

China Mourns Premier Chou's Death

Chou En-lai

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — China's collective leadership proclaimed almost a week of national mourning today for Premier Chou En-lai to permit 800 million Chinese to pay tribute to the man who played a vital role in the birth and growth of the People's Republic of China.

It was announced that funeral services would be held Thursday for the 78-year-old Chou who died Thursday morning after a four-year battle against cancer. Observers assume the urn containing Chou's ashes will be buried in Peking's "Cemetery of the Revolutionaries" at the memorial ceremony.

Chou's death elevated Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping to the highest point of his stunning political comeback from the disgrace he suffered during China's Cultural Revolution of the 1960s. It was considered almost certain he would succeed Chou as Premier and continue the current Chinese policies.

Peking radio announced that according to Chinese custom no foreign government will be invited to the funeral. This apparently scotched reports by Japanese Foreign Ministry sources in Tokyo that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would attend the funeral.

Teng has carried out the day to day duties of the premiership while Chou was ailing and it was he who conferred with President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during their recent visit to Peking. American diplomats said they expected no change in U.S.-China relations although Chou was reported to have got along with Kissinger far better than Teng.

Although China and its allies mourned Chou, there was scant recognition of his death in the Soviet Union, now a foe of the nation with which it once formed a powerful alliance. Only a few words were carried by the Tass news agency and printed in the Russian papers.

President Ford sent a message of condolence and former President Richard M. Nixon, who met Chou during his 1972 visit to China, said "only a handful of men in the 20th Century will ever match Premier Chou's impact on the history of the world."

The Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party and the State Council, which Chou headed for more than 26 years, announced the most elaborate memorial services ever held for any leader of the young People's Republic of China.

Saturday and Sunday were set aside for people to pay last respects to his remains. Mourning ceremonies were scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The main, final memorial service was set for next Thursday.

Chou's death removed from the Chinese leadership one of the world's most influential diplomats — a brilliant scholar with unflagging energy who emerged from wars, famines and party struggles with ever-increasing power.

But his death was not expected to have any effect on the leadership lineup since Teng had already stepped into Chou's shoes.

The 71-year-old Teng is now considered the second most powerful man in China. Only Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung, himself 82 and ailing, carries more clout.

The diminutive Teng, a former party secretary general, was purged in 1966 during the Cultural Revolution and returned from political limbo in 1973.

Political observers say his return to the political summit is so remarkable it could be compared in the West only with Richard Nixon's winning reelection as president.

Since 1973, the hunch-shouldered Teng has been restored to the party's powerful politburo, elected a vice chairman of the party and named a member of the politburo's standing committee. Last year he became the first civilian chief of the general staff of Chinese armed forces.

Considered a moderate in the mold of Chou, Teng has pushed the pragmatic policies most closely associated with the late premier. The emphasis has been on forging ahead with economic development programs aimed at raising China to superpower status by the end of the century.

There was no immediate official indication what type of funeral service would be held for Chou or when it would be held. However, diplomatic sources in Peking said the service would be Monday.

The sources said that although there was a somber mood in the Chinese capital following announcement of Chou's death, "Things are going on quite normally. People are going about their business as usual."

President Ford, who met Chou during a visit to China in 1972, praised him as a "remarkable leader who has left his imprint on the whole world scene."

Chou who probably had more exposure to foreigners than all the other top Chinese leaders combined, led the first rapprochement with the United States.

He was born to an aristocratic Mandarin family but chose a life of revolution instead of luxury.

After travel abroad and study in Japan and France, Chou returned home to work in the Communist party. At one point he became a close friend of the late nationalist president Chiang Kai-Shek.

But as the Communists emerged as a threatening force to Chiang's nationalist party, their friendship vanished.

Chou became well-known in the United States in the late 1940s when President Harry Truman dispatched Gen. George Marshall to Chungking in a futile effort to reconcile the Nationalists and the Communists and avert the civil war that was to end in Communist victory in 1949.

When the People's Republic was established on Oct. 1, 1949, Chou became premier and foreign minister. He never relinquished the premiership but resigned from the foreign ministry in 1958.

Chou and his wife, Teng Ying-chao, had no children.

Gas Supply Closes Schools

By United Press International
Bitter cold kept an icy grip on two-thirds of the nation today and taxed the available natural gas supply so severely that Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. asked schools to close in a five-state area of the South.

The requested curtailment in gas usage affected most of Arkansas, much of Oklahoma, northwestern Louisiana, northeastern Texas and a small area near Wichita, Kan.

Most rural schools in the area called off classes but officials of some large systems said they kept schools open because they were not given sufficient notice.

The harsh cold punished almost all of the nation from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast, and the toll of weather-connected deaths climbed to at least 27.

A United Press International Count showed at least eight weather-connected deaths in Illinois, five in Pennsylvania, four in New Jersey, three in Missouri, three in North Carolina, two in Kansas, and one each in Wisconsin and Indiana.

Most of the deaths occurred in accidents on slippery highways or were attributed to heart attacks caused by overexertion in snow and cold. A man froze to death near Tipton, Ind., when he tried to crawl for help after an auto accident in which a companion was killed.

It was the coldest night in three years in parts of West Virginia, northern Mississippi and the Washington, D.C. area. Record low temperatures chilled northern Louisiana and northern Alabama.

The cold forced schools to shut down in many states, caused garbage collectors in St. Louis to cancel pickups, foiled a jailbreak in Wisconsin and kept the lids on septic tanks in Crawfordsville, Iowa.

Crawfordsville residents found some solace in the subzero cold. They said frigid temperatures apparently had stopped a rash of septic tank explosions that blew lids off the tanks and water out of toilets.

Mechanical traffic signals in Chicago choked up in subzero cold and ran slightly slower, a police spokesman said.

On short notice from Amtrak, a cafe in Creston, Iowa, spread a smorgasbord for 183 hungry passengers of an eastbound train. The train's dining car had frozen pipes.

Two prisoners who walked away from a Green Bay, Wis., prison farm in 17-below-zero temperatures Wednesday phoned the Brown County sheriff's department two hours later.

"It's too damn cold," one of the fugitives told police. "Come get us."

Storm-related deaths included four persons in the Chicago area who died of heart attacks from shoveling snow and a 9-year-old Alton, Ill., girl who died of head injuries in a sledding accident.

Lingering cold forced Rio Grande Valley citrus growers to protect their crops and caused the closing of some northeast Texas schools today because of natural gas shortages. However, warmer weather began moving into the state.

The cold air Thursday dropped temperatures below zero in the Texas panhandle and pushed winter vacationers from Galveston beaches.

Lingering bitter cold forced Rio Grande Valley citrus growers to protect their crops and caused the closing of some northeast Texas schools today because of natural gas shortages. However,

Wednesday night it was 8 degrees in Amarillo," said National Weather Service spokesman Bill Cook. "But Thursday the temperature was 24."

"We have a warm front moving into the Panhandle which should bring temperatures back into the 50s and 60s through most of the north-central and northeast parts."

"The Lower Rio Grande Valley probably had its coldest night last night and things should warm up there today."

Pampa May Get New Bank

By Tex DeWeese
Pampa News Staff
Plans to apply for a charter to open a third bank in Pampa were announced today by Buddy Cockrell, one of six Pampa men involved in the project.

Cockrell told The Pampa News the Austin law firm of McGinnis, Lockridge and Kilgore has been retained to handle the control's group legal matters in connection with charter application.

Others in the group, according to Cockrell, are Joe Cree, insurance broker, Delmar

Watkins and Joe Hawkins, merchants; Douglas Mills Jr., cattleman, and James Allen, oilman.

Cockrell, a cattleman, said the bank will be capitalized for $1 million and a limited number of stock shares will be offered to the public.

Stock will be available for sale beginning at 9:30 a.m. next Wednesday at the Cree Insurance Agency, 106 E. Foster.

The stock will be sold at $10 a share with a minimum of 20 shares and a maximum of 300 shares to each buyer, according to Cockrell.

Cockrell said upon completion of the stock sale, application for the charter will be made with the State Banking Commission.

"We should know within 60 days results of the stock sale and the commission's decision on the charter application," Cockrell said.

He added that a tentative location for the bank already is in mind and members of the control group are ready to begin final organization.

"In saying this, I do not close the door on my entry into primaries other than the West Virginia primary."

play the violin," said the assistant Senate Democratic leader, adding that he would seek a fourth term in the Senate at the same time he goes after the nation's top job.

"The national convention may or may not choose from those who travel the presidential primary route," Byrd said in a prepared statement.

Gray County Attorney John W. Warner announced today that he will be a candidate for the office of district attorney, a post now held by Guy Hardin of Shamrock.

Hardin has said he will seek reelection and Harold Comer, Pampa attorney, announced earlier for the post. No one has yet filed for county attorney. Warner's term expires Jan. 1, 1977.

"I have always believed that a person should earn the right to seek a public office," Warner said. "I feel my record as municipal judge and county attorney qualifies me to seek the office of district attorney."

Warner served as Pampa's Municipal Judge from 1963 to 1968. He instituted a teenage traffic court and required parents of teens charged with traffic offenses to appear with their sons or daughters in court. Teenagers committing their

During Warner's tenure as municipal judge, he said the percentage of teen agers involved in accidents declined 20 per cent.

As Gray County attorney, Warner has seen the case load of his office more than double since he assumed duties seven years ago. He attributed this to changes in Texas law making criminal offenses which were formerly felonies a misdemeanor and a better enforcement by local officers.

Warner is currently serving on the board of directors for the Pampa Kiwanis Club. He is a member of the Pampa Optimist Club and has served as a Little League coach for the last two years. He is a former president of the Pampa Jaycees. A member of the First United Methodist Church, Warner has been a high school Sunday School teacher for 14 years.

He has practiced law in Pampa for 14 years, and is a member of the law firm of Warner, Finney and Marnocha.

In 1969, Warner was honored by the Jaycees with the Distinguished Service Award for being Pampa's outstanding young man. He has received the Adult Leader of the Year award from the Pampa High School Key Club, and has been selected Leader of the Year by the Pampa High School — Tru-teens Service Club.

Warner is a graduate of Pampa High School, Texas A&M University and the University of Texas Law School. He and his wife, Judy, reside at 2111 Dogwood with their four children — Mike, Sandy, Melanie and Patti.

'75 Economy Ends on Encouraging Word

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy ended 1975 on an encouraging note with Labor Department reports today showing unemployment held steady and wholesale prices dropped in the last month of the year.

The jobless rate in December was the same as in November — 8.3 per cent or an estimated 7.8 million persons out of work. The total number of employed persons increased by 240,000 to 77.8 million—partly because 20,000 workers returned from strikes.

That was still a percentage point above the unemployment rate at the beginning of the year, but down from the peak jobless rate of 9.2 per cent in May.

The Wholesale Price Index fell 0.4 per cent in December for the first decline in the key inflation barometer in six months.

The decrease was led by a 2.5 per cent decline in food prices to wholesalers and grocers, which more than offset increases for nonfood items like building materials and paper products.

Unadjusted prices in December were 4.2 per cent higher than a year before, but showed a better record in 1975 than 1974 when wholesale prices jumped 20.9 per cent.

Julius Shiskin, head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the constant fluctuations in unemployment have stayed within the limits of 8.3 per cent and 8.6 per cent during the last six months.

Wholesale prices were unchanged in November, in contrast to the year's biggest spurt of 1.8 per cent during October. Overall, however, wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 10.1 per cent between August and November.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, discounted the monthly changes on grounds they are sometimes wide and usually unpredictable.

"It is better to look for a trend developing over an extended period of time," Greenspan said recently. But he said there is "nothing out there now that bothers me" in regard to a sudden increase in unemployment or sharply higher prices.

Assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said the monthly reports have gyrated, but the overall trend is for increased production and job opportunities and easing inflation.

Pate and Greenspan acknowledged that job and price conditions are bad by historic standards but insisted there is solid evidence they will improve.

There was a dramatic improvement in wholesale prices in 1975. Labor said unadjusted prices in December were 4.2 per cent higher than a year before—compared to a 20.9 per cent jump from December, 1973, to December, 1974.

The department said food prices to wholesalers and grocers plunged 2.5 per cent in December to more than offset increases for nonfood items like building materials and paper products.

The decline in seasonally adjusted food prices—which equals an annual rate of 30 per cent—followed a 1.5 per cent dip in November.

The WPI, the primary indicator of price increases at the wholesale level, consists of two, parts—food and industrial commodities. The commodities sector rose 0.6 per cent for the second consecutive month.

The overall index stood at 178.7 from a 1967 base of 100. That means goods costing $10 in 1967 cost $17.87 last month.

Wholesale prices eventually are passed on to consumers when they buy food, homes, clothing, cars and other finished goods.

The one-month decline in prices will hardly lead to widespread price cuts in retail stores, but it was an indication that inflation might be easing.

The December decline was the first since a 0.1 per cent dip in June. The year began with three consecutive months of declines for wholesale prices, followed by two months of increases.

After the June decline, prices moves up steadily until November when prices were unchanged from October.

Labor said prices in December fell for meats, poultry, sugar, confections, eggs and gasoline. Prices rose for building materials, leather products, textiles, clothing and coal.

The last time the annual average unemployment rate was above 8 per cent occurred in 1941, when it reached 9.9 per cent.

Unemployment has persisted at a rate ranging between 8.3 per cent and 8.6 per cent over the last six months. It peaked last year in May when the number of unemployed persons reached 9.2 per cent.

The annual average unemployment in 1975 was 8.5 per cent, making it one of history's worst years for the American worker. The jobless rate stood at 7.2 per cent at the end of 1974.

Employment improved in December for adult males, blue collar and factory workers and most service employees. But unemployment among women rose 0.6 per cent—reflecting a worsening situation among teenage girls—and there was a decline in jobs for transportation and public utility employees.

Joblessness declined 0.4 per cent to 6.5 per cent for adult men. Unemployment also declined from 11 per cent to 10.3 per cent for blue collar workers.

But there was virtually no change in the racial composition of the unemployed. The jobless rate for whites fell slightly to 7.5 per cent. For minority races it was 13.7 per cent.

The department said there was a large drop in the number of unemployed who lost their last job. The duration of unemployment declined slightly, but the number of persons unemployed for 15 weeks or longer continued its steady rise over the past two years.

