Current 'Happening' in Peking

By WILLIAM RUSHER President Ford's forthcoming trip to Peking is just the latest in an interminable series of presidential excursions designed, not to accomplish anything, but simply to convey a sense of motion and achievement on the part of our chief executives. Strictly speaking it is not an "event"; it is merely a "happening" - one of those carefully - staged tableaus which, if they never took place at all would leave no very lonely place against the

The supreme impresario of this sort of empty spectacle was Richard Nixon, who landed in Peking aboard Air Force One, in full view of this country's TV sets, at exactly 10 P.M. Eastern Standard Time (9 P.M. CST, 8 P.M. MST. 7 P.M. PST) - or . in other words, in prime time. (He also delayed his take - off from Anchorage on the return journey for a full nine hours, to duplicate that feat upon his arrival at Andrews Air Force base in suburban Maryland. One begins to understand why the media resented him so.)

Mr. Ford clearly believes in this sort of thing, gadding about' from Tokyo to Salzburg and from Helsinki to Rambouillet, for all the world as if everything

Any major unswing in U.S. relations with Red China must involve a corresponding adownswing in U.S. relations with the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan The relationship is precisely that of two people on a seesaw: one can't go up unless the other goes down. Molding Social Behavior

By C.R. BATTEN "Part of the genius of American democracy was the creation of the public school to educate an informed citizenry. Schools that would be open to the public were one of the great ventions for making a body politic responsive to its nembers," wrote Mary Alice White, professor of psychology and education at Columbia

University, in the December issue of Not Man Apart. Professor White believes that the American public school is responsive to the perceived needs of its tax - paying citizens" - a belief that can certainly be debated, but one which I do not intend to take on here. Since schools are 'responsive," says White, there is "little likelihood that a push for a major change will take place.

Therefore, White proposed a School for Planetary Citizenship" that "would anticipate appropriate future behaviors that will be needed if we are to survive as a nation and as a planet.

She listed several "Tools for Learning," which would include the basic reading, 'riting and rithmatic, plus instruction in speaking, listening, keeping systematic records ("one of the most powerful tools for changing behavior," said White), and developing information.

However, "skills that would be clearly opposed to or detrimental to the interests of society would not be permitted. These would include such skills as gun marksmanship, the development of poisonous substances, noxious noices, auto car racing, or any skill likely to produce destruction or degradation of the natural environment.

To develop good citizens. new social behavior will be needed," wrote White. Students will be told the explicit types of behavior expected of them.'

Training in resource conservation behaviors would concentrate on the conservation of paper, pencils, and books. A 'conservation index' and a 'consumption index' would be reported regularly for each classroom or individual. A 'reliability index' would be developed for each student, to measure the correlation

White recognized the danger of producing behavior that might resemble that of "slightly reflective sheep," but believes it can be precented by instruction in "individualized behavior" and "freedom protecting behaviors. But the overwhelming message in her article remains that the public school system would be used to modify social behavior, without answering the question "Who will determine the behaviorial goals that will be taught?" Who will decide which skills are antisocial, and therefore to be prohibited?

Furthermore, how does she propose to teach such important sciences as chemistry and physics? She would prohibit such skills as ... the development of poisonous substances, ' but any knowledgeable chemist has those skills.

Would she prohibit the skills needed to operate a dragline? A dragline is sometimes used to strip the overburden from coal deposits, an activity that is considered destructive by some. Even the skill of writing (as used by this observer, for example) could well be considered dangerous by those in authority.

Prohibiting the teaching of a skill or knowledge to do certain things will only take us back to the cave. Instead, we must develop a higher morality, and learn to use those skills in a way that will not trespass against other individuals. Such a school as that proposed by White would leave no room for the non - conformist or the individualist. It would serve only as a mold to spew out servants of society bent to the will of those who dictate the shape of the mold. It is time to abolish compulsory taxation for the support of schools which students are forced to attend, and give the parents of this nation the opportunity to establish the kind of voluntary schools they believe are best for their children. A freedom of choice in education will prevent the mass production of "slightly reflective sheep.'

Incidentally, a filler at the end of White's article is a drawing which appears to be a group of children - climbing over a rather mutilated chain link

The Reverend Edward E. Hailwood, who was the rector of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church, did the only thing he could do. He halted the service and had the woman brought to him in the privacy of the sacristy and demanded her "I protest in the name of the Father, The Son and the Kaysone Phomvihan, a Pathet Lao politburo member and Marxist hardliner close to North Vietnamese leaders, was named prime minister

The double appointment was the last in a series of strokes formally cementing the Communist entrenchment in Laos. the mountainous, landlocked nation known as the "land of one million elephants.'

The Pathet Lao announced Wednesday that "representatives of the entire people of Laos" had accepted the abdication of 68-year-old King Savang Vatthana, last of a dynasty that ruled Laos for 600 years.

