Ford Proposes Permanent Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has called on an election-year Congress to both raise and cut taxes, curtail government and forego the attempt to seek miracle cures for lingering economic troubles.

In a State of the Union address that can serve as his platform in Republican primary battles against Ronald Reagan, Ford said the national state after 17 months of his stewardship was "in many ways a lot better — but still not good enough."

He advocated a new realism whose theme was that government must do less in the hope that citizens then can do more for themselves.

He proposed expanding and making permanent the current income tax cut by increasing the $750 personal exemption to $875 next year and making other liberalizations, but he also asked for heavier payroll taxes to meet a worrisome Social Security deficit.

He proposed an increase in Medicare coverage for the elderly, but no national health insurance, more judges, jails and prosecutors to fight crime, but no new gun control measures, housing subsidies for 400,000 tenants and 100,000 home buyers, and the creation of a plan to give tax benefits to low and middle-income families who invest in securities.

He also proposed consolidating $10 billion in health programs, tax incentives for business firms which increase jobs, enactment of his 1975 energy program including removal of price controls on natural gas, easing taxes on inherited farms, an increase in defense spending, and a free hand to help our friends, such as in Angola.

In reaction, Republican Sen. Barry M. Goldwater called Ford courageous for advocating restraint, House Speaker Carl Albert said the speech lacked vision, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie will give the formal Democratic reply on television at 9 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Striking his theme, Ford said, "We tried to be a policeman abroad and an indulgent parent here at home. We must be more honest with the American people, promising them no more than we can deliver and delivering all that we promise."

He said he believed in a job for everyone who wants to work, but he specifically rejected a full employment bill which has been endorsed by most of the 11 declared Democratic presidential candidates to provide a government job for every worker who cannot find private employment. He said private business is where to look for "real" rewarding permanent jobs.

Ford spoke in the House chamber for 47 minutes, before Congress (though many members were absent, their seats filled by congressional aides), the cabinet, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps and the television cameras. His text, with numerous handwritten changes, was typed in big type, four lines to a page. Applause was perfunctory.

Here is a summary of Ford's major proposals:

TAXES — Ford said the existing tax cut, carried over for the first six months of this year from 1975, would save Americans $18 billion. He proposed extending and making permanent the cut to add $10 billion to the saving, giving an additional $27 a year saving to a family of four earning $15,000 a year. The personal exemption would rise to $875 this year and to $1,000 in 1977. The corporate tax rate would be reduced $3.2 billion. Ford implied he wanted spending cuts to match the tax cuts. Congress is certain to go along with the tax cut idea, but probably will change details of how cuts are to be made.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Ford proposed increasing the current tax of 5.85 per cent of the first $15,300 of income to 6.15 per cent of a maximum of $16,500. The tax is paid by both employers and employees. The maximum paid would go from this year's $895.06 to $1,014.75 in 1977. House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman has endorsed an increase in the tax.

HEALTH — Persons over age 65 would have to pay no more than $500 for hospital care and $250 for physician services under an extension of Medicare to cover catastrophic illnesses. Medicare fees would rise to pay for the additional coverage. The plan will be called "adequate" by Democrats proposing national health insurance, which is unlikely to pass this year. Ford also proposed consolidating Medicaid for the poor and 15 other health programs into one $10 billion block grant program to states.

CRIME — Ford called for a 9 per cent increase in the number of federal prosecutors, 31 additional federal judgeships, construction of four new federal correctional institutions and mandatory imprisonment of persons convicted of carrying a handgun while committing a federal crime.

HOUSING — Starting Oct. 1, Ford proposes to reactivate old housing programs to provide rental subsidies for 400,000 poor families, spurring the construction or rehabilitation of 125,000 units, and home mortgage subsidies for buyers of 100,000 new or rehabilitated houses. Democrats will welcome this economic stimulant.

JOBS — Ford proposed permitting very rapid depreciation for firms which construct new plants, expand or purchase equipment in areas where unemployment exceeds 7 per cent.

STOCKS — Ford would encourage low and middle-income families to buy common stocks by deferring taxes on funds invested and left in stocks or mutual funds for seven years. Earnings invested in stocks would not be taxed until the stocks were sold and the money withdrawn.

FARMS — Ford proposed stretching out over 20 years the payment of federal estate taxes on inherited farms so young farmers will not have to sell property to raise money to pay taxes. This idea drew much applause.

REVENUE SHARING — Ford reiterated his proposal to extend this program so as to send $40 billion to 38,000 state and local governments by September, 1982. Both parties are divided on the merits of revenue sharing, but some sort of extension appears certain under pressure from mayors whose budgets have become dependent on the money.

Jury Grants Probations

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A 31st District Court jury granted two teenagers a 10-year probation term Monday after they pleaded guilty to holding a 70-year-old Alameda man at gunpoint on Sept. 11.

Jerry Lee Welker, 19, of Florida and Michael Eugene Johnson, 17, of Arkansas pleaded guilty to charges of attempted armed robbery in the case.

The jury deliberated about 10 minutes before returning a guilty verdict — which is necessary under state law even though defendants pleaded guilty.

It took about 90 minutes to reach a verdict on the punishment stage of the trial.

Welker and Johnson both told the jury that they had no plans to hurt anyone.

They were represented by Robert McPherson of Pampa who was court-appointed by Judge Grainger McIlhenny, who presided over the trial.

McPherson told jurors that one of the basic principles which has kept this country in existence for the past 200 years is "fair and impartial trials."

The two were still in Gray County Jail this morning because warrants for their arrest on armed robbery charges are still outstanding in Van Wert, Ohio, and in Fort Wayne, Ind. according to records in the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

The two were charged with holding J.A. Hill, 70, of Alameda at gunpoint on Sept. 11. They allegedly used a sawed off shotgun.

Hill commented after the trial that he is "lucky to be here."

He said he had operated the Phillips 66 station at Alameda for 23 years and had helped many who had come in with no money.

Following the jury's guilty verdict, Welker took the witness stand and told jurors that he and Johnson were en route to California when they stopped at the station.

He said they were broke, hungry and needed cigarettes, but had no intentions of shooting anyone.

According to Hill's testimony, they said they wanted $3 in gasoline. They then entered the building, one of them asked for sandwiches, and Hill was ordered to turn over the money.

Guy Hardin, district attorney, said Hill outtalked the two.

They were in the Gray County jail under a $25,000 bond each. They were arrested 15 minutes after the alleged holdup near Groom.

"Do you feel like you learned a lesson from this?" inquired McPherson. Both men said they would never attempt anything like that again.