The size of the labor force resumed an increase that was interrupted in November, standing at 93.3 million persons.

and against 'em

It isn't often that taxpayers in these parts get a chance to say much about how Uncle Sam disposes of federal funds but such an opportunity has surfaced. The Amarillo Board of Convention and Visitors Activities, that city's official arm for tourism, has dug up a project that would require a sizeable piece of change from the national taxbill.

Those folks are taking the stand that tourism for the entire Panhandle area could be substantially stimulated if Alibates National Monument were dressed up considerably.

Alibates National Monument is an area of 92 acres over by Lake Meredith. It is located in the northern part of Potter County and was designated a national monument — the only one in Texas, by the way — in 1965.

The old quarries at Alibates were used as early as 10,000 years B.C. to mine flint for spear points.

Amarillo promoters, in arguing for "development" of the Alibates National Monument, claim that it would bring people into the Texas Panhandle the same way that the Mesa Verde cliff dwellings attract visitors to that portion of Colorado.

I wouldn't want to be guilty of shortchanging the historical significance of Alibates; but the fact is there isn't much there to see. Little quarry pits pockmark the area, according to rangers who serve as guides, but untrained eyes don't have much to look at. There are a lot of flint rocks around, but there are no spear points or arrowheads to be discovered as historians speculate that such finishing work was not conducted at the mining site.

Shallow pits in the ground — even though they meant a great deal to spear makers for thousands of years — simply aren't as visually stimulating as are cliff dwellings.

The folks in Amarillo, ignoring the fact that there isn't much to work with at Alibates, are intent upon making it an area attraction with the use of federal funds.

They have conducted many subtle promotions of the site recently and now a couple of public hearings have been set to present proposals for development of Alibates National Monument to the citizens of the Panhandle, according to a news release.

There are four alternatives to be presented at 7 p.m. meetings on Jan. 15 at the Villa Inn in Amarillo and on Jan. 16 at South Middle School in Borger:

1. Leave the monument grounds substantially as they are, except for some limited improvements in roads, fences, and signs.
2. Increase the size of the monument grounds by incorporating about 1,000 acres of adjacent federal land and about 170 acres of donated private land, and develop a visitors center, parking area, and maintenance facilities at the quarries.
3. Increase the monument grounds by adding about 1,000 acres of federal land and acquiring about 450 acres of private land, together with the development of a visitor center complex on the grounds, but away from the main quarry area.
4. Increase the grounds by about 2,500 acres of federal and private land, with a visitors center near the quarries and support facilities elsewhere.

Except for a temporary visitors center and a few dirt roads, the monument has remained undeveloped since its creation. The Amarillo group's most recent news release said: "I would like to see it remain natural and undeveloped and unexploited."

Should those fellows from Amarillo expect the federal government to pay — with tax money — for developments designed to stimulate the flow of tourist dollars in Amarillo?

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE
Thorniest Possible Dilemma

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The Soviet military incursion into Angola, led by Cuban troops and liberally supplied with Russian arms, presents the government and people of the United States with the thorniest possible kind of dilemma.

On the one hand, Americans are united in their determination not to let the situation develop into "another Vietnam" — meaning, presumably, the commitment of American ground forces to another bloody struggle they are forbidden to win.

On the other, to stand idly by and watch Communist troops roll almost unresisted over huge areas of the globe hardly qualifies as a policy at all, and in the long run is not even consistent with our survival as a nation.

To make the situation still stickier, Congress insisted on inserting itself into the decision-making process on such grave issues of foreign policy during the closing years of the Vietnam war. It roped and tied the president and the CIA as far as any serious military intervention abroad is concerned; and now therefore, whether it likes it or not, Congress (as the New York "Times" remarked editorially the other day) "is at last in a position to assume a joint responsibility with the administration for American policy" in Angola. Lucky Congress!

Since 1976 is an election year, we must (unfortunately) assume that both the president and the Congress will seek feverishly to avoid any public posture that might cost them votes, whether Angola stands or falls. That probably spells the doom of Angola — though Secretary Kissinger may, if the Russians are in an amiable mood, be allowed to contrive some jerry-built "coalition government" there that will serve to mask the Communist takeover until after Election Day.

With Angola and Mozambique both in their pocket, one on each flank of southern Africa; with Guinea, Nigeria and Somalia all providing the Russians with bases further up the two coasts of the continent; with Madagascar (now the Malagasy Republic) spiraling into their orbit — with these accomplishments to its credit, the Soviet Union is well positioned to block all shipments of Middle Eastern oil to the United States or western Europe any day it feels like it, and meanwhile to proceed with all deliberate speed to the conquest and digestion of what is left of Africa.

Next, of course, will be South and Central America. Peru is already in the hands of the leftist military junta friendly to the

Panama Canal Issue
Looming Big In '76

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Secretary of State Kissinger's determination to proceed with the drafting of a new Panama Canal treaty, in the face of strong congressional and public opposition, is hard to understand. The statement of principles governing the Canal negotiations, approved by Dr. Kissinger, clearly envisions a surrender of U.S. sovereignty in the Canal Zone.

The State Dept. position is all the more remarkable in view of the character of the Panamanian regime. The San Diego Union's military correspondent has correctly pointed out that "the principal government officials in Panama are Marxists — every one — and that includes the chief of state."

If these Marxists controlled the Canal Zone, they would be in a position to prevent American use of the strategic waterway.

Radio Free Americas, radio voice of the respected American Security Council, recently cited the political ties of the Panamanian leader with whom the State Dept. is negotiating. It reported that "the official organ of the Castro regime announced that Gen. Torrijos, the Panamanian dictator, will visit Communist Cuba Jan. 10-15. Radio Free Americas added that the Panamanian strongman "will put the final touches to the agreement recently signed in Havana by a Panamanian military mission for some Soviet war materials to be delivered by Communist Cuba."

If the U.S. State Department has protested this Panamanian link with Communist Cuba, which is currently deploying proxy forces in Angola for the Soviet Union, the protest has not been extensively publicized. In general, the State Dept. is playing down the threat posed by both Cuba and the Panamanian regime.

The American Security Council properly asks: "With Communist Cuba and the Soviet Union having the upper hand in the Isthmian Republic, what will happen to the United States when we try to use the interoceanic canal?" Clearly, Dr. Kissinger perfers that this question not be considered by the U.S. public.

Unfortunately, the State Dept. has been successful in lining up some support for its position. For example, the board of directors of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce recently voted support of the Ford administration's efforts to renegotiate the Panama Canal Treaty.

As one of the reasons for its action, the Chamber of Board stated: "Terms of the 1903 Treaty do not reflect changes in the Panamanian - U.S. relations which have occurred in the last 72 years and no longer serve U.S. national interest as well as a modernized treaty which would be based on a concept of partnership."

It is difficult to understand how the U.S. could have a partnership with a Marxist-oriented government in Panama.

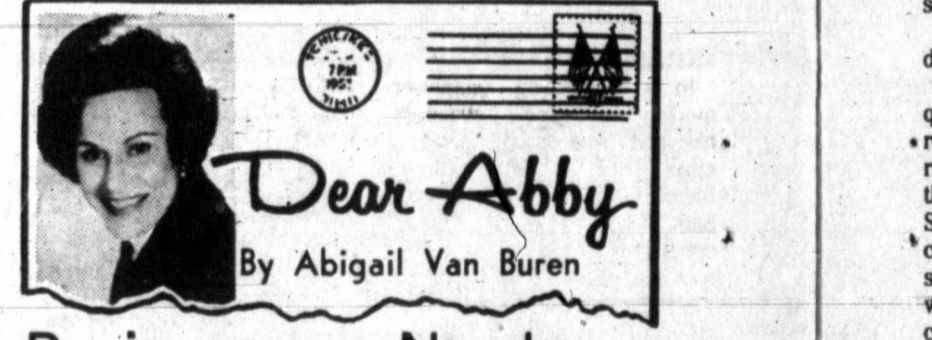

U.S. Rep. Daniel Flood (D - Pa.), an authority on the Panama Canal situation, warned Dec. 9 that the State Dept. is spearheading a massive "propaganda assault" to bring about the negotiation and approval of a new canal treaty involving a giveaway of U.S. sovereignty.

Congressman Flood reported that "among the massive propaganda activities were the recent briefing in the State Dept. of representatives of large U.S. multinational corporations doing business in Latin America. This group, calling itself 'The Business and Professional Committee for a New Panama Canal Treaty', has set a $500,000 budget target that it hopes to raise from the business community."

Fortunately, this campaign is likely to be opposed by the vast majority of American businessmen who understand that the State Dept. treaty plans are not in the national interest.

The Panama Canal issue is one of the basic issues confronting the U.S. Congress and people in 1976. The fundamental question is: do Americans want to retain their sovereign rights in the Canal Zone or are they willing to surrender these rights to a Marxist dictatorship linked to Cuba?

Men and institutions will be judged on the basis of where they stand on the Panama Canal issue.

Dear Abby

Businessman Needs
Crash Course in ABC's

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to teach a 51-year-old man to speak correct English? Joe (not his real name) went only as far as the fifth grade, and his grammar is terrible.

I have corrected him in private, but he makes the same mistakes repeatedly in public, which I find very embarrassing.

Most of my friends are well educated (so am I), and when Joe and I are in their company, I keep hoping he won't talk much because he is sure to say, "He don't" or, "We was."

He is a fine-looking man of good character who has made a remarkable success in business, but this one fault is too big to overlook.

I guess what I really want to know is: Can a 51-year-old man who is smart in money matters learn proper grammar at his age? Or is it too late?

JOE'S LADY FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A smart person can learn anything he wants to learn if he's sufficiently motivated. The questions here are, "Does JOE think he needs to learn? And if not, how important is this fault to YOU?"

DEAR ABBY: That letter from ALL WORE OUT IN L.A. gave my husband and me a chuckle. It was from that poor old wife who wanted to know where she could buy some salt peter to slip into her husband's food.

Salt peter must be one of those delayed-action chemicals because they gave it to my husband in World War II, and it just started to take effect last year! Sign me.....

PLENTY OF SLEEP IN ALTADENA

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I recently moved into a new home. We love the place, but we're having trouble with our landlord.

He keeps dropping in on us unexpectedly. I have told him several times that he is welcome anytime, but to please telephone us first.

Tonight at 10 p.m., this landlord came over to introduce us to his son! I was in my undershorts watching TV on our bed, and my wife wasn't dressed, either. That nifty man used his passkey and walked right into our bedroom!

Abby, we like our privacy, but how do you tell a man who is 45 years older than you are to please be a little more respectful of your privacy without seeming disrespectful to him?

STATEN ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Get a "Do Not Disturb" sign and hang it outside your door. If he drops by unexpectedly again, "respectfully" point it out to him.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I'll bet many secretaries would like to have answered.

In this day of no discrimination and Women's Lib, etc., how does one address a letter to an office of mixed sexes?

It used to be correct to say, "Gentlemen," or "Sirs," even though the writer knew there were women in the office.

My boss suggested that I write to "Dear Abby" for a real good answer.

SECRETARY...OVER 40

DEAR OVER: Try "To whom it may concern." If that strikes you as being too impersonal, how about "Ladies and Gentlemen"? If that's too formal, skip the salutation (it doesn't mean anything, anyway) and get right on with the message.

Cuba And Detente

Not a bad idea, terminating the "normalization" process of United States' relations with Cuba, in fact, it is a capital idea, and who cares if President Ford may be accused of playing to the Reagan win of the GOP? Senator McGovern may help, but there are few better tests of an idea's common sense than a protest from the Righteous Puss of the Plains.

Castro's Cuba, which has not held an election since its Communization in 1959, has been exporting revolution right along, unimpeded. The liberal mindset, of which Senator McGovern is the most conspicuous exponent, has campaigned for a unilateral relaxation of sanctions against that unfortunate island. What liberals fail to recognize is that government - to - government trade merely props up the dictatorship, enabling Fidel to send his guerrillas wherever in the world Marxist insurgents call for them.

Most recently Castro has joined with the Soviet rulers in sending military assistance to troubled Angola, the better for the Communists to gain a strategic hold in Africa. With Congress prohibiting the administration from sending U.S. tax money to Angola's anti-Communists, Ford was left with diplomatic options only. Stopping the courtship with Cuba was a good beginning.

Diplomacy was where the West's anti-Communist efforts should have been fought long years ago. Warfare could have been obviated had American taxpayers, say, not been expected to pony up subsidies for their sworn enemies. One of the most insane policies in modern history was the State Department's lust to enhance East - West trade at the precise moment Communists fired bullets — fashioned out of American raw material — at American soldiers in Vietnam.

Henry Kissinger's "detente" has been equally unreliable (a kind word). "So many 'liberation' movements," somebody recently huffed, "so little liberation." So it is with Prof. Dr. Kissinger's "realpolitik." So little reality — so much delusion — in realpolitik.

If President Ford has the moxie to end the flirtations with Cuba, he would do well to put an end to detente itself. He would do well to send a message to Moscow: Stop interfering in Angola, and every other global hotspot, or American taxpayers will stop, once and for all, failing out your economy which has been unsuccessful for 58 years. Stop imprisoning and torturing your Sakharovs, your Medvedevs, your Amalriks, your Solzhenitsyns — or live up to the expectations of Helsinki, or America abruptly un-detentes.

That is the greatest power the West holds. Not to combine moral and diplomatic suasion and assert it directly in Secretary Brezhnev's face is suicidal.

World Government

One of the political curiosities with which occasionally we have been bemused is the One World Government nonsense. It has been tried — or, rather, prototypes have been tried — twice in this century, both times outrageous failures. Still, the idea persists.

On the far right, zealous little partisans warn and warn and warn, unconsciously ridiculing their own ability to perceive reality, against oncoming world government. True enough, world government contains a certain hideousness as the ultimate in centralized power. But to think that in a hidden world headquarters somewhere — Bavaria? — some diabolical gnomes are busily authoring all chaos, planting their agents in administrations left and right, is the penultimate in political paranoia. It rivals the innocent foolishness of the one - worlders themselves.

One of whom is Saul Mendlovitz, who is giving the rightwing conspiracy theorists exactly what they want. A professor of international law at Rutgers University, Mendlovitz acts also as president of the Institute for World Order. His goal, his "preferred world" for the year 2000 — you guessed it — is a single world government.

