatant political gain—will not roll back the price of energy; it can only roll back the number of jobs." Carter said he favored renewal of revenue sharing programs, which are due to expire at the end of next year, but that the money should go directly to local governments and not states. States have their own broad powers to raise funds through taxation, he said, and charged that in the past federal funds had been taken from the poor and used to build "golf courses, dance halls and jailhouses."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, told the governors he favored the energy bill's price rollback provision because it "deals with the current economic situation—it will help control inflation." North Carolina is known as the Tar Heel state.

Palestinian Threat Puts Israeli Troops on Alert

By United Press International — Troops went on alert in northern Israel today in the face of a Palestinian threat to "seek vengeance with all available methods" for air raids that killed and wounded more than 200 persons in Lebanese refugee camps.

Palestinian officials in Beirut said 59 persons — most women and children — were killed and about 150 wounded in bombing and strafing attacks Tuesday on camps near Nabatiyah in southern Lebanon and Tripoli in the North.

Unofficial Lebanese figures put the death toll at 76.

The raids, believed to be reprisals against a Palestinian bombing in Jerusalem Nov. 14, were the deadliest in eleven years of Israeli sorties against Palestinian targets in Lebanon.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the targets were guerrilla bases, including the headquarters of the Syrian-backed Al Saika group near Nabatiyah. It did not elaborate.

Zuheir Mohsen, the military chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, warned Israel to expect reprisals.

"We will seek vengeance with all available methods and reply in the appropriate way as we have done in the past," he said in Beirut.

An Israeli military source said residents of the border settlements were told to spend the night in bomb shelter-like rooms attached to their homes.

Israeli military sources in Tel Aviv said that following the Tuesday attacks, Palestinian guerrillas in southeast Lebanon fired 122mm Katyusha rockets at four villages, slightly wounding two persons.

Incumbent Houston Mayor Wins

HOUSTON (UPI) — Inside the packed campaign hall a long-haired rock band blared and a crowd of well-wishers pulled on draft beer. A banner proclaiming "I Supported Land-slide Freddie" set the tone for youthful mayor's ebullient mood.

Incumbent Fred Hofheinz, 37, flanked by his wife Mac, was on his way to a second two-year term as mayor of the South's largest city.

"How sweet it is," smiling Hofheinz said at election headquarters. "Victory is sweet tonight, partly because we have won by a wider margin than any mayor ever in the city of Houston."

"Tonight is a victory for the city of Houston."

Hofheinz, benefitted by a solid runoff election turnout from minority and upper middle class sections, Tuesday soundly defeated challenger Frank Briscoe for the city's top political job.

Briscoe, who closed the lead to 42 votes with two-thirds of the ballots counted, fell clearly behind when late minority precincts reported.

With all 317 city precincts reporting Hofheinz had 137,456 or 56.7 per cent of the vote to Briscoe's 104,650 or 43.2 per cent.

Briscoe officially conceded defeat two hours after the polls closed.

Hofheinz, the son of the man who built the Houston Astrodome, had cast himself as an architect of growth and economic prosperity and avoided face-to-face confrontations with Briscoe who challenged the mayor's fiscal and management policies.

"We ran an uphill campaign all the way," Briscoe said. "We were running against an incumbent who had all the money he wanted."

Asked if he would run again, Briscoe said: "Tonight is not the night to answer that, but I would say I would be sorely tempted."

Voters encouraged by fair skies and warm weather turned out in moderately heavy numbers and gave Hofheinz unexpected support in the city's affluent sections thought to be more philosophically aligned with Briscoe, a former district attorney and first cousin of Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Both men claimed a large turnout of the city's 600,000 registered voters would give them a victory. A total of 245,114 voters cast ballots in the Nov. 4 election in which Hofheinz received 47.4 per cent of the vote to Briscoe's 31.7 per cent.

During the campaign Briscoe had repeatedly accused the Hofheinz administration of being fiscally irresponsible and leading Houston into a situation like New York City by a 47 per cent spending increase in the past two years.

Legislature Faces Tax Revision Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The legislation necessary to prevent everyone's taxes from spurring upward in January faces two major battles on the House floor, with Republicans trying to attach a ceiling on federal spending and liberals trying to strengthen its tax reform provisions.

Debate was scheduled to begin in the House today on the 674-page tax revision bill. Final votes on amendments and the bill are expected Thursday or Friday.

Before the debate, Republicans were trying to overturn a House Rules Committee decision that denied them the right to offer President Ford's proposed $395 billion spending ceiling as an amendment to the tax bill.

Ford has said he would veto the bill if it does not contain the ceiling on fiscal 1977 spending.

If no bill is passed, 1975 tax cuts will expire Dec. 31 and all income tax withholding rates will rise.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald Alexander said Tuesday Congress already has waited so late that employers will find it impossible to calculate the correct withholding rates for the first six months of the year.

Restaurants Seek Own Garbage Strike Solution

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sardi's restaurant is running out of cans. A MacDonald's night manager says his establishment may have to rent trucks for hauls to New Jersey. The man at the Americana Hotel says, "We can't stand it much longer."

Because of a strike by private sanitation workers, garbage was accumulating today in New York City's basements and alleys at an average of 6,000 tons a day. If it goes on another day, health department spokesmen say, the city may face a health hazard.