The Pathet Lao also dissolved Prince Souvanna Phouma's 19month-old coalition government composed of neutralists, royalists and pro-Communists under terms of a 1973 peace accord ending two decades of off-andon civil war

Sisana Sisan, information minister in the new government, said King Savang would serve as "supreme adviser to the president," and Souvanna Phouma, Souphanouvong's 73viser to the government.'

Sisana said Souphanouvong proposed the appointments, neither believed to carry any real power

Laos, a nation of 3 million, was the last non-Communist nation in Indochina following Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia last

The Pathet Lao took de facto control of the country in May, purging rightist generals and government ministers and divesting Souvanna Phouma's government of real authority.

Souphanouvong, 64, a popular figure who fought against the French, has long held the title of chairman of the Pathet Lao Central Committee, but diplomatic observers do not believe he is Laos' top Communist. Many observers predicted Eggnog spirits up visions of Christmas; hot mulled wine recalls days on the cold ski slopes of Colorado and New Mexico.

Hot chocolate greets Santa on his annual visit and carolers as they make their rounds.

Other party beverages are for special friends and special families and special toasts. They are for holiday weddings and club gift exchanges.

For some folks, Christmas cheer comes straight from the punch bowl.

Grape Wine Spritzer 1 quart frozen concentrated grape juice, thawed and 5 quarts sweet white wine (sauterne) 11/2 pints lemon or lime juice sugar to taste 11/2 gallons club soda, chilled Mix juices and wine in large punch bowl. Stir in sugar to taste. When ready to serve, add club soda and ice. Garnish with halved lemon and orange slices.

For a punch bowl, multiply ingredients in this recipe and blend with electric mixer.

Lavender Lincoln l pint vanilla ice cream 16-ounce can frozen grape juice concentrate, partially thawed and undiluted.

½ cup creme de cacao 1/4 cup orange flavored liqueur In covered blender container, blend all ingredients until smooth. Pour into tall stemmed glasses and serve with a straw. Makes about 3 cups; 2 or 3 servings. Cranberry Rum Shrub I quart cranberry juice 1/2 cup sugar (to taste) 1 pint ginger ale 10 - 12 ounces gold rum lime and lemon slices

Stir cranberry juice and sugar together until dissolved. Add other ingredients and serve over

Sets Medieval Table

she adapted the recipes from King Richard II's book of feasts and recipes.

The interview took place in her New York City apartment kitchen, which looked like a set for a medieval play staged in modern dress: her large honeycolored cat, Truffle, stretched full length on the butcher block table at which we sat.

The hippocras, or spiced wine, was a fragrant brew seasoned with grains of paradise, among

'We tend to romanticize the Middle Ages, with its kings and castles and knighthood and courtly love," she said. "But the creature comforts weren't there. The average life expectancy was 30, wars were constant, there were poverty and plagues.'

On paper, many medieval recipes look formidable: boiled garlic; conyng, or rabbit, which was served in a sweet, highly spiced syrup at King Henry IV's coronation feast.

she said. "The primary liquid in sauces was vinegar, but it may not have been as acidic as ours. It was just turned wine.

"They used a lot of different spices with the obvious glee of a child with a new toy. Their use by kings and noblemen was proof of their wealth.

"They liked to serve goldencolored food. They painted fowl as they roasted with a paste of saffron, egg yolk and flour." Table manners, foods that are

Consumer Has Trouble In Soviet

MOSCOW (UPI) - Ivan Ivanov, the Soviet Union's archetypal consumer, may find life a little harder next year.

Consumer goods may be just as scarce as in previous years and food may be even harder to The gloomy predictions are based on figures for the 1976 state budget released at Tuesday's meeting of the Soviet Union's nominal parliament. The meeting is expected to last several more days. Planning chief Nikolai K. Baibakov said overall industrial production will increase by only 4.3 per cent in 1976, down from 7.5 per cent this year and one of the smallest planned increases since World War II.

Baibakov said light industry - the consumer supplier - will increase output by only 2.7 per cent. Heavy industry is slated for a 4.9 per cent increase.

The figures announced by Baibakov at the Supreme Soviet session are not cutbacks, but a reduction in planning goals for the coming year.

To a certain extent, Baibakov said, they reflect a government desire to change the emphasis from quantity output to quality output, a move that would be applauded by wary Soviet shoppers.

But the Soviet population is always increasing and the stores have been traditionally short of goods.

Let's Call Candy Candy

By DR. JEAN MAYER Professor of Nutrition,

Harvard University A couple of weeks ago, we had a family with young children as weekend guests, and I was sent out to do the Saturday grocery shopping, among other things, to buy a quantity of dry breakfast cereals. When I got to that part of the supermarket, I found myself confronted with the mind boggling selection that all of you regular shoppers are As I looked at the array and began to read the lists of ingredients, I became increasingly distrubed by one large question: Just how much cereal is in these products?