"You'd promise this jury anything for probation?" asked Hardin.

"I wasn't planning on killing nobody," replied Welker.

"What did you go in with a loaded gun for?" asked Hardin.

Welker said the gun cost $41.

"And that $41 you could have bought food with," Hardin said.

The two testified that they did not know who the car they were in belonged to.

They said they had been driving for 24 hours and had run out of money.

"Did you try to get a job and go to work?" Hardin asked Welker again, said he was going to California to see a cousin.

One of the two said they had "hot wired" the car.

McPherson said the two had been in jail over four months.

"And you can indeed tell the jury you have learned a lesson!" McPherson said.

"Had he (Hill) crossed you, you would have blown his head off," Hardin said.

Buster Collins, jailer, testified that the two had caused no trouble in the jail.

However, Hardin asked Collins about lengthy jail stay resulting in "jailhouse religion."

"That's my opinion," replied Collins. "And I think that's about right."

In his final arguments Hardin asked jurors not to grant probation.

He said when the two left Indiana two or three weeks prior to the alleged offense, they intended to commence a life of crime. "I daresay Mr. Hill would have given them what needed — even gasoline," Hardin said if they had requested help.

In closing, McPherson quoted Cal Farley, "No boy is all bad."

Hardin responded with, "We're not dealing with little angels."

Alanreed Pair Offer Testimony

"I'm lucky to be here." J.A. Hill, 70, of Alameda said Monday during the trial of two teenagers who pleaded guilty to attempted armed robbery charges in regard to holding Hill at gunpoint on Sept. 11.

Hill operates the Phillips 66 station at Alameda. "I've been there 23 years," he said, adding that he had never worried about being held up.

Hill, according to Guy Hardin, district attorney, outtalked Jerry Lee Welker, 19, of Florida and Michael Eugene Johnson, 17, of Arkansas.

The teenagers had a sawed off shotgun which was introduced as evidence before the jury.

The jury assessed punishment at 10 years probation.

Mrs. Hill, who accompanied her husband to the trial, said "I've been looking for this very thing."

She said she was resting in the bedroom when she heard a shot.

After Hill outtalked the two who got $3 in gasoline, asked for sandwiches and then ordered him to the other room and held him at gunpoint.

When they left, Hill shot at the departing car which the teenagers said they had "hot wired" in Missouri. They said they did know the owner of the automobile.

"When I heard that shot I didn't know but what I'd find him dead," Mrs. Hill said.

She works a 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at the McLean hospital, and rests each night before going on duty.

Hill said he had always told his wife to be careful if anything like that ever happened.

"It's one of those things, if you get killed you get killed," he said.

Hill came to Alameda at the age of nine months. He will be 71 years old in March. His parents planted and cultivated one of the first "golden delicious" apple orchards in Gray County. It was located near McClellan Creek on land now owned by the Johnson Ranch, he said.

Prior to the service station business, Hill said he farmed and ran cattle.

The Hills said they have helped many needy persons who have traveled that road during the past 23 years.

"If they had only asked for help I would have helped them," Hill said of the teenagers.

Describing the events of Sept. 11, Mrs. Hill said:

"I was scared to death. I knew something had happened."

However, when she went into the station, Hill was coming in with his pistol she added.

Law enforcement officers were notified and Welker and Johnson were arrested 15 minutes later in a roadblock near Groom.

The Hills have two children, Jack Hill, a deputy sheriff in Lubbock, and Anna Crow of Amarillo.

"We're going to call them tonight after the verdict is in," Mrs. Hill said.

Carter Wins Iowa

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International

Jimmy Carter, who won a solid victory in Iowa Democratic precinct caucuses Monday night, said today he was gratified because it may influence voters in other states to back his bid for the presidency.

Carter, a former Georgia governor, indicated his performance in the first test of candidate strength for the 1976 presidential primaries was even better than he had hoped.

"To come in two to one ahead of the next nearest candidate was a very gratifying victory," Carter said.

Incomplete results early today showed Carter with about a third of the delegate support, with another third of the caucus participants uncommitted.

Carter was followed by Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, a latecomer in the crowded race, with 13.3 per cent. Former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma was third with 10.1 per cent, followed by Arizona Rep. Morris Udall with 5.9 per cent and R. Sargent Shriver with 3.4 per cent.

President Ford edged out challenger Ronald Reagan in a straw poll of the state's Republican caucuses.

"I think (the Iowa results) will have a good beneficial effect on the future elections," Carter said. "A lot of people who haven't made up their minds among several Democratic candidates will tend to go with the ones who have demonstrated the ability to win."

Carter arrived in Manchester, N.H., today to campaign in the nation's first primary election.

Stockholders Sell Hotel

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Stockholders in Pampa's community-owned hotel, the Coronado Inn, today voted to sell it to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones of Clinton, Okla., for $950,000.

The sale, which had already been approved by both the executive board and the general board of directors, is scheduled to be closed by March 1 and distribution of the proceeds to all shareholders is expected to be completed before the end of the year.

Motion to adopt the resolution authorizing the sale was made by Kirk Duncan of Pampa and seconded by Walter Rogers of Washington, D.C., former Pampa and an ex-congressman from the Texas Panhandle.

In the final count of votes in person and by proxies, it was announced that 6,650 shares out of 8,001 outstanding shares of stock were represented in the voting in favor of the sale.

Approximately 100 persons, practically all of them shareholders, were at the special meeting this morning in the hotel's Starlight Room this morning.

A voice vote among stockholders at the meeting brought a unanimous response in favor of the proposal. The 6,650 total vote was more than the required two-thirds of the outstanding shares to approve the sale.

George Scott, president of the Community Hotel Company of Pampa which has operated the hotel since it opened in January of 1960, presided at today's stockholders meeting.

Don Lane, the company's legal counsel, gave a resume of the contract agreement for sale of the hotel.

Following a few questions from the audience the vote was called for and announcement was made of the total in favor of the sale.

George Scott was given a vote of appreciation for his dedicated service to the company.

E. O. Wedgeworth, Chamber of Commerce manager and a member of the hotel executive board, paid tribute to the contributions of the late M.K. Brown, Mrs. Inez Carter and William Jerald Smith to the hotel in its beginning. Wedgeworth also applauded the Cabot Corp. as one of the major contributors.

Stockholders were told today it is estimated they will receive from the sale 80 to 90 per cent of their original investment.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Jones were present at the meeting and told the audience the Pampa Club, now under lease, would continue its operation without any change in plans.

I was staying there (in Bynum's apartment) over the weekend," he said. "I didn't even know about the accident, all I knew was he came in and said his eyes had been sprayed with mace."