It was New York's second garbage men's walkout in six months. But a spokeswoman for the city health department said that, unlike a three-day stoppage by city workers in July, this time "the weather is in our favor — it's cold."

The strike, now in its third day, was staged by Teamsters Local 813, which has 1,700 members in the city. Union representatives and those of 450 private carting companies were to resume negotiations today at the office of state Mediation Board chairman Vincent McDonnell.

The firms pick up an average of 6,000 tons daily, mostly from hotels, restaurants, food-processing plants and similar businesses.

Man Injures Ankle in Train In Canadian

An Amarillo man was injured Tuesday as he stepped from the Super C Santa Fe Freight train at Canadian.

Jim M. Sanchez, 47, of 5120 Benton was in good condition this morning at the Hemphill County Hospital.

Santa Fe officials said he was stepping from an east bound train, possibly at the depot, which was traveling at about three miles per hour when his left ankle gave way and he fell into the side of the train.

Hospital spokesmen said he has no broken bones, but was receiving treatment for possible concussion.

John L. Thomas, 800 N. Somerville, who resigned from the Pampa Police Department last July, announced today he will be a Democratic candidate for constable in Pct 2.

Thomas served the local police department for ten years and prior to that was an MP sergeant with the U.S. Air Force.

The post Thomas will seek currently is held by Bob Watson.

Thomas said he currently is attending Frank Phillips College studying police-related subjects.

PIF Ballots To Be Sent To Members

Ballots for the election of five members to the board of the Pampa Industrial Foundation will go into the mail Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Names of 10 nominees for the posts were announced Tuesday at the annual PIF membership meeting in Coronado Inn.

The five directors to serve three-year terms on the board will be elected from the following list of nominees:

Kirk Duncan, Warren Fatheree, Tim Hoies, W.L. Loving, Ed Myatt, Bob Price, C.E. Steel, Aubrey L. Steele, Floyd Watson and R.D. Wilkerson.

Ballots will be counted at 10 a.m. Monday, Dec. 22 in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Milo Carlson, Rex McAnelly and Ray Kuhn will canvass the election results.

Annual reports of Floyd Watson, treasurer, and president Kay Fancher showed corporation assets totaling $292,819.36.

Ring Christmas Bells

Michael Heath, 9-year-old son of Capt. Bodell Heath of The Salvation Army, got an early start on the annual Christmas Drive Friday, as workmen constructed a booth outside Woolworth's. The Salvation Army raises money for the Pampa's needy by accepting contributions at the three booths in Pampa each year. Other locations are outside Gibsons and Montgomery Wards. The drive officially begins this weekend and will continue through Christmas. (Pampa News photo by Robert Echols)

Eight Men Enter Pleas To DWI, Check Charges

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Eight pleas were entered Tuesday in Gray County Court to charges which ranged from driving while intoxicated to theft by check.

Gray County Judge Don Cain heard pleas of no contest or guilty and imposed the sentences.

Vernon Johnston of Pampa pleaded no contest to charges of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $200 plus $53 court costs and granted a six month probation term.

Bobby Joe Stowe, Skellytown, also charged with driving while intoxicated, was fined $200 and granted a six months probation term. He will pay $53 court costs.

Phillip Keith Taylor of Pampa was fined $200 and court costs and granted six months probation for possession of less than two ounces of marijuana.

Jessie F. Ortega of Canadian was fined $200 plus court costs and given a six month probation term on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Terry Phillips of Perryton was fined $10 and court costs on charges of theft by check. He already had made restitution.

Phillips told the court that during the time the check was given he had a child custody case on his mind.

"I let a lot of things go," he said.

"Are you with your family now?" the judge inquired.

"It wasn't my child. It was my brother's," he answered.

"I wasn't trying to swindle these people," he explained.

Johnny Saenz of 405 Warren was fined $50 and court costs and sentenced to three days in county jail on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Two others pleaded no contest to charges of welfare fraud. (See story on page 3)

Judge Cain explained to those charged with DWI that it is a serious offense and that probation means that they are not allowed "even one drink of beer."

In one case the judge said the officers' report showed the defendant failed to drive in a single lane. Probation fees are $10 monthly.

Senate Secretary Denies Charges

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Senate Secretary Charles A. Schnabel denies one of his employes painted a rent house while he was on the senate payroll.

Schnabel said the senate employment of Kenneth H. Stephens of Jacksonville had no connection with his painting Schnabel's rent house. Stephens was the first witness subpoenaed in the investigation of Schnabel which began Tuesday under the direction of District Attorney Robert O. Smith.

Stephens was paid $128 to $397 as a parttime Senate employe for the first nine months of 1971.

Last week UPI reported at least five Senate employes worked at Schnabel's farm on days they were paid as state employes.

Schnabel said Stephens was supposed to paint the rent house in return for living there rent free.

Police Report Dog Shot Inside Yard

The Pampa Police Department received a report Tuesday that someone had shot a dog which was confined to its owner's fenced yard.

Fred Gillum of 432 Pitts submitted the report and said he took the dog to a veterinarian who said the shot was fired from a pellet gun.

Salvation Army Offers Christmas Aid

Applications for Christmas assistance will be received at the local Salvation Army headquarters, 701 S. Cuyler, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays through Dec. 15.

The announcement was made today by Capt. Bodell Heath of the Pampa headquarters.