"There is no longer a question of whether or not there will be world government by the year 2000," writes Mendlovitz in a piece of the Newspaper Enterprise Association. "The questions are how it will come into being (cataclysm, drift, more or less rational design), and whether it will be totalitarian, benign, or participatory (the probabilities being in that order)."

Whereas Mendlovitz admits that the world government 25 years from now is likely to be "repressive," he is nevertheless resolute about one thing: he wants world government of some sort to do nice things like increase life expectancy in the Third World and stamp out apartheid in South Africa.

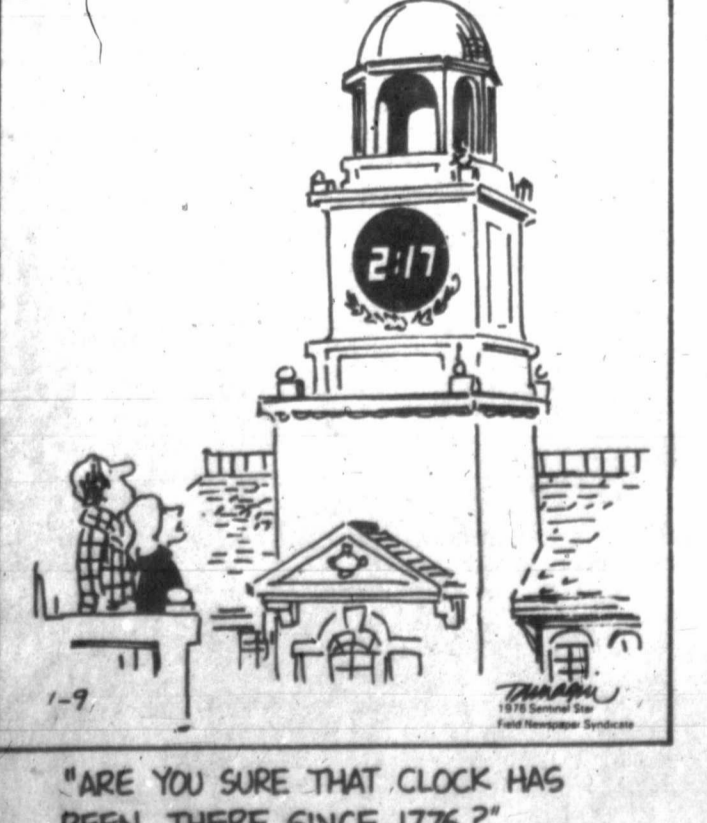

Fascinatingly enough, there is a thread of commonality between the one - worlders and the anti one - worlders, the Mendlovitzes and the Birchers. That is that, for them, world government still lies in the future, the institutionalization of which is trending inexorably.

Hold on, we have one question for both sides. Don't we have world government right now? Of course we do. Neither Mendlovitz nor the rightwingers can name an acre, a single grain of sand, that is not presided over by some puffed up claim to political authority. Every man, beast and vegetable lives under the reign of some political state, and each of those political states, even our own, can ruin every man, beast and vegetable within its jurisdiction. All the world has government; therefore we are blessed and or cursed with world government.

Texas Oil Began at Spindletop

The Lucas Gusher

By JAMES L. OVERTON
BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — From a low mound on the prairie four miles south of town a wildcat test blew over the top of a derrick 75 years ago and with a roar heard around the world the Spindletop oil field was born.

That explosion of black fury at the Lucas Gusher created the nation's greatest oil field, opened the Gulf Coast for oil development, began the modern petroleum industry and thrust America into the liquid fuel age.

The gusher was the first major oil strike in Texas. In Titusville, Pa., 42 years before, Col. E.L. Drake drilled a shallow well and began small-scale production. In those days 50 barrels a day was considered good production and the oil was used mostly to make kerosene for lamps and for lubrication.

Spindletop made 800,000 barrels in nine days before it was even capped.

"Spindletop started a real boom," millionaire wildcatter Michael T. Halbouty of Houston said recently. "Why, the potential there for one year (in 1901) was more than the entire world was producing."

there was enough oil in the ground to revolutionize industry and the standard of living for people. Spindletop stands as a fountainhead of American progress and prosperity," Halbouty said.

Founders of three great oil industry giants — The Texas Company, Gulf Oil Corp. and the Humble Oil and Refining Co. — first entered the oil business at Spindletop. Cities like Houston, Dallas, Corpus Christi and Beaumont became commerce centers in the post-Spindletop hysteria.

Before Spindletop, Beaumont was a sleepy logging town of 10,000. Almost overnight the population doubled and the reek of liquor and gas fumes went hand-in-hand with instant millionaires who paid $6-a-barrel for water when oil was selling for 3 cents a barrel.

Wildcatters, roughnecks, gamblers and others lived in tents, slept in the streets, settled arguments with six shooters and would pay $250 for a night's rest in a real bed.

Halbouty said the initial Spindletop boom lasted about three and a half years, then ran on for another seven before petering out. A second boom hit the field in the early 1920s when he was a youngster.

"The first job I ever had in my life was at Spindletop," Halbouty said. "I worked there in high school as a water boy. I carried water there from one rig to another and they gave me 50 cents a day."

Today, Halbouty, who has a pretty good track record as an oil prophet, owns producing wells on the 250 acres that mark the original site of Spindletop.

Since Spindletop, Texas oil men have drilled some 630,000 oil and gas wells, according to the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. From these wells, more than 40.5 billion barrels of crude oil and 188 trillion cubic feet of natural gas have been produced.

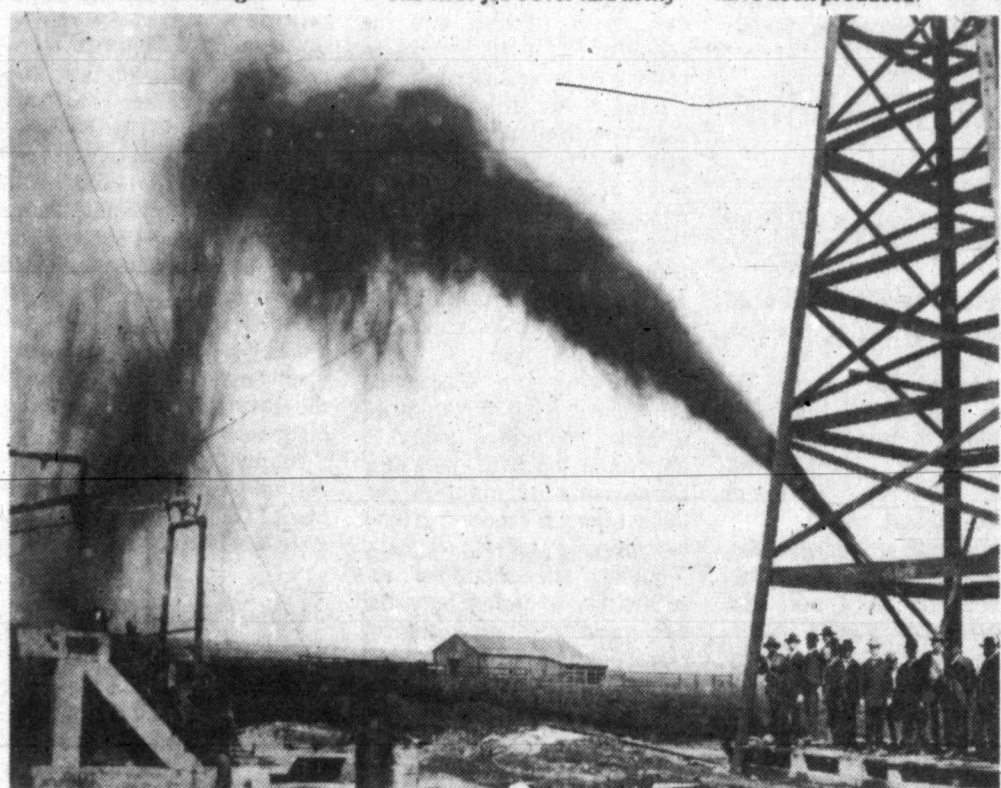

Spindletop Field

More than 125,500,000 barrels of oil came from Spindletop. For 40 years after its development, Spindletop had expenditures of $750 million a year or more than enough every nine months to build a new Panama Canal — built originally at a cost of $525 million.

On Saturday Texas oil men and Gov. Dolph Briscoe commemorate the dream of amateur geologist Patillo Higgins who ran out of money trying to find the oil and the success of the interested Capt. Anthony Lucas, an Austrian mining engineer who proved to skeptical oilmen his theory that oil reservoirs were concentrated around salt domes.

They will gather on the campus of Lamar University to dedicate Gladys City, a $340,000 replica of the 1901 boom town in Beaumont when the Lucas Gusher blew in.

Officials of the outdoor museum, a product of the Beaumont Bicentennial Commission and the university, will recreate what happened at 10 a.m. on Jan. 10, 1901 — the exact moment Lucas' second drilling test literally blew up.

Come See Our Well

Potential investors and visiting journalists often were treated to displays representing the tremendous potential of the Spindletop field. "Gusher shows," which ended as oil men began to understand the need for conserving underground pressures, excited people, wasted oil and gas, killed mosquitoes, ruined clothes, and created fire hazards.

Quality of Corps Decreases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The overall quality of the Marine Corps has been decreasing, resulting in discipline problems and higher than average rates of drug use and desertion, according to an official report sent to Congress.

One cause was the end of the draft, it said.

In a report on manpower quality and force structure released Wednesday, the Marines took a hard look at themselves. In a letter to Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the Corps' commander, Gen. Lewis Wilson, said some of the problems were "being corrected by increasing standards."

"Various Defense Department studies and reports indicate that the Corps had the highest rates in the armed forces on a per capita basis in such categories as unauthorized absences, desertion and drug abuse," the report said.

For example, it estimated 49 per cent of the Marines at the rank of sergeant and below had used marijuana at least once. A survey of commanders found the problem was in the raw material: the younger, less intelligent, the less educated, those who never succeeded.

"The American public has endowed Marine recruit training with an almost mystical ability to imbue young men with soldierly virtue no matter what their character or origins," the report said. "But there are limits to what even the Corps can achieve."

The report said many of the worst joined up in 1973, which "appears to have been directly related to introduction of the all-volunteer force in that year."

"Because of a widely held belief that a great majority of Marine accessions had been true volunteers, it was assumed that the all-volunteer force would not significantly alter the Corps' recruiting prospects. With the demise of the draft, however, it soon became apparent that such was not the case."

It found the Marines could not recruit competitively and that "some recruiters have resorted to irregular practices in order to meet numerical quotas." This, sources said, included cheating on entrance exams.

"Once enlisted, many of these disadvantaged young men have found it difficult to meet military standards, have succumbed to defeatism and have retreated into lethargy or indiscipline."

Ford Feels Intense Pressures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says recession and unemployment have intensified pressures for tougher trade restrictions, but he is determined to keep working for lower barriers.

Ford told the first gathering of his Advisory Committee on Trade Negotiations Thursday that as he looks around the world at the interdependence of nations, "we can't live alone under protectionism in the United States."

He said he believed that the multilateral trade negotiations under way in Geneva "offer the best prospect for an improved world trading system," and added: "I am determined to resist, within our own country and worldwide, trade restrictions."

"While recession, unemployment and inflation have intensified protectionist pressures in many, many areas in this country, as well as in other countries, I think it is extremely important that for the betterment of all that we resist those pressures."

"I don't believe that we can sit idly by in any industry in any segment of our society and let these pressures pick us off one by one," he said.

Young Marine Successful but Out

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — The Army considered Ronald Rupe an exceptional soldier and sharp enough to make him a platoon leader. Rupe is still angry that the Army wouldn't let him stay, just because he's only 14 years old.

Rupe spent five weeks in the Army. Tough, smart and big for his age, he successfully masqueraded as five years older. By the time his brief career ended, he was in charge of 55 other recruits.

Rupe said he dropped out of school because "classes were too easy" and enlisted in the Marines, using his older brother's birth certificate and high school diploma.

But his father alerted Marine recruiters just before he was to be sworn in.

Several weeks later, using doctored documents, he enlisted in the Army and was sent to Ft. Ord, Calif. This time it took his father five weeks to track him down.

Recruiting Sgt. Joe Simental, contacted by Rupe's father, called Rupe's superiors and discovered the teen-ager had become "an exceptional soldier."

He qualified as an expert marksman and was made a platoon leader over some 55 other recruits, some twice his age.

"When I talked to his first sergeant he said Rupe was the best trooper in the entire company," Simental said.

The recruiter said he had no suspicion Rupe was underage. "He had a birth certificate that said he was 19 years old. He gave us all the necessary information on his past history and it all jibed.

"When he took our tests he scored above the average level for high school graduates. He wasn't hesitant or unsure of himself and ... he looks like he's 19 years old."

Rupe had completed most of his basic training. Discharged and sent home, he wrote President Ford, asking him as commander-in-chief to bend the rules so he could go back.

"If I could take all the hell they gave me in basic, I don't see why I can't stay in," he argued. Otherwise, he plans to re-enlist when he reaches legal age.

The recruiting sergeant held little hope Rupe could return. "Not even an act of God can get a 14-year-old in the Army," he said.

Nude Dancers Charged in Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The city attorney's office will prosecute indecent exposure charges against two nude dancers, but prosecutors aren't too hopeful of getting a conviction.

The two dancers — Gisela Dumaine, 26, and Bobby Tremaine — began their nude act this week after the Colorado Supreme Court declared the state's obscenity law was unconstitutionally vague.

They were arrested Wednesday on local charges of indecent exposure, but pleaded innocent and returned Thursday to put on their act again.

"We're not trying to cause a hassle, we're just trying to prove a point," said bar owner Neil Hutton. "We plan to continue the same kind of performance until the court decides."

"We had standing room only last night and it looks the same tonight. They'll be on again."

Trial has been set Feb. 26 for the couple, but prosecutor Matt Railey of the city attorney's office said he was skeptical he could win a conviction because of the supreme court decision.

"I think we're going to have difficulty in the extreme winning this one," said Railey. "If I were betting money on this one, I would say our chances are one out of 10."

A 47-page, 18-cent pamphlet entitled "Common Sense" appears for the first time in Philadelphia bookstores. The pamphlet's author is Thomas Paine, a 38-year-old Englishman who had a checkered career in Britain before coming to the colonies 13 months ago. "Common Sense" is an instant success — selling 120,000 copies in just three months. The most influential pamphlet ever published in this country, it does more to persuade Americans to independence than any other document of the Revolution, except perhaps the Declaration of Independence. Believing the time for liberty to be at hand, Paine writes: "Everything that is right or reasonable pleads for separation. The blood of the slain, the weeping voice of nature cries, 'tis time to part.'"

