

Last 200 Americans Leave Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The evacuation of the final 200 Americans and some South Vietnamese from Saigon was proceeding relatively smoothly, although one Marine evacuation helicopter was hit by ground fire, the Pentagon said today.

Spokesman Joseph Laitin said the helicopter that was hit—one of the 81 being used in the evacuation operation—was able to continue flying to an aircraft carrier offshore. The damage was apparently minor because the pilot radioed that he was safe and still underway.

Two other aircraft earlier reported being fired at but they were not hit.

In a 9 a.m. EDT statement, Laitin said more than 4,500 persons had been evacuated so far today.

U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin radioed from Saigon that he estimated the evacuation would be completed by noon EDT—less than nine hours after it began under orders from President Ford.

So far things have been going pretty well, Laitin said. Laitin also revealed that the evacuation began an hour late due to a mysterious and still unexplained message.

Laitin said the first helicopters were due to land in Saigon at 2:06 a.m. EDT but all of them turned back shortly before reaching the airport, apparently because they received a signal ordering them not to land until 3 a.m.

"Nobody seems to know who gave the order or why," Laitin said, "and we are still trying to check into this."

In the only other incident reported so far by the Pentagon, an A7 attack plane that had just taken off from the carrier Enterprise experienced a malfunction. The pilot ejected near the ship and was rescued without serious injury.

South Vietnamese airmen, meanwhile, were reported to be stealing aircraft and fleeing the country. Laitin reported that several fixed-wing planes flown by Vietnamese pilots had arrived in Thailand.

Political sources said the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese administrations had reached agreement in principle to call a cease-fire Wednesday but the Communists raised two more demands before there can be a formal truce.

The American evacuation on orders from President Duong Van "Big" Minh prepared for the surrender of Saigon without a fight, ending 30 years of warfare in Indochina and 14 years of American involvement.

There was no immediate confirmation of the reported cease-fire agreement between the Minh government and the Viet Cong. Vice President Nguyen Van Thieu denied it. But knowledgeable political sources said Thieu had been in contact with the Viet Cong delegation at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase and had reached a tentative agreement.

Huyen said on Saigon radio and television his government had decided to meet the last two demands of the Viet Cong for the opening of peace talks—an end to American intervention in Vietnamese affairs and abolition of the Saigon war machine.

But no sooner had Huyen met these demands than the Viet Cong raised two more—with withdrawal of the U.S. 7th Fleet from Vietnam waters and disarming of Saigon's army and police. French government sources said the demands were more like a demand for complete surrender.

Political sources said late today that the Minh government would agree if necessary to disarm most of its forces.

The U.S. evacuation fleet was expected to leave Vietnamese waters once the evacuation was completed.

But many South Vietnamese soldiers were reported fleeing the Saigon area as were sailors who loaded their families aboard Navy vessels in the Saigon River for a flight to the South China Sea. The South Vietnamese air force flew out officers and their families to the Philippines, Taiwan, Singapore and Thailand. At least 70 plane loads landed in Thailand.

Many commandeered South Vietnamese helicopters and crash landed near American evacuation ships in the South China Sea in hopes they and their families would be picked up. They were.

Hundreds of Vietnamese gathered outside the U.S. Embassy in Saigon pleading to be taken in the evacuation. There were so many that U.S. Marine reinforcements were flown in from helicopter carriers stationed off the Vietnam coast to help guard the huge compound. One held back a Vietnamese man by sticking his M16 rifle in the man's face.

By nightfall, signs of the American presence were disappearing.

A youthful mob looted the Brinks Hotel, an American landmark in downtown Saigon. Twice bombed by Viet Cong terrorists, the hotel housed American officers for more than 10 years.

Abandoned American homes were looted. A UPI bureau car was destroyed by the crowd at the U.S. Embassy.

Late tonight, there was little sign of warfare. At dusk fires lit the sky to the east and west of Saigon from burning war material. But shortly before midnight, scarcely a shot could be heard.

By THOM MARSHALL.

If students in Pampa schools continue their winning ways — and there's every reason to believe they will — the annual Vocational Banquet may have to begin with lunch to allow sufficient time for distributing awards.

The banquet Monday night at M.K. Brown Auditorium Heritage Room was an impressive affair from Randy Turner's opening remarks as master of ceremonies to the entertainment by John Wojcikowski and his Vocational Harmonies, to the presentation of the multitudinous awards to Turner's closing remarks.

Elbert Hensley provided dinner music and accompanied the Vocational Harmonies.

About 600 vocational students, employers and guests attended the event. It was sponsored by the student members of several organizations representing the vocational programs available at Pampa High School.

The organizations and their student clubs include Distributive Education DECA, Vocational Office Education, OEA, Vocational Agriculture, FFA, Industrial Cooperative Training VICA, and Home Economics Cooperative Education HERO.

Outstanding DECA students recognized at the banquet included Troy Hester, who has been named Outstanding Boy Student of the Year at local area and state levels. He will compete at the national level May 6-11 at Hollywood, Fla. The audience awarded Hester a standing ovation.

Randy Turner, outgoing DECA president, was presented the president's gavel. Outstanding Girl Student of the Year at the local level was Mary Holman.

In other areas of DECA competition, the following students were recognized:

Advertising: first place local, third place area, Debbie Rogers; first runner-up local, David Ward; second runner-up Cheryl Howard.

Display: first place local, first place area, finalist state, Nancy Monroe; first runner-up local, Gary Morrow; second runner-up, Renee Jennings.

Job Interview: first place local, first runner-up area, first alternate area, Jeri Bohlander; first runner-up local, second place area, Troy Hester; second runner-up local, Karen Moler.

Sales Demonstration: first place local, Mary Holman; first runner-up, Leanne Hall; second runner-up, Randy Turner.

Public Speaking: first place local, first alternate area, Randy Turner; first runner-up local, second place area, Gary Sanders; second runner-up local, Karl Collier.

Creative Marketing Manual: first area, Phyllis Hunter; Students in Marketing Specialty, second area, Troves Gilbert.

Students in Market Variety Store: second area, Shelly Picher.

Industrial Cooperative Training: district winner included:

Sharon Baumgardner, second place in exhibit division and fifth place in skill contest; Carol Blake, fourth in skill contest; Jerry Ricketson, third in skill contest; Vic Laramore, second in display; Tim Pettiet, first in floral design; Lester Hillman, first in display; Jamie Ledbetter, first in dental technician exhibit and outstanding ICT student.

Award winners in the Cooperative Part Time Training in Agriculture category included Jody Freeman, district winner in the veterinary assistant occupational cluster; Kenneth Gage, outstanding chapter cooperative agriculture student; Ronnie Haynes, chapter winner in agriculture production area; and Amado Meza, chapter winner in agriculture processing area.

The following students from the VOE lab program placed in OEA area contests: second Sharon Lockhart, verbal communications, advanced to state contest; fourth, Debbie Roth, information communications, occupations level; fourth, Andy Lee, general clerical level; sixth, Shonda Royce, stenographic level; seventh, Becky Bethan, job interview.

The Pampa OEA Chapter placed sixth in Chapter Activities Manual competition. Belle Kavestich, historian of the chapter, accepted the award. Outstanding VOE lab student was Debbie Roth.

VOE Co-op area winners include Linda Ford, verbal communications, seventh place; Beverly Burns, general clerical, level II, sixth place; Sherilyn Job interviews, sixth place; LaDonna Wall, extemporaneous verbal communications, fourth place; Mollie Jackson, office duplication master preparation, third place; Jan DeWolfe, typing related, level I, first place; Dolores Riggs, typing related, level II, first place.

Outstanding VOE Co-op student was Dolores Riggs. Sherilyn Hedrick was presented the president's gavel.

Becky Gercken was named HERO's outstanding student. Mike Harris was presented the gavel for outgoing president.

Senate Okays Commission To Probe Discrimination

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Senators today tentatively approved 18 bills to establish a Texas Human Resources Commission to investigate discrimination complaints.

Critics complained the bill by Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, will duplicate federal efforts to enforce the 1964 Civil Rights Act and waste state funds.

Schwartz bill establishes a state commission of nine members appointed by the governor to fulltime paid jobs enforcing prohibitions against racial, ethnic, religious or sexual discrimination in employment, education, public accommodations or real estate transactions.

Citizen complaints could be referred to similar groups at the local level if governmental entities there established their own human resources panels.

Schwartz said the state and local governments should handle discrimination complaints.

All I'm trying to do is let the state and local government have the capability of dealing with antidiscrimination problems at the local level instead of having the federal government come in and do it," Schwartz said.

He said the federal agency responsible for enforcing the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission has a backlog of 100,000 cases.

But Sen. William T. Moore, D-Bryan, said Schwartz proposal duplicates federal enforcement activities and wastes taxpayers' money.

You're creating another bureaucracy to duplicate everything that the EEOC is doing in this state," Moore said. "I know it sounds good — We're going to do away with those federal inspectors — but you won't. You're creating another bureaucracy to duplicate everything that the EEOC is doing in this state.

Moore said antidiscrimination efforts have gone so far in some areas, white male, protestants are being discriminated against in favor of minority group members.

It's gotten to the point where a male member of the Caucasian race cannot be admitted to the University of Texas Law School," Moore said.