As you already know, the ingredients in a package must be listed in order of predominance. Those that read "100 per cent whole wheat" left little doubt. But what about those that read "whole wheat. sugar, etc."? Were they 97 per cent wheat and two or three per cent sugar or 50 per cent wheat and 49 per cent sugar? And exactly how much sugar is there in the ones that listed "sugar. wheat, corn syrup, etc." in that order?

All of the questions would be answered if the label had to list ingredients according to percentage of total content. But the Food and Drug Administration refuses to consider percentage labeling. claiming that consumers can "get the picture of content" from listing ingredients in the order of predominance.

Besides, the FDA says it really doesn't matter how much sugar is in a breakfast cereal. maintaining that there is "no solid scientific evidence" that sugar is a health hazard despite the fact that many doctors who deal with obesity or diabetes and nearly every dentist would strongly disagree with this!

The FDA also defends its position by insisting that the present methods of analysis for added sugars - specifically sucrose and glucose - are too

Finishing Touches

Mrs. Doris Scott of California applies the finishing touches to her handmade corn husk dolls. The dolls, she says, are easy to make and good Christmas gifts and ornaments. This is an old European craft which was popular during Colonial labeling enforceable. But the fact is that this simply is not so. Precise methods are a bit of a bother to be sure. But they do exist, and they enable an analyst to come within a few percentage points of determining the precise amount of added sugars.

Dr. Ira Shannon and his co workers at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Houston recently analyzed 78 ready - to - eat - breakfast cereals for sucrose and glucose content, and the results clearly show why many cereal manufacturers would prefer not to have percentage labeling of their ingredients, particularly when it comes to white or brown sugar, corn or maple syrups, or

Dr. Shannon found only eight of 78 cereals had less than 5 per cent of the total content devoted to sugar. These were Shredded Wheat, Cheerios, Puffed Rice, Uncle Sam, Wheat Chex, Grape Nut Flakes and Puffed Wheat Twelve other brands, including Alpen, Post Toasties, Product 19. Total. Wheaties, Grape Nuts and Corn Chex, contained 5 to 10 per cent sugar.

Then the percentage really began to rise. Twenty three cereals proved to be 10 to 25 per cent sugar, including Special K. Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Rice Crispies and most of the "bran" and "natural" cereals. Plain Heartland was found to be about 26 per cent sugar, and Bran Buds was 32 per cent.

A total of 24 of the 78 cereals contained 25 to 50 per cent sugar, and even their names hint at their candylike nature -Sugar Sparkled Corn Flakes (34 per cent sugar) or Froot Loops (47.9 per cent). Finally, Dr. Shannon found 11 that were more than 50 per cent sugar. with Super Orange Crisp leading the list with 68 per cent sucrose and 2.8 per cent glucose - a total of 70.8 per cent sugar!

The sad fact of it all is that these sugar - filled concoctions are the very ones most advertised on children's weekend TV programs.

The cereal industry defends itself by claiming that when milk is added, these products assure a harried mother that her children will eat a good breakfast. They also insist that, sugared or not, most cereals contain the same percentage of nutrients. But is this really true? Are cereals that are little more than vitamin - fortified sugar as nutritiuos as those with a minimum of added sugar and a fair amount of the whole grain? I say no, they are not. Whole grain cereals provide protein, calcium, iron, trace minerals. B vitamins, vitiamin E in the germ and fiber in the bran. But some of these nutrients are missing from the high - sugar cereals, which are essentially fortified candy. containing other nutrients never found in an ear of corn or grain of wheat. In fact, some of these so - called cereals contain less

I contend that these cereals containing over 50 per cent sugar should be labeled 'imitation cereal" or "cereal confections," and they should be sold in the candy section rather than in the cereal section As concerned parents, you should continue to pressure the FDA for more informative percentage labeling. In addition, the Federal Trade Commission is asking for comments on comprehensive new proposals for food advertising. The Texas Farm Bureau has approved a resolution calling for tougher bruccellosis control programs to block federal threats to quarantine cattle.

Approval of the measure came Wednesday in the final session of the organization's 42nd Convention. The resolution asks federal and state authorities to spend enough money to develop a vaccine for better control of the cattle disease.

The 1,000 delegates elected President Carroll Chaloupka of Dalhart to a second term by a standing ovation after two other Panhandle men, T.J. Richards of Paducah and Bill Reid of Lamesa, withdrew their names from nomination.

Americans must continue to conserve energy. The annual winter electric load forecast Wednesday said, "Although electric energy supply does not appear likely to present a major problem in the 1975-76 winter, it could become critical in a few years because of delays in construction of nuclear plants now under construction and the expected future tightening of fossil fuel supplies. supplies. "If electric load growth returns to historic rates, the energy supply problems will become even more difficult,' the report said.