Cates said that he and some friends were playing Rusk with Milton Bradley game, in the apartment when Bynum came in after having been sprayed with the mace.

"He hadn't been playing," Cates said of Bynum.

He said that on Friday night, he had been playing Rusk with some friends in Bynum's apartment and Bynum was in and out.

But "I wasn't aware anything was wrong," Cates said.

IRS Help Not Binding

In recent years, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has used a bundle of your money to mount a propaganda campaign designed to lure taxpayers into using its services. Although never stated in such plain terms, the message conveyed has been implicit. Why pay a private enterprise tax expert to make out your income tax returns when your friendly IRS stands ready and competent to render free advice?

Well, maybe so, but there is a distinct possibility that relying on such "free" advice could be dangerous to your financial health, not to mention landing you in the pokey.

In fact, according to an item in the Wall Street Journal, such advice can't be relied upon. Period! That being a Tax Court ruling, not the Journal's analysis. Here are the specifics.

A California man, incurring a $13,000 business loss, went to the IRS for advice on claiming a loss-carryback adjustment. He did just as the IRS advised, though thinking at the time that the IRS aide seemed almost as confused as he was.

Later, when the taxpayer submitted his return, the IRS disregarded the advice given by one of its own "experts" and reduced the loss-carryback deduction claimed. The taxpayer, protesting that he had followed IRS advice, took the case to the Tax Court.

The Tax Court, in so many words, told the taxpayer that he had accepted IRS advice at his peril. In its ruling the Court found it "commendable" that the taxpayer had sought IRS help, but that it's a "well-settled" fact that erroneous IRS advice isn't binding.

Handy information to know, don't you think?

Just how long would a private-enterprise tax consultant, refusing to stand behind his own advice, stay in business once the word got around that he was a welsker?

'Your Very Good Health'

MADSEN PIRIE
R.C. Holmes Fellow
Hillsdale (Mich.) College

I found out recently why Englishmen wish each other "Your very good health" when they raise their glasses to toast each other in pubs. It is because everyone in England knows what happens to them if they are NOT in very good health. They have what is laughingly called a "National Health Service," in which no one pays for health directly. Instead they pay in taxation, while the government provides the service and pays for the doctors and the hospitals.

Introduced in 1948 as a brave leap towards social equality, the British National Health Service has proved to be the biggest example of mass suicide since the Gadarene swine leaped to their deaths possessed by devils. There is an attempt being made by ideologically motivated politicians to foist a similar system on America, to replace the present system of private health care.

Our own leap towards the cliff has been delayed by two factors. Firstly, the economic position had made it less likely that such an expensive and wasteful system could be introduced; and secondly, members of the Congressional Health Committee had a sudden fit of sanity early last summer, and went unannounced to Britain to look at the health service there. What they saw made a lasting impression.

Instead of going on the red-carpet tour of distinguished American senators, and being shown such parts of the health service as are fit for public gaze, they visited doctors and hospitals at random. The result was that they saw it as it really is, instead of seeing the face which officialdom there wishes to present. They saw crowds packed every morning into tiny doctors' waiting rooms, with the average time spent with the doctor being two minutes per patient. They saw hospitals with beds crowded into packed wards and overflowing into corridors. They saw a health service which is deserted by one-third of all British doctors who qualify each year, and which is kept going only by a similar influx of qualified doctors from the poorer countries.

They found that the average waiting time for elective surgery has increased from fourteen months to over two years - and elective surgery in Britain means anything not essential to the immediate saving of life, it means eye operations, haemorrhoids, and varicose veins. They found, most of all, a health system ridden with strikes and industrial-type disputes as doctors and nurses fight for a fair reward under a system which only pays them what the economic status of the country can afford.

The most recent strike, still not settled, has been caused by the government's decision to close all private beds in National Health Service hospitals. Since a large proportion of doctors' income comes from those who are prepared to pay TWICE OVER to get reasonable treatment, the doctors went on strike last November, and have been treating only emergency cases. Now the government has announced that private treatment will continue to be available for rich foreigners, but not for the poor serfs who make up the population. The British health minister actually went to the Middle East earlier this month to reassure the oil sheiks on that point!

The most horrifying aspect of the whole saga is that there are still people here in America determined to perpetrate the same sorry mess on our health care. If you meet any of them, please do me a small favor. Tell them about the British health service. Tell them what happens when people cease to pay for something directly, but pay through government instead. Tell them about the law of supply and demand. Tell them that government is more remote, more expensive and less efficient. And please wish them very good health.

He surfaced the other day on the op-ed page of the New York "Times," whose readers were told only that he "is senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace." In his article, he was warbling a seductive little song about how attractive and reasonable the Japanese Communists are. According to Emmerson, they "announce their objective to be power through parliamentary means, eschew violence, vow their devotion to human rights, and pledge that opposition parties could freely function in a government that they would lead. They have broken with Moscow, broken with Peking, and accused both of these fraternal giants of plotting hegemony." Emmerson then sums up the Japanese Communist party approvingly as "a lively political force with a future" - which Americans are implicitly counseled not to resist.

Not one "Times" reader in ten thousand will know or remember that, from the Chinese Communist vastness of Yenan as early as 1944, while World War II was still thundering to its close, U.S. Foreign Service officer John K. Emmerson was urging his superiors to employ a group of Japanese Communists to "reestablish order" in post-war Japan.

EMERSON: Still Backings Japanese Reds

By WILLIAM RUSHER

John K. Emmerson is back - which is worse news for advocates of a sane American foreign policy than may first appear. For Emmerson is perhaps the leading American apologist for the Japanese Communist party.

By concentrating his enthusiasm on the Japanese wing of the Communist movement, Emmerson missed the opportunity for partial rehabilitation that Mao Tse-tung's ultimate triumph on the Chinese mainland afforded Mao's admirers in the U.S. Foreign Service. That whole crew - John Stewart Service, Oliver Edmund Clubb, John Paton Davies, et al. - was advocating U.S. support for Mao and the Chinese Communist party long before they won the civil war. After that disaster, the American people began looking around for the "experts" who had assured us that the Chinese Communists were merely "agrarian reformers," and Messrs. Service, Clubb, Davies, etc. fell on their faces. Since Mao's break with the Soviet Union, however, successive attempts to rehabilitate them have taken place, all based on the argument that they were merely "prematurely right" about the forthcoming victory of Chinese communism - and all premised

'Quality of life' losing pizzazz

If you have the nagging feeling that that elusive thing called the "quality of life" isn't what it used to be, that the bad experiences in life are outnumbering the good ones, you may be right.