Leisure Lodge Opens

Burglars Hit Lefors, Still Sought

The Gray County Sheriff's Department and Lefors Constable R.B. White still are investigating today a burglary that occurred early Sunday at Florence Variety Store in Lefors.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said that burglars made a forcible entry through the front door of the store and made off with between 65 and 80 Timex wristwatches, two pieces of luggage about 25 cartons of popular brand cigarettes, three tape players and a player recorder.

The Sheriff said that an estimated $3,000 to $3,500 worth of merchandise was taken.

"They appeared to be in a hurry," the sheriff said. "It looks like they got in there and back out pretty fast."

An estimated 100 persons attended the ribbon cutting ceremony this morning marking the formal opening of Leisure Lodge of Pampa Nursing Home — a 120-bed facility located at 1504 W. Kentucky.

Pampa Mayor R.D. Wilkerson welcomed another fine operation in the field of health care to join the facilities already here — particularly those for senior citizens.

Master of ceremonies was Gene Steel, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

The new facility is owned by Leisure Lodge Inc., a Fort Smith, Ark.-based corporation with about 74 homes in Arkansas and Texas.

Darryl Slavons of Austin said the completion of the modern facility is the culmination of several months planning to meet the senior citizen needs of this area.

Mrs. Eileen Guy, administrator, said three patients, Joe Williams, Mrs. Pearl Copeland and Charles Bird, have already been admitted.

The dedicatory prayer was given by Glen Walton, minister of the Mary Ellen Harvester Church of Christ. Dr. Carl Lang represented the Top O' Texas Medical Association at the ceremony.

Women Escapees Captured

School Not For Sale Despite Sign

A Realtor sign advertising Sam Houston School, 900 N. Forst, for sale was quickly removed before class time Monday.

Pernal Scoggin, counselor, said a school employee discovered the sign when he reported for duty and notified the police department that the "For Sale" sign should be removed.

Students may rest assured that the school is not for sale and classes will continue as scheduled, officials said.

GROOM, Tex. (UPI) — Two women escapees from an Oklahoma prison kidnaped an Amarillo man at gunpoint and were fleeing toward the state line when their car died.

They ordered the man to get out and push the vehicle. As soon as the car started he fled on foot and notified officers, authorities said.

The two escapees were captured at a roadblock a short time later.

Carson County deputies said the man, Sammie Glen Gates, 29, was not injured.

The two women, Dora Brown and Pat Robison, walked away last week from the medium security section of the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester.

Police said charges of kidnaping would probably be filed today.

"They kidnaped that old boy in Amarillo by gunpoint and set out across the country," deputy

Willard Patterson said. "Out near Groom, however, the car died and they ordered their hostage to get out and push. When the car started, he hightailed it out across the prairie looking for help."

License Check Set

The Pampa Police Department will begin a series of drivers license checks within the city this week.

The announcement was made today by Police Chief Richard Mills, who said the purpose is to remove the unlicensed driver from the streets.

"After checking our accident records, we found that unlicensed drivers are involved in a high percentage of accidents," the chief said.

The checks will be made periodically at different locations.

"This is definitely a safety measure to lower the number of accidents within the city," said Mills.

The checks will delay residents if they have a valid license, no longer than one minute, he added.

The chief said that recent records show that "failure to yield right of way is now the number one driving violation worst mass murder case in the history of the United States and it didn't qualify for the death penalty.

The death penalty act passed by the 1973 Legislature to replace the old capital punishment law struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1972 provides mandatory death sentences for the murders of policemen or firemen on duty, murder committed in a robbery or prison escape and murder during a rape.

The subcommittee on criminal matters is considering a bill by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, to extend the death penalty to include torture murders, multiple killings, sex murders and fatal bombings.

Assistant Don Lambright said his office was frustrated in the trials of Elmer Wayne Henley and David Owen Brooks because the law did not allow the death penalty.

"We found ourselves with a murder case in which 27 persons that we know of were killed by three people that we know of, and somehow it didn't qualify for the death penalty. We found this to be idiotic," Lambright told a Senate subcommittee Monday night.

"We felt absolutely helpless in doing anything about it," Lambright said. "We had the

Urges Death Penalty For Multiple Slayings

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The prosecutor who obtained convictions and lengthy prison sentences for two defendants in the worst mass murder case in the United States says the Texas death penalty law should be extended to cover multiple slayings.

Assistant Don Lambright said his office was frustrated in the trials of Elmer Wayne Henley and David Owen Brooks because the law did not allow the death penalty.

"We found ourselves with a murder case in which 27 persons that we know of were killed by three people that we know of, and somehow it didn't qualify for the death penalty. We found this to be idiotic," Lambright told a Senate subcommittee Monday night.

"We felt absolutely helpless in doing anything about it," Lambright said. "We had the Lambright prosecuted the cases of Elmer Wayne Henley and David Owen Brooks.

Henley was sentenced to prison terms totaling 594 years and Brooks received a life sentence. They were both prosecuted as conspirators with Dean Arnold Corll, the alleged ringleader of the homosexual torture ring which committed the murders. Henley shot Corll to death before telling police about the killings.

Admission charges for the annual All-City Band Concert at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Harvester Fieldhouse will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students according to Jeff Loughlin, high school band director.

The News was incorrectly informed Monday that no admission would be charged for the concert.

There will be 550 band students from grades 3 through 12 participating in the concert.

although none of the hostages was harmed, Protter threatened to blow up the building along with the hostages unless he was given safe passage to Tel Aviv in an Israeli plane where he apparently wanted to speak with the prime minister.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George C. Wallace ran into a hornet's nest of questioning House freshmen Democrats Monday. He had come to Capitol Hill to testify in support of federal funds for a waterway project. Once during the questioning Wallace was given a temporary respite by the buzzer signaling a House vote, but he was asked to wait and resume the discussion after the vote was taken. Finally the ordeal was over and a tired Wallace was wheeled from the room with his wife by his side.

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chrysler Corp. is launching a new rebate program to persuade car buyers to buy its small cars. And it's tying its promise of $200 rebates to the federal tax rebate checks that start going out in the mail in May. Hopefully the recipients will use their income tax rebates to make down payments on the cars.

World News

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $327 million and authority to use American troops in evacuation operations in South Vietnam requested by President Ford 18 days ago, appeared headed for congressional approval today. The House votes this afternoon on a House-Senate conference report and if it passes it will be sent to the White House where the President is expected to sign it. Ford is waiting for Congress to tell him what power he has to evacuate allied Vietnamese, who might face Communist reprisals.

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — David Protter, a South African Jew employed by the Israeli Consulate as a security officer, surrendered to police today. Protter Monday took over the consulate single-handedly and held the more than 20 persons in the building hostage for 16 hours. At least two persons were killed and 32 injured.

Weather

Sunny and mild weather is predicted today and Wednesday. The low tonight will be in the 40s and the high Wednesday will be near 80.

Order Requires Less Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today reinstated an order requiring reduction of air pollution caused by loading and unloading of gasoline on ships and barges in the Houston Ship Channel.

The order was blocked temporarily by Justice William H. Rehnquist on April 23 until the full court could act. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. did not participate in today's action.

The air-clean-up requirement was opposed by four oil companies — Exxon, Shell, Amoco and Atlantic Richfield. It was part of an air quality plan for Texas issued by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out some aspects of the plan but approved the regulation dealing with hydrocarbon emissions in the Houston-Galveston region.

The oil companies said the technology for compliance does not yet exist and the "vapor recovery systems required by the regulation... will create a real and present danger of catastrophic explosions."

They asked that the 5th Circuit's action be stayed until they could appeal it to the Supreme Court.

But the federal government, opposing the stay, said the companies merely wish to avoid any obligation to work toward the regulation's requirements. EPA has said repeatedly it has no intention of enforcing the issue in the immediate future, the government said.

Technically the date for compliance is May 31 but the Justice Department said an extension may be sought in other ways than in the courts. The companies' application was supported by the Texas Chemical Council, a trade association of 64 companies, and by Harris County and the Harris County Hospital District.

Bandit Robs, Kills Landlord

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A bandit covered his face with a stocking mask, waited in a hallway closet and killed an elderly landlord collecting monthly rent payments Sunday.

Police said Jesus Ybarra, 64, died of multiple gunshot wounds to the chest.

Officers said the bandit apparently was aware of the time Ybarra collected his rent at one of several apartment houses he owned.

Witnesses said they heard shots and watched Ybarra stagger through the front door of the apartment house and collapse on a sidewalk.

A young man with a stocking over his face and carrying a gun was seen fleeing on foot.

Ybarra's wallet, containing an undetermined amount of cash, was missing.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Another forward step is possible in your bid for success as you apply novel methods. Don't assume you've found a final marketing formula; continue looking for better ways.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Honor your side of a partnership by being simple and direct. Deliver on schedule and claim your rewards for doing so. Celebrate with a fun evening.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Authority has eyes and ears today; be careful about what you present and how you go about it. Older people and their activities confuse appearances and make additional work.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Communications must be kept open if you are to get that project off the ground. Those close to you complicate matters; bring in friends to turn the situation around.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: A quiet search opens new channels for your talents and reveals reasons for recent and current obstacles. There's nothing mysterious once you've got an idea how things work.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Gather your courage; ask for improvements and recognition. Needed information is offered by many sources. Have the courtesy to be a gracious listener—but promise nothing.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: On the surface all is well and thriving. Your intuition then stirs a bit. What seems a premature move turns out to be almost too late. Count your blessings!