Labor Bill 'Destroys' Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop today said controversy over a picketing bill vetoed by President Ford has "destroyed" labor-management cooperation for the immediate future. But he did not indicate whether he will resign to protest the veto.

Dunlop's statement followed Thursday's dramatic protest by nine union leaders, who criticized Ford for the veto and resigned from an administration labor-management committee.

Today, Dunlop made no mention of his own deliberations on whether to resign. But he indicated controversy over the construction site picketing bill made him pessimistic about future dealings in the industry.

"I fear that the shrill and emotional pressures of the past few months have now destroyed for a period the possibility of continued labor-management cooperation in the national level on a construction industry-wide basis," he said.

The union leaders resigned Thursday from the administration's construction industry labor-management committee and said the veto had lost Ford what is commonly known as "hard-hat" support in the 1976 presidential campaign.

Among them was Teamsters Union president Frank Fitzsimmons, a supporter of former President Richard Nixon. "If he (Ford) can't support labor, I don't know how labor can support him," Fitzsimmons said.

Dunlop, who worked out a labor-management compromise on the construction industry bill by promising Ford's support, was disgruntled when the President yielded to conservative pressure to veto the bill. The unions said it destroyed Dunlop's credibility.

The vetoed bill, known as "common situs picketing," would have allowed building trades union pickets to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with only one subcontractor.

The secretary, who acknowledged after the veto that he was considering resigning, has spent the past two weeks discussing his options with leaders of labor and management.

The union leaders' resignation from the presidentially appointed Collective Bargaining Committee in Construction prompted reports spreading from Capitol Hill to the White House Thursday that Dunlop probably had decided to resign, too.

Dunlop's aides insisted he was still undecided. They said, however, the union leaders' action would have an impact on the outcome.

The union leaders walked out of a committee meeting in Dunlop's outer office. Dunlop did not attend. But chief federal mediator W.J. Usery was present.

Sources said Usery expected to be offered the job if Dunlop left. But they added that Usery, a Democrat, might decline in anticipation of getting it under a future administration.

Cattle Deadline in March

DIMMITT, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Animal Health Commission has been given a March 30 deadline for complying with federal regulations for control of the cattle disease brucellosis.

A district judge set the deadline Thursday and ordered a temporary injunction against a U.S. Agriculture Department quarantine of Texas cattle.

"The effect of the ruling is to insure state cattle breeders, raisers and dairymen that Texas will comply with USDA regulations," said Dimmitt attorney Jack Edwards who represented cattlemen at the hearing.

The order by Judge John Thomas Boyd in Castro County's 64th District Court temporarily postponed any action by the USDA to shut down movement of Texas cattle to other states.

The USDA in Dallas

announced it would defer to Boyd's deadline.

"USDA officials say they will continue cooperating with Texas in carrying out a brucellosis eradication program," said a USDA statement, "including the payment of indemnities to the owners of infected cattle."

The USDA said most of the state's 254 counties are currently rated "modified-certified" brucellosis areas, 25 are certified brucellosis free and 28 are not certified.

Five cattlemen testified at the court hearing. The AHC did not call a witness. The AHC had already agreed to meet federal requirements for brucellosis controls after being faced with a quarantine which would prevent Texas cattlemen from shipping to any other state. However, the commission said it could not officially take the new stand until its Feb. 5 meeting.

The March deadline, which the USDA agreed to, would also allow for a second state court session scheduled March 30 in Austin. In that case, the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association has filed suit asking the AHC to take no action because the USDA did not file an environmental impact statement showing any violations by Texas cattlemen.

Judge Jack Roberts of Austin deferred a ruling in that suit pending completion of the Dimmitt hearing.

night of Oct. 18 when Simants allegedly entered the Henry Kellie home in Sutherland, killing Kellie, his wife, a son, and three grandchildren.

Holscher said Simants confessed twice.

"I just killed the Kellies. Don't tell nobody," Holscher said Simants, 30, told a nephew, James Boggs, 13.

Minutes later Simants, who had been living with the Boggs — the Kellies' next door neighbors — called his mother.

Police Report Assault

Theft, attempted burglary, assault and a lost diamond ring were reported Wednesday night in the Pampa Police Department.

D.W. Fisher of 500 N. Nelson reported that someone broke the glass on the drivers side of his pickup parked at his residence and stole his citizens band radio.

Al Gardner of 109 N. Frost reported that someone tried to break into his shop Thursday night. A pry bar or screw driver was used in an attempt to open the door, but entry was not gained, officers said.

Mrs. Alvin Bell of 2523 Aspen reported that she lost a 14 karat gold dinner ring with 22 diamonds while shopping at Ideal Food Store on Ballard or en route home from the store.

A Pampa woman reported that after work she went home with a man to have coffee and he became violent and kicked both sides of her car.

An arrest was later made in connection with the report.

Roy Thoms Phillips of 638 S. Barnes, cashier at Allsup's Grocery of 1900 N. Hobart, reported that two females pulled up to the self service gas pumps at 1900 N. Hobart and put $3 of Hi test gas and $5 regular gas in the vehicle. They paid for the regular but left owing for the other, the report reads.

Hospitals Hire Emergency Help

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Public hospitals, increasingly pressed as a doctor's strike went into its second week, were authorized Thursday to hire emergency help. Administrators began discharging scores of patients early to make room for more serious cases.

Thousands of doctors suspended or limited practice New Year's day, saying they could not afford a 327 per cent increase in malpractice insurance premiums.

The strike affects physicians office practices and more than 90 of the area's 230 private hospitals. It has ended almost all non-emergency surgery and made it virtually impossible for residents to find a doctor, particularly to treat a new ailment, except at public hospital emergency rooms.

The early discharges reduced patient loads at Los Angeles County hospitals taking the brunt of the strike. But it was a "one-shot measure" and the influx of patients will soon catch up with the gain, said Liston Witherill, director of the county Health Services Department.

New mothers were being sent home two days after giving birth instead of the usual three. Patients with broken bones and other "non-emergency" cases were discharged. No count of early releases was made, officials said.

The County Board of Supervisors authorized hospital administrators to pay overtime and hire temporary employees to cope with the patient load, although officials have said that even without the strike the system will have a $20 million deficit this year.

The strike bruden may bring on drastic cutbacks later in the year to meet the budget, they said.

"It's not only a health crisis, but a money crisis that is being shifted from private hospitals and doctors to county taxpayers," said supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The legal counsel to the state medical association, Charles Bond, said he had warned physicians that suspending practice or refusing to treat new patients may expose them to legal action, like the malpractice suits that set off the crisis.

Angola Waits

SILVA Porto, Angola (UPI) — Pro-Western forces in Angola say they are holding off new battlefield initiatives to await the outcome of a weekend African summit seeking a peaceful solution to the civil war.

But the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, reportedly on the offensive throughout the former Portuguese colony, said Thursday it would not join its anti-Communist rivals in a united government.

Jonas Savimbi, president of the pro-Western National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, said Thursday. "We are not planning our own major offensive at this time."

He said he feared any new military action could jeopardize the outcome of the Organization of African Unity summit meeting in Ethiopia.

Savimbi said his group and its ally, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, were meeting to discuss strategy following the fall of two National Front strongholds in the north.

The town of Uige and nearby airbase of Negage, vital staging posts for supplies of men and equipment from Zaire, were captured by the Marxists earlier this week.

Military observers in Angola said the civil war was turning decisively in favor of the Popular Front.

Cuba has supplied the Popular Movement with an estimated 7,500 combat troops and Moscow has provided sophisticated weaponry including helicopter gunships, missiles and tanks.

The pro-Western alliance is backed mainly by South Africa and Zaire.

At the Addis Ababa meeting the Marxists were expected to ask the OAU to recognize the Popular Movement as the country's legal government.

Nineteen of the 46 OAU countries have recognized the Popular Front but delegates from the other countries said it was certain the organization as a whole would not do so.

McNeill To Judge FFA

Details for conducting the annual Area 1 FFA Livestock Judging Contest in Pampa next March were finalized at a meeting of the contest executive committee Thursday in Coronado Inn.

The contest will be one of the highlights of the three-day general Top O' Texas Show scheduled for March 15, 16 and 17 at Recreation Park.

Quentin Williams, contest superintendent, announced that three classes of beef cattle will be judged along with three classes of swine and two classes of sheep. Dr. John W. McNeill of West Texas State University at Canyon will be the official judge. The contest will be on Tuesday, March 16, with registration between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. in the main arena of the Top O' Texas show barn.

E.L. Henderson and James A. McCune were named on a committee to select a recipient for the Frank M. Carter scholarship award to the outstanding FFA student in Area 1.

The awards dinner will be in the Pampa High school Cafeteria at 5 p.m. March 16 when contest results will be announced and awards presented to the winners.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said they were satisfied with the outcome of their strategy talks, although it was clearly less than the hard line Israel wanted the United States to adopt.

Allon evidently failed to persuade Kissinger to commit the United States to veto any attempts by Arab countries to amend two key 1967 and 1973 U.N. Security Council Middle East peace resolutions to confer greater international status on the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Kissinger promised, "Israel's views will be taken with great seriousness. I'm confident the outcome will be consistent with the security of Israel."

But he refused to give a total hard-line commitment because, officials said, the course of the U.N. debate is not clear, the United States wants to retain some flexibility and it must avoid overly antagonizing Arab negotiating partners.

Allon's effort has been to reinforce his government's request for sophisticated military equipment, and its hardline toward the Palestine Liberation Organization. He met Thursday with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

Sources said Allon is concerned over Cuba's commitment of 400 tank specialists to Syria, North Korea's contribution of 20 pilots, and a similar number of aviators from Pakistan.

Vandalism Brings Second Mistrial

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

For the second time a mistrial has been declared in the case of a 19-year-old Pampa man in connection with vandalism at the Pampa High School on March 29.

The mistrial Thursday was declared by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny in Rocky Blake Nichols case.

"On Oct. 13 the defendant entered a plea of guilty. It was withdrawn and a mistrial was declared," Judge McIlhenny said Thursday.

His statement was following by the reading of the indictment in the case by District Atty. Guy Hardin.

The judge again asked Nichols if he realized that he could be confined to the state penitentiary for a period of two to 20 years and fined up to $10,000.

"Is it still your desire to plead guilty?" the judge asked. Nichols said it was.

At that time the judge asked Nichols' attorney Rowdy Bowers and Hardin if there had been any "plea bargaining" between the two attorneys.

Hardin explained that there has been oral bargaining — nothing in writing.

"In that case we will back up and declare another mistrial," the judge said.

Bowers said in October his client would make full restitution of $1,936.62.

Damage had been reported on all four floors of the main high school building and in the wood shop.

In other action in 31st District Court Thursday, three others were granted probated sentences.

Jerrold H. Keller, 24, of Alanreed was given a 10-year probated sentence, fined $1,000 and ordered to make $180 restitution. He was convicted in September for burglary of a McLean drug store on Jan. 19 "to overdose himself."

The judge said then that is he granted probation it would be for a long enough time, and with stringent enough rules for Keller to be rid of his "playful ideas."

Judge McIlhenny said Keller will be required to live at the Living Waters Gospel Ranch in Gray County for a year, and attend an Alcoholic Anonymous meeting each week.

Keller said he is in the process of selling his car to make restitution and pay as much as he can toward his fine.

Keller took the witness stand in his own defense last fall and said he and his girl friend went to Amarillo where he spent his entire paycheck for drugs.

He said he drove back to his home in Alanreed and took a "bunch of tools."

Testimony revealed that he had "picked" his way through the walls of the McLean drug store where he was caught at 10:30 a.m. on a Sunday morning after the alarm went off.

"I was in a dream world," Keller said. "I didn't know what I was doing or why. It took me eight hours to make a hole big enough to get in. I about got stuck and when I got out on the other side I was about ready to die of asphyxiation."

He added that he wanted a powerful enough drug to commit suicide, and get it over with.

He said he had tried to hang himself once in San Diego.

Ronnie Carl Anderson withdrew his appeal from a probated sentence and accepted the court's five year probation term. He was charged with possession of marijuana.

Bobby Wayne Bailey, 25, of Pampa was granted a three-year probation term following a November conviction for possession of codeine.

He, too, was ordered to stay at the Living Waters Gospel Ranch for one year or longer if so ordered by the court.

His fine was $250. The state said officers obtained a search warrant and found 17 codeine tablets in a bottle in the bathroom and 60 in Bailey's automobile.

TV Payroll Probed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A grand jury investigating Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel is apparently studying allegations that public television station employees were on the Texas Senate payroll.

The new investigation indicates Schnabel, who already has been indicted for official misconduct and theft, arranged for $15,000 to be funneled to four KLRN-TV employees, rather than force the station to pay them.

UPI has learned Schnabel sent at least three of the four to KLRN for jobs. Those three say they did not know they were being listed as state employees. The fourth, Ann Caroline Leifeste of Houston, has refused to comment on the allegations.

The four and KLRN program director Bill Arhos are scheduled to appear Monday before the same Travis County Grand Jury which indicted Schnabel Dec. 30.

In commenting on the allegations, KLRN president and general manager Richard Schenkkan said the Senate paid the salaries of some workers as reimbursement for broadcasts requested by legislators which were never officially funded.

"This was not so much an arrangement as it was a succession of events," Schenkkan said. "We didn't sign any kind of agreement."

Station employee Daniel Yahn Kruger, 29, of San Antonio, said he once was curious about receiving a state pay check but said he was told by Arhos that the state funded the educational station.

Kruger also said it was Schnabel who recommended him for the station job.

"I went and talked to Schnabel and asked him about a Senate job," Kruger said. "He said he didn't have any jobs around there but KLRN had people on the state payroll occasionally."

"He sent me out to see Schenkkan and Arhos and they said they could use me as a production assistant," Kruger said he worked from the summer of 1970 to July, 1971.

Nixon Has Birthday

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon turned 63 today, obviously healthier and reportedly cheered by the possibility he may rise in public esteem as time discloses the misdeeds of other presidents.

A small party was planned for his family and close friends and a "mini-museum" of Nixon memorabilia was to be opened at the former western White House press center, probably without his presence.