A Cleveland, Ohio, outfit called Predicasts, Inc., which provides all kinds of information for businessmen, has come up with a new social index which lends statistical support to the idea.

The index ranges eight "pleasant" events on one side: Getting married, becoming a parent, being hired for a job, getting a new car, getting a new house, traveling abroad, visiting a national park and graduating from high school or college.

Counterpoising these are eight "unpleasant" events: Getting divorced, dying, being laid off, suffering a motor vehicle injury, being admitted to a hospital, becoming a victim of violent crime, becoming a property crime victim and going on welfare.

The index discloses that between 1960 and 1974, the chance of a pleasant event happening increased from 40 to 57 per cent, while the chance of an unpleasant event increased from 24 to 33 per cent. However, the ratio of good events to bad events rose to a high of 1.85 in 1966-68, then dropped to 1.71 by 1972-74, and can be interpreted as a decline in the quality of life.

The slightly tongue-in-cheek index is naturally subject to value judgments, says Predicasts. One recently divorced fellow, for instance, commented that he felt getting married belonged in the "unpleasant" category. Also, the 16 different events were arbitrarily selected and are not all of equal importance.

About the only valid conclusion that can be drawn from the index is that the pace of life has accelerated markedly since the early 1960s, with the occurrence of something significant (either pleasant or unpleasant) increasing from 64 per cent to more than 90 per cent by 1972-74.

Interestingly, of all 16 events, only one registered a decrease. Because of the declining birth rate, the chance of becoming a parent fell by 32 per cent. Again, whether that's good or bad depends upon how you look at it.

They found that the average waiting time for elective surgery has increased from fourteen months to over two years - and elective surgery in Britain means anything not essential to the immediate saving of life, it means eye operations, haemorrhoids, and varicose veins. They found, most of all, a health system ridden with strikes and industrial-type disputes as doctors and nurses fight for a fair reward under a system which only pays them what the economic status of the country can afford.

Is Prosperity just around the corner?

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Five trends, augmenting each other, may combine to give this country the prosperity we've been hankering for and cut unemployment gradually but effectively despite fumbling by President Ford and Congress.

First, there's the economic turmoil abroad, which, in most areas has been and still is worse than in the United States. According to preliminary information, this trend is encouraging more American companies to direct less of their investment abroad and more at home. This, if the shift continues, will mean that in the years just ahead fewer jobs will be exported, more created here.

Second, there's the start of what apparently is to be a large-scale, greater than in the past, investment of foreign funds in American industry, both through direct ownership and through stocks. How far this trend will go is not yet certain, but the initial strength is gratifying. The jobs created, the spending for new equipment and the expanded consumer buying thus set off could spread widely in the next half-dozen years.

In a number of countries, prominent investment experts have been telling their people of late the United States is now the place to put their money for a best chance of major profit.

Third, a number of the raw materials the United States must import heavily, and whose recent scarcity drove prices up and created production bottlenecks, are now in plentiful supply, with prices down. In some instances there's an actual glut reported. It should be noted that in some instances the bottlenecks caused by the shortages were a more serious factor than high prices in sharpening the recession.

There's often a slip between the cup and the lip, of course, and the advantages of lower raw materials prices generally could be wiped out by a sudden appreciable boost in the price of oil by the international petroleum cartel.

Fourth, the U.S. dollar seems to have stabilized at a realistic value making our exports competitive with those of other countries in a range of important goods. This, at one swoop, should boost sales abroad and give American producers a larger share of the U.S. market itself. American steel manufacturers, for example, will have less fear of cheap foreign imports.

One major reason for the persistence of this recession is the difficulty American firms have had generally in securing the capital needed for expansion, and the working capital required for day to day business at rates which made expansion profitable.

This reasoning underscores the fifth favorable trend, the apparent easing by Chairman Arthur Burns and his Federal Reserve Board of overly tight restrictions on the growth of the money supply, a change of heart which has brought down interest rates. Concurrently, this easing is believed to have stirred renewed interest in stocks by investors who had been sitting on the sidelines. This buying, of course, will add to the supply of capital available to industry. More corporations now may believe it possible to raise the funds they require for expansion through new stock and bond offerings.

One word of caution. The trends noted above are slow acting for the most part. Though there's always the chance anticipation will lead producers and consumers to quickly change attitudes and begin to spend now with vigor, it is more likely that progress will be slow.

Dear Abby

Her Father Wants Proof Boyfriend is Eligible

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, nearly 17, and I'm an honor student. I have always had a good relationship with my parents—until now.

About three months ago I met the most wonderful guy in the world. I'll call him Sammy. It was love at first sight! Sammy is really 23, but we told my parents he is 20 because if they knew how old he was, they wouldn't let me go with him. Sammy is also divorced and has a 3-year-old son who lives with his ex-wife. We didn't tell my parents about the little boy. We just told them that Sammy was divorced.

Sammy wants to marry me, but we don't plan on getting married until I am finished with school.

The problem is my father. He has a very suspicious mind. He says I can't see Sammy again until Sammy produces legal evidence of his divorce.

Abby, I trust Sammy, but I'm afraid if I ask him to show my father proof of his divorce, Sammy will be so hurt and insulted at having been called a liar he will quit seeing me. Don't you think my father is being unreasonable?

I love Sammy so much, I can't live without him. Please help me.

SAMMY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Sorry, I'm inclined to go along with your father. You and Sammy are already withholding the facts about Sammy's real age and his son, which is deceitful. If Sammy doesn't want to bring all the facts out in the open, he's less than "wonderful." Be wise. Listen to your father.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 64. Last year I met a man my age whose wife had died the year before. We are in love. He would be an ideal mate except for one thing. He is very egotistical and likes to see how he registers with other women (waitresses, especially). In other words, he tries to make me jealous.

This is a small town and there are no men around with whom I can make him jealous, so I am unable to get even. Please tell me how to handle this successfully.

HURT AND JEALOUS

DEAR HURT: Don't try to fight fire with fire unless you want your chances to go up in smoke.

Tell him frankly that you are hurt and jealous when he flirts with other women. (He'll be flattered.) If he doesn't cut out the flirting after that, you'll know he doesn't care how you feel.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I had a son out of wedlock. We talked of marriage, but it never came about. I named my son after his father (first, middle and last name) with his approval.

I would like to know if it is illegal or immoral to name an out-of-wedlock child after his father.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It is not illegal. But if the father has a legitimate son named after him, two sons with identical names could create embarrassment and confusion. And to intentionally create such a situation, when it could have been avoided, I think is morally wrong.