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You must do your best on behalf of others whose resources you influence. Watch what you do and who receives the impact.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Collect what's coming to you; call in borrowed belongings. Remember that your actions are seen by rivals as well as friends. At home stay within your budget.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Unless you're aware of the things being said and done, you have little chance to have a finger in the pie. Be attentive, ask good questions, express your feelings.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: A wide range of moods is probable today, and according to the way you adapt, you are your own best friend or worst enemy. It's temporary, so cheer up!

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Skip financial maneuvering, concentrate on finishing jobs at hand. The less you let friends do for you, the better. Seek leads to new sources of supply.

New Pay Law Will Not Affect Pampa

The overtime pay changes which become effective Thursday for an estimated 2 million Americans is expected to have no effect on the unemployment rate in the Pampa area.

Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Pampa Texas Employment Commission Office, reported optimistically that he expects no layoffs due to the change.

In comparison, Ragsdale said the Minimum Wage Law changes in the past have resulted in some employers cutting back on payroll costs thus relieving a number of employees from their jobs.

The new rates will apply to employees who are now receiving overtime pay after working 48 hours in a workweek. However, most workers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act will continue to receive the basic overtime rate of time and a half after 40 hours in a week.

The largest group to benefit from the change consists of 1,521,000 hotel and motel employees, currently entitled to overtime after 48 hours. This will be reduced to 46 hours Thursday.

Of this group 248,000 housekeeping and custodial employees will benefit from two further reductions — to 44 hours on May 1, 1976, and to 40 hours on May 1, 1977.

The following groups are also currently entitled to overtime pay after 48 hours, but must be paid time and a half after 44 hours beginning Thursday, and after 40 hours beginning May 1, 1976 — 246,000 retail or service establishment employees whose primary function is to prepare or provide food to the public or to private concerns; 92,000 local transit drivers, conductors and operators whose carriers or railways are subject to state or local regulation; 48,000 bowling establishment employees; 40,000 seafood canning and processing employees; and telegraph employees of certain retail and service establishments.

workers are Homer Thomas, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee organizing the drive, and R.D. Wilkerson, mayor of Pampa. (Staff photo)

Burglars Hit Post Office Texaco Station

The Post Office Texaco Service Station, 123 S. Ballard, was burglarized early today and a portable radio taken.

Police records show that entry to the building was gained by forcing the front door inward, splintering the wooden molding which holds the locking latch.

The burglary was discovered when employees reported for duty about 6:30 a.m.

Because of the importance of this sale, West told UPI before testifying, "I wanted to appear to answer any questions possible."

Swift Buys Dumas Plant

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A federal bankruptcy judge approved the $18 million sale of American Beef Packers Dumas, Tex., plant to Swift Fresh Meats, Inc., Monday.

ABP Board Chairman and President Frank R. West testified earlier there was no way ABP could keep the facility "under present circumstances."

It was West's first appearance in ABP's bankruptcy proceedings before Judge David Crawford since the meatpacker filed under Chapter XI of the federal bankruptcy statutes Jan. 7.

Crawford's approval for the Dumas sale was one of five conditions established previously between ABP and Swift. Comments by the attorneys involved in the case indicated the most crucial provision yet to be met was approval by the U.S. Justice Department that the sale was within antitrust law guidelines.

Robert Berry, an Omaha attorney representing Swift in the transaction, said the Justice Department asked for more information from Swift.

"The Justice Department is doing a thorough job on this," Berry said. "They are requesting a lot of information, and we believe it is important that they do so."

Other sale conditions include the anticipated approval by the Swift & Co. and its parent firm Echmark's boards of directors, appropriate water and sewage agreements with the city of Cactus, Tex., and the execution of a final purchase contract satisfactory to ABP and Swift.

Crawford rejected a petition filed by the Southern Conference of Teamsters Local 577 and the Texas Conference of Teamsters to continue the labor agreement covering 300 Dumas employees once the plant is sold to Swift.

Exactly how much the creditors will profit from the Dumas sale remains uncertain. The federal Economic Development Administration is holding $3.5 million in construction bonds and ABP's largest secured creditor, General Electric Credit Corp., has a $4.5 million mortgage on the property. Mechanics liens total $2 million.

Dumas was constructed at a cost of $23 million, $10 million more than originally estimated, and the cost overrun was one of the prime reasons ABP filed bankruptcy.

The Dumas sale expected to be consummated by July 1 was especially painful for West, who opened Dumas in May 1974 as the largest and most modern meat processing facility in the world. The plant never did attain full operational status.

Meeting May Consider City Code, Insurance

City Manager Mack Wofford said today he was considering calling a special meeting of the City Commission for further discussion of the city's proposed mobile home code and federal flood insurance.

The city manager said he planned to talk with city commissioners today to decide whether a night meeting should be called to get discussion of the two matters completed in order to get them finalized at the next regular meeting of the commission.

"We should know by tomorrow whether it is possible to arrange the meeting some night this week," Wofford said.

The City of Pampa has been notified by the Federal Flood Administration office that the city is in danger of losing its federal FHA and VA home loans unless Pampa enrolls in the flood insurance program to make city residents eligible to buy federal

Commissioners Report 'Successful' Meeting

City commissioners Leo Braswell and Ray Thompson had what they described as a "successful meeting" with state legislators at the Texas Municipal League breakfast Monday in Austin.

The two Pampa officials met with State Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa and State Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo to discuss legislation pending in the State Legislature that would affect Pampa.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he talked briefly with Commissioner Braswell on his return to Pampa last night.

He said the commissioners possibly would report on their trip at the next meeting of the city commission. It is understood Braswell and Thompson urged the district representative and senator to lend efforts to "defeat or substantially amend" the pending bill to create a county appraisal office under state control for city, county and school tax purposes.

Their discussion in that respect was a follow through on the telegram sent to Cates by the mayor and city commissioners last week on the same matter.

After hosting the state representative and senator at the Legislative breakfast, the two Pampa commissioners continued their talks with Cates at a luncheon. Braswell said.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

Here I am with an "empty?" can of black pepper on my desk wondering why the manufacturers of these cans put the openings in the middle of the can instead of at the corner.

Now we all know the last of the pepper always gathers in the corners of the cans!

For years, when the cans were cardboard with a metal top, I used the prying end of my can opener and pried the top off the can in order to get out the last speck of pepper, but since the cans are all metal now, it is harder to do.

Today I shook the cobwebs loose in my head and discovered that if I took a beer can opener and punched a triangular hole in the top of the can at the corner, I could get all the pepper out of the can.

This would also work on spice cans that opened in the middle of the can instead of the corner.

a day to see what program I would like to watch.

Dear Heloise:

Camping season will soon be here again and I would like to pass along my solution for taking eggs along on a camping trip.

First, carefully crack all the eggs one by one. It helps to crack each egg into a small bowl and then pour into a larger container to avoid putting cracked yolks with the whole ones.

Pour—carefully—all the eggs into a small leakproof container. I use a jar with a tight-fitting lid.

When using the eggs, they pour out one by one, each yoke with just the right amount of white around it.

To use all the eggs for scrambled eggs, just shake the container and add whatever else you like.

No Nonsense

Dear Heloise:

I'm in the eighth grade and take guitar lessons at our school.

I have a very hard time keeping tabs on the guitar pick and I'm always losing them. One day when I lost all my picks, I came across a plastic tab used to fasten bread wrappers. I tried it and it worked fine.

I thought I'd pass this helpful hint to anyone else who happens to be in the same boat as I'm in.

Y.B.

Dear Heloise:

A useful hint which has come to me to save time is to use a felt-tipped hi-lighter pen to mark through the title and time of the TV programs that I wish to watch each day.

Either the night before or early each morning, I look through the day's listings and highlight the ones I particularly want to watch.

As soon as the ink dries (I use the yellow pen), the print shows through clearly and this saves time in searching several times

Dear Heloise:

My mom and I were about to plant some flower seeds and found an easy and economical way to start the seeds.

Take a styrofoam egg carton and cut the lid apart from the bottom.

Poke a hole in the bottom of each cup for drainage and fill each section with dirt or potting soil and plant the seeds.

The top of the carton can be used on the bottom to catch the drainage.

If you want to remember what kind of seeds they are, stick the envelope in between the sides of the top and bottom tray.

When they are ready to be transplanted, just push the bottom of the cups and the plants will pop right out, without breaking off any roots.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

At the conclusion of play in today's deal, South scored up a game, plus 150 in honors. In the post-mortem analysis, it was revealed that all he was really entitled to were his 150 honors. For West could have defeated the contract. East-West vulnerable.

South, who had jumped to three spades over North's negative one notrump response, rated to have the diamond ace. South was known to have no high-card strength in either of the black suits.

What West should have hoped for was that East possessed the diamond king; and if he did, then the lead of the diamond queen would enable East to obtain the lead with the diamond king for the cashing of the heart ace.

But, as is evident, West didn't give sufficient thought to the probable diamond set-up around the table—and it turned out to be costly to the East-West defenders.