On the eve of his birthday the Nixon issued an unusually long public statement mourning the death of Communist Chinese Premier Chou en-Lai, long an antagonist until he and Nixon played key roles in improving Sino-American relations.

Nixon said he was "profoundly saddened" by the death of Chou, praising him for bringing on the rapprochement with Washington. His "legacy will be that he helped end the darkness," Nixon said.

There were reports his daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, might return from their visit to mainland China in time to attend Nixon's birthday party.

Rabbi Baruch Korff, Nixon's most active defender and fundraiser, said the gathering at Nixon's oceanside estate would be limited to the family and a few close associates from his administration.

Korff, who sees Nixon often, described him as "quite confident" there will be "a change in the assessment of his administration with all the revelations by comparison to what he's done."

Korff said he was referring to news accounts of misconduct in other administrations, particularly the alleged sexual affairs of John Kennedy. "The situation with Kennedy appalled me," Korff said.

Nixon still spends most of his time shut away on the estate, and will not speak to reporters. But he has gradually eased the seclusion of the first year after he resigned the presidency Aug. 9, 1974. He golfs on public courses, strolls the beaches and has old friends in for small dinners and breakfast meetings.

Bellmon — 'Oklahoma Can't Support Ford'

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., a frequent critic of President Ford, says he may support the Democratic candidate if Ford is the Republican presidential nominee.

"I am not a yellow dog Republican," the former Oklahoma governor said Thursday, indicating he does not always follow party lines.

In one of his sharpest attacks against Ford, Bellmon said the President was not the type of person Oklahoma voters can support.

"It would be very difficult to jump the fence and be for a Democratic candidate, but it's conceivable," Bellmon said.

He listed former Treasury Secretary and Texas Gov. John Connally as his first choice for the Republican nomination and said a match between Ronald Reagan and Ford would go to Reagan.

"I'm saying I'm for John Connally, and I'm not sure Reagan will be in the running by the time he gets to Kansas City," said Bellmon.

Bellmon said Ford's support of the grain embargo, signing of the energy bill and "bailing out New York City" has caused him to become "increasingly convinced Ford will not be the nominee."

Asked how he would go in a match between Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Ford, Bellmon said, "I don't want to get into these iffy situations."

Bellmon did say he expects Humphrey to be the Democratic nominee.

"In watching Democrats in the Senate, I'm convinced unless Ted Kennedy runs, it will be Hubert Humphrey," he said. "That's assuming his health is good and he wants it, which he does and will until he's put in his grave."

Bellmon said if Kennedy became a candidate he would get the Democratic nomination but lose the general election.

He also said if Ford does poorly in the early primaries, in New Hampshire and Florida, he could see a scenario developing in which all of the attention was focused on Reagan before the Kansas City convention.

If Reagan then fails to capture a majority, Bellmon said he could see "perhaps Howard Baker or John Connally."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Friends:
I was baking a pie the other day and, boy, did it bubble over in my oven!
Now I know if I had listened to my mother and put a cookie sheet under it, I wouldn't have to worry about it. I know that — now.
Just because Heloise is my mother doesn't mean that I do everything right or retain everything I have grown up with.
Anyway, I did remember a simple solution. (See, I do remember some things. But they are usually answers to problems instead of preventions.)
As my apartment was filling with smoke and that awful burnt smell, I grabbed my box of salt.
I poured the salt all over the bubbling, burnt goop and closed the oven door.
I was having guests later that evening so I ran around opening both front and back doors, all windows and sat outside for awhile.
I couldn't help get the smoke out any faster so I might as well enjoy my book and a little fresh air. Boy, did I enjoy that fresh air!
When I could see to the kitchen, I came back in and opened the oven door. No smoke!
The salt had stopped the gunk from burning, my pie had finished cooking and things were back to "almost normal."
Now, I should have cleaned up the mess when the oven got cool, right?
Well, as things usually go, I didn't do it then; I didn't do it a little later. I didn't do it until three days later.
Know what? I even baked in the oven before cleaning up the burnt mess and no smoke, no smell.
So, if you do burn something on the oven, cover it with salt and forget about it.
Maybe not as long as I did, but don't worry, it will still be there when you get around to it. Don't be upset if it is a few days until you do clean it up. I won't tell if you won't! Besides, you can just scrape it up with a spatula.

Heloise II
P.S. Just don't look in my oven!

Dear Heloise:
Does your crewel instruction sheet get soiled or creased? Just ease it into a clear plastic envelope.
Stays like new.
Ines Brooks

Dear Heloise:
After you open a bag of marshmallows and don't use them all, poof the air out of the bag, twist the top of the bag closed and put on a twistem.
Then put the bag in the freezer and I guarantee you the marshmallows won't get hard and stale!
Jean Archer

Dear Heloise:
I buy hair ribbons and dress sashes by the yard and cut them to size.
The ends tended to fray after washing so now I apply clear nail polish to the freshly cut ends and let dry.
There's no more fraying even after many washings!
Elaine Brown

Dear Heloise:
I have an idea that has saved me much time and trouble.
When I put a quilt on the frame, I staple the lining on, lay the batt out, staple the top on.
No tacks, no pins. I keep a screwdriver handy to remove the staples as needed.
Mrs. Walter Bukler

Dear Heloise:
Use hot water when using instant milk in cooked puddings and sauces.
The pudding or sauce will cook much faster.
Henty LaRou

Bedroom Ideal

Whether your tastes run to updated treasures or versatility, a bedroom can be fit the user. Old treasures can be adapted for use today. For example, antique quilts were designed narrow, not wide enough to use as bedspreads. But you can stitch a matching dust ruffle. Another bedroom can double as sitting room and guest room with use of a trundle bed. The sofa becomes a bed. The wicker and bamboo give the room an airy look. The rug is lime green and the wallpaper yellow and white. A wicker trunk doubles as a coffee table and stores linens, blankets and pillows for the extra bed.

Nebraska Couple Returns Viet Children to Mother

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Two Vietnamese children less than a year ago found a home in Nebraska with State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh and his wife, Linda.
DeCamp, a Vietnam veteran, first saw the brother and sister Tam, 7, and Hung, 6, at a Saigon orphanage in March of last year. He described them as "two slippery minnows who splashed in a pond" outside the orphanage.
At the time, he was there to help with "Operation Babylift" and when he saw the pair he decided to adopt them.
After a brief period Lincoln with DeCamp's secretary while he finished his work with Babylift and his wife recuperated from hospitalization, the 2 children and the DeCamps moved to Neligh.
At Lincoln Municipal Airport the children were confronted with people who didn't speak their language and they clung together, afraid. But they did respond as reporters asked them questions through an interpreter.
Soon they were no longer afraid and problems of malnutrition were quickly overcome in their new home. And, said DeCamp, "they were jabbering English" and finding Neligh a good place to be.
They are no longer there.
"Two finer, brighter or lovelier children didn't exist on this earth. My wife, Linda, showered them with love and they returned it. And when the children asked if their Vietnamese mother might be alive somewhere or might have escaped from the Communists, we promised to tell them if we ever learned anything."
They thought their mother had been shot to death.
A short time ago, DeCamp said he learned a Vietnamese woman in one of the refugee camps fit a childish description

Elvis Marks 41st

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Former rock 'n' roller who pay attention to that sort of thing probably took a second look in the mirror today, the 41st birthday of Elvis Presley.
Elvis, who reportedly has been checking his own relative corpulence in the mirror of late, was in Los Angeles and not expected to be at home when faithful fans gathered outside the gates of Graceland Mansion.
It was to be the third annual "party outside the gates" to celebrate, or mourn, the date, depending on the fans' own ages.
Mrs. Tina Marsh of Southaven, Miss., a young Elvis fan turned housewife, originated the idea of an Elvis birthday pilgrimage to the antebellum-style mansion on Elvis Presley Boulevard in south Memphis.
She said Wednesday the 1976 pilgrimage will have two themes.
"This year we have got beautiful birthday boxes with a bicentennial theme," she said. The "birthday boxes" this year will be red, white and blue receptacles in which the devoted can deposit birthday cards.
In addition, business and theater marquees around the city bore birthday greetings, Memphis International Airport scheduled a regular round-the-clock public address announcement and radio stations planned appropriate programming.
African Violet Group Meets
The Pampa African Violet Society, meeting recently in the Don Glaxner home at 701 N. Gray, heard Mrs. Rufe Jordan relate Minton Johnson's Christmas story, "How the Littlest Cherub Was Late for Christmas."
Mrs. Glaxner, club president, read from Matthew, chapter five, as part of the holiday program. The meeting included a gift exchange and names of 1975 secret pals were revealed.
Nine members and two guests attended the meeting.

AGONIZING DECISION
NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va., has "agonizingly" decided that his family deserves more of his time than Congress, where he has spent the last 17 years of his life.
Downing, dean of Virginia's Congressional delegation, announced Tuesday he will not seek re-election this year.
The 1st District lawmaker told a news conference that nine terms in Congress have placed a burden on himself and his family.
"After weighing these factors for many months I have agonizingly reached the decision not to seek re-election to the House of Representatives for another term," he said. "I hope and pray that the thousands of wonderful people who have supported me so faithfully for so long will understand my human desire to lead a more personal life."

ENCORE PLANNED
COCOA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Author Martin Caidin and his 18-year-old bride enjoyed their candlelight wedding so much they plan to do it again "within the year."
Caidin, 48, author of 93 books including "Cyborg," on which the television series "The Six Million Dollar Man" is based, married Dee Dee Autry in an evening ceremony at the First United Methodist Church Wednesday.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

At a luncheon last week, a woman was telling about driving in the car with her teen-ager.
"Debbie turned into a dead-end street," she explained, "and I said to her, 'Turn.' She kept going, so I raised my voice and said, 'Turn.' She sat there frozen to the wheel and when I saw a guard rail looming in front of us, I leaned over and shouted in her ear, 'TURN!'"
She slammed on her brakes and cried, "There you go again. You're always shouting at me."
We all nodded our heads sympathetically. There wasn't one of us who didn't have varicose veins of the neck from "talking" with our teen-agers.
The reasons were varied. One woman said she shouted at her teen-age daughter because she had to compete with radios and stereos. "Everytime I said something to her she just stared back with a fixed, glazed smile, clicking her fingers. I got so mad I threatened to plug her into a faucet. Then one day I figured, if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."
"What did you do?" we asked.
"Everytime she asked me a question, I'd reply with a loud phonograph record. When she opened my drawer to borrow my last pair of panty hose, I'd turn up the volume on The Beatles playing 'Let It Be.' Once, when I made her spend a Saturday helping me clean, I played 23 choruses of the Carpenters singing, 'We've Only Just Begun.'"
Another mother said she shouted because her son hums when she chews him out. "If we had a drum and a guitar, we could record," she said bitterly.
I confessed to being a shouter because I can never find my kids to face them directly in a quiet, civilized manner.
One day I shouted under the bathroom door for 45 minutes delivering a lecture on why a wet towel should not be left on the bed. (I hate to sound immodest, but it was one of my finer efforts. It included a dissertation on a mother's place in the social system, how the IRS exemption for children is comedy at its best, how gross it is to cut your toenails in the living room and the sin of leaving five empty ice cream cartons in the freezer.)
My husband finally tapped me on the shoulder and informed me my son had left the house 20 minutes before.
We all agreed the term "rapping" had lost a lot in the modern-day interpretation. Finally, a small, quiet woman said, "I think raising kids is like working in a boiler factory. You shout from habit. Besides," she said, "I know I love 'em when I shout. They know I love 'em when I shout. But how will everyone else know unless I shout?"

Gospel Helps Men Help Themselves

Hugh Gegan, director of the Living Waters Gospel Ranch in McLean, will address the congregation of the Christian Center Church at 7 p.m. Sunday, according to the Rev. Ron Palermo, pastor.

The Living Waters Gospel Ranch was founded in February 1975 to help young men with drug problems, Rev. Palermo said.

During the past year, according to Gegan, the ranch has helped 14 men. There are now four men in residence at the facility. The four, all on probation, were sent to the ranch by the courts, Gegan said. Gegan will tell how God is changing lives at the ranch and how men have left the ranch and become productive members of society. One man, once a heroin addict, now manages a 2,500-acre ranch. Another is attending a Bible college in Dallas.

The ranch was founded to help men between the ages of 18-30.

Gegan's testimony on the success of the Living Waters Gospel Ranch will be at the church at 801 E. Campbell. Rev. Palermo said the address is open to the public.

British List Top Tunes

LONDON (UPI) — One of the hits on a new British list of top ten tunes is a thousand years old.

Johann Sebastian Bach wrote another of them, and two come from Handel's "Messiah."

These are "The Top Ten Religious Tunes," compiled on a new BBC record after a vote by thousands of television viewers. Most are tunes — not all of them hymns — which have kept their popularity through long reaches of time.

The idea of religious "top ten" originated with the BBC television program "Anno Domini," said Sylvia Cartner, a BBC religious music producer.

The program's producers decided to establish which tunes were most loved by the most people. They asked viewers for their votes.

"The response was overwhelming," Miss Cartner said. "People wrote in in droves." Some voters backed just one song, but others submitted complete "top ten" lists of their own.

The full "Top Ten Religious Tunes" list on the record, distributed by Polydor, is:

1. The Old Rugged Cross
2. The Lord's My Shepherd
3. The Hallelujah Chorus
4. I Know That My Redeemer Liveth
5. Veni Creator Spiritus
6. Onward! Christian Soldiers
7. O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go

Sunday Sermon To Examine Belief, Faith

The Rev. Norman D. Dow Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will examine faith Sunday when he speaks on "I Believe in . . . The Basis of Our Belief" at the 10:45 a.m. worship service.

Text for the sermon is from James 2:19. Rev. Dow will be assisted in the pulpit by E. Ray Duncan, elder and Hugh Gegan from the Living Waters Gospel Ranch in McLean will be the Minute for Mission speaker.

Services at the church, located at 525 N. Gray, are open to the public.

Minister Plans Slide Show

Holy Land slides taken by Gordon Downing, interim minister of the Pampa Church of Christ, will be shown at 6 p.m. Sunday in the church at 738 McCullough.

Mr. Downing made the slides while visiting the Middle East on a scholarship program several years ago. He has used the slides in Bible classes at West Texas State University, Amarillo College and several area churches.