Lebanon Appeals to US, UN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian and Moslem forces advancing behind columns of armored cars and artillery seized most of the Lebanese countryside today and Lebanon's Interior Minister appealed to the United States and the United Nations for urgent intervention.

Helicopters began evacuating thousands of refugees from Christian towns and villages captured or in imminent danger of collapse as an invasion force of about 7,000 Palestine Liberation Army and other troops backed by armored cars and field artillery joined an estimated 15,000 Palestinian and leftist forces advancing through north, south and east Lebanon.

No reliable casualty figures were available but police estimated that as many as 350 persons had been killed and 750 wounded over the past 48 hours.

About 4,000 Palestinian regular troops from the Palestine Liberation Army normally based in Syria led the leftist armies as they swept across the countryside. They captured all of the Akkar region in the north, most of the Bekaa Valley in the east and the Christian towns of Damour and Jiyeh along the southern coast about 25 miles from Beirut.

In the east, the Lebanese army fell back and regrouped in the foothills around Zahleh in expectation of a major assault on the Christian city of 60,000 people 25 miles east of Beirut.

Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, who evacuated his coastal residence of Saadiyat as leftists launched a fierce assault on the town from land and sea, appealed for the immediate intervention of the U.N Security Council to avert what he said was the danger of another Middle East war.

"There must be immediate intervention by the United Nations, either through the Security Council or members such as the United States. Otherwise there will be a disaster which would threaten not only Lebanon but the Middle East and the world," Chamoun said.

Chamoun had said earlier that the Palestinian Liberation Army troops that crossed into Lebanon were joined by Syrian army forces outfitted with tanks and heavy guns. He said the presence of PLA troops signified "a Syrian invasion that threatens world security."

An Israeli government source, however, called Chamoun's statements "doomsday pronouncements."

"What he's saying is not true, from all our indications," the source said.

Another Israeli source, a government analyst, described the PLA troops as trained and financed by the Syrian army and said "if the Syrian army hadn't wanted to let them enter Lebanon they wouldn't have let them."

The new development brought further chaos to war-torn Lebanon, which has been without a government to arrange a truce since Premier Rashid Karami resigned Sunday.

Moslems raged across Beirut and the countryside.

The most serious and potentially catastrophic turn of the nine-month civil war came Monday when about 8,000 Palestine Liberation Army troops normally based in Syria joined Moslem forces massing in the southeast Bekka valley and the northern Akar mountain regions.

They pushed northwest through the Bekka with an advance column of armored cars and artillery to Chitaura, 25 miles east of Beirut, as the Lebanese army fell back and regrouped in the foothills around Zahle in expectation of an assault on the Christian city of 60,000.

A smaller force joined several thousand Moslems who stormed police and security outposts in the mountainous northern Akar region, seizing most of the northern tip of Lebanon from Tripoli on the coast to the Syrian border 35 miles north, according to reliable reports.

Christian Interior Minister Camille Chamoun said the PLA presence was tantamount "to a Syrian invasion that threatens world security."

"The Syrian army has entered with its armored cars and heavy guns into the Bekka and Akar," Chamoun said.

He said he would ask the Lebanese delegate at the United Nations to immediately inform the Security Council of the situation.

At the United Nations, Lebanese ambassador Edouard Ghorra said late Monday night he had not yet received any official communication from his government.

Israel, which had threatened to take "defensive measures" if Syria invaded Lebanon, had no official response to Chamoun's charge that Syrian army troops were also involved. However, official Israeli sources said the movement of PLA troops did not appear to constitute a Syrian invasion.

Young Texan Nominee

Frank Stowers, a Pampa High junior, is the Pampa Optimist Club's nominee for Young Texan of the Month honors. Monday, Optimist member Bill Cofer presented Stowers with a certificate for the honor, which is the first step to becoming the state's most deserving high school student. Stowers is involved in several Pampa High activities, including football, Key Club and choir.

Carrillo 'Threatened'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — South Texas District Judge O.P. Carrillo says he was threatened with impeachment if he decided a case involving his political enemy Archer Parr.

Carrillo, testifying in his impeachment trial Monday, said Rep. Terry Canales, D-Premont, made the threat.

"I got a call from Representative Canales three or four days prior to the filing of the impeachment resolution in the House (on May 20)," Carrillo said.

"Mrs. Canales told me that if I did not step down and refuse to hear the Parr case, he was going to file impeachment proceedings against me. I felt it was completely improper for an attorney in my court to threaten action against me unless I stepped down and refused to hear cases involving his client."

Carrillo removed Parr from office, and Canales filed the impeachment resolution.

Carrillo said Parr later offered to have the impeachment proceedings dropped if Carrillo would reinstate Parr as county judge.

"Archer Parr told me if I would reinstate him he would talk to Rep. Terry Canales and all the impeachment matters against me in the House would be dropped," Carrillo testified.

Carrillo's attorneys contend the impeachment articles on which Carrillo is being tried are the result of the political fighting between the Carrillo family and the Parr faction, formerly led by the late George Parr.

Carrillo, under questioning by defense attorney Arthur Mitchell, described the showdown leading to the political split.

He said George Parr, who committed suicide in April, came to the Duval County courthouse on March 19 and threatened to kill Carrillo if the judge attempted to hear a suit for the removal of four Parr allies on the Benavides school board.

Carrillo said rancher Clinton Manges stopped him on the highway and warned him to stay away from the courthouse.

"He said, 'O.P., don't go to the courthouse. George Parr is over there and he's going to kill you. He's mad enough, and somebody told him you were coming to the courthouse. The word is out you're going to sign the removal order on those trustees, and George Parr is going to shoot you when you walk into the courthouse. He said after he kills you, he's going to kill your brother Oscar,'" the judge said Manges told him.

Chamber To Salute '75 United Way

Reservations are being taken for the monthly membership luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Monday, Jan. 26, in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

Tickets may be reserved at $3.30 each by calling the chamber office at 669-3241.

Boyd Taylor, president, said the first membership meeting of 1976 will be a salute to Pampa's successful United Way Campaign which exceeded its $125,000 goal last fall.

Subscribers to the fund, workers and UF officials will be recognized for their efforts in one of the most successful campaigns in the history of the local United Fund organization.

Taylor said the luncheon will be open to the public with the buffet line starting at 11:45 a.m.

Inmate's Escape Foiled

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Authorities foiled an escape attempt and regained control of Wing Seven at Trenton State Prison today after a two-hour disturbance. An inmate who tried to shoot his way out of the walled fortress and flee in a waiting van was killed.