The FPC estimated the winter's peak load will be 329,157 megawatts and that 'dependable resources' of electricity total 477,919

That means a cushion of 45.2 per cent above the highest projected demand.

The reasons? Americans are conserving, the winter has been mild, new regarded as a temporary situation, and it is expected that an improving economy, with concomitant increase in

The Pampa Industrial Foundation's year was reviewed by Kay Fancher, PIF president, at the organization's annual membership meeting Tuesday in Coronado Inn.

Fancher pointed to some of the many activities of the foundation board in exploring avenues for attracting new business and industry to the

One of the major projects, he said, was the assistance given the Sandra Corp., operators of Gibson's Discount Stores, in obtaining the original loan from Pampa lending agencies to build the $360,000 warehouse distribution center in Pampa.

This project, Fancher told the membership meeting, resulted in the moving of Gibson's general offices to Pampa. Twenty - four employes currently are on the payroll Fancher said due to efforts of the foundation and the Chamber of Commerce, publicity was created that fired interest and concern about Pampa's housing shortage. As a result, he stated, there has been a renewal of development in the Northcrest Addition and a spurt in the construction of single homes and a new apartment complex.

The PIF president said there has been much activity in the support of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Texas First campaign, designed to match people with jobs throughout Texas.

A survey of the Pampa area for the program turned up 300 available jobs in Pampa industries and businesses. Fancher said that in conjunction with the Texas First program,

Japan Workers Strike

TOKYO (UPI) - Government workers today called a halt to a wildcat strike that shut down rail transportation and disrupted mail and communication services for eight days.

The 860,000-member Council of Public Corporation Workers Union announced it planned to end the illegal walkout at midnight (10 a.m. EST Thursday) without achieving its goal -the right of government workers to strike.

Japan National Railway employes, postal workers and employes of the telephone and telegraph corporation have been out since Nov. 26, when the union ordered a 10-day strike.

The union's capitulation followed Prime Minister Takeo Miki's refusal to yield to union demands and increasing public discontent over the walkout.

The rail strike idled 126,000 passenger and 35,000 freight trains and inconvenienced an estimated 133 million commuters. Railroad officials put their losses at $93.3 million.

The walkout by postal workers created a backlog of 37 million letters and parcels.

the foundation and chamber worked with several local employers in helping to fill jobs. Much time, Fancher stated, was spent working with Highland General Hospital aurthorities and the hospital board on efforts to prevent a possible doctor shortage in Pampa. The foundation also arranged financing for a third year medical student on his promise to open his practice in Pampa when he has finished his training. The PIF sponsored a new industrial brochure for Pampa during the year and continued its usual maintenance of sites owned by the Foundation. Although Pampa did not attract a major industry to the area during the year, Fancher reported that five prospects were interviewed. He expressed optimism that two of them still were good possibilities.

"We continually seek to attract new industry and new business of any kind," Fancher said. "Our efforts during 1975. are typical of any given year.

'Getting new industry is a job that takes mountains of work and the Industrial Foundation is working in that direction all the time. It is something the public hears little about, but it goes on all the time just the same.'

About 50 warplanes and several thousand GI's at Korat Air Base, 135 miles northeast of Bangkok, will leave Thailand by Jan. 15 and American activities at the base will end

The base at Udorn in northeast Thailand, a former headquarters for U.S. bombing in Indochina and for American quarterbacking of the so-called "secret war" in neighboring Laos, will also close its doors soon.

The approximately 70 jet fighters and 3,700 GI's there will be gone by Jan. 31.

At the height of the Indochina war there were 48,000 American servicemen and 750 aircraft in Thailand.

When Udorn and Korat go, U Tapao will be the only big air installations left and U.S. military strength will be down to about 7,000 men.

U Tapao, on the Gulf of Siam south of the capital, is also tabbed to revert fully to Thai authorities under the government's deadline for all U.S. combat forces to be out of the country by March 20.

The reasoning behind the Thai policy is that Bangkok wants to placate North Viet-nam, which has demanded the ouster of American forces before relations with Thailand can be "normalized.

The Thais are also motivated by the reality that with congressional and public opinion in the United States against further military involvement in Asia, there would be little chance of U.S. warplanes helping out if Thailand was attacked.

Despite this, the policy of Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj has come under criticism from various persons, ranging from generals and former government leaders to businessmen who stand to lose money, to the Thai girls who worked in bars and massage parlors at base towns

Among the loudest critics has been Thanat Khoman, the respected former foreign minister who played a big role in getting U.S. military forces into Thailand in the 1960s and then later demanded their withdrawal. Now he has called for the withdrawal to be halted.

Thanat explained his new position by saying that the withdrawal should be dependent upon agreement by the neighboring Communist countries of Indochina to leave Thailand alone.

He says it is "regrettable that the present government has issued a unilateral declaration requiring American troops withdraw by next March without first discussing and negotiating with the parties concerned, including North Vietnam."