The slide presentation is leading off a Bible study program at the church. The program is expected to last several weeks and will meet at 6 p.m. Sundays in the church.

The slide show and subsequent programs are open to the public.

Astronaut-Evangelist To Address Baptists

James B. Irwin, Apollo 15 astronaut who returned from a moon walk in 1971 to devote his life to evangelism, will address the Texas Baptist Evangelism Conference in Ft. Worth Monday.

The president of High Flight Inc., a non-profit organization Irwin founded to share his faith through speaking engagements, retreats and publications, Irwin will speak to an estimated 12,000 pastors and laypersons representing Texas' 4,400 Southern Baptist churches at the Tarrant County Convention Center.

Other speakers at the conference, which ends Wednesday, include evangelist James Robison, host of a weekly syndicated television show; Dr. Jimmy R. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Antonio; Dr. James H. Landes, executive director of the 2.2 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas; and Richard Jackson, pastor of the North Phoenix Baptist Church of Phoenix, Ariz.

Sponsor of the evangelism gathering is the Evangelism Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Sessions are scheduled in the morning, afternoon and evening and are open to the public.

Baptist Women Set Schedule Of Meetings

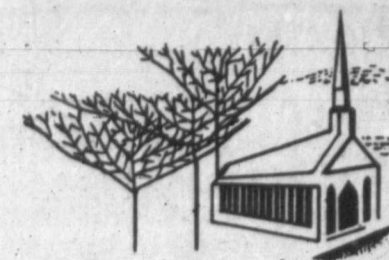

Baptist Women study groups of the First Baptist Church have announced the following meetings for Wednesday:

The Maxine Ray Round Table Group will meet in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Mrs. G.E. Groninger of 2101 Chestnut will host the Vada Waldron Bible Study Group in her home.

The church will be the site for a meeting of the Ruby Ashworth Prayer Group.

An investment in Your Future ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

Attitude... OF PRAYER

"Give ear to my words, O Lord, consider my meditation. Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray."

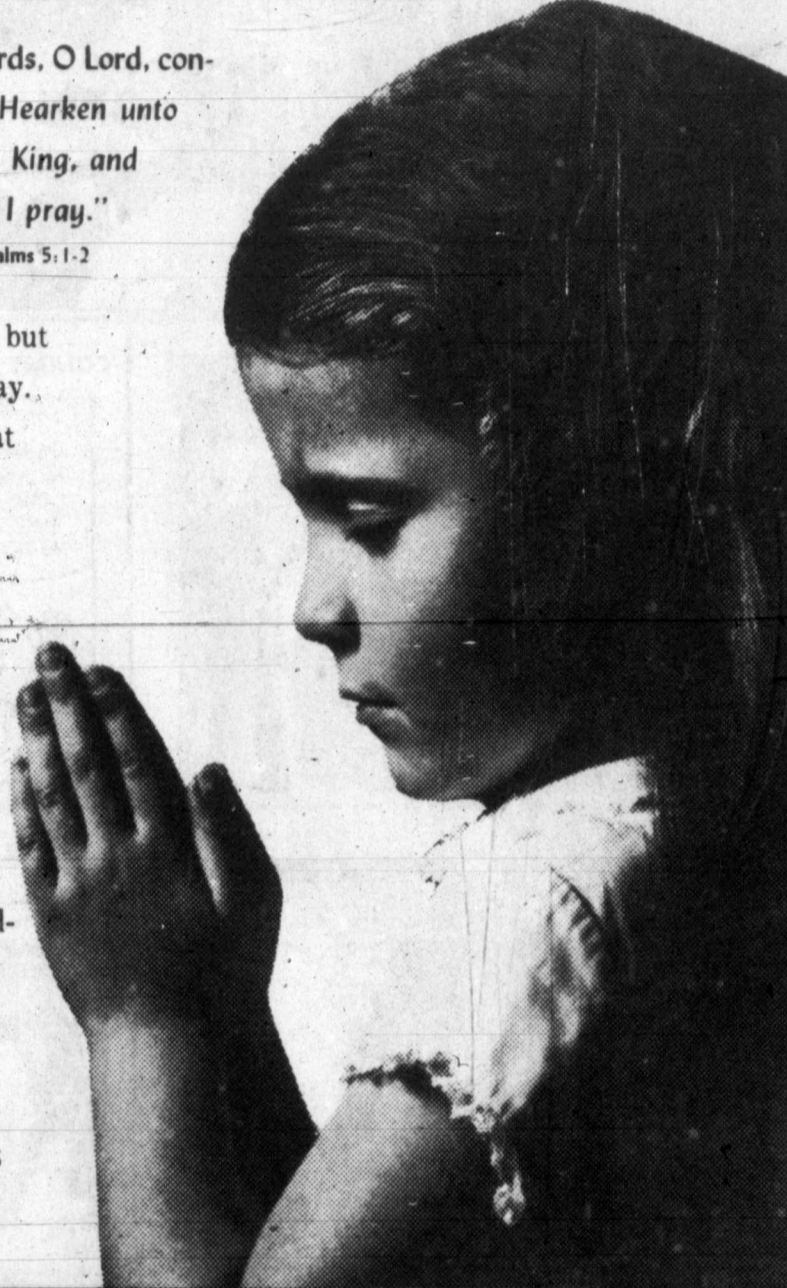

Psalms 5:1-2

God hears and answers prayers, but not everyone knows how to pray. Even the Lord's disciples asked that he teach them how to pray.

Attitude of the individual is important in prayer. Prayer is the opportunity that we have to tell God of our blessings and give thanks. It is an opportunity to petition for help, but above all, our hearts should be willing that God's will be done.

Prayer should be offered individually and in groups.

ATTEND CHURCH AND
PRAY WITH OTHERS

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Harvesters To Visit Rangers

Pampa Coach Robert McPherson, in spite of his team's 27-point rout over Perryton early in December, expects a closer game tonight and hopes that the Harvesters don't let down after playing several quality AAAA opponents.

The Harvesters and Perryton will meet at 7:45 p.m. today in Ranger Fieldhouse.

Pampa, which has played Midland Lee twice and Lubbock Monterey in its last four games, owns a 14-3 season record, quite a contrast from Perryton's 2-11 standard. Pampa crushed Perryton 68-41 in the teams' first meeting.

"We expect them to be a lot tougher," McPherson said. "They'll be tougher there tonight than what they were here. Perryton has been playing a lot better — they played Borger within six points at Borger."

"They'll run a movement-type offense that will give you problems if you don't do a good job on defense."

Perryton is led by 6-0 senior post Russ Reagan, averaging 16.7 points and six rebounds, and 6-3 senior post Roger Reimer, 14.2 points and seven rebounds. Reagan and 6-2 junior forward James Ridgeway, 9.7 and seven, each scored 10 points to pace the Rangers in their early-season loss to Pampa.

Richard Lane, Pampa's 6-1 senior forward, had his best game of the season against Perryton, scoring 21 points. Lane is averaging 8.2 points and four rebounds.

Six-two junior guard Brian Bailey, with a 11.9 scoring and 5.9 rebounding average, scored 15 against Perryton. Bailey and Lane will start tonight along with 6-4 junior post Donnie Hughes (13.4 points, 8.4 rebounds), 6-1 senior forward Jewell Landers (5.8, 7.4) and either 5-10 senior guard Forrest Taylor (1.2, 1.2) or 5-11 junior Pee Wee Steele (1.6, 0).

"I don't know where Taylor or Steele will start," McPherson said. "Both are playing real well. I'll have to watch them in warmups."

Six-foot junior guard Rayford Young (9.1, 2.5) will probably see action early in today's game, which starts at 7:45 p.m.

Perryton Coach Allen Simpson hopes his team can score against Pampa's talented defense, which has held opponents to an average of 47.6 points per game.

"They're super. I've seen 'em play four times and they have poise, size, they shoot, they have great ability and play great defense. They're the best defensive team I've seen," Simpson said.

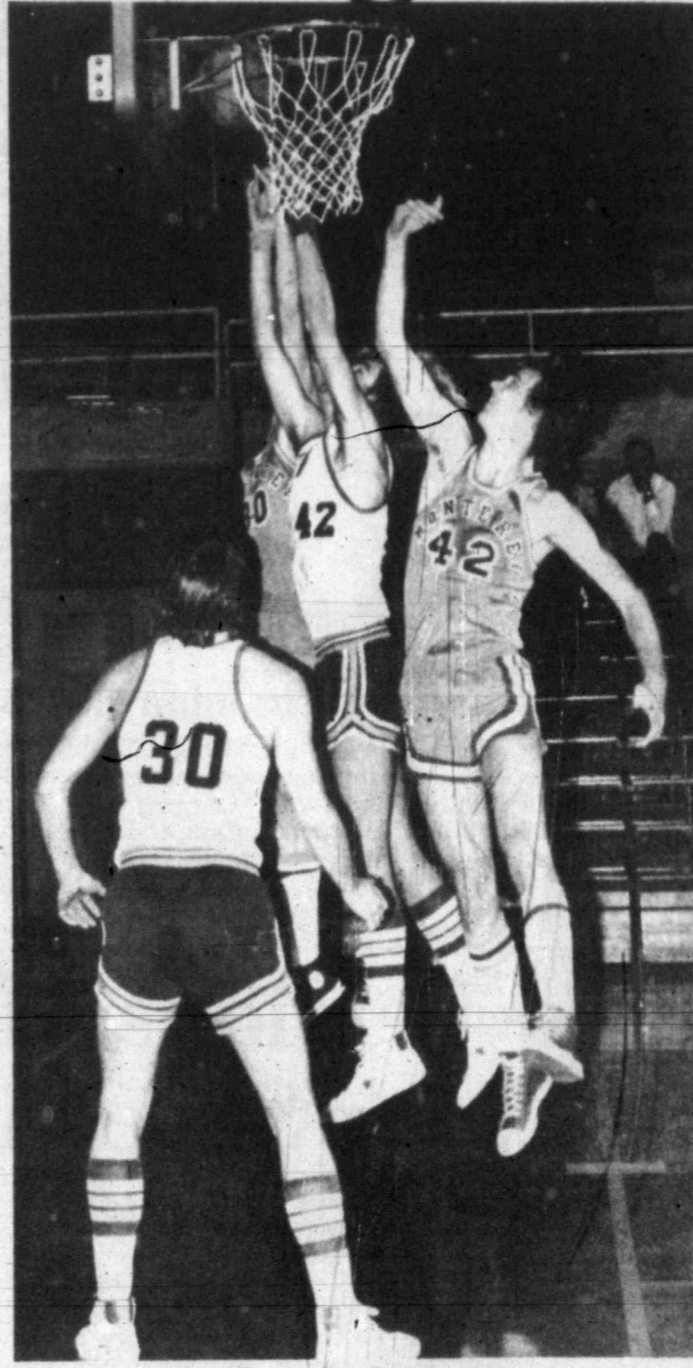

"We're playing good sometimes. We just can't win one — we're not consistent. Of course, when I get to looking at who we've got — my two seniors that played on the varsity last season (Reimer, Reagan) only played half of the season."

"Inexperience is killing us."

Simpson hopes his team will perform well tonight since District 1-AAA play begins next week at Muleshoe.

"I hope our tough non-conference schedule helps us. I think it will. We've not played a bad team."

The junior varsity contest between Pampa and Perryton will start at 6 p.m. today.

Donnie Hughes (42, white) scores two points between a pair of Lubbock Monterey defenders Tuesday night in Harvester Fieldhouse. Pampa defeated Monterey 46-44 to set up today's 7:45 meeting against Perryton in Ranger Fieldhouse. The Harvesters whipped Perryton 68-41 early in the season.

UCLA, Nevada Have Close Calls

By United Press International
UCLA and Nevada-Las Vegas barely escaped upsets on opposition courts Thursday night, each winning by one point against unranked teams, while Southern California found itself taking on more than it could handle against unheralded Oregon State.

Third-ranked UCLA was "very, very lucky" to score a 62-61 Pacific Eight victory over Oregon when the Ducks missed two shots in the last 10 seconds.

The Ducks fought back from a 10-point deficit with 5:25 to go and got the ball, one point down, when freshman Danny Mack stole an inbound pass with 23 seconds left. Ron Lee dribbled off 10 seconds, then drove into the key and fed off to teammate Greg Ballard whose eight-foot bank shot rolled off the rim with six seconds left. Lee, who paced Oregon with 17 points, immediately fouled UCLA's Ralph Drollinger who missed a one-and-one and gave the Ducks a half court desperation shot by Mike Drummond which barely missed.

"We're very, very lucky to escape with a win because we didn't make very many free throws there in the end," UCLA Coach Gene Bartow said. "I think we tried too hard."

Sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas ran off six straight points in the closing minutes to overcome gritty Seattle 90-89. The Rebels were trailing by three points with 1:17 to play. Then Eddie Owens, who had 25 points, hit a 15-footer with 1:05 to play to pull Las Vegas to within one at 85-84. Loyd Batts stole the Chiefs' inbound pass, was fouled and converted both free throws.

Seattle's James Day tipped in the apparent go-ahead basket but it was nullified for offensive goaltending with 32 seconds left. Las Vegas' Robert Smith hit four straight free throws in the closing seconds as the Rebels remained unbeaten in 14 games.

Rocky Smith scored 29 points and Lonnie Shelton added 18 to help Oregon State upset 15th-ranked USC 80-70 in the opening Pac-8 basketball game for both teams. Oregon State trailed 38-37 at the half but moved ahead for good at 51-49 with 13:49 left on a Shelton jump shot following a rebound. The Beavers scored another six straight points before USC could hit the bucket.

Six Michigan players scored in double figures to keep the 13th-ranked Wolverines undefeated in the Big Ten and beat Wisconsin 106-81.

Minnesota hit on 13 of its first 17 shots in the second half to pull away from a 32-32 halftime tie and win 77-68 over Illinois.

Steelers Work in Cold

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The groundskeepers at Three Rivers Stadium put forth a yeoman's effort to protect the Tartan turf and the Pittsburgh Steelers from the storm that dumped seven inches of snow on the area Wednesday night and Thursday.

By using heaters and a tarpaulin tent, the crew was able to present the Steelers with a snow-free field on which to begin preparations for their Super Bowl clash with Dallas Jan. 18.

But the effort was for naught. Just about the time the Steelers took the field, a snow squall hit the city.