Capt. Heath said the Salvation Army will operate as a clearing house for agencies who wish to help someone during the holidays.

For example, he said, if a resident knows of one he or she would like to help, Salvation Army officials will determine if another person has undertaken that project.

The clearing house will avoid duplication of services and serve as a procedure through which more persons may be assisted during the holiday season.

Schnabel said Stephens failed to finish the painting and "I ran him off."

Stephens declined to talk to reporters regarding his two-hour meeting with Travis County investigator Jack Montague. He gave prosecutors a signed statement on his dealings with Schnabel.

Are there any exercises recommended to strengthen feet of babies before they walk?

I have heard that in Scotland there has been quite a movement to encourage parents to regard the importance of early foot exercise. In America we devote all of our attention to babies' hands while we conceal the feet in shoes and under blankets as if the pinkies were indecent.

Foot exercise is the same simple grasping action which delights us when a baby grasps our little finger. Touching a baby's toes with your finger will encourage toe function and if you keep the baby's feet uncovered the baby will continue the exercises with little or no encouragement.

It may cause eyebrows to flutter when a baby reaches for a toy with his toes but it is good foot health.

Terrorists Hold Hostages, Train

BEILEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — Five heavily armed terrorists holding scores of hostages aboard a hijacked train opened fire on a mediator today, then released a captive bearing demands for food, medicine and a new engineer.

The hijackers, who have already killed two men, including the original engineer, fired three shots at the unidentified mediator when he tried to hail them on a bullhorn from a car 350 yards away.

The mediator's first call drew a slight stir from the train, stopped in flat, open Dutch farmland about 75 miles from northeast of Amsterdam. A second hail brought three shots, one missing the car by only ten yards.

The gunmen, believed to be

South Moluccans born in Holland, killed at least two men when they seized the train Tuesday. The mediator was described only as a leader in Holland's South Moluccan community.

Justice Ministry spokeswoman Toos Faber said the hijackers later released a hostage with demands for a megaphone, food, drink and drugs, including insulin for a diabetic hostage and medication for an epileptic.

Ms. Faber said the terrorists also demanded a new engineer to replace the dead man, shot when the train was seized at midmorning Tuesday.

"We are not pointblank saying no...we are leaving the matter open," Ms. Faber said. She said the engineer would have to be a volunteer and the hijackers would have to make clear why they wanted the new driver.

"Where to and how far they want to move is not known," she said. "But they want to move."

Ms. Faber said the government was satisfied with the new developments. "In any hostage affair I think that there is one predominant question, that contact be maintained," she said.

The gunmen originally demanded a bus to the airport and transport out of the country.

Ms. Faber said the number of hostages on the train was estimated at 75 "based on information (from) relatives."

A specially trained marine anti-terrorist unit joined some 150 policemen armed with automatic weapons surrounding the two car-electric train.

Police said the terrorists — wearing wool masks — were armed with three submachine guns, at least one pistol and rifle and possibly explosives.

They were believed to be part of a separatist band that has turned to violence to emphasize demands for an end to Indonesia's 26-year control of the islands, formerly part of the Dutch East Indies.

Before darkness fell, they draped packages that appeared to contain explosives on the outside of one of the cars.

"They shoot at anything moving in the vicinity," said a Dutch official.

After commandeering the Groningen-to-Amsterdam train, the five killed the engineer and a man who tried to escape, and dumped their bodies on the tracks.

Police said six persons — all men — scrambled to safety during the siege.

The escapees told police there were 70 passengers aboard, including about 20 in the rear car.

Justice Ministry spokeswoman Toos Faber said the passengers had no food and spent the night in the dark. The train was heated.

She said there were a number of children aboard.

"We are treating the train as a cupboard full of the most precious porcelain," Ms. Faber said.

The hijackers released two women and a child, giving one woman a note demanding a bus to carry them to Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport and a flight out of the country. They later released an ill, elderly woman.

The ultimatum said the hijackers had explosives and demanded the hostages accompany them to their unspecified destination.

Their letter made no reference to South Moluccan demands for independence.

Murder Suspect Jailed

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A 34-year-old suspect has been charged with capital murder in the weekend slaying of patrolman Henry P. Mailloux, buried Tuesday in services attended by more than 1,800 persons.

Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore ordered Henry Marlinez Porter held without bond in the case.

Porter was arrested Monday in a San Antonio apartment complex by a team of 10 officers who converged on one of the units. They found him hiding in a bathroom with a wound in his left side.

Marriage 'Writes'

What's it like writing a book with your spouse? Jean Baer and Dr. Herbert Fensterheim, co-authors of "Don't Say Yes When You Want To Say NO," sum it up in one word: trauma.

Both Learned in Writing Book

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
IF THEY'D THOUGHT about Gilbert and Sullivan, two of the most famous collaborators ever, Jean Baer, author, and Dr. Herbert Fensterheim, clinical psychologist and behavior therapist, might never have written a book together.

You Want to Say NO," was going into a fourth printing. It was exciting news, although Jean has enjoyed this kind of success before.

He preferred working at night; she's a jump-out-of-bed-at-6-in-the-morning-and-get-cracking type. He insisted on taping his thoughts; she refused to listen.

He wrote down his thoughts in longhand and Jean sifted, questioned, translated into laymen's terms and wrote. His main concern involved ethical considerations and getting ideas down precisely; hers was to write in a journalistic make-it-easy-to-read-and-understand style.

tonight and tomorrow night," she announced. "Sure," he said. Somewhat astonished she posed the big question: "How come you've never made dinner before?"