On West's opening lead of the heart king, East signaled encouragement with the ten-spot. West continued with the queen of hearts. East following suit with the nine. Hoping that his partner possessed the diamond ace, West then shifted to a low diamond. When the nine was played from dummy, East put up the king, which South captured with his ace.

After his ace and king of trumps had gathered in the adversely-held pieces, South led his four of diamonds. West won with the queen, and exited with a diamond. On the board's jack South discarded his remaining heart. The rest of the tricks were South's.

Actually, if West had not shifted to a diamond at trick three, South would have had an easy time of it. Assuming that West led a club instead, dummy's king would have won the trick. Trumps would then have been drawn, after which declarer would have led his heart jack, losing it to East's ace. Upon regaining the lead, declarer would have entered dummy with the club ace, and on the fourth heart he would have discarded his losing diamond.

Thus West was correct in shifting to a diamond. But to have hoped that East had the ace was overly optimistic. Sure

Will Success Spoil Rock-Solid Marriage?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The same ingredients that make a man successful in his profession can prove fatal to his marriage. He turns his wife into a widow, by his absence from home, his dedication to job above all else.

Dr. Wallace Denton, who's worked for nearly 20 years in family counseling, calls this man the "workaholic." To succeed, he's willing to arrive at work early and stay late, but he leaves his family only "the ragged edge of his energies. When he's not occupied with his work, he's thinking about it."

"The number one complaint of wives of these men is that they feel abandoned. 'Maybe widowed is a better word,' he said. Denton said that often the workaholic tends to view his wife and children merely as "professional jewelry" — they are part of the success syndrome that includes living in the right end of town and belonging to the right clubs.

The family counselor heads the department of child development and family life at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind. His thoughts on how success in job can mean failure in marriage first were expressed in writings at the school, where he directs a marriage counseling center, and enlarged on with a telephone interview from New York. "They're just observations over the years which jelled in my thinking," said the professor. "I'm talking about women in the home, not so much of the working wife."

Denton's wife is homemaker, helping rear a 19-year-old son, a 15-year-old daughter. She holds two master's degrees, he said, and soon plans to go back to work—possibly in connection with his profession of family counseling.

Is the man damaging himself physically as well as the family structure by being a workaholic, I asked?

"It depends on attitude," Denton answered. "I don't think hard work hurts. It's work at a job you don't like that damages."

The earmark of the workaholic is competitiveness—it may get him promoted at the job but create friction at home, said Denton.

When the "successful" man is at work, he's in charge—everyone knows it and roles are clear cut.

When the same man goes home and makes similar demands, Denton said, he is met with "Get your own drink" or "Why can't you do it?" When he issues orders at home, nobody jumps but the dog.

Maybe, Denton suggested (and admitted he was saying it in jest), this man should "hire" a wife, complete with experience, much as he would hire a secretary. At least, each party would know what to expect.

"Too many wives say that they didn't bargain for the type of life their husband offers," he said. "They just didn't know what they were getting into." He said a couple can eliminate some of the alienation that seems to follow "success" by setting a certain time to spend together during the week. But to keep a love alive requires time—"love doesn't thrive on a crumb here, a crumb there."

And if the woman is going to survive and be functional, he said, she has to "build a world of her own. I would wish we could develop more parttime jobs of significance, fulfilling and not trivial."

"One of the problems of being the liberated woman is that there aren't enough liberated men to go around."

Remember you cannot add fresh or frozen pineapple, figs, mangoes, papayas, or frozen concentrated fruit juice blends containing these fruits to gelatin. An enzyme in these fruits, when fresh, prevents gelatin from setting. However, it is possible to use these fruits if they are cooked or canned.

For prolonged storage, it's wise to loosely cover gelatin with aluminum foil or plastic wrap to prevent evaporation, drying, and a rubbery texture.

Where To Put a Freezer

COLLEGE STATION — Before having her new freezer delivered, the homemaker needs to consider where to locate it. Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist, pointed out this week.

"Location of a freezer is important because it will not function well in direct sunlight, near a heat source or in an unventilated area," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Most freezers are designed for operation within certain temperature limits. When the temperature goes below freezing, the life of the compressor may be shortened.

Temperatures above a certain point will cause the freezer to run frequently, and this increases operating costs and decreases the life of the appliance, she explained.

"A freezer may weigh as much as 1500 pounds when fully loaded. So it's necessary to be sure the location can support the load and has level floor for quiet operation."

"Unless the unit has forced-air condenser, it needs at least a three-inch space above it to allow warm air to circulate," the specialist advised.

Since the appliance will probably be used frequently, locate it in an easily accessible place — next to a table or countertop.

"If space is a problem, the unit may have to be stored in a laundry room or garage. Before these areas are considered, the humidity also should be checked. If the area is too damp, some of the metal on the freezer may rust."

For maximum safety, the freezer must be grounded. Consult the owner's manual for instructions, she said.

Texas Beauty Spots Topic for Civic Club

Mrs. Carl Patchin presented the Civic Culture program when it met with Mrs. C.V. Forsman recently.

The Texas Heritage program "Texas Beauty Spots" was a film furnished by the Texas Highway Department. The contrast in the highways in the 30's and those of today showed marvelous improvements, the speaker told.

For more than 40 years architects have been employed to help beautify the highways and make them safe for travel. Evidence of man's handiwork and nature blends multiple use of concept of bridges keeping them in repair with the beautification effort in mind, she said.

The Texas Highway Department plants and preserves wild flowers in a program of beautification that has spanned more than 30 years. This department is, intact, the nation's largest "landscape gardener." With more than 800,000 acres of highway right-of-way to cultivate, mow and care for, trees were left where possible, others were planted.

Texas was first to start the roadside parks, maintained by the department.

More than 5,000 species of Texas wild flowers offer unlimited viewing pleasure to Texans and visitors along the vast stretch of highways throughout the state. Depending upon weather conditions, season of the year, and location, almost all of these species may be found along Texas highways the speaker concluded.

Mrs. D.A. Rife, president, was in charge of the meeting. The next meeting will be May 13 with Mrs. George Neef.

Spring Work Begins, To End With Tilt

By PAUL SIMS
Pampa High's coaching staff instigated a new offense, the Wishbone, a year ago in spring football training.

Pampa, this year, will put another new offense, the Houston Veer, into effect when spring training begins an 18-day stint at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the high school.

The only difference is Pampa will enter spring workouts coming off an 8-2 season and a runner-up finish in district play. Last year at this time, Pampa had a dismal 2-8 record to look back on. The momentum, Pampa hopes, will carry over.

The veer isn't the only change this year. For the first time in years, Pampa's staff will attempt to conduct a varsity-alumni game (at 7:30 p.m. May 20), a change from the standard intersquad scrimmage which doesn't allow a team to feel too competitive.

"We're gonna try to have a varsity-alumni game just to see how it works out. We'll have it if we have enough seniors (off last year's squad) that will participate. We want to win but we also want to look at a lot of players, too. It'll be a game situation," Pampa coach John Welborn said.

Why the offensive change? "To take advantage of personnel," Welborn replied. "We've got some running backs with real good speed.

"There's the advantage of spreading the defense out a little bit more so you can throw. You have to throw more in this type offense; you throw about as much as you run the ball."

Two halfbacks will line up behind the quarterback, while a slotback (flanker) will move to the same side as the split end. The tight end will line up around eight yards away from the line on the opposite side.

The backs could be the team's forte. Senior Mike Glover (5-10, 180), the district's sophomore of the year two seasons ago at Berger, and juniors David Caldwell (6-1, 190) and Ricky Moore (5-10, 180) will likely alternate in the two running positions.

"I think there's the possibility we could be more explosive than last year," Welborn said.

Caldwell and Moore were exceptional as breakout runners on the junior varsity last season. Glover could turn out to be the district's premier running back in his senior season.

"We'll alternate Glover, Caldwell and Ricky Moore in two positions and go with our smaller receivers outside. We'll have a slotback, split. We'll have a slotback, split end and flex tight end," the head coach, in his second year at Pampa, said.

Quarterback will probably be senior John Agan, although Garland McPherson, also a senior, may earn the position. Another quarterback is Mike Martin, who has moved from Pampa to Michigan back to Pampa, returning three weeks ago. Welborn says, "He's got pretty good potential."

Agan holds the edge, however. Starting last season in the games Chuck Quarles missed with a broken thumb.

You can't win a championship with a backfield alone, however. Just what are Pampa's chances of winning its first district crown since 1971?

Welborn says they're good. "Caprock's got to be picked, with eight offensive starters back. They're well-coached and they have a little tradition. Palo Duro will be real respectable if not one of the contenders. Amarillo High is considerably improved."

He adds, "I think we've got a strong chance to be a contender.

There are a few areas which must first be tested, under game conditions. Pampa lost most of last year's team to graduation.

"One of our big keys is how the offensive line performs. And if our defensive linemen play as well as (Dane) Rasmussen and (Ron) Willett and Dick Blaine."

And if our defensive ends play as well as Taylor Drinnon, and if Kelly Baker (defensive end) plays as well as he did last year. We'll have a good secondary and good linebackers."

The linebackers include Frankie Lemmons, injured all of last season but expected to be a defensive standout this year.