Three prison guards were wounded and another prisoner was shot during a five-minute gun battle at the maximum security prison that touched off an 11-hour disturbance. One of the wounded guards was hit by a homemade bomb.

After ordering 120 inmates in three tiers to strip-naked and leave their cells, authorities began tearing apart the cells in a search for weapons believed smuggled into the prison for the escape attempt.

One .25-caliber pistol was thrown from a tier by an inmate during the uprising, a prison spokesman said.

A prison official said the dead inmate, John Clark, 30, of Newark, N.J., who was serving a life sentence for the killing of a policeman in 1973, had tried twice before to break out of the prison.

In his latest attempt last year, Clark dug a tunnel underneath the prison hospital, but his passage was discovered and he was caught.

State police said they learned during the disturbance that a van was parked near the prison in a residential neighborhood. They said they planned to search the van for weapons after obtaining a warrant.

Prison officials believed the inmates had at least three hand guns and a home-made bomb. The weapons could have been smuggled into the maximum security wing during visits by friends and relatives, according to police.

State police said they believed several inmates were involved in the breakout because other shots were fired by inmates after Clark was killed. He was shot five times, a spokesman said.

At a 7 a.m. news briefing on the front steps of the prison, Institutions and Agencies Commissioner Ann Klein and other officials said there were no injuries other than those wounded in the shootout and no major damage during the incident.

"It was just a break-out attempt," a state police official said.

The disturbance broke out shortly after 8 o'clock Monday evening and guards had the inmates back in their cells about two hours later.

Two Arraigned On Heroin Charge

MCCALLEN, Tex. (UPI) — A federal magistrate has arraigned a Wisconsin man and his wife on charges of smuggling 28.6 pounds of high-quality brown heroin across the U.S. Mexican border.

Customs and Drug Enforcement Administration officers said they seized the heroin, destined for East coast markets, from the door panels of a pickup truck as it attempted to enter the country at the Hidalgo, Tex., international bridge. The arraignment was held Monday.

Officials said Manuel Nunez-Carreño, 36, a resident alien living at Marshall, Wis., his wife Maria Emma, 31, and the couple's daughter, were inside the pickup truck.

"They looked like any other family, just out for a Sunday drive," said Cleburne Maier, regional commissioner of the U.S. Customs Department in Houston.

He estimated the street value of the heroin at more than $10 million.

Maier said authorities at the Hidalgo bridge were tipped to look for the Nunez family and a check of license plate number

Cold Front

By United Press International

A cold front that crept into Texas Monday, bringing colder temperatures and rain in most areas, completed its sweep across the state today. Skies were expected to begin clearing from the west.

Northern panhandle residents shivered in temperatures as low as the mid-20s early today but skies had begun to clear.

A band of rain extended along the front during its passage and cloudiness was reported north to a Dallas-San Angelo-Del Rio line. Temperatures were generally in the low to mid 40s just behind the front and in the 60s in front.

North of the Dallas-San Angelo-Del Rio line, skies were clear except for a few patches of high cirrus clouds.

Today the front is expected to move into the Gulf.

Briscoe Praises Crime Legislation

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says a block grant idea proposed in federal legislation is an innovative way of placing responsibility for crime control decision making at the state and local level.

The governor spoke Monday at the opening session of the National Conference of State Criminal Justice Planning Administrators, which is focusing its convention on the public's right to know versus an individual's right to privacy.

Briscoe praised the block grant concept contained in the Crime Control Act as effective and economical.

"The grassroots planning approach is working," he said. "It is helping all our criminal justice system agencies to get the most productivity possible for the taxpayer dollar. I believe that is important for all Americans."

Briscoe said 200 years after the American Revolution, U.S. citizens are still fighting the battle for freedom from oppression, although the struggle has changed.

He said today's oppressors are burglars, robbers and murderers who demand "your money or your life."

"We have protected our front door from the unwarranted invasion of government, but we have left the back door wide open for the burglar with his crowbar," Briscoe said.

The governor urged the criminal justice planners to strive for maximum efficiency and production and said much of the reported rise in crime in recent years has been due to better police work and more comprehensive reporting of crime statistics.

While only one in four burglaries was reported in 1968, he said, a recent study showed that one in two burglaries is now being reported.

"It is small wonder that the crime rates haven't doubled because of the increased reporting," Briscoe said.

through Treasury Enforcement Communications System registered a "hit." He said the truck was held for federal officers.

The vehicle arrived at the border during the Super Bowl game Sunday but officers did not say whether they believed the arrival was intentionally timed to catch border agents off guard.

U.S. Magistrate Cruz Tijerina set $750,000 bonds each on the Nunez couple and their daughter was released to relatives.

Nunez gave his address as 124 Main Street, Marshall, Wis. He said his age was 37, his wife 31 and child 4.

Nessen Can't Answer Campaign Questions

Ronald Nessen

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary Ron Nessen has no business dealing with the news media on questions involving President Ford's campaign, says the chairman of the Federal Election Commission.

Thomas B. Curtis, who surprised many last week when he said it probably was illegal for Ford to appoint Rogers Morton as White House political adviser, believes the same rule — if not the same law — applies to Nessen.

In short, Curtis doesn't want anyone on the public payroll doing political business for his boss.

"Maybe it's nitpicking, but we have to bend over backward if we're going to get out from under this Watergate cloud," Curtis said. "And besides, what business does he have handling political matters while on the public payroll?"

"What Mr. Nessen should do (when a political question comes up) is have someone from the campaign there, and say 'here is Mr. So-and-so and he works for the campaign and he can answer that,'" Curtis said. Similarly, when the President is on a campaign trip, a press secretary from the Ford campaign, not Nessen, should handle media.

Curtis says it is unfair that an incumbent can use in a campaign the staff paid for by the government. He says he isn't just picking on Ford, the man who appointed him to the FEC. The same should apply to members of Congress.

Monday's precinct caucuses in Iowa are the first step in picking the delegates that end up at the Democratic National Convention next summer. Poles, pundits, reporters and "conventional wisdom" favor Sen. Birch Bayh and former Gov. Jimmy Carter in Iowa, but that old warhorse "undecided" is making a stretch drive.

Reports from Iowa indicate Democrats do not want to commit themselves on the precinct level until they see how the gaggle of Democratic candidates survive in New England.

Jack Anderson reports that all the Democratic candidates and near-candidates are in good health. At the columnist's request, they turned over their medical records, except for independent Eugene McCarthy and Democrats Sargent Shriver and Terry Sanford.