THURSDAY, DEC. 4
Your birthday today: Apply what you've been taught by recent experience, now that you have a few months in which to reorganize your thinking and with it, your daily living habits. Your energy seeks satisfying outlets and arouses a yen for adventure. Relationships expand, diversify and leave you with choices. Today's natives devote themselves to the practical arts and trades, are pleasant and fond of athletics.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your difficult but exciting task now is make your dreams come true. Invite new people along in your search for perfection, but center your daily living on healthy self-interest.
Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Be alert for favorable publicity; let your skills be visible as you do a good job. Temptations toward shortcuts are best channeled into late-day experiments to test mushrooming ideas.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Everyone has a different comment to offer. Stay out of the middle; don't boast or make premature announcements. Candor settles family tiffs. You gain perspective on your romance.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Regular routines are more pressing and productive but less glamorous. Unpredictable people wander in and out. Capitalize on the confusion they spread, but be low-key and discreet.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Work is interrupted by news, discussion and diversions. Nobody has the story right, but that's not your responsibility. Just keep your actions clear and in line with your conscience.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Accept today's range of human mood and frailty as normal and make the best of it. A revision of your opinions is overdue. New information comes to your attention.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Influential people are at times helpful. Concentrate on present problems rather than on speculative enterprises. Don't take any casual promises seriously.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: There's more to current reports than meets the eye. Give consideration to the causes behind your present situation. Try to clarify and improve it by striving to become a stronger person.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Pride and haste spoil your aim and lead to rash moves. Pause for meditation. The efforts of friends and loved ones only seem to upset things more.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You finally get some of your ideas accepted. Concentrate on the welfare of family and community. Reconciliations and renewed ties are favored.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You tend to be distracted and to scatter time and energy. Tell the story exactly as it is, and keep to essentials today.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Opportunity exists for new business and further training. You have a better chance of succeeding if you stick to well-known routines and avoid new methods.

Sominex Drug Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A sleep aid drug called Sominex 2 has been recalled from the market because it contained a drug sold only by prescription and under medical supervision, according to the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA said Monday it had ordered the J.B. Williams Co., Inc., New York, to halt promotion and distribution of Sominex 2 and to recall outstanding stocks. The company said it had cooperated. Sominex, another sleep aiding product, was not involved in the recall.

The content of the product in question included diphenhydramine, which, when made available through prescriptions, also carries a warning label. Diphenhydramine users are advised against use with alcohol or depressants of the central nervous system, against use during pregnancy or nursing, or

Fathers Want Facts on Death

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The executive director of Texas Fathers for Equal Rights called today for grand jury action and full public disclosure of the facts of a case in which a man was fatally beaten by an off-duty policeman while trying to visit his 14-year-old daughter.

"As far as we're able to determine, he was trying to be a good father," said Ed Cullum of Dallas. "He died because the divorce courts deprived him of his rights as a father."

Richard Reed, 33, died of a ruptured spleen and Dr. Ruben Santos, Bexar County Medical Examiner, ruled homicide in the case on Nov. 7.

However, Cullum said the case has not been submitted to a grand jury and Ptn. Robert Kraus, a member of the police domestic relations division, still was on duty.

"He's still an active patrolman in San Antonio right now despite his track record," Cullum said. "We feel it is mandatory that the police department make his record public."

Basil Archey, local chairman of the organization which is pushing for equal rights for divorced fathers, charged the police internal affairs division has a "fat file" on Kraus but will not make it public.

Kraus was no-billed by a grand jury for a May 24, 1974, off-duty incident in which he allegedly shot Richard Jenkins to death at a saloon and was suspended 60 days without pay following an incident last May 23 when he allegedly broke the jaw of John D. Ledford, 24, in a fight at another bar.

Cullum said he had been unable to find out the circumstances surrounding Reed's death, why Kraus was involved in keeping Reed from seeing his daughter, or whether Reed had a history of violent behavior. The daughter had been temporarily removed from Reed's custody by court order while a divorce action was pending.

"We know of no reason to think he (Reed) was a violent person," Cullum said. "Whatever his background was, he was executed without his day in court."

Cullum said the incident was indicative of situations created by domestic relations courts which do not take rights of both parents into consideration in divorce actions.

"We would also like to see a change in the status and environment of divorced fathers," Cullum said. "A temporary custody order had denied Richard Reed his constitutionally protected rights as a father."

Groom, Celina To Meet in Semifinals

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Groom coach Don Sessom, from the stands, watched Celina bombard Lefors 55-6 in the state semifinals last season.

Celina is back, only this time Sessom won't be watching only as a spectator. The Bobcats and Groom Tigers meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Vernon, the site of last year's semifinal rout.

The winner will play either Big Sandy or Moody, depending on who wins Friday night in Crockett, for the state championship next week at a site later to be determined.

Celina and Big Sandy won last year's semifinal contests, then battled to a 0-0 tie to each earn a share of the state championship.

"We were co-champions," Celina coach

G.A. Moore said Tuesday in a gentle, southern drawl. "It was a disappointment. We wanted to win so bad that we took it as a loss. When you want something so bad and work hard for it and don't get it, it's a disappointment.