Only Joe Coats on the offensive line. Dave Edwards in the defensive secondary and Baker are full-time returning starters. Yet, inexperience should not play too big a part in keeping Pampa from winning since there are several seniors on the team.

Those include Lemmons, David Skoog, Dub Taylor, Mark Adair, Bill Brothers, Mike Hunnicutt, Mike Copeland, Jim Crocker, Tom Doggett, Phillip Seely, Paul Sloan, Jay Spearman, Tony Stafford, Russell Thornburg and Ernie Tollison.

"We're gonna have to take up a lot of slack. The seniors are gonna have to prove leadership," Welborn said. "The key to any ball club is how well the seniors play and take over leadership roles."

Kentucky Colonels Take Series From St. Louis

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Assistant Coach Stan Albeck turned out to be a lousy prophet but no one on the Kentucky Colonels was complaining about it.

Albeck predicted before the Colonels opened their American Basketball Association Eastern Division final playoff series with the Spirits of St. Louis that it would go the limit of seven games. The forecast was based on what he had seen of the Spirits in their surprising elimination of the New York Nets in the first round.

Instead, the Colonels wrapped it up in five games as they outclassed St. Louis 123-103 Monday night to win the clincher.

But then again, Albeck hadn't figured on St. Louis losing its floor general, high-scoring Freddie Lewis, with a sprained ankle in the fourth game Sunday night. The loss of the veteran guard, a steady force with the youthful Spirits, was virtually a mortal blow.

"The way Freddie was playing, he was about 40 per cent of our ball club," said Spirits Coach Bob MacKinnon.

"To beat the Colonels, we needed to be 100 per cent, not 60 per cent."

Kentucky Coach Hubie Brown conceded Lewis's value but he wasn't extending any sympathy.

"When we played at St. Louis without (guard) Bird Averitt, who had a pulled hamstring, and with both Ted McClain and Dan Issel ailing, nobody shed any tears for us," Brown said.

"Injuries are just one of those things you have to live with in this business."

St. Louis rookie Marvin Barnes, leading scorer Monday night with 35 points, said, "We couldn't control the tempo of the game and couldn't get our offense clicking without Freddie. We had to ad lib a lot with our offense and that's hard to do against an experienced team like Kentucky."

The Colonels, thriving on Artis Gilmore's dominating inside play and the deadly second-half outside shooting of Issel, made it a runaway after leading at the half, 57-46. Gilmore had 29 points, 20 rebounds and seven blocked shots and Issel wound up with 28 points.

Kentucky, with 17 victories in its last 19 games, now awaits the winner of the Western Division series between Indiana and Denver for its opponent in the championship finals. Indiana leads, three games to two, and can sew it up by winning the next game at Indianapolis Wednesday night.

The Kentucky-St. Louis game was the only pro basketball game Monday night. In the NBA, both Golden State and Washington have 1-0 leads over their rivals in the semifinal playoffs, the Chicago Bulls and the Boston Celtics, respectively.

Baseball Roundup Harmon Hits 563rd Homer

UPI Sports Writer
Even though they're retiring his famed uniform shirt, Harmon Killebrew's number is far from up.

The 38-year-old slugger, No. 2 on the all-time list behind Babe Ruth in home runs per at-bats, is having his famed No. 3 retired by the Minnesota Twins later this season, but before he follows his number into retirement he is anxious to prove that there is still plenty of baseball left in him.

Killebrew was cut loose by the Twins this past winter after 21 years with the organization and was picked up by the Kansas City Royals, who immediately made him their designated hitter. So far, he has been worth the gamble.

Killebrew unloaded his 563rd career homer in the sixth inning off knuckleballer Wilbur Wood to snap a 3-3 tie Monday night, and the Royals went on to post a 7-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox. The homer was the fourth of the season for the bald-headed veteran, which is surprising since he has never been much of a spring hitter.

Royals Manager Jack McKeon attributes Killebrew's good start to his doing a lot of running in spring training, but Harmon disagrees.

"As far as I can tell, there is no correlation in running the mile and hitting a home run," said Killebrew.

Of his homer off Wood, Killebrew said, "I've gotten a few off him and he's got me a few times. The object is to get the knuckler between the seams. On Wood you just try to get around on something."

Hal McRae also contributed a big hit to the Royals' victory, a three-run triple in the seventh, as Kansas City tagged Wood with his fifth loss in six decisions. Steve Busby, with ninth-inning relief help from Doag Bird, received credit for his third win in four decisions. Jorge Orta hit a two-run homer for Chicago.

In the only other scheduled American League games, New York beat Cleveland, 6-1, and Detroit nipped Baltimore, 3-1. Houston beat San Diego, 4-1, and Los Angeles edged Atlanta, 4-3, in the only National League action.

Yankees 6, Indians 1:
Rudy May tossed a four-hitter and Alex Johnson knocked in three runs to spark the Yankees to victory over Cleveland, May, beating the Indians for the 11th time in 14 career decisions, struck out six in raising his record to 2-1. Johnson, serving as the designated hitter, tripled in two runs in the first inning and delivered another with a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Tigers 3, Orioles 3:
Gary Sutherland's two-run single with two out and the bases filled in the ninth capped a three-run rally, which lifted Detroit over Baltimore. Sutherland's hit came off reliever Dave Johnson after the Tigers had tied the score at 3-3 when Mike Cuellar walked Aurelio Rodriguez, with the bases filled to force home the tying run. Don Baylor homered for Baltimore and Willie Horton connected for Detroit.

Astros 4, Padres 1:
Bob Watson singled home two runs and scored a third as Houston sent San Diego to its fourth straight loss. Dave Roberts went the distance for the Astros.

Dodgers 4, Braves 3:
Manny Mota's pinch-hit two-run single capped a three-run, eighth-inning that carried Los Angeles past Atlanta.

Foreman, Primo Both Booed

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman reminds me of the late Primo Carnera at the end, when the whole thing came apart for him, too.

Foreman seems deeply confused now. He isn't at all sure what to do or how to go about doing it. When fans in Toronto booed him Saturday for that ridiculous five-man sideshow he put on, then gave him the cold shoulder, ignoring him completely to cheer and lavish their affection upon Muhammad Ali doing the TV commentary at ringside. Foreman stood there uncomprehendingly, self-consciously, thoroughly deflated.

Having received $5 million for his fight with Ali in Zaire, George Foreman isn't particularly worried about where his next meal is coming from. Money isn't his problem. If he plays his cards right, he doesn't ever really have to work again in his life. He can live off the interest.

Exceptionally strong, physically, Foreman has the strength of a bull elephant and the courage of a cornered leopard, but when it comes to direction he's more like a muddled lamb looking for some way forward but really drifting farther and farther backward all the time.

Here is a huge, hulking mountain of a man, bloated and not really in shape now at 232 pounds, obviously lost in the tangled webwork of his frustration.

Carnera had two things going for him—enthusiasm and size. He compiled 59 knockouts, some open to question, and his 60th on June 29, 1933, a six-round kayo over Jack Sharkey, brought him the world heavyweight title.

He had the shortest reign of any heavyweight champ, losing his title two weeks less than a year later to madcap Maxie Baer on a knockout. Baer knocked him down 11 times before referee Arthur Donovan said, okay, no more. From that point on, poor Primo went pretty much downhill, being kayoed by Joe Louis a year later and by third-rater Leroy Haynes twice in a row the year after that.

His two fights with Haynes came only two months apart. In the first one, Haynes wiped out Carnera in three rounds, and in the second one, Carnera lasted nine rounds after which he was taken immediately to a hospital.

"I lay in that hospital for five months," he was to say later. "My whole left side was paralyzed and I had much pain. During all this time, nobody came to see me. I had no friend in all the world."

Unlike George Foreman, Carnera was practically broke when he finished fighting, thanks to the way he was mishandled, and eventually he turned to wrestling, performing almost two years. He also operated a liquor store in Glendale, Calif. for some time, then returned home to Italy to die at 61.

Because of his outlandish size, his awkwardness and the shadowy character of some of those who surrounded him, Carnera frequently was made fun of during his fighting days although he actually was a conscientious, clean-living honest individual.

To Primo Carnera, as a professional, the jibes and catcalls directed at him were

Vandivier Inducted, Russell Doesn't Show

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — The National Basketball Hall of Fame honored its greatest contributors Monday night and guess who didn't come to dinner.

Bill Russell, one of four men elected last year to the shrine, stayed away as expected and the folks running the affair wisely chose to ignore the snub.

Robert "Fuzzy" Vandivier, a legend on Indiana basketball courts in the '20s, accepted his induction humbly. Joe Brennan, a former pro and coach at Manhattan and St. Francis, talked about old times; and friends of the late Emil Liston eulogized the founder of what became the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

But what was said of Russell, the man who revolutionized the meaning of a defensive center in a 13-year career with the Boston Celtics? Well, the Hall of Fame trustees used the same strategy that Russell had employed in refusing induction more than two months ago: a brushoff statement and nothing more.

The trustees' concession to Russell's election was a 10-foot, stained-glass window bearing his portrait. It was placed alongside the windows honoring the other 93 Hall of Famers but there was no unveiling ceremony and no speeches.

"We're not supposed to comment and we're not supposed to have any personal views on the matter," explained former Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp, one of the founders of the Hall. "We had a meeting this morning and decided to let him speak for himself."