Knowledgeable diplomats here agree "The Thais could have gotten more mileage out of the withdrawal, even though the North Vietnamese are not cooperative negotiators," said one. "But once they announced a unilateral deadline, chances of getting anything from Hanoi evaporated.

About 30,000 Thai employes at U.S. bases are being dismissed, but a study by economic authorities predicts the closings will put a dent in the economy which will in fact result in the loss of at least 90,000 jobs.

"It's rough going back to the old way of life," says Narin Nguangiratanakarn, who once owned a bar and massage parlor, a tailor shop and a dry goods store in the former base town of Takhli. "When a base closes every business in town is affected, not only bars and night clubs."

Despite its publicized policy, even Kukrit's government does not want to see all the Gi's go. Ranking government officials have said that about 250 U.S. military advisers can remain to keep arms aid flowing into the country.

Bases that carry out electronic spying missions on China, Russia and North Vietnam are also expected to remain, although at a lower profile.

Farmers Told Blackmail No Way to Win Support

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) -Farmers cannot win popular support of their goals by threats to cutoff urban food supplies, the executive director of the Texas Farm Bureau says.

The public must be convinced the mutual interests of agricultural production and urban life are best served by cooperation. Warren Newberry told the group's state convention Tues-

"I must, in all fairness, point out that we face difficult and challenging times in the years ahead," Newberry said. "Our state is becoming more urban. Our legislature was about half last year. It will be less rural and more city after the next

'We must communicate with our friends in the cities, and they are our friends, that we have the same interests. In my opinion, we'll not win their support because of threats to cut off their food nor by asking sympathy, saying we're going broke and want welfare.

"We'll win their support by getting them to understand that their best interest and our's are in a free, profitable agriculture where farmers and ranchers are rewarded for what they

Since a special session of the organization expanded the Texas Farm Bureau program and increased its dues in 1971. Newberry said membership increased by 53,068 families, including a gain of 14,254 this

:'With 180,470 member families, averaging four members per family, this adds up to 720,000 individuals," Newberry said. "This is one of the largest, voluntary organizations in the State of Texas - a dramatic and successful organizational accomplishment.

The executive director said the group's programs generated $11 million for bureau families during 1975. This included $4.6 million in insurance dividends, $6 millions savings on tires and batteries and $300,000 from a cooperative hog marketing plan.

He said retaining a sales tax exemption for agriculture in the last legislature was worth $14 million to Farm Bureau mem-

Hare Krishna Felt Unwelcome in Illinois

DALLAS (UPI) - The Hare Krishna, a religious sect whose members wear pigtales, white robes and chant to music, say they are unwelcome in a rural Illinois town and have dropped plans to move their school to the Christian community.

The group wanted to buy a $450,000 defunct military academy building in Aledo, Ill., for their 115-student school and 50 member staff. But many of the 3,325 residents of the northwestern Illinois town opposed their Bill Rubins, local business manager of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness, said the group will likely remain in Texas.

'The Roosevelt Military Academy definitely suited our needs, but the townspeople obviously did not want us there," Rubins said. "The prevailing attitude was such that we were concerned about the welfare of the children should we move there

Liberty Bell Tops Tree

WASHINGTON (UPI) -Workers have begun decorating the national Christmas tree, a 45-foot tall blue spruce that stands on the Ellipse just south of the White House.

They used a cherry picker Tuesday to put a liberty bell ornament on the top. With the American bicentennial year at hand, the tree will be decorated with 4,600 red, white and blue

It will be surrounded by 13 smaller trees representing the 13 original colonies - decorated alternately in solid red or blue lights. Forty-four other small trees represent the remaining states and territories

The lights will be turned on Dec. 18 - traditionally by the President if he is in town.

The tree originally came from Shickshinny, Pa. It was planted on the Ellipse three years ago. A 41-foot balsam fir was cut Tuesday in the Ottawa National Forest in Michigan's Upper Peninsula to decorate the U.S.

Mrs. Glenn Stancliff lead the Aledo drive to discourage the Krishnas. She said the community was Christian, but had no room for the sect or its children.

"Toleration?," she said. "Our country was found on that, but remember everyone that came to our country accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their savior.

In November trustees of the military academy held a town meeting. Leaders of the sect said their school would have little affect on the life of the community but were not convincing. Last week a poll conducted by the Rock Island Argus newspaper indicated 1,137 Aledo residents opposed selling the academy to the Krishnas and only 103 favored the sale:

Harold O. Stutsman, president of the academy board of trustees, said the Krishna leader Jagadisha called him Monday to withdraw the bid.