"This year has been a pleasant year as far as coaching. We weren't picked to go anywhere."

Celina lost 12 players off last season's co-championship team. The Bobcats, although inexperienced, have fashioned a perfect 13-0 record and seem to be close to the caliber of last year's outfit.

"We're young — this is really a rebuilding year," Moore said. "We've started as many as eight sophomores. Plus, we've had a lot of injury problems."

How is it then, that the Bobcats have won 13 straight, including a 21-0 rout over

Gorman last week in the quarterfinals.

"Our defense is what's carried us this year. Of course, our defense was really our strong point last year. A lot of people didn't know that. We're not very big. We're quick — that's been our main asset. We've tried to be quick."

Defensively, Celina's biggest player is right linebacker Londro Butler (6-2, 185), who also happens to be the best athlete on the team, according to Moore.

"He's a dandy. We think an awful lot of him. We've got him up for all-state honors on defense."

Butler was a starter last season. The big senior also plays on the offensive line, starting at right tackle.

The other linebacker is Randy Nelson, (180).

"We feel like our linebackers are the key," Moore said.

Celina has yielded a total of 59 points, an average of less than five per outing. However, in Groom (12-0-1), the Bobcats will fact an offense which has averaged over 30 per game and rolled up 300 yards in last week's 24-13 win over Jayton in the quarterfinals last week.

Fullback Chris Britten leads the Tiger charge, with 184 carries for 1,428 yards and 15 touchdowns. Halfback Thomas Reed has added 81 carries for 773 yards, good for 9.5 yards per carry, while halfback John Krizan, just a sophomore, has 136 rushes for 986 yards.

Britten and Reed are juniors. The elder statesman in the backfield is senior quarterback Bimbo Bivens, a bruising runner who has been able to complete passes in critical situations.

Groom's offensive explosiveness has been due, in part, to the line, which averages 200 pounds. Center Jay Witt carries 250 pounds, tackles Art Brown and Rick Peather go 200 and 232 and guards Mike Koetting and Mike Britten each weigh 190.

Linebacker Chris Britten is averaging 25 tackles a game, and Bivens, a safety, ar other stalwarts on defense.

Sessom hopes his team's size and backfield quickness will be enough to whip Celina, which doesn't have much size but should be the quickest team Groom will have faced this season.

"We'll run right at them," Sessom said. "We're gonna have to. I don't think we can try to outrun them around the ends. We can beat them if we do a good job blocking...if our kids come off the line and go get people."

"They (Bobcats) stunt so much. They're disciplined. One thing about Celina — they hit you like those air hammers."

Sessom compared Celina's discipline to Groom's.

"There coach gave us a compliment. He was glad to see that there was another team in Texas that had short hair. In fact he thought our hair was shorter than his. Our kids do that on their own — we don't have to tell them."

Bum, Sid Disagree on Runner

HOUSTON (UPI) — The problems of inheriting someone else's ballclub are many, says first year head coach Bum Phillips, but none are so great that they cannot be rectified.

When Phillips took over the Houston Oilers' head coaching job from Sid Gillman after the 1974 NFL season, one of the first things he did was to reassure young running back Ronnie Coleman.

"If there was one point I disagreed with Sid about it was Ronnie," said Phillips this season. "Sid didn't think Ronnie was a starter. I do."

Following Sunday's game at Cincinnati, Coleman leads the Oilers with 611 yards on 132 carries. That's 4.6 yards per run.

Coleman is happy. Phillips is happy. And the rest of the Oilers are happy.

Not exactly.

Now, in the wake of some drowned Houston playoff hopes, Phillips said there is another of Sid Gillman's legacies he would like to put to rest.

"I've said it before," said Phillips, "Paul Brown is not senile.

"Paul Brown is one fine football coach. He always has been. His record bears that out. And as long as he is in coaching, his record will continue to bear that out."

Gillman called Brown "senile" during the 1974 season when Gillman's Oilers beat the Bengals twice. Cincinnati reversed the scores this season, and with a 24-19 win over Phillips' Oilers Sunday all but terminated Houston's playoff dreams.

If Brown still is mad at the Oilers, Phillips seemed to be saying, then he should track down Gillman and not his team.

Three games remain in the

Dolphin Club In Dallas Meet

Seven Pampa Dolphin Swim Club members travel to Dallas Friday for a three-day meet at Loos Pool.

Pampa's 10- and -under boys relay team of Clay Douglass, Richie Hill, Red Steger and David Dawson has the opportunity in the meet to set a new West Texas A&A medley record.

The following weekend, the Dolphin Swim Club will compete in an "A" meet at the University of Oklahoma in Herman.

Nineteen Pampa swimmers entered the Lubbock Thanksgiving Invitational Swim Meet at Texas Tech University. Eight teams from the West Texas AAU Association entered the meet, in which Pampa placed third.

Lubbock and the Amarillo Maverick Club were first and second, respectively. Pampa's finish was the best performance for a local team in several years, according to Coach Malcolm Douglass.

Douglass captured six first-place medals and one for second place. Steger earned three seconds and two thirds and Hill had one first, one second, a fourth and a fifth. The relay team of Douglass, Hill, Steger and Dawson was first in both the 200 free and 200 medley events.

Pampa swimmers who improved over previous years in the meet, earning "A" and "AA" times, were Ronnie

Deficit Catches up with WTSU

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

A man once wrote, "For all we take we must pay, but the price is cruel high."