Gov. George Wallace is in "remarkably good shape" considering his paralysis, the column said. Among the nonserious medical problems are heart murmurs of

Sen. George McGovern and Rep. Morris Udall; apparently cured cancer in Sens. Frank Church and Hubert Humphrey; Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's facial twitch and Sen. Henry Jackson's "chronic nasal stuffiness."

And former Sen. Fred Harris has a "significant weight problem."

Newspapers around the country last week showed side-by-side campaign pictures of Ford and Ronald Reagan going through the kiss-the-baby routine. Pretty standard fare for politics — but the Ford folks say they want no more pictures of the President holding small children.

It seems that the campaign theme they're trying to project from the White House is Reagan the Hollywood actor vs. Ford the President — hard at work tending the nation's business. So from now on, according to White House insiders, it will be pictures of Ford at work.

Common Cause, the "people's lobby" headed by John Gardner, recently sent all the presidential candidates a financial disclosure statement. Independent candidate Eugene McCarthy sent it back saying: "We would find it helpful if it were completed by Mr. Gardner. You have our address."

The next day, Ron Cocomo, McCarthy's campaign chairman, sent out another reply to a Common Cause request for the candidate's suggestions on the federal budget.

Again the McCarthy folks sent the form back, saying: "Only a fool or a liar would make a serious attempt to give exact dollar figures on an entire itemized national budget two years before entering office."

The National Women's Political Caucus is keeping a close eye on the 1976 presidential campaign.

The group is monitoring the candidates on women's issue and has sent a questionnaire to Democratic candidates to get their views on such things as the Equal Rights Amendments and the role of women on their campaign staff.

"The purpose is to compile information in accessible form for use in the primaries and state conventions," the group's newsletter states.

In what may be a political first, Iowa Democrats will be charged $10 to watch reporters cover the state's precinct caucuses.

The $10 will get them into the party's tabulation center in Des Moines where they can watch reporters covering the caucus returns.

FDA Says, 'Get the Red Out'

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Red soda pop may never be the same again, and some other foods may wind up looking strange as a result of the government's ban on Red Dye No. 2.

But the cosmetics industry says lipstick will be as red as ever because it has already found substitutes and has virtually phased out use of the controversial dye.

The Food and Drug Administration banned the dye from foods, drugs and cosmetics Monday because its cancer-causing potential has not been proven and new studies have raised additional questions as to its safety.

The FDA ruled out a recall of existing products, however, in the absence of evidence establishing a definite hazard.

The National Soft Drink

Association said the dye is currently being used in orange, grape, strawberry and cherry pop, which together account for 5 to 6 per cent of the $7.8 billion annual wholesale soft drink business.

A spokesman for the association said a "truly satisfactory substitute" for Red 2 has never been found and "it's going to be troublesome — you don't get the same shade with Red No. 40 (a currently available substitute) and it doesn't mix as well."

Cola drinks, which account for about 60 per cent of all such beverages sold, are not affected.

General Foods said it moved promptly last week to shift to substitutes. It said there are "going to be some differences" as a result in some of its desert, beverage and pet food products.

The Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association Inc. said Red 2 has become only a "minor interest" to it because manufacturers, including those who turn out lipstick, have shifted to other dyes.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many manufacturers have eliminated

Red Dye No. 2, the coloring agent banned by the Food and Drug Administration, but some gelatin desserts, beverages mixes and drugs now on the market contain the dye.

The FDA move Monday, which capped a 15-year debate over the dye's safety, had been anticipated by manufacturers of drugs, cosmetics and food. They began substituting other coloring agents up to four years ago.

The dye is used in an estimated $10 billion worth of food every year.

General Foods, which a week ago shifted to another coloring for its few remaining products containing the dye, said some flavors of Kool-Aid and certain fruit-flavored Jell-O desserts now on the market contain red No. 2. The dye also was used in the company's Gaines pet food, both dry and moist.

"There is no evidence the food containing red No. 2 is unsafe," said a General Foods spokesman. "Thus the public can continue to use products now in distribution with complete confidence."

Kraftco said it eliminated red No. 2 four years ago and substituted red dye No. 40 and paprika in its Kraft salad dressings and barbecue sauce.

"The new coloring agents are somewhat more expensive and not as effective since they fade," a spokesman said.

Revlon eliminated the dye from all its products over two years ago, a spokeswoman said.

Bristol-Myers, one of the nation's largest drug companies, said Red No. 2 still is used for color coding in some drugs.

'Magic' Wire in Vein May Control Blood Clots

By BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A "magic" metal wire inserted in a vein may someday reduce the danger of potentially deadly blood clots in the legs breaking free and lodging in the lungs, according to a Boston researcher.

The dangerous clots, such as former President Richard M. Nixon faced with phlebitis, may be trapped by a screen-like formation of wire curled inside the large vein that carries blood from the lower extremities to the heart, the specialist said.

Dr. Morris Simon of Beth Israel Hospital and Harvard Medical School said the nickel-titanium alloy wire can be programmed by extreme heat to form any special shape once inside the body.

The metal is about 10 inches long and slightly thicker than a straight pin. When cooled, it is straight and easily inserted into the vein through a catheter.

When warmed by normal body temperatures, the wire changes to the programmed shape and latches onto the sides of the vein with fishhooklike ends.

The only tests so far have been in dogs, and testing in humans will come later, Simon told the American Heart Association science writers forum Monday.

Enzyme May Aid Treatment

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Johns Hopkins University researchers say they have found an enzyme which may allow doctors to chart the effectiveness of drug and radiation treatments of cancer patients.

Although he is uncertain how it works, Dr. Stephen B. Baylin, head of a research team, said the enzyme histaminase may be used as a "marker" in measuring the value of chemotherapy and radiation treatments.

"What we've found is there's an enzyme by the name of histaminase that is present in the serum of some patients and to a degree present in the tumor tissue of others," he said. "This may provide another potential marker for measuring therapy."

Baylin said histaminase is found in the blood of some lung

Stock Show Winners Told In Canadian

Winners in the calf division classes were: Nancy Rader, Donald Hill, John Julina, John Keeton and Barbara James.

Winners in the swine division were Marty Mitchell, Katrina Walser who won top in two classes, Kyle Beasley and Dale Schafer who also won top in two classes.

Winning champion in the calf contest was John Keeton. Reserve went to Barbara James.

In the swine category, Kathrine Walser won championship with Robert Walser as reserve champion. The two also won in the Durock division.

In crosses and others, Dale Schafer was top championship and Kite Beasley reserve.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JAN. 22

Your birthday today: Your personal magnetism and energy run higher all year but are channeled into familiar patterns that worked the first time. You have many creative impulses and ideas but don't yet have opportunity to use them.