"He said it was because of the attitude of the people.' Stutsman said. "He felt because of the poll that was taken, the school could not coexist, not on a friendly basis with the town of

Six Texas Representatives Support Balanced Budget

By BILL CHOYKE Pampa News' Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - Six members of the Texas delegation in the House unsuccessfully supported a recent move aimed at accomplishing the "impossible" balancing the current federal

Before the House last week (Nov. 12) approved a $72.1 billion legally binding budget ceiling for fiscal 1976, fiscal conservatives attempted to trim about $72 billion from budget outlays. The attempt failed by a 283 - to 127 vote

The House then passed a budget resolution by a 225 - to -191 vote that limits federal spending for the period ending

"The move to balance the budget is impractical if not impossible," said an aide to the House Budget Committee. 'There is no way to do it without changing the Social Security laws. And then you would change revenues. That makes for a whole new ball of wax."

Rep. Jack Hightower, D -Vernon, supported balancing the budget. In the final resolution which sets the legal ceiling for the first time he also supported the measure.

While Republicans generally said federal spending must be checked. Democrats contended that a high deficit was needed as a hedge against yet higher

June 30, 1976 to $373.9 billion During House debate, Rep. with a revenue floor of $301.8 Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, said it was folly to think that the federal government could return to the 1974 - 75 spending level, as the balanced budget resolution intended.

> "How on earth would we pay that which the government has committed itself to pay in social security, in welfare costs, in unemployment compensation, if we reduced the amount to the level of when we had about four per cent unemployment," Wright rhetorically asked. "It will not stretch.

Under the new budget formula, any bill that would exceed the spending targets could be killed by a dissenting word from one member of either

Your Horoscope

FRIDAY, DEC. 5

Your birthday today: Your life takes on a note of urgency this year as you build for the future. You're inclined to be overoptimistic and assume you are always going to be prosperous. Relationships require constant care and aren't likely to be stable. Today's natives are energetic, attracted to risky speculations, often have charm and good looks.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Continue the impetus of the last few days with enthusiasm, even though you're not likely to be practical. Overcome impatience to avoid errors. Postpone new actions.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Settle old scores and accounts wherever possible. Avoid legal conflict and formal complaints. Concentrate on wrapping up your work week. Quit early for extra rest.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Keeping up with rivals, friends and social obligations depletes your cash. Get your own attairs in good shape; update budgets and schedules. Set priorities.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Being tactful tips the balance and gets you through a somewhat stressful day. Nobody agrees on anything complicated; focus

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your unrealistic view of the future brings on an overpowering impulse to squander money. Managing any activity from a distance challenges your skills and consumes your immediate Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Leave finances alone. There's no substitute for your personal touch. Tie up all troublesome loose ends before the weekend. Have flexible plans lined up.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22] Moderation should prevail Put off your reactions until you have more experience to go on. Keep a straight face and enjoy the joke even if the laugh is on you

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: This is a fairly productive day. Take special care with details to avert mistakes. Family activities are pleasant but a bit more expensive than expected.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It's difficult but necessary to tighten your purse strings. Speculative deals are available largely because they haven't worked well enough to catch on.

By Jeane Dixon

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Organize your work thoroughly at the earliest hour conditions permit. You have a great chance to unload losing ventures and useless possessions. A solitary evening saves fuss and bother.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: What appears creative to you looks more like erratic experimentation to others. If you make a change, you have to sell others on it. Spend tonight studying.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Friends are full of themselves and their own schemes, which don't necessarily benefit you. Since you can't compete with them, think of yourself. Spend the evening alone.

A&M-Porker Clash Decides Everything

By TOMMY YATES LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) -The Arkansas Razorbacks will have the homefield advan-. tage in their Saturday showdown with Texas A&M and coach Frank Broyles wants to use that factor for all it's worth.

Broyles said Wednesday he hopes Arkansas has plenty of those Hog-calling fans in evidence for the game which will determine the Southwest Conference's Cotton Bowl re-

"We hope to have the involvement of our fans as they were for the Southern Cal game," Broyles told a news conference via telephone hookup. "Obviously, when the fans are involved, it's a big factor. I'm hoping our fans will be ready and involved."

Little Rock was the site when Arkansas whipped Southern Cal in the 1974 season opener to a continuous roar of the partisan involved," Broyles said, the homefield is a help.

Another big factor will be if Arkansas' second-in-the-nation offense can penetrate the firstin-the-nation Aggie defense. "They have no weak spots," Broyles said of the A&M defense. "They are a complete football team in every respect. They have unusual talent and speed at every position." Offensively, Broyles said, team. "The burden will be in the trenches on running plays because of the quick hit of the fullback and protecting against the deep pass," he said. "That's

> Sports Page

"I think both teams will be very much ready to play," Broyles said. "I don't think either team will have an (emotional) advantage over the other because so much is at A&M coach Emory Bellard said he did not think the emotion expended by the Aggies in last week's victory over Texas would have anything to do with opponent in front of us," he said over the telephone hookup. "They are an outstanding football team, capable of a sustained march. They are a very aggressive, quick defensive team. They're as good as we've faced this season. We've got to contain their offense and we've got to throw the football and play a solid kicking game." On injuries, Broyles said "it would be a miracle" if halfback Jerry Eckwood, whose been out since Oct. 25 with a knee strain, played Saturday "He's probably a week away," Broyles said. Broyles said there was a chance halfback Ike Forte, the conference's leading rusher, could play Forte has been out since Nov. 15 when he dislocated three toes on his right foot in the SMU game. Broyles said starting cornerback Brad Thomas was questionable because of a knee injury, as was backup tight end Marvin Daily, who has an infected leg.