No, it wasn't Gene Mayfield, athletic director at West Texas State University in Canyon, who wrote it — but the statement certainly applies to his money-losing athletic program.

Is Mayfield to blame?

"Not in the sense of overspending. West Texas State has stayed within its budget each year since Mayfield took over the athletic directorship five years ago. It is not overspending or wastefulness that has created the crisis, which may result in serious cutbacks or in leaving the NCAA to join the less prestigious and less expensive NIAA.

The West Texas State board of regents, including such honorables as Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Max Sherman, state senator, meets at 1:30 p.m. Friday to decide what steps must be taken to balance a budget which has been operating deeply in the red for the past several years.

"We have never exceeded our approved budget," Mayfield said. "A lot of people think that this thing is because of poor administration. But we have always, in the four or five years I've been here, stayed within our budget."

The problem lies in gate receipts. There just haven't been any...uh, many.

The Missouri Valley Conference, before admitting West Texas State into its ranks, asked for projected attendance figures. WT officials said that by the 1975-76 school year, enrollment would be 15,000.

There are 6,500 students at West Texas State — more than 8,000 below the predicted figure. Normally, when you have few students, your attendance figures are low. And when you have small turnouts, your gate receipts are low. And when you have little more — year after year after year — you are in a hole.

"I can best put it this way," explained Mayfield. "For the past 10 years, West Texas has had problems in generating enough revenue to pay for the programs they've got."

"Now that we've reached the point in tie that it cannot be made up, we face a crisis. We're either gonna have to operate with a balanced budget or face some other alternative."

Friday, the regents will seek a ladder to climb out of the hole. Probably, it will be a good, old-fashioned belt-tightening — cut a little here and little there until that deficit figure of around $150,000 drops considerably.

But when a group of anti-spending regents gets together, anything is possible. Regents sometime decide to drop football. Or leave the NCAA. Mayfield, among others, dreads the thought.

"The NIAA? That's up to the regents."

Mayfield said. "I really doubt if any of the regents wants to do that. Dropping sports is one of the last alternatives the regents will consider. I think they'll want to look at other possibilities first."

"I haven't talked to them but I have a feeling they'll let us go along roughly with what we're doing."

Mayfield has a possible solution.

"It's gonna take fans but I would have to add that most small schools across the nation operate on contributions. It's gonna take rational people that realize if they want the thing, all the money has got to be raised."

"Our contributions from the Buffalo Club have been around $50,000. I don't think the money we would have to have to operate on a break — even basis the following year would have to be outlandish figures."

"Let's say our deficit this year is gonna be around $150,000."

That means $100,000 must be raised from sources other than the Buffalo Club (WT's booster club). Which, in the university's case, might present a problem.

Interest in Buffalo athletics seems to be at an all-time low. Sports events just aren't drawing like they once did. Take away the Buffalo Club members (who are already contributing) from the stands and that leaves even fewer in attendance.

There aren't many fans. Where are the contributions going to come from?

Selmon Wins Outland Honor

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The Football Writers of America today selected Oklahoma defensive tackle Leroy Selmon winner of the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding interior lineman.

Selmon, a cat-quick 256-pounder, led a list of 26 All-America honorees selected by the writers. Notre Dame's Steve Niehaus was runnerup for the Outland.

Selmon said it was "a big surprise, a pleasant surprise, I just feel really, really great about it. It tickled me to death.

"If I didn't have classes I probably wouldn't be here," he said from his dorm room. "But just winning it is celebration enough. I can't be any happier."

The team was chosen by a committee meeting in Chicago following a preliminary vote by the association's 1,060 members and announced in Oklahoma City by Volney Meace of the Oklahoma City Times, secretary-treasurer of the writers association.

The writers picked four running backs — two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State, Ricky Bell of Southern California, Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh and Chuck Muncie of California. Marty Akins of Texas was selected quarterback.

Oklahoma running back Joe Washington made the team as a kick return specialist. Other specialists were New Mexico placekicker Bob Berg and Ohio State punter Tom Skadany.

Griffin, Washington, Skadany and Alabama defensive lineman Leroy Cook were the only repeaters from 1974.

Top-ranked Ohio State placed four players on the team, with offensive lineman Ted Smith and defensive back Tim Fox joining Griffin and Skadany.

Besides Oklahoma, schools having two honorees were Nebraska with center Rik Bonness and defensive back Wonder Monds and Penn State with offensive lineman Tom Rafferty and linebacker Greg Buttle.

The 26 players represented 19 schools.

The Outland Trophy winner is decided primarily by a vote of the membership and finalized by the All-America committee.

Presiding at the Chicago meeting was FWAA president Gus Schrader of the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gazette. Committee members were Joe Concannon, Boston Globe; Jennings Culley, Richmond News-Leader; Alf Van Hoose, Birmingham News; Orville Henry, Arkansas Gazette; Bob Owens, Lincoln Star; John Bansch, Indianapolis Star; Regis McAuley, Tucson Daily Citizen, and Loei Schrader, Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram.

Odds Even for Pokes

DALLAS (UPI) — If a person is looking for a wager it is always best to skip Tom Landry. The prospective bettor is not going to get any action with the Dallas Cowboys head coach.

But Landry played Jimmy the Greek Tuesday and quoted some odds on the Dallas chances for making the NFL playoffs.