Russell, now coach of the NBA Seattle SuperSonics, steadfastly has declined to comment other than to say he has refused induction "for personal reasons."

"Maybe when you know you're the best, it just doesn't mean as much as it did to the pioneers of the game," offered Bob Davies, former Rochester Royals star who is in the Hall of Fame. "But I think one day, he will be very proud to be in the hall."

"In fact, I think deep down he already is proud. He did not say anything derogatory about the induction and you have to give him credit for that. He doesn't want to hurt the people who have honored him."

Evans Pigeon Captures Top Speed; 1st In Race

A Blue Bar cock, flown by Keith Evans, averaged 1623.25 yards per minute and captured first place Saturday in the weekly Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club competition.

The race, from Austin to Pampa, attracted 12 lofts, from which 90 birds were entered.

Evans also took second place with a Blur Bar hen flying 1610.12.

Baseballers At Berger For District Tilt Today

Pampa, loser of all of its seven district games, will continue its youth format today in a 4 p.m. game against Berger on the Bulldog field.

Pampa, 8-12 for the season, lost to Tascosa, 8-5, in the Harvesters' last action. Berger, 7-10 overall and 3-4 in district, edged Palo Duro, 12-10.

The Harvesters will either pitch Mike Fraser (1-2 with a 3.70 earned-run average) or Dennis Edmondson (2-4 with a 3.42 ERA). Berger will likely counter with Rodney Poole 4-3 and 2.70.

Leading Pampa hitters are Fraser (.413), catcher Tyler Drington (.390) and first baseman Roy Morris (.259). Pampa has been going with a sophomore-studded lineup recently.

Berger's top hitters are third baseman Dale Florer (.367) and six homers, first baseman Mickey Robertson (.363), leftfielder Don Keener (.302) and rightfielder Steve Carder (.320).

In other district games today, Caprock (6-1) visits Tascosa (5-2) and Amarillo High (5-2) hosts Palo Duro (2-5).

Predicts Slow Down in Hospital Rates

By ANNA BURCHELL

While hospitals across the nation, including Highland General in Pampa and the McLean Hospitals, have been forced to play "leap frog" with room rates since 1967 when they were hit by the Minimum Wage Law, a possible slowing down is predicted.

Robert Monogue, administrator for the two area hospitals, said today that he expects no additional increases in rates this year.

Monogue said the last increase which became effective March 30 brought room rates in Pampa from $51 per day for a private room to $56, and from $46 to $51 for a semi-private room.

The Pampa and McLean hospitals, like others throughout the nation, were compelled to increase rates to offset salary adjustments.

"Our goal," said Monogue, "is to provide unexcelled service at the lowest possible price."

The hospital is open seven days weekly — 24 hours daily and salaries account for 60 per cent of the budget.

However, Monogue reported optimistically that he foresees "some slowing down in costs."

Hospital administrators have been dealing with Minimum Wage Law changes since 1967 when hospital employees were covered under the law with a minimum salary scale of $1 per hour. The minimum is now $2.10.

In comparing the cost per patient day in the Highland General Hospital with costs on the state and national level, records show that the cost here is $91.91 per patient day.

The state average is $106.75, and the national average is $109.72.

Highland General Hospital employs about 300 persons with a payroll of $1,391,935 in 1974 — Pampa's fifth largest employer. In 1973, the payroll was $1,153,617.

The average patient stay in the local hospital is 5.5 days while the state average is six days.

McLean Hospital rates are now $64 and $51 per day with 28 employees on $136,611 payroll in 1974.

As hospital rates soared across the Texas Panhandle in the past eight years, no one has been more concerned than hospital administrators.

Highland General Hospital admitted its first patient on Feb. 13, 1950 with room rates of about $8 per day. In 1969 rates were $27 and $32 per day.

However, Pampa residents as well as those of the surrounding area point with pride to the hospitals which serve an estimated 30,000 population area.

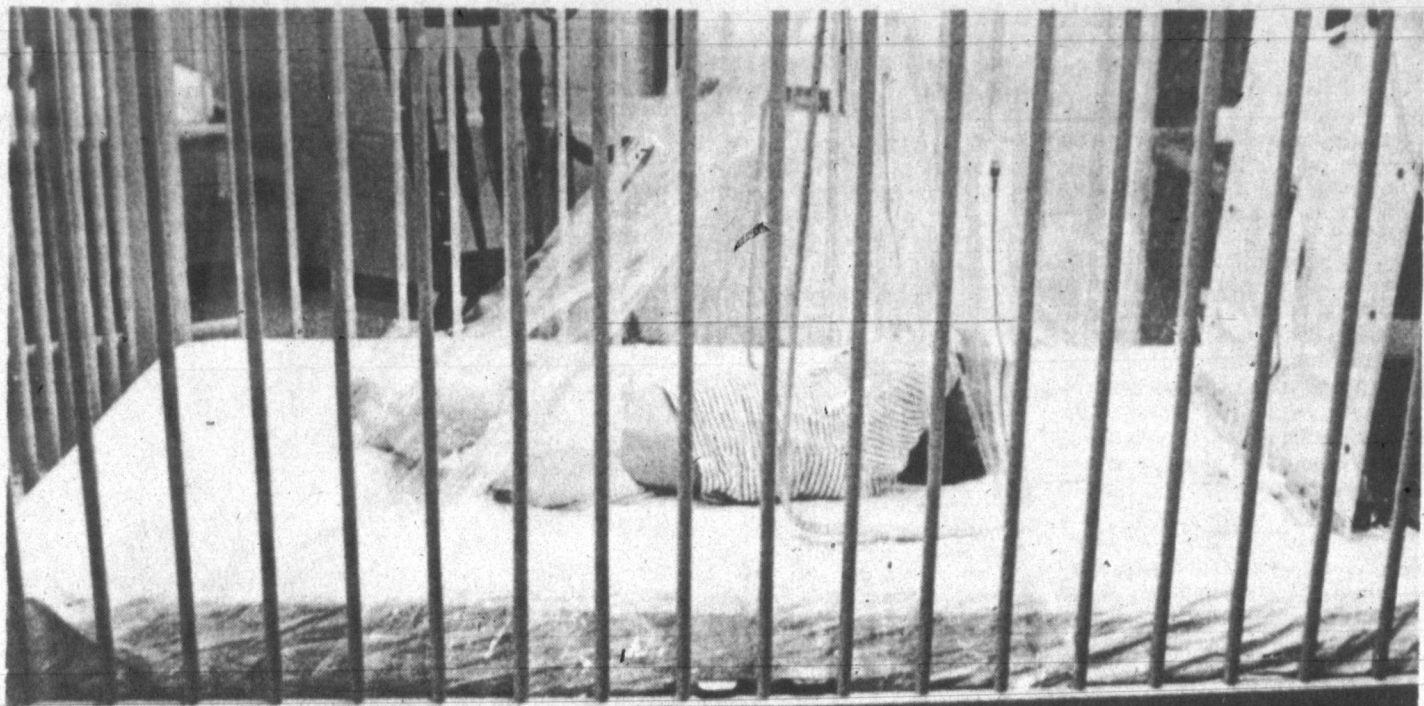

Monogue said 90 per cent of the patients are local and the hospital operates at 70 per cent occupancy.

He reported that the change in overtime benefits which entitled almost 2 million workers through the nation to over time pay Thursday after working fewer hours will not affect McLean and Highland hospitals.

Those hospitals are already in compliance.

The new rates apply to those who are now receiving over time pay after 48 hours per week.

The largest group to benefit from the change consists of 1,521 hotel and motel employees, currently entitled to overtime after 48 hours. This will be reduced to 46 hours on May 1, according to Phillip F. Arrien, assistant regional director of labor for employment standards.

LEAP FROG — Hospital care costs, one of the most controversial pocketbook items in the country, have increased steadily to keep pace minimum wage laws. But Pampa hospital administrator Robert Monogue predicts "some slowing down in costs." Rooms at Highland General are $46 to $56 a day.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas alligators thought to be endangered just six years ago now are so numerous authorities fear humans may be in more danger than the reptiles. Lawmakers are being asked to repeal a 1969 law prohibiting killing the reptiles.

"We're literally up to our fannies in alligators in places," says Ted Clark, wildlife director for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Latest estimates of the alligator population in Jefferson County indicate there are 13,600 of the animals in a 312-square-mile area, an average of 44 per square mile.

Parks officials estimate there are 36,600 distributed over 7,700 square miles of suitable habitat in 97 counties in the state. The alligator population is increasing so rapidly in 34 counties experts are concerned the reptiles are reaching the saturation point.

"There's more alligators than most people realize," a biologist says. "They were down some a few years ago but in recent years they've really boomed back."

Sen. D. Roy Harrington, D-Port Arthur, author of the 1969 law protecting alligators, is sponsoring a bill this year to repeal the earlier measure and give the parks department authority to manage the reptile population.

"Right now the law is nobody can kill an alligator or even have an alligator hide in his possession," Harrington said. "We passed it because they were about to become extinct. But they've made a real rapid comeback. They're just everywhere."

Wildlife biologists at the J.D. Murphree Wildlife Station in Jefferson County receive 25 to 35 calls a month from citizens who find 3 to 10-foot-long alligators in ditches, swimming pools, backyards, parking lots and even downtown streets.