Bellard said quarterback Mike Jay, who injured his back in the Texas game, definitely would miss the game. He said junior David Shipman, the starter at the beginning of the season, would replace Jay and freshman Keith Baker would serve as backup. He said redshirt David Walker would be used only in an emergency.

Tulsa Grad Lends WT Hand

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

One of West Texas State's most staunch backers was graduated from the University of Tulsa, one of WT's biggest rivals.

Max Banks of Amarillo, president of Baker - Taylor Drilling Company, did not attend West Texas State but that doesn't stop him from financially supporting the school or keep him from feeling remorse over the athletic program's current financial crisis.

Banks will be among those in attendance at the university's board of regents' Friday afternoon meeting. At that meeting, the regents will probably decide what steps must be taken to correct a deficit of around $150,000 in the athletic budget.

"I'm just an outsider that's interested in West Texas State. I've never been on the board of regents,' said Banks, who, despite being one who chooses his words patiently and carefully, is extremely outspoken concerning the school's dilemma. West Texas State has operated the athletic program in the red for the past several years. Now, WT, in the words of Dr. Lloyd Watkins, the university president, cannot go on "burying our head in the sand. Watkins said, "The alternative is going to have to

The regents, although it is unlikely, might decide that the answer is leaving the NCAA to join the NAIA.

show us how we can balance our athletic budget

Or dropping football Banks hopes either of those possibilities do not

I live here and where I live I want to be proud of it - make it go forward instead of backward.

Banks uses his business sense in discussing West Texas State. He uses figures to explain why he believes the NAIA or other drastic changes are not the

'The NAIA wouldn't commence to be a solution. Travelling would be less cost but I don't think it could phase it very much. They (NAIA teams) travel by bus, the Missouri Valley Confernece (to which WT belongs) travels by air.

Dropping football, Banks said, is also not a satisfactory answer

"It's a solution to stop losing money but not a solution to holding an image.

Banks avidly supports West Texas State financially and from the stands. WT's problems stem from the fact that there are not more fans in the Texas Panhandle like him.

"When we went into the Missouri Valley Conference the assumption was made that we'd have 15,000 students at West Texas in the 1975 - 76 school year. We have, 6,500," Banks said.

"The next thing that occured is we predicted that we would have 15,000 spectators in the football stadium. We would be lucky if we were showing 5,000 paid and I'd question if it averaged out that much.

'We predicted 4,500 basketball spectators paid and we'd be very fortunate if we're showing 2,000 paid. And there's the rub.

Out of the last 13 years, 10 of those saw expenditures exceed revenue for the athletic program. An athletic program cannot be operated in the red for that long a period without cutting costs somewhere.

In 1970 - 71, West Texas State athletics lost $302,484. The program has lost over $150,000 every year since. The last year WT actually made money was 1967 - 68. The surplus was only $1399. Banks knows the figures

'Why did I get factual? I was trying to back the university knowing the situation was in existence. In discussing this with the athletic director (Gene Mayfield) and with Dr. (Lloyd) Watkins, the president, the information came up that West Texas was planning on dropping athletics or going to a lower class, which stunned me. So I immediately started bringing this out to the public because I was disgusted that something like this was occuring, without a good study of the present situation.

"I was just a guy that was disappointed and aggravated because you don't do business that way.' Banks is relieved that the regents have decided to thoroughly discuss the problem before taking action

What I would suggest is to unite together and study the problem. Get outside help and study the problem. And communicate. The successful colleges have done something right

"One of the things that's lacking big is support that the athletic program has gotten from different organizations

Banks' zeal has not all been beneficial. In recruiting a basketball player during the spring. Banks allegedly provided the youth improper entertainment and transportation. The allegations currently are under investigation by both the NCAA and MVC and could result in a serious action taken against the

It is problems like these which take all the fun out of being an athletic director

The recruiting violations, said Mayfield, "sure couldn't have come at a worse time. It is very unfortunate this came at this time.

It is an ironic twist to the story of the man who has

Korean Evangelist Plans Mass Marriage for Converts

DALLAS (UPI) - Sun Myung Moon, the controversial Korean evangelist, plans a mass marriage of American and Korean followers in January as a ploy to gain greater converts for his cult, an ex-follower says.

Reid Heller, 19, who says he "escaped" from Moon's Unification Church this month, said the marriage would help Moon's Korean followers obtain visas to the United States.