"They're about even," Landry said.

And that's a pretty good assessment.

Dallas currently is tied for NFC East with St. Louis a game ahead of Washington and to wrap up a playoff spot the Cowboys must win one of its next two crucial games—against the Cardinals on the road this Sunday or against the Redskins the following Saturday at home.

A split of those games seems to be a likely 50-50 proposition and it becomes even more so considering the closeness of the games involving the teams earlier this year.

"I don't think we are any better than those two teams right now. And I don't think they are any better than we are."

And while Landry was setting odds, he went ahead and made some on the chances of Dallas sweeping those two games.

"We played both in overtime, won one (against St. Louis) and lost one (to Washington). That's about as even as you can get. But there's one thing for sure. We can't sweep them if we don't win the one on Sunday."

Dallas' first meeting with the Cardinals — on the second weekend of the season — ended in a 37-31 decision in overtime at Texas Stadium.

"I think we have become a more consistent ball club since then," Landry said. "The addition of Preston Pearson (at running back) has helped."

Actually, this club has played close to its capabilities all year. Every team is going to get beat every now and then. But up to now we have not had a game where we have been really beaten badly.

"We haven't had a game like, say, the Cardinals had last week against Buffalo. Some teams we have had had, good teams, have been really beaten in the past."

"Our youth might have had something to do with the lack of mental slump. We have had good morale all year."

"Our offense has not been making too many errors of late. We had two interceptions last week (against the New York Giants), but before that we had been playing pretty consistent offense."

"And we are beginning to get better on defense. We are beginning to keep people out of the end zone."

After having given up more than 30 points for three weeks in a row, the Cowboys have allowed only two touchdowns and two field goals the past two weeks against Philadelphia and New York.

the same 2-1 win-loss records in the group.

Nastase must defeat Adriano Panatta of Italy in Wednesday's only meaningful match. In the other, Solomon takes on Mexico's Raul Ramirez with both players knowing they already have been eliminated.

Nastase has played the Italian only once this year, losing 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-1 to him in the French Open.

"This match means a lot to me because it is the end of the year and I don't have anything to show for it," said Nastase after his narrow win over Orantes.

Borg's win over Solomon was a tedious baseline affair on the slow synthetic surface of the Royal Tennis Hall but there never was any question that the 19-year-old Swede would win. He went to 5-1 in each set before twice dropping his own service on the point of victory. But his game was too polished for Solomon who has appeared slightly out of his depth in this eight-day tournament.

Borg Surges Ahead In Masters Tourney

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg became the second player to qualify for the semifinals and the Nastase shook off his "bad guy" image to clamber back with a chance Tuesday on the third day of the $130,000 Masters tennis tournament.

Borg eliminated Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., 6-2, 6-2 in the round-robin event to join Argentina's Guillermo Vilas as a certain semi-finalist in the Blue Group.

But Nastase's comeback 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Spain's Manuel Orantes threw the White Group wide open and left him with a chance of winning the $40,000 first prize despite his disqualification for bad behavior Sunday against Arthur Ashe.

Ashe, Orantes and Nastase each has a chance of making the two vacant places in the last four because of the complicated qualifying system which will be put into operation if all three, have

Pampa Trips Perryton

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Richard Lane scored 19 points in the first half as Pampa rolled to a 42-21 lead at halftime and coasted to a 68-41 rout over winless Perryton Tuesday in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Lane led all scorers in the game with a personal career best of 21 points.

The Harvesters are now 6-1 for the season, while Perryton is winless in four outings. The teams meet again on Jan. 9 in Perryton.

Pampa led by as many as 29 points late in the third quarter and early in the fourth.

Harvester coach Robert McPherson began heavy substituting with 2:54 left in the third period as it seemed Perryton was severely outmanned.

Perryton jumped out a 2-1 lead on an 18-foot jump shot by Mike Tarvin early in the game, then increased it to 4-1 on a rebound shot by 6-6 Dane Kerns.

Pampa, on a pair of layups by Lane then a free shot by the 6-1 senior, recaptured the lead and was never headed for the remainder of the contest.

Lane scored nine points in the first period to pace the hosts to a 16-11 advantage going into the second quarter. Roger Reiser kept the Rangers close in the first quarter with seven points, including five on foul shots.

Pampa outscored Perryton 26-10 in the second stanza for a 42-21 halftime lead. Lane scored 10 points in the quarter, while 6-6 Winslow Ellis added six and Brian Bailey four.

Pampa committed only four turnovers in the first half, one in the second quarter, and wound up the game with 13. Perryton had only 16 turnovers in the game as the teams played virtually errorless ball.

Pampa's rebounding muscle and a half-court pressure defense were the difference. Jewell Landers came off the bench for the Harvesters and pulled down 10 rebounds, while Donnie Hughes and substitute guard Rayford Young managed eight and seven caroms, respectively, for the winners.

Pampa, for the game, held a 47-43 rebounding edge.

The Harvesters, although scoring only 14 points in the third period, took a 56-29 lead into the fourth. Both teams scored 12 points in the final period.

Every Pampa except Forrest Taylor, who was out with an illness, saw playing time, while Perryton coach Allen Simpson used 11 players, substituting freely in the second half.

"We played well probably early," said Simpson, who enjoyed a successful tenure at Spearman prior to coming to Perryton prior this year. "Pampa played super."