"Every year about spring-time our office is hit with a rash of complaints. Particularly in wet weather these alligators get to wandering around. Either they have love on their mind or the competition is getting too great," says Jimmy Dunks, a wildlife biologist recently transferred to Austin from the East Texas station.

Biologists try to tie the animals and move them back to swamps.

"Alligators are basically real, real strong and extremely quick," Dunks said. "Any size alligator if it's on the ground it's impossible for you to touch where they need control. We just wouldn't say the season is open on alligators. But I can anticipate in the future there would be a harvest on alligators permitted."

Alligator skins sold for $10 a foot in 1969 before the law protecting the animals was passed.

"If you take a 12-foot alligator — that's a lot of money," Clark says. "Poachers were really working them over."

Dunks said rubber bands cut from innertubes are put over an alligator's snout to keep his mouth closed.

"All he can do then is break a leg with his tail," Dunks says.

Dunks said he once saw an alligator take a big chunk out of a boat when parks officials got too near one of the animals. Alligators "tamed" by handouts from humans are a particular problem.

"When an alligator loses his fear of man that's when he poses a danger," Dunks says.

"It's a problem," Clark says. "I'm not saying they pose a very real threat or danger to the public. Alligators aren't going to try to eat you up but if you mess with one he'll bite you."

Harrington's bill, already approved by the Senate, will let the Parks Department order what biologists euphemistically term "harvest" of the reptiles, or transfers of the animals from overcrowded areas to less populous habitats.

"We don't think he should be considered endangered anymore," Clark says. "The bill will permit us to control alligators

Class Action Suit Filed Against Braniff Airways

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A suit originally filed against Braniff Airways on behalf of 10 black employees has become a class action suit consisting of 500 incumbent black employees of Braniff and an unknown number of Mexican-Americans.

U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle also ordered the Teamsters to be joined as a defendant in the suit, but denied a request Monday by 67 other minority employees who wanted to become plaintiffs.

Suttle said his decision to make the case a class action suit made their point moot.

Suttle also said the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission intervened in the suit on the side of the plaintiffs.

Suttle said in naming the Teamsters as a party to suit, the union "must be joined if this action is to proceed because in its absence complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties and because its interest may be impaired by the disposition in the action."

In ruling the suit will be handled as a class action, Suttle said the class "consists of approximately 500 incumbent black employees of Braniff and an unknown number of Mexican-Americans who were denied employment for allegedly unlawful reasons."

Suttle said as of last July Braniff's entire work force totalled 9,168 persons.

Pampa News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON Lobbyists are playing year-round Santa Claus roles in the committee chambers of Capitol Hill.

All-expense-paid convention junkets, cases of liquor, office supplies, Virginia hams, boxes of candy, expensive lunches, high-rolling nights on the town and gift certificates are but part of the freebies offered key congressional committee personnel by special interest groups.

To lobbyists, good relations with top committee aides — who frequently have considerable influence over the formation of important legislation — are considered essential.

In an investigation, the News Washington bureau has found cases of committee aides receiving gifts, favors and gratuities ranging from inexpensive tie tacks and paper weights to Hawaiian trips worth thousands of dollars.

Two members of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee staff — William Webber and Tony Cluff — and their wives last fall attended a convention of the American Bankers Association in Honolulu, Hawaii.

A third, Carl Coan, attended a conclave hosted by the National Savings and Loan League. It, too, was held in Honolulu.

Each of the participants admitted dealing closely with Capitol Hill Banking lobbyists. Each acknowledged in retrospect his actions could raise conflict of interest questions. And all found it difficult to draw the line on proper ethical conduct.

Coan is a top lawyer on the Housing Subcommittee. At the NS&LL convention he spoke briefly on the Housing Act of 1974. "I tried to inform them how they could play a part in carrying out provisions of the act," he said.

Coan's expenses were paid for by the NS&LL. Shortly after the NS&LL convention closed down, the ABA function was underway.

Coan stayed around as an "observer" and was paid $25 per diem from committee coffers.

Coan said he took a couple of days vacation following the ABA convention. Altogether, he stayed in Honolulu "about two weeks."

Does such an arrangement, he was asked, give rise to questions of impropriety? "Yeah, but where do you draw the line?" he responded.

Webber was given round-trip tickets, a room at the posh Hilton Village Hotel and a liberal expense account. In return, he gave a brief presentation on banking legislation, past and present.

Asked if he would accept from the bankers a color television, for example, Webber said, "No way. Then what's the distinction between a free television set and a much more expensive Hawaiian holiday? I can see no legislative purpose in accepting a television. And, besides," he continued, "the fact it was held in Hawaii is fortuitous."

Cluff said of the bankers, largesse: "In doing all they did, if they think they were buying my influence — well, that's their dumb mistake." Although he characterized the Hilton Village stay as "memorable" and the expense account as "quite generous," Cluff said the trip had had no effect on his professional responsibilities.

But Cluff did say, "Definitely, there is a very real potential for corruption." He said he wondered why Congress hadn't imposed rules to prohibit some of the more "blatant" give-aways.

John Holton, an ABA spokesman in Washington, was also asked about the free trip. While he remembered that "some" Senate committee aides had attended the Honolulu fete, Holton was stingy with details.

"I'd really rather not mention their names," he concluded.

A third financial institution meeting was hosted in San Francisco last fall by the U.S. Savings and Loan League. At least three House and Senate committee staffers were in attendance. Again, travel and expenses were paid for by the lobbying group.

In a similar incident, 18 House and Senate aides last November were flown to the West Coast in Air Force planes for a four-day, all-expense-paid outing that included a Las Vegas rendezvous with defense industry lobbyists.

The weekend trip was designed by Air Force promoters to give the aides an opportunity to visit several West Coast defense installations.

Among the participants were committee staffers and congressional aides who work closely with defense-related appropriations. In Las Vegas, these aides were wined and dined and attended shows courtesy of representatives of such high-powered defense contractors as Fairchild, Hughes, General Dynamics, Ling-Temco-Vought and Northrop.

Although the Air Force paid for travel and hotel accommodations, much of the liquor and entertainment came out of the lobbyists' pockets.

Many of the committee staffers paired off with lobbyists after nightly hotel parties hosted by the industry representatives.

"Some of the guys like to gamble, some just like to see the burlesque shows," said Frank Krebs, a participant and staffer on the Senate Commerce Committee. "All the industry boys did was point us in the right direction."

Most lobbyists representing large unions and corporations are equipped with well-padded expense accounts.

Martin Lobel, a former energy aide to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told of his first contact with an oil industry lobbyist soon after going to work for Proxmire in 1969.

Lobel called Humble (now Exxon) lobbyist John Knodell and asked him some questions concerning the economics of the oil import quota system, which was strongly supported by Humble and other major oil companies. Knodell suggested lunch and two days later the two met along with five Humble employees — three from Houston and two from New York — all flown in especially to answer Lobel's query.

The seven-man party occupied the entire top floor of the 116 Club, an exclusive lobbyist's gathering spot on Capitol Hill. According to Lobel, his question was answered with specialized charts, slides and economic data, in addition to the steak and ample quantities of liquor served.

Lobel says he was "overwhelmed" with what was his first contact with an oil industry lobbyist.

The mysterious 116 Club, which gets its name from the 116 lobbyists who belong to it, has been called a "headquarters of subterranean power" by the New York Times.

In addition to the lobbyists, 60 Capitol Hill and other government employees belong to the club. The membership list is secret.

Says one of the club's members: "Much of the major congressional legislation affecting billions and billions of dollars is either written or influenced there." This leads to, among other things, free lunches for committee staffers, a practice rigorously defended by almost everyone interviewed as both harmless and necessary to maintaining contact between staff and lobbyists.

But one former Capitol Hill staffer related the story of a $225 lunch for two he enjoyed with a major oil company lobbyist. The staffer, who wished to remain anonymous, said the meal took place at the San Souci, one of Washington's most exclusive French restaurants and a favorite haunt of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and other top government officials.

The aide said he and his host waded through fare consisting of several drinks, lobster bisque with cognac, Caesar salad, rack of lamb, a $95 bottle of Chateau Lafite-Rothschilde, dessert of Poir Belle Heliane, Chateau Yquem, cigars and cognac.

The practice of accepting "honorariums" for speeches before special interest groups is not nearly as widespread among committee aides as among members of congress — some of whom have taken in more than $50,000 in a year — and does not

UT Regents Agree On Pam Am Merger

DALLAS (UPI) — The Board of Regents of the University of Texas System has agreed to support legislative approval of Pan American University's merger into the System.

The motion was carried unanimously during a regents meeting Monday although one regent wanted to make sure the motion did not endorse or propose a merger and another regent left the meeting before the merger discussion even began.

The House is expected to take up legislation for the merger tonight.

"We will try to make it a great school for the students and all concerned regents chairman Allan Shivers said. "It is one of the fastest growing schools in the state and we would see that it is developed to its full potential."

If the legislature approves, we would accept their decision and make the transition easy," the former Texas governor said.

Regent Tom Law of Fort Worth said he wanted to make sure the motion before the board was not one that recommended a merger, but one that only supported the legislature should it pass legislation enabling the union.