"But this is not nearly as important as being a way of bringing these Americans farther and farther into the cult," Heller said.

Moon will select the marriage partners, Heller said, and they will wed spouses whom they're never before seen. He said as many as 1,000 couples could be wed in the ceremony in Korea.

"They'll go through a seven day preparation period of fasting and prayer and write down all there sins and sexual experiences," Heller said 'Moon will review these writings and bless the people, who will then be representative of perfect people.

'But they'll be two people who have absolutely nothing in Heller said he was a follower of Moon for four months. He said he was "rescued" from the cult headquarters in Barrytown, N.Y. by an invitation to return to his parents Dallas home for Thanksgiving because his brother was ill. There he met two setf-proclaimed "deprogrammers" of Moon cultists. Ted Patrick and Richard Greenwald.

"I felt the most unbelieving hatte," Heller said. "You're programmed to assume people are going to try to draw you away from the cult. But because I felt that hate, I knew I had to listen to the man calmly. He presented the facts against the movement, and I finally broke Greenwald, Patrick and Heller say Moon wants to establish a totalitarian state with a main effort directed at the United States where financial power can be amassed.

Heller says the plan resembles author George Orwell's fictional "1984" world led by one

"They hold out the promise that if you come into the movement now, you become a world leader later. The major attraction is the urge to power.

Scientists Want Research In Genetic Cause of Cancer

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) - A panel of medical scientists says research into the genetic cause of cancer may be more effective in the long run than trying to eliminate cancer-causing agents from the enfironment

Radiation and some chemicals are known to cause cancer, but researchers attending a national conference on cancer and genetics said Tuesday cancer development is a complicated process that starts with flaws in the basic genetic makeup of cells.

Up to now, much of the war against cancer has been aimed at treating malignancies after Lawrence and Edvie Gorme they are out of control and will host the 33rd Annual trying to eliminate the agents in the environment that trigger some forms of cancer "You're going to have to

Sinai School of Medicine in New York. "You have to take another approach."

He said more effort should be spent on studying the cells themselves to see what happens to their internal structure that gives cancer a foothold. Each cell has its own genetic makeup and the scientists said genes must be changed in some way for cancer to develop

"I think the time has now come, particularly with advances of cell genetics, that one can begin to understand these things," he said.

House Votes Research For Cattle Producers

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Following the lead set for cotton, egg, potato and wool industries. the Senate has approved legislation to enable cattle producers help themselves and their products through expanded promotion and research.

At the same time, senators voted to give consumers a voice in such programs for all five commodities.

The Senate voted 47-36 Tuesday for a bill to set up a 68member national Beef Board to run programs of research, information, promotion and marketing for cattle products.

The board would be financed by levies on producers expected to total $30 million to $40 million

The House passed a similar measure Oct. 2, but the Senate bill requires that one-fourth of the beef board be consumer members — and that vacancies on existing boards for eggs, cotton, wool and potato producers be filled with consumers until each has 25 per cent consumer representation.

That amendment was a victory for Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who opposed the bill as a "multimillion-dollar rip-off" under which big cattle barons would dominate the industry, forcing their will on

Subject to a national referendum by producers, Beef Board programs would be financed by assessment on each head of cattle as it is sold. Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., the principal sponsor, said this would come to about 25 cents per head.

Though described as "voluntary," producers would have to pay the assessment. They could, however, apply for a refund if they didn't want to participate.

Programs would supplement, not replace, voluntary programs being run by state beef councils in 27 states.

National Beef Board members would be chosen by the Secretary of Agriculture from a list submitted by producer and consumer groups. He would also have authority to approve or disapprove board policies, though not to initiate them.

New Auto Sales Climb To Healthy New Highs

DETROIT (UPI) - Paced by their best 10-day sales period in over a year, automakers sold an estimated 672,000 cars in November to give them a 38 per cent jump over last year's recession levels, industry analysts said today

Reports scheduled today were expected to show sharp gains for each of the four U.S. companies which in November 1974 had the worst non-strike sales in 15 years.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the way automakers themselves judge their success or failure, this November's sales were at an eight million-a-year rate - the best showing since September, 1974.

Imports, with an estimated 110,000 sales, were up about 18 per cent over a year ago. although their share of the U.S. market was 14 per cent of total sales. For the first eight months of the year, imports had been taking a record 20 per cent of total sales.

Four importers - Datsun, Fiat, Alfa-Romeo and Peugeot - reported their November sales results Tuesday.

In the final 10-day period of the month, sales of U.S.-built cars were an estimated 220,000 cars, a 41 per cent jump from last year.

Analysts said November sales were down about 2 per cent from the October level when the 1976 models were introduced. The normal dropoff from October. traditionally the strongest month of the year, is 9 per cent.

Even with the stronger sales, auto factories were working at only 70 per cent of capacity and 68,000 workers were still listed on long-term layoffs.