The players took it in stride. "It's just like Miami!" backup quarterback Terry Hanratty told one team official with moka gaiety.

But the weather was a disadvantage.

"It will probably hamper our practice, it being cold and with snow and everything," said running back Franco Harris. "It'll definitely hamper it as far as execution and as far as being able to go all-out."

Running backs, he said, suffer in terms of "your cutting ability, your stopping ability. And, like a lot of times, you can't go full speed; you have to really watch your step. The one thing you don't want to do is go out here in practice and do something foolish and hurt yourself."

Luckily for running backs and tackles alike, one of the most important facets of Thursday's practice was indoors: observing films. The Steelers have not played the Cowboys since losing to them in the exhibition season, and many have devoted spare time to trying to learn more about Dallas' shotgun offense and flex defense.

"Dallas is a real complex team," said defensive end Dwight White. "They do a lot of things that you don't normally see. They come out in a lot of things offensively, formations and shifting that we don't see a lot of. The same thing about their defense. They play a flex defense which we don't see a lot of."

"But it's not that difficult to make the adjustments," White added, "and there's some adjustments that we're going to have to make and look at a lot of film on these people."

Receivers Lynn Swann and Frank Lewis did not work out Thursday because of injuries. Swann got out of the hospital three days ago after suffering a concussion in the AFC championship game against Oakland. Lewis bruised a shoulder in that game. Both, however, should be ready to play in the Super Bowl.

Linebacker Loren Toews, who injured a knee in the regular season finale loss to Los Angeles, ran for the first time since being injured but he's still a question mark for the Super Bowl.

These Monday market specials were featured in Atlanta, Ga., on Jan. 1, 1900, the first day of the 20th century.

Newhouse Caps Good Year in Finals

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboy running back Robert Newhouse knew that a lot of skeptics were downgrading his abilities, but he didn't let the criticism worry him.

Newhouse inherited the bulk of the Dallas running game when Calvin Hill jumped leagues and Walt Garrison retired before the season started.

Newhouse gained 930 yards during the regular season, the second best production at fullback in Cowboys history. His development, the addition of Preston Pearson and sudden emergence of Doug Dennison as a quality power runner have helped put Dallas in the Super Bowl against Pittsburgh.

"This is the first year I have actually been able to play at all," said the stumpy runner from the University of Houston. "I had not played much since I left college three years ago. So this year was like a learning season for me. It takes time to get the feel of things. You have to get used to the people you are in the lineup with. It takes time before you know exactly what they are going to do and how they are going to do it."

While at Houston, Newhouse became known for his dazzling long distance runs, full of spins and broken tackles. In his first year as a Dallas starter there have been few long gainers — just those steady three, four and five-yard bursts.

"That is chiefly because of the Cowboys system," Newhouse said. "You are limited in what you do. The idea is to be consistent and that is what I try to do. Early in the year we were getting a lot of bad rap, but I couldn't let it bother me, and then came that Howard Cosell thing (in which Cosell termed Newhouse a "bad runner" during a Monday night telecast), and that added to it. But you can't let things like that get you down. I know what I can do. I know I'm a football player so I can't let what other people think worry me."

The Cowboys reported back to work Thursday after their NFC title win over Los Angeles and the offensive unit received its game plan for Super Bowl X.

"Pittsburgh just has a great defensive club," said Newhouse. "And that's because they have nothing but super athletes on it. Getting the job done against them is going to take more than just hoping you do it. It is going to take a lot of preparation."

"I think there are weaknesses that we can work against. But, I guarantee you, there aren't many."

Soviets Tip Bruins

BOSTON (UPI) — What the Soviet Central Army team did to the Boston Bruins needed no translation.

Russia's top hockey team used superior conditioning, magnificent shot selection and peerless goaltending Thursday night to down the Bruins 5-2 and guarantee a winning series against four of the National Hockey League's top teams.

Boston matched hustle and applied muscle to keep the game scoreless through one period but the Soviets kept moving while the Bruins got more tired as the game progressed.

The Central Army, primarily players bound for this year's Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria, took a 3-2 lead after two periods and added two more goals in the last period.

"I don't know how any Olympic team is going to beat them," said Boston Coach Don Cherry. "They made a believer out of me."

Boston's strategy was to play tight-checking, body-crunching hockey. It worked for a while, "but they couldn't keep up the pace," said Army Coach Konstantin Loktev. "They slowed down."

Cherry said the biggest surprise came on the game-winning goal by Boris Maltsev 13:19 into the middle period. Dave Forbes had given Boston a 1-0 lead early in the period but Valeri Khariamov had put the Central Army back ahead with a pair of goals.

Maltsev streaked up to the red line and took a long pass from defenseman Valeri Vasilev. Maltsev kept striding down the left side and unleashed a 30-foot wrist shot that rose pass a stunned Gilles Gilbert in the net.

Rose Wins 'Hickok' As Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Rose, who wasn't even voted the most valuable player on his own team this past year, has turned a starring role in the World Series into a post-season bonanza.

The 34-year-old third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, who led his club to a seven-game victory over the Boston Red Sox in the World Series, picked up his third major honor since October Thursday when he was named winner of the S. Rae Hickok "Professional Athlete of the Year" Award.

Rose, also honored by Sport Magazine as the World Series hero and selected by Sports Illustrated as "Sportsman of the Year" during the past four months, beat out golfer Jack Nicklaus and heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali for top professional athlete honors. His prize was a diamond-studded, gold-buckled belt valued at $15,000.

In a voting conducted of sportswriters and broadcasters across the nation, Rose received 31 first place votes and 155 1/2 points to beat out Nicklaus by 17 1/2 points. Nicklaus, winner of his fifth Masters and fourth PGA crowns, had 29 first place votes and 138 points while Ali, the 1974 Hickok winner, had 21 firsts and 121 points.

WT Routs Tulsa 75-59

AMARILLO — Six-ten center Dallas Smith scored 20 points, blocked seven shots and grabbed eight rebounds to lead West Texas State to its seventh win in a row, 75-59, over Missouri Valley Conference for Tulsa Thursday night in the Civic Center Coliseum here.

West Texas State, 10-1 for the season, opened Valley play with three players in double figures — Smith, Melvin Jones with 13 and Brad Schreck with 11.

Prof Predicts Bad Energy Crisis

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A University of Texas chemical engineering professor says the nation should expect another energy crisis in the next decade — accompanied by the worst recession in 40 years.

Dr. John McKetta, a former vice chancellor of academic affairs of the UT System and one-time dean of engineering, Wednesday predicted the energy crisis would hit between 1982-84 and would be followed by 15 per cent unemployment and what he called double-digit inflation.

McKetta said the United States would not reach self-sufficiency in petroleum by 1990 and said government regulations on energy had resulted from political expediency, empire building, extremist influences and selfish re-election concerns.

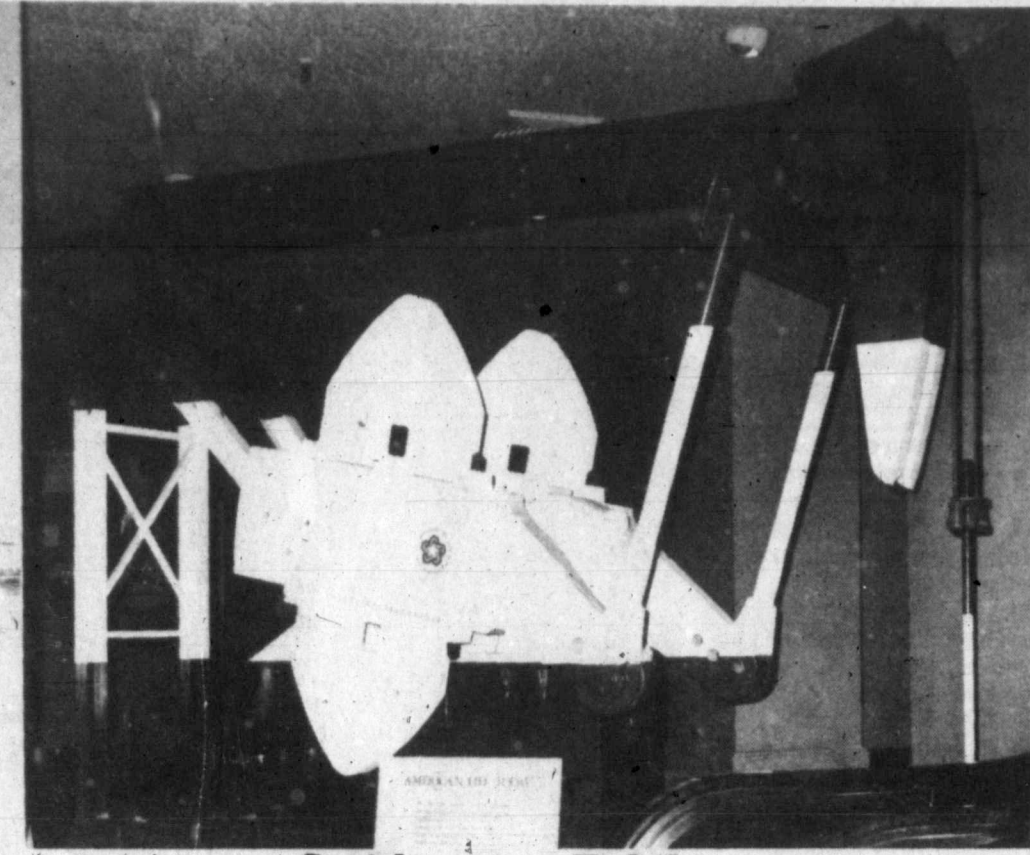

"We would have hoped these decisions would have been reached by reasonable, objective analysis with the goal of the benefit of society instead," McKetta said.

"How did the most powerful country in the world get boxed into this situation?" he asked. "It took a lot of arranging. Our enemies couldn't have done this good a job on us."

He said U.S. energy problems resulted from:

- Few new gas field discoveries;
- Delayed use of the world's largest coal supply;
- Delayed use of nuclear power;
- Delayed drilling for petroleum on the continental shelf;
- Support of protest groups;
- Delayed availability of Alaskan oil;
- Low gasoline prices;
- Waste such as big cars, auto air conditioning, disposable containers.

Smithsonian Exhibit

To illustrate America's ever-increasing need for petroleum energy, a Mark II, beam type, oilfield pumping machine was included in the Smithsonian Institution's Bicentennial Exhibit, "Our Changing Land." The unit was manufactured by Lufkin Industries Inc. in Lufkin, and was contributed to the Smithsonian by the Light Oil Unit. The Mark II pump has been in field service approximately 14 years and produced nearly five million barrels of fluid from the Wall Creek Formation in Central, Wyo.

Sex Problems Still Secret in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI) — Sex problems in the Soviet Union are still veiled in hypocrisy and secrecy and should be brought into the open for Russian youth, a professor wrote in a newspaper for Moscow teenagers.

"Vitaly important problems of sex are still covered today by the veil of pedagogical hypocrisy and secrecy," Prof. Yuri Tkachevsky said in the Moskovsky Komsomolets. "To ignore the specific task of sexual education is to cause damage not only to individuals but to society, too."

Tkachevsky welcomed the translation into Russian of a foreign book, "Youth and Love," and said, "It is high time similar books appeared by Soviet authors."

At present, only work in the field of sexual education was carried out by such lofty institutions as the Academy of Pedagogical Sciences of the USSR, he said.

He said "it is necessary constantly to fight the prejudices of the old morality, opposing it with the new social morality based on equality of rights and respect in sex relations, responsibility and love."

There are no sex education courses in Soviet schools.

Two Versions of State Of Union Speeches Aired

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI TV Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two versions of the State of Union will go on the air this month, one as Gerald Ford sees it and the other as Edmund Muskie rebuts it.

In this situation, the state of television scheduling suffers.

President Ford will deliver his State of the Union message to Congress, and not incidentally, the television audience, Monday, Jan. 19 at 9 p.m., Eastern time. That bit of prime time pre-emption ended up with TV programmers frantically juggling their schedules.

Add the opposition — the State of the Union as viewed by the Democratic party and expressed by Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine Wednesday, Jan. 21, also at 9 p.m. — and television begins to feel the pressures of a presidential election year.

The State of the Union address presented the biggest scheduling headache for ABC and its television film, "The Macahans."

"The Macahans" was taken from the movie, "How The West Was Won," and stars James Arness, Eva Marie Saint and Richard Kiley in a saga about a Virginia family that moves West just before the Civil War.

It's a two-hour pilot for a series that ABC brass is hot on for next fall and would mark the return of the western to network television, which hasn't had a good horse opera since Arness and "Gunsmoke" rode into the sunset on CBS.

ABC decided to stick with its plans and show the pilot starting at 8:30 p.m., Eastern time, on Jan. 19. The network will interrupt for Ford's address and the commentary to follow, then "The Macahans" will resume to its conclusion. The network will switch its 11:30 p.m. Clark Gable special to another night if lack of time makes it necessary.

CBS solved its scheduling problems by just cancelling "All in the Family" and "Maude" and continuing on schedule.

NBC, which otherwise would have shown a movie, will use the evening for Ford, followed by a Barbara Walters special on "Children of Divorce."

The Muskie answer to Ford will be broadcast on all three networks two days after Ford's speech. ABC will broadcast Muskie plus commentary at 9 p.m., Eastern time, then pick up its schedule where it left off with "Baretta" and "Starsky and Hutch," finishing up late that night.

CBS also will air Muskie at 9 p.m., moving "Cannon" up to 10 and dumping "The Blue Knight" for the evening.

NBC will pick up Muskie, also. No definite decision has been made about when Muskie will be broadcast, but it's almost certain to be at 9, with any fancy rescheduling still to be announced.

Phone Company Often Pays on Managers Homes

Editors: This is the third in a series of five stories on Southwestern Bell. Today's article details the telephone company's position on numerous statements regarding its business methods.

By STEVEN R. REED
DALLAS (UPI) — Southwestern Bell will pay — in addition to travel and moving expenses — the down payments on new homes for transferred management personnel including lower echelon public relations employees, according to telephone company sources.

The practice means Bell's millions of residential customers, paying for telephone service available only from Bell, subsidize the housing of company officials far beyond salary compensation.

Additionally, Bell employees receive discounts on their residential telephone service, further burdening customers not employed by Bell.