"I have some reservations about this," Law said. "But the way the chairman has put it, we can all support it. It does not mean we could go out and encourage Pan American to become part of the system."

Regent Edward Clark of Austin merely called for support of the merger if approved by the legislature.

"We could say no less than that if the legislature approves," Clark said.

Regent Walter Sterling of Houston left his chair when the issue came up on the agenda and missed the discussion.

Supporters of the merger, which apparently do not include the students at Pan American, said it will add to the prestige of the predominantly Mexican-American school located in the heart of the Lower Rio Grande Valley, will provide the school with a stronger curriculum, and will improve the school's chances of receiving state funds.

The board of regents, the faculty and a study committee at Pan American have approved the merger, but a straw vote of the students indicated they opposed it.

Shivers said Texas A&I Regent J.C. Martin of Laredo called him Monday to ask him and the rest of the regents to oppose the merger.

The chairman of the A&I Board asked that we not agree, saying A&I wants to merge with Pan American," Shivers said. "But I talked with (Pan American regent) Morris Atlas and he said we had been down this road before. A&I is a dead issue."

Spring Concert At Clarendon Set Thursday

The Music Department of Clarendon College will present its spring concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Harned Sisters Fine Arts Auditorium.

The College Choir, College Singers and Stage Band will each be featured.

The choir will present patriotic, popular and inspirational selections. The College Singers, a 12-member select choral group, will perform selections presented during concert tours. The Stage Band will perform music of jazz-rock nature.

RAT ART SHOWN BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Fifty paintings by 10 unknown artists were scheduled to be sold during a rat art exhibit here today.

That's right: Rat art, not rare art. The 10 artists are rats. Dr. Richard Cimbal, chairman of the Rosary Hill College Psychology Department, sponsored the art exhibit to benefit the department's equipment fund.

"I think we'll sell them all," he said. "One professional artist who viewed the exhibit, unaware of who had done the work, said the paintings showed obvious talent and promise," said Cimbal. "That artist wishes to remain unnamed."

The rats painted by grabbing with their front paws a brush extended into their cages, and Cimbal said each of the artists had its own style.

"You can tell which paintings were painted by the same artist," he said.

SAFE FOUND LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It seems impossible that anyone could lose an 800-pound safe containing $10,000 worth of jewelry. But somebody did. The police department wants to know who, and how.

The 4-foot-tall, gray metal safe was found in an alley Feb. 26 by a motorcycle parking control officer. It apparently either fell out of a vehicle or was abandoned by thieves unable to open it.

When nobody claimed it after 10 days, detectives had it drilled open and found a valuable collection of pearl and coral jewelry and 3,000 loose pearls. Some papers were found, but they gave no indication who the owner was.

Police Thursday said public the find, in hopes somebody will realize his safe full of pearls has been missing for a month.

Texas Glasses Cost Les Thanks to Ads

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Oklahomans pay at least 35 per cent more for their eyeglasses than Texans do because of the Sooner State's ban on eyeglass advertising, a university economics professor said today.

Dr. Lee Benham, a professor at Washington University in St. Louis, estimated 30,000 Oklahomans did not buy glasses in 1974 because of the prices.

Benham was the first speaker at a Senate Public and Mental Health Committee hearing considering a bill to lift the state's ban on eyeglass advertising.

Benham said he had conducted several studies in recent years to compare the prices paid by consumers in states with a prohibition on advertising and those without the ban.

Consumers in states with an advertising ban pay "substantially higher" prices for glasses, from 25 to 100 per cent more than paid in other states, he said.

Benham said he was "surprised and shocked" by some of the prices charged in Oklahoma.

"The citizens of Oklahoma are paying significantly higher prices than people in states with advertising," he said.

Increased competition results in price decreases, he said.

Lower income consumers are affected the most severely by a lack of advertising and competition, he said.

Benham challenged supporters of the ban to prove that advertising would result in lower quality service to consumers. The professor said he had been unable to detect any difference in the quality of service provided in Oklahoma and Texas, which permits eyeglass advertising.

Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester, the bill's author, said advertising would not impair professional standards.

Stipe said optometrists had successfully lobbied for the ban because they prescribe and sell eyeglasses and do not want competition.

Stipe said he believed such a situation might be a conflict of interest.

"I have had an optician tell me you'd get better professional care if you get the optometrists out of the business of selling glasses," he said.

Doctors have not put the pharmacists out of business, Stipe said.

Oklahoma law prohibits any person or firm from soliciting the sale of spectacles, lenses, frames, mountings, prisms or any other optical appliances or devices, eye examinations or visual services.

The bill would ban false and misleading advertising and the advertising of eye examinations or visual treatment.

Ford Advisors Believe Bid Being Sabotaged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some White House advisers believe unknown persons are trying to sabotage President Ford's bid for election to a full term in 1976, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said today.

Nessen used the word "sabotage" when he was asked about a report in Newsweek magazine that Ford told a meeting of political intimates he would not seek election because of his wife's health and because he felt he could not spend the time and money needed for the race.

"Some of his advisers do agree with the idea someone is trying to sabotage," Nessen said.

He said there was "no suspicion that anyone connected with Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller" was committing the sabotage. Asked whether former California Gov. Ronald Reagan was involved, Nessen only smiled and said, "I don't think I'll go any further."

The President wants it known that this story is untrue, Nessen said, repeating a statement issued Sunday after the Newsweek item became known. The President held no such meeting. He definitely plans to run for election in 1976. Any reports to the contrary are wrong.

Whoever the source of the Newsweek story is, he is going to cause embarrassment to the magazine and down the road will no longer be considered a reliable source. The President is very puzzled by the motivation of who did this.

He said Ford will officially announce his candidacy "in the near future."

Court Dismisses TV Network Block

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today dismissed attempts by the three major broadcasting networks to block government charges that they are illegally monopolizing prime-time entertainment programming.

The court's brief order cleared the way for the government's suit against the networks to proceed in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

The order said: "The appeal is dismissed for want of jurisdiction." Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented.

District Judge Robert J. Kelleher dismissed the Nixon administration's suit against the broadcasters last November after they contended it was brought in 1972 merely to harass them. But Kelleher's order permitted a retrial by the Ford administration.

The networks—CBS, ABC and NBC—came to the Supreme Court after new actions under the Sherman Antitrust Act were brought against them.

They contended that the government frustrated their attempts to prove improper motives on the part of President Richard M. Nixon by failing to produce documents from the White House.

Justice William O. Douglas ordered a delay in the suit, a civil case, until the court acts on the appeal.

Pampa Man Is Trustee

A pledge of $125,000 to the Million Dollar Program for the University of the South in Sevanee, Tenn., from Mr. and Mrs. John J. Moran of Houston was announced during the April meeting of the University's board of trustees.

Joe M. Daniel Jr. of 1928 Evergreen in Pampa is among the trustees from Texas.

May Meeting To Focus On Epilepsy

AMARILLO — Increasing Panhandle area awareness of the incidence of epilepsy will be the focus of a public information meeting here Tuesday, May 6, sponsored by the High Plains Epilepsy Association.

The program will deal with new research in anticonvulsant drugs for the control of epilepsy, said Betty Brown of Pampa, executive director of the Amarillo-based agency. The association estimates 6,800 residents of the Panhandle-Plains area have epilepsy.

Featured speakers will be pharmacist David Burns of Hereford, whose talk will concern the nature and results of current research, and Don Moore of Amarillo, area representative with Geigy Pharmaceuticals, who will conduct a question-and-answer session.

The meeting will open at 7:30 p.m. May 6 in Westminster Presbyterian Church, 2525 Wimberly in Amarillo.

The incidence of epilepsy has been gauged at 2 per cent among the general population. The High Plains Epilepsy Association is the area's only agency organized expressly in behalf of persons with epilepsy.

Blames Carelessness On Walnut Extinction

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Conservationists say an idea of what is happening to the black walnut tree in Oklahoma can be gathered by walking along creeks and rivers.

Huge walnut stumps show the native tree has been cut and probably sold for hardwood while few replacement groves have been planted.

Walnut lumber also is becoming rare nationwide because of high demand and carelessness, according to the state Wildlife Conservation Department.

The wood is desired for fine furniture and cabinets and can be used for gunstocks. Walnuts are valued for sale to individual consumers and ice cream and candy makers.

"In earlier years people found other uses for walnuts when supplies were scarce. Walnut shells were used to make charcoal for gas mask filters in World War I."

Duckwalls

SHERMAN KITCH, Duckwall Manager

"I think Pampa is booming," said Sherman Kitch, manager of Duckwall Stores Inc. "I believe the economy is better here than any other town where a Duckwall's is located."

There are 75 Duckwall Stores located in Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Nebraska and an additional 33 Aico stores which are a discount division of Duckwall's.

Of all the Duckwall stores, the Pampa store has ranked number two in the past two weeks and been among the top 10 in the last six months. The Pampa store, in the Coronado Shopping Center, has been in Pampa 10 years.

It has been with Duckwall's for 10 years. He came to Pampa as manager three years ago. He previously had been the manager in a Clovis branch.

"This is the best year ever," commented Kitch. "We are going great guns."

"I like to shop in Pampa," he added. "And I would like to see everyone else shop here too. We need to keep the money in Pampa, to keep Pampa growing. That's the way to keep Pampa prospering."