McPherson also thought the Harvesters played well.

Hayes Praises Line For Helping Griffin

NEW YORK (UPI) — The player and his coach were here Tuesday as history was made when Ohio State's Archie Griffin won his second Heisman Trophy. But the other Buckeye players who made the award possible, according to both Griffin and his coach, Woody Hayes, should have been there as well.

"I imagine the strength of our blocking line was a considerable factor in getting him here," said Hayes at the announcement of Griffin's repeat victory, a feat never before duplicated in the 41-year history of the award.

"We use it as a selling point on good backs, I'll tell you that." "This is an award for the whole team," said a smiling Griffin, posing before the bronze Heisman statue. "My name is on it but I couldn't have done it without the other guys. I wasn't shooting for this but for the national championship."

Griffin won the award last year as a junior, only the fifth underclassman to be so honored. Then, it was Southern California senior Anthony Davis who was Griffin's chief competitor; this year it was two West Coast running backs—California's Chuck Muncie and USC's Ricky Bell—that were left far behind in the voting. Griffin's 1,800 points were more than his two runnerups combined: Muncie had 730 and Bell 708.

The top six vote-getters played running back. Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett was fourth, followed by Oklahoma's Joe Washington and Florida's Jimmy DuBose.

The 21-year-old Columbus, Ohio native led the 11-0 and No. 1-ranked Buckeyes by gaining 1,357 yards this season for a 5,177 four-year total—an NCAA career record. He averaged 5.5 yards a carry and each game averaged 123.4 yards.

OTIS NACE INSURANCE

Otis Nace, Chartered Life Underwriter

Otis Nace, Chartered Life Underwriter, has been an agent for the New York Life Insurance Company since 1964. His office is adjacent to his home at 829 N. Nelson, thus making his services available to clients 24 hours daily.

New York Life offers individual and group life insurance, individual and group health insurance, individual and group annuities, and individual and group pensions.

It is an old line company, having been in business since 1845. It has insured many historical figures, including General George Custer and many of his men, paying the claims the day after the Battle of the Little Big Horn, Nace said.

Nace is president of the Pampa Rotary Club and of the Top of Texas Life Underwriters. He is also secretary-treasurer of the Amarillo Chapter of Chartered Life Underwriters.

"One of my greatest pleasures, in these days of inflation, is to be able to point out that life insurance premiums have declined steadily in the last 10 years — and now life insurance costs less than it ever has," Nace said.

Oil Spills Now Can Be Fingerprinted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal enforcers of pollution laws can "fingerprint" oil now in a

DMF Auxiliary Resets Meet

The Cities Service DMF Auxiliary meeting scheduled for Tuesday has been changed to 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, according to Mrs. Floyd King, club reporter.

The meeting will include a salad supper and Christmas gift exchange.

technique to help them find out who fouls the sea.

The most visible recent use of new methods of identifying oil from spills came in a 16-week investigation that picked one suspected tanker out of 247 possibilities in connection with a Florida oil spill.

The master of the suspected polluter was arrested and charges were filed against the company that owned the vessel. The charge: the ship illegally dumped 5,000 gallons of crude oil into the ocean not far from the shoreline of Key West.

The heart of the investigative technique is a scientific tool that has long been used for other things—chromatography.

It consists of separating the parts of a mixture or solution by allowing it to flow over a medium, usually in a column. As the parts in effect adhere to parts of the column, they can be identified.

In the case of oil, gas chromatography is used: an inert gas pushes the oil sample along the column. The compounds that make up oil, such as hydrocarbons, aromatics, sulphurs and asphalt, "stick" to the long column at different places and for different periods.

Detectors find out what compounds are in the oil in what proportions and a strip chart records the places and times the compounds show up on the graph. The chart, with peaks and valleys something like a cardiogram, becomes the "fingerprint" of the oil.

Chemist Dennis G. Revell, of the Environmental Protection Agency's laboratory in Athens, Ga., says the chart is about as distinctive as a fingerprint because "various oils have different proportions and different types" of components.

Generally, the Coast Guard does the police work, taking samples of oil from a spill, checking tankers' logs for times and places on their routes, and then taking samples of oil from the tankers who may have been in the area of the spill.

The samples go to the EPA laboratories—there are various ones around the country—for the gas chromatographic analysis. There, the chemists can match up the chart from the spilled oil with the chart for a certain suspect.

Revell says the technique came into frequent use only with the recent years' increase in concern about oil spills. To supplement what the analysis tells chemists about the make-up of oil, he says, there is a separate technique for identifying the concentrations of nickel and vanadium in oil.

Floating in the ocean may dilute the oil or break it down somewhat, Revell says, but the ratio of nickel and vanadium in each type remains the same.

Most of incidents of ocean oil pollution come from unauthorized pumping of bilges, the EPA says. But of course, the more spectacular spills come from tanker collisions and breakups, which are much less frequent.

For investigators, finding the source of illegal—as opposed to accidental—spills is a difficult task. "Fingerprinting" oil is only a way to find the possible source of a spill, and not a proof of why the spill occurred.

But, as Lt. Cmdr. John

MacDonald of the Coast Guard's pollution enforcement branch says, "The message is, you cannot spill oil in our waters indiscriminately any more. It (the identification technique) is going to make it extremely more difficult to get away with it."