When asked about these and dozens of other similar business practices, J.A. Pattillo, Bell's manager for new services in Dallas, said he would "have to back out of our commitment" to answer the questions and "cooperate in every way" as had been promised previously.

"We're thoroughly in favor of (the) idea of separating fact from fiction (regarding Bell) as we have nothing to hide," Pattillo said in October. "We provide very good telephone service at very reasonable rates and this is the sole reason we are in business."

But last month, when asked specifically to respond to questions about Bell policy, customer complaints and legislative and competitors' allegations, Pattillo said he had "misunderstood" the initial request.

"(It) list of inquiries was more specific than I had thought," he said. "I tendered the list to people upstairs, mainly attorneys, and they came back at me with a 'no way.' They looked over the list specifically."

The statements and questions to which Bell was offered the opportunity to respond in any manner included:

- Southwestern Bell's contention it had been "caught in an inflationary spiral" despite net profit of $314 million for 1974.
- A request for Bell customer deposit requirements and details of any factors which influence varying deposits of up to $150 required from young, unmarried, residential customers.
- An explanation of why Western Electric, a Bell subsidiary producing equipment for Bell, advertises on television.
- How does Bell dispose of relatively new residential equipment disconnected at customer request? Is it sold, destroyed or warehoused?
- Southwestern Bell's regional construction program exceeded $4.4 billion from 1970-74. What is the outlook for tapering off the expansion?

Pattillo said a great many questions asked the phone company could not be answered because they were in litigation such as the $29 million libel and slander suit filed against Bell by an ousted company executive and the family of Bell's former top Texas officer, who committed suicide.

When pressed, however, Pattillo said, "Obviously there are a number that could be answered." He referred to certain inquiries as matters of public record. Nevertheless, despite another promise to respond to every topic not in litigation, no answers were forthcoming from Bell.

The problems encountered in obtaining statements of Bell policy on matters the telephone company admits in some cases are public record are symptomatic of Bell's image problems since the death of former Bell Texas Vice President T.O. Gravitt whose suicide note said, "Watergate is a goat compared to the Bell system."

The questions submitted by UPI to Bell in many cases were similar to inquiries made of the monopoly by Texas Senate subcommittee staff investigators. Bell at various times has been asked to explain:

- How it can justify settling a San Antonio antitrust suit out of court by paying the plaintiff $325,000 then announcing the full cost of the settlement would be passed to Bell's Texas customers as business expense.
- How the telephone company can consistently argue for local rate increases to city councils around the state while using accounting methods that consider as business expenses such items as hunting leases for Bell executives and the press, political contributions, country club membership fees, antitrust payoffs and home down payments for transferred public relations staff members.
- Doubling the cost of coin telephone service and charges for use of the directory assistance service.
- Alleged use of wiretaps in gaining information for defense of lawsuits.
- Tapping the telephones of employees for disciplinary purposes.
- Using corporate funds to pay for a babysitter for the grandchildren of a former Bell president.
- Dropping a $20,000 telephone bill owed by a former state official by paying the ex-officerholder for legal work he never performed.
- Employing relatives of city council members or doing business with the council members.
- Shredding documents related to the $29 million Gravitt slander suit.

Bell declined to respond to each of the specific topics.

The public has been slow to react to allegations of Bell improprieties for a number of reasons including uncoordinated news coverage. The arguments Bell was espousing to city council members in one corner of Texas were thought to be of little interest elsewhere. But in fact Bell, city by city, was arguing for higher rates across the state, and was doing so in advance of the regulation to which it will be subjected by the new Public Utilities Commission next September.

Additionally, the public showed disinterest at the complex Bell allegations partially because so many customers tend to evaluate the telephone company on the basis of home telephone service.

After all, for less than 30 cents a day Bell customers still can dial an unlimited number of local calls on equipment which almost always works.

Law Course Offered

Two Law Enforcement Science courses, LES 223, Police and Community Relations, and LES 243, Traffic Law will be offered beginning Jan. 19 in Pampa by Frank Phillips College.

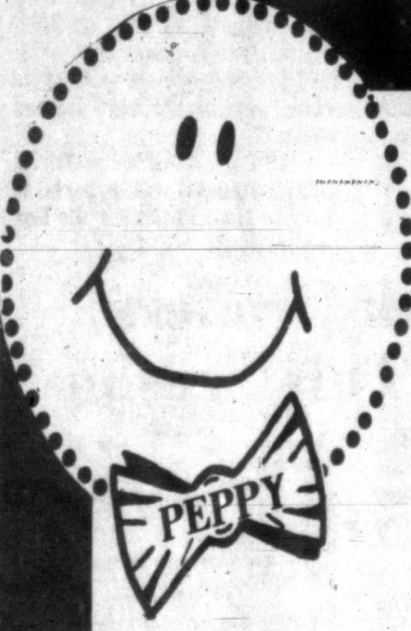

Registration will be 7-8 p.m. Jan. 12, at Pampa City Hall, Dan Minor, FPC admissions officer, will be in charge of registration.

Police and community relations is a study of the role of the individual officer in achieving and maintaining positive public response. The course emphasizes inter-group relations and public information.

Traffic law covers state vehicle requirements and related laws. It consists of three hours of lecture each week and includes court room procedures related to alleged violations.

Interested persons may contact John Ryzman of the Pampa Police Department for further information.

Five years ago Fred Hughes quit his job with Cabot Corp. and went into business for himself.

For two years, the fledgling business — Hughes Automotive Service — was located on West Foster Street. Hughes moved the business to the present location at 115 N. Ward three years ago.

The shop is equipped to handle general mechanical repairs on most makes and models of cars. They do not do body work.

Hughes, a 20-year resident of Pampa, started Hughes Automotive on his own and still does all mechanical work himself. Mrs. Hughes helps her husband in making the business a family venture. She works as secretary, receptionist and bookkeeper for the growing business.

Hughes Automotive Service has built up a trade of regular customers, keeping work at a consistently heavy level all year. But the busiest months are in the spring and summer when Pampa residents have their cars serviced for vacations by Fred Hughes.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JAN. 10
Your birthday today: Brings you a long series of opportunities for realizing your potential. Results depend upon the way you let go of the past and take on what is before you. It's an excellent year to try to manage relationships. Today's natives prefer action to theory, are determined to get ahead in the world on their own terms.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You're largely on your own and find that things cost more than you'd hoped. Be cautious in dealing with the unfamiliar. Leave repairs to the experts.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Don't be surprised when everyone balks or adopts courses other than what you expected. Try to go along without getting angry or frustrated. Use mechanical or electrical equipment with care.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Acquaintances complicate your activities. Refuse to meet in public places. You've got enough to do in trying to cheer up disappointed relatives.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Square your shoulders, take a deep breath and go ahead with what you're committed to do. Others are as sensitive as you are. Avoid making left-handed compliments.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: It's not your fault that many people seem erratic. Disappear from the scene and get some extra rest. Your mood changes this evening.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Don't make demands on friends. What you hear from distant places is erroneous or incomplete. Postpone nonessential travel while you get your own house in order.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Even normal, healthy behavior is misunderstood if you're flippant or overly energetic in expressing yourself. Don't get excited over a rumor.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Refrain from making sarca-tic remarks; they only serve to impair a good relationship. An old complaint reappears, but there's no new answer.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It's strictly a do-it-yourself day. You can't coax or pay anyone to take on your job and have it turn out right. If it's something new, put it off to another time.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Go easy: You're oversimplifying the issues and misinterpreting the problems. Stick to what you know for sure and can do well. Accept those you love for what they are.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Diversity of opinion characterizes the day's encounter and bruises your pride a bit. You can stay ahead of the game by watching others and withholding comment.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: If you must travel, start early and proceed with care. Give serious thought to your career and your work habits. Don't expect much progress in family affairs or romance.

Auto Firms Keep Some Coverage Secret

Auto Firms Keep Some Warranty Coverage Secret
By ANN COOPER
Pampa News

WASHINGTON — Auto manufacturers, who like to keep their operations cloaked in secrecy, have been keeping a very valuable secret from consumers, according to the consumer advocate group Center for Auto Safety.

The secret is that sometimes manufacturers will pick up the tab for repairs on an auto even though the car's warranty has run out. Such secret warranty extensions — which aren't publicized by the automakers — are given to "maintain customer good will," says one manufacturer's spokesman.

What they also do is get the automakers out of the embarrassing, costly situation of publicly announcing a recall for repair. Recalls — required for safety defects — can cost millions of dollars, since all owners of the model in question must be notified that they can take their cars in for repairs at the manufacturer's expense.

But if safety isn't involved, the manufacturer may circumvent embarrassment and cost by quietly paying the repair bill on an out-of-warranty car only after a consumer brings it in with a defect complaint.

For instance, the Ford Motor Co. has had trouble with body rust on cars used in cold areas where salt is put on icy streets. The company has paid all or part of the repair bills on some 60,000 rusting Fords no longer covered by warranty.

But what about the Ford owners who aren't aware that their out-of-warranty, rusting cars could be repaired at manufacturers' expense? Consumer activists argue that the secret extension of the warranties is unfair because not all owners are aware they exist, and some may have repair work done at their own expense.

Consumer groups hope the federal government will correct what they say is an inequitable situation. In the meantime, they recommend car owners who face costly repairs should check with local consumer groups or write the Federal Trade Commission in Washington to see if a secret warranty extension may exist that would cover their problem.

The state of Vermont isn't happy with the not-so-sweet implications in a television commercial involving 100 per cent Vermont maple syrup and a product called Golden Griddle Syrup.

The ad touting Golden Griddle — a blend of dextrose, corn, sugar and maple syrups and artificial flavoring — features a number of Vermont residents saying they prefer Golden Griddle to 100 per cent Vermont maple syrup. The state's attorney general has filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission alleging that the commercial is false, misleading, and has damaged the reputation of Vermont's pure maple syrup.

Actually, a survey of 223 people conducted by a marketing research firm, showed only 58 per cent of those questioned preferred Golden Griddle — which contains about three per cent maple syrup. The state's attorney general says this should be reflected in the commercial.

In addition, he said, the commercial states that "a blend of four good syrups gives it extra good taste." He contends the statement is false, since "There is essentially no flavor in the sugar syrup, dextrose and corn syrup. They're just sweet. Most of the taste comes from artificial flavor. But the connotation is that it's natural flavor."

Should he succeed, where will he go?

The country's two largest nonprofit groups offering health insurance policies for the elderly provide less protection than other available policies, according to Consumer Reports magazine.

The magazine studied 16 policies designed to fill gaps in Medicare coverage and found that policies offered by the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association offered the least protection. The two groups have 8.7 million members.

Among the policies' serious drawbacks, according to the magazine, are that most pay a set fee rather than a percentage of hospital and medical expenses, and they fail to offer an extension of basic coverage at a modest additional cost, meaning a person must buy different policies to cover different risks.

Some "Medigap" policies pay all or a percentage of charges unmet by Medicare so the benefits aren't subject to erosion by inflation. Such policies offer broader coverage options without the need to buy a separate policy, according to the magazine.

OZARKS DAM
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Construction on nearby Bagnell Dam, which forms the Lake of the Ozarks, started on Aug. 6, 1929, and the Osage Power Plant began operation just over two years later, in October of 1931.

Man To Fall in Astrodome

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hollywood stunt man Dar Robinson, the indestructible entertainer who will fall into a plastic bag from the roof of the Astrodome, is concerned.

"I'm over my head," he said, a sliver of a smile showing on a face made to look tired by 22-hour work days in preparation for the record-attempting fall Friday night during intermission at a destruction derby inside the giant arena.

"All of my equipment (to break the fall) is designed on a geometric scale," said Robinson. "And the scale has changed so radically with this jump our original figures didn't even begin to cope with the force of my fall."

"Working as long and hard as we have, we now have my chances of survival up to 60 per cent. Just before the fall we hope to have it 70 per cent. Then I can feel good about it."

A gondola, which hangs under the point of the Astrodome roof, is 200 feet above the dirt floor.

"I'll fall from a platform suspended eight feet below that," said Robinson. "I'll be on the platform so that the people can see me start to leave. Now, since I'm going to be in the air no more than four seconds, if the people don't see me leave they may miss the entire fall."

Robinson's dramatic drop terminates on the 20x20 foot surface of a flesh-colored airbag 16 feet thick. The amount of air in the bag is crucial — too much and it's like hitting a sidewalk, too little and there's no cushion, just the right amount of air vents or the bag explodes on impact.

The 192-foot height represents about 19 stories. The previous record of 126 feet was set by Robinson, 28, who has "fallen off things, been in car crashes, been hit by things and set on fire."

"I set the record in the movie, 'Smile, Jenny, You're Dead,' which was the pilot show for 'Harry O.' That was about 12 feet people who can help him to calculate the risks. Trial jumps are made by a lifelike dummy named George, who is strapped with all kinds of measuring instruments.

"George, bless his soul, has died just about every night he has jumped in practice. It's hard to tell exactly what force kills a person, because George has been busting all the meters. We do know that about 45 Gs will knock a person out. We think we can get it under that for Friday night."

Should he succeed, where will he go?

"Papillon? That was the one where I really risked my life. The area of the ocean where I had to fall was a 10 foot by 10 foot square. I had a frogman in the water waiting to rescue me, and I missed completely. "Forty-five minutes after the jump, the guy runs out of air, comes up and asks when am I going into the water." Robinson, who left his wife and two children in Los Angeles to perform this jump, said there

Imported Autos Grab Sales

DETROIT (UPI) — Imported autos grabbed a record 18.3 per cent share of a depressed 1975 U.S. auto market that saw the "Big Four" American companies slip to their lowest point for a nonstrike year since 1962.

Together, the domestic and foreign automakers reported Wednesday that 8.6 million cars were bought last year in the United States.

That was off 2 1/2 per cent from sluggish 1974 levels and nearly 25 per cent behind the record 11.4 million cars sold in 1973 before the twin effects of an energy crisis and a recession sent the industry into a two-year tailspin.

Imports accounted for 1.6 million sales, 12 per cent above last year and the third highest year in history. Domestic automakers sold 7,060,120 cars, 5 per cent below 1974 and 27 per cent behind record 1973.

Among the imports, perennial leader Volkswagen slipped to second behind the Japanese Toyota. Another Japanese model, Datsun, VW sales slipped 20 per cent from 1974 and were the lowest since 1962 in giving up the import lead it held for more than 20 years.