Relationships follow normal lines. Today's natives are born leaders, travel the long roads of the world.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You're so involved in others' problems you neglect your interests and miss a good opportunity. You can help out later when they clarify their objectives.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Extra work is brought on by careless associates. Put in the time required but be sure it's noted and you're compensated. Tempers blow up all over the lot.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Common sense means staying alert. Fix discrepancies while they're small to avoid a crisis. Find time for cultural hobbies.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Family and neighborhood matters are overemphasized and people are unwilling to cooperate. Items you've ignored arise to complicate the situation. Clear up incidents one by one.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Remain near home base and observe local details. Avoid legal actions or extensions of obligations if they can be minimized. Good friends are supportive.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Despite all of your intentions, money gets out of your control, and you have little to show for it. Concentrate on your career and higher earnings. Quit early.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Show yourself off in the best possible light. Take the lead wherever there's a change-over that opens the way. Added expense now in the right direction promises great future returns.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Carry on with the effect of yesterday's progress to expand and improve your position. Figure out a way to distribute the workload so you're freer to plan.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Doing anything in high style is more expensive than you imagined. Defer important changes in business relationships. A small object brings cheer to your household.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Decide whether public or private matters are more urgent. Events may affect you but don't take your tensions out on those who don't deserve it.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Conditions are confusing. Those who object to what and how you do it have no other course to offer. Follow your own intuition and habits.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Overoptimism is natural as life brightens up. Decisions start with tiny details and build into big choices. Talk it over with all concerned. Don't fret about errors.

Con Chem Company

Con - Chem Company, owned by A.D. Conway, has been in business for 10 years and is located at 520 N. Ward.

"We serve a four - state area," Conway said, naming Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas. The firm specializes in weed control with a vast majority of the work in the oil patch treating around oil and gas locations to prevent weed control.

Winters are the busiest seasons, Conway said. He explained that the system includes spraying chemicals on the ground. The procedure is guaranteed to keep weeds out for a year.

Conway came to Pampa in 1939 from Paducah. He began his work in weed control at Borger.

"Pampa is a magnificent city," he said. He considers the Pampa schools the best anywhere.

The schools instilled in the Conway children a good education, he added. He has six children and 13 grandchildren.

GUTHRIE PLANS MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - Five world premieres are included in the Winter season of the Guthrie Theatre's new alternative theatre, Guthrie 2. The season will open with "The Collected Works of Billy the Kid," by Canada's Michael Ondaatje. This will be followed by the five new works: "The Future Pit" by Scottish dramatist Menzies McKillop; a program of three one-acts - "Cold" by Michael Casale, "Glutti" by Gladden Schrock, and "Waterman" by Frank B. Ford; and a new work by Robert Hellman, the Guthrie's playwright-in-residence. The final production of the season will be "Afternoon Tea" by Harvey Perr. A nine-actor repertory company has been formed for the season, which will start Jan. 2

State Compensation for Crime Victims

By GREGORY GORDON
United Press International
Wheelchair-bound Kevin Finneman of Buffalo, Minn., was shot and paralyzed by a gunman robbing a record shop. The state of Minnesota awarded Finneman $10,000 to help pay his medical bills.

A 75-year-old New Jersey woman got $10,000. Her eyes were gouged out by a burglar who wanted to make sure she could not identify him.

Minnesota and New Jersey are among 17 states that now have laws providing compensation for victims of crime — ranging from payments up to $5,000 in Nevada to $45,000 for survivors of persons slain in Maryland.

Nine more states have legislation pending and the U.S. House is considering a bill to provide federal funding for the programs.

The money is intended to help cover uninsured medical bills, lost wages and other expenses incurred by crime victims long neglected by society.

Most state officials say more reforms are needed before victims can get the help they really need.

In New York City, police and citizens groups raised nearly a half million dollars for the six orphaned children of Frank J. Walker, a good Samaritan who was killed last year while coming to the aid of a police officer. The city's good Samaritan law provides only $7,000 a year.

Even in states where there are no laws, the rights of citizens to live in a safe society are being recognized.

In Oregon, where there is no compensation law, judges are ordering convicted criminals to make restitution to victims as part of their sentences — sometimes in the form of monthly payments.

A Chicago attorney, Luis Kutner, recommends that crime victims file civil suits against the state to recover damages under a system of "crime torts."

"Maybe the victims are entitled to a greater share of money being spent on our criminal justice system," Carl Jahnke, chairman of New Jersey's Violent Crimes Compensation Board, said.

"A criminal gets a free ride to jail but a victim even has to pay for an ambulance. And it really doesn't help the victim if his attacker is thrown in jail."

The big problem is money.

Twelve states with laws operate under compensation boards, and most of the boards are lagging in settling claims. Many programs are surviving only because most victims are unaware the programs exist.

Illinois' two-year-old program, which works through a Court of Claims, was nearly $600,000 in debt until the Illinois legislature rescued it last week with another $750,000 appropriation. State officials say the latest funding will last only until April.

In Minnesota, where the law requires police officers to inform crime victims they can file for compensation, all but about $18,000 of the $200,000 appropriation for 1975-76 had been awarded halfway through the year.

Massachusetts' board has settled less than a third of the 1,200 claims filed since the state law took effect in 1968. But average payments have risen from $499.79 in 1969 to an average of about $4,700 in 1974.

Martin Moylan of Baltimore, secretary treasurer of the International Association of Crime Victims Compensation Boards, said federal legislation is needed to provide matching funds for the states. But he said the states can afford to increase their funding.

"The legislatures give you a little money and say, 'You don't know how much you're going to spend, so spend it,'" he said.

"The compensation boards just go back in and say, 'We need another $100,000 or $200,000 to get through the year.' Legislators will hold you back as far as overhead and salaries, but not for awards. It's not that much money we're talking about."

Maryland's program, which Moylan administers, provides the best benefits for crime victims — up to $45,000 to survivors or dependents of persons killed, with an upward limit.

"This year we'll make $1,750,000 in awards," Moylan said. "That's hot high for a state of 4 million people — it doesn't even cost 50 cents a person per capita."

Financially ailing New York will pay out $3.5 million this year in maximum awards of $15,000 per victim.

The California legislature this year increased funding in its 10-year-old program to $3.25 million, to be distributed in maximum awards of $23,500. The money is expected to go to 6,500 victims, five times the number two years ago.

A Justice Department spokesman said the White House favors the proposed law only for federal crimes, because of its cost.
